HARRY ORCHARD'S CONFESSION OF MURDERS

TO RECEIVE UNION FEES

Order of Court Obtained by Metallic Roofing Company

Union Failed to Pay Company Damages Awarded Some Time Ago for Interference with Workmen

Toronto, June 5.—The Metallic Roofing company has been appointed by order of the courts here as receiver of all fees paid into the local union No. 30, of the Metallic Roofing and Sheet Workers. This step has been taken to satisfy a judgment of the court, rendered some time ago, giving the Roofing company $7500 damages, because the union interfered with their workmen by a system of picketing during the strike two years ago.

AMBITION OF HIS LIFE

ACHIEVED BY EX-TAMMANY BOSS, RICHARD CROKER

HIS COLT ORBY WINS THE DERBY, WITH JOHNNY REIFF UP

London, June 5.—Richard Croker today won the Derby at Epsom and gained the ambition of his life, his colt Orby, bred from an American dam, ridden by Johnny Reiff, having beaten all the British cracks and captured the blue ribbon of the world's turf by two lengths.

The enthusiasm of the Americans can be easier imagined than described, and Croker, his white-bearded face beaming with happiness, was congratulated on all sides.

Orby's time was 2 minutes 44 seconds.

The betting was 10 to 9 against Orby and Woolwinder and 13 to 8 on Slieve Gallion.

Woolwinder, ridden by Madden, the English jockey, was second and Slieve Gallion, an Irish horse ridden by Higgs, also an English jockey, was third. Orby was bred in Ireland out of an American dam, and thus the Derby has been won by an American owner, whose horse was ridden by an American jockey, whose mount was out of an American mare. Nine horses started.

Outside of Mr. Croker and his immediate entourage, Orby had but few friends, and the betting indicated that the sporting prophets estimated his chances as being slight. Mr. Croker and those who watched the colt train, however, were sanguine that they held a surprise in store for the Derby crowds.

Those who saw the American do the work this morning liked the youngster so well that they thought it wise to hedge, and his show on parade and at post before the race brought him a number of adherents. Nothing, however, could shake the position of Slieve Gallion, the Irish horse, which won the 20,000 guineas stakes at New Market, May 11, as favorite with the crowds, and his defeat was regarded as inconceivable. Even the short odds on Slieve Gallion, 13 to 8, failed to deter the betors from actively supporting him.

At the start Foratio Bottomly took the lead from Slieve Gallion, Benzonian, Galvani and Orby, with Ali Black last. After covering five furlongs in this order Slieve Gallion took up the running. Coming to the hill, Benzonian and Orby rushed upon the leader, and rounding the historic Tattenham corner Orby challenged the favorite. Johnny Reiff, riding Orby with admirable judgment, gradually took his mount to the front and stalling off a challenge on the part of Woolwinder landed his horse a clever winner by two lengths. Hall a length separated the second and third horses. Orby met with a mixed reception on returning to the scale. The vast majority of the crowd had lost money, in many cases large sums. The hundreds of Americans present, however, gave the ex-Tammany chief and his horse an ovation. The Irish, who were present in thousands, gave Orby and his owner a memorable greeting, and Mr. Croker, usually a most reserved man, was unable to hide his excitement at winning the victory and he rushed out to lead his horse in. He had to run the gauntlet of salvos of cheering and shouts of "Old Ireland forever!" as he returned to the unsaddling enclosure, leading the winner.

Aside from the enormous prestige of winning the blue ribbon of the turf, Mr. Croker has made a fortune today. In the first place the stakes of 6,500 sovereigns, or $32,500, is no inconsiderable sum; then he had the opportunity of making any number of bets at about 10 to 1, and finally the value of Orby has increased to such an extent that Mr. Croker may, if he so desired, sell him for an immense sum. The financial fruits of Mr. Croker's triumph were placed at about $250,000. Lord Rosebery's Benzonian, ridden by Danny Maher, was fourth.

RUSSIA AND JAPAN

Final Drafts of Commercial treaty completed and Submitted

St. Petersburg, June 5—The final drafts of the Russo-Japanese commercial treaty have been completed and sent to Tokio for approval.

The treaty, which like the Portsmouth convention, is drafted in French and English, will remain in force for five years, according to the Novoe Vreyma and is more of a political than of an economical character.

The protocols covering the negotiations will be made public in the yellow book when the treaty is signed. The negotiations for another convention between Russia and Japan are progressing slowly. Several new obstacles have arisen and it may be necessary for the Russian and Japan commissions to go to Manchuria and to Tokio in order to settle the disputed questions on the spot.

MAY LOSE BIG INDUSTRY

NEW ENGLAND FISH CO. WILL REMOVE TO BELLINGHAM

NEW WESTMINSTER BOY SECURES RHODES SCHOLARSHIP

(Special to The Daily News)

Vancouver, B. C., June 4. — Upon the heels of the protest of the board of trade against an extension of the bonding privileges to the New England Fish company, comes the announcement that an extension to the end of the year has already been granted. At the same time, also, it is authoritatively stated that the company is considering moving the industry to Bellingham because of the incessant opposition of local parties. It is stated that a site is already leased there and removal plans are now in progress. This announcement has aroused consternation, as the company forms one of the largest industries here. A movement is now on foot to induce it to remain.

T. T Larsen, of Toronto university, whose home is in New Westminster, has been chosen as the Rhodes scholar for the year. The committee decided to recommend professor Kerr, of Columbian college, but the nomination was turned down because he was beyond the age limit.

TO MAKE BETTER RAILS

New York, June 5—Chairman E. H. Gray of the United States Steel corporation, today said it was probable that representatives of the leading railroads and steel manufacturing companies in this country soon would begin an exhaustive joint examination into the quality of steel rails now being furnished to the railroads. "If it is practicable to manufacture a better rail than the one now in use our companies will make it," he said.

CHARGES AGAINST J. P. MORGAN

WARDNER FIRE

Wardner, June 5—Fire tonight destroyed completely the Wardner hotel and Donahue's store adjoining. Both buildings were frame. None of the contents were saved.

Says He Lighted Fuse That Blew Up Bunker Hill Mine, Was Party to Blowing Up of Vindicator Mine and of Independence Station, That He Killed Lyte Gregory and Plotted With Haywood and Pettibone Murder of Governor Peabody---Was Encouraged to Commit Outrages by Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone and Paid by Them.

IN WHICH HE IMPLICATES W. F. M. OFFICIALS

Boise, Idaho, June 5.—Alfred Horsley, alias Harry Orchard, the actual assassin of former governor Steunenberg, went on the stand today as a witness against William D. Haywood and testified to a long chain of brutal, revolting crimes committed by himself, he said, at the instigation of and for the pay of the leaders of the Western Federation of Miners. An undertaking by counsel for the state that there would be later proof offered in connection with this, to make his testimony legitimate, opened the way like a floodgate to the whole diabolical story, and throughout the entire day Orchard went from the recital of one crime to the recital of another, each succeeding one seeming more diabolically horrible than the one preceding it.

Orchard confessed that as a member of the mob which wrecked the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mill, in the Coeur d'Alenes, he lighted one of the fuses that carried fire to the giant powder explosion; confessed that he set the death trap in the Vindicator mine at Cripple Creek which killed McCormick and foreman Beck; confessed that because he had not been paid for his first attempt at violence in the Vindicator mine he was treacherous to his associates in warning the managers of the Florence and Cripple Creek railway that there was a plot to blow up their trains; confessed that he cruelly fired three charges of buckshot into the body of detective Lyte Gregory of Denver, killing him instantly; confessed that for days he dogged governor Peabody of Colorado about Denver for a chance to kill him; confessed that he and Steve Adams set and discharged the mine under the station at Independence, which instantly killed 14 men, and confessed that in failing in an attempt to poison Fred Bradley of San Francisco, he blew him and his house up with a bomb of gelatine powder.

He has more brutal crimes to tell of which will bring his bloody career down to Caldwell, where, with a bomb, he killed Steunenberg. This will come tomorrow, for he is to resume the stand when the court sits again. The story today was told before a rigid, anxious crowd, which staringly watched every movement and word of the witness, a crowd that sickened and grew weary of the fearful details long before James H. Hawley, pleading illness at 3 o'clock this afternoon, obtained adjournment for the day

Orchard obtained control of himself almost from the moment he took the stand, and if he suffered, he did not show it. His eyes were bloodshot and his face mottled when he came into the room to confront the man whose life he jeopardizes. He was plainly nervous. He quickly steadied himself, however, and was soon collected and talking in soft, easy tones. His eyes met those of Haywood several times and they gazed fixedly at each other without flinching. Orchard's entry into the court room, after a dramatic pause, was intensely dramatic.

Senator Borah, looking toward the bench, said in a quiet tone: "It will be a few moments before the next witness arrives."

The crowd knew Orchard was to come and watched the doors of the room. The prisoner-witness long confined in the penitentiary was to be produced. Haywood's mother, Mrs. Carruthers, of Salt Lake City, and her daughter, sat beside the prisoner and his wife, having arrived yesterday. The prisoner's daughters were absent. Haywood had a note book and at intervals took notes of the proceedings. Horsley had spent the night and morning at the office of Mr. Hawley and was brought to the court house in a carriage with three armed guards.

In the chambers of the judge he was turned over to deputy sheriff Beamer, who is to be his special guard at the trial.

"Call Harry Orchard," cried the state's leading counsel, when the sheriff had signalled that all was ready. There were few preliminary questions as to Horsley's birthplace and real name and his first days in Idaho, and then Mr. Hawley had him relate his part in the destruction of the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mill. He was telling of the meeting of the Burke, Ida., union of the Western Federation of Miners, when the defense objected on the ground that the events occurred years before Haywood was a member of the central body of the Federation and that he was in no way connected with it.

Senator Borah contended that the state had a right to submit facts about the Bunker Hill and Sullivan, to prove why the Federation became hostile to governor Steunenberg.

Judge Wood ruled that the general facts were admissable but he limited the minor details of this part of the testimony.

Horsley then told of the blowing up of the property, in which he said W. F. Davis, later president of the union of the Federation at Cripple Creek, had command of the mob. He narrated the seizure of the train, the theft of giant powder, the attack on the mines, and in concluding said "I lit one of the fuses myself." Horsley described the flight into Montana and the various journeys in the west until he turned up at Cripple Creek, where he went to work in the mines and rejoined the federation. Renewed objections by the defence were overruled by the court, on the strength of the repeated promises by the state, that it would show the connection of the defendant with this event later. The witness then told of the plot to blow up the Vindicator mine. He confessed that after the strike began he went into the mine "high grading" and there discovered a quantity of powder. He reported this to Davis and there, he said, began the plot to do violence in the mine. He said the first attempt was a failure because the cage man discovered him and his accomplices, but later a contrivance was successfully fixed by which the discharge of a pistol set off a bomb and killed superintendent McCormick and fireman Beck. Five hundred dollars, he said, was the reward for the murder. Then came the journey to Denver, where the witness said he met Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone and entered their employ as an assassin. He swore that Haywood paid $300 for blowing up the Vindicator mine. Then came the making of two bombs that were tossed into the coal heap at the Vindicator mine, but were never heard from again, and then a confession that told of the successful attempt at the Vindicator mine.

Next Horsley related how he went to southern Colorado as a guard to Moyer, and here the narrative which had been attacked by the defence at every available point, halted for recess.

Word that Horsley was on the stand spread through the city and in the afternoon every available seat for the public was taken.

Horsley spent the noon recess under the guard at Hawley's office and after recess was driven back to court to resume his story. He recounted his journey with Moyer and his return to Denver, where it was suggested, he said, that he kill governor Peabody of Colorado. He said he chose Steve Adams to aid him and together they tracked the governor between the capital and his home, seeking to shoot him down with shot guns. Haywood and Pettibone were in the plot, he said, and furnished money from time to time. The plot failed. Next came a plot to dynamite Peabody. Horsley said they had made a bomb, but gave the plan up on the suggestion of Haywood, who feared they would be arrested.

(Special to The Daily News)

Boise, Idaho, June 5.—Harry Orchard, or Albert E. Horsley, as he gives his real name, appeared in court today in the Haywood trial and was questioned two hours in the morning and one and a half hours in the afternoon. Before he was called the state called some witnesses who identified certain hotel registers showing when Orchard and Jack Simpkins had visited Nampa in the fall of 1905. Simpkins' picture and handwriting were introduced by C. H. Wentz, of Wallace. J. C. Connor, of Silver City, testified to Simpkins stopping in his hotel at that place in November of that year.

A hush fell upon the court room when Mr. Borah announced the main witness for the state would be on hand in a few minutes. All knew it was Orchard, who was to appear, and all held their breath. Presently Orchard came in through the judge's door. A six-foot deputy sheriff preceded him and a penitentiary guard walked at his heels. These took seats back of him when he had mounted the witness stand.

After he had taken the oath Orchard was asked by Mr. Hawley where he resided.

It was several moments before Orchard could speak, and then he stated, almost in a whisper, that he was held at the penitentiary awaiting trial for the murder of Frank Steunenberg.

Of his antecedents he said:—"I was born in Northumberland, in Canada, in 1866 and am therefore 41 years old."

"Harry Orchard is not my true name. I have gone by that name for about 11 years. My true name is Albert E. Horsley. I came to the United States in 1896. First to Spokane, where I remained a week. I went to Wallace, Idaho, in March or April, 1896. I first worked for Markel brothers driving a milk wagon and remained there until about Christmas, 1896. I then went into the wood and coal yard in Burke and was engaged in that business until the spring of 1898, on my own account for two years. In 1899 I sold a half interest in the business to Mr. McAlpine. Finally I sold all of my interests in the wood business and went to work in the mines in March, 1899. I went to work at mucking and continued at it for a month. I became a member of the Western Federation of Miners as soon as I went to work in the mines."

When Orchard was asked whether anything unusual occurred in the Coeur d'Alenes in 1899, Richardson, for the defense, objected, saying: "What occurred in 1899 can have nothing to do with this defendant, who was not even a member of the executive board of the Western Federation of Miners until long after these troubles."

Hawley said he intended to connect the Couer d'Alene troubles with the defendant.

"The court," said Judge Wood, "can readily see how this testimony may be material and will overrule the objection."

After the objection had been overruled, Orchard told of the blowing up of the Bunker Hill mine, on April 29, 1899.

Orchard said:—"On the morning of April 29, when I got through breakfast, I was told there was a special meeting of the union and everybody was expected to be present. I went to the meeting."

Mr. Richardson's objection was again overruled.

"The meeting was called to order," continued Orchard, "by the secretary, who said it had been decided that they go to Wardner to blow up the mill at the Sullivan and Bunker Hill mines and to hang the superintendent."

Court took a recess at 11:30 until 1:30 p. m., with Orchard on the stand.

"Arrangements had been made to cut the wires along the railroad and take possession of the train. At Gem we were to be joined by the Gem union and together we were to proceed to Wardner. While the secretary was telling us what was planned by the central union, the president of our local came in and said he had not been informed of the meeting. When told the purpose he objected to it and there was a discussion. The motion to go to Wardner was finally carried by a small majority. After the vote nearly every man decided to go. Paul Cochran and six other members of the union took charge of the train. We went to Gem and took 40 boxes of giant powder. There were about 1000 men on the train, most of them armed. At Wardner we were told by W. F. Davis to line up. The men with long guns were told to take the front ranks, followed by the men with sixshooters. We were told to fire upon the mill as we approached. This we did and the fire was returned by the guards. It soon developed that there were no men there and we took possession. Powder was placed about the mill and it was blown up. I lit one fuse. I don't know who lit the others."

Orchard said two men were killed. The name of then governor Steunenberg he said was mentioned at the meeting he had described. Mr. Cochran said he did not believe he would have any opposition from the governor; that he had always supported him and could control him. "He said to be careful about interfering with the federal authorities," said Orchard. He went from Burke to Butte, and from that time until 1902 he worked at various points in Montana, Utah, Nevada, California and Arizona. He went to Cripple Creek in 1902. He worked in the Vindicator mine at the time of the strike, August 10, 1903.

Orchard said that at that time Moyer and Haywood were president and secretary respectively of the Western Federation of Miners. He was not then acquainted with them. He said W. F. Davis, Charles Kennis and Sherman Parker were on the strike committee of the Cripple Creek strike. Orchard said there was trouble at the Vindicator shaft of such a nature that the guide rail of the cage would explode it. Orchard said he talked with W. B. Easterly about the matter and these two had tried some experiments with giant powder caps, which were highly satisfactory. Then, he said, Parker offered him $500 to place the bomb in the mine, which he did. He thought it had been placed on the seventh level, but by mistake got it on the sixth level. The contrivance did not work until about a week later, at which time the mine superintendent, McCormick, and shift boss Beck were killed. He said that Parker and Davis agreed to pay him some money the next day, but on the next day, he said, Parker and Davis were arrested and Orchard did not see any of them for some time later. Orchard later went to Denver. Moyer gave him $20 and Haywood later asked him how much he wanted when he got ready to go back to the Vindicator mine, and he told Haywood he wanted at least $300. He did Haywood promised him that much for blowing up the Vindicator mine, and that he then returned to Cripple Creek under instructions from Haywood and Moyer to see what could be done toward blowing up some of the other mines.

Parker and Davis, Orchard said, told him they were going to wreck a Florence and Cripple Creek train near a curve on the mountain where the train would plunge into a gulch several hundred feet below. Parker said something must be done to scare and kill off the "scabs," who were being taken to the mines and home again over this road. Orchard said Davis told him that if the train was wrecked he thought some money would be forthcoming from Denver.

"I wanted money for what I had already done," continued Orchard. "Parker told me that several of the boys had been doing little things and they all wanted money, but it was hard to get it because nothing big had been pulled off. I decided to tell the railroad people, because I wanted my money."

At the afternoon session Orchard told of the efforts to assassinate governor Peabody of Colorado.

Orchard told of Moyer's arrival at Durea. He said he went back to Denver where he had a conference with Haywood and Pettibone at the Federation headquarters. He told then of Moyer's arrival. They wanted to know if there could not be some scheme worked up to assassinate governor Peabody. They said they could not get any justice in the courts and decided they would take the law in their own hands.

"Who did the talking?"

"Both Haywood and Pettibone," answered Orchard.

The witness said: "They told me where Peabody lived and told me to see if I could get acquainted with his ways. I did that; I spent about a week watching his movements and habits. No one was helping me. I told Petibone in his store in Denver, on 12th street, about six blocks from the Federation headquarters, that I would need some help. I told them, Haywood and Pettibone, of the scheme I had to 'get' Peabody when he came home from his office and passed a stone fence near his residence. They told me Steve Adams would be the best man to assist me."

Orchard and Adams continued on the governor's trail for about three weeks altogether. One night they saw a hack turn toward Peabody's residence, and closed up on it with guns ready to shoot him when he came out of the hack. They were foiled, three women got out of the hack. They were afraid to go back as the women had seen them.

They then decided to put a bomb under Peabody's sidewalk. Adams went to a small mining camp near Brackfoot and got 50 pounds of powder. This was in May, 1904. Orchards said that the bomb to get Peabody was constructed in Pettibone's store and a place made ready for the bomb, but Haywood advised that no attempt to "get" Peabody in that manner be made at that time, as the executive of of Western Federation of Miners was in session.

The case was dropped for the time being and then he said Pettibone approached him with a plan for killing Lyte Gregory, whom he said was a detective in the employ of the mine owners' association.

Orchard told how himself, Pettibone and Adams and several others went to a saloon where Gregory and Meldrum were drinking. Just at dark the two came from the saloon and went into another. Orchard and Adams followed them, but Pettibone had left. They saw them through a window playing cards. They thought they could shoot him through the window, but did not. When Gregory left the saloon, they followed him.

"As he went into an alley," Orchard said calmly, "I pulled up the gun and shot him three times."

"Did he die?"

"I killed him dead," said Orchard quietly. He then told of burying the gun and going back to the federation headquarters where he said he was complimented by Haywood, Moyer and J. L. Simpkins as having done a "good job." Orchard said he was handed $100 next day.

At the request of Haywood, Simpkins and Moyer, Orchard went to Cripple Creek and participated in the blowing up of the Independence station, where 12 or 14 were killed. The powder was placed under a platform and the wire pulled from a safe retreat. He gave the story in great detail.

"Who pulled the wire?"

"Steve Adams."

"What was the effect of the explosion?"

"The depot was blown up and 12 or 14 men were killed," replied Orchard.

This was in 1904. Orchard then went to Denver and got money from Haywood. He and Neville went to Wyoming, but subsequently returned to Denver and was sent to San Francisco to "get" Fred G. Bradley, president of the Bunker Hill and Sullivan Mining company.

He first put poison in the family milk. Then he prepared a bomb in his room across the street from the Bradley home. he said he placed the bomb at the door and connected the string with the knob so that when the door was opened the cork would be displaced and the explosion would result.

"Then," said Orchard, "I got on a car and went down town."

Orchard said they knew the results. Mr. Bradley opened the door and the explosion, he said, blew out the front of the house and precipitated Bradley into the street. Orchard said he waited around San Francisco for a couple of weeks, waiting for money from the officers of the Western Federation of Miners. He said he finally received about $450.

Court here adjourned.

RUN NORTH AND SOUTH

SURVEY ROUTE TO CONNECT G.T.P. AND C.P.R.

THE ARDUOUS TRIP OF SURVEYOR SAUNDERS' PARTY

Edmonton, June 5.—Captain R. J. Saunders, surveyor, has returned from a five weeks' trip in the Rockies. The captain and party of six men left Innisfail for the Rocky Mountain house, taking provisions and ten pack horses. Only four of the party have as yet returned. They left the others at the Rocky Mountain house by boat on Saturday to come down the river and should have arrived in Edmonton on Monday, but nothing has been heard of them, and captain Saunders is very anixous. The men are two days overdue now, and unless they arrive within another two days captain Saunders will go in search of them.

The purpose of captain Saunders' trip was to ascertain the feasibility of constructing a railway running north and south between the Grand Trunk Pacific and the main line of the C.P.R. "I am now not at liberty to say who is projecting the road," said the captain, "but I think there is no question as to the practicability of constructing it."

The proposed railway will be on the east side of the mountains. Captain Saunders' party ran short of provisions a week ago last Friday and were compelled to go on short rations. For two days before reaching here they had nothing to eat. The party found great difficulty in getting through the country. Fallen and burned timbers in the district around Brazeau river was almost impassible. It took eight days to make Rocky Mountain house.

PANIC STRICKEN MISSIONARIES

New York, June 5—The American missionaries are believed to be among those mentioned in a special despatch from Hongkong to London as fleeing from the Pakhoi district of China to Hongkong, for protection from mobs of Chinese.

Neither the Methodists nor Presbyterians have missions in that section of China. Mr. Polhrl, who was reported to have been mercilessly beaten and seriously injured by the Chinese, is not known at the missionary headquarters.

BEFORE MINING COMMISSION

Frank, Alta., June 5—Car shortage and scarcity of timber were the main basis of complaints of miners at Belleyue before the commission today. They also demanded a compensation act and fortnightly instead of monthly payment.

JUVENILE DELINQUENTS.

The address of F. C. Wade, K.C., made recently before the Children's Aid Society of Vancouver, deals forcibly with a subject that merits greater and wider attention than it has heretofore received in this province.

Mr. Wade deals with facts that have come under his own observation in the course of his visits to the provincial reformatory and in his practice as a lawyer. No one who has given any attention at all to the important question of proper treatment of juvenile delinquents will demur for a moment at the conclusions drawn by Mr. Wade.

Before the close of the last session of parliament, the secretary of state, introduced in the senate a bill dealing with the subject, which it is proposed to reintroduce next session and pass into law. The idea of giving it this preliminary introduction was to permit of its provisions being discussed and passed upon by the public.

Whilst there has been a lamentable lack of interest so far displayed in this matter in British Columbia, we believe that most people will welcome the proposed measure and do what they can to assist in its effective enforcement.

As Mr. Wade points out, the proposed measure does not contemplate any experiment in legislation. What the bill provides for is already in successful operation in several states of the union and some of the big cities of Great Britain.

Here in Nelson we have had some experience with juvenile delinquents. Vexatious as have been their offenses there is no one in the community who would have approved of these youngsters being compelled to serve a term, short or long, in the provincial jail. And yet some measures must be taken to protect society against their depredations. The proposed juvenile delinquents measure will provide the machinery and will, at the same time, safeguard the youthful offenders from the contamination of the common jail.

Provincial politicians may not recognize the fact, but a fact it nevertheless is, that the destiny of the Dominion of Canada is not only the biggest thing in present-day British imperial politics, but likely to become very nearly the largest factor in our own international relations during future years, says the New York Review of Reviews. "Our trade, diplomatic intercourse and social and sentimental connections with our neighbor to the north have already an importance which does not receive its due consideration from American citizens generally. This Review has endeavored to set forth the importance of these actualities and possibilities with our neighbor nation. Accordingly we have secured from a number of representative Canadians some highly significant articles which appear in this number and to which we commend our readers' special attention. There are few situations in the world today more fascinating or swiftly kaleidoscopic in their changes than the development of the Canadian west. John W. Dafoe, editor of the Manitoba Free Press, of Winnipeg, who writes our article, "Western Canada: Its Resources and Possibilities," knows the situation perfectly. Whether there is a menace or a promise for the future of our grain fields and the products of our middle and far west in the proposed scheme for a Hudson bay route to Europe, Review of Reviews readers will find Miss Laut's article on that subject of help and interest. Canadian-American trade intercourse and the mineral resources of the dominion are other topics treated in contributed articles this month."

The article on the mineral resources of Canada is illustrated by a cut of Nelson, showing the smelter, and an interior view of that institution.

THE CANADIAN HORTICULTURIST

The June number of the Canadian Horticulturist is replete with carefully prepared articles for fruit growers in all parts of Canada. Among the topics discussed are: "Thinning fruits on trees"; "Orchard Tillage"; "Ripe Strawberries and how to handle them"; "the Currant and Currant Pests"; and "Improving and originating varieties of apples." Letters are published on fruit topics from special correspondents in the various provinces. A strong feature of the issue are fruit crop predictions based on the bloom this spring. Many other articles and items of interest to fruit growers are contained in its columns.

The section for vegetable gardeners is of much value. It contains articles on Transplanting Tomatoes; Growing Cauliflowers; the culture of Celery; and the cultivating of market gardens. Vegetable crop reports from regular correspondents are published.

For amateur flower growers there is much practical information, including articles entitled: Color schemes for formal gardens; Growing Salad crops at home; Lawn and Garden hints for June; the Mixed Flower Border; Mowing the Lawn; Bedding Plants; Rose Pests; the Culture of Gladioli, and Hardy trees and shrubs. An article of particular interest to ladies comprises recipes for cooking and preserving rhubarb and strawberries.

Among the well know writers who contribute articles are E. D. Smith, M.P., Winona, Ont.; W. T. Colcoun, experimental farm, Ottawa; B. S. Picket, Champaign, Ill.; Augustus Dupuis, director Quebec fruit experimental stations; Rev. Father Burke, Alberton, P.E.I.; G. H. Gordon, Vernon, B.C.; F. F. Reeves, Humber Bay, Ont.; W. J. Wiltshire, Montreal; H. H. Groff, Simcoe; Wm. Hunt, Ontoria agricultural college, Guelph, and Miss L. F. Shuttleworth, Toronto.

Since the subscription price of the Canadian Horticulturist was reduced last fall from $1 to 50 cents a year, its circulation has greatly increased. Sample copies can be secured by writing to the Canadian Horticulturist, Room 55, Manning Chambers, Toronto.

ADDRESS OF F. C. WADE BEFORE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY

ENDORSEMENT OF PROPOSED DOMINION LEGISLATION

Some time ago The Daily News referred to the annual report of the Children's Aid Society of Vancouver, commenting upon the excellent work done by that institution. At the annual meeting an interesting address was given by F. C. Wade, K.C., on the subject of juvenile delinquents and the need for reform in the treatment of these youthful offenders. His remarks were timely and will be read with interest by all those who have followed the dominion government's scheme for the establishment of special courts for the treatment of juvenile delinquents. The Daily News published in extenso, a little while back, the text of the bill that is to be introduced at the next session of parliament.

F. C. Wade, K.C., said:—As sir Chas. Tupper has said, this subject is rather a large one. In its discussion we are aided by the extracts read by sir Charles as well as his opening remarks and also by the noticeable change of opinion in the world the last two or three years in regard to juvenile crime. We are on the verge of such improvements in the treatment of the child delinquent as we have never witnessed before. It has been said the 20th century is going to be the children's century, because it will be the first century in which we have thoroughly understood the child's character. Up to the present time, if a child does wrong he is seized by an officer, hurried away to the police station and put into a cell with all kinds of repulsive criminals, a heavy door is locked on him and there the little fellow is left, perhaps to cry his eyes out and in some cases all this suffering is brought upon him by some little act of mischief, some little excess in animal spirits, some little mistake. He is taken away from his family. His parents are allowed to come and see him under serious safeguards. After he has spent a night in the cells among criminals of all classes, listening, perhaps, to the discussion of crimes of the most repulsive nature, he is ushered in before the magistrate and required to stand up while the terrible charges of the law are launched against him in the shape of a charge or indictment to which he is required to plead.

The criminal code prescribes certain punishments which must inevitably follow on his being tried and found guilty. Then it depends on the good disposition of the magistrate what may follow. In the treatment of children most magistrates find themselves almost helpless. We have some judges—for instance the celebrated judge Lindsay, of Colorado, whose name has become almost a household word—who know how to treat children; but these are not to be found everywhere. As an ordinary thing there is no guarantee that the child will not come before a man entirely out of sympathy with child character, who sees on the one side the crime only and on the other side the punishment prescribed by the criminal code.

What is the position in this province? We have in the reformatory some 34 boys; I have been over to see those boys. They are, with some possible exceptions, as good looking a lot of boys as you will find anywhere in Vancouver. Of these 34 boys nearly all of them have been committed for petty thefts. Some nine have been committed for being incorrigible. What "incorrigible" is in fact or at law is pretty hard to tell. A magistrate sentences a boy for being incorrigible because a father or mother, or perhaps stepmother, has been unable to manage that boy and make a good boy of him—that is the tale told in court. But what is the tale not told; it is often that the father is a drunkard, or the mother a drunkard, and far more at fault than the poor boy has been at any stage of his career; in fact he may be more sinned against than sinning. But the only person to suffer is the boy. In our reformatory we have today a boy of 10 years old, sentenced to five years' imprisonment for being incorrigible; another three years for being incorrigible; another nine, with indefinite sentence for being incorrigible—a nebulous condition which cannot well be defined. All the other boys in the reformatory are there for petty thefts, with the exception of one, who was given the terrible sentence of five years for indecency at the age of 15 years. At that age a boy is scarcely capable of understanding what indecency is or that it is very terrible, or should entail imprisonment at all. What is the treatment in the reformatory here? I am discussing not only the treatment at the trials, but after they are tried. The superintendent of the reformatory is as kind a man as one could wish; we have nothing but the greatest approval to express in regard for Mr. Donaldson—it is the system we condemn, and the system as applied here is more open to condemnation than it is elsewhere. Only recently a magistrate sentenced two boys to the reformatory, telling them that they would have a chance to learn good trades and come out useful tradesmen, able to make a living. I met the magistrate afterwards and asked him what trades they would be taught. He said he supposed carpentry or some similar trade. I asked him if he had ever visited the reformatory, and he admitted he never had. Then I told him, to his great surprise, that there never had been a trade taught in the British Columbia reformatory. For years we have been taking children from their surroundings, away from their mothers and fathers and homes, away from circumstances in which they may learn to work, and, under the pretence of teaching them to work, we have placed them in a place where they are debarred from learning to work. That is absolutely wrong, and not done in any other part of the civilized world that I am acquainted with. Not only are the boys not taught any trade, but their ordinary schooling lasts but two hours a day, during the rest of the time they mingle together. Take 25 or 30 boys, and put among them half a dozen of vicious character, and of impure minds, and see the result.

The aim of the Children's Aid society is the protection of children. The object of this society is to take children away from persons who are neglecting them and cause them to be adopted by proper persons. A year ago I had the pleasure of addressing your meeting, and I then said that the establishment of juvenile courts is one of the steps to be taken, and another step is the closing up of the reformatory for good and all in the province of British Columbia, as they have closed it in the province of Ontario. The reason for bringing up this question again tonight is that the subject is now before parliament. I have before me the draft of the bill. Sir Charles Tupper has already outlined a good many of the features entirely covered by the bill, because the legislation referred to in this book on comparative legislation is entirely along the same lines as the legislation now being introduced at Ottawa. The preamble of the act is interesting. It simply sets out all the theories on which the modern treatment of children is founded. It says: "Whereas it is inexpedient that youthful offenders should be classed or dealt with as ordinary criminals, the welfare of the community demanding that they should, on the contrary, be guarded against association with crime and criminals, and should be subjected to such wise care, treatment and control as will tend to check their evil tendencies and to strengthen their better instincts." With that introduction it is proposed to enact this bill providing for delinquent courts throughout the Dominion of Canada."

The first requirement in dealing with child delinquents is to understand the child. The second is to treat him with kindness rather than severity. A judge of a juvenile court should be equal to the task. Judge Lindsay may be taken as a type of what a judge ought to be. His theory is that when a boy does wrong it is the duty of the law not to floor him with the mailed fist of the law, to try him and jail him—thrust him into a reformatory or jail and make a criminal of him, and put the mark of the criminal on him for the rest of his life, simply because he stepped aside from the path. Lindsay's idea is the very opposite. A boy should always be treated as much as possible as he would be treated b ya good mother. When he makes his first step from the path of right, instead of putting him in jail and making him consort with criminals, the proper thing is to discuss with the boy the crime—or rather the delinquency—which he has committed, to show where wrong-doing leads to suffering, and show him how to do right and to put his feet back on the path, and give him a fresh start, without weakening his will or sullying his character, which the administration of the law does today with such serious and fatal results to boys' characters. When a boy goes to Lindsay's court, instead of being solemnly arraigned and asked to plead to some of the grim formulas of the law, it is Lindsay's habit to put his arm round the boy's shoulders and speak encouragingly to him. In that way he commands the confidence of all the boys within his jurisdiction or influence, with the result that where he lives juvenile delinquency has almost disappeared, the boys swear by him and will combine and form associations to get other boys to do right. This is Lindsay's method. I simply hold him out as a type of juvenile court judge before whom the boy is taken for his first offence.

This act was drafted by Mr. W. L. Scott, president of the Children's Aid Society of Ontario, and is being pressed by Mr. J. J. Kelso, the superintendent under the Children's Protective Act of Ontario.

Every provision is framed on the theory that kindness rather than harshness is the best reforming influence. The first provision is that the charge shall not be in writing, so that nothing will be on record. The next thing is that nothing shall be taken down in writing with regard to the evidence. It also provides—to put it as much as possible on the basis of a domestic tribunal—that no oath shall be taken in enquiring into the delinquency the boy has committed. If the boy is to be detained for the purpose of enquiring into his case he must not be placed in a jail or lockup. Similarly, after a child is committed even, for trial or finally, he is not placed in a jail or lockup, but simply put into a house of detention provided by the province. If no house of detention is in existence, he is put for temporary detention in some house selected by the magistrate, or by the sheriff in his absence, or in his absence by the mayor.

If a period of detention is ordered an effort is made to secure him in the environment of his own home. If that cannot be accomplished, he is put into some other selected home, where he is detained for the time being. If that cannot be done he is placed under the supervision of a probation officer. If that cannot be done he is put in charge of the Children's Aid society.

All this shows how germane this legislation is to the duties we have the privilege to perform as a Children's Aid society, and to what an extent our duties will be widened if the act comes in force.

I want to say on eword on the abolition of the reformatory and the conversion of that building into the Children's Aid building when the time comes. In 1905 the experiment was tried in Ontario. There were 108 children in the Penetanguishene reformatory there then. Mr. Kelso, who is in much the same position as Mr. South here, asked the government to allow these 108 children to leave the reformatory, the Children's Aid society agreeing to take care of them. After conferring with the government of the day in Ottawa, the whole of the 108 children were pardoned and let out of the Penetanguishene reformatory. Up to the time of their pardon they were costing a little over $500 a week, and they were expending that $30,000 a year in the idea that they were doing something for the protection of society in the province of Ontario. As a matter of fact they were to some extent using the machinery of the law to make children criminals. The 108 who were allowed out were apprenticed to farmers, mechanics and others, or sent back to their own homes or other homes found for them to go to, the object being to change their environment. What was the result? According to Mr. Kelso's report, of the 108 only 2 per cent of those liberated turned out badly. The rest were soon earning $325 a week, instead of costing the province of Ontario $500 a week. We want the boys who are in our reformatory, where they are cut off from their parents, regarded as a disgrace to their families, and where they learn to regard themselves as prisoners and culprits—we want them released on parole so that they may feel the responsibility of citizenship and lead useful lives.

I have nothing more to say except that there is nothing new about this advocacy of a children's court. They have been in existence for 20 years in the city of New York; they are also in operation in California, Connecticut, Colorado, Delaware, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Maryland, Missouri, Minnesota, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and the District of Columbia. So I think, Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, that I am discussing nothing that may be considered very novel, but in fact something that has been widely adopted and approved—something I think we can heartily support. I will, therefore, ask you to support this resolution:

"In the opinion of this society, the time is ripe for the institution of juvenile courts throughout the province of British Columbia, and some such legislation as that outlined in the bill entitled 'An Act Respecting Juvenile Delinquents,' and which the dominion parliament is now considering should be adopted."

The resolution, having been read by the chairman, was carried unanimously.

FOR DOMINION DAY

Celebration Executive Hold Long Conference—Progress Made Last Night

William Irvine presided over a meeting of the Dominion day celebration executive in the court house last night.

Chairman McLean of the sports committee, made a report of the draft program for July 1 and 2, so far as the same could be prepared. Good progress had been made said Mr. McLean, except with the water sports, where there was some difference of opinion. Mr. McLean submitted the draft program already published. Mr. Dyer stated that an 11 would come from Vernon to play the local cricketers, if arrangements could be made. He asked for the use of part of the grounds each morning from 9 to 12 or to 1 if possible. The committee agreed to a grant for the cricketers and to arrange for the grounds at the times asked for, if possible. It was mutually decided to give the cricketers the first afternoon from 3:30 and the second morning from 9 to 12.

Harry Wright is corresponding with regard to lacrosse and chief Deasy as to hose contests. The drilling and log rolling contests are still under consideration.

The Trail junior baseball team want a game with Kaslo juniors and the local players, so two morning games can be counted on.

The pass system, which was greatly abused last year, will be strictly carried out this year.

The report of the sports committee was accepted and the committee will report again later on.

The finance committe have $1200 raised so far. Over $2000 will be needed for the program.

The outlook for football is not very satisfactory, but details are awaited.

A long discussion ensued over the various items of expenditure and a draft estimate was prepared, to be gone over again later.

The sports committee will meet again on Friday night in G. P. Wells' office and the executive will hold another session upon the call of the chairman.

Because the Sunshine is fitted with a dust flue (see illustration.)

When you rock down the ashes (no back-breaking shaking with the Sunshine) what dust arises is drawn from the ash-pan up the dust-flue, then across the fire-pot to the smoke-pipe, as shown in illustration, where it immediately ascends to the outer air.

Only two things to remember in connection with this operation:—open both the dust and direct draft dampers.

Sunshine is just the cleanest, simplest, easiest managed, greatest labor saving furnace that you can buy

WOMEN IN PARLIAMENT

NINETEEN SITTING IN FINNISH NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

AIM TO REMOVE FRIVOLITY FROM PARLIAMENTARY LIFE

While the czar has been depriving Finland of its ancient rights one by one, and bringing it more and more into subjection to the most autocratic government on earth, he has at the same time granted it such an extension of suffrage as even the British parliament denies to the women who beat vainly at the gates of Westminster. By the universal suffrage ukase of 1906, women were given not only the ballot but the right to a seat in the national assembly and at the present moment 19 of them are sitting in the Finnish national assembly. And, indeed, according to the Anglo-Russian, a London monthly, the women have fought the battle of their country's liberties side by side with the men. Dr. Kaikki Friberg, who was the first woman delegate in the Finland assembly, is reported as describing the political activity of her countrywomen in the following terms:

"They raised most of the funds needed and used for patriotic agitation; they spread the pamphlets and circulars which had to take the place of a gagged or entirely suppressed press; they bolstered up the faltering courage of their weak kneed brothers. This they did in constant danger of prison and Siberian exile and more than one of them paid some such price for daring to prove her devotion to the freedom of her country. During these sorrowful years while the women were engrossed with their work of saving the country, their eyes were opened to the importance of the suffrage and they joined hands with the pioneers of the movement. And as the large majority of women learned through their own experience what a powerful weapon universal suffrage is in the struggle for freedom and country, so the men learned the importance of the women's contribution to political life. They learned how necessary it is for a small nation, the independence of which is continuously threatened, to set free and utilize all its forces."

When the lady members of parliament joined the old parties, the Old Finnish, the socialist, the young Finnish, the Swedish and the social-democrat parties, they made it their ideal, says Miss Friberg, to consider rather the needs of their country at large, than to promote the importance or power of the special party to which they attached themselves. And indeed the fault of many parliaments, both young and old, seems to consist chiefly in the multiplication of parties and their endless subdivision. Miss Friberg notes how business is hindered, complicated and even sometimes completely blocked by the intrigues of selfish party politicians who have a taste of their own and wish to gratify it at the expense of everything else. Lord Palmerston's idea of parliamentary power is easily to be divined from his remark that he found it more exciting than horse racing. "Public life is a cursed thing," declared Lord Derby when he was prime minister. It is exactly to remove frivolity from parliamentary life, to introduce enthusiasm and unselfishness into it and so to eliminate those characteristics which make it so frequently "a cursed thing" that the women of Finland, as represented by Miss Friberg and her sisters, have so eagerly accepted the suffrages of their fellow countrymen. As this lady is reported to have said:

"The women feel it incumbent on them to strive to their best ability to restrain the hatred and the lust for power which generally prevail within party lines. For, if the women could not bring some wholly new contribution to political life—whether the innermost spirit or the outer forms of this life be concerned—but should only rally auxiliary forces to strengthen the existing parties, then neither they nor mankind would benefit from their interposition. What is most needed in politics is not an increase in the number of voters merely, but the introduction of independent new forces, new standards, new ideals."

GROCERS SHOULD ADVERTISE

In large towns it's getting to be quite the rule for grocers to use considerable spaces on certain days, in order to advertise a lot of bargains, together with other goods not at special prices. The idea, says the American Grocer, is that those who come for the bargains will also buy the other goods upon which the price is not cut, the average purchase levelling the matter of profit nicely. Not all of the grocers who advertise have come to see the advantage of advertising every day. It is quite possible to make every day a busy day with grocers, weather permitting, or, at least, to make what were the dull days less dull.

If your store is near enough to the centre of the town to pull customers thereto from all directions, use the newspapers. There's no cheaper medium nor any better one where you can take advantage of most of a paper's circulation. Take as much space as you can pay for, up to 3 per cent of your gross receipts, and advertise in that space consistently, every day or every few days, changing the advertisement constantly, keeping its news fresh, offering bargains of the right sort, and calling attention to your deliveries and special prices. Don't use a lot of gush or tommyrot in your space talk sense; tal kto the point, and though it be in poor English, it will draw. If in better English, so much the better for business.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN DOCTOR

The average man cannot afford to employ a physician for every slight ailment or injury that may occur in his family, nor can he afford to neglect them, as so slight an injury as the scratch of a pin has been known to cause the loss of a limb. Hence every man must from necessity be his own doctor for this class of ailments. Success often depends upon prompt treatment, which can only be had when suitable medicines are kept at hand. Chamberlain's Remedies have been in the market for many years and enjoy a good reputation.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints.

Chamberlains Cough Remedy for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough.

Chamberlain's Pain Balm, an antiseptic liniment for cuts, bruises, burns, sprains, swellings, lame back and rheumatic pains.

One bottle of each of these five preparations costs but $1.25. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

SHOE ADVERTISING

At the Northwestern Shoe and Leather convention, held recently in St. Paul, E. C. Bates gave an interesting address on advertising. Mr. Bates said:

Advertising pays! You have heard this thousands of times. It has been proven thousands of times; and yet there are thousands of merchants that are not advertising. Among the last thousands are many who have tried it and to their own satisfaction have proven that it does not pay. But upon investigating such cases you will find that they did not do it the right way.

To treat the matter of advertising as applied to the retail shoe merchant, I should say: First, have the kind of shoes your customers want at the price they want to pay. This means more than it sounds and is half the battle. Then advertise them; if you are located in the retail trade centre, in every issue of the local newspaper your prospective customers read; if in the suburbs, through neat circulars distributed weekly. Think first over what you will have printed. Tell all about the good things in these shoes, but no more—don't exaggerate. Always give the prices—this is important. Your readers invariably lose all interest in the shoes advertised if the price is not mentioned. Then these shoes should be displayed in your windows, back of clean plate glass, with price tickets attached.

Keep at it; don't forget that. Only the other day a man said to me in the store: "I have noticed and occasionally read your advertisements with the wreath at the bottom for the past four or five years. Once or twice before I had practically made up my mind to buy something of you, but the store being located somewhat out of the beaten path, I never got to it. Your advertisement telling about these sample shoes last night, just when I needed a pair of new shoes, made me feel that it was about time for me to find out if you really give these splendid bargains that you so often speak about."

If we had spent our money advertising for one, two, three or even four years, we would not have sold that man any shoes. It was by keeping at it, the fifth year, that we got him. Now it is up to us to keep him in line with the rest of the small army that is today paying us a profit on adveritsing done during the past 11 years.

If your store is located away from the beaten paths of trade, away from the high rent localities, or you are, through some other fortunate trend of circumstances, able to sell merchandise at a closer per cent of profit than your competitors, you have indeed a happy nucleus for an advertising campaign. Good, sound and by all means honest reasons why you can give good values are always a strong factor in making an advertisement bring results. The people like to know why things are as they are.

You may have good shoes; you may mark them at honest prices; you may keep your store neat and clean; you may have accommodating clerks; you may desire to please your customers in every way; but, if you don't advertise these facts, how are the people going to know about them? To be successful you must advertise. The chances are you will not be a big winner from the start—it takes some time—and if you don't get discouraged, and persist along the line suggested, always bearing the Roosevelt "square deal" idea in mind, you will be a winner eventually.

JAPANESE UNEASY

Want Home Government to Deal Peremptorily with 'Frisco Outrages

Tokio, June 5—A deputation from the progressive party waited on foreign minister Hayashi today and asked for an explanation of the government's apparent inaction and want of confidence in the presence of grave diplomatic questions both with China and with the United States. The former is accused of deliberately obstructing the advancement of Japanese interests in Manchuria. The deputation also called attention to facts strongly indicative of racial feeling in San Francisco against Japanese. The deputation dwelt upon the necessity of peremptorily dealing with the question otherwise frequent repetitions of the acts would endanger the friendly relations of Japan and America. Minister Hayashi's reply to the deputation was kept secret.

London, June 5—According to a despatch from Tokio to Reuter's, foreign minister Hayashi, in replying to the deputation of progressives, who called on him and asked for an explanation of the government's apparent inaction and want of efficiency in the presence of grave diplomatic questions, both in China and the United States, informed his visitors that the government was taking every measure in regard to the diplomatic problems in connection with the U.S. and China. The despatch adds that the Japanese authorities are apprehensive of the future relationship between Japan and the United States if the racial prejudices evinced at San Francisco continue.

Buy Burton City Fruit Lands

AND GET THE BEST IN THE KOOTENAYS

This land is level and free from stone, located along the shore of the beautiful Arrow Lake and only one mile from Burton City. I have 1250 acres which I will sell wholesale or subdivide. It will pay you to see this before you buy.

The large C. P. R. steamers call twice a day. Good neighbors. Close to fine orchards. The Arrow Lakes are 350 feet lower than Kootenay Lakes, which insures permanent success in growing fruit and in no part of the Kootenay is there such opportunities for hunting large game. Only 14 miles from Burton City, on Goat mountain, is located one of the largest herds of mountain goat known to the sportsmen of B. C., while on the opposite mountain deer can be seen at any season of the year and one of the streams running through Burton Valley is called Trout Creek on account of the quantity of fish caught there. Burton Valley is the home for wild fruit. Wild cherries, wild crab apples, raspberries and wild strawberries, are fast being replaced by cultivated orchards.

INTERIOR DEPARTMENT

REVENUES REACHED HIGH MARK LAST YEAR

GROWN NEARLY TWO MILLIONS SINCE 1896

(Special to The Daily News)

Ottawa, June 5—It is always interesting to observe what progress is being made in the land of one's adoption. Therefore, it may be of interest to ponder over a few figures supplied from the operations of the department of the interior, so efficently and honestly presided over by Hon. Frank Oliver. Of all the departments the interior touches the life of the people closer, probably than any other. This branch of government includes the public lands department, immigration, homesteads and kindred subjects.

If immigrants arrive in greater numbers from year to year, if homesteads in the great Northwest are being absorbed in proportion to these arrivals, if the revenues from dominion lands be ever on the increase, there can be but one comment fitting to the subject, and that must be that the department is administered by a competent head, and that the country is making great strides in national growth.

In 1895-96, the last year the conservative government was in power, there were taken up in Canada 2462 homesteads. This was the result achieved by the conservative government as the fruits of its so-called immigration propaganda. Going back just five years in the history of the dominion from the present time, what are the facts with respect to the taking up of homesteads? The following official figures tell their own story:

Homestead entries, 1901-02, 14,673; 1902-03, 31,383; 1903-04, 26,073; 1904-05, 30,819; 1905-06, 41,869; total for the past five years, 144,817.

This is practical evidence of the working of the department. Results such as these figures disclose must supply any argument that may be made touching this question.

Inseparably associated with the question fo homesteads is that of the arrival of immigrants. In 1896 there arrived in Canada 21,716 immigrants. This was the best a conservative policy accomplished. The next five years, under a liberal government, saw immigration stimulated to a marked degree. Each year the arrivals increased until 1900-01 when they numbered 49,149. During the last five years these figures have been left far behind as the following will show:

Arrivals during 1901-02, 67,379; 1902-03, 123,-364; 1903-04, 130,331; 1904-05, 146,266; 1905-06, 189,064.

Since the liberals assumed control of affairs immigration has increased ten times per annum over what it was in the last year of conservative rule.

The revenue from this source in cash in 1895 and 1896 was $174,569.38. For the past five years it has been as follows:

Land revenue, 1901-02, $1,254,333.56; 1902-03, $1,716,597.29; 1903-04, $2,478,105.33; 1904-05, $1,-314,485.40; 1905 06, 1,701,580.71; total for the five years, $7,465,103.20.

The revenue has increased from dominion lands alone from $174,569 in 1896, to $1,701,580 in 1906.

The total revenues from dominion lands for ten years from 1886-1887 to 1895-1896, were $2,343,835.95.

The total revenues from dominion lands for ten years from 1895-97 to 1905-06 were $13,139,941.78.

The total revenue of the interior department in 1896, under conservative rule was $344,431. Last year under liberal rule the total revenues of the department were $2,826,123. A growth so marvellous that the figures alone are sufficiently eloquent to reflect the prosperous condition of this branch of the public service.

The immense work entailed in the offices of this department may be conjectured when it is known that in 1896, the total number of letters received and sent amounted to 91,739 for that year. Last year, 1906, there were sent and received at the department no less than 957,259 letters.

The added wealth of the country during the past five years, is well exemplified in the growth of population of western towns and cities for that period. Examine the following:

Town	1901	1906
Brandon	5,283	10,520
Calgary	4,153	17,500
Edmonton	2,626	11,000
Indian Head	768	2,100
Medicine Hat	1,973	3,500
Moose Jaw	2,042	6,500
Portage la Prairie	3,850	5,500
Prince Albert	2,193	5,000
Raymond	7	2,000
Red Deer	851	2,000
Regina	2,645	9,400
Saskatoon	0	3,000
Strathcona	1,500	3,400
Winnipeg	42,340	101 000

These figures are only approximate today for some of these centers of population are growing so rapidly that many thousands may be added in some cases to make the figures correct at the present time. A few settlers today means a village in a few weeks and in a few months a prosperous town has sprung into active, aggressive life.

Under the new coal regulations an applicant for a lease is limited to a certain acreage and he is bound to sell coal at a reasonably low rate at the pit mouth to the settler and pay a small royalty per ton to the government. No person will be allowed to hold coal areas in idleness, they must be worked or the lease is susceptible to be cancelled by the minister. This is in marked contrast to the methods employed by the conservatives, which permitted vast areas to pass into the hands of favored politician friends.

FIRST MATCH OF SEASON

R. M. R. Will Try Conclusions With the Nelson Cricket Club

The first cricket match of the season will be played this afternoon on the recreation grounds between the Nelson cricket club and the R.M.R. team. Stumps will be pitched at 3:30 and drawn at 7:10, the game to be decided in one innings.

The opposing teams will be selected from the following players; Cricket club, H. E. Wade, captain, E. Mason, A. Tregillus, R. Howe, A. Cheyne, A. Thomas, R. Tanner, W. Seatle, E. W. Widdowson, G. C. Hodge, J. Wood-Taylor, N. Fraser, C. Bourke, R. Inglis and I. Inglis.

R.M.R., A. H. Coppen, captain, D. J. Elvery, J. Teague, R. Ferguson, W. F. Mawdsley, E. J. Marks; E. Morris, A. J. Dill, A. Carrie, R. J. Steel, C. T. Partington, J. Warren, Capt. L. Stewart.

NELSON'S NEWS OF THE DAY

The first Sunday afternoon free concert in the city park on the lake front will be given next Sunday afternoon by the city band.

D. Proudfoot, G. Horsead, F. Squire and E. Dill leave this evening for Nanaimo as delegates to the I.O.O.F. grand lodge meeting which will assemble next Tuesday at the coast town.

E. C. Wragge has been appointed honorary organizing officer for Nelson for the Legion of Frontiersmen. A full description of the aims of the legion has appeared at length in these columns on three or four occasions in the past. All details can be obtained on application to Mr. Wragge.

A farewell social will be held in the Salvation Army barracks this evening in honor of captain G. S. Johnston, who, with his wife and lieutenant Wright will leave Nelson on the 12th instant for the coast. Light refreshments will be served at the social and there will be an interesting program rendered.

Householders will be somewhat relieved to learn that the police after an exhaustive enquiry, have succeeded in getting to the bottom of the attempted burglary at a Silica street west residence last month. The "burglar" has been located and it has been ascertained that nothing more serious than an overdose of stimulant was responsible for the occurrence. Ample apology has been made and the incident has been closed.

One Nelson industrial concern at least, is rapidly expanding its business and experiencing a boom. The Nelson Iron Works, B. A. Isaac and R. W. Hinton, at the corner of Hall and Front streets, have more than doubled their foundry capacity in the last 12 months, and have been rewarded by a greatly increased volume of business. The firm has just completed the adoption of a 10-drill Ingersoll Duplex steam compressor to use with water power. The work was done for the Ymir Mines, Ltd., and the manages, Mr. Nichols has written a letter complimenting the Nelson Iron works on the excellent and satisfactory job accomplished. Another piece of contract work nearly completed is a double drum, double geared friction hoist for the local marble works. Not so long ago both these jobs would have been done in the east. At the present time the Nelson Iron works is busy night and day, a double shift being at work steadily and the firm find it difficult to keep up with the orders coming in.

INCREASE AT ST. EUGENE

SCALE RAISED TO EQUAL BOUNDARY SCHEDULE

(Special to The Daily News)

Moyie, June 5—A general raise in wages has been granted the employees of the St. Eugene mine, one of the properties of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada. The new scale is as follows:

Shaftmen, $4.50; machine men and timbermen, $4; hammermen and timber helpers, $3.75; cage tenders, $3.75; trackmen and motormen, $3.25; shovellers and carmen, $3.25. Millmen, machinists, engineers, carpenters, blacksmiths, and all outside men receive an advance of 25 cents a day.

Although the notices were not posted round the works until yesterday evening, the new schedule started on June 1. There is general satisfaction and good feeling with the men. However, the raise did not come any too soon as the men were quitting and going over to the Boundary, where an increase in wages has already been given.

TO RESORT TO LAW

Washington, June 5 — The Japanese trouble in San Francisco will be settled by recourse to the law. Information has been received here to the effect that the Japanese consul there is contemplating bringing a suit against the city for damages incurred by the owners of the Horshshoe restaurant and the Po som bath house, from the attack of the mob on May 20 last. The action if brought will be under the state law, and in the names of the owners of the places wrecked.

MORE OUTBREAKES IN CHINA

Hongkong, June 5—A serious outbreak of rebellion is reported to have occurred at Welchou, about 30 miles south of Pakhoi, formerly the refuge of the pirates in the gulf of Tong Sing. A mob of rebels is attacking the city and troops have been applied for from Canton. The rising at Lieu Chow is dying out owing to the energetic action of the local authorities.

DAILY TRAIN WRECK

Nashville, June 5—The Southern railway train leaving at 10:30 this morning, was wrecked three miles beyond Lebanon. Nobody was killed; 16 persons were injured, six seriously.

A later report says there were 60 persons on the train and all but three were injured. The injured will be brought here.

A meeting of the council of the board of trade will be held in the court house this afternoon at 4:30. There are many matters of importance to come before the meeting preparatory to the regular monthly meeting of the board next week, and a full attendance of all members of the council is requested this afternoon.

It cannot be too clearly stated, for the statement is beyond any qualification or contradiction, that never since the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened in 1902, has a single applicant been refused admission, because of his or her poverty.

More, perhaps, than any other charity in Canada the

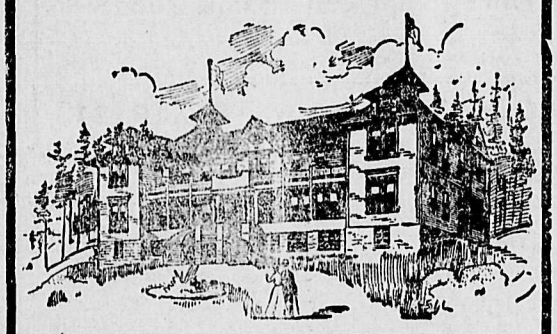
is dependent upon the contributions of the Canadian public for its maintenance.



ADMINISTRATION BUILDING—MUSKOKA FREE HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTIVES

Private philanthropy has erected the buildings, providing accommodation to-day for 75 patients, and which the trustees are prepared to extend, if circumstances warrant it, to 100 beds.

These beds are for those in any part of Canada, without means, who are suffering from this terrible disease in the incipient stage.

There is no large endowment, as in some public institutions, the interest of which will go a long way to pay the running expenses.

The monthly bills, covering cost of administration, salaries of medical men, nursing, clerical and domestic staff, besides the heavy expenditure for maintenance of each patient, are dependent for payment almost entirely on the contributions that come to the treasurer from kind friends throughout the Dominion.

Could Not Pay—Has Young Wife and Child.

DR. G. F. CAMPBELL, GRAND VALLEY, ONT.:—I have a patient, 26 years of age, with tuberculosis. His circumstances are not such that he could pay, as he has a young wife and child to support. Could you make room for him at the Sanitarium? I think he might improve. Let me know what you would advise.

Destitute.

J. AUSTIN, KINMOUNT, ONT.:—We have a man, unmarried and destitute, afflicted with lung trouble, whom we wish to send to the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives. Please let me know what we have to do to gain admission for him.

Where Will Your Money Do More Good?

Contributions may be sent to SIR WM. R. MEREDITH, Kt., Chief Justice, Osgoode Hall, Toronto, or W. J. GAGE, Esq., 54 Front Street, W., Toronto.

Applications for admission and any other information from J. S. ROBERTSON, Secretary National Sanitarium Association, (Saturday Night Building), 28 Adelaide Street W., Toronto, Canada.

NELSON'S NEWS OF THE DAY

Frank Phillips leaves this morning for Denver, Colorado, to attend the W. F. of M. convention which opens on June 10 in that city.

On and after Sunday next all mail for the coast will be sent out on the C.P.R. train leaving here at 7:15 p.m. This step has been caused by the new midnight schedule over the G.N.R. which comes in force next Sunday.

By a mutual understanding between the mayor and Harry Wright properly equipped dressing rooms with shower baths, etc., will be erected under the grand stand on the recreation grounds at once. The rooms will be used by contestants in the sports and it is expected that they will be ready by Dominion day.

After 16 years residence here Al. Gray is leaving on Saturday night for Hazelton where he will settle down as a fruit grower. Mrs. Gray will remain in Spokane until her husband gets a home ready. Mr. Gray says he regrets leaving Kootenay and only hopes to meet as good friends and neighbors as he has whilst living here.

According to the Spokesman-Review Joe Carter will assume his new duties at Spokane as agent there for the Spokane-International and the C.P.R. on Monday next The first through trains from Spokane and St. Paul will start on June 17. Mr. Carter's new ticket office will be at the corner of Riverside and Stevens street, in "railroad row."

Today at the noon hour the great majority of the local retail stores will close for the rest of the day, this being the first civic half holiday under mutual arrangements entered into last month. The half holiday will last during June, July and August and shoppers are particularly requested to note and make their purchases early today.

Referring to the new midnight "tourist special" over the S. F. and N. which goes into force here on Sunday next, the Rossland Miner says: "There will be no change in the time of the train running out of and into Rossland on the Red Mountain railway. Instead of running from here to Northport and return each day, the train will be run to Marcus and return each day."

The city band will assist in celebrating the first civic half holiday by giving an open air concert this evening on the Ward street stand, commencing at 8 o'clock. The bandmen think that the stand might with profit to all concerned, be moved to the vacant lot east of the Queen's hotel on Baker street. It is understood that the mayor thinks well of the change and it will probably take place before the next band concert.

Before gold commissioner Harry Wright yesterday the rival claimants to some 3:00 acres of land in Fire Valley district, who were disputing the validity of the staking, got together and agreed on a compromise. The agreement was put in writing annd will be sent on to the department of lands and works at Victoria by Mr. Wright for confirmation. R. M. Macdonald appeared for Fauquier and Shiel and R. S. Lennie for Brydges and McCandlish. The agreement arrived at is said to be mutually satisfactory.

E. M. Sandilands, who is stopping at the Strathcona said that he knew the late Dave Maclean, whose sudden death at Calgary on Tuesday was announced in these columns yesterday. Mr. Sandilands says that Mr. Maclean was the last person he said good-bye to before leaving Calgary last Saturday and he was then in the best of health. The deceased came to Sandon in the early days, and mined there. He left in 1899 and went to East Kootenay prospecting. Later he went to Calgary and opened a real estate office which he carried on until his death. He was about 42 years old and came from Ontario. He was unmarried and leaves an elder brother in Calgary, Wendell Maclean, a well to do druggist.

Last week the local police deported a depraved young woman only 17 years of age, who came here from Spokane. It was said at the time that the Spokane police had given the girl a ticket for this city and placed her on the cars. Further information discloses the real facts of the case. A friend in this city, wanting to help in reforming the girl, then under arrest in Spokane, sent the police of that city a sum of money and asked that the girl be released and sent here. This was done, but apparently no one met the girl on her arrival and she at once made for the restricted district, where the police arrested her. She was placed in an hotel for the night, with instructions not to leave the premises, but she went on the street looking for trouble the minute the officer departed, and later was lodged in the police cells. She was sent back to Spokane the following day and is again under arrest for vagrancy in that city. The girl is claimed to be an incorrigible, but it is a pity that those who sent for her from here, knowing her disposition, did not meet her on her arrival.

Tom Long, Rossland's chief of police, arrived last night with W. Monk and R. Gus. Altman, who will board here at the government's expense for some time. Monk is an ex-American soldier, who saw service in the Philippines and who has been sent to durance vile for three months for hitting a Scotchman named James Stewart over the head with a hammer, inflicting a nasty wound. Altman is an old offender. He was sent to the penitentiary by the late judge Leamy for three years for stripping vacant mines of their machinery and the like and although only released a short time has started again at his old work. He will stay here for three months. Chief Long says he is doing his best to add to the population of Nelson and in any case he strongly approves of the 20,000 club; he will this morning apply for membership. No doubt secretary Ebbutt will accommodate the Rosslander.

YMIR NEWS NOTES
(Special to The Daily News)

Ymir, June 5—Born, to the wife of O. J. Handley, here this morning, a daughter.

With the inauguration here next Sunday of the "tourist special" there is likely to be a number of resignations of postmasters at Ymir, Salmo, Erie and Waneta. Those gentlemen do not relish having to sit up half the night waiting for the mail, and unless the government makes some provision to pay extra for the night service, they will probably have to get other postmasters.

MUTINY AT ROYAL PALACE

St. Petersburg, June 5—A mutiny broke out today among a squadron of Hussars of the guard stationed at Tsarskoe-Selo, at which place the imperial family had just arrived. The mutineers were promptly surrounded and disarmed by other troops and order was restored without bloodshed.
