AUSTRIANS ROUTED BY RUSSIANS THIRTY THOUSAND ARE PRISONERS

Victory Reported by Czar's Armies Is in Field Where Successes Protect Line of Communication for March on Berlin--Four Theatres of War

ENEMY IS CLEVERLY LED INTO TRAP BY SMALL GARRISON--SLAUGHTER IS FEARFUL

Muscovites Threaten to Make German Capital Pay for Outrages at Louvain--Austrian Fleet Put to Flight by Franco-British Squadron--Official Report Shows German Losses Are Heavy

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
PARIS, Sept. 1.—A Rome despatch to the Temps says:

"The Russian victory over the Austrians on the Galician side was complete, the right wing of the army having been decisively turned and cut to pieces, leaving 30,000 prisoners in the hands of the victors.

"On the Vistula front when the Russians encountered the Austrian left wing the result was somewhat uncertain but the arrival of important reinforcements enabled the Russians to take a vigorous offensive and repulse the enemy. They captured a large number of pieces of artillery.

"The Russians executed many bayonet charges against the Austrians, which had a large share in deciding the issue of the battle. Elsewhere the Germans, endeavoring to effect a junction with the Austrians, sought to meet the Russian attack with a counter-offensive, but were repulsed with losses."

Describes Russian Operations.

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
LONDON, Sept. 1.—The following summary of the operations of the Russian army will make clearer the situation on the eastern frontier of Germany and Austria at this time:

There are four main theatres of war, two concerning the German and two the Austrian army. Taking them in order from the Baltic to Bukovina, there is the first Russian advance on East Prussia. This has probably been the least opposed because of the two German routes it is the most distant approach to Berlin.

A Russian advance might therefore be expected, though it was not expected to be so rapid.

The second sphere of operations has been the advance of the Warsaw army on the frontiers of the Prussian province of Posen. He is the shortest Russian route to Berlin and its first and most important natural obstacle, a network of lakes and marshes, seems to have been surmounted already but the Russian progress in this direction cannot be pushed much further until Russian success is assured in the third operation.

Must Defeat Austrians First.

The third sphere is in the south of Russian Poland, where a large Austro-Hungarian force, acting under German directions, has taken the offensive over a wide front, and last week seems to have obtained a considerable victory at Krasnik. Pushing on, another battle was fought at Lublin, where the Russians claim to have defeated it.

The fortunes of war in this field are of special importance because sufficient Austro-Hungarian success would cut the Russians' lines of communication through Poland and so interfere with all progress toward Berlin.

The fourth theatre is still further to the east, where the Russians have invaded Galicia and are striking at Lemberg. Success in this region is not so important for the main strategy as in the others, but it should have considerable effect on Austria's Slavs, particularly the Ruthenians and Slavonians.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 1.—How the town of Gorodok was held against the Austrian attack by a handful of men is explained to some extent in a soldier's letter. There were only 900 soldiers at Gorodok when the patrols reported 2,000 Austrians advancing toward camp.

The men were divided into three detachments and two of these took up positions outside the town in the woods so disposed as to give the impression of numbers of cavalry. Then 30 men were despatched to attract the enemy's notice. These men crept through the woods under cover until they were able to come suddenly upon the Austrian main body when, pretending to be scared, they turned and fled in apparent panic. The enemy pursued them headlong and was lead into ambush, being caught by a cross fire of rifles and maxims. A thousand men were killed and wounded and the rest retired, pursued by cossacks.

From Vilna comes a story of a 17-year-old daughter of a senator who has donned male attire and disappeared from her home leaving a letter that she is going to fight for her country.

Austria Must Win or Perish

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
LONDON, Sept. 1.—A despatch from Bucharest, which reached the Central News agency at London via Rome, says the Roumanian general staff considers that the battle on the Austro-Russian frontier will be decisive. They believe that the defeat of the Austrians would be followed by a general insurrection and that, whatever may be the sacrifice, the Austrians will not fall back. They are now making a strong effort.

Gives Idea of German Losses

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
LONDON, Sept. 1, 8:10 p.m.—A despatch to the Evening News from Copenhagen says the twelfth German casualty list in East Prussia gives the losses of the 40th infantry from Konigsberg as about 800. Other German regiments engaged, notably the 65th landwehr from Coblenz and the fusiliers from Bostock, lost 400 each.

Gen. Adolph Will Hohenborn has been appointed to represent the German war minister, Major-Gen. Erich von Falkenhayn in Berlin during the minister's absence at the front. Gen. Kurt von Manteuffel becomes chief of the general staff during the absence with the army of Gen. von Moltke.

Socialist newspaper correspondents have been granted permission to be attached to the German general staff at the front.

The children of Prince William of Weid, ruler of Albania, have arrived in Munich on their way to Berlin.

Allies Rout Austrian Fleet

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
LONDON, Sept. 1.—The Express correspondent this morning says there is a grave feeling in Berlin over the advance of the Russians. The Russians propose to treat Berlin as the Germans treated Louvain. Many citizens are going to Norway, Denmark and Switzerland.

A despatch says an Austrian force supported by the Catarro batteries and fleet on Sunday reattacked Budua and Mount Levchen, damaging the Montenegrin position, but the British and French fleets appeared and put the Austrian ships to flight, silencing the batteries also. The Montenegrins then counter attacked, repulsing the Austrian forces.

Austrian Corps Annihilated

Russian operations against Austria are reaching a stage where decisive victories are within reach. A railway centre south of Lemberg was captured and communications with Austrian fortresses on the Dneister river and in Bukevina has been cut off. The sixth Austrian corps was annihilated between the Vistula and Wieprz rivers. The losses of the Austrians aggregate tens of thousands.

Austrians Attempt Flanking Move.

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 1—Admitting the entire Austrian activity seems to be in Galicia, the war office claims the Russians are now within a day's march of Lemberg proper, the lines extending, With Lemberg as the centre, from Kamionka, northeast of Lemberg, through Glynciany to Brzosodivitza on the southeast. Here is the fiercest of the fighting. The Austrians are attempting a flanking movement in force through Russian Poland.

GERMANS ARREST EDITOR OF SOCIALIST PAPER

BRITISH COLONY PREPARES FOR ATTACK

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 1.—British Honduras is preparing for a possible attack by a German warship, according to Capt. Johannsen of the steamship Belize, which arrived here today from that country. Bags of sand have been placed for miles along the coast and the city's garrison has been increased from 500 to 1,000 men, the captain said.

GREECE FRIENDLY TO TRIPLE ENTENTE

Rumors That Allies Tried to Purchase Turkey's Neutrality Receive Quietus. Turkish Army Ready.

(Special Cable to The Daily News and New York Times.)
ATHENS, Sept. 1.—Public opinion here has been considerably disquieted by rumors, apparently emanating from sources hostile to the triple entente, that Great Britain and France, desirous of winning over Turkey at all cost, have been urging Greece to make large concessions in the matter of the islands, while Russia is stated to have bought Bulgaria's neutrality by a promise of the revision of the treaty of Bucharest at the request of Greece.

The resumption of active command of the Greek fleet by Admiral Kerr of the British fleet has come as a welcome correction of the rumors, denoting to the public mind the good understanding existing between Greece and Great Britain. It is noticeable that despite these rumors the tone of the Greek press has been even more sympathetic toward the triple entente than before.

Turkey Has Mobilized

ROME, Sept. 1.—A despatch says the Turkish army is mobilizing and that the first line will be of 200,000 men.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Turkey still officially protests her neutrality.

ANGLO-AMERICANS FORM CONTINGENT

Lord Lyveden Explains That Cost Will Be Borne By Those Interested in Movement

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
LONDON, Sept. 1.—An Anglo-American contingent to aid Great Britain and her allies is now in process of formation under the direction of leading Anglo-Americans here.

Speaking tonight at the headquarters of the corps, Lord Lyveden said:

"We are accepting Anglo-Americans for this contingent, but only those not eligible for Lord Kitchener's special army. I have been in communication with the war office officials and several members of the house of lords, and outlined the proposed organization. Every one has been much impressed and believes we shall be able to produce a really useful force to support the British army. I have been asked by au-

The Italian authorities have lodged a protest with the German foreign office.

BATTLE CRUISER AFTER NURNBERG

Australian Warships Said to Wait for Enemy

GERMAN IRONCLAD COALS AT HONOLULU

Position of Leipzig Doubtful, Idzuma Sighted--Pacific Safe, Says Admiralty

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
HONOLULU, Sept. 1.—The German cruiser Nurnberg will leave here this afternoon, cleared for action, to meet the Australian warships Australia and Warrego.

The two British men-of-war today accompanied the British collier Strathadel to within the three-mile limit here and are reported waiting outside. Capt. Schoenberg of the Nurnberg said today that the Nurnberg would not surrender and that he expected the ship to be the coffin for himself and his crew.

Capt. Schoenberg asked for 1,200 tons of coal. Rear Admiral Charles Moore, commandant of the naval station, refused to say how much he allowed to be taken abord. Stevedores loading the cruiser said they were putting 750 tons in her bunkers.

Nurnberg Has Little Chance

If the Australia and Warrego are waiting off Honolulu for the Nurnberg, the German cruiser will cease to be a menace to British shipping in the Pacific within a short time. Only a third class cruiser of 3,396 tons, she is a mere mouthful for the powerful battle cruiser of the Australian navy.

The Australia is of the same class as the New Zealand, the fighting overseas cruiser which took part in the Heligoland engagement, having a displacement of 18,800 tons. She is armed with eight 12-inch, 16 4-inch and the usual complement of smaller guns and has a speed of 25 knots, with a complement of 790 men. The Nurnberg carries 10 4-inch and six 2-inch guns and has a speed of 23.5 knots and carries 322 men. The Australia need only circle around her out of range and knock holes in the German at leisure. The Nurnberg has neither the power to fight nor the speed to run away.

The Warrego, also of the Australian navy, is a fast 700-ton destroyer, with a speed of 28 knots. Her one 4-inch gun has the same range as the Nurnburg and she is equipped with three torpedo tubes.

The Warrego was built in England in sections and reconstructed in an Australian shipyard.

Believe Leipzig Located

(By Daily News Leased Wire)
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 1.—Steaming slowly southward a three-funneled warship, resembling the Japanese cruiser Idzuma, was sighted at 5:30 a.m. yesterday, five miles due west of Coos bay, Oregon, by the steamer Rose City, which arrived here today.

The cruiser seemed to be making about 10 knots.

The German cruiser Leipzig also has three funnels, but the Idzuma is

"FOR ALL WE HAVE AND ARE"

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
LONDON, Sept. 1.—Rudyard Kipling contributes the following poem to the London Times:

For all we have and are,
For all our children's fate,
Stand up and meet the war,
The Hun is at the gate.

Our world has passed away
In wanton overthrow;
There's nothing left today
But steel and fire and woe.

Though all we know depart,
The old commandments stand—
In courage keep your heart,
In strength lift up your hand.

Once more we hear the word
That sickened earth of old,
No law except the sword,
Unsheathed and uncontrolled.

Once more it knits mankind,
Once more the nations go,
To meet and break and bind
A crazed and driven foe.

Comfort, content, delight,
The ages' slow-bought gain,
They shriveled in a night—
Only ourselves remain.

To face the naked days
In silent fortitude,
Through perils and dismays,
Renewed and renewed.

Though all we may depart,
The commandments stand,
In patience keep your heart;
In strength lift up your hand.

No easy hopes or lies
Shall bring us to our goal,
But iron sacrifice
Of body, will and soul.

There's but one task for all,
For each one life to give.
Who stands if Freedom fall?
Who dies if England live?

HOME GUARDS WITHOUT STATUS

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
WINNIPEG, Sept. 1. — Col. Hosmer, who is in charge of the rifle association of the province, stated tonight that he has been requested by Major Lawless, in military command, to discourage the movement to form home guards which had been adopted by many centres. He pointed out that home guards would not be recognized by the government and would be without uniforms, rifles and ammunition. He advises all those who wish to undergo military training to join their nearest rifle association.

HUNDRED THOUSAND RECRUITS TRAIN

Second Big Army Now Being Formed in Response to Kitchener's Appeal

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
LONDON, Sept. 1.—The first 100,000 recruits who responded to Lord Kitchener's appeal have gone into training in various parts of the country and the men are now enrolling at a much quicker rate for the second 100,000.

In London alone 1,000 joined the colors in the last 10 days, while the response in the provinces has been equally gratifying. In Birmingham, where recruiting is unusually brisk, the lord mayor, Col. Lord Martineau, has resigned his office and volunteered for foreign service.

Sir Edward Carson, Ulster Unionist leader, has called a meeting of the leaders of the Ulster volunteer force for Thursday, when he will submit a scheme, with the concurrence of the war office for the utilization of the force as one body.

SAYS STATES CAN BUY GERMAN SHIPS

America Has Right Secretary McAdoo Declares, But is Silent on Diplomatic Aspect of Case

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The right of the United States to buy merchant ships of any nationality for neutral uses cannot be disputed by any nation, declared Secretary McAdoo of the treasury department today before the house merchant marine committee supporting the administration merchant marine bill. Mr. McAdoo refused, however, to discuss the diplomatic phases of the situation when asked if protests had been received from Great Britain or France against the the possible government purchase of German vessels.

Hearings on the bill were concluded today and it will be taken up tomorrow for immediate action. An early report to the house is expected.

BRITISH TROOPS PLAY HEROIC PART IN DESPERATE FIGHTING

Regardless of Sacrifice of Human Life Germans Throw Masses Against Left Wing of Allies Which Is Again Pushed Back Slightly Toward Paris

AMERICAN AMBASSADOR CABLES PROTEST AGAINST AEROPLANE ATTACKS ON PARIS

Thin Khaki Line Stands Firm Under Accurate Shell Fire and Repels Huge Forces of Infantry With Cold Steel. Situation Unchanged in Centre and Right--Rear Attack on Enemy May Be Plan

(Special Cable to The Daily News and New York Times.)
LONDON, Sept. 1.—Martin H. Donohue, telegraphing to the Chronicle from the town of "Blank" in France, says:

"Desperate fighting, in which the British troops are playing a heroic part, is taking place close by. The right wing of the allied forces forming the northern army has been fiercely engaged in the vicinity to the south of Mezieres, but it is against the British, or left wing, that the Germans are flinging the whole of their weight, regardless of the enormous sacrifice of human life entailed. The enemy seems bent on breaking through our defensive line and so is pushing back the allies nearer to Paris. The battle, which is still at an inconclusive stage, was preceded by heavy artillery fire. The German guns were well served and the aim of their gunners was rendered accurate by the observation of aeroplanes, which throughout the day hovered above the allies' positions, correcting any wild firing on the part of the German guns.

"Freshly arrived troops who had been pushed forward from a certain base arrived at the scene of action in time to participate in the great struggle which was begun today between the rival armies of Germany, Great Britain and France.

British Joyful at Fight Prospects.

"These reinforcements had been carrying out strategic movements for several days and in the expressive phraseology of the soldiers, 'they were fed up with the whole thing'

"They were all eager for a brush with the enemy Their chance came yesterday. I happened to be at a certain town when these freshly arrived men, of whom a large per cent were reserve men, were suddenly ordered to the front. It was indeed a joyous moment and the order to march, which was greeted with cheers, was obeyed with alacrity. As our men led off along the road which led to the front, they gave three cheers for the French and an equal number of groans for 'William the Weed.' No doubt they somehow or other confused the prince of Albania as Weed, the nickname by which the army in France designates the Prussian war lord, and it is a sobriquet by which frequent application has become exceedingly popular with our brave soldiers. Yesterday they went gaily marching to the front with the French and English flags borne at the head of the company. They were in fine fettle.

"'Are we downhearted?' would shout some one from the ranks. Immediately would come back the reply, 'No, but William the Weed will be downhearted by the time we finish with him.'

British Halt Enemy's Legions.

"An overwhelming German force was thrown against our left wing. The German impetuosity spent itself in a vain effort to overcome the British resistance. The fight for supremacy which continued throughout the day is by no means ended. The brunt of attack was splendidly borne by our soldiers. Never did the unflinching bulldog courage of the British show to better advantage. The heavy and well directed German artillery fire made little impression on our men, although the casualties entailed by the splendid resistance of the British were necessarily heavy. The German artillery fire ceased to permit advance to close quarters of the assaulting infantry. Masses of German infantry for hours hurled themselves against British steel.

Germans Fall in Heaps.

"After a day of the most sanguinary fighting our brave fellows were compelled to give ground slowly. The slight advantage obtained by German soldiers was dearly purchased. The attacking German infantry fell in heaps.

"Stories of recent German atrocities, perpetrated on helpless wounded, maddened our men to a point of fury.

"On the right centre, the French, more fortunate than ourselves, contrived to hold their own. Toward evening when the full force of the German attack had spent itself, the French delivered a sharp counter attack, repulsing the enemy along its front. The German losses are stated to be heavy.

Thin Khaki Line Bars Way.

"The battle was continued today by a fresh onslaught on the British constituting the left flank. According to the last information which reached me, our troops are being reinforced and they are confident of being able to check the enemy's advance. The Germans are displaying extraordinary recklessness and are flinging away thousands of lives in the hope of ultimately gaining their end. No doubt the advance of the Russians in eastern Prussia has something to do with this and is responsible for the insane and frantic haste which characterizes the German attempts in northern France to smash the thin khaki line which so valiantly bars the road toward Paris."

Left Wing Moves Back.

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
PARIS, Sept. 1.—The following official statement was issued from the war office tonight:

"On our left wing, as a result of the turning movement of the German army and in order not to accept battle under unfavorable conditions, our troops retired toward the south and southwest. In the region of Rethel our forces have arrested the enemy momentarily. In the centre and right the situation remains unchanged.

"An American committee, organized by the American ambassador and some of the more conspicuous members of the American colony, asked the minister for proofs that bombs were dropped on Paris from a German machine. The minister of war presented proof, which decided the ambassador to cable to his government a report of the war methods which are not only contrary to humanity but in violation of the convention of The Hague signed by Germany itself.

"The committee has decided to ask the United States government, while remaining neutral, to protest energetically to the German government.

"A squadron of armored aeroplanes has been ordered to give chase to the German aeroplanes which have been flying over Paris."

Get Used to Bombs

The operations of the German aeroplanes over Paris have been watched with equanimity by the people. The first day the operations caused some nervousness among the women, the second day it was already an old story, and the third day they provoked for the most part scarcely any remark.

A German monoplane dropped a bomb at the rue Michodiere and the rue du Quatre Septembre, near the Lyonnaise, this afternoon. A gun mounted on the bank fired four shots at the aeroplanes and two English infantrymen fired their rifles repeatedly.

Another bomb was dropped near St. Lazarre station. Neither bomb did any damage.

Aeroplane Was Hit

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
PARIS, Sept. 2, 12:15 a.m.—The report that the aeroplane which dropped bombs yesterday had been brought down by the fire of machine guns in the outskirts of Paris has not been confirmed, but it is certain that it was struck, because it distinctly was seen to careen before it disappeared from the view of those who were watching in the city.

One bomb fell in the due de Hanover, near the avenue de la Opera, without doing damage. Another in the rue de Main did not explode. It broke through the roof of a house but did only minor damage. A bomb fell in the court of a house in the rue Joubert and blew out the windows, but did no other harm.

Another bomb has been found in

DELIVERANCE SOON, SAYS AVIATOR TO BRUSSELS

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
LONDON, Sept. 1, 6 p.m.—The Antwerp correspondent of an Amsterdam newspaper says that a French biplane appeared over Brussels Saturday and in a hail of German bullets, twice circled the town, dropping hundreds of pamphlets containing the message "Take courage; deliverance soon."

The aviator then made off, after giving the spectators a daring performance of the loop-the-loop.

The German soldiers there are behaving properly, but their officers are accused of arrogance.

The Germans have ordered a Brussels firm to make a German flag, which they say they intend to hoist over the Eiffel tower in Paris.

General Jakowski, who has succeeded General Count von Arnim as commander at Brussels, is now living in the national palace. The grand duke of Mecklenburg is residing in the city with his military staff. The headquarters of the Belgian ministers of state, the royal palace, and the palace of justice are now hospitals, filled with Belgian and German wounded.

Machine guns are in place at street corners and in the square.

Antwerp is reported to be hopeful, everyone trusting in the strength of the forts and the bravery of the garrisons.

Germans Active in Brussels

(By Daily News Leased Wire)
LONDON, Sept. 1, 8.30 p.m.—A German aeroplane flew over Ostend, according to the governor of that city.

It is reported there has been considerable movement of troops in Brussels, 8,000 being due to arrive there. The German governor of Brussels has ordered the expulsion of all British subjects within 24 hours.

Four rich men of Belgium have guaranteed the German war tax levy, in order to save Brussels, which has been threatened with destruction.

(Special Cable to the Daily News and New York Times.)
OSTEND, Sept. 1.—About 7.30 this morning, in company with O. Pickford of the Daily Chronicle, I saw a German aeroplane flying above the town at a height of about 500 feet. After flying around the town twice it disappeared in the direction of Antwerp.

GERMANS CLAIM GREAT VICTORIES EAST AND WEST

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—There was jubilation today at the German embassy on the occasion of the forty-fourth anniversary of the battle of Sedan, when a long official despatch was received from Berlin, claiming big victories for German arms on both east and west frontiers of Germany. The despatch claims that 70,000 Russian prisoners were captured in the East Prussia operations, including the Russian general commander and the Russian army corps were annihilated. The field army of European Russia consists of 23 army corps, each of which consists of two divisions.

Here is the text of the embassy's message from Berlin:

"Press and associated official reports of the victory at Allenstein, eastern Prussia, show it was even greater than known before. Three Russian army corps annihilated, 70,000 prisoners, including two commanding generals, 300 officers and complete artillery Russian army.

"In the west Gen. von Kluk repulsed French flanking attempt, advanced on Combles.

"Gen. von Buelow completely defeated French forces near St. Quentin after having captured English infantry battalion. Gen. von Hausen forced back the French upon the river Aisne.

"Duke of Wurtemburg crossed Meuse, also advancing upon Aisne.

"The crown prince advanced to the Meuse after capturing entire garrison of Montneye, which tried sortie, also fortress captured.

"The crown prince of Bavaria and Gen. von Heeringen in continuous battle in French Lorraine.

"Today, Sedan's day, celebrate it with jubilation because of victorious news from east and west arrived last night.

"The Russian defeat of Ortelsburg reminds us of Sedan by the huge number of prisoners.

"The Brazilian military attache at Berlin writes that German victories are no surprise for those who witnessed maneuvers in peace; declares Krupp heavy artillery astonishing.

"The Times (London) correspondent reports 'Germans came over us like flood-raised stream.'

"During the first month of the war over 2,000,000 German volunters came forward. Chief of the German surgeons officially declares English and French troops use dum-dum cartridges. State of health of German army good. Noted hygienists accompany the army."

rue de Moskoe. It was loaded with bullets.

The bombs found in the rue de Hanover and rue du Quatre-Septembre were probably intended for the Bank of France. It is supposed that a bomb thrown on Tuesday was aimed at Notre Dame and the one thrown on Monday at the east station. The result shows that either the Germans must have been bad marksmen or the bomb throwing was intended for a moral effect.

Still Holding Fast

(Special Cable to The Daily News and New York Times.)

PARIS, Sept. 1.—Stephen Pichon's article in the Petit Journal represents the tone of today's press.

"The last official communique," he says, "gives for the first time a general idea of the situation of our army since the concentration has been finished. One may say that they had not ceased fighting and that their resistance power is still good, as well as their attacking energy. Doubtless we have had serious reverses but our line is till unpierced. Though beaten at certain points, we are able to hold fast. It is by holding fast that we shall win."

The Figaro, comparing yesterday's French and British communiques, says:

"There is no contradiction between them. Any one reading them cannot fail to have in his heart a well of hope. On the northern frontal the extreme left was momentarily imperiled but is now safe. The right drove back the enemy. The feature of the report is the allusion to the enemy's heavy losses, showing that they are risking everything with the hope of reaching Paris. It is the supreme spasm to which we must devote supreme energy to render it powerless."

Sees Disaster for Germans

The Echo de Paris, in an editorial headed, "Unshakeable Confidence," says:

"The Germans have admitted that speed was a matter of life or death for them. They calculated on reaching Paris on Aug. 25. It is now Sept. 1 and they are not here yet. Should they come, what faces them? Their whole left flank would be pressed by powerful armies and they would be threatened in the rear by being cut off from their base.

"Forced to weaken their invading army for the purpose of protecting Prussia against the Russians, how can they fail to find here the beginning of defeat?"

Georges Clemenceau, whose cessation for the last two days of his violent criticism of the government is said to be due to urgent appeals from headquarters, still expressed dissatisfaction with the latest communiques.

"The measures taken," he said, "will doubtless give the troop commanders, whose ability is equal to the exigencies of the situation, encouragement. Never was this more necessary for if they have decided to tell us that our troops were forced to give way they do not say how far the retreat extended, which is certainly not a good sign, but there is no need for alarm if the entrenched camp of Paris is in a good state of defense."

Paris was singularly unmoved yesterday at the sight of another German airman, the second in the last few days—high over the city. It attracted groups staring skyward. Finally a woman spoke: "It must be a German; ours are forbidden the city limits."

People Keep Cool

That settled the matter and the group quietly dispersed. As the Journal says, apropos of the wonderful sang froid of the populace: "The peoples' coolness might often be an example to persons higher up."

Newsboys are not allowed to cry their wares.

I have had conversations with an officer who has just returned from the fighting zone. He is confident of eventual success.

"We are far from being a beaten army," he said. "France is no more beaten than the North was after the battle of Bull Run. I tell you the Germans lost thousands for every mile they advanced. Wait a few days and you will see after all that Joffre is a great general. The Germans will soon cease to advance."

Another officer said:

"The Germans cannot invest Paris while the mobile opposition of the army exists and the French army is mobile. The Germans have their biggest fight before them. But in case they do attempt the investment of Paris, the fortifications, which I have seen many times, are extremely strong. There is a possibility that they may follow the plan used at Liege and concentrate their attack on two forts. In that case their losses will be appalling."

Great Battle Again Rages.

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)

LONDON, Sept. 1.—A Paris report this morning said the spirit of the British and French armies was excellent. The British transport arrangements are working well and the German supply arrangements are said to have been broken down and the men are living on horse flesh.

Today is Sedan anniversary and fighting has been resumed along the whole front. The German right wing continues its advance. It is not known at this time if the British are engaged today or not.

The Times correspondent says a great battle is in progress at Croisilles.

Suggests Rear Attack on Foe.

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)

Antwerp Prepares for Siege.

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)

LONDON, Sept. 2.—The Mail's Antwerp correspondent says that the military governor yesterday issued a proclamation calling on all persons not domiciled in the city before Aug. 1 to leave by next Thursday.

All disobeying this order will be treated as suspicious persons and court martialed.

The object is to get rid of refugees who have flocked to the city, the feeding of whom would be a serious tax on the city's supply.

"I am told there 's several months' supply in the city but that nobody can tell how long the siege would last," the correspondent adds.

WHEN A BATTLESHIP WAS BLOWN UP

Graphic Description of Destruction of Russian Monster—Was Sent to Bottom by Mine

In the Russian service review, The Army and the Navy, Grand Duke Cyril gives a graphic personal narrative of the foundering of the battleship Petropavlovsk, destroyed by a Japanese floating mine about ten years ago outside Port Arthur harbor. The grand duke, who was one of the few survivors, writes:

"It was dirty weather on April 13, and our attention was turned on the unequal fight which our torpedo boat Strashny was keeping up outside with the Japanese. Then the sad news was brought by the Bayan, which under hot fire saved the Strashny's commander and four of her crew when she was sunk.

"Through the night Admiral Makaroff could not bear the thought that there might still be around the spot where the Strashny went down some of her men still struggling against death. He was determined to satisfy himself personally. He ordered the Bayan to lead the way to the place. Admiral Makaroff, with his staff, went over from the Dnana at 7 o'clock to the outer roadstead. The other battleships moved on behind us, but remained in the inner roadstead. As we passed out from the narrows we were steaming 14 knots.

Makaroff Retreats

"Soon the Bayan signalled that she sighted the enemy, who forthwith opened fire on her. Makaroff ordered the Petropavlovsk to advance and we answerd the enemy's fire. As we advanced the Japanese began to retire but later we saw on the horizon another squadron of the enemy drawing up. As he saw the greatly reinforced fleet of the Japanese Admiral Makaroff decided to turn back so as to be nearer the coast batteries. We steamed back at high speed. The enemy slowed down as if undecided and hesitating.

"When we had got within the protection of the coast batteries we slackened speed and the crew was allowed to go to dinner. The officers began little by little to disperse. On the bridge there remained only Makaroff, the ship's commander, Capt. Yacovleff, Vice-Admiral Molas, Lieut. Wolff, the artist Verestchagin and myself. I was standing with Verestchagin on the starboard side of the bridge, Verestchagin was sketching the Japanese squadron and as he worked he spoke of other campaigns that he had made. With great assurance he said that he was fully convinced that where he was nothing could happen amiss.

Terrifying Explosion

"With great suddenness a terrifying explosion burst near us. The battleship quivered with frightful violence and almost at once a rush of hot, suffocating gas came up like a gust with enormous force and burned my face. All the air was filled with a penetrating smell which seemed to me to be the smell of our ammunition. The Petropavlovsk immediately began to list heavily to starboard.

"I ran across the deck to port. I had to jump over the body of Admiral Molas, whose head was bleeding. He lay beside the bodies of two signalmen. I climbed up a 12-ft. turret and then I realized that our magazine had exploded and that our ship was foundering. All the starboard side was already awash, with waves beating on the deck. She was also going down by the bow, and it could not be long till she was engulfed.

Whirled and Swallowed Up

"I shinned down from the tower and at once threw myself into the water. A strong wave lifted me and a current spun me round as in a maelstrom and threw me far out from the ship, where I was still whirled around and at the same time sucked down. A dreadful noise of water and complete darkness overwhelmed me. I felt that I was going straight to death. I made the sign of the cross and began to pray. I remembered all my family relations and those dear to me. It seemed that my last moment had come, for respiration was getting impossible and by panting for breath I was swallowing water and began to choke.

"Instinctively I started using my hands and legs and then to my surprise I felt myself rising toward the surface and the sense of things around me seemed lighter. I gathered hope and energy. Another sharp struggle and I was on the surface of a fairly calm sea. I caught hold of a piece of floating wood and noticed that I was some distance from the Petropavlovsk, which continued to settle down. Her stern was now standing up nearly vertical and the propellers were still revolving in the air.

"That moment stamped itself deep in my memory. I saw the floating roof of the battleship's cutter drifting near me. I let go my plank and seized the handrail of the roof. Next I saw swimming past me a midshipman by name Schlippe. I called to him but he did not answer. Later I learned that both his eardrums had been burst by the explosion. Then in the distance I saw a big rowboat. I shouted, but no one heard me. I still had the hope of being saved and did not feel my strength abating.

Rescued at Last

"At last I was seen, and a boat from the torpedo boat Gaydamak came up to me. Two sailors had difficulty in lifting me out of the water, for my heavy overcoat was sodden with the sea. From the boat I was taken to the deck of the torpedo boat Bezshumny. There in the cabin my body was rubbed with vodka. I was given warm clothing and cognac, and at once they informed my brother Boris, who from the Golden Hill had seen the entire catastrophe. Later he himself arrived and took me from the torpedo boat to his personal railway train.

"The news of the perishing of Admiral Makaroff and his officers and men and the loss of the ship weighed on me as something irreparable. And the death of my best friend, Lieut. von Kube, added to this, made all these disasters fall on me like blows that will never be effaced from my memory."

As Seen From Shore

His brother, Grand Duke Boris, contributes his personal narrative of the disaster as he felt it as an onlooker ashore. His orderly awakened him about dawn to tell him of the cannonade in which the Bayan was engaged. He and other officers rode up to the top of the Golden Hill and turned their glasses across the harbor. They had scarcely fixed their attention on the ships when they saw the Petropavlovsk's disaster and how she was plainly foundering.

Distracted at the sight and at what he felt was the sure death of his brother, Boris writes that he hastened back to his train and knelt in front of the ikon that had been given him by his brother Andre.

"I prayed fervently," he proceeds. "'Oh, God, work a miracle and save my brother.' And then a ray of hope cheered me. And in almost the next minute I saw a midshipman driving up in frantic speed to my train. I felt that he was the bearer of good news even before he said, 'Your brother is saved.' I hurried at once to Cyril's side and found him greatly shaken. He kept saying to himself, 'Poor Kube, poor Kube.'"

COUNTY CRICKET SERIES OFF BECAUSE OF WAR

(Canadian Associated Press.)

LONDON, Sept. 1.—The decision of the Surrey county cricket club to abandon its remaining fixtures, owing to the crisis means in effect that there will be no championship this year as at the time the decision was reached Surrey led by only a narrow margin from Middlesex. Derbyshire beat Worcester by five wickets today. Worcester's scores were 311 and 130 and Derbyshire's 206 for wicket.

MUST NOT ANNOUNCE SAILINGS FROM CANADA

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)

OTTAWA, Sept. 1—The government has issued an official statement calling the attention of the press to the necessity for preserving secrecy at the present as to the sailing of vessels from Canadian waters or as to the movements of Canadian troops. A strong intimation has been received from the imperial authorities as to the importance of silence in these particular instances.

The government adds:

"If the press fails to comply with this official request, prompt and effective means will be taken to enforce the observance."

thorities to keep my commission at work on its organization and offer a corps in four months' time. We have already had a most generous response in both volunteers and donations. We must equip the corps ourselves. The regiment will be composed of one and a half battalions of infantry, three troops of mounted infantry or rough riders, and maxim, ambulance and transport detachments. If enough volunteers we may have to form additional regiments. We have secured the exclusive use of a drill hall at London equipped with a gymnasium, rifle range, baths and so forth, and propose getting down to work immediately.

"Instead of numbering our companies, the troops or detachments, we propose to name them after the donors of equipment and after American states and cities. Complete cost of equipping a single troop is $3,300. Most of our horses will have to come from America's remount department here as we may need all suitable horses in Britain."

Lord Lyveden said the contingent would have officers of honor which would include women as well as men who are unable to enroll as active members. There will be no enlistment from the United States and an American born cannot be asked to join the enrolment, which will be conducted here. Lord Lyveden explained as reasons for organizing the contingent that he spent many years in North Carolina and was deeply interested in America and knows how anxious Americans are to help Great Britain. He said the staff already had been secured and was composed of retired officers, non-commissioned officers and surgeons, but the majority of the officers were non-commissioned and were appointed from volunteers. The uniforms are to be of khaki with green facings and campaign hats and the badge will be an eagle.

DRILL AND SIGNAL SQUADS ORGANIZED

Nelson and Other Cities Prepare for Sending Volunteers to Second Canadian Contingent

Drilling and signalling squads from among the local men who have signed the roll at the armory as desirous of enlisting should a call be sent forth from the militia department at Ottawa for a second contingent from Canada to assist the Empire in the European struggle were formed last night. There were about 20 in the classes and the drilling squad was put through its maneuvers by Sergt. Thomas Keith, while the signallers were in charge of Instructor J. Foster.

Arrangements have been completed for the holding of the drilling classes on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays of each week, while the signallers will hold classes on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Further names were added to the list at the armory last night of those desirous of leaving with a second contingent and it is the opinion of those in charge of the roll that there would be no difficulty in recruiting as many men from this district for a second contingent as left with the first.

The armory will be open at 7:30 o'clock each evening in future and the drilling and signalling squads will commence their work at 8 o'clock.

It is expected that formal application will be made to the minister of militia to form the regiment and equip it with uniforms and everything necessary to make it an efficient unit of the Canadian militia.

ONTARIO ORGANIZES AGAINST UNEMPLOYMENT

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)

TORONTO, Sept. 1.—At a meeting held today in the city at the invitation of the mayor, the Industrial Association of the Province of Ontario was organized.

Representatives of the cabinet, Hon. James Duff and Hon. W. J. Hanna, members of the local and Dominion parliaments, presidents of boards of trade and representatives of the Canadian Manufacturers, sat with the mayors of cities and towns in an endeavor to evolve some solution so that the army of unemployed might find work and the suffering be reduced to the minimum.

A large committee was formed and various suggestions for solving the unemployment problem will be considered. It was decided to add wardens of counties to the general committee and also that negotiations should be made in a hurry, but with due consideration of the formulation of a definite and comprehensive plan. Mayor Hocken presided and speeches were made by Messrs. Hanna and Duff.

GIVE GENEROUSLY FOR TRAIL FAIR

New Smelter Stack Is in Operation—Is Huge Concrete Landmark—Means Increased Capacity

(Special to The Daily News.)

TRAIL, B. C., Sept. 1.—An extraordinary meeting of the directors of the Trail Fruit Fair association was held last evening to discuss the advisability or otherwise of holding the regular fair here this month. A meeting had been held on Saturday evening at which it was arranged to make an appeal to the townsfolk for funds before arriving at any definite decision. A committee waited on the people yesterday with the result that that committee was able to report that the sum of approximately $600 had been donated. The association now feels fully justified in holding the fair and the dates are Sept. 17 and 18. Any person who gave a donation will be allowed to exhibit free of any further charge and the Elks' quartet, which was such a success at the fair last year, has been re-engaged.

The new concrete stack of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting company went into active service yesterday. It is a huge landmark and stands away above the other stacks on the works. It is 250 ft. high and 18 ft. inside diameter and was built, it is understood, on account of the vastly increased capacity of the copper furnaces, which have been, one by one, rebuilt to accommodate the increased ore receipts.

F. W. Pretty of Rossland visited Trail this afternoon.

Messrs. Niven, mining engineers of Rossland and Meldrum of Trail, with their respective families, returned from a camping trip up the Columbia river this afternoon. They were camped opposite J. D. Anderson's fruit farm and had lots of sport in the fishing line.

BUY HORSES FOR THREE CONTINGENTS

Many Mounts Are Purchased at Ottawa for Canadian Divisions and British Army.

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)

OTTAWA, Sept. 1.—The men of the 5th P. L. D. G. are having a busy time taking care of the great number of horses that are coming to Ottawa for the militia department from all directions. The army service corps horses were loaded for Valcartier Monday, over 400 of them, and later about 60 horses arrived by train from Lindsay, Ont. There are about 100 ready for shipment now.

While individual owners are bringing in unsuitable horses, the dealers now have a pretty good idea of what kind of horses are wanted.

The department is evidently buying enough horses this time to equip the second and third contingents as well as the first.

Large purchases of horses are being made for the British government.

POTASH SUPPLY IS STOPPED BY THE WAR

Farming Must Suffer by Checking of Shipments by German Syndicate

A cablegram has been received from the Kali Syndicate of Germany, which controls the world's supply of potash, informing fertilizer manufacturers that, owing to the fear of German vessels being seized until peace had been restored in Europe, no more potash will be shipped to this country.

The Kali Syndicate controls 53 potash mines in Germany, which furnish the potash to the world. Over one million tons of potash are shipped annually to the United States, about 75,000 tons of that amount coming to Baltimore. It is known that the German steamship Bohemia sailed a few days ago from Hamburg, Germany, with about 5,000 tons of potash on it for Baltimore, consigned to one of the largest fertilizing works in the city. This is thought will be the last potash shipped to this country for a long time.

The Kali Syndicate determines the quantity that shall be produced by each mine and also fix the price and the quantity of potash that shall be shipped out of Germany.

It is impossible to manufacture fertilizers without potash, and, as the spring shipments of potash from Germany have been virtually exhausted, it will be very difficult for the manufacturers of fertilizers to produce their product, as the United States government requires them to state the quantity of potash in each brand of fertilizer. The cutting off of the supply of potash will mean an increase in the price of farm products, especially wheat. There is still a limited amount of fertilizer on hand, and when that is exhausted, prices are expected to soar. Limited amounts of potash are being gotten from the kelp seaweed on the Pacific coast and also from mines discovered in Arizona, but as yet the amount produced is of little value commercially. The mines in Arizona are being developed under the direction of the United States government and may some day be of value. Potash, it is said, has also been found in the lava which has flowed from Mount Vesuvius.

WHY WORRY, ASKS McGRAW

"Why worry?" said McGraw, the Little Napoleon of baseball. "It's all the better for the game, isn't it, that the race should be closer and more thrilling? We'll come through at the finish; we're not broken down or exhausted, and we'll be there when all these temporary sprints and flurries have died away. If any of the other clubs can catch us and step on us and beat us out—why, that's all right; we'll take our medicine, and we'll be glad to see the best club win out—twice as glad if that club can only trim the Athletics and bring back the big honors to the old league.

"But we don't expect to be beaten out; we'll come back all right—for that matter we've never been away—and, just for a change, we'll astonish all you folks by beating the Mackmen in October. The team is in good shape and none of the boys are worrying. I won't let 'em. Lookahere, you (to a very young Giant who was passing), are you worrying?"

"N-no, sir," stammered the young Giant, hurling himself into the nearest elevator. "Not a bit! 'Scuse me, please, I gotta go get my hair cut!"

"Nope," smiled John J., "I'm not fretting. As for the team—we're perfectly willing to let the other fellows tear each other to slivers—we can save up our energies, and then, on the stretch, take them on as they come along, one at a time, and dispose of them."

EFFORT TO STOP MINORU RACE MEET IS BLOCKED

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 1.—The efforts of the attorney-general to suppress the racing meet at Minoru park by means of an interim injunction of the supreme court, were rendered futile this morning by Mr. Justice Clements, who on learning the facts in connection with the application refused to continue to hear the application and summarily dismissed it with costs. His lordship's action was the result of learning that the applicant, Connors, through whom the application was made, was not a bona fide investor of the British Columbia Thoroughbred association but had merely bought one share for the purpose of acquiring status to come before the court and ask for an injunction to stop the race meet.

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN TO TURKEY?

Just what will happen to Turkey and particularly to the Dardanelles if the sublime porte, which appears to be following its traditional policy of vacillation, decides to throw the support of the Ottoman Empire to Germany and Austria is a question as to which there is much speculation.

"Drive the Turk out of Europe," is a cry which has been made at many times in the past century and on more than one occasion Turkey has been saved from the loss of the Dardanelles, which would practically have meant the extinction of the Ottoman empire in Europe, by the great powers, and notably by Great Britain.

It is around the disposition of the Dardanelles, the long narrow strait between Europe and Asia which connects the Aegean sea with the sea of Marmora, that most interest would centre in the event of Turkish participation in the struggle and the anticipated disaster to the Ottoman nation.

The Dardanelles is about 45 miles in length and is from one to five miles in width. In conjunction with the Bosphorus, the strait which connects the sea of Marmora with the Black sea, the Dardanelles is of tremendous strategic importance, particularly to Russia which has no other outlet from the Black sea. By several treaties, the most recent of which was drawn up at the congress of Berlin and signed by the powers and Turkey in 1878, warships are practically prohibited from passage and Turkey also was given power under certain conditions, to refuse the right of merchantmen to use the straits.

The Crimean war was a struggle which was brought about directly through a dispute as to the Christian church in Asiatic Turkey but which in fact was caused by the refusal of Great Britain and France to allow Turkey to be driven out of Europe and the Dardanelles to fall into the hands of Russia which might have used its rapidly growing naval and military power to the disadvantage of the allies in the Mediterranean and in other directions.

Again in 1878 during the Russo-Turkish imbroglio a British fleet sailed up the Dardanelles to protect Constantinople against the Russians.

Under the conditions prevailing since the formation of the triple entente France and Britain might have less objection to granting Russia an outlet for her navy from the Black sea, where at the present time the czar has seven battleships in commission, three under construction and a large number of smaller craft.

It seems more likely, however, that a war with Turkey as one of the participants on the side of Germany and Austria would be followed by some arrangements for joint control of the straits which would assure their neutrality.

In any event if Turkey sees in the present conflagration an opportunity to regain some of the territory which was lost in the recent Balkan war there does not seem to be much doubt as to what would happen to Constantinople and other cities and fortresses which could be reached by the Russian Black sea fleet and by the Franco-British ships operating from the Aegean sea.

On land the Turk is a good fighter but there is no reason to suppose that Bulgaria and Greece would do otherwise than combine against a power whose success could hardly fail to mean loss of territory for them. Russia could also spare a few hundred thousand troops to harass the sultan on land.

On the face of it Turkey would be wise to preserve her neutrality faithfully and to drop the flirtation with Germany which has threatened to cause complications on more than one occasion in recent years.

WHY GREAT BRITAIN DOES NOT SERIOUSLY FEAR FAMINE.

Official figures giving the importations of foodstuffs to Great Britain during the six months ending on June 30, give good grounds for the frequent statement by British cabinet ministers that there is no reason for alarm as to possible famine conditions.

The most important grain is wheat and of the importations of 45,000,000 cwt. of this food for the first half of this year only 7,500 cwts. came from the present war area, exclusive of Russia, which sent 6,083,300 cwts. The other countries from which the wheat supply was chiefly secured were the United States, 13,086,312 cwts.; Australia, 8,590,249 cwts.; Canada, 9,449,229 cwts.; Argentine Republic, 5,511,260 cwts.

Out of a total import of 5,844,900 cwts. of barley for the first six months of this year, nearly one-third came from the United States, almost 1,000,000 cwts. from Canada, and between 2,000,000 cwts. and 3,000,000 cwts. from Russia, Roumania and Turkey.

The situation as to oats is somewhat different, Germany having sent 2,378,700 cwts.; Argentine sent 3,518,100 cwts.; Russia, 857,600 cwts.; Roumania, 300,600 cwts.; United States, 560,515 cwts.; Canada, 553,800 cwts.

Maize was imported as follows: Russia, 363,100 cwts.; Roumania, 3,186,700 cwts. and Argentine 7,263,300 cwts.

From these figures it will be seen that only as regards oats has Great Britain been a heavy importer from a country with which communication is cut off. It is true that the Russian, Turkish and Roumanian surplus of barley, oats, maize which has been hitherto exported may be consumed nearer home during the progress of hostilities but this shortage and that of Russia in wheat should easily be covered by increased exportations to Great Britain by Canada, the United States and Argentine, the latter country supplying the deficiency in maize.

There appears to be no danger of the United Kingdom suffering from a shortage in frozen and chilled meat. Imported beef and mutton consists almost entirely of the chilled product from the Argentine and the Antipodes. Of a total of 3,242,188 cwts. of chilled beef which came to Great Britain in the first six months of this year, 3,165,274 cwts. were brought from the Argentine republic. Of frozen beef the Argentine sent 521,424 cwts. out of a total of 1,813,789 cwts. Australia sent 691,467 cwts and Uruguay 401,270 cwts. Supplies of frozen mutton come from the same quarters of in the world. For this product New Zealand is the greatest source of supply, sending 1,419,997 cwts. out of a total of 3,113,965 cwts. for the period employed as a basis. Australia supplied 898,302 cwts and the Argentine 645,284 cwts.

Britain is more dependent on European countries for such articles as bacon, poultry, butter, cheese and eggs but a total import of 2,602,087 cwts. of bacon, 1,355,907 cwts. came from Denmark and 814,388 cwts. from the United States. Of 2,208,793 cwts. of butter, Russia, Sweden and Denmark supplied 1,300,000 cwts. of which Russia supplied 303,229 cwts. Australia was responsible for 155,393 cwts.

Most of the cheese—609,907 cwts. out of 981,970 cwts. in six months—came from New Zealand, 132,349 cwts. from Canada, and 137,848 cwts. from the Netherlands.

Russia sent Great Britain 4,015,594 great hundreds of eggs of a total import of 10,279,986 great hundreds. From Denmark was received 1,655,609 great hundreds; from the Netherlands 782,659 great hundreds, and from Italy 714,454 great hundreds.

With the trade routes between all these countries, with the exception of Germany, open and safe for the passage of cargo steamers there seems no reason for alarm as to the food situation in Great Britain. Owing, however, to the fact that some of the European countries which have been exporting may find other and more profitable outlets for their products the British dominions, particularly Canada and Australasia, and such countries as the United States and Argentine, should reap great benefit and find no difficulty in supplying the deficiency which, although large enough to make a notable difference in their trade, does not appear to be of a proportion to justify any fears of famine prices in the exporting or importing countries.

ELEVATOR CHARGE REDUCTIONS ARE MADE

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)

WINNIPEG, Sept. 1.—Cordial efforts toward co operation between all the interests connected with the grain trade were the effects of a session of the grain commission here today. The last business dealt with was the tariff of terminal elevators. It was approved as it stood last year, with the exception of two changes, both involving reductions and a point respecting shrinkage charges which is held over for decision pending the receipt of some information from the terminal people.

Both the reductions referred to were placed in the tariff on the initiative of the terminal elevator companies themselves. One provides for the elimination of the charge of 1 per cent shrinkage on tough and damp grain. The other cuts out the double charge, amounting to 1½ cents a bushel, on bin-burned and heated grain. This charge now comes down to 3-4c

HAIRS QUICKLY VANISH AFTER THIS TREATMENT.

(Helps to Beauty.)

Science has aided in simplifying the banishing of hairy growths from the face, and according to a beauty specialist, the most effective treatment yet devised consists of applying a delatone paste to the hairy surface for two or three minutes. The paste is made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. When this paste is removed and the skin washed every trace of hair has vanishd. Be sure to get real delatone.

a larger vessel of different lines and passengers familiar with both were positive no mistake in identity had been made.

The Canadian naval authorities have denied that either British or Japanese ships are south of Canadian boundaries.

British vessels continue to arrive and leave here without concern.

The British consul apparently knows the position of the German cruisers.

The escape of the Japanese liner Chiyo maru Saturday night from a hostile cruiser, taken in conjunction with the arrival of the Nurnberg in Honolulu today established approximately the position of the Liepzig. She must be about midway between San Francisco and Honolulu, hovering over the trade route.

Idzuma Left Esquimalt Monday

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)

Expect Leipzig to Dismantle.

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 1.—There has been a relaxation of the activity of the three cruisers using Esquimalt as a base since it was officially announced that the German cruiser Leipzig no longer was a menace to commerce.

It is thought in Vancouver that the Leipzig may enter an American port and dismantle until the end of the war. The Leipzig has not been reported since Aug. 19 when she held up the American steamer Catania off Cape Mendocina, Cal.

Nurnburg at Honolulu.

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)

HONOLULU, Sept. 1.—The German cruiser Nurnburg, whose whereabouts have been a mystery since it left here early last month, appeared off this port early today.

Inasmuch as the Nurnburg left here 35 days ago, just before war was declared between Germany and Great Britain, she is entitled now to take on as much coal, and no more, as will carry her to the nearest home port and may remain in port 24 hours.

Preparations for coaling were made at once, especial care being taken that no Japanese should be among the coalers.

NONCONFORMISTS URGED TO ENLIST

Prowess of Oliver Cromwell Referred to by Dr. Robertson Nicoll in Appeal for Recruits.

(Special Cable to The Daily News and New York Times.)

LONDON, Sept. 1—Sir William Robertson Nicoll, editor of the British Weekly, issues the following appeal:

"I call on all nonconformists who can fight to set down their names in this hour of need and to enlist without delay. That nonconformists are neither cowardly nor incapable when called to fight in war the glorious name of Oliver Cromwell sufficiently attests.

"That this is a most righteous and necessary struggle is a proposition which cannot be contested, for it is a war that was none of our seeking. We strove for peace to the last moment, if not to the last second of the last hour, and we strove in vain. The contention was forced upon us. We went into this war because it involved the keeping of our sacred obligations. We were bound by a treaty and we went forth in the cause of the smaller nations, and especially in the cause of Belgium, which has kept its troth with us so bravely.

"We are now fighting for our very lives as a nation. If we are subjugated by Germany we have no higher future before us than the life of a tributary province, harrassed and humiliated at every point, a life so intolerable that death is preferable.

"In particular this is a war for the people. They have seen it and they perceived that the existence of the democracy, as it has flourished in this country, is threatened with a death wound.

"When the war is over and peace arrives, the world will enter in a day bright with promise for those who follow us. The result of this world war may depend on a slight preponderance of force on either side and every man who can fight is wanted and wanted at once."

ASQUITH CALMS PARTY FEELING

Irish Question Arouses Some Discussion in House of Commons—Parliament Adjourns.

(Canadian Associated Press.)

LONDON, Sept. 1.—An ebullition of party feeling occurred in the commons last night when the prime minister moved an adjournment for 10 days. Premier Asquith, referring to the Irish question, expressed once again the hope that it might be possible, without the revival of an acute controversy, to arrive at something in the nature of a settlement.

Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the opposition, who followed, was likewise conciliatory.

This appeal had immediate effort, Bonar Law, "it will be a disgrace to this house and the country will not readily forgive those responsible."

John Redmond, who addressed the house after Mr. Law, was conciliatory also in opening but his tones hardened when he asked that the circumstances of the war should not "damnify" his party in the position in which it stood, finally asking all sections to take such action as would enable him to go back to Ireland to translate into vigorous action the spirit of the words he had recently used in the house.

Right Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, answering this, declared it as his conviction that few members would sustain the responsibility of throwing into their midst such a cause of discord at the present moment.

John Dillon later rose to speak but Premier Asquith, intervening with much gravity and eanestness, appealed to the house to bring the discussion to an end.

"If we are reduced again to the controversial measures," declared the debate suddenly collapsing.

WOMAN'S BEST MEDICINE

Mrs. Kelly Advises all Women to Take "Fruit-a-Tives"

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., AUG. 26th. 1913.

"I can highly recommend "Fruit-a-tives" because they did me an awful lot of good and I cannot speak too highly about them. About four years ago, I commenced taking "Fruit-a-tives" for a general break-down and they did me a world of good. We bought a good many dollar's worth, but it was money well spent because they did all that you claim for them. Their action is so pleasant, compared with other laxatives, that I found only pleasure, as well as health, in taking them. They seemed to me to be particularly suited to women, on account of their mild and gentle action, and I trust that some other women may start taking "Fruit-a-tives" after reading my letter, and if they do, I am satisfied the results will be the same as in my own case".

MRS. W. N. KELLY

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c, or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

WILLIAMS TAKES TENNIS HONORS FROM M'LOUGHLIN

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 1.—Catching the champion in the doldrums and playing with sustained brilliance, R. N. Williams of Philadelphia and Harvard today snatched the chief lawn tennis honor of the country from Maurice E. McLoughlin of San Francisco, who had held it for two years. Williams' victory was in straight sets, the scores being 6-3, 8-6, 10-8. The result was one of the greatest surprises of the athletic year. That Williams might take a set from the 1913 champion was generally conceded by close followers of the game but that he could make it three sets and win the match was regarded as entirely improbable.

EIGHT THOUSAND FOR NEXT DIVISION

Three Brigades Will Form First Canadian Contingent—Battalion Commander Named.

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)

VALCARTIER, Que., Sept. 1.—Plans were given out tonight by Col. Williams regarding organization of Canadian expeditionary forces. Following the announcement of Col. Hughes yesterday camp has been organized into 16 battalions instead of 12 as planned originally and four brigades instead of three. Only three brigades will be taken with the first contingent, the other brigade or battalions, probably 8,000 men, being left behind to form the nucleus of a second division.

Col. Williams stated that the surplus of volunteers, there now being over 30,000 men in camp and 2,000 or 3,000 on the road, made it necessary to form an extra brigade.

The fact that one brigade will not be taken to the front will act as an incentive for the various battalions to work hard in order to be chosen.

The battalion commanders chosen are: Lieut.-Col. G. S. Huxford, 27th light horse; Lieut.-Col. Rattray, 20th black horse; Major L. J. Lipsett, general staff; Lieut.-Col. M. Rogers, R. A.; Lieut.-Col. H. McLeod, 71st regiment; Lieut.-Col. P. Rennie, M. V. O.; Queens own rifles; Col. F. W. Land, 48th regiment; Lieut.-Col. E. B. Worthington, O. C., mounted brigade; Lieut.-Col. W. S. Buell, 41st regiment; Lieut.-Col. R. G. E. Leckie, 72nd regiment; Lieut.-Col. F. S. Meighen, 1st regiment; Lieut.-Col. F. O. Loomis, 7th regiment; Lieut.-Col. J. A. Currie, 40th Highlanders. Three more are to be appointed later.

WANTS PREMIER OF NEW BRUNSWICK JAILED

Refuses to Answer Questions Which He Considers Outside of Investigation.

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)

ST. JOHN, N. B., Sept. 1.—The investigation of the Valley railway charges against Premier Flemming and Hon. H. F. McLeod was resumed before the royal commission this morning.

Passages between counsel were marked by an acrimony which has heretofore been lacking.

Mr. Flemming after making a denial of the charges, saying that he had never received a cent from any of the contractors before they were given their contracts, nor after they were awarded contracts in consequence of any agreement made beforehand, declined to answer several of F. B. Carvell's questions. On three occasions the latter asked the court to commit the witness to jail for contempt, the application being in each case refused.

Mr. Carvell again asked for the books of the St. John & Quebec Railway company of New York, and stated that if these could be secured he would be confident that it could be shown at least $100,000 of the money had been paid to Mr. Flemming.

Mr. Carvell also sought to show that $10,000 had been paid to Mr. Flemming in Moncton by J. H. Corbett but was unable to get the evidence to do so.

Premier Flemming was called by Mr. Carvell to the stand. He recounted the preliminary arrangements for the construction of the road and the letting of the contracts. He knew that the Quebec & St. John railway was subletting contracts and to whom.

Mr. Flemming denied that Mr. Corbett paid him $10,000 in a room in the Brunswick hotel, Moncton, or that he ever paid him or caused to be paid to him any amount of money.

Question—You swear that you never got any money from Mr. Corbett that month?

Mr. Flemming refused to answer, saying that he had already done so.

The court ordered witness to answer but the latter said:

"Before answering I want to say that the charge against me is that I compelled contractors to pay me large sums before securing their contracts. I want to say that I never compelled any contractor to make any payment before receiving his contract or afterward on account of any understanding reached previously. Regarding the specific charge I will say that neither Mr. Corbett nor his son ever paid me $10,000 or any other sum as the result of such an arrangement. He might have paid me $500,000 on other business but I should not be compelled to answer questions outside the limits of this inquiry."

Mr. Fowler—If he follows my advice he will not answer.

The question was repeated and the premier refused to answer.

Mr. Carvell drew attention to the provisions in the act and asked for the commitment of the defendent.

The chairman pointed out that witness was the man against whom the charge was laid and that he could hardly expect to have him committed for refusing to answer questions.

After further argument in which Mr. Carvell maintained that witness could not refuse to answer unless the answer would incriminate him, it was decided the commitment would not be issued.

Mr. Carvell—Did not Mr. Gould pay you money in Portland for election purposes?

Premier Flemming—I never received for my own use or benefit any such money from Mr. Gould for any purpose nor from Mr. Gould or the company for myself.

Question—Did you get any money from Mr. Gould or the company for election purposes?

Answer—I decline to answer.

HEARTS OF BRITISH MEN

You did not know our Britain, proud Kaiser, did not know
Her steadiness, her stanchness, her firm front to the foe!
Though discord may divide her, while danger stands afar,
It vanishes like morning mist before the breath of war;
And British hearts have kept unchilled through all the changing years,
The fire that leaped to conquer at Crecy and Poitiers.
Hearts of oak, hearts of men,
Rally round the flag again!

O'er the ocean rings the call,
Stirring hearts in cot and hall,
"Freedom's bulwark must not fall
For lack of British men!"

You did not know her stalwart sons,
swift hastening to her side;
Not tossing seas can keep them back,
nor distance can divide.
They answer promptly to her call
across her western sea,
From wild, mist-veiled New Foundland, from ancient Acadie;
From lake and prairie spreading far
the setting sun to meet,
And the grim, storm-scarred crags that guard the ocean at their feet.
Steadfast bands of British men,
Wave the red-cross flag again!
True in peace and leal in war—
Britain's name is freedom's star—
Guarding, drawing from afar
The hearts of British men.

Far o'er the blue Pacific speeds the message to the free,
Where Australasia's isles are set in spheres of silver sea,
The sun-baked veldt its echoes hears beneath its tropic sky,
And the strong chord of kinship wakes and swiftly makes reply;
And India's dusky sons arise and with their Eastern grace
Give generous answer to the pride that floats their ancient race!
Rally round the flag again,
Loyal hearts of freeborn men!
East and West together stand,
Round the Empire's motherland,
Ready to her beckoning hand,
Rise hearts of British men.

One dared and tried this venture, proud Kaiser, long ago,
Who thought to crush our Britain with one sharp, sudden blow!
He trusted to his legions—her undefended coasts—
She stood alone and undismayed before his mighty host,
Till Freedom's spirit rose in wrath, and hurled him from his place,
And what has been may be again, by God's o'er-ruling grace!
What has been shall be again!
He controls the schemes of men—
The Lord of Hosts is with us yet,
Teaching us "lest we forget"—
The world-wide service He hath set
For hearts of British men!

TELLS HOW PRINCE OF LIPPE MET HIS DEATH

German Force Was Surrounded by Belgians Who Poured Hail of Lead Into It.

(Special Cable to The Daily News and New York Times.)

LONDON, Sept. 2.—The Hanover Courier prints this account by an eye witness of the death of Prince Wilhelm of Lippe, who fell in the assault on Liege on Aug. 6.

"After fierce fighting at close quarters we proceeded slowly toward Liege. On the morning of the sixth we succeeded in getting to the northern walls of Liege, where, however, we were shortly surrounded by Belgian troops, who drew closer around us and pressed us hard amid a hail of bullets. By order of his highness our detachment formed a circle and we defended ourselves stoutly for some time until at length we saw reinforcements coming to our aid.

"In order to enable them to locate the exact spot where we were the prince rose to a kneeling position, pointing with his sword to the approaching columns, and gave me, who lay a hand's breadth away on top of our flag, the order to raise the flag so that we might be recognized.

"I raised the flag and waved it in a circle, which at once drew an extra hail of bullets from the enemy. The flag was shot out of my hands while the same volley wounded the prince fatally in the breast and throat. His last two words were: 'Remember me.'"

DOMINION WILL ADVANCE SEED GRAIN WHERE NEEDED

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)

OTTAWA, Sept. 1.—Premier Scott of Saskatchewan and Hon. George A. Bell, provincial treasurer, were in Ottawa today conferring with members of the government regarding the supplying of seed grain to farmers in a portion of the southwestern section of the province, whose crop this season had been almost a complete failure.

They asked that the government advance these men seed grain in order to tide them over in their failure.

"Every man who has land ready for seed next spring," said Premier Scott at the conclusion of the conference, "can be assured that he will have seed provided to put in crop."

Premier Scott and Mr. Ball left for Toronto tonight.

BELIEVED SEA WOLF, JACK LONDON CHARACTER, MURDERED

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 1.—Alexander McLean, known as the "sea wolf," being the principal character in Jack London's book of that name, has mysteriously disappeared and no trace of him can be found, although the police have been searching for him for the past three days. It is suggested that he may have met with foul play as his well known broad black hat was found on the deck of a tug boat in False creek. The possibility of his having fallen overboard in the waters of the harbor is advanced, but after searching the sea shore and waterfront for the past three days and nights the authorities are beginning to think that something of a graver nature may have befallen him.

EXCHANGE RISES ON GERMAN ADVANCE

Eastern Railroads Likely to Increase Their Interchangable Mileage Rates. Reports Fairly Good.

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Financial news was again adversely affected today by the extension of the British moratorium and a slight hardening of foreign exchange. Acknowledgement by the chancellor of the exchequer that it would be unwise to attempt to resume specie payments at this time coincided with the private advices received here regarding the financial situation in London.

The rise in exchange was once more attributed to the reported advance of the German army toward the French capital. Anent the exchange market it was authoritatively declared that enough exchange had been accumulated by the city of New York to meet its immediate obligations abroad. Demand sterling was quoted at 5.07 and cables at 5.08. There were some scattered quotations for exchange on Paris but these proved to be merely nominal, while German marks remained unquoted.

There is reason to believe that the eastern railroads will follow the lead of the Pennsylvania, which has increased its interchangeable mileage rate from 2 to 2 1-4 cents. This is in line with the recommendation of the interstate commerce commission when it handed down its freight decision. It is understood that some of the eastern railroads are already preparing tariffs on interstate trips at the rate of 2½ cents where this can be done without conflicting with state laws.

Several of the important railroad systems submitted July reports today. That of the Union Pacific shows a moderate net decrease, but the New York Central reports an increase of $202,000 in net revenues, due to a heavy decrease in expenses. Both roads made a vastly better showing than the Pennsylvania, whose revenues east and west of Pittsburg reflected reduced tonnage.

Routine developments included a statement from the stock exchange clearing house, indicating that all but 1 per cent of the business contracted on the day the exchange closed had been cleaned up, another small shipment of gold to Ottawa and a plan proposed to allow bond brokers to resume business on a restricted scale, subject to the approval of the bank ing authorities.

CHALLENGE AND ANSWER

France is laughing over the reply of a young diplomat to a challenge given by an ex-governor of the annexed provinces, Alsace-Lorraine. The two were neighbors at an official banquet recently and the young Frenchman was talking of the skill of the French workman.

"However ugly a thing may be, he seems able to turn it into a pretty object," he said. The old Prussian, with an impatient gesture, pulled a grey hair from his beard.

"Let him make something pretty out of that," he said gruffly, handing it to his companion. The Frenchman smiled, and carefully placed the hair in his pocket-book.

A week later the German received a small box. In it was a gold tie-pin, the head representing the Prussian eagle on a rock. The eagle held in its claws a grey hair, to each end of which a small gold ball was fixed, and on one small gold ball was "Alsace" and the other "Lorraine." And inscribed in tiny letters on the rock was the legend, "You only hold them by a hair."

PRESENT WAR WAS PROPHESIED YEARS AGO

Famous Military Correspondent Outlined Details of War With Germany Eleven Years Ago.

Eleven years ago "Ubique," the famous military correspondent of the Times, published a book which attracted wide attention in England. The book, which was called "Modern Warfare," dealt chiefly with an imaginary campaign which was carried on as a result of war between the British Empire and Germany. The steps leading up to the war were outlined and the whole campaign was described in detail, ending with the ultimate unconditional surrender of the German nation to the terms of Great Britain. The early chapters of this book, read in the light of recent events, form the most astoundingly accurate prophecy of what has actually taken place. "Ubique" supposes that the war will take place in the year 1905, and in this he is, of course, some years astray, but he placed General (now Field Marshal) French at the head of the English expeditionary force and Earl Kitchener as secretary of war. The steps which led up to the war are outlined in the identical manner in which they have actually occurred. Portions of this remarkable prophecy are here reproduced, not only because they foreshadow what has actually occurred in the last few days, but because they contain interesting details of the steps which must be taken when such a force as England is now sending to Belgium takes the field:

To mobilize means to prepare an army for fighting by bringing it up to war strength in men and horses, and providing it with ammunition and stores.

This is a very important piece of work; for during peace time the different parts of an army are only kept at "peace strength," which is, as a rule, far below the strength at which it should embark for active service. A battery of field artillery, for example, requires from 30 to 50 additional men, and from 80 to 100 horses, to bring it up to "war strength." Some parts of an army, in fact, do not exist at all in peace time, as, for instance, the "ammunition columns," which carry an army's spare ammunition.

In order to make mobilization as rapid as possible and to prevent any hitch occurring, very careful plans are made in peace time. To show you how these plans are carried out I will describe the way in which one of the infantry battalions of the 1st army corps mobilizes. The method adopted differs slightly from that in which cavalry, artillery and other branches of the army mobilize, but in its main points it is much the same.

I will take as an example the 2nd Lincoln regiment, which means the 2nd battalion of the Lincolnshire regiment, the old 10th foot. The battalion is stationed at Aldershot when war is declared against Germany.

It is the morning of this eventful July 1. The general commanding the 3rd division, to which the Lincolns belong, has just come in from an early before-breakfast ride, and is dismounting at his doorstep, when a telegram is handed to him containing the word "mobilize." In five minutes the general's telephone is hard at work and orderlies are dashing out with official blue envelopes. The machinery for mobilizing the 3rd division—carefully oiled and kept in order during peace times—has been set in motion.

The Lincolns have been out drilling on a broad stretch of green turf near their barracks and are returning home. As the companies form up on the parade ground an orderly hands the colonel one of those blue envelopes which we have just seen leave the general's office.

One subaltern remarks to another, "The colonel's got a 'blue pill'"—this is the unofficial name for official documents in the army—"and looks awfully pleased over it. Wonder what it is?"

They soon know. The battalion is to mobilize. The long-expected European war has come at last. He is going to "see service!"

There is a big day's work before the colonel and his staff. The first thing to do is to telegram to two of the officers who are on leave, and to several men on furlough, to rejoin at once. Then every one in the battalion is inspected by a medical officer, to see if he is fit for active service. When this is done, the colonel telegraphs to the war office, stating the number of men he requires to bring the Lincolns up to war strength.

In peace time the full strength of a battalion is only 881 of all ranks, and this is generally reduced by sickness and other causes, so that from 230 to 250 men are required to bring it up to its war strength of 1,120 officers and men. These are made up of reservists—that is, men who have enlisted for 12 years, and after serving for seven with the battalion have gone into the reserve for the remaining five.

An officer whose duty it is to pay these reservists keeps their addresses and when he receives the order to mobilize he sends each man a letter telling him where to go, a postal order for three shillings, and a "traveling warrant." This last is a printed piece of paper, by presenting which at a railway booking office a soldier obtains a free ticket. The railway company afterwards recovers the money from the government.

On receipt of these documents the reservists hasten to the regimental depot of the Lincolns, which is at Lincoln. The regimental depot is where all the recruits who enlist in the regiment are trained before they are sent to join the ranks as trained soldiers. For two or three days after mobilization is ordered the reservists continue to arrive from all parts of the kingdom. As each man reports himself, the officer in command of the depot has him medically inspected, and then gives him his arms, uniform, belts, etc.

As soon as about 50 men have been collected, they are sent from the depot to the battalion at Aldershot. Here they go through some drill, and in a few days are as good soldiers as ever they were.

A dozen other things are going on while the reservists are coming in. Horses have to be obtained, as a battalion keeps only four in peace time, and wants 30 more to drag all the wagons which it takes with it on service. They way this is arranged for is as follows:

The government says to any person owning a horse: "Look here, we will give you 10 shillings a year for every horse you have, if you will promise to bring those horses and sell them to us when war breaks out." A large number of people accept this offer, the prices are agreed to beforehand; and then, within 48 hours of receiving the order to do so the owners are bound to deliver the horses at some convenient place within 10 miles of their stables. If they fail to do so they are fined £50 for each horse. This is what is known as "registering horses."

The colonel of the Lincolns sends a party of men to take over the horses for their owners. They are brought back and fitted with saddles and harness, which are kept ready in the battalion's "mobilization storehouse."

While this is going on, nine wagons, and a large amount of warlike stores are being obtained from the army ordnance officer, who keeps them ready for issue. The baggage, store and supply wagons of the battalion are then filled with their proper stores. By the time the last reservist joins, of the last horse is brought in, the other preparations are complete, and from five days to a week after the order for mobilization is given the Lincolns are ready for service.

There are, however, certain parts of an army which require longer than a week to mobilize—for instance, the ammunition columns, ammunition park, field hospitals, bearer companies, etc. The wagons, harness, arms and equipment of all these are kept ready in time of peace at headquarters of the five British army corps, under the charge of a few men who look after them. On mobilization, all the horses and nearly the whole of the men have to be provided. The artillery takes charge of the ammunition columns, the army service corps of the supply columns, and the royal army medical corps of the field hospitals and bearer companies.

Preparations for Landing.

On the day following the declaration of war, Gen. French, commanding the 1st army corps, embarks with his staff on a fast cruiser for Ostend. Before leaving London, he has a long interview with the commander-in-chief and the secretary of state for war. At this interview he is given the latest official news from Brussels. This is dated midday on July 2, and reports that the Germans have arrived opposite Liege. The Belgians, who are greatly outnumbered, have assembled chiefly at Louvain, Charleroi, Liege and Namur. It is privately intimated however, that no very serious resistance can be offered to the enemy at these places, except at Namur.

It is decided that the best place for the British army to disembark is Ostend. By landing at Ostend and along the coast on each side of it, the army has three lines of railway by which to advance, all leading straight through Brussels toward the enemy. If the army were to disembark at Antwerp, which at first sight seems the best place, owing to its numerous wharves and locks, it would first have to crawl up the mouth of the Schelde, then, the line by which it would afterwards have to advance from Antwerp to Brussels is exposed to an attack by the Germans from the east. They would, in fact, be in a good position for cutting the British "line of communications." So Antwerp, in spite of its docks and wharves, is not chosen as the landing place. By disembarking at Blenkenberghe, Ostend and Nieupont Bains, which lie about 10 miles apart, and by advancing simultaneously along the three separate lines which run to Brussels, the army will be able to assemble there in a third of the time it would take if it landed at Ostend only. So these three places are chosen for landing the British force.

On Gen. French's arrival at Ostend he proceeds straight to Brussels, arriving there early in the morning of July 3, 10 hours after leaving London. At 9 o'clock he has an interview with the Belgian minister of war, at which the following arrangements are made:

The three lines of railway from Blankenberghe, Ostend and Nieuport are placed entirely at the disposal of the British. Sufficient trains for bringing the army up rapidly are to be assembled at all three places. The centre railway is selected as the British "line of communications," along which all the supplies and ammunition of the army will be forwarded direct from England. The Belgian minister of war promises to mass troops at Nivelles and Brussels for guarding this line. Lastly, the British commissariat department is authorized to draw supplies of food from the country west of Brussels.

On July 4 the British India steamer Virawa, escorted by two second-class cruisers, arrives at Ostend with the general who is in command of the "line of communications," and a strong advanced party for making preparations for the disembarking and the subsequent supply of the British army.

PPOTECTING AFRICAN GAME

The powers which divide Africa between them are at work to check the destruction of big game in the dark continent. It is proposed now that England, France, Germany, Belgium and Portugal shall unite in declaring a closed season on the rhinoceros for several years, and that no elephant tusks shall be allowed to be taken weighing less than 22 pounds. Other measures somewhat less drastic are to be taken in protection of the zebra, giraffe and other great game animals.

At first sight the notion that a rhinoceros needs protection seems absurd. Two or three tons of bad temper incased in a spearproof hide and armed with a three-foot horn would seem capable of caring for itself. The high-power rifle, however, makes man master of any animal, no matter how huge or well armored, and the destructive tendency is still strong in too large a part of the human race.

The world may congratulate itself that these protective measures are coming in time to save the most extraordinary collection of wild life on earth. The giraffe, the zebra, one species of elephant, one of rhinoceros, a dozen of antelope—all are peculiar to Africa, which likewise is the last refuge of the hippopotamus. To have these strange animals disappear like the passenger pigeon would be a calamity. It is well that the responsible rulers of the continent are able to unite in action which will avert this peril.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS

Coal mining rights of the Dominion in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the Northwest Territories, and in a portion of the Province of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 per acre. Not more than 2,560 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district of which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections or legal sub-divisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5, which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

COST OF NAVIES IS INCREASING

The Illustrated London News prints some interesting figures in regard to the growth of navies and their cost. In 1888, eight leading world powers expended approximately the following given sums on their naval establish- ments:

Great Britain	$65,800,000
France	40,000,000
Italy	23,600,000
United States	23,000,000
Russia	18,000,000
Germany	11,900,000
Austria	5,600,000
Japan	5,000,000

Twenty-five years later the order and approximate expenditures are these:

Great Britain	$231,500,000
United States	144,600,000
Russia	122,500,000
Germany	114,400,000
France	93,000,000
Italy	51,300,000
Japan	49,300,000
Austria	29,900,000

A man named Karsey has invented a wonderful musical instrument that can be played sufficiently loud to be heard two miles away. He has called it the myriphone, and so powerful and yet so sweetly does it sound that the millions who have heard it say it is really one of the greatest achievements of the twentieth century.

Like all other unique and wonderful things, Karsey's myriphone has been engaged to exhibit its remarkable pow- ers at the Central Canada exhibition and every afternoon and evening its sweet music in the rendition of the popular tunes of the day will delight the thousands of grand stand patrons every day of the 1914 fair.

Twice Smoke of Ineffective Ballots Issues from Chimney of Sistine Chapel at Rome

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)

PARIS, Sept. 1.—According to a Rome despatch to the Havas agency, several thousand persons assembled this morning to watch the chimney of Sistine chapel. Presently smoke arose, when the people knew that a pope had not been elected on the first ballot. Toward noon smoke again appeared, indicating that a second ballot had been taken without election. The smoke was from the burning ballots.

Another despatch quotes the Giornale d'Italia as saying that it is rumored in Rome that Cardinal Peter Maffi, archbishop of Piso, is receiving the greatest number of votes in the balloting. Next to him came Cardinal Ferrata, Cardinal Soratta, Cardinal Lualdi, Cardinal Gaspari and Cardinal Serafini.

IS CERMANY'S ARMY ONLY A BUBBLE?

In the London Magazine dated August, but put to press before war was imminent, there is a remarkable article on the German Military Bubble, written in June last by one who has obviously been a close student of the kaiser's military forces.

"In spite of all the alarmists say," it says, "there is much hope in the idea that German military power is a highly inflated bubble, of brilliant hues, but susceptible of being pricked and burst.

The writer adds:

"I admit that on paper the German army is not only the greatest but the most perfectly organized army in the world, but battles are not won by flourishing sheaves of statistics in the enemy's face. The German system of life and of military training is not designed to encourage individual effort, but rather to stultify it, and to reduce the individual unit to the state of a disciplined automaton."

The German army is like a nicely adjusted machine; but the more nicely adjusted the machine the more fatal will be the catastrophe when anything unforeseen occurs—and it is always the unexpected that does occur in war time. Discipline is necessary, of course, but equally essential are individuality, courage and devotion.

War's Lessons Ignored.

"The German officer relies only upon discipline, and he runs the risk of being badly let down at the crucial moment. Courage, determination, amour propre, and individual enterprise are all stronger than the fear of death, but it has yet to be proven that the modern educated man will risk death rather than contravene discipline. Wherefore, I maintain that in our present state of civilization the German system of organization and training is fundamentally wrong."

The writer has been seven times present at the German grand maneuvers during the past 10 years, and has been "much impressed with the vast massing of troops, and all the pomp and circumstance of mimic warfare"; but he has never seen elsewhere maneuvers carried out with so little disregard to the possibilities of modern fighting.

"At maneuvers the German soldier or officer is taught to do things which he could not possibly perform if the enemy were using ball cartridge. Whole brigades of cavalry sweep down upon unbroken infantry in most gallant fashion, and the umpires encourage the sport. It is perhaps 'magnificent,' but it is not war."

Initiative is another quality that is lacking:

"I have seen a whole brigade captured just because the brigadier was waiting for orders from the general to withdraw. The order did not come in time, for the messenger had missed his road. The general admitted to me at the time that there was no object to be served in thus risking capture but that he could not retire because he had not received an order to do so from his superior.

Leaden Cavalry.

Prominent in the shop window of this bubble emporium are the cavalry—an almost ludicrous reminder of the leaden soldiers of one's childhood toys. The writer says:

"They look simply splendid and they are to be seen at their best when delivering an impossible charge, but the German is neither a horseman nor a horse master; as a scout he is beneath contempt.

"Whether the charges to which he is accustomed will still be possible on the great plains of central Europe against modern rifle fire remains to be seen, but there is one thing of which we may be certain: those charges will never be seen on English soil, for, with the exception of a 50 mile square area about Salisbury and certain patches of the South Downs, there is no terrain in the country where cavalry could find galloping space unless the men were mounted on steeplechasers."

The German engineer, according to the writer, is another failure; he is too theoretical. Given the necessary material and unlimited time he would construct model works, but in warfare what is wanted is a man who will contrive the essential out of the most unpromising material, and in the shortest possible space of time.

NEW STOCK BRAND ACT IN THIS PROVINCE

A new act respecting stock brands in the province of British Columbia was passed dated March 4, 1914. The act provides:

The presence of a recorded brand on any horse or head of cattle is prima facie evidence of exclusive right of ownership, which is valid only for the period of tenure for which such brand is alloted.

Any person who brands or assists in branding any stock with an unrecorded brand, or who brands with his own brand any stock of which he is not the owner, without the authority of the owner, or blotches, defaces or alters any brand, renders himself liable to a penalty of $200.

After June, 1914, the work of recording brands for the whole province of British Columbia will be in the hands of the recorder of brands, Victoria, B. C., to whom application for registration should be made on the proper forms, accompanied by the prescribed fees.

Brands for cattle should consist of not less than two characters, and the position of the brand on the animal should be stated.

Where the same brand is used for both horses and cattle it must be registered as two distinct brands.

The fee for recording a cattle brand is $1.

Any horse brand selected by the applicant may be registered, provided that it does not conflict with brands already recorded. The position on the animal must be indicated.

The fee for recording a horse brand is $1.

Registration of a brand under this act provides legal ownership for a term of four years from Dec. 31, 1914.

If any two or more owners of stock have the same or conflicting brands recorded, the minister may, if he deems it advisable, authorize the cancellation of the brand last recorded, or, with the sanction of the owner, of any brand previously recorded, and may allot another in lieu thereof without charge.

Application forms may be obtain from the recorder's office or from the local government agent. Copies of the Brand act may also be obtained on application to W. T. McDonald, recorder of brands, Victoria, B. C.

FORMER MIGHTY BALL PLAYER NEARING END

Larry Lajoie Has Practically Completed His Days of Usefulness on Playing Field.

Napoleon Lajoie, the great second baseman of the Cleveland Americans, appears tottering upon the brink of oblivion so far as active service goes. The wonderful Frenchman was recently benched by Mañager Joe Birmingham, which seems to spell the beginning of the end, says a New York writer.

It is only human for Larry to fall to realize that he is through. Reports from the west say he is raising ructions about being sidetracked. The old fellow still carries a punch, and no doubt can hang around Charles Somers' ball lot as long as he can hobble. But his retention now is simply a matter of sentiment.

Those who saw Cleveland play here a few weeks ago realized that the mighty Frenchman was just about on his last legs. In spite of his spavins and sprung tendons he assumed all his accustomed grace, but he couldn't cover a great deal more ground than that upon which he stood. He was painfully slow on the paths, too. He might still fit in handily with a team away up in the race because of his fine experience. But for the manager of a tailender Lajoie certainly is no prospect. His years of usefulness are behind him.

The passing of Lajoie has its pathetic side. Here is one of the most wonderful players of all time, now serving his eighteenth consecutive season, who never figured in a world's series. Mighty as Hans Wagner, the king of second basemen has had no classic windfalls from the game. In Cleveland Larry has been connected with some wonderful aggregations, teams which on paper figured to run away from the American league field. But none of them ever lasted to October's finish. No team, with the possible exception of New York, has suffered greater adversity from the uncontrollable breaks of the game.

Lajoie's apparent end is made more bitter from the fact that his present manager, Joe Birmingham, served under him when the king in his prime marshalled the Cleveland forces. The poor showing of the Forest City club this season has awakened resentment in the breast of Larry. He was forced to resign from the management after accomplishing better results than Birmingham has shown. Lajoie thinks now that he should have received a better opportunity to display his ability at leadership.

CORRESPONDENT DESCRIBES SCENES

William Maxwell was Rushed Through British and French Lines—Meubeuge Well Defended

(Special Cable to The Daily News and the New York Times.)

LONDON, Sept. 1. — By William Maxwell.—Now that the position of the British army is known, there can be no harm in telling the story of how I happened to meet it. I was on my way to Cherleroi, where the French were already engaged. I had the misfortune to run into the headquarters of the British cavalry brigades east of Mons. A youthful staff officer seated by the roadside writing in his notebook hailed me and immediately recognized me.

"Awfully sorry," he said, "but orders are strict. I have been war correspondent myself in the Balkan war and sympathize with you."

In vain I protested that I had already been challenged twice, that my laissez had been signed by the Belgian minister of war himself and had never been disputed.

"I shall have to detain you till further orders," said the staff officer. The hours went by slowly but pleasantly enough, for I was among friends. I learned many interesting things about the position and strength of the enemy, with whom the cavalry scouts were in touch. After sunset the staff officer having again been consulted it was decided to send me to divisional headquarters.

While I waited in the office there a busy and harrassed young officer, seeing a stranger, asked who I was, and was told I was a correspondent.

"See that he does not leave the room; place a sentry over his car," ordered the officer. Half an hour later, while I was having dinner with the general and his staff, the officer entered the mess. Coming up to me, he held out his hand.

"It was stupid of me not ask your name," he exclaimed. "We are sending an officer off with despatches. As fuel is scarce we can save it by using your car."

At midnight we started our journey. I have made many strange and exciting journeys, but none, I think, like that journey in the darkness through the lines of two great armies advancing into battle. The country was unknown to us; at regular intervals we were challenged by outposts and sentries who stepped silently out of the darkness and barred our passage.

"Who goes there?" and light flashed over our car; but at sight of the staff officer the road was opened for us. Presently we left the British lines for the French. It was interesting to note the difference between the outposts and sentries. The British soldiers showed a certain deliberate caution, while the French soldier showed a dangerous alertness with his challenge and his rifle.

Before reaching Meubeuge we passed through a network of abattis, barbed wire entanglements and field fortifications which commanded the approach to a strong position.

In the darkness Meubeuge looked like a great fortress or walled city. We crossed a fosse under a portcullis and were challenged at the gate.

FIGHT WITH GOLDEN EAGLE

Tom E. Mason, a fur trapper, running a line at the headwaters of the Little Smoky river, in central western Alberta, came to Edmonton for medical treatment, following a terrific fight early in March with a golden eagle which clawed and pecked his face, neck and left shoulder and arm. He killed the bird, which had a spread of wings of eight feet two inches from tip to tip.

"I was attracted to the trap," Mason said in telling the story of the encounter, "by a strange noise, and as I got closer I saw a huge golden eagle held by one foot in a wolf trap.

"My first thought was to release the bird, not thinking that it would venture an attack; but that is where I was fooled. I was quickly made aware of the fact when I sprawled upon my back with the eagle and the trap on top of me. However, I succeeded in warding off the pecks directed at my eyes, but the beak struck my face and neck and shoulder several times.

"One of the bird's claws tore through the coat and sweater I was wearing and cut my arm and shoulder," Mason continued, as he exhibited the gashes. "Finally, I got to my feet and hit the bird on the head until it fell dead at my feet."

OFFICERS ANXIOUS TO SERVE AS PRIVATES

Canadians Would Resign Commands in Order to Enter Active Service, But Are Needed Here

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
OTTAWA, Sept. 1.—Owing to the necessity of retaining a sufficient number of officers for instructional purposes and to command additional units to be organized in the future, officers now in camp at Valcartier will not be allowed to resign their commands and go with the first overseas expeditionary forces as privates, as many of them desire to do. At the present time there are at the big camp about one officer for every 25 men, not all of whom, however, are well trained. It will take about 700 officers to command the first contingent, all of whom must be trained men.

This means that over 1,000 officers now in camp will not be allowed to accompany the force, but as the minister stated yesterday, they can count on being given opportunity to serve the Empire at an early date, either in Canada or abroad.

HUNTERS START NEW FOREST FIRES

Stringent Measures Will Be Taken to Put a Stop to Indiscriminate Fire Lighting

With the opening of the hunting season yesterday many are taking to the woods in pursuit of game and at the government offices in Nelson many firearms permits are being issued. Already also complaints are coming in to the office of the chief provincial forester of fire being started in the vicinity of merchantable timber by hunters who through the lack of care leave the outbreaks to grow and do considerable damage. Several fires such as these were found yesterday by officials of the forest branch and only in time to save damage.

With the continuance of the hot dry weather particular care should be taken by hunters not to light fires where there will be any danger of their growing to large proportions and to put all fires out before leaving them. Stringent measures are being taken by the forest officials against those responsible for the indiscriminate lighting of fires and only yesterday two convictions were recorded at Waneta. J. H. Hunter, for lighting a fire at Fruitvale without first having obtained a permit, was found guilty and fined $50 and costs or in default to serve 30 days in the provincial jail. Axel Noran, for a breach of the same act when he lighted a fire in the vicinity of Seven-Mile creek on the Pend d'Oreille river, was fined $100 and costs or ordered in lieu to spend 90 days in the provincial jail. F. C. Moffatt of Nelson was at Waneta to prosecute the cases.

Seventeen men were dispatched out of Nelson yesterday to Cultus creek, a little to the south of Midge creek on the main Kootenay lake, where a new fire had broken out. On Cooper creek about four miles north of Lardo a forest fire has, it is reported, reached serious proportions, but a force of men has been despatched to the scene and it is expected soon to be under control.

The big fire which is burning at Brilliant, though it has done considerable damage in the vicinity, is now thought not to have caused such excessive damage as was at first expected. The big fire at Cascade is gradually being brought under control, it is reported.

In the Boundary district the weather continues hot and dry, though no new fires are reported, while the Kootenay and Arrow lakes district situation is somewhat similar. A continuation of the dry spell is being looked for for some weeks yet.

AMERICANS EAGER TO FIGHT FOR BRITISH

Offers from Veterans Continue to Pour Into Canadian Department of Militia

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
OTTAWA, Sept. 1.—Offers from American citizens, the majority of whom have seen military service in Cuba, the Phillipines or Mexico, continue to pour into the militia department in large numbers.

For the present it is not likely that Americans will be taken as the department considers that Canadians who are anxious to go to the front should be given the first opportunity to do so. Later on if the demand upon Canada for troops exceeds the Canadian contingent a large number of Americans may be accepted.

Although no official announcement has been given out, it is understood that the government has placed large orders for military equipment and supplies of all kinds, while the Ross rifle factory will run night and day in order to turn out as many rifles as possible.

BELGIAN MISSION THANKS BRITAIN

Commission Has Documents to Substantiate Stories of Many Horrible German Outrages

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
LONDON, Sept. 1, 1.55 p.m.—At the reception by King George at Buckingham palace today of the Belgian mission which is on its way to the United States to protest against alleged German atrocities in the war zone, an address to the King was read, setting forth some of the happenings in the present campaign and thanking the King for Great Britain's aid. In part the address was as follows:

"Sire,—Belgium, having had to choose between the sacrifice of her honor and the peril of the war, did not hesitate. She opposed the brutal aggression committed by a power which was one of the guarantors of her neutrality. In this critical situation it is for our country an inestimable tower of strength to see coming resolute and immediate intervention by great and powerful England.

"Commissioned by his majesty the king of the Belgians, with a mission to the president of the United States, we consider it our duty to make a stay in the British capital to convey to your majesty a respectful and ardent expression of the gratitude of the Belgian nation."

The address referred to King George's message to King Albert and the co-operation of British land and sea forces.

"This," concludes the address, "brought renewed gratitude and strengthened further the determination of the Belgian nation, forced to go to war for the protection of her institutions and her hearths, to defend her rights. In this instance Belgium was desirous of bringing to bear the care which is imposed on each nation by international convention and conscience.

"Our adversary in invading our territory has decimated the civil population, massacred women and children carried into captivity innofensive peasants, put to death the wounded, destroyed undefended towns and burned churches, historical monuments and the famous library of the University of Louvain. All these facts have been established by authenticated documents each of which we shall submit to the government of your majesty.

"Despite all this suffering in Belgium, which has been made the personification of outraged right, the country is resolute in fulfilling to the utmost its duties toward Europe. Whatever may happen it must defend its existence, its honor and its liberty."

King George replied that Great Britain would support Belgium and that he was grateful for the gallant Belgian resistance. He added that he was shocked at the reports of German brutality.

Artists Call on Kaiser

LONDON, Sept. 1, 8.30 p.m.—Telegraphing from The Hague, Reuter's correspondent says:

"A dozen Dutch artists and men of letters have sent a telegram to the German emperor expressing horror at the destruction of Louvain. After declaring their admiration of German culture and the certainty of sympathy of the civilized world, they urgently call upon Emperor William, as one of the promoters of humanity and civilization, to see that in future works of our common humanity shall be spared under stress of war."

Artists, men of letters and other prominent men and women of the world who sympathize with the main ideas laid down in the telegram have telegraphed to Bremen:

"We entirely agree with the telegram of the friends of civilization."

TROOPS OFFERED TO BUTTE CITY

Will Be Sent If Needed to Preserve Order—People Fear Destruction of Buildings

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
HELENA, Mont., Sept. 1.—Governor Stewart received a telegram from Secretary of War Garrison at noon advising him that a battalion of troops would be sent from Fort William Henry Harrison immediately for use at Butte if their services were needed.

City in Apprehensive State

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
BUTTE, Mont., Sept. 1.—The populace of Butte waited with uneasiness today for word as to whether Governor Stewart would send the militia, mobilized at the state capital, to put down the miners' disturbances here. This nervousness was felt particularly in the business district, for leaders of the miners were credited last night with saying that if troops, state or federal, came to Butte, they would revenge themselves on the businessmen and leave the city in ashes.

Other leaders of the insurgent miners who broke from the Western Federation of Miners and formed a new organization were credited with violent statements which have given rise to the apprehension that dynamite might be used by some one in the city, as it has been used already at the property of a mining company and the miners' union hall.

According to plans announced last night, a committee of 40 miners was to visit the original mine of the Anaconda company today to notify miners employed there that they must join the insurgents' union, quit or run the risk of being deported as several Western Federation men already have been run out of town. As the mine approaches are guarded by armed mine guards the district attorney was asked for protection for the committee, but this was refused.

MILLION DOLLARS TO PATRIOTIC FUND

This Is Goal Set By Winnipeg—Mayor Gives Quarter of Salary

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 1.—Hon. Joseph Bernier at a meeting of the relief committee in St. Boniface tonight stated that the Manitoba government would contribute a substantial amount to the patriotic fund if the various bodies now at work would unite and form a provisional organization. The St. Boniface body, which is looking after the dependents of the French and Belgian reservists, appointed Mr. Bernier and Capt. Gauthier to wait on the Winnipeg committee, which has fixed on $1,000,000 as the goal to which the contributions should reach. Mayor Deacon has donated one-quarter of his salary as mayor and promises a check from his company, the Dominion Bridge & Iron Works.

Montreal Plans Campaign.

(By Daily News Leased Wire.)
MONTREAL, Sept. 1.—Preliminary arrangements were made today for a vigorous campaign week in connection with the Montreal patriotic fund, now affiliated with the Canadian national patriotic fund. The opening day will be Sept. 14. Although generous donations have already been promised, only a tithe of the money required for the relief of the families of those who go to fight for the honor of the Empire is in sight.

Fit-Reform Blue Serges for Men
Of course, you know you can't judge a Blue Serge Suit by its color, any more than you can judge an automobile by the enamel. You have got to get below the surface—below the color line, as it were—and look for the essentials—if you want to buy to advantage.
This is where the Fit-Reform trade-mark—the Fit-Reform reputation—comes to your rescue. Color, tailoring, style, grace, ease and summer comfort are all guaranteed by the little maple leaf wreath that you will find in every Fit-Reform coat. Blue Serge Suits—guaranteed—$20, $22, $25 and up.
