VOL. 9 NELSON B. C., FRIDAY MORNING, MAY 6, 1910 NO. 14

PENITENTIARY

Five Year Sentence for Attempted Murder

No Bill in Case of the Arson Charge

New Jail and New Hospital Recommended

"Guilty of attempted murder, but recommended to mercy," was the verdict of the jury, in the trial of Joseph Wayson at the Nelson assizes yesterday, for the attempted killing of Frank Phillips on Baker St. on Dec. 9 last. Chief Justice Hunter imposed a sentence of five years in the penitentiary, adding that if it developed that Wayson was really insane, he would see to it that he received proper care.

The only other case set for the assizes did not come to trial, the grand jury failing to return a true bill in the case of Rex v. Matthews, the young fellow charged with setting fire to the steam tug Ymir on the morning of October 4 last. There was no direct evidence against Matthews adduced at the preliminary hearing before W. H. Bullock-Webster, stipendiary magistrate, the crown relying upon a confession alleged to have been made by Matthews to his friend, C. W. Ladd, who came forward with his tale some ten weeks later. Matthews being then in the east. The failure to bring an indictment in this case, was very popular. A. M. Johnson was Matthews' counsel.

Recommends New Jail.

When the court opened in the morning, the grand jury made its presentment, which read as follows:

"His lordship, Chief Justice Hunter.

"May it please your lordship—We, the grand jury, are glad to notice the scarcity of crime in this district since last assizes, as evidenced by the smallness of the present docket.

"We have visited the provincial jail, and the Kootenay Lake General hospital and found conditions in both places excellent. We would, however, suggest that neither of these places are up to the requirements of the present day. With regard to the jail, the building being a frame one, and having to serve for such a large district, including as it does, the greater part of East and West Kootenay and the Boundary, we would suggest that the present building should in the near future be replaced by a substantial brick or stone structure, along the lines of modern improvements. We would further suggest that such a building should be located on grounds sufficiently large to enable the inmates to have daily outdoor and profitable employment.

Also New Hospital.

"Concerning the hospital, we find that most deserving institution sadly cramped for space, and the building, which has served its purpose in the past, is now completely out of date, thereby making the cost of maintenance much higher than it would be in a modern building. We understand it is the policy of the provincial government to help institutions of the kind by granting 50 per cent of the actual cost of a new building, and the directors should therefore use their utmost endeavors to raise funds to put up a new hospital at the earliest possible date.

"We would also draw attention to the fact that an isolation hospital is urgently required. Should an epidemic of infectious or contagious disease occur, immediate provision for isolation would have to be made, and it is most important in our opinion that such provision should be made in advance.

"Respectfully submitted on behalf of the grand jury."

In dismissing the grand jurors, his lordship thanked them for their services and promised to forward the report to the proper quarter. If the recommendations made by them were not carried out, they would have the opportunity of expressing their opinion at the polls.

Wayson Arraigned.

The grand jury returned a true bill in the case of Rex v. Wayson, and the case was called, and the prisoner arraigned on the charge of attempting to murder Frank Phillips at Nelson, in the county of Kootenay, on December 9 last, by pointing a revolver at his head and pulling the trigger twice. The prisoner pleaded not guilty. R. S. Lennie acted for the crown and W. B. Farris defended the prisoner. A jury was selected from the panel, consisting of George Ferguson, foreman, W. G. Foster, J. H. Lawrence, John Teagua, R. A. Howe, Thomas Sargent, Edward Kerr, A. R. Poole, J. A. McCarthy, R. R. Caldwell, Albert Irwin and C. H. Bean.

Mr. Lennie explained the main facts to the jury and then called the first witness for the crown, Frank Phillips.

Phillips Describes Attack.

Edward Francis Phillips—to give the witness' full name—who has resided at Nelson since 1896, being a miner, swore that about 4:30 o'clock on the afternoon of December 9, 1909, he came out of China Hall, in the C. P. R. block on the corner of Baker and Kootenay streets, and joining C. M. Johnson, walked on toward the corner. He noticed the prisoner, whom he had known for two or three years, standing by the door of the C. P. R. ticket office, and as they came opposite, the prisoner raised his right hand, which contained a revolver, and pointed it at him, resting his gun hand across his left forearm. The witness tried to dodge, and heard a click, and partially tripped on Johnson's feet, and springing at the prisoner, threw him to the ground, and held him, telling Johnson to take away the gun. He remained on top of his man till the police came, which was in about five minutes, the prisoner meanwhile addressing remarks to him, one of which was that he "would have got him if the other fellw had not been in the road."

Believed Prisoner Crazy.

The witness said that the prisoner had on several occasions accused him of stealing money from him. One was that he had kept back money intended for the prisoner, sent to the Sandon committee of the Western Federation of Miners, several years ago, and another was that he had robbed him in the Bodega saloon. Another accusation had to do with Ainsworth.

He had told the police he believed the prisoner was crazy, and he considered that he had the delusion that the witness had robbed him.

Johnson in Range.

George Munro Johnson, Phillips' companion in the adventure, described the assault. The first time he had ever seen the accused was when Phillips, who was on the outer side, said, "Look out, that man has got a gun," and he turned and saw the revolver pointing at him. He heard one click. After Phillips wrestled the prisoner to the ground, the witness wrested the gun from him, holding it as much as possible out of range of either himself or Phillips. The prisoner endeavored to get up to get at Phillips.

To Mr. Farris, the witness said there were lots of people on the street. There were woods a block north, on the waterfront.

Statement to Constable.

J. H. Ellis, police constable, described how he, and the chief of police of the city, C. W. Young, were summoned to the scene by the red light alarm, and took the prisoner in charge, taking him to the city cell. At the station he searched the prisoner, and took

TWENTY EMPLOYED AT CASTLEGAR MILL

Lawn Tennis Club Started—Twelve Men Working on New Ranch—School Busy

(Special to The Daily News.)

CASTLEGAR, B.C., May 5—A lawn tennis club is now being formed and will no doubt prove an acceptable addition to the attractions of this thriving settlement. W. J. Farmer is the organizing secretary and reports good progress in his canvass for members. There are so many ladies coming in now that their needs for outdoor amusement have to be provided for, in addition to that provided for the men. Being so central this would make a good place for tournaments, provided a well finished court is provided.

Twenty Men Employed

There are about 20 men now employed at the new mill, and from the looks of things there must be some one with lots of push behind the new enterprise.

New Orchard

H. H. Clough has about 12 men working on the ranch two miles south of here and is making a good showing, in fact he has completely changed the old logging grounds into a farm and embryo orchard.

Manager King of the Southwood farm is going after some of the prizes that are to be hung up at the Robson fall fair.

Melons the Watchword

Watermelons is the watchword this season at Robson. The farmers there expect to put the importers of melons from the south out of business this year.

Mr. Gruspell, who purchased a portion of the old brickyard property has a gang of men at work clearing and will have a fine piece of property by fall.

New Track

The C.P.R. steam shovel has finished digging out the cut for the new track the company is putting in. This track and the lengthening of the existing ones looks as if some of the material for the extension of the line to the coast will find a temporary resting place here. Castlegar will soon be on the main line; then watch us grow.

Columbia Navigable

Individual members of the Farmers' Institute are talking of asking the government to appoint a commission to look into the question of making the Columbia navigable to the boundary line.

School Full

The school that a year ago it was a struggle for the trustees to keep open is now nearly full and under the management of Miss Gibson is doing well, a young Doukhobor being the latest addition to the scholars.

By the row of children's heads to be seen, Blueberry creek will be the next district to be formed.

IS DESTROYED

Earthquake Overwhelms Costa Rican City

Many Hundreds Killed or Injured

Suffering and Destitution in Devastated City

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, May 5—An earthquake destroyed Cartago last night and many lives have been lost but the extent of the damage can only be guessed at. The earthquake extended to San Jose, but did but little damage here.

Wires Down

SAN JUAN DEL SUR, Nicaragua, May 5—A large part of Cartago, Costa Rica was destroyed last night by a powerful earthquake. Details are very meagre as the telegraph wires have been levelled between San Jose and Cartago. The operators at the latter place were killed.

Hundreds Dead

It is known that at least 500 people are dead and many hundreds injured. Scores of buildings were thrown down, among them the palace of justice, erected by Andrew Carnegie. The wife and child of Dr. Docanegra, the Guatemalan magistrate to the Central American court have been killed.

Panic Reigns

Panic reigns as the earthquake continues. San Jose has also been shaken and some buildings damaged, but no deaths are reported in that city; some are slightly injured. Earthquake shocks also were felt at several points in Nicaragua near the Costa Rican frontier. Reports reaching here state that there is much suffering and destitution at Cartago consequent upon the disaster.

INTERNATIONAL WATERWAYS TREATY IS RATIFIED

WASHINGTON, May 5—The exchange of ratification of the treaty of January 11, 1905 between Great Britain and the United States, known as the International Waterways treaty, was announced by the state department today. This treaty was approved by the United States senate of March 2 of last year. Its declared purpose is to "prevent disputes regarding the use of boundary waters and to settle all questions which are now pending between the United States and the Dominion of Canada, involving the right obligations, or interests of either in relation to the other, or to the inhabitants of the other, along their common frontier, and to make provision for the adjustment of all such questions, as may hereafter arise."

MORE FREQUENT MAIL SERVICE WITH ENGLAND

LONDON, May 5—A dispatch from Liverpool says important developments are in contemplation in connection with the Canadian mail service. The Canadian Northern railway is leading a movement for more frequent sailings, and says it should be so arranged that there will be a mail service twice a week.

REV. DR. FERGUSON ELECTED MODERATOR

Presbyterian Synod Opens in Vancouver—Extension of Local Option Legislation.

(Special to The Daily News.)

VANCOUVER, May 5.—Dr. W. J. Dawson, the noted English divine, who has been preaching here and had made arrangements to speak at the approaching Methodist conference in Nelson, has been compelled to cancel all his engagements, owing to the sudden death of his daughter, in the east. He left for Boston this afternoon.

Dr. Ferguson Moderator.

At the opening session of the Presbyterian synod, in Mount Pleasant church, Rev. Dr. Ferguson of Nelson was chosen as moderator for the ensuing year on the first ballot. The only other candidate was Rev. C. W. White of Peachland. The retiring moderator, Dr. Fraser, preached the annual sermon, urging the members of the synod to take advantage of the glorious opportunity presented to them today as a result of world movements, and thus retain their position as leader in social movements.

Seventy-five Ministers.

Secretary Logan reported that the synod had 75 ordained ministers in active work in the province in addition to 28 names on the appendix roll. This morning reports were presented showing that the work of the denomination had advanced in nearly all lines throughout the year. Rev. Dr. Rochester addressed the body on Sabbath observation, and a letter from Dr. Spencer, dealing with local option work, intimated that the federal government was arranging for an extension of its legislation in this field to British Columbia.

Methodist Conference.

At the district conference of Vancouver Methodist churches reports showed a gain of 280 in membership during the year. For missions the collections will be $21,000 as against $8,000 last year. Suggestions were made for presentation to the annual conference favoring the representation of laymen on stationing committee, admission of deaconesses to quarterly boards, and revision of the church hymnology.

SERIOUS FIRE AT SALMO

W. F. Teetzel, government agent, last night received a telefram from the Kotenay Shingle Co., Salmo, saying, "Timber all on fire near mill. We need 200 men at once to get it under control. This is very serious and has done several thousand dollars damage already."

The same telegram was also sent to Trail by the company.

GRAND FORKS MEN VISITING NELSON

Mayor, President of Board of Trade and Provincial Member—Enthusiastic Over Prospects

That Grand Forks has not only the right kind of territory but also the right kind of men to build her up was the unanimous conclusion of those who met the delegation which was in town yesterday from that point and which consisted of Fred Clarke, mayor; A. B. Hood, president of the board of trade, and Ernest Miller, M.P.P.

Publicity and Exhibition

They came on a double errand—to discuss publicity methods with President Starkey and Secretary Beesion of the Nelson board of trade, and to discuss exhibition methods with Secretary Horstead of the exhibition. Incidentally they also discussed other matters with a number of leading citizens including W. R. Haldane, general freight agent of the C.P.R. In this connection Mr. Hood, on behalf of the visitors, expressed before leaving the pleasure he had experienced from the fact that every one they had met had seemed anxious to assist them in every possible way.

Government Building

The third object was to interview the minister of public works on the government building, but they were not successful in finding him in Nelson.

Grand Forks Advancing

In an interview with Mr. Clarke and Mr. Hood a good deal of light was thrown on the forward strides Grand Forks is making in those days and on the splendid prospects that lie before her as a result of the rich resources of the neighboring districts and of the construction of the Kettle River railway and the V., V. & E.

Expansion of Fruit Growing

The expansion of the fruit growing industry and the consequent determination to hold an exhibition this year, the first of many to come annually, was the immediate occasion of the visit. The Grand Forks Agricultural society with the support of the ranchers and citizens has taken over the race track and driving park association and will hold its exhibition on the property this autumn.

By Leaps and Bounds

"The fruit industry is going ahead by leaps and bounds," said Mr. Clarke. "I do not know how many trees have been planted this year but it is something wonderful."

"At least 25,000 trees have gone in in Grand Forks alone," added Mr. Hood. "C. Riverside has sold 200,000 from his nurseries. A great deal of land is being brought under cultivation and many inquiries are received from the prairie provinces, while a number of settlers from there have already come in."

Co-Operation Necessary

"There is just one thing that the industry needs at present," remarked the mayor, "and that is well organized co-operation among the fruit growers. There is a great area of land suitable for fruit, much of it at present untouched because it is awaiting a distribution of the railway grant between the C.P.R. and Mr. Heinze."

"What are the prospects for your other industries?" the visitors were asked.

Immense Mineral Resources

"There are immense mineral resources on the North Fork which will be opened up by the Kettle River road, both gold and copper. The Granby people have obtained working bonds on several mining properties and will develop them just as soon as railway facilities are afforded. By the way they have just put two more furnaces into operation, increasing the capacity of the plant at the smelter by about one-third or more without any corresponding increase in cost. The lumber mills are also very active; the Yale-Columbia and the LeQuinne companies are cutting 10,000,000 feet.

Game Fish

The Grand Forks men were also much interested in the work of adding to the fishing attractions of their district and the taking up of work similar to that of the Nelson committee. They have in the Kettle river and in Christina lake waters that they are proud of and they want to make the most of them. Complaints are made that dams at Granby and Cascade interfere with the free passage of the fish and that it is useless for one company to make proper provision for this unless both do so. Mr. Cunningham will be invited to take up the matter when he comes.

TAFT'S GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

LONDON, May 5.—The London Times says that President Taft probably sees in the movement toward reciprocity with Canada a golden opportunity of reconstructing the Republican fiscal program and re-establishing his party's prestige in the west.

RESERVE LAND

Areas Withdrawn From Sale or Lease

Available to Actual Settler Only

New Provisions to Prevent Abuses

(Special to The Daily News.)

VICTORIA, May 5—A series of nine land reserve notices appearing in the British Columbia Gazette this evening attest an important change of policy in the administration of crown lands of the province, which change will be welcomed by the pre-emptor and homesteader as immensely to their advantage, while less acceptable to the land speculator as seriously handicapping his activities.

Reserves for Pre-Emption

Briefly, it is intended hereafter to restrict the operations of all government survey parties to land reserved from sale or lease and thus available solely to pre-emptors; which land will remain so reserved until all surveys therein are completed.

University Lands Selected

University lands have been selected. All the lands have been plotted and their bona fide classifications and prices have been duly graded and entered in records at headquarters here. They may then be gazetted as open for sale or lease and 60 clear days must elapse after such gazetting before applications for their purchase or lease will be entertained.

Surveyors Gave Tips

It has been alleged that provincial surveyors gave invaluable tips to speculative agents with whom they have been in touch as to lands investigated by them, frequently even before the reports have reached the employing department, while other land agents have followed upon the heels of the surveyors in the field and have even preceded them, staking especially choice pieces as the surveys have proceeded. Private surveys and invariable minimum classification have also involved confusion and expense to the land department and the treasury. All these abuses will by the now contemplated complete reorganization of the crown lands sale or lease system be made an end of.

Districts Under Reserve

Districts placed under reserve by today's advertisement compose all available crown lands regarded as immediately desirable for speculation or settlement. They are enumerated as follows: Unreserved land on Clearwater river and Clearwater lakes; unsurveyed crown lands near Francois lake, Coast district; unsurveyed crown lands in ranges 4 and 5, Coast district; unreserved crown lands adjoining Peace river reserve, Cariboo district; unsurveyed crown lands in the drainage area of the Nazco river, Coast district; unsurveyed crown lands adjoining Babine lake reserve in the Cassiar, Cariboo and Coast districts; unsurveyed crown lands on Bear river and Bear lake, Cariboo district; unsurveyed lands near Seton lake, Lillooet district; unsurveyed lands on the North Thompson and Clearwater rivers, Lillooet and Kamloops districts.

MINERS ENTOMBED BY FIERCE EXPLOSION

Feared That All Are Dead—Attempts at Rescue Frustrated— Pitiful Scenes.

BIRMINGHAM, May 5.—All hopes that any of the 45 white and 190 or more negro miners entombed in mine No. 3 of the Pratt Coal & Coke company, at Pulse, Ala., as the result of an explosion today, may be rescued alive, was abandoned tonight.

Explosion or Black Damp.

It is thought that if the miners escaped death from explosion, they were later suffocated by black damp. Immediately after the explosion the villagers organized to attempt to rescue those entombed. John Pascoe and another miner went into the mine, but were soon overcome by black damp. They were pulled out unconscious. Later, rescuers, under the direction of Assistant State Fire Inspector Neal, were equipped with oxygen helmets and sent into the mine. They succeeded in going several hundred feet. They found three human bodies and a dead mule. No attempt was made to recover the bodies, on account of the fire damp which soon drove them out. The explosion is supposed to have been caused by one of the miners going into a gaseous pocket with a lighted lamp.

All Are Dead.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 5.—Forty-five white and 190 negro miners are entombed tonight in No. 3 coal mine at Pelon, Ala., 40 miles west of Birmingham, as the result of a terrific explosion. It is believed that all are dead. The mines are owned by the Pelon Coal & Coke company of Birmingham. Two bodies were found early tonight, but it is thought that few can be recovered before morning.

Felt for Miles.

The flames from the explosion shot 300 feet in the air and the shock was felt for miles. Timbers were hurled several hundred feet from the mouth of the mine. Rocks from the roof caved in and made access difficult. The fan machinery was damaged but air is being pumped into the mine tonight in hopes that some of the men are still alive. A special train with State Mine Inspector Hillhouse, and other experts, physicians, surgeons and undertakers arrived at Pelon late today. A hospital sent relief from Birmingham.

Rescuers Overcome.

The first rescuers who went into the mine after the explosion were overcome by fire damp, and had to be carried out. J. J. Rutledge, a government expert, was among the first to enter. After working his way 1,400 feet down the slope he found the second right entry caved in. James Chesby, a mail carrier, was caught by the explosion 30 feet from the mouth of the slope and his body was hurled into the Warrior river. It is judged from the force of the explosion that none of the men in the interior are alive.

Pitiful Scene.

Hundreds of women and children were around the mine wringing their hands and crying piteously tonight. The Pelon mines have been working for a number of years and the entries were extensive. The only hope that some of the men have escaped is the possibility that they were in parts of the mine far enough away from the explosion to have missed its main force.

LOFSTEDT IS GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Charged With Murder of Wife at Prince Rupert—Children's Evidence of the Crime

(Special to The Daily News.)

VANCOUVER, May 5—After being out ten minutes the jury at 6:30 tonight returned a verdict of manslaughter in the case of Charles Edward Lofstedt, charged with the murder of his wife at Prince Rupert on March 22.

Judge's Charge

Mr. Justice Murphy, in a fair and impartial charge reviewed the evidence telling the jury that it was open to them to bring in a verdict of manslaughter, if they believed certain portions of it. Hofstedt's statements to others were that his wife was guilty of adultery and he had said she was going away with another man. Four witnesses testified that they heard him admit striking his wife, Lofstedt giving this as the reason.

Prisoner's Contention

On the witness stand Lofstedt, however said his wife fell off the veranda and received her injury and that he ran for help. He was calm all the time; but this help, the court and crown pointed out he did not get. Here his mind was a blank, giving no explanation.

Seven Fractures

Dr. McNeill of Prince Rupert, who performed the post mortem examination, said there were seven fractures to the skull. It was for the jury to decide, said the court, whether these seven fractures could be caused by a fall from a veranda six feet high. The prisoner's two children, aged 9 and 7, gave evidence that they saw their father shove their mother off the veranda, and added that their father then threw her from place to place. The children then ran to a neighbor's.

Came From Calgary

Lofstedt is a Swede, aged 33, who removed to Prince Rupert from Calgary years ago. It was contended for him that he could not speak English well enough to be understood. On the witness stand he was given an interpreter. Frequently he did not wait for the interpreter but spoke in English. A. D. Taylor, K.C., appeared for the crown. The prisoner having no counsel, the crown appointed E. A. Lucas to act for him.

THE KING IS ILL

Is Suffering From Attack of Bronchitis

Two Physicians Spend Night at Palace

Specialist Called Into Consultation

LONDON, May 5—The kingdom was thrown into consternation tonight by the sudden and totally unexpected announcement that King Edward was suffering from bronchitis in a form that was causing his physicians some anxiety, two of whom are sleeping in Buckingham palace in order to be on hand in case of need.

Ill for Two Days

It has been the King's invariable rule to be present on the Queen's arrival from any out of town journey and his absence this evening was made the subject of general comment immediately it was noted. The Queen hurried to the palace and soon afterwards the public learned by an official announcement that the King had been ill for two days. The fact that his illness had been thus concealed from public knowledge increased the alarm.

Had a Busy Day

King Edward suffered from a similar attack at Biarritz owing to the inclement weather and cold winds but it was supposed that he had completely recovered, especially as he attended the opera at Covent Garden within three hours of his arrival in London from Biarritz last Wednesday. On Thursday his majesty had a busy day. He gave an audience to Field Marshal Lord Kitchener and Premier Asquith, and visited the Royal Academy. On Friday he also gave several audiences and entertained Lord and Lady Gladstone at a farewell luncheon on their departure for South Africa, and visited the theatre in the evening.

Confined to Bed

This activity tended to reassure the public mind, but it was noticed that while King Edward was viewing the pictures at the Royal Academy he looked pale and fatigued and lacked his customary zest and sprightliness, and members of his entourage feared that this might be a token of a return of the throat and chest trouble. The King spent the week-end at Sandringham with the object of combatting the threatened attack and returned apparently better. But the sudden changes in the weather this week were trying to his majesty and finally compelled him to keep indoors. He still attended to state business, however, and granted audiences including among others on Tuesday, one to Lord Roberts; on Wednesday he entertained Grand Duke Michael at luncheon. In fact it was only today that his physicians were able to induce King Edward to keep to his bedroom and take a complete rest.

Specialist Called In

The bulletin issued at 7:30 this evening showed that the eminent specialist Sir Richard Douglas Powell has been called in. He, with the King's physicians, Sir Francis Laking and Sir James Reid, authorized a bulletin which read: "The King is suffering from an attack of bronchitis and has been confined to his rooms for two days. His majesty's condition causes some anxiety."

King's Sister Summoned

The King is in good spirits despite his illness and in addition to long visits from members of the royal family, he received in audience this morning Lord Islington, the newly appointed commander in chief of New Zealand, and other colonial officials. Both Sir Francis Lakin and Sir James Reid will remain in Buckingham palace throughout the night. It is stated, however, that it is merely as a precautionary measure as the King's illness is not grave. A consultation was held late tonight but no bulletin was issued. A court circular, which was sent out at 8 o'clock states that his majesty was unable to meet the Queen as he was suffering from a severe cold. The Prince of Wales has been in constant attendance for the past two days and this evening the Duchess of Argyle was summoned to the palace. The Duke and Duchess of Teck also came, but all the visitors left Buckingham palace before 11 o'clock and according to the latest report the King's condition at midnight was more reassuring. Anxiety will continue nevertheless, as it is known that his majesty is subject to serious fainting spells.

Every precaution has been taken to provide against disturbing the patient. The quadrangle of the palace and the carriage approaches have been covered with peat to deaden the noise.

MOTHER'S DAY NEXT SUNDAY

Greatest Tribute to Womanhood is Man's Belief in the Truth and Honor of His Mother.

There has of recent years been celebrated on this continent a day which means more than any other festival to humanity—devoted to mothers. The second Sunday in the month of May has been chosen as the day, when all of us shall keep in especial remembrance the virtues of motherhood. On that day, the white carnation, which our own Canadian poet Bliss Carman has called the most comely of flowers, will be worn in honor of home and mother. The movement is meeting with the most enthusiastic appreciation and Canadian people, who have as good homes as may be found in the world, will not be slow to observe a day which commemorates the central figure in the home.

Not All Mothers But Most of Them.

The old motto, which we used to work in reds and blues on cardboard or on canvas, and which hangs, faded by the years, in many an attic—"What is home without a mother?"—is as true today as it was when the first home was formed. It is curious and significant that in every home which is truly such, the first inquiry of the returning father is "Where's your mother?" the first cry of the children back from school or playground or party is "Mother." It is lamentably true that there are mothers who are not a source of either comfort or strength to the household; but these failures are so infrequent that your mother and mine may be taken as convincing examples of the standard attained by mothers of Canada.

Amazing Devotion.

The month of May is chosen appropriately for celebrating the virtues of motherhood, since it was dedicated long ago to the most favored of the mothers of the race. "The month of May," the last month of spring, is masked by celebrations in honor of the Virgin, and one does not need to belong to any particular church or profess any especial creed, to understand the homage of Christendom.

The world has always wondered at and reverenced the amazing devotion of mothers. There is no suffering too great, no toil too arduous for the mother to endure or undertake in behalf of son or daughter. It is the most unselfish devotion in the world, for it asks so little in return, it persists so patiently in the face of carelessness and even cruelty.

Yet, deep in the heart of most men, however low they may fall, is left a reverence for the mother, a longing for her care and tenderness. It is the last touch of humanity which lingers in the depraved nature and is often the redeeming grace through which an appeal is made to higher things. How often has the man who has fallen upon evil days exclaimed: "Don't let my mother know." How often has a man remained in exile rather than let his mother see what life has written on his face.

The Greatest Tribute to Woman.

The boyish trust in a mother's word was voiced amusingly by the child who insisted: "If my mother says so, it's so, even if it isn't so." This abiding belief in what a mother says, this trust in her truth and honor are the greatest tribute which womanhood receives. Should this belief be shattered, this trust be destroyed, the world turns dark indeed.—Canadian Home Journal.

KATE BENDER DEAD.

RIO VASTA, Cal., May 5—Kate Bender, of the notorious family of Kansas murderers, is dead here according to a statement made today by John Collins, a resident of this place. The woman who was known as Mrs. Gavin, and later as Mrs. Peters was found dead in a resort she conducted. Collins, who was her friend, says she revealed her identity to him several years ago exacting a promise that he should not tell anybody till after her death. The woman apparently died from natural causes and had been dead several days when her body was found. Collins declares the woman gave him a detailed account of many murders which she and her brother committed in the Bender home at Cherryvale, Kansas, in the seventies.

HARVESTER COMPANY AND COMPENSATION

The International Harvester company of America will put into effect on May 1, a voluntary liability agreement with its employees, whereby it shall assume without any legal formality, the liability for any accident to any employee while in the course of duty in any of the plants of the company. The company proposes to pay, without regard to its legal liability, a definite scale of compensation to all its employes injured as the result of an accident while they are at work. There is one limiting clause inserted, prohibiting the payment of benefits where the injury is due to intoxication, or where the employee fails to utilize the safety appliances provided by the company, or where there is gross or wilful misconduct.

A benefit fund will also be established, at the option of the employees, by which the benefits during the first thirty days shall be increased by one-half for the first thirty days' disability. This provision is made because statistics show that eighty per cent. of the accidents to this company's employees cause disability of twelve days or less.

The scale of compensation provided is as follows: "In case of death, there will be paid three years' average wages, not less than $1000 nor more than $4000. In case of loss of a hand or foot, one and one-half years wages, in no event less than $500 nor more than $2000. For the loss of both hands or both feet, or one hand and one foot, four years' wages, in no event less than $2000. "In case of other injuries, one-fourth wages during the first thirty days of disability; if disability continues beyond thirty days, one-half wages during the continuance thereof, for not more than two years from the date of the accident. If total disability results; at the expiration of two years, a pension shall be paid amounting to eight per cent. of what the death benefit would have been, to be not less than $10 per month, payable monthly."

This example which has been set by the International Harvester company, might worthily be followed by other companies and corporations throughout Canada and the United States of America.

$50,000,000 FROM POULTRY PRODUCTS

In Three Western States Alone—Statistics That Indicate What the Kootenay May Do.

The western provinces have been letting a whole lot of money go that might easily be diverted to Western Canada. Nowhere can better butter and cheese be produced.

The west should also take a greater interest in the poultry industry and boost that insignificant total of our egg exports. Some interesting figures were given at the Regina convention of agricultural societies which are a strong argument for the raising of poultry in the west. Superintendent of dairying, Wilson, of Saskatchewan, said:

"Observe what proportion the industry may assume. In Minnesota in 1900, the poultry and egg product was valued at $27,000,000. In the same year Iowa's asset was $39,500,000, North Dakota $21,000,000; South Dakota $21,700,000 and Wisconsin $28,280,000. Even in these states the industry is said to be in its infancy. It is, however, steadily increasing with the growth and development of the country. To make a bare comparison of the assets without considering the different circumstances would be unjust. It would be much similar to comparing the earning powers of a boy of seven or eight years of age with that of a matured man, following his profession. At the present rate of development in Saskatchewan, I predict that when the province is as old as Minnesota, Wisconsin or Iowa, the value of our poultry and poultry products will be at least $50,000,000. The development of this industry in any state or country has seldom, if ever, afforded such excellent opportunities as those now available for our western people, and unless greater interest be awakened at home other parts of the Dominion will reap the benefit. In the midst of our prosperity we are likely to overlook what some have been pleased to term "the smaller or minor occupations," and forget that the marvellous development of this western country is creating a splendid market for all kinds of farm produce. This is particularly true with respect to poultry, and the question naturally arises; will our western farmers meet the trade demands or will the benefits arising out of these changed conditions go to Ontario, Quebec and Maritime farmers?"

The production of butter, cheese and eggs is not being given the attention it deserves in Western Canada. True it is that the country is comparatively new and that we may look for more mixed farming in the future. But that future should not be too far away or we may find ourselves in a position of having to build up fertility in the soil instead of simply conserving it.

PATHETIC STORY OF FRENCH WRECK

Romance Cut Short by Sinking of General Chanzy—Young Lover's Sad Find.

Almost daily the British newspapers print pathetic tales concerning the terrible wreck of the French liner General Chanzy off the north of Minorca. The following, related by a Paris correspondent of the London Globe, is one of the saddest:

Two or three days after the awful calamity, in which over 150 persons were drowned in the night, a pale-faced young man, with delicately cut features and an expression of infinite sadness, arrived in the little town of Ciudadella, and put up at one of the two inns. Next morning, after enquiring the way to the scene of the wreck, he departed early, saying he would probably not return before nightfall. He first called at the cemetery, and on producing a portrait of a young girl, who he feared might be among the victims, he was given permission to inspect in the morgue the bodies recovered from the sea. But the person he sought was not there, so he left the cemetery and turned his steps in the direction of the rock-bound coast. After walking for several miles through narrow lanes and over fields, whose chief feature was the plentiful crop of sharp, jagged stones with which they were strewn, he came at last to the scene of the shipwreck.

A few Spanish soldiers and customs men had built a hut with stones to shelter themselves from the cold blasts which blow eternally round the inhospitable coast, and in answer to his questions they pointed to the bottom of the rocks, where, in their opinion, the General Chanzy lay in 15 fathoms of water. Not a sign of her was visible, but at the shore end of the rocky walls forming the inlet where she rushed to her fate the waves were throwing up quantities of driftwood, lifebuoys, planks, pieces of splintered furniture and a thousand and one personal objects which had belonged to the passengers. From time to time a body, swollen and disfigured through contact with the jagged rocks, was brought in by the sea, but when the young man showed the portrait which he carried in the pocketbook to the sailors keeping guard on shore, they shook their heads and said they had seen no one who could be identified with the girl's photograph.

The sad-eyed visitor wandered about the foot of the rocks during the greater part of the day, searching every fissure and cleft into which a body might have been cast by the waves. Finally he seated himself upon a mass of heterogeneous debris thrown up by the tide. Resting his head on his hands, he gazed upon the waters as they came and went, and seemed lost in pensive reflection. Suddenly he jumped to his feet and ran to the water's edge, where he picked up a bright object, which he examined with great eagerness. Then, examining, "Ma petite Mireille," he sank to the ground, buried his face in his hands and gave way to a passionate outburst of grief. When the pitying soldiers came to him they noticed that the young man was pressing to his lips the heel of a dancing slipper, the under part of which bore a silver mounting. After a time he became sufficiently composed to tell his story to those who gathered around him. It was as follows:

A Pathetic Story.

Less than a year ago Paul Devereux, a government stores inspector at Marseilles, fell in love with Mireille Violette, a lyric artiste, the daughter of one of Devereux's comrades, also employed in the government service. Mireille was 25 years of age, had a winsome, merry face, large brown eyes and a cluster of raven-black hair. She had a sweet voice, was a sprightly dancer, and a popular favorite with those who appreciated the better class of music hall entertainment. Paul was a serious, one might almost say a melancholy, young man, five years older than Mireille, and the attraction of contraets drawing them toward each other, the reserved young inspector and the sunny-hearted actress became deeply attached to each other. The only cloud on their happiness came when Paul was transferred to Algiers, but he reconciled himself to the change with the knowledge that Mireille would shortly be his wife, their marriage having been fixed to take place in the month of May.

One day, before leaving Marseilles, he called at his sweetheart's home and persuaded her mother to let him have Mireille's best pink satin slippers. When he brought them back in a few days they bore the girl's monogram, "M. V." interlaced in silver, and as she thanked her lover for his delicate attention, Mireille told him she would never put her slippers on again without thinking of him.

It was one of these dainty silver-mounted heels that the sea washed ashore on the day when Paul Devereux kept his mournful vigil by the rocks. Mireille's body was not found, and no article of her wearing apparel was recovered by the customs officers. The pretty pink slippers were never seen, but from the sunken steamer there floated toward the broken-hearted lover the cherished trifle which a glint of sunshine had revealed to him. After her betrothal Mireille had continued to appear on the stage, but when she went down with the General Chanzy she was on her way to Algiers to fill her last engagement. After that she intended to return to Marseilles and get her wedding trousseau ready. Paul, on his part, was transported with joy at the prospect of seeing his bride-elect at Algiers. But on the morning of the day she was due he learned from the papers of the wreck of the vessel on which she and her fellow-artists were passengers. Unable to contain his grief, and clinging to the hope that Mireille might have escaped in some miraculous fashion, he started on his cheerless pilgrimage to Ciudadella. There a cruel disillusion awaited him and, putting the cherished little heel in his pocket, he retraced his steps across the barren, stony wilderness and left next day on his return to Algiers.

Limit Boxing Bouts

OAKLAND, May 5—Boxing contests in this city hereafter will be limited to ten rounds instead of 15 according to an order issued by the police commission. The change resulted from the death of Tommy McCarthy in San Francisco after his bout with Moran. The new order does not effect Emeryville suburb which is an independent township.

Permit for Fight

SAN FRANCISCO, May 5—James W. Coffroth, the fight promoter, has been granted a permit by the board of supervisors to hold the Billy Papke-Joe Thomas fight at his Colma arena on May 14. From this action it is evident the promoters of the Jeffries-Johnson fight say, that the authorities are not moved by the protests of the ministers against boxing.

Longchamps Races

PARIS, May 5—The principal races run at Longchamps today were carried off by W. K. Vanderbilt's stable. The Prix Dollar, worth $4000, 11 furlongs, was won by Mr. Vanderbilt's Seasy. Tour of Antipodes

PALO ALTO, Cal., May 5—Arrangements have been completed for the tour of the American Rugby team which will leave Vancouver for the antipodes on May 10. The team will be composed of 24 men from Stanford university and the Universities of California and Nevada. Twelve games will be played, beginning at Brisbane, Australia on June 11 and ending at Auckland on July 30.

Jeffries Training Hard

BEN LOMOND, May 5—Jim Jeffries was up early this morning eager to plunge into his training work. The break occasioned by his visit to Oakland to fetch his wife is regretted by the fighter and he is anxious to make up lost time. "Nothing more to worry me now," was the greeting Jeff gave the newspaper men who were waiting at the station on his return from Oakland. Jeffries evidently is not worrying over the referee question and seems willing to shift all the burden of that matter to Sam Berger's shoulders.

Betting Odds Change

SAN FRANCISCO, May 5—Local enthusiasts expressed much disappointment today over the failure of the fight promoters and principals to agree on the referee question for the Jeffries-Johnson fight. Whether an agreement will be reached by May 16, to which date further formal consideration of the vexed problem was postponed, remains to be seen. The conference was a continual wrangle, but there was one rift in the clouds of acrimonious debate that caused a good laugh. Sam Berger told Jack Gleason that he would not hold the club down to a choice from only two candidates on each side as stipulated in the articles of agreement. "I'll name you 20," declared Jeffries' manager. "Yes," countered Jack Johnson, "and I'll name fifty, but you won't have one of them." "Why not?" queried Berger. "Because they are all smokes" said the negro, flashing his golden smile. It looks now as if Californians were out of the running in the referee race and it looks as though an eastern er would be selected. Johnson said yesterday that he would not begin training until a week from Sunday. Since the negro's arrival the betting odds have changed slightly, Jeffries quotations now reading 10 to 7 instead of the original 10 to 6 figure.

Protest Against Fight

NEW YORK, May 5—Under the leadership of Rev. Dr. John Wesley Hill of the Metropolitan Temple an evangelical campaign has been planned as a protest against the Jeffries-Johnson fight on July 4. An effort is to be made to enlist the co-operation of a number of religious organizations in a demonstration on the same lines as the procession led through the Chicago tenderloin by Bessie Smith. The present plans are for a procession of 10,000 which will pass through the camp of the fight enthusiasts singing hymns and gathering recruits for other services. Revival meetings will be held during Sunday, July 3 and the day of the fight.

PRESENTMENT OF THE GRAND JURY

The grand jury is to be congratulated upon the very clever and well-judged recommendations which it has made with regard to the hospital and the jail.

These call for an isolation hospital, a new general hospital building, and a new jail.

The need for an isolation hospital may at any time be acutely urgent—and the isolation hospital is not ready.

The need for a new and adequate general hospital building is not acute but it is chronic. The limitations of the present building cannot but be a constant hindrance to those who are doing such good work there. The provincial government has a standing offer which the districts concerned should be able to take up.

Proper jail accommodation is one of the marks of an enlightened administration of justice. Persons awaiting trial should not be deprived of the means of healthful exercise. Even those convicted should not be subjected to other hardships in addition to those to which they have been sentenced.

SAMPLE COPIES

Elsewhere in this issue are printed specimens of the requests for sample copies of this paper which are constantly being received, usually from other provinces or from Great Britain, but often from other British countries.

When people want information about a country to which they are thinking of emigrating, why do they so generally ask to see the paper published there?

Publicity or immigration organizations everywhere may profitably devote a little consideration to that point.

Some of them do realize that copies of their local papers are the best immigration literature they can send out. That does not, of course, mean that this is the only immigration literature that should be sent out.

If you were thinking of going to some part of California, for instance, and wanted to get a good idea of local conditions there but could not make a personal inspection, would you like to read some of the papers there in addition to other information, or would you prefer to rely entirely upon pamphlets sent out for the purpose of bringing in immigrants?

CANADIANS AT HOME ON THE SEA

The Toronto Telegram apparently cannot get it out of its head that Ontario and Manitoba are the whole of Canada.

It continually repeats that the genius of the Canadian people is agriculture and that the sea is a foreign element to them.

The Telegram really should send a special commissioner to the four provinces of Canada which are on the seashore, and which have a coast line greater than that of almost any other country in the world.

In the meantime it might learn that a greater proportion of the inhabitants of Nova Scotia and of the coast of British Columbia spend a large part of their time on the sea, either in business or pleasure, than is the case in any country on the continent of Europe or perhaps the United Kingdom itself.

If it will turn to the daily papers of Victoria or Vancouver, it will find that, whatever may be the case in Ontario, there are portions of Canada where ocean going shipping and the business of the sea are a good deal more important than even agriculture.

DON QUIXOTE AND MARK TWAIN

A Toronto contemporary is much stirred by the assertion of a writer in the Canadian Presbyterian who contends that Mark Twain has written nothing that can compare as a work of humor with Don Quixote. It says:

"Don Quixote is literature.

"Tom Sawyer is life."

We should rather say that if Tom Sawyer is life, it is literature, and that if Don Quixote is not life it is not literature.

Our contemporary happens to be familiar with the externals of the life depicted in Tom Sawyer because these are of our own time, and to be unfamiliar, even in imagination, with the externals of the life depicted in Don Quixote.

A century hence the framework in which the life of Tom Sawyer is dressed will be as foreign as that of Don Quixote now is. If our contemporary should reappear upon earth then it will probably deride Tom Sawyer as literature but not life.

EDITORIAL NOTE

May Be No Minto Cup Games

There may be no Minto cup games between Montreal and New Westminster durign the coming summer was the statement made by Mr. Findlay, president of the Montreal club. Mr. Findlay said there was no reason why the New Westminster club should object to changing the dates from June to July. The cup holders stated that the reason why they would not agree to the change was that the league would not agree but as there are only two teams in the league on the coast, arrangements could be easily made. Mr. Findlay also stated that if the dates were not changed to July, Montreal would not be the challengers for the cup but would play exhibition games instead.

CORNWALL, April 25—The Cornwall lacrosse team turned out Saturday for their first workout of the season. Very few of last year's team were present but fully a score of intermediates were in line. This suits the management very well as they intend playing at least half a dozen young fellows this summer.

That War

Montreal Herald—The lacrosse row in Toronto looks bad. For the fact must not be forgotten that the president of the National Lacrosse union this year is Lol Selman of the Tecumsehs and that the popular impression among lacrosse followers is that while Lol Selman's will be the voice, the man behind the voice will be that of Charlie McQuerrie. Now Charles is mixed up in an everlasting row with Jimmie Murphy and all sorts of things are threatened in Toronto lacrosse circles—even to the extent of calling off the famous Toronto-Tecumseh exhibition game.

May be Something in It

Viewed from more than 300 miles away that little move of calling off the exhibition game looks painfully like a bluff. Toronto-Tecumseh exhibition games are the only kind of exhibition games that pay in Toronto. Take the champion Montrealers down to play the Tecumsehs and it's a toss up whether they would draw 75 per cent of the gate that would be attracted by a Toronto-Tecumseh match. And no one knows it better than Charles. Sized up, it looks about like this: That Charlie Querrie has a bit of a grouch about the manner Jimmie Murphy has, in Querrie's idea, poached on his (Querrie's) preserves. It is a grouch nothing more but it has been magnified and handled very judiciously until it serves as a lead story on the sporting pages and gives Toronto and Tecumseh all sorts of boost for the exhibition games which will eventually come off. Oh yes, don't make any mistake about that. The exhibition games will come off all right.

from him a box of U. M. C. cartridges of .32 calibre. He identified the box of cartridges shown him by Mr. Lennie, and also the revolver, a .32 Iver-Johnson, on which he had placed a private mark. He also identified the two shells dented from a centre fire action, that he had taken from the revolver. To his lordship, the witness thought the failure of the revolver to go off might be due to it having been a new gun, lying around for some time in the store, its action becoming clogged with grease or vaseline. To Mr. Lennie, the witness described a conversation with the prisoner in the cells that night, in which the prisoner said: "I went to see Phillips this afternoon, to get a settlement. He told me to go to the police. So I went to the hardware store and got a revolver. What else could I do? In every mining camp I have lived in, he has had men watching me." To his lordship, the witness said Wayson made no remark when, at the time of his arrest, Phillips said: "Lock this man up, he tried to shoot me."

Wayson's Queer Sayings.

Crossexamined by Mr. Farris, Constable Ellis stated that he had known the prisoner a long time, often seeing him at night. He had come to the witness and complained that he had been robbed by Phillips, the witness advising him to go to the provincial police. On one occasion last November the prisoner had said to him: "Last time Moyer was here, a whole lot of fellows threw stuff in my face, and you were one of them." He admitted saying once or twice to Phillips, "Your friend with a screw loose is in town," but denied that he had alluded to him as "Your crazy friend." He admitted having said that the prisoner was "a little off on that one thing." Phillips had said to him one time, "Some time he will take a pot at me," but laughed as he said it. He had known for several months that the prisoner believed Phillips had robbed him, but he did not do anything, as he did not believe the charge. He thought that the prisoner was peculiar, like other miners that had been a long time in the solitude. To Mr. Lennie, the witness explained this last statement by saying that such men talked to themselves. To his lordship, the witness said the prisoner made the remark about Moyer and the bunch blowing stuff in his face, of his own motion, nothing having been said beforehand that would lead up to it.

Purchase of Weapon.

George Douglas Steele, clerk at the store of the Wood-Vallance Hardware company, was not able to identify the prisoner as the man who had bought a .32 Iver-Johnson revolver from him on December 9 last, but he thought the revolver shown him was the one he had sold. The cartridges were similar to those he had sold. He had kept a record of the revolver, as he kept a record of all he sold to strangers. He thought its number was 4631. He examined the dented cartridges, which were shown him by Mr. Lennie and said the dents were not deep enough. He thought the fault might be a short plunger, or it was possible grease or something in the gun prevented it from acting.

To Mr. Farris, the witness said if a man seemed peculiar, he would not sell him a revolver. The only reason he kept a record of this sale was because the purchaser was a stranger to him.

To Mr. Ferguson, foreman of the jury, the witness said it would be possible for the dents to be made in the cartridges in some other way than by the plunger, but it would be dangerous to do it.

Constable Ellis was recalled, and showed that the actual number of the revolver, according to Mr. Steele's book, which he had, was 46,201.

This concluded the case for the crown.

Defence of Insanity.

Mr. Farris, in opening the case for the defence, explained to the jury that when he offered the defence of insanity it was no case of raising a technical defence of insanity, such as brain storm, or emotional insanity, sometimes called Dementia Americana, but the evidence offered would show that the prisoner was a victim of paranoia, or delusional insanity. Delusional insanity took different forms, in some cases its victim imagining himself a great personage, and a very common form was for the victim to imagine himself the victim of persecution, either by individuals or societies. Commonly the victims of this form of paranoia applied to the authorities for protection, and if that recourse failed, ended by committing acts that they would not commit if sane. In the present case, the prisoner believed he had been robbed and persecuted by Phillips since 1900, his whole mind being possessed and dominated by that idea.

Sought to Collect Claim.

E. A. Crease, barrister, was the first witness for the defence, stating that the prisoner came to his office some time last year, and asked him to collect a claim against Mr. Phillips. The witness was busy, and told him to come again. He did come again, later in the day, and gave details, saying that Phillips had collected some money on subscriptions for him some seven or eight years ago, and had not paid the balance. The prisoner struck him as being a simple man, and the claim being openly stale, and Mr. Phillips being a client, he told the man to go to another lawyer. To his lordship, he said he did not ask why the subscriptions had been made, but he did not seem a strange subject for subscriptions, being down at the heel in appearance.

Some More Delusions.

John Grant, proprietor of the Club hotel, said he had known the prisoner for three or four years, and formerly, when the prisoner worked at the Hall Mines smelter, he boarded at the Club hotel. He had always been a decent man, paying his way, and was usually the quietest man in the house.

The witness saw the prisoner in jail, a day or two after he was committed for trial, and on that occasion the prisoner told him Phillips owed him some money that had been collected for him because he had been boycotted at the time of the Slocan strike some 10 or 12 years ago. The prisoner also said Phillips had given him a check for $10,000, which he tore up and threw in the gutter. He also said Moyer and Haywood, the chiefs of the Western Federation of Miners, had knocked him down, and injected ether into his ears through a hose, and taken his money. The prisoner had further told him that Phillips had dragged him around Nelson, and had dragged him around Sandon. The witness had remarked that the people would not stand for such a proceeding, but the prisoner replied that they did stand for it. He also said that Phillips took money away from him in the Bodega saloon.

Crossexamined by Mr. Lennie, the witness said the conversation in the jail took place at various times after his committal. He also had a conversation with the prisoner in the city cells the night of his arrest. He asked the prisoner what kind of a scrape he had got himself into, and he had replied that Phillips owed him money, and he went for it. The rest of his conversation was rational. The witness was only with him about five minutes on this occasion. The first time the witness saw the prisoner that day was after dinner, and he appeared as usual. He was not given to drinking much.

At this stage the court adjourned, resuming at 2:30 o'clock, when the case for the defence was continued.

Poisoned Drink.

The first witness in the afternoon was Joseph Labbie, deputy warden at the provincial jail, who stated he was present during the various conversations Mr. Grant had had in the jail with the prisoner, and also during conversations two doctors had had with the prisoner. The first conversation Mr. Grant had was within four days of the prisoner being received. The prisoner then stated that Phillips had persecuted him, and had had two men following him. He said Phillips injected ether into his ears through a rubber tube, to prevent him from meeting Moyer. He said Phillips had robbed him, and also that he had given him a $10,000 check, which he threw into the gutter.

At a later interview, the prisoner said Phillips had followed him through the streets, with two men, blowing ether upon him through a rubber tube. The prisoner went into the Bodega saloon, and bought a drink. After he drank it, he found it was poison. The bartender turned the bottle upside down and threw it away.

Crossexamined by Mr. Lennie, the witness said on all these occasions the prisoner talked of Phillips. He had mentioned the rubber tube in all the conversations, not merely in the latest one, in fact, that was the first feature the witness had noted. The first conversation was of at least 15 minutes duration.

To his lordship, the witness said that about a week ago the prisoner stated that Phillips and his assistant had dragged him from Baker street to the court house.

Bodega Story Refuted.

Charles Walmsley, proprietor of the Bodega saloon, said that he did not remember seeing the prisoner and Phillips in his saloon together at any time. Drugged drinks had never been served over his bar.

Lawrence E. Borden, M.D., stated that he had talked with the prisoner since the latter was placed in the jail, several times, the first conversation being shortly after December 9, the day of his arrest. The prisoner's thoughts, on all these occasions, were given over to his persecution, and no matter what topic was raised, he always came back to that subject. The prisoner thought he had been robbed of money in some way connected with the Miners' union, the witness not having gained a clear idea of the details from his confused talk. He claimed to have been dragged around the streets in a humiliating and painful manner. The witness tried to gain from him some facts about his family, which would be valuable from a medical point of view, but could glean very little, as the prisoner persisted in leading the conversation back to his favorite theme. The prisoner did state that when he was a boy he had been hit on the head. He could give no information about his parents.

A Paranoiac.

The prisoner was undoubtedly suffering from paranoia, a form of delusional insanity. As a general rule, the mind of the paranoiac was dominated by his delusion, as was the case in the present instance. The tendency was for the delusion to be along the lines either of grandeur, or persecution. A paranoiac was supposed to know nothing out of the line of his supposed persecution, and everything in his life hinged around that. On the subject of his particular delusion, a paranoiac was absolutely irresponsible.

Mr. Farris drew the witness' attention to a work of Dr. Eddy, which the witness said was of great authority. The witness read a passage which graphically described the symptoms and development of paranoia, and the unhappy state of the paranoiac, who, after giving adequate warning of his disease by words and acts of which no notice was taken, and usually applying to the authorities for protection, with unhappily futile result, was at last impelled to do a murderous act, which had all the marks of justifiable homicide. This case, said the witness, was of that nature, in his opinion. As Mr. Farris' suggestion, the witness also read from Taylor's "Medical Jurisprudence," also a standard work, which described the irresponsibility of the paranoiac along the line of his delusion, and his incapacity to commit a crime, in the legal meaning.

The witness said the prisoner was undoubtedly a paranoiac of the delusional type. He was undoubtedly acting under a delusion, and, by virtue of that delusion, had no power to do otherwise than he did. It was likely the delusion had extended over a long period. It was chronic insanity, and certainly had not been generated in a day or two, after the prisoner had been placed in jail.

Doctor Crossexamined.

Mr. Lennie crossexamined the witness at considerable length, as to the period and nature of the supposed delusion. The witness said a paranoiac was not merely a crank, but considerably more. Either he was exalted by his delusion, or he was in fear from persecution. He could be perfectly sane on all subjects but the one, but on that he would have no power, to act but in one way. He had found no signs of insanity in the prisoner's family history, and the prisoner talked rationally on that subject. He was not a maniac. The witness admitted it was to a certain extent a matter of time and degree, but would not subscribe to Mr. Lennie's theory that if the prisoner had been under the delusion but a short time he would necessarily be more responsible than if he had been under its influence for a great many years. He could not state the length of time that prisoner had entertained that delusion, but he had not adopted it in a very short space of time. It was not a congenital case.

To Mr. Lennie's suggestion that there was such a thing as a confirmed paranoiac, and an occasional paranoiac, the witness stated the disease was progressive, involving a chronic condition of the mind, and it was hard to know when the knowledge of right and wrong disappeared. The greatest specialist could not tell at what time a man became a paranoiac by a subsequent study of him, unless he had followed his case from the first, but he could tell that he did not know right from wrong. In this case, the witness was able to say the man was suffering from paranoia, and that the authorities stated that a man in that condition was unable to distinguish between right and wrong.

Peculiarities of Malady.

On the theory that the man might have been a paranoiac when examined by Dr. Borden, and not a paranoiac when he committed the act for which he was on trial, Mr. Lennie asked if a man who had acted sanely throughout the day, as the evidence showed, could point a gun at a man in the afternoon and not be responsible. The witness replied that it was quite feasible. He would be able to tell right from wrong on every subject but that connected with his supposed persecution. Mr. Lennie questioned the authority of the witness to testify absolutely when he had not been in possession of the evidence given by Mr. Grant and others.

To his lordship, the witness stated that the prisoner had never mentioned the rubber hose to him. The only reason the prisoner gave him for firing the revolver was that money had been taken from him, or should have been given to him. Quite frequently paranoia had a physical basis, and might be caused by physical defects or diseases, for instance, disordered digestion. There was, however, no deterioration of the brain that could be discovered anatomically.

To Mr. Farris, the witness said that the delusion alone would not be evidence that he was a paranoiac, but his general acts. A paranoiac who killed almost invariably did it in the open, to show to the world that he was getting rid of his persecutors.

To his lordship, the witness said that a paranoiac was dangerous when he got to this stage. In some cases, however, after the culminating point was reached, there was retrogression.

This closed the case for the defence.

Mr. Farris Addresses Jury.

Mr. Farris premised his address to the jury by stating that where a prisoner was actually guilty of crime, he did not believe in counsel entering a plea of insanity. But if an accused was actually insane, his deed was not of the physical body, but of the mind, which by reason of its irresponsibility, could not commit a crime. It was clearly shown that the prisoner had suffered from a delusion since 1900, that he was being persecuted and hounded by Phillips, a delusion for which there was not the slightest basis as the evidence of both sides showed. Phillips believed him insane from his statement that Haywood had attacked him, at a time before Haywood had entered the country. The act was committed in the open, where there was no hope for escape from the consequences. The act was without motive, if the prisoner had not been under a delusion. The police were aware of the delusions, from the statement that stuff had been thrown in his eyes. Several witnesses mentioned the delusion as to the ether injections. Dr. Borden's evidence was concise and authoritative, showing conclusively that the prisoner was suffering from paranoia, being irresponsible, and incapable of guilt.

He was debarred from instructing the jury in the law, but he would ask his lordship to direct them that a vicious will or intention was necessary to a crime, that if a person was mentally deranged he could not be found guilty of crime, and that the impossibility of making escape from the scene of the deed was corroborative evidence of insanity.

In conclusion, he reminded the jury that the idea of the law was not vengeance, but reformation, and that nothing would be so likely to bring the law into contempt as the infliction of its penalty upon one upon whom Heaven had already inflicted one.

Mr. Lennie's Analysis.

Mr. Lennie, in summing up for the crown, said he took a somewhat different view of the case, based on the law. Under the law of Canada, in order for the plea of insanity to be tenable, the delusion must be such that, if it actually existed, it would justify the act committed. In this case the man, whatever his condition and delusions, unless the delusions were such as to take away his whole reasoning power, must be convicted, or the condition already mentioned must have been fulfilled. In this case, the consideration in the delusion was merely one of money, for which he had a remedy in the courts. He also had delusions about what was done to him at Ainsworth, but delusions as to what others did to him did not affect his relation to Phillips. How could the doctor say the man was irresponsible, without knowing all the facts. He was satisfied they could come to no other conclusion but that he was guilty of the crime charged.

Judge's Charge.

His lordship in his charge reviewed the evidence briefly, and explained the law. It was an indictable offence to point a revolver at a man and pull the trigger. If the jury convicted, it was not incumbent on the court to inflict the maximum penalty, and it might range from an hour to 20 years. If the man pulled the trigger, but did not intend to kill, the verdict could be common assault, but in this case such a verdict would be ridiculous. If the jury acquitted the prisoner because of insanity, they must so state, and steps would be taken to have him examined.

As to the insanity plea, set up more frequently now than of late years, fortunately for Canada, the practice had been settled early by the Mother Country's example, and juries could hardly make a mistake, no matter what happened in other countries. An imbecile or natural born fool could not be convicted of crime, and only a person could be convicted who had a sense of right and wrong. If sane except for a particular delusion, a man was not entitled to acquittal unless the delusion, if real, would justify the act. If the prisoner committed the deed because Phillips merely owed him money, he was not entitled to acquittal, but if other delusions entered into it, as that he was being followed to have ether poured into his ears to be robbed, or had been dragged around in a manner not to be tolerated, he was entitled to acquittal. There was undoubtedly a great deal of evidence to show the man had suffered under several delusions at various times. It was the duty of the jury to scrutinize the evidence closely, and not act on a general sympathy with the prisoner because of his condition, and acquit him because no harm was done.

Mr. Farris asked his lordship to instruct the jury as to the law on absence of motive and the publicity of the act. His lordship stated that he did not think that the latter point was of much force either way.

Verdict of Guilty.

The jury was out about 20 minutes, and then brought in a verdict of guilty, with a recommendation to mercy.

Mr. Lennie moved for sentence to be pronounced.

Mr. Farris made a plea for mercy.

His lordship asked the prisoner if there was any reason why sentence should not be pronounced against him.

Wayson's Reminiscences.

In response, the prisoner made a long and incoherent statement. He described his visit to Phillips early that afternoon, when he asked for money, and that Phillips said "to hell with you, if you trouble me much more we will come together." He described in a rambling way his supposed financial relations with Phillips, stating that in 1900 subscriptions were taken up for him by the Sandon Miners' union, to compensate him for a three year boycott brought against him because of false reports that he had acted as a strike-breaker in the Coeur d'Alenes. Phillips refused to give him this. He described this period with considerable detail, and then jumped to last year, when he claimed that Moyer, Haywood, Pettibone, Mills, Phillips and others were here. Moyer throughout the troubles seemed to have a good heart toward him, but was thwarted, Phillips following him with a rubber squirt-gun and blowing gas into his ears to render him unable to secure communication with Moyer. At the time all the above mentioned men were present, one night they came walking by him, and blew gas upon him till he sank into oblivion. He came to, lying on his back, and overheard a long conversation between Phillips and Moyer, Moyer contending that Wayson ought to have $25,000 to compensate him for the persecutions. Moyer also argued that when placated Wayson would leave the camp and cease from troubling. Phillips replied that he could get rid of him, he had the men to do it, and he had got rid of other men. This interesting group dispersed, then Phillips came back and conversed with him, and then Moyer also. All this time he could neither cry nor stir a limb. Then the gang walked away, snickering, and taunting him.

And a lot more of the same stuff.

Among the lawyers whom he visited to get redress, were Mr. Lennie, Mr. Crease, S. S. Taylor and H. A. Stewart, each referring him to another.

His lordship asked him why he had tried to kill Phillips, instead of going to the courts. He replied that he did not get the chance to try to kill him, being prevented. He denied pulling the trigger, and thought the dented cartridges had got mixed in the scuffle. He said he was very nervous.

Sentence Pronounced.

"Your case gives me much difficulty," said his lordship. "The jury has done very well not to yield to the defence of insanity set up. You have been guilty of one of the most serious offences in the calendar. In this free country it is not to be tolerated that men should take the law into their own hands for fancied wrongs." His lordship told Wayson that he had no doubt he knew he was doing wrong when he tried to kill Phillips, adding that if the plunger of the revolver had been one-sixtyfourth of an inch longer, he would undoubtedly have been now on trial for murder. He sentenced him to six years in the penitentiary, adding that if the jury had not recommended mercy, he would have made the sentence much heavier.

His lordship commended the jury for taking the right course. He would say to the jury and to the public that if it was found that the prisoner was really insane, proper care would be taken of him.

Mr. Farris, before sentence was pronounced, moved for an order for an examination as to sanity, which his lordship doubted his power to make.

AT THE THEATRES.

Jessie Maclachlan appears at the opera house on Monday, May 9.

The Toronto World says: "As was fitting, the honors went to Miss Maclachlan, who displayed a remarkably melodious voice, which she used with all the graces that belong to accomplished vocalism. She is a finished artist; her interpretation of sentiment is psychologically true; her vocal nuances in the expression of the thought and emotion of a given song are thoroughly artistic. And above all her singing has the distinguishing quality of soul force. She is indeed, even if she is not heralded as a Melba, Bemhrich or Gadski, a great vocalist, the people's songstress. . . . Miss Maclachlan is to be felicitated over the fact that she proved by her lively vocalism how true it is that the Celts are the supreme melodists of the world."

Miss Grace Cameron appeared again in "Nancy" at the opera house last evening, and delighted the audience with clever and emotional acting and her charming singing, the latter calling for repeated encores of nearly every song sung. Last evening's performance concluded Miss Cameron's engagement here.

An excellent program of films was shown at the Gem theatre last night, including "It Takes Gasoline to Win a Girl," "His Sick Friend," "Stung," "Pat Daddy's Sake," and "The Dog Came Back." There will be an entire change of pictures tonight.

The program at the Empire theatre changes this evening, and includes "The General's Birthday," "Forced Into Marriage," "The Three Neighbors," "Adventures of an Old Pilot." An Irish Rose song will be sung by Miss Spaeth.

CONSTABLE DENSMORE IS NOW IN CHARGE

Government Defers Action on Applications for Hotel Licenses in Stewart and Fort George.

(Special to The Daily News.)

VICTORIA, May 5.—Action has been deferred by the provincial authorities upon several applications for liquor licenses in connection with hotels to be established at Stewart and at Fort George, Attorney-General Bowser being desirous of having government representatives on the spot before licenses are granted in any of the new northern cities. The representation of the provincial government at Stewart is for the present to be vested in Constable Densmore, an experienced and valued officer for some time in the provincial service at Grand Forks and Midway, and also chief of police at Greenwood, and now transferred from Moyie.

EMIGRATION RESTRICTIONS EXCLUDE ARTIZAN CLASS

LONDON, May 5.—A conference of emigration societies was held today to consider Canadian immigration restrictions, which insist that immigrants who receive financial assistance shall have been guaranteed farm work. It was pointed out that practically the whole of the artisan class is debarred. This is about 50 per cent of the total cases dealt with by emigration societies. It was decided to ask Lord Crewe, secretary of state for the colonies, to receive a deputation respecting the matter.

AUSTRALIAN HIGH COMMISSIONER GUEST OF CANADIAN CLUB

LONDON, May 5.—The guest of the evening at the Canada club banquet last night was Sir G. Reid, Australian high commissioner, who eloquently responded to the toast of the commonwealth. He paid a spirited tribute to the British race, the one race to win an empire and maintain it in traditions of justice and generosity.

STANDARD CRITICIZES CANADA'S BORROWING METHODS

LONDON, May 5.—The Standard criticises Canadian borrowing methods, taking the point that the first thing to be desired is the continued uninterrupted popularity of Canadian municipal issues with the British investor, even if at times some concessions has to be given regarding the price of issue and method, in place of taking advantage of keen competition on the part of financiers, which would arise if the loan were put up for public tender.

CANADA'S FAME OVERWHELMING.

LONDON, May 5.—At a meeting of the Colonial and Continental Church society, Bishop Gloucester said that while he was not jealous of Canada he wanted to commend Australia. The fame of Canada was overwhelming on account of vast emigration from Great Britain, and he deplored the fact that there had not been similar emigration to Australia.

FRENCH FISHERMEN MIRACULOUSLY RESCUED

Three Days and Nights in Open Boat Without Food or Water—Dory Adrift.

HALIFAX, May 5—Two French fishermen were miraculously rescued by the Lunenburg schooner Nicola from death by starvation and exposure on the Grand Banks. Gustave Germanicus and Leopold Legraveread of Granville, France, were three days and three nights in an open boat without food or water and without oars to control their boat. The two men belonged to the square rigged fishing vessel Sans Gene of Granville.

Parted from Ship.

The Sans Gene, a bark of two hundred tons left Granville on March 15, and had been fishing on Banquereau when the two men who were dory mates, became parted from their ship in the fog. After being adrift for a day and a night a heavy sea struck their dory and flung Leopold into the water washing away their oars and food. Leopold was rescued by his companion. They bailed the water from their half filled dory and did the best they could in their helpless condition. Two days and two nights they struggled against hunger and cold, which benumbed their senses until the fishing schooner on the third day saved them, the men were landed at Canso and were forwarded to the French consul at Sydney.

BRITISH PRESS EULOGIZES LAURIER.

LONDON, May 5.—The Daily Mail, referring to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's remarks on the choice of a viceroy, says that, coming from a statesman of such great experience and of French descent, these reflections are "listening to our national pride, and any departure from the present practices would be productive of harm."

The Standard declares the speech at Ottawa as "memorable and moving."

The Times says that Laurier's insight is equal to his great experience. He has never excelled in clearness of vision and felicity of phrase those in which, on Tuesday, he outlined the relations between British governor generals and the system of national self-government. Wherever he be sent to preside, Sir Wilfrid Laurier speaks on all constitutional topics with something of the fervor and inspiration of Gladstone, concludes the Times.
