WEEK'S ORE SHIPMENTS

Boundary Output for Year to Date Well Over the Half Million Mark

Frank Zinc Reduction Plant in Operation --La Plata Concentrator Started--B.C. Copper Co's Extensive Program

It was semi-officially announced just at the close of the week that the Canadian Metal company's reduction plant at Frank, Alberta, which is to be supplied with British Columbia ores, and which for practical mining purposes is in the East Kootenay district, had been blown in, but beyond this statement details of the starting up of these important works could not be obtained.

It was announced early in the week that there had been a change in the managements of the Canadian Metal company and that the company's smelter at Pilot Bay one stack of which was blown in some time ago, had been closed down, pending an examination by S. S. Fowler, M.E., of Nelson. It is understood that Mr. Fowler's examination will be closed this coming week.

Mining has been very fairly active during the past week throughout south eastern British Columbia, several deals of importance having been reported in the Boundary country Over in Rossland some interesting experiments are being made on the Jumbo with diamond drills, the results of which are awaited with interest. Work on the Velvet-Portland has been energetically resumed.

The new concentrator at the La Plata mine, better known as the Molly Gibson, near Kokanee creek, was successfully started for the first time on Thursday last.

The ore shipments from the Boundary district for the year to date are now well over the half million ton mark.

The ore shipments from the several districts and the ore receipts at the smelters, in detail for the past week and for the year to date are appended.

STRIKE ON MAPLE LEAF

(Special to The Daily News)

Grand Forks, May 26 — A phenomenal strike of high grade copper ore has just been made on the Maple Leaf property on Franklin mountain. Already fully 80 feet of the ore body has been stripped and the width has been proved to be more than 15 feet. The Maple Leaf is one of a group of five claims owned by H. W. Young of Vancouver and the Fee brothers of Grand Forks.

B. C. COPPER CO.'S EXPANSION

Daily Output Will be Increased From 600 to 1500 Tons

(Special to The Daily News)

Phoenix, May 26—On or about the 1st of June the smelting works of the British Columbia Copper company will be blown out and remain cold for a number of weeks while the three new and larged furnaces are being installed and a multitude of other improvements made at the reduction works. Only the converter plant is expected to be operated, and this to handle the matte from the Dominion Copper company's smelter. Some idea of the magnitude of the improvements being made can be gained when it is known that the freight alone on the new machinery ,etc., will be an item something like $40,000, while a million and a half feet of lumber will be used in the new ore bins and buildings about the works.

As soon as ore shipments at the Mother Lode mine of the company are discontinued by the closing of the smelter, the entire force of miners will be placed on development work, preparing for the increase of daily ore tonnage output from about 600 tons to 1500 tons each 24 hours. The force at present employed at the mine is about 125 men, but this will be increased approximately to 200 men.

For some time past superintendent Holman, under F. Keffer, M.E., has been preparing for the expected increase in tonnage, and this work will be pushed as fast as possible. The main shaft on which the work of deepening has been in progress for some time, is now down 435 feet, and will be continued to about the 600 foot level. It is known that some of the best ore in the Mother Lode mine has been encountered in the deepest workings, although latterly most of the ore shipped to the smelter has come from the surface quarries.

At the smelter about 200 men are employed, including those on construction, and this week a wage agreement was arrived at between manager McAllister and the employees, which is stated to last for the next three years.

At the company's Emma mine in Summit camp, there is also increased activity as a greater draft on the excellent fluxing ore from this property will be made as soon as the enlarged smelter of the company is blown in once more.

A temporary air compressor from the Mother Lode was set at work at the Emma this week, to be used till the new electric driven air compressor, recently ordered, is installed, a few months latter.

The West Kootenay Power & Light company is now surveying a branch high tension line from Phoenix to the Emma mine, to supply the electrical energy. The work of deepening the main shaft at the Emma mine was also begun this week.

On the Oro Denoro mine, adjoining the Emma, on which former the B.C. Copper company has an option, the diamond drill is still being operated, something like 1500 feet of drilling having been done on the Oro Denoro thus far.

LACROSSE CLUB FORMED

ORGANIZATION MEETING LARGE AND ENTHUSIASTIC

MATERIAL AVALABLE FOR THREE TEAMS--ROSSLAND FIRST

Nelson will have a lacrosse team this year, and probably one little if any inferior to those which held the championship of Kootenay until last year. Seven old players are available for coaching and some of them, when needed, for matches. They are Joe Thompson, Al. Jeffs, Charlie Jeffs, Jack Fox, C. D. Blackwood, W. H. Deacon and A. Perrier. There are over 30 junior players available.

An organization meeting was held in the fire hall last night and was largely attended. Fred Starkey was elected to the chair and chief Deasy acted as secretary. After an informal discussion of the prospects, it was agreed that good material was abundant and only drill was needed.

The following officers were elected for the season: President, G. P. Wells; vice-president, N. L. McInnes; secretary and manager, chief Deasy; treasurer, F. Starkey; executive committee, C. D. Blackwood, W. A Thurman and A. W. Hyndman; team committee, A. Jeffs, J. Thompson and L. Steele. The choice of a captain was left to the team committee. The membership fee was fixed at $1, payable by June 1st.

The follownig names were reported as available for the game; J. Thompson, A. Jeffs, C. Jeffs, J. H. Fox, C. D. Blackwood, W. H. Deacon, A. Perrier, E. J. Travers, S. J. Carley, L. Steele, B. Davison, W. Davison, W. B. Steed, H. Manhart, D. McAlmon, A. Curran, F. Bell, R. Bell, R. Sharp, R. Ball, B. Crossett, L. Jackson, R. Jackson, A. H. Wallace, W. Edwards, B. Blackwell, F. V. Thomson, W. H. Smyth, J. Ledwell and E. Carroll. Any others who wish to play are cordially invited to report to the committee and turn out to practice.

Inquiry for a game has already been received from Rossland and it is expected that a date can easily be arranged. Negotiations will be opened at once with the towns in the Boundary and East Kootenay.

RUSSIA ON VERGE OF A TITANIC STRUGGLE

Parliament Rejects Government's Policy as Presented by Premier Goremykin With Only Seven Dissenting Votes--Government Must Surrender or Revolution is Inevitable--General Strike May be Declared on Monday

St. Petersburg, May 26.—Before a house more crowded than on the opening day, with every member in his seat, and press and public galleries crowded, premier Goremykin read to the lower house of parliament the expected declaration of the government's policy, pronouncing the imperial negative upon the demands which have been the most cherished hopes and plans of the people's representatives.

In the imperial box sat grand duke Nicholas Nickolaevitch, following the proceedings with the keenest interest. There was scarcely standing room in the section assigned to members of the upper house and the premier and the entire cabinet, with the exception of vice admiral Birileiff, minister of marine, and lieutenant general Rudiger, minister of war, occupied seats on the ministerial benches.

The scene before the opening was one of great but suppressed excitement. All present were aware that the response would utterly fail to meet the wishes of the lower house, and a hum of eager discussion as to the effect of the resolutions expressing lack of confidence in the government, which the constitutional democrats and the labor party had drafted in advance, filled the hall and corridors.

The tinkle of president Mouromtseff's bell, calling the session to order, stilled the house into instant silence, whereupon, without waiting for further preliminaries, premier Goremykin began reading the governmental declarations. Thee premier's statement was as follows:

"The government, after examining the address of the lower house of parliament in accordance with the instructions of the emperor, is fully prepared to lend its entire support to the elaboration of the questions suggested by the lower house in so far as they do not go beyond the limits of the legislative initiatives assigned to the lower house. This support the government will also extend to the amendment of the franchise law, although it is of the opinion that this question should not be made the subject of immediate discussion inasmuch as the lower house is only just entering upon its labors and therefore, is not yet in a position to ascertain the need of such a change.

"Special caution must be shown by the council of ministers in regard to the questions raised by the lower house, of satisfying without delay the needs of the rural population and placing the peasants on a footing of equality with the other classes, of framing the measure providing for obligatory elementary education, of making trade worthy classes liable to the payment of taxes, reorganizing the provincial administration and of introducing a system of self government with special consideration for the peculiar conditions of the frontier provinces.

"The council of ministers attaches no less importance to the suggested law relating to the liberty of the subject, of conscience, and of the press, and to freedom of meeting and association. Nevertheless it considers it necessary in preparing such laws to provide the administration with such effective means as to enable the government to counteract any abuse of the liberties conceded.

"With reference to the solution of the agrarian question by the transfer of trade, crown appanages, and monastery and church lands, and by the forcible exploitation of private landed property of peasants, the council of ministers holds it to be its duty to declare that such a method is wholly inadvisable. The government cannot deprive one party of its possessions in order to bestow them upon another. To contest the right of private ownership of land would in fact, be to contest the right to possess any private property at all. Throughout the world and in all grades of society, or development of civil life, the inviolability of property constitutes the cornerstone of the welfare of the people and the fundamental basis of the life of the state. The resources still at the disposal of the state and the wide application of legal methods will doubtless help to find a successful solution of the agrarian question without undermining the powers of the fatherland.

"The other laws referred to by the lower house, and which infringe upon the responsibility of the ministers and the upper house, the council of ministers do not feel itself justified in entertaining, as they involve radical alterations of the fundamental law and conditions which are beyond the province of the lower house.

"Finally, as regards the solicitude of the lower house to secure justice and right in the army and navy, the government declares that in the army those principles are already unshakeably established and that the solicitude of its illustrious head is now directed to the improvement of the material position of the soldiers and devising means for a more extensive realization of the measures directed to that end.

"As regards the proposed abolition of the exceptional laws and the arbitrary acts of officials, the council of ministers considered this was wholly within the domain of public administration in which the lower house has only the right of interpellation. Furthermore, the consideration of the administration into a state of strict legality forms the subject of special care on the part of the government which would not fail to see that the conduct of its officials was inspired by similar endeavors.

"The government also recognizes that the present exceptional laws do not suffice in extraordinary cases to ensure tranquility and order and the ministers, therefore, are engaged in drafting more perfect measures to that end. If the exceptional laws, despite their imperfection, have not been recently enforced in many districts the cause of this is to be found exclusively in the incessant murders and acts of violence. Conscious of its responsibility to the country the ministry will maintain quiet and order by the legal means now at its disposal so long as the disturbances continue and so long as the government is not furnished through fresh legislation with effectual means of combatting lawlessness.

"In regard to the amnesty question, the pardon of prisoners convicted by the courts, no matter what form of crime may have been committed, is the prerogative of the monarch. The council of ministers considers that it would not be beneficial to society to amnesty persons implicated in murders and acts of violence, while the disturbances continue. As to persons deprived of their liberty by administrative order the cabinet has taken steps to procure the release of those whereby public safety is not threatened."

The reading, which was as rapid as if the premier had been in a hurry to get through with a disagreeable task, lasted 18 minutes. The members in the meanwhile sat stolidly silent and when the premier had finished and bowed to the assembly not a murmur of approval was heard throughout the hall, where the pages immediately began to distribute printed copies of the speech.

While the premier's statement promised co-operation with the lower house, "in so far as the latter does not transgress the limits of the fundamental laws," it recognized the agrarian question as paramount proposing to remedy the deficiency in land through the operation of an agrarian bank and emigration to Siberia. It proposed the introduction of universal and compulsory education, the reform of administration, and the realization of the four liberties.

Premier Goremykin's statement, however, returned a non-possumus on the burning question raised by the house in its reply to the speech from the throne. It declared that the government's fiat and exceptional laws cannot be withdrawn until disorder and terrorism cease. The expropriation of appanages of the crown and church and private lands was declared to be inadmissable. The right of investigation of administrative acts, the statement declared, belonged to the crown, the house having only the power of interpelaation Amnesty, premier Goremykin said, was solely the prerogative of the emperor.

Such, briefly, was the government's reply to the address of the house, and the premier's words seemed to arouse all the latent resentment in the hearts of the members of the house.

The constitutional democratic leaders, for the first time, gave free range to their passions, and with flaming words, orator after orator declared the government's program inadmissable and said that the ministry must give way to a cabinet in which the people had confidence.

M. Rodicheff announced that the government's reply had dashed to the ground all his hopes of working in harmony with the administration.

M. Kovalesky enacted the role of Mirabeau, practically paraphrasing the Frenchman's words: "We are here by the will of the people and nothing but bayonets can disperse us," while half a dozen peasant members hurled defiance at the ministry. Even count Heyden, the leader of the right, deserted the government's side, saying that inasmuch as the government had refused to redeem its promise to repeal the exceptional law, his vote also was for censure.

The resolution of censure, as adopted, provides that the house shall proceed with the order of the day on Monday, thus adroitly placing upon the shoulders of the government the responsibility for making the next move.

For the moment, as indicated by a communication issued by the official agency at midnight, the ministry is hesitating, being neither ready to resign nor dismiss parliament.

The communication says: "We are able to announce authoritatively that the rumors of a dissolution of parliament are unfounded. Parliament will sit until the middle of June, when it will take a vacation. The dismissal of the ministry is a matter exclusively for the unfettered decision of the sovereign. The speech of the minister of justice at today's sitting of the house was an expression of his personal views on his own initiative."

The text of the resolution of lack of confidence in the government adopted was one drafted by the labor group.

St. Petersburg, May 26.—At the end of a memorable seven hour session, the lower house of parliament today indignantly rejected the government's policy as presented by premier Goremykin, with only seven dissenting votes, voting a lack of confidence in the ministry, and practically throwing down the gauntlet to the bureaucracy, with a demand for the retirement of the present cabnet, and its supersession by a ministry approved by the majority of the house.

The spirit of absolute revolution is in the air, and a conflict between the crown and the nation now appears to be inevitable. While the house avoided the appearance of delivering an ultimatum, the government seems to have no alternative except surrender or war.

The gloomiest forebodings are everywhere expressed tonight, and the general impression is that the country is on the verge of a titanic struggle, which may be delayed but not averted. Despatches received from the interior indicate that the struggle possibly may be inaugurated Monday with a general strike, when the people learn that all amnesty has been refused

St. Petersburg, May 26.—The expectation that premier Goremykin's statement of the government's program would be utterly unfavorable caused great excitement at the opening of the lower house of partliament this afternoon. Both the constitutional democrats and the labor groups, in anticipation of its unsatisfactory tenor, drafted resolutions expressing lack of confidence in the government which they were prepared to move as soon as the reading is finished.

The resolution of the constitutional democrats, which was adopted at a caucus this morning, is as follows:

"Inasmuch as the answer of the government contradicts the demands expressed in the address of the lower house of parliament, the prayt of the people's liberty (constitutional democrats) express their complete distrust in the cabinet, desire its immediate resignation and to proceed with the order of the day."

The labor party's resolution is of similar purport, but is couched in stronger terms, demanding instead of desiring the dismissal of the cabinet and the formation of a responsible ministry from the parliamentary majority.

St. Petersburg, May 26.—The local house, with only seven dissentients, voted the order of the day, demanding the resignation of the ministry and its replacement by a cabinet composed of members chosen from those enjoying the confidence of the majority of the lower house of parliament.

M. Annitin, of Saratof, declared that the government's promise of solicitude for the peasants would not suffice. The peasants had had their fill of promises. What they demanded and what they would have was land and freedom.

M. Ledinsky, of Poland, complained bitterly because the premier had not said a word about the rights of non-Russians, and M. Alladit, the peasant party leader, delivered a general denunciation of the ministers because they assumed the attitude of masters and not of servants of the lower house. He warned them that the lower house stood between the government and a revolution, adding:

"But even parliament will be powerless if it is unable to satisfy the demands of the people."

M. Kokoshkine, of Moscow, admitted that amnesty was the prerogative of the emperor but said the country had been in a state of civil war, and if a treaty of peace was to be signed amnesty must go with it.

M. Schopkin of Odessa, and M. Venaver, of St. Petersburg, dwelt upon the imperative necessity of supplanting the present ministry.

M. Chiglovitoff, the minister of justise, then addressed the house in a conciliatory tone, emphasizing the difficult position of the government, but assuring the house that the idea that the present ministry stood for the old regime of repression was absolutely unjustified. The government intended to substitute for the old order of things, a regime based on law. The government felt the heavy responsibility resting upon it and intended to meet it in good faith. While the government could not recognize the power of parliament to change the fundamental law, the minister expressed the opinion that criticisms would lead from time to time to alterations in the interest of the public welfare.

St. Petersburg, May 26.—It is rumored in the corridors of the lower house that premier Goremykin has in his pocket a mandate for the dissolution of parliament.

St. Petersburg, May 26.—Grave news comes from the provinces. Instead of acting as a sedative, the assembling of parliament has been marked by an alarming increase in revolutionary agitation and terroristic activity on the one hand and of the Black Hundred on the other. The extremists on both sides are thus divided into two hostile camps and both are arming as if preparing for an inevitable civil war. Sanguinary conflicts continue to be reported. A sequel of the clash on Archangel Square here May 24, when Black Hundreds fired 50 revolver shots, killing one man and seriously wounding three, came last night when a Black Hundred, who participated in the affair, was waylaid and murdered by social revolutionists.

The social democrats are working might and main to cast discredit on parliament and produce an uprising of the elemental forces. They have already precipitated an incipient strike in the industrial quarters of Moscow, and at Odessa the longshoremen have struck. Not a single vessel left that harbor yesterday.

The government's refusal to grant amnesty to the political prisoners furnishes the proletariat organization with a powerful weapon, and they threaten that unless tomorrow, the anniversary of the emperor's coronation, sees amnesty proclaimed, to call a general strike as a preliminary to an armed uprising.

The constant rumors of a reactionary coup d'etat, the dispersal of parliament and the establishment of a dictatorship, under general Trepoff, add to the general excitement and the Russ today appeals to the government to put an end to these disquieting reports by an official denial.

The emperor today degraded governor general Orloff, of Livonia and 20 officers who participated in the "pacification" of the Baltic provinces

Fresh agrarian disorders are reported from Orel, Kazan and Fimbrusk provinces The Figner estate, in Kazan province, where Vera Figner has been living under the surveillance of the police, since her release from Schusselberg fortress where she was confined for 20 years as the result of her participation in the plot against the life of Alexander II, has been completely destroyed and Cossacks with difficulty saved the estate of prince Galitzin

THE ROYAL COURTSHIP

Eyes of Spain Upon Their King and Bride-Elect-Princess Ena

Popular Feeling Toward Future Queen Shared in by Spanish Aristocracy--Alfonso's Presents to His Bride

Madrid, May 26.—Spain is watching with keenest interest the royal courtship of king Alfonso and princess Ena of Batterberg, which continued today between the Pardo and royal palace.

The public again had an opportunity to get frequent glances of their new queen-to-be, and the popular impression was most favorable.

The king sought his bride-elect early today. After he had greeted the princess, the couple appeared on an upper balcony to witness the morning exercises of the royal guard. The crowds outside the gate acclaimed the appearance of the king and princess Ena. Shortly afterwards king Alfonso and the entire Battenberg family drove to Madrid between lines of enthusiastic people. Alfonso sat beside his prospective bride with princess Beatrice opposite them, while the duke of Sotomayor the court officials and the Battenberg retinue filled a dozen other carriages.

Luncheon at the royal palace, a drive to Casa del Campo, and the return to Pardo castle at nightfall occupied the day of the royal wooers.

The Spanish nobility and aristocracy, which traditionally are conservative towards foreign consorts, appear to share the popular feeling of admiration towards princess Ena,, whose regal bearing and personal beauty, they declare, made her worthy the Spanish crown.

The Infanta Eulalie, after her meeting with princess Ena Friday night, turned to Alfonso and said: "whether queen of Spain or not, she is by nature a queen."

The animation of the capital increases daily as the crowds flock in from the provinces. The final preparations for the wedding are being hastily completed. Thousands of workmen are engaged in decorating the streets. The parliament building has been elaborately trimmed with Spanish colors, and thousands of electric lights will outline the structure by night.

The ministeries of war, state and navy, have been similarly decorated with Spanish and British arms and emblems.

The main thoroughfares of the city are a tangle of electric devices, the lights taking on kaleidoscopic hues through tulip bulbs and fantastic lanterns.

King Alfonso's presents to his bride are on exhibition and attract great attention for the beauty of the gems and their value, which is said to exceed $1,000,000. They consist of an exquisite crown for the future queen to wear on state occasions, framed in solid gold and set with brilliants; also a diadem, two collars, one of pearls and the other of rubies and sapphires and a pair of magnificent pendants, and a large diamond brooch. One of the curious conceits is a minature diamond automobile, an exact counterpart of the king's favorite car. The doors open showing the portrait of the king by a leading artist.

Many palaces of grandees are being prepared for the visit of the princess.

London, May 26.—The prince and princess of Wales started today for Madrid, where they will represent king Edward at the wedding of king Alfonso.

CANADA'S FINANCES

The full report of finance minister Fielding's budget speech is now at hand. This is the tenth budget speech it has fallen to the lot of Mr. Fielding to make, in itself an exceptional circumstance in Canadian political life, and on each occasion, with the exception of the first, he has been able to announce a surplus. These surpluses under his administration have aggregated over $60,000,000 and for the nine years they cover give an annual average of over $7,000,000. This is a record that any finance minister may well be proud of, and, following upon the long years of periodical deficits under conservative administration, the record is one that liberals can legitimately regard with keen gratification.

It must be remembered that concurrently with these surpluses expenditures have increased enormously, that they have not been obtained by any cheese-paring policy and, further, that they have been obtained in face of material reduction in customs duties. Had the old conservative tariff prevailed all these years the revenues from tariff sources, assuming the imports to have been the same, would have been in excess of those actually collected many millions of dollars.

It would be silly to attribute the entire credit for the wonderful expansion in Canadian trade to the administration of sir Wilfrid Laurier's government, but fairly and reasonably it may be said that owing to the skill and ability of the heads of the chief administrative departments, particularly those of finance, customs, the interior, and the post office, opportunity has been afforded for the expansion of every branch of trade and industry, and that the government's policy throughout the past nine years has been formulated with express regard for the encouragement of every form of legitimate enterprise, and above all that the splendid work accomplished in settling up the west has proved a factor of supreme importance in placing Canada upon the high pedestal it now occupies in the eyes of the world.

We have before alluded to the question of our growing national expenditures. This question has to be faced and it is peculiarly the duty of the friends of the liberal government to advise extreme caution in this matter.

With increasing revenues there will inevitably be increased demands upon the public exchequer for expenditures to meet the needs of expanding trade. Expenditures, however large, that facilitate the growth of trade and assist in the development of the courty, so long as they do not run in excess of revenue, are justifiable and praiseworthy. But when the treasury is full there is apt to be a laxity in the supervision of these expenditures and a somewhat reckless generosity in adding to the cost of administration.

We want to see finance minister Feilding alert to guard against these encroachments and every friend of the administration should be prepared to strengthen his hands.

That Mr. Fielding is fully alive to the serious aspect of this question, is apparent from the special references he made to expenditures in his budget speech. We find him saying in this connection:

"Now these figures show the enormous increase in our public expenses, and sometimes that is made the subject of criticism more or less friendly, but sometimes adverse. We admit there has been great expansion in the expenses of the country, but we think that to some extent that expansion has something to do with the great progress of the country. We do not mean to say that every dollar operates directly in the progress of the country, though indirectly it contributes. But in the main the large public expenditures made under the administration of the present government have undoubtedly been one of the factors which have assisted in the development of the country, and we are able to point to statistics to show that if the country has increased its expenditures it has only been keeping pace with the expansion of our resources." Mr. Fielding added that while the expenditure in ten years had increased 83 per cent, the total trade had grown 109 per cent., deposits in chartered banks increased 156 per cent, discounts 114 per cent, and railway traffic 136 per cent. "With these figures before me," said the finance minister, "I may fairly claim that, large as has been the increase in the public expenditure of Canada, it has been an increase which has been necessary in order to assist in the development of the country, and the figures I have been able to show as to the expansion of trade, the increase in banking business, and the increase in railways, all these items prove that the expenditure of the country has not increased beyond a reasonable amount, having regard to all its expansion and development."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

In Kaeslo political circles, according to the Kootenaian, it is said that Hon. R. F. Green will not contest the Kaslo riding, but will transfer his affections to the Slocan and that C. W. McAnn, K. C., will e the conservative candidate in the former riding. This swapping of horses may be in Mr. Green's interests, but it apparently leaves out of consideration that stalwart government supporter, William Davidson, the sitting member for the Slocan.

The latest report from Caldwell is that the trial of the Western Federation officials will probably open the second week in June, except the change of venue asked for by the defense be granted. Application for the change of venue will probably come up on Tuesday next when the court convenes at Caldwell. Interest in the trial grows as the time of opening draws nearer and throughout the Pacific coast states and British Columbia the proceedings will be followed with the closest attention. Readers of The Daily News will be provided with the earliest and most accurate reports of the trial obtainable. This paper is going to very heavy expense to adequately cover this important trial. It is felt that the vast majority of the readers of The Daily News will be inerested in the proceedings and the policy of this paper has always been to endeavor to meet the requirements of its readesr in all matters of moment.

With regard to the proposed tariff changes, finance minister Fielding made the following pronouncement in the course of his budget speech: "With respect to the tariff generally hon. gentlemen are aware that two of my colleagues and myself, with sometimes many others, have made a very extended tour and have inquired as far as possible into the desires of the people of all classes in relation to the tariff. In every part of the country the hearings were attended with a great deal of interest. People came from long distances to present their views, and I think they were satisfied with the manner in which they were received. We hope during recess, if this session does not extend to too great a length, to take up the work, and at the November session, unless there be delays in the present session to cause a change in the program, to bring forward a revised tariff; not one which will make any great changes, perhaps, but one which will meet such new conditions as have arisen, and we hope for the same measure of success that we have had in the past in devising a tariff which will meet the requirements of all interests in the country, and that we shall have again a period of tariff stability under which the industries of Canada will go on and prosper as they have done in the past nine years."

Dear Sirs:--

I have made chemical analyses of two samples of your Bohemian bottled beer. One of these was bought in the open market the other came from your brewery. I find both samples to be free from preservatives.

I find this Bohemian bottled beer remains bright and clear on standing, which shows thorough Pasteurization, and it is free from all indications of mould both in taste and odor, thus indicating thorough cleanliness in all the vessels and apparatus used in its preparation.

When poured from the bottle into an open glass it produces an abundant and lasting foam which shows that it has been properly aged by storing or "lagering."

Yours very truly,

Edward H. Keiser

Professor of Chemistry.

PURITY IN BEERS of GREATEST IMPORTANCE TO ALL

Bottled beers as well as food products are often adulterated with chemical preservatives, etc., which temporarily keep them from souring, but are injurious to the stomach. It is therefore important to know that A. B. C. BEER is guaranteed to be ABSOLUTELY PURE and free from any adulterations whatever. It is never exposed to air (which is germ laden), but it is brewed, fermented and aged for nine months in air-tight compartments, piped in block tin pipes direct to air-tight bottling machines, where it is bottled, sealed, pasteurized and packed for shipment

A. B. C. The Only Beer Bottled Exclusively at the Brewery

Therefore the only Bottled Beer where PURITY can be ABSOLUTELY GUARANTEED.

Mr. Clint G. Ford who has been identified with the very foremost dramatic attractions, including Gillet's "Secret Service Co," "David Harum," "The Clansman," etc., has this to say of Newbro's Herpicide:

"For years I was annoyed with dandruff and itching of the scalp, all due to my twenty years of theatrical life with its incumbent make-up and wig wearing. At times the itching of the scalp was intense. All remedies failed me until I tried Herpicide, and I soon found that it was giving wonderful results. The itching and also the dandruff, entirely ceased and my hair resumed its natural life and vigor.

"There is no question in my mind about the reality of the dandruff germ, and I unhesitatingly recommend Herpicide to my friends in the profession.

(Sgd.) CLINT G. FORD."

THEATRICAL FOLK USE AND RECOMMEND

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

Extravagant claims for toilet remedies do not influence theatrical people, because long experience enables them to discriminate intelligently. They demand merit and will rarely use a preparation that is not actually worth as much or more than it costs in dollars and cents.

Herpicide kills the dandruff germ and by actual test does more good than all other hair remedies combined. This accounts for its popularity in theatrical circles.

"Queen Roselle" writes of Newbro's Herpicide

"I take pleasure in announcing the very satisfactory results I have had from the use of Newbro's Herpicide. My hair was falling out so rapidly that I was afraid I would lose it all. A friend advised Herpicide, and after using it faithfully my hair stopped falling out, the dandruff disappeared and my hair is now very soft and glossy.

"I would like to see every lady of the profession try Herpicide, for I am confident that they would be delighted with it. (Sgd.) QUEEN ROSELLE.

NEW YORK FASHION LETTER

New York, May 26—To have seen the crowd that was buying Easter hats you would have supposed that the whole city was supplied; but no sooner was the Easter week over than the milliners at once advertised "special after Easter exhibitions." The fact that today the demands made upon women regarding her dress, make the latter more and more lavish in expenditure, amount and quality. There must be a dress for all occasions and with nearly every dress there must be a hat to match. Even the woman with few social demands upon her, finds she has need for two or more hats in a season and to the woman in business the putting on and off of a hat four or five times a day with the wear through all weathers—the rain which crushes and the sun which fades—two hats will hardly suffice for even business wear.

The favorite straws are the crins, Milans, Tuscans, Dunstables, Leghorns, and the hair braids, which may be had in all the fashionable colors seen in dress goods; and it is a fad of the season to blend two or three shades of color in a costume hat, the straw usually corresponding to the shade of the material of the gown. It would seem as though every shape was fashionable, those tilted at the side, high in the back, while others have flat brims, and even those shelving downward. Most of the much bent straws are supported on light wire frames and, of course are an absolute necessity to those of chiffon, lace and tulle. In trimmings the rose is the favorite flower, and the short plume holds sway among feathers.

For practical every day use the sailor shapes in a durable straw are most durable of anything I know. Some of the sailors are trimmed most elaborately and in such a way as to be quite unrecognisable as the plainest of our shapes, others again are very simple and stiffly trimmed with an eye to utility alone. The popular sailor of the present moment is wide at the left side, while the front and back are the same width and narrow. They are lifted on a bandeau covered with a mass of tulle ruching which is brought around on the left side, where the hat is slightly tilted. The crown may be replaced by one made entirely of flowers or lace, or the straw crown may be encircled by a wreath of flowers or a ruching of tulle or a simple band. Now the high sailor is becoming to some faces and in that case it is better to choose one of the little round brim sailors, which when effectively trimmed with lace, a quill or two and some flowers for the sake of color, you have just as stylish a piece of millinery, and, what is more important, a hat that looks well on you.

Red is so fashionable a color for routing hats, that one sees many a shape in this color. A stylish example of the red hat was built in English walking outline with the left side fastened close to the crown with two wings, showing two shades of red; red and black cherries were laid in clusters above the crown and underneath the brim and left side. A more suitable hat for the seashore was of rough but light weight straw in a round sailor, which had a broad brim which would be a fine shield for the eyes from the sun's rays on the water. On the back was a ruching of silk instead of the more perishable maline, and a twist of silk was about the crown ending in a little chic bow in front, while two broad quills to the left side gave the extra decoration, its wearer could feel easy about even in the midst of threatening clouds.

A black hat is almost indispensable to any well arranged wardrobe, and it is certainly a standby for all sorts of occasions. I know a woman who has a hat of this description so constructed that she can easily and quickly change the trimming upon it by taking out or adding a few pins and extra chous. The hat frame was a round sailor, bent at the sides and back to suit the wearer's face. The frame was first covered with heavy chiffon and over it a fine shirred Maline. Underneath was a ruching of Maline covering the bandeau at the back and brought round to the left side. About the low crown was a mass of black pansies and a short black plume fell from the left side over the back; this, she called her fine weather hat, for such occasions when she wished to be smartly dressed and not noticeably so. On another day when she wished to attend an outdoor function of some note she substituted for the black pansies some black Maline chous placed fairly in front from which shot out two long white plumes, and on the back instead of the ruch she made an exchange of black Maline and roses of the shade of the old fashioned cinnamon rose; this she wore with a checked voile gown made over old rose silk. Another day when the fog rolled over the land, she arranged over the crown a tam shape of lace and a ruch of the same over the brim; and in the back, was placed a wreath of green silk leaves, while two wings decorated the top of the hat at the side. Every bit of these extra trimmings were arranged on wires or silk tape and by the aid of a few jewelled pins, this woman could have a new hat in about ten minutes.

For the hat that must see hard war it is better economy to choose a fine durable, though not necessarily heavy straw hat. These fine straws can be so much more easily cleaned of the dust and made to look fresh again by a little retrimming that it pays to spend the extra money in the beginning; the rough straws look very stylish in the first wearing, but it is only a little while before their rough surface has accumulated an amount of dust that is positively disheartening to the home milliner.

FIRST ELECTED BISHOP

ST. MATTHIAS CHOSEN BY BALLOT—ANNIVERSARY OF BEDE

SERVICES ANNOUNCED FOR TODAY IN NELSON CHURCHES

The Sunday after Ascension day marks in the church's series of commemorative services the period between the Ascension of Christ and His solemn farewell to his followers, and the descent at Pentecost of the Holy Ghost and the mystical powers of speech given to the apostles.

The records of that period are brief and vague. The disciples returned from Mount Olivet to Jerusalem and remained together waiting. During the interval they elected St. Matthias bishop in place of the dead betrayer, Judas. The manner of the election was noteworthy. The whole catholic church at that time numbered but 120 souls Two men, Matthias and Barabas Justus, were chosen of those who besides the 11 had been of Christ's following from the beginning and could testify to his acts of their own knowledge. Then by a secret ballot the church chose Matthias.

The gospel for the day is a continuation of Christ's teaching before His Ascension and his warnings of the life His disciples must lead and the persecutions they must undergo, summed up in the words "They shall put you out of the synagogues, yea, the time cometh, that whosoever killeth you will think that he doeth God's service," a prophecy strangely fulfilled in the early life of the great apostle, St. Paul.

Today, May 27th, is the anniversary of the Venerable Bede, the greatest name in Anglo-Saxon literature. Bede lived from 673 to 735, and was for 30 years a priest of the church of England. Born near Wearmouth in Durham, he was educated first in the monastery of St. Peter near his home, and afterwards at Jarrow, where most of his life was spent. There he wrote homilies, hymns and the lives of saints as well as treatises on grammar and literature and on the scriptures. In an age when learning was rare he was a proficient scholar in Latin, Greek and Hebrew His greatest work was his Ecclesiastical History of the People of England, written by him in Latin, afterwards translated by Alfred the Great The modern world's debt to Bede is greater than is generally recognised He is the chief authority on the history of England down to 731, and his work, On the Six Ages of the World was throughout the middle ages the authority on the history of the world.

The services announced for today in the churches of Nelson are as follows:

Anglican—St. Saviour's church, corner of Ward and Silica streets Sunday after Ascension day; holy communion, 8 a. m.; morning prayer and holy communion, 11; children's service, 2:30 p.m.; evensong, 7:30. Rev. P. H. Graham, rector.

Catholic—Church of Mary Immaculate, corner of Ward and Mill streets. Low mass, 8 a.m.; high mass, 10:30 a.m.; evening service, 7:30. Rev. Father Althoff, priest.

Salvation Army—Barracks on Victoria street, west of Josephine. Special services will be held today. Knee drill, 7 a.m.; holiness meeting, 11 a.m.; a praise meeting at 3 p.m.; Salvation meeting, 8 p.m.

Baptist church—Stanley street, near Mill. Morning service, 11 a.m.; evening service, at 7:30; Sunday school at 2:30 p.m. Rev. E. H. Shanks, pastor. Morning topic, "Walking in the Light of God"; evening, "The Corn of Egypt."

CONTEST EXTENDED TO

July 31st, 1906

Messrs. Armour Limited, Toronto, regret to advise all who have so kindly forwarded lists of names as per the conditions of their Educational Contest, that their building, with its entire contents, was destroyed by fire on the evening of March 19th, and all records of lists they have received, as well as all lists, were destroyed, and we ask that all who had sent in lists previous to this time, mail us duplicates. No metal caps required with duplicate lists. To make up for time lost by the fire, and to give all competitors a fair and equal chance, we have consented to extend the Educational Contest until July 31st, 1906.

We offer $200.00 in gold to those sending in the largest lists of correct words made from the twelve different letters used in spelling the four words

Armour's Extract of Beef

$25.00 in gold will be given as the second prize.

$10.00 in gold will be given as the third prize.

Words spelled the same, but having different meanings, may be used but once.

All contestants must attach to their lists a metal cap taken from a jar of "Armour's Extract of Beef." Failure to do this puts the list out of competition.

The names of the winners of these prizes will be determined by judges whom we shall appoint.

OF INTEREST TO MINERS

SECOND INSTALMENT OF ARTICLE ON COPPER MINERALS

WITH SPECIAL REFERENCE TO BRITISH COLUMBIA

Today's article on the more important metals is a continuation of Copper Minerals, of which the first was published last week. Th minerals which are described this week are those from which British Columbia, in the greater part, obtains its copper, therefore the attention of any of our readers who are interested in copper, is particularly drawn to this article.

Our correspondence columns are being taken advantage of by a number of people every week, and we hope that during the coming months more will send us their samples for examination. Correspondents must please understand that an assay office is not kept on the premises, but should anyone desire to have an assay made upon a sample submitted, we shall be pleasd to place it in the hands of a competent assayer who will assay it and send a certificate direct to the sender. All samples will be retained from seven to fourteen days according to the distance from which they come; after that they will be discarded.

COPPER

CHRYSOCOLLA—This mineral is a silicate of copper, carrying about 46 per cent copper oxide (36.2 per cent copper. Its color varies from a mountain green to a bluish green, passing to a sky blue and even a turquois blue. When impurities are present it sometimes has a black or brown tinge. Its streak is invariably white. It is never found crystalline; usually it occurs as an incrustation or in thin seams in crevices and as copper stains in quartz, occasionally it is found massive.

Its lustre is nearly always glassy or shining, sometimes earthy.

This material is found in most copper mines, accompanying other copper ores, occurring especially in the upper parts of the veins.

Chrysocolla obtains its naem from two Greek words, meaning "gold" and "glue." This was the name given to a similar material used in soldering gold, hence its name. It is some times applied at the present day to borax, which has displaced it.

DIOPTASE—This mineral is also a silicate of copper, containing when pure, a little over 50 per cent of copper oxide. Its color is an emerald gren, with a green streak. In some mines in Arizona the most beautiful brilliant green crystals are found of this mineral which command a great price.

CHALCOPYRITE—Or copper pyrites, is one of the greatest sources of the copper of commerce and as far as British Columbia is concerned is the chief source of the metal. It has a strong metallic lustre, with a greenish black streak. In color it is brass yellow, often tarnished or irridescent. It usually occurs in uncrystalline masses with an irregular fracture; rarely it is found crystalline. It is a compound sulphide of copper and iron, carrying about 35 per cent copper, and 30 percent iron. It is distinguished from iron pyrites by its deper color, by its tarnishing, by being easily scratched with a knife, and by its chemical reactions.

Chalcopyrite is often associated with pyrrhotite, seams of it often running through the latter mineral, sometimes very distinct, at other times the copper pyrites forms an entirely separate band, but gradually tails off into the pyrrhotite. It is also frequently found disseminated through pyrrhotite as well as through iron pyrites.

In certain parts of the country this mineral carries good silver values, whilst in other parts it carries very little silver, but good values in gold. For instance, there is apparently a belt running from the Silver King mine due southwest, past Erie, to the boundary line, which carries good silver values, but containing very little gold. A short distance to the west of this belt is found another copper belt running almost parallel, which carries gold values, with very little silver.

BORNITE — This mineral is called by many other names according to the different parts of the world in which it is found. For instance, it is called variegated copper pyrites, peacock copper and horseflesh copper in the Kootenays, whilst in other parts many other names are applied to it. This mineral has a very important position among the copper producing ores, in fact it stands a good second to copper pyrites. Its color varies from a copper red to a brown on fresh fractures, but it speedily tarnishes on exposure and is commonly irridescent with different shades of blue, purple and red, hence its various names. Its streak is always a pale, greyish black. When pure it contains about 55 per cent copper and 16 per cent iron. It is nearly always found massive, sometimes granular or compact. It has an uneven fracture and is very brittle.

CHALCOCITE—This mineral is commonly called copper glance, or vitreous copper. It occurs in six sided crystals, as well as massive, granular or compact. It has a color and streak of a blackish lead gray color, often tarnished a dull blue or green which gives it an irridescent appearance. It is a straight sulphide of copper containing about 80 per cent of the metal. This mineral is frequently mistaken for argentite, or silver sulphide, but can very readily be detected upon chemical tests being applied.

COVELLITE—Or indigo copper is another straight sulphide of copper, carrying about 66 per cent copper. As its name would imply, it has a deep indigo blue color, with a lead gray to shining streak. It is usually found massive, but occasionally in six sided crystals.

TETRAHEDRITE—Or grey copper, usually occurs massive, with fine or coarse granulations; sometimes compact, or even crystalline. This mineral derives its name from the crystals in which shape it was first found (tetrahedrite crystals, four faced). Its color varies from a flint grey to an iron black and it has a streak similar to the color. It is a compound of antimony, copper and sulphur, carrying about 25 per cent antimony, 52 per cent copper, the balance being sulphur.

In British Columbia silver takes the place of part of the copper in varying amounts from one to thirty per cent. This is especially noticeable in the Slocan district, where "grey copper" is one of the richest silver bearing minerals.

Occasionally arsenic displaces the antimony in this mineral; it is then called Tennantite. This is the case at the Silver King mine, Nelson, B.C., where it is closely associataed with bornite. Mercury and lead also frequently displace part of the copper in this mineral in various quantities from 5 to 16 per cent.

There are many other copper ores but they are not of sufficient interest to justify going into further details at this writing.

CORRESPONDENCE

J. C. B., Slocan, B.C.—Your No. 1 sample is mainly composed of copper pyrites, and when taken in conjunction with No. 2 will probably assay somewhat similar with copper added. No. 2 is a pyrrhotite, which differs considearbly from the ordinary pyrrhotite of the Kootenays. It appears to resemble that found at Sudbury, Ontario, which contains nickel in paying quantities; we should therefore advise you to have it tested for that metal, as well as for gold and silver. The charges for this will be $6.50, and we will hold your samples 14 days awaiting a reply from you.

Harold Cook, Arrowhead, B.C. — Your samples were received and an answer given in these columns some few weeks past. As the samples were apparently useless and contained no values, they were destroyed, so we are unable to return them to you. We are returning by next mail the stamps you enclosed for return postage on the samples.

Z. Y. X., Nelson, B.C.—The sample you left with us is a piece of Trachyte, and will contain no commercial values. Trachyte is one of the most common forms of volcanic or eruptive rock. It is a light colored rock and has a peculiar characteristic rough feel, as you will no doubt have noticed.

A. N., Fort Steele, B.C.—Your No. 1 sample is Barite or heavy spar; the green particles present are due to copper stains. It may contain a little gold. You will notice the great weight of this sample as compared with a piece of quartz of the same size. No. 3 is a Basaltic rock and will contain no commercial values.

G., Kaslo, B.C.—Your sample is composed mainly of zinc blende, but there is present another mineral. The pink and yellowish material appears to be calamin or silicate of zinc. We should like a larger sample to give a further examination upon.

H. B., Nelson, B.C.—You will find your questions answered in today's article on copper ores.

Two weeks back a correspondent wrote asking what Marcasita Argentea was. Since then the matter has been looked up and we find that it was the old name for Bismuth, obtaining this name from its use as an imitation of silver for writing and painting.

NOT IF AS RICH AS ROCKEFELLER

If you had all the wealth of Rockefeller, the Standard Oil magnate, you could not buy a better medicine for bowel complaints than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. The most eminent physician can not prescribe a better preparation for colic and diarrhoea, for both children and adults. The uniform success of this remedy has shown it to be superior to all others. It never fails, and when reduced with water and sweetened, is pleasant to take. Every family should be supplied with it. Sold by all druggists and dealers.

MINING RECORDS

Five certificates of assessment work, one location and one bill of sale were recorded in the Nelson mining office on May 26th.

Certificates were issued to W. B. Pollard on the Bobs, to Nels Lowenring on the Alma N., to W. B. Muir on the Friendship, to H. B. Landis on the Forest Centre, and to H. B. Landis as agent for Louis Will on the Cedar Canyon.

Annie R. Peters recorded the Mount Hecla, opposite the Ymir mine, adjoining the Canadian Pacific group, and about five miles from Ymir.

Allan Watson transferred to F. P. Drummond, for a nominal consideration, the Clyde situated on Sheep creek near the Yellowstone mine.

SCIATICA CURED AFTER TWENTY YEARS OF TORTURE.

For more than twenty years M. J. B Massey, of 3322 Clinton street, Minneapolis, Minnesota, was tortured by sciatica. The pain and suffering which he endured during this time is beyond comprehension. Nothing gave him any permanent relief until he used Chamberlain's Pain Balm. One application of that linament relieved the pain and made sleep and rest possible, and less than one bottle has effected a permanent cure. If troubled with sciatica or rheumatism why not try a 25 cent bottle of Pain Balm and see for yourself how quickly it relieves the pain. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

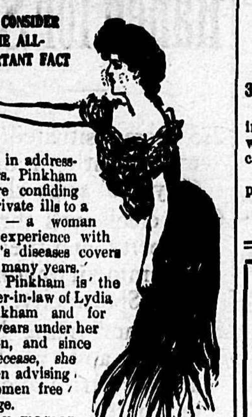
STOP, WOMAN!
AND CONSIDER THE ALL-IMPORTANT FACT



That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman — a woman whose experience with women's diseases covers a great many years.

Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for many years under her direction, and since her decease, she has been advising sick women free of charge.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probable examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.

If you are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice.

When a medicine has been so successful in restoring to health so many women, you cannot well say, without trying it "I do not believe it will help me."

The mother of a young lad named John Hayes, who apparently was in Ymir last September, is very anxious to learn of his present whereabouts. Information should be sent to Hayes' brother-in-law, W. A. Paddock, Kirkside farm, Minnedosa, Man. or at this office.

In yesterday's account of the police court proceedings it was incorrectly stated that one of the proprietors of the Klondike hotel was charged with selling liquor to Indians and had pleaded guilty to the offence. The offence was committed at another hotel b ya new bartender who did not know that it was against the law.

That times are fairly good in Nelson this season may be estimated from the fact that no less than eight new gasoline launches will arrive here over the railways from the east. S. M. B. de Veber are all expecting fine boats. The average cost of the launches will be between $600 and $700, or exceed in all a total of $5000. The local fleet this season should be nearly 50.

At the evening service in St. Paul's church today Rev. J. T. Ferguson will give an address on the "Two Bernards," hymn writers of the middle ages. Gounod's "Forever with the Lord," will be sung by Mrs. N. L. McInnes and Ralph Clark.

Rehearsals for Kirmess will be held tomorrow in Fraternity hall, the children's flower drill at 4 p.m., the tombourine drill and dance at 8 p.m. and the sextette at 9 p.m.

At the assizes yesterday the case of Elk Lumber company vs. C.N.P.C. company was concluded and the action dismissed with costs. The sittings then concluded. A full report of the proceedings is crowded out of this issue.

INTERNATIONAL P. O. CONGRESS

Rome, May 26—The international post office congress ended today. The congress has been most remarkable for the unanimity of the delegates upon the different questions, especially the two cent postage rate between the United States and Australia and New Zealand. Deputy postmaster general Coulter of Canada, said that the results of the congress were most advantageous to Canada as the special service which had hitherto been enjoyed by the United States for mail crossing its territory had been abolishd and a better land rate had been established which materially favored Canada, which was a country with a great deal of land transit service.
