SHERMAN'S STATEMENT

District President Reviews Situation From Men's View Point

Union Determined to Secure Its Demands From Operators—C. P. R. Announces Inability to Move Ore

A notification was sent out yesterday by the Canadian Pacific railway to the various smelters and mines in the Kootenay and Yale districts that from today no ore shipments could be accepted until the railway had a visible supply of coal on hand.

The C. P. R. local officials concerned in this notification stated to The Daily News yesterday afternoon that the situation was so serious that the company had been obliged to inform the smelters that they are not in a position to handle any ore from the mines after yesterday night until a supply of coal could be assured for engine use. There is only sufficient coal on hand locally to supply passenger trains for another week or ten days at the outside. The department was in receipt of a wire from Michel advising it that the men would not work except at the instance of the officers of their union until the time of the conference which is set for next week. It follows necessarily that the department cannot accept lumber for outward shipment. At the present time the department is accepting local freight in small lots.

The board of trade is in receipt of the following telegram from the Calgary board and have in consequence called for a special meeting this evening at 8 o'clock in the board of trade rooms:

"Calgary board of trade strongly urges immediate action board of conciliation in the matter of the miners disagreement. Freight traffic has ceased entirely here. Passenger traffic is to stop in a few days. Miners are leaving work in large bodies though no strike has, apparently, been officially declared. Output of coal has practically ceased, manufacturing plants closing. Situation most serious in history of western Canada. Ask your co-operation to prevent fatal demoralization of western business. (Sgd.) E. L. Richardson, Secretary board of trade.

"Calgary, April 17, 1907."

There are only small stocks of fuel on hand at the various smelters, the trouble in the fall and winter having prevented any accumulation of any moment. The Boundary smelters and the Trail smelter have a little, but not much ahead and at the same reduction works there are small supplies of ore but these cannot last over more than a day or so if the plants are run at their normal output. By curtailing this output by blowing out several of the furnaces an output can be maintained for a week or ten days but this is apparently the limit. The bins will soon be emptied and cannot be refilled.

Locally the smelter authorities are not inclined to say anything but it is known that the Hall Mines smelter is no better situated in regard to a stock of fuel than the other reduction works.

(Special to The Daily News)

Fernie, April 18—District president Sherman has given your correspondent the following detailed statement of the employees' side of the case in the present dispute:

"The facts pertaining to the disputes which exist between the coal operators in Alberta and the Crow's Nest Pass of British Columbia, and their employees are not generally known. The public has been permitted to get that kind of information which conveys the idea that the miners are in the wrong. This is perhaps due to the fact that on the part of the employees no correspondence has been sent out and their case has not been brought to public notice.

So far as the press accounts go it would appear that the conciliation boards, which have been appointed by the minister of labor under the Industrial Disputes Investigation act, were brought into existence at the request of the employers, whereas the fact is that it was upon the employees' initiative that such was done.

While there are many reasons for the trouble which exists, the proximate cause for the crisis may be said to have been a tactical mistake on the part of the operators in serving upon their employees and in posting up in conspicuous places, after such request for a conciliation board had been sent in, notices posting the wage scale from 10 to 20 per cent in the way of reduction. The employees, when they found that they could make an agreement with the operators, immediately took steps to place themselves under the new law, hoping and expecting thereby to bring about what they considered to be justice to themselves. Instead of cooperating with the employees in having a conciliation board appointed, the operator raised technical objections to the procedure on the part of the employees.

The act requires that the application for the appointment of a board shall set forth the steps which have been taken by the respective parties to the dispute to bring about a settlement. In compliance with that part of the act the mine workers set forth the proceedings taken at the local conference which took place during March at Calgary. The demand made at that conference was, technically speaking, not a demand made upon each company itself, but it was supposed that the operators' delegates thereat had sufficient authority to receive in behalf of the company represented by him, a demand made in that manner.

"In their reply to the request for a board of conciliation, made by the mine workers, each company set forth in stereotyped form the following: 'No claim or demand such as is set out in paragraph two of the statement accompanying the said request has been made on behalf of the employees of this company to the company.' Thus as it were, discrediting the operators' association.

"The raising of technical objections of this kind irritated the employees not a little, and resulted in the United Mine Workers refusing to have any further dealings with the operators' association as such. But the technical objections raised in this way were very speedily brushed aside, and red tape found no place in the procedure adopted by the minister of labor. To the credit of the department of labor be it said that a greater expedition in bringing the board of conciliation into existence could not have been expected, and were it not for other considerations there is little doubt that the mine workers would have continued work. The notice given by the operators that a new wage scale would come into effect on the 10th of May acted as a red flag to a bull. It was impossible to convince the men that what was stated in that notice could not be done. The dissatisfaction became general and hundreds of men acting upon individual initiative, immediately quit work.

"So much has been said as to the insistance of the mine workers upon a closed shop that the public has received the idea that that is their position. To negative this impression, the mine workers, through their executive, published a declaration that they did not insist upon the closed shop, therefore this contention falls to the ground. What they do insist upon, and what they intend to get if they possibly can, is a fortnightly pay day, and an 8-hour day from bank to bank with respect to the province of Alberta. They also ask for an all round increase of 10 per cent upon the present scale of wages. They think that as the operators are sharing in the common prosperity of the country, and as mine workers elsewhere have had their wages increased voluntarily by the operators, that there is no reason why they should not share in this prosperity. If at any time a reduction in the wage scale should take place it is not now when the prosperity of the country was never better.

"They also object to the attempt which the operators have made to impose upon them a condition whereby they may not ask or be given legislation in their behalf without paying therefor in the way of reduced wages.

ARRIVE AT COMPROMISE

NEW PERMANENT DEPARTMENT TO BE ESTABLISHED.

TO CARRY ON WORK BETWEEN COLONIAL CONFERENCES

London, April 18.—According to a brief official announcement the colonial conference today discussed questions concerning its constitution and considered the draft of a resolution drawn up by the earl of Elgin, the colonial secretary, on the subject, which was accepted in principle, though the settlement of the precise terms was held over until April 20. The conference also considered two resolutions from the commonwealth of Australia, the first inviting the colonial secretary to frame a scheme under which the staff of the colonial secretary would be enabled to acquire more intimate knowledge of the colonies, and the second urging the desirability of the colonies being represented on the imperial council of defence, and that they be authorized to refer to this council for advice in regard to local questions on which expert assistance may be desirable.

It was explained respecting the latter items that they were intended to provide means for a more effective discussion of questions relating to the defence of the empire.

It was learned from another source, that lord Elgin's resolution indicates one distinct advance, namely, the creation of a new permanent department, presumably at the colonial office, whose especial duty would be to look after questions of general imperial interest, carrying on the work between the colonial conferences, which will be held every four years. This is understood to be the result of a compromise, there being no desire on the part of the premiers to emphasize a divergence of opinion or occasion anything looking like a split. The premiers have expressed general dissatisfaction with the secrecy maintained concerning the discussions and the method of publishing the proceedings of the conference and there is reason to hope that when the various resolutions are adopted, fuller public announcements will be made.

THAW JUROR "APPROACHED"

New York, April 18—It was announced today that the district attorney had begun the investigation of a report that one of the jurors in the recent trial of Harry K. Thaw was "approached" by a policeman before the trial closed. Henry C. Breary, one of the jurors, had an interview with district attorney Jerome late today at the latter's office. Later it was announced that several others of the jury would be asked to come to the district attorney's office tomorrow to tell what they knew of the report in question. It was reported that a policeman talked with a juror on one of the walks the jury took from the criminal court building to the Broadway Central hotel.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

Feature of British Liberal Government's Policy in Near Future

Announcement Made by Chancellor of the Exchequer Asquith in His Budget Speech Yesterday

London, April 18.—In a house crowded in every part and with the prince of Wales in the peers' gallery, chancellor of the exchequer Herbert Asquith in an able two hours' speech today, delivered the budget speech. If not rivalling the great financial achievements of his famous predecessors Gladstone and Harcourt, the statement has the merit of extreme simplicity in its main features. Judging by the debate which followed it will meet with a larger degree of general approval and less sectional antagonism than usually falls to the lot of budget statements. The most persistent complaints emanate from the extreme section of the labor party which is disappointed at the postponement of the pension scheme and the absence of any direct relief in the taxation of the working classes.

James Keir Hardie, frankly calls it a brutal budget and declares his belief that the government has no intention of dealing with the question during its lifetime but purposes to reserve it as an effective election plank when it becomes necessary to go to the country. That there is some foundation for the complaints of the working classes may be accepted from the fact that in the lobbies of the house, the statement was generally classed "as a middle class budget."

Asquith had the rare good fortune of dealing with a year of extreme prosperity in national finances. The national debt is being reduced rapidly and in this connection the chancellor of the exchequer announced that the government held it as an obligation to reinstate and improve the national debt.

Briefly instead of the estimated deficit of $230,000 for 1906-07, Mr. Asquith has realized a surplus of $26,995,000 while for 1907-08 he estimated the surplus at $17,165,000. His proposals are not a reduction in direct taxation, but to provide relief from the burden of the income tax by preferential treatment of earned incomes below $10,000 a year to the extent of six cents for every $5. To compensate for the loss from this measure he proposes that the death duties should be increased. The chancellor promised an old pension scheme for next year and set aside $7,500,000 for this purpose. The unusually brief debate which followed Asquith's statement was devoid of any particularly interesting features.

London, April 18.—No budget statement of recent years has been awaited with so much interest as that of chancellor of the exchequer Asquith today. Although it was his second budget, that of last year really was only a legacy left from the previous administration, so his proposals today constituted the first real liberal budget in 12 years. The house was thronged and the public galleries were densely crowded.

The financial statement issued by the treasury in advance of the chancellor's speech informed the house that the exact realized surplus for 1906-07 was $26,955,000 which, in accordance with the law, would be devoted to the reduction of the public debt. Mr. Asquith estimated the expenditure for 1907-08, at $703,885,000. The permanent reduction of the national debt for 1906-07 was announced to be $68,750,000. The duty on tea was unchanged.

There will be a different action hereafter in the tax on earned and unearned incomes. A rebate of six cents in the pound sterling ($5) would be allowed on the income tax on earned incomes under $10,000 a year. He estimated the loss in differentation of the incomes at $6,250,000. A revision of the death duties to make up the loss from the income tax was suggested.

Mr. Asquith opened his speech with a brief review of the past year, pointing out, that with the exception of the stock markets, which suffered from the money stringency, trade at home and abroad had been remarkably flourishing. Treasury receipts were over $10,000,000 in excess of the estimates, unanticipated death duties accounting for $6,000,000 of this sum, while the balance was made up of increased receipts from the coal duty and the mint. The latter was due to the increased demand for coinage on account of the prosperous state of trade and the large amount of silver, aggregating $2,500,000 required for varied purposes in connection with the general elections.

The latter remark reminded the house of commons of petitions to annul elections on account of alleged bribery and called forth laughter. As a whole the revenue returns, the chancellor added, have not shown great elasticity, and in view of the undoubted prosperous state of trade, they were distinctly disappointing. The reduction in the tea duty in the last budget had been followed by increased consumption, amounting to 4,500,000 pounds. The revenue from tobacco had not realized expectations and there had been a progressive formidable decline in the revenue from the alcohol group since 1899, until last year.

As chancellor of the exchequer, he, Mr. Asquith, was glad to say that there were signs of a definite raction, and the present year had furnished an increase of £2,470,000 on these receipts. Continuing, the chancellor said there had been a falling off in the revenue from stamps owing to the slackness of operations on the stock exchange and the fact that the telephone was superceding letters. Referring to the financial year of 1907-08, the chancellor estimated an expenditure of $703,785,000 showing a reduction of $8,320,000 compared with 1906-07. He hoped the reduction would be continuous and progressive. On the existing basis of taxation, the revenue for the forthcoming year was estimated at $720,950,000 showing an estimated surplus of $17,165,000. Discussing the liabilities of the state, the chancellor announced amidst cheers that the permanent reduction of the national debt in the course of 1906-07 amounted to $68,750,000.

Dealing with the lines by which the liberal administration proposed to direct the finances of the country during the next few years, the chancellor said: "We are under the immediate obligation of reinstating and improving the national credit."

Referring to the recent fall in gilt-edged securities, the chancellor said that consols were still the premier security. The existing conditions were largely the result of unliquidated commitments and constituted a serious embarrassment, not only to the government but to the community at large. The further reduction of the national debt was the paramount duty of the government, but behind all that was the unconquered territory of social reform.

"I am not a socialist," the chancellor remarked, "but there is nothing which appeals to us so loudly and imperiously as the possibilities of social reform."

In regard to old age pensions, the chancellor said he would not commit himself to any scheme for the present. Everything must be done by steps. But, in behalf of the government, he declared that in the sphere of finance, the ministers regardend old age pensions as being the most serious and most urgent of all the demands for social reform. It was their hope and intention before the close of the next session of parliament if they were allowed to have their way, to lay a firm foundation for this reform.

Continuing the chancellor said that if these objects of the government, namely, the strengthening of the national credit, and the creation of a fund for social reform, were to be carried out, he could not do anything involving a permanent diminution of the revenue. He was satisfied that a further reduction in the duty on tea by two cents would not benefit the consumer and he did not propose to make any changes this year in direct taxation. The chancellor intended, however, to deal with the income tax in directions which in its present shape worked unjustly. The scheme must be one which without destroying the productive character of the tax, would differentiate between earned and unearned incomes. Earned incomes under $10,000 a year would hereafter only pay 18 cents while the existing tax of 24 cents in the pound sterling on earned incomes would remain. This reduction would be in addition to all the present rebates, but it would be confined to the earned incomes of persons whose total income from all sources did not exceed $10,000.

RAISE FOR POSTMASTERS

LEMIEUX PROMISES INCREASED PAY FOR RURAL P. M.'s

HE WILL VISIT WEST THIS SUMMER TO STUDY SITUATION

Ottawa, April 18.—In the course of minor amendments, the postmaster general gave an understanding that an announcement of an increased scale of remuneration for the rural postmasters and other members of the outside postal service of the country would be made shortly. Provision will also be made for the extension of the free delivery system to cities of ten and twelve thousand over the whole dominion. Lemieux announced his intention to visit western Canada during the coming summer to study the postal conditions.

At today's session of the banking and commerce committee, bills were reported for the incorporation of the Fidelity Life and Prudential Life companies, with a capital of one million in each case. The bill postponing the marking of gold and silver articles as required by previous legislation, passed all three stages. The whole subject will be reconsidered next session.

PLAGUE IN INDIA.

Simla, India, April 18.—There was 75,000 deaths from the plague in India during the week ending April 13. Seventy thousand of these occurred in Bengal, the united provinces, and the Punjab. The epidemic began in the Punjab in October, 1897, since when nearly a million and a half deaths have occurred.

'QUAKE VISITS MANILA.

Manila, April 18.—Two severe earthquake shocks were felt here this morning. No damage is reported.

FIRST QUAKE ANNIVERSARY

President of Merchants' Association Outlines Great Strides Made in Work of Restoration

San Francisco, April 18.—The first anniversary of the earthquake and fire which left this city in ruins was observed today by appropriate religious services and commerative exercises by the building trades council and other organizations. The chief event was a banquet by the merchants' association at the hotel Fairmont.

The following is an abstract of the address of president Frank J. Symmes: After a review of the great damage done by the fire, Symmes said:

"The insurance companies of the world were called upon as never before. Loss claims were filed for $225,000,000 and of this sum $13,650,000 was against two San Francisco companies. One of these companies assessed its stockholders (50 per cent of whom were residents in San Francisco) three times its capital. The other, having 90 per cent of its capital held in this city, assessed its stockholders six and three-fourths times its capital. Such an example of corporation honor the world has never before known. Would that the rest of the world had done as well. The insurance loss will never be known, two hundred and fifty million dollars will not cover it.

"From a building point of view," he continued, "we are rapidly recovering Our progress has been creditable and satisfactory and no man need fear the future in this direction. Building permits to April 1, 1907, have been issued to the extent of $655,078,756. The labor commissioner reports a wage payment of a million a week. The bank clearings have never weakened, but have shown an average increase of ten per cent over the corresponding periods of 1905. The bank deposits increased $61,440,090.59 from April last to December 31, 1906. There have been no bank failures and not a single important mercantile failure as a result of the fire. The customs house duties increased from $7,13[illegible],000 in 1905 to $9,091,000 in 1906. Our exports in 1906 were over $50,000,000 and our imports in 1906 were over $48,000,000."

Mr. Symmes urged that the new city be built on more beautiful lines than the old and urged greater purity in public life.

NELSON'S NEWS OF THE DAY

Several settlers have taken up locations here of late, but there are more visitors who are purchasing as an investment. Among the recent sales is that of 17 acres at 13-Mile point, at a figure entirely satisfactory to the buyer, to R. B. Hill of Winnipeg, who intends to come here in June next and personally improve his land.

Certificates of work have been issued on the White Star for work done on the Tona fraction, and upon the Tona fraction, to I. T. Price; on the Elkhern to E. O. Nelson; C. E. Wilson and J. R. Cranston recorded the locations on Sero Verde mountain and Sheep creek respectively, the Cannon Ball and Tutley One.

Upwards of 105 feet of water flowed into the Krao mine at Ainsworth within 11 hours at the very time the power was finally installed. It was discovered that this abnormal rise was due to the draining of a small basin into the workings, filled with melting snow. This will be kept dry in future by the digging of a trench.

Captain T. H. Trethewey of the La Plata mine, has resigned the managership of that property to look after some mining interests in the coalfields of Alberta where he has now gone. His place has been taken by his son, W. J. Trethewey. Capt. Trethewey is still a director of the company. The La Plata mill is now treating 90 tons of ore daily and will be able to keep this up until the low water season again occurs.

ONTARIO BANK DIRECTORS

May Escape Even Civil Proceedings For Wreck of Institution.

Toronto, April 18.—It is generally understood that in view of the collapse of the police court case against G. R. Cockburn, ex-president of the Bank of Ontario, all idea of further criminal proceedings against the former directors has been definitely abandoned. The question of civil proceedings has not yet been considered thoroughly, and it is possible may not be decided for some time as it is naturally a slow process to overhaul every transaction of the bank. It is believed though, that the new directors are opposed to taking any action. Mr. Cockburn will be out of the city for a short time as he leaves at once for the south with Mrs. Cockburn, who has been very ill.

FATHER'S FIENDISH ACT

Montreal, April 18—A frightful story of cruelty was told today in the magistrate's court, when George Blanchette was brought up on a charge of cruelty to his five months' old infant. The charge was preferred by the man's mother-in-law, who asserted that Blanchette had on one occasion placed the child in a basket and had then put in the oven and then lighted the stove. The man's wife, a meek woman, and evidently afraid of the brute, explained that on one occasion Blanchette had put the infant in a basket and held it over the stove but only for a minute. The officers who went to arrest Blanchette found the man barricaded and refused to admit them. They broke down the door and took their man. The Blanchettes live in a two roomed hovel, a mighty unhealthy place.

BODWELL'S TURN NOW

COUNSEL FOR DEFENDANTS HAS THE FLOOR.

DEMOLISHES EXPERTS FOR PLAINTIFFS WITH RAPIER THRUSTS

(Special to The Daily News)

Victoria, April 18.—The ninth day of the Star vs. White appeal before the full court witnessed the conclusion of S. S. Taylor's admirable summing up of the evidence and an argument on the purely legal aspect of the case, explanatory of the old mineral statute law by which this case is bound and the authorities in support thereof. Taylor's attention to detail throughout has been very thorough and has excited very favorable general comment.

This afternoon Bodwell commenced his address to the court on the defendants' behalf and was in the midst of his speech when adjournment came. He spoke slowly and apparently under a good deal of pressure at the start, turning sharply on Taylor for his alleged misleading methods of quoting the evidence, and then proceeding to round off Davis for his vituperative attack on Elmendorf and the other experts of the defendants. He deprecated these abusive tactics and urged that Davis' appeal had lacked argument or reason. In Bodwell's own inimitable fashion, where contrasting the conflicting expert testimony, he used the rapier rather than the bludgeon and time and again thrust through and through the plaintiffs' experts story, that by the end of the day there was no more left of their contention, than there was of the defendants' experts, when Davis finished with them. Bodwell laid greatest stress on Hunter's two visits to the mine in the company of experts, declaring that Sizer could not show to the judge what he swore in court could readily be seen by any one going over the workings. On the contrary Elmendorf had been able to point to observed facts borne out by inspection. Bodwell made most of the fact that Hunter point blank contradicted Sizer as to the latter's statement at the mine and later in court and declared that on good grounds Hunter had discredited Sizer's testimony in consequence. The balance of Bodwell's address consisted of a forceful analysis of the evidence from the defendants' standpoint. He insisted that his side of the case was in no way hurt by the new work and that the new work did not show or prove anything that was not known during the Nelson trial and did not disprove in anyway defendants invariable contention for the continuous existence of the Star vein, and did not prove what the plaintiffs promised it would when asking that it be done.

The case will close some time on Saturday.

EXPLOSION OF BENZINE

CAUSES FATAL FIRE IN MONTREAL STEAM LAUNDRY

SEVERAL WOMEN WORKERS SUSTAIN SEVERE INJURIES

Montreal, April 18—Two were burned to death and several badly injured this afternoon by a fire in the Calumet steam laundry, St. Justin street. The seriously injured are Mrs. P. Giroux, 46 years old, 156 Versailles street. She jumped from an upper window, and besides injuries received in the fall, was burned from head to foot and it is expected that she will not live. Mrs. Albertine Peradis, 39 years of age, Sanguinet street, jumped and missed the life net. Her face was burned and her right arm fractured. Mrs. Victoria Daigle, 39 years of age, 191 Wolfe street, compound fracture of the right ankle. Mrs. Jeannette Benefant, 39 years, 2 Bourgeois avenue, severe burns of face and back. Mrs. A. Proulx, 209 Montcalm street, hands and face burned and several ribs broken.

The slightly injured were Miss Anna Etienne, Ontario street, burns on back and left arm; Miss Bertha McKercher, St. Christopher street, right arm fractured and face burned, Miss Georgina Lavigne, face burned. Miss Marie Redgier, suffering from shock.

The fire itself was a comparatively trivial affair, the most liberal estimate of the damages not exceeding $30,000, but the flames spread with such tremendous rapidity that none of the 30 odd people in the laundry building had a moment to think before they were either saved or cut off. The buildings were used by the Canada Steam Laundry and Dyeing company and in their cleaning operations they used a large quantity of benzine, which is almost as dangerous as dynamite. It was in the cleaning room the fire originated. M. Deschaux, proprietor, and an assistant were operating a rotary machine used to clean clothes. He noticed that the machine was leaking, benzine running on to the cement floor. As the room was very hot, Mr. Deschaux at once realized the danger and stopped the machine to try and locate the leak. Before he could do anything the volatile liquid had burst into flames, apparently from spontaneous combustion.

ELLISON WAS BUSY

Farmer Member for Okanagan Deals Death Blow to Two Labor Bills

Bill for Fortnightly Payment of Wages and Bill for Compulsory 8 Hour Day Were the Victims

Press Gallery, Legislative Assembly, Victoria, April 18.—Today proved a bad one for labor legislation. The bill for the fortnightly payment of wages, introduced by Williams, was committed. Hawthornthwaite said he intended to amend it by making it apply to coal mines shipping coal and all industries within five miles of an incorporated town. Ellison objected strongly to the bill and moved that the committee rise. Macdonald said he supported the bill and thought it should be considered in committee.

Ellison pressed his motion, which carried, Grant and Schofield voting with the opposition and socialists.

The bill to make compulsory an eight hour day in all industries, came up for second reading. McInnes urged its passage, when Ellison moved the six months' hoist. He said that would act as a deterrent. If an eight hour day were granted, the socialists would want six hours or less and would finally want to do no work.

Hawthornthwaite said capital could always get some renegade to do its work.

Mr. Speaker checked him as the language was unparliamentary. He finally got out of retracting the language, by saying that he did not apply it to Ellison. Ellison's motion carried, only three socialists and Jardine voting for the bill.

Macdonald's amendment to the workmen's Compensation Act to make compensation payable in a lump sum was defeated on second reading.

Bowser moved the second reading of his immigration bill, and made a speech in support of it largely devoted to dominion politics. He took exception to the disallowance by the dominion government of immigration acts in the past. He said this was intended to prevent the G. T. P. bringing in ignorant hordes to construct its line. He said it was along the line of the Natal Act, the educational test was that immigrants must read and write in the English language.

Hawthornthwaite said Bowser's oration was unmitigated buncombe. The bill was to provide for the coming dominion election and the making of the test, reading and writing in English, instead of in some language of Europe, was put in by Bowser so that it would be disallowed and thus make material for the election. If it was to prevent hordes coming in for the G. T. P., what about the Hindus brought in by the C. P. R.? he asked, and called it the veriest clap-trap.

Macdonald said that this bill was simply in preparation for the election. He pointed out that the liberal government at Ottawa had done good service for labor in shuting out the Chinese. If the G. T. P. was not built within the specified time it would be due to such an Act as thus which would prevent labor being obtained. He voted for the second reading trusting that the bill would be amended in committee. He said that the bill in its present shape would prevent many of the Salvationists this government intended bringing out entering the country. He also advocated allowing Germans and others from northern Europe being allowed to enter.

CAUSED BY CIGAR BUTT

Sherlock Holmes Deductions Regarding McGill University Fire.

Montreal, April 18.—Although the finding of the fire committee does not indicate that the loss on the medical building was caused by the butt of a cigar falling from the hands of a member of the faculty, everything points to this as being the correct theory of the disastrous fire which caused so great a loss to the university.

The statement that expelled students had something to do with the fire appears to be about as untenable as the report that suspicious looking individuals had been seen lurking around the grounds the night of the fire. One thing is pretty sure, that is the presence of the faculty in their rooms at a late hour on Monday night as a matter of fact, the statement is made that these gentlemen left the room in question about 11 o'clock and in about two hours later that part of the building was in flames. It also came out in the investigation that it was in the faculty room where the fire started, hence the sensible deduction made by all those who have given any attention as to the origin of the disaster.

FOR A RATIONAL SUNDAY

We published some few days back a despatch from Toronto, announcing the organization in that city of the Canadian Rational Sunday League. This organization is simply an extension of the London National Sunday League, which has the endorsement of many of the leading divines and most eminent thinkers of Great Britain.

The discussion attending the organization of the Toronto league was conducted behind closed doors, but it has since been learned that the general opinion was that the Lord's Day Alliance has been going too far in the matter of securing Sunday legislation.

The following resolution, which was unanimously adopted, fully sets forth the scope and aims of the new organization:

That it is desirable to organize an association similar to the London National Sunday League for promoting healthy and innocent recreation on Sundays, and to oppose tyrannical and restrictive legislation regarding Sunday, and it, is felt that recent legislation on this subject has been carried too far, interfering witn individual liberty to an extent unknown in any other country under the British flag. That this association be called the Canadian Rational Sunday League, and that its declared objects be: To promote rational Sunday recreation, to secure the opening of picture galleries, museums and reading rooms on Sundays, to provide music on Sunday afternoons in the parks or other convenient places, to obtain legislation allowing a charge to be made for popular Sunday lectures or concerts, and to oppose restrictive legislation regarding Sunday observance."

The objects of the league, as set forth in the foregoing resolution, will appeal to the good sense and intelligence of the Canadian people. It is a hopeful sign that such an organization should have its origin in Toronto, the centre of all that is most pharisaical in Canadian life. It is to be hoped that this leaven will permeate the whole dominion and with such good effect that by next session of the dominion parliament the new Lord's Day Act will be removed from the Canadian statutes.

The lenghty statement we publish this morning from district president Sherman, throws no new light upon the situation in the coal fields. Our news columns in the past few days have covered most of his points. However, Mr. Sherman makes it quite clear that the present situation is in a measure due to the failure of the Alberta legislature to enact an eight hour law for coal miners. The Alberta government's failure to implement its promises in this regard is wholly discreditable. Mr. Sherman, also, clearly scores when he points to the peculiar action of the individual companies in repudiating representations made to them in their collective capacity as the Western Coal Operators' association. Quibbling of this sort is certainly not calculated to bring about a good understanding between the employers and the employes and might very well be regarded as a breach of the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act. Happily Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux has not paid any attention to this quibbling and has lost no time in appointing a board of conciliation as requested by the employes. It is to be hoped that when the operators meet the men Tuesday that they will do so in the right spirit. The country is getting very tired of these repeated disputes in the coal fields and could be easily persuaded at this moment to endorse drastic legislation by the dominion government, looking to the opening up of the government held coal measures, with a view to meeting such emergencies as the present, when we find our transportation companies compelled to refuse traffic because of lack of fuel.

AN AMATEUR PRODUCTION

"The Private Secretary at the Opera House Last Evening

Last night for the first time in several years Nelson enjoyed a dramatic performance by local amateurs; enjoyed is figurative. The "Private Secretary" was produced by the Nelson amateur dramatic society. Probably they did their best,

Nelson has suffered grievous afflictions from travelling, alleged professional dramatic organizations; but there is always a gambling chance on the unknown.

The performance had a worthy object, the members studied and rehearsed faithfully and were apparently unconscious of failure. The good work of the stage manager was evident; the players had a general idea of articulation and gesture. Some of the audience who were blessed with a highly developed sense of the ridiculous, enjoyed the performance.

To particularize very far would be cruel. Place aux dames: Mrs. Colin Cummins sustained her reputation as a comedienne; Mrs. Astley had little to do, but did that little fairly. The young ladies looked pretty, moved gracefully and articulated distinctly. Of the mere men, Mr. Bodmer did creditably and Mr. Dyer gave a fair presentation of the superannuated Anglo-Indian, although the exaggeration of his "business" rather marred the effect. Over the rest friendship and charity draw a kindly veil.

The house was crowded and the financial result of an otherwise unfortunate enterprise should be extremely gratifying to both promoters and beneficiaries.

A WOMAN TELLS HOW TO RELIEVE RHEUMATIC PAINS

I have been a sufferer from the dreadful disease, rheumatism, for a number of years. I have tried many medicines but never got much relief from any of them until two years ago, when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I found relief before I had used all of one bottle, but kept on applying it and soon felt like a different woman. Through my advice many of my friends have tried it and can tell you how wonderfuly it has worked.—Mrs. Sarah A. Cole, 140 S. New St., Dover, Del. Chamberlain's Bain Balm is a liniment. The relief from pain which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. It makes sleep possible. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

"The clause which the operators in that respect seek to have made read as follows: 'This agreement is made and executed having regard to and in reliance upon a consideration of the present law and conditions regarding the various matters hereby disposed of, and if in any time hereafter and during the life of this agreement the laws are altered or varied and new laws are made so as to impose any new or further burdens upon the company, the company is at liberty to modify the conditions of this agreement so as to meet the new or altered condition created by the statute law.'

"Whether right or not, the miners, especially those in Alberta, think that the statute law is not what it should be, and they naturally look for amendments thereto. Under the circumstances they object to the proposed muzzle being put upon legislation.

"Another matter which they most strongly object to is that arising out of the proposed term of the agreement which reads as follows: 'Any breach of this agreement by any of the parties concerned is not to void the said agreement but the same is to continue in full force and effect.'

"The injustice of this paradoxical clause is so axiomatic that it needs no explanation. Why should either party be at liberty to break the agreement and still say that it is in force. It violates the most elementary principle of law regarding a breach of contract.

"With few exceptions the press has not been given the facts so that the trouble is not known. The Calgary Herald, e.g., contains an article stating that it has very carefully examined into the wages paid miners in eastern British Columbia and Alberta and makes it appear that the average wage is $1500 per annum. Such is not the case. While at some of the mines in Alberta, good wages are made, it is a fact that very few men make even laborers' wages in other mines, especially those at Coal creek.

"These false statements purporting to be published after careful investigation, go a long way towards irritating the already indignant multitude of mine workers.

"If ever men were unfitel the mine workers are at this time and they claim that before they will give in they will suffer imprisonment. They say that they have been hammering away at the legislature for amended laws; that they have received nothing but promises, and that the time has arrived when they should take the matter into their own hands and by drastic methods get that which by no other means they are able to obtain.

"The situation may become improved but it is extremely doubtful whether it will be until the operators give way to the demands of the men, and the legislature of Alberta pays some heed to the claims of the mine workers.

"It is further claimed by the miners that politics have been allowed to control the situation, and that by catering to the vote of the people at large in Alberta the politicians have had to ignore the mine workers.

"These miners think that as there is no wood grown on the prairies, and that coal is a necessity, so that sooner or later the farmers will realize that only by friendly cooperation with the producers of fuel can their own lot become a comfortable one, so that there must be no throwing down of the one class for the other."

LATCHFORD WIPED OUT

COBALT MINING CAMP DESTROYED BY FIRE.

MANY PROSPECTORS AND OTHERS RENDERED HOMELESS

Toronto, April 18.—Latchford, a mining town a few miles south of Cobalt, was almost completely destroyed by fire last night. Many prospectors will lose all their effects. There is little insurance as the buildings burnt are all of frame. The Cobalt fire engine and brigade was sent down on two cars by special train.

Latchford has a population of about 1200 or 1300 and it is now crowded with prospectors from the Montreal river. Many of these men and the residents will have nowhere to live. Before the arrival of help the fire had virtually swept the business center clear. The special train took the homeless people, who could not be provided for at Latchford, and distributed them among the homes of Cobalt, Haileybury and New Liskeard. There were twelve stores, two hotels and a bank in the business street of the town and it is believed all these were practically wiped out, as well as a number of private residences. In every instance the storekeeper's family, and where the house was large, several other people, lived over the stores.

FRANCE AND MOROCCO.

Paris, April 18.—It is asserted in officil corcles here that nothing in the nature of a French naval demonstration is intended off Nogador, Morocco. The French cruisers Lalande, Forbin and Gloire, it is said, are merely cruising off the Moroccan coast puting into various ports and prepared to cope with eventualities until the present intervention of France in Morocco is no longer necessary. The reports received by the French government say the situation is quieter than for some time past.

KICKED FOR NOT STRIKING

Chicago, April 18.—Because he refused to join in a strike Edward Fago, a car cleaner ,employed by the Chicago & Northwestern railway, was hit on the head with a brick last night and jumped on and kicked. He died a short time later. Paul Majkae was arrested and Henry Wotka and Joseph Matje are being searched for. Fago had been employed by the company for five years. Last night the three men tried to persuade Fago to strike but he refused.

CUTS BURNS & BRUISES

Cuts, bruises, burns, scalds and "scrapes" are common occurrences in every home. Busy house-wives, hustling bread-winners, athletic sons and daughters, and frolicsome children, all get their share of these injuries; and the handy box of Zam-Buk will prove useful all round as a speedy cure.

Zam-Buk recommends itself to all thinking people because it is pure, being made from rich healing herbs and free from animal fats and oils. Because it soothes pain, is a powerful germ-killer, and prevents festering and blood poison. It repairs skin injuries and diseases in Nature's own way.

Mr. Geo. Cooper, of Boston (Ont.), says: "We use Zam-Buk on cuts, bruises and scratches, which are so frequently sustained by the children at school and at play, and are highly satisfied with its healing power. We would not like to be without this handy household remedy."

Do You Suffer from Any of These?

Zam-Buk heals all skin diseases—eczema, scaly sores, ulcers, ringworms, poi-oned wounds, barber's rash, pustules, face blemishes due to blood poison, rheumatism and neuralgia. It heals cuts and lacerations, stops bleeding, cures piles, eases fistula, reduces enlarged veins. It cures burns and scalds, and it is an excellent "first aid" remedy. It is highly antiseptic. All druggists and stores sell at 50 cents a box, or from ZAM-BUK CO., TORONTO, for price. 6 boxes for $2.50.

STAR vs. WHITE APPEAL

EXAMINATION IN CHIEF OF EXPERT ELMENDORF

AND CROSS-EXAMINATION BY E. P. DAVIS

(Special Correspondence)

Victoria, April 15.—It would seem as if the plaintiffs in the long fought out trial before the full court in Star vs. White, rather scored today (Monday), the sixth of the present hearing, when Davis, K.C., dragged some important admissions from expert W. J. Elmendorf upon cross-examination. The expert invariably fell back upon the broad general statement that the result of the new work had in no way interfered with the contention of the defendants right along and did not assist the plaintiffs' view of the matter, but in detail, when brought face to face with his testimony given on several occasions at Nelson during the progress of the trial there: first, when the trial started and then after an inspection and again later, when the question of more work was considered, when he had agreed that if the plaintiffs could prove the extension of the black fissure north and south, they would at least materially improve their position, he hesitated and, while speaking very guardedly, and with countless reservations and restrictions, he admitted, though not in the way Mr. Davis wanted, that the new work had disclosed the extention of "a" vein both northerly and southerly, but would not agree that this was the black fissure or that this admission upset his contention of a continuous vein for the Slocan Star right across from east to west. He admitted that he did not agree with expert Bochmer in all things but insisted that the two opinions were not inconsistent. To meet this last proposition Mr. Elmendorf admitted the existence of the Slocan Star vein 200 feet wide at a given point and suggested the existence of a "horse" as an explanation.

To an impartial observer who heard Mr. Elmendorf's story during the trial at Nelson, his evidence today gave the impression that the defendants' side had not been strengthened by its recital and there would seem to be at least a chance of the full court finding in favor of that "myth" judicially so declared by the chief justice, the black fissure. It is, of course, quite impossible to say what the full effect is of the evidence given today, but some idea of it may be got when counsel sum up towards the end of the week. Faced by his former story and with the recently completed work to explain, Mr. Elmendorf had a difficult task to perform which he accomplished far better than might have been expected.

Mr. Bodwell was absent from court all day on account of the death of his brother which occurred at the hospital this morning. Mr. Lennie took up the case when court opened and the proceedings ran along without a hitch.

When the court opened this morning, Mr. Lennie, in Mr. Bodwell's absence called W. J. Elmendorf, of Spokane, the defendants' expert in chief, well known in Nelson as a consulting mining engineer and as the defendants' star witness at the first trial of this case before chief justice Hunter at Nelson. The witness testified that he had examined the property since the new work had been done. Commencing with the extension to the south, he described the ore seam of vein quartz encountered at the outset and continuing till the breast of the drift is reached, where it still is to be seen. He exhibited a large photograph of the work taken by himself explaining what the picture showed. The exact application of Mr. Elmendorf's testimony was not quite apparent until the cross-examination was well underway, when his difference of opinion with the plaintiffs' experts and with Mr. Bochmer on his own side, was brought out strongly. At the other end of the southern drift the witness described a stringer of ore found there. This stringer is from the main Slocan Star vein. In his original evidence the witness said, he had been mistaken as to what would be shown if the crevice or crack now followed, should be mined. There were other instances along the No. 5 level where such stringers were thrown out from the main Star vein. The stringer is lying perfectly banded along the wall of the drift. Referring to the bending of the slates at the southern turn of the Star vein to the north as claimed by the defendants, the witness again declared, repeating his evidence at the original trial, that all the slates in the formation distinctly bent around the point where the vein turned and he exhibited photographs to illustrate what he meant. According to the plaintiffs' contention there should be no bend, the black fissure cutting sharply on to the south at the bending point. Turning to one of the plaintiffs' sketches of the formation at the turning point in No. 5 level, the witness said that it had been demonstrated that what the plaintiffs called the filling of the black fissure was porphyry. Further the streak of ore in the "A" drift would be found right in the black fissure, between its walls, if the work was further extended.

Here Mr. Davis interrupted to say that as the witness was going over all the old work, the plaintiffs would have to give evidence in rebuttal, as Mr. Elmendorf was not confining himself to the new work at all.

Continuing, Mr. Elmendorf described the workings above the No. 5 level at the turning point to the north, claiming to further explain what he meant about the turn on the lower level. Going back east from the turning point on No. 5 level, the witness exhibited a photograph of a small cut in the admittedly Slocan Star vein, showing the formation. Then he identified several samples of black slickensides said to be the dominant characteristic of the black fissure, taken from the point shown in the photograph last mentioned, and declared that right along the whole length of what the plaintiffs term the course of the black fissure, he could not find so great a proportion of the black slickensides, as shown at the point in the Star vein indicated in the photo and by the samples. Turning to the No. 2 vein he said it was the foot-

Synopsis of Canadian Homestead Regulations

ANY available Dominion Lands within the Railway belt in British Columbia, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased), of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

Coal lands may be purchased at $10 an acre for soft coal and $20 for anthracite. Not more than 320 acres can be acquired by one individual or company. Royalty at the rate of 10 cents per ton of 2000 pounds shall be collected on the gross output.

Woman's Kidney Troubles

Mrs. J. W. Lang and Mrs. S. Frake

Of all the diseases known, with which women are afflicted, kidney disease is the most fatal. In fact, unless early and correct treatment is applied, the weary patient seldom survives.

Being fully aware of this, Mrs. Pinkham, early in her career, gave exhaustive study to the subject, and in producing her great remedy for woman's ills—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—was careful to see that it contained the correct combination of herbs which was sure to control that fatal disease, woman's kidney troubles. The Vegetable Compound acts in harmony with the laws that govern the entire female system, and while there are many so called remedies for kidney troubles, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the only one especially prepared for women, and thousands have been cured of serious kidney derangements by it. Derangements of the feminine organs quickly affect the kidneys, and when a woman has such symptoms as pain or weight in the loins, backache, bearing down pains, urine too frequent, scanty or high colored, producing scalding or burning, or deposits like brick dust in it; unusual thirst, swelling of hands and feet, swelling under the eyes or sharp pains in the back running down the inside of her groin, she may be sure her kidneys are affected and should lose no time in combating the disease with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the woman's remedy for woman's ills.

Mrs. Samuel Frake, of Prospect Plains, N. J., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

I cannot thank you enough for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. When I first wrote to you I had suffered for years with what the doctor called kidney trouble and congestion of the womb. My back ached dreadfully all the time, and I suffered so with that bearing-down feeling I could hardly walk across the room. I did not get any better, so decided to stop doctoring with my physician and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am thankful to say it has entirely cured me. I do all my own work, have no more backache and all the bad symptoms have disappeared.

I cannot praise your medicine enough, and would advise all women suffering with kidney trouble to try it.

Mrs. J. W. Lang, of 626 Third Avenue, New York, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

I have been a great sufferer with kidney trouble. My back ached all the time and I was discouraged. I heard that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure kidney disease, and I began to take it; and it has cured me when everything else had failed. I have recommended it to lots of people and they all praise it very highly.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.

Women suffering from kidney trouble, or any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Out of the great volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than likely she has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

wall streak of the main Slocan Star vein. The new work done there showed no new vein. A "horse" probably existed at this point. The point in question is along the line to the north from the turning point on No. 5 level, one of three places where new work was done, and which shows according to the plaintiffs a new vein christened by them vien No. 2, abruptly ended by the black fissure.

Coming to the northern extension of No. 5 level the third piece of new work, the witness said it was one of many cracks striking off and was in no sense a continuation to the north of the black fissure so-called by the plaintiffs, or of the Star vein as described by the defendants. The new work, said the witness, had demonstrated nothing beyond the fact that a spur, or branch extended off north at the point in question.

Referring to the continuity of the vein around the bending point at the north and going on west the witness adhered to the evidence given originally that the course of the vein was followed around the northern turning point as shown on the plan. Around the turning points the strongest seams were followed and the work was done on the vein and shows its general course.

Describing "drag ore" the witness said the ore found along No. 5 level had none of the characteristics of drag ore. All the indications in the explored portions of the mine in the upper levels above the long run to the north pointed to ore in place and not to drag ore at all. This statement point blank contradicts the plaintiffs' expert testimony.

The Silversmith vein said Mr. Elmendorf, broke around the nose of the porphyry intrusion and as it passed along kept away from and did not run along side of the porphyry mass, he had never claimed any different course for this vein. Going over the western workings in the levels above No. 5 the witness claimed the turning of the vein and its general course was very apparent. He accounted for the turns and twists and the irregular course followed generally by known geological reasons. The witness gave a list of assays taken from the new work showing varying values.

Speaking generally as to the new work, Mr. Elmendorf said he was still thoroughly satisfied that the Slocan Star vein extends along its course continuously as shown on the plan. The new work had strengthened several views held previously. The new work at the north and south ends had shown cracks continuing on but other cracks or crevices could be found branching off at different points and in no sense could that portion of the Star vein called by the plaintiffs the black fissure, be said to extend on north and south, the general course of the Star vein following the line developed to the west, as shown on the plan and as previously sworn to.

Then Mr. Davis took the witness in hand. Commencing at the southern extension the witness admitted the extension of a fissure to the south with a wall, the hanging wall. The foot wall has been taken away, the work following along it. The new work exposes a fissure 28 feet broad extending south. That fissure would not be confined to any one level. It might or might not extend to the surface. He would give no opinion on the subject, though strongly pressed by counsel to do so. He had not seen any evidence of the fissure in the levels above or below No. 5 and could express no opinion as to the probable existence of the fissure on these levels.

The so called No. 2 vein was merely the main line of the vein running around a horse and joining the main body in the workings. If the No. 2 eastern extension did not join the main vein it would still be a branch of the main Star vein. If the vein was cut off by the black fissure it would be a separate vein.

The witness at first differed from evidence on this No. 2 vein given by professor Parks in the same interest at the first trial but subsequently agreed.

Coming to the northern extension the witness said the fissure found there was a branch fissure such as could be found at many points. He could not say if it was a continuation of the black fissure. The real continuation was that followed by the Slocan Star vein as shown in the plan.

Mr. Elmendorf differed from Mr. Bochmer as to the western extension of the Slocan Star vein where it turns almost at right angles. The vein, he said, was very wide at the front, the country was very broken, but he was of the opinion that the general course of the Star vein had been followed as shown on the plan by the actual work done. He did not think his version was at all inconsistent with that offered by expert Bochmer. He did not agree with Mr. Bochmer but if they were both correct the vein at this point would be 200 feet broad. It might go around a horse but the witness would not say positively, giving the suggestion only as a possible explanation of his own theory squaring with that of Bochmer's.

After the noon adjournment Mr. Davis, continuing his cross examination of Mr. Elmendorf, took up the question of some previous statements at the first trial by the witness concerning what is seen at the turn in the south at the levels above and below No. 5 and asked him if the new work did not show an extension of the black fissure on the No. 5 level but the witness replied in the negative repeating that the new work at the turn had in no way changed his originally expressed view. The witness admitted the existence of "a fissure" 28 feet wide composed of soft black material such as is claimed by the plaintiffs as the predominating characteristic material of the black fissure, in the new work to the south, but he insisted that this extension was a mere branch fissure that might or might not extend any considerable distance. The witness again admitted that he was mistaken when he gave his testimony originally. He had then thought there was no appearance of any fissure running out to the south at the turn. The new work had shown up a fissure extending south. This did not prevent the Star vein turning north as it did. He still maintained that it was possible to follow the wall of the vein around the bend.

Before the work was done the witness examined the first turn to the north and was clearly of the opinion that no fissure existed to the south. He had traced the wall of the vein turning around, and had then stated that he was of the opinion that there was no fissure going on south. He admitted that the new work had shown up a fissure 28 feet in width, but again and again declared that the existence of this fissure in no way interfered with the defendants' theory of the continuance of the Star vein along its developed course. The witness had examined the workings at the first turn several times before the work ordered by the court was done. After each examination, until the present one, he always declared he could see no appearance of a fissure extending south. At that time he did not believe there was a fissure there. He had been mistaken as the new work showed a fissure branched off there.

In following the bend of the vein it was possible to follow round on the ore or on the hanging wall. The witness had claimed to have followed the hanging wall round at the levels above No. 5, this irrespective of ore. The 28 foot fissure shown in the new work was not apparent in the upper workings. There was nothing to show whether it existed there or not. It would be necessary to do more work at each level to prove the existence of the fissure.

At the northern extension where the new work was done, was another branch of the Star vein running out. The new work showed this branch existing; it did not affect the course of the main Slocan Star vein which extended on to the west. The reasons for asserting that the Star vein to be one continuous vein were that the foot and hanging wall could be traced right along and so could the vein filling. If the fissure now known to exist at the 5th level extended up to the surface the walls could not be traced around the turn at the south. The result shown up by the new work had not, in the opinion of the witness, advanced the cut off theory of the plaintiffs or hurt the contention of the defendants' for a continuous course of the Slocan Star vein.

Mr. Davis read many extracts from the evidence formerly given by Mr. Elmendorf as to the effect of what might be shown up by proposed work and which, now that the work had been done, was actually shown to exist. The original evidence showed many admissions of what might be done with the hope of settling the matters involved, and counsel pressed the witness hard to show that the possible conclusions had been arrived at now the work was done. Mr. Elmendorf made some distinctions, rather fine ones it seemed, but maintained over and over again that the new work had not helped the plaintiffs or hurt the cause of the defendants.

The court adjourned at 5 o'clock after counsel had stated that all the evidence would be in tomorrow. Mr. Davis added that his cross-examination of Mr. Elmendorf would be concluded by noon tomorrow.

NELSON MAN DROWNED

A. K. WATTIE COMES TO UNTIMELY END AT NAKUSP.

REMAINS TO BE SENT TO VALLEYFIELD, QUEBEC, FOR BURIAL

The news of a drowning at Nakusp on Wednesday night, announced in yesterday's Daily News, was confirmed by a telegram to A. B. Dockstader, yesterday morning, announcing that Albert Kenneth Wattie, of this city, was the unforunate victim of the accident.

Mr. Wattie formed one of a survey party, under Mr. F. S. Clements, and they had pitched their camp about a mile from Nakusp. About 7 o'clock on Wednesday evening, Wattie announced his intention of taking the canoe and paddling down to town for the mail. He also took with him a trolling outfit saying that on his way home he would troll.

It appears from the story told by E. P. Hardcastle, one of the survey party, who arrived in town last evening with the body of the deceased, that Wattie attended to his mission in town and had evidently safely started out for home in his canoe, when by some mischance the canoe overturned and the occupant quickly sank in the bitter cold water. When the body was recovered it was found that the troll had caught in Wattie's clothes, and the supposition is that it was whilst trying to disentangle the troll that Wattie overbalanced and upset the canoe.

The body was taken to D. J. Robertson's undertaking parlors last evening and prepared for shipment to Valleyfield, Quebec, where deceased's parents reside.

The late A. K. Wattie, was 32 years of age, a native born British Columbian, having first seen the light of day in old Cariboo, where his father, a pioneer of '49, was engaged in placer mining.

It was in the early nineties that deceased first struck these parts. He owned a ranch in the vicinity of Creston some years ago and it was whilst living there that he met with the accident that cost him the use of one arm. Subsequently Mr. Wattie was in the employ of the C. P. R., resigning to accept a position in the customs service, from which he recently retired to engage in private business.

Deceased was very popular in Nelson and was well known to everybody in this part of the country. He was an active liberal and was always in the forefront of every political campaign. He leaves a widow to mourn his early demise, who in her sad affliction will have the sincere sympathy of this community.

CURED OF RHEUMATISM

Mr. Wm. Henry of Chattanooga, Tenn., had rheumatism in her left arm. "The strength seemed to have gone out of the muscles so that it was muscles so that it muscles so that it was useless for work," he says. "I applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm and wrapped the arm in flannel at night, and to my relief I found that the pain gradually left me and the strength returned. In three weeks the rheumatism disappeared and has not since returned." If troubled with rheumatism try a few applications of Pain Balm. You are certain to be pleased with the relief which it affords. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

ASK ROOSEVELT TO RETRACT

Seattle, April 18.—The central labor committee last night passed resolutions scoring president Roosevelt's actions in referring to E. H. Harriman as "a citizen as undesirable as Moyer, Haywood or Debs." The resolution criticizes the president for prejudicing the alleged murderers of former governor Steunenberg, of Idaho, before they had their trial and denying them the rights of American citizens to be presume dinnocent until proven guilty. The labor leaders requested that the president retract and asked for a "square deal" for the men whose names they declare he has clouded.

SALES OF "SPIFFS"

The Months when the Shoe Dealer Unloads to the Public

January and February are dull months in the shoe trade and the shoe man waxes his thread and prepares to unload all the unsaleable shoes in his store. What ever may be the public name of his sale, the trade name is a "sale of spiffs," the kind of shoe the salesman gets a bonus for working off at all months of the year.

While hardly an elegant term, "spiffs" is more expressive than descriptive. It may be a worthless shoe or a worthy shoe, spoiled by some mishap, perhaps a shoe shorn of its leather wear by proximity to fire or water, or mayhap a shoe that has been made wrong. The regular buyer buys in season and from regular stock and mostly prefers a shoe like the Slater shoe, the price stamped Slater shoe, on which appears the Slater seal of certainty.

IMPRACTICABLE

Proposed New York-to-Paris Railway Across Alaska and Siberia.

The so-called "New York-to-Paris Railway," across Alaska and Siberia, which has found some earnest advocates during the past few years, is briefly discussed and summarily disposed of by Alfred H. Brooks, of the United States Geological Survey, in the course of an article on "Railway Routes in Alaska" published in the National Geographic Magazine (Washington, March). Says Mr. Brooks:

"Alaska can obviously not be connected with the United States by rail except by a line through Canadian territory. When the new Canadian transcontinental railway, known as the Grand Trunk Pacific, which is to reach to the Pacific coast in latitude 54 degrees, is completed, a branch could be extended northward, which could reach Fairbanks with 800 to 1000 miles of track. While such a line would not encounter any serious obstacles, yet many watersheds would have to be crossed, and as it would run transverse to the larger drainage channels, there would be heavy expense for bridges. A railway from Fairbanks to Cape Prince of Wales would require at least 600 miles of track. It is proposed to tunnel Bering strait, which is 54 miles from headland to headland, but is broken by the Diomede islands, lying about half way between. While tunnels of the length required are probably not an impossible engineering feat, they are so far beyond anything of the kind as yet attempted that it must be a bold group of capitalists who would undertake it. Ferriage across the strait, difficult in summer because of the strong northerly setting current, is impossible during seven or eight months in the year because of the ice floes. As the strait seldom freezes over, communication without a tunnel would be entirely interrupted.

"This intercontinental railway project divested of its glittering generalities, amounts to this. The first 1000 miles of track would parallel the Pacific seaboard and reach a point less than 500 miles distant from tide water by a more direct route. An additional 600 miles of track would be in direct competition with deep-water haulage for at least a third of each year. Furthermore, to connect the two sides of the strait, as proposed, would require two tunnels more than twice as long as any hitherto constructed. The Siberian part of the route would appear to have even less justification, for here 1500 to 2000 miles of unsettled and unproductive territory would have to be traversed."

'QUAKE IN MEXICO.

Later Reports Magnify the Extent of the Disaster.

Mexico, April 18.—Owing to the great difficulty in establishing communication with the cities in the region of the greatest devastations wrought by the recent earthquake, details are coming in slowly. Each succeeding intelligence magnifies the extent of the disaster. From the latest reports it is learned that the earth is now quiet in the regions which were seriously affected by the last shock, which occurred as late an noon yesterday. In the list of known dead, which now totals 50, and injured, which approximates 300, are many names of Mexicans prominent in the social and official life of the region.

It has been discovered that the cathedral of Mexico City, one of the most solid churches in the world, was cracked from top to bottom by the recent earthquake. The fissure is an eighth inch wide. An engineer has been appointed to examine the building. The cathedral was centuries old. It was built on the site of an Aztec temple.

News of the death of Inez Bonilla, the first American killed in the recent earthquake, has reached the office of the Associated Press. Senora Inez Bonilla, of Chilpanchingo, was the wife of the former secretary of the state of Guerrera.

BALLOT WAS UNANIMOUS

METHODISTS DECIDE THAT A NEW CHURCH IS NECESSARY

CANVASSING COMMITTEE WILL GET TO WORK AT ONCE

A unanimous ballot in favor of the erection of a new church building was the feature of the mass meeting of members and adherents of the Methodist church held last night. A. Sullivan, the recording steward, presided, and a large number of the prominent members of the congregation took part in the discussion. Almost without exception they urged the necessity of immediate action. The only objection came from one or two who thought it might be easier a little later to raise the money required than it would be this summer. They agreed, however, that a new church was needed and that it should be erected as soon as funds, or a fair proportion of the funds, were in sight. As a result of the unanimity of opinion expressed and the decisive nature of the ballot, the trustees held a special meeting immediately after the general meeting adjourn, and appointed a canvassing committee, composed of Dr. G. A. B. Hall, M.P.P., Rev. R. N. Powell, and Messrs. A. Sullivan and E. C. Traves, to make a systematic canvass of all interested and report as soon as possible the amount of money that can be raised. During the evening, a stereopticon view of the new church, according to plans prepared as a basis for discussion, was thrown on the screen, and the details of its arrangement were explained by J. W. Bennett. Resolutions in favor of the new church movement were read from the trustee board, the Epworth league and the Ladies' aid. At the close refreshments were served by the ladies, and finally, when the gathering broke up, it was with enthusiastic expressions of opinion, heard on every hand, that the new church was already in sight.

MEETING OF KINGS

Gaeta, Italy, April 18.—The British royal yacht Victoria and Albert, with king Edward and queen Alexandra on board arrived here about 9.30 o'clock this morning from Malta, escorted by the British armoured cruiser Suffolk and Lancaster. King Edward was received by king Victor Emmanuel, who was on board the Italian yacht Trianaeria, surrounded by 12 Italian warships and 12 torpedo boats. The usual salutes were exchanged and hearty cheers greeted the British king from the people ashore and the sailors on the ships.

The 20,000 club proposes putting up a building at the foot of Ward street for the general offices of that association.

P. J. Clarke was charged with neglect and assault of his wife before the police magistrate yesterday morning. The case was enlarged until today at the request of the chief of police.

It is suggested as a means of curbing youthful depredations that the local police be armed with canes for the instant punishment of the culprits whom apparently their parents will not and the civic authorities cannot, punish.

Paul Mannarino, who is charged with the attempted murder of his uncle, James Mannarino, will come up for a preliminary hearing before stipendiary magistrate E. A. Crease, on Monday morning at 11 o'clock, at the court house. James Mannarino will be released from the Cranbrook hospital on Sunday next, the ball having been successfully executed from under his shoulder blade, and will give evidence here.

The meeting of the executive of the 20,000 club which was announced for Friday night at 8 o'clock in the board of trade rooms conflicts with the special meeting of the board of trade, but can well be held at a later hour.

With reference to the various raises in wages among the miners that have been given of late president Phillips of the Western Federation of Miners, says that they have all come at the instance of the employers, no demand having been made by the men.

Is It Worth the Trouble?

Some people think that it is not worth the trouble and expense to procure a beautiful head of hair. But what is a little trouble or expense compared to a beautiful head of hair. Those who have used the Seven Sutherland Sisters preparations and see what grand results they give cannot understand how they ever got along without them. It will be to your advantage to call and consult with the Seven Sutherland Sisters' representative at the Canada Drug & Book Company's store, and to give the Seven Sutherland Sisters' Hair Grower and Scalp Cleaner a fair trial.
