SAFELY OVER

Royal Tragedy Ends Without Untoward Incident

KING AND QUEENS ABSENT

STREETS DENSELY LINED BY PEOPLE AND HEAVILY GUARDED BY TROOPS AS THE FUNERAL CORTEGE PASSES WITH THE BODIES TO BURIAL.

Lisbon, Feb. 8.—With the church bells tolling continually, the bodies of the murdered king and crown prince in two golden chariots, shroudled in black velvet and drawn by eight hooded horses, were escorted by a glittering funeral pageant today, across Lisbon to the Portuguese pantheon and laid at rest beside their ancestors of the Braganza dynasty.

Seven hours elapsed from the time the foreign princes and the special ambassadors of all the powers arrived at the palace for the ceremony there until the three salutes of 21 guns, and three volleys of musketry, reverberating over the terraced and sun-bathed hills, and answered by the British warships in the harbor, announced that the last rites were over.

Not a single untoward incident marred the last act of Portugal's tragedy. The vague forbodings proved baseless. And there is a general feeling of relief tonight that all passed off well, in view of the past political turmoil. The great outpouring of people along the line of procession was noteworthy. They packed the pavements, crowded the windows and choked the side streets. While evidences of deep and popular sorrow seemed to be absent, many stood with uncovered heads as the funeral cars passed and nowhere was actual disrespect witnesed.

Troops guarded the streets, and were massed in numerous parks and plazzas, and along the route. All shops and cafes were closed and shutters covered the windows of the ministerial buildings in the Praco de Commercio, where the king and prince were assassinated a week ago. It was a grief-stricken palace, to which hearts were turned in pity and strong men were shaken at the scene in the private apartments where the special embassies were received.

Neither queen Amelie nor the dowager queen, Maria Pia, were to be seen, but king Manoel carried himself as bravely as he might, though deadly pale and on the verge of a complete breakdown when the ordeal was finished. The duke of Connaught and prince Eitel Frederick in addition to verbal condolences presented personal letters from their sovereigns to the king, who was greatly touched at these messages. Tears, that were almost constantly in his eyes, several times overflowed.

When the members of the court and the special representatives of foreign courts entered the chapel for the last brief service the king remained behind. Neither he nor the two queens followed the cortege to the cathedral. The violent death of his father, it is explained, absolved king Manoel from conforming to the traditions of walking behind the dead to the grave. Nevertheless, his absence and the absence of queen Amelie and the dowager queen has caused universal comment, being generally attributed to other reasons.

The heavily armed procession which left the Necessidades palace was reminiscent of a bye-gone age. Cavalry with pikes led the way; infantry and artillery brought up in the rear. The cortege proper was surrounded by squadrons of dragoons. It consisted of the funeral cars, following in the wake of high seated gilded coaches, each drawn by six pairs of richly comparisoned mules, in which rode the special ambassadors and the high dignataries of the court. These lumbering, creaking, springless vehicles, are Portugal's pride, dating back to the golden age. Each has a romantic history. Riding alongside of these were special platoons of Hussars with drawn sabres. The crown, veiled with crepe, was borne in a separaes carriage. The sword bearers, black caped, and the staff bearers walked ahead of the funeral cars, with three row of taper bearers on either side. Bare headed lacqueys, in the royal livery of red and yellow, and halberdiers, with arms reversed, marched behind the cars. Here also came the horses of the dead master's, covered with black mantles. The sleeves of the soldiers, the whips of the coachmen, hilts of swords, caps of grooms and points of lances, all bore crepe. The street lamps were veiled and lighted, heightening the effect.

The cortege on account of the ancient coaches, moved at a snail's pace, the three mile journey consuming two hours. The religious service at the church was very stately. The interior was draped and literally buried in floral tributes.

The bodies will lie in state for three days and then will be consigned to the tombs in the pantheon.

The ceremonies were simple but impressive and ended without any untoward incident. The line of procession from the chapel in the palace to the church was guarded by troops, several additional regiments having been brought into the city for the purpose. All the governments of Europe and America were represented by special representatives. Opposition, real or fancied, the restriction of liberty, the bitterness of party, sinister intrigue and murderous vengeance, all seemed to have been condoned for the moment at least.

The Portuguese people prepared for the great funeral of the king and his son and this was the day of burial of their royal dead.

The streets were thronged with people. They poured in from the country towns of the provinces and the nearby cities, some by train, some by carriage or by cart and many on foot. In the crowd were large numbers of simple peasants and tradesmen from the provinces who knew or cared nothing of political strife, bu twished only to mourn the dead ruler and his son. Bits of crepe fluttered from the arms of many persons in the city, yet in spite of these general signs of mourning the crowded streets suggested to observers a general fete day, which the talking throng were all bent on observing. But to others the presence of large bodies of infantrymen and cavalrymen at various points of prominence had a sinister significance, a suggestion of the tragic events that had come and of those that might fall on the nation in the near future. The actual route of march between the palace and the church was densely lined by the mourning people.

One point, however, was carefully avoided by the superstitious Portuguese. This was the actual place on the Praco de Commercio where the cold-blooded murders were committed last Saturday.

Had it not been for the presence of a cavalry picket, this part of the Praco would have been absolutely deserted. All the business houses and shops of Lisbon were closed and the ministerial officers situated in the Praco de Commercio were closed as a measure of precaution. Furthermore, all the windows of these buildings were carefully shuttered.

The funeral procession left the palace at noon on its long march of over three miles and a half to the church of San Vincente, which is attached to the royal Pantheon, where the bodies of king Carlos and the crown prince finally were laid at rest.

In contrast to the sombre occasion, the day commenced with glorious weather, the sun shining brilliantly and the air filled with the slow pealing of church bells.

Messengers were seen passing through the streets bearing wreaths and floral pieces. Some of these were remembrances from foreign kings and rulers that were being sent to the palace. The golden letters on two such offerings showed they were from the emperor of Russia and king Haakon and queen Maud of Norway.

Clarions sounded down the principal avenues. They announced the aproach of the regiments which later followed the funeral procession. Then from afar came a fanfare of bugles summoning the cavalry, which deployed rapidly to guard the route of the cortege. In addition to these preparations the streets were filled with swiftly moving vehicles conveying dignitaries to the palace.

While the cortege was being organized members of the royal family took their last view of their dead at the palace. Prayers were said in the royal chapel by the priests, and then the two coffins were carried slowly out, with the king, the two queens and the duke of Oporto marching behind. Manoel was clad in the uniform of a midshipman. The two queens were robed in the mourning garb of English widows, their black cloaks covered by a long veil. They carried, as did the king, tall, lighted candles. They left the coffins at the portals of the palace.

Apart from the hearses themselves, which were covered with heavy draperies and trappings of black velvet bordered with fringes of gold, the feature of the cortege that attracted most attention were the gilded state coaches of the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries which were reserved for the use of the foreign ministers and high dignitaries of Portugal. As the procession advanced through the streets the crowds became denser. All stores and business establishments along the route were closed and tightly shuttered. The funeral cortege moved more slowly than had been expected, and it was the middle of the afternoon before it reached the church.

The church of San Vincente is an historic edifice built in the reign of Phillipe II, where, in an adjoining wing, or royal pantheon, are entombed members of the royal family. It is situated in the old quarter of the town, near an ancient monastery, now the palace of the primate of Lisbon. Situated on a height, it dominates all sections of the capital. A group of clergy, headed by the patriarch of Lisbon, awaited the cortege at the steps leading to the church. The coffins were carried from the hearses and, enveloped in the national flag, were placed on biers in front of the church. Troops formed about them in open squares.

Now occurred what seemed to many the most touching incident of the day. From one side slowly marched a company of men, wearing long black robes and carrying lighted torches. They were members of the ancient sacred fraternity of the Holy House of Pity, organized in the thirteenth century, to which Portuguese tradition has accorded the privilege of uttering the first absolution over dead sovereigns, as well as later of claiming the catafalque and burial pall, which they may sell for the benefit of their charities. Their service is symbolized by disregard for all wordly vanities and by humility. The chaplain of the order intoned the accustomed prayers while the troops stood at attention and in the distance could be heard the minute guns of the land batteries, to which the British and Spanish cruisers replied gun for gun. This brief but imposing ceremony finished, the primate, with the words, "Requiescat in Pace," sprinkled the coffins with holy water and they were borne by the high court dignitaries into the church and laid side by side on a catafalque in front of the altar.

Meanwhile the master of ceremonies conducted the special missions and the

Russia Despatches 60,000 Men to Frontier

WISH TO OVERAWE TURKS

DUMA VOTES APPROPRIATION OF OPEN CREDIT FOR PROSECUTION OF THE WAR—TURKEY MOBILIZES IN ARMENIA—BALTIC SCARE.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 8.—The Russo-Turkish relations have entered upon a menacing phase. Alarmed at the unchecked Turkish penetration of Persia and the mobilization in Armenia, the Russian government has decided to execute a formidable military demonstration in reply on the Turko-Persian frontier, desepatching there a compact evpedition of 60,000 select troops from central Russia with a full war equipment, and it is acting with uncommon rapidity with a view to overawing the Turks by a decisive exhibtion of force. The war office has drawn up plans of the expedition and submitted them hurriedly for legislative enactment to the Duma on Friday. The committee on national defence assembled in a virtually closed session.

A report of the war office briefly and impressively outlined the Turkish preparation, as to which Russia is fully informed, and asked for an open credit for the maintenance of an army of 60,000. The premier met the opposition argument of economy by saying that Russia had expended blood and treasure in Manchuria in vain owing to the initial backwardness in armament. The empire's prestige in the Middle East, he said, is now also in the balance and Russia must be prepared to defend it.

M. Gurkoff, leader of the octobrist party, said that the majority in the Duma were Russian patriots and willing to part with their last shirt to defend the fatherland. The committee, in a high pitch of patriotism, passed the appropriation unanimously. At the same session the war office obtained sanction for a further item of $10,000,000 to create floating batteries along the Baltic coast, which, owing to the weakness of the navy, is at the mercy of Germany.

BRYCE GOES TO OTTAWA

APPROVAL OF CANADA WANTED FOR TREATY

SETTLEMENT OF MANY MATTERS OF IMPORTANCE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—Mr. Bryce, the British ambassador, has settled upon February 16 as the date of his departure for Ottawa, where he will confer with sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Canadian premier, and other dominion officials respecting the consumation of a treaty between Great Britain and the United States for the settlement of various naval issues between the United States and Canada. The matter of the Newfoundland fisheries is not involved in this mission as it has already been arranged.

The important question of the right of a province or colony to nullify a treaty by legislative action will be submitted to arbitration before The Hague tribunal.

The ambassador's purpose is to secure Canadian approval of the project he has framed for the settlement of questions connected with the use of waters of Niagara Falls, fishery rights in the Great Lakes, navigation rights in international rivers and certain boundary questions.

Many months spent in patient work by experts employed by the state department and by the British government has resulted in an agreement between the governments of Great Britain and the United States that only requires the approval of the Canadian government to take form at once in a treaty.

FERNIE WEDDING

J. H. McMullin Gazetted Captain of Kootenay Rifles—Personals

(Special to The Daily News)

Fernie, Feb. 8.—A very pretty but quiet wedding took place at the residence of J. F. Rudnicki of the Home bank, when his daughter Anna Josephine was united in the bonds of holy matrimony to C. C. Wright, one of Fernie's most popular young business men, Rev. Father Tavernier performed the ceremony.

J. H. McMullin, government agent in Fernie, has been gazetted to the captaincy of the No. 2 Company, Kootenay Rifles, made vacant by the resignation captain Fred Stock, who has gone to the coast to reside. Captain McMullin is a most efficient officer and very popular with both officers and men of the batallion, and they will be greatly pleased to hear of his well earned promotion.

Dr. and Mrs. Bonnell entertained a large number of friends to a most enjoyable bridge party last night.

Miss Andrews, a member of the Victorian Order of Nurses, has been brought to Fernie by the Ladies' Benevolent society. The action of the society in securing the services of a competent nurse to look after the needs of those who are not in a position to afford such assistance in this way, is higly commendable.

WAS A FIASCO

The hockey match at Rossland last night for the B. C. championship, ended, as Rossland games have ended before, in a fizzle. The special correspondent of The Daily News in Rossland failed to make good and merely wired that no match was played owing to a dispute over the referee. The train for this city was due to arrive just as we go to press, so that it is impossible to publish the facts of the case this morning, except as above.

STOP PRESS NEWS

The returning visitors from Rossland at 3:25 this morning say the game for the championship was not played but Rossland was awarded the cuy. Nelson, before the carnival had complained of rough play and it had been promised that a judge of play would be appointed. An arriving on Thursday last this was refused although promised by A. B. Mackenzie, the secretary of the carnival. There was more rough play on Thursday night and one of the Nelson team was hurt. The referee E. S. H. Winn refused a decision and Nelson played with six men. Last night the judge of play, again agreed upon, was refused. Manager McQuarrie, not to disappoint the crowd, agreed to waive this if another referee were appointed. This was refused and McQuarrie took his men away. Then Mackenzie 'phoned to say that Nelson men could get whatever they wanted. They came up to the rink to find the cup had been presented to Rossland by the carnival committee.

Blake Wilson offered a purse of $200 at this juncture for an exhibition game, but the Rossland men would not come on the ice.

MURDERS IN ENGLAND

MILLIONAIRE AND FOUR OF HIS HOUSEHOLD SHOT DOWN

POLICE QUIET AT LOSS FOR A MOTIVE

London, Feb. 8—Frederick Holmes, millionaire, his wife, daughter and two women servants were found dead today of bullet wounds. The police think they were murdered, but are at a complete loss for the assassin's motive or identity.

Holmes' corpse was found in the woods near his mansion, near Henley, on the Thames. When carried home the extent of the tragedy was discovered. The women had been shot through the head while asleep. Holmes' wound is such that it is believed impossible he could have slain the members of his family and then suicided. Holmes was a well known London business man.

BROKEN IN WALL STREET

ENGLISHMAN COMMITS SUICIDE IN NEW YORK

MADE MONEY IN THE WEST BUT LOST IN SPECULATION

New York, Feb. 8.—Declaring that he had lost a fortune in Wall street through duplicity, E. C. Brooks, who came from the west a wealthy man a few years ago, killed himself in an annex of the Produce Exchange today by drinking poison. He was found unconscious on the floor by a clerk of the exchange, and died before a physician arrived. A bottle, which contained the poison with which Brooks ended his life, was found lying by his side. In his pockets the police found several notes, among them one in which he named several men, whom he charged with being responsible for the conditions which caused him to end his life. Another note read: "In case of my death, my name is Edward C. Brooks. Communicate with my brother, Clifford Brooks, 18 West Road, Hempsted, England."

Entries in a diary showed that Brooks had sustained severe losses. One recorded loss aggregating $20,000 in a single day in Wall Street. Little was known of Brooks around the Produce Exchange. It was said that when he came from the west a few years ago he appeared to have plenty of money. He was unfortunate in speculation, however, and of late had been on the verge of poverty. Within the past two days he had made application at the exchange for employment, even asking to be put to work as a porter or a laborer. He was about 50 years old.

FRANCO IN FRANCE

Has Abandoned Politics and Begs to be Left Alone With His Great Sorrow

Bordeaux, Feb 8—Former premier Franco of Portugal, who arrived here yesterday with his family from Madrid, spent today in his room at an hotel near the railroad station. His only answer to repeated requests for information as to his future movements was that he had abandoned politics and he prayed all questioners to "leave him alone with his great sorrow."

FOR CHURCH UNION

Halifax, Feb. 8—An important step toward church union was taken by the Presbyterian and Methodist churches yesterday when a joint committee on missions met in Halifax. As a result of the discussion it was agreed that the Methodists should retire from one community in Halifax county and the Presbyterians retire from one community in Cumberland county and that work shall not begin in future in fields occupied by either church without a conference of the two bodies affected.

MINING ACTIVE

What is Doing Around the Various Camps

SHIPMENTS OF THE WEEK

BOUNDARY OPENING UP MORE OF ITS PROPERTIES — WORK IN ROSSLAND, SLOCAN, NELSON, SHEEP CREEK AND IN AINSWORTH DISTRICTS.

The shipments for the past week are somewhat smaller than those of last from all the camps. On the other hand the Boundary reports the shipping of ore from the Snowshoe mine tot the Trail smelter for fluxing purposes and in the Boundary the Sally is also shipping a carload to Trail.

From the Slocan country the chief news is the floating of the Vancouver mine, as to which a meeting is being held this week in London, Paul S. Couldrey of the Le Roi No. 2 of Rossland, who has been looking after the Vancouver mine, having left Rossland for London in order to attend the meeting. In the meantime, while the Vancouver has lost the Wakefield mill, which it had leased up to te end of January last, is still developing the property. On the result of the London meeting will depend the further opening up of the property. The Hewitt has now control of the Wakefield mill. It has built a tramway from the No. 6 level of the property to the mill, something over a mile long. It is not in a position, however, at present to avail itself of this tramway as a subsidiary tram from the 300 to the 600 foot level will have to be built before this can be done. Orders have arrived from New York to have this completed at once but the order must wait until the disappearance of much of the snow.

In the sheep creek district, south of Nelson, there is a good deal of activity. The Nuggett has sent forward some remarkably good ore to Trail, and the Arlington of Erie is also shipping well. The lease on the Second Relief has been surrendered but there are other applicants already in the field to take this up. In the meantime the property is still being operated. The Queen mine is also doing well and the new battery of stamps is being installed so as to increase the output.

From Ainsworth comes the news of the attempted amalgamation of several properties under the Krao mine. This is a large deal involving a heavy expenditure but if the company is successfully floated its operations will make a big difference in one of the oldest camp in the silver lead districts.

In Nelson the only news of note is the changing of hands of the Hall Mines smelter, although the Granite and Poorman mines in the vicinity of Nelson are doing remarkably well and have been shipping concentrates of exceptionally good value.

In Rossland camp there is also to be noted the same air of activity. The Evening Star is being worked on a small scale while operations are about to be started to develop the California continuation of the Le Roi No. 2 vein running through the Annie. The Le Roi No. 2 is also said to be looking better than at any previous time in its history.

BROKE WORLD'S RECORD

U. S. CRUISERS CLAIM TO LEAD ALL OTHERS

HIGHEST AVERAGE FOR ENTIRE DAY'S FIRING

Santa Barbara, Feb. 8.—A new world's record at target practice by the cruiser Maryland at Magdalena bay, is reported by Stewart Edward White, the author, who has just returned from there on a collier. The day's average of the Maryland was eight and forty one-one hundreths (08.41) per minutes while steaming in battle formation at 10 knots. The shots were fired at a target 12x21 feet, at 1700 yards.

The record of 08.41 hits per gun per minute was made by the Maryland with the other ships in battleformation. She steamed past the target and returned, firing first from one side and then from the other. It was an average for the entire day for the whole battery of about 30 6-inch guns.

One of the guns on the Maryland made an average of 12.55 hits per minute, which is very close to the world's record for a single gun. The world's battery record was broken.

GREENWOOD TUNNEL

More Details of Project—Bonus of $50,000 Will be Given by the City

(Special to The Daily News)

Greenwood, Feb. 8—A largely attended meeting of the Greenwood board of trade enthusiastically endorsed the tunnel scheme proposed by Richard Armstrong, representing a number of Chicago capitalists. It is proposed to use the tunnel to tap at depth all the high grade properties on the hill east of Greenwood. No finer ore can be found anywhere than that which these mines contain but the expense of working them by shafts on account of breaks and faults in the drifts, has hitherto made their profitable development very discouraging.

The tunnel which is to be run will have as its objective point, the Granby mines at Phoenix. First it will tap the Strathmore and Fremont veins and at the end of 6000 feet will reach the Crescent which is now showing up satisfactorily. It is the opinion of mining engineers that these high grade veins will be met with every 300 feet or so and that the main tunnel will only be the beginning of many miles of tunnel work in the hill.

The council and the board of trade both have heartily endorsed the scheme and have declared themselves favorable to bonusing the undertaking to the extent of $50,000. Five thousand will be paid on the completion of the first 2000 feet; $10,000 at the end of 4000 feet, and $15,00 at the end of 6000 feet which will put the tunnel past the Crescent.

The capitalists behind the scheme are men who know what the hig grade properties at Greenwood are and who have been operating them for the past eight years. It is expected that work will be started on the hill here within a month and the whole movement is looked upon as the biggest thing Greenwood has seen in years. Nearly a million dollars has been taken from the high grade belt under the most unfavorable conditions and the future that the scheme opens up for this city is beyond doubt.

CANADA'S REVENUE

Receipts for Year Will Likely Be Ninety-Six Millions—Big Increase

Ottawa, Feb. 8.—The revenue of the dominion for the 10 months ending January 31 amounted to $81,903,279. If February and March show returns as large the revenue for the year will be $96,000,000.

The revenue for January was $7,286,313, as against $6,963,976 for the same month last year. During the corresponding months of last year the revenue was $71,645,730. Expenditure for current accounts has geen, for January, $10,665,448, and for the 10 months $56,334,534.

The corresponding figures last year were $8,632,194 and $45,682,305. Expenditure on capital account, $2,973,490 for January and $22,245,490 for 19 months, as against $2,256,476 and $11,907,395 respectively a year ago. The increase in capital expenditures is due to public works and railways.

On the transcontinental so far $17,446,487 has been spent, as against $7,108,971 last year.

NOT ROSEATE

New View of the Portugese Situation

A REPUBLIC IS IMMINENT

CHIEF SPOKESMAN OF REPUBLICANS DECLARES THE MONARCHY IS DOOMED — STRICT CENSORSHIP IN LISBON OVER ALL MESSAGES.

Lisbon, Feb. 7— via Badajos, Spain, Feb 8—The republican leaders in Portugal are today in extremely high spirits. They assert confidently that a republic is now a matter of months, not years.

The Associataed Press today secured an opinion on the situation and an outline of the republican plan of campaign from perhaps the most competent spokesman of the party. The man said:

"The end of monarchy is near. It will come unexpectedly as did the murder of the king and crown prince, and the world will wake up one morning to find a republic in Portugal. We are convinced that the revolution will be a peaceful one. It is a mistake for foreigners to imagine that the portuguese people are not awake. There is an organization in every town and doctors and lawyers and even the priests are sending in notices of their adherence by the score, and there are avowed republican officers in the army. We will make a change of regime an open issue in the coming campaign. We will demand that the monarchy which has dragged down Portugal into the mire of political and financial bankruptcy, abdicate to the people. They dare not try repression again; they can only surrender."

While the troops, since last Tuesday, remain in their barracks during the day time, Lisbon at night still resembles an armed camp. Cavalry is massed in the public squares, pickets patrol the streets and heavily armed soldiers guard the state bank night and day. The financial situation is view with great alarm.

The country is staggering under its foreign debt, and commerce is almost paralyzed by the fluctuations of the gold premium. Conservative bankers consider the financial situation to be more serious than the political.

The outside world, in spite of the studied censorship, which defeats its own object should not imagine that the throne of Portugal is tottering towards revolution, and that a republic is imminent. The general situation is grave rather than alarming. It is hard to foresee the future. Should things drift back to the old rut of governmental corruption whence king Carlos and premier Franco rescued the monarchy, a republic might come.

The immediate danger in the situation comes from the fact that the police are baffled and the government unable to ascertain the extent of the ramifications of the conspiracies which have been disclosed during the last fortnight by the discovery at various places of depots of bombs and arms and ammunition. There have been many reports of dissatisfaction in the army and navy, but a careful investigation by the Associated Press does not confirm them and it may be assumed that the military is still loyal.

The censorship that is being maintained at Lisbon over both commercial and press despatches is most rigorous. There is in operation a regular star chamber to prevent any but the most rosy view of the situation from reaching the outside world. Even letters mailed at the post office are opened by the postal authorities.

Lawson took the first heat of a half mile from Taylor in 1 minute 17 seconds by a few inches. The second heat, of one mile, was won easily by Taylor in 2 minutes 51 1-8 seconds by a couple of lengths. The third heat, a half mile, went to Lawson in 1 minute 18 3-5 seconds.

MADE EXPRESSLY FOR THE HUDSON'S BAY STORES

We have SOFT HATS in black, fawn, brown and pearl shades, and in different shapes.

Stiff Hats are in black only. We would draw special attention to the

Flexible Stiff Hats

Which adjust themselves to the shape of the head, and prevent that unpleasant feeling of tightness which makes some people dislike hard hats.

PORTUGAL'S FUTURE.

The funeral of Portugal's late king and crown prince Luiz Filippe passed off very quietly yesterday contrary to expectation, it being asserted in some of the Associated Press despatches that trouble of some sort was almost certain to happen. It must be remembered that all despatches sent out from Lisbon at the present time are strictly censored but there is no good reason for believing that the account of yesterday's funeral ceremonies as published this morning are incorrect or cover up any unpleasant incident.

Portugal has been in the limelight for some months and there are many published reviews of the situation just prior to the double assassinations and these very generally agree that the people as a whole were fond of the late king, and that the royal family generally were popular.

On the other hand, while the accounts differ somewhat, a few stating that the people were behind ex-premier Franco, the general opinion prevails that the deposed dictator was largely, if not wholly responsible for the tragic termination of a situation caused by his unconstitutional methods of administration.

Joao Chagas, leader of the revolutionary wing of the Portuguese radicals, places the whole blame on Franco. In a published interview in a Vienna paper, Chagas declares of the late dictator: "The whole of his administration is saturated with deceit and falsehood. His liberal program—a lie; his administrative program—a lie. He has set a yoke upon the neck of Portgual which the country can never shake off execept by revolution. But has he introduced a reign of economy in contrast with the wastefulness of predecessors; According to the calculations of one of our foremost publicists the cost of his administration during the brief period of 18 months has amounted to 20,000 conto of reis (or about $20,000,000). This man cries out against corruption. Portugal has never had a minister so utterly corrupt. He has begun, moreover, to corrupt the king, and has completely corrupted the upper classes, whose help he felt he needed. For this purpose he has raised the civil list of the king and increased the pay of commissioned and non-commissioned officers. The civil service with us forms a whole army. The support of this army was indispensable to him. He accordingly has reduced the dues and taxes to which they were subject. In a word, he has followed, point by point, the policy of the old parties which we republicans have stiriven to supplant. He wishes to raise up a clientele of friends. He distributes peerages, state offices, positions in the state bank, and other well endowed places."

Franco is now a fugitive in Paris and it is most unlikely he will ever set foot on Portuguese soil again. In all the despatches received to date there are no indications that the people sympathized with the assassins, but on the contrary the accounts that have reached us, show that the dastardly murders were the work of a mere handful of desperadoes, who, in slaying Dom Carlos and his eldest son had in no way the approval of the great mass of the Portuguese.

King Manoel is the most pathetic figure amongst the rulers of the world today. Not yet nineteen years of age, his character is highly praised by the English tutor who had charge of his earlier education. He is described as being of an unusually manly and gentle nature with a winning personality. His exclamation, "Yesterday I was taking music lessons, how can I be a king today?" does not show irresolution, but just the effect of the terrible ordeal he had just passed through.

The king will be in the hands of his mother and the bluff sailor-premier D'Amaril, who have both declared for constitutional methods of government and it may well be that a great change for the better will come over all Portugal without any bloody revolution. Recent writers agree that under wise administration Portugal may easily become one of the most wealthy and prosperous nations of Europe.

LATE JOHN McLATCHIE

Sketch of His Career in the Calgary Herald—Leading Surveyor of B.C.

The Calgary Herald has this to say of the late John McLatchie of this city, who died in the Calgary hospital last week:

"Mr. McLatchie, who was born near Ottawa, and practised as a surveyor there, came to the west in the employ of the dominion government in 1872 and for many years was engaged on important survey work connected with the base lines for the subdivision system of the west. In 1878 he gave up surveying and went in for trading with the Indians, and he had a post on the Elbow river, above where the present city of Calgary stands, and was in the district during the winter when bishop McDougal was frozen to death on Nose Hill. Returning to the practice of surveying in 1881 he worked for the dominion government until 1895 when he moved to British Columbia, making his headquarters at Nelson. In 1885 Mr. McLatchie served during the Riel rebellion as a lieutenant in the intelligence department corps, commanded by J. S. Dennis, now of the C.P.R. staff in Calgary, and was awarded a medal with clasps for the different engagements. In British Columbia Mr. McLatchie carried on many important surveys for the government, the railway companies and mining corporations, and he was recognized as the leading member of his profession in southern British Columbia. Two daughters and a son are left to mourn the untimely demise of their father, whose body is being sent to Ottawa for burial."

WOMEN SMOKERS

Germans Laugh Over New York Provisions—No Liberty in the States

Berlin, Feb. 8—The New York aldermanic resolutions prohibiting women smoking in public is received here with a howl of derision.

One woman smoker writes to the newspapers: "American liberty is only skin deep to propose such an ordinance. Even in police ridden Germany it would be a sheer impossibility to enforce such an ordinance, were one enacted, as every German woman would be smoking within an hour as a protest against an unwarrantable interference with the personal liberty of women.'

In another journal a woman complains of an incident that would probably be impossible in the United States. She is the wife of a Swedish official of high rank. Accompanied by a German woman she went on Monday evening to one of the best known restaurants in Berlin. They were stared at in amazement by the head waiter, who informed them that they could not be served, as they were accompanied by a gentleman. The Swedish lady says the place was full of immoral women, but they were attended by men.

WHEN TO GO HOME

From the Bluffton, Ind., Banner: "When tired out go home. When you want consolation, go home. When you want fun, go home. When you want to show others that you have reformed, go home and let your family get acquainted with the fact. When you want to show yourself at your best, go home and do the act there. When you feel like being extra liberal, go home and practice on your wife and children first. When you want to shine with extra brilliancy, go home and light up the whole household." To which we add, when you have a bad cold go home and take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and a quick cure is certain. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

GAME PROTECTION

The Greenwood Association Meet and Pass Several Resolutions

(Special to The Daily News.)

Greenwood, Feb. 8.—At the meeting of the Kettle River Game association, the following resolutions were passed:

1. Asking that, as the spawning season for Rainbow trout on the Kettle river and its tributaries does not commence until after the opening of the fishing season, the close season for the district should be extended from the 25th of March until the 15th day of May, thus encouraging the natural propagate and increase of game fish in these waters.

2. Recommending that fish ladders be erected at the falls at Cascades and Boundary Falls and that a permanent game warden be appointed for this district, including the waterahed of the main Kettle river above Cascade.

These resolutions, in the main, identical with those passed by the Fernie association, were passed and the association decided to endorse the plea of the Fernie association for the establishment of a game reserve in East Kootenay. Copies of the resolutions are being forwarded to Duncan Ross, M. P., and G. R. Naden, M. L. A.

The Greenwood Dramatic club, as a result of their recent presentation of "Confusion," here and at Phoenix, have donated $50 to the sanitarium at Tranquille.

CRY OF UNEMPLOYED

STRESS IN NEW YORK IS GREATER THAN EVER BEFORE

A FEW WEEKS WILL SEE A GREAT IMPROVEMENT

New York, Feb. 84—While labor leaders declare that more men are out of work in New York than ever before, they are all confident that the worst is over and that within a few weeks there will be a marked improvement.

Estimates of the men making up the immense army of the unemployed in the city run from 128,000 to 130,000. It is almost impossible, the labor experts say, to arrive at the exact figures. They can tell precisely how many union men are out of work but the unions do not represent by many thousands the entire working forces.

On Dec. 1, estimates given out placed the total of unemployed at 125,000, this included union as well as non-union men. Since then there has been a further dropping off. In the building trades alone over 5,000 more men have been thrown out of employment in the last eight weeks, making a total of nearly 40,000 men in those branches who are now idle.

An official connected with the office of the state board of building trades which is in close touch with the building situation, said yesterday that nearly 50 per cent of the men in that sort of work were idle since September last. There are over 100,000 men enlisted in the building trades. This official is conversant with the labor situation generally throughout the city.

"From what I have learned in the last few days," he said, "I feel that I am not exaggerating the figures when I estimate that at least 130,000 men, both in and out of the unions, are now idle. Just before Sept. 1 there were but 10 per cent of the men still at work.

"The building trades have been hit particularly hard in the last five months. As early as a year ago lenders began refusing money to builders and this had the natural effect of causing a great falling off in building operations.

"The situation in this respect is not confined to this city by any means. I have been on a trip through the country and I find thousands of men in just the same fix as the New York workers. In Chicago there are probably more than 50,000 men without work. I firmly believe that we have gone through the most trying part of the depression. I will be surprised if there is not a decided improvement in the next month or so.'

At the state department of labor, which has offices at 114 East 28th street, a close estimate made by officials gave the number of unemployed at approximately 130,000. This takes in union and non-union workers in all fields of employment. This department makes a business of collecting data pertaining to labor and the results of its investigations are reported at Albany. The department has sent a corps of men through the factories and workshops in the last month and they have found a considerable falling off, they say, in the number of employed men. In the building trades their investigation bore out the estimate given by the state board of building trades. They found that while the weather had not been such as to interfere with building operations, there was a surprising cessation of activity.

The headquarters of the United Hebrew trades, No. 133 Eldridge street are thronged nightly with men and women who are seeking work. The Hebrew trades has among its membership nearly two-thirds of the persons employed in the east side clothing shops, including the garment workers, cap makers, tailors and women's waist makers. At the hall it was said that probably two-thirds of the women's waist makers had lost their positions in the last six months. Of the cloak makers, numbering about 2000 there remain at work only 500.

"I believe that a complete census of the east side workers would show nearly 75,000 men and women out of employment," said an official. I have gone over the territory carefully. How many of the families are able to get along I cannot understand. The situation has grown steadily worse for the last six months. There is one gleam of comfort about it—things can't get any worse. Everyone feels that the bottom has been struck and that business will soon pick up.'

Assistant superintendent Hunt of the Bowery Mission, said yesterday that the demand upon the mission's bread line each night has doubled since the business depression started. "The extra demand does not come from the Bowery habitues," said Mr. Hunt, "but from men who have been driven to the Bowery because it is cheaper to live there, and who have not the money to live elsewhere. They manage to get enough together to pay for board at one of the cheap lodging houses and each night come to the mission and receive a loaf of bread and cup of coffee. We are now feeding more than 1000 men each night. Some of them are remarkably well dressed and I know that they have been in good circumstances. In connection with the mission we run an employment agency and more than 900 of these men have placed their names on our boogs, hoping to secure work. Never before in the history of the mission have we had such a situation as this."

An evidence of the earnestness of some of the unemployed to get work was furnished last week, when men wearing garments of the latest cut and bearing every mark of refinement took positions at shovelling snow from the city streets. The snow contractors said that they had dozens of applications for work for every position they had to offer.

NEW YORK FASHION LETTER

New York, Feb. 8.—Tales come to us from abroad of damasks and tapestry hung art galleries, where, surrounded by priceless treasures, the Parisian autocrats of dress retire perodically, and where they call upon the masterpieces of bygone centuries to yield up their secrets of beauty of great labratories where famous chemists experiment from one year's end to the other to find aming their dyes the shifting color of the amethyst or the translucent shimmer of the mingled blue and silver of twilight waters; of artists whose work has made the looms of France renowned.

For the master weaver of France today sends out from his workshop in Paris fabrics that are little less than works of are, and which have given him a world-wide reputation. Every season he is looked to expectantly for something new and beautiful. Perhaps one year it will be a softer blend of colors; another season will see a daring combination of dissimilar fabrics in some novel and beautiful guise.

This year he has surpassed himself in the production of shawl patterns of soft cloths that make the clinging draparies of the tunic skirts things of delightful beauty. No account of the new spring and summer materials would be complete without some description of them. The shawls are printed in squares —in reality they are oblongs, but one must overlook the inaccuracy of the fashion-journal nomenclature. Five of them constitute a robe, and the same design appears in each. One square forms the tunic, so used that it is considerably longer at the front and back than at the sides.

The designs—charming in their simplicity—are stamped, not woven, by a new process on each square. Fine lines of black on backgrounds of blue, green, olive and brown with heavier conventional designs for the borders, formed the majority of the broadcloth shawl robes that first appeared. A still greater variety of colors and wider range of designs appear in the later exportations from Paris of light weight spring materials, linens and summer fabrics.

The possibilities of this new process of printing is seen even in salior collars for children's dresses, and collar and cuff sets for older folk, wrought by the same manufacturer in beautiful colors and designs on washable materials. He has also anticipated the growing popularity of the bordered effects, and some of his most artistic work comes to us in that form.

The desire to produce novelties that will catch the pipular fancy generally leads manufacturers into the creation of bizarre and striking effects that overreach their mark and have a brief existence. The exaggerated checks and coin dots are examples of novelties that were pronounced loud and vulgar even when first introduced. It is a pleasure, indeed, to have the wearisome monotony of the conventional and commonplace broken by the introduction of something that is at once novel and wholly pleasing. The borders, shawls and chevrons are welcome variations of the familiar type of dress materials. They show exquisite blends of colors, new and distinctive designs, and lend themselves to a free and graceful mode of dress banished for a time by the severity of the princess and empire gowns.

Last year bordered materials were produced only to a limited extent and for the most part in the hand-painted nets and chiffons. This season the same charms and delicacy of color are to be found in the simpler and more staple materials—mulls, linens challis and various cotton fabrics. There are as many varieties of the conventional border as there are possible combination of straight and curved lines, and every flower that ever bloomed in and aldfashioned garden blossoms on the crisp flounces of dancing frocks and party dresses. They suggest, somehow, not the much-Marceled beauties of the present day, but the Watteau shepherdesses of an earlier era.

Besides being the latest decree of fashion and very beautiful, these new materials will recommend themselves to the woman of moderate means from a practical standpoint. They represent an economy both of time and money. and their simplicity gives a certain elegance and cachet impossible to achieve with an elaboration of frills and furbelows. The borders are only woven in the better class materials, but it must be remembered that there is no further outlay for trimming. The border itself trims skirt, waist and sleeves with but little work.

And there are still wider possibilities of charming and individual adaption of these new modes, requiring even less outlay that just indicated. For instance, consider the tunic skirt to which I have already referred. So far these have been shown in the shawl patterns or squares that bring rather high prices, being made of beautifully fine cloth. The designs, as previously stated, are in mist cases quite simple. Borders of straight lines end in block squares in the corners of the shawls. The same effect could be produced in a tunic of solid color with an applied border of self-tone striped in a darker color, with a square of the plain material cleverly set in at the corners; or a conventional border design of soutache braid represents little work and is most effective.

Or again, take the case of the bordered materials. The art noveau circles have given us, with their introduction of the stencil, a medium so simple that even the children in the schools make use of it, which will allow the woman of slender means the possession of gowns quite as artistic and satisfying as anything her richer sister can purchase. She can, too, introduce original ideas, making her gown distinct from those worn by other women.

With the aid of stencil pads and the unlimited choice of colors possible, one can create gowns of silk, linen, organdy or net, stencilled with flowers, garlands, birds and butterflies. Many of the new spring materials, light weight cloths, light weight panamas, foulards and voiles have been produced in shawl patterns and bordered effects, and will be placed on the market in response to the popular demand for such novelties.

ANOTHER HOLDUP

Great Northern Freight Train Looted by Two Masked Men

St. Paul, Feb. 8—A daring holdup was perpetrated on the Burlington road in the St. Paul yards this morning. "Give that signal and you are a dead man,' was the order received by brakeman Wyland as he was about to signal for the train to pull out. The order was give by two masked men both of whom had a revolver in each hand. The train was loaded with valuable freight and was being looted by two bandits at the time.

The train was on the Great Northern track bound for Minneapolis where cars were to be transferred to the Soo line. Wyland was held in check by one man, while the other calmly loaded a truck with all the freight it could carry and it was carted away under the very eyes of the railroad employees who were helpless to interfere. The robbers then made their escape. The conductor of the train was in the office at the time attending to his running orders. The train was loaded with valuable silks bound for Canadian points and much of these were stolen. Special railroad detectives are after the bandits.

"ETHICS OF EXCLUSION"

VICTOR W. ODLUM'S PAPER BEFORE UNIVERSITY CLUB

SHOULD ORIENTALS BE ALLOWED TO COME TO CANADA

The university club discussed "The Ethics of Exclusion" last night and the discussion grew animated as marked differences of opinion developed.

The business of the meeting consisted of two reports of committees. The general committee reported briefly on progress with the program for the year. The university committee reported recommending payment of the cost of the club's pamphlet by a levy on the active members, which was adopted. They also reported a recommendation that the hon. the minister of education be addressed with a prayer for an amendment to the university bill providing for the appointment of the president by the board of goverhors and the senate jointly. This also was adopted, one member dissenting.

Rev. F. H. Graham drew attention to the fact that George Meredith, the greatest living English novelist, would shortly celebrate his 80th birthday. The secretary was instructed to convey the congratulations of the club..

V. W. Odlum then read an admirably concise and logical paper on the subject of exclusion of Asiatics from British Columbia, from an ethical point of view. He admitted that it involved the question, "Has one branch of the human family the right to exclude ahother from any lands, especially from extensive areas not used by their possessors?" Mr. Odlum answered his question in the iffirmative and undertook to defend his position on ethical grounds. He defined the standard of ethical action as its securing the greatest good to the greatest number.

National acts aim at the moral and material welfare of the people. Both are threatened by the presence of Asiatics in British Columbia. Both will be served by exclusion of Asiatics. The only harm done will be to the material interests of a relatively small number of Asiatics. Therefore there is a vast preponderance of advantage in the exclusion of Asiatics as against their free admission.

The discussion was keen. Several speakers addressed the meeting twice and a fairly clear issue developed. Rev. J. T. Ferguson agreed with the author of the paper, instancing the exercise of the right to defend the home or the civil community against undesirable intruders, justifying it and applying it to the nations. Rev. F. H. Graham took the same side, contending that in any conflict of duties, those to one's kindred and those to strangers, the first should prevail. R. J. Clark dissented from such views, contending that the arguments were those of pure expediency, that morality was not a matter of preponderance of advantage, that on grounds of national expediency exclusion might be justified, but never on grounds of abstract morality.

C. M. Fraser agreed that the only right to exclude was the right of might. G. H. Playle questioned the assumptions of moral inferiority of Asiatics implied in the paper and said that an inevitable corollary of exclusion was the retirement of Europeans from Asia. A. L. McCulloch pointed out the laxity of police control of oriental quarters in British Columbia cities which constitutes their chief danger.

The program for the March meeting will be announced later. It will be held on March 14.

UNLIMITED CLEMENCY

Lisbon, Feb. 8—All persons who were arrested last week, charged with secreting bombs, arms, etc., and three persons who were suspected to be regicides, have been released. A detchment of political prisoners from the Caxias fortress, numbering about 100, was awaited at the station here by republicans who made a demonstration and cried for "the republic.' The unlimited clemency is greatly appreciated by the republicans but is sharply criticized by members of other parties. The police have discovered a secret depot of arms containing four hundred carbines.

BIG ICE SHOVE

Cornwall, Ont., Feb. 8.—There was a big ice shove on the St. Lawrence todoy and the water rose 26 feet but afterwards receded. Both the Canada and the Stormont Cotton mills were obliged to close down as their lower rooms were flooded. The street railway was also cut off and the service was suspended.

A HOME MADE HAPPY BY CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY

About two months ago our baby girl had measles which settled on her lungs and at last resulted in a severe attack of bronchitis. We had two doctors but no relief was obtained. Everybody thought she would die. I went to eight different store to find a certain remedy which had been recommended to me and failed to get it, when one of the storekeepers insisted that I should try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I did so and our baby is alive and well today.—George Spence, Holdly Springs, N.C.. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

The Secret of Secrets

In Store Advertising

One of the wisest men wrote:

"Suffer any person to tell us his story, morning and evening, for but a twelve-month, and he will become our master!"

In the above sentence we have, in a nutshell, the innermost secret of successful advertising—frequency, and persistency, and unvarying continuity in the telling of the store or enterprise. There are other things to be said of successful advertising, but in the above quotation is found the real philosophy, the real secret,—

NELSON NEWS OF THE DAY

The weekly dance at the armory on Friday night has been changed this week to Wednesday night.

Ernest H. Gilman of Sherbrooke, general manager of the Canadian Rand Drill company, is in the Kootenay.

J. Read of Erie was in the city yesterday for the purpose of negotiating a lease of the Second Relief mine for a year.

At this evening's service in the Presbyterian church, the St. Paul's male quartette will sing "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me."

At the dance in the roller rink on Tuesday night ladies will be admitted free. The band will be at the rink tomorrow evening.

A team belonging to Nap Mallette had an exciting runaway yesterday afternoon on Baker street. No serious damage was done to the rig or horses.

The ladies aid of the Baptist church will hold an "Apron Sale" at the store of the Poole Drug company on Tuesday nert, beginning at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The initiatory and second degrees will be conferred at the regular meeting of Kootenay lodge No. 16, I. O. O. F. tomorrow night. All members are requested to be in attendance at 7:30.

The Kootenay Ice and Fuel company has been cutting ice at Mirror lake all the past week. The ice is thick and clear and there is plenty of it, so there will be no lack of ice here next summer.

The members of the Nelson choral society are particularly requested to attend the practise of the society at the Baptist church tomorro wevening in view of the fact that the concert is shortly to be produced.

A. C. Cody of Kaslo came in yesterday with some gold which he had panned out of the gravel of Cascade creek, which is about two miles below Poplar creek, running into the Lardo river. Mr. Cody has a placer claim on this stream and built a flume last fall. This frose up during the

in the interim. Among the particles of gold thus recovered was found a small nugget worth probably $10 to $15.

Owing to numerous requests it has been decided to repeat "The Unwritten Law" (Thaw case) and "An Impossible Voyage." Commencing tomorrow evening these moving pictures will be shown for three nights and Wednesday matinee at the opera house

The officers of Nelson lodge No. 29 K. of P. and members of the degree team will meet this afternoon at the hall on Vernon street at 2:30 sharp. Any members of the order who are interested in the uniform rank are also requested to attend.

This morning's service in the Baptist church is especially intended for the young people to whom Rev. A. N. Frith will give an illustrated address. The evening service is one of a series on the life of Joseph.

There was a short sitting of the county court yesterday morning under judge Wilson, the first time on which his honor has held court in this city of which he was so long a resident. Only one case was brought up which was partially heard, the court adjourning before noon until 10 o'clock on Monday morning.

St. Valentine's dance, which is given on behalf of the city library funds ought to be well supported. The library has not yet sufficient supporters to be self supporting and cannot well be so until the total number of volumes in the library is increased. The only way to increase that number is by purchase or gift. So far the funds raised have gone little further than providing money for maintenance.

TRAMWAY SERVICE

Editor The Daily News—I should like to enquire through your columns the reasons for the stopping of the car service. I understand that the car stopped running last Monday morning when about two inches of snow had fallen. Men were out clearing the track until 9 o'clock on Tuesday night, but no car was taken out and the track was snowed in again by the morning. On Thursday it was thawing all day, but no attempt was made to bring out a car, although the big car and a plow would have cleared the track in a very short time and at small cost. Now that the snow has been allowed to pack it will be very expensive job to clear the track until a thaw comes. I suppose the small car is useless for clearing snow and the large one is not available, as there are only three armatures in working order and four are necessary to drive it. Two sets of coils arrived by express about four weeks ago, surely that is time enough to get the armatures in working order, or is it possible that anything else is wrong with the big car of which the public has not been informed.

I believe the present city electrician received his appointment on account of his experience with tramway systems and his capability of rewinding armatures. He has been in charge now for three months and yet the equipment is apparently in no better shape than when he took it over. It is also somewhat curious that the city should put to the extra expense of getting the armature windings by express and that a month should elapse and the armatures still be unfit for work. Considering the number of passengers carried during the past year, 50,000 more than the year

SLOCAN HAPPENINGS

(Special to The Daily News)

Slocan, Feb. 8—Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Anderson entertained Slocan's younger set at their home one evening this week. The time was pleasantly spent in gook title and other guessing games.

Dr. Cade of White Horse and Miss Florence Bull were married on Jan. 22 at Arrowhead. The bride is a former Slocan girl but has lived for some years in Arrowhead. Dr. Cade was physician at the Miners' union hospital here several years ago. Dr. and Mrs. Cade will reside in White Horse.

The school here is suspended owing to the illness of the teacher, Norman Morrison.

The cold snap here was followed by a heavy fall of snow. A subsequent thaw has considerably settled the snow.

R. I. Kirkwood is attending the Rossland carnival.

Mrs. Garrett is visiting friends in New Denver.

be kept running regularly especially as every nickel will be required to keep the loss down to the promised $1200, and people very easily lose the "car habit."

diplomats to the special tribunes built for their use. The interior of the edifice was draped from ceiling to floor with rich hangings of purple velvet embroidered in gold. Vari-colored jewels incrusting the ebony cross, gleamed in the subdued light of the numberless candles, which also reflected from the jeweled orders covering the breasts of most of the mourners who filled the cathedral. The second absolution having been pronounced by the patriach, a requiem mass was celebrated. The ceremony in the church lasted half an hour and the coffins remained for some time for public view and were then conveyed to the mortuary chapel adpoining the church, where another mass was said for the repose of the souls of the dead.

The ceremony of handing over the coffins to the patriarch of Lisbon was carried out immediately after the departure of the members of the cortege. The grand chamberlain handed him the keys and declared on solemn oath that the bodies of King Carlos and crown prince Luiz Filippe were really contained in the coffins that he had seen, and recognized them and locked them in and had accompanied the bearers of the keys to the cathedral. High court officials signed as witnesses the two documents regarding the handing over of the keys.

The display of flowers in the cathedral was remarkable. The tribune erected for the diplomts and other official guests, as well as the altar and chancel rails and the four high flanking pillars, were thickly hung with wreaths, which thus formed a beautiful square of rich blooms, the predominating colors of which were purple and white.

TARIFF REFORM

Preference a Vital and Essential Part of British Policy

Montreal, Feb. 8.—A special London cable says the most significant feature of the enthusiastic proceedings at the tariff reform yeague yesterday was the unceremonious way in which delegates from all parts of the kingdom rejected a suggestion that the preference side of the movement be postponed until the present British food taxes be replaced by taxes on manufactured imports.

The delegates insisted by an overwhelming majority that preference was a vital and essential part of the policy. The chairman announced that every member of the Chamberlain executive would resign if any attempt to remove the preference from the forefront of the programme were made.

SUSPECT ARRESTED

One of the Assassins Said to Have Been Found in Spain

Cordova, Spain, Feb. 8—A man giving the name of Gomes was arrested last night on the arrival here of the mail train. The police authorities will keep him closely confined. The prisoner has a large bruise, apparently of recent origin on his right hand for which he refuses to give reason and his replies to questions are confused and contradictory. The authorities believe that he was an accomplice of the assassins of king Carlos and crown prince Luiz Filippe.
