TOT MURDERED BY KIDNAPPER

Dentistry Identifies Body Found in a Shallow Grave

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 14 (AP).—A baby tooth lifted the veil today from the strange disappearance of six-year-old Dorothy Ann Ristelhurst nearly two months ago and revealed her as the victim of an abductor and murderer.

A child's body, so badly decomposed from lying in a shallow grave on Nashville's outskirts that recognition of physical characteristics was impossible, was positively identified by a physician and dentist from a small filling in the second upper molar.

The body was found late yesterday in a secluded section, by two negro workmen. There was a rag gag in the mouth and the left side of the skull was crushed as by a hammer.

Immediately it was determined that the kindergarten student, who disappeared Sept. 19 while on her way home from school, had been kidnapped and murdered, the U. S. department of justice and state law agencies joined in an intensive search for the slayer and for a motive.

NABS ROBBER

Toy Pistol of Little Use to Holdup Man in Vancouver Row

VANCOUVER, Nov. 14 (CP).—Quick judgment on the part of D. Machida, service station proprietor, saved him money today and resulted in the arrest of William Laneharte on a charge of robbery with violence.

Machida and his wife were alone in the service station when a man walked into the premises, whipped out a pistol and ordered them to put up their hands. They obeyed, but as the man approached the cash register, Machida noticed something suspicious about the gun.

In a flash, he jumped at the man, who turned and fled to the street. Machida overtook him and held Laneharte prisoner until police arrived. Investigation showed that the pistol was a toy.

HOISTING LINK BREAK IS FATAL

NANAIMO, B. C., Nov. 14 (CP)—A coroner's jury which investigated the death of John C. Carson, fatally injured Sunday when struck by a hook thrown by the breaking of a link in the hoisting gear at the Frank Beban Logging Co., camp at Gabriola island, today recommended that straps be used instead of hooks as a safety measure for employees when hoisting heavy logs and that the Sunday labor law be observed.

The jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

MONTREAL, Nov. 14 (CP)—All fair and reasonable demands made of the authorities by Montreal's jobless will be met, but impossible requests and acts of violence will not be tolerated, Mayor Camillien Houde told a delegation of unemployed, 500 strong, who waited on him at the city hall today.

Meisner Committed Stand Trial on Kidnapping Charge

John S. Labatt — David Meisner

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 14 (CP).—David Meisner, former Cincinnati bookmaker, frail and weak-eyed, was committed today to stand trial on a charge of having taken part in the kidnapping last August of John S. Labatt, wealthy brewer.

Magistrate C. W. Hawkshaw committed Meisner for trial at the next Middlesex or Lambton county assizes after hearing Labatt spend more than two hours of his first public recital of his story of the kidnapping. The brewer pointed an accusing finger at Meisner as he stood in the prisoner's dock and declared he was one of the kidnappers.

Meisner shook his head vigorously and mumbled, but he declined to speak at the end of the hearing when Magistrate Hawkshaw asked him if he had anything to say.

TWO LOAVES OF BREAD 5 CENTS

Winnipeg Merchants Ask Government to End Bread War

WINNIPEG, Nov. 14 (CP)—Blaming chain stores for conditions in the baking industry which have led to a "bread war" in Winnipeg, the Retail Merchants' association submitted a brief to Premier John Bracken today urging that immediate action be taken to remedy the situation.

Enforcement of rules and regulations now on statutes of labor and health departments, it contended, would do much to alleviate the bakers' troubles and enable independent bakers to remain in business.

The brief referred to an order-in-council passed in Alberta appointing a deputy minister to investigate the Alberta baking industry and the fact that bakers there have submitted a code for approval so they could come under the "Trades and Industries act."

The association charged that chain stores would not permit retail shops to sell bread at the same prices the chains quoted, and consistently undercut prices. As a result, wages in bakeries droped until "men worked 14 and 16 hours daily for as little as $10 a month. Quality of bread likewise suffered and in some instances the bread "was practically unfit for human consumption."

Bread prices today in Winnipeg were as low as two loaves for five cents and reports came from points in the district of drastic cuts in prices.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 14 (CP).—H. Creelman, city fireman, is in hospital here tonight suffering painful burns about the head and face received earlier at a fire in the basement of a Granville street rooming house.

It was while firemen were trying to find the cause of the trouble that the furnace once more backfired several times and the flames caught Creelman, who was close to the furnace, about the face and neck.

TENSION OVER SAAR IS LESS

League Council Will Discuss Saar on November 21

GENEVA, Nov. 14 (AP)—With Europe's political atmosphere disturbed by reports German Nazis are planning to seize the Saar by force and French preparations to forestall any putsch, the League of Nations council will meet Nov 21 to complete arrangements for the Saar plebiscite. Tension prevailing during the recent weeks was lessened, however, during the past few days as the result of statements by German authorities that no putsch is being prepared and disclaimers by the French that they intend to send troops into the region.

(Residents of the rich Saar basin, governed since the treaty of Versailles by the league, vote Jan. 13 to remain under the league, go back to Germany or join France.)

RIOTS OCCUR ANEW IN SOUTH

San Francisco Again Threatened by a Dock Strike

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14 (AP).—The threat of strike loomed again in San Francisco's waterfront tonight as employers and longshoremen accused each other of failing to abide by the recent decision of the national longshoremen's board.

Developments in a tense day included:

Two unidentified ship company hiring officials were assertedly attacked by a crowd of several longshoremen incensed over hiring methods.

The international longshoremen's labor relations committee telegraphed Secretary of Labor Perkins to intervene in recurring waterfront disputes in an attempt to ward off another strike. Employers disclosed they also had appealed to Secretary Perkins by telegraph.

Police responding to a riot call dispersed the crowd that reportedly had attacked the two hiring officials near the ferry building as hundreds of commuters watched. No arrests were made.

POVERTY-STRICKEN AREAS ARE TO BE PUT ON MOVE

South Wales, North England and Scottish Clydebank Will Be Center of Activity to Restore Work Says the Government

LONDON, Nov. 14 (CP cable).—The United Kingdom, with general recovery from the depression having spread to most parts of the country, today opened a determined attack on those areas which prosperity seemed to have forsaken forever.

Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, announced to a sympathetic house of commons the establishment of two special commissions charged with bringing new hope to those areas long distressed. They are in south Wales, northern England, and the Scottish Clydebank.

A sum of $10,000,000 will be set aside from public revenues in the current year to finance the activities of the commissions, one of which is to deal with English and the other with Scottish depressed areas.

The commissions are to devote their whole time and attention to the problem of the still destitute areas, he declared. They will have

FRESH SHOCKS REVIVE ELECTROCUTED PERSONS, DECLARE U. S. SCIENTISTS

Treatments Based Upon Three Kinds of Death Due to Electricity

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP).—Two treatments promising to bring back from death the majority of persons accidentally electrocuted were described tonight by Prof. W. B. Kouwenhoven of Johns Hopkins university, to the New York Electrical society.

They are based on experiments revealing three kinds of death from electric shock—only one of which is irrevocable. In the other two types, Dr. Kouwenhoven said, "death is only apparent," and these make the majority of accidental electrocutions.

The two treatments are based upon seven years' experiments at Johns Hopkins, jointly by the electrical engineering, the medical and the hygiene departments.

The electrocution for which there is no remedy comes when the cur-

LORDS SCRAP IDEA OF COMPULSORY HEALTH CERTIFICATES IN MARRIAGE

LONDON, Nov. 14 (CP cable).—The question of compulsory medical certificates for those contemplating marriage was debated in the house of lords tonight, after Lord Kilmaine had moved that both parties to a proposed marriage be compelled to produce certificates of fitness.

After other speakers had pointed out the difficulties of the problem, Lord Kilmaine withdrew his motion. He had introduced it after referring to the showing here last summer of a film produced in Canada by social hygiene authorities.

Lord Kilmaine suggested three kinds of certificates; one showing that the parties were fit to marry; another stating that for reasons of health the marriage should be delayed; and a third stating that for reasons of health the parties could

STATE HEALTH INSURANCE THE KEYNOTE OF HOSPITAL MEETING

Miss Gray Has Resume of Annual B. C. Gathering

State health insurance was the keynote of the 17th annual convention of the British Columbia Hospitals association held in Victoria during October, Miss K. Ethel Gray, superintendent of Kootenay Lake General hospital, told the hospital board Tuesday night.

Miss Gray's report followed the general board meeting and in part, she said:

"The outstanding discussion at the meeting was the matter of state health insurance. The honorable, the provincial secretary, in his address of welcome, stressed this point and hoped that a full discussion of this subject would be undertaken at the meetings. It was not a question of finding more money but rather getting more benefit from each dollar expended. He spoke of the protection afforded by fire and police but the protection given the body, and which, of course, could not be replaced, it being the only one we would have, was more or less left to fend for itself. Another point he brought out was that the plan, to be effective, must be province-wide and rest upon a compulsory basis. Public health has come to be regarded as quite as vital a factor in national well-being as is public education. State health insurance is admittedly a step in this direction.

"Mr. Neill, in opening the discussion, disagreed with the commission report that state health insurance would solve the problem of hospital costs, nor solve the question of the indigent patient. It would not be wise, he said, to embark upon such a scheme if it meant further taxation. Many people, however, would welcome voluntary assessments that would reduce hospital costs to their families.

Dr. Haywood told the gathering that there was no example to follow for state health insurance.

LESS VALUABLE THAN PROPERTY

J. H. McVety asked when, however, did human life become less valuable than property? What would be the reaction if a municipality decided that only taxpayers were entitled to fire and police protection? To be effective, he said, it must cover all people and the fairest way to put the scheme into effect was by taxation, such as the 1 per cent tax. State health insurance should be all-inclusive, no matter how much a man had.

W. H. Boothroyd of Alberni discussed the voluntary system in effect on the west coast, where mill employees pay 75 cents a month and receive maternity, operating room, x-ray, stock medicine and bandage services for any member of the family up to 18 years of age. Doctor's services are not included. The system had shown a profit of $2000 on actual hospital costs. Voluntary membership was available for $9 a year entitling three months' hospitalization.

$1,170,000 UNPAID BILLS

"Dr. Weir stated that the government was making no commitments, but the scheme would be framed on an acturarial basis. The government was now paying $150,000 a year for indigents and others in ill health and statistics show that British Columbia hospitals had $1,170,000 unpaid bills last year. Throughout Canada 62.4 per cent of the people were unable to afford nurses.

"Adam Bell, chairman of the board of industrial relations, gave an interesting address of the minimum wage. Hospitals are not included in the Hours of Work act and up to the present there are no regulations applying to the minimum wage of employees in hospitals. The act merely empowered the board to make investigation in the event of application for such investigation and fixed such wages as they deem equitable. It was stated, nevertheless, that some applications had been received from hospital employees. Canada has had laws in effect since 1918. The Hours of Work act passed in British Columbia in 1923 and effective in 1925 was designed to cover industrial operation but up to the present no steps had been taken to employ Hours of Work act to employees in hospitals. Mr. Bell stated that the matter rests in the hands of those in control in the administration of hospitals and he hoped that an intervention would be unnecessary.

"Mr. McVety stated that because hospitals were not operated for profit, the orders for the minimum wage board were ultra vires.

"Mr. Bell stated that the question had never arisen in that particular sense and legal application had never been tested and he hoped the matter would never require legal interpretation.

"Mr. Witers reminded the meeting that it was up to the hospitals to watch their step and that a word to the wise would be sufficient.

FORGOTTEN MAN

"Mr. Coady, in summarizing the discussion, pointed out that the principle behind the operation of the Minumum Wage and Hours of Work acts, was an attempt to protect the forgotten man.

"Another interesting discussion was on the superannuation of hospital employees. This matter will be considered by a special committee of the British Columbia Hospitals association who were asked that in considering any plan it should be on the basis of a contribution on the part of the employees. Miss Randal thought any superannuation scheme would be feasible only so long as it had the support of all hospitals.

"Sister Mary Gabriel intimated any proposal to institute superannuation would be unfair to the hospitals at the present because of the additional burden. It was estimated that a scheme would cost 5 per cent of the payroll.

COMPENSATION BOARD

"The workmen's compensation board seemed to be in better favor with the Hospitals association. There had been a noticeable reduction in the workmen's compensation board accounts in the Vancouver General hospital, due, in part, to the periodical examination by one of the hospital surgeons of the workmen's compensation board cases.

"Dr. Bell reminded the meeting that the act called for such inspection of cases and it should be insisted upon. Miss K. Ethel Gray, superintendent of the Kootenay Lake General hospital, Nelson, read a letter from C. F. McHardy with reference to the amendment of the act so that patients could assign their compensation to the hospital to take care of any difference between what the compensation board paid the hospital and the total hospital account. This did not meet with the approval of the meeting because the principle of the workmen's compensation board is that the patient must receive necessary hospitalization and was again strongly opposed by Mr. McVety and others.

"Dr. Agnew gave an interesting review of the Hospital association activities throughout the Dominion.

"A striking example of the advantages of vaccination was given in the report of one family of nine. Three of the children had been inadvertently vaccinated at school. The family being conscientious objectors were ready to sue the school board, when all of the family acquired the disease. The six unvaccinated persons died and the three vaccinated are the only members left.

"The value of occupational therapy was presented by Miss Margaret Rogers. Their activities were confined to sewing, knitting, weaving, carpentry, wood-work and other fairly simple tasks which diverted their minds from abnormal habits.

W.A. ACTIVE

"A report of the Women's auxiliary as presented by Mrs. A. C. Wilkes showed a continued interest in the various hospitals by the women of the community. In St. Paul's hospital in Vancouver, they met every Tuesday and 3876 articles had been made and 50 baskets of gauze had been reclaimed at a value of $6 each. At St. Joseph's in Victoria the Women's auxiliary had contributed $2932 and they met every Friday for sewing.

"Miss Helen Randal gave a review of the nursing situation in British Columbia. She had been asked to speak on this same subject 14 years ago and it was interesting to note the progress. There were then 21 training schools in the province as against nine now. The problems of the British Columbia nursing were the same as for all of Canada in regard to the distribution of nursing service. The survey of the nursing situation by Dr. Weir had crystallized all the imperfect ideas of the problem. The whole nursing system had started wrongly and now we are suffering from this apprentice system. To meet the accumulation of results of a poor system was the big problem confronting Canadian nursing. The nursing profession, too, was suffering from unemployment. Group nursing and an eight-hour day for private duty had helped to partly relieve this situation. Miss Randal entered a strong plea on behalf of the nurses who only received 50 cents an hour. She did not think there was a man living who would put in nurses' hours. She paid a glowing tribute to their services as the main spring of hospitals. She thought that there should be a graded scale of income according to their ability. She favored a system of interneship. For the benefit of laymen and nurses, Mr. McVety thought that the larger hospitals might be well advised to establish post-graduate courses in hospital administration.

"Miss Mable Gray, in speaking of British Columbia responses to the challenge of the nursing survey, said the first challenge was to nurse the sick and the second, to establish real schools of nursing. While there is much unemployment among nurses, 62.4 per cent of the people who are ill are not receiving the adequate nursing care.

"President Coady very ably reviewed the year's work of the British Columbia Hospitals association, touching on the question of increased hospital grants, the Hospital act amendment, state health insurance, educational work and other matters. The question of hospitalization, he said, was more and more coming to be regarded by the public was something to which they were entitled by right.

THREE RESOLUTIONS

"Three imprtant resolutions were adopted. The first requested the amendment of the Hospital act requiring municipalities that did not assume any capital obligation to pay $1.25 instead of 70 cents.

"The second resolution was to urge upon the provincial government the necessity of amending the act governing the workmen's compensation board, so that the board be required to pay for all services rendered by hospitals. The workmen's compensation board cases ordered by the medical practitioner.

"The third resolution set forth that smaller hospitals have been more or less forced to take patients from the Indian, national defence, and other departments of the federal government and other authorities, at a rate below the cost of treatment and requested the executive of the association to deal with the various departments on behalf of all its members when a request for such intervention was received.

"The executive was also empowered to negotiate with the department of national defence for a uniform and equitable rate for treatment of members of unemployment camps for all hospitals of the association.

"The Nurses association held three very interesting meetings. The morning session was held at the Royal Jubilee hospital with sectional meetings and Miss Winnifred Cooke will have charge of an exhibition of nursing procedures which will be given in connection with the morning session at Jubilee hospital.

"The reports from the Canadian national meeting which was the 25th anniversary were of special interest.

"Miss Grace Fairley reported on the Florence Nightingale Foundation scheme. The Canadian Nurses association had given a scholarship this year and the British Nurses association gave a scholarship of £250 honoring the Canadian Nurses association objective for the Memorial Foundation in the next five years is $2500, half to go toward the scholarship and half toward the endowment fund.

"Miss Elizabeth Grubb, Victoria welfare worker, gave a splendid address on social adjustment as relative to health.

"Altogether the meetings were very interesting and quoting from Miss Fairley's address at the dinner given by the provincial secretary to members of the executive and members of the department, she said she felt that many of the trustees should mak the effort to attend the meetings and learn something further of the problems of the executive officers."

FATHER STOLE BRIDE AWAY

So Court Awards Groom $500 on an Alienation Charge

VANCOUVER, Nov. 14 (CP).—Elmer Andrews, whose bride was virtually taken from his arms on their wedding night, has been awarded $500 damages against his father-in-law, Owen Farrington, by Chief Justice Aulay Morrison in supreme court here for alienation of his wife's affections.

After giving the bride away and staging a wedding party in his home on May 20, 1933, Farrington, the son-in-law alleged, followed the newlyweds to their home and insisted on his daughter returning with him.

Andrews claimed he objected, whereupon a fight ensued and Farrington allegedly knocked him down and took his daughter away. Andrews stated he took his wife to Agassiz, B.C., where he is employed, a few days later; but she soon left him for her parents and refused to return.

Gets Buck When He Finds Two Fighting

Deer are easy to shoot if one can get them fighting, according to a Nelson hunter. After tramping the hills all day without catching the sign of a deer, he suddenly rounded a corner to find two large, beautiful bucks with horns at work and earnestly engaged in a "survival of the fittest" game. He shot the nearest and the other forgot the argument and left in haste before the hunter could shoot again.

He added that reduced interest rates on a graduated scale are necessary if the municipality is to avoid defaulting when maturing debentures come due.

BIG PICKUP IN FOREIGN TRADE

OTTAWA, Nov. 14 (CP)—A great increase in Canada's foreign trade for the seven months of the fiscal year which ended Oct. 31 last, when compared with the corresponding period of 1933, is shown by figures issued today through the department of National revenue.

An even greater increase was recorded in imports which jumped from $241,216,915 for the seven-month period of 1933 to $10,966,108 for the period just ended. This was an increase of $69,749,194.

During the month of October alone total exports of Canadian produce amounted to $67,747,809 as compared with $60,488,720 in October of last year. Imports which entered Canada during October, 1934, were valued at $47,219,415, compared with $41,070,259 in October, 1933.

Fires Bullets at Chicken Thieves

One Man in Hospital Believed Victim of Policeman's Bullet

VANCOUVER, Nov. 14 (CP).—With a bullet wound in his back and stomach believed to have been inflicted when Detective Sergeant George Sunstrum fired on three men whom he caught breaking into his chicken house early today, Joe Rozenek is in a critical condition in the hospital.

Sunstrum, after receiving hospital treatment for a severe bite on his left arm and bruises on his face, reported to headquarters he had heard the sounds of men breaking into his chicken coop at the rear of his home and had rushed out to grapple with the intruders.

After a struggle during which the Sergeant was painfully bitten and beaten, the three men broke away. As they ran down the lane, Sunstrum unlimbered his gun and fired six shots at the fugitives, he said.

Mrs. Rozenek told police her husband had left home about 2 a.m. to visit a brother-in-law. About an hour later he returned, she said, and told her he had been shot, then collapsed on the floor. She immediately summoned an ambulance and had her husband removed to the hospital.

Rozenek, questioned at the hospital, is alleged to have told police he had left his home and was proceeding down the lane when he was struck by the bullet. He is reported to have denied that he had been in the vicinity of Sunstrum's home.

MINE ROAD TO BE PUT INTO SHAPE

Rossland Council Orders Work; Bond Offer Turned Down

ROSSLAND, B. C., November 14.—Little more than routine matters occupied attention at a regular meeting of the Rossland city council Monday.

A. H. Green Company requested that the road to the local mines be put in shape before winter comes. The matter was referred to the board of works and the work will be done as soon as the tractor is returned from Trail.

The complaint of John Phillips as to obstructions in the alley behind his home was referred to Constable McKay who will also make a clean-up of other alleys in the city. Several requests for street lights were referred to the fire water and light committee, and the question as to responsibility for condition of the sewer in front of the Bank of Montreal was referred to City Solicitor R. J. Clegg.

An offer from a Vancouver brokerage house to exchange 5000 British Columbia 4½'s due 1953, for a similar amount of the same bonds due 1951, with a cash premium of $100, was turned down for the reason that the due date was beyond the maturing date of the city's own obligations.

Children Play Big Part In Soviet Theater Plan

More Than 200 Theaters Produce Plays Exclusively for Them

By CORALIE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Writer

MOSCOW, Nov. 14.—I saw a magnificent representation of Shakespeare's "As You Like It" at the First Moscow Art Theater of Danielevsko. It was this show which caused the theatrical correspondent of the London Observer to exclaim: "It is overwhelming!" But I would rather tell of my investigations at the various Children's theaters, of which Russia now counts no less than 247 specimens.

CORALIE VAN PAASSEN

One of the species specially composed for children between six and nine years of age was called "The Little Negro and the Monkey," as pantomime in nine tableaux, written by Natalie Satz and Cergei Rozanoff, with music by Polovinkine. It was given in the oldest Children's theater in Moscow, the one founded in 1920 by Natalie Satz, who is now only 31 years old.

The theater has its own actors, composers, metteurs-en-scene. The direction invites each child, after witnessing a show, to send a letter of criticism. Hundreds of letters are received each day and they are carefully studied and some of them forwarded to the department of psychology. Others are seriously examined to find indications of what impressions the childish minds have received and what improvements may be made in the play.

AUDIENCE ALL CHILDREN

Today some important foreign visitors were present, but that was exceptional. As a rule the little spectators are all of about the same age. The price of the seats is the same throughout the hall, but the children are ranged according to their physical size, the tallest in the rear and the smallest in front. The great majority of the children this afternoon were well dressed. I paid particular attention to that. There were 5,000 children in the house.

The pantomine was broken up by short snatches of movies. Since the play had to do with a monkey, we were shown films of monkeys in their native habitats in the jungles of Africa and South America. I will tell you the plot of the play. But first I must say that on the left of the stage sat a negro woman, who introduced the different personages and who, in the course of the play made a number of explications.

In an African village, a little negro boy, named Nagua, takes part in a sport contest and wins the prize. He then goes hunting. The African forest is shown by means of a magnificent film, done by the great Dutch director Joris Ivens, who works for one of the Soviet cinematographic trusts. The negro boy meets a monkey, half famished and sick, whom he feeds, by sharing a large cake with him. You should have seen how realistically that monkey on the stage acted the part of being very hungry. When they are through eating and the monkey feels much better, a huge serpent approaches to attack Nagua. This time the monkey saves the boy. After that they form an eternal friendship. Nagua, who has been believed lost, goes back to his village with his new friend. They are received with great ado. The villagers were just busy celebrating the harvest of cane sugar, so there is much rejoicing.

TAKES TRAIN TO MOSCOW

Later during a promenade in the forest Nagua falls asleep and when he awakens he discovers that bad, white men have carried off his friend, the monkey. He runs after the captors, shouting for help, and the savage beasts of the forest, bears, lions tigers, come out of the jungle to help him. It is all in vain. For they learn that the bad men have boarded a boat for America and taken the monkey with them. Nagua, weeping and disconsolate, takes a train himself and this train brings him, miraculously, to Moscow.

He grows up in Moscow, becomes a pioneer of course, but he can never forget his monkey-friend. One day he goes to see a big circus at the Park of Culture and Rest in Moscow—now followed a film of the park with all its wonderful Coney Island attractions—when among the monkeys he recognizes his old friend. The monkey from his side also recognizes Nagua. They rush for each other, embrace, and with all his little friends and the monkey in his arms, Nagua leaves the circus. Together they return to Africa by airplane and Nagua devotes his life to tell the story of Moscow and the great new world of which it is the center to the inhabitants of the jungle villages.

FOLLOWS SOVIET IDEA

The play was breathlessly followed by the audience. There was surely enough action, emotion and purely spectacular elements in it to interest children. The "Soviet idea" which was expressed in this play consisted in suggesting mutual help, devoted friendship and generosity. That was the propaganda aspect of the play.

The piece was produced with great care. All the actors were adults of exceptional talent. The dancers were very curious. The costumes carefully selected. The audience was fascinated. First there was a great stillness, but when Nagua was missing, the children began to grow excited themselves. They shouted when the wild beasts pursued the captors and at least one little girl of about ten near my seat was frankly crying when she saw the scene of reunion between Nagua and his monkey in the Moscow circus.

In conclusion I may say this: With their taste and their innate talent for the theater, with their immense audiences, with the facilities provided by the state, not cramped by worry over expenses, the theatrical directors of Russia can produce any piece that interests them. They have an unlimited supply of actors and stage property and they have as many as fifty or sixty repitations before the play is finally given to the public. The result of such a situation and of such careful work cannot be otherwise than perfection.

The Soviets have the ambition to create a soviet morality, a soviet science, a soviet literature and a soviet theater. The first do not interest us here. What do they mean by a soviet theater? The theater, the directors say, must not be an end in itself, but a means in the service of the regime. It must be "at bottom socialistic, but in form national." This latter is what gives the theater its vigor and itspluse. For national in the U.S.S.R. does not mean Russian. National has the sense of minority in this country. The numberless nationalities of the Soviet Union find in the theater for the first time an opportunity to express and develop their national personality, so to speak. That the theater must at bottom be socialistic naturally limits the playwright and restricts invention somewhat.

Hindus Fall in Love After Marriage, Professor States

When a Chap Wants to Wed He Tells Parents and It's All Over But the Ceremony; No Courting Allowed

By HAROLD J. FAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Nov. 14. (CP)—Date bureaux would get a cold reception in native India; indeed the privilege enjoyed by young folks in Western lands of "making a date" with one of the opposite sex is still taboo in the social scheme of all classes in that distant empire.

When an Indian youth has a romantic urge and wants to take out his sweetheart like his Western brother it just can't be done. When he considers marriage he generally does no courting. In most cases he simply tells his parents he would like to marry so-and-so and if they approve it's all over but the wedding. All this and more was brought out by Prof. L. R. Sethi of Dyal Singh College, Lahore, India, in an interview discussing the place of women in his home land. He is studying on a Massey Exchange scholarship at the University of Toronto.

THE "NOBLER SEX"

The Indian women, however, is coming out into the world. She is displaying a courage and tenacity, a fortitude and love and a capacity for self-sacrifice and suffering that causes Gandhi to declare that the female is not the weaker but the nobler sex, Prof. Sethi pointed out.

Since the war there has been intense activity among the women of India but European civilization has not persuaded them to bob their hair and shorten their skirts or forsake their white, flowing robes —"Saris"—for European dress, Prof. Sethi explained. There is a strong feeling of nationality in the Indian women. No aping of European customs for them.

Women of India form organizations to campaign actively against foreign-made goods. They have the franchise in all British India and most natives states. Therefore, said the professor, they are a force in the political life of the country. One woman, Dr. Mathulak Shimi Reddy, was deputy president of the Legislative Council of Madras. There are women doctors and teachers, school inspectors and lawyers. Among the lawyers, Miss Cornelia Sorabji who visited Canada a year or so ago, has an international reputation.

HAVE MANY ORGANIZATIONS

As in every other land there are great names in connection with the rise of women's position in India. Mrs. Saroj Nadiu Dutt in 1913 organized institutions for the promotion of domestic science and hygiene, maternal and child welfare, while Mrs. Ramahai Ranade was the leader in the establishment of training schools for nurses and teachers. Like Western women, however, the Indians have their clubs. They call them "Purdah Clubs" and they meet in the exclusion of court yard or open garden for their activities.

Mohammedans are forbidden by law to have more than four wives, Prof. Sethi said, but Hindus may have as many as they desire. Realizing, however, the effect on the internal relations of the family they consider it best to adopt monogamy. The family is called a "joint family," the sons and their wives living with the sons' parents.

"You fall in love before marriage, we fall in love after," Prof. Sethi stated, adding he believed most of the marriages turn out successfully.

The Hindu marriage ceremony is sacred and the occasion of much feasting. It takes place about 10 o'clock at night or in the early hours of the morning. The groom comes to the home of the bride, led by a considerable procession. After the ceremony they return to his home. The dowry system, while still in vogue, is losing favor, young men considering the women more important than the fortune, Prof. Sethi declared.

Secluding their women is "becoming a relic of the past," and now the Indian women move freely through the streets with a "charming self-confidence and a peculiar grace about their walk," the professor remarked with some native pride.

PRUNING CLASSES ARE TO BE HELD

E. C. Hunt Receives Notice; to Be Held in Fall and Winter

The announcement of pruning classes to be held at various points in the district has been made by J. B. Munro, deputy minister of agriculture and W. H. Robertson, provincial horticulturist. Application forms will be sent out and these forms must be returned to E. C. Hunt, district horticulturist, at Nelson before the end of November. Classes will be carried on during the fall and winter.

The notice received by Mr. Hunt points out that in times of low prices for agricultural products, quality was of prime importance. Proper pruning methods would assist in the production of quality fruit. Also at any time poor varieties were of little value, and by learning to graft bud or top-work such varieties they could be made better and more saleable. The one day pruning school is free for all those interested.

The demonstration is of practical nature with advice on the theory of pruning and fruit bud formation. The question of grafting, budding, top-working of trees and the preparation of grafting waxes will be discussed as time and opportunity permits.

A one-day pruning demonstration will be held under the auspices of any responsible organization which will guarantee a minimum of eight pupils. Instructors are appointed by the horticultural branch of the provincial department of agriculture.

If the number wishing to attend the demonstration is greater than 12, a second demonstration can be arranged in the same locality under the auspices of the same organization, providing the minimum of eight guaranteed for the second demonstration.

Evening meetings can be arranged if considered advisable.

QUEEN'S CO-EDS MUST WEAR GOWNS TO LECTURE SAYS THE NEW DEAN

Miss Winnifred Kydd to Enforce Ruling; Smoking Room Provided

KINKSTON, Nov. 14. (CP)—Announcement that all women students are expected to wear gowns at lectures was an early development of the regime of Miss Winnifred Kydd, M.A., the new dean of women at Queen's University.

Miss Kydd also grappled quickly with the question of smoking among the women students. She provided the co-eds with a special smoking room in the basement of Ban Righ Hall, the women's residence, with a view to having cigarette smoking by girl students confined in close quarters.

Modelled on the lines of Glasgow University in Scotland were the gown was a traditional feature of student life, Queen's University since its opening in 1841 has always expected its undergraduates to wear the academic robe at lectures. In the early days the mortarboard was also considered essential to the properly clothed student. Nowadays this head covering is never seen here except on some of the professors in convocation processions.

Lately there has been disinclination on the part of many Queen's students to wear the gown. This was despite the fact the calendar year after year stated that students in arts and theology must be so robed in class. Quite a number of co-eds were with the opposition. There was much discussion on the question.

Dean Kydd has now settled it so far as the women students are concerned. Her request will be generally carried out in the arts, commerce and theology classes. It may not be insisted on in the science and medical faculties where the regulation has never been enforced by the Queen's authorities. This university, by the way, was the first in Canada to establish a medical course for women.

Dean Kydd is a graduate of McGill University, Montreal, where the gown is not obligatory for students. She was for many years very active in social service work in that city and is president of the National Council of Women in Canada.

NO TAX LEVIES IN U.S.A. PLAN

Jobless and an Old Age Insurance Is Roosevelt Idea

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP)—The broad outlines of a plan designed to make life more secure for the individual and thereby stimulate recovery were sketched by President Roosevelt.

The immediate objectives of the program the president has decided upon were:

Unemployment insurance of a co-operative federal-state form; the funds to be held and invested by the federal government; the benefits to be administered by the states.

Enactment of state laws to carry out such a program.

An effort to bring the persons now on relief rolls back into productive employment and thereby put them under the insurance system.

For a long range standpoint, he proposed:

A uniform system to provide security for the aged.

A method, perhaps through insurance, for providing against the economic loss due to sickness.

Mr. Roosevelt declared his unemployment insurance plan "must be financed by contributions, not taxes."

Other developments included:

The proposal by Mayor Fiorello Laguardia of New York of a long range program of unemployment insurance, public works and direct relief.

Broad general debate of the widely varying phases of unemployment insurance problems.

Discussion of reemployment possibilities, with a recommendation by John Carmody of the national mediation board that a $1,000,000,000 federal corporation be set up to build new railroad equipment.

TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

To Discuss Plans for Insect Control

OTTAWA, Nov. 14 (CP)—Plans for the continuation of the unceasing war on insect pests on a front extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific will be threshed out at a conference here on Nov. 26. The last conference of this kind was held seven years ago and the coming gathering is expected to have an imoprtant bearing on future policy.

TOOK TOO MUCH FOR HER CYCLE

LONDON, (CP). — Thirty-one years ago the villagers of Hatley Cockayne, Bedfordshire, attended a sale of the household effects of the rectory, and among them was a girl who bought the bicycle belonging to the late rector's daughter.

Lated, the rector's daughter, Miss Florence Brickwell, was seized with remorse because she considered that she had received too much for the machine. After the sale she moved to Sandown, Isle of Wight, where she died last March, aged 85.

And in her $60,000 will, she left $25 to her executors "to pay the same to the girl, if she can be found, who purchased my bicycle at the sale of the rectory effects." But inquiries made in the village revealed that the girl who bought the bicycle is dead.

DECIDE TODAY ON MILK MARKETING

VICTORIA, Nov. 14 (CP)—Milk marketing on the lower mainland, the main question before the provincial marketing board, will be decided tomorrow, one way or another, board officials intimated today. Mainland potato growers interviewed the board today in reference to a scheme of quotas for marketing their product in coast areas. After consultation with the board, the producers withdrew a written marketing scheme for further revision.

Sleep Rests The Nerves

The Great Nerve Centre is the Brain

Sleep is the resting time of the brain.
About once every twenty-four hours
The brain must have a long period of rest.
It cannot, like a watch, go on continuously.
During sleep this great nerve centre
Stores up a surplus of nerve force,
To meet the enormous demands of the day's activities.
When you are unable to rest and sleep
The nervous system becomes greatly exhausted.
You know that a restorative is necessary
To feed the starved nerves back to health and vigor.
The ideal restorative treatment
Is Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.
Since it forms new, rich blood
Its benefits are both thorough and lasting.

MANY SMILES AT ACTION ON HOCKEY

Rink Offer Thought Generous; Outside Players Needed to Strengthen Locals

The action of the hockey fans in forming a senior hockey association and a booster club resulted in many smiles and much talking in Nelson Wednesday. People who had expected no move to be made toward a team this year were agreeably surprised at the steps taken. The offer of the Rink company was termed as exceedingly generous and it but remains with the weather to add the finishing touches.

Repairs were made to the rink and the roof is in good shape once more. It is ready for use this winter.

Many questions have been forwarded as to who will be playing for Nelson this year. At the meeting Tuesday night local fans expressed the wish to see some of the local talent performing but it was also stated that the locals would need considerable strengthening to compete successfully with the other teams of the league. Some outside players will most certainly have to be brought in.

The delegate for the senior team to the B.C.A.H.A. meeting at Rossland Saturday has not been named as yet.

PROPAGANDA CAMPAIGNS OF UTILITY COMPANIES "PAID FOR" BY PUBLIC

Such Is Charge Made in U. S. by Federal Trade Commission

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP).—A "propaganda" campaign, paid for by the public and of greater magnitude than any other ever undertaken, "except possibly by governments in war time," was laid to the utilities companies of the United States today by the federal trade commission.

That conclusion was reached by the commission in its six-yearlong study of utilities, and was contained in the first instalment of a final report. Later, recommendations will be made, probably suggesting that utilities be required to identify clearly propaganda material.

Today's report questioned the right of a publicly granted monopoly such as a public utility, to use money collected from the public "to perpetuate itself through the control of public opinion."

The commission found every public method except "sky writing" was used in attempts to influence the public.

"The total results which have been secured from all the various activities cannot be measured," the commission said.

"But to such an extent has the utility program taken into consideration 'every public contact' (quoting a witness) that no campaign approaching it in magnitude has ever been conducted except possibly in war time.

The record indicates very substantial results both in increased public good-will, and in a decrease in the number of legislative measures to which the utilities are opposed.

In emphasizing that the work was worthwhile, M. H. Aylesworth, then the director of the National Electric Light association, advised utility executives not to be afraid of the expense in permitting large numbers of their employees to attend conventions, because 'the public pays.'

Fresh Flowers Adorn Cenotaph

Wreaths and sprays placed at the base of the cenotaph on the Armistice anniversary were a public tribute to the fallen of the Great War, but throughout the flowering season, as in previous years, the monument has been kept enshrined in fresh flowers.

S. King, J. M. Dronsfield, R. Eunson, A. Dolphin, G. A. Fletcher, J. B. Gray, J. Hamlet, W. Jasper, B. Lowery, H. B. Penny, and William Rutherford, and from Lakeside park by Caretaker T. Bishop.

SIR ROGER KEYES SCORES LONDON NAVAL CONFERENCE

SIR ROGER KEYES

Believes That Every Country Should Have Defence

By Central Press Canadian

NEW YORK, Nov. 7—The bigger the boat the bigger the show and, being a show of particular historical significance to the French, it was apparently a case of their providing the larger show!

At least that is the inference drawn from the critical remarks passed by Sir Roger Keyes, admiral of the fleet, of Dover patrol and Zeebrugge fame, just before he sailed for England the other day.

Admiral Keyes, who was an official delegate to the Jacques Cartier celebration in Gaspe, Canada, asserted that the French government had sent to the celebration the destroyer Vaquelin, a ship of 2441 tons.

"The best we could do for naval representation," he said, "was the destroyer Saguenay, which displaces only 1320 tons."

SCORES TREATY

Breaking his silence observed earlier during his visit, Sir Roger characterized the London naval conference as unsatisfactory.

"The London conference gave a chance for France and Italy to walk out and take advantage of the situation, leaving the rest of us in a queer position," he said. "The French have gone ahead and built destroyer leaders that are vastly superior to ours, while we have bound ourselves to the London conference rules."

Sir Roger said that the British navy would be lacking in cruisers by the end of 1935 when at least 14 of the 50 cruisers allotted by the London conference would be "fit for the scrap heap."

"I believe that every country has a right to have sufficient cruisers to guard its possessions and trade routes," he declared.

"I realize the value of airplanes in attacks upon capital ships," Sir Roger said, "but I firmly believe that the battleship is just as vulnerable to submarine dangers as to attack from the air."

Tomorrow's semi-finals are of 36 holes and the Scots' rivals are Jimmy Hines and Willie Klein, long-hitting Long Islanders.

Klein and Hines hugged par figures this afternoon in beating Ed Dudley, Philadelphia, and Al Ciuci, Flushing, L.I., 2 and 1, after their rivals previously had eliminated T. Philip Perkins, former British amateur champion, and Emmett French, former Ryder cup captain, 2 and 1.

In the lower bracket, Johnny Revolta and Billy Burke will oppose Willie MacFarlane and Joe Turnesa. Revolta and Burke turned back Tom Creavy and Herman Barron, 2 and 1, in the quarter-finals while MacFarlane and Turnesa were winning from Henry Picard and Clarence Owen by the same score.

Fewer Commercial Failures in Canada

OTTAWA, Nov. 14 (CP).—A decided decrease in the number of assignments under the Bankruptcy and Wind-up acts, as reported to the Dominion bureau of statistics, was recorded in September compared with September, 1933, while the liabilities of the assignors also showed a pronounced decrease. Commercial failures numbered 113, compared with 155 in the same month of the previous year, and 103 in August, 1934. The estimated liabilities of the assignors, amounting to $1,628,000 compared with $2,345,000 in September, 1933, showed a marked decrease. When compared with $1,361,000 in August, a large decrease was again observed.

The culminative total of commercial failures for the first nine months of 1934 were 1159 compared with 1585, 1792 and 1581 for the same periods of 1933, 1932 and 1931 respectively.

The total failures in trade in the first nine months were 614 compared with 840, 872 and 790 for the same periods of 1933, 1932 and 1931 respectively. In manufacturing, 163 failures in the elapsed period of 1934 may be compared with 297, 350 and 343 in the same periods of the three preceding years.

Afforestation Is Urged in Britain

Lord Derwent Claims Canadian Timber Being Depleted by Forest Fires

LONDON, Nov. 14 (CP Cable).—Substantial increase in afforestation in Great Britain was urged in the house of lords tonight by Baron Derwent, and received a sympathetic hearing by the government.

Lord Derwent said it was "deplorable" that the United Kingdom should depend for more than 60 per cent of its timber on virgin forests in foreign countries, which were being steadily depleted.

Importations from the Empire, he pointed out, fell from 22 per cent of the total consumption in 1891 to 10 per cent in 1931.

"Every year we are becoming more dependent on Russia," said the youthful peer, who incidentally lists "exercising patience with the national climate" as his chief recreation.

"The Canadian forests, which are being rapidly depleted by fire, are the only source on which the United Kingdom can fall back if supplies from Russia fail.

OVER 80, HE'D RATHER WALK

Veteran at Goatfell Says His Mother Still Living

GOATFELL EAST CAMP, B.C., Nov. 14.—Mr. Barrow, of the Goatfell West Relief camp, was a guest of Major C. W. James here. Mr. Barrow, although past four score years of age is hale and hearty and would rather walk than ride.

He states that his mother is still living in England.

C. Radford, formerly on the C.P.R. staff at Yahk, has taken a position here as timekeeper succeeding Thomas Wickenham, who has taken a position on a newspaper at Rossland.

Harold Westcott is here in charge of stores, which position was made vacant when Fred Coffee Sr., left for the Moyie-A. ridge camp to take a similar post.

Several of the boys who came from Prairie points have left on Monday on an "inspection trip" of British Columbia. Having been on the plains the greater part of their lives they felt the call of the hills.

Goatfell East camp can boast of having as a blacksmith, John McKinley, a "forty-niner" who was among those who migrated from the east to California in search of gold. Mr. McKinley is still hale and hearty for his years.

Receives 10,000th Letter in a Year

VICTORIA, Nov. 14 (CP).—An interesting sidelight on the work of cabinet minister was provided today in the office of Hon. George S. Pearson, minister of mines and labor and commissioner of fisheries for British Columbia.

Records kept by Mr. Pearson's secretary showed that today, just one day short of a year since he took over the office, his 10,000th incoming letter was stamped "received."

It is quite a job for one man to deal with 10,000 inquiries and communications, even in a year, especially when he has a host of other work to do as well.

Mr. Pearson's mail is probably the heaviest of any of the cabinet ministers because he handles so many departments. In addition to mines, labor and fisheries, unemployment relief also comes under him and is the reason for not a few letters.

HARY ANGELL LAID TO REST

Many Attend Funeral of Popular New Denver Man

NEW DENVER, B.C. Nov. 14. — A great gathering of friends of Harry John Gordon Angell assembled at St. Stephen's Anglican church, New Denver to attend the funeral of this popular old timer. Rev. A. D. MacMorine conducted the service and the choir led in the hymns "The Sands of Time Are Sinking," and "Peace, Perfect Peace." The service closed with the singing of the "Nunc dimitis."

Six close friends acted as pallbearers. They were C. F. Nelson, H. Wallbaum, T. Avison, H. Woolley, J. Vallance and E. Tingle.

Mr. Angell was born at Rumsey House, Calne, Wiltshire, England, in 1880 and was educated at Malvern school. He was trained as an electrician at the City of Worcester Power Plant. In 1904 he came out to Canada to New Denver where he had resided since.

He became associated with J. C. Harris in the New Denver Waterworks in which he was the largest shareholder and had acted as bookkeeper up to the time of his death. Harry, as all his friends called him, suffered from a nervous disease which has incapacitated him from active work for some years, but he met this misfortune with great pluck and was always friendly and interested in all the life of New Denver. The waterworks office has been a great gathering place for the citizens and Harry will be greatly missed.

START WORK ON CEMENTING ALLEY

Cement Alley Between Baker and Victoria Will End Drainage Problem

Work was started by the public works department on the cement project for the alley between Baker and Victoria street in the 500 block. The work was authorized at the city council Monday night and calls for a stretch of cement the length of the block, 16 feet wide.

The drainage in this alley has always been a great problem, both for the city and residents and business establishments in that section, and the cement work will do away with this difficulty. There will be drainage down the center of the alley with outlets at either end.

The cement surface will be slightly lower than the present dirt surface.

don't . . . give children laxatives!

FOR years doctors have advised mothers to keep children regular with Quaker Oats. Now experts have discovered why Quaker Oats does this. They have found that most food lacks a certain regulatory vitamin Quaker Oats gives.

Children deprived of this vitamin lose appetite, become irritable—constipated. But when Quaker Oats containing this regulatory vitamin is added to their diet, they eat heartily and constipation and irritability disappear.

This vitamin is commonly called the "yeast vitamin"—and it has been found that a dish of Quaker Oats contains more of this element than 3 cakes of fresh yeast. And remember, Quaker Oats are also irradiated with Sunshine Vitamin "D".

RAISING THE BABIES

The Dionne quintuplets have furnished more newspaper copy for the world during the last five months than any babies born into this world since time began and it is safe to say that they will continue to be a source of copy as long as they live. In general, too, it must be said that what has been printed about them has been of interest to all ages and all classes and thanks to the action of the Red Cross Society and other organizations there has been no opportunity to exploit the children or their parents in any way.

There is one phase of the publicity concerning the babies which may not have been generally recognized, namely, the educative effect of the detailed descriptions of the care and feeding of the children. All over North America, but particularly in Canada, thousands of parents have learned just what food is being given to these tiny children. Their weights have been reported in the newspapers almost every day. When they were first subjected to the direct rays of the sun this was duly chronicled. In brief, the newspapers of the country have provided a wealth of publicity on the general topic of handling babies.

One might wonder how many young mothers in Canada who have read just what Dr. Dafoe ordered for the Dionne youngsters promptly copied it. Perhaps Dr. Dafoe has aided more babies that he has never seen than babies that he has seen, and the Dionne girls may have been the means of securing scientific handling for a host of young babies in this country and in the United States who would otherwise have lacked it.

"WHAT THEY DID TO ME"

A motion picture actress, Margaret Sullavan, has contributed to Pearson's Weekly a very frank document which indicates how stage beauty is acquired. She has appeared in two pictures—"Only Yesterday" and "Little Man, What Now." For the first she was engaged at Hollywood at a salary of $1,200 a week, and even before her arrival there her renovation commenced. A peremptory telegram to New York bid her "remove that wart" which she had always regarded as a beautiful mole to the left of her nose. She had it removed, and arrived at Hollywood with, as she says, the mark of removal making her look "perfectly horrible." Immediately an army of experts, men and women, was set to work on her. Only her eyelashes were approved. All her eyebrows were plucked out. Most of her upper teeth were taken out and replaced. Her upper lip was decreed to be too long; her face was described as lopsided, her mouth as drooping on the right side, her right jaw lower than the left one. All these "defects" were corrected by a generous application of lipstick and paint. There were experiments before the camera with different shades of powder and make-up, with shadows and high lights, each face being tried under a different kind of lighting.

When all was prepared the tests commenced, and Miss Sullavan, in her make-up, was asked to be natural. For a long time she failed to succeed to the satisfaction of the cameramen. It then appeared that her chin was giving all the trouble! it was not long enough. It was lengthened, and at last she appeared as a beautiful girl. Miss Sullivan tells how throughout her experiences she was jumpy and was always in a panic. One scene, she says, was shot sixty-seven times. Through it all the publicity department was "telling the world" all about her. Its representatives asked her questions—what she thought of love, which movie actor she would rather be kissed by, if she had been married or divorced.

"So far," says Miss Sullavan, "I have been able to resist buying a garish mansion with elaborate swimming pools and a freak car, although the salesmen assured me that I am ruining my career. In short, they think I am insane. Hollywood and I have been together for about five months; one of us is certainly crazy. My performance in 'Only Yesterday' was, according to one New York paper, 'flawless,' and the picture a 'hit.' A few days later I went to see myself in my first motion picture; but I wasn't looking at Margaret Sullavan. I was looking at a rather charming creation of expert and patient men and women. Whatever talent I may possess was built with their hands and brains and magnified. And the critics said that Margaret Sullavan was good."

WHAT THE PRESS IS SAYING

ALBERTA'S CODE

Alberta is not going to rush into the code business. It has appointed a dictator of business and a staff of administrators and now halts. No codes will be tried out on business until some second thoughts are digested. After all the hurry it is doubtful if the province has not gone beyong its legal powers in the Alberta Trade and Industry Act. There are serious doubts about its constitutionality and Albertans have graver doubts as to the ability of the administrators to establish a scheme of fair and reasonable price, wage and sales control for all people.—Brandon Sun.

COBBLES DISAPPEARING

The flat cobbles, or setts, which have for many years given the industrial cities of Lancashire an old-fashioned and almost continental flavor, wil soon be a rare sight, indeed. For they have also given the cities of Lancashire the noisiest roads in Britain, and now local authorities are rapidly replacing the setts with modern road surfaces. Preston is exchanging the cobbles for concrete. Wigan for tar-macadam, Burnley for patent surfacing. Even Manchester, staunchest supporter of the setts hitherto, is resurfacing its streets. — Chirstian Science Monitor.

Between You and Me

By J. B. C.

I GET A REST

I don't have to write a column today. As I was in the midst of one G. S. Rees walked into our editorial sanctum and handed me a letter. It deals with the recent calling down I received, and my English friends received, at the hands of George Miller. Mr. Rees goes into the question much further than I could hope to do, and I'll pass it along to you.

A WELSHMAN'S VIEWS

To the Editor:

Sir—I note that your editorial page columnist has incurred the wrath of one "George" in respect to an English-Scot anecdote. The former's reply to George's denunciation of the English was aptly diplomatic and tempered with the desirable quality of fairness. No good purpose will be served by discussing the relative merits and demerits of national characteristics, with invidious comparisons, for of such disputations come strife and bloodshed. A too intensive nationalism was one cause of the world war. It is the acute consciousness of nationality that breads distrust, fear and deprecations between the civilized races, and sets them at each others' throats, after the manner of wild beasts, with what benefit, the world at large has so far been unable to determine or satisfactorily demonstrate. The slight "teacup tempest," however, may happily serve as a peg on which to hang some impersonal observations regarding the English people, whose descendants have adventured forth far and wide, and

"Who have sailed wherever ships could sail,
And founded many a mighty state.

Writing as a Welshman, it is safe to say that there is no such people as the English, nor probably the Welsh! They are the most mixed race on the earth. Tennyson's "Saxon and Norman and Dane are we" is but part of the truth. The English peoples are comprised of the dark Stone age peoples, and the red-headed Celts, or Saxons, Angles, Jutes, Danes and Normans, and, in more modern times, of various successions of immigrants—Flemings, Huguenots and Jews—to which last named the Island has given a home and a country.

ROME AND CARTHAGE

The name England, of course, comes from the great invasion that followed the break-up of the great Roman Empire, that is, the invasion of the Saxons, who came from the Frisian coast, and were a people, fierce, savage and with the sea in their blood. The ages when they were conquering England and settling in it have more right perhaps to be called the Dark Ages than any period in English history since the time of Christ.

The Norman peoples, perhaps one of the greatest races that has ever lived on this earth, though French in a sense, were in essence gallicised Scandinavians, first or second cousins of the Vikings, who had settled in the valley of the Seine. Norman arms and Norman prowess were known and respected by all with whom they had dealings, including the Britons. Such dealings were mostly of the "crack your skull" and "you're it" variety! A nation of warriors, a people of comparative learning with a knowledge of law and of government, who brought to "Angleterre" a sense of unity, of nationalism, and an ordered government. To cut a long story short, with a century and a half or two centuries of Norman rule, the English people was welded into one more or less homogeneous whole. And here it may be added, the English of today, the earth of England, at least, has been plowed, planted, stocked, built on and to a considerable extent moulded into what it is by Englishmen, and they, with their inherited memory of it, and their conservative love for the old loves yield to no man, not even to the nostalgic Scot, in their deep abiding affection for the land of their fathers. The Englishman is proud of his roots; years of ridicule of his so-called stubborn conservatism have merely strengthened his stand in opposing radical changes. Centuries have taught him that the good in new things will inevitably remain to be woven into the lives of the people. In the meantime, he will oppose what seems to him valueless. The monarchial system is a good example. The strength of England's kingship is that it is rooted deeply in English life; it is something that overrides and survives crazes of fashion and opinion, and has proved its worthiness in the days of "sturm und drang."

The English people will not scrap an institution they have proved for one that might not in the least suit their particular—peculiar, if you like—temperament.

"FESTINA LENTE"—MAKE HASTE SLOWLY

As John Galsworthy, the novelist in his "Over the River" writes—"The old order has many excrescences, but now the housebreakers are in, one does see that you can smash in an hour what has taken centuries to produce, and that unless you can see your way pretty clearly to replace what admittedly was not perfect with something more perfect, you're throwing life back instead of advancing it."

It is difficult to analyse the qualities of the Englishman in contradistinction to his island home partners, the Scotsman, the Welshman and the Irishman. As before mentioned, the English are not a distinctive race, but are an amalgam of many races, each with definite characteristics of its own, a mixture of Iberian, Briton, Roman, Saxon, Dane, Norseman and Gaul.

These constitute the main ingredients in the English type, and they are mixed in very different proportions in different areas of England, as every overseas visitor soon ascertains in his pilgrimage hither and you in the old land. And so, bearing this all in mind, we can see how the Englishman has developed a profound respect for law and order—that is part of his tradition of self government from his Norman forbears. An ordered liberty, not a disorderly liberty, nor what invariably follows, tyranny. And ordered liberty, my friends, is at present one of the rare things in this topsy turvy world.

TO HUMAN SENSE

The Englishman has inherited, fortunately or unfortunately according to the way you look at these things, a strong fighting sense—though it is not a military nation, coupled with a stubborn staying power, not easily rattled, and retaining an enviable serenity in time of great national trials. Like all other nationals, the masses, when their ancient instinct of loyalty to the tribe is given the objective stimulus of a real or apparent menace, do not count the horrors of war, but follow the brass bands to the recruiting depots!

BACKS TO THE WALL

There was a tenacity of purpose and an endurance that carried him and his fellow partners in the British Empire through all the vicissitudes of the world war till an enemy cried "Kamarad," when the allies were, one by one, sagging under the cruel burden.

The Englishman's most lasting inheritance perhaps is his love of adventure that has cropped up time and again from time to time in English history and which one hopes will ever be retained.

And there is also the sea-sense that is his accepted heritage the sea traditions of his Scandinavian ancestors. This sea-sense is the outcome of generations of salty island blood, and the sea itself — "The bright blade of the sea against which mankind can everlastingly test its heart" ever stirs his ancestral dreads and prides. English history particularly has lain upon the sea, and the call of the sea—the salt unplumbed estranging sea—stirs within our race as quick response, for there is the tang of the sea in our nostrils, and the essence of the sea-tradition in the blood of an island race, and with such an ancestry. It is incomparably our conceded heritage. England's story is the story of an incessant toil over the centuries across the seven seas, grimly stained with blood and brine, and it will be her greatest memorial.

And so, in conclusion, with an apology for writing at length, let this letter conclude with some recent words uttered by Stanley Baldwin, a typical Englishman, walking stick, pipe and all.

"If these things be true; if these few qualities and characteristics be, in fact, the characteristics of the English people, I say that such qualities were never more needed in the world. With our pertinacity, our love of freedom, our respect for law, our respect for the individual and our power of combining in service; indeed, in our strength and in our weakness, I believe, from my heart, that our people are fitted to pass through whatever trials may be before us and to emerge—if they are true to their own best traditions—a greater people in the future than they have been in the past."

"True to their own best traditions." That is the keynote, and applicable not only to the English, but to the Scot, and Irish and Welsh, and any other admixture of racial blood you have a mind to put a name to.

INDIVIDUALS MAY BE SENSITIVE TO RHEUMATISM

BY JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

It has been definitely proved that infected teeth and tonsils cause rheumatism and yet there are individuals with badly infected teeth or tonsils who have no sign of rheumatism whatever. This would tend to prove that some individuals fected teeth or tonsils.
fected teeth or tinsils.

Now this is not so strange after all, as we know that, while all of us may be exposed to the causes of hay fever or asthma—pollen from plants, certain chemicals, hair or fur of animals, foods, and other causes—nevertheless only about 15 to 20 per cent of the population is affected with these ailments.

The same holds true for cancer. Cancer is due to irritation but though we all may be exposed to irritation, only a certain number contract or develop cancer from the irritation.

When individuals are susceptible or sensitive to certain foods or other substances it is called allergy, and these individuals are said to be "allergic".

Thus we find that a number of research physicians now believe that rheumatism is an allergic disease; that is, some individuals are sensitive or susceptible to it and others are not.

Dr. Y. B. Eyger, Moscow, and other European physicians state that the body becomes sensitive or is sensitized by certain substances from within and without the body. Then chilling or dampness, which do not affect those who are not sensitized, produce in those that are sensitized various symptoms or ailments such as eczema, bronchial asthma and rheumatism. Sometimes the condition doesn't get located in the skin, bronchial tubes or other parts, but becomes a general condition like rheumatic fever. Later, symptoms occur in the special organs or tissues — muscles, heart, blood vessels, joints, nerves, skin, and throat.

As you know rheumatism is about the oldest disease known to mankind. It is common in damp climates. Great Britain being an outstanding example.

To avoid rheumatism we must prevent or remove all infections, cut down on starchy foods, and if we can't live in a dry climate, try to live in dry homes.

BERLIN KEEPS UP FINE FRONT

Berlin keeps spick and span as in untroubled times, writes Libby Benedict from the German capital. About its streets is an odor of cleanliness, the pleasant smell that one associates with a line of freshly laundered linen.

It is particularly noticeable if one has just come from Paris, which has its own aroma, more remindful of the mustiness of age than of recent submersion in soapsuds.

Berlin's streets are not only clear of litter; they glow with cleanliness, and seem nothing less than polished. At the moment, the task of keeping the city swept and scoured may be a little easier than it has been at other times because trade activity is not so widespread.

The shops and the department stores are far from bustling. Not one has a hundredth of the crowd of customers that packs a similar establishment in Paris. Yet the display windows of the Berlin stores have not become less attractive. And inside, saleswomen stand guard over scarcely patronized counters, which are nevertheless handsomely and fully prepared for service.

So the cafes and the streets are well filled, and the stranger may conclude "nothing is wrong." But the residents feel the higher prices, and not merely in relation to their own decreasing funds.

The marketing that three months ago took six marks out of the purse now takes out nine or ten marks.

The domestic harvest has been poor, in spite of the recruits sent out from the cities to do farm work and ease unemployment. Imports of staples from other countries have been cut down to adjust the trade balance. Germany is adjusting itself to substitutes.

One thing strikes a first-time visitor; the way the houses are numbered. A street begins with 1; then the numbers mount regularly, 1-2-3-4, along one side. This continues to the very end, even if it is miles. Then the number jumps across and continues mounting, all the way back to the beginning of the street.

"UP TO THE TRADE"

The fate of repeal, whether it ends in a return to prohibition or in increasingly repressive control of the liquor trade, still depends on the great majority who supported it as a temperance measure, sincerely believing that national self-control in the matter of drinking is both possible and desirable. In determining the final reaction of this great majority toward repeal, much obviously is going to depend on the post-prohibition attitude on the liquor trade.—Detroit News.

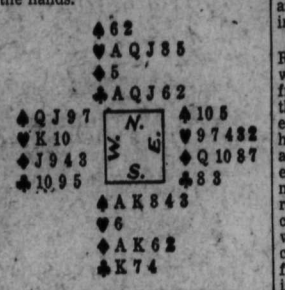
ILLUMINATING BIDDING

Sometimes unusual bidding proves to be most illuminating. I do not know how North and South could have made things clearer across the board, than by the bidding North utilized and which South readily grasped. See how you would bid the hands.



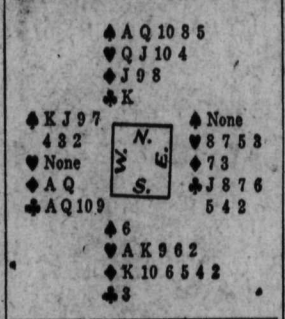
Bidding went: South, one Spade; North, two Clubs, wanting to see if his partner could bid Diamonds; South, two Diamonds; North, two Hearts; South, two Spades; North, three Clubs, merely to show its length and strength; South, four Clubs; North, four Hearts, to show that his Hearts were as good as his Clubs; South, six Clubs.

The opening lead was the most bothersome possible, the Eight of Clubs. Dummy won the trick. A Heart was led. The Jack won on a finesse. Dummy ruffed a low Heart, dropping the King.

Three rounds of Clubs pulled all opposing trumps. Dummy's top Spades took care of the two low cards of that suit held by the Declarer. North had run off two rounds of Hearts, dropping the King. His Ace-Queen of Hearts were good for two tricks. The Ace-King of Diamonds in dummy took care of the lone card of that suit held by North, and allowed the Declarer to also discard his single losing Heart. His hand was good for the balance of the tricks, and he spread his hand announcing a grand slam, or a trick above the contract. Of course it would not have been wise to bid seven, as West had to hold the missing King of Hearts to yield a grand slam. The interesting feature of the hand was the manner in which North held down bidding, to enable his partner to show control of Diamonds. North's rebid of his Clubs, followed by his jump into Hearts, plainly showed two good suits, leaving it to partner to determine the final call.

"MY GREATEST ADVENTURE"

An old friend in Istanbul writes: "My greatest adventures in the Levant was the following hand, played against two Turks and a Greek. Look it over tomorrow. My friend sat West. South made an opening bid of one Diamond.



VERSE

THE CHRIST

O perfect Life so strong and pure
I want to flee Thy blinding blaze
How can a sinful heart endure
Thy awful searchlight on his ways.

Where can I flee? One hiding place
Alone invites my guilty head,
O wonders of forgiving grace,
My refuge is the Christ I dread.

K. McN.

To a Partridge

Trying to detract my attention from her young, who could not fly.

Poor, cowering, trembling, fearful thing,
So keen of eye and strong of wing,
What deadly pains thy vitals wring
In sore defeat?
Why all thy powers for freedom fling,
Low at my feet?

Why soar not, in thy wanton flight,
Across the mountains fearful height
On through the changing shade and light,
Of forest's bower?

Why tear the earth and try to fight
Without the power?
Not for thyself, thy pity clings
To all thy little helpless things,
Who have no strength of legs or wings,
Thy mercies crave,
And dauntless courage in thee springs,
Their life to save.

Yet, poor and nedy as thou art,
To do a strong defender's part,
And know a mother's fearful heart
Still cannot from the fray depart
For infant life;
The human mother weaker still,
Combats the sleepless powers of ill,
Who strive her wingless brood to kill
By day and night,
And all her cherished hopes to fill
With withering blight.

It is the story often told
About the deadly thirst for gold,
How human souls are bought and sold
So fast and cheap;
That sordid Hell may have and hold
And firmly keep.

J. C. Harris Replies to "Farmer"

The Editor Nelson Daily News:

Sir—I rejoiced to read the well written letter signed 'Farmer' which you published today.

Again, I congratulate you on the excellent articles on Russia by your correspondent Madame van Paassen. The last on "love, marriage and divorce" have been especially interesting.

Common sense is prevailing in Russia and she is living down the wild excesses of her first taste of freedom. At first the Russians set themselves to study science, and especially applied science feverish haste. There came a speedy reaction and a great demand for literature. So the works of the great masters began to be studied and the range of books supplied soon became very large. Books on religion were excluded for a time, but how can history be taught without reference to religion? Again religion is so close to philosophy as to intermingle. Therefore the prohibition on books of religion is breaking down. It has been the same way with marriage, as Madame van Paassen well explains. Russia can compare with any other country for decent and stable marriage relationships.

But "Farmer" has utterly misunderstood my remarks on the drought situation on the Prairies. I have not advocated tree planting. I drew attention to two articles under the heading "Drought" which appeared in MacLean's magazine, November 1. All should read them for they show the tremendous problem that is facing Canada.

Our Prairies are perishing from drought, steadily deteriorating. What are we going to do about it? Does "Farmer" suggest that we should stand idly by? He himself seems to have pulled out and quit. Does he recommend this course of action? I agree that planting trees in a draught stricken, drifting soil is no remedy, but I do assert that the job must be tackled in at least the same spirit and with the same enthusiasm as we rushed to war.

There, then, are the Prairies perishing for want of water. There on the Eastern slopes of the Rocky mountains is a never failing supply of snow and rain. At present this water is allowed to run off and irrigate the ocean. There are enormous numbers of unemployed on this continent, magnificent human energy going to waste, plenty of engineering skill to direct it and plenty of food, clothing, building material, machinery etc. Why not save our country? Too expensive? Look at our public debt!

F. Stenson Answers P. C. Green

Editor, Nelson Daily Neys:

Sir—In your issue of Nov. 9, I notice the remarks of P. O. Green in answer to a letter of the District Engineer, E. S. Jones.

The bone of contention is the relocation and construction of the road from Appledale south to Vallican and involves the completion of the main highway.

In Mr. Green's mind there lurks some terrible logery of injury that will occur to him if the road is completed on the east side of the river.

He does well to charge his neighbors with self-interest when the inaccuracy of his own statements reveal such selfish prejudice.

What is it to him that some have waited over 20 years for this outlet to Nelson so that we can enjoy the same advantage of direct transit for our goods which they enjoy and ready access in case of illness?

Counting from Mr. Green's place to Vallican on the west side of the river are 16 families and on the east side 20 families who would be interested and would benefit by this completed road, irrespective of Doukhobor settlements.

This proposed road improvement is not however a purely local consideration but would be a very definite and beneficial improvement for through traffic and would obviate the unneccessary wear and tear to bridges and provide a shorter road and a more level grade than can possibly be made on the west side of the river.

Moreover if there are only five or six families on this side then surely Mr. Green can take comfort that the busses will go where the people are.

ENGLISH SOCCER ELEVEN WINS OVER ITALIANS BY 3-2 SCORE

Cy Moore Is Sold to Orioles Club

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14 (AP)—The Phillies today sold Austin "Cy" Moore, right-handed pitcher formerly with Brooklyn, to Baltimore Orioles of the international league, and took on three new payers.

The rookies are Keith Parks, right-hand hurler from Pennsylvanie state college; Art Bramall, an infielder with some minor league background and John Andrefski, who served in the middle Atlantic league for one year as a catcher.

Italy Should Have Got a Draw; Were Short One Man

LONDON, Nov. 14 (CP Cable).—In one of the greatest international soccer matches England has seen, the English triumphed over a crack Italian eleven today by 3-2 before a crowd of 50,000 that included many Italian supporters.

The Italians, who played superb football after being outclassed in the early stages of the struggle, were perhaps unlucky not to gain a draw. They battled all through the second half with 10 men, after being three goals in arrears at the interval.

SONGS ARE HEARD

Despite glum skies and an occasional drizzle of rain that kept the attendance down somewhat it was a gala day. The huge crowd, piling in long before the game, kept things going by singing English and Italian songs. Prince Arthur Duke of Connaught was among the spectators, and the teams were presented to him.

The English, with seven of the champion Arsenal club's players on their lineup, did all their scoring in the first half.

TWO GOALS IN 15 MINUTES

Brook of Manchester City scored the first two goals and Drake of Arsenal the third, all coming within a space of 15 minutes. The first was headed in and the second was scored off a free kick. Drake got his after the English forwards had combined in a smashing drive.

Meazze, Italian centre-forward, did all the scoring from then on, getting both Italy's goals within a few minutes. The first came after a fine combination thrust and the second on a free kick, the ball glancing in off the crossbar.

The Italians resorted to questionable tackling at times and there was some booing from the English supporters.

VANCOUVER TO OPEN PUCK WAR

Play at Seattle on November 23; Call Arnott Back

VANCOUVER, Nov. 14 (CP). — Vancouver Lions will open the 1934-35 Northwest Professional Hockey league schedule at Seattle on Nov. 23, Guy Patrick, manager of the Vancouver club, announced tonight. Portland Buckaroos were originally slated to meet the Seattle club in the opening tilt but Bobbie Rowe, Portland manager, asked for more time to get his club rounded into shape.

Jimmy Arnott, star defence man with Lions last year and now playing for London Tecumsehs in the International league, will play for Vancouver this year or he won't play organized hockey, Patrick declared. Arnott claims he is a free agent but Patrick stated he was registered with the N.P.H.L. and the N.H.L. as the property of the Vancouver club.

Walter McCartney, second string left winger with Lions will perform in a Calgary uniform. McCartney goes to Calgary under the agreement whereby the other clubs of the circuit were allowed to choose a player who was signed with the prairie club last year, in return sending a man to Calgary.

Jimmy Height, Saskatoon Wesleys amateur star, will try out for a place with Lions when they start their official training schedule tomorrow.

ORIOLES WIN SIXTH IN ROW

TRAIL, B. C., Nov. 14—Orioles won their sixth straight game when they defeated the Jimmies 29-22 in a fixture of the Trail City Basketball league division, in the Memorial hall Wednesday night. It was a bangup game all the way and considered the best of the ladies' division this season.

At times the Jimmies took the upper hand but their margin was soon cut down again by the victors. Jean Davidson of the Orioles and Mary Gripich of the Jimmies each scored 10 points.

The scores were:

Orioles—J. Davidson, 10; E. Bailey; M. Leckie, 2; L. Cusick, 1; M. Hartley, 6; R. Severn, 3; Y. Guillaume, 2; D. Edwards, 5.

Jimmies—Sue Wilson, A. Sapronoff, T. Mandeville, 7; M. Gripich, 10; I. Wright, 1; I. Ferguson; L. Sparunoff, 4.

PAT O'DEA IS TO SEE GAME

Famous Kicker of the Old Days Revisits Madison Field

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 14 (AP)—Pat O'Dea is coming back again from way down under.

The man who came out of the bush country of Australia 30 years ago to write the greatest chapter in Wisconsin's football history and then disappear to escape the tumult and shouting, came back to Madison Saturday to be the honored guest of the homecoming game between the Badgers and Illinois.

O'Dea, regarded as the greatest kicker who ever wore a cleated shoe in the United States, will come back to the campus he left to recapture amid scenes reminiscent of the past, memories of those thrilling experiences which brought him to the pinnacle of football fame.

Not only has O'Dea been absent from the campus for 30 years, but for 16 years he had been given up for dead, a victim of the great war. Twenty years ago O'Dea concluded his football fame was a handicap to him in business, so he dropped out of sight and assumed the name of Charles Mitchell. Only a few weeks ago did he reveal his identity when he was recognized, working in a lumber camp at Westwood, Cal.

As a spectator in Saturday's game, the famed Badger football star will recall another Illinois-Wisconsin game in which he played the hero's role. That also was back in 1899. The Badgers won 23-0, and three of those points were scored on one of the longest place kicks in the record books. O'Dea booted the ball from placement, 57 yards, and the emphasis he provided carried it 70 yards.

"DIZZY" SEES "THINKER" AS SAM BREADON

By AL DEMAREE

The celebrated "Thinker" carved by Rodin, the famous sculptor, has adapted itself to wisecracks by two of baseball's immortals, Babe Ruth and Dizzy Dean. The Babe, observing it for the first time, studied it for a moment, and then pulled this classic: "Babe Ruth, after being up four times and no blows."

Dizzy Dean's observation was equally as enlightening. Jerking a thumb toward the massive figure he chortled: "Ol' Sam Breadon figuring out how he'll dig up enough dough to pay Paul and me next year." Many a wisecrack hides a true word. When Branch Rickey receives their demands he will probably rip out the horrible oath "Judas Priest", which is the beginning and end of his profanity. Next to profanity, Rickey hates the word "nonchalant". When he was manager of the Cardinals there was an automatic fine for any player who said he "took a 'nonchalant' swing at the ball" or pitched a 'nonchalant' game."

Mack to Rebuild Athletics Again

PHILADELPHIA, (CP).—It takes more than a run of bad luck to defeat Connie Mack, the baseball veteran.

Prize optimist at 72, Mack is planning comeback for his team next season. Twice before in his career he has rebuilt after leaking up his club, and he figures he can do it again. The fact that the Athletics haven't drawn well at home this year he dismissed as "nothing to worry about."

"When times get better," Mack said, "attendance will bet better. I am facing the 1935 season without the slightest misgivine."

DAMON AND PYTHIAS

Branch Rickey, vice-president of the St. Louis Cards, thinks the Dean boys of diamond fame will end their pitching days together on the same club just as they began them. So great is their attachment that Rickey thinks it would detract from the ability of either were they playing with different teams.

U.S.A. DAVIS CUP PLANS NOT UPSET

Loss of Stoefen and Lott Not a Serious Blow

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP)—Defection of George Martin Lott Jr. and Lester Rollo Stoefen, world doubles champions, from the amateur tennis ranks, has not upset United States Davis cup plans or weakened the confidence of Walter Merrill Hall, president of the Lawn Tennis association, in the country's chances of giving England a brick challenge in 1935.

Loss of the world doubles championes may be considered generally as a distinct setback inasmuch as they scored the only United States point in the challenge round last summer, but Hall said it did not constitute a serious blow.

"For the singles we've got a pair of seasoned and reliable internationalists in Wilmer Allison and Sidney B. Wood Jr.

"Of course it's pretty early to forecast what will happen in June, but for the doubles there is Donald Budge and Gene Mako of the Pacific coast. This pair, I'd say, shows promise of surpassing the greatness of Lott and Stoefen as a team."

BOOSTER CLUB ALREADY ACTIVE

Have Ordered Seven Gross of Pins; Holding a Meeting Tonight

The Nelson Booster club, although only a day old, has been keeping things moving quickly and arrangements will be completed at a meeting tonight for a number of events which are expected to give the organization funds for support of the local senior hockey team.

The Booster club will operate entirely apart from the hockey executive, the former executive being composed of different people from the latter.

Pins have been ordered to the tune of seven gross for membership badges and when these are sold more will be obtained. The pins, like the Trail ones will be a hockey stick with "Nelson" on it instead of "Trail." The local ones will be gold instead of silver, also, which is the only other difference.

PROUD TO ADD

The Booster club was formed after the senior hockey organization Tuesday night and Herbert Pitts was named president of it. At first it was thought better to have a small objective but later this was opposed and an executive of about 16 was named with power to add to their numbers.

Both the hockey meeting and the booster meeting were enthusiastic showing beyond doubt that senior hockey is wanted in the city. By being separate from the hockey executive the Booster club can act as a kind of check. Its prime purpose is to supply funds, however, and it will have nothing to do with running the team, nor will the hockey organization have anything to do with conducting the Booster club.

Various members of the club have ideas for entertainments and these will be forwarded at the meeting in the Nelson Transfer show rooms tonight at 8 o'clock.

Hamas Wouldn't Fight in Germany

He'll Stay in New York and Fight Baer for Title Says His Manager

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP)—Denials that there was any chance of Steve Hamas and Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion, meeting in a return bout in Hamburg, Germany, next March, today followed reports from abroad that such a match had been made.

"Hamas isn't going to Germany to fight anyone," said his manager, Charlie Harvey. "Steve will stay right here and fight Max Baer for the heavyweight title in June."

Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling, said the former champion would arrive here in January, and was under contract to Madison Square Garden to fight Hamas in Miami in February.

WOULD-BE BALL OWNER IS ILL

Wentz Has Headache When Breadon Puts Up His Figures

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 14 (AP)—Louis Haines Wentz, Oklahoma oil multi-millionaire, had a headache today and delayed saying "yes" or "no" to Sam Breadon's proposition to sell him control of St. Louis Cardinals.

P. W. Prentiss, Wentz's secretary, said Wentz was "too sick to attend business yesterday but he is greatly improved today and probably will be entirely well by tomorrow." Prentiss described the oil man's illness as "nothing more serious than a severe headache."

"Mr. Wentz has Mr. Breadon's figure and is considering it." Prentiss said. "Nothing further has been done."

While Breadon's terms have not been announced officially, it is understood he is asking between $1,000,000 and $1,250,000 for his 77 per cent of the stock of the National league baseball club and its minor league "farms."

SOCCER FIGHT WAS STARK WAR

Most of English Team Suffer Injuries in Give-Take Affair

LONDON, Nov. 14 (CP Cable).—"It was not a football match—it was stark war," commented one of the critics tonight of the international soccer battle in which England defeated Italy by 3-2 this afternoon.

Hapgood of the Arsenal, the English captain, attended an evening dinner with the bridge of his nose stitched where a bone was broken. Nearly all the English players were injured. Brooks of Manchester City had his arm X-rayed; Bowden of Arsenal had a badly damaged ankle, and one of Drake's legs, according to a member of the English team, was "cut to ribbons."

The Italians did not escape Scot-free either. Minto, fleet halfback forced out at halftime, had a crushed toe and was unable to attend the dinner. Ceresoli, their brilliant goalie, was hurt in the groin. Several Englishmen, who had objected to allegedly questionable tactics by the invaders, said it was a battle, not a football game.

ALL STAR GRID TEAM STRONG

Eastern Teams Share Honors in Choice for Myth Team

By ELMER DULMAGE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

TORONTO, Nov. 14 (CP).—Built for speed and offensive power, a flexible giant of a gridiron machine with running, kicking, plunging halves, charging linemen and hard-tackling ends emerged tonight as the Canadian Press 1934 all-star Big Four football team. Its make-up was decided by the consensus of ballots cast by coaches and sports writers.

Overland or overhead this team would advance as surely as its glittering cast has advanced all season, rising above nearly-as-good performers to gain election in balloting that was so close the mythical team has 13 members instead of 12.

Mike Chepesuik of Toronto Argonauts and George Pigeon of Montreal share one inside berth.

The Canadian Press announced the Big Four all-stars as follows:

Flying wing—Abe Eliowitz, Ottawa.

Half—Frank Turville, Hamilton.

Half—Huck Welch, Montreal.

Half (secondary defence)—Len Morris, Argonauts.

Quarter—Bob Clark, Argonauts.

Snap—Lew Newton, Montreal.

Inside—Jim Palmer, Argonauts.

Inside—George Pigeon, Montreal and Mike Chepesuik, Argonauts (tied).

Middle—Pete Jotkus, Montreal.

Middle—Brian Timmis, Hamilton.

Outside—Semour Wilson, Hamilton.

Outside—West Cutler, Argonauts.

The Blonde Countess

By HERBERT O. YARDLEY

READ THIS FIRST

Pretty Joel Carter is secretary to Nathaniel Greenleaf, head of the U. S. "Black Chamber," where much of the real wartime secret service work is done. She dislikes Countess Thorlund, wife of the Scandinavian ambassador, who wants to work with Greenleaf. One of Greenleaf's assistants, Captain Bill Martin, is murdered while working alone at the "Black Chamber". He had just learned the identity of J-37, mysterious woman spy, and was attempting to telephone his discovery to Greenleaf when he was shot. Joel goes to the embassy ball and is ordered by Greenleaf to watch for a signal from him later in the evening.

(Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER 11

The taxi slowed to a crawl and became one of a long line. After a while they drew up and a most gorgeous doorman let them out. Greenleaf pair off the driver with a bill and they were, in a moment, going up the canvas tunnel, brightly lighted, and carpeted with a red strip on which the satin slippers of the ladies twinkled. Then they were inside and mounting the broad stairs.

"I'll meet you near the door," said Greenleaf nodding towards the entrance of the ballroom. Already she could hear the stringed orchestra playing and the heady excitement of the dance seized her. The cloakroom attendant took her wrap, and a moment later she was waiting her chance at the mirrors, one of twenty glittering creatures in marvellous dresses and some with even more marvellous jewels, necklaces, dog-collars, and tiaras. And wonderful exhibitions of backs, too. She thought critically that if she should ever wear such daring dresses, which she wouldn't, she'd at least look better than some of these women. But that was vanity, and when she powdered her nose and glimpsed her own modesly pretty face, she told herself firmly that though her back might be sufficiently plump she was certainly an undistinguished creature.

Mr. Greenleaf had straightened his tie, she observed, when she found him, and looked rather distinguished himself in a careless sort of way. His clothes fitted him better than the business suits he usually wore and he loked tall and spare and alert. She was, officially, rather pround of him.

"We'll go down the line and get it over," he said.

Rather an awful business she thought it. The hostess said a conventional word or two and passed her on. I'm even gladder than they are, she thought. Only the countess was lovely beside her undistinguished husband. She wore a pale green dress and her jewels were green. With her gold hair and blue eyes she seemed, to Joel, to sparkle like and iceberg. No, she's like a glass of champagne, Joel corrected herself, and that's how she affects men. For the countess said something to Greenleaf that she didn't hear but it gave him an excited look she didn't like.

"I'm so glad you've come," said the countess smiling at her not unkindly. "And I've not forgotten my promise to send you nice young officers. You will see."

"Thank God, that's over," said Greenleaf when they had got away from the line.

"I thought you liked it," Joel said maliciously.

"Only part of it," he answered, looking at her with a slight lowering of the eyelid suggestive of a wink. "And now if you'll favor me with one dance, I'll leave you free to have a good time. After dancing with me you'll enjoy the others more. Hostesses ask me for that purpose."

It wasn't really quite so bad as that, but his dancing was clearly not a calculated art. He goes at it as though he were solving a cipher. Joel thought, very systematic and businesslike. When the dance was over he said,

"Well, I didn't step on you. You must be a good dancer."

Whereupon he went away and returned with a young officer in a wonderful uniform. He was a Czech or a Pole or something, she guessed, and wore medals on his tunic. But his English was as perfect as his dancing and he said nice things to which she paid little attention because she was enjoying herself too much.

He was the first of many bright uniforms and she thought how well the army teaches them to dance, and how irreverently Jake would say, "That's all they have to do," which isn't so. And once she saw the dark Captain Duval dancing with the countess; she admitted reluctantly that they made a wonderful couple. Captain Duval had promised the other day to dance with her, but of course he'd forgotten.

He hadn't forgotten, and asked for the second dance after that.

"Captain Duval," he said.

"Of course, and I am Joel Carter."

"I could not forget," he said.

He danced as wonderfully as he talked, and his talk wasn't just polite nothings. He asked her about her home and her family and her work in a friendly interested way as though he really liked her. Yet all the time she had a queer sense that he was under some great strain, that he talked from only a part of his mind. He's thinking of something else, she thought. He's profoundly worried. Maybe it's about the war and the fate of the armies. Maybe his people are in danger, as his country is. All these people probably were thinking of something else deep down, all were deeply concerned. She felt, suddenly, that they shouldn't be dancing, any of them, and pretending they hadn't a care in the world. Yet she was doing just that herself and her brother was perhaps at that very moment on a destroyer plunging ahead in the dark sea, without lights into deadly danger.

Captain Duval brought her champagne cup, talked a moment, and then left her when one of her former partners claimed another dance. After which there was supper and more dancing until her wrist-watch told her it was after two o'clock, and still she had seen nothing of Greenleaf, though she'd looked often at the doorway.

Yet the next time she looked, he was there, caught her eye and nodded. Whereupon she made some excuse to her partner, and a moment later was beside him. He led her down the hall to a room which she judged to be one of the work rooms of the Embassy, a reception room, perhaps, for official visitors, for there was another room opening off it which contained desks. Greenleaf closed that door, also the one into the hall.

"Tired?" he asked.

"No."

"Have a good time?"

"Lovely."

He lighted a cigarette and leaned back.

"I didn't see you", she said.

"No, I was away on business. It's about that—"

He stopped frowning.

"I don't like you to be in on this," he said. "It will not be pleasant. But I want you to watch what goes on. A man is going to be questioned. I want you to watch him and try to read his thoughts and emotions if he tries to hide them, as he will. And I'd like, too, if you can, to give me your impression of the ambassador, our host tonight. He will be present. I have to do some talking and won't be able to watch these men as I'd like to. See?"

She said she saw and was aware of an unpleasant excitement, a rapidlybeating heart. Beneath all the artificial gaiety of the dance there had been this ominous something that she had sensed below Captain Duval's polite attentions. Now this something was coming out of its hiding and it would be dreadful. There was in Greenleaf a kind of grimness she had never seen before, and it was all the worse in that he tried ineffectually to hide it from her. Usually he was so successful in hiding his true thoughts and feelings from her that she felt paicky now that he could not. He was impatient, too. Every moment or so he glanced at his watch, and he threw away each cigarette half-smoked only to light another. It was ten minutes only that they waited, for she, too looked at her wrist-watch but it seemed much longer before the door opened and several men entered.

On, she saw with surprise, was the Secretary of War whom she had seen before and had talked to over the phone. The others were the Scandinavian ambassador, Count Thorlund, and a small dark, grave looking man whom Greenleaf introduced as the French ambassador, M. Talleyrand. Two other men, whom she took to be secret service men, stood a little apart by the door.

Hair-Dyer loses When Cook Sues

LONDON, (CP)—Judge Sir Alfred Tobin gave his views on women's hair during the hearing of a case against a hairdresser. "We always heard of grey hairs being treated with respect," he said.

When counsel commented that women did not seem to like it, the judge said: "the most beautiful thing a woman can have is beautiful white hair."

The action was brought by Mrs. Blodwen Gullick 40, a cook in a private house who claimed $500 damages from a hairdresser for injury to her head by alleged negligent application of a hair dye. She went to the hairdresser to get her hair dyed because it was showing streaks of grey. He applied a solution which caused a burning sensation. A doctor said she was suffering from oedema of the scalp and diffuse erythema—the one a swelling and the other a rash.

Mrs. Gullick was awarded $250 damages with costs, and Judge Tobin said he thought the case was of general importance. He held that it was the hairdresser's duty to warn women of any risk run.

MANY CHANGES ON LABRADOR CHARTS

CARTWRIGHT, Labrador, (CP). —Many changes will be made on charts of the Labrador coast as a result of the survey carried out during the summer and fall by experts aboard H.M.S. Challenger.

With the delicate instruments of their modern equipment, they were able to correct mistakes made during the last survey 40 years ago. In surveying The Run outside Cartwright, for instance, they found the previous chart was out one mile in latitude and half a mile in longitude.

Eager to complete as much work as possible before being driven off by ice, the Challenger's staff continued even while the ship put into Quebec for fuel and supplies in October. A party of 17, including two officers and two tide observers, was left behind when the Challenger sailed for the Canadian port.

THE DAYBREAK APPEAL WINS ON POINT LAW

Case Involved a Mine in the Kaslo Mining District

NO INNOCENT SHAREHOLDERS

So Says Judge; the Case Before Courts for 15 Years

VANCOUVER, Nov. 14 (CP)—Judgment of Mr. Justice D. A. Mc-Donald, awarding a three-quarter interest in a silver-lead and zinc mine near Kaslo, B.C., once reputed worth $1,000,000 to shareholders of the Gibson Mining company, Ltd., was set aside today by unanimous decision of the British Columbia court of appeal.

The shareholders, led by Mrs. Jinnie May of Vancouver, wife of K. May of Thompson Falls, Mont., have fought for possession of the mine for 15 years in the courts of Oregon, Washington and British Columbia.

Mr. Justice McDonald's judgment, delivered in supreme court here May 30, set aside a prior judgment of Mr. Justice Denis Murphy on the grounds it had been obtained on perjured evidence of Joseph Roberts, retired broker of Portland, Ore.

INNOCENT PARTIES

Mr. Justice Murphy's judgment, rendered on April 2, 1932, dismissed an action instigated by Mrs. May to recover the mine from the Daybreak Mining company, Ltd., His lordship then stated the plaintiffs had stood by more than four years with full knowledge that Roberts had transferred the property to the Daybreak company and allowed it to expend $200,000 in development, which funds were contributed by innocent shareholders.

In the light of new evidence, Mr. Justice McDonald decided there were no innocent shareholders; and he termed Roberts' conduct "nauseating and fraudulent."

Roberts and D. P. Kane of Kaslo, trustee in bankruptcy of the Daybreak company, appealed from Mr. Justice McDonald's judgment.

MADE GALLANT FIGHT

"I have come to the conclusion with a good deal of regret," commented Chief Justice J. A. Mc-Donald, "the respondents made a gallant fight against what they believed to be fraud, conspiracy and perjury on the part of Roberts and his associates. The courts both in this country and in foreign countries have found such fraud; but that fraud is not applicable to the present case."

He allowed the appeal on a point of law. The action was not well founded, in his opinion, because the Gibson company had been wound up and there was nobody to bring the action for it.

Mr. Justice A. E. McPhillips would not concede that Roberts had given perjured evidence. Mr. Justice W. A. McQuarrie also held this view. Mr. Justice Archer Martin and Mr. Justice M. A. Macdonald agreed that the appeal should be allowed.

In the case heard by Mr. Justice Murphy, the trial judge agreed with an Oregon court that Roberts had been a party to a conspiracy to deprive the Gibson Mining company of its property.

QUOTA SCHEME FOR POTATOES

Is Being Drawn Up by the B.C. Marketing Board for Lower Mainland

VICTORIA, Nov. 14 (CP)—A sales quota system for potatoes was the main feature of a marketing scheme discussed with the British Columbia marketing board today by a delegation from the lower mainland.

This is a new departure in scheme so far laid before the board as it would limit every grower in the amount of potatoes he would be able to sell.

The original scheme included both the quota system and a provision for pooling returns, but the markets board held that this could not be done. The growers then favored the qouta plan.

It was explained the scheme is still in draft form and has to under go considerable revision.

The delegation appointed by growers' bodies was headed by A. Swenson, Delta, with J. Kennedy of Surrey and J. Maxwell, of Delta.

They represented growers with a total output of 30,000 tons of potatoes of which 20,000 tons are sold on the local market.

Market control for vegetables in the area is also contemplated, they said.

New difficulties have arisen in efforts to reach an agreement between independent and associated milk producers of the Fraser valley on a marketing scheme, it was learned today, and prospects of an early adoption of their scheme were said to be hazy.

What Will Happen to Wheat Regulation?

Some of the silver shares were offered freely at lower prices. Eldorado closed down 11 cents at 1.75 while White Eagle lost 1½ and Bear, Castle, Nipissing and Premier a fraction to 1½ each. The base metal shares continued slow with Noranda and Falconbridge each losing 20 cents.

SILVER FUTURES DOWN IN EAST

MONTREAL, Nov. 14 (CP)—Easiness in London sent silver futures lower on the Canadian commodity exchange today as activity slackened. A total of 47 contracts changed hands in comparison to yesterday's sales of 88 lots. The close was on the downside and prices off 50 to 90 points.

CORN HITS HIGH FOR THE SEASON

CHICAGO, Nov. 14 (AP).—Broad general buying late today lifted corn to fresh high price records for the season, but profit-taking then largely wiped out gains.

Numerous traders in corn took the position that ultimately corn almost everywhere will sell well above the price of wheat.

Corn closed irregular at ⅝ decline to ¼ advance, May 82⅞ to 83; wheat easy, ⅛ to ⅝ down, May 99 to 99⅛ and oats ¼ off to ⅛ up.

Egg Prices Up on Wholesale Market

Hog prices advanced a cent and fresh egg prices were stronger, on the wholesale market this week. The market on the whole was fairly quiet without much variation in prices.

The meat market was steady and the only drop recorded was in the price of some pork cuts. Fresh eggs are still scarce and the storage supply is about cleaned up.

Car arrivals for the week included three groceries, one soap, one milk, timothy hay, flour and feed corn.

Market as a Whole Yields Some of Week's Gains

By FREDERICK GARDNER
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP)—Demand for stocks was selective today and the market as a whole yielded a little more of the ground won on last week's broad advance.

Trading in shares remained fairly active with turnover at 958,460 shares.

The general list improved a little in tone as pressure lifted from utility shares. Air Reduction, American Snuff, American Shipbuilding, American Safety Razor, American Tobacco B, Congoleum, Glidden, International Business Machines, National Lead and Reynolds Tobacco gained 1 to 3 points. G. W. Helme spurted 5 points to a new top at 130 and Homestake Mining about 10 points on a transfer of 100 shares.

On the other hand, American Telephone, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, General Electric, Sears Roebuck and other important shares sold off fractionally.

Canadian Gold Mining issues again were easy.

NICKEL EARNS 24 CTS. SHARE

TORONTO, Nov. 14 (CP)—International Nickel Company, of Canada, Limited, earnings for the third quarter of 1934 was $4,005,165, or 24 cents per share on the common stock after allowing for preferred dividends, according to the interim statement mailed tonight to stockholders.

The earnings per share compared with 31 cents a share in the previous and 22½ cents a share in the third quarter of 1933. Net profits for the 1933 third quarter was $3,773,130.

Earnings for the first three quarters of 1934 totalled 86 cents a share against 28½ cents a share for the same period a year ago. Net profits for the nine months of this year were $14,017,808 and for the like period of 1933 were $5,636,019.

A net debit of $682,933, resulting from exchange adjustments made during the first nine months of 1934, was carried to exchange reserves and was not reflected in net profit. Balance in exchange reserve was $1,-143,889 on Sept. 30.

Earned surplus at the end of the period under review is given as $30,-190,545. On Sept. 30, 1933, the figure was given as $19,098,616. The report notes that all figures are given in terms of United States currency.

WHEAT FUTURES OFF AT WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, Nov. 14 (CP)—Bullish Argentina crop reports failed to influence the trend on the Winnipeg grain exchange today as wheat futures prices closed ⅜-½ cent lower, December at 78, May 82½ and July 83½ cents.

Some recovery from earlier ¾-cent recessions was made in ate trading but generally the market was weak throughout. Export sales of Canadian wheat were again disappointing, only lightness of offerings halting further declines.

Weakness in outside markets was the chief market influence here. Liverpool closed ¾d lower and Buenos Aires showed fractional declines. Chicago also was weak, closing ⅝ cent down.

Spreads closed fractionally better in the cash-grain department with good demand again being shown for most grades of wheat. Coarse grains futures were quiet.

MORE ABOUT

There is an appreciable pickup in repair work also. Car owners are having more work done on their cars. During the past two or three years the tendency of the car owner, it is stated, was to let repair work slide, with the result that the stage is reached where repairs must be made or cars put away.

SALES NOT PUSHED

Although sales have increased considerably this year, sales have not been pushed the way they would be in normal times, it was stated.

The number of new cars sold this year, and this includes trucks also, is 152 as compared to 97 for the first 10 months of 1933. This is an increase of well over 50 per cent. The sale of old cars for this year is 246 compared to 124 during last year, or not quite an increase of 100 per cent.

The total value of the cars, however, comparing the two periods, shows an improvement of nearly 300 per cent. The 152 new cars this year sold for $178,670 as compared to the sum of $58,75 realized on the 97 cars sold up until the end of October in 1933. The value of the old cars were practically the same on an average, the doubling of sales accounting for the 100 per cent increase in the value of business done this year.

BASED ON 1933 SALES

The increase in old and new car sales this year, is, of course, based here entirely upon the 1933 sales, and the increase, although appearing substantial still leaves the dealers with sales far below the years of 1928 and 1929, the peak years. The sales during 1933 were down, in some cases, to one seventh of what they were in 1929.

Dealers state there is an optimism in the air that augurs well for next year and it is expected that there will be much more movement in the automobile industry then.

KEFFER

here, in support of his suit to compel the Nakusp concern to accept logs from him, and to pay him damages for breach of contract.

FIVE HOURS ON STAND

On the stand for over five hours elapsed time, Mr. Keffer probably made an assize court record for Nelson, at least for recent years. He was put on the stand at the opening of court in the morning, by his counsel, R. L. Maitland, K.C., of Vancouver, and after a prolonged grilling in the afternoon at the hands of Dugald Donaghy, K.C., of Vancouver, counsel for the White Pine Lumber company, finally stepped off not far from 4 o'clock. The rest of the day's proceedings, which completed the case for the plaintiff, occupied less than an hour. Judge W. A. Nisbet during the morning session again was a guest of Mr. Justice Murphy on the bench, while throughout the day C. B. Garland and E. P. Dawson, who respectively represented plaintiff and defendant at the recent examination for discovery here, and a number of district forest officials, and timber operators, were interested spectators. The case produced two dozen exhibits during the day, principally letters exchanged between Messrs. Keffer and Leary, while extensive sections from the examination for discovery were put into the record.

TRACT SPECIFIED

Evidence of Mr. Keffer showed that in November, 1929, he was given a contract, duly signed and sealed, by the White Pine Lumber company, for 1000 poles and for 400,000 feet of saw-logs, to be delivered ready for booming, the contract to be completed by June 30 following, and the poles and logs to be taken from a government timber area in which he had recently acquired cutting rights. This tract was subsequently designated as timber sale No. 11,871. After putting in roads, camp and skidways, Mr. Keffer testified, he started logging January 15, 1930, and on January 30 made a return to the company reporting 51,520 feet of hard wood logs and 9204 feet of pine logs, while on February 28 he made another return of 93,000 feet of hard wood and 5500 feet of pine. His March report was confined to cedar poles, of which he reported 221, which actually should have been 233.

DISCUSSED NEW DEAL

On the basis of these reports, or of actual scaling, he was paid advances of 75 per cent of the contract price. In the spring break-up he had to discontinue hauling, and put his crew for a week or so at getting out piling for the Green company, and April saw his operation discontinued for want of finances. In the meantime, Mr. Keffer said, he conceived the idea of securing rights in an adjoining tract, which had pole and log timber of a similar quality to what he had been working, and on May 5 discussed the matter with Mr. Leary, stating he would resume work and deliveries. Questioned by Mr. Leary as to the source of the timber, he said it was "from 5069, which was in the contract." Mr. Leary offered no dissent to this, but inquired about the poles, saying he was not interested in logs. To this Mr. Keffer represented himself as replying, "But I have a contract said, and I must live." The rejoinder to this was, "Sure, sure," which Mr. Keffer interpreted as agreeing to accept logs from 11,871.

COMPANY SENT BOOM

On May 27, and on two subsequent occasions, he said when he and Mr. Leary met, the latter asked how many logs he had on hand, and each time he replied, "About 150,000 feet." An actual scale he had made in September, however, showed only 135,000 feet from the 5069 operation, the 160,000 feet gotten out in the winter having been from 11,871. He also got out 217 poles from 5069, and the poles were duly accepted.

A further commital to acceptance of the new lot of logs was seen by Mr. Keffer in Mr. Leary's discussion of how they were to be got to the water, and his admission that a sketch that Mr. Keffer drew might work. Later the company sent Captain Sutherland to boom the logs.

When Mr. Keffer raised the matter of payment in Mr. Leary's office on July 2, the latter said:

"For God's sake, Cecil, can't you stand me off for money on these logs? I am hard up."

Mr. Keffer said he agreed to wait as long as he could, and in a letter later wrote that he was willing to wait in this case, as he would get his money when the company got its. Earlier correspondence read in court showed that Mr. Leary, when applied to for one of the payments due on poles, represented that the company was unable to get its money from the pole dealers.

In a merciless cross-examination, Mr. Donaghy grilled Mr. Keffer on over-estimates in his reports of poles and logs for booming, and in particular on answers made by him in the examination for discovery.

CALLS ON ALMIGHTY

"May God strike me dead if that check was not authentically dated May 5," avowed the witness, when Mr. Donaghy suggested to him that he had changed the date from April 28 to May 5 after the present action started, to make it conform to new facts discovered. The check, sent to a Vancouver house, passed the Vancouver clearing house on May 15, and was cashed May 20, Mr. Justice Murphy noted.

Mr. Donaghy obtained Mr. Keffer's admission that several claims he made in the plaint were wrong. He now admitted receiving a check for $50 in July, and one for $250 in August for the second lot of poles, and that a bill rendered to him for $4.20 worth of lumber was properly charged to him.

BOOMING AND SCALING

Capt. Osborn Sutherland testified to calling at Halfway creek by what he understood to be Mr. Leary's instructions, and having a boom left there for logs. He did not know where the logs came from.

Joseph Perrin, log scaler, testified to spending three days at St. Leon under Mr. Leary's instructions to inspect poles and scale logs. He did not know where they came from. He said he had completed the pole check when Mr. Leary arrived in his launch and instructed him to return to Nakusp, the scaling of the logs not having started. He heard loud words between Messrs. Leary and Keffer but did not know their purport.

LEARY DISCOVERY

Mr. Maitland completed the case for the plaintiff by putting in sections of examination for discovery, in which Mr. Leary, when cross-examined, stated that all along he regarded the 5069 operation as outside the contract ,and that he could either accept or reject either poles or logs, but that he was in the market for poles and so accepted them. He admitted having failed to tell Mr. Keffer of his view that he was not obliged to accept the logs, keeping him in the dark for months.

The case for the defendant company will be given today, with Mr. Leary and other witnesses testifying, it being Mr. Donaghy's contention that the original contract could not be varied.

U.S.A. Refuses a Naval Compromise

LONDON, Nov. 14 (AP)—Reliable reports tonight said that Great Britain tried without success to induce the United States' represenatives at tri-power naval conversations here to abandon their opposition to compromise proopsals put forward by the British delegation.

A lengthy surprise conference at which the British delegates further explained their plan—which would, it is understood, grant Japan naval equality in name but not in fact—failed to shake the Americans' insistence on continuance of the basic principles of the Washington and London naval treaties.

SHIPS IN DANGER

Buildings, crops and ships in southeastern Luzon, the island on which Manila is located, were badly hit. Ships at sea were unable to communicate with the mainland.

The American oil tanker Larry Doheny which nearly foundered in the Pacific during the terrific storm of three weeks ago, sailed from Manila for Los Angeles only yesterday and presumably was in or near the affected area.

PROVINCES ISOLATED

Three provinces were isolated quickly as the furious storm hit the islands southeast of here. Torrents of rain damaged banana, coconut, hemp and other crops, flattened telephone lines and wrought other havoc in the provinces of Samar, Leyte and Sorsogon.

A maximum wind velocity of 48 miles an hour was registered here up to 9 a.m. (8 p.m. Wednesday, E.S.T.). The weather bureau predicted the vortex of the storm would pass northeast of here. It was believed damage in the capital would be small.

80 MILES PER HOUR

(The Manila station of the Radio Corporation of America reported 12 minutes previously, "A typhoon is now raging through the provinces with a force of 80 miles per hour and is causing great damage. The wind velocity in Manila now is 48 miles per hour. About the same time the MacKay Radio company's Manila station said, "Another typhoon has been raging in the provinces since 4 a.m. There is a torrential downpour in Manila and the lights are flickering.") after firing three times at Libby. One bullet smashed into the wall about six inches from his head, the others going wild.

DRUG CLERK

Libby said he did not believe any of his three shots took effect.

TOLD TO LIE DOWN

Libby and Jimmy Robertson, errant boy, were in the prescription department of the drug store when they heard two men enter. Thinking they were customers, Libby told Robertson to wait on them. When the errand boy appeared in the front part of the store one of the gunmen told him to "go back and lie down."

Libby looked over the top of the small partition which separates the prescription department from the rest of the store, and saw an armed and masked man coming toward the rear.

FIRES AT THEM

Grabbing his gun which lay on a shelf nearby, Libby rushed out and fired at the bandit who turned and ran to the front door. Libby turned to look for the second man and saw him levelling his gun. The second gunman fired three times at Libby, one of the shots barely missing the clerk's head. Libby returned the fire, shooting twice but before he could fire again the gunman turned and fled to the waiting automobile where he joined his companion and the woman driver and three sped east on Heather street.

SERVICE STATION ROBBED

Earlier in the night three men held up the Speedway service station, Granville and 5th avenue, and escaped with $177 cash.

George Stewart, attendant, said the trio drove up and asked for two gallons of gasoline. When he went into the office to change a bill one of the men handed him, two of the men followed him. Drawing guns they forced him to open the wall safe which they ransacked for cash, then fled to their car.

Irish Republic in a Few Months

LONDON, Nov. 14 (CP Cable).—"Within a very few months President Eamon de Valera will be in a position to declare an Irish republic—both De Jure and De Facto," declared John Morgan, professor of constitutional law at London university, at a meeting of Irish Loyalists here tonight.

The meeting passed a resolution calling on the British government to declare its intentions in regard to "repeated violations" of the Anglo-Irish treaty, outstanding of which is the non-payment of land annuities that led to the tariff war between Britain and the Irish Free State.

Winnipeg Woman Seeks W. Corvula

Mrs. Harold Tonkin, of Winnipeg, has written to Chief of Police Alex. Stewart, in an attempt to locate Wesley Steve Corvula. He was last heard of at Vancouver, but efforts to find him there have proved fruitless. It is stated that he may be spelling his nave "Kovula" or "Kowula." He is likely to be in a lumber camp.

Mrs. Tonkin resides at 92 Maryland street, Winnipeg. Chief Stewart would appreciate any information as to the whereabouts of Corvula, who is a brother of Mrs. Tonkin.

Broulette tried desperately to pull open the door that would not yield, while the mother grasped her seven weeks' old baby in one arm and strove with equal desperation to pluck the other children from their cribs.

Finally, the door was opened and the father dashed to the open with a child under each arm, and the mother followed with the baby and the fourth child. Dr. M. Hankin of Thorsby travelled 20 miles to reach the home, and raced with three of the children toward Edmonton, but two of them died before arrival here. The parents and the third child were brought in in another car.

$4.50 A WEEK

claimed Sam Factor, Liberal, Toronto West Center, when details of wages paid by Metropolitan Stores and United Stores were disclosed. Auditors said 75 per cent of Metropolitan employees were on a part-time basis, earning a mere pittance weekly, less than $4.50, and unable to take another job because they were on call at all hours.

$7.34 PER WEEK

Evidence was produced to show that the United chain, operating 14 stores in Quebec and one in Ontario (Ottawa), paid very low wages. Taking the organization as a whole, 15 full-time men were paid $7.34 each a week and 120 women, $6.78.

Many examples of low wages paid by the Metropolitan organization were disclosed to the commission. When it was shown that 75 per cent of Metropolitan employees were on part-time basis, Hon. H. H. Stevens said this worked a hardship on retailers who paid their staffs full time "and does a great injustice to the employees." He said this might be an attempt to evade minimum wage laws.

Out of a total of 361 full-time Metropolitan employees, 11 were paid between $6 and $10 weekly. One instance was given of a married man employed as a dishwasher at $6 a week and his meals.

Wages paid by the Dominion Stores were not touched today but will be reviewed tomorrow.

GRAIN STRIKE STILL SPREADS

EDMONTON, Nov. 14 (CP)—The grain strike by farmers, today spread through the district northeast of Edmonton to Andrew where a general meeting of farmers passed a resolution to stop grain deliveries to elevators, starting tomorrow.

A system of picketing would be put into operation, it was decided, starting at 6:30 a.m.

Musidora farmers also voted to strike, and to start picketing at 7 a.m. tomorrow.

Throughout the strike district today picketing was conducted quietly.

At Vegreville one picketer was fined $25 for removing ties from the C.P.R. right-of-way, in the Two Hills area, to block a road.

MARRIAGE LAW

marry but it must be a childless marriage.

The Bishop of Norwich said he saw great difficulties in the proposals. Those who could not get certificates would not be restricted from forming alliances from w'ch children could result, he pointed out.

The fact the birthrate of healthy children was not increasing, while the birthrate of defectives was increasing, was a grave matter, perhaps a national menace, the bishop added, but there was no short cut to a solution of the problem.

His grace the Archbishop of Canterbury opposed the motion. Dr. Lang asked who would take the responsibility of certifying whether couples were fit or unfit to marry?"

Lord Gage, on behalf of the ministry of health, wound up the debate by declaring there had been no serious consideration to date of proposals to limit the right of marriage, except in the case of mental defectives.

SHOCK DEATHS

rent flows directly through the nerves and brain, destroying nerve cells.

AFFECTS LUNGS

Another form of shock death, which at first is only apparent, affects the lungs, When, for example, contact is made at two points on the same arm or leg, no current reaches the brain. But the nerves themselves set up a series of stimuli of their own. These reach the brain and block the regular nerve dispatching system. Artificial respiration, if prompt enough, brings such persons back to life. It has to be continued until the nerves get over their upset.

HEART DEATH

The third form of electric death which is only apparent affects the heart. Experiments have shown, Dr. Kouwenhoven said, that a usual harmless current of only one-tenth of an ampere, when flowing between hands and feet, may produce this heart death.

The technical name for this is fibrillation. The heart is not dead in the least, but the effect is to bring on quick death. Such a heart can be put back into stride by proper medical treatment.

One emergency method of restoring th heart pace, described by Dr. Kouwenhoven, is the "counter shock." This is use of a large current, carrying a shock so heavy it completely stops all heart movement, even fibrillation. The heart resumes synchronized beating.

FOOD, FUEL AND RENT GROUPS UP

Index Shows Increase in Retail Prices

OTTAWA, Nov. 14 (CP).—The index number of retail prices, rents and costs of service, increased fractionally in October when they stood at 79.3 as against 79.0 in the previous month, the Dominion bureau of statistics reported today. The increase was due to advances in the food, fuel and rental groups.

An index calculated for retail prices alone increased from 74.2 to 74.6. When foods were removed from this index it was 79.4 in October as compared with 79.3 in September.

For 46 food items the index moved up from 68.8 to 69.4, higher prices for bacon, lard, eggs, butter and tea more than offsetting decreases for potatoes, onions and most meats.

The fuel and lighting index rose from 88.0 to 88.5, due to further seasonal advances in the prices of coal and coke.

The rentals index advanced from 79.7 to 80.3. This marks the first break in a decline which dates from May, 1930. The increase was more pronounced in workmen's dwellings than for those of medium grade.

the widest possible authority, and will have a free hand to experiment.

The chairman of the English commission is Percy Stewart, head of the Associated Portland Cement Manufacturers, and heading the Scottish commission is Sir Archibald Rose, chairman of the management commission of the Edinburgh savings banks.

FRESH INCENTIVE

The government, said Mr. Chamberlain, believed the commissions should frame schemes for employing local labor in the "derelict" districts to plan them afresh, with a view to making them more attractive and affording fresh incentive for new industries.

He also suggested that the commissions should consider the extension of work in occupational centers, and encourage agricultural holdings, including cooperative holdings. They would be given power to buy and sell land, or buy land and turn it over to local authorities.

REMEDY IS ORDER

The periods of long, enforced idleness in the areas under examination were the most outstanding features in their tragic story, said the chancellor. "While most parts of the country have a feeling of hope and confidence, there remains in the depressed areas an atmosphere of stagnation and listlessness which arises from a chronic condition of poverty and privation," he declared. It would be the duty of the new commissions to remedy that.
