DRY MAJORITY LIKELY TO BE FIFTY THOUSAND

Ontario Cabinet Announces Will Strengthen Ontario Temperance Act

WET REPRESENTATIVE TALK OF HOUSE BLOC

Urban Centers Entertain View Some Form of Local Option Required

LATEST FIGURES

Ontario Temperance act	541,C03
Government control	501,124
Dry lead	39,879
Polls reported	6,552
Polls to report	780

TORONTO, Oct. 24.—With prospects of a 50,000 "dry" majority in the plebiscite held yesterday on the liquor in Ontario, and with the announcement of the provincial government that the Ontario Temperance act will be strengthened and enforced, it became manifest tonight that Ontario had not followed the lead of the four western provinces of Canada in liquor legislation.

Something over 1,000,000 citizens of the province went to the polls yesterday, and while the urban population was overwhelming against prohibition the farming districts remained true to form and proved emphatically "dry."

The result is that the Ontario Temperance act of 1916, confirmed in 1919 by a majority of 467,000 in the plebiscite held in connection with the provincial elections, has been again upheld, though the majority vote is apparently cut to about one-eighth of that figure. Returns are still very incomplete, but missing polls are not sufficiently large ones to affect the result materially.

One result of the cleavage between city and farm is that much discussion has arisen in the urban centers on the policy of some form of local option to give the separate communities their chosen system of liquor restrictions. There is even a talk, reflected unofficially in newspaper columns, of a concerted movement in the legislature on the part of the representatives from the "wet" areas.

The most notable of these is Toronto, where eight separate constituencies went "wet."

The attitude of the provincial government, as reflected in a statement issued by Premier Ferguson after a long cabinet meeting today, is that the present liquor legislation has been upheld by popular vote and government intends to carry out its previously announced policy of abiding by that vote.

Attitude of prohibition leaders here is that the principle of prohibition has been upheld and the next concern will be national prohibition.

See Enforcement Difficulty

The Moderation league, which sponsored the appeal for the sale of liquor under government control, suggests that in the light of yesterday's results prohibitory legislation will be difficult of enforcement in urban centers, and suggests some system of local option as the solution of the difficulty.

BIRMINGHAM FEELS AN EARTH TREMOR

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., Oct. 24.—Severe earth tremors, lasting four minutes, were felt within a radius of 30 miles of Birmingham today. Although the buildings in Birmingham were badly shaken, no damage has been reported.

Among the places where the movement was felt were Walsall, Kinver, Wednesbury, Bromsgrove and West Bromwich.

Burnaby's Reeve Goes A-Hunting; Kills Tame Ducks

VANCOUVER, Oct. 24.—Reeve A. K. McLean of Burnaby was highly elated at obtaining a bag of five ducks with one shot, but his pleasure soon turned to chagrin when, on their being retrieved, they were discovered not to be five mallards, but members of the tame varjety, belonging to J. T. Brown, on whose land the reeve was hunting. The reeve however, bravely advanced to meet the owner, and make amends for his horrible mistake.

DE VALERA IS ARRESTED ON ULSTER SOIL

Accepts Government Dare and Is Seized at Newry on Arrival

NEWRY, Ireland, Oct. 24.—Eamonn De Valera, the Irish Republican leader, today kept his word that he would accept the challenge of the Ulster government, which some time ago forbade him from entering certain Ulster areas under pain of arrest.

Today De Valera came to Newry to address a political gathering, but was arrested on reaching the entrance to the town hall, where the meeting was held.

The entire vicinity of the town hall was cordoned by police, and an armed car was also there.

Walks Through Cordon

De Valera, by the simple expedient of removing his horn-rimmed spectacles, was able to walk unhindered through the cordon, but when he reached the entrance to the town hall he was surrounded by policemen and taken to the police station.

Scenes of confusion followed in the hall when Mary MacSweeney, with others, began to speak. Their speeches were frequently interrupted by Orange songs, cat calls and groans.

Blames Britain

DUBLIN, Oct. 24.—The chief Republican election agent here this evening, sent the following telegram to the British prime minister and the secretary for home affairs:

"President De Valera was arrested by crown forces at Newry, the chief town in his constituency in County Down, while on his way to address his constituents.

"This outrage was impossible without the connivance of the British government, which decreed the elections and is responsible for the proper conduct of them."

DRUGSTORE AT FERNIE BURNS

McLean Drug & Book Company Lose Stock; Dispensary Is Gutted

FERNIE, Oct. 24.—Fire of unknown origin practically destroyed or damaged the entire stock of the McLean Drug & Book company on Victoria avenue, in the business center here, shortly after 8 o'clock this morning.

The fire apparently commenced in the dispensary part of the store, and completely gutted that section before the fire brigade could get the blaze under control. Smoke and water completed the havoc.

The damage has not get been estimated.

MacDONALD WILL CURB NEWSPAPERS

If Returned to Power He Will Consider Legislation to Stop Malignance

LONDON, Oct. 24.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—In reply to a political meeting at Taibach, Glamorganshire, Wales, today, Premier MacDonald intimated that if returned to power at the coming elections, he will take steps to curb newspapers in their attitude toward political opponents.

He declared that the matter of false reports in the papers had become very serious, especially when the great mass of the newspapers were owned not by journalists, but simply by businessmen. After the election, consideration must be given to the question of whether or not it is possible to stop personal slander, which is malignantly manifested by persons sitting at their desks in London.

YALE CANDIDATES ARE NOMINATED

VERNON, B.C., Oct. 24.—D. W. Sutherland, by the Liberals, and Grote Sterling, by the Conservatives, were nominated yesterday for the forthcoming federal byelection in the Yale constituency. Both candidates are residents of Kelowna.

Husband Threatened to Throw Her Out Window; Nineteen Years Giftless

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Not once during 19 years of married life did William Hawthorne take her to a treat or buy her a gift, Mrs. Anna Hawthorne, artist, testified in her separation suit today. Spurning alimony, the pretty wife, said she would rather support herself than accept money from Hawthorne.

The last time she asked her husband to take her to the movies, Mrs. Hawthorne said he locked her in her room. He also threatened to throw her out of the window. He shouted, "I'll furnish you with entertainment," and proceeded to treat her like a punching bag.

CAR OVER BANK NEAR WARDNER KILLS, INJURES

George Hyte Lethbridge, Dies; Passenger Thanos of Coleman Hurt

CRANBROOK, Oct. 24.—The sharp hill, about three miles west of Wardner, and about 19 miles from this city, was the scene of a fatal accident last evening when a car proceeding from Lethbridge to this city went off the road.

As a result of the accident, George Hyte, of the Commercial cafe, Lethbridge, owner and driver of the car, was killed, and Melenas Thanos of Coleman, a passenger, was injured.

In rounding a curve the outer wheel of the car went off the road, and is thought to have broken, with the result that the car turned turtle.

The injured man was brought in to the hospital here after medical aid had been given him. Aid was rendered right after the accident by a party of Cranbrook hunters returning over the same road from Pincher Creek.

Hyte, the dead man, was well-known in Lethbridge, and had fought with the Canadians in the war, and leaves a wife and four children.

BURNABY MAY BE UP IN OWN COURT

Did Not Put Stamp on Receipt Given for Speeding Fine Recently

VANCOUVER, Oct. 24.—Alleged to have failed to stamp receipts issued for payment of fines over $10, Burnaby municipality may find itself in the unusual position of being a defendant in its own police court.

This is the prospect opened up by correspondence now passing between the municipality and the department of inland revenue at Ottawa. The charge, if laid, will be for failure to place a revenue stamp on a receipt issued to Arthur Davis, who was fined for an infraction of the Motor Vehicle act.

Davis says he demanded a receipt, which was forthcoming, but without a stamp, which he was told was not required.

Davis then laid the matter before the Dominion authorities, and a ruling came from Ottawa that if Burnaby was collecting these monies for the provincial government, there was no infraction, but if the fines were going to the municipal coffers, then a stamp must be attached.

NANAIMO MAN GETS TEN YEARS, LASHES

NANAIMO, B.C., Oct. 24.—John (Spud) Meredith was tonight sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary and 15 lashes, after being found guilty of a felonious assault upon a 14-year-old girl.

STEAL FORTY THOUSAND IN PROMISSORY NOTES

QU'APPELLE, Sask., Oct. 24.—Some time this morning thieves secured $40,000 worth of promissory notes, agreements of sale and titles from the safe drawer of the J. Craig garage and implement warehouse here. Six dollars was also taken.

FOUR BANDITS PAY PENALTY ON SCAFFOLD

Morel and Serafini Already Buried, Latter in Potter's Field

FRANK'S WIDOW PLANS IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL

Gambino Lived in Vancouver; Was Held for Baeff Death

MONTREAL, Oct. 24.—Louis Morel, ex-Montreal detective; Arcengioio Di Vinceno, alias Tony Frank; Giuseppe Serafini, and Frank Gambino, four of the six men who were found guilty of the murder of Henri Cleroux, chauffer of the collection car of the Banque d'Hochelaga, April 1, paid the penalty for their crime a few minutes before 5 o'clock this morning, when they were hanged in Bordeaux jail, where they had been imprisoned since July 23.

The four went to their deaths in pairs, Morel and Gambino being executed simultaneously on one scaffold; Serafini and Frank on the other.

It was 4:52 a.m. when the doors leading to the scaffold were thrown open, and Morel and Gambino walked to the gallows.

The executioner pinioned Gambino first. He was in a state of collapse, and had to be supported.

The final act was mercifully expeditious. In a few seconds the bodies had dropped through the scaffold.

The second pair of executions was carried out with the same celerity in the yard on the other side of the jail.

Burials Speedy

MONTREAL, Oct. 24.—The bodies of Louis Morel and Giuseppe Serafini, hanged this morning for their part in the Ontario street subway murder of April 1, were interred in the Cote des Neiges cemetery this afternoon. Serafini was buried in the potter's field as a pauper.

The family of Morel expressed a desire that burial be quiet and immediate and the interment was carried out at 4 p.m.

The widow of Tony Frank, who, with Frank Gambino, who also paid the death penalty, intimated that she wished the funeral of the dead murderer of the most complete character, and a heavy copper-lined coffin was prepared. Today the corpse was transferred to the late home of the Italian, in Notre Dame de Grace, where it is exposed and will remain until Monday, when an automobile funeral will take place to the Italian church of Notre Dame du Mont Carmel. Burial will be at Cote des Neiges.

The body of Frank Gambino lies in a local undertaking parlor. On Monday morning the body will be interred with the rites of the church.

Gambino Known at Coast

VANCOUVER, Oct. 24.—Frank Gambino, who paid penalty for murder on the scaffold in Montreal this morning, was well known in Vancouver, having lived here for several years. In January, 1921, he came to the notice of the police following the murder of Pete Baeff, a Russian.

Believed to have been implicted, Gambino was held in custody for some time, finally obtaining his freedom through the efforts of the late Joseph Martin, K.C.

Joe Zoccolli and Joe Canada were two other Italians suspected of complicity in the murder, the latter succeding in eluding police while Zoccolli was tried for murder but obtained an acquittal.

Had a Luck Pin

Gambino was a firm believer in luck, and attached much importance to a diamond-studded horseshoe tiepin he wore.

On the occasion of his arrest in the Baeff case, this pin, with other belongings, was taken from him at police headquarters when he was searched.

"Let me have that pin," he pleaded. "That is my lucky pin. As long as I have that, I shall not have any bad luck."

SERAFINI PROVIDED MONEY FOR MASSES

Guard Appropriated It; Is Arrested as Result of Scaffold Message

MONTREAL, Oct. 24.—Arrested as the result of a death message of Guiseppe Serafini before the bandit ascended the scaffold this morning to be hanged, Cesaire Secours, prison guard at Bordeaux jail, admitted he had received $200 from Serafini a week ago, but said that it was for the purpose of having masses sung for the repose of the latter's soul.

Serafini had only told that he had given the money, and refused to state for what purpose.

Secours said he had used the money for masses, but put half of it in a poor box, and used the other half to buy his master's coal.

HECKLING HARD ON LADY ASTOR'S VOICE

PLYMOUTH, Eng., Oct. 24.—Lady Astor's voice, like that of Premier MacDonald, is giving out under the strain of strenuous political campaigning. The Conservative candidate for Plymouth has encountered so much heckling of late in her fight against socialism that she had often been forced to raise her voice to the point of cracking and the strain has begun to tell upon her.

Worse Than Death

At one gathering today Lady Astor was asked about the old cry "Hanging the Kaiser." With considerable spirit she replied: I think it is far worse than death for a man who thinks he was sent from heaven to rule the world, to be locked up in a Dutch village with a dull wife."

MEXICO CLOSES ALL CONSULATES BRITISH ISLES

Completely Drops Commercial Relations; Protest at Nonrecognition

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 24.—The most transcendental step in Mexican diplomacy was taken today when the foreign affairs department ordered the closing of the Mexican consulates in London, Liverpool and Glasgow as well as all the honorary consular offices throughout Great Britain.

This step means the complete suppression of commercial relations with Great Britain.

"The decision to recall the Mexican consuls in Great Britain," said Foreign Minister Saenz, "does not imply a desire on the part of Mexico to show hostility toward Great Britain, but sentiment and decorum, believing it is unworthy of us to maintain consular representatives under a government which does not concede Mexico the honor of maintaining official relations, thus implying that it does not consider Mexico has the moral and legal capacity in point to sovereign countries.

"This decision will be effective while the present abnormal relations with Great Britain continue."

According to Saenz, the British consuls in Mexico will continue to have the same guarantees as heretofore should Great Britain not recall them.

FERNIE MAN IN BURNING SEDAN

Colin Connon's Gas Tank Explodes Over Bank; Escape a Miracle

FERNIE, Oct. 24—Colin Connons of this city had a miraculous escape last evening while driving his car from Coal Creek to Fernie. Coming round a curve which had recently been gravelled, his car skidded, and turned turtle over the bank. The gasoline tank exploded and set fire to the sedan.

How he got out of the closed-in car, Connons does not quite recollect. He was knocked unconscious by the fall, and when he came around, all that was left of the car was a mass of smoke and ruins.

Carries Loaded Gun While Leading Cow; Arm Is Shattered

KAMLOOPS, B.C., Oct. 24.—While leading a cow at Notch Hill, and at the same time carrying a loaded rifle, Hector McIntyre, 25, had his arm shattered when the gun went off as the rope tightened and caught the trigger.

Pencil Stub Costs Thief His Freedom; Returns to Get It

NEWARK, N.J., Oct. 24.—Roderick Anderson has a stub of pencil and it tricked him into arrest again here today.

Anderson was picked up for loitering October 14, and his finger prints were taken and sent all around the country. He was finally freed today, and half an hour afterwards a request to hold him was received from a hospital in Lansing, Mich., from which he escaped while under treatment following a robbery with which he was charged.

While the police were still kicking themselves, figuratively, for letting him go, Anderson stepped back into the station-house asking for a pencil stub he had left behind. The pencil was returned to Anderson, and Anderson was returned to jail.

LATE MINISTER, FAMOUS BROKER, FOUND GUILTY

Chief Justice Meredith Imposes Stupendous Fines; Bars, Too

YOUNGER JARVIS AND PEPALL DISCHARGED

Smith Breaks Down; Jarvis Defiant; Both Will Appeal

TORONTO, Oct. 24.—Peter Smith, former provincial treasurer in the Drury government, and Aemilius Jarvis Sr., who was head of the former long-established and widely known Toronto bond and brokerage house of Aemilius Jarvis & Co., limited, were late this afternoon found guilty of conspiracy to defraud the province.

Smith was sentenced to serve three years in Portsmouth penitentiary, and Jarvis was sentenced to serve six months in the county jail.

In addition both men must remain in prison until a fine of $600,000 is paid.

Aemilius Jarvis Jr., son of the convicted broker, and a member of the firm, and Harry C. Pepall, its manager, were both found not guilty of conspiracy to defraud the province.

The theft charges against all four were dismissed.

An appeal will be entered on behalf of Peter Smith and Aemilius Jarvis Sr., against both the conviction, and the sentence of the court.

The four men were tried before Chief Justice R. M. Meredith and a jury in the criminal assize court at the city hall, commencing last Monday, and terminating with the verdict of the jury at 5:42 o'clock this afternoon.

In Jail Pending Outcome

Following passing of the sentence, the convicted men were taken into custody, and transferred to the county jail, where they will remain until the case has been argued before the appeal court, or they have been admitted to bail pending the decision.

An application for bail will be made to the attorney-general tomorrow.

Lawyers Differ on Meaning

Commenting, following adjournment of court, on doubt felt by many who heard the judge's words, whether the effect was a fine of $600,000 on each man, making a total of $1,200,000, W. N. Tilley, K.C., crown prosecutor, said his lordship's sentence was assuredly a fine of $600,000 to be paid between them; a total of $600,000.

While Mr. Tilley felt positive that Mr. Justice Meredith intended to impose a joint fine of $600,000, Herb Lennox, counsel for Peter Smith, when interviewed, expressed the opposite view, holding that his lordship's words imposed in effect a $600,000 fine on each. Repeated efforts to get into communication with Mr. Justice Meredith tonight, to have the sentence further explained, have been unsuccessful.

After the jury had returned their verdict of guilty, in the charges against the former provincial treasurer and Aemilius Jarvis Sr., Mr. Justice Meredith asked them if they had anything to say before sentence was passed on them.

Smith Breaks Down

"I have only this to say," replied Mr. Smith, "which is not very much, as I said when I came into this court and was asked to plead, I

Egan paid the fine. He was out on a bond of $500 for a similar offence committed some months ago against William Moore.

SMALL BUSH FIRE DEFIES THE RAINS

For Three Weeks it Has Smouldered on City Side of Anderson Creek

For over three weeks in spite of the heavy rains which have fallen in that time, a small bush fire has smouldered on the town side of the Anderson creek draw, high above Fairview. Forestry officials, who are keeping an eye on it, report that it is most unusual to see a fire persist at this time of the year, particularly in the face of several very heavy rains. They are confident that it will be extinguished in the natural course of events in the next week or so.

It is supposed that this was lit by some hunters, and that the fire must have got under some big log where it smouldered during the rains, breaking out again when they were over.

Seven Government Men Discuss Pest Control; Look at Local Orchards

GRAND FORKS, B.C., Oct. 24.—With the object of making a careful examination of orchards in this district and note the progress of eliminating fruit tree pests, particularly the codling moth, and also for the purpose of planning work throughout the fruit sections for next year, a conference of government fruit men was held here this week. Among those attending were H. H. Robinson of Victoria, provincial horticulturist; E. C. Hunt of Nelson, district horticulturist; Max H. Ruhmann of Vernon, assistant provincial entomologist; G. H. Harris of Victoria, certified seed inspector; C. R. Twigg of Creston, district field inspector; M. H. Chesboro, codling moth specialist, and Paul C. Black, district agriculturist.

Mr. Ruhmann left for the Kaslo district to examine an outbreak of tree infection there. Mr. Chesboro will leave next week to make a survey of the Arrow lakes fruit section.

'Russian' Horsemen Firewood and Eggs, Greet Church Head

SASKATOON, Sask., Oct. 24.—Three horsemen, dressed as Russian officers, riding up and down the streets discharging guns, and a number of persons throwing firewood and eggs, were some of the scenes surrounding the visit of Bishop Theodorovitch of the Greek Orthodox church to Hampton.

According to the report reaching here, the horsemen were the first recipients of the firewood and eggs, but later the cars in which the bishop and a number of priests were riding became the targets. As soon as the bishop and the priests left the autos "firing" ceased.

The speech of the bishop in the hall later in the evening was undisturbed.

THREE HELD WHEN STENOGRAPHER DIES

EDMONTON, Oct. 24.—Following a verdict returned by the coroner's jury shortly after midnight that Pattie Thelma Burnup, 20-year-old stenographer employed in the offices of a well-known law firm here, had come to her death as the result of an illegal operation performed at a private hospital, on Wednesday, October 22, Dr. John Hislop, a prominent physician of the city, and Miss Olive Walker, nurse, and proprietor of the private hospital, were placed under arrest on a charge of manslaughter.

Few Spectators at Delorme Trial; Jury Next Week

MONTREAL, Oct. 24.—Nothing new transpired at today's session of Rev. Adelard Delorme's trial and little interest was shown by the few spectators present as several witnesses took the stand and stories that had been heard twice before at the former trials.

NORA LEE

Elenore Meherin's Greatest Story

Revealing the Heart and Soul of the 1924 Flapper

CHAPTER XXX

"Wise or Foolish Virgins?"

Virginia came into the room, shaking her long, fluffy hair over her face; in the light it shimmered like very bright silver.

She was a slender thing with small, Madonna face; dark, troubled eyes, and this remarkable white-gold hair. Her mouth was small, but the lips were full and very deeply curved. Just now they had a pathetic, quivering look like a child about to cry.

Sallie sat up in bed, doubling her arms about her knees. Sallie was 19, two years younger than her sister Connie. She was aggressive, with the callous manner of a boy; a mind seething with curiosity and revolt; a heart eager and humble.

She said curtly: "What's the matter, Virge? You and Hum have a fight?"

Virginia combed her hair over her head. It trailed to the floor. "Humphrey and I did not fight. We don't."

"But it's only 1 o'clock, old thing. That's too early for lovers to part. I hear as how midnight hours are very sweet."

From behind her shiny veil Virginia laughed with a catchy, uneasy note. "Humphrey and I aren't lovers. That's the trouble."

"Ah—comforting So there are three of us, then—the white sister-hood. I was just asking Nora Lee, Virginia, if we're the wise or the foolish virgins. What do you think? When I see the hectic time other girls have, my mind misgives me. I have an idea we'll be left standing on the side lines and life and love will pass us by."

Virginia said, excitedly: "Well, of course it will. If you're not willing to compete with others—"

"This sounds intriguing, Virginia. Be definite. Compete in what way? With our intellects? Mine and Nora Lee's are certainly the only ones in evidence."

Again Virginia laughed. "And you aren't parked in a machine, are you, Sal? And you didn't get to the football game, did you? And no one led you out into the garden, did they?"

"No! And no one ever has! Never in my 19 years. It's getting my goat. I'm fairly presentable. I can dance. I'd like to know why at 10:30 or 11 I can slip upstairs to bed and no one ever notices my absence. I'm more interesting than most girls if someone would only take the trouble to find it out. But they don't! I'd be willing to kiss someone as a starter. I practice on Billie and pa and believe I can do it quite well."

"Kiss! That wouldn't take you very far, Sal. Nobody even stops to think about objecting to kisses."

"Rot, Virginia! That's all flapper talk. I'm filled up with Connie's chatter. You'd imagine she was the original wild woman to hear her tongue wag out devilries. She'd be frightened to apoplexy if she never tried one-tenth of the things she boasts."

A steely light crossed into Virginia's dark, half-slanting eyes. "It's not rot, Sal. I know girls do more than kissing. I don't know how much more——"

"There you are! You don't know; I don't know. Nora Lee doesn't know. So there's three. We're not the only nuns left on earth. Connie may be right when she says every little kitchen garden has its Red Lily today, but it's my belief the majority of us are still white as was."

"You don't stop to figure what all this booze does, Sal. And the automobiles——"

"Well, I'm against bootleg. If you have to go the cocktail route to win popularity, I'll stay dumb. Brownie Mills doesn't drink at all, and she's always parked in somebody's arms."

"She's in love with Harry Wells. She thinks that gives her a right to do a good many things."

"What do you mean by 'a good many things'?"

"You use your own imagination, Sal. It means more than just kissing, though. It means pretty heavy petting. It means more than I'd do!"

"Ah, so that's why you're here at 1 o'clock, is it?"

Virginia's cheeks blazed; a suspicion of tears sprang to her eyes. She shook back her hair. "No, it's not. I was tired."

She glanced at Nora Lee, who was now sitting up, her arms folded behind her head, a flash of anger darting from her eyes to her resolute, indignant mouth.

"You don't say anything, Nora Lee. But I guess you know a few things yourself. Anyone can see that Dane Herrick's foolish about you."

Nora Lee flushed. She could write very glibly in her diary about love, but it troubled her to speak of it. She was not awakened in the sense that Connie was, or even this Madonna-like Virginia. Faces repelled her. She could grow very bitter facing them. She did not think well of God that he had coupled so beautiful a thing as love with any physical order. It showed an astonishing frugality in the divine imagination.

Now, if it had been left to her, Love would be an affair of souls meeting in rapt looks, of hands touching, of two who were young kissing and expiring to float in immortal aloneness, immortal bliss gazing through eternity into each other's eyes.

She said now, hotly: "I don't call all that Love. Perhaps love ends in kissing and petting. But it can't begin there. It's not Love if it does. It can never touch a person's spirit. Real Love begins in the mind. You have to love with your soul first and your soul will send down a fire to touch your heart, then all the rest of you joins in because it is such a mighty thing. And that's a love worth having. But what you're talking about is nothing but a skin thrill that even a chimpanzee could feel!"

"And there's nothing to it but cheapness and stupidity and anyone who goes after it only cheats herself. And it never lasts——"

Virginia stooped down and turned her stocking carefully right side out. Tears hung on her lashes. She was afraid to brush them aside. She said in a soft, questioning tone:

"Kissing isn't cheap if you care for a person, and sometimes you can't help it that things are pleasant and that you want someone's arm around you."

Nora Lee felt the blood fly to her temples. She was suddenly remembering Maxwell Reed's hand, the drawling music of his voice, the fascination that has kept her listening—had made her careless of his arm at her waist. She slumped down on the pillow: "Much may be said on both sides, I suppose. Let's to Morpheus!"

Sallie whispered in her ear when the light was out:

"It's dangerous to talk of these things, Nora Lee. And it's not quite as clear-cut as you pretend, is it? Virginia outsmarted you that last time, old dear. Darn right we can't help it that some things are pleasant. They made an awful muddle of us, didn't they? Ye gods! But I found out something. It's this: Virginia and Connie can pet and stop. You and I couldn't. We're too decent—if we ever start in that chariot—we'll ride to hell and blazes. We'll ride to the fall. I think I'll stay as is. Gawd watch between us and harm, as the washlady sez!"

Nora Lee lay awake long after Sallie and Virginia slept. She felt as though a flame instead of the blanket wrapped about her. She went through the conversation with Reed again and again; she recalled that she had raised her head flirtatiously to meet his brilliant eyes; she recalled and was filled with horror, realising that she had tried to impress him. She had wished him to think her clever; had dragged out her absurd learning, hoping that he would be interested.

She had wished him to think her wild, free, original—incredibly different from other girls—even in this matter of petting—

What went into her thoughts like a brand of guilt was the pressure of his hand on hers. She had liked it. Now, in her self-contempt she even accused herself of wishing that he had kissed her. At least she had thought that he was going to.

She tossed feverishly. Sallie snarled in her sleep: "Be still—keep on your own side."

A feeling of shame burdened her. She did not care for Maxwell Reed. She loved Dane—loved him so much that now the tears made her cheeks wet.

Then how was it that she could tolerate for the briefest second the look or the touch of another?

Sallie flung out her arm, grabbing the blankets and rolling herself up in them.

She would put her arms around him, look into his young boy's eyes. They would laugh down at her and fill with tenderness. She would touch his lips. They would hold fast to each other—they and the dark and the beauty——

Thinking of him so, she saw his lighted face. She turned glad and laughed softly: "I must be crazy—I must be crazy."

She went happily to sleep.

At 10 o'clock the next morning, long after Dane was gone, Nora Lee walked up the road above the house. She wanted to see the view.

There came a slouching step behind her—a drawling voice. Reed said: "Come out to the point if you're looking for inspiration. Miss Meadows. I've found it there many a time!"

MARAPODI GETS FORTY-THREE DAYS IN JAIL

Left Hospital While Serving Sentence; Had No Intention to Escape

Joseph Marapodi of Cranbrook was yesterday morning sentenced to 43 days in jail to run concurrently with his sentence of six months now being served in the Nelson jail. Marapodi on Wednesday answered to a charge of having been at large without lawful cause, after being sentenced to a jail term.

Marapodi whose sentence of six months under a liquor charge was nearly up, was confined to the hospital from the local jail, with heart trouble. One evening recently he left the institution and was found in a Nelson hotel in company with a lady. He was rearrested and charged with being at large in Canada after being sentenced to jail. Evidence disclosed in police court before Magistrate Brown showed that the accused had business with the lady in question. He denied any immoral actions in the hotel. He claimed that he was out seeking information and accordingly left the hospital and went to the hotel. He intended to return to the hospital that same evening.

W. R. Jarvis, warden of the provincial jail, stated in court that a prisoner was allowed five days a month off his sentence for good conduct. He had nothing against Marapodi outside of the fact that he had left the hospital without a guard. The warden was of the opinion that the prisioner had no intention of escaping, he had no business in' leaving the institution without permission. Had he not left the hospital his term would have been completed on November 6.

Magistrate Brown in summing up the evidence stated that he would give the prsioner the benefit of the doubt. He was not satisfied one way or the other. However, he would see that he was confined until full sentence was up. He passed sentence of 43 days to run concurrently with his previous sentence.

W. W. Ferguson acted for Marapodi.

Warren Hillis, aged 50, master mechanic for the Great Lakes Dredging company, was drowned in the McKellar river near Fort William, when he fell off a dredge.

Long-Distance Calls Are Much Cheaper When Made At Night

Under the new scale of night rates for long-distance conversations the charge between 8:30 p.m. and 7 a.m. is the lowest in the history of this Company. The new rates are on a basis of approximately twice, and in some cases three times, the day period, at two-thirds the day rate.

One long-distance conversation will often do more in expediting business than the exchange of a number of letters. Speed is one of the principal advantages of long-distance, and the effect of personal contact by wire is also valuable. While long-distance has for years proven its worth as a servant of business, it has its place in the social sphere as well, for a chat by wire between distant friends is most enjoyable, and arrangements regarding visits and other matters are speedily made through the long-distance service.

The rate clerk would be glad to answer any inquiries.

A Difficult Situation to Deal With in Ontario

The Ontario government has been presented with a difficult problem by the voters who have expressed their opinion on the question as to whether prohibition or government control should be the province's liquor policy.

Nearly every city in Ontario voted for government control, most of them by big majorities. "Toronto the Good" went against prohibition by 50,000 votes.

The rural districts, on the other hand, stayed generally with prohibition.

With such heavy urban voting against prohibition, the attorney-general of Ontario is going to find it even more difficult than in the past to enforce prohibition in the cities. Bootlegging in Ontario cities has been scandalous. After the declaration of opinion by the voters against prohibition it is going to be worse.

On the other hand, if the Ontario government decides to put into effect local option, giving liquor control to those communities which want it, and prohibition to the rural sections, it is going to get into a peck of trouble politically.

Should Give City Councillors a Two-Year Term

Alderman I. A. Austin is quite right in his contention that members of the city council should be elected for more than one year.

It takes an alderman several months to get into touch with city affairs, and just about the time he begins to know something about them another election comes along, and very frequently, rather than bother with civic politics, he retires and is replaced by another green man.

For some years the Union of British Columbia Municipalities has advocated a two-year term, and it would be a good thing if the government would amend the Municipal act to provide for it.

A two-year term would make for greater efficiency and for continuity in civic policy.

The water supply question, for example, would probably have been dealt with long ago, instead of merely being talked about, if we had had a two-year term.

A Scaly Tale

It is declared that during a recent storm the flying fish blown in from the ocean were so thick that they wrecked many telephone and telegraph lines.

It is tough when the public service corporations have to send out linemen to comb the flying fish out of the wires.

If the flying fish are going to spoil the telephone service, New Jersey may have to put her trust in the radio.

I don't know how other mothers get their children to help them with the housework," said a mother housekeeper friend of mine, "My little girl makes such a fuss when I ask her to do any kind of work about the house. She always has plenty of energy to run and play—but when I suggest that she set the dinner table or dry the dishes, she is "too tired."

"What do you give her to eat?" I asked.

She mentioned some representative dishes—cornstarch desserts, white breads, fried foods, meat, fish, egg dishes.

"I think I know what's the matter with your child," I told her. "She is not getting enough alkali-forming food. The dishes you mentioned are all acid forming."

I explained that some foods form acids in the stomach and others form alkalis which neutralize the acids. Every meal should have at least an equal balance of acid-forming and alkali-forming dishes. Indeed, it is better to have more of the alkali-forming ones, than the acid-forming. But our natural tendency is to eat more of the latter with the result that we do not feel well, lack of energy, and see the world through dark glasses.

I then gave my friend these lists:

The Acid Forming Foods are—The foods mentioned above, and also white cereals made from refined wheat (that is, wheat without the husk); all refined sugars; all white flour products such as pastry, biscuits and crackers; dishes made largely with the whites of eggs; tapioca; cheese; polished rice; and denatured corn meal. (Note: I do not say that these foods are not all right to serve if accompanied by an abundance of the alkali-forming foods).

The Alkali-Forming Foods Are—Salads, fresh fruits, greens, baked potatoes and potatoes steamed in their skins, whole milk, natural brown rice, cornmeal ground from the whole grain, unpearled barley, rye and buckwheat flours made from the whole grain, whole wheat (both in cereal form and in bread), the yolks of eggs, and all fresh vegetables.

The child or the adult not getting enough alkali-forming foods will naturally feel listless and not inclined to work—although they will often brace up for pleasure (who will not!).

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman in charge of "Efficient Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. Foster's Weekly Weather Bulletin

Temperatures for Month of October

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24. — Crop weather for November will average very good the first 20 days, bad last 10 days. Weeks centering on November 5 and 15 will bring moderate storms and precipitation, week centering on November 26 will be the principal weather feature of November and week centering on this date will bring dangerous storms and excessive precipitation. Most precipitation will occur in localities that have received too much in October; northern United States and southern Canada will get more than their share. All farmers should make an extra effort toward clearing up their fall work before October 20. Northern corn fields are expected to be snowed in after that date, and southern fields to be wet. Cold wave following storm of November 26 is expected to carry below seasonal averages to Mason and Dixon line, but as we have no severe gulf storm in sight for that period, expect the far south to escape. By the time that this letter reaches our readers we believe that the drouth scare from Argentina, which proved to be such good propaganda for our bull grain dealers last week, will be blown over and Argentina will be entering a period of plentiful moisture for her growing crops.

The Abbe Moveux, a noted French astronomer and director of the Bourges observatory, who it is claimed warned the government of Europe of the impending disaster of 1914-18, has created another stir in Europe by hinting that 1928 would see another great war or at least a critical period in the world's history. The abbe bases his forecasts on solar activity and sun spots, claiming that disturbances in the sun that appear to us as sun spots effect the human nervous system besides having undoubted effect on the earth's weather. He claims that sun spots make human beings irritable and stir them up to wars. He also says: "There also is a relation between earthquakes and the sun's activity. The sun is the sole regulator of our climatology. Heat, electricity and magnetism are the effects of the same cause—the disturbances in the solar furnace that takes place every 11 years on the average."

We consider that the abbe has come in the fold of and is paying homage to our late W. T. Foster through these statements. Many years ago W. T. Foster published a pamphlet on sun spots which not only gave the cause of the spots and their actions but told how to forecast the area covered by the spots. These pamphlets were sent to all newspaper subscribers who wrote for them. It is very gratifying to know that learned men must come to Foster's ideas to find the true laws of nature.

We do not agree with all the abbe says or forecasts. To claim that each time the sun spots reach their maximum area, which would be approximately every 11.1 years, we would have great wars or calamities, would be radical, yet be believe that the trend would be in that direction. The same planetary position that causes the sun spot also causes a disturbance on this earth approximately 8 minutes later; sun spots are not a cause, they are an effect, caused by three or more of the planets of our planetary system getting into a position that would make an electrical contact between or change in the energy passing between the bodies constituting this effective position. The sun is neither the sole regulator of our climatology nor is it a furnace, but is the king of our limited planetary monarchy and the aid of his court of planets is necessary before he can cause storms, earthquakes, pestilence or disease to be brought to our little earth.

Styles

BY LENORE

Extra sizes are not sufficiently effective in meeting the needs of women who are larger than normal. Specially thought out designs and carefully calculated lines are necessary to insure a pleasing, harmonious effect in clothes created for large or stout figures.

In a smart establishment devoted exclusively to solving the problems of large women, and where they take the trouble to create really individual clothes free of the usual accompaniment of endless details, I found this dress of black chiffon velvet which claims intimate kinship with the most recent developments of fashion and is not merely a dress designed for a stout woman.

Although the yolk is in a contrasting shade, a deep blue verging on royal, but softer in tone, the unified effect which is so necessary for the large figure is maintained by a close, all-over embroidery in black with a delicate tracery of silver.

The tunic is but a few inches shorter than the velvet bordered slip. The slashed sides are trimmed with buttonholes and velvet covered buttons, aand are left unbuttoned about half-way down.

That Body of Yours

Reading and Sleep

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright act.)

You find that you are not eating or enjoying your evening meal as you should.

You have had a light lunch, arrive home hungry for a real dinner, and yet the food seems to lack taste, and you don't eat very much after all.

What is the matter?

Well, you may have considerable on your mind, worry, excitement, or you may be tired.

The blood is still up in the brain, and not available for digestive work, or else your whole body is so tired, that it is not capable of handling the food.

What should be done?

Why, the daily paper or a book, if excited, or a 10 minutes' rest lying down if fatigued, before eating, will help you not only to enjoy the meal, but also to digest it properly.

And this very same thing applies in the matter of inducing sleep. If you are one of these individuals who can drop off to sleep the moment your head reaches the pillow, then you'll not be interested further.

However, if you like to read before you go off to sleep, or actually need to read before you go off, then you have perhaps often wondered whether you were doing a wise thing in reading at this time.

As a matter of fact, you will notice that the length of time you really read is not very long.

And what is the big thing, the essential thing about this reading, that finally gets you off to sleep? Is it because the book is dreary or commonplace?

No! The real benefit from the reading is that it takes your mind off the affairs of the day, the exciting, the disturbing things that might easily keep you awake, if your mind were allowed to dwell upon them. The idea some people have of utilizing the sleepless hours by study, is, to my mind, a big mistake. This reaching for the book, so as not to waste these "precious" hours, defeats its own end, because they arise sluggish and slow-witted in the morning. So go to sleep with a book if necessary, because it relieves tension of mind and body. This relief from tension is what induces sleep.

'HITTING BELOW BELT,' TRAIL'S MAYOR CALLS IT

Trail Ratepayers' Association Backs the Council Against Trade Board

ENDORSES ACTION RIVERSIDE AVENUE

Isolation Hospital Serviceable; Special Meeting on Water Report

TRAIL, B.C., Oct. 24.—"Hitting below the belt" was a characterization used by Mayor H. Clark in criticizing the actions of the Trail board of trade in its appointment of a committee to interview the mayor and board of works with reference to work and the sale of property on Riverside avenue at a crowded meeting of the ratepayers' association held Wednesday in the city hall, at which the ratepayers resolved to indorse the actions of the city council.

The meeting, which was the outcome of the protest lodged by the board of trade, got warm at times in discussions and arguments. Mayor Clark, in defending the action of his council, stated the street was now suitable for all traffic, both now and in the future, and showed that the city had gained not only the purchase price, but taxes of future improvements thereon, as well as special sewer and sidewalk assessments which would otherwise be lost, as property owned by the city was exempt from taxation.

Mayor Justifies Action

The fact that Trail was losing its citizens to Rossland because of the shortage of houses and convenient building sites was sufficient reason why the ground should not be held by the city, he stated.

He referred to the actions of the board of trade as showing a lack of confidence in the city engineer and the board of works, despite the fact that many obstacles had been overcome to make what would be a permanent and credible roadway.

The resolution passed was:

"That this meeting of the Trail Ratepayers' association indorses the actions of the city council in the work which it is doing for the permanent improvement of Riverside and in selling city-owned property, and work carried out generally throughout the city."

Tadanac May Share Isolation

The question of the isolation hospital was again brought up.

Mayor Clark stated that the dwelling on Goat ranch had been fitted up to accommodate the recent cases of smallpox, and the improvements thereon had fitted it to be used as an isolation hospital with accommodation for eight beds.

Further improvements may be made, and there is talk of Tadanac contributing a portion of this expenditure in order to have the benefit of this institution when necessity arises.

On a complaint being lodged of the apparent laxity of the police in connection with gambling, which admittedly is not on the wane, the police commissioners pointed out the expense that had been incurred by the city in recent years in appeals from sentences imposed. It appears the difficulty here has been in proving that a profit was being made by the proprietor of the establishment—otherwise more prosecutions would be made.

Direct From Violin Lake

On learning that the board of works was about to secure an estimate of the cost of connecting the water main direct to the source of supply at Violin lake, thereby eliminating the excessive cost of pumping, was carried that a meeting of the association be held to receive this report, as a bylaw to authorize this expenditure will likely be laid before the electors at the next civic election.

Shovel In---Shovel Out

Some householders think that is all there is to the good old winter-time—shoveling in the coal and shoveling out the ashes—and the money.

In the case of some coals this is true; but ARDLEY Coal requires less shoveling in and less shoveling out.

THREE ARE UP ON CHARGE OF PLAYING STUD

Case Adjourned Until Monday Until "Banker" Term Is Cleaned Up

CROWN WITNESSES' STORIES DIFFER

Accused Claim Were Playing Rummy; Stewart Made the Arrests

The point as to what constitutes a banker in a card game is at present holding up a gambling case argument which commenced in police court yesterday morning before Magistrate William Brown. The case is one in which Henry Smith, a negro, residing at 413 Hall street, is charged with keeping and maintaining a common gaming house. R. Spears, an inmate of the house at the time it was entered by Sergeant Alex Stewart Thursday evening, is also held, charged with a similar offence. Bill Woykin, who was also in the alleged game of stud poker, was called as a crown witness after having spent the night in jail.

The case had only proceeded as far as the hearing of the crown witnesses when E. G. Matthew, appearing for Henry Smith, moved for a dismissal of the case. In the first place, the police had not been armed with a search warrant, and in the second place, two crown witnesses had absolutely contradicted each other.

City Clerk Called

The first witness called by the crown was W. E. Wasson, city clerk, who testified that Henry Smith held a city license for a cleaning and pressing establishment at 413 Hall street.

Sergeant Alex Stewart, who arrested Smith and his companions, was the next witness called.

On Thursday evening at about 9 o'clock, he stated, he entered a building on Hall street, where Smith had his shoe shining parlors. There was a fellow sitting on a counter in the main building. When the sergeant entered he walked through into the inner room and upon opening the door he was met by Smith, who tried to stop him from entering. The sergeant testified that he heard chips rattling before he had opened the door. Upon entering he found in the center of a room a card table. Sitting around the table were R. Spears and B. Woykin. The latter was dealing out a hand of stud poker, he having the cards in his hand. Spears, stated the policeman, was running the game and he had a large stack of chips in front of him. Woykin had a few chips some white, valued at 10c and some red, valued at 50c. In front of Spears were several dollars in chips.

A Stud Poker Game

"As I entered the door Woyken was dealing. Spears and Woykin each had a card face down. Woykin dealt out another card and each of the players placed chips on the table. By the way they were playing I saw that it was stud poker. They dealt another round. Spears threw in another chip. The game was stopped then because I ordered it stopped," so stated the police sergeant.

When he entered the room, the sergeant stated that Smith had attempted to grab up the chips and cards and to thus throw them out of position. At that time Spears and Woykin had one card face down and two face up in front of them.

Witness asked Smith what kind of a game he was running the reply was:

"We're playing for fun. There is no money." Woykin at this stage had butted in: "Tell the truth Smith, I've lost $2 already, and just got $2 more worth of chips."

He stated that he hadn't paid for the last $2 worth of chips, but would do so at the close of the game. Woykin also stated that two other men had been in the game, but had pulled out after losing $2 each. One of these had been a Doukhobor.

Sergeant Stewart stated that there was a fellow sitting in the outer room and as he (Stewart) entered this person hollered in an excited manner:

"Oh, Smith."

Smith couldn't help but hear, stated witness. At this point he identified the pack of cards and chips displayed in court and stated, after counting the same, that Spears had 15 reds and 43 whites, while Woykin had but one red and six whites.

Was Poorly Lighted

The room at the rear of the building in which the game was taking place was a dark one. One light hung from the ceiling and threw rays only over the table. There were three or four chairs and a bed in the room. In the table was a drawer full of chips and five packs of cards. The windows in the room were covered with blankets. Stud poker, declared the witness, was a game of luck.

Cross-examined by E. G. Matthew, witness stated that he did not have a search warrant. He had seen a bedstead and mattress, and had knowledge of the accused sleeping elsewhere. The back room was, in his opinion, open to the public for gambling.

Smith, stated the witness, had a watchman outside. He was not able to say if Smith was in the game. There were no chips for him on the table.

Mr. Matthew—I'm informed that these men were playing rummy. How long would $11.80, the sum indicated by the chips, last in a poker game?

Sergeant Stewart—It might last all night. It is impossible to answer. It is not possible that they were playing rummy. Spears was running the game because of the stack of chips in front of him. He's been in the city several weeks now and has done nothing else but play cards.

Witness stated that in poker there was always one recognized dealer or banker. He received the money and made good at the end of the game. Spears was the banker. He was quite sure that no skill was required in poker and that a new player could stand as much chance with little luck as would a skilled player. The witness did not consider nerve and bluff as skill. He stated that after searching the men he had secured about $25 from among all of them.

Men Were Playing Rummy

Bill Woykin of Crescent Valley, one of the men in the alleged poker game, was the second witness called for the crown. He had come to town on Thursday morning and had known Smith for some time. He went to Smith's on Thursday night at about 7 o'clock and was there about a couple of hours when the police came in. Witness stated that he was playing rummy at Smith's. "Someone suddenly called out fo Smith, I was the dealer. I gave two cards to Spears and two to myself, the third card should have gone to Spears, but I made a mistake and gave it to myself, it had landed with its face up. Spears had no cards face up," said the witness.

Witness stated that he had only purchased one $2 lot. When the police arrived he had still some of that lot left. Two other men had started in the game, but either went broke or quit.

"I have never played stud poker. I never had enough money to play stud poker. I am very poor, too poor to try to play stud poker," stated witness when questioned.

Demonstrates the Game

Smith, stated the witness, was his friend. He had known him about two months. Amid many smiles in court the witness demonstrated a hand of rummy as played on the night that the place was raided. He explained in detail the finer points of the game to James O'Shea, crown prosecutor.

Cross-examined by Mr. Matthew, he stated that he had bought nothing from Smith.

Following the announcement of his case from Mr. O'Shea, Mr. Matthew asked that the case be dismissed, on the grounds that a gaming house was not being run.

Mr. O'Shea contended that the evidence of Sergeant Stewart and of Woykin showed that a game of chance was being run. Rummy was a game of chance. Smith was keeping a game for the use of others. Smith had the money of all these men, he dolled out the chips and kept the money. Hence he was what was called the banker.

Magistrate Brown in adjourning stated that he would look up the banker point and settle it once and for all. He allowed the accused men to leave the court on their own recognizance.

WINTER GARDEN DRAWS CROWDS

Eagle Hall Picture of Beauty at First Traveler's Dance

A crowd which numbered well over 600 persons was in attendance at the first dance of the season given by the Associated Canadian Travelers last night. The Eale hall, known for these occasions as "the winter garden," was a scene of beauty last night as the gay crowd wound around the flour.

The hall has never before been decorated so artistically and tastefully. It was done off in lattice effect, white with flowers intertwining. Hundreds of paper flowers, the work of the ladies' auxiliary to the association, were used in the decoration scheme, which will be uniform on all this season's travelers' dances. In the moonlight effects the lattice work on the walls was lit up in beautiful colors.

Besides the dancing the musical side was not forgotten last night. William Coleman, with his banjo and character costume, contributed several songs, which were well received. After the supper hour a quartet consisting of J. P. Pitner, T. Crannage, F. Hartwig and R. W. Blanchard rendered several selections. As in last season's dances, the lucky number dances featured the evening. Fred Barberis acted as master of ceremonies.

Hundreds of interesting letters from George Eliot to her neice, Miss Emily Susannah Clarke of Thanet, have been destroyed as requested in the will of Miss Clarke, who died recently. A relative who burned the letters said that if given to the world they might have formed a remarkable contribution to literature, in addition to furnishing an intimate autobiography of the authoress.

FARM COUNCIL ASKS RESCISION OF BOARD ORDER

Also Urges Joint Committee of Chambers on Senate Reform

WINNIPEG, Oct. 24.—(By Canadian Press).—Immediate suspension of the board of railway commissioners' judgment on the Crow's Nest Pass freight rates agreement was asked for in a resolution adopted by the Canadian Council of Agriculture in annual meeting here today. The resolution reads:

"The council urges upon the Dominion government that it exercise immediately its authority under section 52 of the Railway act and suspend the order of the board of railway commissioners setting aside the Crow's Nest Pass agreement, and, further, that the government take such steps as are necessary to remove discrimination in freight rates now existing in the application of the Crow's Nest agreement."

Veto Limit Not Enough

The council, which represents organized farmers of Ontario, Quebec and the prairie provinces, also reaffirmed its suggestion that a joint committee of both houses be appointed to hear evidence and make inquiry as to senate reform. A resolution was adopted stating "the proposals of the prime minister to limit the vetoing power of the senate in the same manner as the power of the British house of lords in the matter as limited in 1910 does not provide for constitutional changes in the upper chamber that are essential for it to function properly as part of our parliamentary system."

It was decided to protest against the increase in the tariff on raisins and currants which is proposed in connection with the treaty with Australia. It is estimated that this measure will increase the annual cost of those commodities in the Dominion by $1,000,000 a year.

SLOCAN PASSENGERS DRIFT ABOUT LAKE

Engine Troubles Cause Long Delay; Those on Board Back in Town

Passengers who left Nelson yesterday morning for points on Slocan lake arrived back in Nelson at 10:15 last night, after drifting about Slocan lake in the steamer Slocan from 12:30 until 4 o'clock, because of engine trouble in the boat.

They embarked at Slocan City at the usual time, 11:30 a.m., and the engine broke down about an hour after the start. From that time on, the boat drifted, once getting as far as New Denver at the upper end of the lake, until the engines took up their work again about 4:30.

As no meals are served on board, the 20-odd people on the boat were very glad to reach Slocan City again at 5:30, according to Mrs. S. J. Towgood, who was a passenger.

The Slocan train, which is supposed to leave Slocan City for Nelson at 2 o'clock, waited for the drifters, who boarded it about 6:30, and reached town last night about 10:15.

DO YOU KNOW that the Canadian Pacific Empresses are the largest, fastest and finest steamships on the Pacific—and that the Canadian Pacific operate the finest vessels in the Alaskan service?

Pillars of a Nation's Gateway

"ENDING NOWHERE!" The Western terminus of Canada's first great railway was a clearing in the forest. Victoria hardly more than a village. British Columbia a mining colony of a few thousand people.

Wise heads nodded grave concern over the "2,500 miles of rails ending nowhere."

Yet the men who built the Canadian Pacific, then the world's longest railroad, saw what all see now—not only a road to Vancouver, but a highway through Canada to the Orient.

On this highway, at the Western gateway, two great cities rear their heads. Great they are, and growing greater. They typify the wealth of a wealthy Province. But their position on the Pacific links them directly with the nation's commerce and brings them within the greater circle of world trade.

Ending nowhere! From this unknown port last year fifty-seven million bushels of wheat were loaded in ships for the world markets. Two hundred and ninety million feet of lumber were exported. A dozen cities and towns have sprung into being to turn British Columbia's resources into wealth, and to augment the traffic that passes in and out of the Great Western Ports.

Nowhere, indeed! Forty short years have placed Vancouver and Victoria in a commanding position on the international and national charts of trade.

MORE BRITISH VIEW SECOND BALL CONTEST

Some Clap Hands; Duke of York Meets McGraw and Players

LONDON, Oct. 24.—The New York Giants and the Chicago White Sox, in their second exhibition game in England today, gave several thousand British "fans" a demonstration of big league baseball. The Giants won a most thrilling game by the score of 3 to 2 with a ninth inning rally.

Among the interested spectators were the Duke and Duchess of York. The son of King George was received by Ambassador Kellogg and introduced to John McGraw, the Giants' manager. In addition the duke met the players, and insisted on shaking hands with each of them.

Giants Win in Ninth

The Giants, playing at their best, held on to a slim one-run lead until the eighth inning, when the Sox drove two runners over the plate. But the apparent victors had their their seeming triumph snatched away from them by the New York rally when two runs were scored.

On the fielding side there was a rare bit of baseball excellence in the sixth inning, when the Chicago infield evolved a triple play.

Now and then many of the British spectators were moved to an expression of their feelings Occasionally some of the natives even clapped their hands, and a few followed the example of the Americans present by using their vocal chords somewhat strenuously, but they were the exceptions.

LANDIS STAYS ON HIS HIGH HORSE

Will Reveal Testimony of Accused Players When It Suits His Purpose

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, said today that the testimony of "Cozy" Dolan and Jimmy O'Connell, members of the New York Giants involved in the bribery scandal preliminary to the world's series, would be read when in his judgment it would serve a useful purpose in clearing up the situation.

Answering the question whether Dolan and O'Connell had been banished forever from organized baseball, the commissioner said they had been placed on the ineligible list. He refused to amplify this statement. His original statement, issued at the time of his action against the two players, covered the situation, he said.

"Judge Landis does not intend to furnish ammunition to anybody interested in getting Dolan and O'Connell back into baseball," Leslie O'Connor, his secretary, said.

BAR McTIGUE FROM NEW YORK A YEAR

Tunney Will Be Recognized as Ranking Light Heavy for That Period

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—The state athletic commission today recommended to its licence commission that Mike McTigue, worlds' light-heavyweight champion, be refused a licence to box in New York for a year, because of his failure to accept a challenge to defend his title against Gene Tunney, holder of the American 175-pound crown.

The commission's action definitely ends prospects of a match between McTigue and Paul Berlenbach of New York, which Tex Rickard was seeking with the intention of matching the winner with Tunney.

The commission announced that while McTigue would not be deprived of his title, recognition as the ranking light-heavyweight while he is under ban would be extended to Tunney.

PRINCE SAILS IN WEE HOURS FOR ENGLAND

President Coolidge Sends Farewell Message by a State Official

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—After a two months' vacation in Canada and the United States, the Prince of Wales departed for England on board the Olympic at 1 o'clock this morning.

In the quiet of the early morning hours, with only a few persons waving goodbye on the dock, the Olympic pulled out from her pier, without incident, and steamed slowly to sea, among the beacon lights of the winding harbor.

Chooses Less Gaudy Room

The prince, dressed in the same closely fitting gray suit he wore on his arrival, August 29, occupied the empire room of the ship. He had relinquished the regent room, assigned to him, to General Trotter, saying: "This is too pretty for me. I'll give this to Trotter."

The prince's departure from New York, like his arrival, created a stir, but many persons desirous of catching a glimpse of the heir to the British throne were disappointed, so smoothly were arrangements for the embarkation late this afternoon carried out.

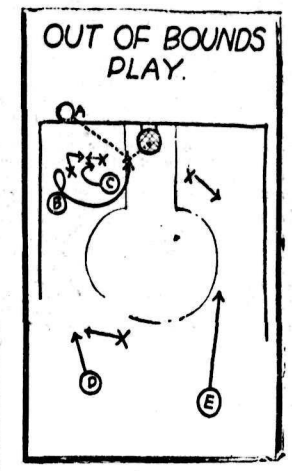
After getting aboard the boat, the prince walked about the deck for an hour or so, and then retired to his suite, where he received J. Butler Wright, third assistant secretary of state, who brought President Coolidge's farewell message. Mr. Wright wished the prince godspeed.

Some excitement communicated itself to those who were permitted aboard the boat, when it was learned that the ship's doctor had been summoned to the prince's quarters. Later, however, it was discovered that he had been called to remedy a toothache developed by Major Metcalfe.

LITTLE LESSONS IN

Basketball

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS



What is one effective scoring play from out of bounds? (Give diagram).

Answered By
"MAURY" KENT
Coach of basketball, Northwestern university and originator of many successful adaptations of the game.

* * *

At the start of the play C goes across the floor until in position between B's opponent and basket, then stops, turns towards basket, straddles out and holds position. At start of play B bluffs in a step to get opponent to back up, then pivots around back of C and C's opponent in a half circle towards basket where he should be free for shot, as his opponent will be blocked off by C and C's opponent.

A fakes a pass until B is free for shot at basket and then hooks ball in to B. If play is not going through successfully, A always passing in long to D or E, guards D and E come in for shot so as to engage remaining two opponents. As a check on the above play, work the same, only the other way, C pivoting around B to outside of floor for shot at basket.

COALERS DISPLAY BULLISH ACTIVITY

Stock Prices Make Gains Despite Profit-Taking on Late Favorites

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Stock prices made further progress on the upside today despite some rather heavy profit-taking in recent favorites.

Considerable irregularity developed just before the close. A bullish demonstration in the coalers, with Jersey Central jumping 14 points and Lackawanna climbing 3½, was followed by the heavy selling of the rubbers. United States Rubber common and first preferred and Fisk Rubber first preferred dropping 1½ to 2 points.

Frisco common was run up to a new high at 38¾, and United States Cast Iron Pipe was bid up above 116 on active buying for both accounts.

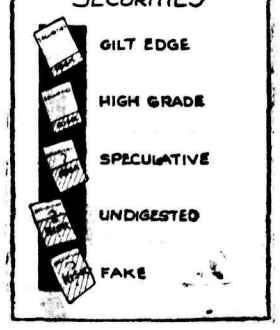
Money
AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

THE FIVE CLASSES OF INVESTMENT SECURITIES



Broadly speaking, investment securities group themselves into five rather distinct classes.

The first class of investment securities is usually known as "gilt-edged" securities, and includes those issues which are usually regarded as safe for widows and orphans to put their money into.

The second class may be termed "high-grade securities." These are usually excellent investments, but fall just a little short of the perfection attributed to the class mentioned above.

Purely speculative securities form the third class. Such securities are bought and sold with a large element of risk, which may entail large profits or large losses. They are not securities with which a person should dabble unless that person is a skilled speculator or unless he has money which he doesn't mind losing.

Undigested securities form the fourth class. Such securities are those issued by new companies which have not been widely distributed. They are securities in which a general confidence has not yet been built up. However, such securities may be excellent investments.

The fifth and last class is that of "fake" securities. They are securities which are sold with a fraudulent end in view and which always causes a loss of money to everyone except the promoter and salesman of the securities. Over $1,000,000,000 has been lost by the people of the United States in fake oil securities since the close of the war.

ARMY WILL PAY IF LAND FOUND

WINNIPEG, Oct. 24.—The following was issued by Salvation Army headquarters here tonight:

"In the interview with Commissioner Lamb Wednesday night on the subject of the Salvation Army's effort to place boys and young men upon the land in the Dominion a mistaken impression is made by the suggestion that a sum of £250,000 has been set aside auot of the general funds of the army for the immigration scheme.

"The plan is, as outlined by Gen. Bramwell Booth, that if the government will provide the land the army will make an appeal for funds to carry out the scheme. If the sum of $200,000 is forthcoming General Booth will undertake to find another $50,000 to make up the required amount."

WALDRON WANTS MORE WITNESSES

Port McNeill Timber Limits in This Province Were Highly Praised

TORONTO, Oct. 24.—In the trial of Clarence F. Smith, Montreal, Home bank director, in the county criminal court today, on charges of making false statements of the affairs of the bank, G. Waldron, defence counsel, asked Judge Coatsworth that E. A. E. Calvert, J. C. Whittaker and Mill Love, of the Home Bank staff, he called as witnesses, although they are not now on the list.

Judge Coatsworth said he would consider the matter after the evidence of Major Nash, the last crown witness, who is now on the stand under examination.

Major Nash was on the witness stand all day, and under examination by Mr. Waldron on all the big accounts of the defunct bank.

Mr. Waldron read a report on the Port McNeill timber limits in British Columbia to the Home bank. This report was most optimistic as to the value of the lands and the future of the timber industry. It estimated that there was 400,000,000 feet of good timber on the limits, and that much of the land was good for agriculture. The 30 sections are valued at $1,250,000.

SANTA SINGH CAN STAY IN CANADA

After Seventeen Years Here He Crossed Line Last Year; Wins Appeal

VANCOUVER, Oct. 24.—Santa Singh can remain in Canada, Justice McDonald so decided, and his judgment has been affirmed by the court of appeal.

The Sikh came here 17 years ago, and in 1923 went to the United States for the alleged reason that he was afraid two fellow countrymen would kill him. He returned in April, 1924, after he learned the assilants had left the town. He walked across the boundary, and was arrested by immigration officers.

After an inquiry, he was ordered deported to the place whence he came to Canada. The "place," according to the judges appealed to, was the United States, but the immigration authorities contemplated deporting the Sikh to India.

The court, therefore, decided he was illegally detained, and ordered his discharge.

HOME BANK GETS WELCOME CHECK

TORONTO, Oct. 24.—The liquidators of the Home bank of Canada today received a check for $800,000 from E. W. Burgis for the Home bank's interests in the West and South New Orleans light and traction companies.

The sale was made with the approval of the court and the inspectors appointed to represent the cerditors.

The outlays of the Home bank of Canada in connection with the railway and light enterprises in New Orleans amounted, with unpaid interest, to approximately $1,150,000 at the date of the suspension of the bank.

The Home bank contends that it has claims against the Prudential Trust of Montreal for a large sum in connection with such outlays. The liquidators of the bank intend to take action to enforce these claims.

KELOWNA GIVES KING OVATION OVER NEW LINE

Hopes to See Construction in Three Months; Asks Endorsement

KELOWNA, Oct. 24.—Great applause greeted Premier King here tonight when he announced to a large audience that the government was doing all in its power to see the early completion of a Canadian National line to Kelowna. He explained that Sir Henry Thornton had advised him that he hoped to begin construction within three months.

Mr. King urged his audience to show their appreciation of the government's effort's to provide adequate transportation facilities, by supporting D. W. Sutherland, Kelowna's mayor, who is the Liberal candidate for Yale at the pending byelection.

The premier and his party arrived here from Vernon by automobile, 20 other cars from the district traveling along with him.

Saturday afternoon he is billed to speak at Summerland, and in the evening at Penticton. This will be Mr. King's last address in the Yale constituency.

Dr. J. H. King, federal minister of public works, remains in Yale until after polling.

Appeals at Vernon

VERNON, Oct. 24.—In an address at Vernon last night Premier W. L. Mackenzie King made an appeal for D. W. Sutherland, Kelowna, the Liberal candidate for Yale at the forthcoming federal byelection. The premier said that through his efforts the cabinet at present for the first time in Dominion history had representation from each of the nine provinces. The electors of Yale could not better show their appreciation of this fact than by strengthening his hands.

He read a telegram from Sir Henry Thornton regarding the projected Kamloops-Kelowna branch of the National railways, which said the latter expected to have a decision from the Canadian Pacific company within three weeks regarding running rights, and that he hoped within three months construction of the line would be commenced.

Alluding to Empire ties, Mr. King said he had been accused of attempts to sever these. Far from this, he said, he had only worked for independence of action where Canada alone was concerned. British statesmen, said the premier, had conceded this.

McCROSSAN DENIES KEPT HIS HAT ON

Vancouver City Solicitor Say's It's Attack on the Native Sons

VANCOUVER, Oct. 24.—Charged with having refused to honor the national anthem when sung at Premier King's meeting here, City Solicitor George E. McCrossan has issued a flat denial, which is supported by Mayor Owen. The allegiation was made editorially by a local paper on the strength of a statement by Ross Sutherland, a boy scout official of Victoria, who has, however, admitted that he does not know Mr. McCrossan to see him. He says a man who walked about with his hat on while the singing was going on, was pointed out to him as McCrossan.

Mr. MsCrossan charges the attack is a frameup against the Native Sons of Canada, of which he is president.

Many of the members of the organization are urging him to sue for libel, but he declines, stating: "I have no intention of instituting legal acton, as I either have an honorable reputation known to the people of Vancouver in which case vindication in unnecessary, or I have not, in which case there is nothing to vindicate."

FAIRBANKS PAYS THE HIGHEST TAX

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 24.—The hall of income taxes, opened by the treasury department ruling making 1923 income tax payments free to public inspection, today found Douglas Fairbanks, motion picture actor and producer, on the highest pedestal in the district. Yet it crashed into woeful collapse, press agent stories concerning million dollar salaries to film favorites, revealing that many contributed to the government an amount such as many modest business or professional men gave.

Edward L. Doheny, oil magnate, heading the list of payments from oil wealth dividends, was considerably lower than Fairbanks, while business and professional pursuits held foremost in the upper tens of thousands.

pleaded not guilty. I still adhere to that statement.

"I am not guilty of conspiracy. I only saw Aemilius Jarvis once or twice in my life, and only once in connection with this deal. At the time the cabinet made the arrangements, I was sick at home with the flu.

"The jury have found me guilty of conspiracy. I am content to abide by their decision. But I will say this: I will take it to a higher court than this, where I will get forgiveness."

At this period the former treasurer of the province completely broke down. Tears came to his eyes and he could hardly control his voice. Making a desperate effort to control his feelings, he then pleaded:

"I would like to have time enough to arrange my affairs at home. I have a family at home. I have not made any provision for their future.

"That is all I have to say."

Aemilius Jarvis Sr., in a tone of indignation, said:

"I never knew Peter Smith, and never had any connection with him directly or indirectly. I never gave him one dollar or sanctioned one dollar being given to him. Nor had I any conspiracy with Andrew Pepall to distort or mislead the cabinet of Ontario.

"I never discussed this thing with Peter Smith—only with Mr. Drury to begin with, and with him in the cabinet."

Chief Justice Meredith asked:

"May I ask why you took the $500,000 or more for the petty services you performed?"

Mr. Jarvis answered:

"I do not call them petty services when a man stakes his whole fortune signing a hypothecation in London which you do not put any credence in, when you have become liable for $8,000,000 and stake your life's fortune.

Not a Dollar's Risk

"As Sir John Ferguson said, I was the first person to repay if the province failed to take up this note within 30 days. I was the borrower. As the bonds came in they were paid for at Lloyds, and I had to borrow the money. You say that is a petty thing?"

"You knew, Aemilius Jarvis, that you did not run the risk of one dollar."

"I ran the risk of everything."

Turning to Peter Smith, Mr. Justice Meredith asked him if he cared to tell how he got the $100,000-odd from Aemilius Jarvis.

"I did not get that money."

Got Coupons From Pepall

"Nobody said you did. I was asking about the securities. Where did you get the coupons?"

"I got them from Andrew Pepall," answered Mr. Smith. "He owed me some money, and he asked me to get them cashed. They were not due at the time he gave them. He was going away."

In passing judgment, Mr. Justice Meredith said:

The Greater Crime

"Peter Smith, it is neither my duty nor my right to recount your misdeed, or to say one word that will add to your punishment. But in order that you may not think there is any disproportion between the penalty passed upon you and passed upon your co-conspirator, I may say that you were chosen by the people of the municipality in which you lived to serve them and to serve this province faithfully. Aemilius Jarvis was not so chosen. You were made a minister of the crown, and were what is commonly called a watchdog of the treasury. Aemilius Jarvis was not. You made an oath which you violated, a solemn oath of office. Aemilius Jarvis did not.

"The judgment of the court upon you, Peter Smith, is that you be imprisoned in the penitentiary for three years."

Addressing Mr. Jarvis, the chief justice said:

"The judgment of the court upon you, Aemilius Jarvis, is that you be imprisoned in the county jail of this county for six months."

Then, addressing both prisoners:

"And furthermore, the judgment of the court upon you, Peter Smith, and upon you, Aemilius Jarvis, is that you and each of you pay a fine of $500,000, and that you remain in jail until it is paid."

Ten farmer Ford-owners or members of farmer Ford-owner families in each rural Ford dealer's territory in British Columbia will be given the privilege of taking orders for Ford cars, trucks and tractors. Only the first ten applicants for this privilege will be enrolled. You can enroll immediately.

Order forms and complete instructions will be supplied to all contestants.

All you are expected to do is to tell your friends who need a car, truck or tractor of your own experience with your Ford. If they decide to buy, you take their order and send it to the Ford Branch in this territory.

On all such orders you will get credit in points at the rate of 5% on the list price of the order. The contestant gaining the highest number of points in each Ford Branch territory will receive, absolutely free, a Ford Tudor Sedan, fully equipped, all taxes and delivery charges paid, and with 1925 license, ready to run.
Next highest contestant will receive, free, a Fordson tractor, fully equipped with fenders and belt pulley, ready to work.

All contestants who do not qualify for the first or second prizes will receive credit for 3% of the list price on all orders taken by them.

This will be awarded in any kind of Ford-made merchandise or in cash.

This contest closes December 30th. Prizes will be delivered January 15th. Enrollment applications will be sent to all farmer Ford-owners, but if you wish to enroll immediately in order to insure acceptance application may be had from the undersigned.
