U.S. WILL NOT ACT ALONE ON STABILIZATION OF THE DOLLAR

MORGENTHAU TELLS 'WHY' OF ACTIONS

Thinks Stabilization Not Solely Duty of U. S.

ENDEAVORING TO RESTORE SILVER

Receiving Much Gold Instead of Paper for Trade

WASHINGTON, May 13 (AP)—Notice that "Washington will not be an obstacle" to international currency stabilization was coupled by Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau tonight with a warning that the United States will not act singly to peg the dollar.

In a broadcast address—awaited by business and financial interests as one of the Roosevelt administration's infrequent statements of its money policy—the treasury secretary summed up his argument in these words:

"Why should we be singled out and admonished that the moral duty to restore order is primarily ours? Before we make any commitments, we must be sure we will not lose what we have just regained.

"We are not unwilling to stabilize. However, if the great trading

Expect That Many by This Morning in Big Protest

WASHINGTON, May 13 (AP).—Scores of weather-born dirt farmers from more than 25 states began assembling in Washington today, voicing a determination to show congress and business critics that agriculture wants the Farm Adjustment act continued.

C. H. Day, Plainview, Tex., unofficial leader of the pilgrimage, estimated that more than 500 farmers were in the capital tonight. The railroads reported that seven special trains, each carrying around 350 farmers, are scheduled to arrive here between 7 and 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Delegates from North Carolina said 1500 farmers from that state would be here for tomorrow's mass meeting. Fifty arrived today from South Dakota. One was here from Montana and said 12 other will join him.

Day said there should be from 3000 to 4000 farmers at Constitution hall when the program opens at 9:30 a.m. (E.S.T.) Tuesday.

C. J. McGrath, secretary-manager, said he had received the notification from Washington. The special quota is the equivalent of about 400 carloads.

"FREE LOVE" CROPS UP AS COMMITTEE PROBES RED CHARGES AT U. OF CHICAGO

Man Charges Professor Admitted He Favored "Free Love for Himself"; Claims Communism Is Taught

BY REUBEN S. FRODIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, May 13 (AP)—Charges that some teaching methods at the University of Chicago "evidence a subtle design to impress communistic views on the student mind" were advanced and denied today at a spirited hearing before a state senate investigation committee.

The statements of Charles R. Walgreen, chain drug store executive who appeared in the role of complaintant, were immediately branded as false by Dr. Robert Maynard Hutchins, 36-year-old president of the school, two faculty members and a trustee. They made the counter-charge that the quiz culminated "efforts to break down and destroy one of the greatest centers of civic instruction in America".

Walgreen, whose withdrawal from the university of his 18-year-old niece, Miss Lucille North of Seattle, precipitated the controversy, told the five-man committee:

"I could ascribe my niece's views (on Communism and capitalism)

KNOCK WIFE ON HEAD IF HUBBY IS HURT

NEW YORK, May 13 (AP)—Frederick G. Carnochan, ethnologist, returned today from an African sojurn and explained, among other things, how the Wonyamwesi tribes christen their babies by the sneeze method and what happens to a tribesman's wife when her spouse gets hurt in the hunt.

At a christening ceremony, he said, the high priest holds the baby and calls off the names of its ancestors. When the child sneezes, as it invariably does, it is an indication that an ancestor's soul has entered its body and the baby takes the name of the ancestor thus saluted.

When a member of the tribe is hurt on a hunt, said Carnochan, the wife is blamed and is given a knock on the back of the head to make amends.

LAVAL TALKS WITH RUSSIA

MOSCOW, May 13 (AP).—Foreign ministers of France and Russia today studied ways to build some permanent eastern European peace structure upon the foundation laid with the signing of the Franco-Russian mutual assistance pact.

A 90-minute conference between Laval of France and Maxim Litvinoff of Soviet Russia, each accompanied by his staff of experts, was devoted largely, reliable sources said, to discussion of proposals to supplement the pact with an eastern agreement for non-aggression, consultation and non-assistance to an aggressor.

Arriving from Warsaw this morning, Laval received one of the most enthusiastic welcomes ever given any visiting statesman.

ARBOR DAY IS OBSERVED

WINNIPEG, May 13 (CP). — Planting of trees and shrubs today marked celebration of Arbor day in Manitoba, Alberta and parts of British Columbia.

Saskatchewan celebrated Arbor day May 10.

Civil servants and bank clerks were among those getting the day off from work to observe the holiday, traditional day for planting trees, shrubs and flowers. The Winnipeg grain exchange and the Vancouver grain exchange took the day off.

"Vancouver Pays No More for Gas Than Bellingham, Wash."

VANCOUVER, May 3 (CP)—R. J. Kenmuir, divisional manager of the Union Oil Co., said the Vancouver motorists pay no more for their gasoline than the people of Bellingham, when giving evidence today before the royal commission investigating the British Columbia fuel situation.

He said the 22 cents per United States gallon, paid for gasoline in Bellingham, worked out to 26.4 cents per imperial gallon. Adding .66 cent for freight, 2.38 cents for sales and excise tax and excess marketing cost in British Columbia of 1.59 cents would bring the price up to 31.03 cents compared with the 30 cents paid here.

EXPECT A MILD HITLER SPEECH

Wants Loan and May Not Get It if He Gets "Tough"

LONDON, May 13 (CP Havas).—Chancellor Adolf Hitler in his address on foreign policy before the reichstag shortly, will seek to allay the sentiment abroad, notably in Britain, that he is rearming the reich to a degree endangering continental peace, it was predicted today in informed quarters.

The fuehrer, it was said in financial circles here, is anxious to obtain immediately from the Bank of England new credits of £650,000 to pay for recent imports from British firms.

In view of recent reports of the extent of German rearmament, the Bank of England is reported to be against granting of these credits, and officials are said to have decided against such a loan unless apprehensions are effectively calmed. Observers accordingly predict with confidence that Hitler's address will be marked by mildness and protests of peaceful motives.

Seeks $17,500,000 From Canadians

WASHINGTON, May 13 (CP)—Collection of $17,500,000 in allegedly evaded tariff duties, internal revenue taxes and penalties tonight was the United States government's objective in a suit against a group of Vancouver liquor distillers. Trial was set for July 23, in the Seattle federal court.

Last July customs agents arrested Henry Reifel and George C. Reifel, but both were reported by the treasury to have escaped the court's jurisdiction after being freed on bail of $100,000 each.

Also indicted, but not apprehended, were Henry F. Reifel and Francis W. Eccles. The group was charged with smuggling 2,000,000 gallons of liquor into the United States, both before and since prohibition.

During the illness of Bunt, who died yesterday, Dr. Herbert A. Bruce, Sir Frederick Banting and other prominent physicians were consulted.

BY ANDRUE BERDING
Associated Press Foreign Staff

At the same time, the spokesman announced that Italy is ready to declare the names of her conciliators, chosen under the Italo-Ethiopian arbitration pact.

Asserting Italo-Ethiopian border difficulties in east Africa have been brought into "greater limelight" by Emperor Haile Selassie's declarations and notes to the League of Nations, the spokesman said Italy intends to continue her precautionary program to guard her colonies.

The mobilization notices called upon the men of the class of 1912 to present themselves at concentration points May 17.

Barbara Hutton Mdivani and Count Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow

RENO, Nev., May 13 (AP).—Wedding bells are expected to ring again tomorrow for the newly-divorced Princess Barbara Hutton Mdivani, Woolworth heiress, and the handsome Danish nobleman, Count Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow.

From a reliable source it was learned tonight the count—who has denied he intends to marry the princess—has already arrived in Reno and is making plans to take the $40,000,000 heiress back to Europe with him.

In a move to avoid curious eyes the trim heiress early today went directly to the court room of District Judge Thomas F. Moran. Residence testimony was given in about three minutes by Carl Quist, an employee at the Thacher residence, and one of Barbara's maids. Princess Barbara charged extreme cruelty. She hurried out the way she came and smiled as she brushed by photographers and reporters.

HORSE SEES MOVIE OF RACE AND GOES ON WILD RAMPAGE

LONDON, May 13 (CP).—A freak experiment to determine whether a movie racetrack scene would have any effect on a horse nearly wrecked a theater today.

The horse, a hunter mare, was taken to a private showing of the film and watched calmly enough while the earlier parts of the picture were screened.

Once the picture race got under way, however, the mare pricked up her ears, whinned shrilly and started a wild rampage, dragging her groom with her. Twenty seats and stalls were smashed before she could be quieted.

Peer Admits a Loan From Girl

But Revelstoke Denies All Other Evidence Against Him

LONDON, May 13 (CP)—Comely little Angela Joyce, "Miss England of 1930," dabbed a handkerchief to tear-stained eyes today as she told a court hearing her heart-balm suit that she had suffered "mental torture that led to my breakdown," because she was jilted by young Lord Revelstoke.

The 24-year-old peer, spic and span in morning coat and striped trousers, took the witness stand a short time later to deny he ever had proposed to the young actress, either in her bedroom, as she said, or anywhere else.

Miss Joyce's only witness was Mary Whittal, owner of the apartment building where the actress lived. She testified that in the presence of the couple she had commented that they "apparently are to be married," and that Revelstoke appeared "to acquiesce."

BORROWED MONEY

In another visit to the girl's flat, the witness said, Miss Joyce told her she wanted to borrow a frying pan "to show Robin I'll make him a useful wife as well as an ornamental one."

Lord Revelstoke, who said he could not remember ever having met Mrs. Whittal, denied everything except that he borrowed money from the plaintiff, while he was a student at Cambridge.

He still was on the witness stand when the hearing adjourned for the day.

WORLD PAYS TRIBUTE TO POLISH LEADER

By the Canadian Press and Havas Agency

Europe and the world yesterday rendered tribute to Marshal Jozef Piludski on the news of his death.

Hardly a nation failed to pay official homage to the Polish dictator. Those who eulogized his achievements included Pope Pius XI.

In Berlin Chancellor Adolf Hitler said the new Poland had lost its creator. Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, reich air minister, likewise expressed his profound regret. He will represent Germany at the funeral.

In Paris, while the tricolor was lowered to half-staff throughout the republic, President Albert Lebrun described Pilsudski's death as "the loss of an ardent patriot and great soldier."

Foreign Minister Pierre Laval will represent France at the funeral.

Recalling Marshal Pilsudski's "tenacious and heroic fight for Poland's greatness," Premier Benito Mussolini telegraphed from Rome: "He will remain in the history of your nation as a high example of military and civic virtue."

Pope Pius XI, in regretting Poland's bereavement, telegraphed: "We are praying for the repose of the soul of the regretted marshal as we pray also for the concord of peace and prosperity in Poland."

The Polish nation has suffered a grievous loss, Anthony Eden, British lord privy seal, said in a telegram from London.

Hungarian circles eulogized Marshal Pilsudski as a guiding power of the Polish struggle against Bolshevism. Polish-Hungarian friendship had lost one of its staunchest supporters, it was said.

EMERGED UNSCATHED IN ESCAPADES IN ARABIA, LAWRENCE HURT IN CRASH

WOLL, Dorsetshire, England, May 13 (CP).—Col. Thomas E. Lawrence, the famous Lawrence who emerged unscathed from wild adventures in the Arabian desert, suffered injuries today when his motorcycle collided with a bicycle ridden by a child.

He was not believed to have been seriously hurt. In conformance with military rules, however, officials declined to give any information concerning his condition.

The accident occurred in Moreton, near Bovington camp. The child escaped without serious injuries, but an ambulance rushed Lawrence to the hospital where he was listed under the name of T. E. Shaw.

Lawrence is an ardent cyclist, enjoying frequent dashes about the country roads in search of seclusion. Since his retirement from the air force he has been living in a small cottage on the moor a dozen miles from Dorchester.

He is in the habit of jumping onto his motorcycle and making trips, disappearing for weeks without any word to his friends and then suddenly reappearing.

NEW GROUP IN POLISH SADDLE

Col. Slawek Steps Up as Poland's New "Strong Man"

WARSAW, May 13 (CP Havas).—Poland, standing on the threshold of a new destiny, was preparing tonight for the state funeral at Krakow on Saturday of Marshal Joseph Pilsudski, Polish "strong man" for the last nine years.

The nation's immediate future will witness a logical pursuit of the aims laid down by Pilsudski, authorities said, and Premier Waleryan Slawek, the late marshall's right-hand man, stepped forward as the new "strong man."

Col. Slawek, head of that group of colonels who, under Pilsudski, led Polish Great War legions against Czarist Russia, preserves a strong anti-Russian, anti-Soviet tradition, it was pointed out. Gen. Tadeusz Kasprzycki, Pilsudski's successor as minister of war, and Gen. Edward Rydzsmigly, who follows the marshal as head of the army, also are members of the "colonel group."

Thus Poland now is headed by ex-legionnairies whose youth was colored with Czarist oppression of the Poles. Their anti-Russian attitude was continued against the Soviet Union, despite the fact the Union immediately recognized Poland's independence.

Some circles believe these men, younger than Pilsudski, will incline to a more liberal domestic policy. Whether the new policy will be less or more friendly to Germany remained tonight a potent but unsolved issue.

In any case Poland's destiny lies completely in the hand of this "colonel group" by virtue of the Fascist-like constitution and electoral system recently adopted.

Canners have offered to pay 6 cents for Fraser river catches and 50 cents in the northern areas.

A meeting of 500 fishermen will be held next Sunday to consider

REDS GAIN AT FRENCH POLLS

Gain 40 Sets on the Municipal Councils

PARIS, May 13, (CP-Havas)—Communist gains in the municipal elections especially in the suburbs of Paris, held the attention today of most of the capital's political commentators.

The Communists gained 40 seats on municipal councils, taking most of them from Socialists, with whom they are now united in a common political front. Only seven of the seats today gained were in Paris suburbs however.

Newspaper comment ranged from that in leJour, deploring "the Red belt that is tightening about Paris to le Populaire's delight that "Fascism has been beaten."

For the first time in a number of years the extreme left parties, Communist and Socialist, and the more moderate radicals, combined to fight against the Conservatives. Though both extremes gained at the expense of the Center, the leftists' gains far overbalanced those of the right.

All cabinet members running for the office of mayor in their respective communities were elected or reelected.

"NO MAN IN MONTREAL CAN MANAGE RAIL LINE INTO WEST," SAYS STEVENS

WINDSOR, Ont., May 13 (CP)—Hon. H. H. Stevens carried his campaign for reform in the industrial and manufacturing and working conditions in Canada into Essex county when he addressed a mass rally here tonight.

The gathering was held in the interests of Hon. Raymond D. Morand, deputy speaker of the house of commons, who today was selected as the Conservative candidate for Essex East for the next federal election.

Mr. Stevens criticized the half-dozen or so men, who, he claimed, controlled the credit of the country, for not using this control "conscientiously," so as to bring about a quick recovery of normal conditions.

He also declared that in his opinion the keynote of those who would govern the country must be the recognition of every man's right to work and earn a decent livelihood.

With reference to the railway situation, Mr. Stevens declared "no man sitting in Montreal could manage a railway system extending into the far west." Rather, he believed study should be made to abolish obsolete transportation equipment and methods, and said the country's transportation could be better managed by dividing it into three zones—western, central and maritimes.

He indicated that he was against amalgamation, stating this tended in other businesses in the last few years had in large measure been responsible for present conditions and that mere "bigness" did not necessarily result in efficiency.

BETTER TIMES FOR BELGIUM

BRUSSELS, May 13 (CP-Havas)—Belgium has won the first phase of her battle for financial and economic recovery, but the ultimate outcome will be known only at the end of the year, Premier Paul Van Zeeland said today in the first speech he has made since his original address upon taking over the government in March.

The struggle concerned five essential points, he said at a luncheon of the foreign press association here:

1. Monetary policy, in which success is now certain, thanks to the enormous returns of capital to the country.

2 Banking, in which the country's situation has been firmly established

3. Securities, in which the rise was so substantial that the government had to make efforts to check it rather than to help it.

4. The bourse, where the government kept the rise in quotations within reasonable limits, as the traders tended "to fall back into their past mistakes."

5. Prices, which the government managed to keep from rising immoderately," after a feverish upward movement."

START LOGGING OPERATIONS AT GLENLILLY NOW

F. A. Tomkins and a Crew to Take Out Spruce

SCHOOL TRACK MEET MAY 17

Cup Is Offered for a 15-Mile Event by Hayes

CRESTON, B.C., May 13.—F. A. Tompkins and a small crew of men moved to Glenlily where logging operations have been resumed for Charles O. Rodgers. At present the crew is taking out a quantity of spruce to be used in the veneer plant at the Rodgers box factory, and the logs will be coming in at the first of the week. After the spruce supply is shipped operations will commence in a stand of pine which will be sawn at the Rodgers sawmill at Creston and later will be used in the make of apple and pear boxes, plum and prune crates as well as tomato crates. In addition to the material for boxes, stock for the lumber yard will also be cut. The sawmill will likely commence cutting at the end of the month.

Miss Bessie Matthews of Nelson has been renewing acquaintance in the Creston district, a guest of Miss Edith Mather.

R. Alderson has arrived in from Turner Valley to take charge of spraying operations at the ranch north of town.

Fred Yerbury was here en route for Kimberley, where he expects to secure employment.

Joseph W. Bell of Kimberley spent a few days looking after orchard work on his property at Camp Lister. Mr. Bell recently acquired the former Malthouse ranch in the soldier settlement.

Mrs. Manuel of Vancouver has been calling on Creston friends while visiting Mrs. J. J. Grady at Wynndel.

TRACK MEET

The fifth annual track meet of the schools in Creston Valley is announced for Friday, May 17, at the athletic field at Creston public school, at which scholars from the Arrow Creek section to Wynndel are due to send their best talent. The meet will be much the same as other years except that a half-mile run for senior and intermediate boys has been added. With the announcement of the date the backers of the meet have just received word from C. F. Hayes offering to donate the Creston Review silver cup to be competed for annually for a 15-mile run which would follow the dyke of Creston Reclamation company from Wynndel out along the Kootenay and Goat rivers with the finish at the school grounds. There is 14 miles of levee and the run from the bench at Creston to the athletic field would account for about another mile. The offer of the cup stands and if the time is too short this year to interest the athletes in the fifteen-miler the event will certainly be developed for th meet in 1936.

Z. Groux of Kitchener went through Creston with team and wagon, en route for Revelstoke, where he will make his home in future with his son, Homer. East Kootenay loses quite an oldtime citizen in his removal. He has been at Kitchener for more than 15 years, prior to which he resided at other points in the Crow's Nest Pass area.

Ben Byer, who recently returned from Anyox, and has been living in town of late, has gone to Glenlily, where he is one of the Charles O. Rogers logging crew.

J. W. Hamilton got back Thursday from a short holiday at Nelson.

Miss Isa Leslie returned to Nelson Tuesday after spending the jubilee week-end here, a guest of Misses Edith and Winnie Palfreyman.

Mrs. C. F. Armstrong and son, Charles, who have been holidaying with her father, A. E. Davies, returned to Trail Thursday.

J. Currie of Trail was visiting his parents here for a few days.

J. Mermet and Sam Dowler are a couple more citizens who have gone to Trail where they have jobs in prospect.

Mr. and Mrs. Ledieu of Coleman, Alta., are here visiting their parents at the ranch, east of town.

J. H. Cameron of Cranbrook spent a few days at Creston, a guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Cameron.

The public school report for April shows an enrolment of 243. This is slightly lower than for March, partly due to an outbreak of chicken pox which kept many at home in the middle divisions. The trustees have been advised that tenders have been called for the new four-room school and the contract will be let May 21.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Long are back from a short holiday at Wenatchee, Wash., where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Long, former residents here.

A number from town were at Erickson Wednesday afternoon for a tea and sale of cooking under auspices of Erickson's ladies' Hospital auxiliary. The affairs netted about $25.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Gay have arrived from Prince Albert, Sask., to take possession of the former Col. Fitzgerald orchard property, east of the village, which they purchased while on a visit to Creston about a year ago. The place has been leased for some years past, but the new owners plan many improvements, including planting some of the orchard to better varieties of apples.

The Presbyterian young people have the tennis court on the manse ground ready for the season, and play has already commenced.

Tulips are coming into full bloom in some village gardens. The weather has been anything but favorable and a crop of rather short-stem blooms is feared.

Cupid was unusually busy in Creston last month. R. H. Hassard, registrar of vital statistics, reports issuing five marriage licenses. Two deaths were recorded, and there were five births—two of them girls.

B. Morabito, who is a patient at the Col. Belcher military hospital, Calgary, is reported to be making quite a satisfactory recovery from an operation to a foot which was rather badly damaged in the war. Mr. Morabito was one the hospital patients called on by Lord and Lady Bessborough during the governor-general's visit in Calgary last month.

Mrs. M. Young and granddaughter, Miss Margaret Miller, returned Thursday from almost a year's stay with friends in London, England. They are accompanied by a Mrs. Hadlock, of that city, who will spend an extended holiday in Creston with Mrs. Young, who has taken up residence on Fourth street.

Arvid and Godfrey Samuelson, who operated a cedar post camp at Hazel creek all winter were at Kitchener during the week, when they loaded out a carload of posts for a points in Southern Alberta.

J. W. Smiley of Nelson, inspector of relief for Nelson-Creston, was here on official business. The number of transients who are getting assistance at Creston is just about the largest of all points in the B. C. interior.

Mrs. H. H. Taylor, Mrs. J. W. Dow and Mrs. J. P. Ross are back from Nelson, where they represented St. Stephen's W.M.S. at the annual conference of W.M.S. workers in the Presbyterian congregations of East and West Kootenay. They report a highly successful convention.

1934 Is a Banner Year for Creston Co-Op. Fruit Exchange, Report Shows

213 Cars Handled Against 100 Cars in 1933; Installation of Cold Storage Unit Proves Great Benefit

3300 ACRES OF OLD RECLAMATION FARM TO BE IN CROP THIS YEAR

Huge Seeder Doing Six Acres an Hour; Big Eight-Bottom Plough Breaking 60 Acres in 24-Hour Run

CRESTON, B.C., May 13.—Reports submitted at the annual meeting of the shareholders of Creston Co-Operative Fruit exchange in the United church hall Wednesday, indicated that 1934 had been the banner year for the firm, the tonnage handled rising from a little more than 100 cars for 1933, to 213 cars for 1934. The same healthy state of affairs was revealed in the financial statement submitted, which was adopted with little discussion. The meeting was in charge of James Compton, the exchange president, and was well attended.

Mr. Compton pointed out the advantage gained to the exchange through its installation of a small unit of cold storage last season. Pears were the outstanding commodity benefitting from this, and plums and cherries had also been largely helped, the latter commodity not showing to advantage from the fact that Creston had been unfortunate last season in that the cherry crop was badly split by rain just before picking started.

Cold storage had been unable to remedy this and mold had developed in transit with the result that last year's returns on these had been far from satisfactory It was pointed out, however, that had storage not been available for cherries far greater losses would have occurred.

Manager W. McL. Cooper spoke at some length on various angles of the operation of the exchange business. He pointed out that the growers now owned, free of debt, the prosperity and equipment, and a general meeting of the members would be called shortly to pass upon a plan of allocating shares to the members for their financial interests in these holdings. The purchase of this property has been a hard struggle extending over the past 11 years.

In addition to the more than doubled carload shipping as compared with 1933, the express shipments had greatly increased, and both movements had overtaxed the warehouse capacity. A plan is to be submitted shortly increasing the building and packing equipment should the 1935 crop promise to be as big as 1934.

Terms of office of two directors, James Compton and James Carr, had expired. Mr. Carr refused renomination and his place on the board is taken by L. Littlejohn. Mr. Compton was elected to succeed himself. At a subsequent meeting of the directors, officers for 1935 were elected as follows: President, James Compton; vice-president, John Hall; secretary, J. W. Hamilton; directors, L. T. Leveque, J. M. Craigie, Percy Boffey, H. A. Dodd, L. Littlejohn. Manager W. McL. Cooper; auditor, Robert Cheyne, C.A.

3300 ACRES IN CROP

Some 3300 of the 3500 acres comprising the north end of the old Reclamation Farm will be in crop this year. By the end of the week 2000 acres will be seeded, and balance will be under crop not later than May 25 at the rate seeding is at present proceeding, and given average May weather.

Ploughing, cultivating and seeding are all progressing simultaneously. Not withstanding the two or three years the farm has been idle the land is breaking up splendidly and for the most part cultivating is much easier than might have been expected. In a trip over the farm this week one could not help but be struck with the thorough attention being paid to have the land in the best possible shape before putting the seeders to work.

The intention is to plant the bulk of the farm to wheat, but there are some low spots that will be late in drying up and these will most likely be sown to oats. The weather has been ideal for drying up the area which has had little or no effort at interior drainage, and this will be all the more evident when it is noted that hardly more than 200 acres will go uncropped.

For the seeding of the farm about 5500 bushels of wheat have been purchased and hauled to the farm. It was shipped in from Macleod, Alta., and if all of it is of the same high quality as that going into the drills Friday afternoon, the 1935 yields should not only be satisfactory, but of high grade.

The Hours of Work act have nothing to do with spring operations on the big farm, and as to equipment the operators can show the maximum of completed work for hours spent on the job. Of particular interest is the work under way on the tract handled by Christensen brothers who are now using the 40 horsepower Diesel powered caterpillar used on dyke clearing operations to haul a 28-foot drill which is seeding six acres an hour, and a showing of 120 acres for the 24-hour shift. The big seeder takes 22 bushels of wheat to fill it, and with this supply it takes care of 12 acres of land without a stop to refill.

HAULING HUGE PLOUGH

The big Diesel "cat" is also hauling an eight-bottom plough with a showing of 60 acres of breaking in a run of 24 hours. On the other locations the operators are utilizing four bottom ploughs and 14-foot seeders with gratifying results.

In addition to the Christensens (Henry and Clarenve), others who are cropping the north end include Dudley, Jared and "Tot" Rogers, Lawrence Bishop, Guy Garretson, Charles Kirk, William Piper, William Griffin and L. Stark. The latter five are owners of land at the south end of the farm, but have taken on acreage at the north end for 1935, with assurance that the south end will be dyked this season and be available for cultivation this fall and crop next year. A. L. Palmer is also interested in a tract this year, and some of the land belonging to C. C. French is situated in the north end unit.

Dyking work at the north end of the project has been completed for for some days, and this week the dragline is operating along the Dutchy ridge and has now less than a mile of quite low dyke to finish to make a complete job of dyking in the north unit, which comprises about one third of the dyke that will have to be constructed to enclose both the south and north ends.

5½ MILE DYKE

The new dyke, now almost completed is about 5½ miles in length. It starts at a point along the old dyke near Nick's bridge and proceeding southwest for about a mile runs alongside French's slough through to the Dutchy ridge which it follows across to the Kootenay river.

The dyke at the north end, which is 18 feet high, was put in first and has "set" in capital shape. It is dragline built, with the work done by the W. Dale machine, which has been operating steadily 24 hours a day since December. The dyke gradually slopes down toward the ridge where it has a height of five feet. Splendid material for construction has been found the whole way. The high dyke has a base of 94 feet, with six-foot top. The inside slope is 1½ and on the outside the slope is 2½. Ample core ditch has been put in to make sure there will be no seepage. The borrowpit is on the outside. In the operation of the bulldozer for clearing the dyke right of way a 40 h.p. Diesel powered caterpillar tractor was used with the best of results at a considerable saving in operating cost. On the 5½ miles of dyke it is estimated 61 acres of right of way were cleared.

The contract for the dyking was taken by Christensen brothers from G. S. Saulter, trustee in bankruptcy for the defunct Kootenay Valley Power & Delevopment Co., Ltd., promoted by H. S. Amon, which has more than a few creditors in Creston and vicinity. Under the agreement entered into by the Christensens it is satisfactory to learn that not only have the interests of the landowners under the Amon and the company agreements been generously protected, but care has also been taken to safeguard the interests of all having claims against the defunct company.

After the season of high water the Christensen agreement stipulates that dyking work must be resumed and carried on continuously until such time as the south end of the farm is given the same splendid protection that has been afforded the north end of the farm. With both the north and south units in crop in 1936 there will come into production about 7500 acres.

• Several acres of the dyked lands of Creston Reclamation Company, Limited, will be tried out to seed peas and beans this season as result of a visit at the first of the week from Mr. O'Loane, of the O'Loane, Kiley & Co., Vancouver, who was returning to the coast after a visit to Lethbridge, Alta., where he contracted for several hundred acres to be sown to peas and beans on the big Lethbridge Northern irrigation district.

Mr. O'Loane was shown over the dyked area here by Messrs. C. W. Allan, W. Donaldson and F. V. Staples of the board of trade industries committee, and expressed himself more than confident that the cultivated land he saw on the flats should be ideal for pea and bean culture.

Several sacks of each seed are to be sent Mr. Staples, who will arrange for the planting, cultivation and harvest, and if the crop is of the high quality expected Mr. Loane assures he will be back this fall to contract for the growing of seed, the firm being in the market for a crop of 5000 acres in western Canada.

On the Lethbridge Northern project prices of $38 per ton, for broadcast, and $41 per ton for peas grown in rows is offered this year. Beans, in rows only, $50 per ton.

Plan Bring Families From England to Settle in the Columbia Valley

INVERMERE, B. C., May 13—General Hornby, D.S.O., has left on his return to England.

Thursday he addressed a public meeting under auspices of the district Canadian Legion and the Windermere board of trade, on his colonization scheme.

This scheme is to assist agricultural emigration from England, and form settlement in suitable areas, where the newcomers will have supervision and instruction in the most suitable forms of agriculture for the part in which they are settled. This supervision will extend for the period of five years, and at the end of that time, if any of the settlers prove unable or unfit to "make a go" of things they will be returned to their home places in England.

The money for this scheme will be procured entirely in England; in fact, it is waiting for suitable areas to be chosen in each province by Canadian committees. The main idea is that such areas will be convenient to good schools, hospitals and churches, so that the whole family wants may be provided for and congenial communities established, that the loneliness of new settlers will not be felt.

General Hornby has already established one such settlement in Prince Edward Island and has others in view.

He has placed a newcomer on his farm here, Mr. Davis and family, who came originally from Wales, and settled in the flooded area of last spring on Langley Prairie and who left that part to look for land in the interior of British Columbia.

Mr. Farnham has a gang of men at work on the road leading to his mining prospects in the Nichelson basin preparatory to resuming development work. He expects to bring in, when roads and weather permit, two compressor air drills and one electric drill, and will push development work as rapidly as possible, in the hope of shipping early in the fall.

JUBILEE CELEBRATION

The Silver Jubilee celebration was carried through with splendid success, and the cancer fund will be enriched by over $300 from the Windermere district parading to their own churches.

Monday ceremonies opened in the Legion hall, when A. M. Chisholm, government agent, spoke on the object of the celebration. Rev. Clark Stewart gave the invocation. School children of the district, sang "Oh Canada" directed by Miss Dora Bodecker. Rev. F. Stanford gave the address.

Mr. Chisholm asked the audience to endorse the following cable which was sent to the Hon. R. Randolph Bruce, who is now in London, and will be at Buckingham palace, to present to their Majesties—"Please convey to their Most Excellent Majesties, King George and Queen Mary, heartiest congratulations and sincerest felicitatons for future from loyal residents of Columbia valley, now celebrating jubilee."

At the fair grounds various races and sports took place.

The Mastedon Minstrel show was put on by residents of Edgewater. It drew great applause from a crowded house, several encores being responded.

A huge bonfire was lighted afterwards, then the hall was again cleared for the dance. This proved to be the best attended dance ever held in the district.

Senator Dr. J. H. King is visiting East Kootenay, and was in Invermere Thursday, meeting several of the residents.

Miss K. Heath, of Arnside, Westmorland, Eng., who was a house guest of Mrs. A. M. Hamilton at Kootenai Lodge, Invermere Height for a week, has returned to Uranch, Edgewater, where she is making a prolonged visit to her sister, Mrs. Eric Smith.

Mrs. A. M. Hamilton of Kootenai Lodge is in Trail attending the annual diocesan meetings of the W.A. of the Diocese of Kootenay, of which she is on the executive as Diocesan editor and secretary-treasurer of the Dominion W. A. official organ, "The Living Message".

Reminiscent of the warning against the coming of the Spanish Armada, and other historic occasions, beacons on 1600 headlands and hill tops were lighted by Boy Scouts of England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland. The Scouts of India and Australia and other parts of the empire carried on the chain.

STREET RAILWAY IS UNDER REPAIR

HANDLE FEWER DIME LETTERS

Humorous Missives Being Circulated at Nelson

The chain letter craze has apparently spent itself in Nelson. Since Saturday, when approximately 4000 dime-chain letters were circulated through the Nelson post office, there has been a decided drop in the number handled. The peak of the circulation was Saturday and by Monday the city was about swamped with letters from many states across the border. From all indications few will figure in the receipt of dimes promised by the letters. One Nelsonite who got in on the ground floor, has only received about 50 cents to date.

The chain letter craze has taken a humorous trend and letters offering fictitious rewards and bearing fictitious names to correspond with the gist of the letter are being circulated.

GYROS HEAR OF EARLY HISTORY

R. G. Joy Tells Early Day Incidents and Anecdotes

In a series of interesting anecdotes and yarns, R. G. Joy, historian for the Nelson Old Timers Association, gave a vivid sketch of early days in Nelson and district for members of the Nelson Gyro Club at a club luncheon in the Hume silver ball room Monday night. S. Hayden was program chairman and following Mr. Joy's talk considerable business was dispensed with. W. M. Myers, who with Charles Morris and P. H. Sheffield form the parks committee, described work planned for Gyro park. In a discussion later the question of a drinking fountain, repairs to the pool and the reconstruction of the steps from the road down to the pool was dealt with. A. Bruce Grady was present and presented figures for a drinking fountain.

Members voted the purchase of a cup for the Kootenay Boundary schools track meet which is to be held in Trail May 25.

L. V. Rogers, principal of the senior high school, wrote asking the club for representation at a meeting to be held soon to consider an adult education scheme for the city. P. E. Sheffield was named to act as the club's delegate.

Plans in connection with Jack Morris' attendance at the international convention to be held in Indianapolis were also discussed.

Chief of Police Alex Stewart asked the members to be on hand at the Recreation grounds Wednesday evening at 5:15 when Gyros and Kinsmen meet in mortal combat in softball lists. Chief Stewart is hoping to fly the Gyro flag at the top of the staff if his wards don't overtrain.

Guests of the club included A. Bruce Grady, Gerry Shapter, and R. G. Joy.

Early characters and humerous incidents that stamped their names upon his memory were paraded out one by one by the speaker.

He told of the time when Joe Downs, a tight rope walker who demonstrated his abilities over the gap now laid bare by the burning of the Nelson opera house, made liquor stand. Downs walked into the Manhattan saloon one day and a friend ordered the drinks. Downs took the bottle and served himself liberally. "You couldn't get another drop in the glass if you tried," the bartender remarked as he saw the demise of the bottle. Downs said he could and they placed their bets. The tight rope walker wrapped a paper around his glass, adding two or three more inches to its sides, and calmly emptied in the bottle.

Biographies of Capt. William Seaman, retired C.P.R. lake and river captain, who with Mr. Shannon of Willow Point are the only two remaining men who assisted with the construction of the steamer Nelson, and others followed.

The old Nelson made her first trip May 24, 1891, to Ainsworth and carried 200 passengers. The boat also took the first 1000 tons of ore from the Slocan. The ore was smelted in the United States.

Early history of the Nelson opera house, an interesting account of a station robbery, some of side-lights of Jack Kirkup's activities and other events were described.

The station robbery in 1891 brought out an interesting sidelight. Billy Elson, C.P.R. conductor, sold lots on Stanley and Victoria street to the late Harold Selous and the $600 he paid for the two of them was part of the $1400 haul made by the robber.

Mr. Joy also gave an account of his own entry into Nelson, and of high water stories.

OUTPUT AT NELSON POWER PLANT INCREASES FIRST QUARTER 1935

Maintenance Work Is Heavy; Radio Test Is Successful

Increased output at the City of Nelson power plant for the first quarter of 1935 compared with 1934 and an increase in services were shown in the report of R. E. Potter, city electrical engineer, made to the city council Monday night. In addition much maintenance work had been accomplished.

Nelson, according to Mr. Potter's report, has in service 2272 meters each of which is tested and inspected before being put into operation. This year 171 meters had been tested.

Maintenance work has been carried out on all distribution and transmission lines and few interruptions have occurred. To date there had been no interruption to electrical service in the city.

FEW INTERRUPTIONS

Few interruptions had occurred on the North Shore line in spite of heavy snow and these had not inconvenienced the district from Willow Point to the ferry at Nelson, where the majority of the consumers live, owing to the installation of a 20,000 volt sectionalizing switch at Willow Point. This allows the services to be continued to this point in the event of trouble beyond. This had reduced interruption on trouble of this sort to 30 minutes or less.

Considerable work, continued the report, had been done this quarter on the street railway. A new trolley from the Fairview loop to the switch was installed and curves rebuilt. The trolley was centered and reconditioned throughout. Service had been materially improved. A new trolley frog had been installed at Stanley and Latimer streets. Two armatures, burned out during the year, had been rewound, commutators turned and undercut and maintenance equipment put in order.

RADIO TEST SUCCESSFUL

The distribution system on Observatory street had been transferred to the new transmission line poles.

A test was made for radio interference on the new transmission line and it was found no noise could be detected from it.

Six series street lights were installed on Vancouver street and three more lights at various points, all within the city limits.

During the quarter there had been an increase of 19 consumers on the lines, four being new services. It had been necessary to purchase 12 new meters all of which are now in service.

The total output for the power plant in the first quarter was 2,350,000 K. W. H. against a corresponding 2,191,000 K. W. H. in 1934. This represents an increase of over 10 per cent.

EAST TRAIL BEATS ELKS

Veteran Dick Stiles Does Trick Early in Game

TRAIL, B.C., May 13—Dick Stiles, veteran soccer player, who hung up his shoes some 20 years ago, scored the lone goal which won a match of the Trail City Soccer league for East Trail from Elks at Butler Park Monday night to tie the league standing. Every game of the league so far has been a shutout but Elks met their first defeat Monday night. Stiles boomed in a pretty goal from far out after the first 15 minutes of the match. Thistles continually pressed in but the victors set up a splendid defence, Nick Zuk playing a stellar game in goal.

Teams were:

Elks—Baillie, Cruickshank, Russell, Ferguson, Thompson, Kuiar, Carter, McVie, "Sandy" Paterson, A. Crichton and C. Zuk.

East Trail—N. Zuk, Milburn, Jarrett, Fish Christiana, A. Williams, J. Paterson, Dick Stiles, Jackson, Haycock and Burrows.

Dave Minto refereed, A. Laurie and J. Strachan linesmen.

NELSON STREET RY. MAKES GAIN

Receipts on Nelson's street railway showed an increase in April this year over April 1934 and Alderman T. W. Slader chairman of the rail committee received the compliments of Mayor J. P. Morgan for the fine showing when figures were given at Monday night's council meeting.

GARAGEMEN GET BRIEF HEARING

Nelson Council of the Opinion Their Licences Fair

Auto dealers in the City of Nelson are not overtaxed in the opinion of the Nelson city council and on Monday night H. B. Gore, who spoke on behalf of the garagemen, was dismissed with a smile. He protested at payment of $30 in licences when $10 should cover the business. In addition to the licence he pointed out that gasoline pumps on the sidewalk brought in revenues from $20 to $40.

Mayor J. P. Morgan pointed out that the garages were charged for selling autos, or selling parts and for the right to make repairs. This was at $10 a department, equal to $30 which seemed fair.

Mr. Gore instanced the drug stores but got nowhere when informed these stores payed as many as six and seven licences to handle the variety of goods they do. When Mayor Morgan asked the council if they wished to discuss Mr. Gore's proposition there was silence all round the table and the matter died there.

ASSIZES LIKELY TO TAKE A WEEK

Two Cases or Better Every Day for This Week

Nelson's spring assizes, over which Mr. Justice Fisher is presiding, almost certainly will engross the entire week, and may easily go over to next week.

If the trial of Herbert A. McKen, late superintendent of the Forty-Nine creek placer operation by the Black Watch Mines, representing Edmonton capital, on a charge of stealing placer gold from the company which started on Monday, is wound up Tuesday, it will be followed by another criminal case, the charge of arson laid against A. G. MacDonald in connection with the Salmo hotel fire. MacDonald has not retained counsel, and the case promises to be short.

But there will still remain the trial of Lacey James Hollister on three charges of obtaining money or goods under false pretences. The first charge is based on two items of $25 and $525 respectively, the second charge involves $200, and the third, $150. Hollister will be defended by C. B. Garland. Altogether the criminal side of the docket will require three juries, and it is hard to see where much will be left of Wednesday after the third trial is over.

But Wednesday, apart from the finish of the criminal assize, has been allotted by Mr. Justice Fisher to a civil suit and a divorce petition involving outside interests. The civil action is that of D. St. Denis as trustee of Lingle & Johnson property, against F. E. Lehr, for a declaration of ownership of a tractor unit. Beside the Rossland and Slocan City interests, Dr. MacDonald of Trail is a counsel acting for the defendant, Brown & Dawson representing the plaintiff. The divorce case is that of Eleazer William Green of Nelson, whose petition for a divorce from Deanie Rebecca Green, with Sarkis Tersian of Nelson name as co-respondent, has required the presence of a witness from the north country. For this reason it is being given a preferred position on the calendar. Brown & Dawson are counsel for the petitioner, while W. W. Ferguson represents the respondent. Mr. Ferguson told his lordship that H. C. Irving, who has been retained by the co-respondent, did not now expect to appear in court.

Three Trail-Rossland divorce petitions are set down for hearing Thursday. These are the Jewell vs. Jewell, Whitehead vs. Whitehead, and Sillers vs. Sillers cases. Cameron & Richards of Trail are acting for John Thomas Jewell, and D. MacDonald of Trail for Alice Helen Jewell and the co-respondent, Robert McGhie. Cameron & Richards are also acting for Bertha Victoria Whitehead in her petition for a divorce from Richard Whitehead, who so far has not filed a defence. In the Sillers petition, Mr. MacDonald is acting for George O. Sillers, the petitioner, while Cameron & Richards represent both Georgina M. Sillers, the respondent, and F. D. Letoria, the co-respondent.

The final civil suit, Jeremiah Queale of Trail vs. Rae George Ritchie of Kelowna, is set down for Friday. In this case, which asks for possession of a property, Parker Williams of Trail is acting for the plaintiff, and D. MacDonald as agent for W. B. Bredin of Kelowna is counsel for the defendant.

In the McKen case, the trial jury is composed of R. M. Manahan as foreman, William Fowles, T. H. Thurman, C. A. Larson, W. E. Coles, Ross Riley, Alderman A. G. Ritchie, and G. A. Bladworth, all of Nelson; George Jorgenson, Rossland; Sid Cummings, Boswell; W. S. Johnston, Cranbrook; and Alexander Grant, Ainsworth.

The balance of the panel consists of S. C. Latornell, Thomas Parkinson, Joseph Holland, James Morrison, R. R. McCandlish, Ernest Harrison, W. J. McKim, J. E. Annable, Jr., J. H. Graham, Jonas Fielding and C. W. Appleyard, all of Nelson and Harry Hudson, Balfour.

The four added to the panel by Sheriff M. E. Harper by authority of Mr. Justice Fisher, to replace four missing jurors, either away or sick, were Messrs. Coles, Parkinson, Latornell, and Manahan.

"Stop" Will Mean "Stop" In Future

After many years of noble service in which they have done double duty the "stop" signs on Baker street and elsewhere in the city which are really "slow" signs are to be removed and replaced by signs that will tell what they really mean.

For years Nelson motorists have been stopping for "slow" signs at the intersections. Visiting motorists have been slowing for the "slow" signs and Chief of Police Alex Stewart and his force have been in a quandry as to just what to do. While the law calls for stops at the intersections the signs have called for "slow."

So the city council Monday night dismissed the matter in about a minute when they ordered the city engineer to arrange the signs so the police could enforce the law. It will in all probability mean "goodbye" to the troublesome iron "button."

B. A. STIMMEL IS MUSIC HEAD

Trail Festival Body Elects Officers; Name Delegates

TRAIL, B. C., May 13—B. A. Stimmel was reelected president and F. Pennoyer secretary-treasurer of the Kootenay Musical Festival Trail committee at the biennial meeting of the Trail body held at the city hall Monday night. Other officers elected were: Miss Enid Cooper, assistant secretary; Mrs. R. S. G. Anthony, Miss Eva Horwell, Mayor E. L. Groutage, John Backsteader, T. J. Sadler, Theodore Tadgers, J. D. Woodward, William Donnelly, Otto Neiderman, executive. Mrs. Anthony and Mr. Pennoyer were appointed delegates to the district festival conference to be held at Nelson in the near future. The financial statement read by Mr. Pennoyer showed a deficit of $241.42 which will be covered by the guarantees.

A vote of thanks was tendered the guaranteers for responding to the appeal for one third of their guarantee. A vote of thanks was also tendered the members who held office for the past two years.

BARBERS WANT 5:30 CLOSING

Experiment of Last Year Detriment They Declare

Nelson barbers, or at least all but one of them, are protesting against the city by-law which orders closing of their business at 5 o'clock each afternoon. They want to continue open each day until 5:30 o'clock. Many shaves and haircuts are being lost because tradespeople are not able to get into the barber shops before 5 p.m.

Alex Fleming spoke briefly stating that the barbers agreed to the hours last year but had found them detrimental and desired a change. Eight barbers signed the petition.

R. DeGirolamo declared the barbers in seeking a change were attempting to please the public. Last year the system was but a trial and it had not proven satisfactory.

Mayor J. P. Morgan was afraid of establishing a precedent. If the barbers got a change he feared the grocers and butchers might be down the following week seeking amendments. All were governed by the same by-law.

The matter was finally sent to the city solicitor for recommendation and it will be aired again next Monday by the council.

Gain in level Monday by the lake at Nelson was restricted to one-tenth of a foot, the rise for the 24 hours ending late Monday being from 6.5 feet above the low water mark, to 6.6 feet. This is the smallest rise recorded for two or three weeks, and reflects the recent cold weather.

Paving Will Be Done End of June

Council Promises to Speed Project on Vernon Street

Paving of three blocks of Vernon street between Kootenay and Josephine streets will be done by the end of June. This was the statement made at the city council meeting Monday night by Alderman T. H. Waters, chairman of the public works department. His statement followed a request on behalf of Vernon street businessmen headed by Harry Ferguson that the work be done before July so that Vernon street may not be tied up in the two months when the garages and hotels were exceedingly busy and usually "reap their harvest". Others with Mr. Ferguson were H. B. Gore, George Pease and G. M. Benwell.

Mr. Pease asked definitely if the work was to be done or was it still up in the air.

Mayor J. P. Morgan replied that he believed "this council which had pledged itself to do the work, would keep its word."

Some time after the delegation left the council had a long argument about paving policy. Alderman Waters pointed out that the Vernon street job would take $5000 worth of material which was all that was available for the year in the city's coffers. It meant that the Vernon job would be the only permanent work done this year. Unless in future there was a large appropriation for concrete work, possibly a money by-law, he could see no sense in the permanent road policy. He favored repairs to many asphalt streets. Alderman Roy Sharp declared that Nelson had a lot of asphalt streets and they were being patched continually and still they were not good roads.

It all ended when someone remembered the council was already on record to do the Vernon street paving so the council decided to get at it at once.

REV. YOUNGSON GIVEN A CALL

WILL PUSH WORK ON THE CURLING RINK ERECTION

City Forces Will Get in Cement Work on Auditorium Site

TENDERS FOR THE DISMANTELLING

Estimate 95 Per Cent of Rink Can Be Used Again

An order to speed up the work on the curling rink portion of the civic auditorium building was passed along to the auditorium committee by Nelson's city council Monday night. Probably from today on city workmen will be employed in putting in the footing and the retaining wall for the curling rink portion of the building.

Alderman T. H. Waters, chairman of the public works committee, brought up the subject and declared that no time should be lost on the project. Parts of the work had advanced far enough to start some cement work.

Mayor J. P. Morgan branched off into the curling rink angle and suggested calling for tenders for the tearing down of the Rosemont curling rink and its re-erection at the auditorium site. He believed the auditorium committee should get its instructions through the council and that tenders should be called.

Several aldermen objected declaring that contractors working by tender would destroy much of the material that could be re-used. They believed that 95 per cent of the building could be salvaged. Alderman Waters suggested using day labor for the job. Alderman Roy Sharp believed the same firm that took the building down should re-erect it. He mentioned, as a point, the great saving that could be made in re-using the roofing alone. He suggested that the T. H. Waters company be given the job and Aldermen Alick Ritchie and J. E. McKenzie agreed with him. Mayor Morgan was adamant that tenders should be called and he finally won his way. The clerk was ordered to call for tenders. All work will be under supervision of John Burns, foreman in charge at the auditorium.

The council then moved that Mr. Burns be instructed to go ahead with the footings and walls for the curling rink on the new site.

Gyros Will Meet Kinsmen in Ball

Have Game Lined Up for This Week; Chief Stewart Coaching

Gyros and Kinsmen will take to the diamond this week to settle arguments of inferiority when they will meet in a game of ball. As neither team has practised yet, it is a tossup which will be the worse and the betting has reached no appreciable heights at this early date.

Under the leadership of Chief of Police Alex Stewart, who has been reading big league softball coaching data for the last two weeks, the Gyros will throw at the Kinsmen J. E. Annable Jr., Gordon Bennett, George Benwell, R. E. Crerar, Harry B. Horton, George W. Dill, P. E. Poulin, D. Cummins, C. Doctor, George Fleury, G. Lambert, J. D. Notman, R. B. (Jack) Morris and V. Owens. Coach Stewart will use R. E. Crerar as his home run king and will have "Scotty" Notman for sacrifice hitter and bunter.

The Kinsmen will use six coaches, distributed at strategic points of the field. The team will be picked from the following, who will be thrown at the Gyros: "Slim" Horswill, "Bud" Greenwood, Monty Morley, Gordon Roynon, J. B. Stark, Wilfred Bush, Don Lucas, Cecil Lambert, Dr. T. H. Bourque, Dr. Ray C. Shaw, Walter MacDonald, P. C. Richards, Louie Choquette, Robert Taylor.

As with other crops, the surface soil of the rose bed should be kept loose by frequent shallow hoeing or raking. This practice not only keeps down the weeds but allows the air to enter the soil and conserves moisture.

Hominy Cooked in Milk—Drain two cups canned hominy, put through fine food chopper. Add one-fourth teaspoon salt, seven-eighths cup hot milk and cook in double boiler for 30 minutes. Serve with cream and sugar. Serves four.

Orange Cream Pie—One and one-third cups (one can) swetened condensed milk, two tablespoons lemon juice, one-fourth cup orange juice, one cup sliced orange sections, two egg whites, two tablespoons granulated sugar. Blend together sweetened condensed milk, lemon juice, orange juice and drained orange pulp. Chill Pour into pie shell which was baked in an eight-inch pie plate. Cover with whipped cream or meringue. Chill before serving. If meringue is used, beat egg whites until stiff and add sugar. Spread pie and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until brown. To prepare orange pulp: Peel oranges, removing all white membrane. Remove sections, cutting free from membrane. Cut each section in half crossways.

Light and Crisp Yeast Waffles

One cake yeast, two cups scalded milk, one tablespoon sugar, two tablespoons melted butter, two and one-half cups sifted flour, one teaspoon salt, two eggs. Dissolve yeast and sugar in cooled milk. Add butter, flour, salt and well-beaten eggs. Set aside to rise for an hour. Makes six waffles.

It is said that the bristle of clothes brushes are likely to soften and work loose unless they are treated before using. Soak them for 24 hours in a bowl of cold water containing a pinch of salt.

When measuring butter or lard for pastries, dip the cup, spoon or measuring utensil into very hot water before using. If you do this you will not have to dig the fat out; it will slip out easily.

MAN OVERBOARD THROWN A ROPE

But Seaman Forgets to Hang on to the Other End

VANCOUVER, May 13 (CP)—An exciting voyage was reported by members of the crew of the Devon City, Capt. D. C. Lennie of the Reardon-Smith line, when she docked here from Vladivostok. The ship ran into difficulties when she encountered ice-fields and an officer fell overboard during the excitement but was rescued.

The ship left Vladivostok for Vancouver, taking a more southerly route than usual. Without warning she found herself surrounded by ice and in working free she bent and twisted two propellor blades. One blade was so badly bent that it continually struck the frame and the ship was stopped while men went over the stern to chip away the bent corner of the screw to permit free revolution.

During these operations the chief officer fell overboard and a seaman threw him a rope but was so excited that he forgot to hang on to the end of the line. The officer was forced to swim until another line could be thrown him.

The Devon is now in drydock in North Vancouver having her damaged screw replaced.

The good sense of the Canadian and American people was shown in the announcement that the American military authorities were planning to establish hidden air bases for aircraft along the Canadian border. If this had been in Europe, with the suspicious minds of the various countries, one can imagine the flare-up and the excitement. There would be talk of retaliation and even of war.

But no one in either Canada or the United States got high blood pressure over the incident. Ottawa quite properly made inquiries as to what it was all about, but the capital refused to be shaken out of its calm. President Roosevelt, who rises to heights in an emergency, sharply rebuked the militant war generals. Canadian newspapers laughed at the proposed air bases and the American press refused to consider seriously any thought of the Dominion and the Republic ever going to war.

We may have our differences with the United States, but it is inconceivable that these two countries should ever again go to war. We are so intertwined today, socially and economically, we have so much in common, we are such good neighbors, we have so many organizations like Gyros and Rotary, for example, with the same ideals and the same ambitions that no one can imagine any issue which could possibly drag the two countries into hostilities. If the United States want to establish a dozen air bases along the Canadian boundary line, no one in the Dominion will worry.

KIPLING STRIKES A BLOW FOR THE

It is fifty years since Kipling started on the story-telling career in which he has thrilled the English-speaking peoples. But he has, especially in his later years, been more than a teller of stories. He has been, in a manner, unofficial laureate, a prophet of the race, who at the appropriate time said the needed thing as none but he could say it. His "Recessional," published in the London Times immediately after the jubilee celebrations of 1897, was a case in point.

To the jubilee celebrations of 1935 he has contributed a similarly arresting utterance. In a fifteen minute speech before the Royal St. George's Society, he exposed clearly and fully the folly of those who would denude Britain of defence in a world that is armed. His critics will probably accuse him of having joined those who "put their trust in reeking tube and iron shard."

But, as Mr. Kipling himself remarked, though he has dealt in much fiction, he has some respect for facts. England had cast away more than half of its defences, and after ten years had found that its example had not borne much fruit. It was then realized that she had walked far enough along the road that is paved with good intentions. He spoke of the possibility of swift attack and added:

"Before we are aware of it our country may have joined those submerged races of history who passed their children through the fire to Moloch in order to win credit with their god."

The case was put without a superfluous word, and without any appeal to false sentiment. It was a pregnant statement of facts. By those who boast of the righteousness of exposing a defenceless population to the terrors of death from the air, Mr. Kipling's remarks may be regarded as an infelicitous incursion into politics. By those who believe in preserving British life in Britain they must be regarded as a much needed antidote for the poison of widely distributed anti-defence propaganda.

WHAT THE PRESS IS SAYING

DROUGHT IN AFRICA

Farms over hundreds of square miles in the Northern Transvaal are being completely deserted, leaving what has now become a derelict desert area, in consequence of endless drought. The extraordinary sight is being witnessed of groups of farmers with their heartbreaking miles to get away from the ruin and desolation which had once been happy homesteads.

A police oficfer who has just returned from a long ride through the Zoutpansberg states that the district, which includes parts of British Bechuanaland, "is an absolute desert with not a blade of grass" according to his report. "It is too late now for rain. All you can see for miles is nothing but bare earth and dead thorn trees" he adds.

Farmsteads which he occasionally visited in other years are deserted and for weeks he saw farmers tramping south with their wives and children, plodding along through the hot dust of the veld, pictures of hopelessness and misery.

"Stock is dying like flies all along the routes taken by the trekking farmers and wild animals are dying in hundreds" continues this official.

Starvation is facing farmers and natives over thousands of miles in the Piersburg district where the only people who appear to be earning their food are the hundreds of farmers who are working small gold claims where it pays better to scratch the earth for pinhead nuggets of the yellow metal than to attempt stock raising or mealie growing.

From many parts of Southern Bechuanaland the same tale of woe is heard and a deputation of prominent farmers has interviewed the government at Capetown with a view to bringing their district within the Union administration. Cattle over large areas has been sold to cold storage at 20s a head rather than see the animals die a lingering death from starvation during the winter months.

In the meantime the government is pouring out millions—mostly at the expense of the town taxpayer and the Transvaal gold mines—to try and save the farmers. Thousands of land owners prefer road relief work at a few shillings a day, to the impossible task of fighting drought and disease on barren land. It seems as if farming or any attempt at it, over large stretches of the northern parts of the Union, is doomed.—African Press.

A PACKET

The old-time chain-letter racket has hit Victoria once more. It has been running wild in the United States for several weeks. This epidemic, however, is a straight gambling proposition.

Our neighbors on the south have made arrangements to have the circulation of these letters made illegal. That, presumably, is the reason why there is an invasion of Canada.

We are reminded again of our old friend, the Spanish Prisoner—the tale of a great fortune hidden away in a phantom portmanteau, its owner languished in jail, but can release the treasure as soon as he is provided with a fair sum.

By this time most people ought to be wise to the chain-letter racket— now a gambling racket—and the Spanish Prisoner business.—Victoria Times.

TESTED

Jones saw a coin on the floor of the big store. Glancing around cautiously to see that no one was looking, he took his handkerchief from his pocket, dropped it over the coin, then bent down intending to pick both coin and handkerchief up. Alas, the coin stuck fast to the floor, and Jones rose hastily as he heard the shop assistant approaching.

"Excuse me, sir," said the assistant. "But now you have tested the powers of our wonderful glue, maybe you would care to buy a bottle!"

FOR THE SCOTCH

Here's a Scotch yarn they ran recently in the Rossland Miner.

There is a certain Scottish golf course where Sunday play is allowed, and where on one occasion an English player hired a caddie and stood waiting with him on a Sunday morning for his opponent to arrive.

The lovely morning caused the golfer to whistle cheerfully, but no sooner had he started than the caddie threw down the clubs, turned on his heel and walked off.

His employer called to him: "Hi, Macpherson, what's the matter?"

"What's the matter?" repeated Macpherson, crimson with anger. "D'you expect me to carry for a man who whistles on the Sabbath?"

JOSEPH PILSUDSKI REVOLUTIONIST FROM HIS BOYHOOD

Joseph Pilsudski, marshal of Poland, and the real power in that struggling republic through the years of its birth pangs, who died Sunday, was generally recognized as father of his country. Yet he was a hot tempered, if fond, parent.

Scornful especially of political maneuverings and bickerings in the Polish diet, he took matters into his own hands in 1929, forced dissolution of the national legislature and by means of a general election obtained a working majority in the sejm, or lower house. He failed, however, to obtain the two-thirds vote that would have enabled him to amend the constitution so as to give the president, a man of his own choice, greater executive power.

Virtually from boyhood Pilsudski was a revolutionist. He was trained first to struggle against Russia; the world war gave him opportunity to exercise his leadership in opposition to Austro-Hungarian and German plans, and eight years after the armistice he headed an uprising that seized the reins of his "Poland redeemed."

Through it all he declined to hold office except when personal control of some department was needed to put his projects into effect. After the coup d'etat of 1926 he was offered the presidency of the country, but declined the post and turned it over to Ignace Moscicki. From November, 1918, to November, 1922, he was provisional head of the new republic. For brief periods thereafter he was premier or minister of war.

Always he was the real head of the army, and, backed by its unswerving loyalty to his personal standard, he kept his country on a rigid course and was, in fact if not in name, a dictator of its policies.

Pilsudski was born in the manner of Zulow, province of Vilna, on December 5, 1867. His parents were of aristocratic Lithuanian lineage, but the family had taken part in an uprising against Russia in 1863, and most of its estates had been confiscated. In 1874 a destructive fire wiped out the Pilsudski farm buildings, and the family moved to Vilna, where it lived very simply on what was left of its fortune.

Young Pilsudski attended a high school in Vilna, but was constantly in trouble with his Russian teachers because he insisted on talking in Polish on the school grounds. Finally, in 1885, he finished his preparatory work and went to the University of Kharkov to study medicine.

But in his first year there he organized a socialist group and was expelled. He went back to his home city, continued his political agitation and in 1887 was arrested on charges of being involved in a plot against the life of Czar Alexander III. He was exiled to eastern Siberia for five years.

That experience failed to cure him, but it made him more cautious, and he was not arrested again until 1900. He was sentenced to prison, but managed to escape and settled in Cracow, then an Austrian possession. He started at once to organize secret Polish fighting squads in anticipation of an eventual war between Austria and Russia.

In 1905, when Japan was fighting Russia in Manchuria, he went to Tokyo and tried to get backing for an uprising in the Russian rear, but failed to convince the Japanese that his plan was feasible.

His chance came when the world war started in 1914. He entered the Austrian army as commander of a Polish legion and took part in the fighting against Russia in South Poland. From this he progressed to a scheme for an independent Polish army as a nucleus of a rebirth of the nation, but Austria refused to sanction the plan, and Pilsudski quit active service.

He was summoned from this retirement in 1916 when the central powers, at the behest of the German high command, proclaimed an intention to free Poland. Pilsudski was made a member of the provisional government in Warsaw, but soon quarreled with the German organizers of the council. When the Polish legionnaires refused to take an oath of fraternity with the German army, Pilsudski was arrested and imprisoned at Magdeburg. He stayed there until the collapse of the central powers in November, 1918.

He entered Warsaw on November 10, a national hero, and two days later was proclaimed head of the state. In February, 1919, the diet of the new republic made him provisional president, pending a constitutional election. The constitution was not adopted until 1921, and it was 1922 before a regular election was held.

In 1923 he retired also as chief of the general staff, remaining at a country home at Sulejowek, near Warsaw, until his coup d'etat of 1926.

M. Pilsudski was married in 1894, while he was engaged in his socialist agitation against the czars, to Marie Tuszkiewicz. She shared many of his early trials and was arrested with him in 1900, but was soon released. Two daughters were born to them, and in later years the dictator would interrupt councils of state to hear his children's accounts of their day in school.

Poland had a hard row to hoe after its recreation as a nation in the closing days of the world war. Its domestic and foreign disturbances were direct heritages of attempts of both the central powers and the allies to gain control of Polish resources and man power.

The opening of the war saw all except a few thousand of Pilsudski's secret military squads caught in the Russian, Austrian and German drafts. One Polish committee was organized at Cracow, aimed at making the country a third party to the dual Austro-Hungarian monarchy. Another council at Warsaw professed allegiance to the czar and was promised autonomy for Poland within the Muscovite empire.

This latter dream faded in 1915 when the central powers drove the Russians out of Poland. A year later Austrian reverses placed the control of Polish affairs in the hands of the German high command, and General Erich Ludendorff engineered proclamation of a monarchy that would be in close alliance with the central powers. It was this scheme in which Pilsudski was engaged when he was incarcerated in Magdeburg.

Meanwhile Ignace Paderewski, directly in the rear of the Baker street store of the Lawrence Hardware company, have been sold for $2000 to the hardware company, by R. J. Bealey, through A. R. Sherwood.

Joseph Pates, known as "Old Joe", an Oxford bellringer, aged 82, has assisted at 3500 weddings and tolled the bell for 16,000 funerals. He has been Parish Clerk for 61 years.

claims to Poland. But Austria thereupon tried to include parts of the country in a semi-independent Ukranian state, a move which aroused the Poles to such an extent that they withdrew their support from Ludendorff's government at Warsaw. The Pilsudski legionnaires who were still in the armies of the central powers mutinied and some of them fought their way to the sea, going to France and joining Haller's troops.

Meanwhile Great Britain, France and Italy had joined in Wilson's pronouncement for an independent Poland, and with the collapse of Germany and Austria the new state was proclaimed October 6, 1918. Pilsudski came from Magdeburg to head the new government.

He tried to run the country first with a leftist cabinet, but ran into difficulties. In December Paderewski composed his differences with the fighter and took over the premiership. Leaving the pianist to prosecute Poland's cause in the political field, Pilsudski devoted himself to the military aspects.

Haller's men were brought from France as the nucleus of a national army which soon grew to 800,000. An attempt to oust soviet troops from East Galicia brought on a war with Russia and fighting continued through 1919 and until October, 1920. At one stage the red army was at the gates of Warsaw, but General Weygand and a mission from the French general staff came to the aid of the Poles who rallied under Pilsudski and drove the Russians beyond their borders. The peace of Riga, signed in March, 1921, contained Russian recognition of Polish sovereignty.

At the same time Poland was embroiled with Lithuania over Pilsudski's native district of Vilna. There was some fighting late in 1920, ended by an armistice in October. But the day before this truce was to go into effect the Polish general, Zeligowski, seized the disputed city. Poland disowned the general but did not recall him and eventually Poland's possession of Vilna was confirmed by the allies and the League of Nations.

Despite these military successes there were many sources of opposition to Pilsudski. His dictatorial methods and unbridled language, the racial and religious feelings aroused by minorities' questions, and the economic and financial difficulties of the new government combined to keep partisianship at a white heat.

They operated too a delay completion of the constitution and it was November, 1922, before the first regular parliament was elected. This legislature was fairly well divided between the nationalists, on the right, and a group of peasant parties under Wicente Witos. But neither had a majority and the balance of power was held by a small group of socialists and a bloc representing various minorities.

These latter elements combined with the Witos forces to elect Narutowicz, a friend of Pilsudski, as first president. The nationalists were infuriated to think that German's, Jews, Ruthenians and other minorities had thus had a decisive hand in choosing the chief executive and a month later Narutowicz was assassinated. The act sobered public opinion and Mojiechowski, an old member of Pilsudski's Polish socialist party, was elected.

The marshal went into retirement, but internal dissensions arose again. Cabinet after cabinet fell and from his country retreat Pilsudski gave out bitter criticisms of the diet's conduct of governmental affairs and of the methods used in administering in the army.

In the spring of 1926 Witos was premier for the third time and gave signs of switching his appeal to the right wing in parliament. On May 12 Pilsudski suddenly reappeared in Warsaw, in uniform and leading armed forces.

The government denounced him as a rebel. Two days of street fighting followed, then the marshal was in control of the capital. The Witos cabinet was ousted and President Wojiechowski resigned. Three days later Pilsudski declined the presidency and Moscicki was elected.

The marshal became premier and secretary of war. He put through several constitutional reforms strengthening the presidency but stopped short of establishing a one party control system. Instead he organized a non-partisan government block which so seriously split the old parties that in the elections of March 4 and 11, 1928, his organization won 128 of the 446 seats in the sejm and 53 of the 100 senate places.

Pilsudski thereupon quit the premiership but retained a first mortgage upon the war department. Lack of a positive government majority resulted in continued parliamentary bickering and the old revolutionist finally lost patience again.

On October 31, 1929, army officers entered the lobbies of parliament and the speaker refused to call the house to order under menace of their side arms. There was a 30 day truce, but reassembling of parliament resulted only in a vote of non-confidence and resignation of the cabinet.

It was May, 1930, before President Moscicki called the diet back to Warsaw and then he prorogued it. A bitter election campaign followed. In the midst of it Pilsudski announced that he would regard the voting as a referendum whereby the people would decide whether they were for or against him. The response gave the government bloc 249 seats, an absolute majority of 55 in the lower house.

Opponents of Pilsudski charged that terroristic methods alone had enabled the party to make this gain. They declared that opposition candidates had been disqualified by illegal methods, that voters had been browbeaten, and that many of the leaders had been imprisoned on trumped-up charges. One estimate said that 88 former deputies were thus incarcerated.

A score of these prisoners were held in the military prison at Brest-Litovsk. They included Barlicki and Liebermann, president and vice-president of the socialist party; Korfanty, a Christian democrat and one of the chief leaders in the pre-war struggle for independence; Sjolkosz, a prominent socialist deputy and Witos.

Eleven of these men were committed for trial but it was not until October 26, 1931, that they faced a court, charged with subversive activities. The proceedings lasted until January 13, 1932, when 10 of the 11 were convicted and sentenced to terms of prison varying from 18 months to three years. Witos was condemned to 18 months.

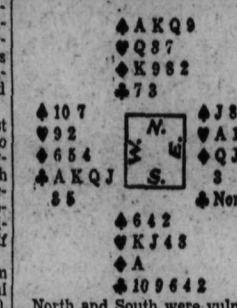
A HAND FROM MIAMI

Here is a very interesting hand played by W. W. Fentress at Miami. Think of it both from the standpoint of safety at rubber bridge, and from the duplicate standpoint of trying for top score on the hand.



North and South were vulnerable when West dealt. Bidding went: North, 1 spade; South, 2 diamonds; North, 3 spades, to force; South 4 clubs; North, 4 spades; South, 5 clubs, to show that his two minor suits were of equal length; North, 6 clubs; West doubled on apparently a certain trick in diamonds and a toss-up trick in hearts. All passed, with Fentress the declarer.

There is a certain small slam at clubs, against any defence; 4 spade tricks, 2 heart tricks, 1 diamond trick and 5 club tricks. Against perfect defence no strategy should yield an added trick.

The opening lead of the Q of clubs probably was a singleton. If very long in trumps it is probable that West would lead another suit. The natural method of playing the hand is to at once pull trumps, leaving South with a single long trump. Second the lone spade would be led, overtaken with dummy's ace, intending to give opponents a single trick in the suit and leading off that suit. That process would yield 5 spade tricks, in addition to 5 trump tricks and the two red aces.

South played the hand more adventurously. He won the first trick with dummy's K of clubs, then led the ace of spades. Had the K not dropped from East's hand nobody can predict what might have taken place. If a second spade had to be led and lost to the K in West's hand and a heart return removed the ace of that suit the dummy would be dead. However, that did not happen. When the K of spades fell under dummy's ace, South led a second, low spade. East foolishly ruffed. South overruffed. The ace of diamonds was led, followed by the Q. West covered with the K. Dummy ruffed with the 4. A good spade was returned. East ruffed and South overruffed. The declarer led a low diamond. Dummy's last trump was played. Another good spade was led, with another ruff and overruff, leaving South able to pick up East's last trump. Diamonds were established. Dummy held a good spade upon which to discard declarer's losing heart, and giving him a grand slam, which never could have been made unless East had ruffed spades. To-morrow we will see how the hands would fare at no trumps.

FILLING IN CRACKS

(By DEAN HALIDAY)

Central Press Garden Expert

When grass is not being used, the cracks between flagging or stepping stones should be planted with very hardy and low-growing perennial plant material. These spots often receive rough treatment and any sensitive plant would not last long.

One of the very best plants for this purpose is Arenaria caespitosa, a very attractive plant which does not mind being walked upon. In case you should kick off a bit of the plant it will root where ever it falls and become still another plant! It is also known as Golden Moss. Its flowers are inconspicious.

Many thymes may be used, such as our native wild thyme, Serpyllum, which may be had in deep red or white. Seed-cake thyme is another. It is a prostrate growing thyme, and a fairly rapid grower too.

There are many very lovely and interesting sedums to use. The sedums Glaucum are of dense carpeting habit. Sedum Sarmentosum, with bright yellow flowers, is a good low growing type of this plant.

Sedum Brevifolium, only about one inch in height, is a good creeping plant, with its white flowers. Sedum Dasyphyllum has white and pink flowers. Both are low growing, about two inches.

DUNA

When I was a little lad
With folly on my lips,
Fain was I for journeying
All the seas in ships.
But now across the southern swell,
Every dawn I hear
The little streams of Duna
Running clear.

When I was a young man,
Before my beard was gray,
All to ships and sailormen
I gave my heart away.
But I'm weary of the sea-wind,
I'm weary of the foam,
And the little stars of Duna
Call me home.

SAFETY SAMMY SAYS — By E. Geo. Green

EXERCISES AND DIET RULES FOR MOTHER

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

Perhaps the most important thing for the prospective mother's health is for her not to worry about it too much. Nature will take care of things pretty well: she has done so many times before. If she has been assured by her physician that her general condition is normal, there are only a few simple rules she need follow.

Sleep is more important than even exercise or recreation, and every such patient should sleep at least eight hours a day. Nature usually attends to this also, and a tendency to be sleepy frequently is a natural accompaniment of the condition. It should be indulged.

Plenty of fresh air, especially in the sleeping room, is imperative.

Bathing is even more important than under normal conditions. The skin is an organ of elimination and of heat regulation, and should be kept in the pink of condition now that the individual has two to eliminate for and to regulate temperature for.

The advisability of exercise is largely a matter of circumstances. For some, it is essential. For others, it is hazardous. If the patient feels well, and feels like exercising, it is always desirable to let her try. If the first attempts are refreshing and not tiring, they should be continued. The best form of exercise is walking, and it should be continued only to the point of pleasant and reasonable fatigue.

Under special circumstances, special exercises and postures, such as the kangaroo walk (walking on all fours with the knees stiff) and the knee-chest position, are beneficial but only when medical advice has suggested them.

SPECIAL DIET UNNECESSARY

Diet needs no elaborate supervision. Sometimes a special diet is necessary, but not often. The important thing is to eat enough, and not try to stuff, on the theory that the mother is now eating for two. The second one isn't very big, for a long time, and doesn't require very much. A general wholesome diet is all that is necessary. Extra minerals, especially calcium, is advisable, but that can easily be supplied by extra milk. Raw fruits, especially oranges, are also helpful in supplying the accessory food factors.

The following diet, published in a recent sensible book of advice on this subject, is an indication of modern ideas:

"We suggest a diet as follows, with no intention that it includes everything permissible or that it is all necessary, but that it is sufficient. Selections may be made from it with safety.

"Fluids: Any kind, freely.

"Raw foods: Milk, cream, butter, oranges, bananas.

"Bread and cereal free from bran.

"Meats: Any kind: Steaks, chops, roast meats, fowl, bacon, eggs, cheese, etc.

"Fruits: Cooked fruit of any kind. As much of the peeling as possible should be removed. Add sugar if desired.

Vegetables: Potatoes, tomatoes, peas, beans, corn. Cook all thoroughly. All of the coarser vegetables should have the peeling and the fiber removed as much as possible, and should be thoroughly cooked if they are used."

An abdominal binder or support and well fitting bassieres are advisable and comfortable.

In the rare cases where there is a great deal of headache, blurring vision or vomiting at an abnormal time, the attending physician should be immediately notified.

Two of Ring's Best Meet in Ross-McLarnin Fight

'Rubber' Match Will Be Youth Vs. Lethal Punch

(Second of a Series)

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

New York's new Twentieth Century club makes its bow May 28, with a battle for the welterweight championship between two of the best fighting men in the ring today, Jimmy McLarnin and Barney Ross.

The Canadian Irishman from Vancouver and the Jewish jabber from Chicago proved in two rousing settos last year to be so evenly matched that ringsiders who saw both bouts still are arguing the boys' merits.

When Ross won the decision and the welter title from the baby-faced Harp last May, many questioned the verdict. In their return match in September, McLarnin accomplished what seldom is seen in ringdom when he regained his title. But the second fight, too, found many who thought Ross had earned no worse than a draw.

The stories of how these two boys won their way from obscurity to wealth and fame is as romantic as any the ring has seen. McLarnin was a 14-year-old kid with a little gym in the basement of his father's store in Vancouver, B.C., when he met Pop Foster.

SEVERAL MEALS DELAYED

Pop had recovered from world war wounds in a Vancouver hospital. He took an interest in the lad with the straight left and roaring right hand. With the consent of Jimmy's parents they fared into the world together, their union based upon honest understanding rather than legal contract. They were not only manager and boxer. They were friends.

Pop almost had to fight himself to get Jimmy engagements. They went up and down the Pacific coast, postponing many meals. Finally Jimmy was put on with a tough youngster in Oakland, and surprised the promoter by winning.

From that start—at $125 per night—McLarnin blasted his way to the welter title when he defeated Young Corbet III in 1933, and his fists won fortunes for Pop, Jimmy's parents and himself.

In 13 years of fighting, McLarnin has punched out a brilliant ring record. Three years ago when he lost to Lou Brouillard he seemed to be slipping. It appeared the title would forever elude him. But he came back to knock out San Francisco's Corbett in the first round, winning the championship.

The story of Ross is remarkably similar. Barney's father, a grocer named Rasofsky, was killed by hold-up men in his store in a tough Chicago district. Barney's fists became breadwinner for his mother, brothers and sister.

The Jewish boy got his start in the Chicago Golden Gloves. He fought his way up in short order to become Tony Canzoneri's most formidable challenger for the lightweight title.

HELD TWO TITLES

He beat Canzoneri in a hair-raising battle in Chicago, gave Tony a return chance in New York, and beat him again. Recently, he announced abdication of his lightweight championship, admitting inability to make the weight.

Most of Barney's fights lately with lightweights have been over-the-weight affairs that proved little more than workout exhibitions. The title was not at stake and the boy from the Ghetto was not pressed to win. Frankie Klick did give him trouble, however, in a draw.

As a welter Barney scored the outstanding ring feat of 1934, holding two titles at the same time after his defeat of McLarnin. The ring also is under obligation to Barney for his gift of fighting color. Not rugged in appearance, he has shown great skill—one of the best left hands in the sport today—and he will stand up there and trade punches when the going is rough.

Without the handicap of taking off five to six pounds facing him, Ross is sure to be a stronger fighter than he was a year ago. He has a good chance to write the end of the championship chapter for the tough little Irishman.

Because of the power in his right, odds probably will favor McLarnin. Youth will be on Ross' side, and a left hand like Benny Leonard's.

The winner? It's like guessing a Britton-Ted Kid Lewis bout. Offhand, McLarnin.

NEW GRAND CUBS ARE SET TO GO

Practice Wednesday; Have Game Lined Up for May 25

Uniforms have arrived for the New Grand Cubs, according to Manager Pete Kapak, and the boys are all set to go. They will be out for a practise Wednesday afternoon and will start getting into shape for May 24. It is not known yet what team they will meet, but they will be taking on some outside nine.

So far there are only the new Grand Cubs and the Savoy team in the intermediate loop, but it is expected that Fairview will enter a team. This is particularly gratifying to the Cubs, states Mr. Kapak as they crave opposition in the worst way.

REMEMBER WHEN?

(By The Canadian Press)

Four years ago today at Geneva the Olympic council turned down Canada's invitation and awarded the 1936 Olympic games to Germany. The chief reason for refusing Canada was that the 1932 games were scheduled to be held on this continent, at Los Angeles.

MIDDLESEX WINS

LONDON, May 13 (CP cable)—Middlesex won its second straight victory of the county cricket season today, defeating Worcestershire by four wickets at Lord's. The match was a low-scoring affair, the visitors scoring 114 and 146, Middlesex replying with 161 and 100 for six wickets.

Leicestershire sprang a surprise by winning from Sussex by an innings and 50 runs, Sussex, second in the county championship table last year, were dismissed for 66 to 74 while Leicestershire compiled 190. Geary and Smith were mainly responsible for Leicestershire's victory. In the two innings Geary captured 11 wickets for 40 runs, Smith taking eight for 83.

Close of play scores in other matches started Saturday were:

Hampshire 434 and 82 for three wickets; Kent 479 (Fagg 122, Levett 76, Woolley 74, Wright 65); at Portsmouth.

Nottinghamshire 250 and 163 for six wickets; Gloucestershire 288 (Neale 73, Page 60, Voce five wickets for 83 runs) at Nottingham.

Northamptonshire 171 and 134 for four wickets (Timms 72 not out); Sommerset 285 (Case 60, J. Lee 59, Clark four for 65); at Taunton.

Lancashire 498 for seven wickets, declared; Oxford University 239 (Mitchell-Innes 102) and 78 for four wickets; at Oxford.

South Africans 367 and 178 for two wickets (Siedle 65 not out); Surrey 266 (Fishlock 62, Gregory 53) at Oval.

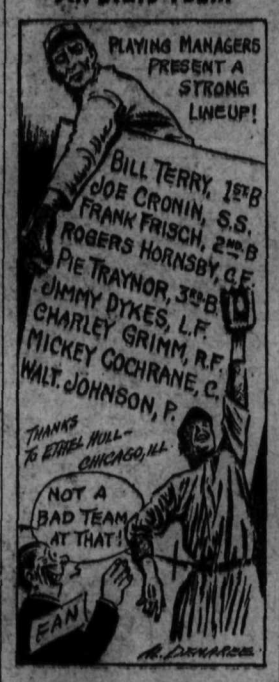
Playing Managers' All Stars Team



By AL DEMAREE
Former Pitcher New York Giants

For a brainy as well as brawny team (presumably these guys have brains—they're running the works) you might try this lineup of managers: Bill Terry, Giants, 1b; Frankie Frisch, Cardinals, 2b; Joe Cronin, Red Sox, ss; Jimmy Dykes, White Sox or Pie Traynor, Pirates, 3b; Charlie Grimm, Cubs, Rogers Hornsby, Browns, and Dykes or Traynor, outfield; Mickey Cochrane, Tigers, and Jimmy Wilson, Phillies, catcher; Walter Johnson, Indians, pitcher. A few shifts of their normal positions are necessary to make this managerial juggernaut of the diamond meet the requirements of a complete lineup, but nothing radical has been done. For instance, in the case of Grimm, Cubs, I am sure he will not mind being called on outfielder—just in fun. Not long ago Grimm told me with his own lips that he believed a callow youth named Cavarretta was capable of running him off first base; in that case, nobody is likely to kick up a fuss over a guy named Terry.

The Old Scout Says: The late John J. McGraw made the highest major league batting average among third basemen, playing ten or more seasons. Hitting with an average of .334 for fourteen seasons.

Donovan Golfed as Boy on Home Links

Manitoba's Hope of Team for England Started Early

Following is the 12th and last of a Canadian Press series of 12 sketches on Canadian tennis and golf players who will compete in British and Scottish tournaments this season.

WINNIPEG, May 13 (CP)—Daniel James "Bud" Donovan, who is Manitoba's representative on the Canadian golf team touring Great Britain, started playing the game before Father Time began pinning double figures on his age.

Donovan will be 21 years old June 8. He first entered competitive golf in 1923, being the youngest junior in the field. He cut quite a figure traversing the fairways and greens with his curly head just reaching the top of his golf bag, but he did not place among older players.

In 1929 Bud captured his first championship, the Manitoba junior title. He entered the final of this competition with Bobby Reith, another of Manitoba's outstanding young golfers, and posted an 18-hole total of 75, the lowest ever carded in the event. The slim, Irish youth has been feared in all tournaments since then.

He has been champion of Niakwa Golf club three times, Manitoba open champion and city and district titlist. But captained the University of Manitoba golf team in inter-provincial play last year. He has also entered in the Canadian amateur championship in the last two years.

Last year Donovan and Reith played in an exhibition game with Gene Sarazen, present holder of the Augusta, Ga., open title, and Joe Kirkwood, famous trick-shot artist. Both Sarazen and Kirkwood had praise for the Manitoba youths.

Donovan is just as enthusiastic about his studies as he is about golf. He is a first-year science student at the University of Manitoba. His father is Mr. Justice W. J. Donovan of the Manitoba King's bench.

In the 72-hole medal playoff to decide Manitoba's representative on the team, Donovan and Reith ran one-two. Bobby led by two strokes after the first 36 holes but Bud finished a single stroke ahead. Donovan managed to write examinations before and after the competition.

SCOUT JUBILEE BEACONS ACROSS CANADA

One of the greatest celebrations of the kind ever carried out in Canada, a chain of Boy Scout beacons from Cape Breton to Vancouver Island flamed westward at nightfall May 6, in honor of the King's Silver jubilee. In many cases the lighting of the bonfires was preceded by the firing of a royal salute of 21 rockets.

The Parisian accent is noted in the new spring gloves, especially in the stunning gauntlet gloves with stuffed round edging of shiny leather as a contrast, and a wristband, also of the shiny leather. Smart also are the ribbed fabric gloves with white lacings right up the side closing. Shown in street shades and pastels.

Tailored and sport frocks in eyelet embroidered batiste will again be very much in vogue this summer. Navy blue and brown are being shown almost exclusively now, but later there will be a big demand for white and the pastel tones.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

By Ursula Parrott

Chapter 54

Consuelo rushed to her dressing room to change her costume—then dashed back to the stage.

The finale. Gypsy costume now. All gypsy. She was dancing. Before her she saw a campfire and in the dusk were gypsy faces, friendly faces. Clapping of hands and stamping of feet. In all her dreams she had danced on the top of the high hill, but now it had vanished. Gypsy camp. Gypsy faces. She was dancing to them. Her own people. There had never been an gorgios. There had never been New York or the high hill. Rapture raced through her. She was free. Free as the wind. Never in the attainment of the marble palace had she experienced this ecstacy and never had she danced so well. She was a living flame of beauty burning her light there before them.

Curtain calls. People on their feet clapping, shouting. No one had gone up the aisle tonight. Dimly the Gypsy Consuelo noticed this and knew that her dancing was victor over this age of hurry. Her dancing had been victor over love, that time so long ago. Her dancing had been victor over the tiredness of her body; over the weariness of mind and soul. Victor, and if this was so she would dance another encore for them.

Now no one had ever seen a gypsy dance like this. It seemed that she danced from the beginning of the gypsy race to now and to herself. The audience sat spellbound. She was moving them with her and they felt this sorrow she pictured and this joy that radiated from her. They knew attainment. The dance was over. Silence, dead silence, then thundering ovation. No curtain calls . . . No encore . . . The end.

The gypsy went up the stairs, eyes brighter than the stars, body light as the wind. She took off her makeup and washed her face with good cold water. She put on the shawl and left.

Down the alley she walked. It was more crowded than usual. With reluctance they made a lane for her to pass through. She shouted to them and threw kisses from the tips of her fingers. Her bracelets were jingling, anklets clinking, like familiar music of long ago. Her eyes were bright, expectant, almost as if she could look just over the head of that tall person and there would be a gypsy, dark skinned, white teeth showing in a smile, lips forming Romany words of praise. But there was no gypsy.

At the curb Willowby was waiting for her. They got into his car. Traffic became a battle ground, and they were alone out in this no man's land where the crowd could not follow.

"You were splendid! Marvelous! You left them breathless!" he said to her.

"I am breathless myself. Tonight I found that I had died inside and only the part of me that danced was alive. It is true, isn't it, that you can die more than once?" She did not wait for an answer. "It is death to build a dream and hold it as the most wonderful thing in life, and work for it and pray for it and then when it is real, find that you had not looked clearly enough to see all sides of the dream and you realize that standing in and looking out is oh, so different. You have built the dream so close about you that there is no room left for anything else—that is what I have done. Tonight I have awakened and now I am dreaming another dream." She paused. "But I am a fool! I have no right to dream another dream. I have signed up for the next season. I have signed up to make a talking picture. I have signed up for a thousand things. I will have no time to dream!"

"There is always time to dream. Life itself wouldn't be worth while if you couldn't build a few castles in the air."

"I like that. Castles in the air. That is what mine will be. No more real than that."

There was silence between them.

"Do you think he has married yet?"

"Who?"

"Marcu."

"I don't know. He said, she will be my bride. They will be interested in knowing you are marrying such a wealthy man. I'll tell them next time I send a check to the Dummy. Funny just calling him the Dummy like that. Hasn't he a name?"

"No, don't tell them—don't tell them for a while yet!"

"Very well."

"You know where they are?"

"Yes."

Nothing more was said until they arrived at his studio. Almost fearfully the girl looked around.

"Where is this picture the Dummy has painted?" she asked. "I am almost afraid to look at it now. I have a strange feeling about it as if I have only to see it to have the clouds about me vanish. They have been rosy clouds and I may be a bit sorry to see the sun set so soon. But then, every sun sets, else there could not be a dawn. So, my friend, let me see this picture that I may hope for the dawn."

"Coffee and sandwiches and cigarets first, young lady."

She shook her head.

"Do you mind—no coffee—nothing." After a moment. "Tonight I would like to be on a horse, the fastest running horse in the world, and go racing down a hill and never stop—but instead, I shall go home and call Stewart and tell him I am sorry and make my promise never, never to quarrel with him again." Her eyes flashed. "That does not sound like the Gypsy Consuelo! I have become the dog he would like to make me!"

"Do you want some advice, little gypsy?"

No answer.

"It is wrong for you to marry this Blackmire, you'll never be happy with him. That last encore you danced tonight told me more about you than you will ever know. Go back to your people, gypsy girl, before you lose yourself."

"They would not have me!" The words were wrung from her heart. "No, my friend, I am a proud gypsy. I would not go back to them and say, my people, I could not live without you. I am dying of lonesomeness. Take me back, Marcu, I will be dust under your feet. I have found this great New York a vulture that is slowly killing me. I have found the whip of the white man a thousand times stronger than the whip of my father. I am defeated. Take me back and let me be one of you again. I will cook your meals and wash your dishes and bear your children—if you will let me. I come on my knees—I, Gypsy Consuelo, say that? No, oh no! I am proud. I beg of no one. I ask nothing. I snap my fingers with scorn and my word is the whip of authority. I am the greatest dancer on Broadway. I am going to marry the wealthiest man in New York. People come from all over the world to see me dance. I am famous. I am the Gypsy Dancer!"

"Sounds good, doesn't it?" His quiet voice was in sharp contrast to the impassioned outporing of gypsy words. "Marcu would slap your face and tell you to be yourself—if that's what a gypsy says."

"You lie!"

"Oh no, I don't You're afraid to go back!"

"I am afraid of nothing!"

"Then go back!"

BLACK GIVES HISTORY OF SHEEP CREEK

First Ore Was Found in 1897 by R. W. Brock

YELLOWSTONE THE FIRST PROPERTY

Louis Johnston and W. J. Wilkins Also Speak

A short talk on the history and development of the Sheep Creek mining camp, was given by F. M. Black, managing-director of the Kootenay Belle, to the Rotarians at the noon luncheon Monday in the Empire hotel silver room. Louis J. Johnston of Tacoma, past president of district No. 1, was present at the meeting and urged as large an attendance as possible at the Rotary convention at Bellingham this month. He stated that this would be the first time one of the smaller clubs had held the convention and for this reason it was the general wish that the event be a success.

Owing to the fact that J. T. Andrews will be unable to attend the Bellingham convention, it was found necessary to name another delegate, and President H. M. Whimster was chosen to accompany R. W. Dawson.

Besides Mr. Black and Mr. Johnston, other visitors at the meeting included, W. J. Wilkins of Penticton, who also spoke briefly; Percy Horton, Salmo; George Gamblin, Tacoma; T. N. Bell, Jacksonville, Ore.; J. C. Richards, Trail; Donald Macdonald, Trail; Captain James Fitzsimmons, Nakusp; Anton J. Nelson, Nelson.

A letter received from the San Francisco club stating that E. E. L. Dewdney of Nelson was a visitor there at one of their meetings.

IDEAL IN GENERAL WAY

Due to the limitation of time, observed Mr. Black, he could only deal with the Sheep Creek camp in a general way and he would have time for only a few side lights. He would not be able to enumerate all those who had contributed to the development of the Sheep Creek camp, nor could he guarantee the chronological exactness of all the operations mentioned.

Times had changed greatly since he first went into the Sheep Creek, he stated. On his first occasion he had gone in on a broken-kneed cayuse, whereas now one may make the trip in closed-in cars with a radio giving "Tales From Hoffman" or some other of the musical world's finest contributions. In those days Salmo was merely a flag-station, a great contrast to its present appearance of a busy metropolis.

The mines obtained their power then from water, which was scanty, and one might compare this to the present day of hydro-electric power. The Kootenay Belle in those days had a source from which about 30 or 40 horsepower was obtained, and when the Motherlode became active it lost this also and had to resort to hand work.

ORE GOES DOWN

Geological study in the intervening years had revealed much about the Sheep Creek camp, and though it was believed in the early days that the ore deposits there were shallow, it had been found that such was not the case, and that the gold-bearing ore goes down to great depths. Accurate reports of mining engineers may now be obtained, as compared to those somewhat sketchy descriptions of another era.

To give some idea of the geological formation of the Sheep Creek camp, Mr. Black displayed a roughly-drawn map showing the position of the lime, quartzite and schrist in relation to Sheep Creek itself.

The camp was located in 1897 by R. W. Brock, who located the Yellowstone property at that time. Rossland was booming at that time and he had made a trip over into the Sheep Creek region and noticed that the formation was favorable for gold ore. The Yellowstone is near the Queen mine. In the following year it was taken over by Professor Haultain.

ACTIVELY DEVELOPED

In the meantime the Queen mine had been staked and it was taken over by the late William Waldie, and the Yellowstone acquired. He spent several years in active development work and much credit is due to him for his efforts in opening that part of the country. He put in a big 20-stamp mill that is still running today.

During 1909 or 1910 he sold it to a man named Buckley from Wisconsin, who after working it for some time in a haphazard way, became disgusted and let it go. Lessees worked it for some years and then it was ultimately acquired by the Sheep Creek Gold Mines Ltd. and a complete mill installed that will handle 150 tons per day.

From $1,300,000 to $1,400,000 worth of ore has been taken from the upper levels. Much of the precious metal went down the creek as the method of recovery was crude.

The next operation that was started was the Nugget, George Wells being the man who was responsible. He put in a four-stamp mill. A good deal of ore was taken out and a record set up. But finally they lost the ore and operations ceased. The Sheep Creek ore, pointed out Mr. Black, is shifty and has a tendency to jump. Eventually the Nugget was acquired by the Reno.

OPENED IN 1904

The Kootenay Belle was opened about 1904, work being started about 1000 feet above the creek. The upper workings were very rich. In 1908 he became interested in it and got it on a lease and bond. A four-stamp mill was put in that was run by water power. Soon after, however, he lost it. Rich ore was encountered 200 feet down in 1911 and 30 tons brought in a revenue of $4837, gold being at the price of $20 an ounce. During the war years it was closed but under lease in 1922 another shipment brought returns of about $100 per ton. In 1927 and 1928 diesel power was installed. The mine was again reopened in 1932 and had been active since. Just last year a mill was installed and although of a new kind, it had proved to be a success and operated very cheaply.

The Motherlode was probably the most spectacular. It was bonded in 1908 and in working it rich ore was encountered. In December of that year John McMartin, a construction contractor, took over the bond and put some money into the Motherlode. During 1909 and 1910 Watson built the present mill, but apparently he let his milling get ahead of his development. A company was floated and it paid one dividend and then they shut down. This property was acquired by the Reno, as also was the Nugget and they are likely to be developed further now.

ENCOUNTER MANY DIFFICULTIES

The Reno was opened in 1908 or 1909 by "Billy" Poole, who managed to make some progress in a hand-to-mouth sort of way. Later O. C. Thompson and associates got hold of it. They encountered many difficulties both with the elements and the usual mining problems, and much credit was due to them in the progress they made. Among other things the mill burned. They had gone ahead when the geological opinion of that day held that the ore body of that region did not go down. In persevering they had found that the ore body did go down and they were encountering stronger and richer ore. At present about 120 tons was mined daily.

The Salmo Malartic, the Gold Belt, Golden Belle, and Fern were other mines in that camp. The Gold Belt had just been taken over by a Boston syndicate and a program was being mapped out. The property had rich ore but the veins were not large.

In all, the mines of the Sheep Creek had a payroll of $1000 per day, which meant a great deal to Nelson. Recently the West Kootenay Power & Light company had run its line to the camp and development would be much faster from now on.

W. E. Wasson thanked Mr. Black for his interesting address.

KENNECOTT HITS NEW HIGH MARK

Steel Shares Down at N. Y.; Chemicals Make Gains

By FRANK MacMILLEN

NEW YORK, May 13 (AP).—A mild rally in late dealings climaxed a rather aimless session in the stock market today. The tone was a little better than steady at the finish.

A few specialties, particularly in the chemical division, gained an active following at advances of one to several points, and the rail group received some favorable attention from the bull forces. Motors were active at small advances.

Consolidated Gas was under considerable pressure as reports circulated Mayor Fiorello Laguardia of New York planned erection of a $42,000,000 municipal power plant. The stock finished 1⅛ points off at 23⅝. Other utilities felt the force of sympathetic selling. Turnover was 1,124,120 shares.

Steel shares were generally backward. A rise in the price of American copper for export to 8.10, sent Kennecott and Anaconda up to new highs for a year or more, at 19½ and 15¼, respectively.

Silver shares were reactionary despite an advance in bar silver prices of ⅛ of a cent to 73¾ cents in New York, following similar improvement in London.

Canadian Industrial Alcohol "B" dropped two points.

IMPERIAL SETS NEW TOP MARK

TORONTO, May 13 (CP)—Pivotal issues, led by the oils, pushed ahead on heavy volume today, attracting a sufficient following among the domestic listings to give the Toronto exchange industrial index a small advance although numerically 34 issues closed lower against 30 closing higher. Trade centered in Imperial Oil and International Petroleum these two issues supplying half the entire share turnover. The liquors were sold moderately for small price recessions.

Imperial and Petroleum set new top records, the former at 20 and the latter at 38½ but these prices were substantially under profit-taking in the late trading. Imperial going back to 19½ for a gain of ¼ and Pete to 36⅞, up ⅝ net. British American merely held at 15 while the McColl issues were off ¼ each and Supertest ordinary lost ¼.

Walkers common sold off to 23 but recovered to 24 for a net loss of ½. Distillers Seagrams also lost ½ and Industrial Alcohol A ¼.

Metals gave a display of strength, Nickel going to 29 and Smelters to 165. Steels displayed firming tendencies, some of the construction issues picked up while the banks were irregularly lower.

Bruck Silk lost 1¼, English Electric A 3, Pressed Metals ½ and Weston common ½.

SMELTERS GAINS

MONTREAL, May 13 (CP)—The strong movement in evidence on the Montreal stock exchange toward the close of last week was continued today. The upward trend gained momentum as the day progressed and at the close several stocks were well above recent price levels.

Alcohols were inclined to sag in early trading and never recovered. Canadian Industrial Alcohol A ended at 9¼ for a net loss of ⅝ on the day. The B stock also dropped ⅝ to close at 8.

Elsewhere strength was predominant, led by the metals. Nickel showed buoyancy and rose ⅝ at 28¾. Smelters gained a point at 164. Steel of Canada was up ½ at 45. Canadian Car gained ⅝ at 7⅞.

Butter Easier on Montreal Market

MONTREAL, May 13 (CP)—Butter prices were easier on the Montreal dairy produce market while other lines held unchanged today. No. 1 grade butter was quoted at 20½ to 20¾ cents while small lots to retailers sold for 22 to 22½ for solids and 23 cents for prints.

RAINS TUMBLE WHEAT PRICES

CHICAGO, May 13 (AP).—Copious rains highly beneficial for wheat crops tumbled wheat down an extreme of 2 cents a bushel today to nearly season record low levels.

The new setbacks of prices took the wheat market to 11 cents under a high point reached April 22. Favorable crop comments in spring wheat regions northwest, acted as an offset for inflation talk.

Wheat closed weak, 1⅜ to 1¾ lower, July 92¼ to 92½; corn ¾ off to ⅞ up, July 80⅛ to 80¼; oats ½ to ⅞ down.

Silvers Weaker on East Market

TORONTO, May 13 (CP)—Gold stocks weakened while miscellaneous mines improved their position slightly on the mining section of the Toronto exchange today. A decline of the London quotation on bar gold was a drag on the yellow metal group while strength was spotty in the base metals and the silvers closed with a mild display of weakness. Volume was off to 728,000 shares.

The widely discussed speech to be delivered tonight by Secretary Morgenthau of the United States administration regarding the country's monetary policy was expected to have a considerable bearing on the mining market and traders were inclined to stand aside pending its delivery. Consequently trade in the silver group was hesitant, despite a higher metal price and at the close Eldorado was down 6 cents, Castle 5, Bear 2 and Premier 2. Base metals showed to better advantage.

Hollinger was sold actively for a while and it dropped to 175.65 before steadying and recovering to 16.05 off 5 cents net. Siscoe was also sold in volume for a net loss of 10 cents.

Afton was the outstanding soft spot in the penny issues, dropping 8 cents. Gabrielle lost 3, Gunnar 3 and Tashota 1½. Trade in the oils slowed down.

BAR GOLD OFF 12 Cts. LONDON

MONTREAL, May 13 (CP).—Bar gold in London down 12 cents at $34.69 an ounce in Canadian funds; 142s 6½d in British funds. The fixed $35 Washington price amounted to $34.96 in Canadian.

QUIET TRADING ON COAST LIST

Bradian and Bralorne Lose; Pend Oreille Up Two Points

VANCOUVER, May 13 (CP) — Price changes were small and evenly divided on the Vancouver stock exchange today. Trading was quiet and featureless with only 159,781 shares sold.

Railroad Bonds Show Strength

NEW YORK, May 13 (AP)—A smart rally in United States government securities and steadiness among secondary railroad loans featured bond market trading today.

The entire government section firmed up considerably during early trading and a flurry of activity right near the close carried prices 3-32 to 13-??? higher.

The favorite railroad bonds gave a good performance. Baltimore & Ohio 6s were 2 points higher at 72, New York Ontario and Western 4s were 1½ better at 44 and Pere Marquette 5s advanced 1½ to 86.

Three issues of International Telephone bonds were offered in large volume at concessions of 1 to 1½ points but Postal Telegraph 5s were not affected and closed unchanged at 31.

The decline of 2 to 3¾ points in Polish government bonds was attributed to the death of the country's dictator over the week-end. Denmark 4½s were offered in large volume and closed 2¼ points lower at 89¾.

COPPER HITS A NEW HIGH

NEW YORK, May 13 (AP)—Sales of copper for export were made in New York late today at a basis equivalent to 8.17½ cents a pound C.I.F. European ports, establishing another new high for the red metal since June 12, 1934.

The Dominion dollar early went to a premium of ⅛ per cent, but in the last hour dropped back to a closing rate of 1-32 per cent discount. The close on Saturday was par.

The pound sterling was firm and finished the day 1¼ cents higher at $4.87½. The French franc was unchanged at 6.59 cents.

The Rise of Silver Prices

Report of National City Bank of New York

IN SIX INSTALMENTS
INSTALMENT II

SCANT SUPPLIES AID PRICE RISE

An important factor in the silver situation is that outside of China and India there are no large supplies anywhere in the world, save only the current supply of new production, now running at a rate probably in excess of 200,000,000 ounces annually, and our government cannot take all of this because of the requirements in industry and the arts. China, which uses silver as the basis of her monetary system, has already imposed restrictions upon the outflow of the metal, and other countries using substantial quantities of silver as money can be counted upon to take similar steps in the event that their currency systems are threatened. All of which tends to limit the supply and facilitate the rise of the price providing, of course, these countries are able to prevent their silver money from being melted down and sold in the face of the advancing market. It has been seen that China has experienced a great deal of difficulty in protecting her silver holdings against the high prices bid for them abroad.

India undoubtedly constitutes the largest potential source of supply, both on account of the large stocks held by the treasury and the Reserve Bank of India, aggregating about 310,000,000 ounces, and the vast amounts of silver existing in private hoards. Sales from the treasury stocks are limited by the London agreement to no more than 35,000,000 ounces annually, hence they cannot be a large factor in the situation. The private stocks are in a different category and no one knows how much of these may be drawn on to the market. It must be borne in mind, however, that speculators in India and elsewhere have knowledge of our silver law and are likely to hold on to silver, and even participate in the buying, as long as there is a probability of the price going higher. As a matter of fact, recent reports from London have indicated Indian speculators to have been active buyers of silver and an important factor in the rise of the price. Thus it is apparent that, with a large part of the world scrambling for silver, continued purchases by the United States may easily drive the price to $1.29 an ounce, and even beyond to the old 16 to 1 ratio, as now advocated by the more radical wing of the silver group, without the treasury actually accumulating much silver.

The real question is, what will happen as prices of silver approach the top? When there is no longer any incentive to hold for a rise, speculators may want to take profits. In that case, only the United States treasury will stand between the market and collapse. No other government is interested in bimetallism, or in bidding up the price of silver, hence with no support for the market elsewhere this country may find itself in the position of having to take over at top prices whatever stocks of silver have accumulated on the rise, and to pay for them in gold. It is understood that speculators in London hold something like 100,000,000 ounces which they hope to sell to the United States government. Incidentally, whatever trading profits are realized on the rise of silver prices will go largely to foreign speculators and dealers, and Americans operating abroad, the 50 per cent tax on silver tr

McKEN PICTURED AS BOTH VILLAIN AND HERO IN PLACER GOLD CASE

Forty-Nine Creek Figures at Assizes With Mr. Justice Fisher Presiding; Gold Shipments vs. Operating Funds

Pictured in one set of letters as failing to cooperate with the company employing him, and of gumming up the banking arrangements in Edmonton by failing to forward the placer gold recovered to cover payroll advances, and in an answering set of letters—his own to the company—as carrying on the Forty-Nine creek placer operation below Nelson minus needed lumber, gasoline, water fees, and owner's royalties, Herbert A. McKen, late superintendent of the Black Watch Mines, Limited, was both villain and hero in the opening case of the Nelson assizes Monday, when he was placed on trial before Mr. Justice Fisher and a jury on a charge of stealing $300 worth of gold plus a 2¾ ounce gold nugget from the company.

STORY TOLD IN LETTERS

Mostly the letters urging McKen to come through were written by John H. Van Slyke, secretary of the company, but when he was laid up, J. E. Farrell, one of the directors, carried on the campaign to secure McKen's compliance with the Edmonton arrangements. The early letters usually expressed the highest confidence in the superintendent, and just missed ending with "Love and kisses", but the later ones had a sterner tone. McKen's letter in answer usually employed vigorous and direct language, invariably put the onus on the company, claimed that things were at a bad pass because of the company's neglect to supply funds, and finally announced the superintendent's intention to square finances, both company and personal, by selling gold recovered.

The picture of McKen, the stubborn and non-cooperating employee, was built up by direct testimony, in party documentary, elicited from Secretary-Treasurer Van Slyke, by W. W. Ferguson, crown prosecutor, while the picture of Horatius holding the bridge was developed by the cross-examination of the same witness by Parker Williams of Trail, McKen's counsel, the McKen letters received by Van Slyke, or coming into his possession from others, being read into the court record.

Leaning back breezily in the dock, the accused assisted his counsel with the jury challenges, was apparently keenly appreciative of the evidence against and for him, frequently took notes, and was alert in movement and attitude.

Before the trial McKen had been at liberty on bail, and Mr. Justice Fisher accepted the same bondsmen at the end of the day's sessions, so the accused spent the night free. The bondsmen were J. R. Hunter, Lloyd Renwick, and McKen himself, each for $250.

Court was late in opening, a further delay was caused by the absence of four jurors, which led to his lordship authorizing Sheriff M. E. Harper to summon four new ones, for which he granted a half-hour adjournment, and the choice of a petit jury from the panel of 24 after McKen had pleaded not guilty was long drawn out, the whole 24 passing under review before an acceptable jury of 12 was obtained. As a result, the taking of evidence did not start until the afternoon session, which lasted practically to 6 o'clock.

WIDDOWSON BOUGHT GOLD

E. W. Widdowson, Nelson assayer, testified that on three occasions last year McKen sold him gold. On July 14 he bought 520 grains of gold approximately 701 fine, allowing McKen 4.53 cents per grain, which gave a total value of $23.56, from which cost of $2.56 was deducted, leaving $21 net for McKen. On August 1 he bought 632 grains of the same fineness and value per grain, giving a total value of $28.63, cost deduction of $2.63 leaving a net of $26. The third purchase was on September 13, of 191 grains, the allowance this time being 4.5 cents per grain, giving a gross of $8.59, and a net of $9.10.

Mr. Widdowson told Mr. Ferguson that McKen did not say where he got the gold, and did not mention the Black Watch company, on any of the three occasions, though on the point of origin Mr. Widdowson intimated he had made his own assumptions.

Cross-examined by Mr. Williams, he said on the first occasion McKen explained that he had to have money at once for the purchase of supplies, and on the second occasion that he had to have money to pay a man named Whittemore, who had just quit. He did not recall what if any explanation was given the third time.

Re-examination by Mr. Ferguson failed to add anything to this witness' testimony, his lordship refusing to let the crown prosecutor ask Mr. Widdowson how he arrived at his inferences, or what they were.

SECRETARY GIVES POLICY

The rest of the session, comprising nearly four hours, Secretary-Treasurer van Slyke, reenforced by bulky leather portfolios of documents and records, was on the stand. He stated the company was incorporated May 26, 1934, and McKen, who had been superintendent under the Black Watch Syndicate, was reappointed June 26, at the meeting that elected provisional directors of the company and laid down the operating policy. One of the main points in the letter of Van Slyke to McKen of June 27, enclosing a copy of the minutes, was that McKen was advised that the bank would allow no further overdrafts, and that any further borrowings must be covered by gold shipments.

Similar instructions were given McKen verbally when the directors visited the operation on Forty-Nine creek, the witness said, and at the Royal bank here they were shown by McKen a nugget he said he got from the property, and that he stated weighed 2¾ ounces and was worth about $75. They asked him to send this to Edmonton. The nugget was never received, but the bank at Edmonton received a smaller one in a shipment of September 6. Two gold shipments were received from McKen after the new instructions, the company official stated.

Various letters were put in by Mr. Ferguson, showing the repeated emphasis laid by the company on the new instructions regarding gold shipments.

ACCOUNTING ASKED

Evidence was also given by Van Slyke of a visit of directors to the property in November, when McKen was asked to give an accounting of the gold recoveries, and an accounting of expenditures in the operation, these request being repeated the following day in Nelson.

Under cross-examination the company official told of McKen seeing the Edmonton men at the property late in 1933, as a result of which Frank Mainfroid, J. E. Farrell and R. McLeod, were induced to invest, an agreement being drawn up. To a later agreement, for a syndicate, the witness was also a party. The company was incorporated in May, 1934, with a capitalization of $50,000.

Van Slyke told Mr. Williams his only knowledge of where the gold that was sold came from was from McKen's own reports to the company.

McKEN WROTE BANKER

One of the striking McKen letters elicited from the official's file was one written to W. E. Allingham, manager of the Royal bank at Edmonton, and a shareholder in the company, McKen urging him to make a confidential inquiry into the company's circumstances, and to see what he could do to get some funds put into the treasury to stave off disaster. He said he hadn't had a cent for two months, and that the company had paid only $5 on account since opening in the spring. He said he had heard from the secretary only twice in six weeks, in reply to his urgent calls for funds. He said the directors ought to pinch themselves and get wise to British Columbia mining laws. He also intimated that if "those hicks" thought he was going to stand by and see his $12,000 investment for four years' work go, they were mistaken, and remarked that a company that couldn't pay a $125 payroll couldn't expect to hold the whole creek.

Throughout his testimony, Van Slyke insisted that every payroll for which McKen had asked money had been immediately met, with the exception of the last one, for $70.

He admitted to Mr. Williams that the company was being sued now for wages claimed with respect to that period.

Accounts of many kinds for which the company provided the money, including a payment to Dr. John A. Allan, professor of geology in Alberta university, for a report, Secretary Van Syke totalled at $749.90, that amount having been transferred from Edmonton to Nelson, either direct to McKen, or in individual paychecks which were sent to him to distribute, or to the grocer.

Total gold receipts from McKen he worked out at $854.95.

The cross-examination of Secretary Van Slyke was apparently far from finished when his lordship adjourned court to 10:30 Tuesday.

BOSWELL WINS PROCTER GAME

PROCTER, B.C., May 13.—Playing at Procter Sunday afternoon, Boswell beat the local softball nine to the tune of 13-4. In the first inning Boswell romped home with seven runs to Procter's one, but after that the local boys seemed to find their feet and play tightened up considerably. However, they could not overcome the lead which the visitors had piled up in the early stages of the game. About 20 young people made the trip over from Boswell and Gray Creek to witness the game.

Teams were:

to one cause only, the character of the instruction given her. ... I am persuaded the methods used in the social science and English courses evidence a subtle and insidious design to impress by indirection communistic views on the student mind."

"It is a serious matter," he continued, "when a professor upon being asked 'What do you think of free love?' replies: 'I believe in free love for myself.'" Walgreen added that this was not taught at the university, however.

In answer to a question he imputed the free love quotation to Frederick L. Schuman, assistant professor of political science.

That statement brought a tart query from Dr. Charles E. Merriam, head of the political science department, who asked, "Who are these people who attempt to discredit my department?" He charged them with "attempted grand larceny of reputation."

"I don't know much about Schuman's free love. All I know is that he is married and the father of two fine fat babies," he said.

President Hutchins said:

"The university of Chicago has 901 teachers. They teach 3942 courses. I have examined these courses and find in them nothing of a subversive communistic character; no advocacy of the over throw of government.

"Members of the faculty are law-abiding patriotic citizens. Some of them are, of course, dissatisfied, but they believe in orderly conduct. On behalf of the faculty, I repudiate the charges against them."

B.C. STRIKES

the question of a general strike and, in the meantime, a committee will negotiate with the canners.

The executive of the Vancouver and District Waterfront Workers' association has recommended that a general strike vote be taken Wednesday as a demonstration of sympathy with striking relief camp workers.

It is understod also that the strike may be employed to emphasize certain longshoremen's demands to the Shipping Federation of British Columbia.

The executive recommended, too, that the association seek affiliation with the Maritime Federation of San Francisco, powerful United States organization of marine unions.

The Vancouver association met late tonight to vote on the recommendation for affiliation and to consider the proposal for a general strike vote.

Should the vote favor affiliation with the Maritime Federation, this would be effected through the Longshore and Water Transport Workers' Association of Canada, representing longshoremen here and at New Westminster, Victoria and Chemainus, and the Export Loggers Association of Vancouver. These organizations would also be consulted regarding a general strike.

TWO ARE HURT

Two game wardens acting as special constables were injured near Prince George when 40 striking relief workers attempted to prevent other workers from proceeding to their jobs on road construction. One striker was arrested and charged with assault.

A police escort had been provided as a precaution for men travelling in trucks to work south of Prince George and, about 1½ miles from the town, they found the road barricaded with logs. As officers started to remove the obstruction, they were attacked by strikers wielding clubs and throwing rocks.

Game Wardens W. Forrester and Gordon Copeland, both acting as special constables, were injured before shots were fire over the strikers' heads to disperse them. The injured wardens were removed to the hospital, Forrester with a fractured arm and Copeland with head injuries.

No further trouble was experienced today but police reinforcements were being rushed to Prince George from Vancouver and were due to arrive at noon tomorrow.

The relief workers had been on strike since May 2, demanding that they be paid 50 cents an hour with a six-hour day and a minimum of $32 per month. This allowance was refused because it would exceed the general relief scale for single men paid by the province and city.

NO PROGRESS IN BRIDGE RIVER

No progress toward settlement of the Bridge river district miners' strike was reported today and 700 employees of the Pioneer Gold Mines of B.C., Ltd., Bralorne Mines, Ltd., and Wayside Consolidated Gold Mines Ltd., remained out on strike.

A proposal of Col. Victor Spencer of Vancouver, president of the Pioneer company, to make a general increase of 50 cents per day for all employees on the mine operations with a minimum of $4.00 was still before the men but they had apparently taken no action towards accepting or refusing it. The miners are demanding a $1 increase.

Meanwhile, 1700 striking relief camp workers congregated in Vancouver remained quiet although they had shown no inclination to accept the proposal that they return to the camps pending settlement of their demands for better camp conditions.

The situation at Corbin, where 350 employees of Corbin Collieries, Ltd., have been on strike since January, remained unchanged. The men are demanding recognition of the Mine Workers' Union and reemployment of certain dismissed union members. The company has announced the mines are closed indefinitely.

GOLDBRIDGE, B.C., May 13—(CP)—A company proposal to increase gold miners' pay by about 50 cents a day, was met today by a counter-proposal from the central committee of Bridge River district strikers which asked for increases ranging up to $1 a day.

The central committee also asked recall from the district of Adam Bell, British Columbia deputy minister of labor, declaring he had acted unconstitutionally. Their objection centered around a vote taken Sunday among the employees at the mine of the Pioneer Gold Mines of British Columbia, Ltd., where the strike first started.

LUMBER STRIKE CONTINUES

SEATTLE, May 13 (AP).—With no settlement in sight, the Pacific northwest lumber strike, which began over a week ago, continued today to take in additional territory with further walkouts.

Estimates of the number out varied from 26,500 to 31,000.

Strikers are demanding shorter hours and increased wages. A. W. Muir, organizer and spokesman for the strikers was in Portland, Ore., as was E. P. Marsh, federal labor conciliator, but neither had a word to say.

A new field of chemical science is being opened through analysis of material under the microscope, combined with spectroscopic and electro-chemical technic, according to Professor P. Ernst Berl, Austrian authority on technical analysis.

Vasey to Build New Trail Store

TRAIL, B.C., May 13.—Construction of a new store on Bay avenue next to the Rialto theater will commence in about a month, according to announcement Monday by H. M. Vasey, owner. Work will be carried out by contract or day labor, a decision on this matter not yet having been reached. The building will cost in the neighborshood of $2500.

According to plans the new store will be of concrete walls and fireproof roof and will measure 25 by 50 feet on the ground.

Facade of the structure will be finished in chipped white granite. Heating will be provided by a hot air furnace.

Sawdust Dumping Brings a Protest

Dumping of sawdust on lots on Fifth street in Fairview has been protested by residents in that district and the matter is being referred to the city solicitor by the Nelson city council.

Harry Houston appeared before the council Monday night to speak in connection with a petition signed by 13 others residing on Fifth and Fell streets. It was pointed out that sawdust was being dumped for storage until next winter. The people believed the dump was "a nuisance" and should be removed by the city. Blowing dust, pointed out Mr. Houston, was a nuisance and the pile he believed, was a fire hazard.

Alderman Roy Sharp believed the council should do everything possible to stop this nuisance.

Mayor J. P. Morgan called on Fire Chief M. H. Maloney who declared the dumping could be stopped under the Fire act. Alderman H. B. Lindsay asked for immediate action.

Mr. Houston said he had information the sawdust was not being dumped on property owned by the man doing the dumping and he considered the matter wholly unfair to people owning property in that section. He hoped a stop would be ordered before the man doing the dumping would be out of pocket financially.

ITALY-ETHIOPIA

1911, but only to men who have served only a few months in the military forces, or not at all because of failure to pass physical examinations.

A government spokesman said Italy will not publish the names of her chosen conciliators until Ethiopia replies that the emperor is ready to announce the names of his own representatives. The spokesman denied reports that any diplamatic step toward Rome was being planned by Britain or France with regard to the Ethiopian dispute.

EXPRESS CONCERN

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, May 13 (AP)—Concern was expressed in government circles tonight over a report from Rome that Italy had ordered mobilization of 200,000 more troops.

A government spokesman said it is likely Emperor Haile Selassie will return to the capital immediately from his inspection trip through the provinces and probably will summon a war-council of tribal chiefs.

SEEKING TURKEY'S AID

CAIRO, Egypt, May 13 (AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia today was reported to have initiated efforts to secure Turkey as an ally in the event of war with Italy, in sending to Ankara, Turkey, as charge d'affaires, his former secretary and close political adviser, Ato Berhan Markos.

At the same time it was reported that Pierre Petrides Papadopoulos, aide to Markos, will seek to enlist the aid of the Hedjaz and other Red sea powers in the Ethiopian cause.

LONDON WORRIED

LONDON, May 13 (AP)—A threatened strain on Britain's and France's relations with Italy as a result of the latter country's dispute with Ethiopia apparently was averted today as Italy consented to conciliation.

Fearful lest Emperor Haile Selassie's repeated appeals to the League of Nations might force Britain and France to join league censure of Italy's military measures to Africa, officials here openly welcomed the concession at Rome.

ETHIOPIA PROTESTS

GENEVA, May 13 (CP)—Ethiopia, charging anew that Italy's "warlike preparations" in Africa "endanger international peace," today demanded immediate League of Nations action on the Italo-Ethiopian border dispute.

Emperor Haile Selassie's latest noted declared Italian concentration of troops and war materials in Eritrea and Italian Somaliland, which border on Ethiopia, "leaves no doubt as to the hostile intention of Italy."

It urged that the league deal with the issue at the assembly session opening May 20, asked immediate arbitration of the controversy and proposed pledges that the arbitral decision would be accepted without reservation.

Terming "absolutely false" what it said was an Italian report that general mobilization had been ordered in Ethiopia, the communication accused Italy of trying to induce certain foreign governments to restrain their citizens from serving as aribtrators.

TURKEY WOULD FORTIFY

BUCHAREST, May 13 (AP)—Turkey served notice today on the States constitution the Balkan pact that she intends to demand at the forthcoming Rome conference the right to refortify the Dardanelles.

Turkey will ask conclusion of the new convention rearmament of the famous straits connecting Europe and Asia to replace the international convention signed at Lausanne in 1929. It would include airplane and submarine bases and under ground military defences.

At the Balkan pact conference today, Tewfik Rushdi Bey, Turkish foreign minister, explained that Turkey wants to rearm the Dardanelles purely as a measure of international peace and not for offensive purposes.

Build Walk at Hospital

City Carrying on the Board Sidewalk Program

The city-wide sidewalk repair program is still in progress and at many points sidewalks that have fallen into a bad state of repair are being put into first-class shape.

One of the chief replacements started is in front of Kootenay Lake General hospital. The board sidewalk is being taken up and eventually a six-foot concrete walk will cap a rock fill.

The Vernon sidewalk, between Hall and Josephine streets is about complete. It replaces a high board walk that has needed attention for some time.

At other points in the city minor repairs are being made and when the program is completed the city's sidewalks should be in first-class shape.

U.S. DOLLAR

nations elect to continue under the present absence of rules we are no longer at a disadvantage. We revalued our currency no more than was necessary and we can go either way. Our hands are untied."

Morgenthau spoke from his own treasury office, discussing "the American dollar" and telling "what was done, why and the effect." Most of his remarks were devoted to world trade conditions before and after the United States went off the gold standard and devalued the dollar.

But the heart of his speech concerned the administration's view of international monetary stabilization, and an argument as to why the country should not take the lead in such an effort.

"If we launched out alone on such a course," the treasury head said, "it would put us right back where we were in 1932 and offer a tempting invitation for the others not to follow, but again to take advantage of our disadvantages.

To arguments that the government should declare "that we will no: change the present gold content of the dollar," he replied:

"So far from engaging in a competitive devaluation race with the other nations, we hold out to them a currency of such steadiness that the normal tendency may very well be for the rest of the world to move gradually toward practical exchange stabilization.

"If that can be achieved, the final step should come easily and of its own accord. Unless somebody rocks the boat, that would be the natural course. . . ."

Morgenthau spoke much of gold and foreign trade. Of silver, which the government is directed to buy until world prices reach the coinage value of $1.29 an ounce or treasury stocks a one-to-three ratio with gold, he had principally this to say:

"We also are endeavoring to restore silver to greater usefulness as a monetary metal. It is the money of a large part of the world's population.

Morgenthau said the United States had turned from a debtor nation of $3,000,000,000 before the war to a creditor nation in 1929 of $21,500,000,000 of which "two-thirds . . . is today in partial or complete default." He continued:

"In estimating the future of our foreign trade in relation to our monetary policy, we may as well face the question whether we wish to sell aboard vast quantities of goods that the buyers cannot pay for unless we lend them the money.

"Of course if we want more paper there are plenty of international bankers to arrange the details. We felt rich on that paper during the roaring '20s. Now we know better.

"In place of paper under the operation of our new monetary policy, we have been receiving large shipments of gold and silver. . . . But we are not stripping the world of gold. . . . The world supply is increasing rapidly. . . . The great nations are restoring their reserves."
