COLONIAL CHANGES NOT COMMENTED ON

Only Two London Papers Comment on Premier Baldwin's Colonial Announcement

LONDON, June 12. — (Canadian Press Cable.)—The Daily Express and Daily Herald, the latter the Labor organ, are alone among the London papers giving any special prominence to the colonial office changes announced by Premier Baldwin in the house last night. Except for the Morning Post, none of the other London papers has even the barest editorial note about it, and the premier's announcement is given an inconspicuous position in them. Possibly this is due in some measure to the fact that such changes had been talked of for several months past.

Graham of Brandon as moderator; British Columbia synod, four presbyteries—Victoria, New Westminster, Kamloops and Kootenay.

TORONTO, June 12.—The assembly of the continuing Presbyterian church had a stormy half hour this afternoon over the appointment of three members to the federal commission to deal with the general property of the Presbyterian church. A committee recommended to the assembly that Thomas McMillan, Toronto; Tower Fergusson, Toronto, and Rev. Dr. Aekin, be the members from the continuing Presbyterian church to the committee which shall consist of nine members, three appointed by the United Presbyterians, three by the non-concurring and these six to appoint three others.

SOME DISORDER IN COLLIERIES STRIKER'S AREA

Looting Continues at Night; Troops Are Quartered in Plants

DAVIS' INQUEST THIS MORNING

Police Blamed by Miners as Aggravating and Firing First Shots

GLACE BAY SITUATION AT A GLANCE

Conditions much quieter after Thursday's outbreak.
Five hundred troops billeted in company's plant.
Mob stones soldiers and breaks car windows.
Company's stores in two centers looted last night.
Gilbert Watson, wounded miner, fighting for life.
War veterans protest at police attack.
It is claimed police started the whole fracas.
Police declare fired upon first by mob.
Reports state fresh outbreaks may occur at any time.

SYDNEY, June 12.—A day of comparative quiet followed yesterday's stormy scenes in the colliery districts of Cape Breton where the forces of the British Empire Steel corporation and the striking members of the United Mine Workers of America engaged in their first sanguinary clash since their wage dispute ended in a strike on March 6. There was some disorder this morning when the troops entering the collieries district of the northern area was stoned and some windows of their train broken, and also late tonight, when miners were reported by the Glace Bay police to be looting company stores at New Aberdeen and Dominion. It was evident that the police were not taking the disorders in the Glace Bay district tonight as indication of anything of a serious nature.

May Be Further Outbreaks

SYDNEY, June 12.—(Canadian Press.)—Deputy Sheriff George Ingraham, who with Judge Duncan Finlayson made the representations which resulted in the calling out of the militia following yesterdays' outbreak at New Waterford, stated tonight his information was that the troops would remain within the plant of the British Empire Steel corporation here until tomorrow at least.

In discharge of his duties as acting sheriff of the county of Cape Breton, Mr. Ingraham reported to Lieut.-Col. W. H. P. Elkin, D.S.O., on the latter's arrival this afternoon in command of a detachment made up of infantry, artillery, engineers and army service corps. The deputy sheriff stated tonight his advice was "He would not be surprised if further outbreaks occurred."

The troops are quartered within the enclosures of the steel plant here, where a detachment of provincial police under Capt. Basil Curry were also taken on their arrival this morning. The Sydney & Louisburg railway connects the plant with the various colliery districts, and the troops can therefore be expeditiously moved to the scene of any further outbreaks that may occur. Judge Duncan Finlayson stated tonight it was possible an investigation of the circumstances of yesterday's outbreak at New Waterford might arise from the result of the coroner's inquest over the body of William Davis, who was shot dead during the attack on the power house. The inquest will be held tomorrow morning at the town hall and will be conducted by Dr. D. J. Hartigan.

Miners Carried No Firearms

Accounts of yesterday's encounter and New Waterford differ widely. The miners claim they carried no firearms and were provoked and subsequently attacked by the company's police on approaching the power house property. Capt. D. A. Noble, in command of the police force, infers some of the miners were armed and started the shooting.

Ex-Mayor George Walker of New Waterford, an eyewitness of the events leading up to the attack, stated today that in his opinion "the police had gone out of their way to aggravate the men."

Damages Heavy

There is no room for a difference of opinion as to the extent of the damage occasioned the plant at New Waterford. An inspection of the property today showed that two "exciters" manufactured in England were damaged beyond repair, that two boilers were probably ruined and the plant generally wrecked. In addition, the supplies brought in by the police were carried away. Only two cars of foodstuffs were saved by the company. The wrecking of the power house occurred at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, it was stated today by those living in the vicinity, and was carried out, it was claimed, by a body of miners other than those clashing with the police.

Trades Council Hopes Soldiers Take Food; Little at Mine Area

SASKATOON, June 12.—The following telegram was sent to Premier King tonight by the Saskatoon trades and labor council:

"This trades council notes that troops have been sent into Nova Scotia mine area. It is our earnest hope that they will take sufficient food with them as they will find little or none on their arrival. It would be a national catastrophe if troops on arrival suffered any hardships through insufficient nourishment."

YOUTH DIED FROM TYPHOID, SAYS DOCTORS

Shepherd Trial Proceeds; Medical Testimony Favors Accused

CHICAGO, June 12.—The prosecution today won the right to present its murder case against William Darling Shepherd, Chicago lawyer, charged with using typhoid germs to slay his millionaire foster son, William Nelson McClintock, unhampered by instructions from the bench, but the defence was able to turn in its own favor all medical testimony introduced by three state witnesses.

From Doctors Rufus Stolp and J. Herrick, who attended McClintock on his last illness, William Scott Stewart, defence counsel, upon cross-examination gained the admissions that the young man sickened and died during an epidemic of typhoid fever attributed to eating tainted seafood.

Faulty Diagnosis

Dr. Stolp, called first to treat the youth, said that a faulty diagnosis had been made, and it was not until two or three days later that a correct diagnosis had been made.

Typhoid fever alone caused the rich youth's death, testified Dr. William B. McNally, coroner's chemist and veteran of more than five thousand autopsies and no medical science in the world could tell whether it was caused in a normal manner or by the alleged innoculation by Shepherd.

No trace of a poison was found testified Dr. McNally, thereby dismissing a half dozen counts in the indictment against Shepherd. He said virtually every known poison was sought in his examination. The indictment against Shepherd mentioned aconite and aconitine, several counts being devoted to each.

"Sunshine Girl," Heard

Estelle Gepling, trained nurse and the "sunshine girl" of the case, was asked only to identify a letter Shepherd had written to her and one exerpt from it went to the record.

Alexander F. Rechmann coguardian of McClintock and attorney for the estate, was the first witness of the day, concluding his testimony begun yesterday.

Upon cross-examination of Rechmann, Mr. Stewart tried to bring out that Rechmann had come to Chicago from Iowa," without a dime," and had obtained "a lot of money" after he began to handle the McClintock estate. Rechmann begged the court's protection from that and other insinuations but Stewart said he was "not half through insinuating."

William Goyette, a plumber, testified that he had heard Shepherd make adverse criticisms of Rechmann, and L. H. Tolzein, bank teller, introduced Shepherd's bank book from January, 1921, to January last. It ranged from a few cents to $5000, but generally was very low, frequently less than one dollar.

Robert White, long missing witness, appeared in the court today, announced himself ready to testify against Shepherd, accused the defence of intimidating him and begged protection. He was taken to a hotel to be guarded until his testimony is desired.

TWO SENTENCED TO SEVEN YEARS

Guilty Eight Charges Theft in Alberta; Pleaded Guilty

REGINA, June 12.—John Badick, aged 22, and Nick Seeber, aged 21, of Carman, Man., were sentenced to seven years in Prince Alberta penitentiary on eight charges of theft, when they pleaded guilty to all the charges in district court today.

Two years were given for theft of an automobile from Lewis Freedman of Devil's Lake, North Dakota. Five years were given for theft of goods valued at $600 from the store of E. Carter, Qu'Appelle. On six other charges of theft, sentences of one year were imposed to run concurrently with each other, and with the sentence of five years.

According to the police the two were tried for murder in February and acquitted.

British Ship Owner Passes in Hotel Room at Ottawa

HAD ENGAGEMENT WITH PREMIER

Medical Aid Too aLte; Doctors Worked Hard; Three Daughters

OTTAWA, June 12.—Sir William Petersen, noted shipowner died here today shortly after 4 o'clock from angina pectoris. He had just returned from the house of commons after hearing the report on the Petersen ship subsidy, when he was taken ill and died suddenly in his hotel room. Two physicians tried in vain to revive him.

OTTAWA, June 12.—The death of Sir William Petersen came without warning today. He had visited the house of commons at 3 o'clock when the report of the special committee which sat on the Petersen ship subsidy contract was presented to the house. Returning to his hotel, he talked with friends for an hour and then set out, accompanied by W. T. R. Preston to fulfill an engagement with the premier. While waiting for a taxicab at the hotel steps he appeared to be so ill that Mr. Preston prevailed upon him to return to his rooms. There he chatted a while about some cables he had received from his backers in England. These communications he intimated had been disturbing. His financial backers had been alarmed at the news dispatches which had been sent from Ottawa concerning the probable fate of the ship subsidy contract.

In Cold Sweat

Sir William, however, was optimistic and talked of getting his ships going between Canada and Britain and launching his competition with the established shipping companies. He was bathed in a cold sweat and agreed that he would have a shower and change his clothing. He stretched out on his bed and continued to talk for a few minutes. He was so obviously ill that Mr. Preston went in search of the hotel doctor, Dr. F. W. McKinnon, who arrived a few minutes later to find Sir William at the point of death. He tried vainly to revive him, but within two minutes the ship owner was dead. Another physician had been sent for and the two used every medical aid without success for an hour to restore Sir William.

Death was due to angina pectoris, from which Sir William had suffered for some time. The body will be sent overseas for interment, probably at Sir William's home on the Island of Eigg in the Hebrides.

Danish Born

Sir William Petersen was born in Denmark on May 29, 1856 but for over 50 years had resided in England and was a British subject. During practically the whole of his life he had been connected with shipping. He was director of the Thomas Steamship company, the London American Maritime Trading company and was chairman of the registry of bureau veritas. Indirectly he was associated also with other shipping companies.

Sir William first came to Canada in 1893 in connection with a shipping project of carrying coal from Cape Breton to Montreal. Subsequently in 1897 he secured a contract with the Dominion government with a subsidy of $153,000 a year to run the Whitney service of passenger steamers between Canada and England. That service did not materialize because Sir William found, he stated, to the ocean rates comittee of the house this session, that he had enormously strong opposition from the shipping community. The Canadian government gave him a contract for another period but in the meantime the Spanish-American war broke out and it was impossible to go on.

Established French Line

In 1904 he established a line called the Franco-Canadian line between Canada and France and London, but gave up the enterprise. Then in 1907, he started a line in connection with the late Sir William MacKenzie, between Rotterdam and Canada. This line was developed and became the royal line which was later transferred to the Canadian Northern railway.

Sir William's latest agreement with the Canadian government was for the establishment of a trans-Atlantic line of 10 steamers between Britain and Canada. Under the contract which was signed late last year by Sir William and by Hon. T. A. Low as representing the Canadian government, Sir William was to receive a subsidy of £275,000 and the Canadian government was to control the rates. It was provided in the contract that it would come into effect only on approval by parliament. There was strong opposition to the contract and it was referred to a special committee of the house. By a dramatic coincidence the committee reported its findings to the house only about an hour before Sir William was stricken.

While not specifically recommending that the subsidy should not be granted the committee in its report took the ground that opportunity should be given to Sir William to demonstrate the practicability of the corrugated vessels—a new type of steamer which he proposed to utilize in the service. This recommendation was interpreted in political circles as involving a holding of the contract.

Sir William was a widower and is survived by three daughters and a grand son.

Life for Freedom of Seas

OTTAWA, June 12.—"I don't know that there is much that I can say except that it would seem that Sir William gave his life in a fight for freedom on the seas," remarked Premier King as he came out of Sir William Petersen's apartment in a local hotel this afternoon after the efforts of medical men to revive Sir William had failed.

Sir William Petersen, British ship owner died suddenly of angina pectoris in Ottawa today. He was 69 years old.

A contract was signed by the Canadian government last autumn with Sir William whereby the latter would put a fleet of 10 freighters into the trans-Atlantic trade, carrying cargo at rates to be controlled by the Canadian government, the government to subsidize the line as a guarantee against rate war or boycott from existing lines. This contract has been the most contentious legislation of this parliamentary session, and a special committee of the house sat for weeks to investigate the question of ocean rates and the alleged shipping combine in general and the Petersen contract in particular. Today, this committee returned a report to the house recommending that a further investigation be made into shipping profits and ocean rates and that the Petersen ships be given an opportunity of demonstrating their ability to meet general competition before any final judgment was given of the Petersen contract. Sir William sat in the gallery during the reading of this report, returned to his hotel and within an hour suffered a stroke while discussing with friends his plans.

Premier Cables

Premier King has cabled Sir William's family for instructions for the disposal of Sir William's body. It will probably be shipped to Britain for interment. Commenting on the dramatic death of the ship owner tonight, Premier King said:

"The sudden death of Sir William Petersen will evoke wide-spread sympathy and regret throughout the British Empire. Few men have essayed a more difficult task than he, and few have shown in their lives greater determination and persistence in the accomplishment of a great aim. For many years he has been persuaded that a rate-fixing combine controlled transportation upon the high seas, to the detriment of the public and he was prepared to enter the lists against all comers to prove that the security of consumers alike lay in freedom of competition and not in monopoly. He only asked to be given his chance. He was prepared to take it under any conditions which would assure freedom of competition in the obtaining of cargo. His death occurred at the moment that this opportunity was given by the unanimous report of a special committee of the house.

Fought Bravely

"He died fighting bravely for a great cause. It may well be that his death in the circumstances under which it occurred will help to win for his cause the support for which he fought to obtain and of which he was convinced it was in so great need."

Sir William was ill for six weeks with the flu before leaving England.

Immediately he heard of Sir William's death, the premier cabled Sir William's daughter, the Countess of Winten, notifying her of her father's sudden death and asking for instructions. The prime minister also cabled Premier Stanley Baldwin, Hon. Austen Chamberlain and Sir Walter Runicman, all close friends of the late ship owner.

Sir William's only son was killed while an officer in the British army during the war. Another daughter is the widow of a British army officer.

SOME DISORDER IN COLLIERIES STRIKER'S AREA

volver fire in the fracas of yesterday. "The action of the police in firing without warning on an unarmed crowd" was condemned and it was decided to petition the attorney-general for an investigation. Watson's condition was reported to be still dangerous tonight.

Capt. D. A. Noble, in command of the British Empire Steel corporation police, gave out today a statement covering yesterday's encounter with striking United Mine Workers, which read in part:

"After all efforts failed and the mob was gaining ground, it is true the police used their revolvers, firing in the air to see if that would not check their advances. It was only when shots were fired from the mob that the police used the guns for more deadly effects.

Police Weapons Taken Away

"On behalf of the police under my command, I want most emphatically to deny that they surrendered their equipment to the mob. The condition they themselves were in, as well as the condition of their clothes when the affray showed very plainly that a terrific struggle had taken place before they were rendered helpless by the many different weapons which were used against them. Their own weapons were forcibly taken from them. . . .

"I am sorry that there was any fatal results as an outcome of the affray. It was only because of the coolheadedness of the police that more fatalities did not result. . . .

"I may say here that the police officers not only suffered injuries and had their clothes torn off their backs, but were also robbed of their personal effects, such as watches, jewelry, rings and money. Mob rule prevailed throughout.

"Taken all through, I am very well pleased, indeed, with the way my men conducted themselves. They proved themselves gentlemen and first-class police officers."

Company Sought Public Opinion

SYDNEY, June 12.—J. W. McLeod, district president of the United Mine Workers of America, issued a statement today in which he reviewed the history of the struggle to date, charging it was precipitated by endeavors of the British Empire Steel corporation to force a wage cut in the face of public opinion, and contending the authorities had been fully warned of the possibility of an outbreak in the event of a prolongation of the dispute.

Fifteen Hundred in Mob

SYDNEY, N. S., June 12.—British Empire Steel corporation stores at Dominion Mines Nos. 1, 2 and 4, near Glace Bay, were raided tonight by a crowd of 1500 striking miners, according to a report made by Sergt. M. McIntyre, in charge of the Glace Bay police station. Sergeant McIntyre, in charge of the station, stated that rumors of an attack on the power plant at New Aberdeen by the miners were without foundation.

The miners who were driven out of the corporation store at No. 26 last night returned tonight, taking advantage of the fact that the section of Glace Bay in which the store is situated is without lights because of the destruction of the power plant at New Waterford yesterday.

Sergeant McIntyre's report said: "The miners are only taking from the stores what they want. It would take a week to clean them out."

'ROAD TO LOVE'

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER XCVI

Dunlap recoiled with a startled "Well—well—"

The man raised the long, bony finger, shook it. "You the boss?"

"Well—well—I may say so. At present, yes."

"Pay the money! You pay the money! Now. Right now."

"Well—well—money, ah, yes. The boss owes you money? I see. . . ." He kept edging from the cabinet to the corner, the man following and talking angrily so that every word rasped:

"Ten hundred dollars—now. He tell me——"

"Yes, certainly; I see." Dunlap curled his hand over his mouth, the whispers sinking so that the other was forced to follow. Joan, listening with every fiber, caught only a word—a phrase. "We'll settle this, certainly. The boss promised it, you say?"

She got up deliberately, went to Denny's desk, saw Dunlap with his hand on the man's arm; saw him whispering; his face chalky. Then he said aloud, "I'll see what I can do, Mr. Wilson. We'll attend to it at once. If the boss gave the word of the company we'll have to make good."

They went out together.

Joan listened with charging pulse as their steps echoed heavily. Then she sped over to the cabinet. It was open where Dunlap had left it. Which paper had he taken? No way of telling. Did it mean anything to him at all?

They were affidavits from the farmers of the Twin Falls irrigation district; that and titles to the use of the water.

The small black book, covered with notes, lay on the top of the papers. Joan picked it up, stuck it in her blouse, and leaving the drawer open, moved with a soft, cat-like swiftness to her desk.

There came a rapid, hot quivering to every nerve as though all the world had seen and were yelling, "Stop thief!"

She began to type. At every creak, her eyes moved fearfully to the door. Her mind stormed with agitation. "What good is the book? What can you learn?"

She swallowed with an effort, trying to answer her own accusing thought.

It was an act of intuition. Joan, from her first meeting, was repelled by Dunlap. Of late she distrusted him and resented him. She had nothing but feeling to guide her in this, and she knew from experience that her feelings were always violently intense.

But she had the book. She meant to keep it, so she challenged obstinately, "Why does he whisper so? Why did he take out that paper and look toward me? He's too crafty. I'll insult him the next time he puts his hand on my typewriter."

Then Dunlap returned. He came in, twisting his soft palms together, pushed over to her desk with an excited, "Bad business, Miss Lewis. Bad business! Our young friend is in pretty deep."

"What do you mean, Mr. Dunlap? You said something like this a while ago."

"Worse than I thought. I'm afraid we'll have all kinds of damage suits on our hands. This man, for instance—fanatical fellow—he was in this morning?"

"Yes."

Dunlap cocked the yellow eyebrow, the pale blue eyes fixing Joan avidly. "He told you what Mr. Brooks had done? He mentioned it? Told you about the promise?"

"He didn't mention Mr. Brooks."

"I see. Merely said, 'The boss.' But he told you about the money owed him?"

Joan answered quietly, "No."

"I see. Just as well not to mention it, Miss Lewis. Company will have to settle, I presume."

He went over to the filing cabinet, ran his thumb nervously over the cards in the open drawer, stepped back and glanced at the floor. "Did you see a small black notebook, Miss Lewis?"

Joan's back was to him. She felt as a flame the sudden rush of color to her face. "Weren't you writing in one, Mr. Dunlap?"

"Yes—just a while ago. Sure—I left it in this drawer." He began patting his pockets, pulling out wallets, papers tied with rubber bands. "Sure I had it just before I went out. Did you notice if I had it in my hands?"

The book lay like a bar of iron against Joan's waist. "What have I done? Why did I do this?" she thought, as she went quietly over to the cabinet. "If you left it here, it can't have disappeared. Perhaps it fell between the files."

He took out the drawer, pushed all the papers back and then forward. Joan kept saying, "Are you sure it's not in your pocket? Perhaps you dropped it in the hall."

"No—well, it just means a lot of extra work. Had some valuable notes. Nothing important at all."

Joan waited till she was in her room, and had the door locked, all the shades drawn down, before she took the book from her blouse.

Her hands shook as she turned the pages. They were filled with notes. In a small pocket of the cover were two half-sheets of paper, each signed with a single initial. This Joan couldn't decipher.

The first said merely: "S. Macey. Use caution."

The second: "Settle. No talk."

What she had hoped to find Joan couldn't say: She knew Dunlap was hostile to Denny, so she was ready to suspect him. The black notebook and these laconic messages gave her nothing more definite than her own doubts.

Yet she was possessed with uneasiness, sat at a small table devising all manner of hiding places for the stolen book. Finally she took her coat and sewed it into the lining of her sleeve.

On Friday, when Denny returned she would give it to him. She would tell him of the strange fellow's visit and Dunlap's agitation, his white face.

The next morning there was a telegram for her:

"They're trying to pin it on me. Face trial. I'm keeping in the dark. Don't communicate with me. Give no information whatever, and above all, keep out of D's way. The job is over for you. Sorry. I'll write general delivery. Address me there. Explain all later. DENNY.

Joan read the words twice before their import sank with a chill in her mind. Face trial—Denny faced trial. He was in hiding. And she was to do nothing. Merely sit and wait.

Could she do this? When all the hot fight surging within her stormed to be free; to shout aloud against this shame.

It was almost an hour later when she reread the wire that she noticed dully and with a numb acceptance, "The job is over for you."

In the middle of the afternoon a note came to Joan from the Twin Falls Irrigation board:

"Mr. Brooks has severed connection with this board. As you are his appointee this board takes it for granted you will not wish to remain. Miss Ida Burns has therefore been named to take your place. She will begin work immediately. Will you kindly turn over all papers and contracts to her?"

Miss Ida Burns was a tall, lanky girl with a large nose and a small mouth. She had straight, oily brown hair and very long limp hands. It was almost 5 when she arrived.

"I was to have come earlier," she said. "Hope I haven't kept you waiting. Will you be around tomorrow? I'd be glad for an hour in the morning—just till I get acquainted with the work."

"I'd like to help you," Joan answered. "I'll probably be here. I have some papers and personal things I want."

"All right. Then I won't wait now."

Joan was scarcely finished with her dinner that evening when she was called into the parlor. A caller waited. It was Dunlap. He walked back and forth, portly figure seeming to quiver.

"Sorry, Miss Lewis. Sorry about this. News to me until just a short while ago that you are dismissed."

"That's all right, Mr. Dunlap."

He shook his head. "Strong—the board is going too strong on this. Trial—did you know that? Very unpleasant for us—for you and me."

"Why, for me?"

The eyebrows soaring as Dunlap stopped directly in front of Joan and whispered ominously: "You'll be called to testify. Some of these contracts will figure. Bad business. I'll have to keep in touch with you, Miss Lewis."

"Yes. I don't know as I have any information."

The lawyer smiled. "No? What about our strange friend and the promise of money? You don't know about that? Hard for you. I understand. Hard for me, too. But the good of our people must come first. . . . Am I right, Miss Lewis?"

Joan answered: "If I am called Mr. Dunlap, I shall be glad to testify. I know nothing that I fear to say—many things I shall be glad to say. You will find me more than ready to testify if Mr. Brooks is called for trial."

"Then I may call here when I need you, Miss Lewis?"

"Kindly don't call otherwise."

"Very well—no offense, Miss Lewis—a matter of business, you understand."

Joan was still on fire with uncertainty and indignation when another message came. "Get all papers relating to Robinson contract and hold for me. Can you get out of D's way. You have damaging information. Explain later—Denny.

LEAD PUTS PEP IN THE MINING IN WINDERMERE

Lot of Work Being Done on Various Properties, Says Randolph Bruce

"There is fairly general activity in mining in the Windermere, and if the price of lead keeps the way it is, undoubtedly a lot of work will be done on various properties in our territory," said R. Randolph Bruce, of the famous Paradise mine in Windermere, last night at the Hume.

Toby Creek Reopening

"On Toby creek, where the provincial government last year rebuilt the bridges washed out in 1916, two outfits are active. One of these, a Vancouver interest, is to start work shortly on the Silver King, formerly the Mineral King, 25 miles up from the mouth of the creek.

"Three outfits are working lead properties on No. 3 creek, including the Lead Queen and the Steel group, both of which will be shipping ore by the fall.

"Similarly, on Horsethief creek, two lead properties are being worked by different groups.

"The foregoing, of course, are all lode operations, in addition to which there are the hydraulicking operations."

Mr. Bruce is on his way to the East Kootenay.

LONDON MARKET REPORTED GLOOMY

Rubber, Tobacco, Textiles Higher; Iron and Steel Shares Drop

LONDON, June 12.—(Canadian Press Cable)—Gloominess in direct contrast with the weather pervaded the stock market this week, and the surfeit of new issues still weighs heavily.

The only fresh emission consisted of more than £2,000,000 6½ per cent debentures of the Allied Northern Newspapers (holding company of Allied Newspapers limited, of which Sir William Berry is chairman, the financing of new acquisitions by allied newspapers being undertaken through the holding company), and it was given a greedy reception, being oversubscribed many times.

The market was bright only in spots this week, rubber, tobacco and textiles being higher than they were, especially tobacco and textiles.

The common stock of J. Lyons, the well-known catering firm, has a long time been steadily rising on bonus expectations. These are now fulfilled, the bonus working out approximately at 25s a share, while the dividend of 25d is maintained.

Iron and steel shares are again inclined to drop.

Eleven Fires in Week but Situation Good

The fire situation in the three forest districts under the Nelson subprovincial office is very good at present, reported C. D. Orchard, assistant forester, last night. No fires are burning at present, although 11 were reported to the department during the week.

To date, since the early spring, there have been 134 fires in the district.

The humidity at 8 o'clock last night was 79, following the day's showers. Saturation point of the atmosphere is taken as 100, and 35 as danger point.

FOURTH YEAR WILL HAVE FEES RAISED

Because Fewer Than Estimated Apply, Board Will Charge More

Prospective fourth year high school students will be notified that they may be asked to pay a fee of $100 in place of the $75 first suggested for the year's tuition, it was decided at this week's meeting of the school board.

The board intends that the class shall be self-supporting, and as only 18, in place of the estimated 20, have applied for entrance so far, it must consider a higher fee if fewer pupils than estimated at first attend.

School Minutes Given Trustees

From now on copies of the minutes of each school board meeting will be sent to the chairman and each trustee following the meeting, in order to save the time now given to their reading.

Motion to this effect was made by Trustee D. StDenis at Wednesday night's meeting of the board.

SUGGESTS WAIT FOR NEW CANADA FLAG

But Board Decides to Put Up Flag Now in Use at Schools

That it might be wise to wait until the proposed new Dominion flag were issued by the government, before purchasing flags for the three Nelson schools, was suggested by Trustee Ross Fleming at this week's meeting of the board. Trustee D. StDenis reported that the two flag poles donated by Lindsley Brothers Canadian company were lying on some flat ground near the Canadian Pacific railway station, and would be painted at once.

The board decided that as the new flag might not be ready for issuance for a year or so, and as a flag did not last much longer than one year, it would be best to order the flags now in use.

Trustee StDenis reported that the present flag pole at the Central school was badly rotted at the bottom, and as Principal L. V. Rogers of the high school said a shorter pole would really look better on the high school grounds, it was decided to cut down the pole and transfer it to the high school.

WEEK'S RAINFALL IS NEARLY AN INCH

In Spite of Rain Yesterday Maximum Was Higher for Six Days

Since Monday night .77 of an inch of rain has fallen, according to the instruments of J. S. Goulding, local meteorologist. This was made up of .23 on Monday night and Tuesday morning after 11 p.m., .13 on Wednesday, .14 on Thursday and .27 yesterday.

In spite of the rainfall yesterday, the maximum was 70, higher than it has been all week. The minimum was 42, six degrees lower than the minimum on Thursday.

Last night the barometer showed a slight rise, indicating more settled weather.

Girls' Styles Now More Healthy Than Boys' Is London Doctor's Claim

LONDON, June 12.—In view of the low cut neck effect, short skirts and spider web stockings which are now the mode, girls have a better chance for health than boys who usually wear too much clothing, in the opinion of Dr. Leonard Hill, of the National Institute of Medical Research.

This is because these fads of the women and girls permit more of the ultra violet rays to enter their bodies, the doctor declares.

Did This Man Intend the Boy's Death?

"I have told the boys many times to keep away from the river. They take no notice, and I don't care if they drown."

If said merely in exasperation, or with an Owen Wister grin robbing it of its heartlessness, this alleged declaration of George Schrader, a resident of the river bank in Winnipeg, under such circumstances might be excused, for doubtless he had been annoyed at times by the young scamps—perhaps even had felt concerned at their foolhardiness in swimming at the site of the former bathing station at Louise bridge, officially closed these 20 years.

But his statement was no academic one, he was allegedly speaking to a mother imploring him to let his boat be used to save her boy drowning in the twisting currents of the Red river, and it expressed his refusal to let his boat be used.

Under the circumstances his reported words stand as one of the cruellest speeches ever carried over the Canadian Press wires to Nelson.

The boy drowned.

A coroner's jury yesterday held Schrader negligently responsible for the boy's death, and expressed the opinion that his conduct was "such as to make him an undesirable citizen."

It is to be hoped that the attorney-general of Manitoba will interpret this as justification for placing this man on trial, on a charge not intended to lead merely to deportation.

"Culpable homicide consists of the killing of any person either by an unlawful act, or by an omission without lawful excuse to perform or observe any legal duty, or by both combined."

"Culpable homicide is either murder or manslaughter. It is murder if the offender means to cause the death of the person killed."

These extracts from the charge of Mr. Justice Murphy to the Hanley jury suggest that this man's prevention of an attempt at rescue might come within the scope of the most serious law in the Canadian statutes.

Should evidence reveal that an attempted rescue would almost certainly have failed—as might be the case—then a charge of attempted murder would seem, on the facts as reported, to be logical.

Kitty Kiernan Loves a Soldier

There she is, if you want to see her, on Page 4 of yesterday's Daily News—"large as life and twice as sweet," pretty Kitty Kiernan. "Three Lovers Killed, Engaged Fourth Time," says the caption. And all four of them Irishmen and soldiers! They were good pickers. So was she.

Offhand, memory does not recall D. F. Kelliher or Harry Boland, her first two loves, nor their careers, which were, however, doubtless honorable, for they died in the Irish warfare.

But who has not heard of Michael Collins, her third?

Was she a charming rebel, defying constituted government, when she made the heroic Collins happy? Were they rebels together? Or was she wooed and won after the success of the tactics which resulted in the erection of the Irish Free State?

Perhaps Kitty sided with the constituted authorities, until won over to the Sinn Fein. Or, at the other extreme, she may have been, for all we know at the moment, an extreme Republican, an irreconcilable, until love reconciled her.

The gallant Collins, a rebel leader, then the gallant commander-in-chief of the Free State forces, is now enshrined in Irish history. A decent time has passed since his gallant death, and Undeterred by the fact that three former fiances, D. F. Kelliher, Harry Boland and Michael Collins, were killed in Irish warfare, Kitty Kiernan announces her engagement to Gen. Felix Cronin of the Free State army.

For Kitty's sake, we hope there will be no more wars in Ireland for a while.

Fate Intervenes in Petersen Deal

Has fate intervened in the Petersen ship subsidy deal of the King government?

A few hours after the receipt of cable advices that his backers in Britain were alarmed at dispatches concerning the probable fate of the contract, Sir William Petersen, the British shipping magnate, succumbed at Ottawa to angina pectoris, after turning back from an engagement he had with the premier.

Sir William's fame will not depend on this deal, happily. A Dane by birth, he became a naturalized Briton, and for 50 years made the British Isles his home. For a lifetime he was in the shipping business, and was one of its ornaments.

Whether the scheme to pay his line a heavy subsidy to compete with all the other shipping lines of the Atlantic at reduced rates, in an endeavor to force them to also reduce their rates, will survive his death, is doubtful, for his brilliance and experience at the helm of the enterprise were about its only recommendations.

The government now has a good excuse for dropping the plan of going into the business of ship competition against the world, and it will be wise to take it.

Every housekeeper should know how to make good bread. She may not have the time and strength to bake a "batch" each week, but she enjoys baking a few loaves for special occasions such as guest dinners and holiday gatherings. For everyday use, the excellent loaves we can buy at grocer's and baker's, suffice.

To make two loaves of yeast bread, begin by dissolving one-sixth of a cake of compressed yeast in one-fourth cup of luke-warm water. Put into a mixing bowl two cups of scalded sweet milk (or the same amount of hot water, or half milk and half water), and add at once two tablespoons of butter, two tablespoons of sugar and two teaspoons of salt; let the scalded milk cool to the luke-warm stage, then add the dissolved yeast cake. Also stir in three cups of ordinary bread flour, and beat well—both to distribute the yeast evenly throughout the mixture and to develop the gluten in the flour.

Next, add three more cups of flour. If the mixture becomes too stiff to stir with a spoon, turn it out onto a slightly-floured board to work in the last of these three cups of flour with the hands. Indeed, it may be necessary to work in a very little more flour, from the board's surface, to keep the dough from sticking to the board and hands.

This is the kneading stage. Use a rotary-stretching motion; that is, stretch the dough up from the bottom of the ball and move the ball around in one direction, as you do so. It may be necessary to knead it for 10 minutes before it reaches a stage where it is "elastic," and will "spring out" again when dented with the knuckles.

Place the kneaded ball into a large, buttered bowl. Cover with a clean piece of board. Stand the bowl in temperature around 80 degrees Fahrenheit—the temperature of a too-warm room—and let it remain at the same temperature for 10 hours, or overnight.

In the morning turn it out onto the floured board again and cut it in half with a sharp knife. Take up each half with the hands, form it into a loaf, and place it in a greased pan. Brush the top of each loaf with melted butter, cover pans with a clean cloth and let rise in a warm place for one and one-half hours (again 80 degrees F.) Bake 45 minutes in a moderate oven.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

A Merry Heart

I was on a vessel once when the water was very rough. Many passengers were sick, the vessel was pitching badly, and there was a general air of gloom about. The captain, a red-faced, jovial fellow, went about amongst the passengers, telling funny stories, and laughing most boisterously at those told by two or three passengers who were not sick.

The effect was soon noticeable throughout the ship. The sickness persisted with many, but the air of gloom, the thought of danger, passed away. Everybody felt better.

In thinking about this, I couldn't help but think of how much the cheerful countenance of the physician or other healer means to one sick in body or soul. I have been wondering if some of our newer treatments in melancholia, in hysteria, in chronic ailments of mankind, are not following along the line of the cheerful countenance, the merry heart and the encouraging word.

And just as we begin to think how new and wonderful this treatment is, we turn to Proverbs and read, "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine."

Just think of that for a minute. Here is a philosopher of thousands of years ago, who is telling us something about the treatment of the sick soul and body that we can apply today, as perhaps never before in the history of the world. I have spoken before about the faith cures your family physician has wrought in your home. His cheerful countenance and merry jest have stiffened up your waning spirit, and you have gone on to victory over your ailment.

Yes, there might have been some medicine given, I'll admit, but it was not the cause of the turning point in your illness. The will to fight for your life, to take new courage, came from the face of your doctor.

Some of the help given to chronic cases by other than the regular practitioner comes from the encouraging face and personality of the healer. The regular physician in his attempt to be scientific in all his healing efforts, often overlooks the facts of the old proverb, "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine."

Foster's Weekly Weather Bulletin

WASHINGTON, June 13. — Storm wave of week centering on June 17 and period following this storm wave are expected to comprise the most important period of the season's crop weather. Drouth conditions will be felt, with the expected heat of first half of June and the moisture I expect to be received during June 15 to 25 will be an absolute necessity in large areas of central, southern and southwestern United States and western Canada. I expect transcontinental storm of week centering on June 17 to be preceded by an intense heat wave and to be followed by a sharp cool wave and general precipitation over northern areas. During week centering on June 22 a storm of considerable force is expected to enter from the southwest, which, as it comes in contact with the high pressure area expected to cover northern great central valleys during this period, will cause general rains and probably heavy local showers in southwest and south-central United States. This condition will probably cause very dangerous storms in southwest near June 23. Storm forces of period of June 15 to 25 will be very active and strong; of sufficient force to temporarily overcome the conditions ruling the season. Forces causing drouth condition will not be established in sufficient power to withstand the storm forces of this period.

Jupiter will control the crop weather of June 8 to 31, and the usual effects of this powerful magnet, when in an effective position, are to pull or lift the earth's atmosphere over and around the point of contact, causing extensive areas of exceedingly low barometric pressure with heavy local rains and frequently dangerous storms in localities on the outer edge of low pressure area and nearest the predominating high pressure area. The topography or lay of the land and so influences the movement of storm forces as to make forecasting of dangerous storms to a given locality, impractical as a feature of crop weather forecasts. This feature of weather forecasting belongs entirely to the government weather bureau, which, with its extensive facilities, its many forecasters especially proficient in this branch, is able to perform invaluable service to the public by its timely short range storm and flood warning.

Earthquakes, at present, are of more than usual interest to the peoples of the vicinity of the St. Lawrence valley. Most scientists and investigators have arrived at the conclusion that these phenomenon are due to two separate and distinct causes: First, a slipping along faults or cracks in the earth's crust in a natural effort to readjust by gravity and relieve existing strains; second, a less frequent cause and of more local effect than the first, volcanic disturbances. I would add that the immediate cause of practically all earthquakes and the sole cause of a few minor quakes is due to a powerful current of electro-magnetic force entering the earth at or near the center of wave emanation. The recent quakes in the vicinity of St. Lawrence valley are apparently due to a fault in the earth's crust, but precipitated by currents caused by planetary positions. Additional tremors may be felt in this area near June 23, and possibly July 21, but present records and opinion do not indicate that a condition exists in this area that would lead to a recurrence of the earthquake conditions experienced in this area in 1663. All evidence indicates that each successive quake will be of less force than the preceding one in this area.

Don't Get a Commercial Teacher, Says Workman; Use the Present Staff

To the Editor of The Daily News:

Sir—Can I take up a little space in your valuable paper with reference to the commercial class that the school board are figuring to have at the high school?

I think the one who wrote the letter the other day about the cost of running this class before was wrong in the figures. With the extra cost of everything these days not only in food, but wages as well, it would more likely cost $200 for each pupil who passed through, than $1600. Besides this, how do we know that these boys and girls are all going to finish the three years? And if they don't, it means that much more money wasted.

It's all very well to say that a teacher for this work will take the place of an ordinary teacher, but I think that the few pupils who would take this subject could easily be divided up into the different classes without an extra teacher being needed.

I think the money part of our schools should be run just like business. If extra work comes in, then the staff have to work a little harder and a little quicker in order to get the extra work done. If a business finds that the extra work does not pay for itself, then it does without that work, and is better off in the long run.

Mrs. Mohr to Go to Coast as Delegate; Library Is Planned

WILLOW POINT, June 12. — Announcement that the Willow Point Women's institute would do its share toward supporting public health nursing service in the district, and the election of a delegate to the provincial conference to be held at the coast, were features of the women's institute meeting held here yesterday, at the home of Mrs. W. things necessary to a care-free motor trip

What is a Mussless Motor Trip?

Many an otherwise successful holiday has been marred by the fuss and muss of lubricating the chassis on a hot day.

And many more otherwise successful holidays have been spoiled by breakdowns due to lack of lubrication.

There is no need for either. Cut out the muss and cut down repairs.

Equip your car with Alemite and lubricate it every 500 miles to avoid burned-out bearings—the Alemite High Pressure System makes the job a clean one.

Owners of Alemite-equipped Cars Find Service Stations Everywhere

Look for the authorized service station sign—drive your car on the rack—and your chassis is O.K. for another 500 miles.

If your car isn't Alemite-equipped—attend to it now before you go on that trip—it will save you worry as well as repair bills—it will cut out the fuss and muss—it will complete your holiday satisfaction.

WHEAT STOCKS STATIONARY AT HEAD OF LAKE

Three Weeks' Slackness, a Thing Entirely Unknown in Past

VANCOUVER OCEAN RATES FALL AWAY

Inspected Cars in May Below Normal, States Commission Report

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., June 12.—A. E. Ursell, statistician to the board of grain commissioners, in making his report today for the month of May states that wheat stocks at the head of the lakes have remained practically stationary for three weeks in succession, a most unusual, if not hitherto entirely unknown situation. The movement of wheat during the month reported as very light with a steady advance in price quotations on the Winnipeg market, already much above Chicago and poor inquiry from overseas purchasers undoubtedly curtailing export business. The movement from country points to the head of the lakes has been light compared with the last three years, while very small quantities are being routed via Vancouver. Farmers continue to market some 800,000 bushels of wheat every week at country points but the shipments from country elevators indicate that grain is steadily moving forward to the terminals in anticipation of shipment abroad.

Not Much Importing

Mr. Ursell states that a comparison of weekly world shipments and quantities on passenge would indicate that importing countries are not purchasing to any very great extent at the present time, but are awaiting developments of the growing crop.

"All depends on present conditions of growing crops being fully maintained," the report continues. "Adverse weather might mean an immediate resumption of extensive purchasing in North American markets."

Lake freight rates continue steady at 10 cents per bushel for shipments to Montreal and 1-12 cents on shipments to Buffalo, both wheat basis. There is much more tonnage offering than there are cargoes available and some vessels have been tied up and crews discharged until the fall:

Mr. Ursell had the following comment to make on rates from Vancouver:

Ocean Rates Fall Off

"Ocean freights from Vancouver have fallen off considerably in the hope of attracting cargoes, berth space being quoted as low as 30s to 32s per ton and distress space offered at 25s while one cargo was shipped at a rate of 27s 6d recently. While this is an unremunerative rate, yet it does not compare with those charged on shipments from Australia, viz., 30 s 6d on berth parcels, and 35s to 37s 6d on full cargoes per ton. In view of this it is not difficult to understand why so little grain comparatively can be moved via Vancouver to European ports. On the Atlantic, rates on wheat to the United Kingdom are around 6 cents a bushel from Montreal and 13 cents a hundred pounds to Antwerp, Hamburg and Rotterdam."

Cars Grain Much Less

The total number of cars inspected during the month totalled 7679, of all grains as compared with 10,067 a month ago and 21,030 a year ago. Of these 5218 were wheat as compared with 6595 a month ago and 15,720 a year ago while 3172 or 60.8 per cent. Graded into contract grades, as compared with 3296 or 60 per cent a month ago and 13,633 or 86.6 per cent a year ago.

The movement of barley continues high, but was considerably lower last month than a year ago, 501 cars passing inspection as compared with 929, last year. More flax seed continues to come forward, however, 433 cars being inspected as compared with 391 a year ago.

HER NERVES SO BAD SHE COULD NOT SLEEP

Mrs. Grace Kitchen, St. George Ont., writes:—"After having a severe attack of pneumonia I was left in a weak and run-down condition. My nerves were so bad I could not sleep nights, and in the daytime I had terrible fainting spells, caused by my heart being weak. Finally I got so bad I had to take to my bed for weeks at a time, but one day I read about so decided to try them.

After taking one box I felt a slight improvement. I have now taken five boxes, and have gained 35 pounds in weight. I am now more than able to do all my own housework as well as considerable outside work. I cannot recommend Milburn's H. & N. Pills too highly for those suffering as I did."

MINARD'S "KING OF PAIN" LINIMENT

And Yet They Often Murder Men for Less

By AL DEMAREE
(Former Pitcher, New York Giants.)

Bill Killefer, manager of the Chicago Cubs, is not only a great baseball leader, but an inimitable story teller as well. He always draws a gang around him when he starts to spin one of his yarns.

Bill tells how "Moose" McCormick the famous old slugger, was called on to hit for the pitcher one day in Philadelphia, where he played before going to the Giants.

"The Phillies were several runs behind," said Bill, "but had started a rally in the ninth with two men on bases, two out, and the catcher at bat. McCormick was standing on deck, 10 or 15 feet away from the hitter, swinging his bat idly. The hitter doubled to right, and the right fielder, trying to cut the second run off at the plate, threw wild and on a line right at McCormick.

"The crowd was knocked cuckoo, to see McCormick take a beautiful line drive over the grandstand. The umpire naturally called "Moose" out for interference, and this made three outs and broke up the rally. Murray, who I think was managing the club, charged down on "Moose." "Why did you hit that ball," he shouted, "why did you do it?"

"'I couldn't lay off it, Bill,' answered 'Moose,' 'it was right in my groove.'"

A Gift that Increases in Value

Presentation Covers are provided for Christmas Gift Books.

WHAT DID YOU GIVE LAST CHRISTMAS? Toys for the kiddies—most of them broken by now. "Something useful" for the grown-ups—now worn out or forgotten. Cash to your employees—appreciated but soon spent. Other presents—hurriedly bought and perhaps ill-chosen. Are they remembered now?

Suppose this year you give them each a Bank Book containing an initial deposit, and urge them to add to it regularly. Could anything be more suitable?

Add "Royal Bank Pass Books" to your list of Christmas Gifts.

Insurance Trust Protects Money of Inheritors

Most of the $65,000,000,000 of life insurance outstanding in the United States will eventually go to the widows and children. What will they do with that huge sum? Wouldn't they be better protected by an insurance trust?

At present in the United States there is probably $65,000,000,000 outstanding in life insurance policies. Most of this money will eventually go to widows and children in lump sums. Are they fitted to take care of that money? In nine cases out of 10, no.

One of the most effective means of protecting them from themselves, sharpers, and well-meaning relatives is the insurance trust. A responsible bank or trust company is made the trustee under that arrangement. It is made beneficiary of the life insurance policy subject to the agreements of the trust.

The trust agreement may be made very flexible, even providing for certain amounts of the principal to be paid at stated intervals under certain conditions. In short, it insures personal supervision and efficient management for any future conditions that may arise to meet the family.

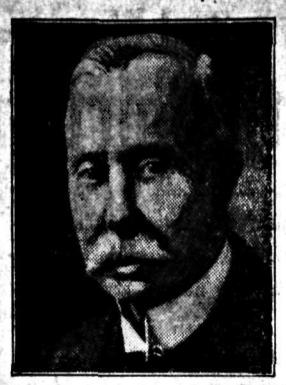
BRINGING UP FATHER —:— —:— —:— —:— —:— —:— —:— —:— —:— —:— By George McManus

TORTURED BY A "DEAD" STOMACH

"Fruit-a-tives" bring relief, from Chronic Constipation



MR. FRED LUDLOW.

"For a great many years, I was a martyr to Constipation and Indigestion; nothing I tried ever did me any good. I was induced to try "Fruit-a-tives" and they brought relief with the first tablet; and by taking this splendid medicine at regular intervals, I suffer no more. I CAN NOW EAT ANYTHING WITHOUT FEELING THE SLIGHTEST PAIN OR DISCOMFORT AFTERWARDS."

So writes Mr. Ludlow, a former U. S. Vice and Deputy Consul in Great Britain, and now of 161 West 36th Street, New York.

Thousands have been relieved of the miseries of Constipation and Indigestion by "Fruit-a-tives", the famous natural remedy made from the concentrated and intensified juices of fresh oranges, apples, prunes and figs. 25c and 50c at all dealers.

REV. DR. NELSON PROPOSES SELF FOR COMMITTEE

the committee with the recommendation that Rev. Dr. S. Banks Nelson of Hamilton, be placed on the commission.

Rev. Dr. Nelson after telling of his efforts in Ottawa and before the Ontario legislature announced bluntly:

"I Want to Face Leslie Pidgeon"

"I want to be on this commission. That is a childlike statement, but it is frank. I want to be there to face Leslie Pidgeon of Winnipeg, when he is on the other side of the table and to face R. J. Wilson of Toronto in the same place. The press has been used to malign me in this country and telegrams were sent out against me. I want to see that, on that commission, we will not wilt. I think I can appeal to that commission as successfully as I did to the Ottawa senate and to the Ontario legislature."

Dr. Nelson told how he had labored with the senators at Ottawa to get the ballot vote and of how he had coached Col. J. A. Currie, M.L.A., and M. M. McBride, M.L.A., in getting an amendment in the Ontario legislature. He had even lobbied Premier Ferguson, he stated.

Request Creates Feeling

The request to be put on the commission and the inside story of the "lobby" of Dr. Nelson at Ottawa and Toronto, created mixed feelings of approval and astonishment in the assembly. C. S. MacDonald, Brampton, Ont., who brought in the recommendations of the committee rose to remark that the church fully appreciated the services of Dr. Nelson, but that the committee was not prepared to change its recommendations.

Thomas MacMillan said that one of the suggested commissioners could not work with Dr. Nelson as he had heard him say that he would be on the commission if he had to nominate himself.

"With characteristic modesty, Dr. Nelson has nominaed himself," said Rev. Stewart Parker, Toronto, "and he has set forth his claims to save the church. There are many others who might set forth their claims to having some share, but they are saying nothing about it."

Nelson to Advisory Committee

The motion that the report be referred back was lost on a vote by a show of hands. However, Dr. Nelson was appointed to the advisory committee.

Rev. M. A. Campbell of Montreal of the education committee, brought in recommendations which were unanimously adopted,

"That the appointment of Rev. Dr. R. E. Welsh as principal of Montreal Presbyterian college and the appointments of A. R. Gordon, E. M. Best, and Charles Beiler to the staff be revoked and that written notice be sent to them by the assembly."

"That Principal Fraser be reinstated as principal and Dr. Eakin as professor."

"That the board of management of the Montreal college take action to maintain and defend the rights of the Presbyterians."

Nanaimo Congregation Right

The legal committee, asked to report upon the vote in the church at Nanaimo, B.C., reported that it found that the congregation pursued the proper and orderly course in taking the vote and that the appeal to the synod of British Columbia taken by the unionists against the decision of Victoria presbytery, was irregular and that therefore the action of the synod was improper and unconstitutional.

ALL CLAUSES GRAIN ACT CONSIDERED

OTTAWA, June 12. — Good progress was made today by the agricultural committee of the house of commons which has been for some time considering the new Canada Grain act. When the committee adjourned tonight until Monday, all the clauses had been adopted except those affecting the mixing of grain and the question of whether the civil service commission or the Canada grain board shall control appointments under the act.

The former question comes up on Tuesday and the latter on Monday next.

GAMES OF CHANCE ARE PERMISSIBLE AT FAIRS

OTTAWA, June 12.—Consideration of a bill to amend the Criminal Code was again given in committee of the house of commons this afternoon. The amendments passed permit games of chance, except dice and shell games and the operation of punch boards or coin tables at agricultural fairs or exhibitions. Further provisions provide a penalty not exceeding $200 for the unauthorized use of the word "royal," and constitute as an offence the carrying of forged revenue stamps in one's possession. An additional amendment restores to the crown the right to appeal to the court of appeals on any ground of appeal which involves a question of law alone.

CHICAGO SHRINERS AT LAKE LOUISE

Skiing, Canoeing, Bucking Bronchs Add to Excitement of Visit

LAKE LOUISE, Alta., June 12.—Five special trains bearing the Medinah Shriners of Chicago are resting on the Lake Louise siding today. Nine hundred feet above these specials one thousand Shriners are having the greatest time they have had since leaving Chicago, according to Arthur Vincent, Potentate of Medinah temple.

Those who are not riding horses are canoeing, those who are not mountain climbing are cavorting down Victoria glacier on skis. The air fairly ripples with the click of their cameras. The womenfolk have fallen victims to the traditional charm which the bottomless blue lake has on the feminine mind.

The patrol band gave a concert in front of Chateau Lake Louise, while two noblemen who suggested some early training in Chicago famous stockyards did a wild roman standing ride up and down the esplanade, much to the amusement of their fellow travelers.

Bucking Contest

Another noblemen bribed a horsehand to get him a bucking broncho and proceeded to stage a miniature wild west show out on the campus. After many flares of "Daylight" and considerable leather pulling, this contest ended in a draw neither the horse nor the nobleman, Walter Bacon, having registered a fall.

While there is no confirmation nor denial coming from the principals it is rumored that a surprise wedding will be pulled off Friday night at the Big Windup ball in the Banff Springs hotel. The five specials traveling over the Canadian Pacific railway, will leave Banff early Saturday morning for Chicago, after having been two weeks en route to and from their annual pilgrimage at Los Angeles.

ATTEMPT TO STAY SCOTT EXECUTION

The Kuomintang forces, after an overwhelming bombardment, cleared the Yunnanese strongholds along the waterfront.

The Yunnanese retreated in disorder, looting as they went.

Senate Amendments Fruit Act Opposed

OTTAWA, June 12.—Senate amend*ments to an act to amend the Fruit* act met with some opposition in the house today. Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture, moved concurrence in the amendment.

C. Sterling, Conservative, Yale, opposed the motion for concurrence. He thought it was extraordinary to approve an amendment which referred to a body that did not exist. The amendment was reference to the Horticultural Council of Canada and there was no such body.

It also provided that the minister should not prescribe additional grades for fruit until he had consulted with this society.

Mr. Motherwell said as all other agricultural bills had been passed by the senate without change, "it would look a little bit pernickity to split hairs on this." He understood that the correct name of the society was the Canadian Horticultural society.
