MONEY SITUATION HALTS PARLEYS

Britain Not Regarded in Default; Other Nations Default

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—An end to international debt negotiations until the world monetary situation has clarified was signalled today at the conclusion of the discussions between Great Britain and the United States.

In the wind-up of the conferences, the British tendered a token payment of $7,500,000 on the instalment due December 15.

Announcement of the completion of the British talks was made simultaneously in Washington and London by the president and Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the British exchequer.

NOT IN DEFAULT

President Roosevelt said the conversations "have made clear the great difficulty, if not impossibility, of reaching sound conclusions upon the amounts of international payments practicable over any considerable period of time in the fact of the unprecedented state of world economic and financial conditions.

"It has, therefore, been concluded to adjourn the discussions until

ROOSEVELT PUSHES CREDIT EXPANSION

Gold Purchases Go Along in Quiet Manner

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP). — Amid persistent clamor from farm states and agricultural spokesmen for price fixing and inflation to lift price levels in the United States, President Roosevelt and his aides today pushed along unperturbed the widespread administration credit expansion program.

Purchasing gold, considered by many economists a step toward the commodity dollar which Mr. Roosevelt was understood to favor, went along quietly in domestic and foreign markets, with the upward price swing for the metal in recent weeks temporarily halted at yesterday's $32.84 an ounce quotation. A market holiday was described as partially accountable.

TAMMANY, DEMOCRATS TAKE LICKING FROM LA GUARDIA, TWO CAROLINAS ON THE DRY SIDE

Utah, Pennsylvania and Ohio Go Wet to Beat Amendment

COMPLETE SLATE OF 36 STATES

The Carolinas Move to Dry Side; Count Kentucky Today

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (Wednesday) (CP)—The prohibition amendment appeared to have been voted out of the United States constitution on the face of returns available early this morning from Utah, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (CP)—Repeal's solid march of states against the United States prohibition amendment was broken tonight as ballot counting showed dry sentiment in North and South Carolinas but three other states appeared lining up early to give the wet forces the necessary majority.

If the latter three—Ohio, Pennsylvania and Utah—followed to the end the course they took at the outset, they would bring to the necessary 36 states those that have voted against the 13-year-old dry law.

Delivering a surprise to repealists, North and South Carolina seemed to have settled definitely into the dry column as midnight rolled near, the former by a wide margin and the latter by a vote that in late returns dwindled to a thin edge.

Kentucky, the sixth state to vote on repeal, does not count its votes until Wednesday. As the ballot boxes were guarded by armed men, those who worked to bring out a wet vote expressed confidence the blue grass domain had gone definitely against prohibition.

YOUTH ADMITS KILLING TWO GASPE GIRLS

Says Memory Failed as Walked With Pair on Beach

LATER SAW THEM DEAD ON GROUND

Threw Bodies Into the Bay; Bloody Stick Recalled

GASPE, Que., Nov. 7 (CP)—In a dramatic setting, while hundreds crowded into the tiny hall, a signed confession of Nelson Phillips to the effect he had killed Maud and Marguerite Ascah was read before a coroner's inquest today. The jury then held the 18-year old fisherman criminally responsible for the death of Maud and exonerated a friend of Phillips, also previously held as material witness.

The confessions brought to an end a three months old search for a solution of the disappearance of the two teen-age cousins who vanished from their Peninsula, Que. homes on Aug. 31.

"I met the girls at the store during the evening and I asked them to take a walk on the beach," said the confession. "After we got down on the beach my memory failed me and I do not remember just what happened and when I came back to my senses I saw the girls lying on the ground. They were Maud and Marguerite Ascah. To my knowledge they were both dead."

ONLY FOOT FOUND

GIVES HISTORY ACCOUNTANCY, TRAIL ROTARY

Loose Leaf Used in the Garden of Eden

HOYLAND TELLS OF AIMS, IDEALS

Athenians Had High Standards of Accounting

TRAIL, B.C., Nov. 7.—The function, aims, ideals and some of the difficulties of a practicing chartered accountant, and early day history of how the profession first originated, were told by Roger M. Hoyland, chartered accountant, at the luncheon meeting of the Trail Rotary club in the Knights of Pythias hall Tuesday noon.

At the beginning of his paper, Mr. Hoyland told of the loose leaf systems used in the Garden of Eden.

"The Garden of Eden lay between the Tigris and the Euphrates, and there was situated that great empire of Babylon and Chaldea. We know by a clay tablet memorial to Eannodu, governor of Shirpula, dated 4500 B.C., that it existed at that date. However, the period we are interested in is in the rein of Hammurabi, between 2286 and 2242 B.C. The civilization of that day was quite advanced for there existed a code of laws which contained among other things a married woman's property act."

ANCIENT CODE

Mr. Hoyland then gave an extract from the code:

"If the merchant has given to the agent corn, wool, oil or any sort of goods to traffic with, the agent shall take the price and hand over to the merchant; the agent shall take a sealed memorandum of the price which he shall give to the merchant. If an agent has forgotten and has not taken a sealed memorandum of the money he has given to the merchant, money that is not sealed for he shall not put in his accounts.

"On a baked clay tablet is the instruction given for a church audit, a state church. 'To Sinidinnam, say, thus saith Hammurabi: Immediately upon receipt of this letter have all the keepers of thy temple and Ardiahmash, the son of Eribanm the shepherd of the Shamas temple come before thee together with their complete account. Let them ride night and day. Within two days they should be in Babylon.'

"Audits in those days were made by comparing duplicate records kept by different persons. These records, were kept on small clay tablets, afterwards baked. The earliest form of certificate is found on an Assyrian copper lion from the city of Ninevah, dated 500 B.C., and marked: 'Verified in the presence of the supervisor of the silver.'

HIGH STANDARD

"Among the Athenians a high standard of accounting prevailed in respect of public funds. The official responsible was called the treasurer of public revenue, and some of the greatest Grecians held that office at some time in their careers. The system apparently was to check the transactions at the expiration of the term of office, and heavy were the disabilities attached to a failure to account for the funds. 'No person who had not rendered his account could go abroad, consecrate his goods to a god, or even duplicate a sacred offering; nor could he make a will or be adopted from one family to another.'

"The earliest record we find in Great Britain is the English pipe roll, 1129 to 1130 A.D. It was not a book of accounts as we term it, but a narration of receipts and disbursements of the royal revenues. The assets were contained in the Doomsday book. The pipe roll accounting for the revenues was kept in duplicate by the treasurer's and chancellor's clerks respectively. The method of an audit was to summon the sheriff at Easter and Michaelmas for an accounting. He produced the split half of a wooden tally with notches cut thereon. This was compared with the other half to see if they fitted at the line of clearage, the marks were compared and specie or vouchers were produced by him for the sum called for.

"In the book of the Ordinances of the Worshipful Company of Pewterers, London, of the year 1564, the following appears:

"'Order for ye audytors.

"'It is agreed that there shall be four audytors chosen every year to audit the Crafts accounts and they shall peruse it and search it that it be perfect. And make an end of the audit thereof between Michaelmas and Christmas yearly, and if default be made of finishings hereof before Christmas yearly every one of the said audytors shall pay to the Crafts box 5 shillings and 7 pence a piece.'

"Here is the epitaph inscribed on a tomb in England of an auditor with whose sufferings chartered accountants will heartily sympathize, although the epitath probably refers to troubles of another nature:

"'Here lieth part of Richard Bowle who faithfully served divers great lords as auditor on earth but above all prepared himself to give up his account to the Lord of Heaven and now hath his quietus est, and rests from his torments and labours. He was a lover of God's ministers, a father of God's poor, a help to all God's people and believes that his flesh, which with the soul was long tormented, shall with the same Soul be eternally glorified. He died 16th December 1626 and of his age 77.'

WORKS ON MATHEMATICS

"In 1494 a monk in Venice named Incas Patiolus published a work on mathematics, of which 36 chapters were devoted to bookkeeping. In this book he gives instructions for checking, postings in the ledger and journal. A translation by Hugh Oldcastle was made in English in 1643.

"Thomas Jones, of Bristol, published, at the close of the 18th century, a book entitled 'The English System of Bookkeeping by Sign and Double Entry.' This book was considered a failure but was also the inspiration to other accountants who followed.

"The introduction of joint stock companies is the reason and immediate cause of chartered accountancy, for the rapid adoption of company organizations proved a great impetus to trade and created a demand for skilled accountants. In the middle of the last century parliament authorized the use of assistants by auditors.

The formation of accounts societies and institutes under royal charter, for purpose of ensuring standards of efficiency and moral character, was begun by Scotsmen with the formation of the Accountants of Edinburgh in 1854. Canada was not behind in forming her institutes."

From here Mr. Hoyland told of chartered accountancy up to the present day and how the system was based on the old age historical findings.

In closing he quoted from Shakespeare the following:

"Good name in man and women,
dear, my Lord,
Is the immediate jewel of their souls;
Who steals my purse, steals trash;
'tis something, nothing;
'Twas mine, 'tis his, and he had been a slave to thousands;
But he that filches from me my good name,
Robs me of that which not enriches him,
And makes me poor indeed."

Mrs. J. H. Hargrave rendered two vocal numbers at the luncheon and was accompanied by Mrs. Roger M. Hoyland at the piano.

Mr. Houston from Philadelphia, and C. Oughtred attended the meeting as guests of J. Buchanan and R. W. Diamond, respectively.

Prelate of Pythian Order Speaks, Trail

TRAIL, B. C., Nov. 7—With the use of many humorous sallies to divulge the deeper meaning, Fred S. Attwood, grand supreme prelate of the Knights of Pythias order, commanded an attentive audience of Pythian Sisters, Knights and visitors while delivering a message in K.P. hall Tuesday night. Visitors from Nelson and other points were present.

"Fraternalism is the science of the brotherhood of man, reduced to practice and every practice needs to be taught," he said. "It needs professors to teach it and a student body to be taught. Every officer is a member of the faculty and every candidate a student seeking instructions in this science.

"Every man has five sides to his life: spiritual, moral, intellectual, physical and fraternal. It is the desire of every man to develop fraternalism and he can do more for his fraternal proclivities by joining a body. We all have acquaintances and friends, but few of us have super-friends or friends super-extraordinary. This order is on earth for the purpose of making men friendly and then developing that friendship. The fundamental law of man's being is friendship. The order teaches man to gain a sympathetic understanding of other men and his brothers. What the world needs today is not a counterfeit sympathy but a sympathetic understanding.

"It is not the desire to widen the gulf between nations but to set up an understanding sympathy between them. That is one reason why we have so many conferences at which the different nations are represented. We shall have prosperity when we shall create it. There is a confidence missing and as soon as that confidence is restored the man who is hoarding the money will release it.

ALWAYS A MISSION

"The Pythians have a great work to do in restoring confidence in our fellow men. Prosperity will come about again when the great fundamentals of the Pythian order are put into effect—courage and confidence. We shall have new activity again in our lodges when we create it, and when we create it, we shall have it. Now is the time to get busy and create activity. The order will never cease to have a mission till this life merges into eternity."

Mr. Attwood arrived in Castlegar this evening, was met at that point by J. A. McKinnon and brought to Trail by car. He left after giving his address by auto for Nelson where he boarded the train to Cranbrook. Mr. Attwood was introduced by J. A. McKinnon and Harry White acted as chairman until the party arrived from Castlegar. At the opening of the meeting a violin and piano selection was given by Mr. and Mrs. P. Wilson, and Miss R. Buchan gave a vocal solo, accompanied at the piano by W. Perkins. Frank Chapman also gave a vocal number, his accompanist being Mrs. P. Wilson.

ASK PORTFOLIO FOR M'PHERSON

Trail Board of Trade Sends Wire to Pattullo

TRAIL, B.C., Nov. 7—Frank M. MacPherson, Liberal member-elect from Cranbrook, is favored for the appointment to the cabinet in the Liberal provincial government, should Premier Designate T. D. Pattullo find his way clear to give cabinet representation to this district, was the opinion the Trail board of trade council expressed at a meeting of that body Monday evening.

Board of trade council would not endeavor to designate what cabinet portfolio would be preferable to this area, feeling this angle should be left entirely to the discretion of the provincial Liberal leader.

The following wire was sent Monday evening to Mr. Pattullo:

"Trail board of trade at a special meeting decided unanimously to recommend appointment F. M. MacPherson, Cranbrook, as cabinet representative from Kootenays East and West."

MORE ABOUT N.Y. VOTING

a voting place and cruising the city with his wife—his former secretary—to fight against illegal voting.

Complete unofficial returns for mayor gave Fiorello H. La Guardia a plurality of 254,506 votes over Joseph V. McKee with Mayor John P. O'Brien running third. The vote was: O'Brien 586,100; La Guardia 858,551; McKee 604,045.

Into the city hall with the jubilant La Guardia was swept fusion control of the board of estimate—the minority vote being bequeathed to Tammany and the Bronx organization of Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn by the electorates of Manhattan and the Bronx.

HIT AT ROOSEVELT

Swept aside by La Guardia's drive were McKee's plea that a vote for him was "a vote for President Roosevelt" and Mayor John P. O'Brien's call for party regularity and for his right to reelection "on my record."

"The result in New York City," said Farley, "speaks for itself. The voters by their actions showed they are thoroughly dissatisfied with the present Democratic leadership in the city of New York."

The fusion forces also were successful in electing Bernard S. Deutsch, president of the board of aldermen, and W. Arthur Cunningham, comptroller. Tammany held control of Manhattan, reelecting Samuel Levy Borough president, and placing William C. Dodge in the district attorney's office.

Ferdinand Pecora, who has been in charge of the United States senate banking committee's investigations, ran third in the district attorney's race.

Henry Hesterberg, Brooklyn borough president, and lieutenant of Tammanyite John H. McCooey, was defeated for reelection by Raymond W. Singersoll, Fusion nominee. George U. Harvey, Fusion incumbent, easily won the borough presidency of Queens.

In the Bronx, J. J. Lyons, Democratic nominee endorsed by the McKee party, was elected borough president, while in Richmond (Staten Island) Joseph A. Palma, Fusion choice, was ahead in a close race.

13 OUT OF 16 VOTES

This lineup would give the Fusion forces, principal backer of which has been Samuel Seabury, 13 of the 16 votes on the board of estimate.

La Guardia, former congressman, was swamped by James J. Walker in the mayoral election in 1929.

Charles H. Tuttle, former United States district attorney, and chairman of the Republican citywide committee, issued a statement saying:

REPUBLICAN VICTORY

"The Fusion triumph accomplished the destruction of the whole Tammany system, it rebukes the arrogant attempt of Washington personages to dictate to the people of this city (this being in reference to Farley's endorsement of McKee), and it opens to the republican party in this municipality further opportunities for constructive public service."

Charles Solomon, Socialist mayoral candidate, ran fourth, polling 48,886 votes in 3050 districts. Party leaders said they were pleased at the showing and added they believed a large proportion of the votes usually given to Socialist candidates went to La Guardia.

By its majority on the board of estimate Fusion will control all city expenditures. The mayor, president of the board of aldermen and comptroller each have three votes on the board.

ABSENTEE VOTES STILL COME IN

Wires Add Two to Walley Total; Many More Envelopes

Two more telegrams received by Returning Officer George Horstead, advising of absentee votes for Nelson-Creston riding, added two votes to the total of Dr. G. A. C. Walley, C.C.F. candidate, Tuesday. Dr. Walley received one each at Ladysmith and Cambourne. Of the votes advised by telegraph Frank Putnam, Liberal, has received 56, Lieut.-Col. Fred Lister, Independent, 29; and Dr. Walley 23. None have been for Thomas Mountford, United Front.

To the large packet of registered envelopes containing absentee ballots for this riding from outside points, previously accumulated, there have now been added envelopes from Baynes Lake, Fernie, Yahk, Powell River, Sidney, North Okanagan, Three Valley, and Mara.

Mr. Horstead will fix his date for summing up of the vote after sufficient time has expired for registered mail to reach him from the furthest polls from which he has had wires—such as Barkerville and other northern points.

Red Wings to Train on Ice at Apex Dam

Plans of Coach Jack Carr of the Nelson Red Wings now call for practises at O'Genski's dam at Apex while ice is lacking in the city. City players were on the ice at Cottonwood lake on Sunday but it is not safe yet. The O'Genski dam should be safe now and if the cold weather continues, it will provide ample room for the boys to get into shape on.

Carr is looking into the matter and workouts are likely to be arranged immediately.

RAIN HOLDS UP WORK AT TRAIL

Truck Repairs Many; Start on River Front

TRAIL, B. C., Nov. 7—Following is the report of City Engineer S. S. McDiarmid for the month of October as presented to the city council Monday night:

"During the past month heavy rains and snow interfered with outside work. Another factor in holding back construction work has been truck breakdowns, which have been unusually troublesome. As a result the Glover creek road wall is not as far advanced as hoped for. This wall is being built in three sections, of which the first one is completed, the second is ready for pouring and a start is being made on the third and smallest section.

"Whenever it was possible to get trucks free for hauling wood from Casino creek they were used for this work. All wood cut for the city yard has been hauled to town and in addition 70 loads have been delivered to the houses of men on relief who cut wood on their days off work.

START ON RIVER FRONT

"A start was made on the river front improvement. Trenching and test pits were dug for testing foundations. Work was then halted for advice and endorsation of the plan. About 25 tons of steel for reinforcement has been hauled from the Rossland mines and a start made on the foundations for the new location.

"Considerable work that was started by the parks board on street ends has been carried on by city employees, notably on the end of Eldorado street below the Central school, Helena street and Portland street. It has been necessary to use trucks for hauling fertilizer and rock to these jobs for a number of days. All work at Mountain View cemetery was stopped on the 25th. At the city reservoir 900 trees have been planted. At Butler park the water pipes along the south bank have been put below ground.

In the Wilmes subdivision a rock gutter that was washed out last spring has been rebuilt. A stone wall at the corner of Bay avenue and the lane has been built. Repairs to several stone walls have been made wherever damage had been done by water. On Daniel street a section of concrete pipe was put in and fill made to give access to a property on which a new house is being built.

"Alterations to the Bowery sidewalk and water connections have been completed. On Rossland avenue a leak in the main under the pavement was repaired by cutting through the cement. The usual maintenance work, such as sewer inspections, repairs to service boxes, etc., has been done.

FIRST AIDERS NAME STIMMEL

St. John's Ambulance Body of Trail Reelects

TRAIL, B.C., Nov. 7—Trail local center of the St. John Ambulance association reelected officers at their annual meeting held in the Memorial hall Monday night.

Officers who will carry on for another term are B. A. Stimmel, chairman; James Buchanan, vice-chairman; C. E. Marlatt, honorary secretary-treasurer; J. J. Fingland, E. M. Stiles and Dr. J. B. Thom, executive.

Financial report read by the secretary showed a favorable cash balance on hand.

It was suggested that if it could be arranged to have a minimum of 12 members, classes of advanced first aid would be undertaken.

Attendance at this season's fall classes was reported lower than in 1932 but this was expected and gave no cause for misgiving.

PUTNAM HERE TO SEE "THE BOYS"

Frank Putnam, Liberal member-elect for the Nelson-Creston riding, arrived in the city Tuesday night to visit in this end of the riding until Saturday and to "see the boys".

Asked his views in regards to the movement now underway to secure a cabinet position in the Pattullo administration for F. M. MacPherson of Cranbrook, M.L.A.-elect, Mr. Putnam declared that it was a good idea but that he thought he was not in a position to take any action on Mr. MacPherson's behalf.

KHQ FEATURES KASLO ON AIR

Members of Y.P. Take Parts in Mock Election

KASLO, B.C., Nov. 7—G. E. Brown who spent the past few days in the city, has left for his home in Nakusp.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Giegerich and daughter Peggy have returned to their home in Kimberley after a short visit with Mr. Giegerich's father and sisters, H. Giegerich, Mrs. D. Swanson and Miss Elizabeth Giegerich.

F. T. Abey of Rossland is spending a few days in town with his family.

Mrs. F. S. Chandler was a recent Nelson visitor.

D. P. Kane and Mrs. Kane have returned from a few days' visit in Spokane.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Streit have returned from Ainsworth where Mr. Streit has been trying out the hot springs for rheumatism, he is much improved in health as a result.

Radio station KHQ of Spokane featured Kaslo in a half hour program Tuesday evening, the broadcast being a part of their regular program, "Northwest on Parade." The broadcast was arranged by D. P. Kane who was in Spokane some weeks ago A. J. Curle assisting in compiling the facts which were on the program, Mr. Kane spoke for a few moments, also. The broadcast was sponsored by the Davenport hotel and was well received here.

Mrs. Beyers has as her guests, her sister and family, who arrived recently from Saskatchewan, and who will spend the winter in Kaslo.

Wednesday evening about 70 persons gathered in the new United church hall to attend a meeting of the Young People's Society, President H. T. Robson presided and many business matters were brought before the members for their consideration, the rules to be put into effect at the gymnasium were carefully outlined. W. L. Billings gave a report of the recent picture show, which proved to be a financial success as well as being greatly enjoyed by a capacity house, it is probable that the original program for this feature will be altered for the convenience of the general public and especially the children. The program for the evening was most entertaining and instructive, taking the form of a political meeting with candidates from the three predominent parties addressing the electors. R. E. Green gave a masterful address in the cause of the Liberal party, he being their chosen candidate, he was followed by Erling Johnson, C.C.F. candidate who laid before the electors the aims and policies of his party. Howard Perkins as the Independent candidate, gave his attitude toward this movement, in no uncertain words. The candidates were chosen for their ability as speakers, regardless of their real parcy affiliations. Rev. T. W. Reed acted as chairman for this part of the program. After the speakers had finished a straw vote was taken, polling booths, etc., all being properly arranged as for a real election. The Misses Annie Coulter and Vera Coombs acted as deputy returning officers while Norman Coomos and Lauchlin MacPherson were the poll clerks, there were the usual scrutineers and other election officials in evidence. The result of the straw vote expressed the trend of present public thought, the Liberals receiving 36 votes, the C.C.F. 16 and the Independents five, there were three spoiled ballots. Following the election Mr. Reed gave several pointers regarding the laws and methods covering an election which was very instructive and enlightening to many of his listeners. After a contest refreshments were served by the group in charge, Miss Clara Johnson being the leader of this group. The affair was attended by many other than the members, a number of whom could no longer be termed "young."

STAR OF EARTH

By Octavus Roy Cohen

INSTALLMENT 27

Over in the corner Dave Robbins gave vent to a low whistle of amazement. Jim Hanvey, was startled out of his habitual calm.

"It's a long story," Kanzler was saying, "and I'm tellin' you guys because I think you're square and won't make no more trouble than you got to."

"I see," agreed Hanvey. "Just take your time and start right from the beginning."

"You remember, Hanvey, the days we was talking about—back when I was fighting in Madison Square Garden? Well, knowing the fight game like you do, you'll remember that they thought I was pretty good. I was a two-handed fighter, and I could punch—only I never was a boxer: remember?"

"Sure, Son, I remember."

"Well, I come along at a time when most of the middleweights was fancy boxers and cream-puff punchers. I was good box office around the East and the sport writers was all saying that I was another Stanley Ketchel, or anyhow a Billy Papke.

"I was grabbing off plenty of dough then, and maybe I wasn't taking the best care of myself. When a guy is going good he feels like he can lick the world and he don't take such swell care of himself. I done a lot of partying around, and that is how I met Iris Randall.

"She was a show girl with the Follies, and if you think she's pretty now, you should of seen her then. She wasn't hardly eighteen years old when I met her on a party. I fell for her hard from the minute I set eyes on her—and it seemed like she was mighty interested in me. I was something new, everybody was making a lot of fuss about me, and I was a big, strong, healthy guy—you know the old stuff.

"What I didn't know then was that they had told Iris I was making a barrel of money, and that I was certain to win the championship and make a lot more. I didn't know that she was cold and hard.

"I never did know how she got her chance in the Follies, except that it don't seem possible any man could look at her and not give her a break. And I don't know why she didn't marry some millionaire while she was in the chorus...except maybe that these stories of rich men wanting to marry chorus girls are a little exaggerated.

"Well, I lamped that dame and went nuts. I had known lots of women without ever losing my head, but this one had me goofy from the first gong. And she knew it. Also, she was hearing about what a swell future I had and how much I was gonna earn, and she knew that she could hold me without half trying.

"Of course, she had me fooled. I thought she was crazy about me. I couldn't see why, but I was glad enough to think so.

"About that time I was booked with Spike Martin, and my contract promised that if I whipped him, I was to get a shot at the title. Odds was two to one on me to beat Spike and they would of been better than even for me to take the champ. It seemed like I was sitting pretty and nobody couldn't shake me—and I started begging Iris to marry me.

"Well, she had it figured out that I was gonna always have a wad of dough, and also she was just a kid and I guess she got a kick out of running around with a fighter, and anyway, she said yes, she would. So one night, with just a few friends, we got hitched. We was gonna keep it secret at least until after I licked Spike. She thought, for one thing, that she would lose her job with the Follies if they found out she was married and she wanted to stay on there until I could quit for a while and we could take a long trip together—Europe or some place."

"We was married; me and that girl. I guess there never was a man more loco about his wife than I was about her. And maybe at first she loved me a little—even if it was only because I cared so much about her. Women are that way sometimes: they can't help being nice to a feller who is goofy about them. Anyway, we was awful happy.

"She wasn't nothing but a kid. And ambitious. Right from the first she talked money: how much I had and how much I was gonna make. Of course I thought it was because she was crazy about me and anxious for me to make good—sort of wanting to see that nobody put anything across on me. And the first thing she did was to make me break with my manager.

"He was a good guy, but I didn't know it then. He had picked me up when I was a preliminary boy and taught me plenty. I never had no written contract with him, but he made my matches and earned the one-third I gave him. And I know now that I won my battles because he was in my corner. You can say what you like, but a good second does half the fighting. Ted used to sit there watching and when things was going worst for me he would explain what the other bird's weakness was, and I would try out what he said, and then I would be surprised to see how easy I could sock him.

"I broke with Ted before the Martin fight. I was so crazy about that dame I guess I'd have killed a man if she had said to. And then came the battle.

"Spike Martin stopped me. He stopped me because Ted wasn't in my corner. He outboxed me, just like I knew he would, but where I had been outboxed a lot of times and then had Ted tell me what to do...I don't have him now and what that baby did to me was just too bad.

"That was the beginning. I couldn't believe I had slipped, and I never realized 'til afterwards how much Ted had been doing for me. He had the brains and I had the fists. Now the brains was gone.

"I had a nice rep so I got some good bouts. It was always a battle when I was in the ring—like you know—but what happened to me was terrible. They all polished me off and I was getting softened up. Two or three boys stopped me and then I was glad to get semi-finals in the very clubs where a few months before they was begging me to fight main bouts.

"The fight racket is a queer one, anyway. You're good just as long as you're good, but when you slip you're a punk. I dropped out of the picture so quick I didn't know what was happening. But that didn't break me up: what put the finishing touches to me was Iris."

Splendid Costumes at Rossland Hallowe'en

Few Depredations As Kiddies Given Good Time

Rossland Nov. 7. — Witches, brooms, jack-o'lanterns, all the usual trappings of Hallowe'en were in evidence on the streets of Rossland and in the skating rink last Hallowe'en, and if appearance are anything to go by, the members of the Gyro committee were having every bit as good a time as the kiddies, which is saying a lot. The celebration apparently took all of the youngsters' time and attention, for store windows this morning bore no traces of tallow, no vehicles had been laboriously hauled up the courthouse steps, sidewalks all appeared to be in their customary places, and down town streets, at least, bore small traces of depredations.

The parade started at 6:15, wild looking Indians marching hand in hand with colonial ladies and kilted Scots, Mickey Mouse peeping out here and there from the ranks, colored mammies with white teeth gleaming, clowns in their gay trappings, ghosts of all descriptions, several varieties of his Satanic Majesty, and other wild creatures which make their appearance annually at this time of the year. Arriving at the rink, the children were grouped by divisions and the judges took up their work. It was no easy task, but the prize for the best division went to Division 12, taught by Miss Georgia Martin and the one for the best banner to Division 7, Miss Jackson's room. The prizes for the best costumes were awarded as follows:

Division 12—Dorothy Urquhart and Kenneth Cameron; Div. 11—Donna McKenzie and Jack Zentner; Div. 10—Joyce Topliff and Clifford Daily; Div. 9—Edith McKenna and Earl Martin; Div. 8—Donna Berg and Eric Mongue; Div. 7—Harold Lins and Ina Irvin; Div. 6—John Freeman and Nellie Ozoroff; Div. 5—May Sommerville and Leslie Foster; Div. 4—Wesley Towner and Helen Turner; Div. 3—Nellie Sdao and Eva Johnson; Div. 2—James Urquhart and Viva Freeman; Div. 1—Ray Cullinane and Eileen Berg; High school—Div. 1—Ogopogo; Div. 2—Lilias Jarvis and Dixie Edwards; Div. 3—Ed. Cullinane and Eleanor Tomich; Div. 4—Dorothy Leface and Helen Hackney.

SHARP RISE IN RETAIL SALES

Index numbers of retail sales issued by the Dominion bureau of statistics rose from 73.5 in August to 85.0 in September, or 15.6 per cent. This is the best showing for the same two months during the five years covered by the index, the average rise being 8.5 per cent. It appears, therefore, that while a large part of the rise is due to seasonal influences, nevertheless the gain is more than seasonal.

Boots and shoes increased from 55.6 in August to 77.5 in September; clothing from 57.7 to 77.0; drugs from 70.3 to 73.3; dyers and cleaners from 96.3 to 113.7, and furniture from 49.3 to 57.8. General and departmental rose from 82.2 to 100.3; groceries and meats from 73.8 to 76.5; hardware from 87.2 to 105.3, and music and radio from 20.2 to 29.2. Candy sales fell from 68.3 to 66.8, and restaurants from 60.9 to 59.3.

Indexes for the same groups comparing 1932 and September 1933 moved as follows: boots and shoes fell from 71.6 to 77.5; clothing from 75.9 to 77.0; dyers and cleaners from 112.3 to 113.7; general and departmental from 94.4 to 100.3; hardware from 105.0 to 105.3, and the general index moved from 83.6 to 85.0. Candy decreased from 67.0 to 66.8; drugs from 76.8 to 73.3; groceries and meats from 78.9 to 76.5; music and radio from 40.6 to 29.2, and restaurants from 64.7 to 59.3.

Mass Emotionalism Threat to Peace

One of the saving features in the present European crisis is that Germany, even though she may have re-armed secretely to some extent, does not possess the equipment she would need to wage an effective war. If she attempted to give violent expression to the mood of militarism she has exhibited her defeat would be almost certain.

Yet even this safeguard is deficient. Except among loyalists to the Nazi cause it cannot be accepted that present German policies are responsive to rational thinking or recognition of realities. The country has given every evidence of being in an emotional trance, ever since Hitler achieved power, and in any test between emotion and sanity, it is to be feared emotions would prevail.

The present mass attitude of the German people, in fact, is seen by many expert observers as making the country more of a menace than it was in 1914. A prominent member of the staff of the New York Times, writing before Germany cut loose from the League of Nations, remarked:

> The renascent Germany of Hitler is actually a more formidable neighbor (to France) than the junker-dominated empire of the Kaiser. It is more incalculable, less controllable. All parallels notwithstanding, it is not at all the same thing; it has other goals, new values, rules developed by a mentality never heretofore in control of a great European power.
> The old Germany was a military machine prepared to strike, and operating as such machines can be counted on to operate. The new Germany is a mass in movement. All predictions as to what it will do, what course it will follow, are as valueless as were the prophecies of those who swore that Hitler could never rule the Germany they thought they knew. Nobody can count on what this Germany will do.

It is fervor of the uninformed millions in Germany, denied all knowledge of what is happening in other lands, and steeped in the Hitler propaganda which has stirred their hatreds and negated their reasoning processes, that presents the gravest threat in the present situation.

HITLER MAKING ENEMIES

Not satisfied with banning The Manchester Guardian from Germany, Hitler has now refused to allow The London Observer to enter the Fatherland. There is no English paper in the past which has been fairer to Germany than The Observer. Even during the war, while The Observer was 100 per cent behind British efforts, it discounted the atrocity stories. The Observer objected vigorously to the terms of the Versailles peace pact, believing that there was nothing to be gained by crushing Germany into the ground; it felt that the reparations, as time has proven, were impossible. It was sympathetic in its attitude, as was most of England, with Germany, and believed that in the interests of Europe and peace throughout the world in general, Germany should be allowed to get on her feet.

However, The Observer is bitterly opposed to the "neo-barbaric" policy, as John L. Garvin, the brilliant editor, describes it, of Hitler and his Nazis. Garvin has thundered against the militaristic program of Hitler, has denounced his despotism, has condemned his persecution of the Jews and has been alarmed over his crushing of freedom of the press and of speech. The Observer believes that Hitler's mad policy can only in the end result disastrously for Germany. In addition, The Observer, while strongly for disarmament, is of the opinion that as long as Germany is talking belligerently and is filled with marching Nazis, it is hopeless to expect France, Poland or other countries to reduce their armaments.

So Hitler's reply is to ban The Observer from Germany. Such a policy can only result in lining up England definitely against Germany. In fact, Hitler is building up a ring of enemies around his country. It is a mad dog policy which can only end disastrously for his own country as well as for the welfare of Europe. However, no one need worry about war in Europe at the present time. Germany has alienated all the powers, great and small. She has no friends; she is in no position to start a war.

The only hope for Germany is for Hitler to change his ways, to re-enter the League of Nations and to show a willingness to co-operate with the rest of the world. He cannot bluster and bluff Europe, and that is what he is trying to do at the present time.

FREE ADVICE

News as to the number of shopping days there are before Christmas always comes as a great surprise.
The shades of night were falling fast
When through a sort of village passed
A kind of youth, dressed all in black
With this strange sign upon his back—
SHOP EARLY
"Turn backward," came a native's gibe,
With scorn not easy to describe,
While others tried to drive him hence
With lighted pumpkins on the fence.
But still the youth, in solemn plea,
Held up the sign for all to see.
SHOP EARLY
Worn out from travelling all day,
The youth at nightfall hit the hay,
And fell into a dreamless sleep
In some small inn where beds were cheap,
And, with each snore his nostrils fanned
This message floated o'er the land—

SOUP TO NUTS

(With apologies to Kipling)

If you can sip your soup when all about you,
Are people sipping their's and splashing high;
If you can take a grapefruit in the morning
Inhale its juice and keep your forehead dry:

If you can pass the ketchup to your neighbor
And keep your finger-tips out of the sauce;
If you can drop your pudding on the carpet
And never say a word about your loss.

If you can take a nut and crack it open
And though the odor almost makes you run
You stuff it down your throat and crack another—
You'll be a man, and, WHAT A MAN, my son!

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

WEIGHT IS DETERMINED BY THREE MAIN FACTORS

"Three things determine the weight of any person; how much he eats, how much he exercises, and how much he inherits," says Dr. William I. Fishbein in "Scholastic Coach."

To this might well be added "how much he rests," although this might be included in how much or how little he exercises.

Although the tables of heights and weights are not used as much as they were formerly, nevertheless parent and child should have a clear idea of the correct weight for the child. This weight should be that at which the child feels strongest and most active — most willing to play or work. It is safer for children to be a few pounds overweight than a few pounds underweight, for underweight children may mean undernourishment in a great many cases.

This means that if the parents, or the parent of the child most resembles was a good average weight at the present age of the child then attempts to increase weight in the underweight child would be wise.

If, by inheritance, a child tends to be slender, attempts to increase the weight will only lead to digestive upsets and will thus not help the general health or physique.

Attempts to decrease the weight of a child, who, by heredity, tends to be fat, will likewise have ill effects. If, after a careful study, it is decided that the child is overweight because he is exercising too little and eating too much, it is satisfactory to put him on a reducing program.

"Children who are underweight but who are not undernourished are in no need of a gain in weight."

Dr. Fishbein states further: "It is important to bear in mind the distinction between underweight and undernourishment; between overweight due to over-eating and that due to gland disturbances or to overweight which is due only to body build. The short, stocky individual, with large muscles, will weigh more in proportion to his height than the slender long-muscled type."

I believe these little "reminders" from Dr. Fishbein should make parents take note of their children's weight, avoiding stuffing the child with food because he happens to be slender but not undernourishing; seeing that he gets more food if he is undernourished; and cutting down on his food intake if he is overeating and underexercising.

BODY BUILDING FOODS

Minerals which build up bone and teeth in human beings are found in the following foods—milk, buttermilk, cheese, lean meats, liver, eggs, spinach, dried peas and beans, rolled oats, carrots, potatoes, string beans, cabbage, cauliflower, celery, turnips, peanuts, apples and oranges. The foods which produce iron to build up the blood in the human body are liver, lean meat, spinach, molasses, bran, whole wheat, rolled oats, potatoes, carrots, turnips and peanuts.—Edith Elliot and Laura Pepper in "Healthful Meals at Low Cost", issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

EVER FLOWING

Like a river going
To the far sea's gleam,
Song is ever flowing
In a silver stream.

In the notes of thrushes,
In the city's cries,
Round the world it rushes,
Song that never dies!

Even in the lower
Calls of dusk and dawn,
When life's pulse beats slower,
Song keeps flowing on.

Though past the surmising
Of our finite ears,
Splendid song is rising
From the spinning spheres.

Faint, or stronger growing,
As man's days pass by,
Song is ever flowing
Through his destiny.

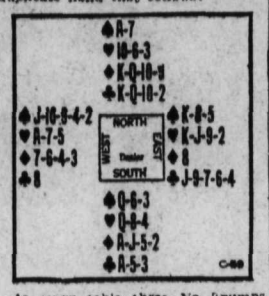
Auction and Contract Bridge

By the World's Leading Authority, MILTON C. WORK

SOUND DEFENSIVE REASONING

At times a dummy holding necessitates unorthodox defense from an opponent. This was never more forcefully illustrated than in the duplicate hand that follows:



At every table three No Trumps was the final contract and in some cases North, in others South, was the Declarer.

At the tables where South was the dummy, there was nothing to the play. East led a Club, and the Declarer won with the Ten, taking four Diamonds and one Spade, enabled him to romp home with his contract; but when South was the man at the helm, a different situation ensued. West's opening lead was the Jack of Spades which most Declarers passed up to South's Queen, hoping that the lead had been from King-Jack-10 and realizing that if East won with the King and returned a Spade, game would be assured.

That as what happened at a number of tables, but some Easts, knowing that South held the Queen of Spades, shifted and led a Heart. At most tables the Heart selected was the Deuce, normally the correct lead, and when that happened the adversaries were able to take two Heart tricks, after which the Declarer secured the third and made one trick in excess of his contract.

At only two tables did East realize that with the Ten in dummy, the sound lead from King-Jack-9-2 is the Jack, not the Deuce. It will be noted that with East leading the Jack of Hearts, it mattered not whether South covered with the Queen or ducked. If the former, West won with the Ace, returned the suit, and the Ten being captured by a finesse, the adversaries took four Heart tricks which, in addition to the one Spade already secured, defeated the contract. If South ducked, the Jack won, and a small Heart followed, West took the trick and led a third Heart with the same result.

One Declarer, fearing a Heart shift in case East held the King of Spades, determined that his best chance was to try to take four Diamonds, four Clubs, and one Spade. He played the Ace of Spades on the first round and ran four Diamonds, on the fourth East was compelled to make an embarrassing discard. He had already discarded one Club, and one Spade, and now had to part with aHeart, a Club, or the King of Spades; regardless of the discard selected, the Declarer fulfilled his contract.

Heighho and a couple of style flashes from Paris! If you like a large hat, wear a capeline with shallow crown; on the other hand, velvet berets are chic, pulled forward to eclipse that good right eye, you know. And a third flash, in case you're interested, is a quaint canotier hat that has appeared on the horizon with flowers massed at the back, if you wish, but which, in any event, is perched above your ringlets at the back.

The person who designed the latest Paris vanity case should receive a medal, and would if women could obtain it for him or her. The powder vanity, lipstick, comb and all the other odds and ends that usually clutter up a women's purse are all contained in one small case which the French call a necessaire.

Newspapermen and telegraph operators, for half a century, on completion of a story have placed the mystic numeral "30". That numeral simply means "the end," and for many years it was accepted in newspaper office that the reason for using this symbol was for brevity's sake over the telegraph wires.

What is the origin of that symbol? The question has been asked thousands of times, but it remained for Frank T. Owen, for 47 years with the Utica (N.Y.), Daily Press, to ferret out several plausible explanations. He canvassed his friends, newspaper and otherwise, far and wide and compiled the following eight theories:

1. When newspaper stories were handwritten, "X" meant the end of a sentence, "XX", the end of a paragraph, "XXX" (Roman for "30") the end of the story.

2. In Bengali "30" means "farewell" or "I quit." A report of the East India company misprinted the figure as "30".

3. Linotype machines cast type, slugs of 30 ems maximum length, hence "30" means the end of the line.

4. A telegraph operator whose number was 30 once stayed at his key sending news of a disaster long after his assistants had fled and until death came to him.

5. Long ago in the West despatches were delivered by messenger from the telegraph office to the newspaper office. The telegraph office closed at 3 a.m., hence, the operator scribbled at the bottom of the last sheet "3 o'clock" which became abreviated in turn to "3 o'c.", "3 O," "30".

6. When the Associated Press was established each member paper was entitled to 30 telegrams per day. Last of the day's quota was labeled "30".

7. Early telegraph operators had a code for conversational asides on the wire:
1—Wait a minute:
4—When shall I proceed?
13—What's the matter?
30 End of item.
73—Kindest regards.

8. The 30 magistrates appointed by Sparta over Athens at the termination of the Peloponnesian war were called the "30 tyrants," and were overthrown after one year's reign. The end of the tyrants was heralded with a spirit of gladness—

HOSPITAL AID AT KASLO HAS A GOOD YEAR

It Passes Triumphantly Through Trying Times

OFFICERS ARE ALL REELECTED

Has Cash on Hand and Good Reserve Fund

KASLO, B.C., Nov. 6—One of the inspiring meetings held by the society was the meeting of Kaslo Ladies' hospital aid Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Jack Paterson. The president, Mrs. E. H. Latham presided. The secretary's report was given by Mrs. Chester Speirs. Mrs. Jack Paterson, the treasurer, reported a working balance of $155.05 with $326.65 in the reserve fund. Receipts for the day were $12.10. Bills amounting to $102.80 were presented and ordered paid. Fourteen pairs of blankets costing $102.80 were the big item of the month's expenses. Mrs. Bowker reporting for the buyers gave the list of requirements for the current month and with Mrs. Stubbs her co-buyer, was instructed to make the necessary purchases. Mrs. Stubbs, for the house committee, reported that the linen supply checked up favorably with the last inventory which was taken in August. She also stated that the purchases for last month had been satisfactorily made.

Mrs. D. J. Barclay, who had promised to be responsible for the price of two pairs of blankets turned in $7 toward this fund and promised that the balance would be forthcoming before the treasurer's books were closed for the year.

Mrs. Smith, secretary for the "Sunshine circle" reported having sent the usual letters and flowers to members during the month and had received appreciative thanks. She also read a letter from Mrs. W. A. Anderson, a former president of the aid. Mrs. Anderson said that she had met several former Kaslo'ites in Golden, her new home. She gave some very interesting accounts of the activities of various societies as well as touching on the social side of life in Golden. Mrs. Smith was instructed to write Mrs. Anderson expressing delight and appreciation for her most interesting letter coupled with the request that she repeat the treat in the near future. Mrs. Smith reported a balance of $12.10 in the "Sunshine fund" and turned $2.10 into the general fund. The treasurer reported that Mr. Chester had consented to audit the books.

The board representative reported having attended a special meeting of the board of directors when the matter of the winter fuel supply for the hospital was under consideration.

Mrs. Stubbs reported that several articles had been added to the long list of supplies which had been donated to the hospital at the time of the "Free will offering". Taken altogether, these donations were valued at about $125. Cash amounting to $3 was turned in at the meeting for this fund. The president stated that as the hospital had been very busy the quarterly inventory had not been taken, the report of the matron, Miss Munn, and the buyers, Mrs. Stubbs and Mrs. Bowker sufficing for the present. One of the members offered to donate a large dolls bed, to be raffled, and it was decided to accept the offer, several of the members volunteering to make and donate the bed clothing. R. E. Green having consented to decorate the bed. A committee to take charge of arrangements for the raffle, will be appointed at the next meeting.

The buyers were asked to make all necessary purchases as early as possible and the meeting authorized the treasurer to pay all outstanding accounts, including those for the current month, before closing her books for the year.

The president stated that nominations for new officers were in order. She appealed to all who might be nominated, to take time to consider before either refusing or accepting the nomination, whereupon a motion was made, seconded and put from the floor, the members standing in an unanimous vote to return all retiring officers, by acclamation. The surprised and honored members of the retiring executive were so overwhelmed by this unusual display of confidence and loyalty that for a few moments they were speechless and the motion was quickly carried. In putting the motion Mrs. D. J. Barclay paid a high tribute to the members of the executive, stating that despite the depression, and many handicaps, the past year had been a most successful one and the meetings most pleasant and harmonious and, speaking for all, she thought that an executive who had obtained such splendid results during a very trying year should be retained in office and given the opportunity and privilege of carrying on during what promised to be a better and easier year for everyone. The members of the executive, gracefully acceded to the wishes of the members, the only retiring officer being the senior buyer, Mrs. G. D. Bowker, who stated that although she enjoyed the work the fact that she had her home at Mirror Lake made it impossible for her to get into town, when perhaps she was most needed. Her resignation was regretfully accepted. Mrs. Stubbs automatically became senior buyer and Mrs. Mary White was elected by acclamation as junior buyer. The 1933-34 executive committee will therefore be as follows, President and board representative Mrs. E. H. Latham; 1st. vice-president, Mrs. E. J. Thornberg; 2nd. vice-president, Miss C. M. Fawcett; secretary, Mrs. Chester Speirs; treasurer, Mrs. Jack Paterson; buyers Mrs. J. H. Stubbs and Mrs. Mary White; "Sunshine" secretary Mrs. Thomas Smith. Representatives from the United, Anglican and Catholic church aids and the Women's Institute will be appointed by their respective societies.

Thanks were tendered Mrs. Paterson for the use of her home for the meeting and to Mrs. Thornberg and Mrs. Paterson and their assistant, Miss Hilda Chester for the delicious refreshments served.

Those in attendance were Mrs. E. H. Latham, Mrs. E. J. Thornberg, Miss C. M. Fawcett, Mrs. Chester Speirs, Mrs. Jack Paterson, Mrs. J. H. Stubbs, Mrs. Gordon Bowker, Mrs. Thomas Smith, Mrs. Mary White, Mrs. J. M. Elk, Mrs. D. J. Barclay, Mrs. James Speirs, Miss Alice Hodges, Mrs. John Keen, Mrs. Frank Helme, Mrs. Lockhard, Mrs. J. TELLS OF GOLD THAT GATHERED THROUGH AGES

Alfred Cummings Sees Future for the Cariboo

FORTUNES MADE IN EARLY DAYS

One Man Got 102 Lbs. of Aureate Metal in One Day

FERNIE, B.C., Nov. 7—Alfred Cummings, who has returned to Fernie from Barkerville in the Cariboo district, told the Rotarians at their lunch on Monday of his impressions of this gold mining district where he spent the summer.

He was favorably impressed with the possibilities of a considerable camp being formed from the quartz gold mining near Barkerville. Two companies he thought were beyond the experimental stage of prospecting and several others were spending considerable money on a business-like attempt to prove their properties.

He told of the many placer hydraulicing companies that are operating in that area, and gave a description of the probable process of nature by which the creek beds acted as sluice boxes, gathering the gold, weathered away through the ages, from the quartz veins.

He gave figures illustrating the exceptional richness when first discovered of Williams creek which flows past Barkerville. He said the government report of 1874 told of a man who dug from his claim 102 pounds of gold in one day. It was brought into the town from his claim close by and weighed on a grocer's scales. Nature had collected the yellow metal in a pot-hole behind a large rock.

Mr. Cummings described the Cariboo road north of Clinton as a third rate road, so crooked that the only way to get another curve in it would be to lengthen it, but as it was built in the days of the ox cart and oxen would negotiate the turns in high gear without mishap.

Mr. Cummings is returning to Vancouver after a couple of weeks' visit in Fernie.

Mrs. Harold Minton returned to Fernie from Nelson Sunday. She will make her home here.

University of British Columbia graduates of the Fernie and Cranbrook districts are plannning on holding a reunion dinner dance at Kimberley.

SILVER SHARES KEEP MINING POT BOILING, GOLDS DRAG ON

Silvers Account for a Third of Turnover at Toronto

TORONTO, Nov. 7 (CP) —Silver shares kept the pot boiling again today on the Standard mining exchange and at the close they were in higher territory. Gold shares dragged, particularly interlisted leaders, and along with base metal leaders were down a little at the close. Oil shares were moderately unsteady. About a quarter of a million shares changed hands.

Eight silver stocks accounted for about a third of the entire turnover. Eldorado traded 33,000 shares and closed at 3.99, up 28 cents. Mining Corporation gained 13 to 2.08 and Nipissing 20 cents to 2.90. Bear Exploration added 2½ to 87¾.

International Nickel with less than 500 shares out finished 10 cents down at 19.70. Noranda also lost 10 cents to 33.90. Sudbury Basin 4 to 1.11 and Falconbridge 9 to 3.26. Base Metals Corporation was strong, closing 9 higher at 1.79.

Dome lost 25 cents, McIntyre, 50 cents, Hollinger 15 cents, and Wright Hargreaves 5 cents.

Oil shares took narrow losses, Home Oil closing 5 lower, Calgary and Edmonton 9, Associated 1 and Oil Selection a fraction. Chemical Research gained 2 to 1.70.

U. S. Dollar Opens at Par in the East

MONTREAL, Nov. 7 (CP) —Foreign currencies firmed on Montreal foreign exchanges today. The United States dollar, after opening at par, the first time it touched that mark since 1931, firmed to 1-16 of one per cent premium, unchanged from last night's closing level.

The British pound sterling was strong throughout the day and closed up 2¼ cents at $4.91 13-16, while the French franc rose .02 cents at 6.08 cents. Other rates were stronger.

BUSINESS AT COAST FAIR

Poor Roads on Prairie Check Business States Letter

Business in the wholesale fruit and produce line continues fair at the coast but business is quiet on the prairie due to heavy snow fall and poor roads, states the market letter from the department of agriculture at Victoria.

VICTORIA

Business in the wholesale fruit and produce line has improved considerably during the latter part of this week. Apple prices remain unchanged. Jonathan bulk is now being offered at 3½ cents per pound. Head lettuce from Washington is on the market at $2.75 per crate. A few baskets of Okanagan Concord grapes are still being offered at 45 cents per basket. Hothouse tomatoes are quoted at $1.50 to $1.75 per crate. Okanagan Spanish onions are on sale at 2½ cents per pound. Local carrots are selling at 75 cents and turnips from 90 cents to $1.15 per sack. Potato prices are unchanged at from $1.15 to $1.55 per hundredweight.

VANCOUVER

There is a good supply of apples on the market with demand fair and prices unchanged. Stayman Winesap bulk has just arrived and is offered at 3 cents per pound. There is a slight fall in the price of cauliflower which is now selling at $1 to $1.25 per dozen. There is also a sharp reduction in head lettuce from California and in place of $5 per crate it is now selling from $3.75 to $4. Pasco head lettuce is being offered at $3.25 to $3.50 per 5-dozen crate. Hothouse tomatoes have dropped in price and are now from $1.50 to $2 a crate. Local Italian broccoli is on sale at 6 cents per pound but is moving very slowly as this product is comparatively unknown. A shipment of late Howe cranberries is due November 6. These are quoted at $4.50 per 25-pound crate. There is little or no change in egg prices. One carload has been shipped out to Montreal during the present week and various L.C.L.s to Alberta and Winnipeg ranging from 5 to 50 cases. The production of eggs is reported on the increase. There is no change in poultry prices. Six carloads of live poultry have arrived in from Alberta during the early part of this week. There is no change in pork and veal prices. Hay, grain and feed wholesale prices remain very steady with no change from last week.

CALGARY

Snow continues to fall and country (secondary) roads are reported in bad shape. Business is very quiet. There is a heavy decrease in car arrivals of fruit and vegetables to Calgary, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat for October compared with October last year. The potato movement is reported slow in southern Alberta with the market still showing weakness. The apple demand has not improved much.

SEATTLE

The first cars of eastern late Howe cranberries were received on Thursday with demand fair and market steady at $2.75 for quarter barrel box. Western McFarland's are in moderate supply at $2.50 per box. The first new crop of California grapefruit arrived on Wednesday. The quality is good and market steady at $3.25 per case. Florida supplies are moderate at $4.50 to $4.75 a case. Lettuce market weaker, supplies heavy and demand trading light. Supplies are coming in from practically all northwest points. Pasco product is selling at $1.60 to $1.75 and Yakima's at $1.15 to $1.25 per crate. Potato market quiet with supplies liberal and demand light; No. 1s are selling on track to wholesalers mostly at $1 to $1.15 per hundredweight.

WINNIPEG WHEAT ACTIONS LOCAL

Price Fluctuations Are Narrow Outside Trade Is Dull

WINNIPEG, Nov. 7 (CP)—Interest was at a low ebb on the grain exchange today, and prices fluctuated over a narrow range, closing at levels ⅜ to ½ cent lower. Trading was extremely dull.

November wheat ended the day at 62½, December at 61⅞, May at 65¾, and July at 66¾ cents. No export business in Canadian wheat materialized to give any support to price structure, and the trend in outside markets was easier.

Operations were entirely local. Liverpool wheat dropped 1¼d to ⅝d while Buenos Aires and Chicago prices were off. Cash grains operations were dull but a little improvement was noted in demand and spreads on some grades were fractionally improved. Coarse grains trading was confined to routine spreading and prices were influenced by dullness in wheat futures.

Italy's Massed Wedding Festival a Great Success

So pleased was Premier Mussolini at the success of the wedding festival, or "consecration of nuptiality" in Italy recently, that he may make it an annual affair. The mass marriage seems to be a favorite theme with dictators. Napoleon tried it, and more recently, Chancellor Hitler of Germany blessed a large number of his storm troopers who took brides en masse. In Rome the happy couples, 2500 of them, received presents—amounting to $40 each—from the state, and also received the papal blessing from Pope Pius at a Vatican reception.

RYE LEADS OTHER GRAINS UPWARD

CHICAGO, Nov. 7 (AP) —Rye became a centre of board of trade interest late today, advancing 1-1½ cents a bushel and helping to pull other grains out of declines.

An outburst was associated with belief prohibition repeal would be realized through today's voting in various American states. Wheat closed ⅛ off to ¾ up, corn ¼-⅞ down, oats at ⅛-¼ decline, and provisions varying from 10 cents setback to 10 cents gain.

ROSENBLOOM'S OPEN HAND QUESTIONED

AXIE DEFIES ALL THE RULES OF BOXING IN WALKER BATTLE DECLARES REFEREE ED FORBES

A Rule Is a Rule" He Declares Before Commission

E GAVE MICKEY 9 FULL ROUNDS

ays Referees Blind to Rosenbloom's Open Slapping Style

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP)—Eddie Forbes, veteran referee, has idea a rule is a rule, and when comes to enforcement in a prize ght, the best are exactly the me as the worst.

So boxing today enjoyed another ntertaining argument, similar in ape and form, though scarcely size, to the debates that still ho faintly through the years er the accuracy of decisions that nce gave Harry Greb's light eavyweight title to Gene Tunney d Tiger Flowers' middleweight own to Mickey Walker.

The argument which the state letic commission may try to le this week, swirls around the vision in the fighting code that s a blow delivered with an open e is a foul blow, and should be lled as such.

VIVED IN BOUT

t has been revived by the match, which Maxey Rosenbloom, sinstudent of the slapping-with-an-m-glove-school, successfully deded his light heavyweight title Friday against the same Mickey lker who once won one o... uments, a Walker now grown and slow and pudgy and unable fight very much any more.

o accustomed have the experts general run of ring officials beme to Rosenbloom's unorthodox le, similar as far as the open e is concerned to that of Geo Flowers, that they take it for nted it doesn't count any more t the end of the 15-round conJudge Jim Buckley gave Rosenom nine rounds and Walker six. ge Charley Lynch thought Max won 11 rounds, Walker three. e experts about the ringside raged about the same opinion, not so Eddie Forbes.

VE WALKER NINE

s referee of the contest, Forbes one hearty ballot for Walker, arding him nine rounds and enbloom four. He explained his e as follows:

I have only one boss and that is rule book. In my opinion Rosen-om's style of hitting is contrary the rules, and until the rules altered to make his style perible I will continue to penalize any time I referee one of his nts. As long as the rules remain they are I intend to see they are erved by Rosenbloom and every er boxer."

ut, demands Bill Brown, new mber of the New York state athc commission, of Refe.ee Forbes, hy didn't you heave Rosenbloom n the premises before 15 rounds e up, if he was fouling so conently he was penalized half a en rounds?"

or the moment the matter rests re. It will be taken up, with points shrewdly considered and parties questioned thoroughly, at ursday's meeting of the commis-n.

Pennant Winners of 1933

Because of the complicated play-offs provided in some of the minor leagues the past season, the standings in the regular race do not always indicate who emerged as the pennant-winners. Probably the game never saw a year in its long history when so many foot-notes were necessary to explain how a club became the champions.

Here is a list of the pennant winners of the 16 leagues operating in Organized Baseball in 1933, and explanations of how they achieved the honor:

HOW AND WHY OF JIMMY SMITH

(By AL DEMAREE)

James Milillo Smith was born in that section of old New York where some of Gotham's greatest men were born, Oliver Street.

At the age of ten he earned his first dime setting pins in the old days when small boys were used for this work. He is truly a graduate of the pit, that old school of bowling, which no longer exists; the school that turned out many of the present-day bowling stars. He is now 52 years old. Although his hair is sparse and streaked with grey, he is now rolling as well as ever.

One of his greatest feats was made on the Recreation alleys in Denver, Col., Sept. 17-18, 1925, where he averaged 243 21-30 for 30 games.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

November 8, 1913—Alfred De Oro of Cuba retained his title of champion of three cushion billiards, by defeating Joseph Carney 150-143 at New York City.

PICKS THE A'S FOR NEXT YEAR

Bill Dooly of the Philadelphia Record, taking time by the forelock, registers his forecast early that the Athletics will be the pennant winners of the American League in 1934, and gives his reasons as Marcum, Mahaffey, Cain and Grove. "You will note my reasons are all pitchers," writes Dooly. "There is no trick in it. Pitching was all the A's needed this year to be winners, or so close to it they'd have been turning out the gendarmes to keep the crowd in order at Shibe Park. The Mackian front, as it holds the parapets from the plate around to third, and from one side of the outfield to the other, is good enough to be the stuff of which champions are made.

"And since to my mind, the Nationals are a one-year champion and the Yanks have gone back too far to catch up in one season, the Athletics are my team for 1934. To have a long shot, just to complete the entry, I'll name the Detroit Tigers. I think they're coming with their jowls open.

"The one dubious link of the Mackian cast is at second base. There are plenty who are calling it a day for Max Bishop, saying he's through; that his blond tresses are not going to be on view at second base another season. But Max, I hear, is going in for a routine of exercise this winter. He is going to remain active and not sit around watching his waist expand. If Max adheres to the plan, he has two or three more seasons of major league baseball before him."

Size Isn't Everything

New Oriole Outfielder Looks Like Pygmy, but he Knows How to Hit

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 8—One of the new Baltimore players who will be watched with interest at next year's camp will be George Barry, a five foot six inch outfielder from Johnstown of the Middle Atlantic league. Barry is one of several fine outfield prospects the Birds have on their roster.

Although undersized, weighing only 155 pounds, Barry is fast afoot and possesses a strong throwing arm. His hitting has been of high caliber. In 1932 he completed the season at Johnstown, batting .344, and the past summer he was breezing along at a .375 clip, until hit on the head by a pitched ball. His batting slipped, but when the Orioles purchased him late in the season, he was around .360.

The site of the Orioles' 1924 training base is now occupying the attention of Henry P. Dawson, general manager, but if certain items can be successfully ironed out, the Birds will once again condition themselves at Jacksonville, Fla.

The club found the Flor'da town an ideal spot as far as weather was concerned. There was little or no wind, the training quarters were good and the grounds spacious. In fact, Jacksonville proved the best training site of the last few years, when the Orioles did their spring work at Gulfport, Mis. and Waco, Tex.

The only difficulty that arose last spring was the scarcity of games against good clubs, few of the major leaguers having arranged their schedules so that a stop could be made at Jacksonville. However, if business matters can be settled with Jacksonville people at an early date, then Dawson will be able to go to work on a suitable program for spring work.

McGill Coach Is Ill on Eve of a Crucial Contest

MONTREAL, Nov. 7 (CP)—McGill's senior football team received a severe setback in its preparation for the all-important game against University of Toronto at Toronto next Saturday when Coach Frank Shaughnessy was forced to bed today with a severe cold.

"Shag" was told by doctors if he did not get indoors and into bed he would be threatened with an attack of pneumonia. He hopes to return to the field later this week.

WINOOKA ENDS IN LAST PLACE

Badly Beaten in Four Horse Race at New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP)—Winooka, winner of two straight races in Maryland, attempted to match his speed with three of the metropolitan turf's most useful sprinters today but failed, finishing last, a badly beaten colt, in a four-horse field.

John Simonetti's Sgt. Byrne, a 2-year-old, stepped home first in the six furlongs of the international speed test, feature of the United Hunts one-day meeting at Belmont park. The time was 1:11 2-5 for the three-quarter mile within two-fifths of a second of Winooka's best time in this country. Sgt. Byrne held a neck advantage over J. Simon Healy's Flying Heels. Mrs. James M. Austin's Good Advice was only another neck to the rear in the blanket finish but Winooka was almost out of the picture, trailing by more than four lengths.

The Australian had no excuse, unless it was the sloppy track. Not once from the time Sammy Renick shot Sgt. Byrne away in front of the quartette was Winooka, guided by his jockey, Edgar Britt, able to menace the leaders.

Well-Known Coach Gives Idea Perfect Hockey Machine

Chicago, Nov. 7.—Weight and scoring punch on the rear-guard plus speed and more speed and sharp-shooting ability up front constitutes Tommy Gorman's idea of the perfect hockey machine.

Planning to this end for the opening of the National Hockey league season less than a week away the fiery manager of the Chicago Blackhawks experiments with great rapidity on the University of Illinois ring where the Hawks are training.

He has let it be known he believes the backline combination he is sweet on is just about the best to be found anywhere. Gorman plans to have Charlie Gardiner back in the goal cage. The Winnipeg Scot is in much better shape than he was last year when he suffered from ailing tonsils which have been ejected from his constitution.

COULTER ON DEFENCE

Out front to keep the snipers away from Gardiner, Gorman is relying firstly on Lionel Conacher and Art Coulter, the husky youngster, who became somewhat of a sensation last year.

Gorman secured Conacher by sending Teddy Graham and a bundle of cash to Montreal Maroons and no one can tell the former Ottawan he got any the worse of the deal.

He counts on Conacher to add the weight and scoring punch to the Hawk defensive system, something he claims was sadly lacking last season. Conacher led the Canadian group defencemen in successful sniping the previous campaign.

Alternating on the defence will probably be the huge Taffy Abel and Roger Jenkins. The latter has been used mainly as a forward since coming from Toronto Maple Leafs three seasons ago but has developed into a fine defence prospect.

The Hawks have always been noted for their speed and Gorman has all the old ice-burners back with a few new ones the Hawk scouts have reported favorably on.

With Paul Thompson flanked by Johnny Gottselig and Lolo Couture, the Chicago mentor has three of Western Canada's best products as his No. 1 trio. All are fast, experienced and keen shots.

THREE MINUTE TRICKS

Three minute tricks of ice duty is Manager Gorman's idea of the path to hockey success, and he will send Harold "Mush" Match, Tommy Cook and Donnie McFadyen right out to wear down the opposition after the first three have served their spasm.

There still is doubt as to whether McFadyen can hold his berth, as a flashy youngster named Art Merrill has been giving him a stout tussle for the position.

Rivalling Toronto Maple Leafs' famous "kid line" is a threesome from the American association, Jack Leswick, Bob Kendall and Louis Napoleon Trudel. Concerning this trio, however, Gorman has still to decide. They appear to fit perfectly in the Blackhawk system, but Gorman has three others in camp who are displaying fine pre-season form. These are Tom Coulter, brother of Art; Walter Brenneman and Elwyn (Doc) Romnes, veteran of major and minor league campaign.

Joe Starke, of Toronto, who has seen plenty of service in the International and Canadian-American leagues, will serve as reserve goalkeeper.

RUGBY GAME ON ARMISTICE DAY

Arrangements have been completed for the game between the junior and senior rugby teams on Armistice day, and the match will bring the season's play to a close. The senior squad will be somewhat abbreviated and will be without Bill Freno. The juniors will field the same team as last Sunday, in all probability, and they think they can take the seniors. Their final game against Trail proved they have plenty of offensive punch.

EDDIE SHORE IS STILL OUT

Weiland and Shields Sign-Suspensions Are Lifted

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 (CP)—"Cooney" Weiland and Allan Shields have "signed on the dotted line" and will appear in Ottawa uniforms when the National Hockey league season opens. Tonight, only Eddie Shore of Boston remains in the N.H.L. holdout ranks, Eddie still maintaining he is a "60-minute man" who does the work of two players single handed.

Frank Ahearn, M.P., president of the Ottawa club, announced "Cooney" and Allan had agreed to come to terms after he had explained the position of the Ottawa club. Weiland telephoned President Frank Calder in Montreal and informed the league chieftain he was signing, and Calder lifted the suspension imposed on "Cooney" when he failed to accept the Ottawa offers.

Weiland came to Ottawa from Boston when the Senators decided to get back into the N.H.L. ranks.

NEGATIVE SIDE WINS DEBATE

Decide at South Slocan Motion Pictures Not Harmful to Children

SOUTH SLOCAN, B. C., Nov. 7.—Resolved that the motion pictures on this continent are detrimental to children" was the subject at the weekly debate held in the hall with a very attentive audience.

The affirmative was taken by Mrs. John Murray, Miss Elsie Gansner, and Gordon Batley, and the Negative which was adjudged the winning side was taken by J. R. Corner, W. Walkley and Leonard Batley. The points in favor of the motion were lest anyone should think that child attendance at the movies was relatively small, that 37 per cent who frequent them were minors and to add to the evil 66 per cent attend at night.

The motion picture producers were primarily a money making concern and it was necessary for them to appeal to the public in such a way as to draw the largest number of spectators which consisted largely of tired business men and jaded women and to play to them, most sensational and social outrages were shown with the greatest intimacy. In none of the 1500 pictures chosen which represent the average movies of today, did the screen characters earn a living by honest labour, while crime went almost entirely unpunished. Seventy-eight per cent of the actors and actresses introduced drinking and of these 54 per cent definitely showed intoxication. All this made a tremendous impression on the mnds of impressionable teenage youngsters.

The three subjects almost entirely dealt with were crime, sex and love with a percentage of mystery and war.

From a health standpoint statistics show eye-strain, increased heart beat, the vitiated atmosphere of crowded theatres, and the unhealthy moral influence on adolescent boys and girls whose minds should be occupied with sport and other character building activities.

The negative side showed the advantage gained by pictorial geography, the standpoint of music amusement and relaxation.

Early home training and environment had been proven to be the cause of criminal tendencies even greater than the movies. Pictures need not be evil influence in this respect as they prompted a moral, the criminal always being brought to justice.

Parents could use discretion in allowing children to see pictures, as they were afforded ample opportunity of knowing and judging them from the reviews. The chief aim of producers was not profit, but to give the public pictures of the highest possible standard.

The western picture fosters a love of outdoor life and animals. Some of the sensational pictures taken from books were toned down, so that the horrors were not so gruesome, therefore it was better for the child to see the pictures than read the boks. Instead of being a demoralizing influence, pictures could be and were used to educate from a moral and hygenic standpoint in the best possible way the danger of social evils.

Comic pictures tend towards laughter and galety and a cheerful atmosphere all of which are beneficial to a child's welfare.

Pictures helped almost as much as travel to broaden the mind of the child. He learned of the various countries, peoples and customs of other parts of the world in a more interesting and vivid manner than he could possibly learn by reading. J. Edwards was the chairman, the judges were Mrs. O. W. Humphrey, F. Frisby and C. Knowles.

The depositing of wreaths and other memorials will then be carried out. The bugles will sound "The Last Post," the pipes will play a lament, and the bugles will give "The Long Reveille." "God Save the King" by the City band will conclude this ceremonial.

Played by the bands, the ex-servicemen and accompanying boys and girls organizations will then parade to the Capitol theater, where the Nelson Symphony orchestra will play while the people are being seated.

The commemorative program will be of the usual character, with public worship and a memorial address.

It is anticipated that all patriotic organizations will cooperate as usual.

For the members of the Canadian legion and their ladies, the day's program will include the annual dinner and dance in the evening.

POPPY DAY

Preparatory to Remembrance day, Friday will be poppy day, when artificial poppies, fabricated by disabled soldiers, and commemorating the fallen, will be sold by a corps of ladies at the street corners, the proceeds of the tagging to be disbursed by the legion for relief purposes. The ladies' organization is being directed by Mrs. James McIvor.

stantial disarmament effective, would stand by the policy of the Locarno pact, he said.

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Nov. 7 (CP cable).—The British government struck out with equal force today at those who would have British disarm regardless of other nations, and those who would abandon international efforts towards peace and disarmament.

Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, delivered the eagerly-awaited statement of British policy in the present disarmament stall-mate to a packed house of commons, assembled after the summer recess, in opening general debate on disarmament.

THUNDER OF CHEERS

To Sir Stafford Cripps, Labor spokesman, Sir John remarked sardonically the former's statement Britain had done nothing for disarmament "is a classic example of the morbid delight some Englishmen take in face of the plainest facts in fouling their own nest. . . . When an appeal is made for fair play for Germany, are we not entitled to demand fair play for Britain too?"

A thunder of cheers from the government benches interrupted him. On the other hand, the foreign secretary declared with emphasis: "At a time like this, when the international system set up since the war is in jeopardy, we have declared ouselves without any qualification believers in and upholders of the League of Nations as the best possible instrument for international peace.

WORK FOR PEACE

"We shall not get out of our difficulties by trying for isolation when the conditions for isolation have disappeared. We have an immense moral authority to assert and we shall use it by making no special or secret alliance with or against any country, but work for friendship and peace between all."

Keynote of the Labor challenge was set by George Lansbury, veteran Laborite now leading the party, when he set forth a Labor policy demanding as the ultimate aim total disarmament of all nations. He would substitute an international police force.

TOKEN PAYMENT

Jammed to the doors as members flocked back for the important session, the house had previously heard Neville Chamberlain announce a token payment to the United States on the December war debt instalment, and Walter Runciman's announcement Britain would withdraw from the world tariff truce, both of which evoked cheers.

In view of the defections from the world tariff truce negotiated in London last June the British government considers the pact is no longer of any practical value. The United Kingdom will withdraw from it December 17.

With the exception of Japan and some other nations, practically all 66 nations represented at the conference adhered to the truce negotiated in the early and optimistic stages of the great London parley.

Mr. Runciman pointed out Holland, the Irish Free State, Sweden and Switzerland had given notices of withdrawal, while France and Denmark had made substantial reservations.

Opening the disarmament debate, Sir John declared Great Britain "is using and will continue to use every effort to promote international conciliation and disarmament." Her main policy must be to reconcile the French and German cases. "The most material contribution to restoring the confidence of Europe," he said, "would be an international disarmament agreement to which Germany must be a party."

Germany's abrupt withdrawal from the League and the disarmament conference he described as absolutely unjustified and as "shock tactics."

WAS PLANNED MOVE

That the German claim statements in the steering committee of the conference had prompted their withdrawal was wrong, he declared, was amply illustrated by the fact he had barely concluded his statement in the steering committee October 14 when the German government launched a long and evidently carefully prepared statement along with the proclamation on the election and plebiscite.

But whether Germany remained in or out, the British would continue their efforts towards agreement on a disarmament convention, he emphasized.

As for the Locarno pact, Sir John made it clear Britain would stand by her signature. It was a purely defensive pact, he said, and was a contribution to stabilizing forces in Europe which had not exhausted its beneficial influence.

What One Girl Wore

By Betty Brownlee

It's often said in this country that our smartest dressed women are our business girls. One wonders how the girl with limited budget can keep herself looking up-to-the-minute.

Well, it's an easy thing if you do your planning well. Let me make a list for you of a wardrobe that is not at all extensive, but will meet any occasion.

1 dressy fur-trimmed coat
1 sports coat (that can be worn to the office).
2 business frocks
2 black afternoon frocks
1 colored afternoon frock (of velvet or silk)
1 dinner gown that can be transformed into an evening gown by removing its jacket. Preferably this should be in some becoming pastel shade.
1 really formal evening gown.

A selection of daytime accessories that will harmonize with all your costumes, and one set of evening accessories.

I recommend the black afternoon frock for a number of pracital reasons. Black is always smart, it shows wear less readily than does a frock of a light color.

Consider, for instance, the simple but lovely black frock sketched today. Made of soft crepe and cut on very simple lines, it is featured at the neck and sleeves with bands of pink crepe georgette pleatings. Flattering and smart, it will take you through any formal festivity with the feeling that you are appropriately dressed.

MORE ABOUT CONFESSION

skull had been crushed. Until today's revelations the only clue to the fate of Marguerite was a foot found wedged in the sharp-toothed Gaspe coast. A broken toe identified the foot as having belonged to Marguerite.

Police evidence submitted to Coroner Dr. Camille Pouliot the boy was questioned in his Perce, Que., jail cell after signing the confession by Chief Rosario Lamire, of the Quebec provincial detective bureau.

"Did you notice a stick beside the bodies of the girls?" asked Chief Lemire.

"Yes," replied Phillips.

"Was there any blood on the stick?"

"Yes."

"And what did you do with the stick?"

"As far as I can remember, I hid it behind the shed at our place."

DIRECTS SEARCH

The boy was taken to Peninsula, his native village. He was convinced according to police, he would be able to discover the spot where he had buried a bloodstained beret belonging to Maud and Marguerite's coat which he had forgotten on the beach while disposing of their bodies in Gaspe bay.

Police stood on guard around the beach while two laborers dug for hours along the beach in search of evidence. Meanwhile Phillips sat in a closed car nearby giving directions to the diggers and amplifying details of the crime.

Reconstruction Great Northern Roadbed Ended

Work of restoring the Great Northern roadbed between Bealby creek and Five-Mile, where a washout 250 feet occurred last Wednesday morning owing to a sudden descent of accumulated surface water from a natural pocket, was finished Tuesday afternoon, when Great Northern and city gangs gave the new roadbed the finishing touches.

It is stated in civic circles that the fullest investigation has failed to connect the water that caused the Great Northern washout and the Canadian Pacific slide with the city pipe-line, an impression that first obtained in railway circles.

The president added Britain continued to acknowledge the debt and he did not regard the British, in making a token payment, as in default.

7 IN DEFAULT

LONDON, Nov. 7 (CP cable)—While France and six other nations are in default on their war debt payments to the United States, Great Britain will make another "token" payment December 15 when an instalment of $117,000,000 falls due.

Payment of $7,500,000 will be made in United States currency, at present slightly depreciated in terms of the pound sterling.

In view of the Anglo-American deadlock in Washington negotiations, France will not pay a franc of the $22,200,925 instalment on her debt.

ITALY TO PAY SOME

Authoritative sources in Rome indicated to the Associated Press Italy will follow Great Britain's lead and make a part payment.

The intention of the little entente countries, Yugoslavia, Rumania and Czechoslovakia, has not been announced.

Italy owes on December only an interest payment totalling $1,250,000 in gold. What portion she will pay has not yet been determined and financial quarters said it may be about 10 per cent of the amount due.

The British government, with the exception of a postponement under the Hoover moratorium in 1931 and a token payment of $10,000,000 on June 15 last, has met its obligations fully.
