NTIMENT SWINGS TOWARD JAPANESE

s Still Opposed to Plan Which Would Label Them Aggressors

NEVA, Sept. 29.—The swing entiment to Japan was the out-ding feature of the critical sit-on in Geneva tonight. After ring without cessation throughout entire day the leaders had to ess that they had not yet dis-red the miraculous formula, h, while satisfying the aspirations he Japanese, would keep the pro-d protocol of arbitration and rity strong enough to win not the support of the delegations mbled at Geneva, but, what is important, the ratifications of world parliaments.

hile no solutions were found, ous channels of settlement have explored and prominent dele-s said tonight that there was an est expectation of reaching some rd. There is, however, no weak-g in evidence among the Japa-, who say they have unequivocal ctions from Tokio to maintain attitude of opposition to any ocol plan which would make Ja-an aggressor if she failed to abide world court decision based on interpretation of matters supposed be within the exclusive juris-on of the other party to the ute.

Viscount Ishii Gives Viewpoint

e entire Japanese difficulty was shed out today at a meeting of league council in private, when ount Ishii at the request of the ell made a frank exposition of Japanese viewpoint. This council hination was followed throughout day by repeated private confer-s between the principal dele-s, all desperately striving to find on the issue raised by Japan.

entually the problem was en-ed to the study of three men, Cecil Hurst of England, M. Louch-of France, and Signor Scialoja, the first and last named being orated international jurists and M. heur being one of the most prom-t industrialists of France, owner several newspapers and a former et minister. This committee will tomorrow morning.

Loucheur said tonight:

Ve are all assuming that this nese amendment is not aimed at erica or the British dominions. If thought so we would have voted nst it immediately."

British Delegates Busy

the meantime the British dele-on did not have an easy day the representatives of the British inions. The dominions' states-held four conferences and dis-ed the possible effect of the nese amendment to cancel the se of the aggressor article in the ocol, which forbds nations from g to war in contempt of world sions. Their attitudes was dis-tly that of urging a stiff stand nst the Japanese demand.

he last word tonight was that the ish and French viewpoints are olutely in accord. One of their esmen said:

"There are one, two or three direc-s in which we can move and satisfy everybody. We have ab-tely no intention of settling this grouping powers against powers bringing pressure to bear upon an. We must settle it in agree-t with our friends the Japanese."

he swing to Japan has developed nuse statesmen are beginning to lize that the dividing wall between stions belonging to the internal sdiction of a state and ques-s which clearly are of interna-al scope is exceedingly thin.

ne of the dominating features of ght's discussion was the insist-e that the Japanese issue should handled not as an issue between an and any particular state or up of states, but in the widest rnational sense.

Reeve McLean was told that plans were being made to send a delegation to the council to support Browne's request.

COURT HEARS OF BARNARD'S BIG ACCOUNT

Attractive Account Dwindled Into Continuous Overdrafts

TRIAL OF JONES, OF HOME BANK, MOVES

Overdrafts Amounted to Over Million Dollars; Security Two Boats

TORONTO, Sept. 29.—The accounts of C. A. Barnard came in for some detailed examination at the trial of Sidney H. Jones, auditor of the Home bank, on charges of making false returns, at the county court today. The Barnard account was opened in the Montreal branch of the Home bank, and V. W. Scott, who was manager of that branch, was questioned regarding it. Mr. Scott said that it was opened in 1917 with a large deposit. It was a very active account with many large deposits but after 1919, ran into continuous overdrafts. At one time L. C. Hurdman gave a note to take care of part of the overdraft, continued the witness. The overdrafts continued and eventually placed in an account on orders from head office of the British Dominion Holding & Investment company. With this account the overdrafts continued and on May 31, 1923, amounted to $1,273,000. The officers of the British Dominion company were H. J. Daly, president; K. F. McLaren, vice-president; W. R. Fleming, T. S. O'Connor, J. C. Whittaker, directors, and J. C. Austin, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Austin was employed in Mr. Barnard's office, said witness.

Unable to Pay Cheques

Asked when the big overdrafts occurred in the Barnard account witness said it was when cheques for $350,000 from the Davie Ship Building and Repairing company, could not be paid. Witness said that Barnard was managing director of the Davie company when the British Dominion company account was opened, it was taken out of his jurisdiction, said the witness, and operated from head office in Toronto to which it was transferred after May 31, 1923. Witness said that security in the Barnard account included two boats.

R. H. Greer, counsel for the defense, asked if these were the boats which he had read about in the liquor running game.

Witness did not know. Questioned further, he stated that as long as he had them they were not in such a business. "We can kill that canard as far as you were concerned then?" asked Mr. Greer.

The witness replied, "Yes."

Witness said there had been no audit of the Montreal branch during his time there.

No Bad Debts in Toronto

Gordon L. Chapman, assistant manager of the Toronto office, identified numerous items in the books of the company, tracing loans, etc. He said that he had sometimes given credit to customers up to $20,000 when no senior officers of the bank were present. He always had these confirmed later by higher officials. He said no bad or doubtful debts had been made from the Toronto branch since 1919. He swore that as far as he was concerned all reports made to the head office were accurate in figures and that there had never been any falsification of books.

The trial continues tomorrow.

GREEK GLOBE NAVIGATOR IS AGAIN IN PORT

After Fifteen Days in Open Boat, He Comes Home Thirsty

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The carcharias Shark was towed back to port today.

At the wheel, thirsty and despondent, was Demetrios Sigelakis, who quit his job in a restaurant to embark last September 14 upon a circumnavigation of the globe. In his tiny sloop with a one-man top Sigelakis had made 104 miles of the 30,000 he had set out to cover. The gulf stream had been formidable, the wind had been capricous, the water tank had sprung a leak, the sextant had been capricous; so the mariner, driven by desperation, by thirst and the loss of his chief navigating instrument, had to hoist the white flag of distress. Capt. Jack Johnson of the fishing boat Montauk towed him in—back to the berth at the Battery from whence the Shark sailed 15 days ago cheered bon voyage by Sigelakis' Greek countrymen who had contributed $2000 to his around-the-world venture.

"A glass of water" were the skipper's first words as he stepped ashore. Then he announced that next June, when the gulf stream might be less obstinate, he would refill his water cask, ship another sextant and fare forth once more.

It is understood that the defence will be that they believed that they were approached by the tax office officials who offered a rebate for payment in full and that they had acted in good faith.

BOUNDARY BILL IS EXPECTED TO PASS COMMONS

Emergancy Session of Parliament to Adopt Irish Bill Today

UNOFFICIAL ULSTER ONLY FOES OF BILL

Ulster Leaders to Confer With Their Premier on Bill Question

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Parliament will reassemble tomorrow for an emergency session which will be brief and probably uneventful. Its sole business is to adopt a bill providing for the settlement of the Irish boundary questions. The Anglo-Irish treaty provides for a boundary commission to delimit the territory between northern and southern Ireland, and the present bill is along these lines.

When the colonial secretary, J. H. Thomas, introduced this measure at the close of the last parliament session the hope was entertained that some agreement might be reached with Ulster in the interval, which would render the bill needless. This hope has not been realized; the Ulster government remains obdurate on the boundary question. Hence this special session was called for the purpose of adopting the bill, which will probably pass all stages in the house of commons unamended by next Friday.

Unionists Will Not Appeal

The situation is governed by the fact that the Unionist party has no desire to precipitate any appeal to the country on the Irish question. The official leaders of the party therefore will not move the rejection of the bill.

That being the attitude of responsible Unionist leaders it is not considered likely that the house of lords will take upon itself either to reject or even amend the bill, although as a body the lords have strong sympathy with the Ulster cause.

The Unionist leaders could hardly adopt any other attitude, for the Irish treaty was signed by Unionist ministers in Lloyd George's coalition government while the treaty was carried into law by a Unionist government. Any move for rejection of the bill can only come from unofficial Ulster members, and would be voted down by the combined votes of the Laborites and Liberals and a certain number of Unionist members.

Approve Draft of Speech

The cabinet council today, attended by Colonial Secretary Thomas, who has just returned from a South African tour to take charge of the bill, approved the draft of Premier MacDonald's speech which will be delivered tomorrow on the motion for the second reading of the bill. After the prime minister has made this exposition of the government's attitude it is expected that the house will immediately adjourn to allow the opposition leaders and Ulster party to consider their attitude toward the bill.

The Ulster leaders will meet the Ulster premier, Sir James Craig, in conference in London tomorrow morning, when they will decide whether to move the rejection of the bill.

The general belief is that the bill will be passed without serious opposition in the house of commons this week and will be ratified in the house of lords and receive the royal sanction by the end of next week.

DEFENCES OF HOLY CITY NOW STRONGER

Mohammedan Fanatics Some Few Miles From the City

GOVERNMENT SEAT IS TRANSFERRED

British Government May Interfere; Treasures on Board Ship

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Advices received in diplomatic quarters tonight lead to the belief that while Mecca is seriously menaced by the besieging Wahabis, fanatical Mohammedan puritan reformers, the holy city is still being held by King Huusein, who is organizing for its defence. The Hedjas government, however, has been transferred to Jeddah.

The Daily Mail dispatch from Cairo says the Wahabis are still some miles from Mecca, and it is uncertain whether the city is their objective, although it is generally expected a battle will be fought.

Government Might Interfere

It is stated by authoritative sources that the British government might interfere should the pilgrim route be jeopardized.

So far, however, any interference has not been deemed necessary.

Large numbers of people are flocking from Mecca to Jeddah, and it is reported that state treasures have been safely conveyed on board a ship in the Red sea. The British minister at Mecca has moved to Jeddah, where the archives of the legation are being transferred.

Escaping the throng of angry worshipers who badly beat him and threatened to lynch him Ostrow later was arrested by the police.

In jail he said that the slaying was the result of business trouble between him and Denny, but refused to divulge his nature.

DIABETIC TREATMENT IS PROVEN COSTLY

In August last, which was the end of the first year of the free distribution of the treatment, 299 patients were being supplied.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—Premier Herriot has received another long letter from the British prime minister, Ramsay MacDonald, but as it is of a confidential and personal character, it was not made public, according to the Matin.

Mr. MacDonald writes particularly about questions arising out of the debates on the arbitration protocol at Geneva, as well as on the expressions of public opinion in France and England regarding the League of Nations. A large part of the letter is devoted to the problem of commercial relations between Germany and Great Britain on the one hand, and Germany and France on the other.

PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN NOW GETTING WARM

Davis and La Follette Plan Speaking Tours; Coolidge Has No Changes

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press)—With the presidential campaign throughout the United States swinging into its last stages, leading candidates were busy today putting the finishing touches on their plans for intensive drives in various sections of the country.

John W. Davis, the Democratic candidate, began preparations here today for the last big offensive in his campaign to return to his party the control of the federal government. That offensive will cover three general fields, the east, the middle west, and several of the border states. It will be inaugurated next Wednesday in Maryland and will end with a rally in New York City on the night of November 1.

LaFollette to Coast

Senator Robert M. LaFollette was busy at Washington mapping out the route and speaking points for an intensive campaign tour that will carry him to the Pacific coast. The major question as yet undecided is whether the third party or "Independent" candidate will make a swing through the eastern states and New England before starting the western tour or reserve that for the latter stages of the campaign.

Meanwhile, President Coolidge, Republican standard bearer, has given no indication that he is considering any change of his program for participation in the campaign. This has consisted so far of conferences with party leaders who have called on him, and deliverance of occasional speeches. In none of these has he mentioned directly the campaign, election or candidates.

Erect Monument to American Globe Circlers

SEATTLE, Sept. 29.—Plans are being made tonight by the six United States army lieutenants who completed the first circumnavigation of the globe here yesterday to leave Seattle at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning to attend the Pulitzer airplane races at Dayton, O.

A program of addresses concluded with a dedicatory talk by United States Senator Wesley L. Jones preceded the unveiling of a monument today at Sand Point aviation field erected in commemmoration of the first around-the-world airplane flight. The monument was erected by Mrs. Francis Cole of Spokane, sister of Lieut. Leslie Arnold, mechanic for Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, commander of the flight. Mrs. Cora Arnold, mother of Lieutenant Arnold, was present at the ceremony.

"We dedicate this shaft to tell the ages of their achievement," Senator Jones said in his address. "Let us hope that the journey which began and ended where this monument stands will intensify the interest of the people in air navigation, making it a blessing to civilization, and put an end to war and waste."

REGINA CITIZEN IS WINNER IN TEST CASE

Income Tax Assessment Argued Out; May Upset City Assessment

REGINA, Sept. 29.—Declaring that his decision was made on the grounds that the tax is discriminatory and unequal, "not accidentaly but deliberately so, and with the sanction and knowledge and authority of the city," Judge Hannon in district court today handed down a decision in favor of Albert E. Chant in his test case against the City of Regina regarding the income tax assessment for 1923.

The decision, if sustained in the appeal court, will upset the 1923 assessment in the city.

MURDER AROSE FROM ASSAULT CASE IN COURT

David Lew Was Acting for Prosecution in Case Still in Court

VANCOUVER, Sept. 29.—That the murder of David Lew in Chinatown arose out of case in which Lew was acting for the prosecution of a Chinese whose case is still before the court was the statement in police court this morning of Major W. M. McKay, crown prosecutor. Jung Chung Hoy, accused of assaulting and robbing a Chinese named Soo Lung Fung at 27 Pender street east, on August 23, appeared to answer to the charge. Major McKay made the statement on behalf of the police.

"We have information that the murder of David Lew arose directly out of this case," he said. He asked for a further remand of one week and this was granted. Jung is accused of attacking a fellow oriental with a hammer. The victim was taken to the hospital and is still suffering from his injuries.

David Lew was acting for friends of the victim Soo. It is stated that an offer was made to withdraw prosecution on payment of money, but friends of Jung refused to pay. Friends of Jung claim that effort was made to levy a tribute from them in order to save Jung.

Party politics shows all its seams in times like these.

"Proper Food and Exercise," by ARTHUR A. McGOVERN
Former physical director, Cornell Medical College

Moderation the best health habit

The Ideal Target for Your Daily Aim

IF we want to be youthful we will have to be moderate. This applies to everything we do in life. How many times have you heard the expression, "Tom Jones manages to keep so young," and you wonder what the secret is. Close investigation would most likely show that he lives what may be termed a regular life, moderate in eating, working and playing.

Digestions collapse from overeating. Physical, mental and nervous breakdowns are caused by overworking. The old proverb that "You cannot burn the candle at both ends" rings very true. Eight hours work, eight hours play, and eight hours sleep are ideals, and while they are impossible of attainment for a great many of us, we should try to live as closely to these rules as possible. We should at all times be moderate and conservative in our eating. We should weigh our food according to the amount of energy expended. The days we use little physical energy we should consume a small amount of food. The peculiar custom in this country is that on Sundays when we do not work and do not burn up our fuel we consume more food than we do on days when we are working hardest. Obviously this practice of the Sunday feast is all wrong from the standpoint of health.

When we consider that 75 per cent of the food consumed by the average individual must be eliminated as excess material, it does seem that we could very easily cut down the amount we are consuming by 50 per cent. If we would do this, think how much work it would take off our processes of eliminating. This is particularly desirable when we consider that only one person out of every 50 is capable of 100 per cent natural elimination. These facts make it evident that it is high time for us to become more conservative and equip ourselves with the most important health asset we can have, which is the habit of moderation.

Systematic exercise helps nature perform its duties by toning up the muscles, organs and circulation and, in order to derive the highest benefit from it, exercise must be applied with moderation. Many athletes have exercised themselves to an early grave by overdoing. The diet suggested below may be rightfully termed a moderate diet.

It contains all the food elements necessary to maintain our bodies in a healthy condition and at the same time obviates the danger of faulty elimination.

Example of a Moderate Diet

BREAKFAST: Grapefruit or orange juice, one egg boiled or poached, two graham, bran or corn muffins, coffee substitute, cocoa or weak tea. Between breakfast and lunch take two glasses of water.

LUNCHEON: A vegetable luncheon consisting of any of the following vegetables: spinach, peas, egg-plant, string beans, turnips, asparagus, corn. Glass of milk, dark bread, and for dessert rice or tapioca pudding. Between lunch and dinner three glasses of water.

DINNER: One helping of lean meat, fish or chicken, broiled, one green vegetable, a baked potato, be sure to eat the skin, and for dessert fresh fruit in season, nuts or crackers and cheese.

NORA LEE

Elenore Meherin's Greatest Story

Revealing the Heart and Soul of the 1924 Flapper

CHAPTER VIII.

The New Home

ndrew was coming—— ora Lee dashed the flurry of s from her eyes and read the hty words: "I'm coming—ar- tomorrow evening."

vening now. She rushed from kitchen, stuffing the yellow er in her pocket. She was trem- g with excitement—whisper the news in Margaret's ear—see wonderous smile again.

he door to her mother's room closed. When she tried to open latty's billowing form blocked the shold. She wouldn't let Nora go in.

Wait now, Missy—we can't make anxious—"

But Andrew is coming—I want ell her—"

No, she's too sick. She don't for nothing—" he child turned away, hiding her s. All day she had gone about cold bewilderment like a little e. She had fled in terror from garet's room because the quick, ed breaths were terrible to hear because once Margaret said —oh—" as though her side was ing out in pain.

hey told her Margaret might be g—her own mother dying and would be left so alone. Her rt thumped in awful heaviness, she kept seeing the flushed, ous look in those sweet, lovely .

nce when no one was there she leaned down and whispered: rmee—marmee—have you got dreadful pain?"

Margaret tried to smile. Her fin- opened for the child's hand. hen Nora Lee pleaded: "But you 't die, will you? What could I without you?"

ut now there was a tingling and rob of eager hope. She ran back the kitchen and out into the , clean dark. The wind whistled ugh the willow tree but high up the inky sky a gold star was ing. It looked so kind and gay watched it, thinking: "Oh, ry—hurry! If he would only e." She searched the wind- pt road, listening and listening. the distance a machine honked. headlights flashed and it came ing like a wild thing toward the .

ut she said: "Oh, get warm first ey'll make you do that. And you ht frighten her coming in so len. I guess I better tell her." he leaned at her mother's bed. said: "Marmee—what do you k? Oh, who do you think is ? Andrew, Marmee. He's come." argaret's eyelids f uttered. A dropped on that pained, tearing th. "Andrew—Andrew is here?" hen he came softly. The dark m and that old walnut bed were denly warmed as in a glow. He ched her hand and called, "Mar- et." Only that, but a thousand rts seemed melted in the word. er white, thin hands were trem- g, but she raised her yes. Light radiance passed upward. An- w dropped on his knees and ssed his face against her arm. It sad to see her hand touch soft- on his hair.

He seemed to cry—to call and call her.

he said between those rasping s: "Andrew—glad—so glad. I nted once—just once—to see you." fter a long while she added in stillest quiet: "Andrew, will you ch my Nora Lee?"

He got up then and took the chair ide her. He held her burning ds, his face whiter than hers. nothing was ever gentler than his voice. "Margaret—yet—I will do everything for her—for you."

She smiled. It spread like a great peaceful sweetness over the drawn, though they had some gracious thing to say. She dropped into a deep restfulness.

Andrew never left that chair. Once in the long night of waiting she moaned, "Stay—stay."

He stooped and pressed his lips to her forehead; on her half closed, flickering eyes. Because she smiled he murmured, "The long years, Margaret, love."

She answered, "Dear Andrew, oh, so long."

He took her two hands and folded them to his heart. She sank against him, peace in her troubled eyes. "Andrew—stay—stay with me—will you?"

"Oh, Margaret—"

Then again in the night: "I thought—that you—forgot—"

"Forgot! Oh forgot—" He murmured the hundred things that in these three years had crowded so upon his thoughts. He poured out the stifled love until the darkened room thronged with flame touched echoes.

She, lying there so worn, felt their glow like a sacred fire in her soul. When the morning came she drew his head down: "It is easy now—to die—"

"You will not die—no Margaret—I have not come for that."

Andrew stayed. There came a day that was a miracle of joy. All in a moment she was better. All in a moment the tearing pain was done. She was dropped from the hands of death, white and exhausted, but with such a gladness of relief even in the folding of her hands that Nora Lee burst into tears, watching her.

Andrew came into the kitchen and took the little girl in his arms. He said in a queer, laughing way. "I guess we won, Nora Lee!"

Margaret was better. Only the white shadow of her beauty touched now on her thin, drawn face. But she could look at them and smile. It was enough.

They stood about eagerly, waiting for her glance—waiting for her word—half fearing some unkown dread.

There was too much quiet in her eyes. Andrew said: "what is it, Margaret? What is it saddens you?"

She opened her hand with a wistful pathos. He guessed the thing that gnawed on her. She could not teach again. Not for a long, long time. She would have to go away and rest . . . be glad enough for life. This was what the doctor said.

She was very silent after this, sitting long hours with her eyes closed.

Till finally Andrew took her hand with that old, kind laugh of his. "Margaret—you've got to trust me—oh, honor me enough for this—let me serve you. Can't you take from me?"

"It is very hard, Andrew. It is almost too hard."

"Don't say that Margaret. You must know it is new life to me. I deserve this. Don't you think so? You must let me do these things for you."

She looked at her fragile hands. "I have no choice, it seems—not any—"

His face blanched. "Do you say it in this way, Margaret? Do you grant it so grudgingly?"

She didn't answer.

After a long while he asked: "Then your love for me is gone?"

"Ah!" Her hand went eagerly and touched along his arm. "Serve me, dear Andrew. I love you."

A week after this Andrew came in a big car. They had everything packed and ready. Nora Lee was wild with delight. She kissed Matty a dozen times and even old Chris goodbye. In her joy at leaving the valley she half loved it.

Margaret's eyes had a deep, sad glow about them. She looked out to the mountains. She said to Andrew with a faint, tragic smile: "They have the best of me, Andrew, I have fought—"

He turned his face away.

But all the way on that long, long ride he watched her as though his heart was breaking.

It was evening of the second day when their car drove onto a boat, and cross blue midnight waters a thousand lights were flung and many hills were dark against the sky.

They were coming to the city. Nora Lee squeezed hard at Andrew's arm. She said: "Marmee—my heart hurts! It's so glad!"

They drove out and out. They were in a great forest, it seemed, with the shadows massing and fog drifting through trees.

Finally they stopped. There was a small new house with the graceful eucalyptus swaying high above it. There were lights inside. Margaret didn't move.

Andrew said: "Ah—dearest—" She was very weak. He lifted her gently in his arms and carried her up the steps.

He said: "Dear love—this is your home—"

Her face sank down and hid against him.

POULTRY SHOW WILL BE HELD HERE SHORTLY

Wallach Show Superintendent; Will Appoint Judges for Three Shows

Arrangements for the annual show of the West Kootenay Poultry & Pet Stock association, to be held next month, were made at the meeting of the association held last night in the office of J. Goode, district poultry instructor. A show committee, show superintendent and judge's assistants were appointed, and first and second choice for a judge to make the rounds of the poultry shows at Nakusp, Nelson and Fernie was made.

The first choice fell on William Walker of New Westminster, and the second on J. Reid of Victoria. The associations at Nakusp and Fernie are to be written to, asking if they will confirm these choices, before any further action in the matter is taken.

It was stated at the meeting that, as the government grant had been cut from $260 to $180, the question of expense in connection with the show would have to be gone into very carefully.

A. Wallach was appointed as show superintendent, and the show committee will consist of A. Speirs, A. Atkinson, S. H. Smyth and T. Roynon. The judge's assistants will be R. Simpson and John Notman.

The show committee was delegated to look into special prizes, and it was announced last night that there would be classes in the prize list for the various boys' and girls' clubs.

The association will write to Grand Forks to ask if it will be possible to borrow pens for the local show again.

RADIO DANCE AT DEANSHAVEN

Nelson Club Members Hear Lecture on Super-Hetrodyne Sets

DEANSHAVEN, B.C., Sept. 29.—The first radio dance to be held in the Kootenays, with music quite loud enough for 12 couples to dance to, was given by Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Deane of Deanshaven when they entertained 18 members of the Nelson Radio club over the week-end. The sending station was KGO, Oakland, Cal., and dancing was kept up from 9:30 to midnight.

When the party reached Deanshaven in Mr Deane's launch they were entertained at dinner by Mrs. Deane, after which Mr. Deane gave a lecture on superhetrodyne sets and how to build them.

After this a radio concert was listened to, selections coming from Oakland, Cal.; Portland, Ore., and the sending station of the Province, Vancouver. Then followed the dance.

On Sunday the party spent most of the day on the lake fishing. Mrs. C. E. Chase of Nelson proved the most successful fisherman, and brought in three big trout.

The members of the club were brought to Procter by Mr. Deane, and later came down on the Crow boat.

EPERSON AND BRANT RECEIVE FIRE HALL JOB

Will Install New Tubular Boilers; Other Tenders Were Received

NEW PLUMBING BYLAW PASSED

City Engineer Reports on Work Done; Agree on Tax Matters

The Kootenay Plumbing company (Eperson & Brant) received the tender for the new boilers to be installed in the fire hall, at the meeting of the city council held last night. Their price was $690 for 700 cubic feet and $775 for 800 cubic feet Birchfield tubular boilers. The B.C. Plumbing & Heating company, which also tendered, asked $792 for 700 cubic feet and $958 for 800 cubic feet for the same make and style of boilers.

A great deal of discussion of the respective merits of tubular and sectional boilers took place before the tender was given, with Alderman A. I. Austin very much in favor of the tubular ones.

The fire, water and light committee will deal with an application to buy 200 feet of waterfront for a proposed launch club, from J. T. Pierre.

A letter from Mrs. Agnes Heddle, asking that a certain clump of cottonwood trees be cut down, was read at last night's meeting. These trees, she stated, were at the northeast corner of Behnsen and First street, and were a grave menace to life and property, especially in a windstorm, and she thought they should be removed. As their tops were among the city wires, she suggested that they should be cut down only by the city's experienced linemen. The matter was left in the hands of the power, water and light committee.

A report of the work done in the two weeks ending September 27, under the supervision of the city engineer, John A. Ferguson, was read. This consisted of the making of a new entrance to the auto park and necessary clearing, at a cost of $79.25; removing an old sidewalk at Forest Mills, and filling in with cleanings from the quarry, at $77.50; making a four-foot gravel walk on Behnsen street, from Nelson avenue to Second street, at a cost of $79.25; renewing the bridge over Cottonwood creek on Silica street, with one stringer, new deck and railings, at $89; making a gravel walk on North street to Davies, and 105 feet northerly on Second street, at a cost of $85.50; grading Hendryx street for 120 feet southerly from Baker, at a cost of $47.60.

Mr. Ferguson also reported that the roller had been repaired and would be at work again today on Victoria street, and that work had been started on the facing of the stone walls for the bridge on Railway street from Cottonwood creek.

Tax Matters

With reference to the tax sale being held today, W. E. Wasson, city clerk, read a letter from James O'Shea, city solicitor, dealing with the question of certain parcels of land belonging to members of the allied forces, on which both municipal and provincial taxes were owing, and which in the ordinary course of events would come into the hands of the city for tax sale. Mr. O'Shea gave it as his opinion that the city might take over the lands on tax sale, but would then owe the provincial taxes.

On the motion of Alderman George Turner, seconded by Alderman A. S. Horswill, the matter will be taken up with the inspector of taxation in Victoria and with the member for Nelson, before any action is taken by the city in regard to these pieces of land.

Bylaws 406 and 407, which dealt with the selling of city lots, and Bylaw 408, dealing with the city regulations concerning plumbing, received their final readings, and were passed by the council.

Henry Ford thinks that in time the use of tea, coffee and tobacco will die out. Possibly he figures that taking Lizzie out will be dissipation enough to satisfy the world.

PRINCE TIRED AFTER STRENUOUS DAY

Retires Early After Hearing Special Radio Program From Calgary

HIGH RIVER, Alta., Sept. 29.—After a hard seven to eight-hours' work stooking the oats on his ranch near here this morning and afternoon, Alberta's royal rancher this evening, tired by his strenuous labor, sank into an easy chair, relaxed and listened to the special broadcast from radio CNRC in Calgary.

The prince spent what might be termed a quiet day, but it certainly was one of the most strenuous he ever experienced. He was really tired after dinner this evening, and did not move out of his ranch house, retiring shortly after the conclusion of the radio broadcast.

Tomorrow there will be gathered at the ranch an historic group of men, one of the most remarkable aggregations ever assembled for the prince is to entertain many western old-timers, pioneers and Empire builders who helped build the west. He will also do some range riding tomorrow.

A Monroe Doctrine for the Seas

The proposal that a sort of Monroe doctrine should be applied to the seas by Great Britain and the peace of the seas enforced by the British navy is meeting with considerable approval in the United States. The Detroit News, for example, says:

The British proposal to the League of Nations that the British Navy be given carte blanche to police the seas in the interest of the public peace ought not to be condemned without examination.

One of the weaknesses of the league in the opinion of many is that it has no armed force under its control, to act immediately in case of a threat of war which violates the covenant of the league. Such people believe that if the league had the power to nip a war in the bud and compel arbitration, the problem of how to secure international peace would be solved.

Now comes Great Britain with the proposal that her navy be used for this purpose. Certainly there are not more than two nations—the United States being one of them, Japan the other—that would not hesitate to begin war rather than arbitrate, if they knew they would have to tackle the British fleet at the very outset.

Touching on the questions: What security would the world possess against Great Britain herself? What if the arbitration-compeller herself refused to arbitrate? What is the meaning of the conditions which Great Britain attaches to her offer?—the Detroit paper says:

Perhaps Great Britain can give ready answers to these questions. First, her scheme interferes in no way with the freedom of the United States to use our own navy as we see fit. Second, Great Britain is bound by treaty with America, with Japan and with France to limit her greater ships and their armament. If we will it, she can never have a more powerful navy than our own. Third, it can make little difference to us what concessions various members of the league may make regarding search and seizure, since those treaties do not affect us.

If Great Britain is given the right to stop incipient wars and enforce arbitration on behalf of the league, we can recall that the United States for a century has claimed a similar right as between European nations and the republics of this continent. By the Monroe Doctrine we put the bar of our army and navy between the eastern and western hemispheres, and in 100 years there has been but a single invasion of western territory—that of Mexico by Maximilian while we were engaged in civil war. Our protest, on that occasion, backed by an army headed toward Mexico, caused France to withdraw her support from Maximilian, and the Mexicans did the rest. If Europe is willing to allow the British navy to become her international police force on that side of the earth, who knows but that the results will be just as happy for the old world as those of the Monroe Doctrine have been for the new?

A Bath in the Bathtub

An old medical journal declares that the first bathtubs, installed in Cincinnati in 1842, were a menace to health.

The year following, an ordinance in Philadelphia prohibited bathing between November 1 and March 15, while Boston made it unlawful to bathe except when prescribed by a physician.

Virginia tried to stop the installing of bathtubs by taxing them $30 a year.

How about it, regular Saturday-nighters?

War Scares

One of the German generals has written a book about what he calls the War of 1930.

The funny thing about his schedule is that he assumes the first embroilment will be between England and Japan. After that he figures out a scrap in the way of an invasion of Poland by Russia.

Then something will come up to compel an attack upon Belgium by Germany, and then France will come in with a death-ray machine that will snuff out the lives of 500,000 people in 48 hours.

They will virtually obliterate Berlin from the map.

It is at least a notable concession from a German authority that Germany is to get the worst of it.

It would seem to be a rather simple task for the League of Nations to head off the major portion of the embattlements thus indicated.

Mrs. T. L.—Kindly tell Mrs. H.B.S. (who wrote to your column) that if she will add one teaspoon of ice water and one tablespoon of sugar to each white of an egg before beating they will be fluffy and beat much quicker. Here is a cake recipe which other women might like:

My Dream Cake—Break two eggs into a mixing bowl. Beat till light, then add one cup of granulated sugar very gradually, beating well and constantly. Now beat for 5 minutes steadily. Add the juice of one lemon mixed with one tablespoon of cold water and stir in one rounded cup of flour which has been sifted with one teaspoon of baking powder and in pinch of salt. Bake in a square greased tin for 40 minutes in a moderate oven.

Answer—Thank you for sending us this material.

C.K.—What will remove a grease spot from a wool jersey dress?

Answer—Gasoline, benzine or chloroform. Do not use these fluids near heat or flame.

E.R.—Some time ago a reader asked for these directions for crocheting bead chains:

Materials are six bunches of beads of any desired color and one roll of crochet thread of the same color. String all the beads on the crochet thread, then wind on the spool, leaving 6 inches of thread to 1 inch of beads. Push beads solid toward end of thread till you have 6 inches of solid beads, then take a stitch at the end of the 6 inches, which will make a loop 3 inches long. Repeat, slipping a bead between each stitch till you have five loops, then fasten the thread in the first stitch; this will make a ring of five stitches at the top of these loops, with a bear between each stitch, or five beads. Continue working around this ring, using a bead in each stitch and putting the stitch to the right of the bead. There will be one bead dropped down lower than the rest (do not miss this stitch, but pick it up). Repeat till chain is long enough, then crochet the end to top of tassel. Where smaller or larger size chain is desired use less or greater number of stitches.

Answer—It was very kind of you to send us these directions.

Answer to B.B.—Send me a stamped self-addressed envelope, and I will mail you the information which did not appear in your paper.

Tomorrow — Some Good French Recipes.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman in charge of "Efficient Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. Be sure to use your full name, street number, and the name of your city and province.

WIFE BOUGHT AND PAID FOR, HE CONTENDED

San Bernardino Woman Asks Separation; His Honeymoon Remark

SAN BERNARDINO, Sept. 29.—"Why I own you—I bought and paid for you yesterday," John Scealey, wealthy orange grower of Mentone, told his wife Virginia Scealey on the day after their wedding last July, she charges in a suit for separate maintenance on file in the superior court.

The action comes as a bitter disillusionment of her dreams of happiness in the afternoon of life. Both Mrs. Scealey and her wealthy mate are middle aged.

Mrs. Scealey states in the complaint that she was married on July 16, 1924. It was on the next day that she was told she had been "bought and paid for," she adds. She did not leave the Scealey ranch, one of the most valuable in the Mentone district, until a month later and then only after life with her husband had become unendurable. Twice he threatened to kill her, Mrs. Scealey charges, once with a razor and again with a rifle.

Mrs. Scealey asks that she be awarded $100 per month maintenance, she does not ask that a divorce be granted. Mrs. Scealey resided in Los Angeles before her marriage. Scealey is widely known in the valley. He has resided in the Mentone district for 35 years and is reputed to be wealthy, owning an orange ranch said to be worth $50,000.

Styles

BY LENORE

That little girls fashions follow closely the styles designed for their mothers is very well known; that they are becoming as sophisticated in their way as adult fashions, we are learning to accept, but that they should so charmingly express the very spirit of youth, for all their sophistication, is delightfully surprising.

You have no doubt read a great deal about the vogue for plaids in the fall and winter fashions. The fashion is well expressed in the little model sketched above, a frock which any little girl would love for school, for play, for all-around wear. It is, as the sketch shows, a separate skirt cut circular, with the wide scalloped band which buttons on to the linen blouse, a decorative as well as a useful detail. There are reds and greens in the plaid, you may be sure, and a wee stripe of yellow as well.

A little more naive in character is the golero frock worn by the other little lady in the illustration. Dark blue velveteen this is, with an underbodice and collar of palest blue crepe de chine.

That Body of Yours

The Set of Your Will

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright act.)

I came across this little verse the other day.

"One ship sails east, and another west
With the very same wind that blow,
'Tis the set of the sails, and not the gales,
That tells them the way to go."

I wanted to just add this as the second part:

"Like the winds of the sea, are the ways of health,
As we voyage along through life;
'Tis the set of your will that brings good or ill,
And not the calm or the strife."

You will remember in discussing the wonderful vitality of Cauncey Depew, that he made use of that same idea when he said, "I had the will to do what was wise in regard to my habits of life."

He had the will not only to lay out certain definite plans of health, but the will to carry them out.

He knew what food agreed with him and let the other kinds go. He certainly had abundant opportunities for finding this out, when we remember his formal dinners, five nights a week for years.

He had the will also to leave the banquet hall in time to be home by 11o,clock at night, thus ensuring his night's rest.

Now just as this rule applies in good health, so does it apply when you are below par physically.

As was mentioned once before, you can be an optimist to such an extreme that you will ignore definite signs that something is wrong with you.

Where does that get you? It makes it harder for you to get back to health after the cause is discocered.

The set of your will simply made you more ill, instead of better, because common sense was lacking.

Or you may be a pessimist and let the winds or ways of every slight indisposition cause you to feel that you are seriously ill, and you worry in proportion thereto.

The captain, sailing his vessel, knows his vessel, and what it can do, in light or heavy winds, or even in a hurricane.

You should know your body pretty well, and how use or abuse it can stand.

It really isn't a case of knowledge or ignorance often when things go wrong with your body.

Isn't that true?

It is your will, the set of your will that brings good or ill.

That is likewise true, isn't it?

Tea and Carnation

YOUR favorite cup of tea will be greatly improved when served with Carnation Milk. Use it diluted—one part Carnation, three parts water. Then you will always keep Carnation handy for "tea-time".

Carnation is just pure fresh milk, evaporated to double richness, kept safe by sterilization. Not only safe but convenient and economical. Order several tall (16 oz.) cans or a case of 48 cans from your grocer. Write for a free copy of Carnation Recipe Book.

How to use Carnation Milk in Tea and Coffee

In Tea: To retain the full, fine flavour of the tea, dilute Carnation Milk with three parts water.

In Coffee: To give your cup of coffee an appetizing flavor with a golden brown color, use Carnation undiluted as it comes from the container. A teaspoonful is enough—use more if desired.

INSTITUTE PLEASED WITH FAIR RETURNS

After All Expenses Paid There Will Be Small Balance; Withdraw From Conference

PASSMORE, B.C., Sept. 29.—At the regular monthly meeting of the Slocan Valley Women's institute the question of sending a delegate to the conference was brought up, and it was decided not to send a delegate this time. Business in connection with the exhibit at the Nelson fair was discussed, the members being well satisfied with the result. After all expenses are paid there will be a small balance. A whist drive and dance was arranged for.

GEORGE LITTLE CRESTON DADDY DIES SUDDENLY

Man Who Staked Townsite Succumbs to Heart Attack

WAS IN CRESTON IN NINETY-TWO

Creston People Turn Out to Biggest Funeral in History

CRESTON, B.C., Sept. 29.—Creston and district was in deepest mourning over the week-end out of respect for Frederick George Little, the founder of Creston, who died suddenly at his home here on Saturday evening from an attack of heart failure, from which trouble, he had suffered acutely for some time past.

Deceased, who was in his 75th year, was a native of Plymouth, England, coming to Canada with his parents when but a boy, his father being a divisional official of the Grand Trunk railway system with headquarters at Thorold, Ont.

Shortly after completing his public school course he left for the United States and at a number of centers served as brakeman, conductor, yard superintendent, as well as having charge of construction crews, until 1880, when he returned to Canada, arriving at Victoria in September of that year; and, after some 12 months in the government employ, he was made superintendent of construction on the main line of the Canadian Pacific railway, west of Kamloops, working under Engineer Keefer.

Worked at Reclamation

In 1885 he was again employed by Mr. Keefer in the construction of the Matsqui dyke in the Fraser valley, between Mission and Chilliwack, and in 1892 Mr. Keefer transferred him to the Kootenays to take charge of construction of the dyke that was started in that year in an effort to reclaim many thousands of acres in the Kootenay flats adjacent to Creston, but the very high waters in the Kootenay in 1894 destroyed most of the works and the project was abandoned.

It was in April, 1892, that the late Mr. Little, in company with John W. Dow, who is still resident here and was working at Pilot Bay at the time, journeyed to the bench adjoining the flats and each staked a quarter-section of land—both quarters becoming part of the present Creston village, Mr. Little's holdings becoming the townsite in 1899, on which the Canadian Pacific railway Crow's Nest branch, which was built through here that year, erected their station and laid out their yards.

First Fruit Rancher

After work on the dyke ceased Mr. Little proceeded to develop part of his holdings as a fruit ranch, and was the first man in the district to attempt fruit growing as a commercial proposition.

Associated with him on the townsite property was Major Mallandaine, who came here in 1895 in charge of the survey of the Kootenay Valley branch of the Great Northern railway between Kuskanook and Porthill, Idaho. Later Mr. Little and Major Mallandaine put in the Great Mountain Water Works system, which supplies the town with its domestic water, and he was also a charter shareholder of the Creston Cemetery company.

The funeral took place this afternoon, and was the largest evere seen in Creston, the large turnout of friends and the many floral tributes bespeaking the high esteem in which the pioneer citzene was held. The funeral services were in charge of Rev. H. Varley, rector of Christ church.

BOSWELL GIVES FAREWELL DANCE

Mrs. James Sutherland Is Honored Before Departure to Cranbrook

BIDDY PASSES DOGGY PORTALS; INTO ELYSIUM?

Little Canine Mother Was Beyond Reproach; Is She Free and Happy?

"Poor Biddy!"

Being Irish, what name could be more appropriate And Biddy was as pleased with that name as she would have been with any other. She was well behaved; a friend of all; and although at times she had to be spoken to sharply, it was as soon forgotten, and she was as willing to forget our sharp words as we were to utter them—even though at times our judgment may have been at fault.

Now you have gone, we have time to recall the many pleasant times together; your eager endeavors to please, and your patient bearing, even with the rough ways of the children.

They miss you as we do, and although you looked to us as master and mistress, that was merely an applied term. We prefer to look to your associations with us as a friend, a true friend, one whom we miss and one whom we shall always regret.

The Children Want You

The children keep asking for you, and have overheard part of our conversation; but there are some things we do not consider that young children should hear. We have explained the matter by saying, they "can never see Biddy again; she has gone away, but we will retain one of her puppies."

It would be too bad to let them know how I found you.

Far better that age and experience should bring to their attention to what depths of vileness human agency can stoop.

Only a Dog!

You were only a dog, but you harmed no one; and, as I picture to myself your dying moments, my grief is great.

You are gifted with a certain amount of intelligence, and a greater instinct than we humans. That inherent instinct keeps you away from poisons; but the fiendish subtlety of us humans overcomes your aversion, by ways and means beyond the knowledge of your kind. You tasted, and you had an agonizing death; and why?

It is this point that I am now about to discuss, appointing myself judge, jury and counsel, and briefly summing up.

Your character is beyond reproach; you were obedient, friendly, approachable by all, and semper fidelis. Yet you are made to suffer such horrible agonies through no fault of your own. I could not have borne to see you suffer as you must have suffered, and would have put you out of pain had I been there.

When I placed you in the ground, I had the same feeling as permeates the system when one sees for the last time a real friend. There was no prayer nor petty trappings, such as we mortals adopt, irrespective of what type of life we have led; you were buried as a hero, an unwilling martyr, and the only prayer I said was:

"Poor Biddy!"

When I consider the hypocritical methods of man, the lavish trappings, the tears and the prayers, and, to crown all, the tombstone, with its beautiful and, in most cases, lying epitaph, it makes one wonder: Are we so superior to our friend, the dog? "Poor Biddy," you have real friends who mourn you, and trust that you, who had a blameless life, may also reap a reward; that same soul or substance which animates our being, performed a similar function in your case.

A Canine Hereafter

We look for reward later on, trusting that our life and actions here on earth will eventually bring us to the "pearly gates" and into the city whose streets are paved with gold.

Your soul, or that which left your body, has now passed on, and I hope you have found your "Elysium." No pearly gates, and glittering gold to tire your eyes, but fields and woods, and plenty of clear, sparkling water: there you would be happy, and so should I.

Who knows? What we think we know may be all wrong; and asking ourselves the question, we may as well admit the truth, "that it is fear of punishment that causes most of us to keep the straight and narrow road."

Like Socrates of old, my reason dictates to me: "There is no death; what seems so is transition; the breath of mortal life is but a passing to the life elysium, whose portals we call death."

And, summing up in your favor, Biddy, let's hope you are free and happy where you are, and that the agonies of the damned may be the just retribution of the agency responsible for your death.

BIDDY'S FRIEND.

Kootenay, Sept. 22, 1924.

Bellevue Star May Play Hockey for Calgary Team

CALGARY, Sept. 29.—Rege Mackie of last year's Bellevue team, Alberta amateur champions, will get a chance with the Calgary Tigers, and it is likely that Holmes, of Brandon will hustle with the cow town boys when they start training with the hope of catching a place. Holmes is a big husky boy with a lot of speed when he is in shape, and shoots true.

Calgary will not have artifical ice next winter as was at first hoped, and as a result, it will be neceecery for the Tigers to train either at Winnipeg or Vancouver. It is not certain which end of the country Manager Turner will select.

Traffic police assigned to stop speeding have radio transmitters and receivers on their cars. A message from one cop to another farther down the road enables the second to be ready for the speeder when he arrives.

Some of the largert broadcasting stations over the United States are arranging a radio vaudeville circuit. Actors and actresses have been signed up so that, when they strike a city including one of the stations in the circuit, they will broadcast their skill.

Kick From Horse Fatal

VANCOUVER, Sept. 29.—Injured by kick from horse while in her father's barn at Silverdale, Murray Helen Horn, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marmaduke Horn died in the Royal Columbian hospital, New Westminister.

VANCOUVER, Sept. 29.—That W. G. Gillis, master of auxiliary schooner, Beryl G., and his son William, both of Vancouver, were murdered by highjackers, and that their bodies never will be found, is the belief of police.

It is established that 350 cases of liquor were loaded on the Beryl G. in Strait of Juan de Fuca on September 13. The craft was found derelict off Stuart island. There were bullet marks, blood stained vest and cap and other evidences of a struggle on board.

This is the first crime laid to the door of modern pirates in the Pacific, but in past victims have been men whose comings and goings were known to but a small circle of waterfront underworld characters, and whose disappearance has been taken philosophically.

Pleased at Agreement

VANCOUVER, Sept. 29.—Business men are pleased that federal government has effected a trade agreement with Australia. Extension in pulp and paper canned fish and box shooks with south is expected. Vancouver is expected to receive dairy products, meats, hides, wool and dried fruits from Antipodes.

His name was given to police, but is being withheld pending investigation. Meanwhile arrangements are under way to give slain Chinaman a huge funeral as soon as his brother arrives from New York.

Police fearing that this may be signal for reprisals will take extra precautions.

Students Favor Barnyard Golf Over Baseball

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Sept. 29.—Horshoe pitching is more popular than baseball with University of Michigan students participating in intramural athletics, statistics compiled by Fielding H. Yost, director of athelics, have revealed.

The report shows that 670 found diversion in the ancient and honorable game of barnyard golf, while only 150 sought to emulate Ty Cobb or Babe Ruth.

Of more than 8000 students participating in the intramural sports, 1300 have shown a favoritism for basketball, and 1178 for playing ball. Speedball, drawing 900, comes next in line, and bowling with 717 students, regularly on the alleys is fourth.

Gymnastics was the least popular, only 35 participating. Indoor baseball attracted but 50.

CONSERVATIVES TAKE STEPS TO ARRANGE MEET

Organization Committee to Make General Survey of Province

KAMLOOPS MAKES CONVENTION BID

Recent Events Has Cast Trusteeship Upon Party, Say Leaders

VANCOUVER, Sept. 29.—At a meeting of the executive of the provincial Conservatives here Saturday no date was set for the provincial convention, but an organization committee was instructed to make immediate survey of the various ridings as a preliminary step.

A resolution from Kamloops that the convention be held there was considered, but no action taken. At close of session the following statement was issued by R. H. Pooley and R. L. Maitland.

"We approached our discussion with an appreciation of the fact that recent events have cast upon the Conservative party a special trusteeship of interests of 68 per cent of the electorate who on June 20 gave a verdict in favor of ending a period of misrule, accorded to the province by the Oliver government."

"That trusteeship has been emphasized since the general election. Failure of the citizens of Nelson to rally behind a fusion candidate and the manner in which all opposition elements in north Okanagan were united in support of a Conservative candidate indicate clearly that the people of British Columbia look to the Conservative party as the only medium through which they can be rid of an administration against which they voted 68 per cent strong last June."

"That government stands convicted by the electors, of gross extravagance in its expenditures and borrowings in that it has increased the annual budget and public debt by approximately 300 per cent in eight years of office, in scandalously lax administration of law, of brazen disregard of public interest where that interest clashed with party patronage, and of mismanagement of huge public enterprises such as its various land settlement and reclamation projects. To all these has been added an indictment of its gross abuse of election privileges."

"These were the issues raised in the general election and the verdict was against the government. Unfortunately owing to multiplicity of candidates the effect of that verdict was lost and at our meeting today we felt that, in view of the two by-elections, the responsibility devolved upon the Conservative party of striving by every just and proper means to make the real verdict of the June election effective at the earliest possible moment, in interests of future prosperity and good name of British Columbia."

Present at the meeting were President R. L. Maitland, Secretary J. E. Carpenter, R. H. Pooley, M.L.A., Hon. S. F. Tolmie, M.P.; Hon. H. H. Stevens, M.P.; Brig.-Gen. J. A. Clark, M.P.; W. J. Bowser, K.C.; H. J. Edmonds, Nelson Lougheed, D. W. Rowlands, Jack Loutet, Mrs. S. D. Scott, T. H. Kirks, S. L. Howe, E. Bush, R. A. Braden and other representatives of various parts of the province.

Hon. Dr. Tolmie reviewed the political situation throughout Canada and the prospects in Yale, while Hon. Mr. Stevens and Mr. Pooley reviewed the north Okanagan byelection. An organization committee delegated to make the survey of the province, consists of Messrs. Kirk, Howe, Hodgson and Lougheed, in cooperation with Messrs. Maitland and Pooley. One of the organization steps proposed was the cleaning up of voters lists, which were alleged to be clogged with the names of dead and absentee voters.

PRICE OF NEWSPRINT DROPS IN QUEBEC

MONTREAL, Sept. 29.—One of the largest newsprint mills in the province of Quebec has reduced the price of paper for 1925 to $70 a ton, a reduction of $3. There is little doubt that all the mills will follow suit. Some of the smaller companies have been selling at that price to American customers for some, although other mills preferred to reduce production rather than cut prices.

Toronto Banks Are Ransacked by Experts on Vault Combinations

TORONTO, Sept. 29.—Thieves with an apparently expert working knowledge of vault combinations, entered the office buildings of the Dominion bank, King and Yonge, and Excelsior Life building, Adelaide and Victoria streets, over the week-end, opened two storage vaults, smashed the combinations off two safes and got less than $300 for their trouble.

The puzzling thing is that they were able to enter such large buildings and make their way to different offices and work unmolested, in one instance the vault was in the open corridor.

Vaults were opened in the offices occupied by the Manufacturers' Life Insurance company, the Union Lumber company, Featherstonehaugh & Co., and the British American Oil company.

The buildings entered are among the highest in the city.

Herring fishing off the coast of Scotland has the aid of radio and airplanes. The planes, with transmitting sets, spot the fish and transmit the information to the waiting boatmen. That simplifies and speeds the entire industry.

Some men's popularity is due to their ability to conceal their thoughts.

o stab putts is bad practice on y kind of a green, especially on w or rough greens. A putt hit h an overspin is always easier control. On a rough green the t with an overspin will keep its e better, tending to roll right r the bumps and keep a straight rse, while a stab putt is hit with re of a cut and every bump it s might make it kick further off line. Try a more pendulum ng, hitting up at the ball.

SENATORS WIN FIRST PENNANT IN FORTY YEARS

Red Sox Fall Before League Leaders; Is Fitting Climax

WIN GREAT CREDIT TO YOUTHFUL MANAGER

Walter Johnson, Too, Is Hero of Spectacular Pennant Chase

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Washington today clinched the first pennant it has had since breaking into the big league exactly 40 years ago and, as the flag-bearer of the American, will fight it out with the New York Giants, four times National league champions, in the world's series starting next Saturday at the capitol city.

By defeating the Boston Red Sox this afternoon the Senators brought to a climax one of the spectacular diamond campaigns in the history of baseball and accomplished the downfall of the New York Yanks, once proud world's champions who tonight repose irrevocable in second place two and one-half games behind the leaders.

The Yanks have two games to play with Philadelphia tomorrow while Washington has one more with the Red Sox; but, regardless of the outcome of these, Miller Huggins must step off the American league throne after a three-year reign in favor of Stanley Harris, pilot of the Senators and the youngest manager who ever led a major league club to victory.

Dramatic Achievement

Washington's rise this year under the aggressive leadership of the 28-year-old Harris, a major leaguer only five years and experiencing his first managerial test, is one of the most dramatic achievements in baseball annals. This fighting youngster will meet one of the greatest strategists of the game when he takes the field against John McGraw, gray-haired "master mind" of the Giants.

Sharing the glory of Washington's triumph with Harris are Walter Johnson, one of the greatest pitchers of all time, and Clark Griffith, now president and formerly manager of the club. In his 18th season Johnson has been the mainstay of the team's twirling corps, and will realize a life-long ambtion to pitch in a world's series. Griffith, the "old fox," is credited with being the man behind the gun in the Senator's campaign and having had much to do with the club's sucessful strategy.

Slow but Sure Climb

Washington climbed slowly but surely to the top. From seventh place after a month of campaigning in May they rose to fourth position the middle of June and to second on July 19. Shortly afterward they had a brief experience at setting the pace, only to have the Yanks sweep back to the top. The Senators clung to second position until August 28, when they dislodged the Yanks with an 11-to-5 victory over the Huggins men. Thereafter Washington was never headed. That last series with New York here, in which Washington took three out of four games, proved the turning point of the race. It gave the Senators the added bit of confidence they needed for the final dash and took something of the edge off the Yankee hopes.

LEWIS THROWS GOBAR TWICE IN SUCESSION

Hindu Grappler, However, Extends World's Champion in Vancouver Bout

VANCOUVER, Sept. 29.—Edward (Strangler) Lewis, heavyweight wrestling champion of the world, demonstrated to some 2500 enthusiasts here tonight just why he is champion of the world, when he conquered Jatrinda Gobar, giant Hindu grappler, with his torturing headlock, after one of the most spectacular and hardest fought contests ever seen on a Vancouver mat.

Lewis won in straight falls, nailing his opponent for the first fall in 46 minutes and 15 seconds after Gobar had him on the defensive for most of the way. The second fall came very quickly in something the same manner as the first when the champion got his deadly headlock working and slowly but surely pushed his worthy opponent to the mat after six and a half minutes of action.

Gobar no Slouch

Though Lewis gained the verdict he did not show a marked superiority over the Hindu in the finer points of the art as for the greater part of the time he was kept busy squirming out of dangerous holds. Gobar, though defeated, proved himself a polished grappler. He had the champion in agony on several occasions with the toe hold and gave the American a warm time with a hand grip, a special hold taught him by his manager, Emil Klank, which caused Lewis a lot of trouble in the early part of the contest. But Gobar could not withstand the famous headlock which has brought victory to Lewis in so many of his memorable battles and finally succumbed after a terrific struggle to escape the deadly hold.

FORSEES GREATER TRADE POSSIBILITY

Senator Boyer of Canada in England After Tour of South Africa

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Senator Gustave Boyer of Canada, who arrived at Southampton today in company with J. H. Thomas, colonial secretary, and Sir Douglas Birtish, M.P., members of the Empire parliamentary association, who recently toured South Africa, in an interview said he foresaw a possibility of a large extension of trade between Canada and South Africa. Senator Boyer specially referred to the possibility of Canada taking far larger quantities of South Africa dried fruit and oranges than is the case at present. He expressed the hope that reciprocal trade arrangements might be made between South Africa and Canada, the latter being always a pioneer in interdominion reciprocity.

After drawing a parallel between the racial problems of South Africa and Canada, Senator Boyer said he was convinced that whatever party was in power in South Africa, the latter dominion would continue solidly in favor of remaining a member of the British commonwealth. Incidentally the senator mentioned that he had been favorably impressed with the privileges and rights enjoyed by the Dutch in South Africa.

Mrs. Helen Hopwood of Minneapolis Marries Canadian

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 29.—Mrs. Helen Hopwood, divorced wife of Warren Hopwood, one of the heirs to the Charles J. Gates' estate, will leave Minneapolis tonight on her honeymoon with George A. Carruthers Jr. of Winnipeg, to whom she was married Saturday. Mr. Carruthers is a grandson of the late James Carruthers of Montreal, who died September 19. Few acquaintances knew the marriage was planned. Mr. and Mrs. Carruthers will reside in Canada.

Warren Hopwood, who said today "she is a friend of mine and Mr. Carruthers is too" was not at the ceremony, but knew it was planned and approved of the marriage, he said. A son, Jack Hopwood, aged 10, will stay with his father in Minneapolis for a time, Mr. Hopwood said, but the boy may later join Mr. and Mrs. Carruthers in Canada.

The Hopwoods were divorced about five years ago. Mr. Hopwood is a brother of Mrs. Florence Hopwood Gates, later Mrs. Florence Judd, who inherited most of the fortune of "Bet-a-million Gates."

Motherwell Says Racing Season Must Be Shortened

VANCOUVER, Sept. 29.—Horse racing must be curtailed, states Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture, when told about the situation in British Columbia, where when days of racing were limited the law was defeated by forming many new racing associations, strongly suspected of being run by the same capital and parties. The minister suggests that an absolute limit for all meets in aggregate be set.

A strong campaign is under way here headed by retail merchants to curb the length of the season. Merchants declare they suffer most from money wagered at meets.

RAILROAD SHARES ARE BOUGHT UP

Industrials Sluggish; Atchison Highest Since 'Sixteen

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Stock prices turned reactionary in today's market after an early period of firmness, and was featured by the active buying of several railroad shares. Except for the marking-up of the call money rates from 2 to 3 per cent, which was generally believed to be temporary and due to the usual shifting of funds at the end of the month, there was nothing in the day's news to account for the selling movement.

Standard industrials were sluggish throughout most of the session. United States Steel common opened ⅝ lower at 108¾, advanced to a new high on the movement at 109½, slipped back to 107¾ and closed at 107⅞ off 1¾. Losses of a point or more also were recorded by American Can, Anaconda, Baldwin, Dupont, Kennecott Copper, United States Cast Iron Pipe, United States Industrial Alcohol and dozens of other issues. American Water Works common broke nearly 9 points to 116¼, and net losses of 3 points or more took place in General Electric, General Baking and Nash Motors.

Oil shares continued to reflect the depressing influence of further crude oil price cuts.

Atchison Goes Up

Atchison was in good demand in the early trading, touching 109, the highest price since 1916, on rumors of special dividend developments, but it eased later to 107¾.. Frisco preferred touched a new high at 30¾, but forfeited part of its gain in the late trading.

Consolidated Gas continued its sensational climb, touching another new high at 149 and then slipping back to 148, up 2¼ on the day.

A firmer tone prevailed in the time money market, with some 90-day funds being quoted ¼ higher at 3 per cent.

Total sales, 892,000 shares.

of the series dealing with the establishment of the BANK OF MONTREAL at representative points in CANADA and elsewhere

IN PARIS

THE PARIS subsidiary of the Bank of Montreal is situated in a quarter rich in historic interest.

From a lofty column in Place Vendôme the statue of Napoleon looks out upon an imposing square the construction of which began in 1686 under authority of Louis XIV.—a square which has witnessed many of the city's greatest demonstrations and which now mirrors the social and business life of Paris.

Here, in the heart of the capital of France, the Bank of Montreal in 1919 established a subsidiary office in the Ritz Hotel Building. In February, 1922, the business of this office had become so extensive that enlarged quarters were opened near by, at No. 6 Place Vendome.

Money AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments

How much longer are you going to work?

A man owes it to himself to build an estate which will take care of him in comfort after his productive days are over. It should be an estate which will allow him to have some kind of a home.

There are many rather simple and easy plans whereby an estate can be built up to take care of expenses in later life. If you will go to any good bank there will be a man there who will be glad to show you how to start building for your future income.

The plans which these bankers will outline will entail some saving and work on your part—the plans are not intended to be "get rich quick" schemes. They are efficient, however, in assuring you financial independence.

Consult your banker today on how you can assure yourself a steady income in the future. It makes no difference whether you are making $1000 a year or $50,000—there are plans for both types and all the salaries in between.

TRURO, N.S., Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press.)—County Councillor John W. McLeod of Division No. 6, Glace Bay, was elected temporary president of the United Mine Workers, District 26, at the convention which opened here today, at the request of International President John L. Lewis, for the purpose of electing a temporary executive to take over the affairs of the district. The provisional officers who have been in charge since the deposition of the late executive will hand over at once to the new officers complete autonomy of the reorganized district within a week. The convention adjourned until tomorrow morning.

Joseph Nearning was elected vice-president, and Alex McKay of California, secretary-treasurer. Rod McNeil of Waterford was elected teller for the next general election of officers, and the delegates were on their fourth ballot in an effort to elect a second teller when the session adjourned.

Many Visitors

Sixty-seven delegates presented their credentials and were seated. Among those present, not permitted to vote or take part in the meeting, were Ben Legers, One Big Union organizer, now facing deportation proceedings brought against him in Cape Breton, and his wife, who was the only woman present. With him also were R. B. Russell, One Big Union worker, and Malcolm Bruce, who recently returned from attending the International in Moscow. They took copious notes, but had no voice in the proceedings.

DISCUSS ORDER OF DEACONNESS AT SYNOD MEET

Resolution to Admit Women on Equal Terms Starts Argument

DEAN TUCKER BRINGS IN THE RESOLUTION

Woman Shall Not Teach in Church Is Opposing Cry

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 29.—The resolution brought before the general synod of the Church of England in Canada now in session here by Rev. Dean Tucker to admit women to the general synod on terms of equality with men and to restore "formally and canonically the order of deaconesses" started a very earnestly argued debate tonight. The resolution had been twice previously postponed. After a lengthy discussion it was amended by almost an unanimous vote expressing satisfaction with the office of deacones as it exists at present, and the portion of the resolution asking for greater scope for women's work in the church was withdrawn.

The decision on women sitting as delegates in the synod was reserved.

At the beginning of the evening the credential committee in bringing in its report stated that every credential was in order with the exception of Miss Inez Smith of Hazelton, B.C., an accredited delegate to the general synod from the diocese of Caledonia, and asked the prolocutor, who is the speaker of the house, for a ruling on the matter of women sitting as delegates to the synod.

Modern Thought

Dean Tucker put forth in support of his resolution the same appeal as used on the second night of the synod last week, urging not only the scriptural but also the practical and utilitarian grounds and the reconciliations of modern thought and progress with the older traditions of the church.

The large majority of the house was in opposition to him, and at the request of the house he withdrew the third paragraph of his motion to extend the scope of women's administration in accordance with resolution 53 of the Lambeth conference which would have given women the right to speak in consecrated and unconsecrated buildings.

Foremost in opposition to Dean Tucker's motion was Canon H. M. Little.

"If the men of the church are taking less interest in the church and allowing their wives to take their places to some extent, as we have been told tonight, it is not to the honor of the church men," Canon Little said. "According to the church the woman is to be in obedience to the man, yet if the order of deaconesses is to be restored they will be able to stand up in church and tell the men what they should do and think."

"The whole question before the synod is whether a woman should be invested with authority to teach in the church, but it behooves us to move very slowly in such a vital step as this at the present time.

"This resolution before the house," said Canon Scott, "is of a much more serious nature than the one introduced by Dean Shreve on the introduction of the prayer of consecration into the office of the holy communion.

Canon Against Idea

"If the synod passes it, I shall go home absolutely disgusted with the church. The scripture says very plainly that a woman shall not teach in the church. If we are to restore the order of deaconnesses she would have that authority.

"The most honorable thing a woman can do is to bear children, and when her children have grown up to look after some one else's children. Scripture says a woman shall not speak in the church, and now we would make her a deaconness. It is out of the question."

Canon Gale of Calgary took the view of the opposition in generally objecting to a woman as a deaconness on grounds of tradition within the church and the practicability of the office in carrying on church work today. He said that the work of the church and the administering of the sacraments had been always associated and that to admit authority for one was to do so for the other.

Principal Vance Opposed

Principal W. H. Vance of Vancouver, spoke against the motion, and advised the synod to go very slowly with the matter. He did admit though that the time would doubtless come when women would have much more influence in the affairs of the church than they have today.

Canon Gould reminded the house that in 1921 it had already given sanction to deaconnesses, but Canon Cody objected that it was office and not order of deaconnesses that had been formed, a very different title and one carrying must reduced privileges in the church. He stated that while the office of deaconness applied simply to women ministering and giving succor to women and children, that the order of deaconnesses meant the power to preach and teach in any consecrated building.

In the afternoon the bishop of New Westminster told of the bravery and heroism of Miss F. H. E. Hazell, who is in charge of a Sunday school caravan in British Columbia.

Smuggling of Gas and Oil Across Border Increases

REGINA, Sept. 29.—Smuggling of large quantities of oil and gasoline from White Tail and Scobey, Mont., over the Saskatchewan boundary, has led the Canadian customs patrol officer at East Poplar River to issue an order requiring all persons crossing the international border to call at his office first. Penalty for neglect to observe the order is $50 with or without 30 days' imprisonment.

Publication of the order effective from September 25 has aroused a storm of protest from farmers in the Bengough district. Representations have been made to the Saskatchewan wheat pool authorities declaring it is a handicap to expect farmers to haul their grain and produce from 4 to 16 miles out of their way.

ROTARIANS ENTERTAIN GYRO CLUB

Dinner Given at Hume and as Result of Wager Over Auto Floats

A debate on floats, and singing competitions, were among the features of the program provided by Gyros and Rotarians at the dinner given by the Rotarians to the younger service club at the Hume last night. This dinner was given, according to previous arrangements, by the club which did not win the prize for its float in the recent parade during the fair.

One of the star speeches of the evening was given by Gyro Charles Morris, who outlined the presumable mental attitude of each judge toward the Rotary and Gyro floats as they passed by.

Rotarian E. P. Dawson opened the debate and explained why the float decorated by his club should not have been beaten. Dr. H. H. MacKenzie of the Gyros described the growth of the idea for the decorations of their float, and spoke of the spirit of service subscribed to by both clubs.

Rotarian J. S. Carter then spoke for his club, his speech, like the others, being in a humorous vein.

Singing Competition

W. A. Cameron and F. Sieberd were guests of the Rotary club, and H. S. Carter and W. Johnson of the Gyros. The four guests were asked to judge in a singing competition, when each club sang in a group, and when each presented a quartet. The four representing the Rotarians were Rev. N. D. B. Larmouth, George Horstead, Arthur Gilker and R. Andrew, and those representing the Gyros were J. P. Pitner, F. Hartwig, R. W. Blanchard and T. Crannage. The judges refused to give a decision when the singing had finished.

D. StDenis, president of the Rotarians, welcomed the Gyros in a fitting speech, and W. M. Myers, president of the Gyros, replied.

Robertson States Owners Will Sue for Damage to Building

The city will consider a proposal to build a retaining wall under the Griffin block, on a 50-50 basis with the owners, on certain conditions, it was decided at the council meeting last night. This action was taken following the reading of a letter from Hugh W. Robertson, agent for the block, who said he had written to the city about the necessity for a retaining wall several times during the last few years, and that he had finally had instructions from the owners to place the matter in the hands of their solicitors, with orders to sue, if necessary, for all damage that might have been done to the city block at any timel for which the city might be held responsible.

"As agent for the owners," stated Mr. Robertson, in his letter, "I have spent or contracted to spend $1500 on the foundations of this block, and it will be also necessary to spend a considerable amount on repairs to the building itself, damage having been caused by the building settling.

"There is also the question of ashes deposited on the city property along Ward street and in the lane on the north side of this block, which must be attended to."

City Will Go Fifty-fifty

The council passed a resolution, on motion of Alderman George Turner, that the city be prepared to consider a proposal to build a retaining wall at this point on a basis of 50-50, provided the owners will give an easement as against any future damages that might occur to the building through this wall, and that the nature of this wall be decided by the city.

The matter of ashes being dumped at the point mentioned by Mr. Robertson will be referred by the city clerk to the chief of police.

ARBITRATION TO EXPAND IN NEAR FUTURE

Permanent Method to Settle Strikes Is Now Needed, Say Authorities

LONDON, Sept. 29.—(By Canadian Press Cable.)—Signs are accumulating that all parties in the industrial world are realizing the absolute necessity of discovering some permanent method of settling wage disputes without resort to strikes if British trade is not to suffer almost complete submersion.

Lloyd George declares that 36,000,000 working days were lost through strikes in the last 5 years. The recent plea by Sir Robert Hadfield, perhaps the greatest living British steel master, for a more reasonable method than the strike weapon has aroused keen interest.

Courts of Inquiry

Tom Shaw, minister of labor, in the foreword of a Labor pamphlet published today, announces his determination to establish courts of inquiry into all cases where disputes are likely to inconvenience the public. Mr. Shaw ascribes the many strikes to the unduly prolonged nature of negotiations intended to avert stoppage of work but which has rendered workmen distrustful and resentful.

"There is no question," says the minister, "that arbitration is becoming more and more practical as a method of settling disputes. For many years it was difficult to convince the working men that arbitrators held the balance even. They suspected the arbitrators were looking at things always from the employers' viewpoint. Gradually, however, arbitrators have been found whose good faith has been beyond dispute. The probability is that arbitration will make more rapid strides in the immediate future."

Nelson Old-Timer Passes Away At Kamloops Home

A real old-timer of Nelson and district passed away in the old men's home in Kamloops during the week-end, in the person of Joseph Clubb. The late Mr. Clubb had one of the first ranches on the Arm, about 30 years ago, next to the property originally owned by C. W. Busk. At one time he, in partnership with I. G. Nelson and L. Larson, owned the Cougar group of mineral claims, at the head of Midge creek. He spent some years at Boswell, at Queen's Bay and Taghum, as well as in Nelson, and for several years, before going to the home at Kamloops about two years ago, was a patient in the Kootenay Lake General hospital.

It is thought he was about 82 years old, and, as far as is known, he leaves no relatives.

SQUADRON HOME AGAIN AFTER LONG CRUISE

Special Service Squadron of Navy Finishes a Ten-Months' Tour

LONDON, Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press)—The special service squadron of the British navy which has just concluded a ten month's cruise of the Empire, among the ports visited being Victoria, Vancouver and Halifax and St. Johns, Nfld., received a welcome home at Plymouth today. The warships arrived last night in the darkness without any fuss.

Some of the vessels in the special service squadron made for Spithead today. The crews are getting a generous measure of leave after their long voyage.

No Civic Welcome

There has been some talk of giving the ships' companies a civic welcome in London, with a parade through the streets, but the idea is not likely to be adopted as the admiralty, following naval tradition would not permit of any such demonstration. The admiralty in such case holds that the men of the squadron merely have fulfilled their appointed task in the empire-wide cruise.

Speaking on the reason for the cruise, the Morning Post says:

"The navy has been pared to the bone and the white ensign has almost vanished from the waters where it was wont to be seen constantly. Our foreign service squadrons have been withdrawn or so reduced that many ports in and out of which British trade flows unceasingly have almost forgotten what a British man-o-war looks like. In times past we were wont to safeguard the lives and interests of British subjects all over the world and our own sea-borne commerce by maintaining adequate cruiser forces at every station. Today we have to send ships on a tour of demonstration like a stage army which essays to make up for lack of numbers by the brilliance of its entries and exits."

BRITISH NAVY GUARANTEE OF TRUE LIBERTY

So States French-Canadian Senator at Naval Entertainment

MONTREAL, Sept. 29.—French Canadians regard the "glorious British navy" as a guarantee of their liberty, knowing full well that the flag which accords them that liberty is protected and maintained by the Empire's senior service, Senator C. P. Beaubien declared tonight, when the city of Montreal entertained the officers of His Majesty's ship Calcutta, now in port, at a dinner and dance.

Lieut.-Com. the Hon. Alexander Ramsay, husband of the Princess Patricia, and commander of the cruiser, headed the officers in the absence through illness of Admiral Sir James Ferguson, K.C.M.G., vice-admiral in command of the North American and West Indies squadron.

Members of the consular corps, mayors of neighboring municipalities, officers of the fourth military district, members of parliament, members of the legislature and representatives of the civic administrations, constituted the gathering.

"We have never forgotten our liberty," said Senator Beaubien, "and that has been allowed us under the British flag. We are permitted to remain French in heart, in tongue, in our laws and in our mind. That has all come with the British flag, and the British flag has been maintained for years by the glorious British navy."

Commander Ramsay fittingly replied.

GERMAN LOAN ISSUE CAUSE OF OPTIMISM

Lombard Street Tells Press That Good Progress Is Being Made

LONDON, Sept. 29.—The preliminary negotiations between Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, and the British, United States and continental bankers, over the issue of the £40,000,000 loan to Germany under the Dawes plan, have gone far enough to create an optimistic spirit in Lombard street, where the press was told today that good progress was being made.

It was explained, however, that nothing could be settled definitely until the arrival of Germany's official delegation, which the German embassy says will be here shortly.

Out of the conversations that are being carried on one conviction seems to be gathering momentum in financial circles. That is that the opposition to the German loan which has developed in certain sections of the political world and the press since the adoption of the Dawes plan by the London conference is not based upon economic grounds but has its genesis in a fear that the government of Premier MacDonald may gain political advantage by having its name associated with a successful scheme.

Financiers today manifested no concern when this criticism was called to their attention.
