8 MILLION BRITONS FACE MEAT FAMINE

FLOODS, FROSTS TAKE LIVES AND SPREAD DAMAGE

Southern States Are Severely Hit by Cold Wave

TWO DIE WHEN A RIVER DAM GOES

Train Wrecked; Fuel Shortage Looms Some Parts

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 4—(AP) — Freezing weather drove deep into the south tonight following 24 hours of blustery rainfall which caused six deaths and extensive property damage.

Springlike temperatures which came with the torrential rains vanished as a cold, raw wind blew out of the northwest, piling up more misery for states already beset by floods and crippled transportation lines.

The deaths today were added to more than two score others recorded in the south during its worst winter in recent history. A record snow preceded the rain in some sections.

IL DUCE READY IN CASE OF WAR

Fixed Line of Counter Action in Case of More Sanctions

ROME, Feb. 4 (AP).—The Fascist grand council determined tonight upon a "definitely fixed line of counter-action" in the event Italy is confronted with a "further tightening of sanctions."

The nature of the counter-action was not specifically outlined in a brief communique issued at the close of the grand council session.

The meeting, the second within four days at which Mussolini conferred with his advisers, lasted 2½ hours. It followed an earlier session of the supreme commission on defence.

Both conferences at which the nation's military and economic resources were thoroughly analyzed, were believed directly tied up with consideration in Geneva of a proposal to add oil to the list of sanctions against Italy.

There have been open assertions here that such a step by the league would lead to a European war.

NATIONS STRIKE AT COMMUNISM

Increase in Russian Influence in Danube Valley Is Protested

VIENNA, Feb. 4 (AP)—Nations of southeastern Europe struck simultaneous blows against communism today as public sentiment was aroused against an increase in Russian influence in the Danube valley.

In Hungary, police smashed an alleged Communist organization which they said was conceived by Bela Kun, who gave that country a taste of communism in 1919.

More than 50 were arrested in a series of raids in Bulgaria. Trial of 14 gypsies accused of disseminating communism was started.

Yugoslavian and Rumanian police made an unusual number of raids. Austrian newspapers gave warnings of a "new red menace."

DR. HARTMAN STANDS BEHIND DESENSITIZER

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 4 (CP)—Dr. Leroy L. Hartman blamed premature publicity today for an unfavorable attitude shown by many dentists toward his newly developed "pain-killer."

The Columbia university dentist, who comes from Victoria, B.C., asked members of the Pennsylvania and the Philadelphia Dental societies to give it a fair trial, and said only intelligent use over a reasonably long period and a fair and impartial recording of results will tell the full tale.

"In the end, I believe, we wil have something to relieve the pain from sensitive dentine," Dr. Hartman said.

OPERATION GIVES SIGHT TO BOY BORN BLIND

LONDON, Feb. 4 (CP-Havas)—A remarkable grafting operation today gave sight to a 5-year-old boy who had been unable to open his eyes since birth.

Physicians of the Royal Waterloo hospital grafted small sections of the boy's hip muscles into the eyelids, which, due to a pre-natal defect, lacked the muscles needed to open them. When the bandages were removed the boy was able to open and shut his eyelids normally.

BORAH THROWS DOWN GAUNTLET

Will Campaign in Ohio for Support in the President Race

WASHINGTON Feb. 4 (AP)—Senator Borah of Idaho formally flung down the gauntlet to the Republican organization late today by announcing he would campaign in Ohio for delegates pledged to his presidential nomination.

In formally declaring himself a candidate, the Idaho senator served notice he would seek to carry forward his announced intention of freeing the party from what he terms the domination of the old guard.

"After a thorough survey," he said in a statement after conferring for hours with Ohio Independent leaders, "I am convinced the people of the state should be given an opportunity to express their choice in the primary of May 12."

Borah said he would "enter delegates in the districts as well as a slate running "at large."

It was the first formal declaration of candidacy by an outstanding possibility for the Republican nomination. It came after some doubts had been expressed that Borah would "follow through."

Unless conditions change, it means he will directly oppose the plans of the regular party organization in Ohio.

17,000 STRIKE

PERKIN, Ill., Feb. 4 (AP)—National guardsmen, poised for riot duty, massed in nearby Peoria tonight after a general strike smothered most union labor activity in this city of 17,000 persons.

General business was crippled. Scores of shops were closed. Vital services however were continued as union members, estimated by their leaders to number 1500 from 31 crafts and trades groups, responded to the call for the general walkout.

$6000 FOR LOSS OF SENSES OF SMELL AND TASTE

VANCOUVER, Feb. 4 (CP)—Mrs. Thomas Downie of Vancouver was awarded $6000 damages today against Cyril Grant of Ioco, B.C., for loss of her senses of smell and taste.

Mr. Justice A. I. Fisher also awarded the woman's husband $1700 against Grant in the same action which arose out of an automobile collision at Renfrew and Hastings street December 10, 1934.

Roosevelt Vetoes Refund Bill for Duty on B. C. Logs

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP) — President Roosevelt today vetoed a bill authorizing refunds of certain countervailing customs duties collected upon logs imported from British Columbia.

The countervailing duties were levied under the act of 1922, to offset a timber tax imposed by the province which constituted a restruction on exportations. The British Columbia tax later was declared invalid and the bill would have refunded the countervailing duties collected by the United States.

POLICE-LAWYER CLASH FEATURE HORSWILL CASE

Police Have All Their Evidence Heard in Preliminary

CASE GOES OVER UNTIL MONDAY

Cartmel Is Hearing the Manslaughter Preliminary

Featured by repeated protest against the acceptance of evidence submitted by the prosecution, provincial police opened preliminary proceedings against R. "Slim" Horswill, for manslaughter in Nelson Tuesday morning. Mr. Horswill was the driver of a truck which featured in a mishap that took the lives of Jean Smith and Roy Bradshaw at Salmo on Sunday, January 26. The truck upset half a mile from Salmo and Miss Smith died shortly afterwards from a fractured neck and Mr. Bradshaw died almost instantly from a fracture of the base of the skull.

Nine witnesses were heard for the prosecution in Tuesday's preliminary hearing and court was adjourned until Monday when the case for the defence is presented. Corporal David Haltrow is prosecuting and E. P. Dawson of Brown & Dawson is representing the accused.

Britain to Show Rearmament Plan

White Paper Will Be Published States Baldwin

LONDON, Feb. 4 (CP-Havas)—The house of commons, resuming its sessions today after an adjournment of more than a month, was told by Prime Minister Baldwin that he would disclose details of the government's plans for rearmament "at an early date."

A white paper will be published with full information concerning these plans. He said in reply to a question that he did not anticipate a debate on the subject "in the immediate future."

Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, said two papers dealing with the Ethiopian situation had been published by the government. One contained a collection of documents outlining the work accomplished by the League of Nations and its various committees in the Italo-Ethiopian dispute. The other gave the message exchanged among league countries on mutual support for countries resulting from participation in sanctions.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 4 (AP)—George Bernard Shaw, a passenger aboard the S. S. Arandora Star, arrived here today from Southampton for a two-day stop-over en route to Cuba, Panama and southern waters.

"It's no good asking me questions of national importance," Shaw told reporters. "I've been here before and I told you what to do. I told you to abolish your constitution. But did you do it? You did not."

U.S.A. SENATE PROBE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP)—Painstakingly skirting any direct mention of the explosive phrase "secret treaty," the senate munitions committee reopened its investigation today with evidence that the Wilson administration was well aware that allied war aims were far different from those of the United States.

ONTARIO REEVE AND COUNCIL REFUSE TAKE OATH OF ALLEGIANCE TO KING

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 4 (CP)—Reeve Ben Levert and the Sandwich East township council refuse to take the oath of allegiance to King Edward VIII, until they have had time to investigate in all its implications, the oath of fealty.

At last night's meeting Clerk Wilfrid Gravel produced a copy of that oath submitted by the Ontario department of municipal affairs, but no action was taken in the matter of swearing the council members. The matter was left in abeyance until a definition of what the oath exacts, is obtained.

Reeve Levert declared in council that he will resign from office if there is anything in the oath which

Pomp Without Glitter Is to Mark Opening of Dominion's Eighteenth Parliament - Busy, Important Session Ahead

Purple and Black to Recall Memory of Beloved Monarch

LORD TWEEDSMUIR IN SOLEMN RITUAL

New Figures Dominate Many Important Spheres

By WILFRID EGGLESTON
(Central Press Canadian Writer)

OTTAWA, Feb. 4.—Simplified and subdued out of respect to the late King, but following the ancient ceremonial to the letter, the first session of the eighteenth parliament of Canada will meet Thursday in the presence of new personalities and forces, to grapple once more with the dragons of unemployment and want, and to legislate for the peace and welfare of Canadian people.

Purple and black, expressed in clothing, drapes and hangings, will recall the memory of the beloved monarch. The customary glitter of gowns and jewels will be absent. The usual speakers' receptions are to be omitted. The drawing room—social highlight of the session—will not be held Friday night.

But the people's business must go on. The leaders of commons and senate and the vice-regal representatives, Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir, will participate in the solemn ritual by which every Canadian session since Confederation has been launched. The senate meets at noon, with Sir Lyman P. Duff, deputy for his excellency, in the great chair; the commons troops along the red chamber behind their clerk, Dr. Arthur Beauchesne, only to be informed that they must return and appoint their speaker. Hon. Pierre F. Casgrain, chief whip of the Liberals in the last house, will thereupon be nominated and receive the unanimous support of the commons.

WILL HEAR SPEECH FROM THRONE

At 3 p.m., with the vice-regal salute booming across the Ottawa from Nepean point to Parliament hill, Baron Tweedsmuir will arrive at the center block and seat himself in the place of honor in the senate. The commons will be summoned in

Attempt to Snatch Gloria Vanderbilt Really a Holdup

NEW YORK, Feb. 4 (AP)—An attempt to hold up the superintendent of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney's estate at Wheatley Hills gave rise to a report tonight, promptly discounted by authorities, that kidnappers had sought to snatch 11-year-old Gloria Laura Vanderbilt.

Two men threatened the superintendent, Thomas Griffin, with a pistol Monday night in front of his home, two miles from the main house, but were frightened away by the screams of Griffin's daughter, Mrs. H. A. Johnson.

Fired House in Fit of Insanity

Man Burned in Farm Home With His Five Children

LEMBERG, Sask., Feb. 4 (CP).—Joseph Jost, burned to death along with his five children in his home near here Monday, set the house "on fire in a fit of insanity with the purpose of destroying himself and his family," a coroner's jury decided here tonight.

The jury, under Coroner Dr. C. A. Findlay, returned the verdict after hearing Annie Jost, 15, eldest of the children and the only one to escape from the burning building, tell how she battled with her father to get out of the house. She jumped out a window, she said, when cries of the younger children attracted the attention of her father.

Voltage High in Coalhurst Mine

Signal Wires Carried 100 Instead of 15 Volts

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Feb. 4 (CP)—Tests following the unsolved explosion in the Coalhurst mine of Lethbridge Collieries, Ltd., December 9 in which 16 miners lost their lives indicated voltage of signal wires was excessive, W. M. Davidson, mine manager, testified here today at the judicial inquiry into the disaster.

Mr. Davidson admitted that tests showed the wires were carrying about 100 volts whereas the Mine act provided for only 15 volts. The witness, still on the stand when Mr. Justice H. W. Lunney adjourned the hearing until tomorrow, said he had not known this at the time.

Under cross-questioning Mr. Davidson said he did not believe the blast occurred in the area of the mine being worked at that time. He added that he thought the explosion had occurred in old workings and the miners were killed by shock and not by flame.

The mine manager told the inquiry he thought there had never been any gas in any quantity in that section of the mine being worked December 9.

LABORITES MAY SUSPEND UNITED MINE WORKERS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP)—A move to suspend the United Mine Workers from the American federation of labor developed today in the aftermath of the booing reception given William Green's appeal for peace in the ranks of labor.

Craft union leaders on the federation's council, it was learned on high authority, are considering suspension regardless of what the miners decide about carrying out their threat to withdraw from the A. F. of L. in the bitter fight over union organization.

Pattullo and Frank Putnam, M.L.A. for Nelson-Creston, honorary vice-presidents; Roy Hunter, secretary-treasurer; Robert Smillie, auditor; W. R. Smedley, John Notman, John Smith, W. W. Ferguson, J. J. O'Donnell, M. Scully, J. R. Hunter, Mrs. E. F. Whiteside, Mrs. D. D. McLean, Mrs. James McIvor, J. P. Herron, J. J. McIntyre, O. W. Humphry, Mrs. L. McKinnon, E. W. Widdowson and J. A. McDonald, executive committee. The executive committee has power to add four more members to its number if it is thought advisable.

W. W. Ferguson was in the chair at the opening of the meeting but retired after the officers were named and Gordon Burns, vice-president took over the reins in the absence of President McLean.

J. R. Hunter reported there was about $42 on hand, counting the money taken in for membership fees at the meeting.

SECURITY ACT

R. W. Hunter raised the question of the Frauds Prevention Security act, stating that the act was curtailing activity in mining, and that capital could not be obtained to promote or develop properties. It meant that the small man could do nothing else than hand over his property to big organizations to handle, or else leave it.

Following a fairly full discussion on the matter, in which several present favored having a fuller knowledge of the act before committing themselves to a vote, it was decided to have the executive go into the matter, obtain all possible information on it, and later report back to the general meeting.

Describes Battle of Paschendaele

Dalgas Speaks to the Kinsmen; Hockey Club Guests

A. E. Dalgas, guest at the Kinsmen club luncheon in the Golden Gate Tuesday evening, gave an interesting address on the battle of Paschendaele, in the World war outlining the reasons leading up to the battle, giving something of the preparations taken, and the results. Members of the Nelson Maple Leafs hockey club were also guests at the meeting and contributed a song en masse. Bill McKay was the song leader.

Gordon Roynon reported on arrangements that are being carried on for the Kinsmen dance in the near future, and asked the cooperation of the members in putting it over. C. W. Ramsden stated he would get in touch with the Kinsmen club at Trail in an attempt to arrange a hockey game between the two clubs.

In his talk, Captain Dalgas enumerated the four main causes leading up to the battle of Paschendaele and outlined the preparations made by the British. Ten thousand guns were taken up, tanks were moved into place, ammunition was stored at all points where it would be needed, transportation facilities were made for the various units, hospital bases were enlarged and new ones made, air bases were established, and hundreds of other things.

PROGRESS OF BATTLE

Then he traced the progress of the battle, leading up to the victory to the British, if victory it could be called that had cost so much in human life.

In conclusion he stated he was for "peace by all means, but not at any price." He urged for preparedness in order that the mistakes of 1915-16-17 might not be repeated when a small body of men held the enemy at bay while the main body was being trained.

An account of the battle as given by Mr. Dalgas appeared in an earlier issue of the Daily News.

P. I. Cameron was taken into the club as a new member.

WILFRED LATTA PAYS $10 FINE

Convicted on a charge of driving to the common danger, Wilfred Latta of Nelson was sentenced by Stipendiary Magistrate John Cartmel in provincial police court to pay a fine of $10 and $3 costs.

The charge arose from an accident on Friday when his car side-swiped a car driven by Convey Campbell near the Taghum bridge. Latta, in pleading not guilty, stated that his car collided with the Campbell car when the latter slowed up too suddenly. Campbell stated that he only slowed enough to change gears. Constable W. V. Shepherd handled the case for the provincial police and Mr. Latta spoke on his own behalf. Denis Monaghan was a passenger in the Campbell automobile.

2 Things to Do
TO EASE COLD INSTANTLY

Discomfort and Ache Go Almost Instantly This Way

1. Take two "Aspirin" Tablets. Make sure you get "Aspirin."

2. Drink a full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.

Instead of taxing your system with strong medicines for a cold, try the way pictured above — the modern, easy way. Your own doctor will approve it. And it takes hold of even a bad cold almost immediately.

The "Aspirin" you take will start combating your cold internally at once; if throat is sore, crush and stir 3 "Aspirin" Tablets in a third of a glass of water; gargle twice. Do not rinse mouth.

●"Aspirin" Tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trade-mark of the Bayer Company, Limited. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

the traditional fashion, the gentleman usher of the black rod demanding entrance with three resounding knocks, and announcing that the governor-general desired their immediate presence in the red chamber. The senate, somber because of the mourning habiliments, will create an impressive spectacle as the commoners come crowding in behind the brass bar, there to hear from the lips of Baron Tweedsmuir, the speech from the throne.

Due to the political revolution of October 14, and to other causes, this session will meet in an atmosphere new and striking, with new figures dominating in many important spheres. Hon. Walter E. Foster, a former premier of New Brunswick, replaces Hon. P. E. Blondin as speaker of the senate. Hon. Pierre F. Casgrain replaces Hon. Charles Bowman as speaker of the commons. Ross W. Gray of Lambton, Ont., is the new chief whip of the Liberal party. A sea of new faces, and some former leaders absent awhile now returned, alter the appearance of the two chambers. One hundred and thirty-five members of the commons are new—only 110 of those who waved good-bye in July of last year come back to resume their activity in the new session. Even in the senate, not subject to election mortalities, there are 19 newcomers to be introduced. Two of the new arrivals on Parliament hill are ladies, Mrs. George Black in the commons; Hon. Iva Fallis in the red chamber.

COMMONS WILL LOOK STRANGE

The Conservative party suffered most disastrously in the October landslide. Instead of 138 members, with which they began the seventeenth parliament, they returned with 39. The Liberals almost doubled their strength — from 93 to 178. The United Farmers of Alberta, nine strong in 1930, were wiped out, but the Social Credit forces, mainly from Alberta, appear in their place, 17 strong.

The commons takes on the strangest appearance since the new building was occupied. So numerous are the government members that 38 of them have been placed on the opposition side, next to the speaker, who is now surrounded by Liberals. In the past the phrase "honorable members to the left of the speaker" has always been used interchangeably with "opposition members," but it will no longer be applicable. The whole right side of the commons, 140 strong, is a phalanx of Liberals. On the left come, first the 38 extra Liberals, the 39 Conservatives under Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett; the lone member of the Reconstruction party; Miss Agnes Macphail; the seven members of the C.C.F., under J. S. Woodsworth; and finally, the 17 Social Credit members, making their first appearance in a federal parliament, under the leadership of John Blackmore, high school teacher of Raymond, Alta.

"OUR TASK TO END POVERTY"

The party leaders are familiar to the house and country, except for Mr. Blackmore; and some of the commons leaders of the past, such as Hon. Ernest Rhodes, will now be seen in the senate. But several new striking personalities have arrived from whom much will be expected. Among these are Hon. C. D. Howe, Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Arthur Slaght, who has been invited to move the address in reply to the speech from the throne; M. J. Coldwell, G. G. McGeer of Vancouver, Hon. Norman McLeod Rogers and R. J. Deachman.

The keynote of the session is expected to be drawn from a line in Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King's election night statement: "We take up, at once, as our supreme task, the endeavor to end poverty in the midst of plenty."

Measures to assist employment, directly and indirectly, are expected to be in the forefront of activities. The Dunning budget, containing numerous tariff and tax changes, will be the highlight of the later part of the session.

MAY NEED SENATE REFORM

Focal points of discussion are expected to be (a) the government's bill to make the Bank of Canada a national institution; (b) the ratification of the United States trade agreement; (c) the debate leading up to the Imperial conference of 1936; (d) the repeal of section 98; (e) machinery to alter the constitution along the lines recommended at the Dominion-provincial conference.

Any one of these can easily develop into an important debate. While the opposition will be powerful and talented enough to create on any issue a debate of major importance, the Liberals will, in the commons, be able to overwhelm any adverse vote when measures come to division. In the senate, however, the reverse is true. Government forces number only 33 in a chamber of 96 persons. There is a distinct possibility of a deadlock being reached by senate veto of government measures. The repeal of section 98 is expected to provide a test case. If the senate again throws out this measure, as it did five times before in the previous Liberal administration, the government cry of "senate reform" will unquestionably be raised, in the view of most observers here.

TO USE UNDERSECRETARIES

A novelty in the new session will be the system of undersecretaries which will be introduced after the necessary legislation has been passed. Having reduced the size of the cabinet and thus having thrown a heavier burden on the backs of the ministers, Mr. Mackenzie King proposes to relieve those holding the major portfolios from some of the routine duties of their posts in the Westminster fashion, by giving them the services of a member of parliament who will act as their understudy, obtain valuable training for future use, and save them from routine and departmental inquiries and decisions.

Legislation to amalgamate the departments of marine and railways into the new department of transport, and the formation of the department of natural resources from mines, interior, immigration, Indian affairs, etc., will be introduced. So will a bill to set up the loan councils for provinces proposed by Mr. Dunning. The customs and excise laws will be changed; and the power of the executive in regard to duties much reduced. An interesting bill for the average reader will be that which will enable Canadian tourists returning from the United States to bring back with them goods to the value of $100 free of duties.

The United States bureau of home economics advocate dressing children in bright colored clothes when they play outdoors—so they "may be seen and not hurt."

12th Kenny Babe Is Stillborn

But Child May Win $500,000 for Mother

TORONTO, Feb. 4 (CP)—A stillborn child may assure Mrs. Matthew Kenny the $500,000 prize in the "stork derby" under the will of the late Charles Vance Millar.

The baby was still-born last night at the Kenny home. The mother refused to go to a hospital. It is the 12th Kenny baby, said the mother, since 1926.

Her nearest competitor is believed to be Mrs. Joseph Bagnato, who was borne nine children since the fantastic terms of the famous will became known.

Millar, who died late in 1926, was a millionaire lawyer, sportsman and somewhat eccentric man-about-town. He stipulated that from his estate $500,000 and accumulated interest or profits would go to the Toronto mother who produced the largest family in the 10 years following his death. The derby will end next October 31.

THOSE COWBOY SONGS

Washington, D.C. is amused at the efforts of Congressman Maury Maverick, who pokes fun at the popular conception of singing cowboys, heard on the radio. He said. "Every time I turn on the radio or go to a show I hear some guy hollering something about the lone prairie. Cowpunchers don't sing much, let alone hang around a fire and yell in one another's faces over a guitar."

Mr. Maverick is a grandson, it is explained, of the famous Samuel Maverick, who when the civil war broke out, was Texas' largest cattle owner. He sent his cowboys to fight. His cattle were left to roam the unfenced range in unbranded thousands. After the war came the job of rounding up the wild steers; Maverick was by far the largest claimant. Soon the expression, "This animal is Maverick's" wove itself into cowboy vocabulary, "maverick" denoting an unbranded stray calf.

VETERANS OF THE HOUSE

No Parliament since 1917 will have so many new faces as the new House when it is summoned. Between retirement and defeat there will be few of the old parliamentarians left. There will not be more than a half dozen who sat in the House before 1911. Sir George Perley and Hon. Ernest Lapointe were first elected in 1904 and Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King in 1908. From the point of continued service Hon. Charles Marcil is the father of the House. He was first elected in 1900 and has sat without a break from that time for Bonaventure.

But the real veteran of the House is Robert S. White, who at 79 years of age has been reelected in the new riding of St. Antoine-Westmount, one of the five seats captured by the Conservatives in Quebec. Mr. White is a son of the late Hon. Thomas White, minister of interior in the Government of Sir John A. Macdonald. On the death of his fathers Mr. White succeeded him as member for Cardwill, an Ontario seat which has long disappeared. This was in 1888. He was reelected in 1891, but retired before the election of position of collector of customs at Montreal.

In 1917 he returned to his first love as journalism and became editor of The Montreal Gazette. In 1925 after being out of politics for some 30 years he reentered the House and has been member ever since for Mt. Royal and now again for the new riding of St. Antoine-Westmount. He is the only member of the House who sat with Sir John A.

Between You and Me

TALE OF A CAT

There was a cat went up and down to seek a dinner through the town:

1. At last—the answer to his dream; a bottle—bulging with sweet cream.

2. He cleans the cap quite through and through; then ponders what is best to do.

3. "I know a way to get it all!" Thinks he, "I'll make the bottle fall."

4. The cap gives way when he does up set it. "Aha," says Whiskers, "watch me get it."

5. He thinks he'll wait his thirst to slake until the milk has made a lake.

6. But suddenly his spirits fall—he hears a footstep in the hall.

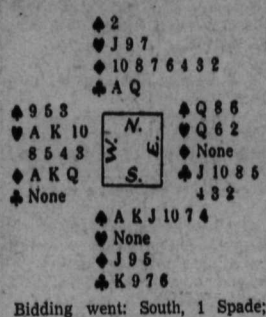
7. "Gangway!" cries Whiskers. "Scram—make room! I think I hear impending doom."

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. SHEPARD
"Teacher of Teachers"

TWO QUESTIONS

Writing from Saginaw, Mich., Miss Mary Stokes asks two important questions about the deal shown today: Can West fulfil a 4 Hearts contract against the best defence? How many tricks can South win at spades against the best defence?



Bidding went: South, 1 Spade; West, 4 Hearts, which North doubled. The opening lead was the 2 of spades.

I have no idea what happened when the hand was played. I suggest the following rational defense. Have South win the first spade trick with the 10 of spades, plainly marking the 9 in declarer's hand. West will play the 3. Win the second trick with the K of spades. It is useless to false-card; have West play the 5. North will see that he can make two discards. Have his drop the Q of clubs on the second lead of spades, to insure partner's lead of that suit. Seeing so many clubs in dummy, North may as well drop the A of that suit also. In case declarer has at least a single club the ruff will defeat the contract was well as the A-Q. If West lacks a club the ability to ruff will be certain to defeat the contract, as will be seen. South alone will know that declarer never held a club. He will lead a low club at the fourth trick. Of course declarer will know that North has let go all his clubs, but what can he do about it? West must ruff with the K, hoping to find missing trumps divided 2-1. In no way can declarer prevent the doubler from winning a trump trick, thus defeating the contract a single trick.

The most astonishing thing about the deal is the number of defensive tricks that it is possible to win against a spade contract. As a defensive suit, diamonds must be far more valuable than hearts, and any player sitting West will open the minor red suit, of which East happens to hold none. Playing with double-dummy accuracy it is possible to win six defensive tricks against South's spade call, as described below.

West can win three diamond tricks, but if allowed to do that without interruption defenders will lose an opportunity to defeat a call as high as 2 Spades. Let West win one diamond trick. Have East ruff the second lead of diamonds. That play cost defenders nothing. Have West ruff a return lead of clubs. Have East ruff the third lead of diamonds, and West ruff the second lead of clubs. South win win only six spade tricks and the K of clubs. He will be forced to give East a sixth trick with a losing club.

SONG OF THE SEASONS

Sing a song of Spring-time,
The world is going round,
Blown by the south wind:
Listen to its sound.
"Gurgle" goes the mill-wheel,
"Cluck" clucks the hen;
And it's O for a pretty girl
To kiss in the glen.

Sing a song of Summer,
The world is nearly still,
The mill-pond has gone to sleep,
And so has the mill.
Shall we go a-sailing,
Or shall we take a ride,
Or dream the afternoon away
Here side by side?

Sing a song of Autumn,
The world is going back;
They glean in the corn-field,
And stamp on the stack.
Our boy, Charlie,
Tall, strong and light:
He shoots all the day
And dances all the night.

Sing a song of Winter,
The world stops dead;
Under the snowy coverlid
Flowers lie abed.
There's hunting for the young ones
And wine for the old,
And a sexton in the churchyard
Digging in the cold.

LOW GRADES MAKE CHILD SORROWFUL

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

Head Department Parent Education Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

We are near the end of the first half year at school. Many children will bring home their grade cards, and what sorrows there will be. Some day these cards will be mailed home, instead. A few educators believe school grades will be entirely abolished the country over, and they already are in some places. I don't. I believe most parents can learn to act intelligently and humanely in respect to grades. But, alas, a good many don't.

A few days before Christmas I prepared the following 10-word telegram to be sent at my expense: "Happy family Christmas might heal little hearts broken over arithmetic." But I did not send it, on second thought, because I feared it might be telephoned over a party line. I sent a letter and I would be happy to learn that the two children did have a Christmas. They are two little girls of 9 and 11 years of age who had brought home failing grades in arithmetic.

"But daddy thinks it is a disgrace and he scolds them terribly. He also declares there will be no Christmas at this home.

"I do not think this punishment is just, for where is there a child who does not look forward to Christmas from one year to another?"

NO PUNISHMENT

Ever so often during Christmas day I wondered about these children. I wrote the mother that not only should these children not lose Christmas, but that they should have no punishment at all over arithmetic. As you know, I am for some punishments, but not in connection with school learning situations. Often in this column I have entreated parents not to scold or punish a child for school failures, because such treatment does more harm than good and because it is very unjust—the failing child having already suffered too much pain over the failure.

Whether the learner fails in a single lesson, school subject, or the entire grade, it is water over the dam—except for the ignominy which clings to the child. To chastize him then would be to play the bully—kick him in the face or stomach when he's down.

In order to help the failing child we must face forward with him, and work with his teacher to find ways of guiding him day after day in such a manner that he will win success, and then to build on his successes with him. It might, however, be desirable henceforth to require him at home to go at his home assignments always at a regular time and place. The main problem is to find out what his particular learning difficulties are and to help him to surmount them. Expert aid might be desirable. A sympathetic attitude certainly is imperative.

And if you have several children in school, let me beg of you not to compare their grades in their presence.

NOT IN THE NEWS

By WORTH CHENEY

How a child can say the wrong thing at the right time to have the worst results again is demonstrated in this story told by Allen R.

A friend of her mother's was having a party to announce her engagement and approaching marriage, so little Margaret was picked to make a novel presentation of the formal announcement. A poem, which cleverly contained all the details of the approaching marriage, was written, and little Margaret was taught to recite it in dramatic style.

The announcement party was a grand success, and the little girl did her act remarkably well. Everyone forgot all about the poem except Margaret, who a few days before the date of the wedding was invited to another party with her mother.

Lacking entertainment, the hostess decided to have each of the youngsters present recite a poem, sing a song or stage some other bit for the amusement of their elders. So, when it was Margaret's turn, she got up and recited the announcement poem again. She was finished before anyone could stop her, but no one gave it another thought.

However, it had its results on the wedding day. What had been intended for a private church ceremony was turned into a public demonstration. Apparently many of the guests at the second party had taken seriously little Margaret's poem, which had invited them all to attend the wedding of such and such on such and such day, etc.

Speaking of weddings, a friend passed to us an account of ceremony that became mighty near to being frustrated by the best man.

The best man's chief duty, of course, is to hold the wedding ring and have it handy when it is requested by the presiding official. So, making sure he wouldn't lose it, this best man applied an old trick in the legion of best men. He slipped it on one of his fingers.

Well, when it came time for the ring to be handed over, there was a strange silence. The preacher turned to the best man, the groom looked at him, and even the bride peered out of the corner of her eye. There he stood, the best man, nervously tugging at one of his fingers. Flushed and perspiring, he worked frantically as the seconds ticked into minutes, and still the ring would not budge.

Finally, when it appeared that the ceremony might be delayed, the matron of honor passed her own wedding ring over to the groom. The wedding proceeding and was ended, but it was several minutes later before the best man could work the ring off his finger with the help of soap and water.

Grace Canna, a reader sends in these peppy riddles:

1—When is the best time to read in a forest?

2—Why are carpenters excused for not knowing stone?

3—What is black and white and red all over?

ANSWERS

1—When autumn turns the leaves.

2—They never saw it.

3—A newspaper (that is, it's read all over).

TOIL OF THE TRAIL

What have I gained by the toil of the trail?
I know and know well.
I have found once again the lore I had lost
In the loud city's hell.

I have broadened my hand to the cinch and the axe,
I have laid my flesh to the rain;
I was hunter and trailer and guide;
I have touched the most primitive wildness again.

I have threaded the wild with the stealth of the deer,
No eagle is freer than I;
No mountain can thwart me, no torrent appall,
I defy the stern sky.
So long as I live these joys will remain,
I have touched the most primitive wildness again.

"Framed" Hospital Meeting at Nakusp Says Correspondent

The Editor, Nelson Daily News:

Sir—I would like to express my views through your paper as to why I think so many men refuse to go into public life, and the ingratitude in which public service is so often received. I will hereby try to give you a fair example.

October 4 last I, with some friends, attended the official opening of the new wing recently constructed to the Arrow Lakes hospital. I thought at the time that it was one of the neatest projects for community betterment I had seen any where in the district for a long time. This hospital covers a large district.

I thought as I was being shown over the premises with the many others who were present that day, that it was indeed a credit to the community, and to the board who had been so active in putting it over in these times. These same thoughts I heard being expressed freely on all sides.

This new wing addition consists of an up-to-date operating room, instrument room, anaesthetic room, sterilizing and service kitchen, bathroom, nursery, case room (case room and nursery are insulated against noise), sun room, and a large maternity ward.

The government has taken care of practically all construction costs. Some splendid donations have been made however by those who have been able to do so. The hospital's report for this year is the best on record. I think this all speaks for a capable and efficient board.

Now, here is my point!

Last Friday night (Jan. 24) I attended the annual meeting of the hospital and what did we find?

We found a deliberately framed meeting, and I do not hesitate to say it was a disgrace to the town. Whether the people who framed it were C. C. F. or, what ever they wish to call themselves, they filled the air with disgust to the deeper thinking citizens.

It was apparent at the outset that they were there for one reason only, and that was to elect to the board men of their own thinking, and to eject some, if not all, who had worked so untiringly. Our worthy institution seemed to be cast aside for personal insinuations.

The president, Mr. Leary, of the late board, in making his address to the meeting refused to let his name go forward for reelection.

I do not wish to throw any political boquets. That is not the intention of my letter, but I do believe in fair play, and Mr. Leary has at all times shown his willingness to cooperate with us in every movement for community welfare.

Why don't some of the Nakusp citizens wake up, and get the drift of what is going on?

We heard much from two so-called public spirited men at the meeting. They garbled figures purposely to mislead the public, and never raised a dissenting voice when the financial statement was eventually passed. I thought of that slogan so recently heard on the air and in public meetings: "Truth, Goodness, Purity." Even that seemed to be forgotten.

Where were these two men former members of the board, on the opening day of their new hospital addition?

Absence seemed to speak louder than words!

They are back again, but, can the people have the same confidence in them? I doubt it.

We are not all ungrateful to you and the board, Mr. Leary, for your splendid work in the construction of this new wing, which will serve the community for many years to come.

GRATEFUL.

LIFE OF KING EDWARD VIII

Sketched by C. H. CRITTENDEN

No. 1 — His Childhood

Church bells throughout all England signalled the birth of King Edward VIII. early on June 23, 1894, at White Lodge, Richmond.

A short time previously his father, Prince George, and his grandfather, the Prince of Wales, had paced the floor just as ordinary fathers do.

A speeding horseman first brought the news to the neighboring countryside, although the glad tidings had been telegraphed to London.

King Edward VIII. in the arms of his father, the late King George V., who was then Prince George.

One of the first to visit the new royal baby at Windsor was his great-grandmother, old Queen Victoria, to whom he soon became a favorite.

The child who was destined to reign over some 450,000,000 subjects was named Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David.

Trained from infancy to be a king, the prince with the golden curls often spoke of the fantastic things he would do upon the throne.

TORONTO LEAFS GO WILD TO BEAT BOSTON 3-0; METZ IS A BIG HELP

Metz Scores One and Hands a Pass for a Goal

BOSTON, Feb. 4 (AP)—Toronto Maple Leafs flew high, wide and handsome while shutting out the Boston Bruins, 3-0, before a capacity crowd of 16,000 odd tonight at the Boston Garden.

King Clancy paced the victors by staging their first goal in 23 seconds of play. Less than three minutes later, Pep Kelly clinched matters by driving Nick Metz's pass in for the second tally.

MAROONS OUTPLAYED BUT SECURE A ONE-ALL DRAW WITH AMERICANS

Schriner Ties Score in the Final Period on Solo Play

MONTREAL, Feb. 4 (CP)— A driving New York American attack was turned back for two periods tonight by pudgy Billy Beveridge and Montreal Maroons gained a 1-1 tie in their National Hockey league game with the New Yorkers after being outplayed for most of the game.

The tie brought Americans one point nearer the third place Canadiens and put Maroons back into a deadlock with Toronto for first place in the Canadian section.

Maroons appeared helpless throughout the first two periods and it was only great work by Beveridge that kept them in the running. They took the lead when Jimmy Ward passed out to Hooley Smith for the score after Baldy Northcott had started a goalward rush.

Dave "Sweeney" Schriner, league's leading point maker, tied it up on as nice a solo dash as has been seen here this season when he streaked from his own blue line, beat the defence with a deceptive shift and then blazed a low shot to the corner.

First period:

Scoring—None.

Second period:

1—Montreal, Smith (Ward, Northcott) 18:24.

Penalties: Doran, Shields.

Third period:

2—Americans, Schriner 1:44.

Penalty: Conacher.

Overtime period:

RANGERS HOLD DETROIT TO DRAW AN MOVE ONTO THE THIRD RUNG

Dillon Gets Three of Tallies, One From Morenz' Stick

NEW YORK, Feb. 4 (AP).—Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers fought to a four-all tie in a rousing overtime National Hockey league match before 12,000 fans tonight. Both teams advanced slightly in the standing of the United States division, Red Wings tieing Chicago Black Hawks for the leadership and Rangers moving into third place ahead of Boston.

Cecil Dillon, who starred with three goals, registered for the New Yorkers on Ching Johnson's pass in the first minute of play. Marty Barry equalized 12 minutes later on Herbie Lewis' assist.

Rangers slammed in two quick goals early in the middle frame to gain a big edge when Dillon scored twice in quick succession on passes from Howie Morenz and then Bill Cook. Red Wings were two men shy at the time, while Rangers were one man short. Detroit came to life in the latter part of the period and goals by Bucko McDonald and Larry Aurie squared the count.

There was no scoring in the third period. Butch Keeling put the blueshirts in the van once more shortly after the overtime started, but Johnny Sorrell scored on a sharp angle shot with barely two minutes to go.

Eleven penalties were called with majors going to Phil Watson of Rangers and Sid Howe of the Wings for fist fighting.

Two Games on Tap Tonight

Double-Header Commercial Hockey

Two commercial games are slated for tonight at the civic centre rink, the Fairview intermediates meeting the Wolves at 7 o'clock, and the Fairview Falcons playing the Savoy Hotel club at 8:30.

These local games are attracting more interest all the time, and the teams are beginning to hit their stride, showing much beter hockey than in previous years. The players are in better condition and put all they have into the games.

The Fairview teams are tied for the league leadership at present with a win each, while the Wolves have a win and a loss, and the Savoy two losses. Savoys have beaten the Falcons on a previous occasion and hope to repeat again tonight. The Fairview intermediates defeated the Wolves in an exhibition game some time ago.

U.S. Hockey Team Meets Germany in Opening of Games Tomorrow

Canada Meets Poland in Opening Round; Two Canadian Skaters Rated to Win Pairs Title at Olympiad

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany, Feb. 4 (CP).—The pre-Olympic fever, thickened by falling flakes of welcome snow, gripped the twin cities of Garmisch and Partenkirchen tonight as more than 1000 athletes exulted at the prospect of competition under perfect conditions.

Chancellor Hitler officially inaugurates the games Thursday.

Drawn by the news that Garmisch once more was a winter resort, practically all the competitors flocked into town. The winding, narrow streets were ablaze with the uniforms of 28 nations.

Among the last to make a belated appearance were the Canadian and United States hockey players, and a large number of speed and figure skaters. The American pucksters found they had drawn Germany as their opening opposition on Thursday. The German team, according to most reports, will not be particularly tough.

The favored Canadians drew Poland in the opening round.

The puckmen wearing the maple leaf emblem were brimful of confidence. Coach Al Pudas said the players came through practice sessions at Paris and St. Moritz without injury. He described the team as "strong and smart."

Toronto's well-known figure skaters, Mrs. Constance Wilson Samuels and her brother, Montgomery Wilson, have been impressing with their practice twirls. Many are calling them to win the pairs title handily.

HOCKEY C-H-A-T-T-E-R

by W.W.W.

Over 2500 jammed the rink at Trail Saturday night to watch the Smoke Eaters play the Kimberley Dynamiters. If the figures are correct there must have been a lot who went to the game and weren't particular whether they saw it. The ones at the back must have been using periscopes.

Kimberley finished the West Kootenay Commercial league, or at least their portion of it, undefeated but with four ties. A very nice record indeedie. Last year they took two beatings in league play, one from Rossland and one from Trail. Both Trail and Rossland teams are stronger this year which may account for the fact that the Kimberley team did not click so convincingly. However, the records show they have not done so badly and besides being undefeated they have scored more goals and had less scored against them, than the other three teams in the loop.

Harry Brown had another big game Monday night against the Rossland Miners and made four goals. We had begun to wonder if Harry was losing some of his old fire. Apparently not.

Doug Keiver was also to the fore with three assists, while Redding, Kemp and Moore each added two more points to their totals. Keiver now has five points for his two games.

For Rossland Spencer and Marshall added two points each.

Trail fans don't love Clarence Reddick, and the account of the game over in the Smelter City gives him credit for spoiling the Kimberley-Trail game Saturday. It would appear that he was officiating with a judge-not-that-ye-be-not-judged look about him except where the Trail players were concerned, and the Trail fans didn't do anything to ward off such a practise for they booed him as soon as they appeared on the ice. Isn't it remarkable how time changes all? Reddick used to play for Trail.

The refereeing in the league this year has brought severe criticism from time to time, and the officials of the league would be well advised to take steps next season to see that the best and fairest referees are obtained. It is bad enough when teams have their off nights and turn in a poor game without having the referees with bad games in their systems also. If only one fair referee can be found, then let him do all of the games.

Youth does get its fling in the N.H.L. but still a few veterans are able to weather the storm and show the kids what's what. We are thinking particularly of Aurel Joliat, oldest forward in the loop from the point of view of service. Joliat has survived, also the rule storms introduced from time to time, and excels at the newer tactics just as he did at the older. At present he is tied with several others for having scored the most goals of the current season.

He will be 35 years old in August and although there are others older he had two records: one as the player who has served longest with one club in the history of the N.H.L., the other was the forward of longest service in the organization. He has seen many players come and go, while still carrying on in his normal brilliant way. For years he flanked the greatest speedball of modern hockey, perhaps the greatest of all time, Howie Morenz, and that was during the time that Howie had the hockey world at his feet. And despite this, the mighty midget Joliat, weighing about 135 pounds, battling with ill health, and lately socking old Father Time on the nose by fresh outbursts that carry the Canadiens to sparkling rallies, has edged his way into the hearts of the French-Canadian fans in a manner that Morenz never did. Even when Morenz was playing with Joliat, it was little Aurel who was the shining light. Whereas Morenz went up and down (but mainly up for he is not a back-checking artist) in meteoric flares, Joliat, not much slower, would be bobbing up and down, here and there, like a cork in a heavy ocean. A skilful stickhandler, a fine puck carrier, with the ability to rifle shots accurately and suddenly from all angles, he has been at the top because he had all the essentials of a great player. He can turn on a dime and make a racetrack out of a quarter. He plans much of the Canadiens hockey strategy, too.

Aurel Joliat

Two Hoop Games on Friday Night

Trail Teams to Meet Nelson Squads at Junior High

With all arrangements made for the use of the junior high school gymnasium on Friday evening, and expectations of a large turnout of fans, local basketball officials are hoping to put the first inter-city game of the season over with a bang when the Nelson girls' team plays the league-leading Trail Orioles and the local B.C. Telephone senior men's club meets the Trail Pirates. The games are scheduled to start at 8 p.m.

Last Saturday evening the two local clubs visited Trail, the B.C. Telephone club emerged winners by a close 51-47 score while the local girls dropped their game to the Trail Orioles by a 17-11 score. Due to a breakdown of one of their cars the B.C. Telephone club was without the services of Gene Muraro, Francis Clark and Lyman Carter, while the local girls were forced to play without Almeda Graves. All the above players will play on Friday evening.

The schedule for Thursday evening gives the local teams a chance to get some practice together. The Hornets intermediate team, which has won six straight starts will play the Red Wings at 7:15 p.m. At 8:15 p.m. the rep girls club will practice and the B.C. Telephone club will have the use of the floor after 9 p.m.

Clash in May

Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion of the world and Jimmy McLarnin (inset), former welterweight champion, have agreed to a 15-round non-title bout in May.

McLarnin Is to Meet Canzoneri

Agree to 15-Round Non-Title Bout for May

NEW YORK, Feb. 4 (AP). — Jimmy McLarnin will emerge from a year's retirement to battle Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, in a 15-round non-title bout in Madison Square Garden early in May, Promoter Jimmy Johnston said today.

Both Canzoneri and McLarnin have agreed to terms, Johnson announced, although contracts have not yet been signed.

The match will be one of two for Canzoneri during May. Later in the month he will defend his lightweight championship, Johnston said, against one of five leading challengers—Lou Ambers, Pedro Montanez, Baby Arizmendi or Leonard Del Genio.

McLarnin hasn't fought since he lost his welterweight championship to Barney Ross here last May. The match, on the face of available returns, looks like a bad one for Canzoneri. For years the Vancouver Celt has been known as a poisonous rival for lighter men.

Is Screen "Father" of Quintuplets

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 4 (AP) — Actor John Qualen, who has three daughters of his own, has set out to learn how to act like a father to the Dionne quintuplets.

Partly because he was presumed to be an old, experienced hand, Qualen was selected for the part in a motion picture "featuring" the quints. All that remain to be made are scenes, being filmed here, showing Qualen as Papa Dionne in the days immediately before the five little girls of Callander were born.

"But," he confessed, "although I've got three children, I don't know how an expectant father acts. I was away from home at the birth of each of mine."

BRITAIN TO HELP IN BEET SUGAR

LONDON, Feb. 4 (CP cable)—The government proposes to reorganize the British beet sugar industry. In a bill submitted to the house of commons provision is made for establishment of a permanent sugar commission whose annual expenses will be about $50,000 and will be met by public funds.

The government will guarantee debentures issued for the purpose of raising not more than $5,000,000 for working capital by the British Sugar corporation. The corporation will be formed by the amalgamation of all companies at present engaged in the manufacture of beet sugar.

The bill imposes on the Sugar corporation the obligation to enter into contracts for the purchase of home-grown sugar beet upon terms and conditions to be agreed upon between the corporation and a sugar beet marketing board.

Nakusp Wins in Two Hoop Games

NAKUSP, B. C.—Two basketball teams from Burton played Nakusp teams in the Legion hall here Saturday evening. Nakusp was victorious in both games.

Most of the scoring in the boys contest was done during the first half. At the final whistle Nakusp led 27-10.

TORCHES BREAK UP HUGE BARGE

400-ton Craft Will Be Cut Into 16 Parts for Shipment

Acetylene and oxygen torches are busy this week at the C.P.R. shipyards in Fairview where employees of the Canadian Vickers firm of Montreal are dismembering one of the huge steel barges erected here in 1926. The barge will be dismantled and reassembled for service on Okanagan lake. Officials of the company in Nelson stated yesterday that the barge would be cut into 16 sections and shipped on flat cars. In all about 20 flat cars will be used to transport the steel hulk, four of the cars being idlers.

The barge, built to handle 15 loaded freight cars, and used in the Kootenay Landing-Procter transfer, weighs in the neighborhood of 400 tons. A section on either side of the keel will be taken out before it is reerected in the Okanagan and it will have but two instead of three tracks, capable of handling 10 freight cars. Burners are used to melt down the heavy rivets holding the sections together and the rivets are then driven out by hand. As the sections are taken out they will be skidded aboard flat cars for shipment.

Included in Vickers equipment already in Nelson is a steam hoist and a large air compressor and air derrick. If the present undertaking proves not too costly it is anticipated a second barge may be cut up here for use by the C.P.R. on Okanagan lake.

sisting any special measures aimed at one of their number by a covenant-breaking state."

The committee's resolution was subsequently sent to all members of the league. A British white paper, issued this afternoon, shows 46 states, including Canada, accepted in principle. Argentine, Nicaragua and Switzerland, without stating explicitly that they accepted the proposal, sent a communication "which would appear to indicate their acceptance in principle." Cuba, Ecuador and Peru are still considering.

It was on the basis of this resolution of mutual support that the British government approached the governments of France, Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia to ascertain what assistance they were prepared to give should Italy take military measures against the British.

CHAPTER 51

I had been questioning Miss Cambridge on the way home from Mr. Darien's funeral concerning that eventful night. I was trying to check upon my own deductions.

She had recalled one noise I had forgotten—a noise made by me, when I bumped into a chair as I came into the dining room.

"That's what I mean," I told Miss Cambridge, "when I asked if you had hear a noise. I had forgotten that until now. I did bump into a chair, that one just inside the door, underneath the light button. And I remember I muttered something to myself. It wasn't until I was in the pantry that I heard you in the kitchen. You say you were there 10 minutes before I came in?"

"More or less," said the school teacher. "I can't be sure. I looked at my watch before I started down and it was 15 minutes to 1. It couldn't have taken me more than two minutes to get downstairs. You may be sure that if I had heard Mr. Withers under your window, I would have saved you a trip downstairs, and opened the door for him. You know that."

"You didn't hear anyone on the back stairs while you were in the kitchen preparing your milk? Before I came in?"

"I didn't. The house was very quiet. I stressed that to Lieutenant Larrabee."

"No one walked above you?"

"In Mrs. Starmont's room?"

Mrs. Starmont's room was above the kitchen. With two occupants, for Grace had admitted to me she spent the night on Mrs. Starmont's chaise-lounge, Miss Cambridge might have heard something.

"Nothing. The rugs are very heavy, and the floors are thick. I didn't hear anything from above."

"No water running in the house?" Sometimes a faucet turned on in the dead of the night in my house seems very loud.

She shook her head.

"I've been over this with Lieutenant Larrabee."

I sighed.

"You said you were restless before you finally came downstairs for some hot milk. Did you hear anything while you were in bed in your room?"

"I've been over that, too, and I've told Lieutenant Larrabee what I know. Janet left her room for half an hour and then came back at 11:30. I was upstairs at 10:30, you know, my usual hour. I can always tell when her door opens. She walked past my room, and down the stairs. I'm sure of that. I don't know where she went."

"I did. She went down to Andrew Darien's room.

"When she came back I heard something drop and break in her room. It sounded like glass."

I knew that, too. In her nervous confusion whe she had returned from her interview with Mr. Darien, the glass of water Janet was taking fell from her hands into the porcelain bowl.

"You aren't turning detective, are you, Mrs. Penny?" Miss Cambridge asked, curiously.

I decided to be frank.

"I've got to help Lucy some way. That's why I'm asking these questions. I'm afraid unless I do—" I paused, hardly knowing how to continue. I didn't want Miss Cambridge to suspect what Dr. Rudemar had told me, but I did want her to know that Lucy was in danger—of arrest.

"Lieutenant Larrabee suspects her?"

"I—think so." He didn't yet, but he would as soon as he heard what Dr. Rudemar had to say. I had only until the next day to help her.

If I could get Marcella Cambridge interested in trying to help me—

"How do you know?"

"I know. He's been asking me questions about her—" He hadn't especially, but I didn't want to give a hint of Dr. Rudemar. I wanted her to feel Lucy's danger without knowing all the details.

The cab stopped and we hurried into the house. Miss Cambridge went up to her room, and I went to the kitchen where Grace had almost finished preparations for dinner. She was looking extraordinarily pleased.

"It's about Mr. Hemingway," she whispered as she drew near me. "I think he's going to be arrested. Sergeant Ross just told me that Lieutenant Larrabee has him dead to rights. He seems pretty well pleased about it. Mr. Hemingway has been in the sitting room with Lieutenant Larrabee ever since you left. He's still there."

Fifteen minutes later Ross brought word from Larrabee that he wished to see me.

There was no sign of Martin Hemingway when I went into the sitting room. Kirk Larrabee was alone, scribbling in his notebook. He didn't look up when I entered, so I sat down. I hoped he wouldn't keep me too long because it was necessary that I get back into the kitchin as soon as I could. Grace had been splendid about taking hold, but I couldn't ask too much of her.

"Well?" Larrabee asked, after what seemed to be half an hour, although in reality it wasn't more than a few minutes.

"Well, what?"

"How was the funeral?"

"Oh, the funeral." Although it had been only an hour and a half since the funeral, I had completely forgotten about it until his question.

"All right."

"You didn't see the corpse, but Miss Cambridge did, eh?"

I must have looked puzzled for he laughed.

"If you want to know about the funeral, Lieutenant Larrabee," I said nastily, "you have only to ask your two men who attended."

"I have, Mrs. Penny, but I want to get your reaction to it. Does Miss Cambridge always look into caskets?"

"Really, I've never been to a funeral with her before, but she probably does."

"Normal, then?" he persisted. When I didn't answer, he continued: "I take it you don't like funerals. Also that you used the occasion as an excuse to call Dr. Rudemar. Splendid cooperation, if I may say so, Mrs. Penny."

The man had the most uncanny way of scenting the truth. I flushed, and he knew he was right.

"If you don't need me any more, I really must go back to the kitchen."

"Unfortunately, I do need you, Mrs. Penny, so if you will be good enough to stay—" He picked up Delia's letter to her mother.

"In the face of your call to Dr. Rudemar, I would much rather not ask your advice about this letter, but I must. You talked with Mrs. Randall, I didn't. She attaches some importance to the letter, didn't she?"

"She wouldn't have given it to me if she hadn't!"

"Had she seen Delia to talk to since her daughter came here to work?"

"No, she hadn't. They corresponded twice a week."

"So she knows nothing of Delia's likes and dislikes? Except through her letters?"

"Exactly." We were at odds once more. I hoped it wouldn't be for long because I wanted his friendship.

"Did you speak to Miss Cambridge about this letter"

"I did not."

"What do you think about it?"

"I? The same thing that you think about it."

He smiled for the first time.

"And what do I think about it?"

"You probably think it unimportant as I do. After all, Delia might have been startled when she found Marcella Cambridge in her room, but after the gift of the shoes—"

He took the rest of the sentence out of my mouth.

"Delia forgot the incident in her gratefulness for Miss Cambridge's generosity. Which means to me that Delia would have admitted Miss Cambridge to her room just the same. So the letter doesn't give us any new light as it should. Too bad, Mrs. Penny. You may go now."

Not a word about Mr. Hemingway and why he had been questioned so long. By calling Dr. Rudemar I had forfeited his confidence. I was sorry in a way, and glad in another, for I didn't want to stay in that room any longer with Kirk Larrabee trying to read my thoughts.

What was on my mind now was my private and individual business—until I was sure I was right or wrong. I kept telling myself I must be wrong. All the time I was in the kitchen helping Grace, I kept repeating to myself that I was wrong. I must be. It was too horribly, morbidly impossible. I broke three plates in five minutes. Grace blamed the breakage on my fatigue, but I blamed it on something else . . . the groove my thoughts were falling in, the case I was building up in my mind against one of my own people.

ENO BREAKS ALL OUTPUT RECORDS

37,400 in January Is All-Time High

VANCOUVER, Feb. 4 (CP)—Reno Gold Mines in the Sheep Creek camp district broke all records in January with an all-time high recovery of $87,400 from 3840 tons of ore, it was reported here today. The ore averaged $24 of gold per ton.

The figure was an increase of $9,000 over the figures for the month of December last year which was previously the highest month.

It was stated here that this is the highest per ton recovery reported by any mine of Reno's size in all Canada according to results reported last year.

WINNIPEG DULL

WINNIPEG, Feb. 4 (CP)—In the grip of inertia, wheat prices on the Winnipeg grain exchange today were affected but little by sharp declines at Liverpool, the trend of which market usually has a strong influence on local futures.

Values at the close of a quiet session were ¼ cent lower to unchanged, May at 86, July 86¾ and October 85⅝ cents. Operations were a minimum throughout.

The president said that while lumber manufacturing had not kept pace with recent improvement of other Canadian industries, he believed "a marked upturn will be seen in the coming year."

SECTIONALISM IS PROTESTED

TORONTO, Feb. 4 (CP)—Canada's household goods "should not be those of the individual parish or of the nine regional areas," President A. O. Dawson told the Canadian chamber of commerce at the opening session of its 10th annual convention today.

Strong communities and flourishing provinces are of course necessary as a base for the nation, but "Canada should have done with sectionalism," he said. "Provincial rights should be respected but their force ought not to be allowed to destroy or impair the pillars of the national state."

The president linked "consuming national patriotism" with sound ethics in business, public finance, and national coordination of the relief problem in a platform "on which business should stand united today."

METALINE PLANT TO EMPLOY 125

SPOKANE, Feb. 4—The Metaline Falls plant of the Lehigh Portland Cement company will resume operations at capacity March 1, W. G. Perrow, district manager, said, and will employ 125, all of whom are former employees, says the Spokane Spokesman-Review.

For 15 days the plant will manufacture "early strength" cement, which will be followed by portland cement production until that storage is filled, which will require about two months. A change then will be made to the manufacture of Grand Coulee cement, operations on which, it is expected, will continue for a year. The Metaline plant has storage capacity of 250,000 barrels, half of which will be devoted to Grand Coulee cement.

Total of shipments of cement from all plants to the dam is now approximately 100 cars weekly, of which the Spokane area is shipping 23. The total of all mills was 50 a short time ago.

edly today."

He scored "failure to face" the railway issue, called for higher returns for the farmer and worker, and affirmed the position that while "wildcat ventures must be trapped" and laws enforced against proven abuses, "the chamber stands definitely against regimentation of business."

MORE ABOUT HORSWILL CASE

Protest was voiced mainly against evidence given in regard to infraction of the Highways act governing the operation of private freight vehicles, and specifications governing the type of truck similar to that of the one which featured in the accident, issued by the manufacturers of the truck.

Mr. Dawson declared that it was a preliminary hearing for manslaughter and not a trial for an infraction of the Motor Vehicle or Highways act.

The evidence was finally allowed upon the condition that it could be struck from the records at the wish of the defence counsel.

Evidence produced at the inquest into the death of the two Nelsonites was again produced by witnesses but is only reported in brief in the following account.

Dr. N. E. Morrison of Salmo, first witness, described his visit to the scene of the accident and care for the injured, and of pronouncing the two victims dead.

After visiting several people in Salmo Dr. Raymond C. Shaw testified he was in front of the hotel when the Horswill truck came along. The witness stated that those in the rear of the truck motioned to him to jump in. With Roy Bradshaw he ran after the truck, caught it and jumped in at the rear. He was first to get in and Mr. Bradshaw followed.

VIOLENT SWAYING

The first intimation of danger after turning and starting back toward Salmo was a violent swaying of the vehicle, he said.

He described gaining his senses, finding himself pinned beneath the vehicle and the efforts to extricate himself and other passengers.

A miniature truck was produced by Corporal David Halcrow and used to describe the progress of the auto prior to the accident.

NO OBJECTIONS

With six persons in the back of the truck it had been fairly well crowded. No one had objected to him sitting on the truck, said Dr. Shaw.

The witness stated that he was not in a position to estimate the speed of the vehicle. He did not see liquor in the car.

During the day Dr. Shaw stated that he had five or six drinks, but had not seen Horswill take a drink.

To his recollection no one had left the truck when it was turned around.

The road was very slippery and frozen hard in spots and he believed that they were unable to attain a greater speed than 25 or 30 miles over the whole trip in to Salmo.

ACTED NORMAL

Under cross-examination he reaffirmed his statement that while he saw Horswill on several occasions during the day he did not see him drink and that the accused appeared perfectly normal. He stated that over the end of the back wheels in the truck, counting his own weight and Roy Bradshaw's, there had been about 400 pounds.

He said that on several occasions while driving over the road himself he had noticed the car swerve slightly on the slippery sections.

Defence counsel—You told us you did not take notice of the speed. If such was the case would it be fair to suggest that the speed of the car was not excessive and did not alarm you?

NOT ALARMED

Witness—I Believe so. I felt no discomfort. I was not alarmed until the car swayed violently.

Dr. David Wilkinson also related similar incidents. He could not recollect whether he was in the back or in the cab of the truck, but he believed he must have been in the cab. He identified a bottle of gin, exhibit No. 1, as similar to one he was carrying with his lunch in the car. He said head injuries may have accounted for his partial loss of memory.

The case was adjourned for lunch at the conclusion of Dr. Wilkinson's evidence and resumed with evidence given by Dr. Clair Montgomery Bennett, who performed an autopsy on the two bodies.

Ludwig Lange described having pulled aside to allow the Horswill truck to pass. He was walking with Mrs. Lange and was pulling their child on a sleigh. The truck came to grief 1100 feet from him, he said, after jumping and swerving on the road.

He testified that he smelled gasoline and then liquor.

Dorothy Lange gave similar evidence.

SMELL OF LIQUOR

When he arrived on the scene with Dr. Morrison from the ski jump, a strong smell of liquor was in evidence around the up-turned truck said Constable Clarence House, Mr. Horswill's breath smelled slightly of liquor he said.

He related finding a bottle of rum and one of gin over the fence. Measurements taken of skid marks were presented by means of a diagram made by himself. Pictures of the scene were marked exhibits 4a, B, C, D, E F.

Anti-freeze had run out of the radiator and gas was dripping from the truck, he said.

SHALLOWS ON ROAD

There were several shallows varying in depth to five or six inches in the road at a point where marks indicated that the car commenced to skid, he said.

Crown counsel—"Did you notice anything about the road that would account for the accident?".

Defence counsel—"I object, there is nothing in the clouds to give a cause. It is only his opinion at the best." At the suggestion that it may be expert opinion Mr. Dawson declared that it would have to be proven.

POSTS NOT KNOCKED DOWN

"You spoke of three posts being knocked down." Is that right?," the witness was asked. He replied that they were knocked out of line, and admitted that they may have been pushed or pulled out of line by the barb wire contacting the front of the car. Mr. Dawson declared that he wanted the matter cleared. He did not want the idea conveyed that the truck had struck the posts.

Constable House stated that he had not indicated all road depressions on the chart, only those which he thought had a bearing on the accident.

"Were you able to locate the smell of liquor at the truck?" the witness was asked. His reply was "no." He said that Mr. Horswill's breath smelled only slightly of liquor.

Constable House admitted that he had had only one winter's experience with road conditions in the Kootenay district.

"You heard Dr. Shaw's evidence. He didn't think the road was safe," is that incorrect?"

FAIR CONDITION

"I think the road was in fair condition for the winter season," Constable House replied.

The witness stated that he travelled at the rate of 30 or 35 miles an hour over the particular stretch of road where the accident happened and said he considered it a safe speed.

Constable W. Armson, who is stationed at Salmo with Constable House, corroborated the statements of the latter. He stated that he had been present when measurements had been made as to the distance of skid marks.

Constable Walter V. Shepherd of Nelson, who visited the scene of the accident, also described skid marks and the position of the truck following the tragedy. Marks made by the truck ran into the snow bank as far as the fence, he stated.

37 MILES AN HOUR

He described the condition of the road at the scene of the accident as straight, wide and excellent so far as winter travel was concerned. On January 30, five days after the accident, when conditions were unchanged, he stated that he travelled over the road at between 37 and 40 miles per hour. By taking one's foot off the gas and applying the brakes slightly, no skid resulted, he said.

For a second time protest was voiced by the defence counsel when Constable Shepherd submitted a certified copy of the inquest finding. Mr. Dawson declared that it was not following the proper procedure, claiming that the finding of a coroner's jury had no bearing on a preliminary hearing. It was allowed as documentary evidence and the finding was not read.

IN TRUCK

Constable Shepherd declared that the snow was packed hard on the travelled portion of the highway and icy in spots.

"You spoke of going 37 or 40 miles an hour. You would be in luck if you were able to pull out of a skid," Mr. Dawson stated. The witness declared that he would be able to pull up in 50 feet without difficulty and to this the defence counsel replied that he, the witness, was very optimistic.

From the outset evidence submitted by Constable J. G. M. Lock brought a storm of protest and was only conditionally accepted. Constable Lock is mechanical supervisor of the B.C. police's motor branch.

PROTESTED EVIDENCE

Protest came first when he produced an illustration published by the manufacturers of the make of truck driven by "Slim" Horswill. It contained a detail of the mechanical structure and capabilities of the truck.

The statements of the truck manufacturers were only heresay. It was not evidence, nor was it submitted personally in the court, Mr. Dawson claimed. Constable Lock stated he only wanted it to produce evidence as to the wheelbase, tire equipment, and other details, but the defence objected.

Further protest was voiced when evidence as to the weight of the car and its contents was presented. Mr. Dawson stated that a city weigh scale statement could not be submitted unless by the weighmaster himself, but he withdrew his objection when Constable Lock stated that he was present and witnessed the weighing of the truck. It weighed 3135 pounds as compared to 2800 which had been its licenced weight. The extra weight might be due to snow, ice and chain equipment. The truck had carried approximately 1225 pounds, taking into consideration the possible weights of the passengers, but no figures of individual weights were allowed as they had not been officially announced.

NOT OVERLOADED

Truck and passengers weighed approximately 4360 and the maximum gross weight, truck and load, was 4400 under specifications provided by the manufacturers of the truck. "Therefore the truck was not overloaded," the witness stated.

Mr. Dawson stated that he objected to the entire evidence relative to the capacity load of the truck and the specifications set forward in the auto company's pamphlet.

Magistrate Cartmel declared that he was not trying the case and wanted to get the drift of the evidence submitted.

"One of my duties is to file all licences in connection with the Highways act which calls for a highways licence for private freight vehicles operated outside of the municipality, and no such licence was filed for the truck," Constable Lock declared.

NOT A MOTOR VEHICLE ACT CASE

This was another point protested vigorously. Mr. Dawson declared the evidence irrelevant. The hearing was a preliminary one for a manslaughter charge and not for an infraction of the Motor Vehicle act, he said.

Corporal Halcrow affirmed that the evidence was permissible.

"I am going to allow it until I find it irrelevant," was the magistrate's decision, and the witness proceeded to quote regulations regarding the operation of private freight vehicles from section 62, subsection 1, and section 64 of the act, stating that it was unlawful for such a vehicle to venture out on the highway without a licence.

"I object to the whole of it. You might find half a dozen other infractions. If the police or crown was intending to base the case on such, it should have been disclosed so it could have been met." He contended that there should be no more latitude in presenting evidence at a preliminary than at the actual trial.

Corporal Halcrow claimed that any unlawful act the accused was guilty of should come before the court, and quoted from a case in law reference, Rex versus Nickle, which he declared paralleled the Horswill case.

Mr. Dawson stated it was perfectly ridiculous and offered to produce evidence from past cases to substantiate his contentions that such evidence was not admissible.

MAY BE STRUCK OFF

Magistrate Cartmel accepted the objection and asked that the case continue. He stated that the evidence would be struck from the records if the defence wished it later.

Continuing, Constable Lock declared that the truck was capable of a speed of 50 miles an hour or over. He stated that he found the portion of the road a mile and a half north of Salmo to Salmo, the best part between Nelson and Salmo.

He stated that the tendency of a vehicle to weave on the road depended upon the load, the distribution of the load and the tires.

Mr. Dawson, following the evidence of the last witness for the prosecution, called for an adjournment to produce the evidence for the defence, which he declared, would be more in the nature of rebuttal evidence. Court was adjourned until 10:30 a.m. Monday next.

PICKETS ACTIVE

Pickets patrolled the streets surrounding the market and loitering groups of strikers were at every corner.

At a meeting of the strike committee in Memorial hall, Farringdon street, leaders of the workers said the walkout had been called only after eight months' fruitless negotiations during which the employers refused to make concessions to the workers' demands for an increase from $20 to $22.50 a week and a reduction of hours from 46 to 44.

Argentine and United States packing house branches were believed ready to grant the wage increase. Spokesmen for these enterprises told Havas conditions were normal in the great Thames warehouses.

They said the strike was considered "outlaw" as it was not recognized by trade unions and expressed the hope that their workers would not go out in sympathy with the Smithfield strikers.

cruisers—the number specified under the accord concluded last June 18, which permits Germany to build to within 35 per cent of Britain's cruiser tonnage.

Heretofore officials in London had expected Germany to build only two such units this year. The newly revealed plans, which were made known, it was understood, to the admiralty by a naval attache of the German embassy here, caused a sensation at the four-power naval conference. Additional difficulties in accomplishing material results were foreseen.

At the same time admiralty spokesman asserted that the government had not considered inviting Germany to the naval conference unless the four powers now represented were able first to reach an agreement.

Royal Visits to Dominion Will Be Delayed Some Time

LONDON, Feb. 4 (CP cable)—Stories of a possible visit in the near future to the dominions of the King or any members of the royal family should be taken with a good deal of reserve.

To begin with, the court is in mourning for nine months. Then, the coronation will follow and it is almost essential that every prominent member of the royal family be present.

Whether or not the King will go to India for a coronation durbar is believed to be quite undecided.

Sooner or later, it is extremely likely the Duke of York, heir presumptive, will make a tour of the dominions.
