VANCOUVER, May 22 (CP).—Citizens will be mobilized if necessary to carry on waterfront business in the event of a longshoremen's strike, Mayor G. G. McGeer indicated today in announcing that threats of industrial unrest will not interfere with plans to launch the sale of $1,500,000 worth of city of Vancouver "baby bonds." The campaign will start June 10.

"Whether or not we can meet the relief camp crisis and the strike threat and put over a bond issue at the same time is problematical," the mayor said.

LAKE LEVEL UP HALF FOOT DAY

At 8.75 Above Low; 15 Feet Above This Time in 1934

Melting snow and swelling streams are beginning to boost the level of the West Arm at Nelson at the rate of half a foot a day.

Wednesday afternoon, with the level of the lake at 8.75 feet above lower water, the lake was lapping over the top of the city wharf at the lower end.

Since Sunday the level has risen 1.30 feet and the levels for the past four days are as follows:

Sunday 7.45 feet above low water, Monday 7.75 feet above; Tuesday 8.20 feet above; and Wednesday 8.75 feet above.

With a backward spring the rise of the lake level has been exceptionally slow. On May 22 last year the level stood at 15 feet.

On the 20th it had been at 15.10 feet above but dropped back to 14.70 on the 25th and then varied from day to day and the peak came June 2 when a reading placed the level at 16.90 feet.

Forest Fires in B.C. on Increase

VICTORIA, May 22 (CP).—Although damage has not been widespread, fire occurrence in the first three weeks of the 1935 forest fire season in British Columbia has been considerably heavier than last year, especially in the Vancouver forest district, which includes Vancouver Island. The present warm spell is held responsible.

Forty-nine fires were reported last week, bringing the total for the season up to 118, as compared with 93 at this time last year and 61 in 1933. The last two years, however, have been abnormally light fire years.

The Vancouver forest district accounted for 64, or more than half the entire outbreaks, where there were only 12 last year. In all other areas of the province the occurrence was less as compared with 1934.

Hitler Hopes to Reopen Discussion on Europe's Peace

BERLIN, May 22 (AP)—A primary purpose in Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's speech before the reichstag last night, men who helped shape his arguments said today was to set European peace discussions going anew.

Part five of the Versailles treaty, that limiting Germany's armaments, now has been crossed definitely off the books, Hitler was described as believing, and the league of nations, which censured Germany for violating it in rearming, adequately answered.

BRITAIN PLANS TO TRIPLE ITS HOME AIR FORCE IN TWO YEARS

HIGH WATER FOR INTERIOR IS FEARED

VICTORIA, May 22 (CP)—British Columbia public works department engineers are following temperature changes very closely these days, fearful of the flood effects from a sudden hot spell. The run-off in spring freshets has been retarded this year and a short hot spell might create conditions similar to those of the 1894 flood in the Thompson, Fraser and Columbia rivers. So far, in the interior, however, hot days have been followed by cool nights which has allowed the water to escape gradually.

Representatives Pass Bonus Bill Over Veto of President Roosevelt

AND SO SHE JUST GAVE UP THE GOLF GAME

SEATTLE, May 22 (CP).—There may not be such a thing as a world's record golf score, but Hortense Harley, foremost yachtswoman of Seattle, claims one anyhow.

In her first attempt at the game after a series of lessons, she confessed she took an hour and 113 strokes to play two holes.

"When I got to the third tee and figured up that it would take me 904 more strokes and eight hours to finish the 18, I just simply quit right then and there for good," she said.

Now Up to the Senate; Silverites See Ray of Hope in Talk

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—An irrepressible house majority today swiftly repassed the Patman bonus bill over President Roosevelt's veto warnings of "disastrous consequences," only to send the new money plan to an almost certain death in the senate.

Scarcely had Mr. Roosevelt's voice ceased echoing in the crowded house chamber where he hammered objection after objection into the $2,200,000,000 bill, than the representatives voted 322 to 98 to override his veto—the first personally delivered in history. It was many more than the two-thirds majority needed.

More deliberately, the senate decided to wait until tomorrow to consider the presidential message which, with the house, it heard flay "printing press money" as an invitation of "an ultimate reckoning in uncontrollable prices and in the destruction of the value of savings."

SILVERITES HOPEFUL

WASHINGTON, May 22 (AP)—With silverites still determined to press a free-coinage program, congressional advocates of conflicting monetary schools tonight claimed to find morsels of encouragement in President Roosevelt's bonus veto message.

Conservatives warmly applauded what they interpreted as an outright declaration against "printing press money" while those favoring

COMMUNISTS JEER KING AND QUEEN AS THEY ATTEND CIVIC RECEPTION

Police Drive Jeering Mob Back as Royal Family Break Old Rule

LONDON, May 22 (CP).—The King and Queen set a precedent by attending a brilliant civic jubilee reception and ball in the historic 15th century Guildhall of the city of London.

A clash between shouting, jeering Communists and mounted and foot police occurred shortly before Their Majesties arrived. The Communists, singing the Internationale, shouted, "Your fine robes would buy us bread" and "Our families are starving" as regular constables, reinforced by scores of extra police, pushed them back.

They retreated stubbornly and, remaining some distance away, shouted at the arriving guests.

Given by the lord mayor and the Corporation of London, the ball eclipsed in grandeur the functions for which the city is famous.

There is no record in the archives of the Guildhall of a reigning sovereign and his consort visiting in person a ball given there in their honor.

An Orphan Boy Becomes Son of Ontario's Premier Hepburn; Seeking Daughter Too

ST. THOMAS, Ont., May 22 (CP).—A fair-haired, blue-eyed boy of two-and-a-half years, a few days ago an orphan, arrived at a Yarmouth township farm home, an orphan no longer. He is now Peter Hepburn, son of Ontario's premier and Mrs. M. F. Hepburn.

"Yes sir, he's a real farmer already," declared the premier this evening. "He's all smiles. I've shown him about the farm; taken him to see the horses. Apparently he thinks they're all wonderful. He's certainly happy. So is Mrs. Hepburn. So am I. In fact, everybody's smiling."

Soon Peter is to share his new-found happiness with a girl-playmate, a sister to be chosen for him from a shelter similar to the one which he himself left not many hours ago.

"No, we haven't found her yet, but likely will before this time next week," he premier asserted.

the loss that Vancouver business men have suffered from the activities of Communists and relief camp strikers to date.

A SERIOUS STATE

"If Communists, now endeavoring in every way possible to disrupt the business of the city of Vancouver by strikes and other means, are able to so and to disturb industrial and commercial activities of the city, conditions might develop that would result in a decline of the city's revenues that would make the situation impossible.

"There is every reason, however, for now feeling that we can handle successfully any situation that might develop. If it is necessary to carry on the business of the waterfront and the city by mobilizing the citizens as was done in the old country during the general strike and more recently in San Francisco, we can meet the situation.

WILL LAUNCH ISSUE

"Public opinion recognizes the seriousness of the situation and is no longer sympathetic toward any element that is willing and anxious to disrupt business.

"Believing these facts to be true, we are going to launch our baby bond issue to raise funds to build a city hall and inaugurate a works program on June 10."

The 10-year bonds will be for $100 and will bear 3 per cent interest.

VANCOUVER, May 22 (CP).—Relief camp workers in Vancouver at a mass meeting today voted against Mayor G. G. McGeer's proposals that they return to the camps and leave a delegation here to press for recognition of their demands for changed camp conditions and administration.

The men were reported unanimous in their decision to remain in Vancouver. Approximately 2000 workers have been here since they left camps throughout British Columbia April 4. They have lived on funds raised solely by private subscription with the exception of two days' relief granted them by the city last week-end.

Meanwhile, the British Columbia government and the city of Vancouver maintained their stand that responsibility for the men rests on the Dominion government. Prime Minister R. B. Bennett has disclaimed this responsibility.

A deputation of four strikers waited on the mayor prior to the meeting and asked that they be granted relief while the men are discussing the situation. They told the mayor they thought it would take at least two days to decide on the strikers' next move.

Mr. McGeer refused to grant them relief.

VICTORIA, May 22 (CP).—Between 700 and 800 relief camp workers now in Vancouver are eager to return to the camps but they have been halted by strike picketers, British Columbia relief authorities stated today.

These workers have made application to be returned to the camps, have been given routine medical examinations and are prepared to leave but cannot get past the picket posts, it was declared.

Relief statistics showed approximately 2000 relief workers from British Columbia camps were out on strike at the end of April while 5616 men remained in the camps. There were 7649 men in the camps at the end of March.

The records show that some 1350 men left the camps in military district No. 11, the coast area, while 683 left camps in district 13, in the interior.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk, and the world looks punk, don't think that a large cleaning out of the bowels will make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

It can't do it! You know it can't give you any lasting relief. For a mere cleaning out does not get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes these good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pints of bile flowing freely. Then you feel up and up." Carter's Little Liver Pills contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

home, instead of being increased to 840 in five years, will be increased to 1500 by March, 1937. Fifteen hundred planes, absolute parity with Germany and France, is the goal.

That goal the British government is determined to reach and maintain, the house of commons and the house of lords were told this afternoon by Stanley Baldwin and Lord Londonderry, respective government spokesmen in the two houses.

LABOR LOSES VOTE

The government rode roughshod over a labor party amendment to reduce the huge air expansion expenditures, tonight, by a vote of 340 to 52.

Mr. Baldwin found several points in the speech of Chancellor Adolf Hitler last night which he thought offered promise. In several directions Hitler had defined the German attitude. Points of his speech "deserve the closest and frankest study from all of us," he said. "We shall not fail to do our upmost to bring about in all directions all that is possible by international agreement."

Chief of Hitler's points meeting with approval of the lord president of the council, was his willingness to conclude an air convention supplementing the Locarno treaty, with the indication it could be accompanied by an agreement on limitation of planes.

Next was Hitler's indication that the air pact might be bound up with an effort to safeguard the civilian population against indiscriminate attack from the air.

In the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan a quadrilateral of railroad organizations with an evident military character has been constituted with two sides facing our colonies and Ethiopia."

CHARGES DENIED

LONDON, May 22 (AP)— A British war office spokesman today branded reports from Rome that Great Britain has concentrated troops along the Sudan-Ethiopian frontier as "Italian propaganda" containing "no truth whatever."

It was stated Britain maintains a small force of troops in the Sudan "but there has not been any increase for more than a year, or since the beginning of the Italo-Ethiopian difficulties."

ETHIOPIA ADAMANT

GENEVA, May 22 (AP)—Ethiopia tonight warned the league of nations, now considering her dispute with Italy, that she would yield neither "to Italian intimidation nor Italian violence."

Emperor Haile Selassie's latest communication was read to the council at the end of the day's session which saw Ethiopia formally charged with maintaining slavery and the slave traffic. Baron Pompeo Aloisi, the Italian delegate, made the charge.

The day also served to emphasize the difficulties confronting Anthony Eden, British lord privy seal, and Pierre Laval, French foreign minister, who are seeking ways to settle the frontier dispute outside the league halls.

In contrast to Ethiopia's insistence that the league deal with the conflict, Eden and Laval faced Italy's open unwillingness to submit it to such procedure.

It was said reliably Aloisi sought to prevent reading before the council of the emperor's appeal and only consented with the understanding that the council members would not discuss it publicly.

SALMO TEAMS WIN MATCHES

Beat Ymir in Baseball and Softball Tilts

SALMO, B.C., May 22.—Two ball games were staged Sunday between Ymir and Salmo players. The first a softball game between Ymir and Salmo ladies' teams was played at Ymir. A crowd of Salmo rooters motored up for the game. The Salmo girls showed marked superiority in pitching, hitting and fielding and won 35-2.

After the finish of this game the Ymir Senior Men's team motored to Salmo and engaged the Salmo team in an interesting contest which was very close at first. The Salmo team however forged ahead after the fifth inning and finished at the long end of a 10-5 score. D. Ferguson, portsider, pitched a fine game for Salmo but was given, at times, poor support. Edwards for Ymir and Adams for Salmo made the best hits of the day, each getting a three-bagger. Miller, pitching for Ymir, was relieved by Fritz, after being injured base running.

The lineups were:

Jury Finds Evidence Is Not Sufficient to Convict

CRANBROOK, B. C., May 22—After an hour's deliberation, the jury at the spring assizes here returned a verdict of "lack of sufficient evidence to convict", and Albin Mike, a St. Eugene Mission Indian, was acquitted of a charge of indecent assault on Mrs. Pauline Casimir. The case, the only one on the list, lasted two days with Mr. Justice Fisher presiding.

Witnesses included Mrs. Pauline Casimir, her husband, Philip Casimir, Semour Williams, Indian Chief Eusta, and Issadore Big Calf.

J. S. Spruell was crown prosecutor, the accused being undefended.

Lloyd Crowe to Move Next Week

KIMBERLEY, B.C., May 22 — Lloyd Crowe, who succeeds L. H. Jackson as manager of the retail store of the C. M. & S. company at Trail, expects to leave for the smelter city next week.

Ever prominent in sporting and social circles, he has been one of the most public-spirited men in Kimberley. For the past 10 years he has been backing sporting activities here. He has been the mainstay of the Gyro club, and besides being a past president, is also past lieutenant governor of district VIII. He has been a busy member of the United church board and his interest in politics is keen.

At the home of Mrs. Ted James of McDougall townsite a prettily arranged wedding shower was held in honor of Miss Flossie Elkerton, whose marriage is planned to take place in June. About 30 guests were present and whist and bridge were played. The bride-elect was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts.

Move to Prevent More Fatalities; Four Are Fined at Nelson

Steve and John Edgyed, Allan Dunn and William Lees, taken off the tender of a C.P.R. engine at Procter Tuesday, were sentenced to pay a fine of $25 or in default to serve one month in jail for an infraction of the Railway act. They were arrested by R.C.M.P. Constable G. H. Whiteman and appeared before Stipendiary Magistrate John Cartmel. The four boarded the train at Russell's Landing.

Police are now bending every effort to stop the practice of "rod riding" in view of the number of fatalities that have occurred in the province. One fatality has occurred in the district and several bad accidents have been reported in the past two weeks. Magistrates are also backing this movement to prevent further accidents and henceforth more severe penalties will be meted out.

HASTY MARRIAGES, SELFISHNESS AND IMPATIENCE UNDERMINING HOME-LIFE

Widespread Instability, Extravagant Use of Time Deplored; Rev. A. H. Solly Named Archdeacon of the Okanagan

(Extracts from the Charge of the Bishop of Kootenay delivered to the Synod of the Diocese of Kootenay at Penticton on Wednesday, May 22, 1935.)

. . . We meet at a time when the unprecedented depression of recent years has not wholly passed. There has been some recovery and the horizon is less dark and for that we thank God and take courage. Though in the main the causes of the world catastrophe may be sought in the general world conditions of over-supply and over-production, of ill regulated and destructive competition, yet we need squarely to face the fact that the continuance and severity of the lowering clouds are due largely to ourselves.

It is natural, it is necessary that a young country should take risks, but when the venture is made far beyond the limits of its resources then optimism becomes folly and a gamble. For some years past the country has been too extravagant in almost every phase of our social life, political and departmental, communal and personal. We have come late, but not too late, to realize that we have been living beyond our means.

The obvious cure and solution, in which every one is called to take his part, is a return to a more simple way of living with full and absolute trust in the benign purposes and plan of God, and the determination to exercise a healthy and wise thriftfulness. The outstanding example in history of the power to survive by calculated thrift is that of the Jewish race, God's old time chosen people, who though denationalized for many centuries are still today a solid, united race.

WIDESPREAD INSTABILITY

With us there is a widespread ominous instability, a carefree recklessness shown in our daily methods. Gambling on margins, purchases on credit, sweepstakes and lotteries, extravagance in costly pleasures, are not the marks of a stable progressive community, and need immediate curtailment. The Bishops at Lambeth in 1930 declared categorically "that it is not the business of the Christian church to suggest technical remedies" for the most serious problem of unemployment but "it is our business to rouse dull consciences and to turn the attention of all Christian people to the moral background behind the picture. It is our business then, as the branch of the Anglican communion in the diocese of Kootenay, to commend, by example and counsel, such wholesome religion as will influence others to a steadier and more controlled life.

Neither industry nor commerce nor finance is entirely outside the borders of the Kingdom of God, for at every point they touch human values and depend on human motives, and nothing human is alien to Him who came that men might have life and might have it abundantly. The Archbishop of Canterbury in his New Year's address this year spoke of the gradual recovery of world conditions but added "I see the need of another kind of recovery—recovery of the soul. 'Faster and Faster' seems to be almost a motto of existence, and hurry and haste infect us with heedlessness of soul. The incessant pressure of distractions which hustle us from one sensation to another—the cinema with its pictures exciting and confusing the imagination, the popular press with its arresting headlines, the endless flood of books—follow each other so fast that scarcely one of them stays. In such a jostle of sensatons we have no time to stop and think. The soul is unheeded and God is crowded out. We must restore the right balance. The urgent need of modern life is to recover the soul—time in a word to be still and know God."

EXTRAVAGANT USE OF TIME

Very closely akin to our extravagance with our means and money is that extravagant use of our time which disregards the proper observance of Sunday and other days like Good Friday, Christmas Day and Ascension Day. The church's chief duty is to love and worship God, and in that love and worship it gives its chief witness to the world. In reaction against the old fashioned Puritanism and the kill-joy spirit of a Sabbath-Sunday the pendulum has swung too far the other way, and the principle as well as the practice of the Lord's Day is being discountenanced. The principle involved is fundamental for life of any age. Man needs God and man needs rest. That was the purpose of the Sabbath; the change to the Christian Sunday was quite in line with the change of ideas which Jesus introduced—the change from restrictive law to the glorious liberty of the children of God. That liberty however is not just self pleasing, but the real freedom of spirit which allows the soul to share and enjoy eternal values and eternal ideas, instead of being wholly chained to a material world order, now of work, now of pleasure, but always limited, non-satisfying, cramped.

What shall be our Sunday occupations? I beg to suggest the following tests:

On Sunday—

(1) Only such occupation can be permissable as does not absorb the whole day and leave no time for worship;

(2) Only such occupation can be appropriate as does not expel from the heart of those who follow it all desire for spiritual things;

(3) Only such occupation can be defended as does not rob other men and women of opportunity for the worship of their God, which is the birthright of every Christian.

We hear much today about "safeguarding our industries"; more urgently, because more vitally, is their need to safeguard our weekly time with God; man cannot live by bread alone.

DIVORCE

To yet another phase of our social life in British Columbia I would draw your attention—the increase in the number of divorces. First of all to take the figures for the whole of Canada. For the five-year period 1913 to 1917 the average annual number was 60. Listen to the figures for each successive five-year period since—402, 591, and 881. It is more accurate to take the average for a five-year period than the actual figures of any one particular year. In 20 years the numbers have risen from an average of 60 to an average of 881.

The distribution of these 881 among the various provinces is as follows: British Columbia 232, Alberta 151, Saskatchewan 57, Nova Scotia 29, Ontario 227, Manitoba 101, Quebec 30, New Brunswick 20.

The true preponderance or frequency has to be gauged by taking into consideration the total population and thus getting relative proportion. The returns show that for every 10,000 of population the frequency is Quebec 1, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick 5, Saskatchewan 12, Manitoba 14, Alberta 20 and British Columbia 33.

In eastern Canada there are 306 divorces annually for a population of 7¼ millions; in the prairie provinces and British Columbia there are 541 for just over 3 millions. That is 17 for every 10,000 in the west to 4 for every 10,000 in the east. In British Columbia the numbers are 33 for every 10,000. Thus divorce in British Columbia is eight times more frequent than in eastern Canada, twice as great as the average for the west, and three and one-half times as frequent for the whole of Canada.

And again, alas, while every province (except B.C.) is showing a tendency to decrease British Columbia alone in 1933 showed increase of 13 or 6 per cent; the figures for 1933 were 31 per cent greater than those of 1927. British Columbia with only one-sixteenth of the population provides more than one-quarter of the total number for the whole of Canada.

When Canada is compared with other countries of the world, statistics show that as regards frequency per population Canada has quite a low place; in Australia, New Zealand and among the whites of South Africa resort is had to divorce four or five times as often as in Canada. Seemingly therefore with regard to other countries marriages are far more happy and stable in Canada; but that does not detract from the fact of the alarming and increasing extent to which dissolution of the civil contract of marriage is sought in British Columbia. In most countries divorce is decreasing; in Canada and chiefly in the west it has been steadily increasing and has now passed the frequency rate of England. These facts are indisputable.

THE SIGNIFICANCE

At this moment I can only briefly point out their significance. Haste in undertaking marriage, impatience and selfishness afterwards, loose control of both emotions and passions, are undermining homelife, the very sheet anchor of national wellbeing, sapping moral stability and character, ennervating the race and dulling the vision of high ideals and thoughts for the future.

Monogamy and fidelity to a single married partner has been as potent a factor as any in bringing mankind upwards from a brute existence to moral responsibility. Now for a few paltry years' novel excitement we are bartering our precious heritage and no effective protest is raised. In loyalty to the Master the Christian church cannot tolerate divorce —legal separation is quite another matter—and as a consequence we cannot recognize nor bless as holy matrimony the union of a married person to another so long as the former partner is alive. Hitherto the United Church of Canada has readily officiated when our clergy have refused to hallow such a union. A year or two back at their general convention at Hamilton they passed a mild resolution against the practice. This seemingly is having effect for it is encouraging to note a steady and appreciative drop in the numbers of those who, having been divorced, have afterwards contracted civil marriage.

DIOCESAN AFFAIRS

First the resignation of Dr. Doull, who guided the fortunes of the diocese for 19 years as first bishop. Remarkable work was done by him and the loyal band of priests who supported him during the critical years 1914-20. Looking over the records I have been greatly impressed by the good foundations laid in those early days, the results of which are apparent today. To Dr. Doull's wise oversight, vigorous pleading the needs of a newly formed diocese, and stimulating counsel the diocese owes much; and we deeply regret his breakdown in health and hope that shortly and wholly he will be restored to his old powers.

We are about to lose officially our most faithful and beloved senior archdeacon, Archdeacon Greene; he wished to retire immediately on my appointment but kindly agreed to wait for a time. It was 42 years ago that he came first to the Okanagan, and for 19 years he has acted faithfully as archdeacon. It would be harsh to ask him to continue longer, and so I have accepted his resignation but have asked him to consider himself closely attached to use as archdeacon emeritus. I am exercising the prerogative vested in the bishop and am appointing the Rev. H. A. Solly, incumbent of West Summerland, as archdeacon of the Okanagan. Mr. Solly has been a most indefatigable worker as rural dean and secretary of synod; he has a knowledge of the needs and possibilities of the various parishes second to none.

CONCLUSION

(After mentioning the most important changes and developments in the general church and pleading for fuller cooperation from all to extend the chances of service and sacraments to all isolated communities, he added:)

In this wonderful British Columbia of ours with all its exquisite natural beauty and its quiet country homes, what a glory it would be to have, every Sunday, groups from every homestead wending their way to some central spot, a consecrated sanctuary wherever possible, to kneel humbly before God offering their tribute to His greatness and seaking His help. How much happier the community would be if this were the case, instead of the dry, godless, because prayerless, atmosphere which prevails so widely today. Often I go back in memory to that Sunday morning in some quiet country spot in the old homeland, the church bell sending its message through the trees and over the fields; and I see groups of people climbing the stiles, and following the footpath to the old ivy-clad church which has been their spiritual home for centuries. And I dream that some day this will be true of our life here. And it will be, if we are faithful to our privilege and our trust. And it will be, for the promise is sure "the wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad; the solitary place shall be glad; the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose; the ransomed of the Lord shall return and come to Zion, and everlasting joy shall be upon their heads, and sorrow and sighing shall be done away."

United Church Confab Suggests Cash for Relief Work

VANCOUVER, May 22 (CP)—Payment for work done, in cash instead of by free board and clothing, as a means of remedying the present relief camp system, has been suggested by the British Columbia conference of the United Church of Canada which closed its sessions here last night with animated discussions on the social order and reaffirmation of its stand of a year ago "calling for a drastic revision of the present system of production for profit as opposed to production for use."

The present camp system, it was said, was an earnest attempt on the part of the government to settle a difficult problem but had proved inadequate. It injured those who went to the camps by cutting off their citizenship privileges and taking away their hope of getting back into remunerative employment. Special attention was also called to the case of homeless girls and women.

Rev. J. H. Mathews, pastor at Michel, B.C., scene of a recent strike in which a number of persons were injured when provincial police and strikers clashed, was called to the platform and told of the circumstance surrounding the strike, adding that the people were still smarting under a sense of injustice. The conference will urge for a judicial enquiry into the incident.

Another resolution was approved in the form of a warning against the money chain letter craze, termed as "merely another racket." This resolution also condemned stock market gambling, stressing its ruinous nature both economically and socially.

North and South Dakota lead the United States in having the lowest death rate.

Fruit bud formation is a phase of recent scientific study and its close relation and inter-dependence with fertilizer practice and pruning make it necessary to treat these three problems — bud formation, fertilizer treatment, and pruning—almost as one. The person who would understand bud formation must have a knowledge of pruning and fertilizers.

Vernon Street Work Progresses

City public works employees advanced work on Vernon street to the Ward street intersection Monday. Macadam is being plowed up and trucked away and forms built in preparation for concrete.

Activity was Good for Her Figure

Helped by "That Kruschen Feeling"

Her husband assured her that it was her age and that she could not expect to wear stock size now. He was evidently a believer in the ancient "fat and forty" legend. To-day she dismisses the idea with a laugh. But let her tell the story herself:—

"I must tell you I had developed beyond the 'stock size.' My husband assured me that it was my age. One day I saw an advertisement and decided to try Kruschen Salts. That was last July. Now once more I wear a size 38. Besides which, I feel so much better, more energetic, and can do my work without that tired feeling."—(Mrs.) J. M.

Your figure will not develop a "middle-aged spread" if you keep yourself healthy and active with a daily dose of Kruschen. When you have taken Kruschen Salts for a few days that old indolent arm-chair feeling begins to desert you—it doesn't matter if you are in the forties—the urge for activity has got you—and you're "stepping lively".

And, best of all, you like this activity—you walk a couple of miles and enjoy it—you thought you'd never dance again, but you find you're getting as spry as ever —and you can wear the modern dresses with as much grace and comfort as the young folks.

Get a 75c. bottle of Kruschen (it lasts four weeks) and start right away to take half-a-teaspoonful in a tumbler of hot water every morning.

By H. H. CURRIE
(Nelson Daily News Staff Writer)

PENTICTON, B.C., May 22.—A tional plebiscite at the coming minion election on the subject of ether the nation desires wealth d industry to be conscripted along th manhood in the next war in ich Canada finds it necessary to gage, was asked today by the ocesan synod of Kootenay, in ses- ons that were featured by debates armaments control and on elim- ation of war. Starting in the fore- on with a resolution from the Nel- n rural deanery urging abolition private manufacture of arma- nts and of private profits there- om, the war debate also domin- ed the major part of the afternoon.

RMAMENT MOVE DOPTED

When all the smoke of battle was eared away, it was found the reso- ion on armaments, though ob- ted to by many delegates, both erical and lay, was adopted in the rm in which it was originally sub- itted, but that its companion reso- tion, which practically proposed at Canada should never engage in ar without specific authorization the people in a plebiscite, was odified out of all resemblance to original proposition, though aking use of some of its ideas.

In introducing the armaments solution on behalf of the Nelson anery, Rev. A. P. Griffiths of aslo referred to the allegations at the armament interests had ught their financial control to de- disarmament treaties, and to ep alive the war alarms, while n. Archdeacon Fred H. Graham Nelson spoke of efforts and in- gues of these interests to foster r, and referred to the outlandish ofits that the industry enjoyed in r time. Rev. W. J. Silverwood of lson, its originator, told of mate- l he had obtained from the Car- gie peace foundation respecting Nye committee revelations in e United States congress, as to the gest armament shippers to China d Japan being three great powers, d as to the armament interests ing represented on the confer- ces, whose failure was thus ac- unted for.

"DAMNABLE TRADING" IN LIFE

To the point raised by C. J. Hurt of Vernon, that Canada's armament manufacture was practically restricted to providing clothing for its troops, O. St.P. Aitken of Kelowna argued that the synod should assert the principle of government control of this industry whether there was at present any Canadian manufacture or not. W. Hardy, his fellow townsman, supported him, declaring that the people he met in town and country were looking to the church to do something to stop "this damnable trading in human life." Rev. M. E. West of Enderby declared this whole matter was outside the scope of the synod, and that it should address itself to Christ's work, the world getting pretty much the wars and the parliaments it deserved.

Mr. Hurt blamed much of the agitation for restricting armament manufacture to governments to such booksaes "Cry Havoc" which made the pretence that armament firms spent practically their whole time on war orders, whereas their great occupation was in supplying the needs of industry in peace. Actually, the Vickers-Maxim people in England, were under direct government control now, he said, while Canada had no armament industry.

WHAT ARE CANDIDATES' VIEWS?

H. Bawtree of Enderby said it was to be taken for granted that the church stood for abolition of armaments, and his suggestion was that the place to raise the question was at the general election, when candidates could be asked to state their views.

J. R. Kinghorn of Sorrento proposed that some of the controversial aspects be eliminated by dropping the preamble regarding "deliberate intrigues," and A. S. Horswill of Nelson proposed to limit the objective to government control, without asking for abolishing of private manufacture, his position being that while it was justifiable for the world to be concerned about this question, it was necessary for this country took to its defences, a matter regarding which it should not be negligent, and that the government could have effective control without having its own plants.

THE RESOLUTION

A motion offered by Mr. Horswill "to reduce our objective to control" was not seconded, and at the afternoon session the synod by a vote of about two to one, no count being announced, carried the resolution unamended, as follows:

"Whereas it seems apparent that much of the strife between nations is fostered by the deliberate intrigues and machinations of armament firms both directly by stimulating minor causes of war and indirectly by inciting warlike passions and national jealousies through the medium of a subsidized press:

"Be it resolved that this synod do request the Federal government to enact such legislation that the manufacture of arms in this Dominion be under direct government control, and that the manufacture of arms by private firms be made illegal, with a view to abolishing the monetary profits from such private manufacture, which profits are a great inducement to the attempts made to promote war between nations."

RESOLUTION ON WAR

After the synod had dealt with the report of Treasurer O. St. P. Aitken, it took up the Nelson deanery resolution on war, which as presented read as follows:

"Whereas all war is expressly contrary to the will of God and the mind of Christ as a method of settling international disputes; and

"Whereas all war has been revealed to be utterly futile in achieving peace; and

"Whereas all war takes the best and youngest of a nation's manhood; and

"Whereas the question of just war is a matter which should not be the sole responsibility of any government to decide:

"Be it therefore resolved, a petition of the nation be taken before committing its people to any armed conflict, and that this synod of the diocese of Kootenay petition the Federal government in the event of an armed conflict, to enact such legislation as will conscript not only the nation's manhood, but also its wealth and industry as a means of eliminating the profits of war."

COLLOSAL SIN

Recalling that 300 years ago the Christian world accepted war as a necessary expedient, but that in modern times the Lambeth conference and the Bryan-Kellogg America.. treaties had shown a better way, Rev. Mr. Silverwood in moving the resolution asserted war to be the most colossal sin that afflicted mankind, that the whole war system was intolerable, that under modern conditions war was suicidal for the world, that no mercy or justice was found in war, and that this system of international settlement was as futile as it was barbarous. Mr. Catchpole, in seconding it, while admitting that the people might not be enbiassed in a plebiscite under apprehension of war, argued that it was necessary to have this written into the statutes in advance so that there should be no military suppression of the people's opinion.

TWO OBJECTIONS

Judge G. H. Thompson of Cranbrook, chancellor of the diocese, raised the point of order that the resolution combined two different objectives in one motion. It proposes a plebiscite on engaging in war and also proposed the conscription of wealth and industry. He was willing for the plebiscite to be asked for if the enemy was asked at the same time not to invade the country while the plebiscite was being taken, but pointed out that he might be in favor of one objective and against the other.

CAN'T WAIT FOR ENEMY

A protest was offered against this resolution also by Rev. Mr. West, who argued that it would be absolutely hostile to the teaching of Jesus Christ to approach governments as to their duties. Against this view H. C. Caldicott of Trail argued that all things of human welfare were a proper field for the church to interest itself in. He admired the portion of the resolution that proposed to conscript all agencies alike, for if the country was to suffer from ghastliness of war, there should be equality of sacrifice. Mr. Hardy supported the resolution much as he had done the earlier one, and asserted that if Christ were here He would be on the side of the resolution.

At this point some more demand was raised that the resolution be divided, and Mr. Aitken said he favored instructing the government that the synod desired a plebiscite on whether wealth and industry should be conscripted if the country went to war.

Mr. Silverwood, agreeing that "we can't wait when the enemy is on our track," asked what the country's commitments would be, and what decision the government would be likely to take.

CHRIST AND WAR

Some of the sentiments expressed brought to his feet Rev. H. A. Solly of Summerland, late rural dean of Okanagan and newly made Archdeacon of Okanagan, who, stating that while there was no question but that war was horrible, reminded the synod that the Empire was not one that would fight for territory or for advancement. On the other hand, we are working against a nation that is seeking aggrandizement," he contended.

"I can't agree that Christ is never for war," he declared vigorously, pointing out that while the Saviour came to bring peace, He recognized that it would come about through conflict, and publicly stated that He came to bring not peace but a sword. Declaring his belief that God had given the British people a special mission, and that the mantle of Israel as the chosen people had fallen on them, he pointed out that "an enemy may come upon us unawares." Alliances to be of any effect must be secret, and it would be suicidal for a nation's diplomatic moves to all be taken in public, where the enemy would know of them.

"If war comes, we have got to ask ourselves, are we willing to see our Empire laid waste, our homes destroyed, our women outraged?" he asserted. "When an enemy attacks us, I think God expects us to defend our own," he concluded.

TURNER LEE BRINGS LAUGH

Major H. Turner Lee of Bonnington evoked laughter by declaring he had just heard "the first really sensible speech this afternoon," adding that the other ideas put forward were very good as ideals, but were not practical.

"They tell us war is a folly, but how about peace being un-Christian?" he asked. Only recently one of the boys who had been overseas with him asked him, "Why can't we have the old comradeship of the war?" His reply was that in the war all dropped their names and took numbers, had their clothing issued to them, received food in lumps to be divided up ,and each one knew all he had to do was to do the best he could for his neighbor, while now it was the object to "do one's neighbor the best he could."

"Of course I am absolutely in favor of commandering wealth as well as manhood," admitted Major Lee, who stated he honestly thought the youth of 1914 came into a better world than the youth of 1934 was coming into today.

A STORY ON THE MAJOR

Quoting Spinosa's philosophy that peace was not the absence of war, but the unity of a soul with itself, Archdeacon Graham told a story of Major Lee, as related by one of his men, to the effect that during a heavy German barrage on a Sunday, Major Lee sat on his leaky dugout roof nailing on strips of tin, while singing, in obedience to his conception of his duty on Sunday, "Onward Christian Soldiers." While the synod laughed, Major Lee intimated the story wasn't a fact.

Advocacy of a plebiscite in time of peace on the wealth conscription issue, by Mr. Aitken led to the synod on motion of Mr. Kinghorn and Rev. W. S. Beames of Penticton, asking Bishop Adams to name a committee to redraft the resolution. He named Messrs. Silverwood and Aitken and Archdeacon Solly.

The resolution was redrafted during the tea interval, and was then carried on a divided vote, as follows:

"Be it resolved that this synod of the diocese of Kootenay petition the Federal government to hold a plebiscite at the time of the next Federal election on the question of whether in the event of the nation being committed to war, that not only its manhood, but also its wealth and industry shall be conscripted, in order that the burden and sacrifice involved by war may be equally distributed".

SUNDAY POLITICAL MEETINGS

One other resolution of national import was adopted by the synod, arising from a letter received by Bishop Adams from Dr. Huestis, national secretary of the Lord's Day alliance, quoting the answers he had received to letters written to Premier Bennett, Rr. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, and J. S. Woodsworth, urging that Sunday should be kept free from political campaigning. The answers from the Conservative and Liberal leaders were favorable, but Mr. Woodsworth wrote that the C.C.F. platform was in line with Christ's principles and that it advocacy on Sunday was justified.

Mr. Aitken and A. G. R. Prickard of Woodsdale, lay secretary, fathered a resolution deprecating the holding of Sunday political meetings by the C.C.F., but a number of delegates objected to naming a political party, Judge Thompson in particular urging a simple declaration of principle on the matter. Archdeacon Graham asked why this form of Sabbath desecration was to be mentioned, and not those that went just as far, such as Sunday sport.

RESOLUTION SIMPLIFIED

A simplifed resolution, however, which named no political party, was presented, and adopted overwhelmingly.

Good progress was made with the diocesan business, in adoption of most of the revised constitution and canons, as submitted by Archdeacon Graham, for the special committee, and in adoption of the treasurer's report, Treasurer Aitken being given a flattering vote of appreciation and confidence.

The canons will be finally disposed of Thursday, when a new one will be submitted dealing with the pension fund, on lines suggested by Bishop Adams, who asked that the diocese in this matter assist uniformity by adopting the plan of the general synod. Generally speaking. This calls for contributions annually from each diocese, and contributions by the clergy of one per cent of their stipends. In the case of Kootenay diocese, this would double its annual contribution to the general pension fund.

At his grace's suggestion, the diocese adopted a resolution to advise the pension board that it would do its best to increase its contribution, but at the same time strongly urged that the board's system of administration be changed, by reverting to the old plan of having the pensions handled by the treasurer of the general synod, instead of the board having a specially paid secretary-treasurer of its own.

FOUR TIMES PREACHER

Suggesting that it might be pardonable while growing elderly to also grow reminiscent, he recalled that this was the fourth time he had had the privilege of preaching to the assembled members of the synod, and let his mind go back in this connection to the meeting in Montreal 40 years ago of the synod of Canada before there was a general synod, when a great bishop famous for learning and eloquence preached. It was in the early '90s, years when the Darwinian theory was rapidly gaining adherents and the church feared its effect on belief, when the higher criticism was creating doubt in the minds of many, and when there was a financial depression, quite the greatest that this country had known. To that assembly this great bishop preached from King David's exclamation in Psalm XI, "If the foundations be cast down, what can the righteous do?"

"I well remember the hopeless feeling with which I listened to the advice given to that great audience," recalled Archdeacon Graham, who described the eagerness with which he had looked forward to that sermon, to afford him a light in his own mental darkness and confusion as a student, the bishop, after dwelling on the confusion of the times, offering no other outlook and no other escape to perplexed Christians that to do as Saint Paul did when he was wrecked on Malta —strike out for the shore if one had sufficient faith to support him; and if he hadn't, make use of what he had, as one might seize spars, and commit himself to the waves, hoping to be swept to the land. The depth of his disappointment left a vivid memory.

A TIME OF CHALLENGE

Present times in many respects suggested to him that early period of unsettlement and of doubt. Only today one clergyman had admitted to him that what he feared was the lowering of ethical ideals. It must be admitted, Archdeacon Graham pointed out, that there was a good deal of political chicanery today, the idols the people had set up showing feet of clay; while commercial integrity was no longer taken for granted. In the theological field each theologian propounded beliefs differing from all others, while in economics the professional economists all gave different advice. In the international realm the different nations had such differing and nationalistic hopes and designs that one did not know from day to day what to expect to see in the morning paper. And with all these conditions obtaining, unemployment was rife, and dissatisfaction rampant.

Was there any answer to such conditions, for such a gathering as the present one, composed of the ordained of Christ? If the foundations were overthrown, what could the righteous do? Archdeacon Graham said he could not take the place of the mighty bishop he spoke of, but recalled that Christians did know, what the Psalmist did not know, that they had a foundation that could not be destroyed, and that a living faith in Christ, the Son of God, was such a foundation, one that even the gates of hell could not prevail against.

In the scattered small communities in the mountains, the faithful had problems that might not be faced in the large cities, and the spirit could grow deeply despondent. Yet to these came the eternal words, "On this rock I will build my church," Christ being the sure foundation. David's words, about foundations beign cast down, did not have any application, the preacher pointed out, to those who had the assurance of the Lord Jesus Christ.

CHURCH CHRIST'S BODY

Recalling Christ's mystic words to the Jews who marvelled at his action in ousting the money-changers from the temple, "Destroy this temple and in three days I will build it again," the preacher declared Christ had given his followers an answer to every situation and every question, if they would wait for it and look for it. His reference was to the sanctuary of His body. Not long after that the Christian idea developed, and the church became the living body of Christ. The difficulty, Archdeacon Graham said, was for Christ's followers to keep in present consciousness that He said he was the beginning and the ending.

The welfare of Christ's body, the church, was to be discussed by the synod, and this was an intensely necessary part of the functioning of that body. But, as was often the case with the subtle temper, the members could be tempted to forget Whose body it was. The fact was, said the archdeacon, each one was a sanctuary of Christ. Whatever was good in each was of Christ.

FAITHFUL SERVICE

Quoting Paul's contention that the church's foundation were indestructible, even though they might on occasion be cast down, the preacher said often one was immersed in great difficulties. Telling the story of the aged servant of God who after many years labor could discern no fruit of his work, and who dreamed that the Savior led him into the desert and bade him smite the rock, and who was heart-broken when his blows made no impression, until the Savior told him He did not tell him to break the rock but only to smite it, and said to him, "Well done!" Archdeacon Graham said this story had helped him many times when he was downcast, and he passed it along to others in similar situation. Remembering Who their foundation was, the Lamb of God That had been, and That always would be, they would successfully defy even the gates of hell.

Rev. W. S. Beames, rector of St. Saviour's, conducted the evensong service, which was choral; Rural Deans Clyde Harvey of Procter and F. V. Harrison of Cranbrook read the lessons; the rector read the prayers; and Rt. Rev. Walter Adams, D.D., bishop of Kootenay, pronounced the benediction.

KINSMEN EVEN SOFTBALL PLAY

The game was played Wednesday afternoon at the Recreation grounds, and ties the series up with one game each.

Taken to Court When Fails ot Give the Fire Truck Right of Way

TRAIL, B.C., May 22.—Charged with failing to come to a stop upon the approach of a truck of the Trail fire department, which was responding to a fire call to East Trail, Tuesday evening, James Davis, driver of a motor vehicle, was convicted but released on suspended sentence by Deputy Police Magistrate Donald MacDonald in city police court Wednesday afternoon.

Davis had been travelling along Columbia avenue from the direction of Columbia Gardens and his turning on to the bridge necessitated the truck driver applying brakes in a hurry to avoid a collision, and consequently delaying the apparatus in reaching the fire.

Davis stated that he was too far into the approach to the bridge to turn back on to Columbia avenue when he first saw the truck, and said he stepped on the gas in an endeavor to get out of its way.

He testified he did not hear the fire siren at the hall or on the fire truck, yet the assistant fire chief, S. Smith, who was driving, stated his siren was going full blast, which statement was coroborated by J. Brennan, fireman.

Fire Chief A. A. McDonald, only a short distance behind the apparatus vehicle, stated his siren was also turned on.

The magistrate found Davis guilty, but as it was the first case of its kind before him, he stated he would let off the charged on suspended sentence. In his deliberation, his worship stated that he believed negligence was shown on the part of Davis in not taking better precautions while driving, adding that it was the duty of every driver to be alert at all times to expect the unexpected.

Chief of Police John Laurie prosecuted.

TO MAKE TOUR OF INSTITUTES

Mrs. McLachlan Will Feature Wool in Lectures

On instructions from the minister of agriculture, Mrs. V. S. McLachlan, superintendent of Women's institutes, is starting on a tour of the institutes in the Kootenay, Okanagan and Cariboo, during which she hopes to either visit or meet members from every institute in the districts, and give addresses and talks on institutes matters.

Mrs. McLachlan will speak on wool-craft and the progress that is being made in spinning, weaving and the making of wool comforters. Now the wool is becoming plentiful in many parts of the province the thrifty housewife finds that much money is saved and very satisfactory results obtained by carding and spinning the wool at home, and the superintendent is able to give much practical advice on how to do this.

There are now 160 Women's institutes in the province with a membership of about 4500 women. New institutes are springing up all over the province, especially in the new and less thickly populated districts, where women find that a well-organized institute, even if only consisting of nine or 10 members, can do much to improve their community and keep up the courage of the people in these difficult times. The women have found the truth of the Prince of Wales' message, "We can do wonders if we all pull together."

A friend asked me the other day why her baking powder biscuits did not rise. I could only guess what her trouble was, but this is how I make my biscuits, and I have no trouble. This recipe may be used for shortcakes as well as for the tea biscuits.

Today's Recipes

Baking Powder Biscuits—Measure and sift two cups flour, four teaspoons (level) baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt and one teaspoon sugar. Add four tablespoons of lard, butter or half of each. Mix thoroughly with the dry ingredients, using either your fingers or a fork. Then add sweet milk gradually until you have a soft dough, but one that can be handled. Turn out on floured board and knead gently for two or three minutes. Then cut, place on greased tin and put into hot oven—375 to 400 degrees. Some cooks advocate melting butter in the dripping pan, putting the biscuits in, turning them over so both sides are coated with butter, and then baking. This gives them a crisp crust, so do as you please, or as your time or the quantity of butter you wish to use allows. If you want to make the biscuits particularly small and dainty, and have no small cutter, use a cream or milk bottle to cut them.

Spaghetti and Tomato—Boil the required amount of spaghetti in salted water until tender. Run seven pieces of bacon through the food grinder, brown in frying pan, add one large onion which has also been put through the grinder, and one green pepper—if you have it—and brown lightly in bacon fat. Add one large cup tomatoes, cook all together for five minutes. Put spaghetti into casserole, add tomato mixture, top with buttered crumbs and bake for 15 minutes or so in oven. Serves six.

For a change use criss-cross strips of pastry for top crust of the usual two-crust pie.

Mix lemon juice and salt together and rub on garment that has been scorched with too hot an iron. Hold material over steam while the mixture is on.

Cockroaches, unlike many insects, are repelled by light.

SPRING'S DISOBEDIENCE

It says "Not Litter" on the gate—
But tulips do not care.
A duteous look they simulate
Until the keeper's passed the gate,
And then they simply cannot wait
To scatter in the air
Their petals. No, nor hesitate
To strew them everywhere.
It says "Not Litter" on the gate—
But tulips do not care.

For the bride who wants to wear a hat instead of a veil, the newest idea is white ostrich feathers forming a fringy brim around a crown of tucked tulle. No other trimming is used.

White lace is the most popular wedding gown of the moment. The fine, embroidered variety, with yards and yards of plain tulle for train and wedding veil. Orange blossoms in a halo is the source of a foamy veil.

When the May flies are buzzing and the "big ones" are taking the fly, and Mother is busy packing the picnic basket, what could be nicer than a present to dear old Dad of a new spinner or fish line. It will make his feel like a boy again! The WOOD, VALLANCE HARDWARE COMPANY have all the latest and best in the fishing tackle line, and will give you expert advice upon the proper tackle to buy. Everything that ought to go in a fishing basket is there, to catch big fish or little fish, in shady pools or deep big lakes. Drop in and see them.

Oh! those linen suits and dresses! Of fresh, uncrushable linen, cool and comfortable. Smart! I'll say, and oh, so useful for any sort of party! They are here, at BLANCHE'S SPECIALTY SHOPPE, in the snappiest styles and the newest colors. And when it comes to seersuckers, you won't be able to resist the jazzy plaids and stripes in chic fashions, cute enough to take you to tea or to a beach party. New printed silks are in, too. Buy your holiday clothes now! You can't go wrong at this shop!

English "cruise wear" is the thing for boating and summer resort wear. Among the garments are English woolens in shorts and flannel jackets, slacks and sweaters, polo shirts and skirts. You can assemble your own outfit.

Summertime is here, so with best wishes for a happy holiday, I'm taking a vacation myself until the Fall.

NRA's APPROACHING COLLAPSE

It is less than two years ago since the NRA came into effect. The great demonstrations of popular approval that accompanied its introduction are well remembered. Those who questioned the soundness of the plan and held that it could not realize the hopes it was arousing were paid little heed. It has, however, had such disappointing results that the end of the experiment is imminent.

The act expires on June 16 and the president has sought to have it extended for another two years. But by an almost unanimous vote the senate passed a resolution which provides for a prolongation only till April next and for continuance in a much contracted form during that period. Price-fixing would, if the upper house has its way, be eliminated except in the mining industries and business wholly within a state would be exempted from the operation of the codes. There is a possibility that the house of representatives will seek to have the president's wishes carried out to a greater extent and that some compromise will be effected. But even correspondents who have at all stages been strongly sympathetic towards the NRA are agreed that it is in a bad way. When the senate finance committee two weeks ago approved of the Clark resolution which the chamber has now adopted, Arthur Krock of the New York Times wrote:

> Those who recall the pulsing, roaring, driving NRA of 1933 and the first half of 1934 would not recognize its corridors and offices today. If it is not as "dead as dodo," in General Johnson's disputed phrase, it is as sick as a pup. Administration senators were as happy as their colleagues who hate NRA when Senator Clark showed them a way out of their troubles with constituents who have been demanding that the neck of the Blue Eagle be wrung.

The president has intimated that he will not attempt to veto the resolution if it gets through both houses. With an extension for only ten months and with such a curtailment as is proposed the NRA would, it is pointed out, be bound to become nothing more than a paper organization. Codes could not be preserved, it has to be recognized, when industries doing inter-state business are placed at a competitive disadvantage with similar concerns that restrict their operations to particular states. In addition court decisions have been steadily adding to the difficulties of administration.

That there is much that is good in the NRA has been freely admitted by its most severe critics. But its weaknesses have been of a fundamental character and were certain to be demonstrated as the work of enforcement proceeded. Apart from these, altogether too much was attempted in too short a time.

BRUSSELS EXHIBITION

Belgium is the scene of the latest world's fair. There is being held in Brussels the Universal and International Exhibition. It is the most ambitious European affair of its kind since the Paris Exposition of 1900. Brussels has prepared for it with a thoroughness that has affected the whole city. New roads have been made, bridges built to carry tramway services and an entire system of pipes laid down to deal with drainage, gas, electricity and water.

This year is the centenary of the first railroad laid down on the continent—12½ miles from Brussels to Malines. To recognize this event transportation is playing an important part. The chief sections are devoted to communications, transport and every form of electricity. The main hall is in the form of a huge railway station. There are over 140 individual palaces and pavilions in the 350 acres of the exhibition. They are grouped round a central avenue rising in terraces of flowers and fountains. Some of them, like the Chicago fair buildings, are striking modernity; others have kept to old-fashioned notions.

When Belgium is able to support such an exposition it is evident she has fully recovered from the war. It is hard to believe that only 20 years ago Belgium was being overrun by hostile armies.

STREET NAMES IN PARIS

Paris claims to have more queerly-named streets than any other city in the world says the Sherbrooke Record. They include "Ash Trays Street," "The Street of the Bad Boys," "Good Children Street," "Fishing Cat Street," "Green Dog Street," and "White Peacock Street." Other streets are "Son-in-Law," "Hot Cat," "Lovely Leaves," "Windy Wood," "Red Ball," "Big Bottle" and "Little Mugs."

Besides there are "English" streets. They include those bearing the names of King George V., Queen Victoria, Charles Dickens, Lord Byron, Isaac Newton and Captain Scott.

Gosh, gained a pound.

Here is J. H. Doyle, well known in the Kootenays, figuring out his avoirdupois after having deposited a cent. I really do not know if his weight is up or down but Mr. Doyle is certainly interested in what the indicator says. Mr. Doyle has lived in East and West Kootenay and enjoys a wide acquaintance. He is a veteran of the Riel rebellion and was a member of the royal northwest mounted police in the early days. He was educated in one of Ontario's best known private schools for boys near Toronto and came west some years ago. For a period of about 12 years he was known as Sheriff Doyle, being sheriff for South Kootenay. His duties carried him all over the district. Upon his retirement from the sheriff's post he settled in Creston. Cranbrook, Kimberley and Nelson have been his places of residence in the Kootenays. He only recently returned from a visit to California.

Yesterday I had a fishing story. Well here is another one from the "Liars'" club. It comes from Victoria.

On a hot day I was fishing, not very far from here.
And as I lay there sweltering by the river brink,
Into its icy waters I placed a pint of beer,
Then I waited for a nice, long, cooling drink.
I saw a good-sized trout come swimming up the river;
He swam over to my bottle for a look,
And as he read the label I could see his body quiver;
No worm could tempt him then to grab a hook.
To reach the golden contents he tried his level best;
From every side a brave attack he'd make,
And then, at last exhausted, he paused to take a rest
When upon the scene there came a garter snake.
He sized the situation up and quickly raised his head;
Down the bottle-neck I saw it disappear.
The trout was flabbergasted; his look it plainly said:
"I found the pint and this guy gets the beer."
But the snake had barely started sipping at the ale,
When the trout closed in and with his vicious jaw
He bit a good-sized mouthful right off the reptile's tail,
Then he used the poor snake's body for a straw.
He calmly sucked the pint of beer, stayed with it to the end;
In the bottle all he left there was the foam,
And just to prove my story when I tell it to a friend,
I've got that empty bottle safe at home.

"GOLDEN SLUMBERS KISS YOUR EYES"

From "Patient Grissel"

Golden slumbers kiss your eyes,
Smiles awake you when you rise.
Sleep, pretty wantons, do not cry,
And I will sing a lullaby.
Rock them, rock them, lullaby.

Care is heavy, therefore sleep you,
You are care, and care must keep you.
Sleep, pretty wantons, do not cry,
And I will sing a lullaby.
Rock them, rock them, lullaby.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. SHEPARD
"Teacher of Teachers"

CAN NORTH MAKE SEVEN DIAMONDS?

Here is a beautiful problem hand from Hamilton, Canada, where contract bridge was introduced into the Hamilton club in 1917, as successor to auction. Play the cards double-dummy fashion, with all hands exposed upon the table.

Bidding went: South, 1 spade; North 3 diamonds, to indicate slam expectations; South, 3 hearts; North 6 diamonds; South, 7 diamonds, as North must hold solid trumps and club strength. West doubled. West bet his partner that an opening lead of trumps would defeat the call. Let's see if that is true.

Have East lead a diamond. Run off 8 trump tricks. The 5 cards still held by dummy and declarer will be as shown below. West must discard one of his 6 cards. What East does is of no importance. He cannot win a trick, in any suit. Which card shall West discard?

West will be hopelessly squeezed, regardless of what he discards. If he lets go a heart the declarer will enter dummy with a spade, then pick up West's lone K of hearts with the Ace. The Q of hearts will force another discard from West. North will let go his last Spade, and one of his clubs. If West lets go a spade the Q in dummy becomes good and declarers ace of clubs will win the last trick, he having let go his J of clubs on the good Q of spades. In case West lets go a club at any time, declarer's two spades will be taken care of by the two major suit aces, and the three clubs in his own hand will become good for 3 tricks. An opening trump lead insures a grand slam for North.

Try an opening lead of clubs, as East did when the hand was originally played. Win with North's Ace, then have dummy ruff a club. North will ruff a low heart. Run off trumps until dummy holds the 4 cards shown below and West must discard one of his 5 cards. Again West is squeezed and the grand slam will be made. Were the opening lead a heart the same tactics would yield a grand slam.

Before to-morrow try an opening lead of spades.

MORE THAN 100 PLANES TO FLY IN FORMATION

There have been march-pasts aplenty. It's just an old army custom.

The navy, also, has its ceremonial for review purposes, although it is more customary, when a big fleet is being reviewed, for the reviewing officer to do the "steaming-past" himself, letting the bigger ships stay at anchor.

Now there is to be, for the first time, a "fly-past," for the Royal Air Force has decided that it should have its own ceremonial, even as its older sister services.

The "fly-pasts" will be a part of the 16th Royal Air Force display at Hendon Airdrome on June 29. At the conclusion of the pageant approximately one hundred aircraft will parade in formation over the airdrome and its vicinity. These machines will be drawn from many squadrons, and will provide a fine air fleet made up of many different types of machine. It will be the largest aerial formation ever to fly in the London area. Another 100 machines will take part in the earlier proceedings.

Within the airdrome accommodation will be provided for more than 150,000 spectators. There will be parks for 15,000 automobiles.

AIM TO DEMONSTRATE PROGRESS AND QUANTITY

The annual R.A.F. display was established in 1920. It has two main objects—to demonstrate to the public the quality and progress of British service aviation, and to provide funds for Royal Air Force charities. In no sense is the display a "circus," with picked star pilots dominating events. The program is not planned on sensation lines, though it includes several items which are spectacular and thrilling in the extreme.

It shows the Royal Air Force going about its routine work; the flying done, astonishing in its brilliance and skill, is simply the culmination of the regular training season of the service. The squadrons are not picked because of outstanding merit; it is the proud and justified boast of the Air Force that every squadron and every pilot is trained to a pitch where participation in the display is deserved.

FOREIGN CRITICS KEENLY INTERESTED

Perhaps the most keenly interested of all the visitors to the display are the members of the various foreign missions. These are expert spectators, competent to judge the standard of pilotage skill reached by the display pilots, sensitive to the delicacy and perfect timing needed to preserve those impeccable formations that appear simple to the uninstructed. On the evidence of these critical witnesses is based the general belief that the Royal Air Force display is the greatest pageant of air mastery to be seen anywhere in the world. Incidentally, it shows why so many pilots come every year from foreign air forces for a spell of training with the R.A.F.

WHAT THE PRESS IS SAYING

WHO ARE THE TRUE ECONOMISTS?

It is in striving for perfection that imperfections are modified.

For that reason it is well not to be too intolerant of economic reformers.

But if those who have some knowledge of the laws of cause and effect in business are to take a broad-minded view of the operations of reformers in seeking to impose upon everyone through political action the consequences of certain experiments, then it is only fair that the experimenters in government should be willing to concede the point that their efforts are, after all, experimental, and that if early trials indicate error, then they, the experimenters, should be prepared to recede from their pet theoretical positions.

Experimentation in business law reform has been going on for many years now. The results are open to analysis and examination, and should be studied earnestly by the reformers as well as by those who are frequently classed as "Stand-patters" and reactionaries.

In many cases reforms which have been adopted and put into practice have put rigidities into the processes of business which have had certain definite results. Are the zealous reformers studying these things?

Have they convinced themselves by cold logic that the reforms were good for business — and therefore for the majority of people by promoting more and better business—or are they taking the unscientific attitude that all reforms are good merely because they are reforms, and that if experiments fail the secret for success is a multiplication of these experiments so that they may apply on a much wider scale?

One of the pet theories of a great many business reformers, including even the president of the United States, is that some day, in some way there will be accomplished a complete cessation of the swing of the economic pendulum.

Mr. Roosevelt frankly states that he is experimenting toward that end. If his experiments should lead to success, a new order of thing—utterly new in the history of mankind so far as it can be traced back into antiquity—would be ushered in.

Merely because the outcome would be unprecedented is, of course, not good and sufficient reason for saying out of hand that it would be impossible of achievement.

But a measure of scientific analysis should be brought to bear on every practical result of every step taken in the series of experiments. Otherwise our progress toward knowledge will be blundering and incalculably expensive.

In the past and even today, despite the interventions of government, the pendulum in business has swung incessantly. For every action there has been a roughly compensating reaction, with the trend of production and living standards slowly mounting.

Great activity has brought about great supply, over-abundance has depressed prices, low prices have forced curtailment of production, decreased production has brought about inevitable shortage, shortage has produced higher prices, higher prices have promoted renewed activity.

Man, rebel against every force in life and nature that has bound and restricted him, logically fights against this natural law, for the hardships involved in low prices as the pendulum reaches the nadir of its swing promote intense dissatisfaction with the age-old force that controls him regardless of his will.

A clever few co-operate with the cycle of lean and fat years, but the great majority disregard or defy it and suffer.

In Nature itself there are cycles maintaining a rough balance in the animal and vegetable kingdom. Nature is as cruel as it is kind. When we recognize the existence of natural laws in business, we refer not to direct laws of Nature but the logical and seemingly inevitable outcome of the operation of human nature on human business affairs as observed over long periods.

A scientist can tell you of the laws of Nature by studying natural history. His is a precise knowledge.

The scientist who studies the basic laws of business is dealing with human nature. If we call him a scientist, it must be with the reservation that with his cold science he blends the warmer attributes of philosopher and historian. For convenience sake we call him an economist.

It is not reasonable to say, in distinguishing between true economists and pseudo economists, that when a man who professes to be an economist reveals himself to be rather an apostle of an idealistic future, he ceases to be either useful or reliable as an economist, and becomes merely a visionary propagandist or a tool for politicians.

This point, we believe, will bear emphasis, for if the experiments proceeding apace throughout the world are to confer any immediate and lasting benefits upon mankind, it will be because the results have been studied by true economists and interpreted honestly to political leaders and to the public.

If, on the other hand, this interpretation is to be done by pseudo economists who bring none of the scientist's impartial logic to their research, who make recommendations which are impractical without a complete reformation of human nature, who disregard the lessons of history, then the experiments of today will have been pretty much in vain.

Only true, unbiassed economists will be qualified to say, when this era of experimentation on the business cycle has developed a mass of evidence, whether or not a government can hope to seize hold of the business pendulum on an upward swing and hold it stationary so that good times will be perpetual.—Financial News.

MOONSHINE IN AFRICA

There is plenty of moonshine liquor in South Africa.

While there is no prohibition for the white man, the black and the colored can only satisfy their wants illicitly. In the towns this is met from the resources of the wine and brandy farmers of the Cape, but in the countryside of the Transvaal, which is chiefly populated by the black, the Boer has turned to bootleg liquor on a large scale.

In days gone by he has always distilled his own brandy and liqueurs from his peaches and his tangarines and when the government, in the interests of the Treasury and the Bottle Stores, wanted to limit his activities, it found itself compelled to stipulate a definite allowance of alcohol which should not be subject to excise. This was fixed at thirty gallons a year, a fairly liberal ration all things considered.

Now to maintain the law involved a system of continuous inspection for there are more than four thousand licenced stills in the Transvaal and it is not possession of the still which is illegal but the production of more than thirty gallons of spirit. There is only one clue to the quantity of spirit distilled and that is the residual mash and there is nothing more easily disposed of where pigs abound.

The moonshine liquor, or mampoer, as it is called, is served to natives of all ages and even to children and complaints are rife of scholars attending school quite drunk.

The government professes itself able to stamp out the evil, but with this starting handicap of legalised stills and thirty gallons free it does not seem feasible that the excisemen will make much headway. — African Press.

WATER LILIES

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Water lilies, a few fish, and perhaps a few other aquatic plants, form the whole of most garden pools.

Either annual or hardy water lilies can be purchased for use in garden pools. The hardy varieties prove more satisfactory, since the annual types must be replaced each year unless the pool is indoors, or plants are placed in a greenhouse to winter over.

Each water lily should be planted in a separate box of earth, 18 inches square, and one foot deep. The box should have several holes in the bottom for drainage. A box or tub of cypress is best, for it will endure the standing in the water.

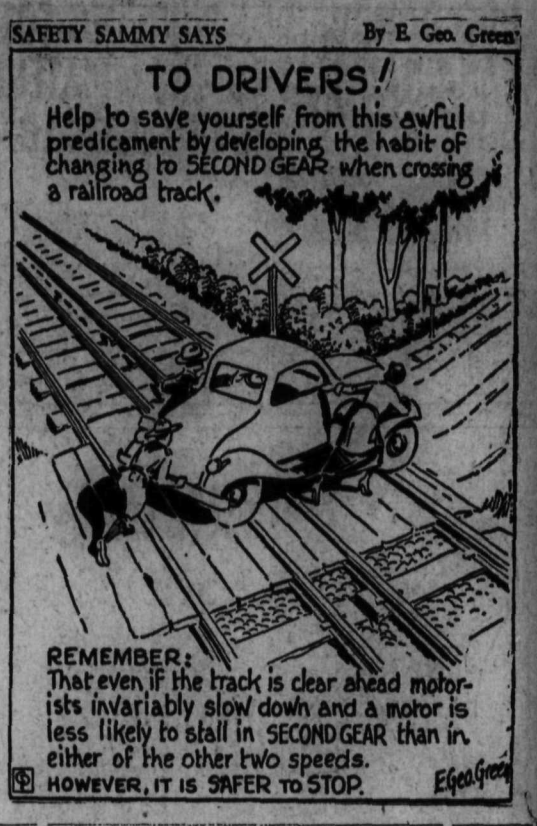
Lily boxes should be filled with soil to within six inches of the top. The lily crown should be planted even with the top of the soil, then over this a one-inch layer of sand should be placed.

The best soil for water lilies is three parts loam to one part well-rotted cow manure, with a bit of chemical fertilizer added, dried blood being very good. When placing the lily box in the pool, put in only a few inches below the surface of the water, so the sun can warm it. When the lily begins to grow, add a few more inches of water, until you have eight inches of water higher than the lily box. If your pool is quite deep, it may be necessary to put a few bricks under the lily box to bring it to the desired height.

Water lilies do not like cold, running water; they do much better in warm, still water. To produce flowers, they need plenty of sun. They will grow foliage in the shade but not blossoms.

The hardy water lilies come in many lovely shades, and many are quite fragrant, in pink, salmon, yellow, apricot, orange and vermillion.

Not many hardy garden lilies originated in America, according to Charles L. Tricker, writing in "House Beautiful". The northeastern states, bordering on the Atlantic ocean, have a native known as Nymphaea, which has pure white flowers with golden centers which are very fragrant. There is also Rose Arey, cerise pink, Eugenia de Land, extra large, in deep rose pink with iridescent hues. Fire crest is another American.



TEETH SHOW IF DIET IS NUTRITIOUS

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

The most valuable contributions to medical progress of late years have been made in the field of infant nutrition. Most valuable because practical and real, and not theoretical, and because they save humanity at the source.

The ways we have of determining whether nutrition is improved are various. One good index is the teeth. A few years ago, in a large children's hospital associated with a state university, one of the physicians began to be impressed with the fact that the teeth of the children showed a hardening, whereas they had previously been soft. It was curious that these children were diabetic, and the reason for the result was apparently due to the fact that their diet had been very carefully selected in order to make is "complete". Nutritionists now use the words "complete diet" to indicate a diet which has all the necessary elements for growth and health in it.

There are a number of complete diets which will arrest tooth decay, some high and some low in fat, and others high and low in sugar. Arrested tooth decay has been observed with such regularity when the diet has been well controlled, that some physicians are confident that healthy teeth can be produced in all instances by dietary means alone. Most of us, and certainly most dentists, however, are unwilling to say that cleanliness is not also necessary. The tooth brush and tooth paste and the tooth brush drill are still part of the health program.

While various people have emphasized one or the other element in the diet as affecting tooth health and decay, the consensus is that there is no single food deficiency responsible for tooth decay, and the individual nutritional factor should not receive undue emphasis. In other words, a general, well-balanced diet will make healthy teeth.

Vitamin D milk is certainly one of the substances which is responsible for the prevention of tooth decay. There are many forms of Vitamin D milk on the market, nearly any one of them as good as the other so long as they are approved by the Certified Milk Producers association of America. The so-called irradiated Vitamin D milk has not been found, according to a well-known pediatrician of my acquaintance, to be any better than the other certified Vitamin D milks.

Another portion of the body which is receiving attention from a nutritional standpoint, is the blood. Experiments have been done to show that animals living solely on milk diet develop nutritional anemia, which can be cured with a combination of copper and iron. These findings seemed, at first, to be merely of experimental interest, and children's specialists, in general, did not feel that they saw very much of this nutritional anemia, but careful check-ups of large children's clinics have shown that in a large number of cases the blood is deficient, and this deficiency is rectified by the use of copper and iron salts.

SCOTS AND THE SOUTH

The Christian Science Monitor

Englishmen consider themselves a conquered race, writes a columnist in the New York Times, and no one needs to be told who the victors are—the sturdy folk whose picturesque country lies north of the Tweed. The writer seems surprised therefore, that the actual number of Scots in England is so small, a proportion of about one in a hundred of the population.

He shouldn't be surprised. Bruce at Bannockburn had an army very much smaller than that comprising "proud Edward's power" on that June day in 1314 when by superior strategy he led the English cavalry into a trap, and gained independence for Scotland.

"The Twelve-Pound Look", one of Barrie's characters addresses another: "A young Scotsman of your ability, let loose upon the world with £300, $1500 what could he not do? It's almost appalling to think of; especially if he went among the English." Sir James ought to know; he hasna done sae badly himsel' amang the folk in Lunnon, d'ya ken?

An anecdote is told of an Edinburgh merchant who went to London to extend his business connections with firms of prominence. Upon his return his friends gathered to congratulate him upon his obvious great success. "How did you get along with Englishmen?" they inquired. "I didna meet any," he answered. "I only dealt with the heads of concerns."

Surgeons report that one of the most pernicous forms of high blood pressure, known as hypertension, can be relieved or cured by a nerve operation.

BUD DONOVAN OF WINNIPEG SOLE CANADIAN LEFT IN THE AMATEUR GOLF SERIES; SIX OTHERS LOSE

Getting Ready for Play on 24th

Charlie Stark, one of Nelson's most devoted golfers caught just after lighting up after teeing off on the Nelson golf course. Mr. Stark plays about three games, bowling and curling in the winter and golf in the summer. A tournament is being staged on the local course starting tomorrow and going through the week-end.

Top-notchers Are Yet in the Field at St. Annes

ST. ANNES ON SEA, Eng., May 22 (CP cable).—When dusk fell over the battle-field today only 20-year-old Bud Donovan of Winnipeg was left to carry on Canada's attack against the amateur golf championship, launched by no fewer than 10 shotmakers from the Dominion.

Winding up of the second and third rounds that cut the big field down to 32 players out of 224, brought the greatest disaster of the week to the Dominion golfers, who on Monday launched Canada's greatest effort to take back the title that never in its 40 years has gone to the Dominion.

ONLY CANADIAN LEFT

The Winnipeg youngster, a veteran of the links despite his tender years, was the only survivor out of seven Canadians still in the fray as the day started. While he was winning his third round match, by a 4 and 3 margin over J. B. Beddard of Staffordshire, four Canadians were ousted in the same round; and two more went out in late second-round matches to join the three who met defeat in their first foray.

Donovan has a good chance of getting past the fourth round too, meeting tomorrow morning J. H. Thompson of Hunstanton, who like Donovan, has not yet been called on to face one of the big shots.

Left in for the closing and most desperate stages are four former champions including Lawson Little Jr. of San Francisco, who is attempting to win the title twice in succession. The others are all home-breds —Cyril Tolley, Dr. William Tweddell and Johnny de Forest. Tony Torrance, Eustace Storey, Leslie Garnett and Eric Fiddian are just a few more domestic sharpshooters standing at the moment in the way of the title.

Bolstering Little, the United States still has four others of varied brand —Richard Chapman and Don Topping, both of Greenwich, Conn.; Robert Sweeney, formerly of New York and now living in London; and Captain A. Bullock-Webster, Briton who has lived in California many years. Two more U.S. entries went to the galleries today.

LITTLE SHOOTS WELL

Lawson Little continued to shoot even fours for the second straight day to dispose of the six-foot-four Lancashire man, J. P. Zacharias, by 4 and 3 in the third round.

Dick Moore of Vancouver was not eliminated by J. L. Holden of Bowden until they walked from the twenty-first green. Phil Farley of Toronto and Capt. Bullock-Webster did not settle the issue before an extra hole was played.

Also eliminated in the third round were Edwin Innes of Montreal, who had the misfortune to encounter Dr. Tweddell and lost to him by a 3 and 2 count; and Ken Black of Vancouver, who had just as tough an opponent in Tony Torrance of the Royal and Ancient, the redoubtable Scot winning 5 and 4.

Gordie Taylor of Montreal had the most troublesome opponent of all in Cyril Tolley, second choice to Little. Taylor battled hard before being ousted by a 3 and 2 count.

The last of today's Canadians, Jack Nash of London, went down before E. P. Kyle, English simonpure, 3 and 2.

SCOTTISH SOCCER TEAM IS VICTOR

Beat Toronto Eleven 3-1 Before 10,000 Spectators

TORONTO, May 22 (CP).—Making a vigorous recovery in the second half, the touring Scottish Football association team defeated a select Toronto eleven 3-1 before 10,000 spectators here tonight. Each side scored one goal in the opening 45 minutes.

Victory in their first Canadian match was the third of the Scots' tour, the team already having won games in Philadelphia and New York.

W. Miller, Partick Thistle player, opened the scoring after 10 minutes play with a fine shot from close in. J. Aitken, Sterling Ulster United inside forward, equalized before half-time, after W. Stevenson in the visitors' goal had misjudged a shot and was well out of position.

Miller obtained a second, following a smart piece of work by Hugh Gallacher. The great Derby County center forward was himself responsible for the third and final counter, converting a well-placed corner by Main.

The lineups:

Scottish F. A.—Goal, W. Stevenson(Clyde); fullbacks—A. Anderson (Hearts); R. McDonald (Rangers); half-backs—P. Wilson (Hibernians); T. Smith (Kilmarnock); R. Fraser (Aberdeen); forwards — R. Main (Rangers); W. Miller (Partick Thistle); H. Gallacher (Derby County); W. Mills (Aberdeen); D. Duncan (Derby County).

Toronto—Goal, L. Woollacott; fullbacks, W. Davidson, C. Davis; halfbacks, J. Clulow, K. Sanvig, J. Hagen; forwards, O. Sutton; J. Aikin; G. Graham, N. Donald, L. N. Fieldrum.

BATTAGLIA IS BADLY BEATEN

"Babe" Risko Takes or Gets a Draw in Every Round

PITTSBURGH, May 22 (AP)—Landing pile-driving rights and lefts throughout 12 fast rounds, Eddie (Babe) Risko tonight won a unanimous decision from Frankie Battaglia, Winnipeg's game middleweight contender.

Risko, who hails from Syracuse, N.Y., weighed 161 pounds, Battaglia 157.

The Canadian Italian, favored in the betting, failed to win a single round although several were fought evenly. He never solved the awkward, lumbering style of Risko.

More than 4000 fans cheered themselves hoarse in Motor Square Garden as the clash turned into a slugging match which saw both fighters working hard all the way. There were no knockdowns although Battaglia took a one-count in the 10th on a fall in the midst of in-fighting.

Hines later teamed up with Dorothy Andrus of Stamford, Conn., to eliminate Helen Jacobs, America's women's champion, and her French partner, Roland Journu, 6-2, 7-5 in the second round of the mixed doubles.

PITTSBURGH, May 22 (AP)—Darrell (Cy) Blanton ran up against the New York Giants for the second time this season today and bounced back his second defeat of the season against six victories, 5-2.

The young mound star was beaten, largely because his rival, Roy Parmelee, pitched better ball but he was by no means disgraced. He added five strikeouts to his record to make it 51, gave nine hits and was accorded weak support.

Parmelee, who has specialized in low-hit games all season, granted the Bucs only five blows and likewise got in trouble on other counts.

PERCY WILLIAMS BROKE, ASKS FOR FUNDS IN TRUST

Trustees Ask Right to Give Him $14,500 Subscribed

FAMILY NOW IN NEED OF HELP

Money Raised When He Was the Hero of the Day

VANCOUVER, May 22 (CP). — Judgment was reserved in British Columbia supreme court today by Chief Justice Aulay Morrison on an application to vary the terms of the $14,500 Percy Williams trust funds so as to authorize the trustees to pay the money to Williams or his family.

The fund had been raised by public subscription in Vancouver following Williams' double triumph in the 100-meter and 200-meter sprints at the 1928 Olympic games in Amsterdam.

So as to permit Williams to retain his amateur status, the trust deed was worded in such a manner that the trustees were directed to pay $750 a year from the fund to his mother for his education and training in a trade, occupation or profession. A second provision empowered the trustees in their discretion to make payments to British Columbia athletes of Olympic standing.

The court was informed 367 of the original 548 subscribers, or 81 per cent of them, had consented to the change in the trust in accordance with Williams' request.

Ghent Davis, counsel, stated the family was now in necessitous circumstances.

Payments have not been made from the fund, which now amounts to some $11,000, since Williams set up in business at Brockton Point with a refreshment stand several years ago.

The trustees are the presidents of the Vancouver board of trade, the Canadian club, Vancouver; and the B.C. branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada. The trust deed was entered into in January, 1929.

"It might be more prudent to give the money to the mother than to this improvident young man," commented the chief justice.

Mr. Davis pointed out that the trustees, under the deed as it was drawn, cannot give any further money to Williams or to his mother, because the purpose for which the payments were authorized, Williams' education and training, has passed.

'ARF AND 'ARF IS A SPEEDER

English Entry Wins the Turtle Race at a Foot-a-Second

BALTIMORE, May 22 (AP)—Victor in the fifth annual "Turtle" Darby" of the Johns Hopkins hospital, 'Arf and 'Arf, English entry of Dr. Edward Lawrence of London pushed across ahead of the field today to smash all records. His pace was a phenomenal foot a second for the 12-yard, two-foot route laid out on the hospital tennis courts.

Yet the winner had given his backers a horrible half second. A scant two inches from the finish, he stopped dead, and for a while it looked like the race was all over so far as he was concerned. Then, with one disdainful glare at his nearest rival, 'Arf and 'Arf leaped to life to finish in 37⅘ seconds—3-5 of a second better than the mark set last year by Maple Leaf, Canadian speedster, who faded in the first heat today.

Howma Doim backed by the hospital administration staff, and Red Tape, white hope of the dispensary, ambled over next to the winner in the order named.

BARNEY BIGGER, HITTING HARDER

McLarnin Lacks Fire and Seems "Puffed" About Face

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

FERNDALE, N.Y., May 22 (AP)—The clan of the fight experts got a chance today to watch two major warriors the same afternoon in their preparations for championship battle. The advantage seemed to be with Barney Ross, resigned lightweight champion, who tackles Jimmy McLarnin for the welterweight crown for the third time in the Polo grounds next Tuesday night.

First Ross turned in four brilliant rounds of punching against his sparring partners here for the benefit of the visitors. Then, six miles away at Swan lake, McLarnin slugged his assistants for six rounds. By dint of great scurrying, the visitors made both engagements.

The verdict of the great majority was that the odds now lifting to 8 to 5 on Ross are justified.

Bigger about the shoulders, but as fast as ever and hitting with greater power, Ross, now fully matured at 25, gave a dazzling exhibition against Sammy Meadows and Phil Rafferty, two New York welterweights, for two rounds each. Throwing more right hand punches than ever before, he nailed them consistently, and only the big gloves and heavy padding on his hands kept him from annihilating the pair.

McLarnin, on the other hand, hit with nothing of the crispness or fire of his younger foe in three rounds with Frankie Williams, two with Harry Conley of Bennington, Vt., and one with Jimmy Martin. He seemed puffed about the face, though his weight is a fraction under 147 pounds, the class limit. At times he boxed swiftly and surely. At other times his mates hit him easily with rights, and with the memory of the rights Ross was throwing only an hour before there was considerable shaking of heads.

WINS YORKSHIRE

YORK, England, May 22 (CP Cable) — The Aga Khan's crack long-distance horse Felicitation, carrying top weight, today won the Yorkshire cup over the two-mile route, finishing two lengths in front of Lady Fitzwilliam's Desmond Dene. Felicitation started at odds of 10 to 3 and carried 113 pounds. Jesmond Dene, 6 to 1, packed 110 pounds and Lucky Patch, starting at 10 to 1, carried 112 pounds.

STORMY LOVE

A YOUNG NAVY MAN'S ROMANCE — by BELLE BURNS GROMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Carefree Lieutenant Valentine Preston, attached to a gunboat in China, in rushing to the harbor at Shanghai to bid goodby to his childhood sweetheart, Janice Edding, who is sailing with her family to the United States, is frustrated when an attractive girl takes the last sampan to the liner anchored in the bay.

(Now Go on With the Story)

Chapter 2

Eleven months ago in Manila, Val had had his first introduction to Janice Edding as a grown-up!

His ship had just returned from North China and, on the memorable evening when he sauntered into the Army and Navy club with no hope that the dinner dance in progress might be anything but the usual stereotyped affair, he had been jolted to a standstill by the glimpse of an arresting stranger. Slender, golden-blonde, hazel-eyed, wearing a frock of filmy green, she had made him think of a clean, fresh breeze, of crystal streams in pine groves back in the States. Not beautiful, really—and he was strong for beauty—but even before he had recognized in her his childhood playmate, he had gone straight to her side.

From that first moment when, delighted to renew their acquaintance, he smiled possessively down at her, he sensed a challenge in this new poised Jan; and he knew that although much time had elapsed, she had not forgotten his lofty indifference at the Academy. He had always found his line fairly efficacious but during that evening she only laughed at him. And something deep within him had responded joyously to her defiance so that he had resolved to conquer this adamant snow-maiden.

Now he smiled ruefully to acknowledge that both then and later Jan had eluded a flirtation. He had resented this baffling quality in her even while they had danced, played tennis, golfed and swam with the young navy set in Manila and in the China ports where their paths crossed. But later, although they quarreled frequently and with youthful gusto, he grew to respect her as an adversary; and finally he drifted into regarding her merely as a playfellow and a darned square friend.

That is, until this recent trip upriver when in the deck-watches of lonely star-lit nights Jan had been constantly in his thoughts. The day he sailed, two months ago, something inexplicable had happened between them. He had called to say goodby, only to find a pale Jan, eyes softened by weariness, her pretty hair disarranged from a night and day vigil beside her ailing small sister, Mimi. It was a new experience to see Jan like that! She was wearing a clinging negligee of palest rose and never had she seemed so appealing nor aroused such tenderness in him. She was endeavoring to persuade a protesting Mimi to take her medicine, and he had taken the spoon from Jan's tired little hand and in no time at all, coazed the youngster to swallow the bitter dose and then told her stories until she drifted into a quiet sleep.

Just before he left to catch the last launch to his ship, he had asked Jan to step out with him the night he should return to Shanghai. Perhaps she was so tired her defences were down, for when he slipped a tentative arm about her because she seemed completely exhausted, she had, to his pleased amazement, relaxed against his shoulder for a moment.

"What a darling you can be when you like, Val," she had murmured. "I shall miss you terribly. Of course I'll save the date for you. Goodby. And—come back very soon—"

Dazed he had stood like a stone image. Not because of her words. That wasn't it. But her golden head was tipped back so that she was looking up at him; she semed charged by a shining brightness— her eyes were like stars — something made his heart pound crazily and would not release his gaze from hers. His easy, flirtatious manner had deserted him; he experienced a new sensation, something exciting he wanted to investigate and understand. But his ship was sailing. There was not time. Yet he had sensed that when he saw Jan again they would find an answer to this stirring emotion. And now, to his bewilderment and self-disgust, he had come back to Shanghai only to get beautifully plastered and to break the date that had grown to mean something important to him.

He was spared further stabbing of remorse when his attention was snatched to the passenger in a passing sampan, who had a familiar cut to his jib. Flinging up an eager arm, Val cried, "Hi, Brad! How's it to give me a lift to the Taft?"

The other man stared for an instant and, as recognition dawned, called back, "Sure will. I'm just on my way out there to say goodbye to the Eddings."

While the coolie maneuvred his craft in to the float, Brad Norris' tanned young face — gray-eyed, snub-nosed, teeth spaced a little in front like a kid's—beamed across at his friend. He, like Val, was of the class of '26 and in his mid-twenties; the sight of his boyish smile always swept Val back to Naval Academy days when they two were roommates waging the tough battle to win their commissions.

Not that those first hellish months of plebe year were a pleasant memory. The hazing, added to the stiff requirements of the school, had galled Val until a morning came when he had stared out at a freighter laying-to in the Severn and suddenly had resolved to quit the Academy flat, ship on that tramp as a deckhand, and seek adventure and a high old time.

He might have carried out this plan had he not come in that afternoon to find his roommate in the depths of despair. Brad Norris was a shy, awkward country boy whose burning desire for a navy career faced defeat because of his lack of the fundamental education necessary to meet the formidable Academy course. Val had liked the other lad from their first meeting; and that day the sick misery in his friend's eyes roused not only his sympathy but also his fighting spirit.

It was laughable now to recall his theatrical gesture in offering to see Brad through the hard grind that lay ahead. It was funnier still when one considered that until that time he, Val, had been a pretty sad academic flop himself. However, he had chosen to regard his assurance to Brad as a solemn and binding pledge. And after a four-year struggle, with himself as a panting pacemaker, they had won to their goal by the veritable skin of their teeth. Brad had later gone into aviation, but though they ran across each other only occasionally, they had not forgotten the bond of mutual suffering that had sealed their friendship, and that each had the other to thank for his commission in the U.S.N.

As the sampan came to the float Brad called, "Hi stranger; I saw the Panay drop anchor yesterday and looked forward to seeing you. How are things up-river?"

Val returned his friend's beaming smile and stepped down to settle himself in the small craft. "Swell!" he replied. "Ever since I saw you two months ago we've been tied up opposite one lousy pirate village after the other, giving the anti-foreign populace love treatments." His infectious grin lifted the corners of his mouth to disclose extremely white teeth. "Old son, did you ever have a low-down bum spit on you, and for diplomatic reasons not be able to give him a good sock in the nose? When the pirate mobs hurled rocks and filth at us, we had to take it and like it. Boy! What a rotten job!"

Brad was laughing, "About time you had a sample of regular duty, Mister," he chuckled. "You've always landed in the soft spots. Look at you! Six years out of the Academy with only the first two spent on a battleship and the other four whiled away enjoying yourself on a destroyer in the Mediterranean and out here on the South and North China patrols. Pretty soft, I'd say."

"Listen," Val countered, "a seagoing sailor works harder than any lazy aviator ever has or ever will, and don't you forget it! Honest toil, that's what I've been doing. But speaking of jobs, I have the unofficial promise on one that is tailored just to my order. Wait until you hear about this one!" His young eyes flashed with enthusiasm. "The assistant naval attache in Paris is ready to go to sea, and I'm about due for shore duty. Now, I ask you, what could be neater? Lord, but I want that job, Brad." His face grew serious. "Deering of the department has assured me I have first chance at it. Paris! Can you imagine it after three years of guarding missionaries and being a target for snipers on the Yangtze and South China patrols?"

WAYSIDE WILL OPERATE AGAIN

Men Will Go to Work Under Protection of B. C. Police

VICTORIA, May 22 (CP)—Application for a conciliation board under the Dominion Industrial Disputes act was suggested today by Hon. G. S. Pearson, British Columbia minister of mines and labor, to striking miners and operators of non-dividend paying properties in the Bridge River valley.

This would enable the mines to resume operations pending settlement of the wage dispute.

VANCOUVER, May 22 (CP)—Wayside Consolidated Gold Mines, Ltd., property in the Bridge River valley, closed by the miners' strike, will be reopened tomorrow morning under British Columbia provincial police protection, Managing Director Purves Ritchie announced today.

Wayside employees have refused to accept the wage scale proposed by the company and have arranged to place pickets at Wayside and Congress mines if an attempt is made to open them, it was reported.

Wayside and Congress companies have offered to pay a wage scale of $5 for miners, $4.50 for muckers and $3.75 for surface men. The strikers demand the scale now paid at Pioneer Bralorne and Bradian, where miners receive $5.40, muckers, $4.50 and surface men $4 minimum.

THE CANADIAN JUBILEE BEACON CHAIN

The coast-to-coast chain of beacons by which Canadian Boy Scouts celebrated the King's silver jubilee on the evening of May 6 proved the greatest event of its kind in the Dominion's history. Fires stretched from Sydney on the Atlantic to Prince Rupert on the Pacific and burned from Signal mountain, 7,700 feet up, in Jasper national park. The great mid-Canada bonfire at Winnipeg was lighted by Lord Baden-Powell himself, in the presence of a crowd of many thousand spectators, and at Edmonton, in the presence of a similar crowd, a huge beacon was lighted by Lieutenant-governor Welsh. The Canadian Scout chain carried across North America the great Scout chain in England, where some 2000 beacons burned between John o' Groats and the Guernsey islands.

In some cases the drying up of the fronds of hardy ferns suggests that the ferns are in need of a rest—all plants require a rest for a period similar to that which they have under natural conditions in the winter.

In some trees in Canada, such as the birch and the white spruce, the starch which forms in summer becomes transformed into fat during the winter. The fat in turn reverts to starch again on the approach of spring. This formation of fat appears to be clearly an adaption for withstanding the extreme cold of northern latitudes.

tional union for social justice, Father Coughlin's remarks were interrupted frequently by cheers and howls of derision against those who came under his fire.

SPICY UTTERINGS

The priest's address was spiced with such phrases as "kept men of jounalism," the "prostituted press," "spoil-minded politicians." He repeated challenges to the press gallery to "print that in your newspapers."

The bonus question, he charged, was one of ruthless opposition by bankers coupled with the loss by congress of the right to coin and regulate money. "I am afraid it was not the soldier alone who was vetoed this afternoon—it was the American people" he said.

"Much as I dislike making this remark, May I remind the president, with all due respect, that not one of these soldiers or sailor boys cast a ballot on that fateful Good Friday night in the spring of 1917 to force a peace loving nation to take up arms for the profiteers and exploiters of mankind," he said.

SAVE BRITAIN'S CREDIT

"May I further remind him that if the thought of pension payments comes to his mind at this late date it should have been in the minds of the United States senators who listened to the propaganda of the kept press and who heeded the messages cabled from England by Ambassador Page as he pleaded with us to save Britain's credit."

In a voice colored with sarcasm, Fr. Coughlin struck at President Roosevelt's statements against "class legislation."

"For years" he shouted, "he and his predecessors in office have been upholding this very class legislation for the benefit of the bankers, the money creators."

The crowd rose to its feet when the priest cried at the close of his speech:

"I ask you to pledge with me the fight to return America to Americans."

Twenty-seven men and women were arrested for distributing communistic literature among the crowd.

Red Sox and Stars Meet Again Tonight

The Red Sox and the Toronto Stars clash for the third time this season at the Recreation grounds tonight at 5:40. So far the Red Sox have proved a jinx to the Stars but the latter aggregation is determined to take the league lead tonight.

Either Jean Spiers or Alice Dunn may be started on the mound tonight for the Stars, leaving Hazel Spiers available for infield duty. Barbara Kingzett and Berna Kline who were missing in the last game will start tonight. At least one new face will be seen in the outfield Helen (Janie) Wigg, former Racketeer shortstop has been signed and will be used in the near future.

The Red Sox hope to have out their strongest lineup as they can go into the lead by winning.
