FARMER CLAIMS MANUFACTURERS BONUS MUST GO

Speakman, Red Deer, Says Protection Won't End the Depression

OTTAWA, March 12.—The speech made in the house yesterday by Hon. R. J. Manion, Conservative, Fort William, was critically analyzed by Alfred Speakman, Progressive, Red Deer, who continued the debate on the address in the house of commons late this afternoon.

Progressives might be accurately described as benevolently neutral, provided that term was taken to mean that they were sitting tight but always on the watch. He would support any legislation from any quarter of the house if it accorded with the views and interests of his constituents.

Mr. Speakman said Dr. Manion was probably right when he said there was much depression in Canadian industry, but he did not think increased protection would pull them out of their depression. The contention that it would be unfair to remove the protection from industries which had enjoyed it many years, especially if they were not in good shape, was not a reasonable one, said Mr. Speakman.

If any farmer of the west had been bonused for 15, 25 or 50 years by the government, and at the end of that time could not make farming pay without the bonus, it was time he left the farm.

Make Income Tax General

Mr. Speakman called special attention to the three problems of taxation, credits and transportation. He admitted heavy taxation would be a continuing necessity, owing to fixed charges and uncontrollable expenditure. He, therefore, urged the necessity of securing the best method of taxation, and advocated the income tax as the most equitable of all.

In regard to transportation he asked for equality between east and west in freight rates. He closed by stating all desired national unity, but that it could not be denied there was not a feeling of harmony between all parts of Canada.

LABORITE MAY DWELL IN HOLYROOD PALACE

James Brown May Be Made Lord High Commissioner for the Church of Scotland

LONDON, March 12.—Democracy seems to be growing in Great Britain when a Labor man is spoken of as the probable appointee to the lord high commissionership of the general assembly of the Church of Scotland instead of a duke or earl as has been the case heretofore.

It is expected that the lord high commissioner will be James Brown, Labor member of the commons for the South Ayrshire division of Ayr and Bute. The salary attaching to the position is £2000, and during the time the general assembly is in session in Edinburgh the lord high commissioner lives in Holyrood palace as a representative of the King.

Mangled Body Is Found on Tracks Near Vancouver

BURNABY, B.C., March 12.—The body of an unidentified man decapitated and otherwise mangled was found last night on the Canadian Pacific railway tracks near the Burrard Sawmills, Barnet. The man's coat was bought in Kamloops, according to the tag.

Apparently the man was about 30 years old, probably 5 feet 7 inches in height, with light brown hair.

LADY BYNG WILL GO TO ENGLAND

OTTAWA, March 12.—Her excellency, Lady Byng of Vimy, accompanied by Miss Walpole, will leave for England on March 27, and will be away until July.

DIVORCED WIFE A STAR WITNESS ON DAUGHERTY

Claims Husband, Now Dead, Secret Partner of Attorney - General

GET VARIOUS STOCKS WITHOUT ANY OUTLAY

Stood to Get Fortune if Carpenter-Dempsey Movies Authorized

Washington, March 12.—With an amazing tale, replete with insinuations, inferences and charges, the senate committee investigating Attorney-General Daugherty got under way today with a cyclonic start.

Roxie Stinson of Columbus, Ohio, divorced wife of Jesse W. Smith of the Washington courthouse, "bumper and friend" and confident of the attorney-general, who committed suicide in the latter's apartments here a year ago, was the first and only witness.

"We" and "They"

In all accounts of his doings in Washington, which Smith confided to her, the divorced wife contended, against all cross-examination, that when Smith said "we," he meant himself and Daugherty, and that when she said "they," she meant the same two.

Specifically, Miss Stinson testified:

That Smith had given her 25 shares of White Motors stock, which was a part of what "they" had obtained without any cost.

That Smith told her "we" looked forward to profits approximating $180,000 if it could be arranged to exhibit the motion pictures of the Carpentier-Dempsey fight.

That Smith had come into possession of an amount of the stock of the Pure Oil company of Ohio.

That Smith, proprietor of a small town store in Ohio, was worth approximately $175,000 when he came to Washington in 1921, soon increased his fortune to approximately $250,000.

Harding Her Dinner Partner

The names of President Harding and Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher, who has been a prominent figure in the oil investigation, were mentioned in the woman's recital. She said that Mr. Harding was her partner at a Christmas dinner party at the sanitarium of Dr. Sawyer, Mr. Harding's physician.

The name of Mr. McLean, she added was mentioned by Smith in discussing the "deals" he told her of having, she understood, with Mr. Daugherty.

ENABLE OFFICERS TO TRAIL LIQUOR

Saskatchewan Bill Restores Powers of Search Denied Recently by Court

REGINA, March 12.—Whatever may be the fate of the Saskatchewan Temperance act when the people register their opinion at the poll, there is every prospect the measure will emerge from the present session of the legislature fully recovered from the blow delivered in the recent judgment in a Moose Jaw case by Mr. Justice Taylor.

That judgment took away from enforcement officers the right to search without warrant a place other than a dwelling house, except in exceptional cases, or under exceptional circumstances. Such a right had never been disputed, and was believed to be embodied in the Saskatchewan Temperance act until the learned judge shattered the delusion.

As a result of the decision from the bench, a bill was introduced to amend the temperance act in such a way as to remedy the flaw so recently discovered. Wednesday the amending bill was given its second reading, and went through the ordeal with flying colors.

While there was opposition, the bill finally passed the second reading stage by a vote of 42 to 13.

Nomination Papers Will Require More Names in Alberta

EDMONTON, March 12. — Candidates in the provincial elections in the future will be required to have 25 signatures on their nomination papers, before their names will be put on the ballot papers, according to an amendment to the proposed election bill, which was passed by the committee of the whole in the legislature today. Under the old election act only four nominees were required.

The residence qualifications in the new bill have also been modified. Only two months' residence in the electoral division will be required, instead of three, as was the case in the past. The voter, however, is required to have been a resident in the province for at least 12 months, previous to the election.

Edmonton Publicly Gives Presentation Archbishop O'Leary

EDMONTON, March 12.—Two purses and two illuminated addresses were presented Archbishop O'Leary here this evening, at a public reception in a local hall, on his return from Europe, where he was granted a personal audience with the pope.

FREIGHTER IS A GALE VICTIM OFF HATTERAS

Twenty-five Men Composing Crew, Supposed to Be Lost

SCORES OF CRAFT DISABLED BY GALE

Enormous Property Damage Reported; Eight Killed in New York

NEW YORK, March 12.—The captain of the freighter Santiago, and 24 of his men, are believed tonight to have been lost, with their vessel, in the snow-freighted hurricane which last night swept the Atlantic coast, taking eight lives in New York City alone.

Now Abating

After raging at 80 miles an hour along the eastern seaboard, from Cape Hatteras, where the Santiago went down, to Eastport, Me., the gale appeared tonight to have spent its fury.

Its path on land and sea was marked by scores of disabled craft, enormous property damage, and a long list of dead and injured.

LORDS VOTE FOR TAX ON BETTING

Government May Not Adopt Suggestion; "Strong Moral Opposition"

LONDON, March 12.—The house of lords today, by a vote of 57 to 15, carried a motion to the effect that the taxation of betting was desirable and practicable.

Lord Newton, the mover of the resolution, said there was no harm in betting in moderation, and a system of licensing, coupled with the taxation, would not increase, but would diminish betting.

Lord Arnold, under secretary for the colonies, on behalf of the government, agreed that betting had become a great evil, but he disagreed that betting had become a great evil, but he disagreed with the idea that a taxation scheme would diminish it, because it would provide better facilities for betting. It was not a business proposition, he said, to ask the government to set up a machine, against strong moral opposition, to obtain only about £3,500,000 a year from the proposed taxes.

Four-Story School in Montreal Burns; Third of a Million

MONTREAL, March 12.—L'Academie Meilleur, a four-story stone building in the east end of this city belonging to the Montreal school commission, was destroyed by fire which broke out late tonight. The property loss is estimated at $350,000.

The building is a day school, and there were no pupils in it at the time of the outbreak. The janitor and his family escaped.

The origin of the fire has not been determined.

Pope Asks Nations to Urge Soviet to Stop Persecutions

ROME, March 12.—Pope Pius has issued an appeal in behalf of Catholics in Russia to all the governments which have entered into relations with the Soviet.

He asks these nations, which include Great Britain, Italy, Spain and Greece, to bring all pressure to bear to build up public opinion and induce the Soviet government to relax the persecutions from which Catholics in Russia are suffering.

Danish Treasurer, Found in Cariboo, to Be Extradited

VANCOUVER, March 12.—Lars Petersen, one-time treasurer of the municipality of Naksob, Denmark, charged with embezzlement of 130,000 kronen from the public funds, was ordered extradited by Judge Cayley this afternoon. Petersen was arrested at Likley, in the Cariboo, when prospecting.

Edmonton Fair to Stage a Stampede

EDMONTON, March 12.—Directors of the Exhibition association here today approved a plan for the presentation of a "stampede" here next summer, after the nature of the annual event in Calgary.

"Not Forgotten" Club Formed at Edmonton as Vets Auxiliary

EDMONTON, March 12.—In conjunction with the newly organized Brotherhood of Disabled Veterans, the "Not Forgotten" club was organized by local women this evening. J. L. Miller, president of the brotherhood, answered questions, and John Blue, secretary of the board of trade, addressed the meeting. Mrs. W. T. Tierney was elected president.

NEW MEASURES TO GIVE THREE BILLION FRANCS

Senator Berenger Gives French Upper Chamber Outline of Finance Bills

PARIS, March 12.—(By Canadian Press Cable via Havas.)—The senate finance committee this afternoon approved the bill passed by the chamber of deputies yesterday exempting France's defence treasury from the income tax.

Senator Berenger states that a report of the government's fiscal measures will be submitted to the senate tomorrow.

The new measures decided upon, according to Senator Berenger, will yield 3,380,000,000 francs. The general budget will add 210,000,000 francs. The postal receipts will reduce by $100,000,000 francs the amount payable in government bonds on war profit taxes. This will be a total of 5,130,000,000 francs, and will increase b 630,000,000 francs the estimated receipts in the bill passed by the chamber of deputies.

Senator Berenger points out that the budget situation is good.

Pattullo Cables Dutch Emigration Concern Will Aid

VICTORIA, March 12.—To examine lands in the Stuart lake district of northern British Columbia in preparation for the establishment of a colony of Dutch farmers there representatives of a Dutch emigration organization probably will come to British Columbia shortly. Hon. T. D. Pattullo, minister of lands, cabled the Dutch organization today assuring it that his department would cooperate with its representatives in selecting lands suitable for colonization.

Crown Evidence Against Delorme Finishes Today

MONTREAL, March 12.—Evidence for the crown in the trial of Rev. Adelard Delorme, charged with the murder of his half-brother, Raoul, in January, 1922, will be completed tomorrow morning, R. L. Calder, K.C., crown prosecutor, announced just before the court adjourned today.

It is expected that all the evidence will be recorded by the end of this week, and a verdict may, therefore, be forthcoming during the early part of next week.

MAGRATH CANCELS THE RESIGNATION

BELFAST, March 12.—Joseph McGrath, Free State minister of industry and commerce, who announced his resignation yesterday, has withdrawn his resignation, says a Dublin dispatch to the Belfast Telegraph.

UNION BILL IS CALLED VICIOUS

Measure Has Stormy Passage in the Saskatchewan House

REGINA, March 12.—"Vicious legislation" was the term hurled at a section of the church union bill, while that much discussed and abused measure was before the private bills committee today.

And this time the epithet was thrown by a member of the examining committee, P. L. Hyde, government member from Maple Creek. In his attack on the section, Mr. Hyde declared he was not one afraid to say what he thought; he had backbone, regardless of anything to the contrary that might have been said "by a bunch of preachers."

The section under review, according to its opponents, was framed for the purpose of legalizing a "breach of trust."

Despite the unkind words said against it, the section was carried. Members of the committee have almost lost track of the number of times they have been in session over the bill. But the end is not yet in sight.

The committee, when it arose this morning, only adjourned to 5 o'clock this afternoon, when a fresh start was made to whip the measure as far as is humanly possible, into a form acceptable to unionists and anti-unionists.

Eskimo Woman Is Destitute, Sick, in Seattle Now

SEATTLE, March 12. — Ada Black Jack, 25-year-old Eskimo woman, who was the sole survivor of the Wrangel Arctic expedition rescued by Harold Noice last summer, is in the city hospital with her 7-year-old son, Bennett, suffering from tonsilitis. She has been living with her boy in rooms in destitute circumstances.

Ignoramuses in Parliament Annoy Calgary Laborite

MONTREAL, March 12.—Canada's government is like a small automobile, and the opposition is like a spare tire—all blown up with wind," William Irvine, M.P. for Calgary East, told his listeners at a meeting here tonight. He deplored that the 35 per cent of Canada's population which constitutes the Labor element is only represented by two men in the house of commons, Mr. Woodsworth and himself.

"Education," declared Mr. Irvine, "and intellectual uplift is badly needed at Ottawa. We have ignoramuses in parliament, and if we cannot send any better we might as well not send any at all." he said.

Saskatchewan Sees a Balanced Budget Within Few Dollars

REGINA, March 12.—With a total estimated revenue of $16,504,920 and a total estimated expenditure of $16,525,920 for the fiscal year ending April 30, 1925, the Saskatchewan government hopes to make its budget practically balance, according to the estimates tabled in the legislature today by Premier Dunning.

LIMIT SCOPE OF CREAM GRADERS

SASKATOON, March 12.—As a result of a resolution passed today by the Saskatchewan Creamery Operators' association cream graders appointed by the provincial dairy branch of the government will be placed in all creameries having a weekly output of 3500 pounds of butter fat as compared with the minimum output of 3000 pounds as decided upon last year.

Kiddie Killed by Wagon Overturning

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask., March 12.—Driving in a wagon with his father and mother to visit neighbors Allan Price, aged 3½ years, was killed when the wagon overturned this forenoon.

BUT COULD NOT SELL THEM TO CONSERVATIVES

Turns Them Over to Provincial Party and Gets Lucrative Position

IF PROVINCIALS WIN PROMISED A BETTER

Under Gruelling Cross-Examination, Star Witness Makes Nine Admissions

VICTORIA, March 12.—S. S. Taylor, K.C., counsel for the government, at the Pacific Great Eastern railway inquiry, put E. J. Rossiter, star witness for the Provincial party, over the jumps today. When he was through, Rossiter had admitted these facts:

1. That he made shorthand copies of about 50 government files and took them away when he left the civil service.

2. That, with these files in his pocket, he got Premier Oliver and A. J. Proctor to sign testimonial letters to his good character.

"Do you think you would have got those letters if they had known you had taken these files?" asked Mr. Taylor.

"That was no reflection on my character. I took them for the public good," said the witness.

Met Esling at St. Regis

3. That he offered these documents to S. L. Howe and W. K. Esling, M.P.P., of the Conservative party, in a room at the St. Regis hotel which he engaged for the purpose, and that he asked $5000 for them but failed to make the deal.

4. That he finally gave them to Ashworth Anderson, campaign manager of the Provincial party, along with affidavits subsequently published in the Searchlight.

5. That he demanded a good job from the Provincial party and has been in receipt of $250 a month from that party ever since, in addition to expenses.

Received Check During Testimony

6. That he had received a check for $1000 signed by Anderson and A. M. Whiteside, of the third party, since entering the witness box. He presumed this was expenses.

7. That he had been promised a permanent civil service job if the Provincials should win the next election.

"Is that so?" whispered Sir Charles Tupper to A. H. MacNeill, third party counsel.

"No, it's not true," was Mr. MacNeill's audible answer.

Challenges His Counsel

"Do you deny I was offered a position," queried Rossiter, straightening in his chair.

"I was just talking to Sir Charles," answered Mr. MacNeill.

"You knew that to enable the party to make good on this promise you had to come through handsomely on your evidence, didn't you?" asked Mr. Taylor.

"I had to tell the truth," said the witness.

8. That he would not have made several of his charges if he had known the facts put before him by Mr. Taylor.

9. That he was not responsible for two of the most serious charges in the Provincial party's petition; namely, that the contractor had pocketed trade discounts due the government on the supplies purchased for the work, and that personal freight of employees of the contractor had been charged against the government.

Lumber Figures Wrong

Rossiter was cross-examined very fully on one charge, that he had told Premier Oliver that Proctor would not allow the Consumers' Lumber to get the job of supplying lumber although its tender was alleged to be lower than that of W. H. Day & Co. which actually supplied the materials, and that the premier had done nothing about it.

Mr. Taylor produced letters and memos, some of them in Rossiter's own writing and signed by him, to show that the premier had instructed him to get the facts for a comparison of the two tenders.

Rossiter's figures had shown the Consumers' company to offer the lowest price, but had omitted to mention that the Consumers' price was f.o.b. Vancouver while that of Day was f.o.b. Cheakamus, where the work was going on. The freight had increased the Vancouver price to $3.65 a 1000 more than the Cheakamus price by the time the lumber

STOLEN WATCH DOWNFALL OF ALEX AULOFF

Bandit Identified With Bosoff and Arkoff in Crow Robbery Doing Time

ARRESTED AT BUTTE (MONT.) IN JANUARY

Bosoff Was Hanged; Arkoff Was Shot; Auloff Gets Seven Years

Alex Auloff, who is identified with two notorious bandits, Basoff and Arkoff, who held up the Canadian Pacific railway train at Sentinal, Alberta, in the Crow's Nest pass on August 2, 1922, and who escaped from the scene of the hold up, is at present doing time for the robbery in the Prince Albert penitentiary. The story of his arrest is told by the following story from the "Canadian Pacific Bulletin":

The law never sleeps. It may, on occasion, be frustrated, and some criminals may delude themselves into the belief that it cannot keep its eyes open all the time. Most of them are eventually compelled to admit to themselves, if not to others, that not only is the law always awake, but that it has a long arm indeed. These reflections are aroused by another instance which emphasizes both the vigilance and the reach of the law. It had its beginning and its climax in the province of Alberta. The former dates as far back as August, 1920, the latter a day in January last.

Commissioner Bryan of the Alberta provincial police has reason to be well satisfied with the result of the untiring work of his force in this matter. Here is the story, and it is believed that few of the so-called "detective stories," mostly based on imagination, could compare in dramatic interest with this recital of actual fact:

Crow Train Robbery

In the issue of the Canadian Police Bulletin dated September, 1920, appeared an article under the heading of "Killed on Duty," and dealing with the story of three bandits who held up a C.P.R. train at Sentinel, in the Crow's Nest pass, Alberta. The hold-up took place late on the afternoon of August 2, 1920. On August 7 two of the bandits, Basoff and Arkoff were located in a Chinese restaurant at Bellevue, a few miles distant from the scene of the hold-up. In endeavoring to arrest them Constable Bailey of the Alberta Provincial police and Corporal Usher of the Royal Canadian Mounted police, were killed, as was Auroff, one of the bandits. Basoff managed to escape at the time, but was captured shortly after, was tried in Macleod on a charge of murder, convicted and hung.

Bandit Got Away

Immediately after the hold-up, Auloff, the third bandit, disappeared, the country around where the hold-up being mountainous and thickly timbered. Many at the time believed that Auloff had been killed by one of his fellow bandits, but the Alberta provincial police always believed that he would be found alive. After Basoff's arrest he stated that Auloff had gone west to Portland, Seattle or Butte. At the time of the hold-up, amongst the things taken was a watch, the property of Conductor Sam Jones, who was in charge of the train. The police were able to get a full description of this watch and the number of same.

When Auloff disappeared the police had but a very poor description of him. However, circulars were prepared giving the best description possible, showing a sample of his signature and giving a description of Conductor Jones' watch, with the number, which was 22554511. A reward of $1000 was also offered for information leading to Auloff's arrest. The circulars were sent all over the continent and a special effort made to see that they were delivered to all the police departments of coast cities south of the boundary.

Watch is Located

At different times since then reports had been received at the provincial police headquarters that Auloff had been seen at different times. Every clue was followed up but without success. On January 18 of the present year a wire was received by Commissioner Bryan from Chief Inspector J. T. Moore of the Portland city police, saying that a watch numbered 22554511 had been located in a pawn shop in Portland, and that the police would cover the watch until word was received as to what action would be taken. Commissioner Bryan detailed Detective Schoeppe, who had previously worked on the case, to proceed to Portland with a warrant for Auloff's arrest. On arriving at Portland Detective Schoeppe found that Inspector Howell had charge of the case, as it was he who had located the watch, since which he had, with two assistants, covered one Allie Russian, who had pawned the watch. On being interrogated Russian was able to prove that he had nothing to do with the hold-up, and gave information that he had got the watch in Butte, Mont., from a Russian Cossack named Alex, in return for money he had loaned Alex.

Holaff and Auloff the Same

Detective Shoeppe then left for Butte, taking Hussian with him, arriving there January 23. Chief Murphy of Butte detailed an officer to accompany Detective Shoeppe and Hussian to the mine where Alex was alleged to be working. A search of the records showed that one Alex Holaff was working there. That evening as he was leaving the mine Holaff was identified by Hussian as the man he got the watch from. Holaff was followed to a cafe, and there placed under arrest and taken to the police station. On being questioned and shown the watch Holaff denied that he had ever seen it before, and stated that he could not remember anything. Detective Shoeppe was convinced that Holaff was the man wanted under the names of Auloff for the holdup, and told Holaff that he was going to take him back to Canada. The warrant was read to him. He then agreed to waive extradition and return to Alberta.

Gets Seven Years

Detective Shoeppe left Butte with his prisoner on the afternoon of January 25, going by way of Great Falls. On the train Auloff admitted to Detective Shoeppe that he was the man wanted, and told the detective his account of the robbery. The escort and prisoner arrived at Lethbridge, Alta., at 4:30 p.m. on Saturday, January 26. At 5 p.m. the accused was brought before Police Magistrate Baker, elected to be tried summarily, pleaded guilty to the charge, and was sentenced to seven years in the Prince Albert penitentiary. A few hours later he was on the train en route to his home for the next few years.

Great credit is due to Inspector Howell of the Portland police for his vigilance during the years that have passed since he received the description of the watch, which had only been in pawn a few hours before he detected it. With the sentencing of Auloff the Alberta provincial police are able to write on top of a file several inches thick "finis."

The Bulletin spoke of this story to Assistant Commissioner Cuddy of the Ontario provincial police, who was formerly commissioner in Alberta at the time of the crime with Commissioner Bryan as his able assistant. Commissioner Cuddy expressed intense pleasure at the result of the untiring work of Commissioner Bryan and his colleagues, to whom he paid the warmest tributes. The Royal mounted and the Canadian police also, the Bulletin is sure, feel that there is reason for pride and approval. It might also be pointed out that the American police who located an important clue as a result of the circularization by the Alberta police gave a good example of that cooperation which is a feature of police work in the two countries. It is stated as illustration of the risks that criminals run that, in addition to a few watches and some jewelry the train robbers got less than $200 out of the holdup. For that one of them was shot dead by the police, another was captured and hanged and the third and last after living a hunted life for three years is now serving a long sentence in the penitentiary. True, the two policemen who were killed by this gang were worth dozens of such men, but the lesson that the law is not be evaded while life lasts is once more driven home.

Had it not been for the enthusiastic encouragement and financial aid given by Hon. J. E. Brownlee, attorney-general for the province of Alberta, this magnificent piece of police work could never have been accomplished.

DYSPEPSIA WAS SO BAD Could Hardly Eat Anything

Mrs. C. Stone, Nanticoke, Ont., writes: "Some time ago I had a very serious attack of dyspepsia, and was also troubled with gas on my stomach. I could hardly eat anything, and very often had pains after meals. I had used different medicines, but they didn't seem to do me any good. At last I happened to run on the track of Burdock Blood Bitters, and after using it for a short time I felt a lot better. I continued its use until I was completely relieved and now I am ready to recommend it to anyone troubled as I was."

Burdock Blood Bitters is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Herd of Sheep Gets Bogged in Oil Field Sump

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., March 12.—A herd of sheep grazing about the upper edge of the Kern River oil fields sighted what they supposed to be a pond of water, and when one made for it he was immediately followed by the rest until 250 crowded themselves into a sump hole on the Rambler lease and were stuck. It was impossible for the sheep herder, Zicurcio Bello, to restrain the sheep from pressing themselves into the hole.

Bello sought help from some of the men working nearby, and for three or more hours J. D. Abbott, Charles Lee, Roy H. Taylor, James Ashworth and Fred Werring busied themselves with a long rope dragging out the sheep. The sheep herder, by throwing in some pieces of timber, could place the noose about the sheeps' heads and then, with a lift while the five men pulled on the rope, dragged them out, one by one, all of them smeared, some able to walk away, others so waterlogged and oil soaked they lay for hours, while a few of them were suffocated.

The sheep were the property of A. Staunton.

KOOTENAY IN SUB-ARCTIC STATES TOLD

Death to Be in Open Without Best of Protection, It Is Alleged

15,000 OUT; GUNMEN AID THE OPERATORS

Facts Not Generally Known Imparted by Cranbrook I.W.W.'s to the World

Representations that a subarctic climate enshrouds this part of British Columbia; that 15,000 loggers were on strike, and that escorts of gunmen as well as uniformed officers of the law have figured prominently in the late Industrial Workers of the World strike in the Crow's Nest Pass, were found in the columns of the Industrial Worker, published in Chicago, in the form of correspondence from Cranbrook.

In the latest issue, March 5, publishing correspondence of date of February 25, just before the end of the strike, the situation at Cranbrook was pictured in this wise:

Gunmen Escorts

"Several large squadrons went out again this morning to tell the scabs and pushes around this country that we are still on strike. It will be late tonight before we hear anything from them. We had the bulls running around town nearly all night trying to get a line on what we were doing. It is impossible to move a couple of hundred men in a small place like this without attracting attention, and the bulls were very suspicious. They knew a squadron was going out some place to tell a funny story or two to some of the scabs, but they could not tell where we were going.

"Perhaps they will know soon. One big crew went to Lumberton, and they had all the mounties, provincials and gunmen in the country as an escort of honor. We feel sort of worried about the boys who went in other directions because there are not enough bulls and gunmen left to give them the protection they are used to on these raiding parties. We hope they will get back safely without the bulls, but we are worried—some. When this strike is over we lumberjacks will be in a hell of a fix because we will have no bulls to escort us around the country, and we will be afraid to go anywhere."

Country Frozen Solid

In the issue of February 2 the death-defying nature of outdoor operations in the Kootenay in winter is portrayed in the following appeal for funds:

"Fellow workers: In one of the most splendid exhibitions of solidarity ever seen 15,000 lumber workers of British Columbia are out on strike. They want the eight-hour day, the release of class-war prisoners in the United States, a $4 minimum wage and better conditions, real Industrial Workers of the World demands. They are fighting the entire lumber trust of western Canada and the United States.

"The British Columbia strike takes place in the heart of the subarctic winter, with the whole country frozen solid. To be without warm shelter clothing and good food is death.

"The lumber companies are bad hurt; this is the time of year when they are making fortunes every day. Every day the strike lasts costs them thousands of dollars. They must yield soon if the strike is to go on.

"But every hour of the strike brings the menace of a Canadian winter just that much closer to the heroic strikers. They must have help.

"This is the decisive moment. Something is going to happen quickly. We shall win or lose within a few days. Financial aid must be sent immediately and in large amounts. Send funds to James L. Peterson, chairman strike committee, Box 70, Cranbrook, B.C., Canada.

"(Signed) ROBERT RUSSEL, "Chairman, C.E.B."

Estimate Down a Little

On February 16 the same paper reported, through its correspondence: "The flying squadron of strikers is still busy, and still getting good results. The strikers are all happy and solidarity is unshaken. There are fully 2000 strikers out, and there are, at the most, 200 scabs working. "At conservative estimates the bosses are short about 60,000,000 feet of lumber."

The Tiger Woman

By HAZEL DEYO BATCHELOR

Copyright, 1924, by Public Ledger Company.

Babbie Hildreth is worried because a strange woman calls her husband on the telephone. It develops that the mysterious call is from a Mrs. Ward, whom the Hildreths have met at a recent dinner party. Her intuition tells her that Mrs. Ward is not to be trusted, and the matter is complicated by the fact that Babbie is going to become a mother.

CHAPTER V.

The Tiger Woman's Lair

EACH time that Rita Ward was invited anywhere she accepted the invitation as though it would be an adventure. This very expectancy, prevented her from being disappointed, for she generally found what she wanted, and always in the shape of some man.

It mattered little to Rita whether the man happened to be single or married. Often she would deplore to her friends, "All the nicest men are married, anyway; they're children until some woman has taken them in hand and taught them experience."

Which fact may or may not be true, but suffice it to say no wife felt comfortable should Rita Ward disappear with a husband in tow, and the result was that Rita had few women friends.

Long ago she had had some scruples. Conscience had at times troubled her, made her hesitate about carrying out her schemes. But after a time she ceased to worry about her conscience; it bored her to be what she termed "good," and life without men was something too intolerably dull to be endured. Rita had what is called a "line." Most vamps have this, and find it extremely valuable. But Rita was subtle, and at times when stalking her prey she gave up her line and trusted to intuition. She was fortunate in that her intuition rarely played her false, and consequently she was usually successful. But just as soon as her fish rose to the bait she ceased to have interest in him. She wanted to keep herself free from entangling alliances, for flirtation was the breath of life to her.

Rita had been married, but there was about her all the intangible allure that generally attaches itself to a widow. She was 30, but looked 23; she had a comfortable income left to her by her husband, who had been a successful broker, and she had no desire to marry a second time.

Her apartment was an intriguing place on West 56th street, just off Fifth avenue. Her living room was large and square, with French windows heavily curtained with mulberry velvet. She had a grand piano with sheet music strewn carelessly over the top, and here, in the mellow light cast by a banquet lamp of Chinese lacquer with a shade of mulberry and rose she sat and played haunting little melodies and sang in a contralto voice that was not without charm.

She had had a large couch built into one corner of the room. This was covered with mulberry cushions. The sides were wide enough to hold ash trays and curious knick-knacks of all kinds, and at the back two Chinese lamps threw out a dull radiance.

There was a wide fireplace in the room, and several comfortable chairs stood invitingly about. Also there was an old-fashioned writing desk of walnut, and a walnut low-boy flanked with tall Italian candlesticks. This held Rita's silver and linen, and a narrow refectory table that stood against the wall could be used for impromptu meals.

In addition to this room there was a large bedroom and a bath and kitchenet.

Rita's bedroom would have made Babbie Hildreth's eyes open wide. It had curtains of mauve silk over cream-colored net, and the bed was old and heavily carved with a canopy of mauve silk trimmed with cherry blossoms. The spread was mauve with a cherry-colored lining, and the furniture after the Italian style was painted in brilliant colors. In this bedroom there was always a heavy odor of narcisse noir, Rita's favorite perfume, and here, with her dark hair spread over the pillows, her black maid, Anna, would find her when she appeared at 9 o'clock each morning.

COULDN'T SLEEP HEART WAS BAD NERVES A WRECK

Mr. H. A. Reid, Upper Musquodoboit, N.S., writes: "I am very thankful for the benefit I have received by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

"When I came home from overseas, in 1920, my heart was very badly affected by concussion, and my nerves were a dreadful wreck. I was very short winded, and could not possibly sleep at night; in fact, I was in such a condition I felt as if I did not wish anyone to speak to me. I thought I woul try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and before I had taken two boxes I could enjoy a good night's rest as well as anyone.

"There are lots of returned men who are suffering the same as I did, and I feel sure that if they would only try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills they will receive the same relief that I have."

Miss Lizzie Almas

HERE IS THE REASON WHY CANADA HAS SO MANY HEALTHY WOMEN!

TORONTO, Ont. — "Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription can be relied upon as a woman's medicine. I found it so very beneficial that I do not hesitate to recommend it to others who suffer. I had suffered with a nervous breakdown, caused through my having feminine weakness. I had no control whatever over my nerves, could not sleep, and I suffered with backaches and pains extending down into my limbs. I also had severe bearing-down pains. I was a physical and nervous wreck when I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It put me right on my feet and removed all the trouble. My nerves became strong and I did not suffer any more with any of the above ailments."—Mrs. Lizzie Almas, No. 235 Ontario street.

TOZER PEN GETS LEAD FOR WEEK

Milner Birds Produce Fifty-seven Eggs; Ruttledge Entry Is Still Ahead

W. & F. M. Tozer, Milner, B.C., are the owners of the leading pen in the 18th week of the British Columbia egg laying contest conducted by the Dominion experiment farm, Agassiz, with 57 eggs to their credit. In spite of this, M. H. Ruttledge of Sardis, whose hens laid 50 eggs during the week, is still well in the lead, with a total of 922. The Tozer pen totals 735 to date, and the pen second in totals, belonging to the University of British Columbia, is entered for registration only. The next highest is the pen of A. W. Schofield, New Westminster, who totals 811 eggs, so that Mr. Rutledge, in spite of the fact that he had not led in the weekly totals for some weeks, leads by 111 eggs to date.

PROVINCIAL TAX ON INCOME HALF OF WASHINGTON

Assessor Ferguson Moralizes On Comparative Taxation; Farmers Off Light

"While some people are complaining about taxes in British Columbia," said E. Ferguson, provincial assessor for the Nelson assessment district, "it is interesting to note that the income taxes in the state of Washington are double what they are in this province, and assessments are made very much closer; that is, the Washington people are assessed on 50 per cent of the value of both land and personal property, and the rate is 4 per cent, while we are assessed on the full cash value and our rate in only 1 per cent; and, of course, in the case of farmers, one-half of 1 per cent.

"In addition to this," Mr. Ferguson went on, "we give the farmer $2000 exemption on his personal property tax; that is, his horses, cattle and implements, with the result that so few farmers pay a personal property tax in this district that it might almost be abolished."

With regard to personal property tax and income tax, Mr. Ferguson said that forms are sent out from the office at Nelson to every person liable. These must be returned to the office filled out, and, in the case of salaried men, they must be sent in before the last day of this month. In the case of business men, the forms must be returned within three months of the end of their fiscal year.

The statements are checked and assessment notices mailed at once to the taxpayers, who have the balance of the month in which they received their assessment notice and two months thereafter in which to pay. If taxes are not paid in the time set the tax is declared delinquent and a penalty of 1 per cent per month is added to its amount.

NEW PILING FOR BRIDGE AT FLATS

Approaches to Bridge Over Indian Creek at Kootenay Flats Are Renewed

CRESTON, B.C., March 11.—Deputy Land Superintendent Harris has a small crew of men at work putting in new piling for the approaches to the bridge on the Flats over Indian creek.

A limited number of new pupils were admitted in the receiving class at Creston school, and in all the rooms the accommodation is taxed to capacity, and at present it looks as if another room and teacher may have to be provided at midsummer. The school taxes for this year are the lowest that have been experienced for at least four years.

Bargains in live stock went begging at a forced sale of cattle and horses at the McCreath livery barn Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. C. M. Loasby of Birdar was a Wednesday visitor with Mrs. James Cook.

J. C. Martin has been awarded the contract of supplying Creston school with 20 cords of cut-green four-foot tamarac at a price of $5 a cord delivered at the school.

Only a fool would expect to get any fun out of a funnel.

ESTIMATES LACK AIRSHIP SCHEME

Egypt-India Project Dropped; Otherwise Same As Baldwin Program

LONDON, March 12.—The only difference between the new estimates for the air services and those prepared by the Baldwin administration is the omission of provision for the airship scheme known as the Burney plan for which Sir Samuel Hoare, former British air minister, made a provision of £400,000.

The plan proposed by Com. Charles Burney of the royal navy, retired, was to establish a commercial airship line to Egypt and India. The line was to be privately operated under the government.

SAN BERNARDINO DARKENS STREETS

California City Takes Steps to Conserve Power Till Streams Replenish

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., March 12.—War-time conservation of power struck San Bernardino today. Facing a dry year, business men darkened electric signs and one-third of the city's ornamental lights were cut off tonight as directors of power companies warned that the hydro-electric power service must be saved to supply sufficient power for industry next summer.

Directors of the Southern California Edison and Southern Sierras companies issued the following statement:

"The lack of normal precipitation in the mountains throughout the state has made the drain on the hydroelectric plants severe. As much power is being drawn on at the present time as is usually drawn in August. Many ranchers have been compelled to use the power for irrigation purposes who would usually not pump water until the middle of the summer.

"For some time past we have been using gas and steam plants but these will not furnish all the power. So it is up to the merchants and the restaurant owners to suspend the use of window and sign lighting until we are able to tell how much water we are going to have to furnish power during the summer. It is to their interests as well as ours and so far we are meeting splendid cooperation.

"The ranchers are the last ones we would call on to save power, but a request will be made of them to cut their pumping down to a minimum."

Thought and Electricity

Whether or not thought produces waves which can be caught on the antennae of radio receiving sets and so made audible at a distance—that, of course, is a matter of fact, not of opinion, and the question is to be decided by experiment and not on presumptions. The investigations which have been made recently in Chicago are to be taken seriously because of the quality of the men engaged in them, and, while the results so far achieved seem small and vague, if these investigators think them of some importance they cannot be dismissed hastily.

It is a long-known fact that every mental activity is accompanied by a measurable electrical disturbance. These disturbances, however, are not of the nature of Hertzian waves, and that they could be transmitted and transformed into speech, as can Hertzian waves in proper conditions, seems to be something more than improbable. They are quite deluded who think that because radiotelephony is deeply mysterious, therefore there is no limit to what can be accomplished by it. In reality, the mystery of the radio is exactly that of all electrical phenomena, and it seems greater only because of its comparative novelty. It has no relation whatever to spiritism and is as purely material as is anything else, which is not saying much, according to recent ideas as to the structure of atoms.

Some Facts About Tuberculosis

Excellent advice is given in a recent announcement of the New York Tuberculosis association. It tells the public not to put trust in any of the several "cures" for this disease which have been offered of late, for no such thing has yet been found. As regards some of the substances that have been exploited, scientific judgment still is in suspense, but expectation is not high, and at furthest it goes only to the point of hoping that they may be in some degree beneficial. The others are pure quackery and entirely worthless.

Another warning of the association is against the delusion that there is a mysterious magic in the climate of this or that place. As a matter of fact, climate in itself is of next to no importance in the treatment of tuberculosis.

There are places, of course, where cases taken in time often are cured in the sense that the progress of the malady is stopped. It is not the climate, however, whether of the Rockies or of Colorado, that does this, but the regimen to which the patients patiently and more or less perfectly submit while there. If they would—often they cannot—do the same things at home, wherever it may be, they would get the same benefit.

When cures are effected it is by fresh air, abundant and proper diet, avoidance of physical strains, general sobriety of life and constant expert supervision, and only because these things can be better obtained in the sanatoria of repute than elsewhere is resort to them worth the added cost.

What the Press Is Saying

The Mounties Exonerated

Whatever elevation western people may feel over the report from Ottawa clearing the Royal Canadian Mounted Police of charges laid in connection with the drug traffic, will be tempered by a certain measure of disgust that through spleen and ill-will those charges were laid at all.

Crime detection must, of necessity, be undertaken through secret channels. And in order that police operatives may have no opportunity to abuse their privilege of working in secrecy, the public must have utter confidence in the police heads to whom those operatives are responsible.

For this reason, the charges laid against individual operatives of the R. C. M. P. were really charges laid against the whole force, since they inferred slackness of discipline on the part of officers.

At no time since its inception has this northwest mounted force ever lost for one moment the absolute confidence of the public.

This recent investigation, reflecting on the efficiency and integrity of the force, was undertaken in opposition to the great mass of public opinion. And public opinion, as usual, was proved to be in the right.

The real harm accomplished by the fruitless investigation lay in the fact that the crime detection methods of the force were ruthlessly exposed to the public, thus nullifying the utility of these methods which could only be effective while they were secret.

The only result of the investigation was to pour water on the force's gunpowder, making necessary the building up of entirely new crime detection methods.

It was a foolish, expensive and short-sighted undertaking and should prove to those who started it that public faith in a long-established tradition of honor and service is usually founded on fact—Vancouver Sun.

France Suspects the Cloven Hoof

In a general way Lord Curson's policy has been occupied with the most diverse spiritual powers. During the Lausanne Conference, there were grave discussions concerning a reapprochment between the Greek patriarchate and the English church. More recently English diplomacy was able to take advantage of negotiations which took place between certain Anglican prelates and Catholic dignitaries, in view of a reapproachment with Rome. If there should be an Arab khalifate, whether at Cairo, Mecca or Bagdad, the English would be in line to impose their conditions. The Khalifate of Constantinople is thus being closely watched by English diplomats or the potentates of whom she makes use . . . France would not think of imitating England's policy with regard to Islam. France seeks neither division nor domination by spiritual means.—Le Temps (Paris).

With the cost of everything (or almost everything) still high, we housekeepers should never throw away even one-fourth of a cup of left-over food. The following recipes may help my readers to serve odds and ends of vegetables temptingly:

Cream of Turnip and Potato Soup—Pour three-fourths of a cup of scalded sweet milk over three-fourths of a cup of mashed potatoes and one-fourth of a cup of either white or yellow cooked left-over turnip; mix together well, then press all through a wire sieve. Now melt one tablespoon of butter in a saucepan, add the strained milk mixture and cook till smooth and thickened. Season to suit taste and serve.

Spinach-Egg Dish — Take cold, cooked, left-over spinach and form it into borders (that is, circular rings) on rounds of buttered toast. Drop a raw egg inside of each spinach circle, and sprinkle lightly with salt, pepper and buttered bread crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven till the eggs are set, then serve at once. This makes a good luncheon dish.

Baked Bean "Omelet"—(This recipe contains no egg, its name being derived merely from the appearance of the dish.) Put into the frying pan the part cooked with baked beans. When the fat has melted and is very hot add left-over beans, cover and let cook over milder heat for 40 minutes—or until brown underneath. Fold over like an omelet, turn out on a hot platter and serve with tomato catsup.

Cream of Lettuce Soup—Wash coarse outer leaves of lettuce and put them into a saucepan with three small carrots cut fine and three medium-sized peeled onions (cooked, left-over onions may be used); add one pint of cold water and cook till all the vegetables are soft enough to be put through a sieve (the pulp should be scraped from the inside of strainer and used also). Thicken this liquid with two and one-half tablespoons of flour mixed to a paste in a little cold water. Then season with salt and pepper to suit taste. Let boil up a moment or two, then gradually add one quart of scalded milk. Serve at once.

Parsnip Cakes—Mash and season left-over boiled buttered parsnips. Form it into flat, round cakes, dip these cakes in flour and fry them in hot melted beef drippings(just enough fat to keep cakes from sticking to pan but not enough to make them greasy).

This requires considerable time, however owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. BY LENORE

It is a little difficult to explain the reason, but many women have confessed to a feeling of informality in regard to the sheathe dress for street wear, particularly when made of thin materials such as silk. No doubt the designers have sensed this feeling, for now many of the silk crepe and satin sheathe dresses are being accompanied by small shoulder capes which are either detachable or an integral part of the dress and make of it a complete afternoon costume.

One particularly good-looking dress of this kind is, as usual, of black satin, slashed in the front to a point corresponding to the waistline. Both sides of the divided skirt are edged with green, and when separated reveal a green silk slip. There are no sleeves. But there is a brief cape made of a straight length of material which is gathered onto the dress just at the shoulders and extends around the arms in front. The effect is both graceful and dignified.

In the model shown above the cape is detachable. Here, too, it is of rectangular shape, held in place on the shoulders with a narrow scarf tie of its own material. The three overlaid sections in front are defined with sawtooth cire braid. Green silk stitched buttonholes and pockets, with buttons to match, give color to the simple sheathe dress, and the same color is repeated in ribbons which decorate the lining of the cape.

CLAIMS DESCENT FROM LAFAYETTE

GENE PIERRE ROBERT MALVOISIN DE LAFAYETTE

Claims to be a direct descendant of the famous Marquis de Lafayette, who helped the 13 American colonies in their revolt against England, and who later saved Louis XVI. and Marie Antoinette from violence, when the royal palace at Versailles was overrun by the Parisian populace. De Lafayette, who recently was in the public eye as a result of having married Mary E. Smith of Guelph, Ont., is now living in New York with his bride.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

A Reasonable Question

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act)

A very straight question is often asked of the physician regarding rheumatism. If my tonsils, my teeth, my gall bladder, the sinuses or caverns adjoining my nose are causing my acute attack of rheumatism how is it that I get over my attack without having any of these causes removed?

Now that would appear to be a very sensible question, but what really happens?

You have been working hard, have been indoors a great deal, have been eating heavy meals, getting no outdoor exercise and are just ready for trouble, due to neglect of your body.

Along comes a very wet day, perhaps some family or financial trouble. You are below par.

Your resistance forces are at a low point.

The bad tonsils, teeth or intestine are manufacturing the poisons, and your blood at first is in poor fighting condition. This allows the poisons to accumulate in the joints, and you have a well-establishel case of rheumatism.

However, you have little fighters in your body that, though defeated at first, gradually get the upper hand and your rheumatism passes away.

You see, you do various things to help these fighters.

First, you get right off your feet and give your heart a chance to strengthen itself up a bit.

Then your intestine is always the first thing cleared out, and with it goes some of the poison that is in the blood.

With this rest and with the intestine and blood purer these little fighters gradually master the acute attack of rheumatism and you get better.

Perhaps a little later you have another attack due to the same causes as before, and down you go again.

What is my thought?

That some day these poisons may be too strong, perhaps actually get to the valve of the heart and cause permanent trouble.

And the suggestion?

That you have your doctor or dentist try to locate the exact part where the trouble starts. They will be successful almost every time.

An autograph album, signed by all the members, was presented in appreciation of the interest taken by Mrs. Fraser in the institute. The hotel sitting room was very pretty with many lovely daffodil blooms.

TRAIL MEN FAIL REPORT SICKNESS

Four Fathers Are Lectured By Mayor Clark; Are Let Off Without Penalties

TRAIL, B.C., March 11.—In the city police court last Tuesday four defendants appeared before Mayor Herbert Clark, acting police magistrate, charged with an offence under the Health act, for failing to notify the city medical officer within 24 hours, an outbreak of an infectious disease in their households.

His worship pointed out that it was their duty as heads of households to report such diseases, and as citizens to do all in their power to assist the authorities in stamping out the epidemic of measles prevalent in the city.

All the defendants pleaded ignorance to the act, and of the symptoms of the disease.

As these were the first offenders to come before the court for such an offence, his worship let them off with a warning, at the same time pointing out that they were liable in a fine of $100, or six months imprisonment.

Creston Growers to Negotiate for Staples Warehouse

CRESTON, B.C., March 11.—The shareholders in Creston Growers' limited, at a meeting Saturday night, decided that in view of the unsettled shape the 1924 fruit marketing situation is in at present that Growers' limited, would continue, and as R. B. Staples has a position at Lewiston, Idaho, Miss A. Doyle, the accountant, has been placed in charge.

A committee of the directors was named to negotiate the purchase or lease of the warehouse at Erickson owned by Staples Fruit company, and also the office equipment of the same firm, which was loaned to the growers for last season's work.

The head office will continue at Creston for the present, but will probably be transferred to Erickson, when the soft fruit shipping season starts.

Up to the present there is still no move being made to reestablish Creston Fruit Growers union, or any other selling agency that will assure the desired control of the Creston Valley fruit output this year.

P. Mann left on a trip to points in eastern Canada, and will probably include New York in his itinerary.

Mrs. Ryckman Sr., is home again after spending a month's holiday visiting with relatives and old friends at and near Cranbrook.

Mrs. Maxwell, who has been visiting with her son, Clarence at Vancouver for the past three months, returned on Friday.

Forty Old-Timers of Crawford Bay Enjoy a Reunion

CRAWFORD BAY, B.C., March 12.—The Old-timers annual party was held in the public hall Saturday evening, with almost 40 present, all of whom had been in the Bay over 10 years, and some over 30 years.

The first part of the evening was spent with cards, except by a few who preferred to swap old-time yarns.

Music and singing was also enjoyed. Mrs. A. Houghton was pianist for the evening. L. Bourne gave a few selections on the violin. Mrs. Kidman gave an amusing recitation. S. Wells and H. Richardson sang several solos. Hearty community singing followed. Dainty refreshments were served by many willing helpers.

A. Millar gave a short speech, moving a vote of thanks for those who had helped to make the evening a success. At midnight all joined hands and sang: "Auld Lang Syne."

What the Package Does

Tea growers have found from experience that it is necessary immediately to pack tea in air-tight metal-lined chests, to preserve the flavour and goodness of the leaf. Equally so is an air-tight package necessary for the small lots of tea for individual consumption. Bulk tea is always inferior tea because it is exposed to air. The "SALADA" air-tight aluminum package is the most efficient way of preserving tea known.

FRUITVALE INSTITUTE . . WILL HELP THE YOUTH

Women Decide to Drop Garden Contests for Year and Help the Girls and Boy Scouts

FRUITVALE, B.C., March 12.—At a meeting of the Women's institute, held last Wednesday at the residence of Mrs. J. L. Webster, 16 members being present. The secretary, Mrs. Barclay, reported that $32.15 had been obtained for the sewing class funds, by the whist drive and leap year dance.

She has arranged for the dental clinic to be held during the Easter holidays, the final arrangements to be made at a public meeting today.

It was decided not to hold the school gardening competition this year, but that help should be given to the C. G. I. T. and Boy Scouts movements instead.

Two committees were elected: Local neighborhood needs—Mrs. Barclay, Mrs. Kidd and Mrs. Coles: ways and means and amendments—Miss Nelson, Miss Williams, Miss Orton and Miss Benton.

Tea was served by Mrs. J. L. Webster, assisted by Mrs. E. Jarrett.

Fruitvale Girls Hold Tea Toward a Tennis Court

FRUITVALE, B.C. March 12.—At a meeting held in the public hall, Thursday evening, to discuss the formation of a Farmers' institute, it was decided to obtain more information on the subject before anything should be done.

Alkali in Shampoos Bad For the Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified coccanut oil shampoo, which is pure and greaseless, and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

DELFINO PAYS FOR MURDER IN THE CHAIR

Italian Caught in Local Jail Electrocuted on Monday in Eastern State

VANCOUVER POLICE GET BIG REWARD

Coast Detectives Took Him From Local Jail to Coast Never Telling of Plans

BELLEFONTE, Pa., March 12.—(By Associated Press.)—Dominick Delfino of Archibald, Pa., who was convicted of murder and who evaded the death penalty for six years by escaping to Vancouver, being rearrested eventually in Nelson, B.C., was electrocuted in the Rockview penitentiary Sunday. He was convicted in 1917 for the killing of Demetro Morovito near Scranton.

With the execution of Delfino ends one of the most sensational adventures in the history of crime and one which is of great interest locally owing to the fact that the man was well known to members of the Italian colony in this city, through some of whom he was enabled to make his getaway from Vancouver when local detectives were hot on his trails.

Escaping from Lackawanna county jail some five years ago while awaiting the death sentence Delfino roamed through the United States and Canada apparently bearing a charmed life.

In one instance he walked into police headquarters in a city and, seeing his photograph on the wall, asked who the man was.

Was in Nelson Jail

Delfino was in custody at the local provincial jail when his identity became known, and as a consequence he was ordered held by Warden W. R. Jarvis until Vancouver detectives could come to take him to Vancouver, where he was to answer a serious charge. The identity of Delfino and on what charge he was wanted was never at any time hinted to local authorities after he had been ordered detained.

Detective Ricci of the Vancouver force picked up news of the fugitive through Italians, and some two years ago discovered that the man was in Vancouver. Before the man could be arrested, however, friends clubbed together and provided funds for his escape.

In 1922 Delfino wrote to Vancouver for more money, and that proved his undoing, for through the letter he was located here, where he was arrested by the immigration authorities.

They, however, were unaware of his identity until Detectives Ricci and Sinclair arrived here with a warrant for the man, who was then handed over, being later taken back to Scranton.

To the last the Italian believed he would escape from his captors, for when about to be taken to the train a search of his clothing brought to light a package of pepper, which, it is thought, he intended to use as a means to blind his guards should the opportunity occur during the trip to the United States jail.

Reward Sent to Vancouver

VANCOUVER, March 11.—Shortly after news reached the city this morning that Dominick Delfino had been executed a cheque for $1000 from the Scranton, Pa., police reached Chief of Police Long, the money being the reward for the capture of the fugitive. It is expected that it will be divided between the man who gave the information leading to the arrest and the arresting officers, Detectives Sinclair and Ricci. But the whereabouts of the man who gave the information are unknown to the police.

Five Babies Are Prescribed For at Baby Clinic

Only five babies, an unusually small number, were brought to the monthly baby clinic held at the Kootenay Lake General hospital yesterday afternoon.

However, these five were carefully examined, and had treatment or necessary changes in diet prescribed by Dr. J. H. Bennett, the physician in charge. The women's institute, which sponsors the clinics, was represented by Mrs. Percy Bates and Mrs. Bain. The nurses of the hospital were in charge.

CANADA BARS BEES ON COMBS

Second-Hand Bee Supplies and Combless Packages Are Also Banned

Sir—I beg to inform you that I have received a wire from Ottawa this morning stating that on and after March 20 next the importation into Canada of bees on combs and second-hand bee supplies is prohibited. Combless packages are also prohibited unless bearing a declaration from the shipper that the food supply contained therein is free from disease.

SHORTLY PRODUCE PULP FROM STRAW

Research by Canadian Pacific Results in Foreign Country Coming In

The work of the Canadian Pacific railway in its efforts to find a solution of the problem of utilizing the enormous tonnage of straw annually wasted and burned on the prairie provinces dates back as far as 1916. About that date the company engaged the Arthur D. Little company, whose report and research work on the possibilities of manufactuing pulp and paper from western flax straw still constitute the most complete investigation of this problem which has yet been made. The result of this work showed clearly that a high grade pulp could be manufactured from this material from which a high quality of paper was made, and actualy utilized for some time in the executive offices of the C.P.R.

The result of these many years of work bids fair to bear practical fruition in the near future. Very recently an important pulp and paper manufacturing company, after studying the results which had been obtained through the investigations above referred to, sent their representatives to Canada, and have made a thorough investigation of the Manitoba situation, their plans for the establishment of a large industry to manufacture pulp from western straw are well advanced, and it is believed that the first practical development for utilizing this hitherto wasted material will shortly become an accomplished fact.

DON'T LOWER TARIFF, URGES EULER, LIBERAL

Advises Government to Go Slow; Might Annihilate An Industry.

EUROPE AND JAPAN UNDERCUT CANADA

Can't Build Up Industry if Competitors Bar, But Have Free Entry Here

OTTAWA, March 12.—W. D. Euler, Liberal, North Waterloo, in the house today, following Alfred Speakman, expressed dissent from the view that the debate on the address was a waste of time. The debate on the address was the first opportunity of making the members' views known. He was in accordance with much contained in the speech from the throne, especially in the promise of the reduction in expenditure and taxation.

Heavy taxation, he went on, was not chargeable to this or any other government, but the government would be held respsonsible if expenditure was too high. He believed in customs duties as a form of tax. He thought no tax should be imposed on the profits of a business, but on the individual after he had received his dividends.

Mr. Euler spoke at some length concerning the need for increased immigration.

Tariff Should Be Compromise

The reference in the speech from the throne to a readjustment of the tariff was not very defnite. It might mean an increase or a decrease, Mr. Euler continued. The western farmer believed in free trade because he thought it would benefit him. For the same reason the eastern manufacturer was a protectionist. Compromise was the only solution of the tariff problem in Canada.

He deprecated the atmosphere of suspicion which appeared to exist on tariff matters, and advised the east and west to try to get each other's point of view.

The western farmer was, he thought, suspicious that the eastern manufacturer had been making undue profits because of the tariff. On the other hand, the eastern manufacturer thought the westerner did not care a jot or tittle whether these industries continued to function or not. Both were wrong.

"I do not see how we can build up Canadian authorities if we are included from the markets of our competitors, while they are admitted free to our own," Mr. Euler said.

This statement was received with Conservative applause.

He did not see that there was any good to be gained by nibbling at the tariff.

As to agricultural implements, he would like to see the farmer purchase those implements as cheaply as possible, but he doubted whether, even if the tariff were entirely removed, the farmer would get his implements any cheaper. There had been a cut in these duties recently, and since that time there had been an increase in the price of agricultural implements.

Don't Attack Implements

Mr. Euler did not see why there should be discrimination against the manufacturers of agricultural implements. If there was anything in free trade, he did not see why it should not be applied all along the line. (Progressive cheers.)

The protection enjoyed by the agricultural implement industry was low, and it had no monopoly. He advised the government to go slow, for if no great good could come of a tariff change, an industry might be annihilated by it.

There was a condition of affairs to which he wished to call special attention. He believed the consumer should have the right to buy at as low a price as possible. But in Europe and Asia, owing to exchange and low wages, commodities could be manufactured cheaper than in Canada.

Here Mr. Forke interrupted to ask what Mr. Euler proposed to buy in return for Canadian wheat sold to these countries.

Mr. Euler replied that he did not propose a prohibitive tariff. Nevertheless, in Britain, Germany, France, Italy and Japan certain kinds of goods could be produced at from a quarter to two-thirds the cost of production in Canada. If these goods were to be admitted without restrictions, Canadian-made goods could not be sold, Canadian factories would be idle, and Canadian workmen out of work.

The premier, Mr. Euler concluded, had promised in 1921 that there should be interference with the tariff such as would injure industry. He felt sure that pledge would be carried out.

Navaho Story of Creation Is Like That of Genesis

NEW YORK, March 12.—George Rogers, who has recently returned from the Navaho country in New Mexico, has obtained some interesting information concerning these tribes. Most interesting is the Navaho tradition of the creation of the world, which is practically identical to that described in the Bible.

First, there was a great god, Ya. There was nothing but water and space. Then Ya put forth his hand and the land came up out of the water. Again Ya put forth his hand and the sun and moon appeared. Then Ya created a man and a woman. These two were the first Navahos. The legend goes on, says Mr. Rogers in the Mentor, paralleling Genesis even to the rainbow which appeared in the sky as a sign between Ya and his people.

FIRST WEEK'S SHIPMENTS ARE NINE THOUSAND

Movement of Custom Ore For the Week Seems to Be at a Minimum

Ore received at the Trail smelter for the period March 1 to 7 inclusive totalled 9757 tons, of which 9431 tons was ore from the company mines. Last year in the corresponding period the total was 9778, of which the company mines contributed 8916 tons.

Only two mines, in addition to those owned by the company, sent in ore during March 1-7. These were the Paradise, 42 tons; the Silversmith, lead 185 tons, and the Silversmith, zinc 99 tons.

JEWELRY THIEF GETS SURPRISE

Lights Suddenly Switched On, But He Runs Through Store and Makes Escape

PASADENA, Cal., March 12.—Eighteen diamond rings and a number of costly platinum pins valued at several thousand dollars were stolen from the Charles H. Kelley jewelry store, 185 East Colorado street, during the early morning hours.

According to the police, Roger Kelley, son of the proprietor of the store, entered the front door of the establishment this morning, and switching on the light detected a young man rifling the diamond trays in the display window. The thief immediately ran the length of the store and escaped through the rear alley.

Mr. Kelley had two revolvers in his pockets at the time but neither was loaded.

Investigation revealed the burglar gained entrance by prying open the rear door. After once getting inside he locked the door so that when the nightwatchman tried the door at midnight he found it locked and the burglar remained inside without detection. The thief is believed to be a youth. The diamonds and pins were all expensive. This is the second jewelry store robbery committed here in the last two weeks.

Newark President Given to Saturday to Post Guarantee

NEW YORK, March 12.—Michael McTighe, president of the Newark club, was given until Saturday noon to post a guarantee of $25,000 that he will operate the club during the coming season and meet all schedule obligations by the officials of the International league in a special proclamation today.

MEXICAN GENERAL FINDS HIS BROTHER

Latter Sees Him in a Movie Film "Entry of Federals Into Puebla"

MEXICO CITY, March 12.—Quite an element of romance has entered into the life of the Mexican general Eugene Martinez, hero of the Battle of Esperanza on the Vera Cruz front which was undoubtedly the main cause of the collapse of the rebel movement headed by Guadalupe Sanchez. The rebel defeat was completed by the entry of Martinez and his columns into the port of Vera Cruz.

Thirty-eight years ago Eugene Martinez was a soldier of the line under Porfirio Diaz, while his brother Lazaro was a sergeant. After being in the same squadron for several years they became separated, Lazaro being drafted north and his brother south. Thereafter they lost track of each other.

Each believed the other dead until recently Lazaro, who is now a chauffeur and living moderately in Neuvo Laredo with his wife and family, happened to go to a cinema house to see the "Entry of the Federals into Puebla."

He was at once struck by a likeness of his brother in the features of the victorious federal general at the head of the troops, and became so convinced that it was the brother he had not seen for years that he telegraphed General Martinez. The latter replied, inclosing 1000 pesos, part for his brother's family and part to be used by his brother to come and see him at once.

One of Mexico's most famous generals during the present revolution is now doubly content, for it was indeed a case of "I am your long-lost brother."

CALIFORNIAN SPENT NIGHT IN A PIGSTY

Gentle Chinese Bandits Enjoyed Keeping Their Captives in Deadly Fear

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 12.—Falling among thieves apparently is a no less harassing and hair-raising experience in these enlightened days than it was when the events took place which are related in the classic story of the Good Samaritan. At least, that is the conclusion one forms after hearing the story of Theo Saphire of Shanghai, one of the victims of the Chinese bandits whose holding for ransom of some 30 or 40 Europeans in the mountainous hinterland of the Land of the Celestials formed the subject of numerous cable dispatches last summer.

Mr. Saphire, who is in the importing and exporting business in the Chinese city, is now a Los Angeles visitor, and a guest at the Alexandria.

Night in Pigsty

The conditions under which the captives were forced to exist while in the hands of the Chinese brigands were appalling, he said. The first night in the bandits stronghold was spent by Saphire in a pigsty, where he was thrown face down in the mud. He was in a weakened condition as a result of ill-treatment during the long march of the victims to the place where the bandits placed them under guard, and remained where he was thrown all night. In the morning his entire person was plastered with mud, which substance filled his ears and was caked in his hair.

The bandits relieved the captives of nearly all their clothing, the Shanghai exporter being compelled to spend most of the period of captivity dressed only in a suit of pyjamas.

Foot Infected

He had no shoes and one of his feet became badly infected as the result of a wound. For several days the only food provided the prisoners consisted of one egg for each person. At length they fared somewhat better when the American Red Cross was permitted to send them supplies.

The bandits, who numbered several hundred, took great pleasure in keeping their victims in deadly fear. The Chinese informed their prisoners that they were going to shoot the most prominent persons among them on a certain day to show the European and American governments that they were not afraid and meant business.

Suspense Created

It was a matter of much uneasy conjecture among the victims as to which one would be regarded as more important than the others. One day the bandits decorated one man with a tin star, without revealing their reason for conferring this distinction, and it was supposed that this individual had been selected as the victim of the execution. Nothing came of this, however, the sole design of the Chinese in making this threat apparently being to keep their prisoners in suspense.

EAST KOOTENAY POWER COMPANY TURNS WHEELS

Big Plant in Elk River Canyon Near Elko Now Humming

FIFTEEN THOUSAND HORSE IS DEVELOPED

Serves Coal Mines of Pass and Giant Concentrator at Kimberley

FERNIE, March 12.—A gigantic step forward in the development of hydro-electric power in Western Canada took place at 2:40 a.m. Monday, when the East Kootenay Power Company, limited, with headquarters here, put into operation its new plant at Elko, B.C., 20 miles west of this city.

The new plant is situated about half a mile south of Elko, in what is known as the Elk River canyon. The waters of the Elk are forced to run through a narrow gorge, and at the point where the plant is situated, drop over a high cliff into the basin below.

The present development is for 15,000 horse power, of which 7500 horse power is now available. The power thus developed serves the coal mines of the Crow's Nest pass region to the Crow's Nest pass region to the east and the huge concentrator of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting company of Canada at Kimberley, to the west, a concentrator which is one of the largest in the world.

Among interesting points in this development is a 12-foot wood stave pipe line, which is very close in dimensions to the largest of its kind in the world. This pipe line is approximately 1400 feet in length.

A rock tunnel 2000 feet in length, was also driven through the solid rock formation, and this leads into the surge tank 32 feet in diameter and 75 feet deep.

The water is delivered at the power house through two six-foot boiler plate steel penstocks. The turbines are 7500 horse power each, with 6000 kilowatt generators. All switching is of the remote control type.

This new station is the latest thing in electrical design.

Corporation Will Continue Scale to Coal Miners

HALIFAX, N. S., March 12.—Roy M. Wolvin, president of the British Empire Steel corporation, speaking at a luncheon here today, declared his corporation would continue to pay the coal miners of Nova Scotia the 1924 rate of pay, as agreed upon at Montreal between representatives of the miners and the company.

KEEP ALL GRAIN INVIOLATE, SAYS FORMER PROBER

Ex-Commissioner McNair Says British Millers Now Have Justifiable Kick

ALL CARS SHOULD GO TO LAKEHEAD

Thinks Sample Market For Exporting Country Entirely Unworkable

WINNIPEG, March 12.—How the United Kingdom miller views Canadian grades, and his attitude on any system that permits interference with the flow of grain of the average crop direct from the producer to the exporter, was described by W. L. McNair, before the royal commission today. He is a merchant of Gladstone, Man., but was a member of the royal grain commission of 1906, which went to England while investigating the grain industry. He has always, he said, retained close connection with the problems since.

Best Grades in World

He declared the question of grading is the whole thing. Canada had the best grades in the world, and the best grain. In his visit with the commission to interview British millers, he found they depended on the samples of the cargoes at the lake head to be the average of the crop as it left the farm, because any cream had been taken off by western millers who were diverting cars to meet their special requirements.

This practice of permitting western millers or agents to pick out certain cars, he insisted, could not but reflect on the general average of the volume going down the lake. It reduced the averages. If there was nothing in the Canada Grain act to prevent the practice, he thought something should be put in it. It should not be allowed.

He favored duplicate samples taken independently, as a check. There were, he said, resurveys and reinspection devices to protect the farmer, but the duplicate samples would also protect the elevator and millers.

Against Car Division

"The practice of elevators and millers diverting cars and making selections of special cars is bound to affect the standard of Canadian grain abroad," he emphasized. "If the British millers know this is going on they will not like it, any more than will the millers of eastern Canada. When we were in the United Kingdom, some Irish millers were declaring that this was the case, and I took the cream of the grain from their own elevators." He feared this was not true today.

Chairman Turgeon — Yes, that is the rule. The chief inspector told us this.

Mr. McNair—Yes, it is the rule, but it is not carried out, as you know, about the diversion of cars. I do not believe a sample market will be beneficial for that reason, and I don't believe it can work out in Winnipeg. It does in the United States, for most of their grain is for domestic consumption, but it is reverse in Canada. I am absolutely opposed to a sample market. We have in the Canada Grain act the best piece of grain marketing machinery in the world.

Chief Counsel—But if the farmer got the proper premium for his high grade wheat, would your objections still hold?

Sample Market Inadvisable

Mr. McNair—The farmer will pay no attention to a sample market. It will not work out. And I would not permit anyone to see the general samples drawn by the inspection department, who cannot show direct connection with that particular car. I know the rule is that they shall not, but the rule is not always carried out.

J. R. Murray, assistant general manager of the United Grain Growers was examined as to the western route, and the narrowing of spreads in Alberta as a result of the Pacific movement. With the present facilities, he doubted the port of Vancouver would handle all the grain produced in Alberta. Then the price paid the farmer would be based on Vancouver quotations.

Vancouver Helps Alberta

At present Winnipeg prices were the basis of those paid to Alberta farmers. He thought the Alberta farmer got the premium for that which commanded a bonus westward, especially if it were track grain. He could not state the amount of this premium. Prices for Alberta grain were sent out from Calgary, and the spread was not always the same in all sections. It was less between track and street in Alberta since the western route became a factor. The tendency of the western route, he claimed, was to get Alberta producers a better price, and last year oats in Alberta brought as much as those in storage at the lakes.

He said the Alberta pool had made an arbitrary spread in the price paid for street and track. The difference for one and two was five and a half, and for other grades six and a half. This spread would rule, or its equivalent, in the final settlement. Winnipeg prices, he said, were the basis of what the Alberta farmer got, whether his grain goes east or west.

Mr. Murray thought a sample market could be established in Winnipeg. This would necessitate, he said, the establishment of some points in Saskatchewan from which samples could be taken. They would have to arrive in Winnipeg two days ahead of the cars, and the cars would have to be held in Winnipeg another day for diversion.

Few, he feared, would be diverted south, if the present tariff barriers remained.

CADET ARNOLD DID NOT TESTIFY

MAJOR ARNOLD AND HIS SON FLORENT

Young Arnold, who escaped to New York from Kingston after a hazing at the Royal Military college, returned to Canada with his father, and was ready to testify at the inquiry if it had been open. He was offered an opportunity by Maj.-Gen. A. C. MacDonell to return under new conditions, but elected to return to Regina with his father.

BUT COULD NOT SELL THEM TO CONSERVATIVES

was on the job, and Rossiter said he had not taken this into his calculation.

He also denied that he had negotiated with A. S. Latta of the Consumers' Lumber company for a com*mission on any order Latta might* get, and Mr. Taylor announced that Latta would be produced as a witness on this point.

VICTORIA, March 12.—The Oliver government assumed the role of accuser today, when E. J. Rossiter, former construction accountant of the railway department and originator of the charges made by the Provincial party was subjected to severe cross examination by S. S. Taylor, K.C., senior counsel for the government, in the inquiry before Mr. Justice Galliher into the government's conduct of the affairs of the Pacific Great Eastern railway.

Mr. Rossiter admitted he had offered the material on which his charges were based, to agents of the Conservative party in Vancouver. He had let it be known to L. Howe *of Vancouver and W. K. Esling, Con*servative, Rossland, that he wanted $5000 for his information. The offer was not accepted.

The witness insisted, nevertheless, that the first advances had come from A. S. Milne, a Conservative of Vancouver, and it was through Mr. Milne, said Rossiter, that Messrs. Howe and Esling had a meeting with him.

Rossiter offered no denial to Mr. Taylor's suggestion that W. J. Bowser, opposition leader, had refused to have anything to do with the attacks on the Oliver administration in respect of the railway. The witness said he had never spoken of or to Mr. Bowser in the matter.

He explained he was given a job by the Provincial party at a salary of $250 a month. He had made no bargain with the party in respect of the inquiry, except to tell the truth, he insisted. He admitted he had been promised a permanent job if the Provincial party were successful at the next general election, and he supposed that it would be a civil service job.

Drafted Testimonial

Testimonials to the ability of Rossiter, signed by Premier Oliver, and A. F. Proctor, chief engineer of the Pacific Great Eastern railway, as given to the witness when he resigned his government position in 1919, played a large part in today's proceedings.

The witness admitted he had him*self drafted the testimonial signed* by the premier. He said he had done it on the premier's suggestion. The statements made in it were true, and he thought the premier knew what he was doing when he signed the testimonial.

Mr. Proctor's testimonial originated with Mr. Proctor, the witness declared.

Defends Copying Letters

Rossiter defended his action in taking copies of some 40 or 50 documents in the files of the railway department when he resigned. He took them to protect himself, and in "the public interest," he told government counsel.

In his attack upon Premier Oliver for not putting an end to the condition of which he had complained, the witness reiterated his main charge, that there was laxity in the method of keeping the accounts and they were not properly supported by vouchers.

He denied that he had imputed dishonesty, but he was still certain that no accountant in his position would have been justified in passing the accounts without protest.

The ice was in excellent condition at the beginning, but heat from the large crowd sent the thermometer skyward, and the going became heavy in the second and third period.

Jimmy Gardner and A. B. Cook were the officials. Gardner did most of the work, and he did it well, although at least two goals, one by each team, appeared to have been scored offside.

Better Team Wins

"We were beaten by a better team," said the Maroons at the conclusion of the contest, "and we have no kicks to make. Calgary fans should be proud of the wonderful exhibition that the Tigers dished up."

"It was a great game for the boys and a better one for their supporters," said Playing Manager Eddie Oatman. "The Tigers were marvelous in team play, and outshone the Maroons at their own style in the long passing in the center area. The combination was snappy, which is evident by the easy manner in which such sterling stars as Lehman, Duncan and Cook were defeated."

NEEDLE MANIAC SUSPECT SEIZED

Long Beach Lady at Street Crossing Is Stabbed With Hypodermic

LONG BEACH, Cal., March 12.—As a result of the arrest here of L. E. Vaughan, 31 years of age, a battery service employee, police are investigating further the stories of a "needle maniac" operating here for the last few days.

The suspect, according to police, has been partially identified by Mrs. F. E. Ashley of 1834 Sundry avenue. She was the victim of an attack by a needle maniac last Wednesday.

In her report to the police she stated that she had just dismounted from a bus on State street and was awaiting to cross the street when a man, his face set in a fiendish grin, drove up in an automobile and jabbed a hypodermic needle into her arm. Mrs. Ashley said she fainted when the needle entered her arm. She gave a complete description of her assailant to police and also the license number of the car in which he was riding.

Patrolman Hauske saw Vaughan on the street and placed him under arrest. Mrs. Ashley was called in to identify the suspect, and, according to police, declared that she was almost certain that he was the man who stabbed her with the needle.

Police, however, are continuing the investigation. Vaughan denies the charge, declaring that he has never seen Mrs. Ashley. He is being held on a suspicion of felony charge.

FARMER PAYS MORE AND HE OBTAINS LESS

"That Is What Is Wrong," Crerar Tells Manitoba Economic Conference

LABOR COSTS HIGH; LIVE WITHIN SELVES

Price of Products Can't Be Controlled, Ex-Leader Tells Conference

WINNIPEG, March 12.—"On the average, the farmer paid 70 per cent more for his goods today, while for his produce he got only 13 per cent more than in 1913, and that is what is wrong with agriculture." declared Hon. T. A. Crerar, M.P., the principal speaker before the Manitoba economic conference, here this afternoon.

It was the cause of hundreds of young men leaving the farms and seeking work in the city. It was robbing the farms of the labor it needed, and was economically unsound. It was a problem not alone for the farmer, but for the other bodies to endeavor to solve, Mr. Crerar said.

The remedy, Mr. Crerar believed, lay in the lower cost of production. The increased cost of producing goods required by the farmer of hours of work. He was not dealing with the right or wrong of labor's attitude but it seriously affected the farmer.

Will Become Self-Continued

If costs, however, did not come down, Manitoba farmers would in very increasing numbers be living within themselves. They would make many things they now buy, and that would not be a good thing for business associations.

Transportation was of vital importance to the farmer. Rates might be brought down if traffic could be increased, and this could be brought about by immigration of the right kind.

Mr. Crerar declared his belief that efforts on the part or farmers to fix or control prices of the things they sell, would prove elusive It was impossible to control the world's market price, because if it were increased by some scheme of cooperation between Canada, Australia and and Argentine 10 cents a bushel, it would simply stimulate enormously the growth in Russia and other countries. It could only succeed if the acreage and growth could also be controlled.

Develop Resources

Other speakers during the afternoon emphasized the importance of completing the Hudson's Bay railway, and the development of Manitoba's natural resources.

The conference is composed of a large number of public, semi-public, and social service organization in Manitoba. Three hundred delegates are in attendance.

A further session will be held tomorrow, when Labor representatives will discuss economics from the standpoint of Labor.

Saskatchewan Private Bills Committee Ready on Church Union Now

REGINA, March 12.—After giving the United Church of Canada bill consideration clause by clause over a period of several weeks, and listening to heated wrangles between the opposing factions, the committee on private bills tonight completed its review of various clauses of the measure, and arrived at a basis of report. No amendments were made conflicting with the board principle on the bill.

At last stand was staged by the "antis" on the regulations governing the calling of meetings of congregations for the purpose of voting themselves in or out of the union. They succeeded in getting regulations adopted providing more spe*cifically for holding of such meet*ings, than were contained in the original bill. Provision was also made for voting by ballot at the option of individual congregations.

Regina Ratepayer Fights Assessment; His Goods Seized

REGINA, March 12.—Following a seizure by the bailiff, acting under a distress warrant issued by the city, A. E. Chant, has issued a writ against the city of Regina.

The action is the first legal shot in the campaign which has been carried on against the 1923 assessment for civic income tax. The seizure was made on the default of payment of the tax, and the statement of claim alleges that the goods were seized and wrongfully retained by the city.

A writ of replevin has also been filed directing the sheriff to return the goods seized, and the plaintiff undertakes to give a bond for the amount entailed until the case is settled.

We label every Ostermoor mattress built, so that those who purchase and use it can be sure of one quality not visible from the outside.

That quality is wholesome cleanliness. "Yes," you say, "but all new mattresses are clean, aren't they?"

The truth is, a mattress must be clean inside to be safe for either your family or yourself to sleep on. And the further truth is, not all mattresses can meet this test.

The ticking isn't all

With the cost of fresh, new cotton and other mattress materials advancing steadily, the temptation to use second-hand, "re-worked" materials in a mattress to be sold at a price has become almost too strong for some makers to resist.

The danger of contagion to the buyer, the dirt and filth are all hidden by the bright "art" ticking. And the resulting cheat is sold at a price below what a mattress of new materials must bring.

For thirty years, Ostermoor has been the Canadian standard of mattress comfort and economy. It is built today, as always, to an unchanging standard of cleanliness.

None but safe, clean material goes into an Ostermoor, Red Label, Green Label, White Label, or any other mattress built by Simmons.

A line of known safety

Buy a mattress of the known sleeping quality and economical service that Ostermoor has rendered its Canadian users for the past thirty years. Particularly, buy Simmons cleanliness as the certain measure of safety for yourself and family.

You get all the energy-building advantages of sound sleep, plus service that is dependable and never endangered by the fear of contagion or disease, when you buy your bedding by the Simmons label. Failing to look for that, you run the risk of getting an extravagant, possibly dangerous, "substitute."

TRADING ON STOCK MARKET VERY DULL

Lack of Definite Trend Is Attributed to Professionals Being Shy

NEW YORK, March 12.—Dull trading again characterized today's stock market. Lack of a definite trend is generally attributed to the indisposition of professional traders to extend their committments until after the March 15 tax payments have been disposed of.

Southern Railroad and Norfolk & Western were the features of the rails, establishing new highs for 1924 at 52¼ and 121⅜, respectively.

In the late selling, Southern sold down to 51⅛, up 1 point on the day and Norfolk & Western closed at 118⅜, a net loss of ⅝.

Woolworth established a record high for all time at 331.

Studebaker closed a point lower at 101½ and United States Steel common, Baldwin and American Can sustained fractional losses. A sharp run-up in American Sugar Refining which touched 54, or 2 points above yesterday's low, indicated that Wall street had overdiscounted the poor 1923 earnings report.

Accumulation of United States Cast Iron Pipe sent that stock up to 77⅝, the closing price at 76 representing a net gain of 2 points.

Oils offered fairly good resistance, General Asphalt standing out with a net gain of 2¼ points.

Call money held steady at 4½ per cent.

Total shares were 576,200 shares.

Toronto Board

TORONTO, March 12.—Trading was fairly broad on the exchange today but the volume was small. There was some buying of Smelters and the price moved to 37¼ and closed at 37. Canners common moved up to 32¾ and closed at 32⅝, and advance of 2⅜. Brazilian ranged between 51¾ and 52¼, closing at the high point. Toronto Rails were fractionally higher at 82. Duluth was steady at 32 and Detroit United gave way 3¾ points to 61.

The issuance of the annual report of B.C. Fishing was reflected in the market by a decline of ⅞ to 14⅛.

Montreal List

MONTREAL, March 12.—Trading today on the stock market was extremely dull. Smelters led in activity and closed at 37, a gain of ½. Abitibi suffered a net loss of ⅜ at 63½. Steel of Canada was up ½ at 81½.

Dominion Iron preferred was up 2¾ at 55¼.

Winnipeg Railway preferred was 8 points down at the close of 76½.

Asbestos was off 3 points; Canada Cement up 1⅜ to the new high of 90⅛ and Spanish common was up ½ with the preferred up 1 point.

AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments

Though a man intends his will to provide for certain of his relatives, often they do not share in the distribution of his properties because he was not familiar with the law.

Debts are always paid, if possible, out of personal property. Stocks, bonds, bank deposits, and the like are personal property, and if you are anxious that these be left to certain loved ones, or for certain purposes, take care that you have made ample provision for the payment of your debts in some other way.

If you do not provide in your will to the contrary, those you have cared for with bequests of personal property may get nothing; for before any property may be distributed, debts must be paid.

It will likely be cheaper for your family for you to pay for legal advice at the time you make your will, than for them to pay the expense of litigation trying to break it, in an honest effort to accomplish what you really intended.

LOAN TO FRANCE HUNDRED MILLION

Gold in French Vaults Secures Credits by United States Syndicate

NEW YORK, March 12.—Establishment of the banking credit of not less than $100,000,000 in favor of the Banque de France, has been arranged by an American banking group headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., it was announced tonight.

The loan is fully secured by gold held in the vaults of the Banque de France, which is acting for the French government, and will be used to stablize French exchange, and for such other purposes as the French government may determine.

While details of the loan were not made public, it is understood that it will not run for more than one year. In the event that the credit it not at maturity liquidated in other ways, gold in amount equal to the loan will be shipped to the Morgan firm in New York.

Interest Rate

In view of the excellent security behind the loan, it is believed the interest rate is relatively low, and well below that of some of the recent foreign loans floated here in the shape of bond issues.

The group is limited to bankers of New York and neighboring cities.

This is the first foreign government credit of its kind that has been arranged in this country.

Members of the experts committee on reparations, which is expected to report the latter part of this week, have been advised of the loan, and are understood to have given it their approval.

TURNOVER TAX IS LEEDS SUGGESTION

Ontario Conservative Would Also Revise Tariff Upward to Save Industries

OTTAWA, March 12.—H. E. Stewart, Conservative, Leeds, in the debate on the speech, today, urged the necessity for lower taxation. He suggested the abolition of the sales tax, and the substitution therefor of a moderate turnover tax, which would be easily collectable, and would provide revenue without imposing a hardship.

He urged a reduction in income tax had been made necessary through reduction in the United States.

Mr. Stewart objected to any reduction in the tariff on agricultural implements. This tariff was very low at present. If decreased further it would result in driving some of the manufacturers out of business.

He agreed that the tariff needed revision, but in many respects the revision should be upward. This was especially so in regard to agricultural products.

He compared the United States and Canadian duties on farm products, and said that figures showed a serious discrepancy between these duties, which was operating to the detriment of the Canadian farmer.

FRANCS ARE ABOVE FOUR CENTS AGAIN

NEW YORK, March 12.—Announcement by J. P. Morgan & Co., for the establishment of American banking credit of not less than $100,000,000 for the Bank of France, was preceded by a spectacular rally in the price of French francs, which, during the day, soared more than 35 points, to 4.24 cents. The rate at the close eased off to a range of 4.18 to 4.20 cents.

BOTH TEAMS OR NEITHER TO GO EAST FOR CUP

Patrick Says Western Circuits Stand Together Against East Dictation

FOUR-TEAM SERIES ONE POSSIBILITY

If National Hockey League Won't Yield, Then No World's Series Played

CALGARY, Alta., March 12.—"If the east persist in their stand that only one western team compete against the National Hockey league champions in the Stanley cup finals, there is quite a chance that there will be no world's series at all," stated Frank Patrick, president of the Pacific Coast league, here tonight.

He further states that both the Vancouver and Calgary teams are purchasing transportation to Winnipeg only, and will disband in that city, following Saturday's game, unless satisfactory arrangements are completed whereby both western teams go east.

Both Champion Teams Entitled

The western viewpoint, backed up by public opinion, demands that Calgary, as champions of the prairie loop, and Vancouver, as title-holders in the coast circuit, are entitled to a chance in the Stanley cup finals, under conditions that existed in Vancouver a year ago, when Ottawa wiped out the Marcons, and then beat Edmonton.

Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey league, is being censured over the disruption that exists in the arrangements at present, and because of his laxity in anticipating the proper move.

Frank Patrick claims the two western leagues have agreed to stand by each other, and that he will regret very much should the 1923-24 world's series fall through.

Should Calgary win tonight's game, another angle to the situation may develop. The west would then look more favorably on the easterners' first proposal that the champions and runners-up in the N.H.L. figure in a four-team series, along with the Vancouver and Calgary clubs, providing none of the games were played in Montreal. The big objection that the westerners had to the four-team series was that they did not wish to play on natural ice at this late season of the year.

Frank Patrick would favor giving the Canadiens a start of the two victories which they received over Ottawa in their recent playoff.

No Western Title by Itself

This proposal would fall through, however, in the event that Calgary was to lose here tonight, as the western presidents agreed that the game played in Vancouver last Monday, and the one tonight, would have no bearing unless both western champions made the journey east.

BASKETBALL SCHEDULE IS NOW IN FORCE

Old-Timers and Falcons Leading in City Series Just Started

At last the city league basketball schedule has been drawn up and a four-team league will operate in the city for the next few weeks. Two games will be played an evening on Tuesdays and Thursdays and teams are entered from the Rowing club, the High school, the Old-timers, the City and Ex-High school pupils.

On Monday last two games were played at the high school floor, where the games will be played for the first half of the league and in these meetings, the Old-Timers defeated the High school, 47-36; and the City team, termed the Meteors, were defeated by the Ex-High school boys, dubbed the Falcons, by a 32-to-26 score.

Games Tonight

The next games take place this evening at the high school and no admission fee will be charged for games in the first half of the league. This evening the Falcons play the Rowing club and the Old-Timers play the Meteors. The games commence at 7:30 o'clock. It is hoped that the second games will be staged in the Central school, which is a handier and more centrally located place for the staging of the games. The various captains of the teams are: Old-Timers, Harry Ferguson; Meteors, F. Steele; Falcons, Ted McVicar; Rowing club, J. Notman, and High school, Stewart Smillie.

The schedule as drawn up is as follows:

March 18, Falcons vs. Rowing club, High school versus Meteors; March 20, Old-Timers vs. Falcons, Meteors vs. Rowing club; March 25, Falcons vs. High school, Rowing club vs. Old-Timers; March 27, High school vs. Old-Timers, Meteors vs. Falcons; April 1, Rowing club vs. High school, Old-Timers vs. Meteors; April 3, Falcons vs. Rowing club, High school vs. Meteors. April 8, Old-Timers vs. Falcons, Meteors vs. Rowing club; April 10, Falcons vs. High school, Rowing club vs. Old-Timers.

First game each night to start at 7:30 sharp.

ASSINIBOIA TO PLAY MELVILLE

REGINA, March 12.—Assiniboia, intremediate hockey champions of Saskatchewan, were today ordered by President Sexsmith of the Canadian Amateur Hockey association to play Melville Millionaires tomorrow night in Melville to determine Saskatchewan's representatives in the Allan cup playdown.

LITTLE LESSONS IN Golf

Is it a good practice to stab putts when greens are slow and rough?
Answered by

WILLIAM MELHORN

"The St. Louis Youngster," whose battering courage and sound golf enable him to finish well up in all the tournaments he enters.

To stab putts is bad practice on any kind of a green, especially on slow or rough greens. A putt hit with an overspin is always easier to control. On a rough green the putt with an overspin will keep its line better, tending to roll right over the bumps and keep a straight course, while a stab putt is hit with more of a cut and every bump it hits might make it kick further off the line. Try a more pendulum swing, hitting up at the ball.

DANDURAND IS OVERWHELMED WITH SURPRISE

Says Patrick Is Breaking Agreement That Has Three Years Yet to Run

RULE LAID DOWN FOR PLAY OFF WITH THREE

President Calder Advises Trustee Foran to Adhere to Old Rule

MONTREAL, March 12.—"Positively astounding. I am the most surprised man in the world, and I am certain that this news will be received with the utmost astonishment throughout Canada."

This was the comment of Leo Dandurand, manager of the Canadiens, champions of the National Hockey league, this evening, when informed of the decision of Frank Patrick, president of the Pacific Coast league, to disband the Vancouver and Calgary teams following Saturday's game in Winnipeg, and call off the Stanley cup playoffs, if "the east persist in their stand that only one western team compete against the National Hockey league champions in the cup final."

"I simply cannot understand why Frank Patrick should fail to live up to the agreement made two years ago, a written agreement, which laid it down definitely that the Stanley cup playoffs should be competed for among the winners of the three leagues. This agreement was made for five years, and has, therefore, three more years to run. It has been strictly observed since it was made, and why such an effort should be put forward to break it now is utterly beyond me."

Asks Patrick to State Case

Interviewed by the Canadian Press here tonight, Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey league, stated he had already wired Frank Patrick this afternoon, recommending that he state his case to Trustee William Foran, and ask that the two western teams be allowed to compete against the Canadiens for the Stanley cup.

Mr. Calder added that he had also communicated with Mr. Foran, requesting that the precedent of former years be adhered to, and that the playoffs for the world's series and the Stanley cup honors should be between the western champions and the champions of the National Hockey league.

Until Mr. Foran's decision was known, said Mr. Calder, nothing further could be done in the matter.

Foran Has Had Nothing

OTTAWA, March 12.—William Foran, Stanley cup trustee stated tonight that he had not as yet received any proposals regarding changing the system of play off for the Stanley cup, from either President Patrick of the Pacific Coast league, or President Richardson of the Western Canada league, and until these proposals are received, he could make no statement.

Trustee Foran stated that just as soon as he receives word from the western magnates he would announce his decision.

Soo Greyhounds Win North Title; Now for Niagara

TORONTO, March 12.—The Soo Greyhounds, winners of the Northern Ontario Hockey association senior series, tonight defeated Niagara Falls here, 7 to 0, in a sudden death game.

The Greyhounds will meet Hamilton Tigers, Ontario Amateur Hockey association senior champions, in a two-game series here Saturday and Tuesday nights, the winner to defend the Allan cup in the semi-finals.

OWEN SOUND JUNIORS DEFEAT KITCHENERS

LONDON, Ont., March 12.—Owen Sound Greys defeated Kitchener Youngsters 7 to 2, in the first of the O.H.A. junior finals here tonight.

REFEREE GIVES DRAW DECISION, IS QUESTIONED

Cottrell Aggressor in Five Rounds, But Hits After Breaks

ROGERS TAKES COUNT OF EIGHT IN NINTH

Referee Warns Visiting Champion Several Times; Rogers Shows Gameness

Various opinions are held among local boxing fans as to who was the winner of last night's 10-round bout between Jimmie Cottrell of Spokane, junior welterweight champion of the northwest, and Tommy Rogers, local welterweight and claimant of the western Canadian title. Referee Joe Holland called the go a draw, which decision caused much criticism from all sides.

Cottrell was the aggressor all through the bout, and a decision in his favor would have been more to the point, as he lead in five of the 10 rounds. Rogers gained two, and the balance, three rounds, were even. Truly, Cottrell on several occasions disregarded the referee's warnings and committed fouls, especially in the clinches, and on another occasion when he butted Rogers into the post into the corner and administered several blows after the "break" had been called by the referee. It was on these technicalities that Referee Joe Holland based his draw decision.

Cottrell Has Wicked Left

Cottrell clearly showed the fans that he is a master at the game and pack a wicked kick in either mitt but shows a preference to his left, which he swings over with lightning rapidity. His favorite blow throughout the bout was a left uppercut. In the ninth round he got a left uppercut home and bounced Rogers on the floor for the count of eight. The local lad was on his back, but was up at eight, and managed to weather the round out, landing heavily to Cottrell on two occasions in the last 30 seconds of the round.

Rogers clearly demonstrated to the fans last night that he can take a little punishment as well as give it, and he came from the ring pretty badly bruised. Following the bout he stated that he had never been hit so hard before in any bout. Cottrell weighed in at 146 pounds and Rogers at 146½ pounds.

The bout, by rounds, was decidedly in favor of Cottrell. The first round was a draw, the second went to Cottrell. A draw resulted in the third, and Rogers took the fourth. The fifth was a draw. Rogers won the sixth, and Cottrell took the remaining four of the ten rounds.

It was anyone's bout for the first six rounds, and the boys stepped around the ring, dishing up things pretty well. In the third Rogers had Cottrell hanging on after he had delivered a hard one to the ribs and a left to the jaw. The visiting boxer, however, soon snapped out of the trance and finished strong.

Rogers' Wonderful Comeback

Rogers, early in the bout, caught on to Cottrell's uppercut with his left hand, which carried dynamite every time it landed, and Rogers blocked many of these blows in an effective manner. The ninth round was the exciting round of the fight, when Rogers made a great comeback after taking a count of eight. A snappy left uppercut to the point of the chin bowled him to the canvas, and he was stretched out on his back with his arms behind him. At the count of three he tried to rise, but fell back unable to gain strength to get to his knees. At the count of six he rolled over, but again could not rise. At the count of eight Rogers gathered up enough strength to get to his feet, and surprised the fans and Cottrell, too, with a healthy right hand swing to the head. He managed to weather out the round, and received a great ovation for his gameness. He proved that he had a heart of the right quality.

Five Knockdowns in One Prelim

Last night's card, from start to finish, was well worth the admission, and the fans received their money's worth in the two preliminary bouts. The first ended in a knockdown when Parker floored Bill Edmonds in the last second of the last round of their bout. Up to that time the bout looked pretty much like a draw.

Stan Alibone and Crawford Young put up the bout of the preliminaries in one of the best three-round goes ever staged in the city. After taking the first round Alibone came out in the second and landed on Young's body and jaw with a right and left, dropping him. Young was down for the count of two, but regained his feet. He was no sooner up than Alibone slipped over a wicked right, which again sent Young down. This time he took eight. Rising again amid applause he was again given a healthy wallop to the chin, and again went down, this time for eight. Never quitting he rose again, and sparred on. Tripping, he went down again, and took a count of two. Weathering the storm, he finished the second round.

In the third he staged a wonderful comeback, and brought the house to its feet when he landed a left to Alibone's jaw and dropped him to the canvas in a dazed condition. Alibone took the count for eight. Young forced the bout the rest of the way, and a draw decision proved most favorable to all concerned. Jack Cullen handled the preliminary bouts.

Bout by Rounds

Following is the bout by rounds as seen at the ringside:

Round 1—Rogers opened the round with a right to the ribs and he again got in a right to the head. Cottrell came in close and landed to the head with his right and left. Cottrell put over a right swing with a left uppercut, but Rogers wasn't there. Rogers stepped in and connected with his right to the jaw. Cottrell landed to the head and body with his left. Rogers assayed a rush and landed rights and lefts to the body and head, putting Cottrell to the ropes. Rogers ducked a right and landed to the heart. Cottrell landed hard to the stomach with his right and tried a right to the head. Rogers all through the round sidestepped and ducked well. Cottrell was forcing the fight, but missed several uppercuts. Round even.

Cottrell Has Edge

Round 2—Rogers lead a right to the body and slapped in a left to the head, but not with much pep. An exchange of rights ensued. Cottrell again missed a left. Rogers rushed him to the ropes with a succession of rights and lefts. Cottrell landed a right to the chin and a left to the jaw. He tried an uppercut but it landed on Rogers' chest. Rogers connected to the head with a right and made Cottrell miss a right. Rogers was showing well at this stage, and connected to the head and body in good style. Cottrell landed heavily to the body with his right hand. Cottrell's blows were harder than were Rogers', and they were telling on the local lad. His attacks were mainly of a rushing style and usually ended with a hard left to the body. Rogers was ducking well. Cottrell had a slight shade on the round.

Round of Action

Round 3—Rogers came out with a rush and used his left effectively, slamming Cottrell to the ropes. Cottrell missed a left uppercut which meant well. Rogers connected to the head with a left and put in a right to the ribs. Rogers again landed to the heart with his right. Cottrell started a terrific right which missed Rogers completely. He tried again and again was fooled by the quickness of the local boxer. Rogers landed a right to the jaw and a left to the stomach. Cottrell drove in a left to the head and a right to the jaw. Rogers was breaking his left uppercut blows. Cottrell came back strong and forced Rogers to the ropes with a shower of lefts and rights to the head. Rogers protected his body and clinched. Rogers blocked a left to the body and landed with his left to the jaw which resounded with a good thud. Cottrell landed a right to the jaw as the gong sounded. The round was full of action and pep, each getting a share of the honors. The round was even.

Cottrell Warned

Round 4—Rogers jabbed to the face and landed a right uppercut to the chin with some force. Rogers landed a healthy right to the ribs. Cottrell was becoming somewhat excited, and rushed Rogers, landing him against a corner post with some force and slipping in some healthy wallops to the head and body. He was warned by the referee for hitting in a clinch. Rogers landed a hard right to the jaw and ducked a left. Cottrell missed a right to the chin and received a left to the jaw. They exchanged wallops in the center of the ring, neither doing any damage. Rogers landed a left to the chin and a right to the heart. He came back and again landed to the chin with a left uppercut. Rogers had Cottrell bewildered, and showered in lefts and rights to the head and body as he danced around him. Cottrell connected a left to the body. Rogers was bleeding at the mouth but was ducking Cottrell's rushes in great style; his blows were also landing harder and cleaner. The round was Rogers' by a good margin.

Cottrell Rushes

Cottrell Again Warned

Rogers Lip Bleeds

Round 7—Rogers landed to the head with a right. Cottrell missed a right uppercut, but landed a right to the head and a healthy left uppercut to the body. Rogers landed a hard right which sent Cottrells head back. Cottrell came back with a right to the head, followed by a right to the jaw. His blows were hard and effective. He landed to Rogers' head with a left, followed by a left to the body. He landed a right-hand swing to the head with force. Rogers came out of it with a left to the chin, followed by a right to the jaw. Rogers tried a left to the body, and received in return a stiff left to the head. Rogers came in strong and landed over the heart with a wicked right. Cottrell rushed him to the ropes with lefts and rights and had a golden opportunity to put Rogers to sleep, but missed a left-hand wallop when Rogers' hands were down. Cottrell forced the round all the way through, and was as fresh as when he first stepped into the ring. Rogers' cut lip was troubling him. It was Cottrell's round.

Cottrell Aggressive

Rogers Takes Count of Eight

Round 9—Cottrell came from his corner with a rush, landing rights and lefts. Rogers landed to the jaw with a right. Cottrell missed a right uppercut. Rogers landed a right to the body and repeated the blow to the head. Rogers ducked a left lead and landed two left-hand jabs to the face. Cottrell connected with a left to the stomach and a right to the jaw when he had Rogers on the ropes. They went to the center of the ring and Cottrell slipped over a left uppercut to the point of the chin, dropping Rogers to the floor. He was on his back with his arms stretched behind him. He tried to rise at the count of three but fell back. At the count of six he turned over, and rose at eight in a groggy condition. He came back strong and before Cottrell could land a blow had landed two rights to Cottrell's jaw with great force. Cottrell tried a right to the head and Rogers clinched. They broke and Rogers missed a right. The fans were on their feet, cheering at the come-back. Rogers ducked Cottrell's right. Cottrell landed a right to the body. Rogers came back with two rights to the head. It was a game come-back, and Rogers received a great round of applause as the gong sounded. Rogers was completely out for a time, but his gameness and excellent condition brought him back strong. The round was Cottrell's.

Cottrell After Kayo

The referee gave a draw decision, claiming that Cottrell lost points for disobeying the rules of the game when in the clinches.

Ottawa Paper Thinks Patrick on Short End

OTTAWA, March 12.—Referring to the Stanley cup controversy, the Citizen will say in its sport section tomorrow:

"From this distance, it looks as if Leo Dandurand has the long end of the argument against Frank Patrick. If he hasn't, then the present series between Vancouver and Calgary does not mean anything. To the naked eye, the loser in the western series has no more right to another crack at the Stanley cup than the Ottawas, but the matter is in the hands of the magnates, who are to present their respective claims to William Foran, Stanley cup trustee, for adjudication."

Souris Intermediate Manitoba Champions

WINNIPEG, March 12.—for the second consecutive year, Souris captured the Manitoba intermediate hockey league championship, defeating Tammany Tigers in a sudden death game here tonight by 2 to 1.

Souris will meet Selkirks, senior champions, for the provincial honors in a two-game series to be played Friday and Saturday.

MONTREAL FEATHER BEATS CLEVELANDER

MONTREAL, March 12.—Leo (Kid) Roy, local featherweight, was awarded the decision in a 10 round bout here tonight with Kind Wolfe of Clevelaud, Ohio.

SHORTY RUSSICK WINS SEVENTH PAS DOG DERBY

Cuts Record for Course by Over an Hour; McDonald Is Second

ALL TEAMS FINISH IN GOOD CONDITION

St. Paul Musher Fails to Report at Finish; May Be Staking Oil

THE PAS, Man., March 12.—Clipping one hour and 10 minutes off the world's record established in 1922, "Shorty" Russick, of The Pas, romped home a winner in the seventh annual Pas dog derby today, 30 minutes ahead of his nearest rival, Alan McDonald, another local entrant. Billy Grayson, driving Thomas Creighton's team, was third, and Frank Schoegel, winner of the Big River, Sask., derby, fourth. All the dogs finished in fine fettle and showed no ill effects of their long grind.

Gets Trophy for Year

Russick, who receives $1200 in cash, and possession of the Grant Rice-Walter Goyne memorial trophy for one year, made the course in 23 hours and 42 minutes. The previous record, made by Billy Grayson "mushing" C. B. Morgan's dogs in 1922, was 24 hours and 52 minutes.

McDonald covered the trail in 24 hours and 17 minutes, and Grayson in 24 hours and 27 minutes. Schoegel was over the 25 hour mark, arriving at 12:20 p. m.

B. L. Baker, the St. Paul musher, had not reported at The Pas at 10 o'clock tonight. It is believed he has gone to the Opasquar hills to stake oil leases, or is on his way to St. Paul. One of his dogs went lame right at the start of the race.

COTTRELL ASKS RETURN BOUT

Will Meet Rogers in Nelson, Winner Take All, With Change of Referee

"Rogers is a good boy; is a fine clean boxer and he certainly put up a good fight tonight," so stated George Lavey, manager of Jimmie Cottrell, Spokane welterweight boss who was given a draw decision with Rogers last night at the Recreation club bout. "However, we would like a return bout and are willing to come back to Nelson at any time to meet Rogers on a winner take all basis and if necessary with a sidebet, but with a change of referee," he added.

Cottrell was not satisfied with the decision rendered last night and also declared his willingness to return to the city for a return bout on a winner take all basis.

Miss Lucile Pugh, woman lawyer, has been offered a retainer by the Edwards family of North Carolina to press their claims as heir of Robert E. Edwards to property valued at $100,000,000 in New York's downtown district.

FARRELL SUES EMPLOYERS FOR WAGE ARREARS

Late Howland & Waltz Manager Brings Action in Court

IS NON-SUITED IN ACTION OVER CAR

Judgment Debtor Is Summoned and Ordered to Make Payment

W. H. Farrell, formerly of Kaslo but now living across the line, figured in two cases which came up before his honor, Judge J. A. Forin, in the county court sitting held in the court house Tuesday.

In the first case it was Farrell vs. Howland & Waltz of Kaslo. Farrell sued the foregoing lumber company for $838.62, the amount of wages he claimed was due him. The plaintiff was heard on his own behalf, and documentary evidence was presented on behalf of the defendant.

Judgment was reserved.

Bevan Wins Car Case

The second case was Farrell vs. R. S. Bevan of Creston, when $250, said to have been payable on a car, was in question. The plaintiff was nonsuited with costs.

F. C. Moffatt acted in both cases for the plaintiff, and C. R. Hamilton appeared for Howland & Waltz. C. B. Garland of Creston represented Mr. Bevan in the car case.

Mrs. Esther Moore of the Home Private hospital appeared as a judgment debtor for examination under a judgment summons.

The summons was for Ivy C. Ward vs. Thomas and Esther Moore. Eric P. Dawson appeared for the plaintiff.

She was ordered to make payment.

JUDGE TELLS TILLICUMS OF GREAT FIGURES

At Annual Banquet of Club at St. Paul's Outlines Women's Power

Personal reminescences of Lord Arthur Balfour, H. H. Asquith, Lloyd George, Ramsay MacDonald, Mac-Kenzie King and Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighan, together with short sketches of each one, were given by Judge J. A. Forin in a most interesting address on successful careers, at the annual banquet of the Skookum Tillicum club of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, which took place in the church parlors last evening.

Judge Forin also spoke of the place and mission of the women members of the British house of commons, forecasting that women, with the ideals which made a successful home and a happy family group, which last was the unit of a prosperous and great nation, would insure stability of the Empire, no matter which group happened to be in power in the government.

He eulogized the motherly and high instincts of the women members of parliament in England, and said that Canada was bound to have the same high type of woman in parliament in time, to a limited degree.

Between 80 and 90 people sat down to the banquet, which began at 6:30, and at its close, after Judge Forin had given his address, J. L. Bartindale, accompanied by Miss Loureen Dunham, sang, and afterwards responded to an enthusiastic encore with a second selection.

The club as a whole joined in six club songs, the words of which were thrown on a screen.

W. Skilling acted as chairman for the evening, and the banquet arrangements were in the hands of group No. 4, under the leadership of Miss Edith Ross.

Later in the evening those present broke up into groups to consider next week's S. T. program.

WOULD BOOST KOOTENAY AT EMPIRE SHOW

Commander Prowse Makes Offer to Nelson Board of Trade

COMMITTEE TAKES FAVORABLE VIEW

Idea to Distribute Pamphlets and Show Photographs

Nelson may be represented for publicity purposes at the British Empire exhibition by Commander W. E. Prowse, owner of a ranch on the West Arm, who is at present in England.

No definite decision has been reached, but the publicity committee of the board of trade at a meeting yesterday discussed a letter from Commander Prowse, in which he offered to attend the exhibition and to act on behalf of the board in the distribution of advertising matter and in impressing upon visitors to the exhibition the attractions Kootenay has to offer to new settlers.

Twenty-five million people are expected to visit the exhibition, which will commence in April and continue until the fall.

Commander Prowse suggested that Nelson board of trade should send pamphlets, photographs and other advertising material for distribution or display in quarters in the Canada building at the exhibition which will be reserved for British Columbia.

The committee decided to recommend to the board of trade that it should get into touch with Commander Prowse and ascertain from him what the cost would be of carrying out his proposal, as the committee felt that the opportunity of securing advertising for this district should not be overlooked.

If the board is able to make an arrangement with Commander Prowse it was suggested by the committee that the matter of securing the necessary advertising matter should be taken up with the general advertising committee, which is now arranging for obtaining funds for an extensive advertising campaign. This committee has prepared an estimate which includes provision for pamphlets and other publicity material.

Commander Prowse has intimated that Nelson is also badly in need of better publicity representation at the British Columbia building. When visitors go there and ask with regard to Kootenay and Boundary, the officials appear to have no advertising matter concerning this district except a large photograph and some copies of the "Glorious Kootenay" booklet. They have plenty of Okanagan material and are in a position to talk intelligently of that section of the province, states the commander.

DOUKHOBORS TO BUILD CANNERY AT GRAND FORKS

Will Be Used for Putting Up Vegetables; Work Now Starting

Work has commenced on a new canning factory at Grand Forks, which the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood expects to have in operation this year, stated Larion Verigin, manager of the Kootenay-Columbia jam plant at Brilliant, who was in Nelson yesterday.

Mr. Verigin explained that the Doukhobors intended to use the Grand Forks plant for canning tomatoes, peas, beans, etc., but that for the present it would not be used for jam making.

The price of liberty is eternal vigilance, but the cost of repairs is extra.

TWO ARE SENT UP FOR TRIAL HOUSEBREAKING

Whitely and Gilbert Are Accused of a Crime at Russell's Landing

Reginald Whitely and Douglas Gilbert came up before Magistrate J. Cartmel in the provincial police office for a preliminary hearing Monday afternoon, when they were charged with housebreaking and theft, and were sent up for trial.

Chief Constable E. Gammon prosecuted in the case, and accused the two of having broken into the house of D. A. Acton and stealing a rifle. This house is at Russell's Landing, just this side of Kitto's, on the West Arm, but on the south side.

The witnesses for the prosecution were D. A. Acton, Harry Humphrey, Constable Hugh King and Constable J. F. Johnston of Trail.

When Constable King was on the stand he told of having recently brought the two suspects back from Grand Forks several days ago.

Whether the men will elect for speedy trial, or choose to wait for the May assizes, is not yet known.

PENTICTON WILL BE MOUNTIES' HEADQUARTERS

After This Month West Kootenay Will Cover West to Princeton

By April 1 Penticton will be the headquarters of the West Kootenay district of the Royal Canadian Mounted police for the subdistrict extending from Nelson on the east to Princeton on the west and far enough north to include the district covered by the Vernon detachment and Kamloops.

This means that the detachments at both Grand Forks and Vernon will be closed, and the inspector, with his assistant, will in each case be transferred to Penticton, giving that city six members of the force in place of the two there at present.

Under the new ruling of the authorities at Ottawa the Vancouver subdivision of the Royal Canadian Mounted police extends east to a short distance this side of Hope, the Penticton subdivision will extend from Hope to Nelson and the Fernie subdivision will run east from Nelson the Alberta boundary line.
