They Got the Pig.

Speaking of the toll gate near the 'pool, which was the last on the old Boston and Albany line to be torn down, recalls to memory an amusing incident which old Dr. Shaw, its keeper, used to relate.

Shaw used to travel with an old ventriloquist by the name of Potter some years before he began to tend the gate, and he was a pretty clever magician, the doctor was, so the two hitched up well together.

Well, the story goes that Potter and Shaw were riding in 'Reub' Underwood's coach over the Monson and Southbridge line, and the vehicle was crowded with passengers who considered themselves pretty high toned folks, and I guess they really were.

At any rate when the stage arrived at Southbridge they all got out and went into the tavern there to get dinner. The party sat down at the table and Potter, the ventriloquist, who was a stranger to all excepting Shaw, came in after taking a sip of "toddy" and sat down also at the same table. A roast pig was brought in on a platter by the servant and set upon the table, and just after one member of the party had finished saying grace and began carving the pig, it squealed terrifically, and the majority of the members of the party not knowing that Potter was a ventriloquist, as I said, thought for a moment that the pig was alive, and after screeching and screaming, the carver simultaneously throwing his knife and fork across the dining room, got up and left the table, leaving Potter and Shaw to finish the pig.—Boston Globe.

He Still Lives.

He stood on the steps of the City Hall yesterday and blew his nose and wiped his eyes and steadied himself by one of the stone columns, and when he was asked if he were ill he replied;

"You bet I'm ill! 'Tain't in the body, but right here—right here in the heart!"

"Are you subject to heart trouble?"

"You bet! Heart's allus been troubled. That's why I drink."

"Have you been drinking?"

"Course I have. I'm three drinks high. That's why I cry. When I get about half drunk I feel so sad and lonesome that I wouldn' give a frozen banana to live another day."

"Do you feel that way now?"

"I do. I don't care to live another minute. I'd welcome death with outstretched arms!"

"Poor man!"

"Don't! Sympathy allus breaks me down. Three drinks and a few kind words make a child of me. Please go away and let me stand here and freeze to death. I'm no good on earth. I want to die."

The policeman on duty in the lower corridor was informed of the case, and he went out and gave the man the collar. Presto change! He had scarcely got hold of him when the sorrowful hearted began to resist in the most vigorous manner, and as he was finally landed in the patrol wagon he called out: "Old fel, I've got my eye on you, and I want to live a thousand years to get even!"—Detroit Free Press.

Gen. Sherman at the Play.

Most people are aware that Gen. W. T. Sherman is a resident of New York, and that he is one of the most tireless of theatre goers. He is a first nighter, and usually a conspicuous figure on an aisle seat or in a proscenium box. A peculiarity of the general's is that he seems to forget that any one besides himself is in the theatre. He talks to his companion about the people on the stage in a tone of voice easily audible up in the balcony. He coughs, clears his throat, blows his nose with a sound like a steam whistle, and actually bellows out his remarks without regard of his surroundings. The other night at one of the fashionable houses he broke in upon a perfectly silent bit of stage action, which was being worked out by a young actress, with the stentorian praise of:

"She's going to make an actress."

Everybody near him stared and then laughed. The general did not appear to be aware he had been heard, coughed, blew his nose audibly, and then settled back into his big collar with a loud grunt of utter contentment. At that theatre, where everybody knows the old warrior, his rumbling interruptions are accepted good naturedly.—New York Letter to Pittsburg Post.

"Green's Funeral Tune."

The Listener knows a distinguished musical critic who has a playful side to his character and, who, for instance, had the performance of "Verdi's Requiem Mass" down on his budget of memoranda the other day as "Green's funeral tune." At the hall the Listener encountered the great critic as he was coming out.

"How did you like it?" asked the Listener.

"It was great; I think I never heard the tune played so well in my life."

And he passed on. Just behind the Listener were two good looking girls, who had been in a state of perfunctory rapture over the performance. One of them whispered to her companion:

"Did you hear what that man called the requiem? A tune! How perfectly shocking! I should think people so ignorant as that would stay away from concerts!"—Boston Transcript.

Complete Rest.

Fred's mamma was not at all well, and the doctor said she must "take a complete rest" at once. So presently the family took wing for Northport, in the wilds of Maine. The first night of their sojourn there mamma was putting Fred to bed, and, as usual, called him to her side to say his prayers. The little fellow's face was an interrogation point of astonishment and dismay, and no persuasion could induce him to pray. Mamma looked puzzled and grieved; whereupon her little son, with an unlifting of his small pug nose suggestive of infinite disgust, proceeded to enlighten her mind: "Why, mamma! the doctor said we must take a complete rest!"—New York Tribune.

Rioters in Servia Attack the Military—Attempted Retrenchment in the Foreign Office.

THE TRIPLE ALLIANCE.

London, May 28.—The Berlin correspondent of the Standard says that it has been decided that it would be superfluous to renew the treaties between Austria and Germany. Among several communications, it is reported that a joint letter was sent by King Humbert and Emperor William to the Emperor Francis Joseph to which he replied in a cordial note, expressing his approval of the views set forth in their letter.

RETRENCHMENT IN FOREIGN OFFICE.

London, May 28.—In the House of Commons this evening Edmund Robertson, Liberal member from Dundee, moved to reduce the Foreign Office vote. The purpose of the motion being to take judgment of the House in the matter of the absence of Lord Lytton, British Ambassador to France, from the opening ceremonies of the Paris Exposition. The withdrawal of Mr. Robertson it is thought, was the result of a pre-arrangement in view of the simultaneous action of representatives of other powers ordering their representatives to hold aloof from the ceremonies.

LORD LYTTON EXCUSED.

Sir Jas. Ferguson, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, denied that Lord Lytton's absence was due to any pre-arrangement with the Continental Governments. The House, he said, was of the opinion that England should not take part in the celebration of the Centenary of a Revolution regarding which parties in France remained bitterly divided. When factions were unanimous in the celebration of a great event, there was no impropriety in the Queen's representative being present. As in the case of the celebration of the Centenary of the Independence of America, but there was no analogy between France and America. Furthermore there was no dissatisfaction in France at the absence of Lord Lytton from the opening of the Exhibition. Gladstone said he acquitted the Government of acting in concert with the other powers in the matter, but thought the Government was blamable for its error of judgment. Lord Lytton ought to have been present. Motion rejected 283 to 190.

PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES PUBLICLY INSULTED.

London, May 28.—At a meeting to-day of the London County Council, a resolution was proposed expressing the sympathy of that body with the Prince and Princess of Wales on account of their disrespectful treatment by the mob on Saturday last while witnessing the Firemen's parade. Mr. John Burns, the well-known Socialist member of the Council, objected to the resolution, and the matter was dropped.

VALKYRIE BEATEN.

London, May 28.—The yacht Valkyrie was defeated to-day in a race with the Irex and Yarana. The race was from Harwich to South End along the Essex coast. The Irex came in first. The Yarana second, and the Valkyrie third. Official time was Irex 3, 3, 44; Yarana 3, 25, 23; Valkyrie 3, 26, 22.

FINED $5,000.

Prague, May 28.—The municipality has fined the Tramway Company $5,000 for suspending the regular service on account of the strike of the employes, and has given warning that the company's charter will be withdrawn unless operations are immediately resumed.

SAMOAN CONFERENCE.

Berlin, May 28.—The Samoan commission resumed its sittings to-day. During the adjournment numerous despatches passed between the American Commissioners and the State Department at Washington. The most difficult questions are now thought to have been settled and that little actual work remains to be accomplished.

EVICTIONS IN IRELAND.

Dublin, May 28.—The last has not yet been heard of the Dalcaragh evictions. Police forces are present in great numbers, and the tenantry resist them at every step. While forcing their way into the houses of tenants today by means of scaling ladders, the officers were dragged to the ground by the enraged populace, their ladders being pulled from under them. Twenty-five policemen were injured in the scuffle.

GATHERING OF GLADSTONIANS.

London, May 28.—The Marquis of Londonderry, Viceroy of Ireland, will retire from that office August 5th. Sir Chas. Russell gave a dinner to-night to Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone. Among the guests were Mr. Parnell, Earl of Aberdeen and many other leading Gladstonians. Lord Randolph Churchill was also present.

MORE IRISH EVICTIONS.

Dublin, May 28.—Many English and American visitors were present to witness the evictions to-day on the Luggacuran estate. The families of eight and ten were put out of their houses.

THE SERVIAN RIOTS.

Belgrade, May 28.—In the riot which occurred last night, a gen d'arme was killed, a lieutenant badly wounded, and a colonel commanding some of the military was dragged from his horse by the mob, and maltreated. The troops, however, were not allowed to fire upon the rioters.

PARNELL COMMISSION.

London, May 28.—The Parnell Commission will adjourn on Friday next and will not re-assemble until June 18th, when Messrs. Thomas Condon and John O'Connor, Nationalist members of Parliament, now serving terms of imprisonment under the Crimes Act, will be permitted to come to London to testify in the case. Mr. Reid, of the Parnellite counsel, produced some of the books of the National League, which had been in possession of Mrs. Maloney of Dublin. The Times, he said, would have secured the books before, if it had subpœnad Mrs. Maloney.

San Francisco, May 28.—Captain Gilbert Borden, who has been appointed to take charge of the new station at Point Barrow, arrived in this city yesterday. He will leave for the north on the steamer Bear.

FOR THE WHALERS.

The whaling tender Jas. L. Pope, leaves for the north on Saturday. She will carry supplies to the whalers who will assemble at Point Hope to meet her. She will also take mail matter addressed to those on board the vessels of the Arctic fleet.

STEAMER BEHIND TIME.

The Pacific Mail S. S. Co's steamer City of Pekin from Hong Kong via Yokohama, is several days over due at this port, and some little anxiety is beginning to be felt for her safety.

SUICIDED.

Oakland, Cala., May 28.—Mrs. John Shaffer, wife of a laborer, strangled herself with a piece of suspender to-day. She had been ill for some time.

LIGHTING FIRES WITH COAL OIL.

Sacramento, Cala., May 28.—Miss Seeta Kreeger who attempted to kindle a smoldering fire with coal oil last night, and who was severely burned by the explosion of the can of oil, died this morning.

BRITISH WAR SHIPS FOR BEHRINGS SEA.

San Francisco, May 28,—A dispatch from Victoria to-day, stating that the entire British fleet now in British Columbian waters will shortly proceed to Behring Sea created considerable discussion among naval officers here. The Chronicle thinks that President Harrison's proclamation declaring the eastern half of Behring Sea a closed sea does not warrant Great Britain in sending men-of-war into that sea to defend British sealers by force of arms. "All the seals that ever were, or will be taken in Behring Sea" it says, "are not worth the risk of a serious rupture with England, and yet if so grave a matter is committed to the care of subordinates who can do nothing but obey orders we may find ourselves involved in actual war before we know it."

THE CRONIN CASE.

WILFUL MURDER OF DR. CRONIN.

Chicago, May 28.—The Grand Jury after seven hours in session, indicted Detective Coughlin, P. O. Sullivan, a Lakeview iceman, and F. Black, for the wilful murder of Dr. Cronin.

Chicago, May 28.—Later advices say, on absolute authority, that the police have become certain that instead of only a few being connected with Dr. Cronin's murder, there are

AT LEAST A SCORE IMPLICATED.

Among these are eight of the most prominent Irish Nationalists in the city. These men are shadowed day and night. Among the best known is Alexander Sullivan, ex-President of the

IRISH NATIONAL LAND LEAGUE

of America. This Sullivan is closely watched wherever he goes. The Chief of Police says there is only a single fact among all the indirect evidence that points to Sullivan as being implicated. His friends say the tale is fabricated by men whom he has opposed in secret circles for years. The New York Herald reiterates the charge as to the Clan na Gael removing Cronin on the ground of being a British spy after a formal trial and conviction. It is known a trial committee was empannelled though no name transpired, only evidence given. The utmost secrecy is observed in choosing a committee. Charges were preferred against Cronin of being a British spy. He was found guilty by a unanimous vote and

SENTENCED TO BE REMOVED.

In some way knowledge of these proceedings came to Cronin and hence his frequent statements just before he met his death that a violent end was in store for him. The article also states that the only object of the presence in Chicago of Luke Dillon, of Philadelphia, who is one of the triumvirate now ruling the order is to learn the number of the camp by which the committee was appointed. The Coroner's jury to-day visited the cottage, manhole, and the locality in which

THE TRUNK WAS FOUND,

and returned to the city and adjourned until tomorrow morning. A widow named Hamburger, has turned over to the police a suit of flannel underclothes and a vest which were found by her two boys, aged 9 and 11 years, in a clump of bushes on Evanston road, not far from the spot where the trunk was found. Officers are mysterious regarding the find, and refuse to say whether the articles have been identified as having been worn by the murdered man.

PERSONAL.

Thomas Hooper, Architect of the new Methodist Church, left by the morning train yesterday.

S. Leiser returned to Victoria yesterday.

J. Hilbert and George Kennedy were passengers to Victoria yesterday.

Mrs. R. Atwood and Mrs. D. Fielding arrived by the noon train yesterday.

Alex. Easson returned yesterday from a visit to the Capital.

POLICE COURT.

Before J. P. Planta, and Mayor Bate.

Bob, a Siwash, was charged by W. H. Lomas with being drunk on the Reserve.

Bob was allowed to go on his own recognizances in the sum of $20 to keep the peace for one year, and to pay costs of $5. The Bench remarked that Bob was the last, with one exception, of his once powerful tribe.

AMERICAN GUNBOAT FOR BEHRING SEA.

Washington, May 28.—The United States steamer Thetis sailed from Tacoma, W. T., for Sitka, Alaska, yesterday. She will cruise in Alaskan waters until further orders, with a view to prevent the illegal killing of fur bearing animals.

ANOTHER CRONIN ITEM.

New York, May 28.—The Municipal Council, and the Irish National League to-night adopted resolutions condemning the murder of Dr. Cronin, and expressing a hope for the speedy punishment of the assassins, and scouting the allegations that the League had any connection with the crime.

LARGE SALE OF BEER.

Detroit, Mich., May 28.—The Voight Brewing Company has sold to an English corporation with a capital of $1,000,000, Mr. Voight, the proprietor of the company receiving $950,000 of it. Mr. Voight will retain $250,000 stock in the concern and will continue as managing director for three years.

CARELESSNESS DID IT.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 28.—Two freight trains on the Housatonic Railroad collided near Bull station at 4:30 this morning, causing a frightful wreck. Engineer Wm. B. Lock and Chas. Olds, brakeman were killed, and Engineer McDermott and Brakeman Lamont severely injured. The collision was caused by carelessness on the part of the telegraph operator,

GREAT MEETING OF GOOD TEMPLAR DELEGATES.

Chicago, May 28.—The biennial session of the Great Worth Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars, has opened in the First Methodist Episcopal Church. W. W. Turnbull, of Scotland, Right Grand Worthy Chief Templar, called the convention to order and upon call of roll the following delegates from abroad responded: England—Hon. C. W. Watson, member of Parliament, Jos. Ealins, Mrs. Woods, Guy Baylor, W. C. Emery, A. J. Osborne, Rev. H. M. C. Price, W. Williams, Samuel Insall, W. H. Browne, Mary Walshall, Annie Shipman. Scotland — Gilbert Archer, Rev. J. B. McKinnon, James Hamilton and W. W. Turnbull. Ireland —John S. Lyttle. Denmark—Captain J. P. Jacobson. Sweden—Oscar Eklund, Johann Ahlen and B. E. Rockert. India —Walter E. Webb. New South Wales—N. S. Collins, and from South Africa—Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Schreiner.

A ROUND OF APPLAUSE

was accorded each foreign delegate as the names were called, and the lodge was opened with the usual ritual. The annual report shows that the organization has a membership of over three-quarters of a million, scattered all over the globe, and that it has accomplished great results in the matter of promoting temperance since the last Convention. Financially it is in excellent shape. In the evening the 21 local lodges united in giving the delegates a brilliant reception.

CLAN NA GAEL AND DR. CRONIN.

Chicago, May 28.—The delegates representing eleven camps of Clan na Gael, met last night to take action regarding the murder of Dr. Cronin. Luke Dillon, of Philadelphia, presided. The following preamble and resolutions were adopted: Whereas, we have heard with deep regret of the terrible crime that has fallen on our fair city in the death of Dr. Cronin, therefore be it resolved, That we the representatives of the Clan na Gael, place on record our detestation of the crime of assassination, and we enter our solemn protests against the evident attempt of the murderers of our brother to place the crime of his death on our order. It is not the spirit or the object of the Clan na Gael, and we repudiate it, and we hereby pledge our best efforts to the authorities to aid in hunting down the criminals and to vindicate law and order.

REVELATION CONCERNING DR. CRONIN.

Chicago, May 28.—It now appears that Peter McGeehan was at Pullman the night of Cronin's murder and could not have taken part in the crime. There are a number of Pullman and Kensington people who say that they saw McGeehan on the night of Dr. Cronin's disappearance. That the statement of P. O. Sullivan, the Lake View ice man, who made a full confession yesterday concerning his connection with the murder of Dr. P. B. Cronin and gave to the police the names of several persons who were implicated in the awful crime, was confirmed this morning. Captain Shaack when asked about the matter hesitated, and finally said: "Well, there is no use in denying it, Sullivan gave us a good many valuable pointers but we cannot give them out now without hurting our case." Chief Hubbard was questioned in regard to the matter, and admitted that a well known man was being already watched, and that while he is at liberty to go where he chooses in this city, he is practically under arrest, and any attempt on his part to leave the city would result in his being placed behind the bars. Chief Hubbard was at work all night and was at his desk early this morning. He refused to say whether there has been any arrest made since P. O. Sullivan was taken into custody, but from his manner it was inferred that several arrests were made last night.

THE CRAZE FOR JOURNALISTIC PERSONAL GOSSIP.

One of the annoyances with which famous writers of books have now-a-days to put up with, is the infliction of seeing daily paragraphs of insulting and mendacious tattle on the writer's private affairs. In order to give offence to "these minor reptiles of the press," the book-writer has but to succeed. Frances Hodgson Burnett, in a letter to the New York Critic, complains of the way in which these "paragraphers" have treated her. We wish we had space and time to make more lengthy extracts from the letter to which we refer. "Even my" (Mrs. Burnett's) "little boys are assailed, as if it mattered to any human being whether they" "throw stones at cats" "or not." "Unhappily," to quote a recent writer in a great English Review—"remarks which would sting an honest man or woman like a blow, only amuse the creatures who pen or publish their daily tale of dull malice. To them there is no use in appealing. The common paragraph-maker likes to be insulted; he thinks that it proves he has made himself felt." "Is it, or is it not"—asks Mrs. Burnett—of consequence that a statement published and copied all over the English-speaking countries, is untrue in every word and detail. Does it, or does it not matter in the least, that a man or woman who has done honest and respectable work, should on that account feel that his or her character, good taste, and good manners, may be impugned at so much a line in any newspaper? Does it not matter that such an individual cannot live a life so simple, so secluded, and so well-meaning as to escape the most grotesque misrepresentations? I ask these questions not only for myself, but for a number of modest, respectable persons who have had the misfortune to write a popular book or play, or to occupy a prominent position." Mrs. Burnett goes on to ask—"when an article is presented at an editorial office, is its truth or untruth, its justice or patent malignity, entirely indifferent to the purchaser? Will some journalist of established reputation answer this question? I put it with all modesty, and respect for journalism." We have seen it stated that the "best copy" is gossip; the more personal, the "better copy." The remedy is not easy to find, unless prominent men and women eschew such papers as are likely to contain their names. We have heard of a pleasure party in a boat being caught in a storm. "Are you afraid?" said a man to a little boy. "No," answerod the child; "if I'm drowned my name will be in the papers." Perhaps, as the raconteur says, this was an extreme instance of the consolation which posthumous fame and the prospect of it can minister.

IMPERIAL FEDERATION.

LORD BRASSEY has frequently endeavored to make it plain both in Great Britain and her colonies, that they could make a better business of it by staying together, than by flying apart. He has attempted to show that Canada obtains an amount of protection as a portion of the Empire, which it could never get from its own strength, and in return gives us the treatment of the most favored nation. Australia—he also tells us—might cover the flank of India and does in the meantime treat us as well as its Protectionist policy allows it to treat anybody. LORD BRASSEY is a man who has been everywhere and done everything, and the seeing and doing has convinced him that "union is good, and even closer union is to be desired." This may be all very well but would be still better if LORD BRASSEY or any of those who think with him upon this matter of Imperial Federation would tell us how it is to be done. We—and doubtless most of our readers—have read numberless speeches and printed articles advocating this measure, but in no single instance have we found anyone who can extract this most valuable information from the Imperial Federation League. Of course all are agreed that the union of the Empire is to be cherished. But—as has been well pointed out by Lord BRASSEY'S critics—how is the Union to be made closer than it is, and put under a common Government in which all parts will have a share? Suppose that Canada comes to an open rupture with the United States over the Fishery question and that Australia becomes thoroughly aroused over the Chinese Immigration difficulty. Great Britain cannot afford to forego her friendly relations with either America or China, the latter of which great Powers may not improbably in the near future, prove an invaluable ally in the Far East. The situation may arise at any moment. If it does, how would Lord BRASSEY and his League deal with it? No one at present, we imagine, wishes for separation, but, Imperial Federation League notwithstanding, we believe that so far from the Mother country binding her Colonies to her more closely—the tendency is quite the other way and that at no distant date a variance of interests will cause those of her offspring which are the most advanced, to cut the last connecting link which binds them to Great Britain, and set up as did the United States of America, entirely on their own accord.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A telegram received yesterday states that the Superintendent of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company complained to a reporter that business was not nearly so good as it should be at this time of the year. "One of the chief causes," he says "is the competition of the Canadian Pacific." This statement, simple as it is, shows most conclusively that if the absolute supremacy of San Francisco as the city of the Pacific Coast, is not actually threatened in the near future, yet that the carrying trade has not yet settled itself into grooves of any depth. There is talk of fresh lines of steamships to connect British Columbia with Australia and Valparaiso. Trade with the Far East is rapidly increasing in volume. Looking these facts in the face, we think that it is no chimerical dream on the part of the vice-President of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, when he said years ago that the largest city on this coast north of San Francisco would be in British Columbia.

ENGLISH telegrams express great hopes as to the future achievements of Earl Dunraven's yacht "Valkyrie," which it is fondly hoped may win "the cup" from the United States this year. Her trials have been remarkably satisfactory. Each time that she has been raced she has completely out-distanced her competitors, her time record being also remarkably good when the state of the weather which she experienced is taken into account. Englishmen—it comes to us more naturally than Britons—the world over take the greatest possible interest in these periodical contests, though the result has so far been rather disheartening. In spite of repeated defeats in former years, the accounts which reach us by wire of the doings of Earl Dunraven's yacht cause us to hope that this year the British flag may pass the judge, ahead of the Stars and Stripes.

OUR telegraphic despatches offer no explanation as to why W. Irving Bishop's wife offered no opposition at the time, to the surgeon's autopsy on the body of her husband. If no such opposition were made, we don't quite see how the case can be a conflict of medical testimony during the inquest now pending—We grant that. There is something horrible in the idea put forward by the relatives of Bishop that he was carved up by the surgeons while alive, although in a trance so complete as to elude scientific skill. The only reasons for supposing that this condition was mistaken for actual death are that Bishop's mother and sister were both subject to cataleptic trances, and his mother in one of them heard preparations being made for her own funeral, but fortunately recovered sensibility in time to prevent being buried alive. Bishop himself has been known to go into one of these trances, so that there is a possibility of the autopsy having been held too hastily.

Not That Kind of a Charm.

Northern Gentleman (who has been reading on the subject of voudooism among the colored people and thinks he will make a little original research)—Jasper, do any of your people carry charms about them for protection?

Jasper—Oh yes, sah; but I nebber hear dem call charms 'fore; more ginerally call dem razors, sah.—Harper's Bazar.

Exonerated.

"Great heavens! What is the matter! Lily, my darling, what is it? Oh, Mr. Buskin, what has happened?"

These words were uttered by William G. Simpson as he entered the luxuriously furnished drawing room of James P. Buskin, of the firm of Sock & Buskin, the great theatrical managers. He had been engaged to the lovely daughter of the house for only one week, but, oh, how blissful that period had been!

And now, what had occurred? His fiancee was in tears, and her father was in the room to meet him, with sternness upon his brow. Had the misfortune of William G. Simpson's earlier life, the awful secret of his youth, been discovered? He trembled at the thought.

His worst suspicions were confirmed when the father spoke.

"Mr. Simpson," he said, "all is over between you and my daughter. You have kept back from us a part of your life. You have been accused of crime."

William Simpson fell upon his knees. "I was innocent!" he cried. "I declare before Heaven that I was innocent!"

"That may be," responded the stern old man; "but my che-ild shall not go through life with her name linked to that of a man against whom one breath of suspicion lingers. Prove your innocence, William G. Simpson, and all may yet be well. What was the crime of which you were accused?"

"It was," sobbed the young man, "of—of stealing Mlle. Blanche de Ballet's diamonds."

"My son, my son! How could I ever have doubted you?" cried James P. Buskin, as he fell upon the other's neck. "You are innocent! We were advertising her for a summer tour."

"William, my own darling, my love, my life!" cried Lily, as her lover pressed her to his bosom.—Life.

A Slight Misunderstanding.

She was very sick and her husband sent for the doctor. I think that ladies have so little to do nowadays that it is a kind of way they have of amusing themselves—getting sick and sending for the doctor. I don't believe we will ever have female doctors to any extent. If we do it will be mainly for children. Men will never take kindly to female doctors. I suppose it may be an unjust opinion, but I can't fancy a man being very spoony with a doctor. There is a distinct prejudice in mankind against a woman who has anything of a practical nature except about the house.

He doesn't mind if she can hang pictures and nail down carpets and sew on buttons, but a scientific woman is always viewed with suspicion. A male doctor, for instance, always says it is the liver or the stomach; a female doctor would probably say it was the heart, and she would very often be right. The ladies don't want a female doctor. It is in some cases the only chance they have of seeing a man when they are sick. However, the doctor was called in, and, of course, immediately wrote out a prescription. It was for some pills, to be taken every third day. He came again the next morning.

"Well, did you take the pills?"

"No, doctor, the three days are not up until Wednesday."—San Francisco Chronicle.

A Sure Test.

Bessie—Ma and pa have been quarreling, haven't they?

Willie—Yep.

Bessie—Which one got the worst of it—do you know?

Willie—Not yet. I'm waiting to see which one of them slams the door going out.—Burlington Free Press.

A Clew at Last.

Police Captain—You are working on the murder of Greatman, ain't you?

Detective—Yes; been on it six weeks.

"Well, I see by the papers that a fellow who lives in the alley around the corner has confessed that he is the murderer."

"By Jinks! Maybe that's a clew."—Philadelphia Record.

Another Great Artist.

"What a wonderful painter Rubens was!" remarked Merritt at the art gallery.

"Yes," assented Cora. "It is said of him that he could change a laughing face into a sad one by a single stroke."

"Why," spoke up little Johnnie, in disgust "my school teacher can do that."—Harper's Bazar.

Birchrod—Yes; I have always endeavored to put in my best licks at it.—Burlington Free Press.

Precious Water.

Ascension Island cannot be a very desirable place in which to live, if one may judge from the following description of the difficulty of procuring fresh water. A. B. Ellis at the island meets an old friend, who shook hands, reached down a coat from a peg and put it on, saying: "Excuse my not putting on a shirt, will you?"

"Of course, of course. Take off more of your clothes, if you'll feel more comfortable."

"N-no, it's not that, but the fact is that I haven't a shirt clean enough to put on."

I could only murmur my suprise at this strange circumstance, and endeavor to look sympathetic. He went on: "I dare say you think it odd that I don't have them washed?"

I thought perhaps he had had some difficulty with his laundress, had not paid her bill, but I could not say that, so I inquired: "Why don't you?"

He unfolded a horrible tale to the effect that the water supply of the island consists principally of what is distilled by a condenser, a small quantity being obtained from Dampier's Drips and Brandreth Wells. That water was always so scarce that it was served out like a ration of rum, only more sparingly, the allowance in prosperous times being two gallons a day per man.

When clothes were sent to the wash, the water for washing them had to be sent with them. That the condenser had now been out of order for some nine or ten days, and everybody on the island had been put on short allowance, so that they had not enough for drinking, much less for washing either themselves or their clothes.—Youth's Companion.

Tomatoes in England.

Americans, accustomed to see tomatoes in some shape on the table nearly every day of the year, will scarcely appreciate how nearly that familiar vegetable comes to being a rare delicacy in England. Ten years ago it was an exception to find this delightful fruit on the tables of any but the wealthy; but today they are to be found in most houses during the season, their extensive cultivation having brought down the price so as to make them come within the reach of all. The tomato, or love apple, as it was formerly called, originally came from South America, but it was not until the climate of the United States was found to be eminently adapted to their growth that they came into general use, the taste for the same spreading to Europe.

It is, in addition to its valuable hygienic qualities, one of the most profitable fruits to cultivate, and we know of one private gentleman who sends no less than one ton to market daily in the early season, the price paid for the same averaging 6d. per pound, all of them being grown under glass. Few come to perfection in the open air, owing to the short duration of sunshine in England. Like the olive, it was a long time before the people became accustomed to the peculiar and delicate flavor, but each day they grew in popularity, so much so, indeed, that Cape Town has been requisitioned for a supply of the same when they are out of season here.—London Tattler.

Punching His Ticket.

They were telling experiences the other night, and Col. Granniss told one of his. He made the trip through the southern country here just after the road had been opened. The festive cowboy had just begun to enjoy the sport of running the train in the rough region, and at one of the stations a formidable specimen of that tough human boarded the cars. The conductor came along punching the tickets, and this cowboy did not pay any attention to him. At last the conductor laid his hand on the cowboy's shoulder and said, "Ticket please." The cowboy turned in true cowboy style, pulled out his revolver and pointed it at the conductor.

"Here's my ticket."

The conductor walked on and punched everybody else's coupon. Then he disappeared. The little incident had been forgotten by almost everybody on the car. The cowboy was in a quiescent state and the car was quite still when the conductor came in. He walked leisurely up the aisle and suddenly stopped before the cowboy, placed a great big knife dangerously contiguous to his vital part and said, quietly:

"Lemme see that ticket again."

The cowboy paid his fare.—San Francisco Chronicle.

A Wise Dog.

The possession of an intelligent dog in the family may be a very useful means out of emergencies. Not long ago some members of a family returning from an evening entertainment were unable to gain an entrance into their house. The key had been forgotten and the servants were evidently asleep. Ringing the door bell produced no response. The only sound indoors was that of the dog's tail gently thumping against the rug, but after a time that ceased. The dog had recognized his friends and refused to bark. When all efforts to enter seemed fruitless, the door was opened by a sleepy servant accompanied by a very wide awake dog. It seemed that this friend of the family had made his way to the servant's room and had gently awakened her to a realization of the situation. As he had never been permitted to enter the room before it is evident that his sense of the needs of the occasion had shown him that he should not wait for a ceremonious invitation.—Boston Journal.

What Our Weather Costs Us.

The United States pays $900,000 a year for its weather service, Great Britain $90,000, Germany $56,000, Russia $65,000, Austria $10,000, Switzerland $6,000, France $60,000. And, though no European nation attempts to do as much as we do, or takes general observations more than once a day, the percentage of verification of predictions is rising there, which is hardly the case in this country. Our weather service, with its great cost and thorough organization, ought to be the best in the world.—Detroit Free Press.

REDEYE'S DEEP GRATITUDE.

How the Editor of a Paper Won Him as a Life Long Friend.

The great truth that position in a newspaper, as in life, is everything, was brought home to me very forcibly several years ago, while acting as editor on a frontier daily which had the largest circulation and chattel mortgage in the territory, which latter fact has never been successfully contradicted to this day. The fall crop of local nominations were just in, and the nominee for sheriff on the opposition had a reputation so tough that 44 bullets would flatten against it. I felt it incumbent on me as a newly laid editor to point out wherein he was not a suitable man for the office. I told in a caustic double leaded editorial how he had, while previously holding some office, taken money from criminals who were amateurs compared with himself, and allowed them to escape to Manitoba or the Northwest territory.

I showed him up as a thief, a blackmailer and a gambler, and stated that if rumor is not hopelessly wrong he had long had the run of the ranges as an unconvicted horse thief. As a man with whom murder was a pastime, and all round crime a mere relief from the monotony of dispensing poison over a bar, I believed him unworthy of the confidence of our best people, and therefore urged his defeat at the polls. As the editorial was a little strong, I ventured to show it to the proprietor. He read it, and said: "H'm; you can run this if you choose, but you must assume all personal responsibility."

"Certainly," I answered. "I will do so, but in view of Redeye's record I don't think there is any libel suit in it."

"I am not afraid of that and will take all financial responsibility, but you must shoulder the personal responsibility." He emphasized the word "personal" so much that I wondered. He then shook hands with me in a fervid though mournful manner, a proceeding that was unusual, and quietly went out, as I learned afterward, and telegraphed back east to St. Paul to have another editor sent on at once. He was a prudent proprietor, and trusted that the new man would arrive in time to handle my obsequies and make a good story out of it. We met the next morning at the office, much to his surprise. He grasped my hand again and asked if I had heard from Col. Redeye yet. There were several others of the force present. At that instant the colonel's voice was heard in the hallway. It was a moment of sprightly activity. The meeting dissipated itself with a suddenness only equaled by the adjournment of a female convention when a mouse takes the floor. Every one believed it was a case of the quick or the dead, and they preferred to indulge in the former. All remembered some overdue appointment, to miss which might cause great monetary loss, and one in his haste took the window sash with him. I was left alone in innocent tenderfoot calmness, and the colonel entered.

"You the editor?"

I had that honor.

"Well, young feller, you're a friend of mine, and I'm not so low down as to forgit a friend or forgive an enemy, as the poet says. Of course you had to say something ag'in me, not being of my party, but you put your little game of talk on the inside of an editorial. If you had put it on the front page, with black type for a starter, I might have felt it my duty to kill you. But as it is, I appreciate the favor, and nothin' in my place is too good for you. Come down and see us."

This little event opened my eyes to the value of the front page as an advertising position, something which Gen. Boulanger must appreciate by this time, and for which he has been working for years.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

She Thought It Was a Compliment.

An ex-minister abroad, who was as popular in the northern capital where he represented our government as in his own birth place, showed his appreciation of the honors bestowed upon him by marrying the daughter of one of the high officials of the state, a beautiful girl of 18. The honorable minister was as proud of his lovely young bride as are all men of 50 who are fortunate enough to have married a girl still in her teens, and most of the honeymoon was devoted to teaching her the English language, of which she was entirely ignorant. The lovely little foreigner learned very rapidly, not only what she was taught, but every word that dropped from the lips of her husband, who would occasionally say very naughty things just to hear her sweet mouth repeat them. That this was unwise he learned to his sorrow one day, when on presenting his wife to an old friend and schoolmate, she said:

"Oh! Mr. ——, how do you do! I am indeed glad to meet you, for only the other day I heard my husband say you were the greatest bore in Washington."—New York Tribune.

IN THE BANANA BELT.

Bill Nye's Surprising Adventures in Company with Mr. Riley Haggard.

Many southern people come to St. Paul and Minneapolis, it is said, in order to escape the rigors of their own winter. The banana belt, extending from Duluth to Winnipeg, reminds one of tropical Africa. Last week Mr. Riley Haggard and I started out for a little quiet elephant shooting in the country. Bidding farewell to the concierge at the hotel, we packed our heavy express rifles and smooth bore elephant guns, penetrated as far as the sleeping car could convey us, and, bidding farewell to our faithful Wan Wenga, who caressed us both with a whisk broom to the value of twenty scudi, we hired an elephant apiece and began to permeate the jungle, preceded by our trusty bird dog.

At the kraal or livery stable where we engaged our elephants we were told that game was very plenty about thirty miles across the dinglelow, and that in a small forest of jingsang trees and hoola bushes quite a covey of quagga and elephants had been scared up by a Boer who had penetrated the jungle accompanied by his brakje or dog.

The first night we camped beneath the shade of a Vienna bread fruit tree on the borders of the Karroo, and preventing the escape of our trusty elephants by attaching their trunks, we began to prepare our evening meal. I read the directions from a book of African travel, and my very faithful comrade, Mr. Riley Haggard, did the cooking.

First refreshing ourselves with a long draught from a gourd of spoopju from Peoria, marked 1842, so called because it is placed on the market eighteen hours and forty-two minutes after it is made, our faithful gun bearer, Ylang Ylang, began to carve the bultong, Meiboss, and jerked muskrat for the evening meal. Making a bright fire of karroo bushes and fresh train figs, a wad of mealies was soon simmering over the coals, while the odor of Cincinnati bultong pervaded the tropical forest.

Ylang Ylang, our faithful valet, who has made his name a household word because of his search after Schwatka and One Night Stanley, said that according to the books on African exploration it was now time to bed down the elephants. After doing this he returned and proceeded with the cuisine.

We had hardly swallowed our supper, and Mr. Riley Haggard was about to climb a date palm to secure a few luscious lecture dates, when our ears were saluted by a most unearthly and ear piercing roar from the heart of the jungle. At this moment our faithful Ylang Ylang came in with eyes sticking out like a sore thumb to announce that our bird dog had flushed a large Abyssinian lion.

Hurriedly putting a little Mayonnaise dressing on our faithful Ylang Ylang, we sent him out to parley with the lion while we put on our telegraph climbers, and filling our pockets with bultong we ascended a Duluth palm tree.

We had not long to wait! The wang-wanga bushes parted and a low, heavy set performing lion crept softly into the open Karroo, preceded at a distance of about three-quarters of an inch by our faithful Ylang Ylang. As the poor fellow jumped a low Kirdish bush, I heard a crunching sound such as I never hope to hear again, and turned away my head rather than see our trusty gun bearer in the act of backing into a lion.

As soon as I could regain my courage by a small nip of spoopju, I looked back at the sickening spectacle. All was still save the distant song of the red breasted blim-blam in the Koojoo bushes.

Suddenly remembering how I had once seen a lion tamer make a lion quail, I descended from the tree and, taking a small riding whip with me, I said, "Hi!" and whipping him across the forelegs, in the mean time frequently making the remark "Hi!" I drove him away from there. Out of the kraal, down the sloot or dry water course and across the Karroo lands he sped and so on back to Winnipeg, where he joined his congress of rare wild beasts, as I afterwards learned.

Hastily saddling our elephants and sinching them tightly, so that the howdah could not slip around under the stomach of the noble beast, we mounted by means of a freight car standing near by and returned across the transvaal, whatever that is, and hiring a diligence, we packed our remaining supply of bultong, elephant tusks, spoopju, pemmican, elephant blubber, sacred cow meat, dried yak, krolliejam, Milwaukee Heidsieck and a glossary of hard words from Rider Haggard, and took the cars at Stanley Pool, resolving to penetrate still further into the tropical depths of the northwest.—Bill Nye in New York World.

Signed with His Own Name.

Banker Rosenthal directed his bookkeeper to address a pretty rough letter to Baron X., who had promised several times to pay what he owed, but had neglected to do so. When the letter was written it did not suit Banker Rosenthal, who is very excitable, so the latter hastily penned the following:

MY DEAR BARON X.—Who was it that promised to pay up on the first of January?

You, my dear baron, you are the man.

Who was it that promised then to settle on the first of March?

You, my dear baron.

Who is it that didn't settle on the first of March?

You, my dear baron.

Who is it, then, who has broken his word twice and is an unmitigated scoundrel?

Your obedient servant,

MOSE ROSENTHAL.

Reciprocity.

A good story illustrating the rights of children to get in a question or two in reply to interrogatories by their elders was told by a prominent physician here to a lady patient a day or two ago.

"Whose boy are you?" asked the doctor to a bright looking youngster who was playing in a patient's garden.

"Mr. Jim ——'s. Whose be you?" was the unexpected rejoinder.—Kingston Freeman.

A Bad Starter.

The Teacher—You've not advanced very far, have you?

THE DEMON OF THE GIBBET.

There was no west, there was no east,
No star abroad for eye to see;
And Norman spurred his jaded beast
Hard by the terrible gallows tree.

"O Norman, haste across this waste,
For something seems to follow me!"
"Cheer up, dear Maud, for, thanked be God,
We nigh have passed the gallows tree!"

He kissed her lip, then spur and whip,
And fast they fled across the lea;
But vain the heel and rowel steel,
For something leaped from the gallows tree!

"Give me your cloak, your knightly cloak,
That wrapped you oft beyond the sea;
The wind is bold, my bones are old,
And I am cold on the gallows tree."

"O holy God! O dearest Maud,
Quick, quick, some prayer, the best that be!
A bony hand my neck has spanned,
And tears my knightly cloak from me!"

"Give me your wine, the red, red wine,
That in the flask hangs by your knee;
Ten summers burst on me accurst,
And I'm athirst on the gallows tree."

"Oh, Maud, my life! my loving wife!
Have you no power to set us free?
My belt unclasps, a demon grasps
And drags my wine flask from my knee!"

"Give me your bride, your bonny bride,
That left her nest with you to flee;
Oh, she hath flown to be my own,
For I'm alone on the gallows tree."

"Cling closer, Maud, and trust in God!
Cling close!- Ah, heaven, she slips from me!"—
A prayer, a groan, and he alone
Rode on that night from the gallows tree.
—Fitz James O'Brien.

Ball Room Manners.

A society woman writes deprecatingly of the want of manners that so many people exhibit at balls and other social entertainments, and of the ruthlessness with which they will interrupt an interesting conversation. How are they to know that it is interesting? Well, if they have only a little discrimination they will be able to see for themselves. "Once upon a time," she says, "it was understood that opportunities were to be waited for, and tete-a-tetes were not abruptly broken in upon." But such a state of things—if it ever existed—exists no longer. A woman will beckon to a man across the drawing room, and lo! he will arise and go, leaving the woman he had been talking to all alone, and perhaps she knows no one else in the room. Another woman will cross the room and enter into conversation with a man who is enjoying a quiet talk with another woman, whom she does not know. But it is so easy to ignore the other woman! A man will seek out another man who has retired to a secluded corner with a pretty girl, and, not knowing the girl, will tell his friend he wants to introduce him to a certain lady. If you are a woman, your host or hostess comes up and carries off the man to whom you are talking, in order to introduce him to some one else, and you are left standing alone, perhaps in the middle of the room. These are actual occurrences.—Philadelphia Press.

A Strange Feathered Cannibal.

A remarkable bird, about the size of a robin and much resembling a kingfisher without the prominent tuft of feathers, attracted considerable attention on a street in Kennebec, Me., recently. Flying along to an English sparrow, with one dart of his hooked beak he killed the little bird, and then, placing one foot upon his victim's breast, proceeded to tear in pieces and devour him. A stage driver picked up the feathered cannibal and his prey and carried them into a near by store, where, perched upon the counter, he devoured the sparrow with apparent relish. The bird seemed to have no fear of any one, and showed no antipathy against anything but the sparrows, several of which he killed during the afternoon. His species was unknown to any who saw him, but it is thought he is one of the variety known as butcher bird.—Maine Paper.

Fraudulent Pawn Tickets.

A gang of swindlers whose specialty in crime was the fraudulent imitation of Mont de Piete pledges, or pawn tickets, has just been discovered. A vuncular guarantees of this description have frequently been falsified in Paris by a process known among those who live by their wits as the lavage des faffes. But the knights of industry who have been captured went further than this and bodily fabricated fictitious pledges, which they sold in large quantities to purchasers or marchands de reconnaissances du Mont de Piete. The swindlers had succeeded in realizing about £1,000 between them by their transactions when pounced upon by the police. At their headquarters in the Faubourg St. Martin was found a complete manufactory of false tickets. —Paris Cor. London Telegraph.

Dickens' Name.

Discoveries of what has been already discovered are not infrequent. One of the latest cases in point is that of Mr. Kitton, the high priest of English Dickens worship. Mr. Kitton declares "it is not generally known that the name of Charles was entered in the baptismal register of St. Mary's (the parish church of Portsea) as Charles John Huffham Dickens." If it is not generally known, it is not the fault of the great novelist's biographers. Dickens dropped the John Huffham early, despite the fact that it was the name of his father's old friend. —Boston Transcript.

Particles in the Eye.

Every mother knows how often little ones get something in the eye. Take hold of the lashes of the upper lid with the left hand, and pressing the dull point of a pencil against the middle of the lid, turn it upward; then remove the substance with a camel's hair brush or the corner of a soft handkerchief. Particles of lime often cause great pain if they get into the eye, as any one who has ever whitewashed a ceiling can testify. Apply weak vinegar to neutralize the alkali and remove the particle as directed.—Herald of Health.

Some people wonder why the corporals of police never find the patrolmen sitting down on their beats. And then they wonder why the corporals, in making their rounds, pound on the sidewalks with clubs loud enough for the patrolmen to hear.

Dr. J. Collis Browne's

CHLORODYNE.

THE ORIGINAL and ONLY GENUINE

Advice to invalids—If you wish to obtain quiet refreshing sleep, free from headache, relief from pain and anguish, to calm and assuage the weary achings of protracted disease, invigorate the nervous media, and regulate the circulating systems of the body, you will provide yourself with that marvellous remedy discovered by Dr. J. Collis Browne (late Army Medical Staff), to which he gave the name of CHLORODYNE, and which is admitted by the profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.

CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.

CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhœa, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.

CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation and Spasms.

CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c., &c.

From Symes & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists Medical Hall, Simla, January 5th, 1880: To J. T. Davenport, Esq., 33 Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury, London, Dear Sir:—We embrace this opportunity of congratulating you upon the wide-spread reputation this justly esteemed medicine, Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne, has earned for itself, not only in Hindostan, but all over the East. As a remedy of general utility, we much question whether a better is imported into the country, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other brands, we are happy to say, are now relegated to the native bazaars, and judging from their salet we fancy their sojurn there will be but evanescent. We could multiply instances infinitum of the extraordinary efficacy of Dr. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne in Diarrhœa, and 2nd Dysentery Spasms, Cramps, Neuralgia, the Vomiting of Pregnancy, and as a general Sedative, that have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Choleraic Diarrhœa, and even if the more terrible forms of Cholera itself, we have witnessed its controlling power. We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's, from a firm conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of the opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's, is A DELIBERATE BREACH OF FAITH ON THE PART OF THE CHEMIST TO PRESCRIBE AND PATIENT ALIKE. We are sir, faithfully yours, Symes & Co., Members of the Pharm. Society of Great Britain, His Excellancy the Viceroy's Chemists.

CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated that Dr. J. Collis Browne was, undoubtedly, the inventor of Chlorodyne; that the story of the defendant, Freeman, was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say, had been sworn to.—See "The Times," July 13, 1884.

Sold in bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne" on the Government stamp. Overwhelming medical testimony accompanies each bottle.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

QUEEN v. MO WOO.

This case was adjourned from last week and was brought for an infringement of the Nuisance bylaw.

The adjourned case was withdrawn and fresh information was laid by Constable O'Connell.

Dr. Præger sworn, said I am a registered Physician of this Province and Medical Officer for the City of Nanaimo. I have seen the drain on Franklyn Street leading from Mo Woo's laundry. It is a great danger to the public health. There are pools of stagnant water and the soapy water is lodging in places. There were little dams in the drain damming the water back. I spoke to defendant about the matter, and also verbally notified the Sanitary Committee and constables about it either last August or September. I do not think the drain is properly constructed. The bottles produced contains soapy water. The state of the drain would be dangerous to public health in hot weather.

Cross-examined by E. Yarwood—Soapy water is the most dangerous.

A. Shaw sworn, said he was Station Master at Nanaimo. Knew the defendant had a laundry on Franklyn Street and visited it on the evening of the 27th inst. A very offensive smell arises from the drain. I saw the bottles produced filled from the soapy water in the drain.

To E. M. Yarwood—The drain empties under a bridge.

To the Court—The drain is offensive and the public schools are near it.

A. Anderson sworn, testified that he lived on Franklyn Street. He saw some soapy water coming from the drain leading from the laundry. I recognize the bottle produced as the one filled by Constable O'Connell last evening from water flowing through the ditch. I also saw him fill another bottle later. I went with the constable to the laundry and heard him ask defendant, "What for you let water go?" The defendant answered, "I no care, J. Gammell tell me let 'em go all time." There was a great smell coming from the drain. The door of my house is about eight feet from the drain.

Constable O'Connell, sworn, testified: That he had visited the drain leading from defendant's laundry on Franklyn street. I saw soapy water coming from the defendant's laundry, and filled the bottle produced marked B, with water. It is mixed with fresh water that flows from above the laundry. Later in the evening I again visited the place and filled the bottle marked A, with water from the drain. This place is one of the greatest nuisances I have seen in this or any other city I have visited, in fact persons living in the vicinity say they will send their families away if it be not abated. I spoke to Mo Woo about it and he said "J. Gammell all time talkee me let 'em go." The nuisance is particularly great in the evening and early morning. There were complaints made about it last August, I think.

H. S. Gough, City Clerk, sworn: Produced a certified copy of the Nuisance By-Law, and also a copy of B. C. Gazette, in which the said by-law was published. He said he thought the laundry had been established some time. I believe defendant used the same place last year. I served a notice on defendant on Sept. 3rd, 1888. The notice was served on behalf of the corporation.

T. O'Connell, constable, pressed for the full penalty of the law and committal of the defendant.

E. M. Yarwood made an able defense stating that the by-law was not applicable to his client, as it was not passed till after the defendant had started the laundry.

The case was adjourned till this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Steamship Idaho's Movements.

The steamship Idaho, plying between Portland and Puget Sound points, will strike her regular schedule, leaving Portland at 10 p. m. June 3rd, and thereafter regularly every twelve days. Her route will be as follows: Portland to Victoria; thence to Nanaimo, Vancouver, New Westminster, Roche Harbor, Whatcom, Sehome, Seattle, Port Townsend, Port Angeles; thence to Portland. The time from Portland to Victoria will be about thirty-two hours, making it quite practicable for our merchants to ship fruit and other perishable freights, arriving here in good condition, as all such freights will be carried on the upper deck, giving it access to free air, which will keep it in prime condition. The Idaho will discharge and receive freight at Turner, Beeton & Co.'s dock instead of landing at the outer wharf.

It is expected by the management of the O. R. & N. Co. to place another steamer on the route as soon as the traffic will justify. A regular printed schedule, giving sailing dates and arrivals will be placed in the shippers' hands in a few days.—Colonist.

Entertainment at Wellington.

A very enjoyable entertainment was given on Monday night at Wellington under the auspices of the Methodist Church. Mr. Evans was elected to the chair and filled it ably.

The first part of the programme was, we are informed, a tea which had been prepared by the ladies of Wellington and which received considerable attention at the hands of the assembled people. It was pronounced excellent and great credit was due to those who had the management of the affair. A very interesting programme was submitted to the approval of the audience, and consisted of trios, duets and solos, which were ably rendered by the performers.

We received our report of the entertainment too late on the night of the 27th inst., to send it to press and so now only make a mention of it.

Had to Swim For It.

Two men went for a sail yesterday and after landing on Protection Island took a stroll around. When they returned they discovered to their dismay that their boat was adrift. After consulting a short while they finally decided to toss who should swim after the boat which by this time was a considerable distance away. The loser said the water was very cold and the next time he goes boating he will take an anchor.

Rapid Delivery of Bread.

An exciting runaway occurred yesterday on Commercial Street. The horse attached to Adderton & Irving's baker's cart evident got tired of waiting for his driver to leave the house he was visiting and started down the street at a great pace, distributing bread in every direction. It is a long time since such a rapid delivery of the staff of life has been seen. Neither the horse nor cart sustained any serious damage.

Routed By the S. A.

While the Salvation Army was on parade last night, several youngsters got into the hall and commenced a free fight, during which the army returned and effectually routed them. The boys were not invited to stay for future proceedings.

Dancing on the Green.

Half a dozen young men of this city have put their heads together and have come to the conclusion that it would be a very enjoyable way of spending Saturday evening to have regular weekly dances on the platform on the "Green," In order to do this it is, of course, necessary to obtain the consent of the owners of the "Green" and to negotiate for the use of the Nanaimo Band. Their idea is to make a subscription dance of the affair, charging 10 cents a dance or 50 cents for the whole evening's programme. Nothing but temperance drinks will be dispensed during the evening's amusement and order will prevail. Most of the originators of the scheme seem to have been connected with similar affairs in the east, and predict that if they can obtain the consent of the owners of the "Green" to use it for a nominal sum that the affair will be self-sustaining. The charges that will be made will be utilized to pay the musicians and rent. The idea is, to say the least of it, a very harmless one and would keep many young men away from more vicious pursuits. Most other cities have some kind of place where young people can enjoy themselves in a harmless manner, but here the only resort of youth seems to be to the Salvation Army, and doubtless most of our readers would enjoy the dance more than the bill of fare held out by the latter.

Six Days on a Raft.

James McGarry, one of the victims of the Alaskan disaster, has arrived at Coos Bay, Oregon, having had a terrible time. For six days he was tossed about on a raft 10x4 feet, exposed to the elements with nothing to shelter him, and with not a mouthful of food. As it was stormy and raining nearly the whole time, he managed to catch a little rain water on a board to moisten his parched tongue, and this was the only refreshment he had until he was finally washed ashore, when he obtained a little clam soup from a Chinaman. It will be some time before he regains his health. His limbs are frightfully swollen and chafed from his enforced position on the raft. Nothing has yet been heard of the missing men who were in one of the boats, and it is now feared that they have found a watery grave.—Colonist.

Back From Alaska.

The steamer Islander, in command of Capt. John Irving, arrived at the outer wharf at 2.30 o'clock this morning from Alaska via Vancouver. The trip is the fastest on record. The Islander brought down Capt. Carroll as a passenger, as well as the Webb party. The millionaire tourists will spend a day or two in Victoria seeing the sights before returning east by way of California. The trip just made by the Islander proves her the fastest steamer plying in the Northern Pacific waters.—Colonist.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

EDITOR COURIER:—Sir—I do not know who the reporter was who took down the notes of my lecture on Sunday evening, which were handed to you; but if he informed you that I charged you with having failed to win over the liquor interest by the publication of the article in question, he must have been drawing upon his imagination or expressing his own opinion of your article. I may speak for a section of our community who are like-minded with myself, but it is altogether too absurd to think of me holding a brief at the same time for the opposite side. If I were asked my opinion on the point I would be inclined to say that it was a bid for the support of the liquor interest. But that aspect of the question was not before me on the occasion referred to, and whether you have or have not secured that support does not in any way modify the offensiveness of the article. The cheap bluster of the remainder of your article to-day, imputing to me threats of the withdrawal of our support, is too ridiculous to be treated seriously.

Yours, etc.,
JAMES MILLAR.

We have again looked over the notes referred to and the only possible construction of which they admit, seems to us the one which we have already placed upon them. For the rest we are quite ready to accept Mr. Millar's denial as to his utterance of the words with which he was credited. The latter part of our article of yesterday, which the above letter characterises as "bluster," did not refer to our estimable and respected correspondent in any way. We wish further to add that for the future we shall by no means feel ourselves bound to insert letters relating to Editorial matter. We quarrel with no man on account of the opinions he may choose to hold. All we ask in return is that a similar courtesy be extended towards ourselves.—ED.

A WARNING.

The modes of death's approach are various, and statistics show conclusively that more persons die from diseases of the Throat and Lungs than any other. It is probable that everyone, without exception receives vast numbers of Tubercle Germs into the system and where these germs fall upon suitable soil they start into life and develop, at first slowly and is shown by a slight tickling sensation in the throat and if allowed to continue their ravages they extend to the lungs producing Consumption and to the head, causing Catarrh. Now all is dangerous, and if allowed to proceed will in time cause death. At the onset you must act with promptness; allowing a cold to go without attention is dangerous and may lose you a life. As soon as you feel that something is wrong with your Throat, Lungs or Nostrils obtain a bottle of Boschee's German Syrup. It will give you immediate relief.

VICTORIA HAPPENINGS.

The Pacific Squadron for the Behring Seas — Great Excitement in the Capital.

Victoria, May 28.—Reliable information has been received to-day that Admiral Heneage has instructions to proceed to Behrings Sea. He will sail on or about June 15th. He will take the flagship Swiftsure and the war ships Amphion, Icarus, Champion (now en route to Esquimalt), and the two torpedo boats. The latter are very swift. Great excitement prevails over the statement. It is reliably known that before clearing for Behrings Sea the masters of sealing schooners had assurances from the Admiral that they would receive protection, and that if any seizures were attempted by the American cruisers, England would prevent it. The blue jackets and marines have been busy for sometime fitting the ships for a long cruise, Three months patent fuel, etc., has been taken aboard. There are great speculations as to the outcome.

The Senate Committee leaves for Puget Sound in the morning.

PRIZE FIGHT BETWEEN LA BLANCHE AND LUCIE.

San Francisco, May 18.—Mike Lucie, of Troy, N. Y., was defeated by Geo. La Blanche ("the Marine"), of Boston, before fifteen hundred members of the California Athletic Club, this evening, in thirteen rounds. The battle was one of the best exhibitions ever witnessed in San Francisco. Hiram Cook acted as referee. Lucie was seconded by Tommy Warren and Jack Welch, while Paddy Gorman and Frank Murphy did the honors for "the Marine." The contest up to the ending of the ninth round was clearly in favor of Lucie, who made the fighting and who seldom failed to land on "the Marine's" nose or stomach. First blood was given Lucie in the 3rd round by a terrific right hander on La Blanche's mouth. La Blanche scored the first knock down in the 10th round by a chance blow on Lucie's jaw, which seemed to completely change the tide of battle. The 11th round was in favor of "the Marine." The call of time at the end of the 12th round only saved Lucie from a complete knock out which occurred in the following round.

Railway Accidents.

The returns for accidents on the railways of the United Kingdom during the year 1888 are interesting. Eleven passengers were killed and 549 injured, as against 25 passengers killed and 538 injured in 1887. There were 96 injured from other causes than those due to collisions and mechanical defects. Of servants of the companies, there were 389 deaths and 21 injuries. Fifty-three persons perished at grade crossings. The total is nearly 1,000 killed and 9,000 injured in connection one way or other with the railway system. There were 35 collisions between passenger trains and 54 between passenger and freight trains. There were 288 failures of axles, the greater part belonging to engines. In 1872 the railway deaths were one in 18,000,000 passengers carried. It is now one in 70,000,000.
