KING WINTER IS ON RAMPAGE ON THE PRAIRIES

Heavy Snow Stops Harvest Operations; Frost Reported Several Points

CALGARY, Nov. 7. — Swooping out of the northwest in the early hours of Sunday morning, the polar king paid his first state visit to Calgary district. He arrived just in time to put a nip in the air and whet appetites for the Thanksgiving dinners.

After a run of fine weather which has allowed of much valuable progress being made in the fields, threshing has again been interfered with over a wide area. Late reports from points on the C.N.R. and C.P.R. showed that full advantage had been taken of the fine spell. In the Calgary district about 70 per cent of the crop has been safely garnered, while other points reported from 65 to 90 per cent.

Among the reports from points on the C.N.R. received late Monday evening were the following:

Chinook was calm and cold, with a half inch of snow.

Hanna, light snow falling, cloudy and calm.

From Rocky Mountain House and surrounding districts three inches of snow were reported. Conditions were calm and cold.

At Macleod six inches of snow covered southern Alberta for Thanksgiving. Cloudy weather continues, with the thermometer touching 10 degrees of frost. Threshing is at a standstill for the present, waiting for the chinook wind to move the snow. Where the roads are graded, grain is being moved with elevators all busy.

Fort William Man Drowned in His Own Blood Under an Auto

FORT WILLIAM, Nov. 7. — "Drowned in his own blood" was apparently the fate of Charles McKenzie, aged 20, who was pinned underneath his automobile when the machine skidded on a slippery road and turned over into a ditch. McKenzie was thrown from his seat and an iron bar supporting the engine caught him across the nose, breaking it and pinning him to the ground. Unable to move even a fraction of an inch, blood streamed from his nose, drained into the youth's mouth and entered his lungs, actually drowning him. His companion, who escaped injury, was unable to extricate him, and he died within a few minutes.

RAILWAY MOTION FOR A NONSUIT IS TURNED DOWN

MIDLAKES ALLOWED AMEND ITS CLAIMS

After 10 Days and 35 Witnesses $200,000 Fire Case Goes to Argument

Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald yesterday morning refused to nonsuit the claim of the Midlakes Timber company in respect to eight of its 10 timber licences, which had been asked for Saturday by the Canadian Pacific Railway company on the ground that they had expired a few weeks before the great Summit lake fire of July 15, 1925, which led to the $200,000 damage action by six timber operators and owners against the railway company. Thus, the whole case goes to argument intact.

Before refusing C. R. Hamilton, K.C., the railway's counsel, the nonsuit applied for, his lordship allowed W. E. Burns, counsel for the Midlakes company, to amend that company's

NEW JERSEY SEEKS NOTES ON NELSON

Believed Strangler Is Man Who Committed Crimes in Newark Last Year

NEWARK, N.J., Nov. 7.—Deputy Chief of Police Frank E. Brex, and Prosecutor Joseph L. Smith, have announced they will each send a detective to Winnipeg Man., to ascertain whether Earle Leonard Nelson, alias Virgil Wilson, convicted "dark strangler", may have been implicated in three unsolved women murder cases here in 1926.

Captain Philip Sebold, who conducted the investigation here, has evidence that Nelson was in Newark as late as last February.

Two of the victims in the local cases here were strangled. The other was shot while responding to the cries of her young son, who was attacked in bed. They were: Mrs. Rose Valentino, Mrs. Margaret Stanton and Mrs. Lena Tidar.

Chinese Suspected of Stealing and Drugging Young Hamilton Girl

THREE WORKERS FALL DOWN SIX STOREY SHAFT

Scaffold Goes Out When Men Employed Six Floors Up; Two Escape Injuries

TORONTO, Nov. 7.—Three men were critically injured here today, while one man saved himself and a companion from a similar fate by heroic action and his presence of mind. The five men were engaged in construction work on the Atlas building, situated in the downtown section of the city. They were working over an elevator shaft on the sixth floor, when suddenly the scaffolding collapsed. Three of the men, Robert Jones, Lawrence Darby and Joseph Messor, crashed to the basement, a distance of 72 feet. But one man had the presence of mind to grasp a timber that was projecting over the shaft and as he caught hold of it, he instantly caught hold of the coat of a fellow worker and hung there with his burden until the other workmen came to the rescue.

Jones was most seriously injured of the trio. Hospital authorities stated he is suffering from a fractured skull and possibly a broken neck. Both Darby and Meesor sustained fractured skulls and other severe injuries.

Uncover Plot Spread Leprosy in the States

Portland Police Have Mystery Case When Man Arrested

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 7.—Mystery, gruesome and horrible, confronted the Portland police tonight with their discovery of a bundle of letters alleged by them to have been written or received by William Nash, and tending to indicate, police inspectors say, that he is either a communist terrorist, the dupe of an international red web, or a man insanely desperate and embittered.

Inspectors Lackaberry and Phillips today arrested the man. He was tonight being held in the city jail without bail. Federal authorities may be called in to make a thorough investigation, it was stated.

The letters, all of which had not yet been perused tonight, discuss the spreading of leprosy and anthrax in America, maling American womanhood and condemn the existing social order of the United States.

Flood Flashes

MILITARY RULE

WATERBURY, Vt., Nov. 7.—Strict military rule was enforced here. Cavalry patrolled the town, looting was stopped and idle men put to enforced labor in the streets. Tonight 2000 of the 3000 inhabitants had been innoculated for typhoid, under penalty of four weeks' imprisonment.

CONDITIONS TERRIBLE

LITTLE RIVER, Vt., Nov. 7. George Ravelin, aged 85, paralysyzed from the hips down, a daughter, her four children, and son, were found by searchers in an unlighted, unheated house that dripped with water. Only eight potatoes remained as food.

COFFINS CARRY LIVING

BOLTON, Vt., Nov. 7.—With no boats available when the flood hit this town, four coffins from the undertakers were tied together and the improvised raft used in rescuing families through upstairs windows of their homes.

COMMUNITIES FOODLESS

WATERBURY, Vt., Nov. 7.—The twin communities of Duxbury and North Duxbury, near here, with 200 inhabitants, have been without food since last Thursday. Food was finally floated to them today, in water-tight pails on the current of the flood waters.

Convicted Burglar Who Was Freed on Technical Error Is Rearrested

VANCOUVER, Nov. 7. — Chang, Chinese, and convicted burglar, released from police headquarters through error a week ago is reported recaptured by Constable W. A. Johnston of Richmond. On Friday night the store of R. Tanaka, near Steveston, was burglarized of goods valued at $473. Chang is alleged to have been caught with the stolen goods. Chin Hin, alleged drug peddler, who also regained his freedom at the same time as Chang, is still at liberty.

THERE WILL BE NO APPEAL IN NELSON TRIAL

Strangler's Wife and Aunt Leave for California Home After Fruitless Trip

Mrs. Fuller and Mrs. Fabian came to Winnipeg to give evidence of the early life of Nelson, who was married under the name of Evan Fuller, which it was hoped, might save him from the gallows. A jury of his peers, however, found him guilty of the murder of Mrs. Emily Patterson and the man whom a continent now calls the "dark strangler" or "gorrila man" has been sentenced to be hanged in Winnipeg on Friday, January 13.

SAID "ALWAYS CRAZY"

Giving evidence in defence of Nelson during his trial last week, the two women showed how—in their own words—he had "always been crazy." But he was declared sane. Even after his conviction they maintained that he had been irresponsible and not guilty of the crime imputed to him.

Executed clemency by the governor-in-council at Ottawa is the only thing that can now save the life of Nelson. His counsel has announced that there will be no appeal to the higher courts.

The condemned man, strangler of Mrs. Patterson and 14-year-old Lola Cowan of Winnipeg and reported to have strangled to death 20 others across the length and breadth of the United States, has cost the province, besides two lives, $15,000 for his capture and trial.

Dr. Dorothy Logan's Fake Swim Is Costing Her a Lot of Money

LONDON, Nov. 7. — Dr. Dorothy Logan's now famous channel swim, "hoax to end hoaxes," has cost her something like $500 in hard cash in addition to the storm of criticism which burst about her head when the story of her fake channel swim of last month became known.

With her trainer, Carey, Dr. Logan appeared in police court today to answer charges brought by the public executor under the perjury act for making a false declaration in connection with her so-called swim. She was fined £100 and 10 guineas in costs, while Carey was fined £50 and 5 guineas in costs on their plea of guilty.

Newfoundland in Grip of Storm Which Swept Over New England Area

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., Nov. 7.—Newfoundland today was in the grip of the storms which swept over New England and the maritime provinces of Canada last week.

The storm struck here yesterday. Today railroad and telegraph lines were crippled and steamship service was interrupted. Much damage to seaboard property resulted.

No loss of life has been reported.

PREMIERS SYMPATHETIC IN NOVA SCOTIA CASE

Seeks Increased Representation; Immigration Issue Is Touched Upon

OTTAWA, Nov. 7. — Immigration will be the subject of a heart-to-heart conference on Thursday between Hon. Robert Forke, minister of immigration, and representatives of the nine provinces. This agreement was finally arrived at following a continuation of a discussion on immigration at today's deliberations of provincial premiers. An endeavor will be made on Thursday to eliminate duplication of effort and secure greater cooperation with regard to recruitment and placement of incoming settlers.

Constitutional and financial questions were also under review. Nova Scotia was promised sympathetic consideration in her request for an increase in the number of members elected by that province to the house of commons. Federal subsidies to the provinces were considered, but no decision was made.

British Columbia, Manitoba, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island pressed the question of increased subsidies. The appointment of a commission to go into the whole matter was advocated by British Columbia.

Hon. Robert Forke, in outlining the immigration policy of the government, laid down the principle that in the selection of immigrants precedence be given to British, American, northwest European, and selected immigrants from other parts. Arrangements were being made, declared Mr. Forke, for a highly efficient staff "to deal in a businesslike manner with the return of Canadians from the New England states."

WESTERN DELEGATES STAND ONE WITH OTHER

Several western delegates took the ground that immigration should be absolutely under the control of the federal and provincial authorities. The ac-

Judge Refuses Application of Mrs. Hamilton, Wife of Flyer Lost on Atlantic

LONDON, Nov. 7.—An application by Mrs. Leslie Hamilton to consider as legally dead her husband who vanished in August with Princess Lewenstein-Wertheim, and Colonel F. F. Minichin, in an attempted transatlantic air flight to Ottawa, was denied in court today.

Lord Merrivale, presiding judge, pointed out that only 10 weeks had elapsed since the plane flew into oblivion, that the ocean was wide and that numerous contingencies might arise. Under the circumstances, he said, he thought the application should stand over until the next sitting of the court.

Lloyd George Goes After Sir Austen Chamberlain in Strong Terms; Urges Him to Proceed on Peace Pilgrimage

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Former Premier Lloyd George today hammered away on the disarmament question, sharply challenging the government's foreign policy in an address before the Aldwych club in answer to a speech by Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign secretary, who last week criticized the policy of Mr. Lloyd George in a speech before the same club.

"We must get along from it," asserted Mr. Lloyd George, 'Sir Austen has rested long enough on Locarno. It is no use standing on the shores of Lake Maggiore like a stork looking preternaturally wise because you have swallowed one trout.

PROCEED ON PILGRIMAGE

"Let him lift up his wings and proceed on his pilgrimmage of peace. Foreign Minister Briand of France is now sending the dove of peace toward Washington in an endeavor to make a pact between two of the world's great republics that there never shall be war between them. Let Sir Austen follow that fine example. If by casting a few stones at him today I stir him up and make him spread his pinions toward the sunlight of the world in the past I shall have made some contribution for the future."

DENIES FALSE HOPES

Mr. Lloyd George denied having excited false hopes as Sir Austen had charged. Mr. Lloyd George said the allies had made it clear to Germany during the Versailles conference that their disarmament requirements were first steps toward a general reduction and limitation of armaments. Was this, he demanded, exciting a false hope—the hope that future disputes might be settled by peaceful arbitration based on right and justice?

"God help the world if this is the case," the former premier exclaimed.

PREMIER SEEKS EQUAL FOOTING ON SUBSIDIES

tivities of outside organizations, religious and otherwise, should, in their opinion, be very carefully supervised. Saskatchewan believed that young men, mentally and physically fit, not only from the farms but from the cities of Great Britain and the continent—could be absorbed and assimilated.

Nova Scotia's claim for increased representation from 14 to 15 members was presented by Hon. G. S. Harrington, provincial minister of mines. Premier J. B. M. Baxter of New Brunswick supported Nova Scotia, while Ontario took a favorable viewpoint. Prince Edward Island, in joining with the other maritime provinces, said it had entered confederation on the assumption that its representation in the house of commons would never be less than six members. Quebec believed it would be better for the maritimes to concentrate themselves upon the securing of better terms than on the changing of the B.N.A. act.

CANNON SAYS ERROR SHOULD BE RIGHTED

Hon. Lucien Cannon, solicitor-general, stated that if Nova Scotia could show an error of calculation that error should be corrected. So far as the claims of Prince Edward Island were concerned, this was a fundamental matter, in connection with which all other provinces would have to consent.

In the course of his address, Mr. Forke declared that the policy of his department was to secure the largest number of immigrants of a suitable character which could be assimilated with the best advantage both for the newcomer and to the various parts of the Dominion. Quality rather than quantity was of supreme importance.

The minister outlined the British Empire settlement scheme by which the provincial governments and organizations approved by the federal department could nominate those who might be brought to the Dominion and placed there. This year, he said, quotas could be given to about half a dozen such organizations approved by the department. He believed that a good deal of criticism originated from organizations who desired to bring over immigrants at £2 a head on a wholesale basis. To accede to such a proposal would inevitably lead to much unemployment.

POLICY IN CONNECTION WITH EUROPEAN FOLK

Under the department's policy so long as a man was physically and mentally fit, and expressed a wish to go on the land, he would receive every consideration. Most of the restrictions which had been imposed by the department and against which there had been some complaint had been decided upon for the good of the immigrants themselves.

With respect to land settlement schemes, several of the provinces had shown an inclination to participate. Losses through the assisted family scheme and land settlement scheme had been infinitesimal.

Mr. Forke explained the policy pursued in connection with European immigrants. The railway agents themselves exercised care in the matter of selection, and in addition to that the department's agents overseas were strict in matter of fitness. The regulations with respect to health were much more adequate than ever before. This was necessary in order to prevent the tragedies of deportation which must be carried out at the expense of the railway companies.

Mr. Forke dealt at some length with the advice and services which were available to newcomers from the supervisors under the land settlement branch. As regarded restrictions, he explained that there were none upon a British-born settler, provided he could pass the medical examination, and in the event of his not taking advantage of the assisted passage scheme which applies to agriculturists, could pay his fare.

MAY LEAD TO END OF MANY DIFFICULTIES

During the discussion it was emphasized that the need for immigration varied both so far as quantity and kind were concerned in the different parts of the Dominion. It is thought that such a conference as has been fixed for Thursday next will do much to dissipate certain misunderstandings which may exist and to bring about a more coordinated effort on the part of all concerned.

Speaking on the question of increased membership for Nova Scotia in the house of commons, Mr. Harrington declared that representation had been fixed by the B. N. A. act on a basis of 65 seats for the province of Quebec. Under the act this was the old province of Lower Canada. In calculating the unit, the boundaries of old Quebec were not adhered to, but what is known as Abitibi had been included. Had the old boundaries been adhered to, the province would have had a representation of 15 instead of 14. The question was merely one of mathematics, and could be adjusted as such, he said.

In the opinion of Premier Baxter of New Brunswick, if the calculations of Nova Scotia were correct, then the matter was settled by existing legislation, and if Nova Scotia was entitled to an extra member she should get it. He did not believe, however, in changing the B. N. A. act for the sake of special provinces.

In the opinion of Ontario, if Nova Scotia could prove her claim, she should get what she asked for. In the opinion of Quebec, it would be better for the maritime provinces to concentrate themselves upon the securing of better terms than on the changing of the British North America act. Other provinces had very little to say in the matter.

PREMIER MacLEAN IS HOT ON SUBSIDIES

The subject of provincial subsidies was introduced by Premier MacLean of British Columbia, in the course of a comprehensive debate. The subsidies of his province, he declared, should be increased owing to the physical condition which necessitated obligations on the part of the provincial government by reason of the lack of municipalities in the unorganized districts, and the need of roads.

The province had been accorded a special subsidy of $100,000 a year for 10 years, but this had lapsed. In the meantime, the government had tapped every source of taxation at its command. With respect to subsidies, Premier MacLean declared that his province should be dealt with on the same basis as other provinces. Summarizing his speech, he declared that the four demands of his province were:

First—the return of the railway lands for which the province had paid heavily for development without receiving any taxes; second—the withdrawal of the federal government from the income tax field; third—the delimitation of the fields of taxation as between the federal and provincial authorities. With respect to subsidies, his government simply asked the same treatment as other provinces received, and he suggested the appointment of a commission to go into the whole matter.

URGES REVISE OF FINANCIAL AFFAIRS

Premier Bracken of Manitoba was of the opinion that the financial arrangements of confederation had been improvident from the viewpoint of the provinces. There had been no finality with respect to the financial provisions, which had never been satisfactory to the provinces. The time had now come when they should be revised from the standpoint of the Dominion as a whole. He believed that the Dominion government should consider additional subsidies to an amount equal to 10 per cent of the customs and excise revenue. At confederation, the amount agreed upon had been 24 per cent. Mr. Bracken declared that while the provinces at confederation had handed over customs and excise to the Dominion authorities they had maintained activities including health, roads, education, etc., the cost of which had materially increased while the value of the dollar had decreased.

In the opinion of Nova Scotia that province should receive the same treatment as other provinces.

References were made by two of the delegates during today's deliberations to what were regarded as "unfair statements" appearing in certain Canadian newspapers with respect to various phases of the activities of the conference and interference ...

Two witnesses were called by e side, Mr. Falls and J. H. Schofi M.P.P., of Trail, for the plaintiff, Mr. Nelson and R. R. Rees of Wan for the defendant.

Archie Donaghy, defence law moved for nonsuit, but called his w nesses in case the motion should disallowed. Harold McInnis of Tr representing Mr. Falls, was suppor on his suggestion that the argume should be submitted in writing.

Mr. Falls testified that he had sev interviews with Mr. Nelson, the outco of their conversations being that acquired for Mr. Nelson the tim limits of the Waneta Power & Li company. He claimed Mr. Nelson ov him a commission of $1 per 1000 of timber.

Mr. Nelson absolutely denied he offered Mr. Falls a commission. understood he was buying the tim from Mr. Falls rather than thro him. He admitted he told Mr. F he would pay as high as $6 per 1 feet for the timber, although his or nal offer was $5.

Rev. Mr. McLean Urges Broadening Scope, Power of Excelsior Club

SIXTY-SIX ATTEND AT THANKSGIVING DINNER

Is Great Success; Club Members Enjoy Vocal Program

TRAIL, B.C., Nov. 7.—Excelsior club of Knox United church and friends, 66 in all, enjoyed a Thanksgiving dinner together in the church parlors tonight and made an interesting event of it.

With R. Duffy presiding, several of the club members put on a musical program, when all had been satisfied with a delectable dinner.

Archie Phillips led with a delightful vocal solo, "Last Night," and later gave "On the Road to Mandalay." Miss F. Horwell gave "The Fairies," a solo which was well encored. Miss B. Wardell was another vocalist. She sang "My Task" and others. Mr. Duffy gave humorous readings.

SPECIAL GUESTS

The club had as special guests Rev. E. R. McLean, general secretary of the religious education council of British Columbia, and Miss S. M. Fountain, secretary of girls' work.

Mr. McLean addressed the gathering on the work of young people's societies. Everywhere, he said, they had taken a new lease on life among the four denominations represented under the council.

In part, he attributed this to the fact that young people's work was now patterned on progressive lines by young people and for young people.

BROADENING INFLUENCE

In the program of activities such as were followed by the Excelsior club, he urged them to endeavor to interest those uninterested by broadening their work; to include worship, for the satisfaction it brought; to investigate new fields of learning; and to bring their social and religious problems before fellow members. It was all, he declared, progressive for the individual toward independence of thought and action, though conforming with the best thought and conduct of their predecessors.

After the banquet Mr. McLean and Miss Fountain met numbers of Sunday school teachers and leaders in boys' and girls' work in the church to discuss with them problems in teaching. Miss Fountain will meet the C.G.I.T. tomorrow. Mr. McLean will mtet the Trail Rangers. He will lunch with the Tuxis boys on Thursday.

VANCOUVERITE IS WRESTLING, TRAIL

Gene O'Connor Tells About His Bouts; Wants to Meet Jack Milo

TRAIL, B.C., Nov. 7. — Gene O'Connor, big Vancouver fireman wrestler, is in Trail spending a vacation. But he is not rusting.

The big boy, who is known to every fan, at least by repute, as a wrestler, has attracted half a dozen local wrestlers to his side—husky youngsters who have fallen as hard for the game as others have for baseball or hockey. Gene's right with them, toppling them and showing them tricks at the Memorial hall.

But he hankers for something more like work. Another little bout wouldn't do him any harm, he thinks. Not for the lucre, Gene has long since given up the idea that there are bags of money to be made in the game. He is willing to wrestle for nothing but the sport of it.

Jack Milo has been suggested to him as a possible opponent, and Jack, who scales around Gene's weight, 175 pounds, could make a tough morsel for him. Milo, it is thought, is making Nelson his camping grounds. If he can be found, Hank Lauriente would promote a bout, failing other arrangements. Gene has matches in view in California next month, and wants to keep in shape.

WHO WAS SHE?

The astounding, baffling mystery of a pretty girl who, on her return to consciousness after a serious accident, had to face Motherhood without the slightest recollection of her past life!

A DREADFUL CRASH . . . a blinding flash . . . agonizing pain . . . abysmal chaos . . . darkness . . . eternal darkness!

And in the hospital — weeks later — a little mystery-maiden slowly and uncertainly shambled back from the stygian void of unconsciousness to face a more dreadful calamity. Anxiously the hospital authorities awaited her answer to their oft' repeated question: "Who is she?" — and to their utter amazement she told them she didn't know!

A careful examination revealed the astounding fact that her memory extended only as far back as the accident. Previous to that everything was a blank; association with the persons and things of her past life absolutely did not exist. And then the authorities began asking: "WHO WAS SHE?" But her sensational story, published with her photograph in the newspapers, failed to bring word from relatives or friends.

"Doctor, I can't remember a thing back of that crash. I don't seem to know what to try to remember. Who am I?"

Nameless and Friendless!

But the worst was yet to come. The same Fate that had dealt her such an unkind blow decreed that again she must sojourn into the valley of the shadows — this time to answer the insistent call of Mr. Stork! Poor little nameless creature! And having learned the ghastly truth, she turned her pretty face to the wall and prayed that both their lives be taken. "I just cannot go through with this second ordeal," she sobbed, "uncertain even of my claim to respectability!" And to complicate her unhappy plight, the handsome young Interne at the hospital offered her his name — in marriage! "Who are my parents?" she cried in anguish; "Oh, why don't they come for me?"

What could they do about it? What was the secret of this girl's past? Was she married? Who was the child's father? What would the future hold for them? Nobody knew! Then, almost by imperceptible degrees, there formulated in her subconscious mind a nebulous something suggestive of lofty mountain peaks and the sweet aroma of pines. Were the "dear, dead days beyond recall" beginning to formulate themselves in her mind? Was memory . . . . .

. . . . . you really must read this unusual story yourself to appreciate its astonishing complications, its tragedy and pathos — and running through it all a beautiful romance. It is featured in TRUE STORY MAGAZINE for December — now on sale at the newsstands. You cannot afford to miss this unique page from real life, far removed from the cut and dried themes of fiction. Annapolis Valley and Fruit By-Products

Down in the Annapolis valley, whose apple crop suffered so severely in the gale of late August, one thing that they did is described in a district paper as follows:

"Immediately on obtaining information relative to the damage done, the United Fruit Companies of Nova Scotia, Limited, took immediate steps to open their manufacturing plants and put forth every effort to obtain something for the producer from the loss sustained. They had samples of eight different varieties tested by being made into apple sauce, and on finding that the flavor had not been seriously impaired, they decided to proceed with the manufacture of such a portion of the dropped fruit as would be satisfactory to the market, of such size and quality as would be required to meet the demand."

When Kings, Annapolis and Digby counties were banged about in the worst gale in local remembrance, with rivers overflowing, bridges carried out, roads undermined, and some orchard tracts under water, within a week arrangements had been made to take care of as much of the damaged crop as possible, and by plants that the Annapolis valley fruit industry itself possessed.

Apparently there is money in the by-product business as handled by the Annapolis valley fruit industry; if there wasn't, there wouldn't be a string of plants, comparable on a small scale to the string of apple warehouses that are as much a feature of the Annapolis valley scenery as grain elevators are on the prairie.

Not Room for a Canadian in Our Census

They are discussing at the premiers conference at Ottawa the possibility of admitting in the census table that there is such a thing as a Canadian nationality. It also develops that the worthy deputy minister thinks it an atrocity for such an expression as "Canadian citizen" ever to be used—we are all "British subjects in Canada," he says.

It seems to be admitted that the provinces have full right to refer to us as "Canadian citizens" if they want to, so that moot point is pretty nearly settled. It is a phrase used every day in the year by the Canadian people, and has crept into the provincial statutes, and even into one federal statute—to Deputy Minister Mulvey's horror. It may be assumed that Canadian citizens are going to call themselves such, and be called such.

But the census matter is a different thing, that has not the slightest bearing on citizenship. It is also different in that the Dominion has the entire handling of it, which means, apparently, that there will be no Canadian nationality in the census except over the dead bodies of the guardians of a pure census.

The argument for including a Canadian nationality in the census table is the simple but sufficient one that there is a Canadian nationality.

Probably at least half the Canadian people of 1927 are descended from stock that was in Canada 100 years ago. Assuming three generations to the century, each of these say 5,000,000 present-day Canadians can trace back to eight great-grandparents.

A large proportion of the Canadians of eastern Canada can trace back 200 years on this continent. Each one of such sprang from 64 ancestors of the sixth generation back.

In England one could go back six generations and be still sturdily English, but in Canada many blood lines could not help being represented on the average.

Those Canadians who are a mixture of many elements should have the right to describe themselves as of the Canadian nationality.

We calmly count the 381 Letts in our 8,788,483 Canadian-born, we specify carefully the 3906 Serbo-Croats, we give four different varieties of Ukrainians, but there is not room for a Canadian in the Canadian census table.

Boa's Bid for Liberty

A boa constrictor celebrated Guy Fawkes day in Paris by escaping from a carnival tent, making a dive for the subway entrance, and getting into the "underground." At a station there, it is recorded, "it caused a small panic by wriggling up and down the station platform." In the end a corps of snake charmers from street fairs surrounded the monster boa, snared its head in a sack, and got it back to its cage.

It is safe to say the prohibition movement enjoyed a temporary impetus at that particular station of the Metro.

The monster snake "wriggled up and down the platform," probably looking at the scenery, and studying the alliteration under the pale pink maidens depicted on the wall—"Pilules Pink Pour Personnes Pales," which has got the Canadian "Pink Pills for Pale People" beaten by one pip, that being the best that the late Senator Fulford of Brockville could do in English.

We have it on the authority of Zamin Ki Dost and Will Levington Comfort in their India stories that nothing living can beat the python for speed in a race, not even the elephant, while according to authors in the Wide World magazine a python or boa leaps on its victim in a flash, only a blur being seen until in a moment or two it has it enveloped in its folds.

Very seldom do we read of an escaped boa or python doing anyone injury before being caught, but it most assuredly has the capacity. One of these creatures is a very good thing not to pat on the head—unless there are some pink maidens around to engross its attention.

Mother Housekeeper—It seems an absurd thing to ask, but in the apartment next to me is a family I don't know, and their children make the most beautiful soap bubbles, all different colors, and my children just long to know how it is done. Can you help us?

Answer—A mother who does her utmost to make her children's childhood happy is never absurd, and I am glad you wrote me about this, for I happen to know how to make the colored bubbles. In the first place, shave a piece of strong brown laundry soap one inch square into a pint of warm water, and when this is dissolved add one tablespoon of gum arabic and stir till melted; then add one teaspoon of glycerine and one quart of cold water. Separate this mixture into cups and add different coloring to each cup. Strawberry or currant juice will make pink bubbles, and orange juice yellow ones. The lye in the soap with glycerine will give brilliant bubbles and the gum arabic gives elasticity. These bubbles are tough enough to roll about the floor for several minutes before breaking, and the children will have lots of fun with them.

Young Wife—I have had great success with my original coffee snaps, so am writing to give the recipe to other women: Mix together one-half cup each of lard, butter, sugar and molasses. Add a pinch of salt and one-half teaspoon of baking powder dissolved in one-fourth cup of cold, strong coffee. Beat well, then add flour enough to roll as thin as wafers—(sorry I can't give the exact amount, as I have not measured it). Bake in a quick oven about 10 minutes. These are wonderful served with an afternoon cup of tea, and I even tried them at a bridge party and they were enthusiastically received.

Answer—We would have preferred the exact amount of flour; still I am sure that many of us will try this recipe out for ourselves and learn through experimentation. They sound delicious. Thank you.

Tomorrow—Good Mincemeats.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

When the Liver Is Right

A few years ago writers on food and diet were talking about calories, that is the heat value of foods.

The different foods, such as bread, butter, milk, fruits and so forth, were shown to possess so many heat units for each ounce of food. Folks were adised to eat so many units of meat or eggs, about twice as many units of milk, butter and fats and about three times as many units of sugars, bread and vegetables.

Now, this was all very sensible where the individual didn't try to measure out his foods to the last unit. In such cases knowledge such as the above could be positively harmful from the nervous standpoint. Latterly we have been greatly interested in the vitamins because experiments have shown that a lack of these factors in the food could bring on all manners of ailments.

For instance, puppies deprived of animal fats become "rickity," that is, the bones became soft. When given cod liver oil, instead of the animal fats, rickets was prevented. And yet animals deprived of animal fats, but given fresh air, sunlight and exercise did not develop rickets.

What does this show?

That the real value of vitamins is that they help growth by making liver and other organs do their work more thoroughly and thus destroy organisms that interfere with growth.

And what is the other important point?

That exercise by stimulating the liver has actually the same effects as vitamins. The liver does so much more and better work by this stimulation of exercise, that even if the food has not all the vitamins, it destroys harmful organisms that interfere with growth and development. In other words, a little daily stimulating of the liver by bending exercises would actually have the same effects as the oil from the liver of the cod.

Thus, if the liver is working right, there is no need for cod liver oil.

Starts you right for the day ~ CHASE & SANBORN'S SEAL BRAND COFFEE for Breakfast "The King of Coffees"

Infant Care

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless and reliable, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill throughout the system. Fretfulness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, and without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. Castoria is delicious! Your own tongue will tell you why "Children Cry for It." Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's the least sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea. Or whenever there's need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Only one word of warning: the above is true of genuine Castoria.* Fletcher's is the original. Other preparations may or may not be as pure, as free from a single doubtful drug. Physicians tell parents to get Fletcher's Castoria, and no child of this writer's is going to test any other kind. I'll save a dime some other way.

*SPECIAL NOTE: With every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria is wrapped a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies" worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

Findings Reveal That Man Had an Alphabet Thousands of Years Ago

VICHY, France, Nov. 1. — That man possessed a definite alphabet 10,000 years ago seems to have been established by the findings made by the international commission of scientists investigating the excavations at Glosnel, near here. Controversy over the authenticity of the supposedly Neolithic remains developed last September, when Dene Dussaud, conservator of the Louvre museum, said that the implements and bones were "planted" as Glosel, probably as a hoax.

The scientists began digging after taking all imaginable precautions against fraud. At first they found nothing, but yesterday unearthed a piece of polished stone. This showed a drawing of a deer and six distinctly engraved characters of the disputed Glosel alphabet, and a red clay idol on which the Glosel death mask—a face without a mouth—was visible.

Hon. Mr. Manson Will Push for the Abolition of the Liquor Export Houses

VANCOUVER, Nov. 6. — Keen interest is being manifested in liquor circles in Hon. A. M. Manson's attempt at the interprovincial conference to have the provinces call on the Dominion government to abolish liquor export houses. Despite efforts of the customs commission, liquor still is going to the United States in large quantities from British Columbia, though runners have of late changed methods of transportation. They are now shipping overland rather than by boats.

Listen!

Have you heard about Peps? Peps is a scientific preparation put up in pastille form, which provides an entirely new and effective treatment for coughs, colds, chest and throat troubles.

Peps contain certain medicinal ingredients, which, when placed upon the tongue, immediately turn into vapor, and are breathed down the air passages to the lungs. On their journey, they soothe the inflamed and irritated membranes of the bronchial tubes, the delicate walls of the air passages, and finally enter and carry relief and healing to the lungs.

While no liquid or solid can get to the lungs and air passages, these Peps fumes get there direct, and healing commences.

A STORY OF LOVE, TRIAL, TEMPTATIONS AND TRIUMPHS

THE STORY SO FAR

Joyce Daring, heroine of the story, has had a stormy introduction to life. Her parents, John and Agnes Daring, separate after living together for 20 years. And when she needs her home most, Joyce is left to shift for herself. Her problem is complicated by three youths — David Tompkins, faithfully demanding her in marriage; Henry Deacon, wealthy, promising her unknown pleasures; and "Butch" Seltzer, gang leader, who is clay in her fingers. She gets a job in a telephone exchange, and takes a room with Gladys Warner, a hotel check girl, who promptly borrows her savings for a mysterious need. Joyce's mother takes a room in the same house to keep watch over her, and becomes a strange shadow in the girl's life, intriguing with both Deacon and Seltzer, while the father urges Tompkins' suit. With this background, start the story with Joyce facing the world alone at 18, as any spunky girl would when thrown on her own resources by the breaking up of her home.

CHAPTER XI.

New Pastures

Joy's letter which Mrs. Jenkins gave her in the morning was from Deke.

"I'll be back Friday of next week," he wrote, "and you have an unbreakable date with me for all that evening and part of the adjoining morning."

Joy tucked the letter in the pocket of her dress. Somehow it gave the whole world a different color to have this letter from Deke.

"I wonder if I'm really falling in love?" she asked herself. "It's a totally delicious sensation," and she blushed at the thought, and caused a passing youth to fall over the curb when he turned to look after her loveliness.

Instruction at the exchange grew a little more complicated that day.

Early in the afternoon she was sent with the two other most proficient girls in her class to the main switchboard to observe. She was fascinated by the row of girls plugging in to busy yellow lights, responding to an emergency red light, sending streams of talk all over the city.

"Even their backs look busy," she half whispered to her companion.

Would she ever be so sure of herself that she could lean across to a neighbor and ask, "What do you think of my new neck shave?"

The week drew to a close. There were daily letters from Deke, an Indian rug that he bought for her in the mountains, a box of maple sugar. Butch met her Friday after work and bought her a soda and a box of candy. But she found him as dull as on the night of their date. She wanted excitement and told him so. His eyes gleamed at her.

"I could show you some, kid," he promised. "But it ain't time yet. Wait until you and me's better acquainted."

And she found herself vaguely troubled by something in his voice.

She went to Euclid Beach with Davey, Saturday night. After the dancing, they went to see Mrs. Daring, who received Davey more cordially than ever before. When it was time for her shift to end she smiled at the two young people and said "Take Joyce along, Davey, I've got a date of my own tonight."

Davey felt a strong sense of distaste. Could she mean this, Joy's mother? Was she chasing about with other men already? He held Joy's arm tighter than was necessary as they walked out toward Mrs. Jenkins'.

"How'd you like me to get a little car of some kind to take you riding this summer, Joy?" he asked.

"Oh, could you, Davey? How wonderful." Joy gave a skip to show her delight.

"Well," said Davey, "the competition's getting pretty strong. Deke has a car. Butch has a car. You'll be buying one for yourself one of these days when you get rich as a telephone girl. Got to keep up with the procession even if it does mean hitting the old savings account a wallop."

"Don't do it unless you really want to," said Joy, swiftly.

"Joy! You aren't going to be angry with me, are you?" His tone was pleading.

"No, Davey," said Joy honestly, "I couldn't be—for long at a time."

They parted, and Joy went listlessly up the steps. She was going to spend Sunday afternoon with Dads. "Davey'll be there, I suppose. I wish we could just be friends," she thought wistfully.

Gladys was in the room, dressed in her kimona, putting a clay-pack on her face.

"I'm a sight, huh?" she asked, for Joy was genuinely startled at the sight of her covering herself with sticky mud.

They talked for a little, then Joyce went to bed to sleep until noon the next day.

When she woke, Gladys was sitting propped up in bed writing a letter.

"Just got through," she said. "A letter to the party I sent that money to. Joy, you'll never know what it meant to me to have that money to send just now. Some day I'll tell you. Say, I talked to the supervisor down at the switchboard about you, and she thinks maybe they can take you on. She wants you to come in some day next week. I'll let you know when."

"I think that would be lots more fun than working in an exchange," said Joy.

"Yep," Gladys nodded her head. "Lots of chances to go out, theater tickets, baseball tickets, the whole smear. We girls in the check room ain't allowed to make dates with the men in the hotel. But the telephone girls can do as they please."

"I've got all the boy friends I want right now," said Joyce a little consciously.

"Tell me about 'em. Let Gladys give you the low-down on the whole bunch. A month from now you won't know any of 'em, I'll bet."

Joy was glad of a confidante.

"Well, I suppose I ought to name Davey first."

"I suppose so. He's about four years older than I am. Mother used to let him push my baby carriage around when I was about a year old. We played together when I got big enough to walk, and even after I started to school and the boys teased him about it, he used to walk home with me. He's a salesman now. When I was in the eighth grade he took me to a football game—he was a senior in high school then. It's funny, but that was the nicest thing he ever did, I guess."

"Wants to marry you and preserve you in sugar of love with nobody around but Dave, doesn't he?" commented Gladys.

"Something like that. Then there's Butch Seltzer. He's nearer my own age, about two years older. He quit school in the seventh grade and got to be the leader of a tough gang out our way. He's never been arrested or anything like that, but everybody says he makes a lot of money somehow that isn't right. He's always been nice to me, except one time he tried to make me go riding with him. Acted like a regular gas hawk, but he was sorry afterward."

"What stopped him?" Gladys asked.

"Another friend of mine, Henry Deacon. He happened to be going past and he made Butch let me go."

"Tell me some more about your hero. I don't like the sound of the other two. One's too tame, the other ain't good enough for you." Gladys shifted to a more comfortable position.

"Deke? There isn't much to tell. He's about Davey's age, no, older, a little. He finished high school the year I started and then went off to college. He'll be through next year. His father owns a big chemical business and Deke's going into that when he finishes at Yale. He nearly ran over me in his Stutz a couple of weeks ago, and that started our seeing a lot of each other."

"He sounds like the real stuff," said Gladys. "Rich dad, good looking, I suppose, a Stutz car. Ought to know about your folks if you're going to marry him."

Joyce flushed at the directness of this remark.

"My goodness," she said impatiently. "Why does every body talk about getting married all the time? I don't want to get married."

"You just think you don't," said Gladys. "Wait till one of those beaus of yours starts trotting around with another Jane. Then you'll want to be married fast enough. Probably marry one of them just for spite."

"I would not!" said Joyce indignantly, getting out of bed.

She felt a longing for her mother. She and Motherdear had spent so many happy Sunday mornings together. But it would never do to go up to "Mrs. Martin's" room she supposed.

Davey brought her home from the apartment early that evening. He had moved his books and belongings over that morning and Joy helped him put them in order. She felt very tired as she climbed the stairs to her room and went immediately to bed.

About the middle of Monday morning she was called to Mrs. Fisher's office.

"Good morning, Miss Daring, are you still finding the work interesting?"

"Yes, I am, Mrs. Fisher," Joyce answered, smiling.

"I have a query here about you. It is from the supervisor of the switchboard at Hotel Statler. One of their operators is leaving the first of July and she asks if I think you capable of taking the place. It seems you have been recommended to her by some girl already in the hotel employ."

"I did want to try and get that place, if I can do the work by that time," said Joyce. "The girl I room with works at the hotel and we thought we'd like to work in the same place."

"I see," said the older woman. "Usually we fill such requests from the ranks of experienced operators. Some of them like the exchange work better, though, and I don't believe there would be any dissatisfaction over your taking the place by preference this way. I'll ask Miss Detrich to put you on the regular switchboard at once, so you can have a little more intensive experience."

Joyce thanked her and left the room walking on air. The next day she went to see Miss Scanlon, in charge of the Statler board.

It was about 4:30 and Gladys had time to leave her post and conduct Joy across the lobby to Miss Scanlon's desk. Then she went back to mount guard over the "tea-hats," as she called them.

Joyce found Miss Scanlon a pleasantly pretty woman of thirty, a vast age to Joy. They talked about the vacant position and Joyce went back to watch the girls busy at the board.

Joy's eagerness interested the supervisor. "If you're not quite ready by the first of July," she said in parting, "I think we could get along a week. Summer isn't our busiest time and I wouldn't mind being short handed a few days, until you were ready for the place."

Joyce flashed Gladys a triumphant nod of the head as she went down the lobby to the avenue. Gladys winked, then turned to restore the hat of one of her elderly tea drinkers.

Joyce cast a rapid glance about her. She had never been in the lobby of a big hotel before. How thrilling to go in and out of here casually, a part of all this grandeur.

But Butch, whom she met on the way home, was less thrilled.

"Don't like your being there where all those fresh rich guys come around all the time," he grumbled.

"Why, I won't even see them, or they me, most of the time," argued Joyce. "The only time I see any of the hotel guests is when I go out to work in the pay station, and I'll be busy there, and then men aren't the only kind of people that stay at hotels."

"They're the only kind interested in pretty girls, though," said Butch in the same surly tone. "I don't think your mother ought to let you do this."

They parted with this shadow of a quarrel between them. "I don't care," thought Joyce, and unlike most "don't cares" this was a real one.

It was nearly midnight and she was sleeping soundly when Mrs. Jenkins shook her awake.

TOMORROW: Three men and a maid! What is the poor girl to do? She has tried the ways of two of them, and the third is rushing back from an enforced absence, promising all kinds of delicious pleasures. Read tomorrow's instalment of "JOY," the love story of an American girl.

British Industry Is Perfecting New Light Auto, It Is Rumored

LONDON, Nov. 7. — The British automobile industry had launched an intensive campaign to hold its own against an expected new offensive from foreign automobile manufacturers.

By employing the latest selling methods—secrecy and suspense to arouse interest in new types—British car makers are leaving no stone unturned in their efforts to dominate the home market for small cars, which, to a large extent, they have succeeded in recapturing.

British engineers, it is said, are now working on a new type of car that is said to go 50 miles on a gallon of petrol.

"Send Your Boys to the Peace River" Is Gardiner's Suggestion

OTTAWA, Nov. 7. — "Send your boys to the Peace River instead of the United States" was the advice given by Premier J. G. Gardiner of Saskatchewan in addressing the Ottawa Women's Canadian club over the week-end. There were great possibilities in the Peace River district. If Canadians would go west instead of south, the individual and the country would benefit greatly, Premier Gardiner said.

He emphasized the urgent need for greater development of the northerly areas of Quebec, Ontario, British Columbia and the prairie provinces.

"There is a future before Canada which can well inspire every young man in Canada to go into the pioneer district and establish his home."

BRITISH HOUSE MEETING TODAY

Parliament Sitting Will Be About Seven Weeks; Many Measured to Come

LONDON, Nov. 7. — Parliament will reassemble tomorrow, and it will be necessary to compress the glut of government measures, mostly domestic, within seven weeks of sittings. The opposition is expected to insist upon at least one day's discussion of the recent Geneva naval conference. The house of lords debate on this subject opens on Wednesday.

The "flappers' measure," granting votes to young women, is unlikely to come up before the February session.

The bishops are anxious that the legislation affecting the new prayer-book be taken up before Christmas.

The government is anxious to afford a most ample opportunity for free discussion, which would hardly be possible if the subject were taken up prior to Christmas.

WAS SO NERVOUS and SHORT OF BREATH COULD HARDLY SLEEP

Mrs. Louise Raglin, Golden Lake, Ont., writes:—"For several years I was greatly troubled with my heart. I was so nervous and short of breath I could hardly sleep at night, and if I did sleep for a while I had bad dreams.

"I managed to keep at my work, somehow, until I began to have dizzy spells which got so bad I had to give up. I used many kinds of medicine, but found no help until I got a box of MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS. After the first box I found a great change, and after two boxes I was as well as I could be.

"I told my mother, who had choking sensations, about them and they helped her greatly."

Canadian Buyers Profit by Canada's Export Trade

It's Better because It's Canadian

IN the distant reaches of Britain's far-flung empire you will find General Motors cars, built in Canada by Canadian craftsmen, from Canadian materials.

In five years over 110,000 automobiles have been sent overseas by General Motors of Canada to carry the standard of Canadian quality around the world.

This represents a truly important contribution to Canada's export trade.

It represents millions of dollars to be spent in wages to Canadian workmen, in the purchase of Canadian metals, wood, hides and the countless other materials entering into the manufacture of General Motors cars.

And it represents a greatly augmented production of General Motors of Canada, resulting in lower costs of manufacture, in economies of purchasing, in greater savings of time and labor through greater volume.

Thus, because in India, in Egypt, in Malta, Ceylon or South Africa, someone is buying a General Motors car from Canada, General Motors can offer to you, in Canada, a product of higher quality at a lower price than otherwise possible.

"Yip" Foster Dashes 35 Yards for Touchdown and Brings Home 9-4 Victory

TORONTO, Nov. 7. — University of Toronto's hopes of supremacy in the Ontario Rugby Football union were crushed under the racing feet of "Yip" Foster when the Balmy Beach star half dashed 35 yards to a touchdown which gave his team a 9-4 victory over the collegians and the championship of the O. R. F. U. at Varsity stadium this afternoon.

Had Varsity won today it would have been possible to tie the champions by winning against Hamilton, Saturday, and Camp Borden vanquishing Balmy Beach then.

Foster's try, coming with the score tied five minutes before the close of the game, climaxed a struggle which Varsity had dominated most of the time until then.

SCORE THREE GOALS TO ONE OVER NELSON

Mine Team Holds Blaylock Cup and Title for the Kootenays

SNOW AND RAIN MAKE FIELD DIFFICULT ONE

Miskicks Frequent; Teams Evenly Matched; Small Crowd Out

KIMBERLEY, B.C., Nov. 7.—Before a small crowd on Thanksgiving day, Monday, November 7, Kimberley senior soccer team, champions of the East Kootenay, were at home to Nelson's senior soccer team, champions of the West Kootenay, when the Kimberley team were winners with a score of 3-1. This game gives them the championship of the entire Kootenays and the Blaylock cup.

A heavy snowfall Saturday night and Sunday put the field in bad condition, although the C. M. & S. Co. officials had the grounds cleared before the game, the going was pretty slippery and miskicks were in evidence.

FAST CLOSE PLAY

The play was fast and close throughout, McDonald, for Kimberley, got the first goal, T. Nutter scored Nelson's only goal. The score at half-time was 1-all. Play was even in the first part of the second half when Chris Evans, for Kimberley, shot for goal, Nelson's goal keeper saved it, but Fowler took the rebound and left the goalie no chance whatever making Kimberley's second goal. D. Smith put in the final goal just before the whistle. Outstanding players for Kimberley were McDonald, Smith and Scott. All played a good game. Kelly, Roynon and Bradley were good in their positions.

The lineup was as follows:

Nelson—L. Desireau, Bradley, Roynon, M. Major, Smith, Spiers, Tyler, Talbot, Nutter, C. Major and Kelly.

Kimberley—T. Hotchkiss, Corrigan, Lilly, Scott, Shaw, Watson, C. Evans, D. Smith, Faulds, McDonald and Crane.

Crosses Trail of Redskins on Warpath

By AL DEMAREE
(Former Pitcher New York Giants)

Brains usually are worth more than speed in football, as is proved by this story A. J. Robertson, director of athletics at Bradley Polytechnic Institute, told me.

"In the Minnesota-Carlisle Indian game of 1908," he said, "the Carlisle team had been camping on the Gopher goal line most of the game, but had failed to score more than one touchdown. Late in the fourth quarter, with the score tied, it looked as if the Indians would break through. On the five-yard line they tried a mass play at center. Out of the pile came the ball, and it was scooped up by Chestnut, the Minnesota right end, a fine player but a very slow runner. He set sail for the Indian goal line, 95 yards away.

"Two big Indian line men took after him. Both were faster than Chestnut, and they were gaining. Rademacher, the Minnesota captain, took up the chase. He was much faster than any one of the three. Instead of blocking one Indian and letting the other one catch Chestnut(which an unthinking player would have done, Rademacher ran a while in front of one, slowing him up, then switched to the other. He jockeyed the two Indian pursuers until Chestnut reached the Indian goal line in safety. This touchdown won for Minnesota, 11 to 6."

A blanket of snow covered the entire course, and made the going difficult. Scott's time was 30 seconds more than last year, when the race was run under ideal weather conditions.

In second place was John Kerr of Passburg, and in third was James McVey of Blairmore.

Glen Hamilton of Lethbridge won the junior "Y" mile and half road race. In second and third places were E. F. Thornhill and James.

MANITOBA BEATS ALBERTA STUDENTS

Win Championship of Western Canada Intercollegiate Rugby Union

WINNIPEG, Nov. 7. — University of Manitoba today won the championship of the Western Canada Intercollegiate Rugby union today when they defeated the University of Alberta, 20 to 6, and preserved, unbroken, their series of victories.

Manitoba had a clear advantage throughout, the boys from Alberta showing the effects of their tough battle with Saskatchewan on Saturday. The powerful kicking of Andy Blair, the all-around brilliant work of Frank McDonald at quarter, and the deadly tackling of Tessler, Puttee and Jack Sutherland were the chief factors in Manitoba's win although fumbles by the Albertans contributed to the downfall of the visitors.

NEW BRUNSWICK BEATS MONTREAL

Drop Kick Wins English Rugger Battle in Defence of the Dominion Title

MONTREAL, Nov. 7. — A brilliant drop kick, which hailed from the toe of Babbitt, half back, through the opposing goal posts, won today's English rugby match by a score of 4 points to 3 for the University of New Brunswick in their invasion of Montreal in defence of the MacTier cup, the emblem of English rugby supremacy of the Dominion. Canadian Vickers, who, through heading the local league, won the right to challenge the maritime champions, had secured a three-point lead through a concerted try by Taylor just before the first half ended. Babbitt's kick came half way through the second half.

VANCOUVER REPS BEAT ALBERTANS QUITE EASILY

Score Is 28-3 When Edmonton's English Rugger Squad Visits Coast

VANCOUVER, Nov. 7.—Edmonton's English rugby squad met defeat for the second time in two days when Vancouver "Reps" rode roughshed over them this afternoon. The locals rolled up 28 points to the visitors' three. The Albertans' only count was a try secured by Souness which Sache failed to convert just before the rest period. The half time tally was 9-3, and in the second half the "Reps" not only prevented further scoring by the visitors, but added 1 to their own score.

Edmonton fielded a slightly changed lineup. Kinney, although suffering from a lame leg, played full back, but he was badly hampered. Polly replaced Burnett at wing three, while the others on the line were McNeill, McLennan and Grove. Sache, Drayton, Souness and Jones were also behind the scrum. The Albertans played a seven-man pack, Gooderhill playing in place of Rees.

SCORES A TRY

Dalley, Vancouver, scored a try in six minutes after play started. Many free kicks were given against Edmonton chiefly through off-sides. Taylor scored Vancouver's second try in eight minutes.

Edmonton worked the ball to the "Rep" five-yard line. After a couple of scrums, Jones was pulled for off-side and the chance was lost. The visitors kept up the pressure and McIennan tore off a brilliant run through center. Sowness got possession later and crossed the line after McLennan was brought down.

A fine run by Choate added three more points for the locals. Dalby got the next try and Leroy again converted. Pinkham secured the final try.

Jimmy Carter garnered 20 of the Bankers' points, while Fish contributed 15 of them. Campion was high score man for the Wolves.

ROSSLAND FIRE DAMAGE ACTION OPENS ASSIZES

Robert Stephen Sues W. F. McNeill for Loss of Block Burned

PLEWMAN DESCRIBES DISCOVERY OF FIRE

Peculiar Flame; Mr. Lucas Tells Court Will Try Prove Fire Caused by Torch

Telling of a peculiar fire which burned with hardly any smoke, and which later spread and in its course consumed almost an entire Rossland city business block, R. E. Plewman of Rossland was the only witness called in the opening, yesterday afternoon in the assize court, of the suit of Robert Stephen against W. F. McNeill for loss sustained in the fire by destruction of the Stephen building.

E. A. Lucas, K.C., of Lucas & Lucas, Vancouver, is representing Mr. Stephen. C. R. Hamilton, K.C., of Hamilton, Wragge & Hamilton, Nelson, and R. J. Clegg of Rossland are appearing for Mr. McNeill.

THAWING FROZEN PIPES

The plaintiff, it is understood, sets out to prove that Mr. McNeill and a neighbor, a Mr. Ferguson, on February 21 were using a gasoline blow torch to thaw frozen water pipes in the basement of the McNeill building.

The pipes were encased in a wooden casing about four feet square, which was packed with sawdust and paper as a protection against frost, and the casing was torn away in part to allow the men to work on the pipes.

About noon Mr. McNeill left Mr. Ferguson to go on with the work, and shortly after Mr. Ferguson also went away, leaving the torch, it will be claimed.

DISCOVERS THE FIRE

Mr. Plewman, who occupied the adjoining building, testified that about 6 o'clock he went down into the basement of his building. Through an opening he saw the peculiar flame, which was spread over the ground, burning with hardly any smoke.

He immeditaely turned in an alarm, but within a few minutes smoke drove him out of his office. He saved as much of his stock as he could, but the fire burned so fiercely that he saved but little. Half a dozen adjoining buildings were consumed in the disastrous fire which followed.

'WHITE' RUSSIANS ATTACK CONSULATE

SHANGHAI, Nov. 7. — Celebration here of the tenth anniversary of the Bolshevist revolution of 1917 was marked by an attack on the Soviet consulate by "White" Russians, with the resultant death of one person, and the injury of several others.

Police broke up the demonstration. The riot began at a reception in the consular building in honor of the anniversary. A band of "White" Russians gathered and surged forward, throwing bricks. Pistols were fired from the consulate, aimed over the heads of the mob.

When the first shots failed to disperse the crowd, the aim was lowered and individuals began to fall. Police said that one man was killed and one woman and 10 men were wounded.

Ancient Totems of Musguiam Indians Are Given to University

VANCOUVER, Nov. 7. — "Klahowya Tillicum."

With these words of greeting and friendship, Chief Tsim Lano of the Musguiam Indians, Point Grey, presented two ancient totems of his forefathers to the University of British Columbia, now covering the old hunting grounds of his tribe, at a picturesque ceremony in the university auditorium this afternoon.

In full native regalia and war paint, the chief, supported by two first cousins, Casimer Johnny and Cornelian Johnny, of the Capilano tribe, and four braves, described the history and meaning of the totems in his native tongue, while Casimer Johnny translated.

Dr. Evelyn Farris accepted the relics on behalf of the board of governors, while Sherwood Lett, president of the alumni association, through whom the totems were given, made the formal presentation.

RAILWAY MOTION FOR A NONSUIT TURNED DOWN

statement of claim to included as an alternative right to that of ownership, the right of renewal, which it had under the statute up to one year from June, the month before the fire.

CLAIM ALL RIGHTS GONE

The railway company, as one ground for the nonsuit, argued that at the time of commencing the action this plaintiff had no rights whatever, even its right of renewal, for all its licences, having expired.

One of the arguments on which the plaintiff relied was that from the right in respect to trespass, as the plaintiff had rights under the statute as against any third party.

Incidentally, Mr. Hamilton claimed that the Midlakes company had not proved its title in the ordinary way, but only submitted documents which might have a variety of constrctions. On this point, Mr. Burns replied that he had produced documents which the government issued to show it recognized the title of the licensee.

Mr. Justice McDonald stated on this point that under modern practice a court would not throw out a case for some very technical omission made by counsel overlooking something, and he would allow Mr. Burns to put in anything needed to further prove title.

RIGHT HAD "SOME VALUE"

His lordship, in provisionally dismissing the motion for nonsuit, ruled that at the time of the fire the plaintiff had the right of renewal of the licences now attacked, and that that right "had some value."

He left it open to the defendant company, however, to raise this issue again from new angles in the general argument, which it has been agreed shall be submitted in writing within the next two or three days.

Had the nonsuit been allowed, it would have thrown out a full half of the aggregate claim of all the plaintiffs, as the Midlakes claim is for $126,000.

Mr. Hamilton, in his argument on the nonsuit motion, stated that some licences of other plaintiffs were open to attack on the same grounds of having lapsed, but that the company would not press the point in their cases.

WRITTEN ARGUMENTS

This winds up the case so far as open court goes, after sessions on 10 days, and the testifying of 35 witnesses. His lordship is to receive the arguments of counsel in writing, within the week, thus curtailing the assizes by the space of time oral argument would take.

WHEAT DEVELOPS UPWARD TENDENCY

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Wheat developed an upward tendency today, stimulated by reports of rust and frost in Argentina and by smallness of the United States visible supply scarcity.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous at the same as Saturday's finish to ⅜c higher, with corn ⅞c to 1c up, oats showing ¼c to ⅜c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15c.

MAIN TREND OF MARKET UPWARD

Gains Well in Excess of Losses at Montreal During the Past Week

MONTREAL, Nov. 7.—Despite some irregularity in the trading on the Montreal stock exchange last week, the main trend of values was clearly in an upward direction, and at the close of the period gains were well in excess of losses, with a wide group of substantial advances recorded. Volume showed a substantial decline from that of the previous week, but the market concluded an unusually broad affair. Beyond a substantial recovery in the New York market, the period was without any particular developments to influence the movement of stocks.

Brazilian was the active leader and closed at 197¾ (ex-div.) for a net gain of four points, after having sold up to 202¼ (ex-div.) during the period. National Breweries came second in volume of trading and closed at 99½ for a net gain of 6½ points. Dominion Glass was the strong spot in the week's list, closing at 126 for a net gain of 9 points, with trading in 15,720 shares. Bank of Montreal, off 16 points, to 304 (ex-div.) was the greatest loser in the list.

WHEAT EXPERIENCES EXTREME DULLNESS

WINNIPEG, Nov. 7.—With the exception of Friday and Saturday an influential factor in boosting prices in northern markets, the wheat during the past week experienced extreme dullness. Day after day an uneventful pit trade saw prices fluctuate narrowly, one day up and the next down. Export sales were so small as to be almost negligible, and other buying was exceedingly slow.

The November future closed at $1.25⅞; December, $1.27½, and May $131¼.

PRINCIPALS IN LILLIENDAHL MURDER CASE IN STATES

Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl is being held without bail for trial on November 28, charged with the murder of her husband, Dr. William Lilliendahl. She was smiling and nodding to friends when she came into the court room of Supreme Court Justice Luther Campbell at May's Landing, New Jersey, to plead not guilty to the murder indictment and seek liberty on bail. When the justice refused bail, a shadow blotted out Mrs. Lilliendahl's smile and the knuckles of her clenched hands were dabs of white. Willis Beach, the little, white-haired, five-foot poultry dealer, who had disappeared in the early stages of the case, but who returned to be jointly indicted with the widow, was his placid self through it all.

Beach is showri upper left and next him is Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl, widow of the slain doctor. Lower left is Edison Hedges, the youthful lawyer who is representing both the accused and who was placed under arrest himself for his part in temporarily spiriting away his client, Willis Beach, who was at the time required by the state as a material witness. In the center is Mrs. Anna Cavalier, whose home is near the secluded spot where the aged narcotic expert was shot and killed while riding in his auto with his wife. She says she heard calls in the woods after the fatal bullets were fired. At the lower right is Mrs. Thomas Tamberlaine, postmistress at Vineland, N.J., who revealed how Mrs. Lilliendahl had been receiving letters under the assumed name of Peggy Anderson. Beach has admitted writing these letters.

Nickel Remains Active and Strong Issue on Toronto List During Week

TORONTO, Nov. 7.—A review of the activities on the Toronto stock exchange during the past week reveals that a wide range of stocks has been dealt in daily.

International Nickel remained an active and strong feature. A good volume of sales were registered daily and the price advanced from an opening in Toronto a week ago of 63, to a close in Saturday, in New York, to 68½.

Liquor and brewery stocks also were prominent during the week. The Standard stock and mining exchange sales have kept close to the 2,000,000 mark, the volume of business setting a record in the last six months.

The market has been stimulated somewhat by development in the Kirkland lake field, where Tough Oakes, Burnside, Wright Hargreavs and other properties are opening new levels.

Lord Aberdeen and His Lady Celebrate Their Golden Wedding

LONDON, Nov. 7. — Lord and Lady Aberdeen, whose golden wedding anniversary today brought tributes and congratulations from all parts of the world because of the long records both hold in useful public service, have no recipe for wedded happiness.

"There can be no royal road to wedded happiness," Lady Aberdeen said. "We are all different, and we cannot dictate to one another, but so long as the union is based on mutual love and respect, things are likely to work out all right."

Between intervals of public service, Lord Aberdeen has lived the life of a highland chieftain and at a luncheon today in his honor, the men dressed in kilts. The Queen and King were among the first to send their greetings to the couple.

5 Corns of long standing removed

It doesn't matter how many corns distress you nor the length of time they have plagued your feet—the corn has not been born that Radox footbaths will not remove; root and all. Read this latest Radox exploit; five long-standing corns removed easily after a few Radox footbaths. Truly, as this lady says, "Radox Bath Salts are worth their weight in gold to corn sufferers."

"I had three corns on my right foot, one was under my big toe, and I had two very bad corns on my left foot. I have been a sufferer for years. One day I was told about Radox Bath Salts. I got a packet and bathed my feet every night for a week, and then I only bathed them three times a week. Now I am thankful to say I have no corns. I removed them quite easily. I hope every sufferer from corns will get a packet of Radox, for they are worth their weight in gold to corn sufferers."

23rd April, 1927. (Mrs.) C.

When you dip your feet into a footbath containing Radox Bath Salts, the dead skin of the corn combines with the Radox Salts to form a protein salt of the actual corn itself. This protein salt dissolves in the water, and so softens the corn that it may be lifted out bodily. Radox does not affect the living skin, but dissolves the dead skin—the corn.

BLAYLOCK GIVEN HONORS AS THE YEAR MEDALIST

American Institute of Mining and Metallurgy Grants Him Douglas Medal

COVERS WIDE SCOPE IN TRAIL CONQUESTS

Latest Engineering and Mining Journal Contains Details of Award

Award of the James Douglas medal, one of the highest honors in metallurgy on this continent, to S. G. Blaylock, general manager of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company of Canada, at Trail, is announced in the current number of the Engineering & Mining Journal of New York.

Illustrating the article with a cut of Mr. Blaylock, the journal in question reports the matter as follows:

"S. G. Blaylock, general manager of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company of Canada, will be the recipient in 1928 of the James Douglas medal awarded annually by the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers for distinguished achievement in nonferrous metallurgy. The selection, made by the medal committee, headed by W. H. Bassett, was recommended to the directors and approved by them at the regular meeting in New York on October 12.

COMMITTEE COMMENDS

"Mr. Blaylock is a Canadian by birth, and was graduated from McGill university in 1899. He started his professional career as assayer for the Canadian Smelting Works at Trail, which have grown into the huge metallurgical plant of which Mr. Blaylock is the guiding spirit today. From 1908 to 1911 he was superintendent of the Sullivan mine, the source of the major portion of the ore that supplies the Trail reduction works. Subsequent promotions made him assistant manager and general manager for the company. Some of the members of the nominating committee believed that it would be particularly gracious and appropriate to honor a Canadian at this time, and for this added reason they feel that Mr. Blaylock is a happy choice. The committee compliments Mr. Blaylock for his success in maintaining a competent and loyal organization and for his tenacity of purpose in sticking to a task that seemed to be well nigh impossible of solution, which of course alludes to the development of a successful process for the treatment of the Sullivan ore. It also commends his generosity in sharing results and cooperating with other companies that have had metallurgical problems more or less similar in nature.

ACHIEVEMENTS CITED

"The specific achievements in metallurgy for which the award is made are enumerated by the committee as follows: 'For his development of a selective flotation process for lead-zinc-iron ores; for his part in the development of the leaching of zinc ores and the electrolytic deposition of zinc; for his improvement in lead blast-furnace practice obtaining high lead recovery from flotation concentrate, producing high zinc slags; for his success in solving the problems necessary for the treatment of the ores of the Sullivan mine; for his development and improvement of the Betts process for lead refining; for the laying out and successful operation of the Tadanac plant to carry out the very complex metallurgical operations which the handling of the Sullivan ores entails.'"

CLAIMS COGLE'S CARELESSNESS LOST HIS LOGS

Frank Pelle of Sirdar Sues for $1700; Except Arguments, Case Concluded

COGLE ANSWERS THAT CURRENT CAUSED LOSS

Claims Current Cause Log Jam on Sirdar Bridge, not Carelessness

Claiming $1700, Frank Pelle of Sirdar yesterday in assize court sued Captain F. Cogle of Procter for damages for loss of a boom of logs, allegedly through Captain Cogle's carelessness and negligence in towing the boom.

Mr. Justice D. A. McDoald presided. E. G. Matthew represented Mr. Pelle, and James O'Shea, K.C., of O'Shea & Garland, conducted the defence. Written arguments are to be submitted by the counsels, and judgement will be handed down later.

Witnesses for the plaintiff included James S. Wilson, Pedro F. Cherbo, George J. Cam, John Talamanca, and Frank Pelle, the plaintiff, all of Sirdar. For the defendant those testifying were C. L. Oweson, W. H. Grice, W. A. Ward and Captain Cogle, all of Procter.

VERBAL CONTRACT

Witnesses for the plaintiff testified Mr. Pelle and Captain Cogle made a verbal contract on May 2, it being agreed that Captain Cogle should tow Mr. Pelle's boom of logs from Duck lake to Nelson. If there was more than 200,000 feet he was to do the work at $1 per 1000 feet; if less than 200,000 feet he was to be paid $20 a day.

The captain arrived at Sirdar on June 9, and next morning work on the boom began. The logs were in two sections, joined together in one boom.

Taking the boom toward the bridge at Sirdar Captain Cogle tied up at noon for lunch. During the dinner hour Harold Cam and Pedro Cherbe went down to the bridge to see that all was clear. They found a cottonwood tree caught in a pier, and returned for axes and saws to clear the channel.

CURRENT STRONG

In the meantime Captain Cogle told Mr. Pelle that he would not "take chances" on taking the tug under the bridge. He was going to tow the boom until it came under the influence of the current, which had a speed of some three to five miles an hour, and then circle back to the rear and hold back the boom until it had passed under the bridge.

While the men were trying to clear away the cottonwood, it was stated, Captain Cogle started to bring down the boom. Throwing off his tow line he circled to the rear of the boom, but instead of attaching a tow line and holding the boom, he put the nose of the tug to the logs and began to push them, with the result that when the boom was about half way through the bridge part of it struck the bridge piling and jammed up. Captain Cogle tried to pull the jam loose, but was unsuccessful.

CUTS AWAY SECTIONS

In the morning of the next day, it was stated, Captain Cogle was cutting away sections of the boom and loosing numbers of logs. Mr. Pelle asked him to wait until a boom could be stretched across the channel below the bridge to catch the logs, but Captain Cogle said he could pick them up on Kootenay Lake.

A section of the boom, amounting to some 46,000 feet, was towed to Nelson by Captain Cogle, but three-quarters of the logs were gone, witnesses stated.

LOGS LOST AGAIN

Later the captain picked up about 65,000 feet of logs on Kootenay lake, but while tied up overnight a storm broke the boom, and the logs were lost again. Captain Cogle then declared he had lost enough money on the job and refused to go on with it.

Mr. Pelle stated that after Captain Cogle agreed to pick up the logs on Kootenay lake, more of the jammed logs were released. In addition to the 46,000 feet brought to Nelson by Captain Cogle, 27,000 feet were later brought here.

CURRENT CAUSED JAM

In defence, Captain Cogle and his witnesses stated that though the original plan was to tow the boom as far as the bridge, then circle back and hold the boom until the remainder passed under the bridge, he found when he tried to do so that the current was so strong he had no time to place a line on the boom. The currents were sweeping the boom in toward one side of the bridge, and to avoid this, he tried to push the logs to the other side. The current, taking an unforseen sharp turn, frustrated him in this, and the boom jammed against the other side of the bridge.

Captain Cogle testified that Mr. Pelle originally agreed to take the boom in small sections below the bridge, and there to assemble the sections into one large boom. When he learned that Mr. Pelle expected him to take the boom past the bridge he asked Mr. Pelle to wait until the went down and the current was less strong, but the latter insisted on doing the work right away.

Questioned regarding his cutting away sections of the boom, Captain Cogle replied he had done so in order to get some boom sticks that were jammed under the logs. Half of the logs was still there when he left.

Later when he had collected about 60,000 feet on the lake, and the storm broke his boom, he became disgusted and gave up the job.

GENERAL GOMEZ HID IN CAVES BEFORE TAKEN

Mexican Rebel Leader Was in Ill Health When Seized by Federals

TRIED UNSUCCESSFULLY TO REACH COAST LINE

Dies Bravely Before Firing Squad After Making His Will Out

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 7.—The closing chapters of the career of General Arnulfo Gomez, executed in the mountains of Vera Cruz five weeks after the revolutionary movement headed by him and the late General Francisco Serrano began, were told in El Unfversite today.

With only fruit to eat and his health impaired, General Gomez lived in the caves of Pescados canyon, in the northern part of Vera Cruz, for a few days before being captured.

In the meantime, the federal forces had been forming a ring of steel around the rebels.

BANDS ROUTED

The efforts of the rebel generals, Jursain and Lozada, to join General Gomez and to open a way for him to escape to the coast failed. Their bands were routed with heavy casualties by General Jesus Aguirre after a fight of several days in the foothills of the Orizaba mountains. General Gomez ordered one of his generals with a handful of men to reconnoiter. They were to find a way to break through the federal forces to reach the coast or a means of joining the rebel bands. This party, however, was captured shortly afterward and one of the captured rebels told the federal commander, General Esconaba, where Gomez was hiding. As a result, General Gomez and his nephew, Francisco Gomez Viscarra, were captured by General Escobar. The other rebel leaders, Palacios, Colonel Salvador Castanos and Major Francisco Meza Perez, were taken prisoners on a neighboring hill.

"I expected this," were Gomez' only words when captured.

General Escabor refused Gomez' request that he be court martialled in Mexico City, explaining that it would be contrary to his orders.

MUST GO TO MEXICO

"If I am alive, I want to be taken dead to Mexico City," Gomez explained. "I must go there."

A notary was called and Gomez made his will. He left his bungalow and ranch in Sonora and some money to his mother and his wife and two children, who are now in Los Angeles.

Viscarra asked permission to witness his uncle's execution, declaring that Gomez had been almost a father to him, and expressed satisfaction in dying at his side. The captain in command of the firing squad had been one of Gomez' subordinates when Gomez was a federal general. Gomez recognized him and gave him his wrist watch, the silk handkerchief he wore on his neck and a 50 peso gold piece.

Gomez stood firmly against the wall, rifles of the firing squad were leveled at him.

Viscarra was executed next and then Castanos. All faced death bravely.

The other rebel leaders, Palacios and Meza Perez, were also executed.

Military and Civil Participants; Effigies Depict Chamberlain, Mussolini

MOSCOW, Nov. 7.—A mammonth military and civil parade unsurpassed since the 1917 upheaval, marched through the main streets of Moscow today in celebration of the tenth anniversary of the Soviet revolution. Behind the military forces came workers and peasants dressed in colorful costumes.

Floats manned by professional and amateur artists depicted scenes of the Imperialists and czarists "iniquities."

Sir Austen Chamberlin, Ramsay MacDonald, Premier Mussolini and Foreign Minister Briand figured prominently in masks, the most prominent of which was a gigantic double-headed snake displaying the masks of Sir Austen and Mussolini.
