RESCUED LAND, NEW YORK

Captain and Crew Blamed for Lives Lost From Vestris

Dog Teams Aid Search Amid Snow

Barren Lands Far North of The Pas Guard Secret as to Whereabouts

SNOW MAKES THE WORK ALL THE MORE DIFFICULT

Hope Not Abandoned; Planes Take Up the Search in North Manitoba

THE PAS., Man., Nov. 14.—In the barren lands, far north of The Pas, and between Fort Churchill and the rail of steel on the Hudson's Bay railway, search continued today for seven men who have been lost for 11 days. No definite trace of them has been found, but a vigorous search is being maintained by airplane and land parties. The barren lands are covered with snow, but hope of finding the men alive has not been abandoned. They may have sought shelter in an Indian camp, as one report received here today, though unverified, said the men had been traced some miles up the Churchill river by their tracks in the snow to a point where they had branched off and entered the timber. If they had left their trail and cut across country, it is possible they have gone eastward, in which event they would come to the Deer river and again strike their right trail en route to the end of steel, where they had planned to entrain for The Pas. Along the Deer river it would be possible for them to get aid from Indians or trappers.

DOG TEAMS AND PLANES

Today eight dog teams, driven by experienced "mushers", and accompanied by Indian guides, were scouring the barren lands, while two airplanes have been searching for the past three days, and police, both members of the Royal Canadian Mounted police and the provincial force, have worked with organized search parties.

Fortunately the weather during the last 11 days has been moderate, but the men had provisions for only five days when they left Churchill, and unless they have obtained aid from the Indians may be suffering great privations.

The men, who were employed during the past summer by the federal department of railways and canals, are J. Smith, Prince Albert; Edward Rudatz, Winnipegosis, Man.; S. Rutka, Pine River, Man.; N. Shabturo, The Pas; A. Nowsad and T. Salonionki, both of Winnipeg, and M. Husak, whose address is not known.

Etna Halts Its Lava Flow But Vesuvius Busy

NAPLES, Nov. 14.—Almost simultaneously with the subsiding of fiery Etna, Mount Vesuvius, only 200 miles to the north, has begun to throw out incandescent matter from the same small crevice at the base of the central cone which erupted moderately last August.

The local populace is inclined to be nervous.

Destroyer on Way to Port With Five Bodies From Wreck

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The coast guard destroyer Shaw today night wirelessed coast guard headquarters here that she was proceeding to New York carrying five bodies of victims of the steamer Vestris and that one of them is believed to have been identified as that of Major Yoshio Inouye, Japanese consul at Buenos Aires.

YOUNG SCHOOL TEACHER TAKES HER OWN LIFE

NANAIMO, B.C., Nov. 14.—Mabel Esme Jones, 20, school teacher at camp 6 of the Cowichan Lake Logging company, was found dead this morning in her cabin. By her side was a .22 calibre rifle, a bullet from which had been fired into her mouth. Police are of the opinion that Miss Jones took her own life.

Retiring Directors of United Grain Growers Are All Reelected

CALGARY, Nov 14.—Reelection on the first ballot of the four retiring directors took place at the afternoon session of the annual meeting of the United Grain Growers here today. These were C. E. Thorp of Langley Prairie, B.C.; J. J. McLellan, of Purple Springs, Alta.; S. H. Sears of Nanton, Alta.; and Robert Sharmon of Grandora Sask. These delegates adopted the director's report and the report of the board of directors which included a resolution to close the live stock business of the company.

Passengers Seem Undecided as to the Cause of Sinking

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The survivors from the Vestris today were asked what had caused the ship to list and sink, and there were many answers. Some said the cargo had shifted in the storm and opened improperly fastened hatch bulk heads and ports.

Others were doubtful about the shifting of the cargo, but thought the whole trouble was caused by waves beating down on poorly secured freight openings in the hold and so flooding the engine room, leaving the ship helpless in the waves to be slowly battered onto its side.

Officials of the line declined to answer the passengers' charges pending a thorough investigation of all concerned, or to estimate what caused the disaster until all possible evidence had been taken.

Sixty-four other survivors will arrive on the tanker Myriam tomorrow and the last of the survivors, eight on the battleship Wyoming, will also set foot on land tomorrow.

SIX KILLED IN U.S. ARMY PLANE CRASH IN TEXAS

Machine Throws Pilot Out and Drops 3000 Feet; Wing Breaks Off

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 14.—Six men were killed and another was injured when an army transport plane crashed this afternoon from 3000 feet in the air to a spot near here, 10 miles east of Brooks Field, aviation training school for the United States army.

The accident occurred when the right wing of the plane broke off from the fuselage and the tail piece broke away, plunging the plane into a tail spin. It crashed nose first into a cotton field.

The six passengers killed were in the cabin of the plane. They were piled up forward and their mangled bodies had to be taken to Brooks Field hospital for identification.

Lieut. Harvey F. Dyer, pilot, and Staff Sergeant J. Siedenhaler, who was in front seat with him, escaped death when they were thrown out of the tilting plane and landed with parachutes. Dyer was unhurt but Siedenhaler had a broken rib that was pronounced not serious.

The plane was a Brooks Field ship and was out on manoeuvers when the accident occurred.

Youthful Bandit Gets Thirty-five Cents in Holdup

NANAIMO, B.C., Nov. 14.—A youthful bandit, accompanied by a boy of about 12 years of age, held up Conrad Reifel, manager of the Nanaimo branch of the Vancouver Breweries, limited, here tonight and secured 35 cents from him. The pair then disappeared. Mr. Reifel responded to a telephone call to come to his office. Arriving there a youth, apparently about 18 years of age, wearing a handkerchief over the lower part of his face, poked a hard object against Reifel's side and demanded his money. Nearby was the other boy. Reifel gave up all the money he had on him when the boys quickly backed away and disappeared.

Member Points Out Canada Not Getting Right British News

LONDON, Nov. 14.—At question hour in the house of commons today Sir John Power, Conservative M.P. for Wimbledon asked whether the attention of the prime minister had been drawn to the inadequate and unsatisfactory character of British news supplied Canadian and South American daily newspapers and whether steps were being taken to remedy this situation in view of its adverse political and commercial effect.

Godfrey Locker-Lampson, undersecretary for foreign affairs, in reply on behalf of the government, said that during his recent Empire tour, Rt. Hon. L. C. M. S. Amery, secretary for the dominions, had received no representations so far as Canada was concerned. As regards South America improvement in that direction must depend very largely on the private enterprise of the newspapers themselves.

SASKATCHEWAN RHODES SCHOLAR IS HONORED

EDMONTON, Nov. 14.—George Curtis, 1928 Rhodes scholar from the University of Saskatchewan, has been appointed permanent representative to the Imperial committee of students at Oxford university, from the Dominion. This comimttee seeks to promote Imperial connections with the various universities in the British Empire. He is past president of the students representative council of the University of Saskatchewan.

Inefficiency, Indecision and Delay Charges Made; Terrible Tales of Hardships Related

"Licorice", Little Negro, Is Hero of Vestris Sinking

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—A little Barbadoes negro, "Licorice," a quartermaster on the Vestris, was hailed today as one of the outstanding heroes of the disaster.

Alfred Ramos, young Argentine swimming star, who was rescued after swimming and floating 14 hours, said the quartermaster saved 20 lives.

"That little negro did what the officers of the ship failed to do, said Ramos, who was rescued by the American shipper.

"He took charge of boat No. 18 and not only saved the passengers, but occasionally jumped out to catch an oar or a helpless passenger floating the water. By the time the American Shipper picked up the boat he had saved 20 lives."

NORTHCOTT WILL NOT MAKE BATTLE

Fails So Far to Appeal Against Extradition Order; Will Face California Court

VANCOUVER, Nov. 14.—Although eight days remain within which he may appeal, Gordon Stuart Northcott, who has been committed for extradition to California on four charges of murder, will not, according to his counsel, Frank Lyons, raise any further obstacles to his inforced return for trial at the scene of his alleged crimes.

As the case for the prosecution was developed by Hon. R. L. Maitland, K.C., the accused, it is said, conceded that he would be extradited. He openly expressed a wish to return to California, should his mother, Mrs. Louisa Northcott, lose in her extradition fight before the Alberta courts.

Judge H. S. Cayley, formally committed Northcott for extradition on November 7. The 15 day period, therefore, within which an appeal by way of writ of habeas corpus may be taken, will expire on November 22

LABOR MAKING BID FOR RULE

Australian General Election Set for Saturday; Nationalists Are In Power

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 14.—Both Premier Stanley Bruce and James Scullin, Labor party leader, are now in strenuous campaigns in preparation for the Australian general election to be held on Saturday.

Labor has already won a victory in a contest for one of the seats in the event. Three Labor candidates and three government candidates were contesting three senate seats at Victoria and one of the government candidates died. With only two Nationalists left in the running there, Labor obtains a senate seat automatically.

Twelve of the 36 senate seats are to be filled on Saturday. In the present senate the government has a majority of 26. Premier Bruce urges the people to "cleanse the Labor party of disruptive elements by voting for the sane, safe and sound policy of the government."

Communist Organ Sees Early World War After the Coolidge Speech

MOSCOW, Nov. 14.—Pravda, official organ of the Communist party, commenting today on President's Coolidge's Armistice day speech, expresses the opinion that it is symptomatic of a coming world war.

"President Coolidge delivered a speech showing all people with eyes for the live truth that never since Versailles has the world been nearer a repetition of the sanguinary drama of 1914-1918," the paper says.

MRS. NORTHCOTT CASE CONTINUES, CALGARY

CALGARY, Nov. 14.—Judgment in the case of Mrs. Louisa Northcott, whose extradition to Riverside, Cal., on a charge of murder, is asked for by the U. S. government, was not delivered by Mr. Justice Walsh today. Following argument of counsel, it had been expected judgment would have been rendered today but the case was continued without a decision being given.

But for Bungling 108 Dead Would Be Alive Today, Say Rescued; Captain Saw Women and Children Dumped Into Sea Then Drowned Himsel, Says Steward

TROUBLE NOTED SATURDAY NIGHT, BUT NO S.O.S. MESSAGES SENT UNTIL LATE MONDAY MORNING

Took Crew Two Hours to Lower Boats 10 Feet to Water; Several Smashed; Brave Radio Operator Among Lost; Ship's Cargo Believed to Have Shifted

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Two ship loads of survivors of the Lamport & Holt liner Vestris arrived today to unfold details of one of the most horrible of marine disasters.

An official inquiry has been ordered, based upon the almost unanimous charges of inefficiency, indecision and delay against Captain William Carey and crew.

Interspersed in narratives of heroism—and of brutality—of narrow escape and of suffering, invariably appeared assertions that if proper steps had been taken by the ship's executives and crew, most if not all of the 108 now dead would be alive. Even with the S. O. S. call too long delayed, efficient handling of the Vestris' life saving equipment by those responsible would have brought most of the 108 out of danger, declared survivors today.

CAPTAIN DROWNS

These are charges which United States Attorney Tuttle announced he will begin to investigate tomorrow, but Captain Carey himself will never be called to answer them.

For, after seeing the women and children under his care dumped into a boiling sea from shattered life boats, his passengers and crew leaping into the waves from the foundering ship and feeling the bridge on which he stood sinking beneath his feet, Captain Carey, one of his stewards said, jumped into the water without a life belt, though there were plenty to be had.

From the passengers from the sunken steamer there came a story of hardship and heroism, of bravery and bungling, of good intention and incompetence, which altogether comprised probably as breathless a tale of the sea as has been heard in all the history of seamanship.

RAN INTO A GALE

The composite story of the passengers, reduced to its essentials is as follows:

On Saturday last, the Vesctris, a 16-year-old craft on which Captain Carey was making his last trip, before assuming command of the Voltaire as commodore of the Lamport & Holt line, sailed for the Barbadoes and South American ports with 129 passengers and a crew of 199. There were 37 women aboard and 15 children.

That Saturday night, the steamer ran into a blow that steadily increased to gale force. The ship carried a cargo of 6000 tons, cloth and automobiles, fruit and machinery, oil and bulk lead, and rolled sluggishly in the gathering swell.

SHIP SETTLES

During the night a definite list to starboard developed and when the passengers awoke on Sunday, they found the ship hove-to, tipping in a way that seemed to them to indicate serious danger. There was no panic, but they asked what was wrong and asked again as the ship's list increased. Officers and stewards passed among them saying that there was no immediate danger and fears were temporarily quieted, but during Sunday the ship tipped so much that the waves were running along the rail of the promenade deck.

That was the time, passengers insisted today, that the distress call should have been sent out and not in the middle of Monday morning as it was. The captain seemed calm, they said, then and until the very end, but he was like a man who could not make up his mind.

There was little sleep Sunday night and early Monday morning all passengers were called on deck. The storm that on Saturday beat over the ship and washed the furniture right out of the dining salon had abated, but a high sea was running and the ship seemed on its side.

ORDERS SOS CALL

At 10 o'clock Captain Carey ordered the SOS sall to ships, none of which were nearer than 100 miles, and soon after gave the order to abandon ship. And then there came a scene of horror that the survivors will not forget in all their lives. The order was women and children first, the law of the sea, and two boats were filled with them. But the survivors said the crew seemed inexperienced in getting the boats lowred. For two hours the women and children swung from the davits as the boats were lowerd inch by inch swinging with the sluggish lurch of the ship.

THOWN INTO SEA

Suddenly the ship wallowed in a trough deeper than any before and two life boats were cracked like egg shells against the ship's side, the boats broke about 15 feet above the water and poured their human contents into the sea. In the list of survivors there are the names of but 10 of the 37 women who sailed on the Vestris and the name of not a single child.

By that time the Vestris was sinking rapidly. Two boats were successfully launched but a hole was stove in one and it put off patched with a piece of tin, to sink before it had gone 100 feet. These two boats carried about 80 persons. About 50 had

TORNADO SWEEPS PART OF IOWA

Barn Falls Killing Woman; Several Injured; Damage Is Extensive

MANCHESTER, Ia., Nov. 14.—Mrs. Alpha Hankinson, 30, was crushed to death in a barn demolished today when a tornado swept northwestern Iowa. Meager reports of the extent of the storm indicate it struck in successive sections from the center of the eastern part of the state to the Minnesota line.

At Chester, Ia., about 80 miles northeast of here, two persons, Mrs. Ahringa and Rev. Mr. Allshouse, were injured and several buildings and homes badly damage.

Cedar Rapids, about 35 miles south, suffered considerable property damage but no casualties were reported.

The next word of the storm came from Vinton, about 25 miles northwest of Cedar Rapids, where it was said many persons were injured and homes and buildings destroyed in a path nearly 11 miles long, extending northeastly.

YOUTHS ARRESTED ON TRIPLE MURDER CHARGE

LODZ, Poland, Nov. 14.—Two youths, one 19 and one 14, have been arrested here charged with a triple murder for robbery.

M. Tisher, owner of a piano factory, his wife and a servant girl were found murdered and after an investigation the police arrested the two youths.

'Bos Crack Pal on Head With Brick and Lift His Cash

WINNIPEG, Nov. 14.—Smashed on the head with a brick and completely knocked out, Karla Bohn, of Winnipeg, a native of Fineland, was robbed of $200 by two companions on the C. N. R. tracks near here last night. The trio, together with two other men were about to "hop" a freight train for Port Arthur, when the attack took place.

Police have found no trace of the two thugs, who are believed to be countrymen of Bohn's.

KNEW SOMETHING WAS WRONG WHEN SUNDAY ARRIVED

Survivor Says Could Hear Vestris' Cargo Bumping About Below

TORONTO, Nov. 14.—The Toronto Telegram today publishes the following report of an interview obtained by a staff reporter at New York with E. W. Walcott of Georgetown, Demerara, who recently was a visitor in eastern Canada, one of the survivors of the Lamport & Holt liner Vestris:

At 7 Monday morning we knew the ship was sinking.

"We knew something was very wrong at dinner time Sunday night," hecontinued. "Everything was swept from the tables then by a smashing wave and we could hear cargo bumping down below, but the travellers were in excellent spirits. The sea was calming down after a storm. Most of the people went to bed assured that things would be better in the morning.

FRIGHTFUL LIST

"Before morning the ship had a frightful list. Any one who knew realized things were not going well. By breakfast time there was no thought of eating. Pantries were under water. Cargo was being jettisoned, but the few packages the crew threw overboard made no difference.

"There was heavy machinery on board and motor cars. These had got loose. I was amazed that life boats were not swung out and launched early in the day. It was between 12 and 1 o'clock before they were put overboard. By that time the port side was practically under water.

TERRIBLE LOSS OF LIFE

Fearing to hazard the women and children, they were all shepherded to the side—the starboard side—and loaded into two life boats. It was the effort to save these helpless ones first that caused their loss. There were only two men in one of these first two boats. I have not yet heard of a child being saved. One of these life boats hit against the side and was holed. The other was swamped in launching. As no other boats had previously been launched there were no boats below to pick up passengers. Had boats been launched three or our hours earlier, there would have been less loss of life. At no time was there anything approaching panic.

Organized Rowdyism Makes It Hard for Australian Party

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 14.—Nationalists (government) candidates in the Australian general elections, in which polling takes place on Saturday are having to contend against organized rowdyism in many districts. When Premier Stanley Bruce attempted today to address a meeting at Ivanhoe, women who had traveled in three motor vans from Richmond and Port Melbourne, entered the hall shouting "We are stevedores' wives."

They kept this up and seriously interrupted the meetng. The reference was to the government activities in the recent strike of waterside workers.

Vivid Tale of Tragedy and Rescue

Dana, Sick Passenger, Tells of Horrible Bungling and Delay Aboard Ship

SAVES WOMAN AFTER 22 HOURS IN WATER

Sharks Attack Bodies; Cussed Captain; Witnesses Women and Children Drown

By Paul Dana, on sick bed, as told by an A.P. staff writer

Paul A. Dana, representative of the Radio Corporation of America, and passenger of the Vestris, and Mrs. Clara Ball, a stewardress on the Vestris, were called the pluckiest pair seen by Captain Schuyler Cummings, of the American Shipper, who rescued them. They had floated in the water for 22 hours at the time of their rescue.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—"Our first night out, Saturday, night, the Vestris began to hit rough weather. As the night progressed the storm got worse until before the night was over, we were in the worst storm I ever saw on the sea.

"It was late that night, perhaps a little after midnight, that a thing happened which I believe started the trouble that ended in the tragic sinking of the Vestris.

"Two big waves hit her almost simultaneously, bow and stern, the ship quivered from end to end. You could almost feel her wrenching. The next day was discovered a leak. One of her plates must have been wrenched loose.

"It was rough Saturday night and Sunday was rougher. Only four of the passengers beside myself were down for breakfast.

"The minute I stepped out of my cabin that morning I began to feel uneasy. The Vestris was listing. I had been on steamers before that listed, but I had never seen quite such a list, it looked bad.

PASSENGERS SICK

"In the dining saloon that morning I ran into Officer Fred Sorenson, and we started to talk things over. I decided he knew what he was talking about and that he was a good man to stay with. We spent most of the day together.

"Whether the other passengers were uneasy, I don't know. Most of them were violently sick.

"By the middle of the afternoon, while the storm still continued with no apparent let-up, the list had become so pronounced that all the furniture that wasn't fastened down in the dining saloon and in the smoking room had slidden over to the starboard side, where it was crashing around as the ship rolled.

"I went to bed about 1 o'clock, after placing my bed into a corner of the cabin so it couldn't slide.

"My cabin was on the top deck, starboard side. When I awoke at 8 o'clock Monday morning there was water right on a level with my window. There was water sluching around on the floor of my cabin, too. My steward came in, growning with a badly wrenched shoulder. There was apparently a leak, the hold was filling with water and he had been on a bailing bucket all night. The cargo had shifted too, and the ship had tipped clear over until the water was on a level with my stateroom window on the top deck.

"I dressed as quickly as I could, ate some bananas which my steward gave men, all he could find for my breakfast, and went up on the bow port deck.

QUIETED PASSENGERS

"The crew was throwing the cargo overboard—all the stuff they could handle. It looked like bales of cloth and such stuff. Their dericks were not working, so they could not get rid of the heavier things, like automobiles.

VIVID TALE OF OCEAN TRAGEDY, RESCUE RELATED

A little crowd of men stood up there, leaning over the railing and watching the crew throw the stuff overboard. Some of them had come out with their life preservers. They looked badly scared. Although I had dressed myself that morning with the idea that I'd probably have to leave the ship before the day was over, I tried not to take such a dark view of the thing. Some of us did what we could to cheer them up. We told them this was just a precaution—and so on.

"The sky had cleared during the night and the sun was shining brightly. The wind was still blowing hard, however, and there were great towering black waves. They looked 40 feet high.

"Officers were going about, cherry but non-committal. They never told us anything. I never knew until the Vestris had gone down that they had even sent out an SOS. Once I went back to my cabin to try to rescue my money that I had left in a trunk. No use, the trunk was under water and wedged in under my bunk. I got my passport, stuck a pack of cigarettes in my pocket and left for good.

"The ship kept on listing. It looked to me as though she had a list of 45 degrees. You could hardly walk on the deck.

"At 10:30 the women and children were brought up and were told to put life belts. Still we got no definite information from the officers or crew.

"The women were wonderful. Some of them were crying quietly but there was none of the them in hysterics. All the children had been bundled up. They knew now that they would probably have to leave the ship.

SLOW WORK

"At 11:30 they started to launch the life boats, over the port side, the side that was up as she listed. Then the trouble began. It took then two hours to launch those boats, an operation that usually takes about 10 minutes.

The difficulty was that the life boats kept catching on the side of the ship. The outside of the life boats were covered with clap boards, like a frame house, and these would catch on the over-lapping steel plates of the ship's hull. They tried to hold the lifeboats out, away from the ship, by pushing with oars, it was a slow and painful process.

VESTRIS SINKS

"The lifeboat to which I was assigned had a hole torn in its side in letting her down. They patched it up with a piece of tin before they let us in, but that didn't hold. In No. 8, before I got in, were 10 women and two children. One of them was Mrs Clara ball, with whom I recently floated on a piece of wreckage. Our crew consisted of four negro sailors.

"Three minutes after we pulled away the Vestris keeled over on her side and sank.

"One boat never got away at all. It was still on deck when she sank. Just a few minutes after we pulled away, our lifeboat began to fill with water. The tin patch tore away. She had air compartments, however, so that we stayed in her even after she was under water.

BOAT IS WRECKAGE

"But it wasn't long before a big wave came along and capsized us. I got caught under the lifeboat as she turned over. As I struggled out from under, I saw a woman's foot bob up, I grabbed it and hauled her with me. It was Mrs. Ball.

"One of the women had been drowned when the boat tipped over. Most of the occupants came up, however, including the children.

"We all got on one side, pulled and managed to right it again. The women and children climbed in, but the waves were pounding it to pieces. The air compartments stored under the sea tore loose. She was breaking up. Great black waves they looked to be 100 feet high, from where we were, kept pounding down on up. The children disappeared and the women, all except Mrs. Ball. I saw a piece of wood wreckage floating in the water nearby, 'come on' I said, and we swam to it.

CLING TO SPAR

"'Take hold of one end and I'll take the other,' I said. Silently she did so. There was never a whimper out of her. We then proceeded to make ourselves as comfortable as we could, to wait for help.

"The water was as warm as you find in an indoor swimming tank.

"Through the afternoon we clung to the spar. Our life preservers held us up. Only every now and then a great wave would come crashing down on us, almost knocking the life out of our bodies and smothering us in foam.

"Several times during the afternoon we tried to hail the life boats but they couldn't hear us or see us because of the waves.

"I don't think thy passed us up deliberately.

CUSSED CAPTAIN

"I confess that we spent a great deal of time cussing Captain Carey for not getting those radio messages out earlier.

"Mrs. Ball had heard that one went ont a 8 o'clock Monday morning and another had been cancelled.

"The night wore on. Several times we saw the searchlights of ships. They were too far away to see us then, but it gave us hope.

"At daybreak came the worst moment of all for us. As the dawn broke, there was not a ship in sight. And our piece of wreckage was beginning to break up. We had to hold it together. At about 11 o'clock we sighted the Wyoming. She must have been 20 miles away, but our spar was practically gone.

"'How about it?' I asked Mrs. Ball. 'Shall we swim?'

Without a word she started off toward the Wyoming. I kept by her side.

"We had been swimming for an hour when I looked back and saw the American shipper. She was only about a mile away and coming toward us.

ATTRACTS BOAT

"I tore off the tail of my shirt and waved it wildly in the air. They saw it. A boat was lowered.

"As we got up alongside, they threw out a rope. I fastened it around my body under my arms and grabbed Mrs. Ball.

"They hauled us into the boat and then hoisted us up in one of those rope cages they use for hoisting cargo.

"I never was treated more wonderfully in my life than I was on the American Shipper. The doctor ripped my clothes off, gave me a couple of shots of whiskey and an alcohol rub and told me to go to sleep which I certainly did.

"I guess there's just one thing more about five minutes after we were hoisted aboard the American Shipper a dead body bloated alongside. And two sharks—."

Chamberlain Fires Parting Advice to Canadian People

Urges Willingness for Cooperation in Responsibilities in Development of Nation

MONTREAL, Nov. 14.—A willingness to share the responsibilities which in the earlier stages of imperial development, Britain bore alone, is the obligation which Canada and other dominions should be ready to meet for their development in the British commonwealth of nations.

This is the message which Sir Austen Chamberlain, secretary of foreign affairs in the British government, left with the people of Canada before he left Montreal for Quebec today en route to England.

"There is room in our commonwealth," said Sir Austen, "for the fullest development of Canadian nationality.

"We welcome your cooperation in all fields, not least in the field of foreign affairs; but now that you claim, and rightly, a place in the field of foreign affairs, you must study them. You must take an interest which will make your papers afford you all the information necessary to enable you to form a judgment and you must be willing to share the responsibilities which in earlier stages of imperial development, we have had to bear alone.

"We shall welcome your assistantce and your advice and even your criticism. But let is not be criticism only after the event, but a real partnership in forming the decisions."

been dumped from the broken boats. The rest began leaping from the rails and swimming for their lives lest they be sucked down when the vessel sank.

OPERATOR DROWNS

Neal O'Loughlin, chief radio operator, remained in his cabin trying to get one last appeal out of his exhausted set. Captain Carey stood on the bridge and ordered two stewards who went to him to save themselves. They jumped and looking back saw him step quietly, without bothering to strap a life belt about him, into the sea. Then the ship sank and he was not seen again.

ROSSLAND MARKS ARMISTICE WITH UNITED SERVICE

Addresses by Rev. Father McIntyre and Rev. Mr. Humphreys

ROSSLAND, B.C., Nov. 14.—At 7 o'clock Sunday evening the residents of the golden city gathered at the monument to Rossland's soldier dead and reverently paid tribute to their memory. Wreaths were placed on the shaft by Rossland branch of the Canadian Llegion and by Rossland troop of boy scouts and then an eloquent address was delivered by Rev. A. K. McIntyre, V.G. The speaker paid tribute to those who went forth from Rossland in the prime of their young manhood and made the supreme sacrifice. He called upon his hearers to bend every effort to make Canada a land worthy such devotion.

At 730 the churches of the city held a joint service at St. Andrew's United church. The building was packed to the doors, a number being obliged to stand.

After the organ prelude by A. W. Morgan the congregation stood in silent meditation for two minutes, after which Lieut. E. Fowler led in prayer. A solo, "In Flanders Fields", was given by R. Maisey. Prayer was offered by Capt. Martha Stahl and then a solo, "Do You See", was given by Mrs. John Schmidt. A yhmn was "O God, Our Help in Ages Past."

The scripture was read by Robert McKendrick, after which the massed choir beautifully renreded the anthem, "What Are These."

DEPICTS SACRIFICE

The address was given by Rev. H. P. Humphreys. Depicting the homesick king who, encamped against Bethlehem, longed for a draugh from the well where he had quenched his thirst in his boyhood, he pointed out that when three of his men risked their lives to accomplish his desire, he poured out the water as a sacrifice to Jehovah. Those in Flanders had given their all for freedom.

A. J. Cleeton sang "Open the Gates of the Temple", and the audience joined in singing "The Supreme Sacrifice. An anthem, "O for a Thousand Tongues to Sing," by the choir, was followed by the sounding of "The Last Post", by Guy P. Cooper, and the program closed with the national anthem. Rev. H. P. Humphreys pronounced the benediction.

The choir was composed of the following: Soprano, Mrs. George Nixon, Mrs. Thomas Sommerville, Mrs. James Porter, Mrs. I. J. Trembath, Miss Mabel Wilkie, Miss Mary Rogers, Miss Charlotte Lowes, Miss Betty Gilmour, Miss Susie Urquhart, Miss Betty Wright; altos, Mrs. W. T. Trembath Mrs. Edwin Martin, Mrs. W. F. McNeill, Miss Patricia Crowe and Miss Helen McDonald; tenors, Thomas Sommerville, A. J. Cleeton, R. Maisey, A. H. Freeman; bass, Edward Eccles, A. E. Wright, T. S. Gilmour and W. F. McNeill.

ROSSLAND, B.C., Nov. 14.—One of the most successful dances held in this city for some time was the Armistice dance in the Rossland Armories, Monday evening, under the auspices of the Rossland branch of the Canadian Legion. Patriotic decorations were in evidence, and the garb of the men made an effective foil for the pretty frocks of their partners. A six-piece orchestra furnished the music.

ROSSLAND ANGLICANS PAY TRIBUTE FALLEN

ROSSLAND, B.C., Nov. 14.—The morning service at St. Andrew's church Sunday was in keeping with Armistice day. The congregation gathered five minutes early and observed the two-minute silence at 11 o'clock.

Miss Eleanor Erskine gave a beautiful solo, and Rev. C. H. Daly in his sermon paid high tribute to those who went bravely forth at the call of king and country.

Baby Not Gaining? Look to His Digestion

Babies can't gain when souring waste in a clogged digestive tract is forming gas, making them colicky, constipated and miserable. Just try the method doctors endorse, and millions of mothers know, and see how your baby improves. A few drops of purely-vegetable, harmless Fletcher's Castoria makes the most fretful, feverish baby or child comfortable in a jiffy. A few doses and he's digesting perfectly and gaining as he should. To get genuine Castoria, look for the Fletcher signature on the wrapper.

Auto Runs 59 Miles on Gallon of Gas

Automobile engineers who worked for years in an effort to reduce gasoline consumption have found the solution in a marvellous invention that fits all cars. An actual test made by one of the engineers, showed 59 miles on a gallon of gas. Thousands of car owners have already installed this new invention. They not only report amazing gas savings, but are also surprised to find quicker pick-up, instant starting, smoother running motors, and disappearance of carbon. E. Oliver, 999-1393 W. Third street, Milwaukee, Wis., for a limited time is offering a free device to those who will help introduce it. They also need men everywhere to make over $100 weekly in their own territory taking care of local business. Write him at once for free sample and big money making offer. — Adv.

The Kootenay Musical Festival

Good progress is being made in the organization of the first Kootenay musical festival, which it is intended to hold next year.

Nelson and Trail have appointed committees to carry out preliminary work, which will pave the way to the larger organization which it is hoped will include representatives from East Kootenay as well as from other West Kootenay centers.

The affair should be Kootenay wide, and there is every reason to expect that it will be so. Musical festivals at the coast have proved tremendously successful and there is plenty of talent in this district to provide a first class festival for the interior, a festival which will grow in the number of participants and in public interest year after year.

Don't Be Afraid to Spend Money on Good Roads

British Columbia Conservative association will hold its annual meeting at Vancouver on Saturday.

Delegates from the interior will do well to impress upon the meetings, if the opportunity arises, the necessity for a vigorous and aggressive policy of good roads construction on the part of the new government.

Governments endeavor to please the people, and quite often hesitate to make large expenditures because they are not certain whether the public will approve. Interior Conservatives will be voicing the feeling of those of all parties in the interior if they stress the public demand for good roads and will strengthen the government in carrying out the policy of activity in public works which has already been announced.

No government can go wrong in making large expenditures for permanently located and well constructed highways.

Time for Borings for the Nelson Bridge

Now that low water season is at hand, arises the question of further progress in the preliminary work necessary to the construction of the Nelson bridge.

Soundings were made last season; one of the next steps, presumably, is that of making borings so that the nature of the bed of the river at the various proposed locations may be ascertained.

It is work which no doubt will be carried out directly conditions are favorable, as the Nelson bridge has no relationship to other public works questions in the district.

The bridge has been promised; both Premier Tolmie and the Conservative party are pledged to it; there is no question of order of precedence between the bridge and other projects, nor any question of building the bridge instead of doing something else.

The bridge issue was settled when Hon. S. F. Tolmie made his announcement of policy, pledging construction of the bridge in addition to completion of the Kootenay Bay-Kuskanook link in the transprovincial highway and improvement of other highways in the district.

What the Press Is Saying

Western Reclamation Is Inspiring

Reclamation of arid lands of the west was made a national policy under the Roosevelt administration, a little more than a quarter of a century ago. The record of achievements, as summarized by the interior department to June 30, 1928, is impressive.

In the construction of these federal projects nearly 267,000,000 cubic yards of earth and rock have been excavated; 118 storage and division dams have been built; 16,413 miles of canals, ditches and drains are in the system; 118 tunnels have been bored, with a combined length of 164,083 feet—31 miles; 11,332 bridges have been built, with a total length of 26,520 feet; 4693 flumes have been constructed, with a combined length of 842,920 feet.

As an incidental byproduct, 166,103 horse-power have been developed in 35 power plants.

There have been some disappointments, but in what large undertaking, particularly in the pioneering field, have there not been some disappointments? Weighed against the achievements, against the sublime converting of the desert into blooming fields, gardens and orchards, these mistakes and disappointments become relatively insignificant.

The nation is richer and better for this work of reclamation. Even if it could, it would not junk the projects now, if by doing that it could return to the treasury every dollar that has been invested in them. But the fine thing about all this reclamation is that the money is coming back into the treasury and will eventually be returned with comparatively slight losses. The settlers and communities will own the projects, and the whole grand procedure has been tremendously beneficial.—Spokesman-Review, Spokane, Wash.

All of my reader friends who have recently been through a large city department store have noticed the dainty things which are sold to "fuss up our clothes closets, nowadays.

In the first place our eye is attracted in this closet accessories department, by the new dust covers to put over garments when hung; these are made long, like the cretonne covers, but are transparent—in other words, they are made of ao new sort of material which appears to be gauze yet which has a glazed surface through which one can see the garment which they cover. How convenient! No longer is it necessary for us to unfasten or untie the garment protector in order to make sure which garment it covers! We can simply look through the cover and select the dress we want without a single mistake.

The new clothes closet accessory which next drew my attention, was shelf oilcloth to thumb tack along the edge of the shelves. This came in a variety of colors and patters, but all had scalloped edges, the raw edge being covered with rick rack or some other sort of braid stitched on. Any decoration at home, however, simply by cutting the edge of ordinary oilcloth into scallops and stitching on braid woman could make such a shelf edge with her sewing machine. Storage boxes covered with flowered paper also caught my eye. But I reflected that anyone who possessed a little left over floral wall paper could use this to decorate ordinary boxes with the same effect.

And of course there were shoe trees covered with gay ribbons—but those are not new, and we all know that the bare trees can be bought in any five-and-ten-cents-store and covered with ribbon at home. Also the ten-cent-stores are today selling the new wooden hat stands, to stand on one's closet shelf and hold a hat up from the shelf so that its brim will not become dusty or crushed.

It seems the fashion, I notice, for laundry bags and shoe bag to match shelf oilcloth and storage boxes. So, at last, that pet plan of all interior decorators—the color scheme—has reached the closet!

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

Danger From Exhaust Gas

You read with interest some months ago that some traffic policeman in Philadelphia were found to be suffering with symptoms that indicated gas poisoning. By removing these officers to less congested parts of the city the symptoms disappeared.

A movement has been under way to try and have our automobile manufacturers bring the exhaust gasses up alongside the body of the car and discharge them at a point at very top. This would mean that these gasses would go higher up in the air. As it is at present, the exhaust from the car is discharged from beneath the car and comes up to the level of folks driving in the cars and thus they breathe in this poisonous air.

Of course it is somewhat reassuring to know that driving along the country roads there is not much danger from these gasses, nor even in districts or cities where there is not much traffic congestion. But you can understand where there are stop signals and a whole line of cars waiting, all with engines running, that there is bound to be more concentration of these exhaust gasses than elsewhere.

However, it is not at these congested points that the danger to life is concerned.

Being outdoors the gasses have a real chance to get diffused in the atmosphere.

The real danger is not in the large garages where many cars are coming and going, but according to research men the great danger to life is unquestionably in the small private garages containing one or two cars. One goes into the garage on a cool or windy morning, and decides to get the engine worm or adjust carburetor, and fails to open the door or window.

The exhaust gas—carbon monoxide—replaces the oxygen in the blood, and the poisoning process stealthily takes place without the victim having the slightest feeling of what is happening.

Remember then that exhaust gasses on the roadway can adversely affect the health; the closed garage with engine running is what causes death.

Service! Lest We Forget

To the Editor of the Daily News:

Sir,—We have observed Armistice day and are now approaching the festive season when the kiddies will be looking forward to Christmas trees, etc. Are they to be disappointed? Our boys in khaki and blue performed their duty in the Great war and their widows and children are worthy of help and sympathy. Give your own veterans and Britishers a chance of employment and an opportunity to make good. You promised us a better world to live in and a place in the sun. We ask the right to live in return for our services past, present and future. Then we shall be able to raise our girls and boys to carry on the good work and keep the union jack and the white ensign up aloft. Cheer oh!

Thankng you, I am, at your servce,

Rev. Mr. Balderston Conducts Armistice Day Service, Burton

BURTON, B.C., Nov. 13.—A touching and appropriate Armistice day service was conducted at St. Andrew's United church Sunday morning by Rev. B. H. Balderston of Nakusp.

Mr. Balderston outlined the meaning of peace, both between nations and commercial undertakings, and then struck the keynote of the great celebration which took place 10 years ago.

Following the scripture reading, W. Giddings gave a sort account of the erection of the memorial in the church in the form of a bell. This was intended to sound the good tidings of "peace on earth, goodwill to men".

This talk was followed by the placing of a wreath, "to the memory of our fallen comrades," by Capt. H. W. Stones, ex-R.N.C.V.R.

H. E. Parkyn contributed an appropriate solo to the impressive service.

DOMINION WATER BRANCH TO STUDY WEST ARM LEVELS

So Hon. Charles Stewart Advises Mr. Starkey in Acknowledgment

IN FULL COOPERATION WITH THE PROVINCE

Dominion's Interest in Granite Dam Is Concerned With Relations Over Boundary

Hydraulic studies of the West Arm are to be made by the Dominion, in close corporation with the provincial authorities, in connection with the proposed dam at Granite, projected by the west Kootenay Power & Light company, Hon Charles Stewart, minister of the interior, advises Commissioner Fred A. Starkey, in acknowledging receipt of the resolution upon that subject passed by the Associated Boards of Trade of Eastern British Columbia.

Writing from Ottawa, November 7, the minister says:

"Dear Mr. Starkey—I am in receipt of your letter of October 24, presenting a resolution reaffirmed at the 28th annual convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of Eastern British Columbia, held at Rossland June 19, 1928, in which your association supports and endorses an application of the West Kootenay Power & Light company for permission to construct a dam at Granite to take advantage of storage in Kootenay lake at low water periods and asks that the provincial and Dominion governments should carry on a thorough investigation with the power company in order to work out a scheme that will be feasible and beneficial to all industries and towns concerned. Careful note has been made of the contents of your letter and the resolution.

STUDY EFFECTS ON LEVELS

"In reference thereto I may say that this department is interested in the international phases of the application of the company which arise from the the effects of the proposed works upon the natural levels of the Kootenay river at the international boundary. It is, therefore, the purpose of the department to undertake such hydraulic studies in the West Arm of Kootenay lake as will enable it to determine the effects of the proposed works upon international waters. Any such investigations will, of course, be carried out in close cooperations with the provincial authorities."

Playing With Fire

The Story of a Social Climber

By LUCILLE VAN SLYKE

Concerning the joys and sorrows of—

ROSALIE BLANCHARD, a pretty little country school ma'am who has many ambitions and

CHARLES FERGUSON, her fiance, whose only ambition seems to be to marry her, and

EUNICE FERGUSON, his middle-aged cousin, who is a teacher in a fashionable boarding school for girls. A sudden attack of appendicitis makes it impossible for her to return to the school so Rosalie eagerly offers to substitute for her until she recovers. Soon after Rosalie's arrival at Pendleton hall she meets

R. SUYVESANT CONVERSE, a bachelor cousin of Mrs. Stuyvesant Perry, who is entering her 11-year-old grand-daughter at Pendleton hall. Converse is a squire of dames but generally speaking, rather elderly dames—and he finds Rosalie's youthful prettiness and pertness decidedly refreshing.

Against her better judgment she goes clandestinely with him to a supper dance at a smart little country restaurant known as the Foxes' Nest where she meets a few socially prominent persons who snub her, and a few not so socially prominent ones who tease her. Her escort, after a drink or so too many, goes casually off to another party leavng a friend of his to see that she gets back to the school. But the next day, Sunday, sober, he attempts to apologize to her, when Mrs. Perry takes her home with the little granddaughter for luncheon. His apology is interrupted by the unexpected return from the west of Harrison Quimby, Nannette's widowed father. Dick Remarks that Rosalie looks like Nannette's mother. Mr. Quimby arranges for Mrs. Perry to leave with Dick. He will take care of Nanatte and Rosalie.

CHAPTER XV.

A Sunday Afternoon Jog

Rosalie never forgot that gorgeous autumnal afternoon when she first wandered with Harrison Quimby and his small daughter through the delightful haphazard gardens that surrounded his really beautiful old country place in the Wetchester hills.

The house, an informal structure of white clapboards, sprawled over the hillside, shaded by giant elms. The only really formal things about it were the doorway and bricked terrace that dignified the entrance.

The afternoon began very badly for the little country school ma'am. For what seemed an interminable time she was forced to wait alone on an old iron bench on that terrace, while her host went to change from his travelling clothes to something "more comfortable". He was quite unconscious that she was being left alone for when he went upstairs, Nanette was chattering eagerly with her adored teacher. But almost directly her father disappeared her grandmother had come along, gotten into an argument with the easily excited child and sent her, in disgrace to do youthful penance for "impudence to elders."

And that stern old lady, who had sentenced the child to exile, looked as though she would like to do the same with the pretty little school ma'am.

Very deliberately the dainty old belle slid her arm through Dick Converse's arm and, with a forced smile, limped by Rosalie with an outwardly polite:

"You'll not mind if we leave you, Miss—er Blanch—I mean Blanchard—it's so stupid the way I keep forgetting your name. We have certain family matters that have to be talked over. Perhaps you can amuse yourself—"

Over her exquisitely coiffed white head Dick winked at Rosalie rather mournfully. But Rosalie ignored him.

"Of course not, Mrs.—er—Perrin—I mean Perry," she answered with a touch of malice. "it was awfully nice of you to let me stay for dinner—I mean luncheon—" she added hastily, hating herself for blushing because she had called the mid-day meal what they always called it back in Emsville.

She felt awkward, snubbed, ill at ease and desperately unhappy. Mrs. Perry left her captive just far enough to give their conversation a tete-a-tete air, then paused, with what seemed to the sensative Rosalie, clear intent to keep a watchful eye upon everything and everybody, murmuring.

"My poor ankle, I'll have to rest a moment before I can go on! I ask you, Dick, is there anything more tiresome than an 11-year-old's tantrums. Or her absurd demands. Fancy her insisting on bringing home that," her voice trailed into indistinguishable murmurs, but Rosalie knew that she was being criticized.

She wanted to put her fingers in her pretty ears and scream. But of course she could only sit miserably pretending to watch the lovely blue of the sound—which she saw through a blur of angry tears.

"How I hate them!" she thought wretchedly. "That insolent old woman and that horrid flirty man! Treating me as though I were some sort of peasant. I'm just as good as they are even if I am poor. They needn't put on such patronizing airs. I don't want anything to do with them."

Tears of chagrin rolled slowly down her cheeks in spite of her brave efforts. She wouldn't put her hand to wipe them away because she knew the elderly woman would see her. She dropped her head, pretending to yawn, but the hand that shielded her pouting lips was trembling.

"Sunday lonesome?" said a kindly voice.

Her host had come back, looking somehow much younger in knickers, a soft collared shirt and an old brown coat.

"Where's my child?"

"Her grandmother sent her in," Rosalie's voice was tremulous. "She—thought she was rather saucy—"

He sighed.

"They don't get on very well any more. Awkward ages, both of them," he added with a dry chuckle. Then he lifted his voice, "I say, beautiful jailor, may I unloose by youngun' if I'll be responsible for her? he put his fingers to his lips, boyishly, letting out a whistle to which his excitable daughter responded rapturously, as he commanded her, bring Miss Rosy Ley's hat, we'll show her the place."

Rosalie smiled gratefully. One couldn't blame her for strutting the least bit as she walked by the white haired woman. Nanette hung on her arm. Nanette's father steadied her elbow a little as they turned through an informal pathway to the old orchard.

They strolled slowly through a sort of lane, contentedly munching rosy little snow apples. Nannette ran ahead to a small paddock to cuddle a fat, frizzled old pony, who was "on a pension". A comfortable old mare grinned with delight.

"Daddy," Nannette proposed. "Let's have old Bonny put on the cart and Sunday-jog back to Pendleton 'stead of going in the stupid car, will you?"

He was leaning against the paddock's rustic fence, sucking on his pipe now. He turned lazily to the little school teacher.

"Want to?" he asked her.

A blessed feeling of peace, no of quality, slipped over her. How kind he was. And how very good-looking.

She nodded slowly.

Presently, with her arm around the drowsy child, she found herself in a comfortable cart, being driven an unfrequented road across country.

Sunlight and katydids and locusts. And the sound of his pleasant voice. Nannette was sound asleep now, her heavy head on Rosalie's shoulder.

"Poor cheated baby!" her father said tenderly. "You are good to her."

"She's a dear," Rosalie said softly.

The mare stopped on a hill top, dropped her head to crop grass from the roadside. The man chuckled.

"Acts like a regular old courtin' hoss, eh?" He smiled quizzically at the girl.

She looked demurely down.

A thousand elusive memories of his long dead wife slipped back to him. This girl was like her, a sort of faint echo of her charm and vivacity. Suddenly he knew he wanted her.

National Hockey League Will Get Under Way Tonight

L TEAMS IN THE LEAGUE ARE MUCH STRONGER

Montreal Teams Clash on Montreal Ice for the Opener

AMPION RANGERS TO OPEN DETROIT SEASON

ins Play in Pittsburgh; Americans at Ottawa; Chicago at Toronto

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The whiz steel over ice, the crack of stick stick, the dull thud of a player rtled into the boards and the r of the crowd, thrilled with the test kind of sport action, will l again tomorrow night through e ice palaces around the National ofessional Hockey circuit.

The league season of 44 games for ch of the 10 teams, swinging down rough the winter and into the ring for the Stanley cup playoff ies and the crowning of a world ampion, will open in the three nadian and two United States ies. The world champion New rk Rangers, conquerors of the Montreal Maroons in the last title series, swing into action in Detroit while the Boston Bruins, co-favorite of the American group, tackle Benny Leonard's Pittsburgh Pirates in Pennsylvania.

IN CANADIAN RINKS

The remainder of the teams clash in Canadian cities. Those deadly rivals and international section favorites, Maroons and Canadiens, touch off the yearly frenzy in their home city of Montreal. The Ottawa Senators entertain the New York Americans and Chicago Blackhawks, almost entirely rebuilt, furnish the opposition for a gala night at Toronto, home of the Maple leafs.

Looking ahead through rosy glasses, officials of the league can see nothing but a trail of shattered records following the teams throughout the grind. They expect to see the record of 1,350,000 paid attendance last season surpassed by a mark that will approach 2,000,000 with correspondingly increased gate receipts and financial happiness for players and magnates.

AT MONTREAL

Heretofore, the rivalry between the Maroons and Canadiens, has given these two Montreal teams the leadership in attendance throughout the circuit. Last year saw 292,000 flocked to the Canadiens' rink while 291,000 saw the Montreal Maroons play on home ice.

The opening of a new Madison Square Garden in Boston will give the Bruins added seating capacity and the Rangers, with the best American attendance of 166,000 last season, hope for far better returns in the coming campaign.

The two weakest outfits last season, Americans and Blackhawks, have been torn down and reassembled. The Hawks bought the Saskatoon team outright in an effort to build strength around Dick Irvin and Mickey Mackay. The Americans acquired Babe Dye from Chicago, Johnny Sheppard from Detroit, Harry Connor of Boston and Billy Holmes of London.

Ottawa will string with its stellar Frank Clancy, George Boucher, Frank Nighbor, Alex Connell and two great youngsters, Hector Kilrea and Frank Finnegan.

Detroit, with George Hay, almost a team in himself, Sailor Herberts, Dolly Dolson and Noble, undoubtedly are stronger than last season.

The Toronto Maple Leafs appear stronger than last year. They have replaced the erratic Keeling with that crafty left winger, Danny Cox, and have several promising youngsters on the reserve list.

Practically all the outstanding players of the leading teams will be at their appointed places at the faceoffs.

"From a source close to Dave Trottier, much discussed player, it is intimated that Trottier will give himself to Montreal Maroons as a Christmas present and that he will be playing in a Maroon jersey before the New Year.

Much interest has been stirred up in National Hockey league circles as to whether Trottier, star of the Toronto Grads, Olympic champions, would join any of its teams. The player has been most reticent as to his hockey plans.

Toronto Will Boast of Largest Departmental Store in All the World

WINNIPEG, Nov. 14.—J. J. Vaughan, Toronto, secretary of the T. Eaton company, today announced that the Eaton company would shortly commence the construction in Toronto "of the largest departmental store in the world." The building, which will be 40 storeys high, will cost several million dollars and will cover two city blocks, the boundaries of which are Yonge, Bay, Hater and College. Buchanan street in the center will be closed.

The building was planned before the war by the late Sir John Eaton but the outbreak of hostilities interrupted the plans for the structure.

"According to Mr. Magee, vice-president of the company in Toronto," Mr. Vaughan said, "the completed structure would be larger than either Marshall Fields in Chicago or Maceys in New York City as they are at present. It will be several years before the Toronto building is compited. Only the first unit will be erected for the present and this will be added to as businss warrants."

On Monday he will be at Vernon, where he will confer with the Vernon board of trade and later with fruit growers and others.

BIRKENHEAD COMES BACK AT COOLIDGE

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The Earl of Birkenhead, until recently secretary of state for India, was sharply critical of the Armistice day speech of President Coolidge in an address tonight at a complimentary dinner tendered him. He explained that Europe and England did not need advice from President Coolidge.

"As far as England is concerned, I am not sure that we specially require it. We have not asked the United States, as far as I am aware, to do anything for us."

Asserting that the United States entered the war not from any desire to assist the allies, but solely because American nationals were being murdered by German submarines, he said: "My answer to the president of the United States would be that we ask nothing from them except good will. When we discuss questions of naval construction, we do not specially invite lectures as to whether we are pacific or not in our purpose."

SASKATCHEWAN POLICE SEARCH FOR MURDERER

SHAUNAVON, Sask., Nov. 14.—Tonight police reported the murderer of Frank Murray, freighter between Turned and Tavie, Mont., who died from a bullet wound today, had not been captured. From 9 o'clock in the morning until dark, the police detachments in the south country, together with innumerable citizens and Sheriff Fleming of Crmook, Mont., and J. W. Brunner, United States border patrol, were looking for the five men who held up the pool room at Turner after midnight Tuesday, one of whom shot Murray.

The five men who were seen in Shaunavon between 7 and 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, have disappeared.

QUEBEC, Nov. 14.—The Hudson's Straits expedition which started from Halifax in July, 1927, with the object of establishing aids to navigation and securing scientific data on ice, wind and weather conditions in the strait the year around, was concluded this morning with the return of the C.G.S. Montcalm in command of Captain John Hearn of Quebec. Major N. B. McLean, engineer in charge of the St. Lawrence channel from Montreal to Father Point, who was loaned by the marine department to take charge of the expedition, returned on board the steamer, but declined to express any opinion regarding navigation on Hudson's Strait before his official report has been tabled in the house of commons, which will be some time next winter.

Major McLean stated that the work of the expedition had been very successfully carried out by members of the air force and radio branch of the department of marine and fisheries, upon whom devolved the actual task of making aerial observations and gathering the information required by the department concerning ice, wind and weather conditions in the strait.

You 'Aint' Heard Nothing Till You Hear This One

BY AL DEMAREE
(Former Pitcher New York Giants)

Several years ago in the days of "Bo" McMillan when Center college was in the heyday of her football glory, Transylvania college at Lexington, Ky., with a very weak team, engaged the "praying Colonels" in a football game.

Jimmy Elam, their head coach, was telling me the other day of some laughs in this game.

"Near the end of the game, which was more of a slaughter than a game." said Jimmy, "Center was leading 98 to 0. The Transylvania captain thought it a disgrace to be beaten by such an overwhelming score, and called his men around him and impressed upon them the ignominy of being licked by more than 100 to 0, exorting them to fight hard, show a lot of "pep" and "talk it up" with an encouraging line of chatter.

"A few seconds later, the Center backs came ploughing over the Transy team for about 20 yards. When the play was finally stopped, one of the smallest men on Transylvania's team came crawling out of the path of the play, spitting out broken teeth and yelled, "Come on boys, those birds ain't got nothing."

ROSSLAND CITY COUNCIL VIEWS SKATING RINK

More Works Proposed; Dairies to Again Be Inspected; Census Soon

ROSSLAND, B.C., Nov. 14.—The request of the Rossland city council for a re-inspection of the local dairies has been granted, according to a letter from A. Knight, chief veterinary inspector of the province, which was read at the regular meeting of the council last evening. Mr. Knight stated that Dr. D. H. McKay would shortly visit Rossland for that purpose.

R. J. Clegg, city solicitor, wrote that the provincial board of health has approved of the milk bylaw recently passed by the council.

Wrigley's Directories limited advised the council that their representatives would be in the city shortly to take a census.

Edward Bell proffered a request that the city should require all plumbing to be done by a certified plumber, and suggested that the city should employ a plumbing inspector. No action was taken for the present.

The condition of sidewalks in several parts of the town was brought up and referred to the board of works.

RINK REPAIRS

A committee from the council reported that it had visited the rink earlier in the evening, in connection with a delegation from the Rossland Amateur Athletic association, to see what improvement were absolutely necessary before the beginning of the skating season. The athletic association had already done a considerable amount of work, laying new floors in the dressing rooms, and so on, the city having furnished the lumber and the association the labor. It is now proposed to erect a bandstand across one corner of the rink, arranging it so that it can be used fro reserved seats on occasions when the band is not in attendance.

PROHIBITION AND GOVERNMENT LOSE

New United Party Swept Into Power in New Zealand by Huge Majority

WELLINGTON, N.Z., Nov. 14.—Prohibition was dfeated by a majority of around 100,000 votes, and the government forces under Premier Coates, suffered a severe defeat in today's election. Prohibition was on the ballot form of a referendum as to whether it should be continued or whether a licencing system should be adopted. The vote was overwhelming against continuance of prohibition.

A new united party under the leadership of Sr Joseph Ward made its debut by gaining seats from the governing party.

The final standing by parties was:

Government 28, United Party 26, Labor 20, Independents 6.

Most of the independents are opposed to the government.

The premier's party failed to gain a single seat. It held 53 of the 80 seats last parliament.

The new United party combines Liberals, Nationalists and others opposed to the reform and Labor parties.

Three ministers lost their seats.

Labor Proposals Rejected; Speech Adopted, Britain

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The house of commons rejected two Labor proposals and finally adopted the address in reply to the speech from the trone today.

During the debate the government announced as implified procedure for safeguarding of industries.

Duplicate, Triplicate, Quadruplicate Forms

In manifold forms, it is essential that the work should be well and carefully done. The ruling and printing, or if printing alone, must be in perfect "register". Otherwise line No. 1 on the original sheet may not "hit" properly in the duplicate or triplicate sheets.

For the same reason, the sheets must be padded or bound in perfect position.

We have been very successful in work of this nature and are proud of the satisfaction we have been able to give to customers.

THIRD CONSECUTIVE DAY FOR RECORD OF SALES IN NEW YORK

New Leaders Come to Front; National Bellas Hess Is Market Feature

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The mightiest stock market in history raced madly on today, piling up a total of more than 5,000,000 shares for the third consecutive day. Heavy selling in some of the old line favorites was more than offset by a vigorous upturn in a group of new leaders.

The same course of opinion that this abnormal market has brought forth persisted with some operators looking for a fairly sharp reaction in the near future, while others maintained the corrective movements would be only minor in character.

Call money was in supply at 6 per cent all day and there was no calling of loans. The day's news was largely favorable.

WHEAT EXPORT IS TWICE AS LARGE

For Period Ending in October, Canada Ships Double Amount of 1927

For the three months ending October 31, exports amounted to 95,667,166 bushels as compared with 45,697,618 bushels during the same period of 1927. Figures were made available today at the Dominion bureau of statistics.

Of the total, 58,469,676 bushels went to the United Kingdom, 3,111,924 bushels to the United States and 34,085,566 bushels to other countries. Canadian seaports handled 48,411,088 bushels while 44,114,154 bushels were shipped from United States ports.

For the month of October alone total exports amounted to 43,687,219 bushels as compared with 19,429,654 bushels in the same month a year ago.

During the three months wheat flour exported amounted to 2,985,400 barrels compared with 2,089,330 barrels last year. For the month of October alone, 1,170,979 barrels were exported compared with 898,789 barrels in October, 1927.

BREAK THROUGH DYKE AND FIND GOODENOUGH ORE

Owners of Property Enterprise Allowed to Revert Have Ore Both Ledges

SHIP FROM SOUTH LEDGE; STOPING ON NORTH ONE

Hope to Complete Depth Tunnel When Capital Can Be Secured

Back in the hands of the original owners, who have been doing work on it since its relinquishment by the Enterprise Consolidated Mining company—now Yankee Girl Consolidated Mines—the Goodenough gold property at Ymir has come into a good lens of ore in the north ledge, where No. 1 level has broken through a dyke, in proximity to a small stope.

The new lens of ore, which has a maximum width of eight feet, and is very heavily mineralized with lead, zinc and iron sulphides carrying high gold values, is now being stoped, and a car of ore is in the bin, and two more are broken in the tunnel.

Ore is also being yielded by the south ledge, some 40 tons of sorted ore from an old stope on No. 2 level having been shipped to Trail smelter. A drift from the eastern end of this stope has in its face six feet of milling ore, running about $12.

VEINS ENCLOSE SHEAR ZONE

Objective of work under recent bonds has been tapping at depth by a crosscut tunnel, of those veins, which follow the respective walls of a shear zone, in which various cross-veins occur. A diamond drill hole drilled by the Porcupine Gold Fields Development & Finance company a few years ago revealed a shoot in the south vein at a dept of 80 feet below No. 2 level, and subsequent operators drove from the surface to crosscut this area at 220 feet depth under No. 8. The last 450 feet of this 550-foot tunnel was driven by the Enterprise people, who relinquished this property when also letting the Ymir mine, with which it was associated, go.

Carrying on of this tunnel, which has about 350 feet still to go to get to the first known ore body, is hoped for by the owners, who are confident that the Goodenough has dept, but this operation will not be possible until capital is obtained.

Harry Jackson and "Sandy" McDonald, two of the partners, are working the property with the aid of a couple of hired miners. The remaining partner is O. A. Lovell, also of Ymir, discoverer of the Yankee Girl.

STARKEY ASKS TO HAVE FIELD MAN STATIONED HERE

Representative of Federal Mines Branch Could Be of Great Service

Following conference with various prominent mining men of the district, Fred A. Starkey, commissioner of the Associated Boards of Trade of Eastern British Columbia, is taking up with Ottawa a proposal for stationing here of a permanent field man by the federal department of mines.

Recently John McLeish, director of the mines branch, was here from Ottawa, accompanied by W. B. Timm, of the department's staff, and Mr. Starkey on that occasion discussed this matter with Mr. McLeish. His present action is a following up of the matter then broached.

It is considered that locating of a representative of the federal department of mines here would remove part of the disadvantage that this district is under, compared with mining areas of provinces not far distant from Ottawa, which have the benefit of the facilities offered by the ore dressing and metallurgical division.

ST. SAVIOUR'S IS NEAR COMPLETION

Exterior Construction Nearly Finished; Spire is 64 Feet High

The top of the new spire which surmounts St. Saviour's Anglican church is 64 feet above the ground level. The spire, which is covered with patent shingles and with copper moulding on each corner, is five feet in diameter at the base.

Work of restoration of the church is nearing competion. From the exterior it appears almost finished, except for the scoffolding surrounding the spire. The outer walls are of granite and stucco, and the roof is covered with patent shingles.

The church entrances are flights of granite steps. The edifice is built in the ancient Greek style of church architecture, having the form of a cross.

The interior is to be finished in coast fir and cedar. The stained glass windows have not yet been installed.

The extension includes a new chancell, clergy's vestry, men's vestry, and women's vestry. Underneath the church there is a basement 10 feet in depth, housing the church furnace and coal bins.

Concert, Dance Mark Armistice at South Slocan

SOUTH SLOCAN, B.C., Nov. 14.—The annual celebration of the Armistice, which has been a feature of the women's institute program for nine successive years, was held in the public hall on Monday, Thanksgiving day, with a gathering in the afternoon of 100 children from the school districts of Bonnington, Shoreacres, Crescent Valley and South Slocan, and in the evening a concert, supper and dance for the residents of the district.

The afternoon entertainment consisted of games and music and a sumptuous tea. Mrs. W. Tindale, convener for the juniors' program, was assiduous in her efforts to insure an enjoyable time, assisted by Mrs. L. B. Cox, Mrs. E. Anderson, Mrs. F. Frisby, Mrs. M. Dawnie, Mrs. W. T. Jones, Mrs. F. H. Russel, Mrs. R. Macdonald, Mrs. J. D. Yeatman, Mrs. E. Watts, Mrs. J. Murray, Mrs. R. C. Passmore, Miss E. Goodenough of Crescent Valley, Miss Ella Phillips and J. H. MRS. LEE SPEAKS

Mrs. Turner Lee gave an appealing address on the Commemoration of Armistice as a day of remembrance and thanksgiving. Mrs. Lee, who mentioned that last year she had taken her stand with the great throng of people around the cenotaph in the impressive two minutes' silence, was given an attentive hearing.

The evening's program started with a concert.

AIDS IN FORGETTING

The chairman, John Murray, a veteran of the great war, stated that these festivals of thanksgiving and rejoicing helped veterans to overcome the depression of the vivid recollections of the war.

Madame Beatrice Purdy sang. A feature of the program was community singing, led by Madame Purdy. Mrs. F. H. Russel's song was followed by response to an encore. Master Leonard Purdy's recitation, "Incident of the French Camp," by Robert Browning. Mrs. Owens gave a charming Spanish costume dance. For an encore she gave a most appealing snowflake dance.

Some 200 guests stayed for the dance and sat down to an excellent supper.
