FRENCH CHAMBER BACKS RUHR POLICY

STEEL COMPANY SUSPENDS WAGE CUT AWHILE

POINCARE SAYS BRITAIN MADE ENTENTE SHAM

Gave a "Blank Refusal and Veto" to Execution of Peace Treaty

APPLYING SEPARATES FRANCE FROM STATES

Denies France Is Aiding Separatists; Berlin Still Resisting

PARIS, Jan. 18.—The chamber of deputies tonight gave Premier Poincare another strong vote of confidence on his government's foreign policy. The vote was 415 to 151. M. Poincare previously had made exhaustive review of his foreign policy during the past two years, in reply to the recent speech of Edouard Herriot, the Radical leader, who adversely criticized the government's conduct of affairs.

M. Poincare took the chamber by surprise when he mounted the tribune and made the announcement that he purposed to discuss France's foreign relations as conducted by his government and make them a question of confidence.

Radicals Back Government

Today's resolution approving the policy of the government, which said, Parliament indorses the government's attitude and its foreign policy, particularly concerning the Ruhr occupation," obtained a larger majority than any of those during the present week on internal questions.

A portion of the Radical party, which steadily voted against the cabinet on internal questions, sided with R today on its foreign policy.

In his address to the chamber Premier Poincare dwelled at some length on the position of France and the allies on the question of the occupation of the Ruhr.

Acted when Entente Ceased

France, in accord with Belgium, said the premier, had decided to take guarantees only when the entente ceased to be one and became a sham under which the nations that wished the execution of the treaty of Versailles met with a blank refusal and veto, not from the United States, which had maintained entire neutrality, but from "our English friends."

M. Poincare reproached the Radicals in the chamber for their abstention from voting for the Ruhr occupation when the members of the same party in the senate had approved the action and voted to assist the premier's address on the subject throughout France.

"As M. Jaspard reiterated in the Belgian senate on Wednesday, France and Belgium will not withdraw from the Ruhr until a final and satisfactory settlement on the reparation question has been reached," he said.

Still German Intrigue

"It cannot even be said at this moment that passive resistance has ceased in the Ruhr, despite all our concessions, the cancellation of deportations and other conciliatory measures taken by France. General Goutte several days ago telegraphed me that the actions of the nationalists in the Ruhr and other publications made him believe the Berlin government was continuing intrigues to prevent the fulfillment of the French and Belgian contracts with the German industrialists."

With reference to the Bavarian separatinate M. Poincare said the Separatist movement was spontaneous on the part of patriots eager to free themselves from the yoke of the Nationalists in Bavaria. The French government had received 630 demands from burgomasters in the Palatinate asking for an autonomous state.

"We are unwilling to intervene in any manner," he said, "but would figure the people living under the French occupation the right of self-disposition."

The premier said he considered General Clive, the British officer investigating the palatinate situation, a man whose honor could not be questioned, but France demanded international inquiry in the palatinate. The premier had not yet received the results of the investigation, but he was certain General Clive would find the attitude of

PRINCE ALBERT SAVES SALARIES

Elimination of City Magistrate and Two Constables Saves Ten Thousand a Year

SASKATOON, Jan. 18.—Only one policeman will be in the employ of the city of Prince Rupert after March 31, this is in accord with the all-round economy policy being pursued by the northern city.

One member of the force will act as licence inspector and tax collector. The other two constables will be under the jurisdiction of the provincial police and will work from their headquarters.

In view of the fact that the Saskatchewan provincial police magistrate will perform the duties, the services of the city police magistrate will also be dispensed with. These changes will save nearly $10,000 a year.

CUT COAL COST AT BOTH ENDS, ARGUES BOARD

Fuel Board Says Alberta Coal Must Be Made Cheaper for Ontario

BRITISH ANTHRACITE LATEST POSSIBILITY

Nova Scotia Bituminous Must Be Coked in Order to Compete

OTTAWA, Jan. 18.—Commenting upon the possibility of Alberta coal finding a permanent place in the Ontario market the federal advisory committee, in a statement submitted to the chairman, Hon. G. P. Graham, minister of railways and canals, declares that there must be a considerable cut in the cost of production, at the one end, and the cost of distribution, at the other. Under any circumstances, the committee points out, it would be necessary for the railways to haul this coal during the season when they are not engaged in transporting grain.

Question of Rates

Dealing with assertions that the cost of transportation could be materially cut, the members of the fuel committee refuse to comment, observing that they are not experts upon railway rates and pointing out that statements made in this regard by railway executives who also testified before the house of commons committee last year have never been successfully contradicted.

Reference is also made to the attempts of British anthracite producers to feel out the Canadian market. Here the committee sees in the transportation costs a possibility of increased business.

The use of Nova Scotia bituminous coals for domestic purposes show some growth, according to the committee, but the opinion is expressed that until steps are taken to coke it or otherwise prepare it for fuel it will not be a serious competitor of the Pennsylvania product. The fuel committee goes extensively into the fuel situation confronting Canada.

Little liklihood of a shortage of coal is seen, and the coal situation is described as normal.

Huge Coal Importation

Figures quoted in the statement show that the average annual importation of anthracite is 4,500,000 tons. From April to November, 1923, inclusive, Canada imported 3,106,283 tons, of which 141,919 tons were from Great Britain and the balance from the United States. "These imports," says the report, "indicate that the Dominion has received 66 per cent of the normal supply of the present coal year."

The statement stresses the importance of Canada securing some more dependable source of coal supply other than the Pennsylvania mines.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18. — Peter the Page, London's smallest and most valuable messenger boy, arrived on the steamer President Polk today, en route to Washington, where he will present President Coolidge with greetings from the British Empire exposition, which is to open in London in April.

Lloyds insured him for $25,000.

Alleged Violator Says Quebec Liquor Act Ultra Vires

QUEBEC, Jan. 18.—An attempt to obtain a declaration to the effect that the Quebec liquor law was ultra vires and unconstitutional was made when Alleyn Taschereau, K.C., acting for George Lavalle, alleged to have violated the law, filed a petition for the issuance of a writ of prohibition to prevent Judge Lachance or Judge Choquette from rendering judgment in the case.

Among 15 claims made in the petition are contentions that the provincial government has no provincial government has no right to enter into trade; that it cannot impose taxes on liquor, or establish a monopoly on any business.

SQUIRES OWNS RECEIVED CASH BY SECRETARY

But Claims the Sums Were in Nature of Campaign Funds

PREMIER'S LAW FIRM NEEDED THE MONEY

Alleged Graft From the Steel Corporation Will Be Taken Up Monday

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Jan. 18.—(By Canadian Press.)—The first stage in the inquiry before T. H. Walker, royal commissioner, as to certain charges against Sir Richard Squires, former premier, closed today. These charges were to the effect that on various occasions, in various amounts, Sir Richard obtained from the acting liquor controller, J. T. Meaney, through his office accountant, Miss Miller, now Mrs. Harsant, sums of money aggregating $22,000, which he appropriated to his own use and benefit.

A great deal of evidence has been presented to show that the Squires law firm was financially embarrassed during the period of the Miller-Meaney transactions, and that the funds necessary for the relief of that embarrassment were provided by Miss Miller from time to ime.

Counsel Admits Payments

Sir Richard's counsel had admitted receipts of money into the Squires accounts via Miss Miller, but sets up the contention that these were receipts on campaign account, and that their source was neither known to Sir Richard, nor, as in numerous cases, closely inquired into.

On Monday the commissioner will begin a probe of the charges that associate Sir Richard with payments received from the British Empire Steel corporation during his term of office. This charge, with the one on which evidence has already been taken, is aimed especially and directly at Sir Richard Squires.

CHICAGO, Jan. 18. — Indictments charging 32 individuals of 23 different firms manufacturing maple, birch and beech flooring, with violation of the Sherman anti-trust law were returned before Judge Adam Cliffs, late today.

Industrial Group in Parliament to Follow Churchill

LONDON, Jan. 18. — (By Canadian Press Cable) — In connection with Winston Churchill's letter, published yesterday, forecasting disaster if the Labor party is permitted to take office, it is noteworthy that a parliamentary industrial group is submitting an amendment that, as an overwhelming majority of the house of commons membership was returned definitely pledged against Socialism, it would be a violation of the expressed will of the electorate to place in power a government which manifestly cannot, on its own declared policy, effectively carry on the administration.

FRANCE IS BREEDING A TERRIBLE DOOM FOR HERSELF, LLOYD GEORGE DECLARES IN FORTNIGHTLY CABLE

"If the object of statesmanship be to convert Europe into a shambles within the lifetime of this generation, then Quai D'Orsay is on the right tack. Under the Poincare regime, French policy has set itself assiduously to the task of exasperating an exhausted but still formidable people of 70,000,000 by arrogance, insult and stinging oppression."

We know from experience what a danger to peace one nation with a swelled head can become. What will happen when several nations are so affected?"

"Instead of Russia, the British Empire, Italy and the United States of America, next time there will be by her side Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, Jugo-Slavia and Rumania. That is the calculation. BUTLER STAGES GENERAL RAID FOR HABITUES

Great Crowds Watch Philadelphia Police Round Up "Frequenters"

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18. — Fruit stores, garages, pool rooms and stores operating as blinds for bootleggers or gamblers, were raided by police and prohibition agents today, in Brigadier-General Butler's second 48-hour crusade against vice and crime. About 150 persons were arrested as suspicious characters. The proprietors were not taken into custody, the raids being directed against the frequenters, slated at the police stations as "idle and disorderly" persons. Large crowds which at times interfered with traffic followed the raiders.

Omer Woods Is Executed in Utah State Prison; Asserts Innocence

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Jan. 18.—Omer R. Woods, convicted wife murderer, was executed by a firing squad at the Utah State prison today. He met death calmly, and protested his innocence to the end.

The killing of Mrs. Woods occurred in and apartment house, here, January 9, 1922.

Woods lost a two-year fight in which every known means of staying an execution was employed. He was formerly a probate judge.

The state law permits the condemned to choose between the noose and the firing squad. Woods, seated in a stone chair, faced five unknown, hidden men. Four of them fired ball cartridges, while one had a rifle loaded with a blank.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—(By Cable.)—If the object of statesmanship be to convert Europe into a shambles within the lifetime of this generation, than Qual d'Orsay is on the right tack. Under the Poincare regime, French policy has set itself assiduously to the task of exasperating an exhausted but still formidable people of 70,000,000, by arrogance, insult, and stinging oppression.

The special correspondent of the Times has revealed something, but by no means all, of the methods of the French military occupation in Germany. No self-respecting people could possibly tolerate what is happening in the occupied areas without banking up their resentment for future action.

France's Acts

The black troops; the kind of accommodation which decent German citizens are forced to provide for them; subsidizing and protecting, by the French, of the movement for tearing the Rhineland from the fatherland; the holding down of Germany by French troops whilst she was defending herself against mutilation; deportation of tens of thousands from their homes in the Ruhr; negotiation with great industrial magnates, of terms which can only be carried out by increasing hours of labor and diminishing wages of workmen; abuse of powers given by the Treaty of Versailles on the Saar in order to maneuver permanent annexation—all done with the thousand petty insolences that military men in the ascendant naturally indulge in!

A people who will bear all this tamely are not the kind that would hold an armed world at bay for four years, and surrender then only when their children were starving. Let us own the truth about a brave foe whom we have vanquished.

As if to make sure that the explosion, when it bursts, shall spread over the whole continent, special measures are being taken to arm, equip and train huge armies throughout Central Europe, and to effect military understandings for striking together when the hour arrives. All these armies tend to become provocative and oppressive to disarmed neighbors, and may well induce conflicts with more powerful neighbors. Great armies were directly responsible for the Great war. There are greater armies in the aggregate being raised and organized today, and they may well plunge the world into a greater war. And they will do so unless something or somebody intervenes. The tramp of armed men and the rattle of artillery have an intoxicating effect upon the nations. There is no wine that turns the head as completely as the military swagger. We

LONDON DOESN'T FEAR A STRIKE

Lombard Street Is More Excited Over Franc and Pound Than at the Railroad Situation

LONDON, Jan. 18.—(By Canadian Press Cable.)—The stock market opened the week considerably more excited over the sensational fall of the franc and the slump of United States exchange than the threat of the railway strike. Holders refused to be frightened out of their rail holdings, and although this market has remained absolutely dull there never has been any disposition to sell.

British government stocks on the whole have maintained their strength. The sensation of the latter end of the week has been the wild activity in German bonds arising, it is presumed, mainly from Dutch buying, these purchases obviously being for German financial houses.

There has been some inquiry in the last few days regarding Canadian mining shares. Optimistic reports have recently been circulated here regarding this industry.

Home industrials remain in a hesitating mood.

INTERVENTION BY ARMSTRONG SECURES TIME

OLD WAGE CAN RULE DURING NEGOTIATIONS

Mine Workers' Head Not Yet Heard From; Men Are Well Behaved

HALIFAX, Jan. 18. — In an exchange of telegrams today between Premier Armstrong and President R. M. Wolvin of the British Empire Steel corporation, the former urged Mr. Wolvin to reopen wage negotiations with the miners in Cape Breton, now idle because of the 20 per cent wage cut announced last Tuesday, and to suspend the wage reduction until further meetings had proved fruitless.

Mr. Wolvin replied that he expected developments on Saturday, but did not indicate what form the developments would take.

Wolvin Advises Acceptance

SYDNEY, N.S., Jan. 18. — President Wolvin of the British Empire Steel corporation has advised J. E. McClurg, vice-president here, to wire Premier Armstrong agreeing to his suggestion, sent today by wire, to suspend the wage cut announced Tuesday last, while negotiations may be reopened. This concession is authorized by Mr. Wolvin for a period of 15 days only. For that period, if the United Mine Workers' executive desires, the wage scale will revert to that in existence previous to Tuesday.

Premier Armstrong, in his telegram asking for this arrangement in hopes of effecting a settlement of the dispute, advised Mr. Wolvin that a copy of his message was being sent to Silby Barrett, provisional president of the United Mine Workers district No. 26, and his decision is being awaited.

Barrett Can't Answer

SYDNEY, N.S., Jan. 18.—Silby Barrett, when questioned this evening concerning Premier Armstrong's telegram regarding a temporary basis of a settlement in connection with the coal situation, and upon being informed that the corporation had acceded to the request of the premier, was not in a position to make any official announcement to what action his organization was prepared to take in the matter.

Neuritis Victim Now Active as a Youngster, Says Internal Bathing Chased Pains Away

Neuritis, that painful inflammation of the nerves, will yield to Internal Bathing. Warm water, circulated through the large intestine, rids the body of harmful waste matter that poisons the system. By thus keeping the large intestine, or colon, clean the body functions normally and the purity of the blood is maintained.

Mr. J. H., Edmonton, writes: "I suffered from neuritis very badly and tried everything possible as I thought, but I got worse. A friend who had been the same as myself used you Cascade, which he declared cured him.

"I immediately sent for one and I used it a short time, when I found the pains had entirely left me—before I used the Cascade I was unable to dress myself. I am nearly 58 years and I can throw my arms and legs about as well as some of the youngsters."

As well as neuritis, Internal Bathing relieves constipation, insomnia, biliousness and other complaints that are the direct result of a congested, unhealthy and blood-contaminating colon.

The J.B.L. Cascade is the perfected invention of Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell of New York for Internal Bathing. It is now been shown and explained at Canada Drug & Book Co., Ltd., Nelson, B.C. Phone or ask them for free booklet all about it, or write Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute, 163 College Street, Toronto.

PALATINATE PROBE ENDS IN FAILURE

Paul Tirard and Lord Kilmarnock Can't Agree and Refer Question to Governments

PARIS, Jan. 18.—Paul Tirard, the French high commissioner in the Rhineland, and Lord Kilmarnock, charge d'affaires of the British embassy in Berlin, have failed to come to an agreement respecting the ordinances recently enacted by the Separatists in the Bavarian palatinate, and have referred the situation back to their respective governments.

The questions at issue, therefore, again are in deadlock between Paris and London.

There is hope that an agreement may yet be reached, it was said in official circles tonight, but it was admitted the issue is where it was before it was referred to the Rhineland commission.

British Won't Recognize

The British persist in their refusal to approve the decisions taken by the authorities acting under new palatinate republic, while the French are said to be quite decided in their refusal to accept the theory that the occupation authorities are bound to impose the orders of the reich government on the palatinate if the inhabitants decide otherwise.

the French authorities thoroughly impartial.

With regard to the two committees of experts appointed by the reparations commission to inquire into Germany's finances M. Poincare expressed satisfaction that all the allies were represented on these bodies. He also laid particular stress on the presence of the American private representatives. The initiative in the formation of the committees, he pointed out, had been taken by the French government.

German Loan

The premier said the French government did not oppose a loan to Germany; but he declared that the greater portion of such loan had been devoted to the payment of reparations and the remainder used for the immediate needs of Germany. "With the cooperation of America," M. Poincare said, "we hope the committee of experts will reach a settlement of the reparations question and then deliver us from the nightmare of the interallied debt."

Deputy Herriott interrupted the premier by quoting from a speech made by Roland Boyden, former unofficial American member of the reparation commission, as showing that the United States for the moment was not demanding the payment of the debt due that country.

"Yes," replied M. Poincare, "President Coolidge, Mr. Hughes and the American government have not yet demanded the payment of our debt; but the question remains open and weighs heavily on the credit of France."

Scandal if France Abandoned

"Nothing separates us from our friends, the English and the Americans," declared M. Poincare, "except the application of the treaty we signed together. The only claim from which we hope to obtain recognition from a British government, whether Conservative, Liberal or Labor, is the application of the treaty. It would be scandalous if Germany, which caused all the harm, should be succored, and France, who endured it, was abandoned."

WINNIPEG, Jan. 18.—In reference to the dispatch from Hamilton that the articles of affiliation between the Dominion Football association and the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada were on the verge of becoming law John Easton, president of the Dominion Football association, stated tonight that though the special committees of both organizations have arrived at an agreement the affiliation will not go into effect until the affiliation committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada passes upon the agreement and recommends it to the president of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada. He stated, however, everything is progressing in a good manner and no trouble is anticipated in consummating the affiliation.

know from experience what a danger to peace, one nation with a swelled head, can become. What will happen when several nations are so effected? Poor Europe!

Breeding a New Volcano

Central Europe has always been a volcanic region. One had hoped that after the terrible eruption of 1914, the volcanic fires would have been so exhausted that they could not break through the crust of good sense for at least a generation—if ever again.

But the French will not leave them lone. They are working with diabolical ingenuity to break down that crust, and bring us once more face to face with these hidden fires. If this goes on, they will once more flame up with consuming fury. I hate having to revert so often to this topic. I only do so because I am convinced of the anger to civilization, which is involved in the reckless policy pursued recently by French statesmen. Unless means are taken to arrest it in time, an overwhelming catastrophe to mankind is inevitable.

The aggressive policy pursued by the French ministry is as cowardly as it is foolish. Trampling on a fallen foe is as contemptible an act as a man can commit. It does not make it any less despicable that the fall was not compassed by the trampler's own prowess but by the active help of others, whose combined efforts at last succeeded in tripping up the foe and pinning him to the ground. When he lies prostrate, securely pegged and roped, the kicking of him begins. It is a poor sport, and it is very foolish. These ropes will not be roped forever. One way or another, the vanquished nation will arise, infuriated with the base treatment, and France will then discover how her behavior in victory has disgusted all the friends who stood by her in her trouble before.

French statesmen realize this since the new military combinations, which are being organized elsewere. France, who cannot afford to honor her obligations to Britain and the United States of America, can find plenty of money to equip European nations with destructive weapons, to intimidate, and when called upon, to tear, their neighbors. She cannot afford to pay interest upon these debts, so the burdened taxpayers of Britain and America must continue to do so, whilst she is utilizing her resources in militarizing Europe. What does she hope to gain by this policy?

Weak Allies for Strong!

Instead of Russia, the British Empire, Italy and the United States of America, next time there will be by her side Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, Jugo-Slavia and Rumania! That is the calculation. What statesmanship! If war came again between France and Germany, one word from Russia would neutralize three out of four of these new allies.

And even if Russia were mute, no Polish, Czecho-Slovakia, or Rumanian statesman would commit their armies to an invasion of Germany with the knowledge that a redoubtable Russian army stood on the other side of vulnerable frontiers. Russia wants Bessarabia, and Rumania does not want to part with it.

Poland has Vilna and Galicia and her slice of White Russia to think about. Russia is not too pleased about these territories being in Polish hands. What would happen if Poland marched her armies into Germany at the request of the French general staff? There would be a smaller Poland for the remnant of these armies to return to. And as for Czecho-Slovakia, the Czechs are wedged between 2,000,000 Germans inside their own frontiers on the west, and 7,000,000 hostile Magyars on their southern frontier. Under these circumstances, I cannot see a prudent minister entangling an army corps of Czecho-Slovakia in the mountains of Bavaria on a French quarrel. Mr. Benes may negotiate protocols in the hospitable atmosphere of Paris. He is a fussy little man, who trots about Europe—to adapt a Gilbertian phrase—"running little errands for French ministers of state." But the Czechs are a hardened, practical race, and very few of them have lived in Paris and inhaled its incense into their systems. They have struggled hard to win back the national freedom they lost centuries ago. They have secured it largely by luck. I predict that when the time comes they will not risk that precious good fortune by engaging their national existence in a quarrel between France and Germany, provoked entirely by French politicians anxious to pose as heroes before their own public.

It is the supreme interest of the Czechs, having regard to the geographical position of Bohemia and its internal racial conditions, to be on terms of amity with their neighbors. It does not suit their interests to become mere jackals of the French lion. When the German rhinoceros recovers his strength, the jackals may be trampled in the coming struggle.

Conventions Will Break Down

For these reasons, these military conventions will break down, if ever the time comes for relying upon them. French statesmen will then find that they have recklessly thrown away friendships that proved steadfast in days of trial, and got nothing in return but shadows that shrink before the fires of war. By the aid of those friendships, France has been emancipated from the constant terror that darkened her outlook for over 40 years; she has recovered her lost provinces, added hundreds of thousands of square miles to her colonial possessions, and become the most powerful military power in Europe. No French statesman in his most radiant dreams ever had such a vision of triumph. The Poles, the Czecho-Slovaks, the Slavs of southern Austria, and the Rumanians of western Austria have, by the same means, and without much effort or sacrifice on their own part, recovered their national rights.

Are all these dazzling gains to be thrown away because there is not enough wisdom amongst the men who guide the affairs of Europe to restrain greed, ambition and insatiable vanity, national as well as personal? That is the question of the hour.

Miners Well-Conducted

In Cape Breton and in the mainland mines of the corporation at Stellarton, Springhill and Thorburn, the idle miners have been conducting themselves with extraordinary calmness, and the situation bears none of the earmarks of the usual coal mine strike.

Basic Wage Applies to Few

SYDNEY, N.S., Jan. 18.—At British Empire Steel corporation headquarters today, Vice-President McClurg issued the following statement bearing upon the wage rates in dispute:

"Certain statements have been made in reference to the wage rates of the lower paid employees of the Dominion Coal company, which give an erroneous impression in regard to the number of employees of this class, and the proportion they bear to the total number of men employed by the company.

"Actually, there are very few men receiving this low rate, and, generally speaking, it is paid to boys, to old men, or to certain employees who, for one reason or another, are physically incapable of giving return in labor that justifies a rate higher than the minimum.

"The wages of day men vary from the minimum of $3.25 per day to $5.50 and $6 per day. There are 39 different rates."

Collect Federal and Provincial Taxes Together?

OTTAWA, Jan. 18.—A conference of provincial and federal taxation authorities will be held to discuss the consolidation of taxation systems in Canada in the interests of economy if the majority of the provinces ask for such a conference.

Hon. J. A. Robb, acting minister of finance, today stated that the provinces had been invited by the federal government to express their wishes in the matter but that negotiations had reached no definite stage as yet.

It is understood that Premier Bracken of Manitoba is in favor of cooperating with the federal authorities in the collection of taxes.

EXPERTS FINISH ONE WEEK'S WORK

PARIS, Jan. 18.—The first committee of experts, which, under the auspices of the reparation commission, is seeking a solution of Germany's budget difficulties and the financial situation generally, finished its first week's work tonight.

Although a few communiques issued have shown no progress, it appears that the committee has been successful in the essential work of getting ready information required in taking up proposed financial reforms in Germany.

Most of today's session of the committee was devoted to preparation for hearing Dr. Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, who is expected in Paris tomorrow in answer to the committee's summons.

It was decided today to refer to Sir William Ackworth, British expert on international railways, certain questions concerning the railways in Germany. This action is interpreted as suggesting that the committee is preparing to study a plan for taking over the German railways, as gaurantee of outside help in stabilizing the German currency.

WOULD RECOGNIZE RUSSIAN SOVIET

Manitoba Rural Labor Member Gives House His Views; Rehabilitate Germany

WINNIPEG, Jan. 18.—Recognition of Soviet Russian and immediate settlement of the German reparations problem on a basis which would rehabilitate Germany as a purchasing nation was urged by C. A. Tanner, Labor member for Kildonan and St. Andrew's, when speaking on the reply to the speech from the throne at today's session of the Manitoba legislature.

He gave notice that the Labor members would oppose the bill providing for the transferable vote in single-member constituencies and any attempt to reduce the standard of living.

W. Sanford Evans, Conservative, defended the financial policy of the Roblin administration, and denied that a deficit of over $1,000,000 had been left by the Roblin government. He maintained the deficit was only $48,000.

LONDON, Jan. 18. — Premier Bruce of Australia will leave for the continent on January 26, and early in February will visit Gallipoli. He will sail homeward from Port Said.

ADMITS WHIPPING IMMIGRANT YOUTH

Employer of English Boy Who Hanged Himself Says He Wanted to Make Him a Christian

GODERICH, Ont., Jan. 18.—The admission that he had whipped the boy four or five times because he told lies, and to influence him to live a Christian life, was made at the inquiry into the death of Charles Bulpitt, 16-year-old immigrant boy, who is said to have hanged himself, by J. B. Cox of Colborne township, the boy's employer, here today.

It was also brought out that Cox paid the boy $75 a year for his work on the farm.

The jury failed to reach a verdict tonight, and the inquiry was adjourned until next Tuesday.

OTTAWA, Jan. 18.—Sir Robert Borden's illness, which prevented him from being present at the banquet of the Northeastern Ontario Liberal-Conservative association last night, is not serious. He has been suffering from a heavy cold, but is feeling much better this evening.

GIRL COOLLY DROPS KIDDIES TO SAFETY

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask., Jan. 18.—When fire broke out in premises occupied by F. McKenzie, wholesale grocer, Edith Spencer, aged 15, who was looking after McKenzie's three young children, smashed a window with her fists; called to passers-by and dropped the children 15 feet to safety in their arms. She had been left in charge of the children in the absence of their parents.

Woman started the ball of trouble rolling, and she has kept it rolling over since.

That Hang-on Cough Must Go
Home-Made Cough Mixture Best of All for the Cough That Sticks
Make It Yourself In Two Minutes

The coughing season is on, and every home should have a supply of the best cough remedy to be had, and as you can make this supremely excellent cough mixture yourself, why pay high prices for the common kind.

Get from any druggist one ounce of Parmint (double strength)—to this add a little granulated sugar and enough water to make one half pint—that's all there is to it.

Then when any member of the family starts coughing or catches cold in chest or head, or has acute catarrh, you are prepared as you should be.

And the children love to take it.

With speed almost beyond belief this home made cough mixture stops the toughest hang-on cough, and all because in it there is a substance (too costly for cough syrups) that immediately covers the membrane like a soothing, healing poultice, and blessed relief comes at once.

And you should also bear in mind that any remedy that overcomes catarrh, partially or wholly, is bound to be of benefit to those who are troubled with head noises and catarrhal deafness.

Get Parmint and get better.

WOMEN HEAR ADDRESS ON MENTAL STUDY

Mrs. Lashley Hall Speaks to Nelson Women's Institute

Members of the Nelson Women's Institute yesterday afternoon heard an excellent talk on "Mental Hygiene" by Mrs. Lashley Hall of Trail. Mrs. Hall delivered her address in elogent and easy style and her talk was greatly enjoyed by all present.

In opening she stated that although the subject was "Mental Hygiene," she really was going to deal with several terms now commonly used in everyday reading but not found in the dictionaries of the day.

"Psychology," was the first word in common use today about which few of lay people knew anything. Today psychology came under two heads, first, practical psychology which had to do with religion, or more so with new thought. This was quite interesting but a lot had yet to be learned. Clinical psychology was the second form of psychology and this had to do with mental examination.

Another word commonly used along with psychology was psychometry, a science of work among psychic analysts, who were trying to get at the mental causes in the attitude of people. Abnormal mental attitudes were thus studied and through this scientists were becoming able to clear up difficulties.

"Sub-conscious," was the next word defined by the speaker, who stated that people were tired of hearing the word. There was only a small portion of a persons mind which could be termed the conscious mind. The sub-conscious mind was not superficial, it took care of all actions. When a person was first learning to walk it was the conscious mind that was then working. The sub-conscious mind was working at all times.

Preach Associations

"Association," should be taught children, stated Mrs. Hall. This portion of the talk was illustrated on a blackboard by the speaker. Taking a cow for an example the speaker told of how one person in thinking of a cow, thought of its color such as red. That was an association. Other people thought of green pastures, an association brought forth in most cases by some vivid memory.

"Complex," was the next word introduced, complex was an abnormal association. People acted from their emotions. The mind was often made up from emotional actions. The complex association could be overcome. Education of emotions of children would uplift them, stated Mrs. Hall. Dr. Coue's method acted directly on the complexes. A person getting too many complexes usually became insane.

The speaker stated that a whole lecture or several lectures could be given on complexes, they took up so much of the individual life. The child of today should be given the right associations so that it would have the right reaction. If it had the right reaction then let it reason on that. Do not let them form a complex, warned the speaker.

Some boys had a mother complex, which sometimes made trouble in the home, while it was also a bad thing for a girl to have a father complex. Children should be educated by piling up their associations.

Mrs. Hall warned her audience against reading things of scientific nature in newspapers. Many editorials were today written by newspaper editors who knew nothing whatever about the subject. Do not consider because an editorial deals on electricity that the editor is well versed in electricity, stated Mrs. Hall. There had been many editorials for and against intelligence tests. What was said for or against the subject may or may not have been true.

Normal and Sub-normal

In the study of normal and subnormal class included those who had not attained a normal intelligence.

There was a problem in education today, that being the "morons," or abnormal type of minds. Many pupils attending schools today would never reach the pinnacle of education, yet they would get along in the world. They were able to memorize and could bring forth their learnings automatically. The trouble today was that this type of child was not being taken care of. In this case a technical training was necessary. If there was a method for the detection of morons the children could be educated for better positions. No returns were received from sending a moron to high school.

There was a difference between insanity and feeble-mindedness, stated Mrs. Hall. The feeble-minded person was like the man who had never had a bank account; while the insane man was like a man who had had a bank account and lost it. It took an unstable man to go insane.

In bringing her address to a close Mrs. Hall asked her listeners to think of these associations over and over again. Form as many good associations as possible, by sending the children to church or Sunday school. Good reading also was a great help. The right association in the child was the bank account association. Delinquent children had no ideals. Therefore children should have ideals. The building of associations was the bulwark of success.

Poincare Will Make Financial Proposals Affair of Confidence

PARIS, Jan. 18.—Premier Poincare and Finance Minister de Lasteyrie reported the government's drastic and economic remedies for the existing crisis before the finance committee of the chamber of deputies, insisting upon immediate action on the measures introduced yesterday.

The premier reiterated his determination to stake the question of confidence on the issue. He insisted that the policy of balancing the recoverable budget must not be construed as the slightest indication that France was renouncing her right to recover money from Germany.

NELSON GETS CONVENTION

Associated Boards of Trade of Eastern British Columbia to Meet Here

The annual convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of Eastern British Columbia is this year to be held in this city.

Under the presidency of Noble Binns of Trail, president of the associated boards, the executive, at a meeting here last night, received a strong invitation from the Nelson board of trade to have the sessions held here. The invitation was accepted.

The date was not decided upon, but it will likely be in February.

Fred A. Starkey, commissioner, was instructed to write the boards affiliated, instructing them to send in, as soon as possible, resolutions covering any matters which they wish to bring before the convention.

A very important resolution was adopted regarding industrial conditions in East Kootenay and a resolution declaring that the situation there was deplorable was sent to the attorney-general.

Without a little winter the ski slides would be wasted.

Three Rounds

MAIN BOUT

Tommy Rogers vs. Herb Stanton
Ten Rounds

Boxing fans will witness one of the best boxing cards ever staged in this city tonight at the Recreation club bowl when 19 rounds will be dished up to local followers of the fistic sport.

The main bout of the evening, for the championship of the Kootenay, is a return bout between Herb Stanton of Kellogg, Idaho, and Tommy Rogers of Nelson. In a bout between these two battlers two weeks ago Stanton won the decision in a close battle which went the whole 10 rounds. The show was the best ever witnessed by Nelson fans, and if tonight's affair comes up to that of two weeks ago an excellent card will be witnessed.

Tonight's bout, should it go the whole 10 rounds, will be judged by two specially selected judges who will be seated one on either side of the ring. The judges' decision will be final.

An excellent preliminary card has been drawn up, and the outstanding feature of this will be the semi-final bout between Ted McVicar and Alex Stewart. These boys both carry a wallop and have figured in some classy bouts before. This should be well worth witnessing.

TRADES CONGRESS STILL MEDIATES

Makes Further Efforts to Avert British Railway Strikes; Notices Are Not Cancelled

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The trades union congress today made another attempt to avert a railway strike in Great Britain. The congress called before it for a conference representatives of all three of the railway unions with a view to examining their grievances. After a long session the congress adjourned till tomorrow, when its efforts to straighten out the tangle will be continued.

The situation tonight still remains critical, as strike notices, which become effective at midnight Sunday, had not been withdrawn by the railwaymen's unions.

IS APPOINTED AUDITOR

H. E. Dill has been appointed auditor of the Nelson Protective society, not A. J. Dill, as was stated in error yesterday.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 18.—Eddie McKenna, New Orleans, according to sport writers, outpointed Joe Lynch, bantamweight champion of the world, in a 10-round no-decision bout here tonight.

Important to the Lumber Industry

Announcement by the Canadian trade commissioner in Japan that the Japanese government requires a loan of $50,000,000 for reconstruction purposes and that if Canada will make this loan the whole sum will be expended upon the purchase of building materials in the Dominion deserves the immediate consideration of the government at Ottawa.

Of the building materials required it is certain that a large proportion would be lumber. British Columbia is very vitally interested in the proposition, because the lumber purchased would practically all come from this province and the other materials would at least be shipped via British Columbia ports.

Japan is in sound financial condition, though temporarily embarrassed, and the loan has no special elements of risk, so that if the Dominion government can make the necessary arrangements it would be good business for Canada and particularly British Columbia.

Two expressions of opinion from prairie farmers' organizations or representatives of very different nature have come over the wires during the past few days.

Wise and Unwise Plans

One announces that the Alberta provincial government, which is a Farm administration, has concluded that the establishment of banks is not a matter for provincial governments to embark upon.

That is an eminently wise decision. Politically controlled banks would be a public menace, rather than a public benefit, and Premier Greenfield and his associates are quite right in leaving them alone.

The other opinion comes from the Farmers' Union of Canada which in convention at Saskatoon urges a moratorium for the three prairie provinces. The association cannot have given this matter much consideration, or the members would realize that they could not take a step more damaging to the credit of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The very mention of a moratorium will do harm by adding to the existing credit difficulties, while an actual moratorium, established in a time of peace and without war emergency as an excuse, would do irreparable and long-lasting damage to the three provinces and every resident of them.

France and Russia Different Cases

In his attack on the foreign policy of the Baldwin government, which in effect was an attack on British foreign policy since 1918, John R. Clynes appeared to think that Russia should have been recognized.

He said that if failure of Russia to pay its debt was the reason, how was it that France, which also owes money to Great Britain, was not asked to recall its representative in London.

Mr. Clynes appears to forget that France has not repudiated its debts. It has not declared that it would not pay what it owed to "any capitalistic country." The Russian government has refused to recognize any agreements, to pay its national debt, or to observe treaty obligations made by former Russian administrations with foreign powers. Under such circumstances, and until Russia shows its willingness at least to keep its promises, what country in its senses would care to have any dealings with it?

Would Mr. Clynes care about trading or having intimate relations with a man who said that he would not pay his debts or keep any promise to anyone who was not a communist?

A young housekeeper has written to ask for an article on deep-fat frying. "There are many other brides who would appreciate it, I am sure," she ends her letter.

The ideal frying fat is a vegetable oil. Olive oil gives the best results, but as this is too expensive for the average pocketbook, any of the prepared cooking oils are next best. Lard comes third in the choice, beef fat fourth, and odds and ends of household scraps last. A mixture of two-thirds lard and one-third home-rendered fat gives splendid results — in fact, it produces a rich golden-brown color unequaled by any other fat.

To "try out" beef fat for frying, cut it in small pieces and cover with cold, salted water; let stand overnight, then drain, add a cup of cold water to each two pounds of the fat, and cook over mild heat till the fat is clear, all bubbling ceased, and the "scrapple" or "crackling" is brown and crisp. Now strain it through cheesecloth into a clean pail.

Mutton fat may also be used in the frying kettle, but this must be soaked a full 24 hours in cold salted water, and this water changed every few hours, to wash out the "woolly" taste. Proceed as above directed.

Corned beef fat and fat from the soup kettle may be prepared as follows: Let it rise to top of the liquid and solidify, then remove it to the fat pan, add a little baking soda and cold water barely to cover, then let it cook very slowly till the water has evaporated. Or the water may be omitted and the soda and a few slices of raw potato may be added to the fat instead. When the potato has become brown, the fat is clarified.

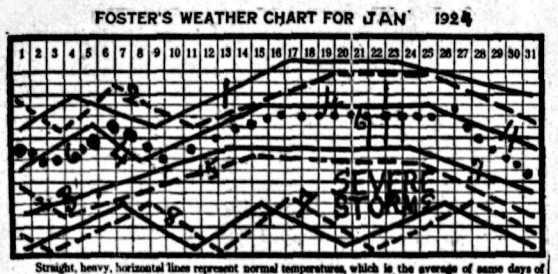
Do not use ham, chicken, bacon or sausage fat in the deep-frying kettle. Keep these for the frying pan. To try out chicken fat, let it stand for one hour in cold salted water, then drain and place it in an open pan and put the pan in your oven. Pour off the melted fat as fast as it appears. (Goose fat is tried out in the same way.)

With the proper care, fat will last as long as a drop of it remains. When nearly cold, after using it for deep-frying, strain it through a cloth into a clean can. But after you have used it several times it will not color the fried foods as well and when cooked they may have a slightly unpleasant taste. When this condition is reached, you must clarify your fat as follows: Heat it with a slice of raw potato and a generous pinch of soda in it; when the potato is brown, strain the fat through cloth into a clean pail, for future use.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman in care of the "Efficient Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however owing to the great number received So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. Be sure to use your full name, street number, and the name of your city and province.—The Editor.

Foster's Weekly Weather Bulletin

FOSTER'S WEATHER CHART FOR JAN 1924



Straight, heavy, horizontal lines represent normal temperatures, which is the average of same days of the year for forty years. Crooked lines above normal lines mean warmer; below, cooler; that marked 1 is for section 1, north of latitude 47, between meridian 90 and Rockies crest—2 for section 2 on my section map is for east of meridian 90, north of latitude 47—3, between latitudes 39 and 47 and between meridian 90 and Rockies crest—4, east of meridian 90, between latitudes 39 and 47—5, south of latitude 39, between meridian 90 and Rockies crest—6, east of meridian 90, south of latitude 39—7, north of latitude 43½, west of Rockies crest—8, south of latitude 43½ to Mexican line and west of Rockies crest.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Get yourself prepared for one of the most severe storms of the winter during the week centering on January 23. A week of unusually high temperatures, east of Rockies' crest, is expected to precede that storm and the latter will be more severe east of Rockies' crest than west of it. This will be a battle royal between the great winter drouth and the storm forces. The incessant war of the severe storms on the intruding drouth makes it more difficult to forecast weather details.

There are many peculiarities about this and some other great drouths. One of these is that this drouth is weak east of longitude 92 and strong west of that line. Such drouths are almost entirely broken when there are numerous severe storms, while the drouth decreases in destructive force as the severe storms become more destructive. Perhaps Joseph and the Egyptian scientists better understood the causes of drouth than we do when they prepared for seven years of plentiful crops followed by seven years of drouth and crop failures. They saved their plentiful crops for the seven years' famine. I am not a Joseph, but I advise North America to prepare for a loss of one-third of the crops in 1925.

February weather promises very like that of January; one moderate storm period during first week, and one severe storm week centering on February 13. But the winter drouth is expected to extend its territory and be more severe. Up to January 7 all west of Rockies' crest, all middle Canada and all Atlantic coast sections in America had passed from the first attack of the drouth, but in a wide strip between the Mississippi river and the high plains sections excessive rains fell. Half the drouth period is gone, three months more to come. Very little snow and much warm weather in the past three months were drouth symptoms.

First half of February promises an average much colder than last half. West of Rockies' crest promises colder than usual up to February 24; east of that line warmer weather will begin near middle of the month. Temperatures will go more below normal in section 1, particularly rear St. Paul, than elsewhere during first half of February, lowest temperatures being near February 11. A peculiarity of February weather will be that the moisture must come from the Pacific ocean, west of California and Oregon, but the magnetized earth, west of longitude 92, will not let it come down till it gets east of 92; the transparent moisture, carried by the prevailing eastward atmospheric drift, will rise high over the Rockies and come down east of them.

Lamps do not talk, but they do shine. A lighthouse sounds no drum, it beats no gong, yet far over the waters its friendly light is seen by the mariner.

Styles

BY LENORE

They call them Russian and they call them French, these new hand-painted scarfs which you have seen. But, if you have a knack for that sort of thing, you need only a length of white or colored silk, on which to paint your own design, to make the scarf American.

Silk faille with a very fine rib, or crepe-de-chine of substantial weight, is recommended. The scarfs are about 40 inches wide and 60 inches long, and Chinese designs are popular. One very attractive scarf had the design painted in yellow and red on a background. Floral patterns are also used. I spoke above of a knack for painting; but so long as there is a stencil to be had, there need be no lack of knack.

WORTH KNOWING

The newest thing in knitted costumery is a knee-length slip-on blouse.

Soft shades, such as beige, Lanvin green, henna and subdued yellows are said to be replacing more vivid colors in sport clothes.

Cire and striped or plaided grosgrain ribbons are frequently used for bindings in sport dresses and sleeveless jackets.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

The Child Below Par

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act)

I had the privilege of examining the boys of a reformatory school a couple of years ago.

They ranged in age from 10 to 18 years. As I looked them over there were some well built boys in the group, but not very many.

I had not gone over many of the boys before I found an unusual number of physical defects, such as a school examiner finds in any city school—that is, in regard to teeth, throat and eyes.

However, the outstanding thing was their height, weight and chest development. They were much below par in these points.

I went into the matter of the family history of the boys with one one of the officials of the school.

From him I learned that many of the boys came from homes where one of the parents was missing.

This might be due to the death of that parent, but more frequently due to dissensions and quarrelling between the parents.

I asked the official which was more frequently to blame; the mother or the father. "Well," he said, "I used to think it was the father, but the more I investigate matters the more I believe that it is 50-50, or equally divided between mothers and fathers.

Now, I learned from the boys, and likewise from this official, that the parents of certain boys of poor physique were themselves of good physique.

What is my point?

That, given good surroundings, good food and regular hours, children will usually resemble their parents in build.

But with a household upset by domestic troubles, where the children go to school when they like, are on the street or at the movies day and night, where well-cooked nourishing food is an unknown or rare thing, these children show it in their bodies.

And the unfortunate thing about it all is that it occurs just when they need good food, proper hours; to say nothing about discipline.

This school was doing good work considering its inadequate equipment.

But I just wondered if, as citizens, we realize how much was being done for the next generation by pastors, priests and social workers who toil so hard and so patiently to keep husband and wife, father and mother, together in the home.

Their work will show in the bodies of the children; to say nothing of their moral and spiritual development.

Thomas Lawson Writes Is Greatly Improved, to Reassure Friends

To the Editor of The Daily News:

Sir—Will you kindly correct a statement in your issue of January 11, re my present condition?

It is true I am still confined to the hospital; I also have gone through several operations. But, here is the point—I am in good health, and my condition is greatly improved since entering the Vancouver General hospital.

I hope you will be able to publish this short statement, to reassure my numerous friends in Nelson and district.

THOMAS A. LAWSON.

Vancouver General Hospital, January 16, 1924.

(NOTE—The remark referred to appeared in the report of the Baptist church annual meeting, at which a resolution of sympathy with Mr. Lawson was adopted.)

LASKY CUTS DOWN PRODUCTION COST

After Two Months' Shutdown, Studio Reopens With Major Problem of Finance Solved

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18.—Following a year in which "bigger and better" was the slogan of the motion picture industry, Famous Players-Lasky corporation announced upon the reopening of its studios after a shutdown of two months that production costs have been brought under control and that a "safe and sane" basis for production in the future has been reached. Work on six pictures is scheduled during the present month.

A reorganization of the production forces of the Lasky studio, including the personnel as well as the methods, has been effected, it was announced. In announcing the resumption of production, the Lasky studio officials said that in cutting down production estimates for 1924, they had solved a major problem for their company as well as for the industry.

Last November when the Lasky studio closed and several others cut production, it was said such action was caused by unwarranted expenditures and extravagances growing out of unbridled competition for spectacular and costly productions.

MISSING LINK MAY ANY DAY BE SUPPLIE

Dr. Fairchild Claims Pro of Relationship of Man Beasts Is Near

CINCINNATI, Jan. 16.—Anthro logical proof which will definit link together the ancestry of m and the animal world is not far In fact, it may be discovered a day through research work now be conducted.

This is the opinion of Dr. H. Fairchild, professor-emeritus of ge ogy at the University of Rochest who spoke lately before a gene session of the American Associati for the Advancement of Science.

"The very narrow gap between t higher living primates and the gen homo may be closed almost any d by new discoveries," he declare "Already we have a number of su gestive semi-human fragments. should be realized that only a sm part of the world has been car fully examined; a large part of t orient, the probable field of huma development, not at all. Weste America and western Europe ha been explored, but the vast areas Asia and Africa are the hopeful field The 'missing link' may not long missing."

Further developing the theme evolution which frequently has wove itself into the discussions of t scientists, Dr. Fairchild declared tha the subject had "long passed th theoretic stage."

"That a multitude of people d not yet accept it, does not alter i status. Scientific truth is not de pendent upon belief, to be decided b a majority vote," he said.

The quality of mercy may not b strained, but it is badly twisted unde the queer Anglo-Saxon system o hypocrisy and licence. People may d evil, but they may not do evil in suc a way that good can result or the will find themselves under indictmen and subject to pains and penalties.

The dairying industry means much to British Columbia. Some of the finest herds of cows in Canada live in the Fraser Valley. It only stands to common reason that Pacific Milk is higher quality, for no freight charges have to be deducted from the contents of the can.

Burdock Blood Bitters

Miss Irene A. Matthews, Stayner, Ont., writes: "I thought I would write and tell you of the experience and benefit I have derived from Burdock Blood Bitters.

"Some few months ago I was troubled with bad blood which broke out on my face in the nature of pimples, boils and ring-worm, and I got so bad I really did not know what to do.

"I was ashamed to go anywhere, and the itching and burning caused such a terrible sensation I could get no relief day or night.

"One day a friend advised me to use Burdock Blood Bitters. I used one bottle and felt quite a relief, and by the time I had taken three bottles I was completely relieved.

"I cannot praise B.B.B. enough and I hope anyone afflicted like I was will get the same benefit I received."

MOORE ASCENDS MOUNT SWANSEA

Forester Climbs Three Thousand Feet on Snowshoes to Inspect Site for a Lookout Cabin

INVERMERE, B.C., Jan. 18.—Norman Moore, district forester from Cranbrook, made the ascent of Mount Swansea last week. This is rather an arduous undertaking in the winter season, and requires to be done on snowshoes. Mount Swansea lies just across the lake from Invermere, and its highest point is 3000 feet above the level of the water. From its crest an exceptionally good view may be had of the surrounding country all about, and it is more than probable that for that reason a forest fire protection cabin will be built on the summit, and a lookout established during the season of fire control. The operator from his lofty cabin will be connected by a private telephone system with the trunk lines which extend throughout the length of East Kootenay.

Fancy Dress Ball Held at Invermere; "Provincial" Wins

INVERMERE, B.C., Jan. 18. — A fancy dress ball under the direction of Mrs. F. C. Green and W. H. Seaton was held last week in McKay's hall, Athalmer. It was very largely attended, and proved a huge success in every way. The first prize for lady's best costume was won by Mrs. James L. McKay, while that for the men went to her husband, who appeared as a hobo, on his back being pinned a placard reading "The Provincial party after the election." Miss Thatcher of Windermere, as "Roundabout," won the ladies' second, and Pete McInnis, as "Puritan," took that for the men. The comic prize was won by Misses Hillier and Frater, who characterized "Jiggs and Maggie." Mr. and Mrs. A. Brimmer, as organ grinder and monkey, were awarded a special prize for the excellence of their costumes. Other costumes of special merit were worn by Miss Skillings of Athalmer and Miss Wilby of Castledale, as French artists; Mrs. Arnold H. Sandwell as Japanese lady; Mrs. Skivington as "Bluebeard;" and Mrs. Francis C. Green as "Topsy."

R. Randolph Bruce, who left for the east some time ago, has continued his journey to the old country, and, before returning will make the Mediterranean trip.

Miss M. Kittle has left for a six-weeks' holiday on a visit to friends in Alberta.

William Sinclair Taynoton has been enjoying a holiday in his old city of Victoria.

CRANBROOK ROARS AT OLD MAID CONVENTION

Presbyterian Ladies' Aid Packs Auditorium With Screamingly Funny Farce Great Program

CRANBROOK, B.C., Jan. 18. — A screamingly funny farce was put on in the Auditorium, Tuesday evening, when the Ladies' Aid of Knox Presbyterian church presented "The Old Maids' Convention." The large hall was packed to the doors, even standing room being taken up.

The curtain rose on about 20 maiden ladies dressed in costumes worn 50 and 75 years ago, waiting for their president to come to open the meeting. Around the walls of the room were hung mottoes, all leading to their manless state, such as "Love," "She that Hesitates is Lost," and "O, For a man," and so on. The president finally arrived, carrying in her arms a large white dog, and apologizing for her tardiness because having to bathe the dog. The dog Chummy, played his part to perfection, bringing down the house.

After roll-call, which was responded to with some quotation of love, or man, the committee which had been appointed at the last meeting to look up all the eligible widows and bachelors in town, gave its report, causing much amusement to the large audience. Mrs. Norgrove, one of the old maids, delighted the convention with her song "I am a Maid of 63," and had repeated encores from the audience, too. During the meeting, Professor Pinkerton, with his wonderful electrical "Transform-Her," arrived, and with his two bottles of youth-restoring elixir, was able to give a number of the old maids their hearts' desires, giving them back their youth and the ability to sing, recite or dance, as they wished; each old maid, after her transformation, showing what she could do.

Mrs. Robert Potter, as president of the convention, carried out her part with distinction, and the secretary, Mrs. P. W. Willis, was a show in herself. Mrs. Norgrove, also, as the old maid who had no use for a man, was exceedingly good.

Following is the program given by the transformed old maids: Mrs. J. Thompson, solo; Miss Lewis, recitation; Miss Garland, solo; Miss Marguerite Caven, dance; Miss Nettie Johnson, "Topsy, the old maid who had just a little bit too much of the wonderful transform-her;" Miss Fink, cello solo; Miss Paul, solo; Miss Grace Higgins, song-dance.

Those taking part in the convention were Mrs. Robert Potter, as "Maribel Lovejoy, president;" Mrs. P. W. Willis as "Amarilla Heywood, secretary;" Mrs. G. Taylor as treasurer, "Priscilla Hope;" Mrs. J. McCallum, "Sarah Jane, spinster;" Mrs. J. Norgrove, "Many Ann Barnes;" Mrs. G. T. Carlyle, "Anxiety Doherty;" Mrs. Surtees, "Augusta Prim;" Mrs. W. C. Marshall, "Faithful Blossom;" Mrs. A. J. Balment, "Fredora Bodkin;" Mrs. J. P. Scott, "Rhoda Larkin;" Mrs. Grady, "Delina Baxter;" Mrs. C. J. Little, "Amanda How;" Miss Noble, "Miranda Price;" Mrs. Baynes, "Eliza Hooker;" Mrs. S. Taylor, "Edith Snyder;" Mrs. F. Marsh, Mamie Perkins; Miss Brock, "Asenath Baker;" Mrs. Peterson, "Sophia Potter;" Mrs. Harold Brown, "Amy Little;" Mrs. O. Gray, "Susanna Smith;" A. Raworth, "Professor Pinkerton." Mrs. E. W. MacKay directed the play admirably.

WHEN BOWELL WAS HURLING GLASS TUMBLER

Water Spilled Down Sleeper's Neck; Reporters Omitted Incident

CARTWRIGHT BRAINY; DAVIES WAS DANDY

Sifton a Master of Analysis, Writes Payne in His Recollections

(By J. L. PAYNE.)

ARTICLE VII.

Sir MacKenzie Bowell was essentially an office man. He lived very largely at his offical desk, and was a model head of a department. He was very much a politician too; yet he took scarcely any part in the campaigns of his party. He was a convincing speaker, a good analyst of the factors in a question under debate, an impressed one by his sincerity; but he was far from being an orator. He was utterly lacking in those pretty tricks with words and phrases which pass for eloquence, or which, at all events, give men the reputation of being good speakers. Nor had he any organizing genius. Therefore he seldom appeared in public outside his own constituency.

I have said that he was popular with his fellow journalists. He began life as "printer's devil' in the office of the Belleville Intelligencer, and lived to own and edit the paper. He was a partisan; but not an offensive partisan. He made friends rapidly and held them, which I conceive to be a gift more valuable than genius in the realm of politics. He was a self-educated man, and the newspaper office in which he worked was the principal school and the only university he knew. He could write effectively in a partisan groove, with a natural tendency to sarcasm, but he seldom flayed an opponent. He never coined an epigram in his life, nor wrote a line that lived; yet he was able to bring a convincing common sense to bear on any topic under discussion and was a most useful public man. The highest education could not have given him much more effective equipment. But I want to show how the loyalty of his friends of the press once saved him in the emergency.

Late one night in parliament, when his estimates were being put through, he was being badgered by the late M. C. Cameron of Huron. Than Cameron there was not a man in the house who could put more sting into his words nor raise bigger welts with his verbal lash. Bowell belonged to that school which believed in giving a Roland for an Oliver, which is another way of saying he never shrank from a scrap. Cameron had said something which cast doubt on Bowell's word, and had repeated it when challenged to take it back. "Does the honorable gentleman call me a liar?" asked the minister in high dudgeon. Cameron replied that he had nothing to retract, whereupon the impulsive Bowell seized a tumbler which stood on his desk, and lifted it as if to throw it across the floor of the house at the head of his tormentor.

When the Water Splashed

That tumbler was full of water and immediately behind Sir MacKenzie's desk, with his head resting on his outspread arms, fast asleep, sat an odd character named Henry N. Paint, representing Richmond, Nova Scotia. The water in the hastily raised glass shot down the back of the sleeper, who, thus suddenly roused from his dreams, started to give a wonderful imitation of a man swimming for his life. A burst of laughter from the house diverted Bowell for just that moment of time which enabled him to recover his dignity. The sputtering Paint had turned a tragedy into a farce. What material was there for the opposition press! But the boys of the gallery talked it over, and the incident now appears in print for the first time, when it can do no harm to anybody.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell was an Orangeman. His connection with the order had a good deal to do with his election to parliament in 1867, and still more with his being called to the Macdonald cabinet in 1878. He held the highest offices to which a man may attain under the banner of William of Orange within the British Empire. Yet I want to say that he was no bigot. Scores of times issues arose in the matter of appointments or promotions, with the choice to be made between an Orangeman and a Roman Catholic, and not in a single instance did he show prejudice. if merits were balanced, he invariably favored the Catholic. For seven years secretary had been a staunch Roman Catholic. I feel that this is worth telling.

In the year that I joined Sir MacKenzie, another grand master of the orange order took high state office. I refer to the late Hon. N. Clarke Wallace. A few weeks after he was made controller of customs he told me that he had resolved to stamp out a thing concerning which he had long held strong convictions. "In the custom department," he said, "every importer is looked upon as a rogue and a smuggler. I'm going to stop that. It's disgraceful." Came a time when, as we were talking, he spoke very harshly of importers, and I reminded him of his previous declaration to the contrary. "That was two years ago,' he replied, "and no man could be two years in the customs department without coming to regard all importers as dishonest." Make of that what you may.

A Delicate Tariff

It would no doubt be enlightening if, within the scope of these recollections, could be brought some references to the industrial development of Canada which went on contemporaneously with the lives of the men who here figure, but it would carry us into a large field and break the association of ideas here being followed. One incident, although insignificant in itself, will serve to show how great has been the change in the field of manufacturers. One day in 1892 a man called at Sir MacKenzie Bowell's office to ask that a protective duty be placed in the tariff on ladies' underwear. My minister was not favorably inclined. He insisted that no lady would think of buying factor-made goods of that class. But the man said he had resolved to erect a manufacturing plant in Canada if he could get protection. Finally he got it. Today the trading in that type of goods would run into many millions of dollars annually.

He Couldn't Spell

But I want to turn back to Sir MacKenzie Bowell as a man for a moment. Although trained in a newspaper office, he was an indifferent speller. Many men of distinction have that failing, which is said by scientists to be due to a defect of the eye. It seems we do not remember the order of letters in a word, but the shape of the word itself. The astigmatic vision does not retain a true picture. Sir MacKenzie must have had that defect in a high degree; for I have seen him write the word "truly" in 'yours truly," with almost every conceivable variation. He was never quite certain whether a word contained two "c's" or one, and to show a perfectly open mind on that point, he would select the single letter in one sentence and the double letters in another. In fact, he never felt himself tied down to the dictionary spelling of any word. Yet he was a man of broad education.

Nor could he either remember names or identify them correctly when they were before him in writing. I can say without the slightest exaggeration that out of every hundred letters he dictated to me, he either got the surname or the initials wrong, often both, in 60 of them. His ear was not quite as unreliable as his eye, yet it played him tricks at times. Once we had a lady with us on a six weeks' trip, whose name we will say was Barnard. Sir MacKenzie caught it as Harrison, and although we all tried in suggestive ways to swing him over to the correct name, he always fell back on his first assumption; so we christened her Mrs. Harrison, and Mrs. Harrison she was to us all for the entire period.

What's in a Name?

Hon. Theodore Davey was prime minister of British Columbia at that time, and Bowell knew him well and wrote to him frequently; yet he always spoke of him as Davis. Something like this would happen nearly every time he wrote to this gentleman; "Just take a letter to Davis;" and I would ask if he meant Davey. "No; I mean Davis—Davis, the premier of British Columbia." I would suggest, as if in doubt, that I thought he spelled his name "D-a-v-e-y," and Sir MacKenzie, knowing about his treacherous eye and ear, would invariably say: "That's right. I'm glad you corrected me. There is nothing so annoying as getting a man's name wrong. Well, then, take the letter, and in that very instant he would commence, "my dear Davis." In time I learned to say nothing about the matter. It was useless.

Yet Sir MacKenzie was a nobleman in my eyes. He had a kind heart, an unfailing consideration for other people's feelings, and a staunchness in his friendships which was exceptional. He, quite naturally, was frugal in his ways, having learned in a youth of comparative poverty that money wasutter lack of guile were combined with ed never returns. His genuiness and a sterling regard for his word. He was grateful for services rendered to him, and that increased my attachment for him. It is not a common virtue. He was a lively man, and, when he was on his feet and talking to anybody, he had a habit of pirouetting which I never saw in another. In my judgment, too, he was a fine looking man, with snow-white beard and hair; and he had an off-hand geniality which was in no sense an affectation. He was cautious in reaching important judgments, and brought a sturdy common sense to bear on all his problems. There was nothing daring or dashing about him; he was rather of the plodding and painstaking kind. Nobody could really know him and not esteem him highly.

Hated to Be Called Old

There was one point on which he was always sensitive. He did not like to be referred to as an old man. In fact, he never permitted anyone to even allude to his age. As time proceeded, however, and he had passed the nineties, he would himself say jocularly: "I can't shake these colds off like I did 70 or 80 years ago." I saw him frequently as he crept up from 90 to 95, and always marvelled at his physical vitality, but more particularly at his mental alertness. He died soon after a trip to the Pacific coast from an attack of pneumonia.

His loyalty to those who served him was both delightful and extraordinary. Under no circumstances, when traveling, did he ever forget either his secretary or his messenger. I always thought that if Queen Victoria had asked him to dine with her at Buckingham Palace he would have said: "Your Majesty, of course, understands that my secretary is with me." That is scarcely an exaggeration. He drew no lines of social separation. How could I fail to revere the memory of such a chief? For nearly four years we were much together, and they were bright and happy years for me.

Sir Richard Cartwright

At Aylmer, Ontario, in 1877, was not the only time I heard Sir Richard Cartwright speak. I heard him hundreds of times later, and never once did I hear him but I admired excellent English and his masterly arrangement of his subject matter. He was one of the two or three men in the house of commons who could be reported literatim et verbatim. He was essentially an aristocrat, and was the last man with whom anyone would attempt familiarities. He was admired without being popular. On the whole, he had a cold exterior, which I suspect was more or less a veneer. His bitterness and sarcasm were proverbial; yet he was unquestionably one of the ablest men who ever sat in parliament.

A little story will illustrate Sir Richard's peculiar brand of sarcasm. During the Bowell regime, Sir George Foster addressed the Conservative club in Toronto, and a few evenings later Sir Richard spoke before the Liberal club in that city. Sir Richard said: "The loyal citizens of Toronto have been favored with a speech by a no less distinguished member of government than my old friend Sir George Foster, who succeeded in demonstrating by the law of percentages that the country is in a state of abounding prosperity. Sir by precisely that process I could prove Sir John Macdonald an honest man and Sir Charles Tupper a truthful one."

Hon. Edward Blake

I never exchanged words with Hon. Edward Blake in my life; but I reported him scores of times. He lived a detached life, aloof from his fellows, and was seldom approached by newspaper men. He always impressed me as a pathetic figure, seeking something which he could not find. He, too, was a rare master of English, and a man of tremendous intellect. Yet his speeches were involved and somewhat tedious. His almost interminable sentences were the despair of the shorthand men. To miss a conjunction or a preposition was fatal.

During the more than nine years I was serving two ministers of railways and an acting minister, it was natural that I should come into mor or less intimate relations with their colleagues. I recall Sir Louis Davies, pow chief justice of the supreme court, who, beneath what some people, on meeting him for the first time, suspected to be a pompous manner, carried the heart and bearing of a real gentlemean. When I first knew him, he was quite one of the dandies of parliament—a really handsome man.

Sir Oliver Mowat I did not know personally; but I saw much of him. I heard about him oftener. He was very shortsighted, and lost his way so frequently that watchers had to be sent out to see that he was able to find his office. He was far-sighted in every other respect, and a colossal figure for a generation on Ontario.

Sifton Analytical

Sir Clifford Sifton I knew intimately—if that word can really be used by any of his friends. He had one of the clearest and brightest brains it was ever my privilege to know; yet he approached all his decisions by a long and tedious process of analysis. I fancy few people suspected this. His method was essentially mathematical, in that he took the greatest care to marshal all his facts, pro and con, give them a valuation, and then compare the totals. Not content with that, he would go over the ground two or three times. No trouble was too great to get data from every available source, and he never allowed himself to be hurried. That was why, when he spoke, he was such a master of his subject, and such a convincing debater.

It was when returning from the funeral of Hon. James Sutherland, at Woodstock, Ont., that I had a personal experience with Sir Clifford's wonderful gift of being able to convert an opponent. Sir Wilfrid Laurier was complimenting me on my speed as a stenographer, following the dictation of a memorandum, and the subject of Hansard reporting was in some way suggested. This led to an argument between myself and Sir Clifford about the proposed abolition of official reporting in the house. It happened to be the subject on which I believed no one could alter my conviction; but Sir Clifford so completely met every point I advanced, and had such an array of facts at his finger's ends that in half an hour I was wholly turned to his view.

It then transpired that he had had the official debates analyzed over a period of years, and could give the result in inches and lines. His final conclusion struck me forcibly, when he asked:

"Of what consequence is it that man says something different now than he said 10 years ago? Consistency may only show that he has ceased to think independently and in the light of altered conditions."

DUCHESS MAKES AN AUSPICIOUS DEBUT

New Conservative Lady Member Discusses Legislation for Women in Her Maiden Speech

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The duchess of Athol, one of the newly elected women members of the house of commons, made what was generally considered an auspicious debut on the floor of the house today. Her maiden speech referred mainly to the government's professed intention to amend the law relating to maintenance and separation orders in marital cases and other measures of special interest to women.

The duchess urged the need for accelerating the naval shipbuilding program, especially in view of the depression in the shipbuilding program. She said she longed, however, to see wars cease throughout the world, and would infinitely rather see expenditure on merchant shipping than on ships of war.

The speech was well received by the house.

DOCTORS WANTED TO OPERATE

Mrs. Quillon Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her from an Operation

Muskegon, Michigan.—"After doctoring for eight or nine years with different physicians without any relief at all, they said at last that medicine would not reach my case and I should have an operation. I had heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and often saw it advertised in different papers where some women had suffered just as I did and got well and strong again by taking the Vegetable Compound. I decided to see what it would do for me, and before I had finished the fourth bottle I was much better, the weakness stopped and the severe pains in my sides left me. I am now much stronger and do my own work and work in the factory besides. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and give it all the praise."—Mrs. NELLIE QUILLON, 17 Morris St., Muskegon, Mich.

Women should heed such warning symptoms as bearing-down pains and weakness, for they indicate some female trouble, and a persistent and faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will seldom fail to help.

WIGEN WARNS GROWERS WILL FOLLOW SAPIRO

Brokers-Wholesale 'Combination' He Views With Very Deep Suspicion

A CORPORATION HEAD ON COOPERATIVE BODY

Associated and Berry Growers Have Volume to Finance Direct Selling

To the Editor of The Dailiy News:

Sir—In the Farm and Home of January 10, is a write-up by its editor, giving a general resume of the Associated Growers' accomplishment during its first year's operation. This write-up is the result of an interview with the Associated Growers' officials, Basil Stewart, Tom Bullman, F. A. Lewis, Byron McDonald and its president, Mr. Howe, by the editors of the Penticton Herald, Summerland Review, Kelowna Courier, Vernon News, Salmon Arm Observer, Kamloops Standard-Sentinal and Farm and Home. My advice to all fruit growers is that they get a copy of this write-up, which in substance, I perceive, will appear in any one of the above named papers.

When you get this write-up Mr. Grower, put your thinking cap on, and read it carefully, and then read it over again.

There is a lot in this write-up that deserves the highest comment and appreciation from the growers for the result obtained by the officers during its first year's operation. But at the same time I wish to forestall some of the adverse comment that will be made by the growers, and which may be misconstrued by the uninitiated.

Nothing Against Sales Manager

I shall first deal with our sales manager, Byron McDonald, and let me state from the start, that Mr. McDonald has my highest esteem and confidence in his ability to fill the position he now holds under the present evolution stage of our Associated Growers. But this does not shield Mr. McDonald from the comment that he cannot claim full credit for the sale of these 3000 carloads of British Columbia apples marketed in the three prairie provinces last season. These sales were performed by the Mutual Brokers and the Growers' Sales agency, to their own wholesale houses, and that Mr. McDonald mainly acted as an influential peacemaking connecting link, between the growers and the brokers' wholesale combination as now operating in our western provinces, an institution the similarity of which will be rare to find on the American continent. But this broker wholesale combination is just were Mr. McDonald's value has come in to serve the growers this year, and which service Mr. Howe says is beyond computation.

Mr. McDonald, through his past business operation, holds a relationship of trust and confidence amongst the wholesalers as but few in our rank and file can command. And although it would be imprudent for Mr. McDonald to admit this, there are those that still feel that he has been the powerful magnate, who has influenced the wholesalers to show reasonable results to the growers this year or their broker wholesale combination would collapse.

Mr. Howe and Bankers

I shall now comment on some of Mr. Howe's remarks. Mr. Howe is reported to have said "That the bankers were not willing to be lenient to any organization which contains even a small percentage of members, who seemed to desire to break down the morals and loyalty of the mass, by resorting to the press with misleading letters, as had occasionally been done."

With all due respect to Mr. Howe and his financial ability, I feel quite sure that he has misquoted the bankers on this subject, and especially such high financial magnates as those with which the Associated Growers have been doing business this year.

In the affairs of finance, these men look first to the character and standing of the person or persons at the head of a business concern; second, to the basic commercial value of the commodity on which credit is to be based; third, the business method of the concern.

It is quite evident that, in the case of our Associated Grower the bankers must have found the first and second conditions—on which credit is based—satisfactory, or the officers could never have been able to arrange for a line of credit up to $2,000,000 as intimated in the interview.

But what of the third condition, the business method to be followed by our Associated Growers, as laid down by Mr. Howe and his executive during this interview?

Would you, Mr. Grower, consider the sanity of a merchant opening up shop and tacking his sign over the entrance reading as follows:

"To My Customers"

"This is to certify that I appoint each of you as my lawful agents, to dispose of all my goods by putting your own price on it and selling it yourself. Signed."

New Business Method

Such a sign would in some substance be an exact copy of the business method adopted and recommended by the Associated Growers' official to follow. Only we would have to sign it.

Our Old Business Method

Mr. Howe says: "That the executives have no complaint to lay against the brokers, the jobbers or the wholesalers, and do away with their brokers, salesmanship by Mr. McDonald has won their confidence." And I believe Mr. Howe is sincere when he says this; but, when the interviewer questioned Mr. Howe if he thought it would be advisable to sell direct to the wholesalers, and do away with their brokers, and Mr. Howe answered, "That he and the other members of the executive had concluded that such a policy would be disastrous to the growers and wholly unnecessary, a reserve of $2,500,000 would be needed before the organization would ever think of it" then I hid my face in my hands in humiliation, sorrow and pity for the poor fruit growers of British Columbia, and as I was meditating, a mirage appeared before my vision of horn-fisted, furrow-faced fruit growers lying prone and exhausted along the waysides of the road to the goal of economic progress, and their bones subjected to the bleaching on the pages of our public press.

As my mind relaxed from this unpleasant vision, I felt elated to remember that 1 and 99 per cent of the British Columbia fruit growers were halter-tied by an unbreakable five-year contract, that compels us to stay pat and pull in unity, and if Mr. Howe or any of his executives think that the lasso which this handful of broker-wholesale combination holds around the neck of the British Columbia fruit growers is stronger than the pull of 75 per cent of the growers, then they will be subjected to an unpleasant jolt before next season's opening.

Three thousand or more of British Columbia's fruit growers are out to follow the path as blazed out by Mr. Sapiro, by adopting up-to-date, sane and sound business methods. The growers did not sign up on a five-year contract, to be handed over in mass formation to the tender mercy of this broker-wholesale combination now dominating our western market. We recognize the usefulness of the wholesalers for our industry, and we are not out to destroy them. On the contrary, we are aiming to get closer to them, and in cooperative fraternity make use of them on an economic business basis.

Our insane business method in the past has demoralized the wholesalers, until we have become their mute slaves, so that in many cases we have had to pay extra for the privilege of handing them our goods as a gift.

But do not get the idea that I blame the wholesalers for these conditions! That has been wholly the result of our own perverted business methods.

Jolt Coming to Wholesalers

But if the wholesalers think (as Mr. Howe alludes to) that by intimidation and threat they can at any time smash the Growers' market beyond cost of production, they had better be aware, or they may also get a jolt.

The Dominion government will not look with passive eyes to a handful of selfish wholesalers committing financial slaughter of 3000 or 4000 of its productive citizens.

What we fruit growers need at this time is a little more mental backbone, and to refuse to let them put a corporation head on our cooperative body, which apparently is the intention of the present officials. If they are misquoted, I am the one that least would advocate changing the horses in the middle of the stream, unless they buck.

Our industry is in its transition stage, and it behooves us to use our brains.

We must not get befagged by arguments, that it takes $2,500,000 to place our own salesman in every important marketing center for our products, so as to deal direct with the wholesalers.

Five thousand carloads of fruit and produce between the Associated Growers and the Berry Growers Cooperative, taxed at $25 per car, would give us a revenue of $125,000, sufficient to cover the maintenance of these offices, as well as a surplus to help assisting the wholesalers and retailers in the propaganda of scientific merchandising of our products.

"O. U. G." Failure Pardonable

Nor must we get befogged by the argument that the effort of the Okanagan United Growers in establishing their own brokerage connection proved a failure. Clear your brain and look to facts.

The original effort of the "Okanagan United Growers" proved a great success, so much so, that it aroused the envy of its competitors, who at that time were more powerful in volume of business and finance; and, with only about 40 per cent of the Growers supporting the Okanagan United Growers, at the time, besides adverse market conditions at the same time, failure was unavoidable! Just as the greatest bank must fail when public confidence is lost—one of the elements to be contended with along the road of evolutionary progress.

There are men of brain and true cooperative spirit amongst us, who can be brought forward to champion our cause, and bring to fruition Mr. Sapiro's instruction, to commercialize our products on economic, up-to-date, scientific salesmanship.

MANAGED MONEY WOULD REPLACE GOLD STANDARD

Wells Is Enamored of Keynes Plan for New Currency System

WOULD BASE IT ON MADE-UP COMMODITY

Money of World Has Gone to Pot; All Incentive Now Last

H. G. WELLS CABLE

LONDON, Jan. 18.—Among recent events of conspicuous importance is the publication of a new book by Mr. J. M. Keynes, a tract on monetary reform. Among the large trivial happenings of a time of revolutions, movements of crowned heads in and out of exile, new French alliances and antics of eminent politicians, it is refreshing to have something of real significance on which to make one's weekly comments.

I incurred great odium a little while ago by saying that J. M. Keynes could claim to have achieved success while at the same time I excluded those popular heroes, Napoleon and Lloyd George, from the list of true successes. But here is a fresh book from Mr. Keynes, simple, outspoken, well written, making a definite step forward in our understanding of the world's problems. You might read all the speeches and orations of Napoleon and Lloyd George through, and you will know no more about men and things than when you began. Mr. Keynes will leave you different—enlightened. Keynes thinks with scientific lucidity, says what he thinks exactly and skilfully. What he says stands, and will necessarily affect the history of money in a real and permanent way. Did Napoleon ever say anything, has Lloyd George ever said anything, except what seemed likely to impress or humbug people in general?

Weakly Thinks Empire Permanent

It is a peculiarity of the mind of Mr. Keynes that this is at once penetrating and limited. He seems to think the British Empire is a permanent instead of manifestly transitory arrangement, that the United States, the Empire, and the various states of the European patchwork, are always going to retain their sovereign independence in financial economic affairs. He assumes this much, never questions it. But within the limits of assumption, he writes with lucidity and frankness that are a liberal education for the reader.

To write of currency is generally recognized as an objectionable, indeed almost as an indecent practice. Editors will implore the writer almost tearfully not to write about money. This is not because it is an uninteresting subject, but because it always has been a profoundly disturbing subject. The whole modern world has been brought up on cash and credit reckoned in terms of money.

Have Lived by Faith

Four or five generations of us have lived by faith that the dollar was a dollar, the pound a pound; that if you left them about they grew at so much per cent per annum, also increased in value. Most things became cheaper throughout our young lives. That cheapening seemed in the nature of things. We worked for money, we saved the stuff, looked forward to a comfortable old age.

Now we live in a phrase of fluctuating, and on the whole, mounting prices. Whosoever saveth his money shall lose it. Even the dollar buys two things where 10 years ago it bought three. The pound sterling is in worse case, and many of the other currencies have sunken to levels beyond the wildest fantasies of 1913.

Now this, as Mr. Keynes points out, is a breach of understanding between society and the common individual. In this system in which we and our predecessors have lived for a century or more, a system which socialists will call the "capitalist" system, but which Mr. Keynes much more properly calls the "private capitalist" system, there has always been an implicit guarantee that the money we worked for, saved up, lent, and invested in various ways, was good. It was good for our needs whenever we chose to spend it again. This was the incentive to work, was the driving force of the whole hundred years of industrial production from Waterloo to the Marne.

Money Now no Good

And to a large extent the incentive is gone. Money is no longer good. It has become treacherous. Unless it can be restored, this system of ours must break down, lead either to social chaos and human decadence, or to a new, different system.

Now Mr. Keynes is not a socialist. He believes the existing system of individual competition is "in accordance with human nature, has great advantages." But it cannot go on unless money is made trustworthy again. And his proposals to restore our confidence in money are very bold and remarkable indeed.

The vice, the almost incurable vice, of the cash and credit systems, since the first methods of money became dominant in the Roman republic, has been its tendency to expand debt to impossible dimensions. Every country at the end of the war found itself owing preposterous sums in credit or cash, or to foreign countries, and forced in various measure to tax its productive classes, to tax its creditor class, either directly by income tax or capital levy, or indirectly by currency inflation, and to bilk its foreign creditors.

Museum of Economic Collapse

Every soveign state in Europe had its own policy, set about business on its own lines, with a result that today Europe is a museum of methods of economic collapse, from Britain, crushed by taxation and unemployment in an attempt to deflate back to the gold standard, to Germany, smashed into complete economic paralysis by extreme currency inflation. No country remains now with a currency based on the gold standard, not even the United States. True, you can exchange dollar bills for gold at Washington, but there you lose by the transaction. The United States has over bought gold, and is still accumulating and hoarding gold—at a loss. If all America's hoarded gold were minted and circulated, the value of the dollar would fall. The American dollar is an extreme case of deflation, as the exploded German mark was an extreme case of inflation.

Now what Mr. Keynes wants the world to do is to scrap gold altogether as a monetary standard, to substitute "managed" currency. For the present he would have two independant units in the world, the dollar and the pound, because he is sceptical of Americans and British ever working together without friction—even in so vitally important a matter. In both the United States and Britain he would have the banks and the treasury cooperating to keep in circulation such an amount of currency as would maintain internal prices at a steady level.

"Manage" Prices

They would decrease the currency if prices fell, increase it if they rose. He would take the price of "standard composite commodity"—so much steel, so much wheat, so much rice, so much rubber and so on—he would make that a new standard of value. He believes other currencies in the world would finally steady down into fairly stable relations with the managed dollar, managed pound. And then we should go on again with our "private capitalism," buying, selling, saving, investing, competing as we did in those happy days before the war.

But there are certain curious implications in this. Mr. Keynes seems to recognize them, yet not to give them their full value. Underlying the assumption of private capitalism is that human beings will work better for gain, will show more enterprise and industry for profit, than for any other motive.

But here at the heart of the system, Mr. Keynes proposes to establish a disinterested group of managers, bankers and officials, who are not to accumulate private fortunes, though they could do so very easily by playing with the fluctuations of prices, but with single-hearted devotion are just to maintain them for the public good. He seems to realize the difficulty here. He insist at several points that at the system of private capitalism cannot survive without moderation, that if private enterprise will insist upon gambling upon the exchanges, working for profits regardless of any other consideration, the whole system must collapse.

Isn't It Socialism

But if we are to rely upon the spirit of service, not upon an incentive for gain in our bank and treasury officials, why should we not rely upon it generally? If currency can be "managed" in the public interest by men working not for profits but for service, why not also the production of staples, and land and sea transport?

But a system of economics run on motives of service is not individualism at all, it is socialism.

I think that in the long run Mr. Keynes will be forced to realize this. A managed currency is a long step toward a deliberately organized world. The gold standard was the standard of individual enterprise and go-as-you-please. The gold standard has failed, and passes. Unless human society is to fail also, the age of scientific management is close at hand.

This picture is either quite truthful, or it is meant to deceive you.

Plainly, it says to you:

whereas

full strength and better flavor, too

Now, this is a positive statement, which any housekeeper can test in her own home.

Ignore, for the moment, if you will, the higher quality, the finer flavor, and the removal of the chaff and dust by the Baker-izing Process, you will still admit, if you know the facts, that best for you on the score of ECONOMY, is—

STOCK PRICES MOVE UNEVENLY

In Relatively Quiet Market Bear Traders Attack Favorites but Encounter Support

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Stock prices pursued an uneven course in today's relatively quiet market. Bear traders renewed their attacks on such speculative favorites as Baldwin, American Can and Studebaker, but they encountered strong support just below yesterday's close and met with little success.

Special strength was particularly pronounced in such issues as Lehigh Valley, Pittsburgh, West Virginia, and Woolworth, which closed 1¾ to 4 points above yesterday's final quotations. A bullish demonstration in Corn Products sent this stock up to 161½, the highest ever recorded, but it fell back to 160¼, up ⅛ on the day. Steel shares held relatively steady on publication of preliminary earning reports of the Inland Steel company, showing earnings of more than $5,500,000, on the common stock in 1923, or more than $4 a share. Announcement was made during the day that the United States Cast Iron Pipe company had ordered 60,000 tons of pig iron, the stock of that company closing 1 point higher.

Call money ruled unchanged at 4 per cent.

Total sales were 841,000 shares.

Money AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance. Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments

Women spend about 90 per cent of the money used for ultimate products, so it is good economy for any man to co-operate in teaching them the importance of investing wisely.

Women do not buy the steers on hoof, the bales of cotton or the standing timber. But they do buy about 90 per cent of all final products—that is, 90 per cent of all the beefsteakes, shoes, cotton goods, thread and furniture. Millions of dollars worth of business is transacted every month through the hands of women.

Modern business has made specialists of us all. Generally speaking, men specialize in producing and women in dispensing incomes—no one person can adequately attend to both functions.

It is worth the while of the producing member of make sure that the women of his family understand the importance of reserving some portion of the income for investment, since the amount of income available for investment will largely depend upon the spending of the women of the average family.

Million Dollar Concerns Get Incorporation

OTTAWA, Jan. 18.—Two western $1,000,000 companies are among those granted federal incorporation this week. They are the Panama-Pacific Grain Terminals, limited, headquarters at Regina, and the Marine Security, limited, of Port Arthur. The reliance Oils of Canada, limited, Edmonton, Alta., is also listed, with a capital of $500,000.

The optimist cheers, but the pessimist saves his breath for the purpose of letting out a calamity howl later on.

History records not a single instance of a man getting rich waiting for the whistle to blow.

Output of Province Is One-third Larger Than for Previous Year

VICTORIA, Jan. 18. — Enormous growth of British Columbia's lumber industry is shown in log scale figures issued by Hon. J. D. MacLean, acting minister of lands, today. An increase of nearly 34 per cent in the total log scale of the province for 1923 over the scale of 1922 is shown in these figures.

The total of timber during 1923 was 2,542,280,000 board feet, as against 1,899,158,000 in 1922.

In the Vancouver forest district, of which Vancouver island forms an important part, 1,906,103,360 board feet were scaled last year. This is more than the total amount scaled in the whole province in 1922.

A remarkable increase in the scale in Prince Rupert also is shown. In the northern district 214,447,786 feet weer scaled, as against 134,434,960 feet in the previous year, or a clear in*crease of 60 per cent.*

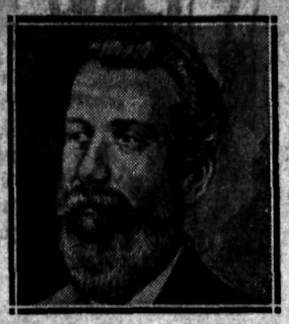
WOULD NOT HAVE ULCER CUT OUT OF STOMACH

Took "Fruit-a-tives" Instead and this Medicine made from Fruit Juices Relieved the Trouble.



MAPLEHURST FARM, HILLHURST, P.Q.

"About 25 years ago, I began to have trouble with my Stomach.

Three years ago, I consulted one of the best specialists in Montreal. He said I must go to the hospital, have an Ulcer cut out of my stomach and gallstones removed. I was then 54 years old. I said "NO."

Then, I began to take "Fruit-a-tives".

I am so much better that my old friends often ask me what I have done to myself to look so well. I am gaining in weight and enjoying life very much." H. W. EDWARDS.

"Fruit-a-tives" is made from the juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes, combined with tonics, and gives quick relief in stomach troubles.

This fruit medicine actually strengthens the stomach muscles and enables the stomach to give out sufficient gastric juice to digest the meals.

"Fruit-a-tives" also correct Constipation and Biliousness from which so many Dyspeptics suffer.

CRANBROOK HAS THREE POINTS; KIMBERLEY TWO

Selkirk League Games Are Fast and Interesting; Two Drawn

CRANBROOK, B.C., Jan. 18.—Up to date five games have been played in the Selkirk Hockey league between Cranbrook and Kimberley. The first was drawn, the scores in the others being: Cranbrook 3, Kimberley 1; Cranbrook 6, Kimberley 7; Cranbrook 8, Kimberley 5; Cranbrook 4, Kimberley 4; thus giving Cranbrook a lead in points of 6 to 4.

The games were fast and vigorous, with some few players out of action through injuries.

In the last game, played on Wednesday evening, Cranbrook was short two men—J. Jones, who had been injured in the previous game, and Rev. Father Ehmann, who was out of town.

Much interest is being shown in the games, and it is hoped that Cranbrook will duplicate its record of last year. If so, they will play off with Fernie for the East Kootenay, and the winners in that game will play West Kootenay.

TIGERS TAME THE COUGARS

Calgary Gives Victoria Worst Thrashing It Ever Gave Coast Team

VICTORIA, Jan. 18.—Calgary Tigers duplicated their victory of earlier in the season on local ice by taming Lester Patrick's Cougars tonight for the second time in their own home town. The final score was 7 to 3.

Four sensational individual rushes in the third period resulted in goals that gave Calgary their biggest victory in history over a coast league club. Eddie Oatman's boys had a lead of one goal when the puck was faced off in the closing chapter, but they turned loose a series of fast rushes and, aided by some goodly goaltending by Fowler, put a big gap between themselves and Victoria.

Fast and Rough

The Tigers played a very agressive game, and their backchecking stood out prominently. They used their bodies to advantage, and liked the hard milling. Toward the close Referee Ion had to hand out penalties very rapidly in order to prevent a general flare-up.

Just before the faceoff at the start a bouquet of roses was presented to Oatman, leader of Calgary and former pilot of the Cougars, by the Victoria fans.

There was a procession of goals and penalties in the third period.

Reid, the Calgary goalie, saved the Tigers time and again in the first and second periods. Oliver and Morris starred on the offensive.

Summary

First period—1, Calgary, Morris from Dutton, 5:23; 2, Calgary, Oatman, 4:45; 3, Victoria, Hart, 7:00.

Second period—4, Calgary, Dutton from Morris, 3:00; 5, Victoria, Hart from Briden, 1:50.

Third period—6, Calgary, Morris, 2:53; 7, Calgary, Oliver, 4:05; 8, Calgary, Wilson, 3:00; 9, Calgary, Wilson, 1:53; Victoria, Hart from Frederickson, 3:11.

The two other Scottish first league teams, Airdrieonians and Celtic, play away from home against Ayr United in the case of the former and at home against Aberdeen in the latter.

Other teams engaged are:

GREB RETAINS MIDDLEWEIGHT BOXING CROWN

Beats Johnny Wilson, Former Title Holder, All Way in Fifteen Rounds

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Harry Greb of Pittsburgh successfully defended his world's middleweight boxing title here tonight against Johnn Wilson of Boston, former titleholder, receiving the judges' decision at the end of a 15-round contest in Madison Square Garden.

The champion carried the fight all through the 15 rounds, and the decision met with the approval of the spectators that filled the garden.

Greb, contrary to his usual method, fought at long range during the early rounds, and appeared to be as effective at this style of the game as he was with his milling-mauling tactics in the latter part of the fight.

Wilson's best punch was a left hook to the body, which he landed occasionally.

Greb was in good condition, and when he was going at top speed he ran rings around the boy from whom he won the title at the Polo grounds last summer.

At times both men had to be cautioned by the referee for holding and clinching.

Jack McAuliffe II., of Detroit, and Tiny Jim Herman of Omaha boxed six rounds to a draw in the semi-finals.

DOMINION WILL RULE CANADIAN

Football Sovereignty Settled Adversely to Newest Association

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 18.—A rather unique situation has arisen here in soccer affairs. Some time ago the newly organized Canadian Football association was affiliated with the provincial branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada. The Canadian Football association, composed of intercity league teams in Hamilton and Toronto, was suspended by the Dominion Football association for taking part in certain games not authorized by the provincial soccer body.

Now comes the information that the Dominion soccer body itself has been granted affiliation with the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, and as Canada's ruling amateur body has control of sport throughout the Dominion it now appears that the Canadian Football association itself automatically becomes subservient to the Dominion Football association.

Clubs Still Suspended

The suspensions handed out by the Dominion Football association have not yet been lifted.

The articles of affiliation for the Dominion Football association have already been drafted, and have met with approval of both parties. The Amateur Athletic Union of Canada has granted the Dominion Football association the privilege of playing old country professional teams without the Canadian players losing their amateur standing.

According to a message received by Billy Dean, local Dominion Football association representative, from Winnipeg, everything has been settled satisfactorily and only the necessary signatures to the articles of affiliation are required.

SHOCKER WITHDRAWS SUIT AGAINST BROWNS

Famous Pitcher Forgives Club for Refusing to Let His Wife Accompany Him Last Trip

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—Urban Shocker, star pitcher of the St. Louis Browns, today withdrew his plea to be declared a free agent. He asked Commissioner Landis to dismiss his case against the St. Louis club.

The famous case in which Shocker contended that his rights had been infringed upon by the refusal of the St. Louis club to permit him to take his wife on the last eastern trip, was settled immediately.

The $1000 fine imposed upon Shocker at the time he deserted the club is understood to have been remitted, and the question of his back salary settled.

COMMITTEES FOR INSTITUTE ARE DRAWN UP

Extensive Program for Year Mapped Out by Local Organization

MRS. W. G. FOSTER HAS CHARGE OF MEETING

Vote Sum Toward Carnival in Aid of Nelson Amateur Athletic Association

Mrs. W. G. Foster presided in her new duties as president of the Nelson women's institute at the regular monthly meeting held yesterday afternoon. The meeting, being the first under the direction of new officers, was lengthy. Committees for the year in the various branches of the institute were named, and the duties of each mapped out.

The Committees

Following is a list of the committees; their duties, and the members on each committee:

Women's institute work and method—What is being done by other institutes. New ideas for old work and new methods; Mrs. J. Milroy and Mrs. J. J. Sindel.

Home economics—Domestic science, demonstrations, household arts, decorations, recipes, possibly institute cook-book; Mrs. J. Ryan and Mrs. W. Smedley.

Public health and child welfare—To include all the health work for the women's institute, child welfare clinics, health nurse, crippled children fund, etc.; Mrs. P. Bates, Mrs. D. C. Fraser, Mrs. S. Huddlestone, Mrs. A. Dolphin, Mrs. C. E. P. Watts, Miss O. Cant, Mrs. Bains, Mrs. H. Pitts and other nurses.

Education and better schools—To consider what should be done to improve education in general, whether uniform school books are to be desired, if better results could be obtained by a change of curriculum entirely, perhaps have addresses on intelligence tests and on the Gary school system, Montessori method, etc.; Mrs. Sid McDonald, Mrs. Berry and Mrs. Salmon.

Legislation—To include parliamentary usage, reports of laws affecting women and children, reports of other countries, etc.; Mrs. T. W. Mouat and Mrs. A. DeKatz.

Immigration and settlement—To include oriental question, immigration from the British Isles and the United States, welcoming new settlers to this district, etc.; Mrs. J. Long and Mrs. E. Stubbs.

Agriculture—Mrs. R. J. Ramsden and Mrs. William Rutherford.

Industries and handicrafts—To plan courses in handicrafts, give demonstrations, look into new industries for the district and report if they are sound, develop schemes to promote industries already located in the district, etc.; Mrs. H. Thorpe, Mrs. D. McLean and Mrs. T. W. Slader.

Publicity—To bring women's institute work to the notice of the public, meet celebrities who visit the town with the idea of getting them interested in this locality, promote the circulation of Canadian magazines with the object of developing a Canadian literature, communicate with women's organizations in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba with a view to carrying out ideas embodied in Mrs. Applethwaite's resolution at the convention; Mrs. W. Harper and Mrs. F. C. Smith.

Community betterment—To promote clean sport, get behind the idea of a rest room for the district, make a study of drug habits, including opium, cocaine and alcohol; Mrs. D. StDenis and Mrs. G. Wright.

Ways and means—To have under consideration the making of all moneys for the use of the women's institute, to have direction of all entertainments for money-making purposes; to be composed of Mrs. Richards, as chief convenor, who will have associated with her one representative of all other committees, who will constitute the working force for the year in order that the work may be evenly divided and not fall too heavily upon one.

Music and hostess committee—To have charge of any musical programs for regular meetings and special musical programs, to act as hostesses at regular meetings and see that members and guests are seated, and to see that the lighting and ventilation is suitable; Mrs. J. Hooker, Mrs. Thomas Dunbar, Mrs. W. E. Warburton, Mrs. C. H. Sewell and Mrs. T. L. Marquis.

Other Business

Following the naming of the committees several resolutions were advanced and adopted. This year, in order to cut down expenses, it was decided that the institute would, in the case of sickness of members, send flowers to members of the institute only and not to members of the families represented in the institute. The growing membership of the organization was the reason that this question was dealt with.

In regard to tokens to retiring members or active workers leaving the city it was decided to make a ruling that tokens should not cost more than $5. The question of tea at institute meetings was brought up, and it was decided that when tea was served at meetings the members would be assessed 10 cents per cup in order to clear the expenses incurred in the dishwashing and other expenses entailed.

After much discussion the institute voted $25 toward the carnival fund of the Rotary club in aid of the Nelson Amateur Athletic association. The question of the institute choosing a queen for the carnival was dropped, the members being of the opinion that the plan was not a feasible one.

Next month's meeting will take the form of a childrens' meeting, at which refreshments will be served the little visitors. A suitable program for this occasion will be arranged.

BODY FOUND AT PROCTER

Inquest to Be Held in Drowning of T. V. Sparkes Off the Moyie

The body of Thomas Victor Sparkes, drowned on Thursday afternoon off the steamer Moyie at Procter, was recovered by C.P.R. employees yesterday morning, and an inquest will be opened by Dr. H. H. MacKenzie, coroner, at 11:30 this morning.

Some delay was occasioned by the fact that the drowning was not reported to the provincial police until yesterday, but Constable Hugh King left last evening to investigate the tragedy and arrange for the attendance of witnesses at the inquest.

Today's proceedings will likely be confined to the viewing of the body by the jury. It arrived in Nelson last night. Most of the witnesses will be members of the crew of the Moyie, who are expected to throw some light on how the deceased came to fall suddenly from the stern of the boat into the icy water.

Sparkes was about 18 years of age, and was unmarried. His father and brother live in the city, his brother being on the tug Hosmer on the Kootenay Landing barge service. He was well known in Fairview, where the family lived for a time. Young Sparkes worked for Horace Smith in his Fairview dairy for a time, and also at the ranch of D. A. Acton at Nine Mile. He had been working on the Moyie for but a short time.
