D. GREENWOOD, GAME WARDEN AT CANAL FLAT, IS MURDERED

WILLIAM FLOYD, TRAPPER FACES MURDER TRIAL

Alleged to Have Shot Warden Down in Front of Canal Flat Store

WIFE, CHILDREN NEAR AT TIME

Floyd Was to Have Appeared on Charge Under the Game Act

INVERMERE, B. C., July 6. — Allegedly the victim of a trapper enraged at being summoned on a charge under the Game act, Dennis Greenwood, provincial game warden at Canal Flats 34 miles south of here, is dead with a bullet wound in the chest, and William Floyd, who was to have appeared in court on Saturday on a charge of trapping without a licence, is being held by provincial police at Canal Flats, facing a charge of murder.

The shooting occurred in front of Roberts' store at Canal Flats about 2:30 o'clock on Saturday afternoon in full view of several people. Greenwood died within half an hour. Although the assassin was allowed to go on his way unhindered at the time, Floyd was found in his house at about 7 o'clock last night with a revolver in his possession. and was taken into custody by provincial police.

WIFE AND CHILDREN NEAR

The game warden was sitting in his car in front of the store with his wife and three children. It was the day Floyd, late stationary engineer south of Canal Flats, was to appear on a charge of trapping without a licence, a charge preferred by Greenwood.

Floyd, according to witnesses, approached the car and called to Greenwood that he wished to speak to him. The game warden got out of the car and went around toward the back of it with Floyd. Here, eyewitnesses stated, Floyd drew a pistol and shot Greenwood in the chest, at close range.

As Greenwood dropped, the assassin walked away through the village unmolested.

Provincial Police Constable Jack Kirkup at Cranbrook was immediately summoned. A search was made of the hills around Canal Flats, and then, on the chance that Floyd had returned to his home, Constable Kirkup went there and found him.

HAS PISTOL

Although Floyd had a Luger pistol in his possession, he offered no resistance, and was arrested by the constable.

The coroner's inquest was adjourned to hear the results of the autopsy on the body.

The funeral will be held at Invermere on Monday with the Masonic lodge in charge.

A wife and three young daughters survive Mr Greenwood. Mrs. Greenwood, was formerly Miss Cummins, and lived for some time in Port Arthur, Ont. She has brothers residing in Field, B. C., and Calgary.

EMPIRE EXCHANGE OF NEWS WILL BE NEXT BIG EFFORT

Will Be for Benefit of Dominions and the Mother Country Say Edtors

MONTREAL, July 6.—An Empire news exchange system based on the method of operation of The Canadian Press in Canada will be the most tangible result of the British Empire Press Union conference held recently in London and Edinburgh according to four members of the Canadian delegation arriving here today.

John W. W. Dafoe, managing director Manitoba Free Press, Victor Sifton, managing editor Regina Leader, B. Nicholas, managing director, Victoria, British Columbia, Times, and E. Royal Sales of the Renfrew, Ont., Mercury, led the return of the Canadian delegation, which consisted of 24, the balance having stayed in England to return later.

Interviewed in a group on the deck of the liner the Canadian newspapermen spoke briefly of the conference. The Canadian delegation, they said, brought up the question of a more adequate distribution of Empire news within the Empire and the outcome of the discussion which followed was the endorsement by the conference of the principle of cooperative exchange of this news between the Dominions and the mother country. The Dominion will contribute its quota of news to a central clearing house, probably in London, whence it is to be sent to its destinations, the whole scheme to b operated absolutely independent of any government subsidy. Details have yet to be worked out by those Dominions which have not the machinery already in operation.

During their visit in Great Britain the Canadian newspapermen and their wives were received at Buckingham Palace by the King and Queen and toured industrial centers between sessions of the conferences.

WALKS IN ON A HOLDUP AND IS SHOT, WINNIPEG

Dressmaker, Excited, Disobeys Command to "Stay Right There"

WINNIPEG, July 6—(CP)—Shot as she tried to slip out of a downtown drug store late Saturday night, which on entering a minute before she found being held up by a trio of armed bandits, Mary McCarthy, Winnipeg dressmaker, is in a serious condition in hospital tonight. The bullet entered her abdomen. Police are searching for the three men who made their escape after the shot was fired.

Miss McCarthy found the gunmen in charge of the store when she entered and C. W. Campbell, the proprietor, and a junior clerk, with their hands up at the back of the long room. Excited, she disobeyed a command to "stay right there", and was backing out of the door to the street when one of the bandits fired. Miss McCarthy dropped into a chair as the bullet struck her and the robbers swept past her in a rush to escape. They took about $75 in cash, scooped from the store's till, with them.

MANY ACCIDENTS

A score of persons are dead and scores injured as the result of week-end drownings and motor car accidents in the Dominion.

Thirteen deaths were recorded in Ontario, six in Quebec, and two in Manitoba.

KING PROMISES EQUALIZATION, FREIGHT RATES

Premier and McGeer Pledge Selves at Chilliwack Meeting

MONSTER CROWD HEARS SPEAKERS

King Says Government Could Have Continued for Year and Half

CHILLIWACK, B. C., July 6—(By Ray Brown, Canadian Press staff correspondent)—The Liberal government intends "to keep up the fight for equalization of freight rates until it becomes an accomplished fact," So asserted Premier Mackenzie King, before a huge audience here Saturday night.

Mr. King said that he would not discuss the mountain differential and equalization of freight rates at any length because this question was now before the government in the form of a reference to the privy council. It was an important question and one which required attention.

The meeting which the prime minister addressed here was possibly the largest of his entire tour thus far.

From a platform in an open square, in the center of the town Mr. King looked down on the crowd, a sea of faces under strings of electric lights. The platform was draped with flags and decorated with flowers. Two electric flood lights shone upon it, throwing the faces and figures of the speakers into clear view.

Amplifiers carried Mr. King's voice as well as the voice of G. G. McGeer, Liberal candidate in the constituency of Fraser Valley, to the edge of the crowd. The same medium permitted another meeting in a building to hear the speech.

A clear distinction between Conservatives and Liberals on the question of Canada's national status was drawn by the prime minister. The people of Canada, he insisted, must determine at the coming election, whether they were going to send to the Imperial conference those men who believed in and worked for the view that Canada was a nation or those men who had ridiculed the efforts of the government in this respect. The Conservatives, he declared, had opposed the government when it opened legations in "Washington, Paris and Tokyo."

TOUCHES ON UNEMPLOYMENT

Unemployment, return of the natural resources to the western provinces, the budget and Canada's representation at the Imperial conference, were all touched on by Mr. King. He asserted that the government might have continued in office for a year and a half longer but, he said, when the Conservatives began to make the budget a matter of political controversy, it became essential that the people should decide the issue. The government must have the verdict of the Canadian people on its fiscal policy before it went to the Imperial conference.

WITH DYNAMITE IN HAND

The attitude of Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, was referred to by Mr. King as "bargaining with a stick of dynamite in your hand." This remark aroused laughter.

Mr. King said this was not the attitude of his government. He believed that goodwill and friendliness was better in trade negotiations with the mother country.

At the start of last night's meeting Mayor C. A. Barrer, on behalf of the people of Chilliwack, voiced a welcome and then a little girl presented Mr. King with a beautiful bouquet of red roses.

Mr. McGeer said he proposed to go to Ottawa and make a real fight on the floor of the house of commons to procure lower freight rates. British Columbia had fought for many years to obtain equal treatment with the rest of Canada, said Mr. McGeer, but, as yet, this equality was to be arrived at in the matter of freight rates. There was no reason why a car of grain from the prairies destined for Japan should pay a lower rate than the same car destined for the Fraser Valley.

He proposed to carry the fight

Celebrate Wedding Anniversary

LONDON, July 6. (AP)—The King and Queen today celebrated the 37th anniversary of their marriage. Their majesties spent the day quietly in Buckingham palace after attending service in the palace chapel. They received messages and congratulations from friends and subjects in all parts of the world.

This photograph reveals them in the simple roles of a typical English country gentleman and his wife. The camera caught them as they strolled in the grounds of their personal country estate at Sandringham during the visit of the Australian cricket team, whose members they received. Note that his majesty has an eye to masculine styles, which may explain why his son, the Prince of Wales, sets the fashion for the sterner sex in all parts of the world. The Queen is attired in a long coat of light material trimmed with fur in the fashion she so much favors. Her mauve tinted toque and parasol have come to be inseparably linked with her.

MOTORCYCLIST, TRAIL, LOSES LEG, ACCIDENT

Injuries to Leg of "Slim" Negus Necessitate Amputation

TRAIL, B. C., July 6—While proceeding in different directions on Rossland hill last night a motorcycle ridden by "Slim" Negus, collided with a car driven by Vic Hild with the result that Negus was taken to the Trail hospital with a broken leg and other serious injuries that necessitated the amputation of one leg below the knee. Both young men are from Trail.

More definite information concerning the accident could not be determined tonight.

PROMINENT BOXER INJURED IN CAR ACCIDENT, EAST

REGINA, Sask., July 6—Vic Skerlton, well known western Canada boxer, had a narrow escape from death this afternoon when the car he was driving failed to take a curve in the road and turned over twice on the highway between Regina and Lumsden, about 15 miles north of the city. Skerlton suffered a cut on his left hand that necessitated seven stitches being taken. Miss Mary Miller, who, with five others, was driving with Skerlton, was slightly injured. Skerlton came upon a curve when going at 45 miles an hour and jammed on his brakes, the front wheel buckling under the strain and the car somersaulting into the ditch.

LONDON, July 6. — (AP) — The Lambeth conference was officially opened today with a special service at St. Paul's cathedral, with 300 delegates representing the Anglican sect all over the world taking part.

PREMIER WIRES PRAISE TO JACK GUEST, ENGLAND

CHILLIWACK, B. C., July 6—(CP)—A cablegram of congratulation to Jack Guest, Canadian winner of the Diamond Sculls, was sent by Premier Mackenzie King from his train Saturday.

"Hearty congratulations on the honor which you have won for yourself and Canada," read the prime minister's message to the famous oarsman. The message was sent while Premier King was on the way from Revelstoke where he opened his British Columbia campaign Friday night, to Chilliwack.

TRANSATLANTIC FLIGHT NIPPED IN BUD, EAST

NST. JOHNS, Nfld., July 6.—(AP)—Another projected flight across the Atlantic received a severe setback today. Major C. S. Wynne-Eyton, British airman who hoped to be the first to make the west-east ocean passage in 1930, crashed from a low altitude in attempting to take off on a test flight to Harbor Grace. He was slightly injured and his plane, which had been groomed for the long sea hop, was destroyed by fire.

Coming from the southern end of the field, with a light wind at his back, Major Wynn-Eyton taxied up a fairly steep grade. Although the slope seemed to reduce the plane's speed, it finally succeeded in getting into the air.

Then, from a height of 20 feet, it suddenly nose-dived, hit the ground hard and burst into flames. Braving the fire, onlookers forced the door open and dragged the airman out. He was suffering slight burns and cuts about the face, but at Grace hospital doctors said he probably would be as well as ever in two or three days.

TRAIL PEOPLE BADLY INJURED AUTO ACCIDENT

Go Over 300-Foot Bank Mile West Thrums; in Hospital Here

At 2:30 o'clock this morning one Trail person, at least, and perhaps two, victims of a serious motor accident occurring about 11 o'clock last night a mile west of Thrums, were being given medical treatment in Kootenay Lake General hospital. Of the three Trail persons in the care the name of Miss Dorothy Miller was the only one that was available early this morning. She was not seriously injured.

Motorcycle Patrolman W. H. Davidson, of the provincial police reported last night that the steering geer on the Trail car, a light sedan, had broken with the result that the car went over the side of the road and crashed to the railway track 300 feet below. It was a miracle, he stated, that any one of the three passengers in the Trail bound car were still alive when the machine arrived at the bottom, a mass of wreckage. Neither the extent of the injuries nor the names of those injured could not be obtained at an early hour this morning, as Dr. Shaw, who was attending, had not yet left the operating room.

BODY OF WOMAN FOUND

BUTLE, N. J., July 6—The body of a young woman, shot twice, was found in an automobile on Marion Town road, about five miles northwest of here last Saturday. In the car was a note saying: "You will find other bodies along the road." So far search has revealed no other bodies.

Guard Placed Upon Bridge at Brilliant; Terror Is Reigning

Two Schools Destroyed Within Two Days; Beautiful Glade School Blown-Up Within 10 Minutes of Guard Leaving It

FERRY AT GLADE CHAINED UP BY THE COMMUNITY DOUKHOBORS

Loss in School Buildings $23,000; Doukhobors Have Hurried Mass Meeting; Police Active Throughout Colonies; No Arrests Yet

WEEKEND EVENTS

Friday 11:40 o'clock Brilliant frame school building burned to the ground. Loss $5000.

Saturday at :10 a.m., all-brick two roomed school at Glade completely wrecked by explosion of dynamite. Loss $18,000.

Saturday at 11 p.m.—Attempt made to burn community hall at Thrums.

Sunday 5 a.m., some 600 Community Doukhobors made exodus from Glade leaving 300 Sons of Freedom in charge.

Glade Ferry taken in charge by Community members and tied up.

Guards placed on Community bridge over Kootenay river at Brilliant.

The burning to the ground of the Brilliant school on Friday night coupled with the almost simultaneous bombing of the Glade school and an attempt to burn the Thrums community hall on Saturday night completed a weekend reign of error severe enough to drive 600 Community Doukhobors out of Glade yesterday morning. These Community Doukhobors fearing for their lives made a hurried evacuation from theeir farm lands to such safety as was provided by the Community of Universal Brotherhood at Brilliant.

In their flight the Community adherents left approximately 300 Sons of Freedom stranded in their Glade stronghold across the Kootenay river, for, after crossing the river by ferry the Community people chained their vessel to the shore and placed a guard on it. The only access that the Sons of Freedom have to the outside world is by means of raft or rowboat.

THREE ATROCITIES IN SHORT TIME

Hardly had the excitement quieted after the burning of the $5000 Brilliant school about midnight Friday when word was received that the $18,000, two-room, brick school at Glade had been demolished by dynamite about 5:10 Saturday morning.

At 11 o'clock Saturday night an Independent Doukhobor watchman at the Thrums community hall arrived on the scene in time to frustrate the burning of this building which is owned by the Independent Doukhobors.

All these weekend atrocities are commonly believed to be continuations of the burnings and bombings that have been perpetrated throughout the district this year by fanatical Sons of Freedom.

POLICE CALLED

About 11:40 Friday night the provincial police in Nelson received a call that took them to Brilliant in time to see the Community school destroyed by flames. A few hours later the bombing call was received from Glade.

GLADE SCHOOL TOTAL WRECK

Arriving at Glade the police found a torn, twisted wreck, that had once been a modern, two-room brick schoolhouse with living quarters for two teachers. Force of the explosion blew glass a distance of 95 feet from the windows of the building. One end of the building was blown out completely and the whole structure was twisted out of line. Desks of one room in particular were reduced to small fragments of wood and metal.

Speed with which this bombing was done is illustrated in the fact that the night guard had not left the building over 10 minutes when the terrific explosion occurred. For the past months the Glade school has been guarded by two Community Doukhobors. On the morn-

CAROL FAILS SEE WIFE OFF, TRAIN

BUCHAREST, July 6.—(AP)—Although it had been understood that King Carol II had intended to see his divorced wife and young son off for the Rumanian royal summer residence at Simaia, the king was not at the railway station yesterday when Queen Helen and young Michael entrained. This was taken as indicating that the reconciliation of the royal pair may be further off than believed of late.

It is understood legal proceedings seeking annulment of the divorce decree will be started next week out court circles said today the necessary legal investigations might require some time.

Reports persist the king and queen will be reconciled eventually. Official circles renewed denials yesterday that Madame Magda Lupescu, the king's companion when he was an exile in France, had returned to Rumania, and would live at Sinaia.

SAW MILL, STATION BURN AT HARRISON MILLS

VANCOUVER, July 6—Fire destroyed a sawmill and the Canadian Pacific Railway station at Harrison Mills, on the main line of the C.P.R. about sixty miles east of here, early tonight, it was reported, [illegible] interrupted for several hours and details were not available.

ONE LIBERAL CANDIDATE WITHDRAWS

DAWSON, Yt., July 6—J. D. Skinner, one of two Liberal candidates in the constituency in the coming federal elections has withdrawn and is supporting the other Liberal candidate, Dr. E. Thompson. Both Captain George Black, Conservative, member in the last house, and Dr. Thompson, are now campaigning through the territory.

REV. F. STEVENS OPENS MINISTRY IN EAST TRAIL

TRAIL, B. C., July 6.—Rev. F. Stevens, B. A., opened his ministry in East Trail United church tonight. Rev. C. Addyman, the retiring pastor, informed Mr. Stevens at this service that his best days were ahead of him as pastor in East Trail.

Mr. Stevens preached the sermon.

TWO ARRESTED IN CONNECTION WITH SLAYING

WINNIPEG, July 6—(CP)—Provincial police tonight had two men in connection with the slaying at Alowz, Man., on Saturday of Hugh McKay, 70-year-old farmer. The names of the pair they refused to divulge.

Rev. C. E. Rosofer, pastor of Church of Christ, Ashtabula, Ohio, will leave to become pastor of Disciple Church, North Tonawanda, N. Y.

WOULD ORGANIZE IN INTEREST OF LABOR, FARMERS

A. E. Watts Has Meeting Here; Resents Treatment From Returning Officer

SAYS IS UNABLE TO GET HIS PAPERS

Would Be a Candidate; Argues Point With People in Audience

In the interest of the Labor and Farmer parties A. E. Watts held an organization meeting in the Board of Trade rooms on Saturday night.

Mr. Watts, while outlining his case, replied to several arguments from his audience. The point in question was that of the difference existing between British Columbia freight rates and those of the prairie provinces. Mr. Watts was of the opinion that British Columbia should have the same rates as enjoyed on the prairies. Among those who argued the point with the speaker were: Mrs. W. C. Rudduck, and daughter, Mrs. D. G. Mosses, C. Meineczuk, N, Stubbs, J. St. Denis.

HAD NOT RECEIVED JUSTICE

Mr. Watts pointed out that the purpose of the meeting was solely for organization of Labor and Farmers interests. He stated emphatically that though he had wished to enter the political field as a candidate that he had received no reply whatsoever from the district returning officers when he had made application for papers and documents to which all candidates are entitled by law. Such applications had been made since June 27 and not a reply had been received to either letters or telegram.

Mr. Watts stated that he would immediately lay his case before the chief electoral officer, Ottawa, giving notice that he would apply for an order to void the election if not given fair treatment like all other condidates. He concluded that full details of his case would be published in detail.

DIES IN ATTEMPT SHOOT NIAGARA FALLS IN BARREL

Barrel Afloat and Intact But Occupant Dead From Suffocation

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., July 6.—The body of George Stathak's was taken this afternoon from the barrel in which he attempted to navigate the rapids above Niagara Falls and plunge over the cataract. Death, according to Coroner W. W. Thompson of Niagara Falls, Ont., was due to suffocation.

The barrel was sighted shortly after 6 o'clock this morning by Canadian officials on duty at the Canadian end of Falls View bridge, the first structure below the falls.

William (Red) Hill, veteran riverman, was notified by telephone and with his son William Jr., went down into the gorge. The barrel was afloat, bumping against rocks on the Canadian side of the river, but was intact.

Borrowing a life boat from the Maid of the Mist, the father and son made a line fast to the barrel, but were unable to tow it ashore, the cumbersome craft weighing more than a ton.

FOUR HOURS' WORK

About 10 a.m., by dint of much pulling and hauling, with the rowboat and aided by favorable currents, the barrel was taken to the Canadian shore, a short distance below the abutment of the Falls View bridge. A large crowd meantime gathered on the river banks.

The Hills dropped overboard from the rowboat and wading into water up to their shoulders, shoved the barrel nearer and nearer to shore, where it was made fast by ropes.

After the barrel had ben safely anchored, it was some time before it could be opened. It was floating end up, but the manhole was brought above the surface and the 16 bolts by which it was fastened were removed.

Stathakis was found still strapped to a mattress which he had designed as a buffer against the side of the barrel. He was dead and Coroner Thompson expressed the belief that he had succumbed 10 or 12 hours before.

GIRL FLYER HAS HEFTY WALLOP

Amy Johnson Slaps Would-Be Kisser on the Nose and Draws Blood

PERTH, Western Australia, July 6 (Canadian Press cable via Reuters) There is one young man in Perth today who knows that Amy Johnson, the intrepid English girl who flew from England to Australia, cannot be kissed at boisterious will.

There were wild scenes in the streets when the smiling girl flyer arrived here today after having visited other cities of Australia. Her motor-car was mobbed by a throng of admirers.

When the youth's enthusiasm got the better of him and he attempted to kiss Miss Johnson, she slapped his face spiritedly and he retired, crest-fallen, to nurse a bleeding nose.

DROWN IN RIVER, EDMONTON

EDMONTON, Alta., July 6—Falling into the swiftly flowing stream while playing with small toy boats from the lower half of the wharf near the low level bridge, Lawrence Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Jackson, was drowned in the North Saskatchewan river at 4:20 p.m. Saturday. His body was not recovered.

SAYS LIBERALS MAKING 'BACK DOOR CANVASS'

Bennett Calls on Premier to Repudiate Charges, Maritimes

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I., July 6.—(By Thomas Green, Canadian Press staff correspondent).—Closing a whirlwind campaign tour of Prince Edward Island, Hon. R. B. Bennett on Saturday called upon Premier King to repudiate "back door canvasses" regarding the treatment to be accorded ex-service men. Again the Conservative chieftain in a trenchant attack criticized the course of the Liberal administration on the Duncan report on maritime rights.

"A back door canvass," Mr. Bennett exclaimed, "is being made by one of the Liberal candidates on this island among the families of soldiers who fought overseas. 'Give me,' he says, 'a letter, sign a paper, and I will send it to Mr. Mackenzie King and see that you get $2000.' Men and women, if that sort of canvass continues to be made on you by any candidate show him the door. He is no friend of Canada or the families of returned men who does that sort of thing." The opposition leader proceeded: "When I heard of a Liberal candidate doing that I made up my mind that Canada would hear of it. I call upon the prime minister of the country to repudiate canvasses of the nature It is not decent that it be done."

DISLIKES POLICY

Continuing, Mr. Bennett declared he wished again to deprecate the bringing into politics of matters affecting "those who fought for us and their dependents.' The subject was above the realm of politics, he warmly remarked, and canvass of returned soldiers on the basis of benefits to be received was "discreditable."

Mr. Bennett asserted 75 per cent of returned men in the commons sat on the Conservative side of the chamber, and in their hands the treatment of returned soldiers could be safely placed. He recalled, Mr. Bennett said, asking two sessions ago that the benefit of the doubt be given to ex-service men on pension applications, but the government had refused and he was compelled to introduce an amendment to this affect which was voted down by the government and accepted this year. All parties in the commons last session, the Dominion leader emphasized, had unanimously supported the returned soldier legislation which was enacted as the unanimous report of a committee of all groups in the house.

So large was the crowd who sought admission to the theatre to hear the opposition leader that men and women from the dual constituency of Queens and some from Kings riding, were standing in the doors leading from the foyer. Every seat and standing space was filled.

TORY CHIEFTAIN HAS BUSY WEEK AHEAD OF HIM

Election Campaign Has Only Three Weeks More to Run Now

OTTAWA, Ont., July 6.—(CP)—Nomination day in and around 60 constituencies is only one week away, and the election campaign has only three more weeks to run. The flood of oratory which has engulfed the country since the beginning of last month shows no sign of abating, and there is every prospect of its continuance until the very eve of the general election.

This week finds the leaders of the two great political parties in widely separated parts of the country. The prime minister continues his campaign in the west, while the Hon. Mr. Bennett, Conservative leader, will remain for the week in the maritimes. The speaking schedules of the two political chieftains, however indicate that Mr. Mackenzie King will be taking things somewhat easier than his rival. Perhaps the prime minister's time will be consumed mostly in travel, in view of the fact that he will shortly be on his way east. Also Mr Mackenzie King will spend two days in his constituency of Prince Albert, Sask.

Six speeches will be delivered by the premier this week, as compared with 10 which Mr. Bennett will make up to Friday next. For the next five days the opposition leader will speak in two constituencies daily.

Beginning tomorrow night, Mr. Mackenzie King will address meetings at Victoria, British Columbia, at Vancouver on Tuesday and Kamloops on Wednesday. This will finish his trip to the Pacific coast On Thursday he will speak at Edmonton, on Friday at Saskatoon, and on Saturday at Prince Albert.

He will speak at Regina on Monday, July 14, and at Winnipeg on Tuesday, July 15.

Mr. Bennett begins the week at Sydney, N. S., tomorrow afternoon and Glace Bay in the evening. On Tuesday he speaks at St. Peter's and Inverness, on Wednesday at Antigonish and New Glasgow, on Thursday Rexton, N. B., and Moncton, N. B., and on Friday at Newcastle and Chatham.

on to the floor of parliament, said Mr. McGeer and if opposition to equalization of freight rates continued, he would obstruct the business of "parliament until justice was done," and, added Mr. McGeer, he felt that he would have the support of the man who was sympathetic to minorities, the prime minister.

TO DEMAND P.G.E. EXTENSION

Mr. McGeer said another thing which he proposed to demand was extension of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway. His complaint against Mr. Barber, ex-member for Fraser Valley, as well as against other British Columbia members was that they had not fought for equalization of freight rates.

The speaker devoted some time to discussion of the budget.

Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, was trying to belittle the budget by calling it a thing of "cut flowers and castiron pipe," he said.

He quoted statements by Rt. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister of Great Britain, and Lord Melchett, expressing appreciation and approval of the budget.

Mr. Bennett was talking about "blasting a way to trade," but that was not the way to develop trade with Great Britain, said Mr. McGeer. "You could not tell the people of Great Britain what they should do" because the British people had acquired a habit of not taking such advice.

The prime minister was introduced as "an Empire statesman, and Canada's representative at the Imperial conference this fall."

"I believe," said the prime minister, "that we are going to have a splendid representation from British Columbia in the next parliament." He paid a tribute to the work done by Mr. McGeer on behalf of the province of British Columbia and also to Hon. Ian MacKenzie, minister of immigration and Indian affairs, who occupied a seat on the platform.

"We have tried whenever there was a grievance to go to the root of the grievance and remove it," declared Mr. King in discussing the relations of his government and the provinces. He spoke of the return of the lands in the railway belt and the Peace River block to British Columbia, as well as the return of natural resources to the prairie provinces. The Dominion government had not enquired as to the political completion of any of the provincial governments in returning these resources. It had treated them all with justice and generosity, no matter whether they were "Liberal, Progressive or Conservative."

CANNOT ABSORB ON SURPLUS

"We have long since passed the time when the home market will absorb our surplus products," said Mr. King. Canada must have world markets and it was the aim of the government to secure them.

He went on to review the records of the government in the realm of finance. During the eight and a half years of office during which his government had administered the affairs of Canada, there had been surpluses in seven years," he said.

In the last five years $118,000,000 had been remitted in taxation to the people of Canada.

The income tax had been reduced, the sales tax had been cut down to one per cent and the "nuisance taxes" had been almost completely done away with.

In closing his speech, the prime minister predicted that the passing of the budget would mark a new era in the matter of trade within the British Empire. He called upon his listeners to remember that they had a great heritage which was given only to those who were members of the British commonwealth of nations.

MacDONALD SAYS TORIES FAILED ON AGRICULTURE

LONDON, July 6.—(C. P. cable)—For five years the Conservative government which ruled Britain had the opportunity to remedy the plight of this country's agriculture, says Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in a letter written to Lady Burton, who is the Labor candidate in the Norfolk by-election, brought on by the elevation of her husband, the former minister of agriculture, to the house of lords.

But in the five years the Conservatives did nothing, adds Premier MacDonald, who goes on to condemn the agricultural proposal made by the Right Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, on recent speeches. These proposals involved the fixing of prices on agricultural products and a prohibitive tariff on the importation of German rye and French wheat.

The Conservatives, intimates the prime minister, ar equite ready to solve problems when in opposition, but have allowed priceless opportunities to slip past them when in the seats of the government.

ONE GULP IN SPEAKEASY CURES TASTER OF WINE

LOS ANGELES, July 6—One swallow of the wares of American speakeasies does not make for another, in the opinion of one of the world's most celebrated wine tasters, Dr. Ernesto Rossi, chief director of Martini & Rossi of Turin, Italy.

"Impossible!" exclaimed Dr. Rossi atthe Biltmore, in telling of his first encounter with wine in the United States. "My son, Napeolone and I have drunk nothing but water after that experience; wethi nk it is better for us."

Dr. Rossi, whose palate is the final judge of the products of Martini & Rossi concluded, he said, that the bootleg product is "dear and not good". And so, he added, he drinks water willingly.

Dr. Rossi and his son came to the United States to attend the approaching international convention of Rotaryo lubs in Chicago. But, he said, they wished to see as much of Omerica as they could; consequently, they came early and have been touring rapidly here and there, visiting Vancouver, B. C., other leading cities of the Pacific northwest, San Francisco, Yosemite Valley and other points.

Theyl eft yesterday for the East, with the intention of visiting the Grand canyon en route.

Business of the Martini & Rossi concern in the United States is only one-third of what it was before prohibition, Dr. Rossi said, approximately 50,000 cases of nonalcoholic vermouth being sold in this country annually now, as, against 150,000 cases of alcoholic vermouth in former days.

Each of the Rossis bears the title of Count of Montelera. Young Rossi, who is 28 lyears of age, is a leading Fascist, serving as chief inspector of the Fascisti in the province of Turin.

The elder Rossi said that he was born in the wine business. His father was the founder of the concern of Martini & Rossi.

SIC EM, FIDO. YOU HAVE RIGHT TO CHASE KITTIES

PORTLAND, Ore., July 6—The "constitutional right" of dogs to attack cats was upheld in District Court here.

Last November a dog belonging to Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Bransford, Portland, was strolling along the street when he espied a large Persian cat, the pet of Mrs. May O'Farr, sunning himself in the O'Farr yard. The dog followed his natural impulses and moved to the attack. A few days later the cat died.

After a consultation the Bransfords agreed to find another cat to replace the deceased, but were unable to obtain one that in Mrs. O'Farr's opinion would fill the place of her "mild-mannered" Persian. So Mrs. O'Farr brought suit against the Bransfords for $154.50 for the loss of her cat.

Mrs. O'Farr, in her complaint, charged that the Bransford dog was a large dog of "cross and dangerous, and possessed an irresistible habit of chasing and worrying cats".

Elton Watkins, Democratic nominee for United States senator from Oregon, rperesented the defendants. He replied that "the plaintiff's cat was permitted to roam at will and on the day in question was on the street and flirted with the defendant's dog and induced the dog to play."

The dog, he said, was a "small, mild-mannered dog, playful in a nature and a pet of the neighborhood", and if the cat did die "by reason of its game of sport with the defendant's dog it was not due to any viciousness of the dog."

After spending the afternoon listening to the arguments, District Judge Woodley found for the defendants.

EMPIRE TRADE AND LUMBER

In the June issue of the British Columbia Lumberman appears a column showing Pacific Coast exports for State of Washington and the April, as compared with the State of Oregon. British Columbia exported a total of 59,489,972 feet b.m., the State of Washington, 206,623,747 ft. b.m., and the State of Oregon, 106,672,220 ft. b.m. It will be seen that Oregon exports almost twice as much as British Columbia and Washington four times as much. Now where does this lumber go? Let us take places within the British Empire.

It will be seen from these figures that Washington shipped three times as much to places within tht British Empire as did British Columbia, and Oregon nearly five million feet more. Lumbermen, who know conditions in all three, declare that there are reasons for this discrepancy — that the States across the line have lumber better suited to export—but granted that this discrepancy should not be as great as it is. There is certainly room here for the operation of the Empire Marketing Board but far more for increased efforts on behalf of the marketing board of the British Columbia lumbermen themselves—if there is such a body. The truth is that lumbermen have not yet realized that its production is far less important than marketing; that it is much better for the province and for the lumbermen that the timber should be allowed to stand than that it should be cut at cost or less than cost. How that is to be done is another matter for there is such an enormous investment in equipment in logging lamps that many of them must produce in order to pay interest and sinking fund on investment but sooner or later with logs and lumber piling up, the breaking point will be reached. If a slackening of production could be arranged instead of a forced cessation of operations it would prevent much distress and unemployment.

Via Ireland

The late president of the United States, Mr. Woodrow Wilson, the author of the famous Fourteen Points, also had his lighter moments. He was responsible for:

As a beauty I am not a star.
There are others more handsome by far.
But my face, I don't mind it.
For I am behind it.
It's the people in front that get the jar!

Mr. Reed declared that the earliest form of verse in this form came actually from Ireland via France.

What the Press Is Saying

THE CAMPAIGN IN EAST KOOTENAY

The political campaign so far as East Kootenay is concerned has been drifting along in the even tenor of its way. There has been little or no excitement, and the candidates seem to be just feeling their ground. There may be a change at the wind-up but everything at this time points to a quiet and orderly contest. In early day campaigns when both candidates were on the platform at meetings much crossfiring was done. This often afforded the audience a little entertainment, but it is doubtful is any more was accomplished by the candidates in presenting their issues. Political history shows that the man who makes the best showing on the platform is not always the one who polls the heaviest vote on election day, but the people look for an intelligent presentation of facts. A case in point to be remembered was at the time of the early provincial elections in this district. The candidates were E. C. Smith, William Fernie and John R. Costigan. At the most of the meetings all three candidates would be on the same platform. Smith and Fernie were just the average run of speakers, while Costigan, a lawyer, was an able debater, a good raconteur and clever at repartee. The crowd was with him apparently as he drew forth applause after applause, and to the casual observer his election looked like a cinch. However, when the votes were counted, Smith was elected, Fernie had made a fairly good run, and Costigan had lost his deposit. Meeting the people personally and giving them the glad hand has in many cases won out over oratory and entertainment. In the present campaign both candidates have good records and are carrying on their work in clean and commendable fashion, and from present appearances this will continue up until the day of election.—Cranbrook Courier.

That Body of Yours

By JAS. W. BARTON, M.D.

VALUE OF VARIETY IN FOODS

During the war it was my privilege to have a part in arranging the menus for a number of hospitals.

As you know governments, even in the time of stress, try to be generous to their sick and wounded, and so we were given considerable power in the matter of purchasing food.

Now as you know the amount of food per patient per day has to be all worked out; the number of calories of the various foods, and the proper proportions of meats to starches and fats.

However there was one factor that we stressed, and it took long thought and careful planning and that was to get a 'variety' of foods for these sick men.

Now why is this so important?

In any and every hospital there must be a great deal that is alike day after day; the same doctors, the same nurses, the same orderlies, the same walls, the same dishes.

Now the Russian Scientists Pavlo and W. N. Boldyreff, have been able to show that 'monotony' in diet actually slows up digestion and the individual does not get the full value of food eaten. Also the appetite is naturally not so keen, and the digestive juices do not flow so readily.

You can thus see that although we got the best quality of food obtainable, the proper amount of food, the proteids, starches and fats in their right proportions, we could still fail somewhat if we did not get the variety.

Another point was that in so far as possible the same foods were not served two days in succession, in fact as many days as possible were allowed to intervene.

Thus the patient did not grow tired of any food, but had a real appetite for it.

I believe this saved the government much in money, as these patients got well sooner.

And for those of us in good health this same law holds good. If you or your family get "off your feet," try a change of diet. You have to have the same surroundings, the same china, glassware, table linen, but you can have variety, or change in the food itself.

Of course those who get plenty of exercise as work or play likes to eat anything.

NEW DISHES THIS WEEK

Cherry Pie: Line a pie pan with ordinary pastry. Into it put one pint or red ripe cherries (measured after being stoned). Over the fruit sprinkle one-half teaspoon of salt, two-thirds of a cup of granulated sugar and two tablespoons of flour. Dot with bits of butter, using one tablespoon of this fat, then put on an uncooked upper crust and bake 40 minutes in a hot oven at 400 degrees F. If cherries are sweet, add a few drops of lemon juice to this filling before baking.

Shortcake: Sift two cups of flour with two teaspoons of baking powder and one-half teaspoon of salt; rub in a piece of butter the size of an egg, then wet with about one-half cup of cold sweet milk, mixing to a light dough with a knife blade. Toss onto a floured board, pat to one-half inch in thickness, and cut in rounds. Bake on a greased pan like biscuits. Split, butter, and put any desired fruit between and on top, adding sugar to taste and whipped heavy cream, also sweetened. Peaches make as good a shortcake as berries. Contributed.

Mrs. C. F.'s: "Real German Coffee Cake: Scald one pint of sweet milk, then let cool to tepid stage before adding one cake of compressed yeast, let dissolve before stirring in one-half cup of butter melted, two well beaten but unseparated eggs previously mixed with one cup of granulated sugar, one-half teaspoon of ground nutmeg and one-half teaspoon of salt. Last add four or five cups of flour, put into greased pans, let rise two hours in a warm spot, then bake one-half hour in a hot oven, at 425 degrees F."

The Secret of Poise

THAT COMMANDS ADMIRATION!

ELINOR GLYN tells the women of NELSON

I KNOW a girl who is neither beautiful nor very plain. Just ordinarily good looking, like most of us.

But she has a serene poise that commands admiration; men instinctively stop to look at her, are proud to be seen with her.

She told me once that she deliberately builds up in herself a consciousness of feminine charm. She realizes that she herself must first be convinced of her own dainty femininity before she can impress others.

Wisely, she begins with her clothes.

One of the surest ways to gain perfect confidence in one's dainty, lovely femininity, she explains, is to have every bit of lingerie as delicate, colourful, charming as possible.

"When I wear these lovely, colourful, feminine things, I feel charming, and therefore I am," she says.

Keep Colours Lovely

But, women tell me, it is so difficult to wear lovely underthings always and keep them looking as wonderful, as colourful, as when they were new. Frequent washing (and we must be dainty) takes some of the lovely colour and charm out of the garment.

To this I reply, that is too often the case, but it need never be so if women faithfully use that invaluable product, Lux—which is made especially to cleanse without disturbing the vibrant loveliness of the colours. If a garment is safe in plain water alone, it is just as safe in Lux.

Wonderful colours, shimmering, lace-edged underthings — they build up in you the happy consciousness of feminine charm.

And in Your Home, Too

Pride in a charming home gives you poise, too, and here Lux is also an invaluable aid. As in the case of your dainty lingerie—frocks, blouses, scarfs.

(Left) After 12 washings with an ordinary good soap—silk fibres a little out of place—lace damaged. Lustre impaired, colour off (Right) After 12 Lux washings—every thread in place—silk and lace fibres intact, colour intact. Retains all the charm of new.

When truly confident of charm, you inevitably have the serene poise that commands instant admiration from everyone!

too—so with your draperies, linens, slip covers. Ordinary soaps will take away some of the colour pigment, whereas Lux preserves colours and textures in their perfect, new state.—Elinor Glyn.

This column is conducted by Miss Helen Murphy. All news of a social nature, including receptions, private entertainments, personal items, marriages, etc., will appear in this column. Telephone Miss Murphy at her home, Kerr apartments.

A charmingly arranged home wedding took place on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Robertson, Silver King road, when their eldest daughter Ruth Aileen was united in marriage to William John Ternan, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Ternan of Rossland, British Columbia. Rev. C. H. Daly, pastor of St. Andrews United church, Rossland, officiated at the ceremony which was performed under a floral arch of pink carnations and peonies, centered with a wedding bell of white flowers. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her gown of chartreuse green silk net over the same shade of crepe fashioned on long princess lines with uneven hemline, and having a shoulder cape which formed cap sleeves. She wore a large hat of capline straw lace turned off the face and drooping to the wider brim on the sides and back. Slippers of green linen and hose to match completed her costume, while she carried an arm bouquet of ophelia roses and larkspur. Miss Iris Robertson, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid was gowned in flowered yellow georgette made on long lines with which she wore a large hat of yellow baku straw, yellow linen shoes with hose to match and carried mauve sweet peas and yellow roses. Louis Morris of Trail supported the groom. During the reception the bride and groom were assisted in receiving by their mothers, Mrs. Robertson was attired in a costume of rose beige flat crepe with shoes and hose to match while Mrs. Ternan chose for the occasion an ensemble of Russian green with black and white dots and a talleur hat of black baku straw. The table centered with a four tiered wedding cake embedded in pink tulle was arranged with pink roses and lighted by tall pink tapers and was presided over by Mrs. R. G. McKeown at the urns while Mrs.: J. M. Armstrong cut the ices. Those assisting in serving were Miss Dorothy Bisson, Miss Edith Ternan, Miss Jean Glendenning, Miss Georgea McKeown, Miss Margaret MacLeod and Miss Jessie Croll. Later Mr. and Mrs. Ternan left on a honeymoon by motor the bride travelling in a two pieced suit of yellow flat crepe with accessories to match. On their return they will reside in Rossland. The wedding guests included Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Ternan, Miss Edith Ternan, Mr. and Mrs. O. Bisson, Miss Marion Bisson, Miss Dorothy Bisson and Russel Bisson all of Rossland, Mr. and Mrs. P. MacLeod, Rev. and Mrs. F. R. G. Dredge, Mr. and Mrs. John Stobo, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. McKeown, Mr. and Mrs. J. McIntyre, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. W. Vance, Mr. and Mrs. A. "GOD" IS SUBJECT OF SERMON HERE

Lesson-Sermon Is Given at First Church of Christ Scientist

"God" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in First Church of Christ Colentist on Sunday.

"The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?" (Psalms 27:1) was one of the Scriptural texts contained in the Lesson-Sermon.

Following the reading of the Bible texts, passages were also read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures", by Mary Baker Eddy, one passage being the following from page 393: "Take possession of your body, and govern its feeling and action. Rise in the strength of spirit to resist all that is unlike good. God has made man capable of this, and nothing can vitiate the ability and power divinely bestowed on man."

PARIS STYLES BRING WOMEN WRITING JOBS

More Than 100 Style Scribes Now Chronicle Changes in Fashion

PARIS, July 6—Style writing is an up and coming profession for women which has developed since the war. More than 100 resident style scribes now chronicle the changes in women's styles originating in Paris. All but two are women.

Some of the best known fashion writers of the United States pay income taxes on monthly salaries of four figures. Fifty per cent of the total resident style writing group are Americans working for United States magazines, newspapers or syndicates. English fashion correspondents rank second in number and German writers come third.

Strangely enough there are few French women engaged in writing for French publications. French daily papers print almost no news of women's styles. Prior to 1914 less than half a dozen people sent acurate and timely style news from Paris. Dressmakers who suspected that their styles had been "written up" punished the offending writer by refusing admission to their showings.

Only one great pre-war couturier appreciated the value of publicity. He was Paul Poiret who built up, largely through newspapers, one of the big names. Only two houses hold out against the established custom of press showings. They are Chanel and Vionnet. Madame Chanel has a no-style-writers-admitted policy. Madeleine Vionnet sends invitations to the press group a month after her new styles have been launched.

GEODETIC BENCH MARKS

The standard precise level bench mark of the geographical survey of Canada, prior to 1925, was a chisel mark on a ¾-inch copper bolt, cemented in walls of substantial buildings, bed rock, and masonry structures of all kinds. Subsequently a bronze tablet three inches in diameter has been used instead of the older bolt.

"It's Pure Because It's Pasteurized"

What Pasteurization of Milk Is

Pasteurization is the process of heating milk to a temperature of approximately 145 degrees Fahrenheit, never lower than 142, holding every portion of the milk at that temperature for a period of at least 30 minutes, and then promptly cooling below 50 degrees.

Insist on Pasteurized milk. Insist on Curlew, for it's Pasteurized.

Summer Activities Call for Intensive Advertising

SUMMER—the season when the world and his wife are out of doors—on the highways—at the beach—in the garden—on the golf links—by stream and lake.

The season that develops a multitude of new wants and makes insistent demands on everyone for the goods and services necessary to the enjoyment of its varied delights.

Hot weather foods and cooling beverages — Summer frocks and garden equipment — bathing suits and sunburn alleviatives—sports clothes and furnishings for the Summer cottage — gasoline and spare tires.

And these in addition to people's normal all-year-round buying activities. For family larders and wardrobes need replenishing fully as much in July as in December. Youthful couples buy and furnish homes in August as well as in February.

Astute advertisers do not cut down their advertising when the mercury goes up. They realize that Summer, which brings Canada its $300,000,000 tourist industry, also brings them sales opportunities afforded by no other season of the year.

And they know that the quickest, most economical means of capitalizing these opportunities are the advertising columns of the daily newspapers.

JACK GUEST OF TORONTO IS WORLD'S AMATEUR SCULLING CHAMPION NOW; BEATS GERMAN EASILY AT HENLEY

aves Boetzelen Behind in Final of the Diamond Sculls

HENLEY-ON-THE-THAMES, Eng- ad, July 6.— (Canadian Press ble)—By winning the Diamond ulls on Saturday, through his de ive victory over the German wer, Gerhard Boetzelen, Jack est of the Don Rowing club, oronto, became virtually the rld's champion amattur sculler d Canada captured for the second me in three years this greatest illing trophy of the Empire. n this year's winner the cham ns of the sculls find a worthy cessor. Guest, at the age of 24 rs is a great sculler. The critics Henley say so and there are more candid critics than those the fashionable following which ends the royal regatta. When he vanquished the German mpion, Guest sculled as com tably as though he were engaged a practice spin. Unflurried, he er even quickened his strokes. simply sculled on with smooth verful strokes making the plucky rman seem outclassed.

LY CONSCIOUS AT END

When Guest had drawn so far ad that he could feel sure tzelen had spent his last effort, Canadian continued with a dy paddle along a silver ribbon water between two lines of usands of men and women. His rst moment came after the race. he sat looking at the great s of spectators he suddenly ap red to become self-conscious. His t drifted about while he waited his opponent, beaten by 200 ds, to come up.Then Guest spoke few words of comfort to the ng German, who is the same and who reached the finals the Diamond Sculls in his first r's attempt.

oetzelen was a brave loser and deserved and got a generous re of the cheers. When he was d after the race how he first ame a sculler, Boetzelen replied: really don't know. My parents no idea of sport and I was ainly the worst athlete at school wanted nothing better than to a violinist".

hen numerous admirers express their sympathy to the loser he wered quickly, with one of his idest smiles:

MAHON WANTS TO MEET AVIS HERE

Thinks "Home Town Decision" Robbed Him of Win at Grand Forks

If John Avis, who won a decision over Jim Mahon of Trail in a bout at Grand Forks on May 24, and who is believed to be working on the West Kootenay line in the Fend Oreille at present, can be located, Nelson will see these two boys battle in a headline bout at the Opera house here on July 19.

This was announced last night by Mac McLeod, of Nelson, manager of Mahon. McLeod stated that expenses would be guaranteed and there would also be a cut on the gate receipts.

HOME TOWN DECISION

The decision won by Avis over Mahon was termed by McLeod as a "home town decision," and the battle here will take the shape of a "grudge fight," with Mahon seeking revenge.

Arrangements for securing the Opera house for the date were completed last night, McLeod stated.

Mahon worked out with McLeod last night, and the latter was quite pleased with the boxer's display of speed and punching abilities. He felt sure Mahon would beat Avis.

McLeod is a boxer of no mean repute himself.

COLVILLE NINE LOSES TO FORKS IN CLOSE GAME

E. Hutton and W. Ronald Drive Home Runs and O'Keefe Three Bagger

GRAND FORKS, B. C., July 6.—Outplaying Colville in the last inning of a most sensational game the Grand Forks ball team won an 8-7 victory here this afternoon at the ball park.

Two home runs, one made by Ernest Hutton and the other by Walter Ronald, were the features of the game, Hutton's drive occurred in the ninth inning bringing the game to a tie. Throughout Hutton played a splendid, steady game. Ronald's home run was featured in the early stages of the game.

Following Hutton's drive O'Keefe knocked a three-bagger and scored the winning run for the Forks' team on a single off R. Cooper, with one man out.

The Colville team made seven runs, nine hits and two errors and Grand Forks team, eight runs, 12 hits and one error.

Colville battery was Adams and Graham and Grand Forks, Ronald and O'Keefe.

WATCH THE TIME WINS AT COAST

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 6. — Watch the Time, owned by Mrs. H. D. Cog, odds-on favorite, won the Willingdon handicap, feature event, on Saturday afternoon's closing card at Lansdown park. The winner was ridden by London and won by two lengths. The race was over the mile and eighth route.

The Blenheim handicap, second feature on the card, was copped by New Hampshire in the fast time of 1:12 3-5, a new track record for six furlongs. Sandy River was second.

British Girls Will Work on "E. P." Ranch

QUEBEC, July 6.—Two Lancashire girls arrived in Canada yesterday on the Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of York en route to Pekisko, Alberta, where they will start their Canadian careers on the "E. P. ranch."

The two girls, Doris and Muriel Howe, sisters, said "We do not know what we are going to do out there; it may be clerical, or it may be housework. But that doesn't matter. Professor Carlyle, manager of the Prince of Wales' ranch, engaged us, and we are looking forward as much to the new job as we are to seeing our brother, who is coming from Saskatoon to meet us."

Doris worked in the office of a grocery business in Blackpool, and her younger sister, Muriel, was in the public library at Blackpool.

HE DID IT

Critics felt that this year it was Jack Guest's turn to win the Diamond Sculls at Henley and he did. Each year Guest has been a formidable threat and his training this year gave him just the edge he needed to defeat Boetzelen, the German hope, who must have been good to beat Joe Wright in the semi-final.

SPRING HITS THIS BROOKLYN POET A VERY HARD BLOW

With Pagan War Cry He Trips Along Roof Top and Disrobes

NEW YORK, July 6. — (By the Canadian Press)—About this time of year sap begins to run in sugar maple trees and poets. Grass turns green and livers torpid. The wan winter sun faintly smiles, and in the Latin Quarter, Greenwich Village and Soho, painters and sculptors and scribblers crawl to their dormer windows to thaw inspiration in the balmy effulgence of the vernal season.

In Brooklyn the tradition is different. Perhaps there are no dormer windows. Anyway, in Brooklyn spring comes in with a zip and a zowie, a yell and a hell of a hullaboo, frightening little maids on the way to school, stopping stolid trolley cars dead in their tracks, filling the streets with crowds and confusion and calling out the police.

Roistering spring romped through an open window in the Columbia Heights section of Brooklyn and made a playfellow out of Ellis Dartois. Ellis is a sculptor who has experienced twenty-nine springs, all of them about the same—except this one. This spring grabbed him around the waist and whirled him round and up through the skylight of his studio to dance a gay bandage on the cornice.

The cornice and roof are only four stories above the earth, so when Ellis emitted a pagan war cry and began to skip along the edge of the roof he attracted attention from the street. First one, then two, then half a dozen and finally about two thousand persons jammed the street in front of the studio watching the young sculptor invoke the spirit of springtime.

As the spirit of the thing began to grow on him he made offerings to the goddess. First his shoes—each one removed while teetering on one leg on the very edge of the roof—then his coat, shirt, socks. He flung them to the breezes, skipping and dancing as he unbuttoned. In five minutes he was down to trousers and underwear. He flung his arms in a shower of kisses to the crowd below and pranced off the stage to the modest dressing room space afforded by a chimney. And then he made his reappearance—this time dressed only in his short and gauzy underwear.

The crowd set up a roar of encouragement and Ellis clasped Spring in his arms and danced with even more abandonment. He vanished for an instant and reappeared without the underwear. The crowd gasped in shocked surprise. Twoscore of little girls, trudging by on the way to a nearby school had stopped in open-mouthed wonder to gaze at the funny man on the roof. Matrons in the crowd hurriedly turned the little girls around and started them off to school with admonitions not to look back. One young lady screamed and almost fell in a faint.

"O Spring! O Goddess of the flow'ring bough!" intoned Ellis, abandoning the chisel for the iambic pentameter. "Gimme Spring Three-One Hundred!" Some one down below was intoning into a telephone at the same moment. The line did not scan, but it involved police headquarters and two patrolmen materialized within a few minutes. They called more men to clear away the crowd. They gained the roof by way of a fire escape and crawled across it, edging closer and closer to the sculptor who was still manufacturing poetry and new dance steps without a thought to custom or costume.

They grabbed him with sudden rushes and carried him away from the brink of the roof, scratching and kicking. For fifteen minutes they struggled and had him subdued sufficiently to wrap him in a piece of canvas, when he broke loose again and ran back to the edge of the roof.

This time ten stout citizens were called up, and Ellis Dartois was carried down to a waiting ambulance from Kings County hospital. Dr. Gardner of Long Island College hospital took a look at him and suggested the observation ward. They will know shortly whether his inspiration merely thawed too quickly or whether every succeeding spring is going to affect him the same way.

PARTY TO STUDY FOREST OF N. S.

TRURO, N. S., July 6.—A party in charge of G. Clarkson, of Ottawa, and formed in accordance with the national inventory of forest resources undertaken by the Dominion Forest service last year, will carry on research work in Nova Scotia this summer regarding the growth and reproductive possibilities of native tree species.

Other members of the party are: J. B. Prince, Moncton; C. Corbett, Fredericton; E. J. Whittaker, Saint John; Hudson McLeod, Charlottetown; W. R. McCarthy, Halifax; Hugh Johnson, Meadowvale, N. S.

J. C. Veuess, of Ottawa, in charge of the Dominion Forest Service in the Maritime Provinces, has been in Nova Scotia supervising the beginning of the season's activities, and will leave shortly for New Brunswick to start similar work there.

GIANTS TAKE A DOUBLE HEADER FROM PHILLIES

Scores Are 10-8 and 6-2; Boone Shines as Robins Win, 10-4

NEW YORK, July 6.—The Giants took a double-header from the Phillies by scores of 10 to 8 and six to two. Pete Donohue, who hurled the second game, settled down after a poor start and held the Phillies in check, while the Giants hit Willoughby at opportune moments. Lindstrom and Leach both hit home runs.

BROOKLYN, July 1.—Ike Boone made his debut with the Brooklyn Robins against the Boston Braves today and starred as the Robins pounded out a 10 to 4 victory. Boone hit a single and a home run and in the first inning he caught Walter Berger's bid for a home run and held on to the ball as he fell head first into the left field bleachers.

The second game of the scheduled double-header was called in the Brooklyn half of the third inning as Boston led, one to nothing.

ST. LOUIS, July 6.—The Cardinals defeated Pittsburgh in both ends of a double-header today, although they made only two hits in one of the games. The scores were two to one, and 12 to four. Spencer and Haines staged an old-fashioned hurling duel in the opener, a wild pitch by Spencer contributing to the Cardinal victory.

Heavy hitting by the Cardinals made the nightcap a one-sided affair. P. Waner of the Pirates got five hits out of five trips to the plate in the second game, including a double and triple.

CUBS GO TO SECOND PLACE

Cincinnati, July 6.—The Cubs fell back into second place in the National league race today by dropping both games of a double-header to the Cincinnati Reds 5 to 4 and 8 to 7. The Brooklyn Dodgers, by virtue of a triumph over Boston, eased back into the lead by the margin of a few percentage points since they have played fewer games than the Cubs'.

The Reds won the first game by a three-run rally in the 9th inning and took the second by virtue of the breaks. Kelly for the Reds and Hartnett for the Cubs each hit a home run with one on in the second game.

EASTERN N. S. WILL PROFIT

St Francis Xavier's University Plans to Extend Its Work

ANTIGONISH, N. S., July 6.—The development of rural and industrial leaders through short courses for selected men and women figures prominently in plans of St. Francis Xavier's University for an immediate expansion of the institution's extension work in Eastern Nova Scotia.

The work will include a survey of economic possibilities in farming, mining, fishing, lumbering and affiliated industries; a survey of possible social improvement in industrial and rural communities; and research to discover the best educational practices for the development of Eastern Nova Scotia.

Conferences will be called of county and parish leaders, clergymen, government officials and professional men, for the purpose of utilizing their training and energies in extension work, and both high school and college credits will be given for certain courses organized under the extension faculty.

SHORT COURSES

Cultural and vocational short courses in agriculture, home economics, history and kindred subjects will be given both in college and in the field, as well as short courses for selected men and women for the purpose of developing leaders; correspondence courses and the organization of study clubs are part of the plan.

The establishment of circulating libraries and a visual education service through the loaning of films, and art collections will come under the class of activity for which school credits are not given.

Country-wide debates on vital tropics, public speaking competitions and rural community and town improvement competitions will be arranged. The organization of debating, literary, art and dramatic clubs is part of the plan. Young men and women of exceptional talent discovered through these agencies will be assisted through scholarships.

The work will be in charge of Rev. Dr. M. M. Coady, of the college faculty, who is organizer for the Maritime fishermen, and A. B. MacDonald, formerly director of Livestock marketing for the province of Nova Scotia, who also held that position in Ontario, and latterly has been an inspector of schools.

BURGLAR ALARM MAKES MUSEUM THIEF PROOF

Super System in Metropolitan Museum of Art Believed Effective

NEW YORK, July 6.—Installation of a super burglar alarm system in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, with its priceless treasures, has made this famous institution thief-proof, it is believed by the museum trustees and the engineers who perfected the system.

Not only is the museum protected against actual theft, but any attempt to molest the treasured objects would result automatically and immediately in imprisoning the vandal within the walls of the museum. The greatest secrecy regarding the system and its operation is maintained by the museum officials and the Holmes Electric Protecting Company, a subsidiary of the New York Telephone Company, which installed it.

According to authentic information, the system recently installed works like the nervous system of a human body. The instant any one disturbs any of the protected objects the electric "nerve" records in the "brain centre" the exact point of trouble and also automatically sounds the alarm.

The force of guards always on duty at the entrance and exit doors close all doors with the sounding of the alarm and no one is permitted to leave the building until the cause for the alarm has been thoroughly investigated and all exhibits found to be intact.

At night, with the museum closed, guards have designated posts throughout the building. Their watch tour is so arranged that not one of them is left alone, and in this way they check up on the movements of one another.

The intricate and highly ramified electric wire connections throughout the museum make it a small replica of a city-wide burglar alarm system and has been the result of nearly a half century of experimentation.

A visitor will not notice strips of tinfoil on the glass enclosed receptacles that contain these priceless objects. But under these unnoticed little strips are the tell-tale invisible the galvonometer. These wires are highly sensitized and the cutting of the glass receptacle or even the lifting of the object would instantly record an alarm.

The famed cup of gold and enamel called the Rospigliosi cup by Benvenuto Cellini; the statuette of the god Amon, and other objects in the Carnarvon collection of Egyptian antiquities are protected in this way.

The famous Adams gold vase, made of California gold and other metals, is another priceless object which would instantly "shriek" out for protection if any one even electrical wires of comunication to attempted to lift it.

LORD BURGHLEY SCORES DOUBLE VICTORY, LONDON

Wins 120-Yard and 440-Yard Hurdles at Championship Sports

LONDON, July 6.—(C P cable)—Twenty three thousand spectators of the British athletic championships cheered wildly yesterday when Lord Burghley the noted hurdles runner, completed a wonderful double victory by winning the 120-yard and the 440-yard hurdles and in the case of the 440, clipping a fifth of a second from his previous record of 54 seconds.

The 440 was the great event of the day. Under blazing sunshine two of the world's greatest hurdlers met—Lord Burghley, 25 year old son and heir of the Marquess of Exeter, who had won several world championships, and Facelli, the Italian champion hurdler and record-holder of his country.

Facelli purposely saved himself for the 440, withdrawing from the 120-yard hurdles by special permission, after having qualified for the final.

Lord Burghley went away in the lead but was caught at the 300-yard mark and the Italian led by three yards. In a gruelling finish the Briton made an heroic effort, but was a foot behind in taking the last hurdle. With his face pale and his jaw set grimly the young nobleman made a final effort, overhauled Facelli, and won by a yard and a half.

This was the outstanding British track performance of the day, a day which saw a strong foreign challenger, Virtanens, of Holland, carried off the four-mile race by a Nurmi-like lead of no less than 150 yards at the finish, and the Flying Dutchman repeated by winning the 100-yard dash.

So far as the British entrants are concerned their shooting at the championships will go a long way toward determining the membership of the British team which will go to Hamilton, Ontario, to participate in the Empire games in August.

TROUT BEARING TEETH MARKS ON BODIES, TAKEN

What "Something" Has Been Biting Them Is Arousing Interest

SPRUCE LAKE, Ont., July 6—(By The Canadian Press)—Strange tales come from anglers who have been fishing in this district recently, concerning semi-circular teeth marks which have been seen on bodies of speckled trout taken from the depths of Spruce Lake. Several fish, weighing perhaps a pound and a half, have been found marked with the perfect reproduction of "something's" molars and what the "something" is, has aroused great interest. Spruce Lake is a favorite fishing spot, located on the Algoma Central Railway, 71 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie. It contains many deep holes, and in one of these holes, at the furthest spot from the railway tracks, the marked trout have been caught.

VARIED BELIEFS

For some time it was believed the marks might be those of an otter or loon. However, Isadore Paquette, a guide, states thot neither is responsible. He says the otter's teeth are larger, while the loon's teeth are smaller. Further, he points out that the otter would never release its hold on the fish until it was dead, and that a trout of the size marked would be far too much for a loon to handle. The marks are semicircular, and reach from the back of the fish to the belly. They are quite plain and have seen by many persons who were in the vicinity. Paquette inclines to the idea that when the lake was in the vicinity. Paquette inclined to the idea that when the lake stocked, some "freak" fish were included in the fry. This fish, surviving the demands of nature, has grown to enormous size, and in order to obtain sufficient food is feeding on the larger size trout, of which there are many in the lake.

HE DISAGREES

Another "old timer" of the district Sam Biggings of Sault Ste. Marie does no tagree with iPaquttee. Biggings believes the marks are caused by the meshes of a net. Someone, he thinks, is illegally netting the fish. However, others are not backward in pointing out that the nets used for taking the speckled beauties have a small mesh that would prevent a large trout from pentrating so far as the marks. The people of the Algoma district do not believe at any rate that the Spruce Lake fish, if it be a fish, can be compared with the famous "Ogo-Pogo' which allegedly inhabits Lake Okanagan in British Columbia, but they point to the marks on the speckled trout as proof that there is "something" in the sparkling waters of Spruce Lake.

GOLF IN CANADA'S PARKS

Exceptional opportunities are provided in many of Canada's national parks for the enjoyment of the royal and ancient game of golf. Golf courses are located in three of the national parks in the west, namely: Jasper, Banff, and Waterton Lakes. The first two are 18-hole links, while that at Waterton Lakes park is a nine-hole course. All three combine features that appeal both to the golf enthusiast and the lover of scenery. The settings are superb while for sportiness these courses have few equals.

CANADIAN COKE

During the past few years there has been such a marked increase in the use of coke for domestic purposes in Canada that this fuel bids fair to become a serious rival of anthracite, which has long been regarded as the standard fuel for this purpose at least, in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec.

RODE HORSE TO WIN ALTHOUGH HIS ARM WAS BROKEN, JUMP

NEW YORK, July 6.—(By the Canadian Press)—Charley Smoot rode Rooney to victory in the Westbury Steeplechase at Belmont Park with a broken collar bone, holding the reins in his teeth part of the way.

The boy fiet and heard the bone snap when his mount made a rough landing at the water jump. He was in great pain and his right arm went dead but he put the right rein in his teeth and guided his mount as best he could with his left arm over eight jumps more to land him the winner.

7, 000, 000, 000, BABY FISH PLANTED, U. S.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 6.—Federal fish hatcheries last year furnished 7,000,000,000 baby fish for stocking the coastal ocean waters, the lakes and the streams of the United States.

Of the total, as reported by the Commerce Department, 5,750,000,000 were cod, haddock and flounder—food fish for North Atlantic waters. Another 500,000,000 went to the Great Lakes, while 35,000,000 Pacific salmon fry were released. The remainder consisted of the varieties of fish released in streams to maintain the supply for sportsmen.

EVERYBODY SEES

the ravages of the Forest Fire, but not everybody realizes that seventy per cent. of our fires in 1929 were preventable; in other words, they were due simply to carelessness. Pressure of public opinion has gone far to eliminate carelessness in other directions, but carelessness with fire is still amazingly prevalent.

CHAPTER LXI

Even now as Lee Rogers' heart chilled with the mightiest terror of his life, he was still the alert, intelligent physician. His fingers, swift and sensitive, crept toward Joslyn's pulse, kept firm touch on the fluttering ebb of her earthly existence.

"Nobody can live with a pulse as weak as that!" he told himself, desperately.

All color now was gone from her face; the lids of her closed eyes had a waxen hue. If she breathed, it was imperceptible. Two nurses came hovering around the bed, white-clad girls with serious, immobile faces. A regular physician of the hospital in a white coat was at Lee Rogers' elbow.

"Is there anything you want, Doctor Rogers? I was about to suggest digitalis"—

"Yes, quickly, please."

"Certainly, old chap. We'll have to risk the reaction though, the probable collapse"—

"We'll risk it!"

The white-dressed group gathered hurriedly around Joslyn's bared arm; Lee Rogers turned his face aside as he caught a glimpse of the hypodermic needle injecting the powerful heart stimulant. A relaxation of the . . . the tenseness of the bedside group. The passage of long, dragging minutes. . . .the first responsive telegraphing of the feeble pulse.

"Coming up . . . a little."

Once more Lee Rogers was alone with the spent, white form on the cot. Nothing remained that the others could do. From now on the case was beyond human effort. The end, if it came, would be swift—could be held back no more han a tide rushing out from a shore.

He wondered if she would open her eyes; would be able to recognize him and speak. That, at least, was possible.

"Joslyn!" It was a hushed whisper.

Very slowly the waxen lids opened. "I'm so tired, Lee.'

Clarity, intelligence—the evaporation of the foggy cloud that had enshrouded her mind. So often, like this, the mind cleared up for the last few minutes. . . .the final brave flicker of a candle guttering to extinction.

"Lee—Lee darling, am I dying?"

She was dying, and they both knew it, but, like a great truth triumphing over a great error, Lee Rogers spoke, not from his scientific mind, but from the depths of his racked, love-torn soul.

"Not yet, dear. I love you too much to let you go. It's your heart—you've got to keep that alive and beating. Nobody knows what makes a heart beat, but you must keep yours beating, because I love you. Let it beat in tune with mine, little girl. Oh, Joslyn, honey—Can't you feel the urge, the power I'm trying to give you—"

"You do love me, don't you, dear?"

"You are my very life itself, Joslyn. Try—try—try to live because I love you so!"

The straining eyes of Lee Rogers thought, for a moment, that a faint tinge of color came back to the pallid cheeks.

"I love you, Lee. . .always did . . .but there was somthing. . . . wild. . . . in me that had to be burned out. It's gone now, Lee" . . .

"You are an angel."

"No—just human, too human, Lee. But the old dangerous fever in my blood. . . . in my soul is gone. It went with Jim Kelvin. I never really loved him, Lee. He set me on fire and the fire swept me clean . . .it burned out the taint."

"Nothing matters, Joslyn, except that you must live—"

Unbelievably, the tide turned—brought sparkle to the dull eyes, warmth to the cold hand,

"It would be stupid to die now, wouldn't it Lee?" A tiny smile formed on the slowly reddening lips. "Why, Lee, dear—I'm just beginning to live now. . . .for the very first time in my whole life. And it's sweet—so sweet."

And Lee Rogers, as his medical insight and his lover-heart told him that Joslyn had slipped safely from the clutch of Death, bent his head till he could kiss her small warm hand.

"It is sweet to live," he whispered. "So sweet!"

THE END

The stitched velvet beret is New York's latest furore and the younger set is wearing them to tennis match or a tea dance and to all events of in-between formality and it flatters a thin face, looks sophisticated on a round face, and is as light as "nothing at all" on the head.

Going Across

PART III

SHIPMATES

By GERALD S. REES

Appearing among the passengers, probably with his name spelled wrongly in the ship's visiting list, will be the man fro' Aberdeen; also the lady elocutionist with a flag (Oh Horrors); the golf professional who wears neither breeks nor shoon indicative of his honorable by trying porfession; and the lady who can sing—and won't, also the basso profundo who can't sing—and will—at the ship's concert, devoutly, on most occasions, to be avoided.

LIFE'S LITTLE MYSTERIES

There will be the world's champion bull (board) thrower, and the world's worst shovelboard player; the amateur journalist tapping out his brain waves in the seclusion of his stateroom, till a rapping on the wall bids him desist "as the lady next door is not feeling very well." There will be the man who knows all about the engines; he might almost have been their designer and builder; he wangles a permit to inspect the machinery; I tally in his wake, for nothing so fascinating as the innards of a ship wherein is developed the mighty power that makes the wheels go round.

The Stokehold of literature—and reality—with its eternal clanging of shovels, its lights and shadows, rumbling wheel barrows, half naked and coal dusted trimmers, and roaring blasts—is rapidly becoming a thing of the past. Instead, on ocean liners, the clean stokehold of the oil burner where the firemen live a life of comparative. One enjoys the voyage all the more in knowing that no one suffering down below.

And now to the smoke-room, an entertaining, refreshing rendezvous on all ships; the bar is quite unobtrusive, but adequately stocked for the most capricious and capacious thirsts.

PUTTING ON THE RITZ!

It is the ship's hearth—for the men, at least, where people warm up and grow human—and cheery. There will be found the most entertaining stewards, there the day's run is posted, the pool bet laid, and it is a favorite spot for the post-luncheon forty winks. Within its panelled walls may be met a microcosm of humanity; there will be the man who draws sketchy maps on the back of a well-worn envelope to indicate the geography of his aunt's house, on whom you must call when in London (first house on the right as you go in); one will meet poor old George, in baggy grey flannels ,old Etonian tie and nobbles on his soles who frequently and explosively calls upon the Diety to bear witness that the passenger list comprises some of the most footling people that ever stepped across a gangplank. He is all right, though. One will surely meet, unless avoided by stealth, the scientific Johnny, who smokes an English cigar smelling like someone shoeing a horse ,and tells you that if we eliminated all the unfilled space in a man's body and collected his protons and electrons—the bricks and mortar of the material universe—the man would be reduced to a speck just visible with a magnifying glass. His table companion is so overcome with his absolute insignificance that he can only feebly wave a hand at the attendant to bring another bottle of Bass.

There will likely be among the habitues of the rendezvous a disciple of Einstein, who professes to be nearly among the 13 men who are supposed to understand the intricacies of his profound meditations. He will explain it fully to anyone who will listen; that "there ain't no such animile" as Time; that Time and Space, as such, do not exist in the absolute sense, but are merely functions of the relative motions of material bodies; instead of these two entities, time and space, there is just one space—time continuum, time being the fourth dimension; there is no ether, according to him; one could use it either to put the Einstein-ite out of action, or take it yourself, and become unconscious of Time or Space, or even of some one's travelling companions.

CLIQUES AND COTERIES

One will meet the world traveller, who tells all about the hinterland of Brazil (it's the nuts), and "the wise guy" who talks of Caesar and Anthony, Cicero and Pericles, Cato, Alcibiades and Solon too familiarly. (One thinks he must have sat up half the night reading "Plutarch's Lives"). Likely enough, you will meet the soloist who takes the floor and never gives up; strings out one story after another; in his preence most experienced people are silent, and every one goes on deck enriched by a couple of anecdotes, forgotten before dinner, but robbed of the opportunity of comparing themselves with others through the exchange of thoughts and experiences.

THROW HIM OVERBOARD!

Then there is the "rise and shiner"; someone tells of a successful but dangerous lion hunt in Kenya Colony in modest manner but the "outdoer" rushes in with "Why that's nothing at all. One time, I——" There is the naive Johnny, who unburdens himself to all and sundry, full of his own experiences of the voyage, tells all his private affairs, but he is less tiresome than the negative individual, who belittles the ship, the captain and all his seven-day companions, and in turn is less of a nuisance than the dogmatic man who so tenaciously defends his views even when the talk is about incidents and not ideas.

Eating in common is no more widespread than talking together, yet while every one is required to have a knowledge of how to eat, in conversation, especially aboard ship, anarchy reigns, and the art of conversation seems to be strangely unlearned, though it is the commonest kind of intercourse.

Conversation displays itself to best advantage only when the participants are willing to deal with ideas rather than with persons and things, though without neglecting them; to deal with humanity at large, with men and women in their ample relations, but perhaps too high a standard in this respect in such a gossipy place as the smokeroom of an ocean liner is idealistic.

Sufficient to say that while the foundation of good talk is good sense, good nature and the gift of fellowship, all of which are very noticeable in the hazy atmosphere of the ship's smokeroom, yet the superstructure of conversation built thereon conveys no lasting impression, and like many other incidents of the voyage is quickly forgotten when land is in sight. For as surely as one departs from land, as surely does one arrive thereat after sunrises and sunsets, many or few.

VETERANS OF THE LONG SEA TRAILS

Approaching the green clad hills of the Old Land, where "the coast-wise lights of England give you welcome back again," you see

"The great street paved with water, filled with shipping

"And all the world's flags flying, and seagulls dipping."

Great ocean liners in white paint and gold, and shabby little colliers, all grime, with up-to-date cargo boats ugly as sin, and old seven-knotters fetching their ports for the last times, with plates rusted thin, oh so thin.

Sailing ships from Liverpool, tankers from the Clyde, schooners from the West Countrie, and tugs from Mersey side. Tyne coalers, Gypsies of the Horn . . . "Beating up from Southerly, from the Guardports of the morn," trailing at the stern the dingy red flag that means security and good cheer from one end of the world to the other.

The last day at sea on the home stretch is always best.

Then comes the dawn, and the day, as the old subtitles had it, when whilom shipmates are scattered from Dan to Beersheba, from Land's End to John o' Groats, from Main Street, N. B., to Fourth Avenue, B. C. Bon Voyage.

J. REID BACK AT GRAND FORKS

GRAND FORKS, B. C., July 6.—J. Reid has returned from Hot Springs, Montana, where he has been for the past six weeks. He is at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. Kenyon.

Mrs. E. Brunner and little son of Kimberley are the guests of the former's mother, Mrs. M. Mohler.

Miss Marjorie Taylor is visiting Miss Agnes Winters at Christina lake.

Rev. Father Smith arrived here Wednesday from Armstrong to take up his new post at the Sacred Heart parish.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Cook and children of Victoria, are the guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Cook.

Rev. Father McIntyre left Wednesday for Kelowna where he will be stationed in future.

Miss Ellen McPherson left Wednesday evening for Shelton, Wash., where she will spend the summer months.

Mrs. W. J. Cook, Master Billie Cook, Mr. and Mrs. T. Cook and family went to Christina lake on Friday to spend the holidays at the former's cottage in Spalding's cove.

Mr .and Mrs. J. Moran and daughters, Lois and Peggy, motored from Baker City, Oregon, and are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Kenyon.

Miss Doris Kenyon spent the first of the week at Christina lake as the guest of her sister, Mrs. E. S. Reynolds.

Mr .and Mrs. F. Warner of Colville, former residents of Grand Forks, motored to Grand Forks on Friday and are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Gardiner.

Miss Doris Kerman entertained the Good Cheer group of the C.G.I.T. at her home on Frida- evening, it being the final meeting of the season. The evening was spent in games and contests, after which dainty refreshments were served.

If it is a choice between wilted, jadded fresh vegetables and canned ones, buy the canned ones for that day. They will be more tasty and better for you.

GARDEN PARTY AT BONNINGTON WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

SOUTH SLOCAN, B. C., July 6.—Mrs. E. Watts presided over the July meeting of the Bonnington and South Slocan Women's Institute in South Slocan hall. There was an exhibit of some of the members' needlework to be sent shortly to the Vancouver exhibition, and a collection of articles described as "Something Out of Nothing". "Nothing" was usually a flour sack, though a painted circular mop-tin was also greatly admired.

The annual bridge tea and garden party held at Mrs. E. Watts on June 18, proved to have been a great financial success, as well as a pleasant function. Various financial matters were adjusted for the half-year, and the institute decided to dispense with a meeting in August ,after celebrating its 11th birthday on July 30.

Mrs. P. O. Bird and Mrs. O. W. Humphrey were the hostesses. Last month's hostesses were Mrs. L .B. Cox and Mrs. R. G. Elliott.

If you like bags to filter your coffee make them out of linen crash or Canton flannel. They should be washed and dried after each using.

MANUFACTURERS OF AUTOS PLAN A LAYOFF SOON

Will Restrict Activity in Basic Industry; 'Poor Half Year

NEW YORK, July 6.—(By Claude Jagger, Associated Press financial editor)—With the business year past high noon, a siesta seems to be in order in preparation for the ideal of the closing months. Several industries are hoping to make a comeback that will compensate for the rather disappointing results of the first half.

The Fourth of July holiday normally has a soporific influence on the steel industry. Several mills shut down for the week. Early last week operations had fallen off close to 60 per cent of capacity and current estimates in the trade indicate that the entire month will average around the level. Most of the large automobile manufacturers are planning shut downs of a fortnight or so this month, which will tend to restrict activity in the basic industry.

Manufacturers in the various lines during the next few weeks may be expected to hold down production to permit retailers to dispose of unsold stocks and make way for autumn merchandise. In laying plans for the fall, business executives are deeply concerned over the probable level of public purchasing power. Sharp reductions in the prices of farm products are not lightening the farmers' purse, and extensive lay-offs in motor manufacturing and other centers do not offer wel for purchasing power in these areas.

The outstanding item in the week's business news was the announcement of Chrysler Corporation of a 10 per cent reduction of salaried employees. No other large corporation has publicly announced such action, although there have been various wage adjustments here and there. On the whole, there is said to be little reduction of wage and salaries.

MOON MAY RAISE TIDES IN EARTH

DELAWARE, Ohio., July 6 — The moon may raise tides in the solid earth quite as real as those in the ocean. Research which seems to show this is announced at Perkins Observatory of Ohio Wesleyan University.

Dr. Harlan T. Stetson, director of the observatory, says that the earth's crust apparently yields very appreciably to the moon's gravitational pull. The earth's surface may be distorted slightly thereby every day.

FIVE SIXTEENTHS OF TOTAL IMPORTS FROM THE EMPIRE

MONTREAL, July 6—"Of $8,000,000,000 worth of imports into the various component parts of the Empire," said Col. W. F. Cockshutt, of Brantford, to reporters when he arrived here on the Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of York on his return from the congress of the federated chambers of commerce of the British Empire which concluded in London recently.

"With such stupendous figures facing us there is no wonder that I appreciated the honor to second the resolution concerning intra-Empire trade that made such an impression at the meeting," he said. Out of five days of discussions, two were devoted to this topic.

"If, by any means, we could keep only 25 per cent of that five and a half billions now going to foreign countries within the bounds of the Empire, Col. Cockshutt said.

TIN IN CANADA

Considerable interest has been aroused by the discovery of stannite, a tin-bearing mineral, in a vein in the Snowflake deposit situated in the Revelstoke district of British Columbia. In composition and geological associations this and other veins of the deposit closely resemble those of Potosi, Bolivia. Both are in old slates or argillites associated with comparatively young granodiorities and granites, and the minerals found in one are almost the same as those found in the other.

AGE OF STEAM PASSING FAST

Motor Driven Ships Replacing Steamers Throughout World

TORONTO, Ont., July 6. — (By Canadian Press)—The age of steam is passing. The dawn of a new era has arrived, and on the seven seas of the world, the plume of smoke pouring from the funnel of a vessel may soon be forgotten.

In a cut-and-dried report, Lloyd Mairne Agency tells of the passing of steam. The report states laconically that 78 3-4 per cent of vessels under construction ranging between 8,000 to 25,000 tons, are being equipped with Diesel engines.

Size	Motor	Steam
8,000 tons to 9,999 tons	54	16
10,000 tons to 14,999 tons	25	6
15,000 tons to 19,999 tons	6	0
20,000 tons to 24,999 tons	4	2

Thus, 89 vessels of 113 now being built will be motordriven, while only 24 are to have steam engines.

As illustrating the universal growth of the motor-drive it is pointed out that in 10,000-14,999 ton class, the motorships are being built by: Germany 6; Great Britian 5; Japan 5; Holland 3; Spain 3; Italy 2; and France 1. Four of the six steamers are being built in the United States.

According to construction experts, the motorships show greater economy, dependability, lower maintenance, smaller space requirements and a wider cruising range than steam vessels.

PREFERS COPS AS HUSBAND OR AS ONLY BOARDERS

SYDNEY, Australia, July 6 — (By The Canadian Press)—"Wanted, 2 constables share large sunny double room, in widow's home. 38 Coogee Bay Road, Randwick." The woman who inserted this advertisement in a paper here is the widow of a police constable. She finds that policemen generally are much more congenial company in the house than other people. Perhaps her preference for constables is due to the fact that, after her marriage to a constable, she lived with him at a police station for many years.

She says that the presence of a constable in a home gave one an added sense of security. For instance a burglar would be too scared to enter a house if he saw a policemen's helmet hanging in the hall. In conversation, she finds policemen more natural than other people. They have mixed with all societies and are full of information and interest. But she admited that there is more work in the house when policemen live there because they have to go on duty at irregular hours.

LOSES FIANCE, WORKS HERSELF INTO HYSTERIA

TORONTO, Ont., July 6 — (By The Canadian Press)—Working herself into hysteria over the loss of her fiance, a 19-year old domestic was discovered unconscious in her room. A note found by the police read: "Good-bye. I am going, Jim." This led them to believe she had attempted to harm herself, and she rushed to the Hospital. Here medical men, unable to find poison traces, decided it was a case of hysteria. She recovered consciousness after a few hours.

When chopping parsley, add a little salt to it. The parsley will chip much finer and the salt freshens the parsley.

WOMEN WILL DO ROUND OF GOLF IN 51

1000 YEARS FROM NOW ACCORDING TO FORECASTS

Some fearsome conceptions of golf as it will be played in 2929 resulted from a contest inaugurated by the Manchester, England, Guardian. The pictures of the ancient game as it will be played 1,000 years from now—if it is played—provide very amusing reading even if they are not exactly prophetic.

The winner's effort reads like an overdose of H. G. Wells. He writes of the closing of the "Mancunian Golf Club, 2929," as follows:—

The expiration of the club's lease was marked by an exhibition game by her Honor Judge Green, amateur open champion. Her husband, Mr. Smith—by this year's Act maiden names are retained after marriage—was present.

RADIO—HEAT COSTUME

"The judge wore a radio—heat costume, automatically adjusting itself to the body's temperature. Her "Robot Caddie" followed by the electric "attraction" system, produced clubs whenever her voice struck its sensitive soundbox. Judge Green's score was 51—excellent testimony to modern scientific methods. The flight and exact lie of the ball were noted by dual-focus telescopic spectacles. She landed once in the rough, but the musical purr automatically emanating from the ball quickly located it. The clubs used were a three-foot driver—a toy to our taller ancestors; and irma, invented 2928—from ir(on) and ma(shie); and an "all—a button—controlled niblick-cum-putter. The only ball played was an "everlasting," continuously used by the Judge for the past 10 years.

HOP TO NEW YORK

"Judge Green and Mr. Smith left after the game for the game for the New York links in their noiseless Bat' plane—of the engineless pattern driven by power broadcast from XO 2.

RADIO—HEAT COSTUME

Some fantastical hazards are encountered in the following description:—

—"Brown stepped on the first tee from the escaltor which ran round the course.

"oYur opponent is late, Smith, he said; I passed him flying over Knutsford, and he wirelessed that he was taking the wife shopping and would be late-ish. Shall we play?

"It was a nine-hole course of 6,300 yards, Smith, with spring-faced mammoth driver, drove 804 yards at the first (1,000 yards) and won in four. Both reached the second green (310 yards) with No. 17 irons. The third (900 yards) Brown pitch neatly, but Smith caught the revolving bunker and was flicked 50 yards roughwards.

IN A LAKE

Both negotiated the island (fourth green in center of lake.) Leaving the fifth all square, both found the rain hazard (artificial drizzle 40 yards square) at the sixth. At the seventh Brown hit the pin owing to faulty mechanism in the automatic remover of same. Here they met Brown's wife (4-4) playing the perspiring professional (scratch). At the eighth, Smith was incapitated by the ball being too forcibly ejected from the hole by the "never bend" gadget affixed therein.

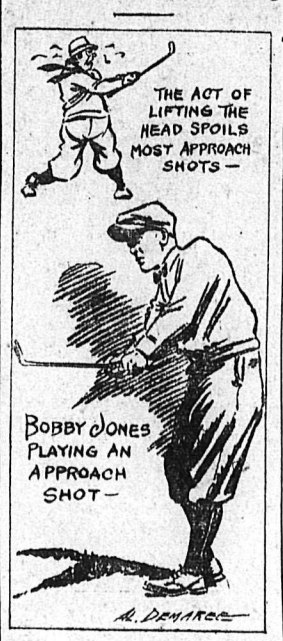
"Returning to the clubhouse Brown remarked: Too bad, men are only allowed on the course two days a week.'

THIRD PRIZE WINNER

The foregoing was the third prize-winning effort and in both it was noted that women were expected to become dominant on the golf course in 100 years Some that there is no need to wait a 1000 years for this to happen. The Manchester Guardian itself commented that rationalization and mechanization might well produce within a century nine-tenths of the development suggested.

But it is doubtful whether real devotees of the game submitted the above descriptions. The died-in-the-wool golfer is reluctant to admit the game could be improved. And even if the supermen of 2929 are replaced by angels and super-angels there will be many a golfer who will believe the rules of the Royal and Ancient Club will remain unaltered, just as the perhaps lesser known laws of the Medes and Persians.

Lifting Head Main Cause of Dubbing



By AL DEMAREE
(Former Pitcher New York Giants)

It is in approaches that the professional gains his great advantage over the amateur. There are a considerable number of amateurs who can drive from the tee as far as most pros or farther and almost as consistently. Where they get beaten, however, is in the second shot, by the machine-like accuracy with which the average pro will place his ball, time after time, not merely on the green but within holing distance.

There are of course approaches and approaches, from the orthodox, well-lofted shot to the stroke which can best be described as a glorified putt. The only precept in which I have the most implicit faith is that which enjoins us to keep the eye on the ball. There is no doubt that nine-tenths of the bad strokes we perpetrate, are directly due to looking up before the shot is finished and one is more liable to do this with a short approach than with any other stroke.

Hard, concentrated work at this particular shot until one has mastered it is no doubt the best prescription, and I am quite certain that, if we could make up our mind to practice approaching for an hour or so quite frequently, it would improve our game fifty per cent in a short time. However it is much more amusing to play a match than to practice and so no doubt most of us will continue to muddle along till the end of the chapter.

LEVEL OF LAKE SLIGHTLY OVER 10-FOOT MARK

After reaching the peak, recorded at slightly over 12 feet, the water level of the West Arm at Nelson is now on a steady decline. On Saturday a drop of nearly two inches was recorded, the level being 10 feet 2⅜ inches above zero. On Sunday a further decline brought the level down to 10 feet ⅝ of an inch.

HERE'S A HOT ONE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 6. — Judge Arthur P. Stone, in District Court, heard a new one and didn't believe it.

Haze l van Flower of Rosebery, charged with operating an automobile under the influence of liquor, drunkenness and leaving the scene of an accident told the story. He said that when the officers arrested him, they made him blow his breath at them so long that he became winded, then got dizzy and, as a consequence, when they asked him to walk along a line, he was unsteady on his feet. Judge Stone assessed him $125.

PLAYING HOOKEY FATAL

SAN DIEGO, July 6.—Lieut. A. H. Brown, U. S. N., equipped with a diving suit, dove into a hole below Lake Hodges dam recently and recovered the body of Henry Lusardi 18 years of age, drowned there while swimming with several companions. Only 15 minutes were required to bring the body to the surface after Brown had located it. The hole is about four miles below the lake, according to Undersheriff Oliver Sexson, and is 75 x 200 feet and about 19 feet deep.

Attempts to drag the hole for the body proved futile, due to the rocky bottom and the fact that the boy was wearing no clothes to which the grappling hooks might attach, Sexson said.

Lusardi and his companions played "hookey" from Escondido high school to make the swimming expedition, the sheriff's office found, and Lusardi is believed to have been overcome with cramps.

According to his companions, he waded in up to his waist, gave a sudden lunge forward, shrieked and disappeared from sight in the water, which is said to be exceedingly cold for this time of year.

WOMAN LAY CLAIM TO ELECTION OF LAB. GOVERNMENT

Labor Party Women of Great Britain Figure Up Gains, Losses

LONDON, July 6.—(By the Canadian Press)—After their party has been one year in power, Labor Party women of Great Britian are figuring up their losses, their gains, their achievements, and their wasted opportunities. The ledger nearly balances.

Feminists shout loudly that England has known cleaner politics and more efficient government since women wielded their recently won suffrage and elected the last Parliment, May 30, 1929, with a Labor majority.

Anti-feminists point distressed fingers at the unemployment problem and industrial depression, and say it is all the women's fault.

Neither is right, in the opinion of many observers, who say that, while the women have done a great deal with their newfound power, they have also used it unwisely many times. The 14 women at Westminster have not done anything spectacular. They have taken comparatively small part in the debates ,and have introduced very few public bills.

The only public bill introduced by a woman in the present session was an unimportant one dealing with the status of illegitimate children in Scotland. It as brought in by the Duchess of Atholl, one of the three Conservative women in the House.

Rt. Hon. Margaret Bondfield, the only women member of the Cabinet, as Minister of Labor, has fought a hard and well-planned battle over the Unemployment Insurance Bill. This is an essentially Labor Party piece of legislation, as are all matters dealing even remotely with the unemployment problem.

Susan Lawrence ,the tall, well-built, closely-cropped gay-haired parliamentary secretary to the Minister of Health, is the only woman holding a ministerial post in the House. The Ministry of Health has had many bills going through the legislative and successful time.

LADIES CLASH

During the debate of the Widows' Pension Bill, the patient Shoolteacher Miss Lawrence often clashed with the quick and frequent impertinent Lady Astor. These verbal spats across the floor from Labor to Conservative benches caused great amusement to the House. The American-born Lady of the nobility, who was the first woman elected to the Commons, has had a busy year, but not in the House. First she was busy getting elected from Plymouth, which she won with a greatly-reduced majority. Then she was busy entertaining the United States delegates to the Naval Conference. She is generally known as the "Womens Champion," and promoters of legislation afffecting women particularly always call on Nancy Astor for help.

Little Ellen Wilkinson, the read-headed Labor representative of Middleborough East, has been contributing her debating ability to many government bills. She has continued her fight for admission of women to the British diplomatic service and her campaign for better quarters for women M. P.'s in the House. She is also an influential member of the House Kitchen Committe.

Ellen, black-haired Jenny Lee, a miner's daughter and youngest member of the House, and Megan Lloyd George, the pretty blondish daughter of the Liberal Leader, are seen constantly together, and are known as the "Three Muskateers." Their youth and enthusiasm for their jobs seem to be their main points of common interest.

Miss Edith Picton-Turbervill, the tallest women member, and the holder of the amateur archery championship of Wales is waiting patiently for the opening of the Indian discussions. She spent seven years in India, and is intensely interested in all matters pertaining to British rule in that country. Dr. Marion Phillips, Labor member from Sunderland, besides making two or three universally praised speeches on the Housing Bill has designed a sort of uniform for women M. P.'s It is a plain black smock-like coat which protects the frock beneath, gives a little warmth when the parliamentary halls become too chilly, and looks very neat. Her chief task during the year has been her work as chief woman officer of the Labor Party.

Mrs. Mary Hamilton, Labor M. P., who has just completed a bibgraphy of Ramsay MacDonald, is a member of two important government committees that function outside the House of Commons, the Royal Commission on the Civil Service, and the League of Nations Assembly and Committee.

CHEWELAH WINS BALL GAME FROM NELSON SENIORS

Bad Third Inning Runs Up 8-4 Score Against Local Boys

JEFFS GETS HURT EIGHTH INNING

Game Improves Through Latter Innings; One Home Run by Horswill

In a scheduled game of the Canadian- Washington International baseball league played here yesterday afternoon Chewelah beat Nelson 8-4. After the first three innings the game improved steadily with both teams playing a good brand of ball during the latter frames.

After a bad third inning when the Chewelah boys romped around the diamond for five runs Kraft replaced Gille on the Nelson mound and held the visitors to one more lone run. The bad third frame got away when Horswill and Arcure had a costly collision while both were trying to spear the same fly ball. Five runners crossed the plate before the invaders were finally retired.

Horswill redeemed himself in the fift hinning by poling out a homer that started the scoring for the Nelson boys.

In the eighth inning Jeffs, keeper of Nelson's keystone sack, while trying to beat a throw to first base, took a spill over the Chewelah first baseman with enough emphasis to put him out of the game with an injured leg. Olsen, playing manager of the Nelson team, played third for the remainder of the game.

LONE WORSHIPPER IN MEETING HOUSE QUARTER CENTURY

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., July 6—Miss Mary Emma Walter, 82, who for the past 25 years worshipped alone in the Friends' Meeting house in Catawissa, is dead. Miss Walter was the last member of the congregation at the Friends' Meeting House. In 1905 all the other members had died or had moved from the district. Each Wednesday and each Sunday she went to the little log building and sat for half an hour in silence, according to the ritual of her faith. She lived alone in a small house.

The church was erected in 1775 and is a historical landmark. Miss Walter, the daughter of a well-to-do land owner, came to Catawissa in 1891, and restored the building, which had not been used for some years and was falling into decay. Three years ago the Catawissa Borough council took over maintenance of the meeting house. The original furniture remains.

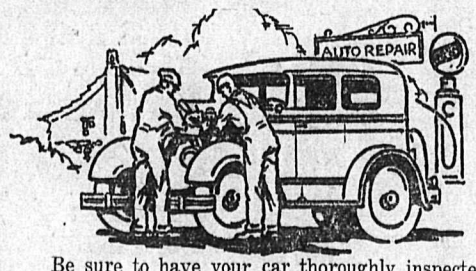
Vacation Time Is Here



Be sure to have your car thoroughly inspected before you leave on your holidays.
Every year we receive many calls from tourists stranded on the road. These cars often require towing into town, and are often tied up a considerable time waiting for parts to arrive from a distant city.
Our inspection operation is complete. It includes washing out of the rear end and transmission with gasoline and compressed air, inspecting all gears and bearings for wear, and a complete tune-up and lubrication of motor, steering gear and brakes.
You will be confident your car is in perfect mechanical condition after this operation, and the element of doubt and uncertainty will be removed from your trip.
This inspection, we may add, generally costs less than a 25-mile towing job.

GUARD PLACED UPON BRIDGE AT BRILLIANT

ing of the bombing one guard left the school at 4 a.m. and the other an hour later. The last guard was not over a half a mile from the building when he heard the report of the explosion.

WAITED BUT FEW MINUTES

It is supposed that the bombers waited until the guard was a short distance away from the building before throwing their two charges of about six sticks of dynamite, each, through the windows into the two rooms.

The Thrums community hall escaped destruction only by happy chance for the Independent Doukhobor guard happened along about 11 o'clock Saturday night, just in time to see two men run from the building, climb into a waiting car on the highway a few yards distant, and disappear.

Approaching cautiously the guard found the front door of the building open. Flashing his light inside he discovered that the curtains had been torn from the windows, piled on the floor, and soaked with kerosene, and then ignited. The resulting blaze scorched a huge circle on the floor. Leading from the curtains was some five feet of fuse which ended in a kerosene-soaked box of matches. The fuse had burned to the box but had failed to ignite the oil-soaked matches. Two corks that had been evidently used as stoppers for the bottle of kerosene were found in the building. The bottles were not in evidence.

Provincial police stated last night that several thousand Doukhobors held a huge mass meeting on the island in the Kootenay river near Brilliant yesterday afternoon. Access to this island was gained by hastily constructed footbridge from the mainland to the island.

Heavy Doukhobor guard was placed on the steel bridge spanning the Kootenay river at Brilliant.

SALMO KNIGHTS INSTITUTE NEW ORGANIZATION

D. C. Manley, Grand Chancellor of Grand Forks Conducts Ceremonies

SALMO, B. C., July 6. — The Knights of Pythias held a large gathering here Saturday evening, instituting a new lodge of the Knights of Pythias. The ceremonies were conducted by D. C. Manley of Grand Forks, chancellor for British Columbia, who was assisted by R. J. Gardner, P. G. C., Grand Forks; J. A. McKinnon, P. G. C., Trail, and George Chappell, Grand Forks.

A class of 26 candidates were initiated, the degree work being splendidly exemplified by members of the Nelson, Rossland and Trail lodges, who were out in considerable numbers for this event. The following were the officers installed: B. Clark, C. C., Ymir; Henry John, V. C., Carl Lindow, Prelate; E. Cohoe, M. of W.; O. M. Smith, K. of R. and S.; H. Grutchfield, M. of E.; W. Shiell, M. of F.; J. H. Clarke, M. at A.; C. A. Cowley, I. G., James Fraser, O. G.

An elaborate banquet concluded the festivities. The grand chancellor congratulated the Salmo brethren for their desire to further the Pythian work, and trusted that the baby lodge would develop into a considerable force and be of much benefit to the community.

The visitors from Trail and Rossland returned following the installation, the grand chancellor, D. C. Manley, and party, coming to Nelson. They left for their homes in Grand Forks this morning via the Rossland-Cascade highway.

COUSIN OF GRANT HALL DIES, EAST

Lady Mary Robinson, Widow of Sir Frederick, Succumbs, Toronto

MONTREAL, July 6—Lady Mary Robinson of Toronto, widow of Sir Frederick Robinson, died in the Ross Memorial pavilion, Royal Victoria hospital, early Saturday morning. Although she had sustained an accident nearly three weeks previously, Lady Robinson, despite her advanced age, had been making good progress toward recovery, and her death was unexpected. She was 82.

Of United Empire Loyalist descent, Lady Robinson was born at Noyan, Que., a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Filer. Three weeks ago today she had made a journey from Toronto to Noyan to attend the funeral of her sister, Mrs. W. J. Derick. Leaving the house, Lady Robinson caught her heel as she was descending the steps, and fell to the lawn. Although at first it was thought she was not seriously hurt, it was later believed she had sustained a broken hip. An ambulance from the Royal Victoria hospital was summoned, and the examination at the hospital showed that she had suffered a fractured femur.

Lady Robinson's nearest surviving relative is her brother, Merritt Filder, of Alburg, Vermont. Grant Hall, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway company, and the Misses Hall are cousins. Two nephews, Edgar H. Filer, of Montreal, and Samuel Filer, San Jose, California, and three nieces, Mrs. F. M. Stark, of Atlanta, Georgia; Mrs. M. M. Lewis, Buffalo, N. Y., and Mrs. Dewar, Ottawa, also survive.

From the time of her marriage and since the death of her husband some 25 or 30 years ago, Lady Robinson resided at 118 Toxborough street, Toronto. The body will be taken to Toronto for burial.

AMILY TREE RUNS WILD; BOY IS NOW HIS OWN UNCLE

NEWARK, N. J. July 6—(CP)—Eleven-year-old Henry R. Trydom, who is father's legal brother and his own legal uncle, will appear in surrogate's court here tomorrow. He may then become his dead mother's legal brother as well.

Henry was adopted by his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Augustus E. Trybom, after his mother's death, thus making him a legal brother of his father, and entitled with him to an equal share of the $10,000 estate of his grandmother, who died February 23. His maternal grandparents have now asked to be allowed to adopt the boy, in which case he will become his father's brother-in-law, and his own uncle on both sides of the family tree.

Consideration is being given by the Saskatchewan Government to a request to premit the entry of at least 100 Mennonite families to join relatives already resident in the province. It was announced from Ottawa that 300 families were being brought to the West.

INQUIRY INTO DEATH H. LARSEN GOES ON TODAY

Three Witnesses Are Called First Session; Shot Self With .22 Rifle

Inquiry by a coroner's jury into the death of Hans Larsen, 56, alleged to have committed suicide in his Selwyn street shack on Friday afternoon, opened on Saturday morning will be continued here this afternoon at 1 o'clock. The investigation is being conducted by Dr. H. H. McKenzie.

Larsen was rushed to the Kootenay Lake General hospital on Friday afternoon after he had supposedly fired a bullet into his head. He died a few hours later, as a result of the wound.

Carl Lundstrom, testified on Saturday that as a neighbor he had been keeping an eye on Larsen, who was in bed suffering from swollen feet. He had visited Larsen between six and seven o'clock in the morning, about nine o'clock and again at 1:30 in the afternoon about a half an hour before the suicide was successfully attempted.

WAS UNDER INFLUENCE LIQUOR

Lundstrom stated that Larsen, when he had last visited him, was under the influence of rum and suggested that he might shoot himself. Hearing the shot about a half an hour later Lundstrom rushed in to find the wounded man with a .22 rifle lying discharged beside him.

Jackson Ratcliffe, called as a second witness, stated that about 10 days ago Larsen had bought the .22 rifle from him.

Dr. J. P. Gussin, physician who attended Larsen after the shooting, stated that on examination he had found the lead slug and pieces of splintered bone lodged in Larsen's brain.

The enquiry was adjourned until today in order that more witnesses could be called to the stand.

Members of the coroner's jury were: A. H. Hughes, foreman; N. Coleman, J. M. Smith, T. Peden, C. Gibney, E. A. Olsen.

STATE EXECUTION IS CONDEMNED AS SECOND MURDER

Minister Feels That Hanging Anderson, Nova Scotia, Was Crime

SYDNEY, N. S., July 6.—"When I came away from the scaffold I could not but feel that I had been a party to a murder just as indefensible as that on Februrary 8 at the Norfolk hotel, and carried out with evident grim satisfaction by a hireling whose only motive was the pay he was receiving but protected by law." Rev. Dr. A. H. Campbell told his congregation in the First United church here in a sermon against the continuation of capital punishment in the Dominion. Dr. Campbell was one of the two clergymen attending Ingvald "Bing" Andersen at the county jail here and was with him when he went to the gallows, closing the final chapter in the murder of Deblois Rehberg, local hotel porter.

"The day will come," declared Dr. Campbell, "when our descendants will view with wonder and disgust the fact that their ancestors of 1930 practised the old Lex Talionis, an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth.

LAW CONDEMNED

"Jesus did away with this old law and rendered it forever obselete. 'Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed', is another form of this same law condemned by Jesus.

"The taking of a man's life by the State is a rather cowardly way of dealing with murder, when as in most cases, the murderer is irresponsible for his conduct. The day will certainly come when the murderer will be placed in confinement where he will be no longer a menace to society, but when it comes to taking human life, that is God's prerogative, not man's. Human life is a sacred thing given by God, who alone has the right to take it away.

"Some day the State will see it in this way and capital punishment will be a thing of the past.

"There is nothing in the teaching or character of Jesus to suggest this way of dealing with murder, but much to condemn it. Let us hope that the time will soon come when a better way is adopted in the treatment of those unfortunate criminals.

"This statement does not in any way cast any reflection on the Court which handled this affair according to the laws of the land. The judge and jury simply did their duty conscientiously and no doubt regretfully."

SAYS GAME AND FUR SITUATION IS NOW TRAGIC

WINNIPEG, Man., July 6—(By The Canadian Press)—Condition of game and fur in Manitoba today is a tragedy, in opinion of Philip C. Locke, K. C., appointed by the Manitoba legislature to delve into the question of game preservation. Yet Manitoba's game and fur, he said, could be made to furnish a large revenue for the province as well as employment for many residents.

Increased settlement and goverenment failure to take proper precautions were quoted by Mr. Locke as reasons for game depletion in any country. He suggested two means of remedying a depleted game supply; first, conservation, which of itself would not bring back game; second, propogation and re-stocking.

At one time the country tributary to Hudson Bay was the greatest fur country in the world, mentioned Mr. Locke; but conditions today are much changed from the time when the Hudson's Bay company was granted its charter in 1670. In muskrats alone, he pointed out, decrease in catch has amounted to 80 per cent in 20 years—because, he said, fur and game life was only a "side issue" with the government.

SAYS FERGUSON CHANGES WITH POLITICAL WIND

Heenan Claims Ontario Premier Previously Talked of Prosperity

PETERBORO, Ont., July 6—(CP) Speaking on the question of unemployment at a Liberal rally held in this city on Saturday night, Hon. Peter Heenan, minister of labor, severely criticized Premier G. Howard Ferguson, of Ontario, for his "stagnation and blue ruin talk in the present election campaign. He claimed that Mr. Ferguson's prosperity talk changed with the political winds for in September of last year the premier of Ontario said that Ontario was one of the most prosperous sections in the world and now today he had said there was stagnation similar to that of the seventies.

If Mr. Ferguson was correct last fall with regard to prosperity and if his government deserved some of the credit, they must now accept some of the responsibility when, according to Mr. Ferguson himself, stagnation similar to that of the seventies has developed," the minister said.

"This about face on the part of the prime minister of Ontario may be wholly accounted for by the fact that it is now a Liberal administration that seeks re-election, rather than a Conservative one.

In discussing unemployment the minister of labor said government policies affect and guide underlying and fundamental employment conditions but the temporary fluctuations, even though unfortunately severe at times, cannot rightly be laid at the door of a federal administration. Those who seek to make political capital out of unemployment are the last ones who could be expected to deal sympathetically and practically with the problem if they were placed in position to do so. The mere f that they treat the unemployme problem in such a flippant man as to parade it at a political me ing for the effect on the coun together with the fact that t do not hesitate to magnify misrepresent conditions while offering a single constructive s gestion as to improvement, indica that they have nothing to of save criticism which of itself ne accomplished any improvement any direction.
