SCOTT OF BRITAIN AIR RACE LEADER

SCOTT, LEADER IN RACE, MADE RECORD TRIPS

Route to Australia Is Not New to British Flying Pilot

VIED WITH GREAT KINGSFORD-SMITH

His Partner in the Air Derby Is Airman of Experience

(By the Associated Press)
Flight Lieutenat Charles W. A. Scott, former light-heavyweight boxing champion of the British Royal Air Force, more than once swore off making speed records between England and Australia, but always came back to shatter them again.

A long-standing rivalry with Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith and James Mollison egged him on.

When he first beat Kingsford-Smith's record in April 1931, flying solo in a little Gypsy Moth to Australia in nine days, three hours, 20 minutes, the hardships

No fatalities were reported either on Vancouver island or the mainland, where the gale struck with full force. Several narrow escapes were reported.

John Rupert narrowly escaped electrocution when he touched a live wire which had been blown from a power line. Taken to hospital he was revived after several hours by an inhalator crew.

Will Meet Cabinet in Session Tuesday, It Is Expected

WELCOME QUIET ONE AT OTTAWA

Provincial Confab and Next Session Are Main Topics

OTTAWA, Oct. 21 (CP).—Developments in Dominion political and government circles are expected to move rapidly with the return to his desk tomorrow of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett after an absence of nearly two months in Europe. He reached the capital this morning at such an early hour there were few on hand to greet him, in marked contrast to the enthusiastic receptions accorded him at Quebec, Three Rivers and Montreal in the course of his journey to Toronto where he spent Saturday.

AUSSIE FLYER IS HELD BACK

Kingsford-Smith Held at Fiji Because of Rains

OAKLAND, Cal., Oct. 21 (AP)—Rain squalls and northeast trade winds delayed Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith today in his hoped-for takeoff in Suva, Fiji, on the second leg of the long over-ocean flight from Australia to the United States.

The noted flyer advised his brother, R. H. K. Smith that his contemplated departure on the 3197 mile lap to Honolulu had been put off until Tuesday, Suva time, or until weather conditions improve.

Earlier in the day Sir Charles had informed his brother he might take off early Monday, Suva time.

When the big plane landed at Suva it ended a dramatic, nerve-tingling flight of 1760 miles over water from Brisbane, Australia.

The flight from Brisbane took exactly 15 minutes less than 12 hours.

Over much of the distance the lady Southern Cross had battled adverse winds, clouds and rain squalls. Once the motor sputtered for an agonizing stretch of five minutes while Kingsford-Smith and his flying companion, Capt. P. G. Taylor, felt certain the end was near.

Again, while about midway in the flight, over New Caledonia, they flew blind for 20 minutes and were forced to climb to 10,000 feet where conditions were not much better.

Has Good Lead Over Dutch Fliers in the Race to Australia; Roscoe Turner of U.S. Third With the Mollisons a Poor Fourth

C. W. A. Scott, who with Campbell Black of Britain, leads the Australian air race.

Bedaux Party on Way Civilization

POUCE COUPE, B. C., Oct. 21 (CP)—Charles E. Bedaux and members of his expedition which failed in an attempt to make an 1100 mile crossing of the Rocky mountains in northern British Columbia, tonight were 25 miles away as they approached here on their way out to Edmonton.

Leaders on Way to Darwin; Dutchmen Are Past Rangoon; Turner at Allahabad and the Mollisons Are Out of Karachi

HUGE BRITISH BOMBING PLANE ONLY CASUALTY IN THE GIGANTIC EVENT

16 Planes Still in Race; Mollisons Had Hard Luck After Leading the Way to Karachi; Turner Has Near Mishap; Many Spills

(CP and AP Cables)

Two ace British flyers held the lead early today over a fast-flying Dutch pair in the London to Melbourne air race. Capt. C. W. A. Scott and Campbell Black were winging their way somewhere between Singapore and Darwin, Australia, while K. D. Parmentier and J. J. Moll had passed Rangoon, Burma.

None of the flyers actually engaged in the race had met with serious injury. But there were unconfirmed reports that a British Royal Air Force bombing plane out of Singapore in connection with the race had crashed and that several persons were killed.

The Havas news agency in a despatch from Mildenhall aerodrome, England, reported the plane, carrying British officials, crashed north of Singapore in the jungle with an estimated toll of six dead. The report was unconfirmed. Several planes put out from Singapore in search of the missing bomber.

A TERRIFIC PACE IS SET

The Scott-Black duo were setting a terrific pace in their Comet plane. Apart from a forced landing due to shortage of gasoline near Baghdad, they had halted only at the control points, Baghdad, Allahabad and Singapore, since leaving England.

If they were sleeping at all, they were sleeping en route. At Baghdad, they halted 33 minutes; at Allahabad one hour; and at Singapore only one hour and 20 minutes.

Scott said at Singapore he hoped to reach Darwin, the next control point, non-stop. His plane bumped badly as it landed, giving the crowd a thrill and a brief shock. It nearly overturned owning to a sudden change in the wind.

The British flyer told Reuters the trip from Allahabad had been "appalling" but that the engine was behaving splendidly.

WANTED DAY-LIGHT LANDING

He had hoped to reach Singapore earlier but had decided to reduce speed in order to nurse the engine, and provide a daylight landing by local time, seven hours ahead of Greenwich time. The landing was made at 5.23 a.m. local time, Monday.

Parmentier said at Rangoon he was not trying to catch Scott. At Calcutta he had expressed confidence in his ability to catch Scott. At Calcutta he had expressed confidence in his ability to catch the leader of the great air derby but apparently he and Moll had changed their plans.

Col. Roscoe Turner and Clyde Pangborn, United States entrants, were at Allahabad while the Flying Mollisons were en route from Karachi to Allahabad. Also on that leg of the 11,500-mile

College of Surgeons Give K. L. G. Hospital a Rating

Provisional Approval Received by Miss K. Ethel Gray, Superintendent; Aim for Further Improvements

MISS K. ETHEL GRAY

Miss K. Ethel Gray, superintendent of the Kootenay Lake General hospital, Saturday was notified that the institution had been granted provisional approval by the American College of Surgeons.

Comparati[ve] few hospitals in the country have attained to this position, toward which the efforts of Miss Gray and the hospital board have been directed for some time.

Efforts toward further improving the hospital are to be continued and it is hoped that before long the Kootenay Lake General will be placed on the fully approved list by the American College of Surgeons, which has most exacting requirements in hospital management and equipment. It is in the matter of equipment that further improvements in the hospital require to be made.

POLZUM TAKEN FOR OIL THEFT

Three Police Forces Figure in Arrest; Have Evidence

Acting on information given by Constable C. A. Brown of the C.P.R. police, Sergeant C. G. Barber of the provincial police secured a search warrant Saturday morning and in company with Chief of Police Alex Stewart and Constable Robert Harshaw of the Nelson city police searched the premises of Nick Polzum of Granite road, and got sufficient evidence to warrant his arrest on a [charg]e of breaking and entering, [and] robbing the safe of the Imperial Oil company on the night of October 15.

The safe contained $52 the night it was broken into and robbed, and also a number of checks. Only the money was taken, however.

Access to the building was made by prying down the top section of a back window. The handle of the safe was first hacked off and when this method failed to permit entry, the door was then hacked with saws until the fire brick was bared and then the brick was chiselled until the works of the combination were exposed and it was an easy matter to tumble the combination and open the door.

The neat way that it was broken into, the way the files which were filed on top of the safe, were set carefully to one side, showing that the job was methodically done.

Roosevelt Seeks Cooperation of Bankers; Hints on Money Policies Expected Shortly

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—President Roosevelt will urge cooperation with his recovery program upon the American bankers association this week in an address to which the business world is looking for hints of future monetary and financial policy.

While the contents of the speech are the subject of much speculation it is generally expected they will be reassuring in tone, in keeping with the president's present effort to discourage industrial leaders from expecting disturbingly leftward developments.

Their chief worry now is monetary policy. Agitation has been increasing again for more inflationary action, either through another devaluation of the gold dollar or by other means, such as paying off maturing government securities with currency.

A little more than a week ago Mr. Roosevelt laughed at reports of impending devaluation, but did not forclose himself against such a step at some later date. On the same day, the treasury announced plans for the refunding of a huge block of Liberty bonds by the old fashioned orthodox method of exchanging new securities for them.

Whether Mr. Roosevelt will discuss monetary policy in detail remains to be seen, although in any event he is expected to make no definite committments. The speech will be delivered Wednesday night.

MUNICIPALITIES OF B.C. OPPOSE ANY CHANGE IN METHOD OF GIVING RELIEF

Ask Cabinet to Meet the Executive to Thrash Out Matter

VANCOUVER, Oct. 21 (CP).—After lengthy meeting here on Saturday night, the executive of the Union of B.C. municipalities passed a resolution opposing outright any change in the present system of government contributions for relief.

With Mayor T. A. Love of Grand Forks, president of the union, and 20 municipal representatives, the meeting represented a climax in the long-standing battle between the government and municipalities.

The executive asked for a conference with the Victoria administration as early as possible, "realizing

HERE IT IS, IT'S ICE CREAM WITH LIQUOR FLAVOR

CLEVELAND, Oct. 21 (AP)—Even the "old soak" whose preference runs to "something with a kick," is going to smack his lips over the newest creation of the $1,000,000,000 United States dairy industry.

It is ice cream with a liquor flavor, and it was demonstrated to visitors Saturday at the dairy industries national exposition here.

ITALY MOVES TO DELIVER TERROR PAIR TO FRANCE

TURIN, Italy, Oct. 21 (CP-Havas)—The Italian police, in close touch with the ministry of interior at Rome, today moved to facilitate extradition of Ante Pavelich and Egon Kvaternik to France, where they are wanted respectively as the alleged master-mind and executive assistant in the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Foreign Minister Louis Barthou of France at Marseille.

Owing to formalities of Italian law, extradition cannot take place until the two men are shown guilty of complicity in the crime to the satisfaction of the Italian police.

BELGIANS HOLD A TERRORIST

LIEGE, Belbium, Oct. 21 (CP-Havas)—Belgian police apparently have concluded their part in the international inquiry into the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia and tonight were holding Nestor Percets, Croat terrorist, for probable extradition to France.

Police stated Percets—who has been charged with having directed a Croat terrorist group at Janka Puszta, Hungary—denied all complicity in the plan to murder King Alexander, but admitted meeting those accused of the crime in Paris last July.

Canada to Return Visit of French

ROCHEFORT SUR MER, France, Oct. 21 (CP-Havas).—The visit of the French delegation to Canada during the Jacques Cartier celebration is to be reciprocated.

Next year a large caravan of Canadians is to come to France to visit the regions from which the pioneer settlers of French Canada went west.

In January Cardinal Villeneuve, archbishop of Quebec, will visit La Rochelle and the neighboring island of Re, where his ancestors originated.

Dynamite Used as Noise in Charivari

If noise is essential to a chivari, the Greenwood and Rock Creek folks have it. A young couple returned from their honeymoon to Rock Creek recently and a group of well wishers descended on them.

They first set off a stick of dynamite near the house and then rushed in ringing cow bells, beating pans and yelling "surprise." It was.

HE SCRATCHED HIS HEAD AND SAVED HIS LIFE?

EDGEWOOD ARSENAL, Md., Oct. 21 (AP)—August Rembold, Jr., scratched his head just in time.

While he was at it, somebody rapped him with a beer bottle. Several of his fingers were broken, but, had they not been between the bottle and his head, his skull might have been fractured.

Dread Monster of the Deep, the One and Only Serpent Is But a Sea Cow

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C., Oct. 21 (AP)—For a while it was a sea monster—one of those unidentifiable never-before-caught things—but tonight it was merely a sea cow munching grass, or chewing her cud, a contemplative captive in a prison pool.

Three Dare county fishermen came upon the manatee in shallow beach waters near here Friday. A strange sight it was and, in a frenzy, they beached the 2000-pound trichechus manatus.

Harry Davis, curator of the state museum at Raleigh, identified the mammal by proxy, as it were.

He read the description sent him:

Ten feet long, three feet across the back and 18 inches in diameter; a two-foot, fan-shaped tail; brownish-black skin almost naked; a face suggesting that of a horse but no teeth.

"A sea cow," he said, "common in waters of the West Indies and about Florida."

France Pays Homage as Poincare Is Laid at Rest in Simple Graveyard

PARIS, Oct. 21 (AP)—Raymond Poincare, whom Premier Doumergue called "perhaps the greatest French citizen since 1870," was buried today after France had bade his mortal remains farewell in a double funeral ceremony of warlike splendor and religious solemnity.

The last of France's great wartime statesmen, he was paid the nation's highest honors at a national funeral of sombre splendor yesterday at the Pantheon and Church of Notre Dame, rich in the memories of Napoleon. Members of the government and the entire diplomatic corps gathered to pay him honor.

Today, in the simplicity of a country churchyard at Lorraine, he was buried in the family cemetery at Nubecourt, where generations of Poincares lie, not far from the Franco-German border.

KIMBERLEY IN BIG GOLF YEAR

Competitions Keenly Contested; Hoop Games Played

KIMBERLEY, B.C., Oct. 21.—This has been a good golf season here, with well fought competitions and the course in fine condition. There were competitions to suit every class of player, even the beginners getting a chance.

The first tournament of the season was between Cranbrook and Kimberley for the Wood-Vallance cup. This was won by Jack O'Neill who has played well all summer.

The men's open cup was won by Jack Sanderson. Jack also won the Archie Seaton cup without difficulty despite his 10 handicap.

Mrs. Jack Sanderson won both ladies' open and ladies' handicap competitions, playing outstanding golf.

There were many minor competitions during the year which added greatly to the interest in the game.

Joe Pedicord of Spokane donated two trophies for September competition, Mrs. Sanderson winning the ladies' and E. E. Guille the men's

The secondary in the Bingay competition was won by Jim Buchanan and the secondary in the Bruce Ritchie by J. Campbell. The consolation competition was won by G. Musser. The names of the winners in the various flights will not be disclosed until presented at the annual dance. The Sanderson trophy was won by D. L. Thompson.

The tombstone competition was the final of the season and saw J. H. Harrison just nose out H. H. Bahks by a couple of strokes.

The ladies' committee served refreshments.

LAWN BOWLING

As a climax to a successful lawn bowling season a small tournament was held at the McDougall lawns. The weather was bright and warm and the four rinks taking part enjoyed some close and interesting games. D. McGregor was the ultimate winner.

Three basketball games were played at McDougall hall Saturday before a large crowd of spectators.

High School Juniors beat Flashes, 27-16. White was high scorer for the Flashes with 10 points.

Kiwannas beat High School Girls, 22-18.

Mrs. H. Poole has returned to her home at Chapman Camp, after spending several weeks at the coast.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Keer, W. Keer and Miss D. Donald have left for a two weeks' visit at the coast.

Several hunting parties from Nelson were out in the hills over the week-end but the weather was against them and bags were slim. Dampness kept the deer under cover and the misty weather made the visibility poor.

ROSSLAND HUNTERS FIND A PARADISE

Return With 1200 Pounds of Meat; Stay on Constable McKay's Father's Lodge

ROSSLAND, Oct. 21—Six Rossland hunters who journeyed to the head waters of the Kootenay river in search of game, returned the latter part of last week with glowing stories of a hunter's paradise, according to a story in the Rossland Miner. The party, consisting of Dr. E. E. Toplift, E. Jewell, J. Henderson, William Blair, and Mr. Bailie were guests of Constable W. J. McKay at his father's hunting lodge, for two weeks and enjoyed the outing very much. The hunting lodge is situated in a timber limit owned by J. L. McKay, just at the source of the Kootenay river. The limit lies between two game parks and is reached by trail from the road. Eleven horses transported the party and equipment to the lodge.

Game in large quantities passes through this timber limit and the two weeks hunting was tremendously enjoyed. A number of goats, moose and elk were shot, and the heads of five goats, two moose and two elk were brought back together with about 1200 pounds of meat.

MEETS MAD MOOSE

One of the party, Jack Henderson, had a rather thrilling experience when he encountered an enraged moose. Jack Henderson and William McKay had set out together on a little trip looking for game. The two men separated, one following a ridge of ground, the other the valley. A moose that had just come from battle was making its way through the underbrush toward Jack neither of them realizing the presence of the other. Just as Jack reached a clearing the moose suddenly appeared not more than 10 feet from him. In a maddened state, emphasized by a good deal of bellowing, the moose prepared to charge him. Jack had only time to swing the gun around into firing position, not even able to get it to his shoulder, and fired. The bullet struck the moose right between the eyes and it dropped in its tracks. William McKay heard the bellowing and the shot and hurried down the ridge where he had been walking and found Jack standing triumphantly over the big moose.

Many other interesting experiences were had by members of the party in their search for the quarry. A good many local larders have been increased by the addition of some elk or moose meat and the writer enjoyed an excellent cut of moose, the first he had ever tasted.

JINX STILL ON RUGBY PROGRAM

The jinx which has dogged fall sport, continues with the ban on outdoor gatherings. Sunday was the sixth open day that has been passed up by sporting organizations which utilize the Recreation grounds. Rugby was to have started the first of the month but due to late arrangements and a lack of practise the seniors have been unable to field a team. The juniors got away to a good start with a win over Trail but had to call off all practises due to the work at the Recreation grounds. With the ban further postponing their activities it is doubtful that the proposed junior schedule will be completed.

Moyie Couple Have 25th. Anniversary

Pioneer Residents Are Guests as Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Smith Celebrate

MOYIE, B.C., Oct. 21.—The home of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Smith was the scene of a rather unique celebration Monday. Not only was it the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, but each of the invited guests to the number of 10 were among the oldest residents of Moyie, not in age, but in years of residence. The most recent newcomer had more than 20 years to his credit, while several numbered around 30.

Mr. Smith, who came to Moyie in its first boom days, has held the office of postmaster for more than a quarter of a century as well as running the general store.

Those who sat down for dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Algot Johnson of Sunnyside ranch, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fitch, Mr. and Mrs. J. Whitehead, Mr. and Mrs. E. Sylvestre, and Mesdames A. Guindon and D. Montpellier.

High bridge—Mrs. Montpellier; low, Miss Spence.

High whist—J. W. Fitch; low, Mrs. Sylvestre.

It is not often that a silver wedding can be combined with a silver jubilee of old timers.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Mennie and family have left for Cambourne, near Beaton, on the Arrow lake, where Mr. Mennie is to be employed by the C. M. & S. company, who are erecting a small mill there.

Rev. W. C. Mawhiney, moderator of the United church for this district was a guest of J. W. Fitch.

Rev. T. W. Riddell, J. W. Fitch and R. Walker attended a circuit board meeting of the United churches of Mr. Ruddell's district in Cranbrook.

SOUTH SLOCAN, B.C., Oct. 21.—Miss Mollie Murray, daughter of Col. and Mrs. John Murray, was a young and graceful hostess when she entertained a number of school friends at a charmingly arranged party on October 13, celebrating her fourteenth birthday. The guests were entertained in the hall with a variety of amusing games, till the tea hour, when they adjourned to the house, where they all sat down at the prettily appointed tea table where Mrs. Murray presided and Miss Mary Bradshaw assisted in serving. The flower decorations were nasturtiums, asters, and verbena. A lovely birthday cake surmounted with 14 candles was a gift of Miss Edith Bradshaw. After tea, dancing was enjoyed by the youthful guests, who included Miss Meg Bradshaw, Miss Thelma Bird, Miss Betty Russel, Miss Lily Edwards, Miss May Tonkins, Miss Helen Samson, Miss Mabel Baker, Miss Winnifred Ridge, Colin McDonald, Alan Frisby, Graham Lindale, Julian Yeatman, Tom Hunt, Ronald Edwards, Fred Baker, Lorne Tomkins and John Murray.

Colonel and Mrs. Murray's son John celebrated his tenth birthday with a jolly party. The young guests enjoyed a treasure hunt in the orchard, directed by Mrs. Murray and after some romping games were entertained at tea indoors, when the birthday cake lighted by 10 candles centered the attractively set tea table. Vases of sweet peas and favors of dolls for the girls and balls for the boys were features. Miss Bradshaw and Mrs. Hoffman assisted the hostess in serving. The guests included Georgene Hunt, Monella Scott, Gay MsDonald, Barbara Bird, Dorothy James, Gwen Jones, Ella Baker, Colin McDonald, Lawrence Baker, John Hoffman, Donald Potosky, Graham Tindale, Hugh Baker and Alphie Hoffman.

FERNIE TO ISSUE PROPERTY WRITS

Rental Schedule Adopted for Homes Which Have Reverted to City

FERNIE, B.C., Oct. 21. — City council meeting here centered its attention on efforts to hold city finances together as much as possible. The city's legal representatives were instructed to proceed with the issuance of writs against property owners who have failed or refused to pay taxes due after notification by the city that such action was contemplated. In the case of homes which have reverted to the city through tax sale a schedule of rentals was adopted. In view of the moderate amounts of these rentals the tenants are to be notified that the city will not be responsible for repairs or maintenance.

A request from the Canadian Legion for the use of the Grand theater for the Armistice Day service could not be granted because of the unsafe condition of the building. The council ordered a wreath to be placed at the cenotaph on the occasion of the Armistice Day parade.

A request from the Holy Family school for a reduction in the water rates for the school was not allowed in view of the fact that the city is already making a grant of $100 per month.

The Fernie swimming pool will give better service to its patrons next summer. The old boiler for warming the water is worn beyond repair and the swimming pool committee was instructed to proceed with the installation of a larger boiler which the city owns but is not using. It is expected that the fuel bill will be greatly reduced and through the greater efficiency of the new boiler in heating the water the pool can be emptied every four or five days and put back into use with little loss of time.

At the request of Charles Hesketh, the fire, water and light committee was asked to put the electric light at the entrance to the alley by the post office on the Victoria avenue switch so that it could be left burning throughout the night. Under the present arrangement the mails to and from the early morning train have to be taken through the dark alley.

The Annex Amateur Athletic association asked for the use of city lumber this winter again to box in the open-air skating rink. The school board was reported to be satisfied with the way in which the Annex school building was being used and the request was granted.

Two social events here were well patronized. The Mason's dance at the Odd Fellows hall was a bright and colorful affair. Dancing continued from 10 o'clock to 3 a.m.

The other event was a masquerade dance at the Annex school sponsored by the A.A.A.A. An orchestra set the pace from 9:30 to 2 a.m. The guests unmasked and prizes were awarded at midnight. Awards for the best original costumes went to Miss Kate Rutledge and Billy Cemelli. Miss Annie Peters and Joe Mogielka were adjudged best dressed and Miss Helen Sosnowski and Cyril Young took first place for comic costumes.

The wedding took place at the bride's home. Rev. Andrew Walker of Creston officiated. Mrs. H. Singsby, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and K. Wittman was best man.

TEACHERS HAVE FORCED HOLIDAY

Teachers, at least some of them, are having another forced holiday with the second ban on schools. Most of them, however, are preparing for extra work entailed when the schools open again and classes will have to make up for lost time. Over the week-end several teachers who reside in the district left for their homes to stay until the ban is lifted.

SATURDAY NIGHT QUIET AT NELSON

Saturday night was a quiet one for Nelson after stores closed. People thronged the streets until 10 o'clock and then, with no place to go, deserted the business sections for their homes. A focal point for entertainment, C.P.R. employees and ranchers from as far west as Midway and from points along the Arm and south to the border, usually spend the week-end in the city.

Guardians of British Columbia's Waterways

(From Pacific Motor Boat)

Up in British Columbia there is body of men governed by strong dition, and charged with the intenance of law and order up d down 5000 miles of coast line, rites C. Clark, in a recent article the Pacific Motor Boat, Seattle, titled "Guardians of British Colmbia's Waterways."

What's that?

Yes, it's about a thousand miles a straight line and five times at amount when you include sses and inlets, the 40-mile fiords, d the innumerable bays and ints between San Juan and the Amican border.

Occasionally cruising yachtsmen ve come in contact with B.C.'s inest," but to those who haven't en introduced this article is dirted. Their name? The British Colmbia Provincial Police, but generally they are referred to as the C. Police. Law-breakers have yled them by less complimentary rms.

YEARS OLD

You can't mistake these lads in eir distinctive khaki uniform much like that of an Army officer), ith green trim, swagger Sam rown belt, topped off jauntily with Stetson. The force, of course, is t confined to the water; it numrs around 255 men and functions uch along the lines of a State poce force. Outside of a few organed cities, it maintains law and orr in all territory west of the ocky mountains and lying between e State of Washington and the ukon. And it has been doing this b for 75 years. As a matter of fact, e B.C. force pre-dates the famous oyal "Mounted" by 15 years, and us has the distinction of being the dest organization of its type in e Dominion.

The history of the force is brimul of adventure by water, and in e early '60's, when Indian clashes ere frequent on the coast, the poce were often called upon to lead xpeditions againstthemorewar-like xpeditions against the more war-ke savages. Sometimes it was nessary for the police to summon to eir aid British naval vessels lyg at Esquimalt. These expeditions ually had one result—the Indians ere taught that the white man's w must be respected. On more an one occasion defiant red men ere chastened by a few salvoes om muzzle-loaders run out from e chequered gun ports of bluff d men-of-war. When, on these xpeditions Indian murderers were ptured, trial was usually conducti on the quarter deck of the naval ssel. If the accused was found ilty, sentence was carried out at e yard arm with little delay.

EVOLUTION OF FLEET

As time went on the police came own a fleet of fast little sloops, d some remarkable work was ne with them, usually in conction with whiskey peddlers and nugglers. Then the internal comstion engine took to the water, d one of the first gasoline unches in B.C. waters was used round Victoria about 1890 or 1891 d little is known of it today, exept that it was painted green, used aptha for fuel, and cost about its rchase price annually for rehirs.

Today they have a fleet of seven ne patrol boats, and these "big litle" ships—mostly 40 and 50-footers are continually on the prowl. They ve a habit of bobbing up in the ost unexpected places — where w-breakers are concerned.

The coast detachments of the rce are fairly numerous but patrol oats are only stationed at the folwing points: P. M. L. 4, Pender arbor, Const. N. S. Winegarden; .M.L. 6, Salt Spring Island, Const. O. Tweedhope; P. M. L. 7, Alberi, Corpl. A. Dunbar; P.M.L. 8, rince Rupert, Const. H. Raybone; .M.L. 9, Ocean Falls, Const. F. Putnd; P.M.L. 10, Quatsino, Const. Bestwick; P.M.L. 11, Arrow akes, Const. R. C. Gilker.

It is interesting to note the types engines used in these boats. Three them, P.M.L. 4, P.M.L. 9, and .M.L 10, are powered with heavy uty 4-cycle gas engines, made in ancouver. Two, P.M.L. 6 and P.M. 3, have 100-h.p. gas engines, and wo are 75-h.p. oil engines, P.M.L. and P.M.L. 7.

RIVER CRAFT

Apart from these, there are a umber of river boats operated by he Police in patrolling northern vers. These are all handled by en who know their "white water," nd to see a constable navigate one these 30-foot flat-bottomed craft rough the swift maelstrom of a ring freshet is to witness one of he most exciting exhibitions on ecord. Sliding and dipping, sometmes out of sight in the curling reakers, then careening wildly wards fang-like rocks—truly a ght to stir the blood of the most ase onlooker. Where rivers broadn and the pace becomes more lanuid, then a kicker is hitched on to he stern and the journey continues ntil the river narrows again.

However, it is of the salt water coppers" that we mainly wish to peak.

SALT WATER BEATS

The craft on the coast follow andardized lines, mostly conforming to the packer type, with the interior arrangement to permit better sleeping accommodation. They are staunch and seaworthy, for they must contend with every type of weather and sea conditions and through tide-river channels where currents are swift and treacherous. All vessels are named P.L.M. (police motor launch) and are numbered. Patrol areas are usually suited to the type of vessel, and the two largest craft (P.L.M. 7 and P.L.M. 8) have the largest territory. P.L.M. 7 has for its beat the unenviable "Graveyard of the Pacific," the west coast of Vancouver Island, and No. 8 covers the coast between Prince Rupert and the southern border of Alaska.

A chartered vessel (K.A.M.S.) is used by the Police at Campbell River, and here Const. Stewart Dawson keeps an eye on things in and out of Seymour Narrows, the Euclataws, the Hole-in-the-Wall, and vicinity.

They are a reticent bunch, these Provincial Policemen, and not much given to talking about their exploits, and the official reports they submit to headquarters in Victoria are usually clipped and brief, setting out just the terse elements of every case they handle. And the hardships of travel are seldom mentioned. Only now and again does one get a glimpse of the hazards when an inspector recommends a boat's crew for special mention in monthy general orders. Whether it be the rescue of some fisherman near to death and destruction in the teeth of a December gale, or some hapless pleasure seeker towed in with a dead engine in the heat of a calm July day, the service is rendered quickly and cheerfully—and there is no question of outside reward, for regulations expressly forbid the acceptance of any gratuity from outside sources.

SHEATHED WITH ICE

Last winter, as residents of the Northwest may remember, a series of unusual gales swept the North Pacific coast, and not a single Police vessel hugged port. During one week two of the vessels were nearly wrecked when the wharves they were tied to were swept away by the force of the storm! Blinding snow storms were encountered, and P.M.L. 8 was badly "iced down" on a mercy trip to Wales island where 35 people were storm-bound for three weeks. So many were the expressions of praise received from outside sources during this period that all boats' crews were covered by a general commendation in orders.

Whether sliding and swerving in the swirling eddies of Seymour Narrows, or hastening at top speed through some treacherous kelp-strewn pass, one is impressed by the innate confidence of the officers. Every man "knows his stuff," and again and again they demonstrate their uncanny knowledge of the patrol areas. Places which to the yachtsman would be taboo, are an open book to the patrolmen, and they appear to be equally familiar with the names, habits, and antecedents of every inhabitant of their area. It is common for them to foretell the stranger at night by the throb or rhythm of his engine.

CLOSE-UP OF CRUISER

Recently I had the opportunity of getting a close-up of one of these police cruisers. It was the P.M.L. 7, tied up at the moment at Alberni, at the head of Barclay Sound. In the bright sunlight of an early spring day the vessel made an imposing picture, with her shapely lines, glittering brasswork, and general business-like air. The No. 7 is 52 feet over all, with a beam of 12 feet 2, and a draft of 5½ feet. Due to the general sparkle and shine, my first impression was of a trim little naval vessel. Availing myself of an invitation to come aboard, extended by the corporal in charge, I entered the pilot house and introduced myself to Corporal Alec Dunbar. He is in charge of the craft and most willingly showed me around. But first I had to meet the other two members of the crew, Constable T. B. Gurney, the engineer, and Constable A. L. Frost, the wireless operator. Although they have specific duties to perform, they are all clothed with the authority of police officers. But more of that later.

Here in the pilot house were the usual navigating instruments, a man-sized wheel, and the corporal's bunk running athwartships. Below the bunk were chart lockers, a pull-out chart table, and the usual lockers and drawers for clothing and personal effects. Down the forward companion-way we descended to inspect the foc'sle. On the starboard side of the companion-way I noticed, draped on hardwood pegs, endless lengths of heavy new manila rope. I inquired why all the rope was carried and discovered it was for emergency towing. "Mostly fishboats," the corporal remaked. To the port side was the wireless operator's cabin, including bunk, lockers, and in one corner a business-like little short wave transmitter which has a daylight range of over a thousand miles. All the police vessels, I was told, are equipped with this modern means of communication and are enabled to keep in touch with any division of the force, other patrol boats, and the headquarters at Victoria. The transmitter measures about 12 by 14 inches, and has an output of 15 watts. All equipment is built by members of the force having special technical skill. Some of the detachments, I was told, have also portable transmitters weighing 10 or 15 pounds, by which it is possible for officers patrolling back in the bush to keep in contact with the ship. Continuing our inspection, we viewed the "jail" in the vessel's peak, which is commodious enough to house two or three prisoners, and has lavatory and washroom facilities.

POWERFUL CRAFT

Returning aft through the pilot house, we descended to the engine-room. The power plant in this vessel is a 75 h.p. engine, which, turning over at 325 r.p.m. and swinging on a 40 by 36 inch wheel, gives her an average speed of nine knots. Air compressor is operated from the main engine, and a 32-volt 1500-ampere hour lighting system is maintained by a 24 h.p. 4-cylinder engine. This motor also serves as an auxiliary compressor for port and starboard air bottles. Four hundred and sixty gallons of oil fuel are carried in three tanks, 175 in each of the port and starboard tanks, and 110 gallons in a third tank located under the floor of the forward cabin and moulded to the frames. Still another smaller tank carries 50 gallons of lubricating oil. Seventy gallons of fresh water through small radiators is carried to every partof the hull, and a small motor generator running off the 12-volt system delivers 350 volts for the wireless transmitter.

Below decks the same rigid standard of cleanliness is visible, and everything here in the engine-room gives mute evidence of constant polishing and cleaning. The business-like work bench on the port side reveals orderly rows of tools. Even the hack-saw blades seem to be polished like silver, and the spare cylinder-head gaskets give forth golden gleam. Truly a revelation as to how an engine-room can be kept!

Aft of the engine-room on the port side is the galley, which includes a sizable gas stove, hot water boiler, and the usual drainboard, sink, cupboards, and lockers. On the port side facing the galley is a miniature office with a typwriter, writing desk, racks for forms and stationary, files, etc. Slung up level with our eyes is a wicked looking Thompson sub-machine-gun, and beside it, on hooks, several pairs of glinting handcuffs and leg-irons. You immediately feel that you are in the presence of officialdom and not on a private yacht.

FLOATING COURTS

Then we come to the saloon or messroom; with its cushioned lockers and drop-leaf tables. These cushioned seats can be transformed into bunks by the usual drop-chain arrangement and provide sleeping accommodation for four. There is good head room for even the tallest individual, and this messroom occasionally functions as a court room in out of the way points. To summarily deal with an offender, a magistrate may be called from shore and in this way cases of a minor nature are tried right on the spot. This saves the accused an expensive trip to a nearby town with the possible loss of time from employment. Aft of the saloon (on the starboard side) are lockers for paint, cordage, signal flags, and flares. In fact nearly every sort of marine emergency seems to be provided for. Included in the stores is a large sized medical kit. On the port side is another lavatory and washroom.

Looking up the after companionway we get a glimpse of a stanch looking towing bit, and our mind runs back to the coils of new manila rope in the foc'sle.

CREW OF THREE

All this time we have been overlooking the crew, so let's bring them into the picture. Corporal Dunbar ("Alec" up and down the coast) is typical of the men who go to make up the service. He stands well over six feet and has the weight to go with it. You have a feeling that he can sum you up at a glance and, despite the quiet west-of-Scotland inflection in his voice, you sense determination. Tacked to his left breast are overseas medal ribbons, for Alex served with the Canadians during the late unpleasantness. Known and liked up and down the coast, he seems to be the right man in the right job.

Constable "Tom" Gurney, the engineer, is another quiet product of the B.C. Coast, and he has the capable look of the man who follows the sea. I expressed my admiration of the way in which the engine-room was kept, and "Tom" looked embarrassed. But you could tell he was pleased nevertheless. What engineer wouldn't be? Gurney has only been with the force a few years, but he could write a book of his experiences so far. Slow spoken, he knows engines, and particularly oil engines.

And now here's the third member of the crew, Constable "Bud" Frost, the radio man. Bud was born and brought up on the west coast of Vancouver Island, and he knows every inch of it. Like most Provincial policemen, Bud is a man of versatility, for not only can he function as a wireless operator, but can also lay a course, do his trick of navigating, run the engine in an emergency, and be "johnny on the spot" in a mixup. In the latter I should imagine he would give a good account of himself.

ALL EMERGENCY MEN

As Dunbar explained to me, there is more to it than being "just an engineer" or "just a radio operator" on a police boat. These specialists have to be policemen as well, and many times their more technical qualifications have to be submerged in the general work. There are instances where injured trappers or prospectors have to be packed out of the hills, entailing hours and possibly days of back-breaking toil. Solitary dwellers along the lonely coast sometimes lose their reason and have to be escorted out, sometimes not without a lively few minutes for the "copper" before the unfortunate is restrained. Now and again dead men are discovered up little known creeks, miles back from tidewater; the remains have to be rudely boxed and, if there is any suspicion of foul play, brought in for the coroner's inquiry. So you see these men have to display more than mere technical ability—they also have to know the bush and be prepared for any emergency.

Corporal Dunbar explained that during winter patrols in the upper reaches of some of the northern inlets, thin ice is often encountered. And it is for this reason that the hulls of all patrol boats are sheathed with iron bark 14 inches either side of the water line for the full length of the hull.

TRAINING OF RECRUITS

A number of other things he told me during our conversation and also much more about the force and its make-up. How the recruits go through a stiff course of training in the police school at headquarters, a course which includes everything from fingerprint work to jiu-jitsu, including a physical training course guaranteed to bring out any inherent weakness in the newcomer. After three months in the school, the "rookies" go out to district offices where they get more practical knowledge under experienced N.C.O's. The men on the boats are picked from recruits who have had lengthy experience on the B.C. coast, preferably in small craft. A recent exception to this rule was a recruit who had sailed a 50-footer across the Atlantic from England to New York.

There are 14 men distributed on the seven patrol boats, each boat coming under the supervision of a district sergeant. The greater part of the time, however, the men in charge of the boats carry on without a great deal of personal supervision, because distances are great and personal initiative is demanded.

MULTIFARIOUS DUTIES

The duties of the police are fairly numerous, and from what Dunbar told me, each member of the force has apparently the powers of about half a dozen officials. Each constable is also a sanitary inspector, responsible for the inspection of logging camps and canneries under the Health act, and they have mandatory powers in the way of compelling proper sewage disposal. They are also weed inspectors, game wardens, deputy fire marshals and have a host of other duties to perform in connection with various acts and regulations. In some areas the constables register mining claims, births and marriages, administer estates of those committed to the asylum—which sometimes include renting houses and farms, chartering fishing vessels—the proceeds all to be scrupulously accounted for to the proper official at Victoria.

These officers also have to know their law, as in most instances they prepare their own legal documents in connection with the filing of charges against wrongdoers, and prosecute the case in court on behalf of the crown. If the accused is convicted then they must escort him to the jail or penitentiary, As proof of the fact that they never prosecute without ample cause, they told me that convictions are registered in over 85 per cent of the cases instituted by the force as a whole.

"NOTHING MUCH HAPPENS"

I was curious to know something of the criminal work these men came in contact with, and in answer to my inquiry Dunbar remarked: "Well, not very much happens around these parts—an occasional drunken Indian to be picked up, or sometimes a stabbing case resulting from too much home brew. Generally speaking the fishermen and loggers are a pretty decent bunch, and if you give them a square deal they'll reciprocate."

As I was thanking the corporal for showing me around. "Bud" Frost came up the steps to the pilot house with a radiogram form in his hand and handed it to Dunbar.

He smiled at me and remarked: "It never fails—just when you think you're going to stretch your legs—something happens."

"Anything serious?" I asked.

"No—headquarters says a stolen boat is heading this way, so I guess we'll go and get 'em."

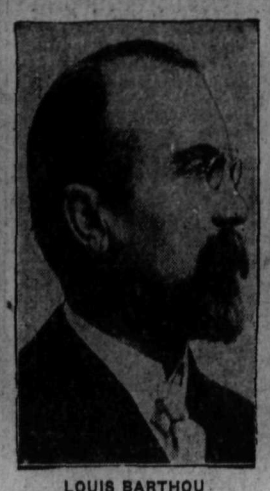
Quickly the lines were cast off, and from the wharf I viewed the gray cruiser slip out into the stream, the steady throb of the big engine increasing in temp.

A wave from the pilot house window, and Corporal Dunbar was gone.

If you are ever travelling in B. C. waters this summer look out for "P.L.M.'s" — they're manned by friendly fellows who want to be of help to you.

POLITICAL COMPLICATIONS SEEN AS KING ALEXANDER ASSASSINATED

KING ALEXANDER



LOUIS BARTHOU

QUEEN MARIE

CROWN PRINCE PETAR

Again the sound of an assassin's bullet echoes around the world, bringing back memories of 1914. Just as King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Louis Barthou, foreign minister of France, were reported near an accord which would strengthen relations between the two nations, a fusillade of bullets from an assassin's gun ended their lives along with that of General George, a French officer. King Alexander, the only royal dictator in Europe, was making a journey to France of which much was expected. In view of Mussolini's pronouncement that Yugoslavia was an enemy of Italy, the result of the conference was expected to be significant. When word was first flashed that he had been assassinated, it was feared that an Italian had done the shooting. This was later disproved when it was learned that the murderer was a Croat, one of the numerous nationalities that make up Yugoslavia. Louis Barthou has been much in the news since he became foreign minister under the Doumergue regime. His frequent clashes with Sir John Simon of Britain are well known, and he has been called on many occasions the real ruler of France for the past many months. In rightful succession to King Alexander stands little Crown Prince Petar, eldest son of King Alexander and Queen Marie. He will succeed to the throne. Queen Marie, daughter of Queen Marie of Roumania, was away on a cruise when the tragedy happened. It was at the villa of Prince Paul of Yugoslavia that Prince George of England proposed to Princess Marina of Greece. The assassination is expected to have its political implications since the accord which Yugoslavia was reported near with France may be broken, resulting in Yugoslavia linking up with Germany against Italy.

Unsolved Mysteries in Canada

Eighth—Fate of Japanese Houseboy

By EVERETT GRAEME
Canadian Press Staff Writer
(Copyright, 1934, by The Canadian Press)

VICTORIA, Oct. 21 (CP)—A body found in the blood-spattered basement of a palatial Victoria home on a May morning in 1933, was the first intimation of one of Vancouver Island's most mystifying and still unsolved murders. After weeks of tireless investigation police shook their heads—the fate that Sue Min Jim had feared for years had apparently caught up with him at last.

Despite a reward offered by Sue's employer, Harold McGivern, and an exhaustive probing of the houseboy's private life, no clue to the slayer has yet been found.

Robbery, jealousy of a rival for the love of a pretty Victoria Chinese girl, or retribution through some of the intricacies of Chinese politics, all were examined as possible motives but yielded nothing in tracing the slayer.

Sue was definitely afraid of something; something from which he felt it was useless to flee and which he awaited with the stolidness of his race.

Whatever made Sue tremble every time he answered the doorbell after dark, or caused him one day to throw up his hands and mutter in his singsong pidgin English: "Some day, bing pop, all gone," police have never found out.

Sue was last seen alive the night before his battered body was found. He left the McGivern residence, located in Royal Oak, a Victoria suburb, and went into the city. He returned late that night, alighting from a bus at 11:30 and started to walk the remaining few blocks home.

The next morning Mrs. Alice Watson, the family nursemaid, found the houseboy's body crumpled on the cement floor of the basement, a few feet from the outer door. His head had been battered and slashed so badly that he was hardly recognizable.

A $50 bill Sue was known to have been carrying the previous night was missing but the robbery motive was dismissed when police proved the houseboy had not been killed on the spot where his body was found. Where the actual slaying took place was never established.

Police delved into the houseboy's past on the probability that Sue, perhaps in his native land, had overstepped the bounds of some tong, and fled here to escape the punishment he knew too well would be meted out to him. But again authorities were balked. Stolid Chinese knew nothing about Sue except that he was a countryman.

And today the crime is listed in police annals as one of the strangest authorities have had to deal with.

YUGO MARSHAL IS DISMISSED

Blamed for Lack of Safety Measures in King's Death

BELGRADE, Oct. 21 (CP-Havas)—After conferences that lasted throughout the day, Nikola Uzunovich was busy today forming a new cabinet. Devision to have him organize the new government came almost exactly 24 hours after he and his ministers resigned.

Political observers indicated the new cabinet will probably differ very slightly, if at all, from the one that resigned yesterday to allow the three regents under the chairmanship of Prince Paul to "meet the needs of the hour."

Resignation of the cabinet yesterday was followed by the dismissal of the marshal of the court, General Alexander Dimitrieric, who has not yet received a new appointment. The second in command, Col. Johann Pavlovic, also was dismissed.

Dimitrieric went to Marseille several days before the arrival of Alexander to supervise safety measures, and had been blamed for their breakdown. He returned with the body of the king, but failed to make a public appearance afterward and did not attend the funeral.

His resignation was said to have been demanded by Queen Marie.

PATTULLO TALKS RELIEF ISSUE

No Pact Signed; Province Will Absorb Most of the Reduction

VICTORIA, Oct. 21 (CP)—In a statement relative to municipal protest on the new relief apportionment, Premier T. D. Pattullo has made three points very clear.

First, that the British Columbia government has not signed the relief agreement with Ottawa, but that the grant was set at $150,000 a month arbitrarily.

Second, was that the reduction imposed by this arbitrary figure is being absorbed approximately five-sixth by the province and one-sixth by the municipalities.

It was further explained by the finance department that under the new division, the province and municipalities will split the municipal share of the reduction on a 50-50 basis.

In addition to shouldering its own loss in the unorganized districts the province will take half the municipal loss as well.

DARROW IS STILL ACTIVE LAWYER

CHICAGO, Oct. 21 (AP)—A bond of friendship has stretched across half a century to again draw Clarence Darrow out of retirement as a criminal lawyer.

The veteran barrister tonight confirmed reports he was actively engaged in an effort to secure a parole from Columbus, Ohio, penitentiary for John Haefner, 65, sentenced from Trumbull county in June, 1925, for manslaughter in connection with the death of his wife.

Darrow said he was acquainted with Haefner's father 50 years ago when the latter was a shoemaker in Jinsman, Ohio.

FAULTY BRACING OF JUMBO CRATES CAUSE APPLE LOSS; SERIOUS FINES FOR VIOLATION OF CARTEL QUOTAS

Unlidded Boxes Must Be Marked With Grade of Content

Advice as to shipping regulations and the proper care of packing fruit is given by the British Columbia Tree Fruit board in its last circular. The board points out that a violation of the shipping quotas will bring a heavy penalty and that all unlidded boxes must be marked with the grade of the contents.

The following regulations have been announced by the Tree Fruit board:

Low grade apples: The attention of shippers is drawn to the fact that shipment of apples of grades lower than No. 3 is prohibited under the Fruit and Honey act.

Marketing of "lose" boxes: By regulation under the Fruit and Honey act, it is now permitted to mark "loose" boxes with the grade of the contents. All shippers are now required to mark all unlidded boxes with the grade of the apples contained therein.

Half boxes: Shipments in half boxes of any variety and grade of apples released by the local board is permitted. Such shipments shall be pooled on the basis of two half boxes for one standard box.

Bracing of Jumbo crates: Information has been received by the local board that a considerable amount of damage is in evidence at destination, especially on long hauls, due largely to faulty loading or improper bracing of Jumbo crates. While losses from this cause do not affect the pool, claims resulting therefrom will be a loss of the grower. Therefore the local board is bringing this matter to the attention of all shippers. To carry properly, Jumbo crates should be lathed every tier front and back.

Cartel regulations: Section two of circular No. 84-13, dealing with the percentages of the different varieties released for shipment, is hereby amended to make the percentages released for shipment read as follows: McIntosh, 50 per cent; Jonathan, 25 per cent; Winesap and Newton, 5 per cent; Stayman Winesap, Rome Beauty, Spitzenberg, Delicious, late sundries, 10 per cent; and other varieties, 25 per cent.

Notwithstanding the reference to late sundries above, these must not be marketed until a pool basis has been set by the local board for them.

Section two of circular No. 84-13, is further amended by adding to the last sentence thereof: "But, should a car load amount to more than the percentage released of any product, the shipper marketing such a car load shall not ship any further quantities of such product until all other shippers have marketed percentages equal to those marketed by him."

It must be recognized by each shipper that he is responsible for seeing that he does not exceed the quotas set. The percentages set are to be taken as apply to actual quantities available for shipment and not to estimates. As it is of the utmost importance that the percentages set in each cartel should not be exceeded by any shipper, the local board must look upon shipments of quantities in excess of these percentages as being violations of its regulations which render the shipper liable to serious fines or cancellation of licenses.

IRELAND EVEN WITH ENGLAND

Scotland and Wales in Back Seats as Far as Soccer Concerned

WINDSOR PARK, Belfast, Oct. 21 (CP cable).—Ireland today was on even terms with England in the new international soccer season, each nation having won initial victories—over Scotland and Wales respectively.

The Irish, battling through the second half of Saturday's affray here before a crowd of 35,000, with only 10 men, turned a Scottish lead of 1-0 at half-time into a sensational victory by 2-1, getting the deciding goal bare minutes from the end, after tying the match only 10 minutes from the final whistle.

The teams were on fairly even terms during the first half, both making mistakes and hardly displaying proper international form. Both forward lines missed good chances until Gallacher sent the ball in the nets five minutes before the half, the sphere cannoning off an Irish defender into the Irish nets.

Scott of Belfast Celtic, in the Irish goal, was hurt on the hand in the first half and during the interval the injury was found to be so serious that on the resumption he was taken out, McMillan of Manchester United going into the nets from the halfback line.

With the odds and the score against them the Irish elected to go all out on the attack. McMillan did a heroic job in the nets but the Irish kept most of the play at the Scottish end of the field and they were rewarded when Martin scored from a goal-mouth melee to tie the match up.

The Irish desperately attacked for the short time remaining and finally Gowdy of Linfield gave a great center to Couter, who made no mistakes as he headed the ball in for the deciding goal.

A dispatch to the Manila Bulletin said four persons were killed at Naga, capital of the province of Camarine Sur, where the water at some places was six feet deep.

Information from the stricken area was meagre because communications were crippled. A dispatch from San Pablo said there was one known death at Laguna province, with damage estimated at $250,000.

Tuesday was expected to mark the turn of events when Hitler, taking the oath of fidelity from Mueller, will deliver a highly important address on the fight in the church.

It was reported from various church circles that Hitler will declare the government's stand based on reports submitted to him from government officials.

FORD ORDERS PLANTATION OF TUNG OIL TREE

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 21 (AP)—Henry Ford is the latest entrant in an infant enterprise that may bring the United States southeast millions of dollars annually by breaking China's stranglehold on tung oil production.

On his 80,000-acre plantation at Ways, Ga., near Savannah, the motor manufacturer has ordered planted 200 acres of tung trees. From the trees is taken an oil indispensable in the manufacture of some paints, laquers, varnishes and enamels. The paint industry, it is estimated, spends $100,000,000 a year either for tung oil or less satisfactory substitutes. Ford's industries use much of the oil imported.

LONG FLOATING PANELS RULE THE MODE

By LISBETH

Milady's bound to be a vamp this season in long, slinky, flowing lines that arrest the eye and soothe the esthetic sense.

Of course these floating panels are only for formal wear, excepting—and it's a good sized exception—for the boudoir. Intimate apparel, in the realm of nightgowns and lounging robes, goes very, very flowing and trailing indeed.

Kitty Carlisle, motion picture player, shows the type of thing we mean as she poses at the left of our picture. She is wearing a Hollywood-created frock, designed by Travis Banton. The fabric is mossy crepe in grayish blue, and an interesting feature is the use of circular capes over each shoulder, while long sweeping panels form trains.

The decolletage is extremely low in back, but forms a deep V in front above a high, fitted waistline.

Sophisticated and colorful are the words to describe the gown worn by the exotic Peggy Fears, right. The frock is a Canton crepe in a floral design, the colors embracing coral, emerald, sky blue and white, with sequins accenting the colors. Every flower is worked out in glistening sequins, the flower created in the glistening whimsies in its own color, and in the center of alternating flowers a tear-drop emerald is suspended.

The belt is entirely of sequins, repeating the hues of the gown. With the form-fitting frock Miss Fears wears a waist-length jacket, with scarf and sash closing. It is made of the same fabric as the dress.

The jewels she wears with this gown consist of four bracelets and three clips set with emeralds and diamonds. This costume is part of Miss Fear's own elaborate wardrobe.

Now for the intimate hours there is a suspender-back night slip of lustrous white satin, shown worn by Mona Barrie, center. It is tied in the center of the bodice and covered with a corsage of lingerie roses. The detachable belt fastens with a butterfly clip.

The trailing robe which she wears over the gown is of pale aquamarine chiffon, with voluminous sleeves tied at each wrist, and a circular cut flounce borders the trailing hem.

MATCH CAUSES THREE DEATHS IN WINNIPEG

Tragedy Occurs as Oil Burner Being Put Into a Home

BOY IN FLAMES JUMPS IN RIVER

Interior of House is Wrecked; Lady Is in Hospital

WINNIPEG, Oct. 21 (CP).Lighting of a match tonight was established as the cause of an explosion which late yesterday took three lives. Two others were in hospital, one suffering from serious burns and the other from shock.

The dead:

J. C. Collinson, K.C., 56, legislative counsel for the Manitoba government.

Albert Andrews, 38, employed in installing oil burners in furnaces.

L. A. Brockest, 45, assistant to Mr. Andrews.

In hospital:

Mrs. J. C. Collinson, suffering from shock.

Lorne Brockest, 20, son of L. A. Brockest and assistant to Mr. Andrews, suffering from severe burns from which he may not recover.

The explosition occurred at the suburban Fort Garry home of Mr. Collinson where an oil burner was being installed. Mr. Collinson, Mr. Andrews, Mr. Brockest and his son were trapped in the basement as the explosion occurred and only Lorne Brockest was able to get out. He dashed, a flaming torch, several hundred feet through the yard of the home and jumped into the Red river. He was able to get out of the river again and fell on the bank, where he was found a few minutes later.

Mrs. Collinson and her niece, Miss E. J. Moore, were in an upstair part of the house when the explosion occurred. They ran downstairs and outside, breaking a basement window. They were unaware who were in the basement. Mrs. Collinson was overcome with shock and was removed to hospital.

An investigation into the explosion is being conducted by Edward McGrath, fire commissioner, but full details have not yet been disclosed.

The oil burner was being installed and a measurement of oil in the tank was being taken. Investigators obtained a statement from the youngest Brockest who declared his father had lighted a match, which ignited the fumes from the oil and caused the explosion. The interior of the house was damaged by fire following the explosion, but no estimate of the damage has been made.

Thrums Institute Asks Road Repair

Stretch Beyond Tarry's Described as "Impossible"

THRUMS, B.C., Oct. 21—September Women's institute meeting was held at the home of Mrs. William Pratt.

Mrs. T. Dodds reported that she had knitted five pairs of socks, the institute having purchased the wool. The socks are to be given to the Salvation Army.

A resolution to be sent to Frank Putnam, M.P.P. for this district, was passed. It asked that the stretch of road from beyond Tarrys to the other end of Thrums be raised and ditched, as it is the worst piece of road without exception between Nelson and Trail. It is at times "impossible." Busses, freights and cars often need assistance to get through in the spring. This was moved by Mrs. Dodd, seconded by Mrs. Pratt, and carried unanimously.

Mrs. William Pratt, on behalf of the institute, presented Mrs. Chalmers, president, with a pair of hand embroidered pillow slips. Mrs. Dodd embroidered them and Mrs. G. Watson crocheted the lace for them. Mrs. Chalmers, in returning thanks for the gift, said she valued them for the fine work and for the kindness that prompted the gift.

Mrs. Pratt served tea and a social time was spent.

Joe and Robert Irving were visitors at Tarrys from Trail, guests of their mother.

Members of the Owls club were entertained at Glade by Miss Polly Hrooskin and Miss Winnie Coleman. Many interesting games were played, after which refreshments were served by the hostesses. Miss Hazel Hulls gave a recitation and later all joined in a sing-song.

Those present were Miss Hazel Hulls, Miss Evelyn Coleman, Miss Nora Coleman, Miss G. Millan, Miss O. Rudell, Miss Polly Hrooskin, Miss Winnie Coleman, Miss Peggy Barclay, Miss Cathie Barclay, Joe and Bob Irving, Ralph Chalmers, Norman Johnson, Bert O'Neil and Dae MacLeod.

Mrs. Nancy Mary Ann Trammell West claims she never kissed her husband during nearly 60 years of married life in the mountains of North Carolina. She is the mother of 14 children.

Churches Remain Closed at Nelson

Ban on public meetings kept Nelson church doors closed Sunday but radios brought the strains of sacred music and sermons of ministers and priests to many from churches, cathedrals and tabernacles in eastern Canada and the United States. To those who do not own radios, the worship took other forms.

Sunday was the second time in a number of years that church services were not observed in Nelson. On October 7 churches also remained closed.

Shatterproof glass for spectacles is reported from England.

Menus, Recipes and Hints

Dredge meat and fish in flour before rolling in egg and crumbs for frying. A much better crust will result.

MENU HINT

Roast Beef
Browned Sweet Potatoes
Creamed Turnips
Cheese Stuffed Salad
Rolls Jam
Apple Pie Coffee

This is a typical Sunday dinner menu. And does it taste good on a cool day! Put the roast in a hot oven, say 475 degrees. Leave it uncovered for the first half hour or so. Put a small onion in each end of the roaster. Add a seasoning of pepper and salt and a couple of bay leaves, with a little water, when the cover is put on. Lower the heat to about 350 and let roast, allowing about twenty minutes for each pound of beef.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Cheese Stuffed Salad—Four firm tomatoes, one-half cup cottage cheese, one-third cup diced celery, one-fourth cup diced cucumbers, one tablespoon chopped onion, one tablespoon chopped green pepper, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, one-half cup mayonaise. Wash and peel tomatoes. Remove centers. Mix two tablespoons mayonnaise with rest of ingredients. Stuff tomatoes. Chill. Serve on lettuce and surround with remaining mayonnaise.

FACTS AND FANCIES

It Helps

During the winter months when the windshield wiper refuses to work, rub the outside of the glass with half a raw potato. The juice will prevent the raindrops from clinging to the glass, yet the glass will not be clouded in the slightest.

Deep-Fat Fried Yellow Perch

Dry fish thoroughly after cleaning. Then dip in well-beaten egg and roll in dry bread crumbs to which seasonings, salt and pepper, have been added. Have the deep fat heated to a temperature of 350 degrees-370 degeres F., using a saucepan large enough to hold the fish and frying oil, but still be only half filled. This avoids any danger of the oil catching fire. Drop prepared fish into the deep fat and cook until the fish becomes a golden brown on all sides—three to six minutes. (Keep turning fish with a fork while it is in the fat. This assures an even browning). Remove from fat and place on an absorbent paper to drain. Serve at once.

EDWARDSBURG CROWN BRAND CORN SYRUP

The famous energy-producing sweet—an easily digested food invaluable for infants, growing children, and enjoyed by the whole family.

POINCARE'S STRONG CHARACTER PROVED A BULWARK TO FRANCE

France suffers much by the loss of the machine-like intellect and rugged character that carried Raymond Poincare to greatness in her muster of wartime statesmen.

It was said of the former President Poincare that he had no sense of humor. He was fated to live in times when there was little for Frenchmen to laugh over, at home or abroad. He stood forward as a serious builder at a time when serious building was to be done.

Poincare moved through a tremendous phase of history with sure and steady step. He lacked the brilliant of Viviani or the spectacular appeal of Clemenceau, but he had more enduring qualities, fit to carry him and to safeguard his country in days of desperate stress. His rock-like personality was an essential part of the bulwark of France, and of such stuff is made popular leaders whose fame is liable to endure.

SECRECY AND ANONYMITY ENDANGER JUSTICE AND FAIR PLAY

Administration of justice as practised in the United States continues to be a subject of criticism at home and amazement abroad.

The latest instance to attract widespread attention is that of a wealthy young mother seeking possession of her child by way of a court order. Shocking charges were made against her by witnesses for the custodians. The hearing was open and the charges found space in the newspapers of many countries.

Then, before the sensational allegations were answered, the presiding judge ordered that the remaining testimony be given behind tightly closed doors. The unfortunate mother was thus denied the same publicity for her refutation as was given to the statements reflecting upon her.

No doubt the judge hearing the case acted from the best motives in imposing his secret hearing ruling. But the net effect has been to deprive a litigant of the fair treatment which every citizen should receive. Either the court hearing should have been open from beginning to end or held in camera from beginning to end.

Any departure from full publicity in court cases is dangerous. Canada is not above criticism in this respect. In recent years there have been a number of instances where the plaintiffs, defendants or chief witnesses have been granted anonymity by the judge or magistrate. This has usually been in connection wth unsavory evidence. It is, nevertheless, discrimination, to extend the privilege in some cases and not in others. If the concession of "Mr. X" anonymity is given to one or more witnesses the same consideration cannot fairly be withheld from any and all who request it.

DENTISTRY AND BARTER

Winnipeg dentists claim conditions in their profession are improving. At least some of them say that whereas in the last four years many clients have visited them only when extractions were necessary, they are now doing considerably more repair work and bill collections are better.

As an indication of improving times, it is to be hoped this desirable trend will continue. The dental profession, for the most part, has certainly known the true meaning of hard times. Most city dentists would probably be glad to exchange places with Dr. Silvester Moyer, of Rockglen, Sask., who operates a farm as well as a dentist's chair, and does much of his work on a barter basis.

The credit side of Dr. Moyer's ledger shows that among other things he received in payment for professional services last year: 40 turkeys, a bushel of sauerkraut, one cook stove, five live pigs, a sport model coupe, complete with rumble seat, 250 fence posts, one bedquilt, 75 dozen eggs, and 100 pounds of butter. In addition, he was supplied with a cellar full of potatoes, all the meat he could eat or sell, and 14 horses. About the only trade he lost out on was a setting of 16 eggs that failed to hatch.

Dr. Moyer practised formerly in Galt and has been president of the Ontario Dental association. For the old maxim of "a tooth for a tooth," he has substituted a less vindictive and more practical one, "a tooth for a bag of potatoes, or what have you"?

A CUT RATE

A report from Toronto is that because of criticism of his use of a private car for his Northern Ontario trip. Hon. Peter Heenan paid $104 out of his own pocket for the trip. That beats the cent a mile. If the railways have lots of private cars they should advertise it.—The Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

TRY IT

London has banned the use of motor horns after midnight. Now it plans to ban them during the whole 24 hours. If you don't think it would work, just keep track tomorrow of the number of times you use your horn when you really should be using your brakes.—Vancouver Sun.

Between You and Me

By J. B. C.

NELSON SET TO MUSIC

Another week-end over and Nelson was again on the "banned" wagon. Saturday evening was enlightened by "slow music". Most of the people turned out to be card 'sharps' while others reported a rather "flat" Saturday evening. Others took the situation in a "natural" manner and saved a lot of "do, re, me, fa". Some adults objected to being ordered about like a bunch of "minors" and others protested on a "major scale".

People arriving in Nelson Saturday night on the train who were not acquainted with the ban were naturally disappointed. Many declared they could have enjoyed the ban in a better manner in their wayside cabins in the wilds. One chap going through to Calgary missed his picture show a great deal. Others went thirsty after arriving. However, though mildly kicking, the seriousness of the situation was admitted.

GREENWOOD BUSY

Greenwood is a thriving little community just now but the general opinion there is that the mining fiury is over for this year. There are lots of men working in the camps and the Providence mill will be moving shortly. Romie Kingsley is walking with a slight limp, someone having tripped him up in the course of his duties. Eric Hutchinson, who was at South Slocan with Romie is with him in Greenwood and will be in to visit Nelson soon, says he has a sister here. Noticed S. S. Fowler of Riondel in the camp with other mining men.

OLD TIME STUFF

W. C. Wilson was dishing out gasoline and talking over old times about when he operated a Morse wire. He used to copy dispatches for The Nelson Daily News when it first started as a daily paper. That was away back when—well, I'll have to look it up—R. L. Skillicorn has graduated from the garage business into the drug store business and has a neat establishment. The Percivals are comfortably situated in the C.P. station— They were former Rosebery residents and are keen radio fans—If I judge right—Albert Dodds was down from the Dentionia with Lawrence McParlon—But I missed Charlie Hanna—who was indisposed— Bill Tutt of Grand Forks and Johnny MacKay, who was relieving Joe Willis at Grand Forks, paid the camp a visit and helped enliven the time—Met Leo Mills and "Shorty" Bailey who were doing some trucking—The Christensen family were celebrating a golden wedding—Game Warden Stewart, formerly of Creston, told me the boys were getting the pheasants but that deer were not plentiful yet—Mr. Larsen, hotel keeper, was in his usual genial mood—Didn't get up to the mines—But can say that the Boundary motor roads are in much better shape than those in West Kootenay.

A FALL DINNER

And I'll bet Verne Vance and family enjoyed their Sunday dinner for Verne brought home from the Boundary a nice cock pheasant and a fine duck. Frank Hartinger got the other duck that Verne lost when his train hove into sight.

SOUNDS LIKE PAUL BUNYAN

Curious weather is reported from Ohio where, it is said, late summer heat frequently pops the corn in the fields. This condition of things must be rather embarrassing. It's all very well to be able to walk out and pick up a few baked potatoes for dinner. It's a great advantage, no doubt, to pump up a pail of hot water to make the tea. But there can be little fun in walking through a field of tomatoes and suddenly getting a squirt of warm catsup in the eye.

NOT SO BAD

Even very bad men are not all bad. Burglars who broke into the town jail at Hooversville, Pa., and robbed a prisoner of $14.75—all he had—were considerate enough to turn him loose. That was the only decent thing to do after purloining the money he had saved to pay his fine. So the incident is closed, unless the robbery victim should decide to look up the police and lay a complaint.

KING-QUEEN VISIT IMPROMPTU

"May the Queen come in?" Those entirely unexpected words were addressed by Councillor Mrs. Morison Millar to Mrs. Robert Sclater, the wife of a coal salesman, who lives at 7 Clearburn Crescent, opposite the Princess Elizabeth Child Garden, Edinburgh. The King and Queen, who were being shown about, had walked across the roadway, and when Mrs. Millar knocked at the door it was opened by Mrs. Sclater, with duster in hand and wearing a brightly colored apron. The visit was entirely unexpected, and no special preparations had been made in the house. Despite her surprise, Mrs. Sclater did not hesitate in inviting her Royal visitors to come in.

The next call was on Mrs. Nichol, 3 Prestonfield Crescent, who had moved into her house only a fortnight ago, but everything was in apple-pie order. Their majesties wanted to see every room and took the greatest interest in seeing just what accommodation the family had. The King was much interested in the bathroom, where the washhand basin is fitted over the bath itself to save space.

Mrs. Nichol was asked why she she had two beds in one room, and when she explained that she had a sister and her daughter staying with her from Dublin, the King asked, "You are not Irish, are you?" The Queen, however, had caught the Irish accent. "Then why did you come over here?" was the King's next question, to which Mrs. Nichol had a sufficient answer—"I came over to marry a Scotsman!"

LILLE, FRANCE

By Central Press Canadian

DESCRIPTIVE—Lille, sixth city in France in population, is capital of the department of Nord. It is in a level district on the navigable Deule river, seven miles from the Belgian frontier and 154 miles by rail northeast of Paris. The population is 201,568.

HISTORICAL— Lille developed around the castle of Buc in the eleventh century. Count Baldwin IV. of Flanders fortified the town in 1030, and Lille soon after became one of the commercial centers of Flanders. The city suffered during the struggles between the kings of France and the counts of Flanders. Passing to the dukes of Burgundy in 1369, Lille regained prosperity. In Austria, Spain and France. During the World War, Lille for months turn the city was in possession of was the scene of battles between Germans and the allied armies, being occupied first by one, then the other. Heavy artillery fire destroyed many buildings. While in German hands Lille was forced to pay a huge war tribute.

COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY—The life of Lille is its textile industry, especially linens, which suffered, too, greatly during the World War to come back quickly. Linen, velvet, ribbons and knit goods are its chief products. Other manufactured articles are machinery, instruments, chemicals, soap, sugar, tobacco, oil and trimmed lumber.

POINTS OF INTEREST — The Palais des Beaux Arts in Lille has one of the largest collections of paintings to be found in a provincial town in France. There also are the famous thenological collection of Moillet and many antiquities, sculptures, medals and coins. In the Church of St. Catherine, begun in the fifteenth century, is a fine Rubens painting, the Martyrdom of St. Catherine. Notable among secular edifices is the Bourse, with a bronze statue of Napoleon I by Lemaire. The fortifications of Lille are interesting, both from historic and architectural standpoints.

BERRIED SHRUBS

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Central Press Garden Expert

Garden enthusiasts and lovers of landscaping are rapidly realizing the value and beauty of berried shrubs. At the turn of the year, when there are no flowers, you can have color in the garden by planting different ornamental shrubs.

White, lavender, black, blue, orange, red and yellow can enter into your shrub planting plans for the winter, just as you plan color with the spring flowering shrubs. These berried shrubs will flower in their season, so that through their use you will have shrubs that enhance the beauty of the landscape both in summer and in winter.

Berried shrubs can be grown on widely different soils. In sandy soils, and in exposed situations on the lake, Japanese barberry, privet, rosa rugosa, coral berry and sumac thrive. Ilex verticillata grows well in wet places. In heavily shaded places plant all varieties viburnum, snow and coral berries, white kerria, cornus and privet.

The choice of berried shrubs can be worked out thoroughly in regard to texture and appearance with age, as well as in regard to color. For instance, the berries of viburnum opulus lose their lustre and wither with the first hard frost, while many shrubs hold their berries until early spring, as Regel's privet, the aronias and Japanese barberry.

ELECTRIC TOUCH TELLS TRUTH

When police give a criminal the third degree, his replies may not betray him, but his involuntary muscle movements may. A psychological method of trapping suspects which was developed in Russia to take advantage of this fact was urged for trial in America by Dr. Harold E. Burtt, of Ohio State University, speaking to the American Psychological association.

When the suspect is questioned, he is also asked to press an electric key at the same time that he gives his answer. If the qu stion relates to his guilt, that fact is often revealed in the record of his muscular reactions as he presses the key, or, in his preoccupation, he may forget to press it at all. The tale of his guilt is thus revealed in the tell-tale marks on the psychologist's photographic record.

Also, a new clue to the brain conditions behind mental deficiency is to be found in the way in which the muscles of the mentally subnormal respond to electric currents, Dr. George Kreezer, of Vineland Training School, Vineland, N. J., told the association. Muscles of idiots having a mental age of only three years respond differently to very mild electric currents than do normal persons. Their reaction resembles somewhat that of an animal who has had an injury to the higher centres of its brain or that of an undeveloped infant.

Inspired by "Morro Castle" Disaster

On a model of the "George Washington," three iron fingers are reached up to clutch a lifeboat and set it gently upon the water.

The inventor, F. Forrest Pease of the Massuchusetts Institute of Technology, believes that the device will do much to prevent a recurrence of the Morro Castle horror in which only eight of the 12 lifeboats were able to get away.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. SHEPARD
"Teacher of Teachers"

WELL-PLANNED PLAY

Some time ago I had the pleasure of seeing my partner, Frank A. Cox, of Worcester, Mass., play the following well-planned hand. Of course we could not bid what my partner made, as an opening lead of diamonds would have ruined a higher contract. Neither side was vulnerable.

	♠K Q 8 7 5 8 ♥K J 4 ♦Q 8 5 ♣3
♠6 2 ♥Q 10 6 5 ♦2 ♣A K J 9	W. E. N. S.	♠10 4 ♥9 8 ♦10 7 4 3 ♣10 9 7 5
	♠2 ♠Q
	♠A J 9 ♥A 7 3 ♦6 ♣A K J 8 6 4

Bidding went: South, 1-club; West, 1-heart, to show the higher ranking suit first; North, 2-spades, showing game probabilities and a possible slam in case our hands fitted; South, 3-spades, to afford my partner an opportunity to show a second biddable suit in case he held one; West, 4-diamonds; North, 4-spades; South 5-spades, as I knew Frank would prefer to go down a trick to losing a possible small slam; North, 6-spades, ending bidding with a double by West.

The opening lead was the 9 of hearts, fortunately for us. Dummy's ace won. West played the 2, to request partner to shift to diamonds, in case East ever was lucky enough to gain entry.

North saw a possible chance of discarding a diamond upon dummy's clubs, in case West held at least 2 clubs. Dummy's ace of clubs dropped West's lone Q. This showed rather plainly that West held either 6 hearts and 5 diamonds, or 5 cards of each plus 2 trumps. Only a later test could show which West held.

The declarer led dummy's lowest club and ruffed. West discarded his 9 of diamonds. North led the 5 of spades. Dummy's J won the trick. The 2 falling gave no information worth while. North ruffed dummy's 8 of clubs, thus establishing that suit. He led his Q of spades, not intending to overtake with dummy's ace unless the 10 fell second hand. won the trick, as the declarer knew When that happened dummy's ace that West also must play a trump, clearing the spade suit.

Upon dummy's K-J-8 of clubs North discarded his 3 diamonds. West let go everything except his Q-10 of hearts and his A-K of diamonds. East played his 2 losing clubs, then let go his last remaining heart.

A heart was led. West played his 10. Declarer's J won the trick. The hand was spread, as the K of hearts and the 2 good spades gave the declarer a grand slam, or one trick above his small slam contract.

An opening lead either of trumps or clubs would have made things easier for the declarer. Only an opening lead of diamonds would have prevented the single overtrick.

SCARING HALF THE POPULATION TO SICKNESS?

To the Editor:

Sir—Last June I sent a letter, which you were kind enough to print, addressed to our health officer.

I referred to one of Nelson's danger spots, namely that horrible open city sewer drain beside the court house opposite the city band stand, vomiting up a disgusting stench day and night.

The court house has lots of young men and women working there inhaling these germs.

Last summer dozens of poor men waiting for a job to buy a little grub with, by fighting fire were camped around this spot, sleeping on the ground at night beside it.

Music lovers clustered around there on hot summer nights to listen to the city band, inhaling millions of filthy germs.

Has our health officer done anything?

I think not as at the present moment it is still working wonderfully, or horribly!

If our health officer were to sit beside that open sewer drain (as the public does) for five minutes, he would probably rush himself up to his pathological laboratory, and try to analyze some of the millions of germs he would be packing around, and would then put himself into quarantine and give the Nelson business men a chance to get back to business, and stop scaring half the population of Nelson into possible sickness.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this space. D. A. ACTON

LIB CONVENTION CHAIRMAN CAUSE OF CRITICISM

To the Editor:

Sir—Re. Liberal convention, Nelson.

Being a life-long Liberal and having attended a good many conventions I must admit that I have never had the displeasure of attending one so atrociously mishandled by a chairman.

His most insulting and abusive manner to various ones present—and to some who can claim adherance to a more intelligent type of Liberalism than he evidently possesses—ill befits the tolerance and support of the newly appointed candidate.

Such statements, made by the chairman, as "shut up," "sit down, I have the floor," "get out of this room" during the session, to delegates and other supporters present is characteristic of the meeting as a whole and will be the means of losing Mr. McLean many, many votes and tend only to make more friction than already exists, not only in Nelson where a certain minority "clique" has a tendency to break the association into particles, but in many other parts of the riding.

The chairman in question, in my opinion, has not the remotest understanding of the word Liberalism In his zest to boost and make (or attempt to, I should say) delegates "McLean conscious" he used most rude and intimidating tactics to say the least and I am firmly convinced that both he and Mr. McLean will be justly rewarded on election day for their pains.

Mr. McLean, I think, is favorably known in a good many parts of the riding but if he thinks for one minute that upright Canadian citizens will stand for, and tolerate being cowed into submission by this type of chairman and hanger-on (and there appears to be a few of them) in Canada he is sadly mistaken.

One would almost think this abuse were planned to get up people's ire and I am sure Mr. Esling (whose election is generally conceded anyhow) will not be displeased to hear of friction in the enemy camp.

Unless there is a public apology made by the chairman in question I, along with a good many others will be a supporter of good old "Billy" Esling he, at least, will see that we are treated like men and not dogs. DISGUSTED

ETTRICK

THE VALUE OF WATER

BY JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

You may wonder at times why every health writer advises the drinking of plenty of water or other liquids. In fact a few years ago the drinking of any fluids at meal time was considered unwise as it was thought that fluids diluted the stomach juice and it would lose just that much of its strength or power to digest the food.

As a matter of fact a little water just before meals or during meals helps digestion as it promotes the flow of digestive juice in the stomach; thus before the food is eaten digestive juice in the stomach is waiting for it. Hence the value of soups at the beginning of a meal.

The reason that liquids are so necessary and so helpful to the body is because they act as a solvent. Chemical reactions between substances, and it is these chemical reactions that enable the tissues to do their work, cannot take place unless they are in solution, and the body cells also must be kept in solution in order that life processes can go on. Three-quarters of the substances composing the cells of the body—the protoplasm—are made up of water.

Fortunately all foods contain water, the dryest bread or biscuit may contain 5 to 10 per cent water, and some fruits and vegetables like tomatoes, melons, lettuce, cauliflower and strawberries may contain as much as 90 per cent.

The uses of water in the system are:

(1). To keep the tissues in solution so that chemical reactions can take place and for maintaining the proper dilution of salts in the tissues.

(2). To supply fluid for the digestive juices.

(3). To enable the blood and lymph to carry soluble substances to all parts, and also carry wastes to the various organs that throw them out of the body—skin, intestine, lungs, and kidneys.

(4). To regulate the temperature of the body by getting rid of heat by the evaporation of water from the skin.

With the exception of those who are overweight, and thin individuals with a "dropped" stomach, practically everybody can derive benefit from three to four glasses of water daily.

A glass of water on arising and one before each meal is a simple way of taking the water regularly.

Manchester City Is Defeated 1-0 by Derby

LONDON, Oct. 21 (CP cable).—The Arsenal is once again back in its accustomed spot in the first division of the English football league—on top of the heap. The champions routed Tottenham Hotspurs Saturday by a 5-1 score before a crowd of 70,000 that jammed the Highbury stands to capacity for the second successive week.

At Manchester City, the cupholders were absorbing a 1-0 defeat on their own grounds from Derby county and the Gunners were given a clear lead for the first time in the season. Stoke City marched into second place by a point, beating Aston Villa 4-1. The City went down into a third-place tie with Sunderland, another point back.

CHELSEA WINS

Chelsea, next to the bottom of the premier diivsion, won their first victory away from home this season—their fourth win—by the only goal scored in the match at Birmingham, and remarkable scenes followed as Gallacher rammed in the deciding counter in the last minute of play.

A disgruntled spectator addressed some uncomplimentary remarks to Hibbs, Birmingham's international goalie, but Hibbs contented himself with a brief reply. As soon as the whistle went Hibbs walked to the crowd back of his nets and a free fight followed. A section of the barrier was torn up and before the melee was over between supporters of Hibbs and fellows who agreed with the first complainants, two persons had been injured, one being taken to hospital on a stretcher. Hibbs was not personally involved in the fight.

At Highbury, Arsenal turned back the Spurs, who have not been going so well to date.

BEASLEY OPENS

Beasley scored first for the Arsenal on a centre from Bastin and then Drake pushed the ball over the giant Nicholls' head for the second counter. Drake repeated to make it 3-0 at the half.

Drake completed his hat-trick by snatching a long pass for the fourth goal and then crowned a brilliant individual display by getting his own fourth counter. Hunt was the solitary scorer for Spurs.

Stoke City was too much for the Villa. There was no score in the first half but in the second half the Villa was severely harassed, being additionally handicapped by injury to Talbot who was unable to resume.

Liddle and Johnson scored for Stoke before Waring replied, after which Sale and Liddle scored two more for the home side.

At Manchester City the Duke of York was one of the 50,000 persons who saw the cup-holders beaten by Derby County in a finely-contested match. Tilson counted for the City in the first half but it was offside. The break came when Brooks, Derby's international, snapped up a chance shot to score nine minutes from the end against the run of play.

BOLTON BEATS HULL

Bolton consolidated its lead over the second division, beating Hull City 2-0 to keep two full games ahead of Blackpool. Rimmer and Milson did the scoring.

Brentford got into third place, a point back of Blackpool, by beating Notts County 4-1. The result justified Brentford's switching Burns from the halfback line to insideright. Taking advantage of the defence errors, Burns scored two goals in 13 minutes, and then Mills shot the ball through his own nets, to give Brentford a 3-0 lead at the half. Higgins scored for Notts on the resumption but Burns completed his hat-trick.

Coventry City convincingly disposed of its rival Charlton Athletic by a 4-0 count, thereby tying Charlton for lead of the southern section, and going in first place on goal average. Birtley scored for the City in the first half and Jones, Bourton and Birtley in that order made the result certain.

The deadlock for the lead in the northern section continued as both Halifax Town and Tranmere won their home matches, over Chester and York City respectively.

BABE RUTH EXPECTS TO DO SOME HITTING WHEN HE GETS TO JAPAN

Big League Ball Players in Carnival Spirit as Liner Sails

VICTORIA, Oct. 21—"I've been knocking baseballs around for 21 years and I guess I'll knock a few more in Japan," grinned Babe Ruth as he waved farewell to the North American continent tonight from the orient-bound Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Japan. Asked if he thought he could hit Japanese pitching, the Bambino declared he would take his chances with Gehringer, Foxx, Gehrig, Miller and the rest of the American league sluggers who are accompanying his all-star aggregation to play exhibition games in Honolulu and Japan.

It will be early spring before the Babe, Gehrig, Vernon, Gomez, Ed Ebling, Athletics trainer, and Harold "Rabbit" Warstler, see American soil again. They are stretching their orient visit into a world tour which will take them back to the states by way of Europe's notable watering places and gay capitals.

Others of the team, including Connie Mack who declared he had handed over all managerial duties of the tour to Babe Ruth, "Bing" Miller, Frank Hayes, Jimmy Foxx, Joe Cascarella, Eric McNair, of the Athletics, Charlie Gehringer of Detroit, Moe Berg, Earl Averill, Clint Brown of Cleveland, and Earl Whitehill of the Senators, will be back in Victoria and Vancouver on the Empress of Canada January 2.

RUTH SAYS NOTHING

Babe Ruth left his baseball future as much in the air as ever as he sailed with his all-stars for the orient. "I have nothing to add to my world series statement," he said. Whether the 1935 season will see him directing a major or minor league outfit from the benches or in the uniform of a major league club remains in doubt.

Carnival spirit reigned among the players and their wives as they rambled through the big public rooms of the Empress of Japan, chatted with Capt. L. D. Douglas, and inspected the sports deck, gymnasium and swimming pool where they will have daily workouts. Frank (Lefty) O'Doul the Giant slugger, and only National leaguer in the party, acted as guide and interpreter. It is his fourth consecutive trip to Japan where he spends his winter coaching assiduous Japanese youngsters in the fine art of the game.

"Prof" Moe Berg, late of Columbia and Princeton, whose linguistic talents embrace a speaking knowledge of seven languages, including English, performed a news reel stunt in which he carried on a conversation in Japanese with Sotaro Suzuki, representative of the Dai-Nippon Tokyo Baseball club, explaining purposes and aims of the tour. The big Cleveland catcher's efforts were greeted with solemn acclaim, as he characterized his party as "ambassadors of baseball."

Bristling with big names in the baseball world, the Empress of Japan's party included its elements of romance. It is a honeymoon tour for Clint Brown of Cleveland, and his bride of a few weeks and it would be hard to convince Frank Hayes, the Athletics rookie catcher, that an ill wind blows nobody good. Babe Ruth wired for him when Charlie Berry was taken off the train in North Dakota for an emergency appendix operation and the 19-year-old New Jersey boy jumped on the next plane catching the ship by the skin of his teeth. Arrangements had been made to have consular officials accompany the liner from Vancouver to Victoria to fix his passport but he had them when he arrived.

Athletes Guard Eyes Carefully

Ed "Strangler" Lewis, a former heavyweight wrestling champion, who was recently thrown by champion Jim Londos in Chicago before 40,000 spectators, has such poor vision that he must use a magnifying glass to read a newspaper. His opponents look like shadows in the ring.

Many great hitters in baseball like Hornsby, Sam Crawford, Larry LaJoie, Chuck Klein, Kiki Cuyler and others past and present, rarely attend a moving picture, as they contend that the flicker of the film affects their batting eyes.

Many major and minor league players wear eye glasses when reading newspapers or books to save and protect their precious batting orbs.

Sam Crawford, the old Detroit slugger, once claimed he could see the seams of a fast ball as it came up to the plate, yet off the field he used spectacles when reading the menu in the dining room.

Answer to Saturday's question: Millard Howell of Alabama made a punt of 77 yards in the 1933 season, without counting the roll.

Today's question: What player made the longest scoring run during the 1933 season? Answer tomorrow.

YANNIGANS BEAT BRUIN REGULARS

QUEBEC, Oct. 21 (CP).—Boston Bruins' hockey forces in training here had their first taste of action today when the Yannigans defeated the regulars at the Arena, 9-3. Goalie "Tiny" Thompson aided the Yannigans with Poulin in the nets for the regulars.

More than 3000 watched a fast exhibition. Johnny Gagnon, formerly of Canadiens and Jean Pusie of London Tecumsehs were particularly well received by the French-speaking fans.

Three penalty shots were taken by Pusie who scored one of them, Poulin saving the other two.

ALBERTA LOSES ATHLETIC MEET

Saskatchewan Retains Track Trophy; Co-Eds of Manitoba Win

SASKATOON, Oct. 21 (CP)—University of Saskatchewan tonight retained the Cairn's cup, emblematic of the western Canada intercollegiate union supremacy, scoring 71 points to 68 rolled up by the University of Alberta Golden Bears. It was the nearest the Alberta team has come to winning in three years of dual meets.

Three new marks were set and two records equalled in Saturday's meeting here despite bad winds and poor running conditions.

The powerful University of Manitoba co-ed team had little difficulty disposing of the defending Alberta champions to win the Rutherford trophy. The Saskatchewan team pulled up in third place with only 17 points, against 41 gained by Manitoba and 21 by Alberta.

Brock Wylie, of Saskatchewan, set a new pole vault record, clearing the bar at 11 feet 5 inches. The other marks fell in the women's division, Helen Ross, of Manitoba, raised the running broad jump record to 17 feet 5¾ inches and also won the high jump at 4 feet 10¾ inches, another new mark.

EDDIE JAMES IS INJURED AGAIN

Winnipeg Backfielder Gets Broken Arm; Will Need Bone Grafting

WINNIPEG, Oct. 21 (CP).—Eddie James, dynamic star backfielder of the Winnipegs rugby squad, suffered his second severe fracture of his left arm in two years when he was removed to the hospital during an exhibition game here Saturday afternoon.

Memories of the 1932 western Canada rugby championship game at Regina when James was injured badly in the early minutes while playing for St. John's college were recalled.

The injury was so severe he was unable to use his arm until this season. Late in the second quarter, with play at the Varsity five yard line, James was given the ball on a line plunge. He advanced four yards on the slippery turf and came down with a number of Varsity players piled on him. During this play his left arm was fractured in almost the same place as at Regina.

It may be necessary now to have a piece of bone grafted in his arm.

Albion Rangers Bow to Leaders by 2-0 Score

GLASGOW, Oct. 21 (CP Cable).—Topsy-turvy results continue in the Scottish Football league as a result of which St. Johnstone are now clearly in the lead, with Rangers tied for second place by the battling Clyde outfit that so far has submitted to only one defeat. Clyde capped their amazing performances Saturday by defeating Rangers 2-1, although they were helped by the fact some of Rangers' best men were at Belfast.

Rangers, minus Dawson, Simpson and Smith, played very poorly at Clyde. The homesters fully deserved their victory. Donaldson, their new junior center, played like a veteran. He scored one of Clyde's goals and Carroll got the others, Rangers counting by McPhail's goal.

St. Johnstone went to the top—three points ahead of Rangers and Clyde—by defeating Albion Rovers, 2-0. Ferguson and Stewart netted.

RENWICK INJURED

Renwick, Albion's center, was carried off on a stretcher in the second half after being hurt.

The game between Hearts and Hamilton was called off owing to calls of the International on Hearts, or otherwise the winner would have been in clear second place.

At Fir Park Motherwell beat Dundee 5-3 but the Fir Parkers are still three games behind the leading club. The Tayside men scored through Robertson, twice, and Coats. MacFayden scored two for Motherwell, Crawley two and Ferrier the other one.

Aberdeen, deadlocked with Motherwell for sixth place as a consequence of their 3-1 win at Kilmarnock, were easily best. Falloon, Mills and Benyon netted for Aberdeen and Beattie for Kilmarnock.

PARTICK THISTLE UPSET

After outplaying Celtic during the first half and leading on Neish's goal, Partick Thistle were taken in hand and lost by 3-1. Frank O'Donnell scored twice and H. O'Donnell once. Thistles, however, were unfortunate, finishing with nine men after McAllister and Ballantyne had been hurt.

Dunfermline, up from the second division, won its first game of the season at home, beating the Hibs 2-1 and although the margin was narrow, the homesters deserved the win. Pollock and Dobson scored, Smith getting Hibernians' goal.

Bartram, Falkirk's burly leader, had a field day when his team beat Ayr United 8-1, scoring six of the goals himself. Shankley and Peat had the others. Ayr's defence went to pieces after they had scored the initial goal of the game.

King's Park climbed into a tie with Third Lanark at the head of the second division, beating St. Bernard's 4-2 while the erstwhile first division club was taking a 2-1 loss at Arbroath.

NORMIE SMITH IS OFF FOR DETROIT

OTTAWA, Oct. 21 (CP)—Eddie Gerard, manager of St. Louis Eagles in the National hockey league announced here today a straight trade of Normie Smith, young goalie, to Detroit Red Wings for Burr Williams, defenceman. Smith played last season for Quebec Beavers. Williams, before being drafted last year by Detroit, played in the American association with Duluth, Tulsa and St. Louis Flyers.

Pete Kelly, wingman, last night left for Charlottetown where he will play this winter. The Eagles maintained Kelly on their amateur list.

CLASSIFIED SECTION - WHERE BUYER & SELLER MEET

SOMEONE TO LOVE

by VERNIE CONNELLY

INSTALMENT NINETEEN

"Bruce, why are you here—why did you come back?" June asked in surprise.

"Because I was so worried over the way I left you—don't let anything come between us. I can't endure it. . ."

"But Bruce, dear, we are friends. What made you think we aren't?" His clear gray eyes looked into hers so pleadingly, so adoringly. No wonder she loved him, and how could she ever have thought he didn't love her? If she could be patient, wait as he asked, it would all come right. Of course it would!

Relief shone in his face. "You are so wonderful—I can always count on you to understand, no matter what it is. I think I'll come to the Fountain Room tonight. We can go somewhere afterwards. What time do you get through?"

"At two o'clock. The broadcast begins at eleven-thirty. I don't suppose I'll have to stay after one o'clock—I'll find out—maybe I will, at first, while the thing is new. I've got to go to rehearsal now—they've had some songs written for me. It worries me because I can't sing. If it weren't for the hundred dollars a week, and my suite, I'd never in the world go through that agony."

"Maybe you can sing. . .but I don't want you to. . ."

"Darling, don't begin! I've got to dash. Come to the club for dinner, won't you? It's really very amusing."

"Yes, I'll come. I'm so hungry for you I'd stand on the sidewalk just to watch you go by."

"Did you see this?" Linder said later, entering June's office and handing a newspaper to her. He indicated a paragraph in a well known column.

"SHOW-ME GIRL PLUGS BROADWAY FOR SOMEONE TO LOVE!!! "We've given plenty of little girls a hand in our dark career —and most of 'em needed it . . . but there's a different vintage in town. . . . from Missouri. Already, two of Manhattan's Knights of the Golden Fleece are followers. . . . Still, when her throaty voice chokes, as it did last night over the banal sentiment, 'I wish I had someone to love me,' I too, fall under the spell and give this golden beauty a very big hand. . . Sap! Sap! Sap! I know, and well, she doesn't need it!"

June laid the paper down. She was vaguely disturbed. "I suppose he means to be complimentary?"

"I rather think he does." answered Linder. Her naivete was charming.

Bruce did not come to the club until nine o'clock. "I'm sorry I was late," he said, "but something came up—I'll tell you about it when you have a chance to talk. Where do I sit? I haven't had any dinner."

She wondered what had happened. There was an undercurrent of excitement in Bruce's manner. He told her, when, an hour later, she sat down at his table and ordered a parfait.

"A woman came to see me who had travelled to San Francisco by through plane," he began. "She left at six o'clock the day following New Year's, and she says there was a girl on board who looked exactly like Kay. She thought about this girl as soon as she saw the papers, but dismissed the thought, thinking there could be no connection. However, since the case has developed, and she has read all the details, it occurred to her that there might be something to it after all. This is the first time she has been in New York since, and she decided to tell me. She is a sane sort of person—not looking for publicity. Comes of a good family—knows some people here whom I know very well."

"But what would Kay be flying to San Francisco for? If she'd been aboard a steamer bound for Europe, I'd think there was something to it."

"I'm not turning down any clues. I've got a man checking this plane. He'll try to find other passengers who made the same trip, and out of several people we ought to get the truth."

"That's splendid. At least you won't be in doubt long. I'll go up now and dress. Do you want to come up and read, or listen to the radio while I get ready?"

"Yes, I might as well. I certainly don't want to stay down here any longer."

June put on her new evening dress. Bruce had never seen her in anything so alluring, so sophisticated. She burst upon him there in her little living room, a dazzling, glorified young thing. Bruce stared in astonishment.

"You are the loveliest creature I ever laid my eyes on anywhere, and I mean every word of it."

"You're darling, Bruce. If I please you, that's enough." Her tempting mouth was close to his, her fragrance swept his senses.

"Sweet. . . ."

"I must go," she said at last, drawing herself reluctantly out of his arms.

"I must get you some pearls. . ." Bruce was visualizing them on her round white throat. She was wearing an old gold chain that had belonged to her mother.

She sang gloriously that night, at first smiling radiantly, as the columnist had said, and kissing her fingers to people she knew here and there. Her spontaneity and unaffectedness were her great charm.

Phil Sheridan was there. The real rivalry between Phil and Bruce dated from that night, though they had long been friends.

After her theme song, she danced with Bruce. People stared, and a murmur of recognition swept the room. He was too well known to escape this focus of attention, considering all the publicity since Kay's disappearance. The music stopped and, followed by curious eyes, they made their way to June's table, where both men had places.

"Hello Darlin'. " Phil got up, smiled his admiration. "How are you, Bruce? I saw by the papers you were back."

"Misquoted as usual. How are you? Thought you were in Florida."

"I've gone and come, June, I brought you some Fleur de Alps."

"Oh, that's lovely! I'll have some now."

"Do you like that?" Bruce asked, surprised as she sipped the sweetish liquer.

"A lot. Phil gave me some one night when I was at his apartment. That reminds me, Phil, I've still got the key to your place. . . ."

Bruce's face reddened. He could not be hearing aright.

"That's all right—keep it."

Bruce burst out, anger making him incautious. "Why should she have a key to your apartment."

"No special reason, except when I was away I told her she could go up there and rest if she felt like it. You know it's a pretty quiet place."

"Did you go, June?"

"No, I was too busy."

"Give him back the key."

"I haven't it with me."

"Don't be ridiculous, Bruce."

"You know I'm not being ridiculous. I'll have this out with you under other conditions."

Phil capitulated. He knew the value of acquiescence. "I'll send my man for the key in the morning, June," he said.

"All right. I'll leave it at the desk in case I'm out."

Phil changed the subject. "What do you think of our little song bird?" he asked Bruce.

"I think she is very effective," Bruce answered, conceding June her due, even though he was disturbed.

"May I have this dance?" The orchestra was beginning.

June rose. "You will excuse us, won't you Bruce?"

On the floor, Phil was gay and bantering as usual. "What a little tempest of jealousy you stirred up, my pretty one!"

"Funny. It didn'toccur to me that he'd care, or think anything of it."

"If you only knew what he thought! He'll have me on the carpet, privately, the first opportunity, and lecture me for putting temptation in the way of innocence—compromising a girl he reveres by giving her the key to my apartment."

"Hush. Tell me, was I awful?"

"Awful? I'd say awful nice. You're the hit of the town and you don't even know it. I'd back you in a show right now. And I predict for you radio offers, movie contracts—anything you want."

"You don't have to make fun of me. If I can keep on earning a hundred a week and my suite I'll be overjoyed."

"Is that all you get for all the work you're doing?"

"All? It's a fortune."

June and Bruce left about 1:30. Phil had gone some time before, not caring to intensify Bruce's antagonism.

"I've got the car," Bruce said. "Where would you like to go?"

"Why don't we just drive? I need the air more than anything else."

In the car, snuggled close by Bruce's side, June felt happy and protected. He said, holding her hand so tightly in his that it hurt, "June, I want you to give up this job. I dislike the whole thing intensely."

"There's nothing wrong about it, Bruce. It is highly respectable—that's pretty evident."

"But it's cheapening — mingling with people you don't know—having anyone speak to you who takes a notion!"

"That's a perfectly horrid and snobbish thing for you to say, and I don't like it. You'd better not come there any more if that's what you are thinking."

"I decided I wouldn't tonight, June, please drop the whole thing. Move to some quieter place where we can see each other in peace. You ought to have an apartment."

"Don't you know I am working because of the money? If I stay in New York, my income is not sufficient to pay my expenses. I can go back to Rolla and live on what I have, of course."

"I don't want you to. I'd feel forsaken. But if you stay here on my account, why isn't it reasonable for me to help you financially?"

"You won't marry me, but you will put me in that position? If I took money from you, I'd lose my self-respect. You don't want that. Why don't you leave me alone? I've had a streak of rare luck to get a good position, when I've had no business training or experience."

"Just the same, it cheapens you."

"Phil doesn't think there is anything wrong about it."

"Is he in love with you?"

June realized her mistake. "Let's not argue, Bruce. You have no right to dictate to me. We aren't even engaged."

"It amounts to the same thing."

"How can it, unless we announce it?"

"We couldn't do that now, under the circumstances. It wouldn't be good form."

"Wouldn't it? You see that would never occur to me. I think formality is stupid."

"You are probably right. At any rate, you've succeeded in making me feel wrong about most everything. And if I am, I don't know how to change my mind. Shall we kiss on that, and make up in orthodox style?"

"Dear Bruce," she said.

(To Be Continued)

Miss Josephine Roche, who fought for the cause of coal miners in Colorado, is now waging a vigorous campaign for governorship of the State. She is 48 years of age and a progressive owner of coal mines.

Complaining that she was annoyed and traffic was blocked by the washings of a neighbor, Mrs. George Dudash, of Tiltonville, Ohio, had the support of the town council by having an ordinance passed banning the Monday morning custom of stretching the family wash across alleys.

HEAT WEAK AT CHICAGO

Prices Close at the Bottom for the Week and Day

By JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor

HICAGO, Oct. 21 (AP)—Grain ues melted away Saturday as a ult of persistent liquidating sales the part of holders whose hopes higher prices had given out.

Veakness of foreign markets, a elopment associated with reports highly favorable wheat crop con- ons in Argentina, weakened the e structure here.

Wheat in Chicago closed unsteady the bottom figures both of the and week, 1¼ to 1⅝ under Fri- 's finish, May 97½ to 97⅝; corn to 1½ down, May 78⅜ to 78½; ¾ to 1⅛ off and provisions hanged to 5 cents lower.

EW YORK, Oct. 21 (AP).—The k market drifted through an- er session of extremely narrow tuations Saturday, closing the k at about the same level from ich it started on Monday.

Week-end lassitude pervaded st markets. A further spurt of rly 3 cents in the pound sterling a decline in grains attracted st interest in the absence of rthwhile movements in security es.

EW YORK, Oct. 21 (CP) — A p of nearly three cents in the rling rate featured Saturday's eign exchange markets. The rise cided with termination of the ting of representatives of the d bloc countries at Brussels, but lers were not sure there was a nection.

EAR PRODUCED RECORD SEARCH FOR ROCK GOLD THROUGH CANADA

timated 18,000 Prospectors Tried Luck in the Dominion

By R. K. CARNEGIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA, Oct. 21 (CP).—A sea- n that brought what is believed to ve been the greatest hunt for ld in Canada's history is drawing a close. No figures are available show the exact number of pros- ctors and assistants who struggled rough often inhospitable country, t a careful approximation indi- es a total of about 18,000.

Increased prices for the yellow tal spurred prospectors' activity. added factor was extensive use the airplane which provided ac- s to new districts and revealed istence of still more. Aerial pho- graphy, it is said, has revolution- d the metal-mining industry.

Pictures taken from speeding planes tell experts much. The ographical survey of the Depart- nt of the Interior produced 40- aerial photographs during the mmer. From these, most of them ken in Northern Manitoba, Ath- aska, Great Bear and Great Slave gions and in the Nahanni dis- ct near the Yukon boundary, ps are being developed.

Planes of the Royal Canadian Air rce carrying aerial surveys made ghts over the famous Long Lac strict in Northwestern Ontario. me flights were made in other ovinces. Much of the aerial photo- aphy this year was designed to lp seekers of gold.

Luck, prospectors and geologists , is still the most important fac- in the hunt for gold and less uable metals. Once a tree was wn down. Its roots tore up the rrounding soil and bared what veloped to be one of the richest ns ever discovered in Canada. t summer a prospector stopped the shore of a lake because a h wind endangered his canoe. ile he waited for the storm to te he discovered what is regard- as one of the most important ds of the year. Such incidents are d to make prospectors superstiti- s.

erial photography has removed e of the chance from prospect- . It tells the field man what ks contain no gold and the ter- ry where the soil, or what min- call "overburden," is too deep them to find workable veins n if they did exist. They help concentrate his effort where it most likely to succeed.

Pictures, showing granite formations which metals are seldom found on the other hand indicate logical "faults" and great frac- es, where profitable mineraliza- n is more probable.

Stereoscopes placed over the pic- tures show the valleys and hills in relief. After discovery of a vein a study of the pictures helps in development as it shows the countour of the country and indicates the best route for a road and most advantageous location for a mill.

In the tyles of the topographical survey 600,000 negatives are kept and a sufficient number of prints are available to prevent any possible shortage.

POST OFFICE BOXES READY

Lobby Will Open at 6:30 a.m. on Monday

The new post office boxes will be ready for the box holders this morning. The post office employees began work at 10 p.m. Saturday, taking out the old ones and installing the new. Postmaster R. M. Manahan stated Sunday afternoon he expected that all would be in readiness Monday morning at 6:30, as planned.

The post office lobby was closed all day Sunday to prevent any interruption in the work.

Numbers held by boxholders now, will, in nearly all cases, be the same for the new ones. Some changes, however, are necessary. In the new ones the numbers ending in O, from 0 to 630, will be drawer numbers, and boxholders who formerly held those numbers, will now be given new numbers. All drawers will have new numbers, and all boxes above 1110 have been assigned new numbers. On turning in the old keys the boxholders will be given new ones.

The post office loby will be opened at 6:30 this morning.

NEW COMMODITY EXCHANGE AT MONTREAL OPENS TODAY

Will Deal in Silver Only at the Start

MONTREAL, Oct. 21 (CP)—The only open silver futures market in the world will commence trading here at 10 a.m. tomorrow following ceremonies on the floor of the Montreal stock exchange. The market is the Canadian Commodity exchange which will function with silver only for the present, other commodities being expected to be called for trading later.

Hon. Athanase David, K.C., provincial secretary for Quebec, will represent Premier L. A. Taschereau at the initial gathering and Mayor Camillien Houde is expected to speak for Montreal. G. W. Nicholson, vice-president of the Toronto stock exchange and Jerome Lewine, president of the Commodity exchange, New York, will give short addresses as well as of the new Commodity exchange.

Canadian Commodity exchange will start with a membership of about 225, located in Liverpool, Paris, Bombay, Hongkong, Shanghai, Salt Lake City, Buffalo, Philadelphia, New York, Vancouver, Toronto and Montreal.

Sponsors believe the widely-scattered membership, covering the majority of the world's silver centers, will give breadth to the market and assure it of success as a barometer of world supply and demand for silver.

The market represents a consolidation of Toronto and Montreal interests, both of which were planning silver trading facilities.

Silver futures have not been traded in since suspension of business in New York since August 9, 1934, after the United States nationalized the metal at 50.01 cents per ounce, silver has sold up to 55⅝ cents per ounce, and is now selling slightly below that level.

While the exchange will commence with trading in silver futures, it is expected other commodities will be added within the near future. In this connection hides, rubber, silk and newsprint futures have been mentioned.

BUT HE DID
"I would not make the attempt again for £1,000,000." (The winner of the MacRobertson race gets a prize of about $50,000.)

Then he proceeded to fly back to England, making it in 10 days and again eclipsing a mark set by Kingsford-Smith. For this achievement the King presented Scott with the Air Force cross, recognizing his "distinguished service to aviation."

Soon afterward Mollison broke Scott's record from Australia to London, and J. A. Butler smashed his mark in the opposite direction. Retrieving this record on April 28, 1932, the six-foot Scott declared he was "through record hunting."

SMITH A WIZARD

The following year Kingsford-Smith made Australia in a little over seven days. Said Scott:

"Smith is a wizard. Now I must think about trying to regain the record. I most certainly shall make an attempt, but it will not be this year (1933). I may have a shot about March of next year."

He saved his fire for the MacRobertson race, now in progress, in which both Mollison and his wife and Kingsford-Smith were to start.

Kingsford-Smith withdrew, flying the Pacific instead.

Scott served several years as a commercial pilot in Australia after leaving the Royal Air Forte.

Captain Campbell Black, like his air derby partner is a veteran flyer of the R.A.F., and has done especially dangerous work in East Africa. In the desert wastes of the treacherous Nile country he made a spectatcular rescue of Ernst Udet, former German war ace, in 1931.

Four Western Champs Ready

Meralomas Declared the B. C. Winners With Five Straight

WINNIPEG, Oct. 21 (CP).—Western Canada's quartette of provincial rugby champions tonight awaited the opening of intersectional warfare to decide the right to meet the eastern Canada titlists on the easterner's home grounds.

Western champions declared were:

Manitoba—Winnipeg Winnipegs, by virtue of being the only team in the Manitoba Union league playing strictly Canadian rules.

Saskatchewan—Regina Roughriders, clinching the title with five straight victories.

Alberta—University of Alberta, Edmonton, earning the Alberta championship with four straight wins.

British Columbia—Vancouver Meralomas, officially declared champions after five straight wins, with other scheduled games called off.

Winnipegs, Meralomas and Roughriders repeated their conquests of last year while University of Alberta, struggling hard to break into the championship list, successfully ousted Calgary Altomahs from the throne room.

In games played yesterday, Winnipegs defeated University of Manitoba 14-0 in an exhibition tilt; University of Alberta defeated Calgary Altomahs at Edmonton 18-8; Regina Roughriders went to Saskatoon and defeated Hilltops 19-0 and at Moose Jaw, the Mill City's Millers defeated University of Saskatchewan, 8-2.

Playdowns are scheduled to start Nov. 3, with Winnipegs travelling to Regina to meet Roughriders in the first semi-final and University of Alberta going to Vancouver to play Meralomas in the other. The Winnipeg-Regina winners travel to the home of the University of Alberta-Vancouver Meralomas winners for the championship game Nov. 12.

KOOTENAY MEN ARE OFFICIALS OF PRESS BODY

C. F. Hayes in Nelson on His Way Back From Coast

CRESTON IS BRIGHT SPOT HE DECLARES

Fine Year for Fruit; to Start Breaking 900 Acres

C. F. Hayes, editor of the Creston Review, was a Nelson visitor Sunday night, returning from Vancouver, where he had been for a couple of days, attending the annual convention of the British Columbia and Yukon Press association.

He reports the gathering one of the best-attended for several years, and much important business in connection with the weekly newspaper publishing business was transacted. In the election of officers the Kootenays fared well, with L. P. Sullivan of the Cranbrook Courier, named second vice-president, and E. M. Daly of the Miner, Rossland, catching a place on the executive. T. A. Love of the Gazette, Grand Forks, is the retiring president, and is succeeded by F. R. Mayon of the Herald, Merritt.

A feature of the sessions was an after dinner address on Friday by B. A. Nicholas, editor of the Times, Victoria, who gave a practical talk on the influence and responsibilities of the weekly press.

Discussing things generally at the "apple capital of the Kootenay," as Mr. Hayes very correctly styles Creston, the Review editor claimed Creston as the bright spot in East Kootenay. Within the past two years 75 per cent of the area has been brought under irrigation, while last year the whole Creston district was provided with hydro light and power by the big hydro development at Goat river canyon by West Kootenay Power & Light company.

This year's fruit crop is the biggest on record in practically every line and with market control effective prices should be better than a year ago.

To all this must be added the dyking of 9000 acres of the fertile Kootenay Flats, on which breaking will commence this week. With this flats area under cultivation, along with the ever-increasing fruit production on the bench lands, Creston is assured a well-deserved prosperity and development for some years to come.

B.C. STORM

In the water off Locaro beach. He had been clinging to the craft for several hours. The body of an unidentified man was washed up on the beach. Police believed it is that of John Craig, 55-year-old janitor who had been missing for more than 10 days when he left in a small sailboat for Bowen island.

Mrs. R. T. Porsild, wife of the owner of a wharf at the north end of Denman street, had a miraculous escape from serious injury and possible death when the brick veneer wall at the arena collapsed around her. She was uninjured.

A small tug, the Flyer, was sunk in the Fraser river at New Westminster when struck by a scow which had torn loose from its moorings. No one was on either craft at the time.

VANCOUVER ISOLATED

For several hours during the height of the storm, Vancouver was isolated from communication with outside districts, with the exception of Ladner and Port Moody. All telegraph and telephone connections were reported down south of here. Communication with Victoria, interrupted earlier in the day, was restored tonight.

A number of plateglass windows were broken in the downtown district of Victoria. A golfing party there decided to seek cover after their tee-shots had been blown back over their heads, they reported.

The business section of Vancouver bore the brunt of the gale.

Metal and wood signs were blown down, plateglass windows shattered and several street lights damaged. Awnings and other debris littered the streets.

In the residential district trees were blown down and several sheds and small houses flattened. The fire department answered 70 calls, mostly chimney fires which broke out in parts of the city.

North Vancouver, Burnaby and Richmond municipalities, Lulu Island and suburban districts of Vancouver are still without light service.

A dog was swept into the sea from the wharf of the Royal Vancouver Yacht club. It was rescued by club attendants.

A small punt, partially filled with dead ducks, drifted ashore on the north side of Fraser river at the foot of Carnarvon street, Vancouver. Two hunters later said they had had to abandon hastily such a craft on the south side of the river when the gale struck.

Twelve automobiles were marooned in Stanley park when they were blocked at both ends by falling trees.

THE DEAD

The dead: Bernard Thomason, S. Peterson, Howard Anderson, Leonard Toget and Leonard Berg, all fishermen of the Agnes.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Cristenson, both about 45, of Tacoma, killed when the wind blew a higher tension line across an aerial they were repairing.

Christ Paetow, 25, of Astor, Ore., drowned while duck hunting when his boat capsized.

Nick Schwartz, 30, of Seattle, drowned in Silver lake when canoeing.

R. M. Johnson of Portland, crushed beneath bricks and wreckage when an edge of a roof on which he was working at Bellingham gave way.

CHINESE KILLED

An unidentified Chinese, killed when the side of a rooming house caved in at Seattle.

Elmer Lee, 30, Bremerton navy yard worker, crushed by a tree which wrecked his car near Dwatto, Wash.

The coast guard cutter Atlanta rushed to the aid of two men reported lashed to piling at Boundary Bay, near the Canadian line, after the cannery workhouse in which they stayed, was swept away by the wind.

Throughout the Pacific northwest came reports of communication lines ripped away, lighting systems put out and highways littered by the gale, which reached 80 miles an hour offshore.

Two other persons, John Dybdal and his wife, who operated a fish trap at the mouth of the Skagit river, were believed lost when their trap was wrecked and their house fell into the water.

The passenger boat Virginia V., plying between Seattle and Tacoma, was wrecked at Olialla and between 35 and 50 passengers were rescued with difficulty.

Coast guard headquarters at Seattle said tonight the freighter Floridian, which reported itself in distress near the mouth of the Columbia river, had anchored successfully and would later proceed here without further assistance. With a crew of 32 men aboard, the freighter sent out a frantic SOS earlier and the coast guard cutter Redwing unsuccessfully tried to reach the vessel.

BADLY DAMAGED

The Floridian wirelessed her agents in Portland she would come here, the master adding the vessel had been "damaged by heavy weather."

At Seattle the liner President Madison was ripped from her moorings and blown the length of pier 41, sweeping three ships along with her.

Wild excitement prevailed at the Mason Methodist church in Tacoma when a large chimney was blown down and crashed into the roof of a Sunday school classroom. Twenty-five small boys and girls were in the room with their teacher. Three of the children were injured seriously.

The full force of the gale struck the Virginia V. as it attempted to leave the dock and the ship was pounded against the timbers and piling. Holes were smashed in the hull and the super-structure was torn loose. One by one, the passengers were helped onto the dock and all escaped injury.

The fate of the crew aboard the Floridian was undetermined as the coast guard battled to reach the ship.

One of the ships swept along by the Madison, the Puget Sound freighter Harvester, was crushed in the wreckage and sank, her crew of 20 scrambled to safety across gravel barges.

In the residence district of Seattle, numerous trees were torn up.

At Chehalis, Wash., the Albert apartments garage was crushed and six automobiles in it were demolished. Part of the roof of the civic auditorium was torn off.

Electric power was cut off for several hours in Seattle, but crews rushed to restore service.

QUEENS TAKES RUGGER LEAD

Beat Toronto 4 to 3; McGill Wins First Game of Season

TORONTO, Oct. 21 (CP).—The spirit of Ted Reeve and the only 15 players left on his squad at Queen's charged the week-end football results with drama that may remain the high spot of the eastern season. Queen's desperate stand to defeat University of Toronto 4-3 and take over first place in the intercollegiate union standing was by far the outstanding upset of the day.

With only four substitutes available for action the tri-color tied up varsity's attack from start to finish at Kingston and won their third straight game without scoring a touchdown. Five members of the team had been suspended over a fraternity violation.

McGill won their first victory in the college season at London, defeating the western Mustangs 12-5. The defeat put the Mustangs in the cellar position of the intercollegiate loop.

Hamilton's grim old tiger, the same ferocious fellow he was two or three years ago, jumped into the provincial union football lead by a full game with a 17-9 victory over Toronto Argos. Hamilton have three games to go with two of them at home. Bengals did most of their scoring Saturday in the second half during which they smashed Argo's line to shreds.

Sarnia Imperials defeated St. Michael's college 19-12 in a spectacular affair in Toronto to remain unbeaten in the O.R.F.U.

In the other O.R.F.U. game Hamilton Cubs defeated Balmy Beach 14-1.

will be available for the first cabinet council which will probably be called for Tuesday although it is possible Mr. Bennett may choose to hold a session tomorrow. So far as is known it will be the first occasion for him to meet Minister of Trade and Commerce H. H. Stevens since the latter's publication of a brochure on business and industrial evils and its suppression by the prime minister. Announcements to be looked for momentarily include the date and official agenda for the Dominion provincial conference on constitutional amendments, date of parliament's opening, appointment of a deputy governor for the central bank, and the date for the by-elections in three federal vacancies, if not the date for the general election.

It seems unlikely that parliament will assemble before Christmas as was the intention earlier. No outward evidences are to be found of governmental preparations for a session such as is usually noticeable within a month or two of the opening.

The rumor persists that by-elections will be called in Halifax, Long Lake and St. Denis before January but no official confirmation has been secured.

grind were Cathcart Jones and Ken Waller. They left Karachi at 10 p.m., only an hour behind Capt. Jim and Amy Mollison.

Sixteen planes were still in the hunt for th speed and handicap trophies tonight out of the original 20 which took off from Mildenhall aerodrome, near London, at dawn Saturday. Smash-ups, engine or equipment trouble caused four withdrawals.

A SLIM LEAD

Two crack United States flyers, Col. Roscoe Turner and Clyde Pangborn, held a slim advantage over Britain's famous flying pair, the Mollisons. Turner and Pangborn landed at Allahabad, India, at 10:26 p.m. Capt. Jim and Amy Mollison appeared finally to have shaken off ill-luck which dogged them around Karachi, India, and which cost them the lead in the air derby. They left Karachi for the third time at 9:10 p.m. Like Scott and Black, they were flying a Comet plane.

Cathcart Jones and Ken Waller, another British entry and flying the third Comet plane entered, landed at Karachi at 8:10 p.m. and for the time at any rate were in fifth position.

THOSE WHO QUIT

Withdrawals from the race were D. J. Asjes and G. J. Geysendorfer, a Dutch syndicate entry; Capt. Neville Stack and S. L. Turner, British flyers; Jacqueline Cochran and Wesley Smith from the United States; and J. Woods and D. C. Bennett, Australians.

The Asjes plane crashed in landing at Allahabad. Repairs, it was estimated, would take at least a fortnight. The undercarriage and propellors of the machine were smashed. The Pander S4 overturned but Asjes and Geysendorfer escaped unhurt. The crash was reported caused when the machine's retractable undercarriage failed to open.

Capt. Stack and Turner quit the race at Marseille after a series of delays had handicapped them.

PLANE IN BAD SHAPE

Miss Cochran and Smith dropped out at Bucharest Saturday, deciding their plane was not in good enough condition for the arduous flight.

Woods and Bennett found trouble which forced them out at Aleppo early Sunday. Engine trouble and an injury to the pilot spelled the finish for them.

While the spectatcular race went on, a Royal Air Force bombing machine was reported missing out of Singapore. The bomber left for Alor Star, one of the checking points for planes in the handicap section, this morning in connection with the race. When no word of its arrival there was received, a flying boat and several other bombing planes were sent in search.

(Alor Star is in the Malay peninsula, approximately 400 miles from Singapore.)

WILL GO THE LIMIT

Capt. Scott and Black were apparently counting on using their fast plane to the limit in the hope they could stay far ahead. Their determination to push on was seen in the fact they stopped only one hour and 20 minutes at Singapore.

Next control point on their route was Darwin, Australia, but they had 2000 miles to fly to get there, including a long hop over the treacherous Timor sea. The five intervening control points, at which all planes must stop, are Baghdad, Allahabad, Singapore, Darwin and Charleville.

Scott and his copilot had a narrow escape from serious trouble before they got to Bagdad Saturday night. They lost their bearings near Kirkup and Scott had to land on a small dark flying field, a feat which called for fine manoeuvering. Scott made an excellent landing and it was considered a lucky escape from disaster. An air force detachment at Kirkup gave them 20 gallons of gasoline which enabled them to reach Baghdad 45 minutes later.

SPLENDID TRIP

At Allahabad Scott told Reuters he had had a splendid trip devoid of incidents since leaving Baghdad. Approaching India, they encountered a head wind, he said, but after they were speeded by a following wind.

Parmentier revealed at Calcutta he and Moll planned to fly around to Singapore by the coast-line instead of going direct. He said they proposed to land at every important airdrome en route to the next control point. In spite of thus adding extra mileage to that of Scott to Singapore, the Dutch flyers hoped to overtake the leader. Parmentier said he believed Scott was flying "all out." He added this would impose a great strain on their engine.

At Allahabad a curious incident caused Parmentier a four-minute delay. Just after taking off they found one of the passengers had been left behind and they were obliged to return for him.

Parmentier told Reuters at Allahabad it had been the smoothest journey in his experience over the England-Australia route. The flight to that point was uneventful he said. The Dutch entrants flew their Douglas DC2 plane powered with a Wright Cyclone motor, at a normal height of 12,000 feet.

He added they had been "nursing" their engines up to that point but intended to go full out after leaving Singapore. They were confident they could overhaul Scott. A rough estimate placed the leader some 1300 piles distance and about seven hours' flying time ahead.

Colonel Turner and Pangborn lost valuable ground in the early morning darkness over India. They messaged to Allahabad saying they were lost and looking for the aerodrome there but turned up finally at 10:26 p.m.

NARROW ESCAPE

The United States' pair, like Scott and Black, had a narow escape from disaster. They provided the greatest sensation of the night as they landed at Baghdad early Sunday. They circled around the airport, apparently uncertain how to land. Then landing with the wind behind them instead of against them, they just cleared a road and embankment and missed some telegraph wires by inches. Officials held their breath, fearing a calamity at any moment and ambulances actually started their engines.

However, no damage was done. Turner said there they had been delayed by bad weather, mist over Europe and sand in the air over Iraq.

MOLLISONS HAVE TROUBLE

The Mollisons were last reported leaving Karachi for Allahabad tonight. They lost the leadership between Baghdad and Allahabad as trouble interrupted the swift flight of their Comet. Twice they took off from Karachi, only to return. The first time it was engine trouble; the second time Mollison said the flying maps they were given were unsuitable for night flying.

They landed first at Karachi at 4:45 a.m. Sunday but it was 9:10 p.m. before they got away for the third time.

TOO WORRIED ABOUT GAS

Amy Mollison during the halt at Karachi told Reuters they halted there owing to doubts whether they had sufficient gasoline to reach Allahabad without a stop. The machine, she said, had behaved marvellously. The night was very misty but apart from headwinds they had an uneventful trip.

However, mechanics found the engine required adjusting and it took two hours to set the fault right. By then there was insufficient daylight to reach Allahabad (time in India is approximately five hours faster than Greenwich mean time, which would make it 2:10 a.m. today (Monday) local time when the Mollisons finally got away)

Mollison was interviewed at Baghdad, to which they flew nonstop and said there he anticipated no difficulty in completing the race. At that time the Mollisons were leading.

The Cathcart Jones-Ken Waller entry was close on the heels of the Mollisons on the Karachi-Allahabad leg. They took off scarcely an hour behind Jim and Amy Mollison from Karachi. Jones and Waller, like the famous flying couple and the leader of the derby, Scott, are flying a Comet plane.

GAS RAN LOW

Like many another entry, they had lots of grief to hamper them. At Baghdad they reported a tempestuous journey over the Black Sea. Flying over wild unknown country, they found their gasoline running low. They believed they were somewhere in Persia. Glimpsing lights, they landed near a native village and took off next morning (Sunday morning) reaching Baghdad, after a 250-mile detour, with only one gallon of gas in their tank.

After taking off from Baghdad they were compelled to return through engine trouble. Finally they got away at 12:34 p.m. Sunday. Had it not been for fog which delayed them for a time at Karachi they might have been ahead of the Mollisons of the Karachi-Allahabad hop.

LOST HIS WAY

Flight-Lieut. G. Shaw, another British competitor in the handicap division only had troubles too. He came down at San Felio de Giukols in Spain, 40 miles north-east of Barcelona. He said lack of gas forced him down. Thick clouds over the Pyrenees, he explained, had caused him to lose his direction. He thought he was over the French Alps.

Owing to martial law prevailing in Spain, civil guards delayed him pending official permission to continue the flight. Finally he took off for Rome at 10:25 a.m. Sunday, arriving there a few hours later.

COMPLETE OVERHAUL

Serious engine trouble was delaying H. L. Brook at Marseille and he did not expect to get away today. The engine was reported needing a complete overhaul. Brook, a British entry, was in the handicap division only.

When Scott's brilliant red Comet roared into Singapore heavy smoke was issuing from the exhaust. Scott made an extremely fast landing and a fire engine raced across the field thinking he was in trouble.

When the engine was cut off the smoke disappeared.

LOST LOT OF TIME

Turner and Pangborn, although in constant wireless communication with the airfield at Allahabad, hovered about in the general vicinity of the city for more than an hour before finding it.

Pangborn added humorously that Turner was "afraid to land anywhere because of his fear of tigers."

The Americans cruised at an average speed of 160 miles an hour, but occasionally they forced their big plane to step up to 178 miles. Both were cheerful despite the time lost by their aimless wandering.

Their plane, Turner told an Associated Press correspondent, "was doing splendidly."

Geysendorfer was bitterly disappointed at cracking up. He said he was not officially scratching until tomorrow, but "you may consider me out of the race." His retractable landing wheels failed to work, causing the propellers to slash into the turf on alighting.

REACH ATHENS

John H. Wright and John Polando of the United States, reached Athens at 1 p.m. (Sunday) still hoping for a handicap prize.

All times are given in G.M.T., Greenwich meridian time, which is five hours ahead of eastern standard and correspondingly behind eastern cities visited by the flyers.

J. Woods and D. C. Bennett, Australians, had a smashup at Aleppo, Syria, on trying to land their American plane. Woods wirelessed the Royal Aero club at London a brief message:

"Undercarriage collapsed. Out of race. Crew unhurt."

THE LATE ONES

The British team, Capt. T. Neville Stack and S. L. Turner, were the second pair to drop officially from the race today.

Harrassed by motor trouble, they landed at Marseille about 2 p.m. Stack said he would not compete in the race further, but would continue to Melbourne as a noncompetitor. Stack and Turner will deliver films of the start of the derby Saturday.

The New Zealanders, Squadron Leader Malcolm MacGregor and Henry Waller, reached Baghdad at 2 p.m. in their British plane.

Lieut. M. Hansen, the Dane who is flying solo, left Athens at 9:11 a.m. for Baghdad, stopping at Aleppo, Syria, at 5:17 p.m.

C. J. Melrose, the Australian, left Athens for Aleppo at 8:46 p.m.

Squadron Leader D. E. Stodart and K. G. Stodart, Britishers, were at Athens where three other planes including Wright's, were halted awaiting the dawn.

Flying Officer C. G. Davies and Lieut-Commander C. N. Hill, Britishers; and J. D. Hewett and C. E. Kay, New Zealanders, were the others at Athens.

Flying Officer H. D. Gilman, British and Flight Lieut. G. Shaw were at Rome. H. L. Brook, the Britisher, was at Marseille with Stack, who had withdrawn from the race. R. Parer and G. E. Hemsworth of New Guinea were still at Le Bourget, near Paris, bringing up the tail end.

The Stodarts were the first of those at Athens to take off for Aleppo, departing at 11:43 p.m., in pursuit of Melrose, though far behind.

TWO DIE IN A PRAIRIE FIRE

Mother and Tot Burn Following Coal Oil Explosion

WINDTHORST, Sask., Oct. 21 (CP)—Mrs. Charles Thody and her three-year-old son, Verne, were dead tonight from burns suffered when an explosion occurred in their home Saturday night as Mrs. Thody poured kerosene into the kitchen stove. Two other children ran to safety.

Mr. Thody had left the house only a few minutes before the explosion occurred. He raced back and carried his wife outside as she died but the flames spread so rapidly he was unable to enter the house a second time.

The two children who raced out of the house without being injured were Donald Thody, four years old, and Rae Steotzl, six years old. Volunteers kept the flames from spreading to the Steotzl home.

Windthorst is a village about 85 miles southeast of Regina.

TRAIL, B.C., Oct. 21.—Although defeated 17-10 High School set strong competition to the Orioles, last year's title holders, in a ladies' division game of the Trail City Basketball league in the Memorial hall Saturday night. High School is a team that was organized this season and most of the players are novices at the game.

Scoring was comparatively low, showing that the School team put up a strong defensive to the sharp shooting opposition.

At half-time the Orioles were leading 9-4 but the School team piled up an additional 6 points compared to 6 by the Orioles.

Jean Davidson of the Orioles was high scorer with three field baskets for 6 points.

Ash Baillie refereed.
