WORK, WAGES FOR RELIEF WORKERS RECOMMENDED BY PROBING COMMITTEE

Dirigible Lands on Ice Leaving Food for Ice-Bound Fisherfolk

1000 POUNDS FOOD LEFT ON TANGIER ISLE

1500 People Were in Need of Succor; Aid Is Sought

CHESAPEAKE BAY NOW ICE LOCKED

Ice-Breaker Ordered to Attempt to Open Channel to Isle

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—A dirigible full of stores landed on ice-locked Chesapeake bay today to relieve the plight of 1500 Tangier Island, Va., fisherfolk whose food was running low.

With the shadow of famine lifted, the fishermen immediately thought of relatives and sent word back to the mainland by rescuers who took Red Cross food to them by the only course open to the island—the air.

Commander Karl Lange, who set a 150-foot blimp down on the ice with the aid of eager hands on the islands, brought back one message to James Throne of Baltimore, saying "come at once; two children very ill." He said the note was handed to him by a woman.

ASK FOR SURGEON

Occupants of a small plane which followed the blimp said natives urged that a surgeon be sent to the island along with medical supplies.

LABOR CENSURE VOTE EXPECTED

LONDON, Feb. 2 (CP cable).—A heavy program of work faces parliament, which is scheduled to reconvene on Tuesday. It adjourned just before Christmas and, apart from a special meeting following the death of King George, has not met since.

When estimates for the army, the navy and the air force are brought down, it is anticipated there will be a full-dress debate covering the whole defence situation. One of the platforms on which the government went to the country last fall was strengthening of national defences.

The Labor opposition is expected to attack vigorously the government's proposal in this direction and probably they will move a vote of censure.

ITALIANS LOSE WHOLE BRIGADE TO ETHIOPIANS

8000 of the Famous Blackshirts Are Dead, Wounded, Prisoners

HUGE SEIZURE OF ARMS MADE

11-Day Battle Is Most Decisive of the War Say Ethiopians

DESSYE, Feb. 2 (CP-Havas)—General D'Amanti's brigade of Italians from the famous "Oct. 28" Blackshirt militia division was completely wiped out in an 11-day battle when it attacked one of War Minister Mulugheta's Ethiopian columns n the Tembien mountains, a communique issued from Emperor Haile Selassie's army headquarters here asserted today.

More than 8,000 Italians were killed or wounded, three enemy strongholds were taken, hundreds of whites and native prisoners were seized and 29 heavy field pieces, 175 machine guns, 2584 rifles and a quantity of ammunition were captured, the statement declared.

Fighting which began Jan. 19, continued until Jan. 30 when the last remnants of the attacking Italian brigade were slain, the bulletin said.

"It was the first big battle since the war's beginning.

Numerous divisions of regular troops, airplane squadrons tanks and, for the first time, the famous Blackshirts, participated in the Italian offensive," the Ethiopian communique said.

"The engagements which occurred during December at Enda Silasi and Abbi Addi, where our troops killed 3000 Italians and captured 12 tanks, were steps in a preparative operation on our part.

"The Temoien battle developed in line with the Italian plan. Thus the first Italian offensive, in the strictly military sense of the word, collapsed pitifully."

VANCOUVER, Feb. 2 (CP)—The minister and six children attending a Japanese Sunday school were overcome by gas fumes today when a Japanese starling became wedged in the air vent of a gas furnace, shutting off the draught and causing the gas to enter the building.

All but one were released after being revived and the condition of Guichiso Hayashi, 14, was reported good. The starling died.

NEW ZEALAND IS SWEPT BY GALE

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Feb. 2 (CP cable via Reuters).—The entire North island of New Zealand was swept today by the worst southerly gale in years.

Communications between almost all centers were disrupted. Wellington, the capital, was isolated and an emergency radio service was put in operation.

The force of the gale was felt most keenly north of Palmerston, where the damage was almost comparable to that of an earthquake. Streets were blocked with fallen trees, houses unroofed and windows smashed.

The ferry steamer Rangatira, operated between Wellington and Lyttleton, with 500 passengers aboard, struck an obstruction entering the Wellington heads. The vessel was holed forward but with the assistance of tugs was brought safely into port.

All four legislatures will be called upon to deal with legislation developing from the sessions of the continuing committee on constitutional amendments now in session at Ottawa. Among those will be participation of the provinces in a Dominion loan council for refunding debts.

The Alberta Social Credit administration of Premier William Aberhart, entering its first legislative session, holds the spotlight. State medicine may take a leading place in the Saskatchewan deliberations and health insurance promises first rating for British Columbia. Manitoba legislators expect a light session.

Joliet Prison Yard May Be Dug Over for Explosives' Cache

JOLIET, Ill., Feb. 2 (AP)—State's Attorney W. R. McCabe today announced he had obtained information that convict companions of the slain Richard Loeb were planning to blast their way out of the Stateville penitentiary.

Officials promptly deprecated the story but the prosecutor, heading the probe into Loeb's death, asserted he would demand prison authorities dig up the yard in an effort to find buried explosives. McCabe said he had learned several hundred pounds of celluloid had been mixed with chemicals stolen from fire extinguishers and that the mixture had been canned and cached in the yard.

"The celluloid is missing from the cell occupied by Loeb and Edward Skeplowski, Chicago robber who used it to make rings and other trinkets," McCabe told reporters.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 2 (CP)—Convicted of participation in the 1934 kidnapping of John S. Labatt, local brewery president, Russell Knowles was back in a jail cell tonight awaiting sentence by Mr. Justice Charles McTague.

An Ontario supreme court jury yesterday declared the dapper Detroit salesman guilty of armed robbery, kidnapping, and two charges of extortion. Sentence will be imposed in about two weeks, at the close of the calendar.

Knowles will be the fourth man sent to penitentiary for the kidnapping of the brewer. David Meisner and Jack Bannon are serving 15 years each at Kingston penitentiary. Michael McCardel, confessed member of the gang and an important witness in the Knowles trial, was sentenced to 12 years. Charges against Kingdon P. (Piccolo Pete) Murray and Herman Kierdorf were dismissed. Kierdorf was with Knowles when he was arrested at Ottawa, Ill., just before Christmas. Police still seek Albert Pegram in connection with the crime.

Fuel Shortages Hit the Midwest and South; Storms Spread

CHICAGO, Feb. 2 (AP). — A chilled United States watched the groundhog crawl back to the warmth of his hole tonight, then did the next best thing—heaped the fire with fuel from a coal pile that was almost gone.

Coal miners in four states gave up their Saturday holidays to keep their neighbors warm, but fuel shortages remained acute in the midwest and south as the weatherman, like the groundhog, warned against more arctic blasts.

Rationing of fuel supplies spread to Ohio from Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Alabama and Mississippi.

Another snowstorm was sweeping south and east from Canada and the Dakotas, the weatherman said. Snow was forecast within 36 hours for North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, and as far east as Washington, D.C.

Ice coated streets made motoring hazardous in New York City, which remained in the grip of a two-week cold snap. Thermometers showed 10 above.

OTTAWA, Feb. 2 (CP)—Relief camps throughout Canada should be closed as soon as possible "in the best interest of the state and for the sound, healthy development of the majority of men now in the camps."

This is the conclusion of the committee appointed by Hon. Norman McL. Rogers, minister of labor, which presented an interim report on the situation after visiting some 50 camps from Valcartier west to the Pacific coast. The report was given out today.

The committee found continuance of the camps for a temporary period is necessary in view of the employment situation which precludes absorption of any considerable number of men in private industry and agriculture at present.

Quebec Woman Cheats Gallows

QUEBEC, Feb. 2 (CP). — Mrs. Beatrice Chapdelaine was free today. Twice within the shadow of the gallows during almost four years' imprisonment, the middle-aged woman heard a court of King's bench jury acquit her last night of a charge that she murdered her husband, Ludger Chapdelaine.

Mr. Justice Adolphe Stein immediately ordered release of the woman, giving her freedom for the first time since July 4, 1932, when she was arrested at East Angus, Que., and charged with murder. Her husband died in a Sherbrooke hospital on March 6, 1932. The crown claimed he was poisoned.

Cheering in the staid courtroom marked the close of the case that had been argued before three juries and three appeal court benches during the long period of the woman's imprisonment. Twice she was sentenced to die but each time won new trials on appeal.

The jury required but 25 minutes to reach its decision after listening to a brief charge from the bench.

REDS AND BLUES BEAT OPPONENTS

Panthers Lose a Heavy Scoring Game; Blues Shade Scouts

BANTAM LEAGUE STANDING

	W	L	D	GF	GA	Pts.
Blues	4	0	0	16	6	8
Reds	2	2	0	12	13	4
Scouts	1	3	0	3	6	2
Panthers	1	3	0	8	14	2

Reds and Blues, twin teams of the M.R.K. Hockey club, won their games Saturday morning against the Panthers and Scouts respectively, this result making it certain that the M.R.K. colors will win the first of the two series into which the Bantam league schedule has been divided. The Blues have eight points, and as the Reds, with four points, are the only team with a mathematical chance to tie them, the top perch must in any case be restricted to the M.R.K.'s.

In a hard and heavy-scoring game, wheih rang up 12 goals, the Reds won from the Panthers 7-5, both teams being hit by sickness, and their combination consequently suffering. The Panthers started the scoring with Ernie De Girolamo netting the puck from Henry Bengert's pass in the first two minutes, and six minutes later Douglas Winlaw had evened for the Reds on a solo rush. Three times during the game the score was tied, before the Reds finally got a permanent lead with the ninth goal.

"ONE-MAN WAR"

Winlaw scored all seven of the Reds' goals, making it look almost like a one-man war, though two of them were on passes from Phil Brewer and Tommy Ratcliffe. Failure of the Panthers to hold down Winlaw was the secret of their defeat, for the five goals rung up by Billy Ferguson, Herbie Guscott, and DeGirolamo would ordinarily have meant a win. Both Ferguson's goals were unassisted, and one of Guscott's, but Guscott's second tally one minute before the gong, was on a pass from Joe Selinger. L. Morrison drew the only penalty.

The Scouts held down the Blues to a 3-2 win. Wilfred Wood opened the Blue scoring in eight minutes on a pass from Ernie Defoe, B Prestley equalizing for the Scouts as the first period bell rang. Harold Tapanilla put the Blues ahead again, and Defoe increased their lead, but two minutes before time Don Gibbon scored from the boards to cut the lead to a single goal. There were no penalties.

Jimmy Ringrose refereed both games, and Don Beattie officiated as judge of play in the second game.

Horswill, Bush Rinks in Lead

Friday night will see the completion of the city schedule competition at the Nelson civic centre curling rink, when finalists in A, B and C divisions will play off.

Howard Bush, with regrets to T. R. Wilson who is charged with non-support, has virtually won A division with 11 wins, one draw, two losses and one game yet to be played. Mr. Wilson was in the running until Mr. Bush won his last game and according to the winning rink was on deck regularly with hopes of seeing them humbled.

A. S. Horswill has safely entrenched himself at the top of C division and A. Baird and W. J. Smiley are tied for first place in B division.

Friday, rinks will also be redrawn for a city bonspiel to be staged next week. Two knockout events, a primary and a secondary, will be played off. E. Collinson has placed a cup for first place in the primary event and secondary winners will receive a Highland Sandy.

Hear Message of Love, Tabernacle

Miss Eliott Gives Her Opening Address

Miss Rita Elliott of Vancouver opened a two-week revival campaign at the Bethel Tabernacle Sunday evening with a message of peace and love, taking as her text John 3:16.

In her preliminary remarks she stressed the urgent need of a ringing message of lasting peace, in view of the present seething unrest.

Today's greatest tragedy was the fact that people were losing a consciousness of sin. The Bible stood for fearless piety and asked that God might return the day when strong men trembled with holy fear as God's message went forth. The Bible was the world's greatest biography, its greatest history and its greatest love story, she said.

Man's history was only dovetailed in the niches of time as prophesied by the Bible.

Speaking of the love which emanated from God she said that a mother's love was God's perfect love to mankind, a love that bespoke patience, meekness and joy in serving.

Love was the greatest thing in the world, and God's love the greatest thing to eternity. Every sin was a violation of true love, to the pure love of a child which He exemplified.

"God cared enough to give His only begotten Son for us knowing us as we know ourselves and so we should sing "I stand amazed in the presence of Jesus the Nazarene and wonder how He could love me, a sinner condemned, unclean!"

N.Y. RANGERS STAGE A SCORING SPLURGE TO BEAT THE MAROONS

NEW YORK, Feb. 2(CP)—A scoring splurge in the second period gave New York Rangers a 4-2 victory over Montreal Maroons in a fast National Hockey league match before a capacity crowd of 15,000 here tonight. The triumph kept Rangers from dropping into the cellar of the United States division as they kept pace with Boston.

The teams were even at one goal apiece at the end of the first frame which saw Frankie Boucher score for Rangers on Butch Keeling's assist and Herbie Cain equalize four minutes later on Gus Marker's pass.

Cecil Dillon dashed from behind his own goal early in the second frame to score a spectacular marker to give Rangers the lead. Maroons were enjoying a one man advantage at the time, Ching Johnson, bulky New York defenceman being in the penalty box. Six minutes later Bill Cook, veteran Ranger forward, scored his second goal of the season on Garden ice with the aid of Art Coulter. Three minutes later Howie Morenz, speedy wingman, gave Rangers a three goal edge by scoring on passes from Lynn Patrick and Dillon.

Maroons got the only goal of the last 20 minutes when Dave Trottier banged the rubber past Goalie Dave Kerr on a pass from Allan Shields. Rangers protested the tally claiming Trottier was in the goal crease.

Interior to Get Hockey Playoffs

TRAIL, B. C., Feb. 2—B. C. Senior Amateur Hockey playoffs will take place in the interior during second week in March, according to A. W. (Gus) McDonald, president of the B. C. A. H. A., the place depending on which city cops the East and West Kootenay playoffs and also ice conditions at that time. J. A. Wadsworth, secretary of the association, told a meeting of the West Kootenay Hockey association here Sunday, that prior to the meeting only four senior amateur hockey clubs were registered in B. C., namely, Trail, Kimberley, Nelson and Vancouver Cubs. Rossland registered at that meeting and whether Nelson enters depends on permission being granted to use three players.

At the same meeting a letter from F. H. Taylor of Vancouver, asking that the B. C. playoffs take place at the coast, was filed, none of the clubs represented approving of such. The letter had been received by Mr. Wadsworth and handed over to the West Kootenay meeting as all clubs concerned were present.

Kimberley and Trail Up Notch

West Kootenay Commercial Hockey league standing:

	W.	L.	D.	F.	A.	P.
Kimberley	7	0	4	41	22	17
Trail	6	4	3	41	31	15
Nelson	6	7	1	42	39	13
Rossland	3	11	0	31	63	6

Trail and Kimberley continued to hold one another at arms length as they tied their third successive game at Trail Saturday night. On a percentage basis Kimberley can not be beaten in the commercial standing, although Trail can get more points, owing to the larger game schedule. Kimberley plays in Rossland tonight.

Other games of the week include:

Friday—Rossland at Trail.

Trail and Rossland Are Entered Already

KIMBERLEY TO MEET WINNERS

Dates Are Set for Various Puck Games

TRAIL, B. C., Feb. 2—Rossland and Trail will definitely enter teams in the West Kootenay senior playoffs it was divulged at a meeting of the West Kootenay Hockey association here Sunday afternoon. Rossland registered at the meeting. With two teams available for the West Kootenay playoffs, Nelson will not enter unless an "Okay" on Goble, Smith and Bicknell is forthcoming from the B. C. A. H. A.

As the first game of the playoffs has been slated for Feb. 15, the last game of the commercial series which is Nelson at Trail, was advanced from Feb. 14 to Feb. 12.

Trail will play at Rossland on Feb. 15, and Rossland at Trail on Feb. 18, to decide the West Kootenay title, unless Nelson is fortunate in having eligibility granted its three contentious players. The winner will play Kimberley for the East and West Kootenay championship in a best three-out-of-five series. The first two fixtures at Kimberley on Feb. 29 and March 2.

FINALS IN WEST KOOTENAY

Nelson representatives asked that two exhibition games with Trail be played in Nelson on Feb. 23 and Feb. 24, which will be arranged if possible.

The playoff schedule committee appointed by President McKinnon and which drew up the schedule during the course of the meeting comprised P. F. McIntyre, A. Southwell, Pat Aitken, A. T. O'Reilly and A. W. McDonald. Those present at the meeting were President McKinnon, Secretary W. E. Jackson, J. R. Webster, P. F. McIntyre and Barney Potter of Trail; T. R. Reno Gold Diggers Beat Scoops 26-21

Nelson Visitors Have Fine Time

Reno Gold Diggers of 1936 proved they are better hockey players in a baseball way than they are softball players in a cricket way, and so downed the Nelson Daily News Scoops 26-21 in the annual snowball frolic at the Reno mill Saturday night. As the game ended the third referee was standing completely muddled in the middle of the rink, his necktie in hopeless wrinkles. He was muttering, "Save the women and children first!"

As on previous occasions the Reno men proved wonderful hosts and put on entertainment after the game, H. E. Doelle and Colonel Perry contributing comprehensively.

The Gold Diggers got the first goal and then never relinquished the lead, although the Scoops tied it up at 8-8. The Gold Diggers remained ahead even then on general principle and general delivery.

The scoring of the first counter was the signal for Dr. N. E. Morrison and O. Carrington, the gold dust twins, to go on a rampage and they had Curran, Scoops' goalie, performing more incredible feats than a pup ever did with a tin can tied to its tail. For awhile the hard rockers found it was placid mining.

SETS WATCH ON

Wynkyn, Blynkyn and Nod weren't going so well for the Scoops so the Otto-Lotto-Blotto line was sent out to get some goals, and Findlatter in the Reno net thought he was a reception committee of one. Things were so hot that Colonel Perry put his watch forward 10 minutes and then had to reset it a moment later when the Miners came back with renewed vinegar.

French began scoring one each minute by playing well offside and Findlatter didn't complain at all until French forgot himself and began leaning up against the goal waiting for the rubber biscuit to be shot down to him.

The first period ended 7-5 for the Miners, the second 17-13 and the final was 26-21. Len Walton was able to referee two thirds of the game and then gave way to Howard Moore.

Every member of the Miners scored prolifically, but the stars were Findlatter, Lennan, R. Carrington and O. Carrington and Dr. N. E. Morrison.

There was no betting on the game but the feeling as to the result was reflected in the stock market, the bid price being up two cents Saturday for Reno.

Summary:

First period: Weather fair and warmer.

Penalties: Len Walton (2).

Second period: Eggs a trifle higher.

Penalties: Len Walton (2).

Third period: Crowd restive, with the moon unusually brilliant.

Penalties: Howard Moore (2).

Teams were:

Reno—Findlatter, Lennan, R. Carrington, O. Carrington, Dr. N. E. Morrison, C. S. Fowler, H. Adams, J. Fair, J. Sutcliffe, D. McCormick (no, not the singer), G. Patterson and W. Bradshaw.

Daily News Scoops—Curran, Jardine, French, Ramsden, Wait, Reid, Brown, Fawcett, McAstocker and Gibbon.

Fairview Puckmen Beat Creston 7-5

Take Hockey Game From Them on Own Ice

Fairview Falcons travelled to Creston Sunday to meet the intermediates there and downed them 7-5 in a fast game of hockey. It was the second defeat a Fairview team has handed out the Creston boys this year. Simister scored the first goal of the game after about five minutes of play to put the home boys ahead, but Anderson tied the score a little later and then Stern put the visitors one up. The first period ended 2-1 for Fairview, 3-2 for Fairview at the end of the second.

Roy Anderson with two, Bud Cooper with two, Scribner, Stern with one and Leeming with one, scored for Fairview. Simister got three for Creston and Doug Corie and Young each got one.

MERCURY DROPS TO THREE ABOVE

Dipping to three degrees above zero early in the morning, the mercury registered a new low point for the 1935-36 winter at Nelson Sunday. The previous low was four degrees recorded during the freeze-up late in October and early in November.

Saturday's extreme temperatures were nine and 28 degrees and Sunday's three and 25 degrees. The week-end's cold snap widened considerably the ice sheets on the lake fronting the city.

LADIES' CURLING SCHEDULE

The ladies' curling schedule for this week, which includes a tournament with Trail ladies who are bringing over four or five rinks for Friday afternoon, is as follows:

February 3—Mrs. T. Bishop vs. Mrs. L. Maddin.

February 4—Mrs. George Cady vs. Mrs. C. D. Pearson; Mrs. A. Kraft vs. Mrs. A. T. Wallace.

February 6—Mrs. L. Maddin vs. Mrs. J. H. Wheeler; Mrs. T. Bishop vs. Mrs. A. T. Wallace.

Skaters Throng to Lakefront

Hundreds of skaters flocked to the lake front Sunday to skate or play hockey on the small sheets of ice that were clear or had been cleared. There was a firm sheet all along the front and also a large sheet well out on the lake that a number of skaters ventured on. Between this sheet and the stretch of safe ice along the shore, however, was a narrow strip that had only been frozen Saturday night. Several skaters in trying to go from one area to the other found themselves skating on to rubbery ice and then into the lake. The water was not deep and they were able to get to shore safely. Nearly a dozen people went in during the day.

A Face Covered With Pimples Causes Much Embarrassment
BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS
There is little doubt but that impure and impoverished blood is the soil on which those red, white, pus filled pimples develop and thrive, and that nothing short of a vigorous, persistent blood purifying treatment will eradicate them from the system.
Burdock Blood Bitters banishes bad blood and with the bad blood banished the skin becomes free from pimples.
Try a few bottles and be convinced.

INDIAN, NOW 109, RECALLS FIGHTS FOR GOOD QUEEN

Veteran of Reigns of Six Monarchs

NORTH BAY, Ont., Feb. 2 (CP)—Semo Commanda of the Beaucage Indian Reserve, booked for his 109th birthday Tuesday has lived in the reign of five Great White Fathers, beginning with George IV, and that of the Great White Mother, Queen Victoria. He proudly remembers he fought for the "Good Queen" in the suppression of the Riel rebellion of 1870.

Even at that Semo does not claim to be the oldest man in the North Bay district. For instance, there is John Birch who will be 113 if he lives to his next birthday—June 4. John was born in Sebastopol, Russia, in 1823. His fellow centenarian first saw the light in 1827, a papoose in an Indian settlement on the St. Lawrence river, below the city of Quebec.

Three years later the Commanda family, connected with the Ohawa tribe of Iroquois, migrated to this district, making the trip by canoe, via the might St. Lawrence and the Ottawa, and afoot when they could not paddle. Semo has acknowledged many chiefs of the Ohawas during his 109 years. He was himself a chief of the Nipissing Indian reserve for 20 years.

The centenarian red man recalls the great attraction of any country to the people of his youth was the plenitude of fish and game. The Ohawas found this in their new northland. They little thought, nor would they have cared to know, that the rocky hunting grounds over which they roved were billions rich in the gold, silver and nickel so precious to the oncoming white man.

Despite his years Semo is in many ways bright and alert. Mentally clear he can tell you there were no Indian wars in the Nipissing in his time and the only occasion he bore arms was in defence of the white man's government in the Canadian northwest. He recalls various steps in the development of Northern Ontario—the arrival of the lumbermen about 1850, the coming of the "iron horse" opening up the country in the 80's, the great mining rushes to these parts starting with the present century.

Not so active physically as he used to be, Semo Commanda depends quite a bit on his wife, age 70, to help him around. From his two marriages there have been a number of children—the wife says eight.

The aged Indian enjoys his smoke. His close companion is a briar pipe. He has used tobacco as long as he can remember.

CONSTIPATION STOPPED AT ONCE!

"Constipation troubled me for months. Nothing seemed to do any good until I tried Fruit-a-tives. They brought quick and complete relief," says Mr. Huddlestone, Belleville, Ont.

DESENSITIZER "GREAT STUFF"

Such Is the Verdict of Coast Dentists

VANCOUVER, Feb. 2 (CP)—The newly discovered desensitizer of Dr. Leroy L. Hartman, former Victoria dentist, is "great stuff" in the opinion of Vancouver dentists who used the painkiller Saturday for the first time.

A city fireman was the first patie on whom Dr. E. C. Bryant used the desensitizer.

"He had gum line cavities, which are about the most sensitive and painful there are." Dr. Bryant said. "I applied the stuff according to the directions, and drilled.

"'Any pain?' I asked the patient," the dentist said. "He said he felt nothing. After the drilling was done I dried out the cavities with cold air. That, usually, is a most excruciating thing. But still he said he felt nothing.

"Then I put in a hot temporary stopping, which, under ordinary conditions, makes them just about jump out of the chair. 'Didn't you feel that ?' I said."

"The patient replied 'No, I didn't feel a thing.'"

TELLS OF NEED FOR RESEARCH

Robert Smillie Guest of Professional Engineers

Picturing a lack of concentrated effort toward the encouragement of pure research in the science field, totally dissociated from their practical applications, Robert Smillie addressed a gathering of the Professional Engineers of British Columbia in the Golden Gate cafe Friday evening. His paper, "Can the record of modern achievement be attained?" featured a luncheon meeting program, presided over by President H. R. Younger. Fifteen were present, and W. G. Lanskail, a guest, was welcomed.

LIVING ON INHERITANCE

"Despite the brilliant record of present achievement, and despite the great possibilities of practical possibilities still late within the great discoveries of preceding centures—we are today producing little new fundamental truth which will serve as a starting place for new applications. We are living on our inheritance," the speaker said.

Step by step he traced the fruits of scientific research from the stone man era, and the efforts of discoverers whom, he declared, thought little of remuneration of their contributions.

Patiently knocking at the door of truth, Michael Faraday had eventually unlocked the secrets of electromagnetism and had ushered in the age of electricity. Millions for centuries to come were made ever lasting debtors through this effort. Faraday's was the true spirit. He rejected a fortune within his grasp, content with the knowledge of his contribution.

FOR TRUTH'S SAKE

Investigators in the field of pure research sought to discover truth for truth's sake only, yet without such research there were no practical applications.

Listing past contributors of pure research he named Copernicus for his theory of the heavens, which dethroned the earth as the centre of the universe; Galileo for his telescope; Kepler for laws of planetary motion; Newton for the law of gravitation and others.

Special mention was made of the progress of scientific research in the field of electricity. In the realm of synthetic organic chemistry he mentioned dyestuffs, antiseptics, explosives, perfumes, flavors and drugs.

"When Priestly discovered that current discharged through the air, formed oxides of nitrogen from which came nitric acid and nitrate, there was laid the foundation for the great new nitrogen fixation method for fertilizers, the principle of which is used in Tadanac."

Experiments that lead to the discovery and use of the oxy-acetylene torch, glucose, artificial silk, illumination with common gas and various medicines were described.

STORY OF RADIO

The story of radio, started from a purely theoretical discovery by Maxwell of the electro-magnetic waves in the ether, followed by their laboratory detection by Hertz, and the invention of a mechanism by Marconi, which amplified by himself, and others now circled the earth with the voice of speech and music. Little did Maxwell and Hertz dream that their researches, undertaken purely for the love of truth, were thus to annihilate space, and inaugurate a new era in communication, Mr. Smillie said.

It was in these additions to fundamental knowledge where the world was slumping badly and the continent on the whole was conspicuous by its lack of very many contributions, he said.

GOVERNMENT AID

The solution, he thought, lay in a government endowed program of research.

R. E. Potter, who moved a vote of thanks for the "excellent and well-prepared paper," thought that industries were pointing out the needs and in that way opening a new field for research.

Those present were: H. R. Younger, chairman, R. Pollard, honorary secretary; W. M. Cunliffe, W. H. Foster, W. Blane, E. L. Warburton, A. G. Lambert, R. E. Potter, H. Sargeant, H. G. F. Chapman, W. A. Talbot, W. L. Affleck, H. D. Dawson, W. G. Lanskail and Robert Smillie.

Ham Loaf — Baked Squash
Scalloped Potatoes — Cabbage Salad
Lemon Sponge Pudding
Tea or Coffee

TODAY'S RECIPES

Ham Loaf—One cup cooked chopped ham, two-thirds cup soft bread crumbs, one egg, one-third cup milk, dash of salt and pepper, one teaspoon chopped onion, one teaspoon minced parsley, one-half teaspoon chopped green pepper, one tablespoon melted butter. In measuring the bread pack it down in the cup. Mix all together and bake in a small buttered baking pan for 20 minutes at 375 degrees.

Baked Squash for Two—Acorn squash are ideal for the small serving. These are cut in two, removing seeds and any stringy portions. Place in the center a tablespoon of butter, a dusting of salt, pepper and brown sugar, and bake in 375 degrees till tender, about 45 minutes. Half or a Hubbard squash may be prepared the same way. Any remaining may be put through the ricer and used in any pumpkin pie recipe. This filling can be baked in custard cups if you like.

Lemon Sponge Pudding—One cup sugar, five tablespoons flour, dash of salt, juice of one lemon, two eggs, one cup milk. Sift the flour, sugar and salt. Beat the egg yolks till very light and thick, add the lemon juice and continue beating for a moment. Fold in the flour mixture alternately with the milk and lightly fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into buttered individual baking dishes and set them in a pan of hot water. Bake at 375 degrees till firm in the center. Unmold and serve with whipped cream or lemon sauce. A nice way is to spread the tops with grape jeNy with a topping of whipped cream.

THEN AND NOW

Although the "short rainy season" is making things even more uncomfortable than the combatants in Ethiopia have had to endure since active hostilities began, Mussolini still sends more and more troops to the "front."

In the light of the fact that "Il Duce" daily grows more militaristic and aggressive, it is interesting to read a passage from an article written by him in 1913, for the Italian Socialist newspaper, the Avanti. The occasion for the article was Mussolini's tirade against Italy's attack on Tripoli. He wrote:

"We are in the presence of a nationalist, conservative, clerical Italy which proposes to make of the sword its law, of the army the nation's school. We foresaw this moral perversion and it does not surprise us. But those who think this preponderance of militarism a sign of strength are wrong. Strong nations do not have to descend to the sort of inane carnival in which the Italians are indulging today; strong nations have a sense of proportion. Nationalist, militarist Italy shows that it lacks this sense. So it happens that a miserable war of conquest is celebrated as a Roman triumph."

Months ago Mussolini, so to speak, ate his own words—"Those who think this preponderance of militarism is a sign of strength are wrong," and again the "sense of proportion," which he attributes to strong nations, leaves Italy today in the position of a weak nation.

Elevation to power went to Il Duce's head. An English commentator aptly quotes Robert Browning's remark: " 'Tis looking downward makes men giddy," to illustrate Mussolini's loss of balance by his turn-about-face conduct.

THE NEWS WHEN IT'S HOT

One of our sleuths reports that a professor has been speaking scornfully of the newspapers. On the specific subject of earthquakes he intimated that the knowledge of newspapers was pretty shallow, that they rushed into print with the most inaccurate information, and in fact were utterly unreliable as sources of scientific data on these phenomena.

What such critics forget is that a newspaper comes out every day, that its readers expect their news while it is news. If an earthquake occurs at 4 a.m. they look for full details in the morning paper. It would be very nice if the papers could say merely that a 'quake had been recorded, that experts were investigating and the complete report would be published three months hence. Then the experts could measure and estimate and consult charts and compare graphs and come out at length with all the technical details demanded by learned societies. And nobody would read their report. But that isn't what the people want. They want to know, and know in the very next edition of the newspapers, what damage has been done and where. They are far more interested in the result than in the scientific explanation of its origin, and professors are not greatly concerned with such little human details as pottery being rocked off the mantel or a dog howling in fear at a strange experience.

So altogether we think reporting had better be left to the reporters, and research to the experts. Each of them has his field, and each of them can help the other.

PRAISE TO RENO'S CROWD

Nominated today as real good scouts—the officers and men at the Reno mine and mill. They were hosts to our hockey team Saturday. By our team I mean the Daily News outfit. Reno has an enterprising bunch of fellows and they boast a small but wonderful skating rink situated high above Sheep creek. Every time the puck went over the boards it went into the creek, so I wouldn't be surprised if someone finds a rubber mine in that section one of these days. Having the rink so high in the air the Reno boys just cut holes in their ice and shovel the snow underneath. That's why the goal tenders disappeared at times. They were being pulled out of the hole. Dr. Eddie Morrison of hockey fame in Phoenix and the Boundary country some years ago, has lost none of his old hockey fire and was almost a 60 minute man. I was a 60-minute man Saturday—but I was goaltender. That's why Reno had such a big score against us. It was only about 10 below zero but the boys put up such a hot exhibition with heated arguments that the spectators had no difficulty in keeping warm. Al Norcross was around somewhere and between the mill and the hockey match, was a busy boy. I estimate that in climbing from the foot of the Reno mill to the tramway level at the top a fellow actually climbs about seven storeys, that is counting the steps—And just try to keep up with Sid Ellis or even Al Norcross and I'll bet your knees ache—I saw where a thousand dollars a day runs down a table in a blue stream. But we had lots of fun and so did the Reno boys. Again I say—what good sports! And as Pat Fowler insists—"the music goes 'round and 'round."

So Daily News boys let's sing that ditty:

"Hockey at the Reno
On your lovely little rink,
Hockey at the Reno
Where, etc., etc., etc.

"Colonel" Perry, the manager of a Reno puck club had a turkey presented to him by the members of the team.

On going to the bag in which he had deposited it he found "the bird had flown." He suspected three jovial acquaintances, and on challenging one of them received the reply: "It was only a lark."

"Lark be hanged!" stormed the "Colonel." "It weighed 14 pounds!"

NOT IN THE NEWS

By WORTH CHENEY

For anyone interested in flowers, we can think of no better hobby than the culture of the cereus, and especially the rare night-blooming variety, which blooms as its name implies, in the shadows of darkness.

The cereus apparently is a hobby with one reader of this column, Daniel J. Sullivan, of San Diego, Cal., a retired naval officer. Mr. Sullivan read an article on the cereus, recently printed here, and has sent us a letter describing his experiences with the cereus. We print it in part, for we think it may interest flower lovers.

"I," he writes, "have three (cereus) plants ranging from six to 30 years old. These plants begin blooming about the last of May and continue to bloom at intervals of five weeks until the last of October. I had one show four blossoms the tenth of last November.

"The blossoms begin to open about sundown and are at their best about 9 o'clock. They continue to bloom until the early morning hours, say 2 o'clock.

"I have had 40 blossoms on the three plants out at one time. My six-year-old plant sent out 40 blossoms last season, having 15 in bloom at one time.

"As you probably know, the cereus belongs to the cacti family, and the blossoms come out on the leaves. Sometimes three blossoms are noticeable on one leaf. These blossoms when fully out, measure from six to nine inches. The center pentals are a beautiful white, and the outer petals purplish yellow. These plants are kept outdoors the year round on the front porch.

"Next month my red and scarlet cereus will bloom, and it may have 20 blossoms on one leaf. These flowers are different from the night-blooming cereus. They resemble a beautiful scarlet lily about four inches long.

"I also have a night and day bloomer, similar in structure to that of the night only slightly smaller. It blooms night and day for a week.

"The night bloomers are at their best from the middle of July until the middle of August. By that I mean there are more blossoms to be shown."

Straggler: "Any idea where the hunt has gone?"
Farmer: "No. But I have hopes."—London Opinion.

NEWSPAPER IS USED IN CLASSROOM

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

Head Department Parent Education Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

I visit a great many classrooms throughout the United States. I find from year to year an increased use of the newspaper at school. Often I see clippings of special articles—even this column—vital news items, and editorials on the bulletin board of the classroom. I have seen such materials used for oral English in the elementary grades, and for composition work in the junior and senior highs. I once observed a discussion of spelling, the students noting that proofreaders must be good spellers and very careful, since one rarely finds a misspelled word in the newspaper.

Best of all, children learn at school to center their attention on items in the newspaper which are most worth while. They learn to read a newspaper discriminatingly. By and by the editor will have so many intelligent readers of his paper that he will be able to print a better newspaper, one more to his liking. When we and our children really want better newspapers we will get them.

I have taught in every grade from the first to the graduate school, inclusive. If I were teaching science or English again in the junior or senior high level, I would encourage my students to write the editor of the local newspaper or newspapers, commenting on editorials or special articles. He would welcome these and print many of them. Those printed I would place on the bulletin board. Some teachers might prefer to help select the articles submitted to the paper. I should prefer to leave it entirely to the students, else I might discourage some of the most promising writers. I would assume that the editor might be a better judge of merit than I could be—I might be too academis.

I have long been impressed with the forcefulness of expression by youth and parents who write me, and some of the best writing is by those who say they get on poorly at school or have had but little formal education. They write as they feel. They say what they want to say better, often, than is expressed in any composition ordinarily written for a course in high school or college English.

As I have said before, many parents should write their opinions about editorials and special articles to the local editor. To do so affords good outlet for their talent and proves to be of excellent mental hygiene value.

INADEQUATE DIET CAUSES DISCOMFORT

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

A great many people who complain constantly of indefinite bodily discomfort and fatigue, tell the following kind of a story:

Thin, restless and unhappy looking, the patient, when asked what was the last time she could remember feeling perfectly well, answers that she never remembers having felt well in her life. If she didn't have headaches, she had a tired feeling; if she didn't have that, she had indigestion. Asked what she eats for breakfast, she replies that sometimes she doesn't eat anything at all. The reason is she doesn't feel like eating breakfast. If she does eat breakfast, she eats a piece of bread and butter and a cup of black coffee. She does not drink milk because it disagrees with her. Sometimes she doesn't eat any lunch, or if she does, it is another piece of bread and butter and a little ice cream. For the evening meal she likes some cornbread with cream on it. Rarely, a small piece of meat; very rarely, some kind of fruit; vegetables are mostly potatoes or sweet potatoes.

She is on the ragged verge of dietary deficiency, without actual starvation. No wonder she feels tired, is easily upset, subject to aches and pains. She just barely gets enough energy in her food so that it can be called at the lowest border of adequate and maintain her at a weight level a few pounds below what she ought to have.

Such is the common picture of nutritional inadequacy in young and middle-aged people. Actual deficiency diseases are dependent not so much upon the actual amount of food—that is, upon an inadequate amount of food—as upon an improperly distributed set of foods.

In infancy and childhood, the processes of growth impose great demands for the growth of tissue, and the well balanced diet must include adequate quantities of proteins, fat, carbohydrates, minerals and vitamins, which means milk, eggs, vegetable purees, orange juice, cod liver oil, spinach and carrots. When a proper quantity of these substances is lacking, manifestations of disturbances in growth, bone formation, blood formation, and nutrition, are evident.

The fact that children's specialists and other health agencies have been educating the public for the last 25 years along these lines, has served to reduce these diseases in infancy and to reduce infant mortality. A sturdier young generation is coming along. Knowledge of how to add proper vitamins to the food has overcome and compensated for the refinement and concentration of infant foods as practiced by many manufacturing concerns, and assures healthy growth during the winter months.

The deficiency diseases of old age are somewhat different and will be discussed tomorrow.

A NEW KING TAKES HIS PLACE

No common man is King of England. All socialistic views to the contrary, Edward VIII steps to the throne a King in more than name or heritage. He is a ruler by right of training as well.

It is a fortunate thing that English tradition produces such men as the new British ruler. Were a lesser man suddenly placed in his position, the peace of Europe and of the entire world might suffer. Civilization can thank the English for their precautions.

Edward as king, faces a serious situation, a world crisis. Yet perhaps no living man understands it better than he for he has spent his entire life in preparation for this moment and that preparation included personal visits to every civilized nation on the globe. He knows the world, the tempers of the countries and peoples that make it up. And behind him lies the power of the greatest empire in existence. The succession is a fortunate one for the world.

America might well tear a page from the book of English governmental training methods. Here is an English ruler stepping up to the throne with 40 years of life behind him, nearly every moment of which he has spent in preparation for this very moment. We, as members of a democratic government, take one from the ranks and elevate him to rule over us. His preparation for the position is not often the paramount consideration by which the choice is made, yet is not our own government ranking in importance with that of England? Why should we, with schools for every other type of profession or vocation, forget the all-important business of government? This ommision has undermined our government structure to the point that we lose confidence in it and pave the way for the invasion of the spoilers that constantly await opportunities to ply their grasping trade.—Bismark Capitol, Bismark, N.D.

High School Highlights

HOUSE PROGRAM

A debate, "Resolved that sweepstakes should be a legal means for the government to obtain revenue for charitable institutions," was warmly contested in the high school auditorium Friday afternoon. The speakers for the affirmative were George Russell, Harvey Moir and Levon Papazian. Jean Brown, Janet Grimes and Maynie MacMillan upheld the negative, and were awarded the judges' decision. Elizabeth Fleck, as chairman, introduced the debaters. Although some of the speakers were nervous and rather note-conscious, the results achieved were good on the whole. While awaiting the decision of the judges, Brownie Schupe played a few selections on the piano, including that "dizzy ditty." "The Music Goes 'Round and 'Round." After the judges had delivered their decision, Mr. Rogers was called upon to give a short criticism of the debate. He called attention to the face that the debaters in their eloquence had wandered from the subject. In this connection he was heard to say that their remarks reminded him of a certain something "that goes 'round and 'round."

SPORTS

The girls' basketball team played the convent girls Thursday afternoon at the convent and lost the hard-fought game by only one point. The high school had difficulty in beginning as the players were not accustomed to the hall. The baskets are a foot and a half higher and the floor somewhat smaller than ours. Nevertheless, the team put up a great battle in spite of these disadvantages.

Rosa Stewart of the convent opened the scoring a few minutes after the game started and the convent ran wild during the first part of the period. However, the high school found themselves soon after. Arla Saare, Isabel Donovon and Carmella DelPuppo each scored brilliantly for the high. An interesting moment occurred when Arla Saare shot the ball at one of the huge lights instead of the basket and a shower of broken glass fell on the players. The period ended with the convent leading.

The second period was much faster. Isabel Donovan converted three baskets in quick succession to tie the score. After some fast but rough playing by both sides Isabel again found the basket to put the high in the lead. This lead was short lived, however, for Mary MacDougal, of the convent, broke through to score, tying the score again. Then followed some nice combination work by Stewart and MacAdam with the result that the convent scored eight more points. The high added another basket and the period ended with the score 23-17 in favor of St. Joseph's. The period was decidedly rough, many penalty shots being allotted to the players.

Isabel Donovan opened the scoring again. The high put every bit of energy it could muster into its plays, so determined was the team to win. The convent obtained two more baskets then Arla Saare made three spectacular baskets, the last one just after she had received a nasty injury to her jaw. The period ended with the players going at a fast pace, the score being 27-26 for the convent.

Edna McKenzie and Wilma Milne both played brilliantly on guard. Their stellar work kept the convent from chalking up more points. Joan Hornet making her first appearance on the high school lineup also put in a good game as guard.

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS

Olsen and Dewdney conducted a guerrilla warfare during French period under their seats—Len Stewart and Custance depicting each other in the guise of such things as sunfishes on the blackboard—the teachers finally awaking Mooseface—and Moir waking up MacIntosh when Moir was making a report on pottery—Emmott getting chidden for fooling with a couple of batteries in the physics lab, to Gore's great delight, as he usually receives the reproofs.

When Mr. Gray catches any infant chewing gum, he tells the said child to "feed it to the birdies"; so when Proctor's dog visited the classroom, he said the same thing—and then the dog kept up such a howling, and after reentering three times, and being put out three times, the work became pretty nearly impossible—"hang on to that dog, Proctor, for such devotion is rare."

Eleanor Seamon and Peggy Manahan getting even closer together than usual (a feat hitherto regarded as impossible) when Eleanor lost her Latin book—Parker's deep voice rumbling on at the wrong time, and Horswill chivalrously leaping to his defence when Parker was reprimanded—so "chivalrousliness" is not dead, after all—Grade XII's Latin teacher getting a lot of fun out of describing Greek mythology, and Jupiter's matrimonial tangles—after listening to the history of the gods' and goddesses' hymenael complications, one thinks a Grecian Reno would have come in handy—A grade X student announcing that Louis XIV "enlightened despots."

Ye scribe is beginning to realize how deserving of respect Walter Winchell and Arthur Brisbane really are, having tried ye hand at a column.

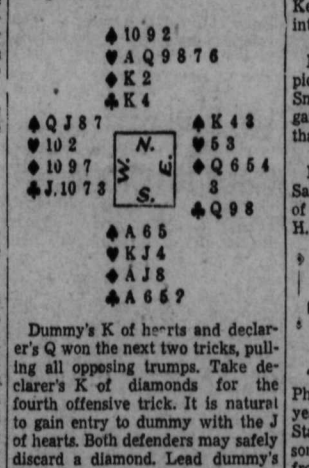
CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V SHEPARD

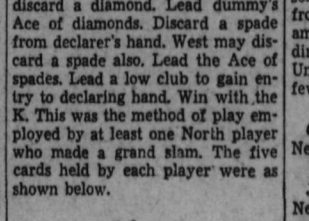
"Teacher of Teachers"

A VERY COMMON FAULT

When seemingly impossible results are obtained, seek opposition's faults. That is what I did with a hand played two nights ago in a 15-table duplicate. The deal is shown below. Only 3 players sitting North bid even a small slam, although five players sitting in that position made a grand slam at hearts. The opening lead was the 4 of diamonds. Win with dummy's J, then try to make the grand slam.



Dummy's K of hearts and declarer's Q won the next two tricks, pulling all opposing trumps. Take declarer's K of diamonds for the fourth offensive trick. It is natural to gain entry to dummy with the J of hearts. Both defenders may safely discard a diamond. Lead dummy's Ace of diamonds. Discard a spade from declarer's hand. West may discard a spade also. Lead the Ace of spades. Lead a low club to gain entry to declaring hand. Win with the K. This was the method of play employed by at least one North player who made a grand slam. The five cards held by each player were as shown below.



As far as ascertainable each North hand making the grand slam followed similar tactics and obtained about the same plays and discards from defenders.

Try squeezing, by leading off good hearts. On the first heart East should let go his worthless diamond. Let go a spade from dummy. West players let go a club. Lead another heart. East may let go his lowest spade. Dummy will let go its last spade. West should let go the J of spades. Lead declarer's last heart. East must hold the K of spades and let go its lowest club. Dummy will let go its lowest club.

No squeeze is possible as played. East holds the high spade. All West has to do to avert the grand slam is to let go its last spade, which is not the top card of that suit, and retain its two clubs. Evidently this was not done at the tables where the grand slam was made. North had only a pseudo (or false) squeeze, with the only chance for 7-odd coming in case he could deceive one or both defendants into making the wrong discards.

State Has Lodge That Seeks Fraternity With Marmot

QUARRYVILLE, Pa., Feb. 2 — (AP).—Today was "groundhog day" here as well as in other sections of North America where the furry burrower claims to be a weather prophet but in his part of William Penn's country the groundhog and his perambulations are taken quite seriously.

(Tradition has it the groundhog—or woodchuck—emerges from his underground corridor Feb. 2 and if he sees his shadow there will be six weeks more of winter. If he fails to see his shadow "spring can't be far behin .").

Quarryville has a "Slumbering Groundhog Lodge" whose members bring fame to this quaint little town as the "weather-works of the nation" by their annual march, with silk hat and cane, to the hole of the lowly woodchuck. The lodge was duly summoned once more by their hibernating governors.

In customary secrecy, the word was passed from farm to farm and among the townfolk that communion actually would be held with the weather prophet extradorinary, on the morning of Sunday, Feb. 2. But because of the Sabbath, the official prognostications will be kept secret until Monday night, when the festive part of the program will be carried out with red fire illuminations, bands, parades and feasting.

For nearly 40 years it has been thus. Groundhog day is a red letter day for this part of Lancaster county. In fact, Slumbering Groundhog lodge has suggested with spirit several times that this section secede from the union because Groundhog day has not been made a national holiday.

On the second day of February, every year, lodgemen who hold membership in all the higher places in state life, don their toppers, swing their canes and trample through the snowdrifts. Only the elect are permitted to go on this pilgrimage.

Once in the mountain fastness, the lodge divides into squads and the hills are searched for the groundhog. If no on that day, the calendar declares—and the lodge swears by it—will emerge from his winter slumbers.

The shout that the groundhog has been found, brings the lodgemen together at the hole. There the groundhog predicts the weather, discusses national politics and other matters of the moment. His revelations are carried back to the lodge hall, where before the mystic councils and the defender of the faith and the exalted hibernator, the groundhog prophecies are disclosed. Great batches of telegraph and telephone messages from all over the country are answered. The news is given to a waiting world!

George Washington Hensel, jr., hibernating governor and for years one of the leading figures in the lodge, said in announcing the annual rites: "The goosebone prophets have had their say, so have the nature fakirs, now the real weather outlook will be given by the greatest prophet of them all."

In Europe they call him a marmot. But a groundhog or woodchuck by any other name couldn't be much of a weather prophet.

Sweden Worried Over Birthrate

SWEDEN (CP)—The problem of the falling birthrate in Sweden has recently been brought home to the people of Stockholm by means of an exhibition called "Mother and Child" organized by the Swedish Red Cross.

The king of Sweden and the crown princess joined with Prince Carl, president of the Red Cross, in showing their interest by attending the opening of the exhibition.

There are tables showing in clear figures the fall in birthrate during the last century. Sweden's present figure is shown to be 13.7 per thousand as compared with the highest European rate of 43.9 per thousand for Russia.

Many exhibits have aroused interest, as showing the various ailments to which children are subject, with methods of prevention and cure. Mothers can also receive instruction in the proper rearing of their infants.

Sir Walter Raleigh is credited with introducing mahogany to Europeans.

209 GOALS IN 44 SOCCER GAMES

Chester Beats York City by 12-0 in English League

LONDON, Feb. 2 (CP Cable)—A riot of goals in the various divisions of the English football league set officials busy thumbing their records today. In Saturday's program 44 games produced 209 goals.

Chester's 12-0 walkover at the expense of York City put the northern section of the third division far ahead of the other leagues with 68 counters. The southern section netted a total of 49 and first and second league teams rammed home 46 each.

It was a day of individual performances. Wrightson and Sergeant each scored four of Chester's goals and Valentine netted a similar number for Halifax Town. Three goals were obtained by W. G. Richardson, West Bromwich Albion, Morrison, Tottenham Hotspurs, Stubbs, Notts Forest, Lewis, West Ham United, Crawford, Clapton Orient, Fletcher, Watford, and Harker, Accrington Stanley.

Twenty thousand spectators saw Chelsea hold Sunderland to a 3-3 draw at Roker Park despite the loss of Mitchell, ordered from the field midway through the game.

Gurney opened the scoring for the home team after six minutes, but Gibson equalized a few minutes later. Gurney put his side one up at the interval. After the change of ends Gallagher widened the margin for the league champions but Mabrick brought the scores level before the end.

Griffiths and Cummings, two of Aston Villa's most expensive stars, were missing from the team that topped Derby County 3-1 and allowed Huddersfield Town to slip into second place in the table behind Sunderland. Bowers sent in the County's lone goal, Phillips, Williams and Astley netting for the midlanders.

Huddersfield did well to defeat Bolton Wanderers on the Lancastrian's ground 2-1. Twenty-eight thousand saw the teams fight on even terms in a scoreless first half. Then Luke and Chester put Huddersfield in the lead but Eastham reduced the margin for Bolton just before the finish.

Swedish Skier Practice Winner

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany, Feb. 2 (CP)—In an international practice tournament on the Olympic ski hill today, Sven Eriksson of Sweden took first place, with Tom Mobraeton of Vancouver, in ninth place.

Eriksson won with jumps of 80 and 71 meters (262 feet, five inches and 232 feet, 11 inches). Mobraeton, a Norwegian who is now a Canadian citizen, soared 72 and 76 meters on his two tries.

Second was Birger Rudd of Norway, with jumps of 74 and 76 meters. Roy Mikkelsen of California, cleared 76 and 78 meters, but his skis "fluttered" while he was in the air and he was placed behind Rudd because of the lapse in form.

A crowd of 10,000 stood in a drizzling rain to watch the jumping, which started from a point six meters short of the Olympic starting point.

GAMES START THURSDAY

The fourth winter games, a huge outgrowth of the informal competition begun in 1924, open this Thursday with every prospect of the keenest competition on record, if the weather man will cooperate.

The entry list already has broken all records with nearly 400 athletes representing 27 nations in a score of events. At Lake Placid, N.Y., in 1932, only 93 entries from 12 countries were present. More skiers are scheduled to participate here than took part in the three previous winter Olympics. Entries for the ski events have come even from such unexpected places as Turkey and Spain.

TY COBB IS NO. 1 BALL IMMORTAL

Wins Place in the Hall of Fame Over Ruth, Wagner, Mathewson

CHICAGO, Feb. 2 (AP).—Tyrus Raymond Cobb, fiery genius of the diamond for 24 triumphant years, will be the No. 1 immortal in baseball's permanent hall of fame.

The famous Georgian, who shattered virtually all records known to baseball during his glorious era, won the distinction as the immortal of immortals today by out-scoring such diamond greats as Babe Ruth, Honus Wagner and Christy Mathewson in the nation-wide poll to determine which 10 players of the modern age should be represented in the game's memorial hall at Cooperstown, N.Y.

Only Cobb, Ruth, Wagner, Mathewson and Walter Johnson, probably the speed king of them all, received the required majority to win places in the hall of fame, but Cobb was given a margin of seven votes over his closest rivals, Ruth and Wagner. Out of 226 ballots cast by players and writers, the Georgia peach received 221, or four less than a unanimous vote. Ruth and Wagner received 215 each. Mathewson was fourth with 205 and Johnson fifth with 189. Seventy-five per cent of the total votes, or 169 were needed.

Napoleon Lajoie, Tris Speaker, Cy Young, Rogers Hornsby and Mickey Cochrane ran in that order for the other five positions left for the moderns—players who starred from 1900 and on—but as none received 75 per cent of the total vote their cases will be submitted to the Cooperstown committee in charge of the memorial to be erected in time for baseball's centennial in 1939. Their names will be submitted in another poll next year with five or seven places open.

WALES WINS IN RUGBY BY 13-3

EDINBURGH, Feb. 2 (CP cable).—Wales took the lead in the international rugby series Saturday by defeating Scotland 13-3 at Murrayfield. In the first of the international encounters England and Wales battled to a scoreless draw at Swansea, January 10.

The victory also gave the Welshmen an edge in their annual struggles with the Scots. Previously the two countries had met on 46 occasions, with 22 victories for each and two drawn games. Last year at Cardiff, Wales won 10-6.

Fifty thousand spectators, including 15,000 Welshmen, saw a game that was largely confined to forward play. Heavy rain had left the pitch in a soggy condition and the three-quarters on both sides found it extremely difficult to control the ball.

Cieman Makes a Record for Walk

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (CP).—Hank Cieman, Toronto's renowned pedestrian, today is the new world record-holder for the one-mile walk. The Achilles club veteran stepped off the distance in 6 minutes 23.7 seconds at the Millrose track and field carnival in Madison Square Garden Saturday night to surpass both existing marks.

He not only cracked the indoor mark of 6:37.2, set by Mike Pecora four years ago in the Garden, but surpassed the long standing world outdoor record of 6:25.8, made by the great Canadian, George Goulding, at Montreal in 1910.

SOCCER STAR IS INJURED

NANAIMO, B.C., Feb. 2 (CP).—Prospects of the Nanaimo City soccer team, Dominion Football association cup finalists last year, were considerably dimmer tonight as "Daisy" Waugh, their star centre-forward, lay in the hspital with a badly crushed knee which it is expected will keep him out of the game for at least the remainder of this year.

Waugh was injured yesterday while at work underground in the Protection mine where he was employed. He is the leading scorer in the inter-city league.

HOCKEY C-H-A-T-T-E-R

by W.W.W.

Many of the fans were disappointed with the Kimberley-Nelson hockey game Friday night, mainly, we believe, because it was not as good as the previous game which was just about perfect. There was plenty of fine hockey in it although most of it was unfinished. Few times in the game did the Nelson forwards carry the play into the opposing defence area with real combination thrusts, but they did do a lot of shooting and then chasing it in, and also did a lot of hammering around the goal when they boxed up Kimberley.

It was different kind of hockey than the previous game, but judging from the intermittent yells the crowd gave when Nelson did get into scoring range, there were many thrilling moments.

Kimberley did not look as finished as on the former occasion and failed to hit the pace they have displayed before.

"Hurry" Brown made the most of the evening, getting three assists and a kink in the neck. He fed three pretty passes, one to Burnett, another to Botterill and a third to Redding, all resulting in goals. He was in himself on what looked like another goal, but Nick Smith got back in time to spoil his shot.

HARRY BROWN

Botterill is one player who can whale a puck straight at the goal from all angles. He is fast, heady, and his shots are hard. Always dangerous.

Ken Campbell, former Regina shutout king, made his first appearance in a game here. He looked good but he was not called to play the sensational game in the net that Bill McKay was doing at the other end. Nelson could have looked terrible if McKay had not been up to the mark.

The game was clean enough and the two penalties, one to Kemp and the other to Annable, were of the harmless variety.

Pot shots . . . Nelson's chances of getting a goal looked about as dark as the famous hole of Calcutta until Smith kinked the twine with less than two minutes to go. One lady had just remarked she was so peeved she wouldn't yell if Nelson did get a goal, and when the red light blinked she let out a shriek that couldn't have been more hilarious if she had captured a town single-handed . . . Annable was grabbing pucks out of the crowd and throwing them on the ice in order not to lose any time by faceoffs. . . . Charley Pearson did some fine headwork when the puck went over the boards into the crowd on one occasion. He had a nice little mark the next morning on the temple. . . . Leaf passes all seemed to go to slightly off color and most of them went to their players' feet instead of out ahead where a stick could be applied. One went so far astray that Ken Moore grabbed it about 25 feet out from the goal. It was such a pass as they had been told never to make. Moore scored incidentally to emphasize the mistake.

Trail Orioles Defeat Nelson

Take Girls' Game of Basketball 17-11

Forced to play the entire game without the services of their tall center player Almeda Graves, who did not arrive in Trail until nearly an hour after the game was finished due to a car breakdown, the Nelson girls' basketball club gave the league-leading Trail Orioles a hard fight, but finished on the short end of a 17-11 score in a close game played in the Trail Memorial hall Saturday evening. Due to the fact that a number of the Trail players stated they wished to witness the hockey game, the periods were cut short, and the rest sessions reduced. The Nelson manager and players expressed much disagreement at the arrangement, especially as five of the six Trail players were still in the Memorial hall throughout the next game.

As the Nelson players took the floor without any practice together and without the services of Almeda Graves and Doreen Dunnett, the result was satisfactory to the Nelson officials, as well as a surprise to the Trail players and fans who declared that the visiting team was one of the strongest girls' teams Nelson had ever fielded in Trail even though many of the Nelson team's plays were individual efforts due to lack of practice together.

Molly Leckie led the Trail Orioles in scoring with nine points, Dixie Edwards who played a strong game at guard for the winners along with Yvonne Guillaume scored two pretty baskets from almost impossible angles. Ellen Baillie and Yvonne Guillaume scored two points each. Rose Severn and Clo Michaely completed the Trail line-up. A feature of the Nelson team's playing was their ability to convert free throws, seven of the Nelson team's points being the result of converted free throws out of ten attempts. Mary Abbott and Opal LaBelle showed up well as guards, the former scoring a pretty one-handed basket from her own end of the floor in the first half. Arla Saare led the Nelson team with four points. Margaret Thompson, Elvera Matheson and Mary Abbott each scored two points. Opal LaBelle getting the other point. Although not figuring in the scoring Pauline Stangherlin and Carmella DelPuppo played well for the Nelson girls. Tentative arrangements call for the Trail Orioles playing a return game in Nelson next Friday evening, Feb. 7.

The officials were: Baillie, referee; Leroy, time-keeper; Davy, scorer.

Norwegian Wins Skating Crown

Ballangrud Becomes the World Champ in Swiss Contests

DAVOS, Switzerland, Feb. 2 (AP)—By equalling the world's record for 1500 metres despite a driving snowstorm, Ivar Ballangrud of Norway won the 1936 world speed skating championship scoring 194.9 points in the four events.

Eddie Schroeder of Chicago, leading United States performer, finished third in the point scoring behind Birger Vasenius of Finland. Vasenius scored 196.5 points and Schroeder 198.4.

Michel Staksrud of Norway took fourth place with 199.5 points, Robert Peterson of Milwaukee with 201.9 and Max Stiepl of Austria sixth with 202.3. Seien Kin of Japan, his country's only contestant in all four events, placed with 204.4 points.

The other American skaters, including Delbert Lamb of Milwaukee, who won the 500 metre race yesterday, did not enter the 10,000 event today and therefore were not included in the point scoring for the title.

Ballangrud skated the 1500 metres in two minutes, 17.4 seconds to equal the world mark set by O. Mathisen of Norway in 1914. Harry Haroldsen of Norway was second in 2:18.6 and Vasenius third in 2:20.5. Schroeder was fourth.

In the 10,000 metres, Ballangrud's time of 17:57.1 gave him third place. Vasenius turned in the best performance, 17:51.4 and Stiepl was second in 17:52.4. Schroeder's time was 18:16.2, giving him seventh place.

DONS WIN AS CELTS LOSE

Aberdeen Holds Lead; Celtic Tied With Rangers Next

GLASGOW, Feb. 2 (CP Cable)—Supporters of Aberdeen, leader in the Scottish football league were jubilant tonight over the Dons' great 2-0 victory over Third Lanark Saturday. The points gained widened the gap between Aberdeen and its Glasgow rivals, Celtic and Rangers.

Celtic was defeated 1-0 by Heart of Midlothian at Tynecastle Park and is now in a tie with Rangers for second place, three points behind the Dons. Rangers and Motherwell fought a dour struggle at Ibrox Park, neither team being able to score.

Warnock scored a goal in each half for Aberdeen. Third Lanark was handicapped by injuries to Carabine and Denmark. The Dons should have won by three goals, Armstrong missing a penalty kick.

The fixture at Tynecastle saw Hearts well on top in the first half of the game and Tommy Walker's counter turned out to be the winning goal. The Celts took command in the second half but could not break through a fine defence. Harkness, the home goalkeeper saved brilliantly from a penalty kick taken by Lyons, Celtic's captain and centre half. Rangers and Motherwell figured in a great game and the scoreless result was a fitting one.

Fighting to get out of last place, Ayr United suffered a serious reverse at the hands of Hamilton Academicals. Harrison netted twice for the Accies, others being obtained by Park and King. Fleming and Hope were Ayr's marksmen.

ISLAND TITLES GO TO WINNIPEG

Kamloops Ladies Lift Two of Badminton Honors

VICTORIA, Feb. 2 (CP)—A pair of star shuttlers from Manitoba and two sisters from Kamloops, B.C., today held four of Vancouver Island's five major badminton titles between them.

Douglas Grant of Winnipeg, a former Canadian titleholder, annexed the Island singles crown when he ousted his fellow townsman, Charles Jones, 15-6, 15-6 in the men's singles final here last night.

Later Grant and Jones paired to defeat M. Atkinson and J. Lacey of Vancouver, 15-11, 15-9, for the men's doubles crown.

The Fernie sisters, Daphne and Mary, captured the two women's titles, Daphne downing 17-year-old Joyce Thomson of Brentwood, Vancouver Island, 11-1, 11-0 for the singles, then teaming with her sister for a 15-13, 15-7 victory of Mrs. D. Barkuff of Seattle and Miss U. Norrie of Duncan, Vancouver Island, for the doubles.

Miss Norrie and Eric Leney of Duncan beat Peggy MacDonald of Victoria and Atkinson, 15-8, 15-8 to capture their sixth mixed doubles Island title.

SWIM RECORDS FALL AT COAST

Jack Medica Sets New Canadian Pace in 200 Yards

VANCOUVER, Feb. 2 (CP). — Five Canadian swimming records sank in the sparkling waters of the Crystal pool here last night as members of the Washington Athletic club and the Vancouver Amateur Swimming club participated in an international gala.

Jack Medica of the University of Washington, holder of several world marks, clipped 1 1-5 seconds from the Canadian record for the 200 yards freestyle, held by George Burleigh of Toronto, as he raced the distance in 2:02 to defeat Bobby Hooper, Vancouver, whose time of 2:02 3-10 also bettered the existing mark.

The W. A. C. senior women's relay team, comprising Olive McKean, Betty Lea, Mary Lou Petty and Doris Buckley, won the 200 yards relay in 1:56, missing the world mark by 2-5 of a second and setting a new Canadian mark. The old record held by Toronto Dolphinets was 1:59 1-5.

Marion Moffatt, Vancouver, clipped 5-10 second from her own record of 1:16:8 for the 100 yards backstroke. Valerie Rowan, 16-year-old Vancouver star, shattered the 220 yards freestyle record for junior girls when she crawled the distance in 2:50:6. The old mark held by Pat O'Hara of Vancouver was 2:54.

The V. A. S. C.'s junior medley relay team swam 150 yards in three relays in 1:48 to lower the mark held by the Hamilton Aquatic club by 6 9-10 seconds.

KIT KLEIN WINS SKATING HONOR

Takes World's Title for Women in Races at Stockholm

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 2 (AP).—Kit Klein, speedy Buffalo, N.Y., girl, won the world's speed skating championship for women today by finishing second in the 5000-meter race after scoring two victories yesterday in the shorter events.

Miss Klein, who captured the 500-meter and 3000-meter races yesterday, could place no better than third today in the 1000 meters but that place, with her second in the distance event, gave her a winning point total.

In the deciding race the Buffalo girl trailed Verne Lesche of Finland, who broke her own world record by skating the distance in 10 minutes 15.3 seconds. Her previous mark was 10:28.3.

Miss Klein scored the low total of 234.7 points in the four events. Miss Lesche had 235.7 points. She won both of today's events, the 1000 and 5000-meter races, was second yesterday in the 3000 and tied for fourth in the 500 with Synnove Lie of Norway.

Miss Lie was third with 239.38 points, Minako Taki of Japan fourth with 241.39, and Taeko Kitani of Japan fifth with 241.7.

Hattie Donaldson Briggs of Toronto scored 248 points and Ysuko Kawaminami of Japan tallied 252.21.

CHAPTER 49

Eight people attended Andrew Darien's funeral besides the preacher, the soloist, the undertaker and his assistant. Two of them were Marcella Cambridge and I. The third, his lawyer, the fourth and fifth, detectives who sat pretty far back in the chapel, and the other three men I didn't know. Later I discovered they had been employees of Mr. Darien. Reporters weren't admitted, for the services were private. But there were plenty of them waiting outside for us.

No one except the lawyer and Miss Cambridge went to look on Mr. Darien's dead face when the short service was over. I couldn't have gone if there had been a revolver at my back urging me. I could hardly listen to the eulogies of the preacher who hadn't known Andrew Darien and therefore was extolling him to the skies. It seemed such a travesty that this man should be praised in death when he had been so cruel in life. I never could forget what he had done to Janet.

The queer psychological twist that made him leave me his fortune and browbeat a youngster like Janet, was incomprehensible to me, unless the home that I made for him was the only one he ever had known and somewhere in his inner self, there had been more than a spark of appreciateiveness.

The lawyer, Mr. Granet, gave merely a quick glance at the opened casket, and walked away, but Marcella Cambridge lingered there for a full minute, the undertaker standing very close. When she turned and I saw her face, there was the slightest tinge of a smile on her lips. No one would have noticed it but myself, and that was because I knew her so well.

"He looked very peaceful, Mrs. Penny," she said when she rejoined me. Personally, I didn't care how peaceful Mr. Darien looked in death. I was anxious to find a private telephone as soon as I could.

The small congregation wandered out of the chapel as the undertaker was closing the casket.

"It seems strange to me," Marcella Cambridge continued, "that no one else cared to come to the funeral. Mr. Hemingway always professed to be such a great friend of Mr. Darien's and yet when I asked him this morning if he would share a taxi with me here, he flatly refused. Said he never went to funerals. He was almost rude about it."

I agreed with her, although I had the same aversion to funerals that Mr. Hemingway apparently had. However, in the two years Mr. Hemingway had been in my house, he and Mr. Darien were the best of friends. Their offices were in the same building down town, although not on the same floor. In view of Mr. Darien's activities I saw clearly that their relations were more business-like than friendly. If Mr. Darien were the blackmailer I suspected he was, undoubtedly he used the medium of Mr. Hemingway's small gossipy paper for his work.

Afterwards, when the will was probated, I found I was right. Mr. Darien was really the owner of "Around Town", and Martin Hemingway was merely his paid editor. In business hours they had nothing to do with each other, but at home at night, with the closet door so accessible, they must have had a good deal to say to one another. At the first glance "Around Town" seemed to be harmless, amusing, bright. It wasn't. The veiled items were deadly threats and Mr. Hemingway's wit was put to good use for his employer's purpose.

The paper was a losing proposition financially, but from Mr. Darien's angle, a strong, powerful weapon.

In the undertaker's office Mr. Granet stopped and talked with me for a few moments, and I made an appointment to see him the following week. There was a phone on the desk, but I didn't care to use it with a stenographer so close, and a chance that it might have an extension. I couldn't find a private booth. The detectives were much in evidence, lolling about waiting for us to go.

Finally I went to the stenographer and asked her as quietly as I could whether there was another phone in the building, a private phone. There wasn't, they were all on the same line, she said, but if I went next door to the drug store, there was a booth, several of them in fact. It was one matter knowing I could phone from the store, and another getting away from the two detectives and the reporters who were waiting on the sidewalk. The girl saw my quandary, and suggested I go out by the alley, and through the back door of the drug store. She offered to pilot me, so we left, one of Larrabee's detectives trailing after us. I couldn't help that, but I was determined once I was in the booth that no one would overhear me. I didn't care whether Kirk Larrabee knew I had made the call, but I didn't want him to know what I said. There was a chance, too, that Dr. Rudemar would not be in town.

I was in the booth and had one hand over the dial, hiding it as I dialed with the other, when the detective came up and leaned against the glass door. I didn't care now. He hadn't seen the number I had called. A feminine voice answered the ring, the doctor's secretary. He had only come in that minute. She didn't know whether he would talk to anyone or not. I gave my name, and after a second, heard his voice.

Our interview over the phone was most unsatisfactory, as most phone conversations are. Dr. Rudemar had been to New York, had seen Emery Upham, and Mrs. Upham's son had laughed at him. Refused to take him seriously.

"I only went to him to help him and his mother, Mrs. Penny. I thought the situation desperate. I still do in the face of what has happened since Darien's death. I didn't tell him all I told you—not half of it, but I told him enough to make him feel partly responsible for his mother's condition. He refused to take the responsibility. Laughed at me again. A peculiar man, a study himself.

"He insisted to the end that there was nothing serious about the matter, except danger to his mother with a murderer loose in the house, and that he had wired her to come to New York. He gave me her return telegram to read. She is not allowed to leave the city. I don't know what to do now. I turned to you in a moment of panic, because you seemed a sensible woman when I saw you. I did not mean to say half what I did to you, but I found myself saying it just the same.

"It's a frightful position for me to be in, with 10 messages from Lieutenant Larrabee on my desk this minute. I can't accuse my patient because I'm not sure myself. Emery Upham threatens to sue me if I go to the police. There's the inviolability of my position as a medical man, and the duty I owe society at the same time. Sometime or other, I'll have to see Larrabee and talk with him."

"Couldn't you tell Larrabee something else about Mrs. Upham?" I begged.

"Unforunately, I've made a complete record of her case, an exhaustive one. She's an interesting subject. Those records the police could subpena if they chose."

"Burn them!"

"I'll see, Mrs. Penny. It isn't only that. It's the fact that already in your house, there have been two murders. There may be another. That's what I am afraid of. There was this servant—"

"Lucy didn't kill either one!"

"You have splendid faith, Mrs. Penny. More than I have. I've spent my life studying abnormal cases, and if anyone is abnormal, Mrs. Upham is."

"You may be wrong, Dr. Rudemar. You are wrong! Science isn't everything—there's the human quality to be considered!" I was desperate and the phone was such an unsatisfactory object to plead with. His voice came to me, low, hurried.

"How has Mrs. Upham been?"

"Splendid. Cheerful."

"That would be a natural condition with the obstacle of Andrew Darien removed."

I had said the wrong thing, but I couldn't help it. I glanced out the door. The detective was still there, his face very close to the glass. I hoped the booth was sound-proof. for inadvertantly I had raised my voice several times in my efforts to convince him he was wrong.

"I have a theory, Dr. Rudemar. My own. Will you wait until I work it out before you tell Lieutenant Larrabee?" I hadn't any more theory than a rabbit, except my suspicions of Martin Hemingway, but I was playing for time.

"How long will it take you to work it out?"

"I don't know. A few days, perhaps."

"There may be another murder before a few more days have passed."

"There can't be another murder!"

Another murder! I clung weakly to the receiver. Two already—

"Don't be too sure the danger is over, Mrs. Penny."

"Will you give me some time?"

"I shall. Phone me sometime tomorrow—you're not calling me from the house?"

I explained that I wasn't, that I was using a drug store booth, and that a detective was trying to listen outside. With that I hung up, my knees shaking. Some time between now and tomorrow I'd have to think of something, do something. Start unraveling this thread that would take me to the murderer of Andrew Darien and Delia Randall.

their frantic efforts to save themselves, climbed over Beaver, forcing him under the water.

YOUNG MISS HEROINE

Lovett McKeinnon, 18-year-old member of a fancy skating club, was sitting before a bonfire on the lakeshore when she noticed the sled plunge into the water. Without a word to her father and mother, who were with her, she raced across the ice and dived to the rescue. She pulled Clarence Beaver, seven, onto the treacherous ice where he was awaited by bystanders and plunged back for the other child.

By this time 23-year-old Frank Turner of the Vancouver Amateur Swimming club, holder of the Canadian 880 yards and 1000 yards swimming records, had reached the scene, and pulling off his skates, had dived in and pulled five-year-old Gordon Wells to safety. The elder Beaver had disappeared.

Firemen had been called and as they attempted to reach the scene on a ladder stretched across the ice, they, too, were precipitated into the water and had considerable difficulty in saving themselves. Eventually they obtained a boat and recovered Beaver's body in 50 feet of water. Two of the boys were saved but one drowned.

Reports of distress from illness conflicted. One case of pneumonia was reported, but another note sent by the airship said the islanders were "fortunate in having a good doctor."

Colin Herrell, directing the Red Cross activities said a minister would be flown to the island from Cristfield, Md., with authorization "to arrange for any additional supplies necessary."

A coastguard cutter was standing by and reporting by wireless from a position two miles off the island shore. The coastguard ice breaker had orders to proceed to the area tonight to assist in opening a 15-mile channel to the island from the mainland.

The dirigible unloaded 1000 pounds of staples there today, and Commander Lange reported apparently all signs of distress had been dispelled.

Smoke Eaters and Dynamiters Tie for Third Time by 2-2 at Trail

Kimberley Scores Two in First; Trail Gets Two in Third

TRAIL, B.C., Feb. 2.—In their last meeting of the West Kootenay Commercial Hockey league series, and for the third consecutive time, Kimberley Dynamiters and Trail Smoke Eaters battled to an overtime draw, on Trail ice Saturday night before a crowd of 1900 rabid fans, a draw of two goals to two.

With two tie games behind these predominating squads of the league, a great battle was anticipated and reserve seats were sold out a day in advance of the fixture.

Somewhat of a disappointment came in the first two periods of the battle when the score was 2-0 and play was ragged and devoid of the expected thrills, but the third canto was packed with a gamut of scintillating flashes as were the 10 minutes of overtime.

KIMBERLEY HANDICAPPED

Kimberley was somewhat crippled after the first period was over. Forsey injured his spine and had to be taken from the ice. Kemp, of the other string relieved in his postition and the five forward men alternated to allow rest periods for each other and it was a trying and arduous task to carry on in the heat of battle which took place in the third period and overtime. Kimberley's defence was not up to scratch either for Kozak, who had been ill with the "flu" for the past two weeks only took to the ice to give Brown or Burnett a rest. Trail was at full strength and no doubt the handicap which Kimberley suffered added to Smoke Eaters' potentiality.

TEAMS CAUTIOUS

Both teams played cautiously from the face-off and considerable checking ensued in the neutral zone. Forsey broke with the disk and pased to Redding who rifled a sizzler at Dupuis who cleared. Carr retrieved the disc to return to the Kimberley defending zone and drove the rubber at Campbell. Morris was ready to snap up the rebound but Brown broke up the combination. Burnett picked the biscuit off Cronie's stick to return with Brown who missed the net. Carr, Cronie and Morris were advancing in fine style but Burnett and Brown set up a splendid defence. Burnett checked Cronie again to return the rubber and shoot direct on Dupuis from the blue line. Forrest, Brennen and Andreashuk took to the ice and were headed toward the Kimberley net but Reddick rang his bell as Forrest crossed the blue line with the disk, the decision bringing boos galore from the fans and many programs onto the ice.

POWER ATTACK

Forsey spilled Brennen and went to the penalty box for a one-minute sentence and Coach "Deacon" Waite employed five forwards in a power attack. Trail went in several times without getting by the defence but just before Forsey returned Andreashuk avoided Brown and as he skated toward the net in an effort to score Campbell outguessed him by diving at the rubber to clear. Brennen grabbed a loose puck in the Kimberley defending zone in the similar fashion to which he scored three goals in Kimberley recently but on this occasion Campbell saved.

Burnett grabbed the rubber and skating with terrific speed his shoulders bobbing up and down like pistons, passed to Forsey after he pierced the blue line, and the rubber bulged the net. The time was 11:51.

Botterill took a long shard shot at Dupuis who cleared. Again Botterill went in to rifle a long shot at the Trail netminder who caught the disk in his lap and skated to the side of the net to clear but the puck had no sooner hit the ice when Art Mackie lifted it to score at 13:27.

Haight was meted out a one-minute penalty sentence but in spite of Trail being a man short, Brennen went in to again force Campbell to save.

Brown received a one-minute penalty for tripping Morris as Cronie slipped the latter a pass and again Trail employed a five gang forward rush. There was only one minute and forty seconds of the period to go and Trail tried its utmost to rally but without effect. Brown returned to the ice and 20 seconds before the end of the period Haight was again sent off. It was Reddick's decision that sent the Trail defenceman to the cooler and again the fans littered the ice with programs and time off was taken to clear the ice before the 20 seconds of that period could be played.

FORSEY HURT

In behnid the Trail net in a scramble, Forsey hit his spine against the boards and had to be assisted from the ice. Art Mackie passed to Botterill who missed the trail net. Haight returned to the ice. Brennen went in to shoot, Campbell saving. Botterill grabbed a loose puck to solo in on the Trail net to bring Dupuis out to save.

Art Mackie tried to use his knee on Cronie and went to the cooler for a minute. Carr dumped Redding and received a one-minute penalty. Kemp went off soon after for interfering. Mackie returned to the ice shortly before Kemp went off and Carr came back to the ice to give Trail the edge, but Kemp's time had not been completed when Haight received a minute penalty. Penalties of players of both teams so overlapped that little opportunity was given either team to turn on the heat.

Morris burned a fast one at Campbell who saved. Cronie was in on the Trail net when he was checked by Hugo Mackie.

The puck travelled from one end of the rink to the other with tremendous rapidity and yet shots on goal were few for both squads checked ferociously.

Haight received another one-minute penalty near the end of the second period with 54 seconds of it to serve in the third.

Brown drove the disc at Dupuis who saved and Burnett came back to repeat his teammate's threat. Haight sped to the other end of the rink after he returned to the ice and forced Campbell to a hair-raising save. Brown hooked Forrest and went to the cooler for a minute.

It was during Brown's absence that Trail employed another five-forward gang rush and this time to effect. The whole squad turned on the heat and kept the puck down at the Kimberley end of the rink. Return of the puck from the Kimberley net shortened its distance each time it went in until a mad scramble took place around Campbell. Andreashuk slipped the rubber to Forrest behind the net, the latter passing out in front to Brennen who scored. The time was 6:34.

Trail continued the pressure although Kemp broke to menace the Smoke Eaters' net. Carr, Johnston, Cronie and Morris went in in combination form and Morris missed the edge of the sanctum by inches.

The whole set-up appeared favorable for Trail as they took the controlling edge of the day. Brennen drove a hot one at Campbell and Brown cleared a loose puck in front of the net as Brennen was on his way to drive it.

In the prettiest combination play of the game Trail chalked up its second counter at 10:38. It was the type of combination that Kimberley has been seen to use so many times when effecting a power play and endeavoring to keep the rubber in the attacking zone. From the corner to the blue line to the side and into the net the disc bounced from the sticks of Forrest, Andreashuk and Brennen faster than one could count the actions.

Burnett and Josnston each drew penalties in the remainder of the period and at different times, the former's being for two minutes and the latter for one.

While Burnett was absent again the five-man forward rush on the part of Trail was used and Campbell, with the aid of Brown and Burnett, had a tough job staving off the attack.

In the 10 minutes of overtime Campbell stopped 10 and Dupuis five shots on goals, an indication of the play being of a two to one ratio but with such odds Trail failed to come through for a win.

At the outset of the overtime Brown drove the puck at Dupuis who saved. Morris, Cronie and Carr drove successive shots at Campbell, Cronie went into the net with only Campbell to beat and the fans exercised their lungs to the full as Campbell dove out to save what would have been the fateful goal and meant Kimberley's first defeat since Rossland took them into camp last season.

Botterill shot at Dupuis but Carr sped in to prevent Kemp taking the rebound. The play accelerated to a zenith in the neutral zone as the gong ending the first five minutes of overtime was sounded.

Forrest carried the puck into the attacking zone and Brennen was with him but he did not pass. Campbell handling the shot easily. Brown went through to make Dupuis stretch his anatomy to save. Forrest was on his way to the goal with the rubber when Burnett tripped him getting two minutes in the penalty box. Again Trail pressed in but it just wasn't in the stars for them to score. Burnett had no sooner returned to the ice when he was sent off again for tripping the same Trail man but he did not serve his full time for his penalty was meted out 10 seconds before the end of the game.

of a sovereign, will start tomorrow to place the finishing touches on their sessional program.

The first session of Canada's eighteenth parliament since Confederation will meet Thursday of this week in an atmosphere of mourning with a ceremony shorn of its customary glamor and accompanying social events.

All the ceremonial procedure laid down by tradition will be observed as usual but the brilliance of official uniforms and military trappings will be subdued by the signs of mourning for his late majesty, and the colorful display of feminine attire will be entirely lacking.

Lord Tweedsmuir, Canada's new governor-general, will find himself in a new role when he reads the speech from the throne, but the surroundings will be not unfamiliar to one of his experience in the mother of parliaments.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King will face parliament with an unprecedented majority of supporters. Normally this will number 179, less the speaker, against 66 oppositionists of all parties, a majority of 112. The government is opposed by three distinctly different political groups, of which the Conservatives will be the largest. Former Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, leader of the Conservative group, will head the official opposition with a following of 39. Mr. Bennett is expected in Ottawa from Calgary tomorrow.

"In no case," the report continued, "was the desensitization as profound as that obtained by injections of novocain."

In 40 per cent of the cases, the report said, the pain was "minimized to about the same extent that applications of phenol and warm air have accomplished for many years." In the others, the desensitizer "gave no apparent decrease in the sensation of pain."

"It is not our purpose to condemn the work of Dr. Hartman and results he claims for his formula when used by him," Dr. Jeserich's report explains. "But since Dr. Hartman made no mention in his presentation of his having had this material tried under his supervision by any cooperative group withn the profession we feel this should be done as soon as possible.

"First, Dr. Hartman should choose a group or groups of representative men from the profession and let them witness his technique and results as he operates upon previously determined sensitve teeth. Then Dr. Hartman should supervise the technique and results obtained by permitting this same group or groups to actually operate, using his desensitizer in his presence."

and providing them with food, clothing and shelter. No specific recommendation was made as to the amount of wages to be paid. The committee mentioned, however, that in transient camps in the United States monthly wages are paid as follows: Unskilled, $15, semi-skilled, $20, skilled $25.

The name "emergency work camp" should be substituted for that of "relief camp," in the opinion of the committee. The term relief camp had a bad "psychological effect," and the committee thought a change in name might help to destroy this.

In certain camps the committee found that young men suffering from thwarted ambitions "have become an easy prey to the subversive influences of communistic or anarchistic philosophy sedulously propagated by experienced agitators."

Camps should be limited to accommodate not more than 140 men. The committee cited the trouble experienced at the large camp in Dundurn, Sask., as furnishing reasons for doing away with such organizations.

BUY OWN CLOTHES

Men in camps should be permitted to purchase their own clothes.

Generally speaking the committee found meals, recreation facilities and medical services satisfactory. Meals were described as clean and wholesome, and no discrimination was shown between those on relief and administration staffs. Kitchen and dining halls were found to be "spotlessly clean."

Facilities for washing clothes were ample. There was adequate water supply for bathing.

The committee stated it was "unfair" to brand the camps as military establishments. It commended the organization set up by the department of national defence as being fair to the men and efficient in management.

The committee which conducted the investigation was made up of R. A. Rigg, director of employment services of Canada; Humphrey Mitchell, former Labor member of parliament for Hamilton, and Dr. E. W. Bradwin of Toronto, president of Frontier college. As it was merely a departmental committee reporting to the minister of labor its findings need not have been made public. The minister, however, decided they should be given out.

SPECIALLY SELECTED

When issuing the report he made the following brief statement:

"The members of the committee were selected for the task because of their special knowledge in regard to the several aspects of the relief camp problem. They approached their investigation with a sympathetic understanding of the human factors in the problem and with a knowledge as well of the practical considerations which must also have their bearing on government policy.

"This report is being released because of the widespread interest in relief camps throughout the country. We propose to take the people into our confidence in regard to the whole matter. Wherever it is possible to do so, I think, it is desirable to throw a clear light on a problem in order that the taxpayers and citizens generally may know the reason for the adoption of particular policies."

ANARCHISTIC ACTIVITY

Dealing with communistic and anarchistic influences found in some camps, the committee reported as follows:

"There is a group of young men whose ages range from 18 to 25 years, many of whom have never had other than occasional, casual employment and who, therefore, have not acquired the habit of working or the sense of individual responsibility to society. These young fellows have suffered through thwarted ambitions and the lack of visible grounds of hope for the future and have become an easy prey to the subversive influences of communistic or anarchistic philosophy, sedulously propagated by experienced agitators.

"Most of these young men are gifted with average intelligence and if they had grown up surrounded by the influences of a normal environment of national defence as being good account of themselves. Under the influences among which they have lived during the past few years, however, they constitute a real menace to the maintenance of our existing institutions.

DEFIANT TO AUTHORITY

"They are viciously rebellious against and defiant to authority; they shirk work and are determined to continue to do so; they assert that society owes them a living and are oblivious of the obligations they owe to society; they are acquiring undesirable habits, especially by moving from camp to camp, often under assumed names, staying in each camp long enough to secure a complete issue of clothing and then leaving camp, selling the issued clothing and shoes, and donning ordinary cheap, mufti clothing; they disturb and irritate more reasonable and stable minded men, and are a constant source of trouble to camp authorities."

The committee found many of the men in the camps unsuited by background and training for camp life. They were merely awaiting the first opportunity to return to avocations more suited to their temperament and upbringing. It urged the importance of exploring the resources of Canada, both public and private, for developing fields of industrial employment.

SERIOUS DANGER

"The idea should not be entertained that relief camps are a permanent governmental activity, but rather they should be regarded as a temporary expedient for meeting an emergency situation. At present, due to the prolongation of their existence, they constitute a serious danger, since the tendency must inevitably be that they will be accepted as a fixed, national institution akin to the poor law work houses of Europe, if their existence is long perpetuated."

Disadvantages of large camps were stressed in the report. The large camp, the committee found, formed favorable ground for the communistic agitator. Enforcement of necessary order and discipline was more difficult as the number of men increased. Taking the Dundurn camp as an example, the committee declared if the 1600 men housed there had been scattered in a dozen camps there would have been much less likelihood of trouble. No police authority was vested in camp administrators.

WORK AND WAGES

Dealing with work and wages, the committee reported as follows:

"Irrespective of the source of inquiry, the decided opinion was expressed that a work-and-wages policy would be infinitely more satisfactory than the present method of supplying food, shelter, medical care and clothing, combined with an allowance of 20 cents per day. Under such a system the men to all intents and purposes are wards of the state, creating a condition that is in direct contradiction to established Canadian practices and in opposition to the mental make up of the Canadian people. It is inevitable such a policy in its practical application would bring into being difficulties of a grave and insurmountable character.

SIX MONTHS WORK

"We suggest consideration should be given, if a work and wages policy is inaugurated, to limiting the length of the work period in camps by others than keymen, to a period not exceeding six months in any 12 consecutive months, and the deferment of a specified sum of money from the monthly pay check which would be paid to the men on discharge. Such a policy would tend in the first place to permit the men to seek employment outside of the camps, and the deferred pay would make it possible for them to be self-supporting, at least for some time, providing ordinary caution was used."

The committee reported employment conditions which presently prevail militate against any considerable number of relief camp workers being drafted into industrial or agricultural employment except during the periods of peak demand. "It is suggested," it said, "that in the agreements with the provincial governments, which no doubt will be entered into in connection with the continuance of the relief camps, a clause might be included which would more definitely tie up, perhaps on a quota basis, activities of the employment service with available, suitable men in the camps."

CORRESPONDENCE COURSES

"We wish, as already mentioned, to commend heartily the place and work of the correspondence courses," the report continues. "These have proven helpful to men doing more advanced work. But education for the campmen, whether employed at regular work or in relief camps, involves more than provision of opportunity for study. Some workers in camps with a sense of suspicion look upon schools as simply another agency, in collusion with officials, seeking to keep them docile and submerged.

"The failure of campmen eagerly to avail themselves of the facilities for study so generously provided may be accounted for in another way. Campmen, whether from the isolation of their work or from whatever reason, are as a class proud and sensitive; they feel frequently a sense of neglect. They will respond, however, to the championship and counsel of the teacher who is a laborer with them. Camp education can never be limited solely to teaching. The campmen will give heed to the man who works alongside him, sharing common tasks in all kinds of weather, rather than to the man with a staff appointment who does not partake in his work and activities.

BETTER RESPONSE

"It is our observation that such men as we have observed working in this way, call them laborer-teachers or by another name, seem to find a response from campmen that is otherwise lacking. To be successful such a man, ranging in age between 22 and 30 and a (university) graduate, should enter on his work not simply as a teacher, but as a fashioner of sound and healthy thought among his fellow-workers.

"In the face of the fact that so many men, many of them young and impressionable, are forced each year to follow the drab life of relief camps, it should be the duty of men with a university background to associate with camp workers, laboring with them in common toil. Such educators, drawn from the various provinces and employed in a national task, acquire firsthand a truer knowledge of Canadian problems. By their work and effort they not only help to conserve the morale of campmen but create a healthier relation between the university man himself and the worker.

BOSTON COMES TO LIFE IN THE OVERTIME TO BEAT N.Y. AMERKS

BOSTON, Feb. 2 (AP).—Boston Bruins put on a blazing finish after 57 minutes of the tamest sort of hockey to gain a 2-1 overtime triumph over New York Americans tonight before 8500.

The victory allowed the Bruins to continue their third-place deadlock with New York Rangers.

Many in the crowd were leaving when the Bruins suddenly clicked. Max Kaminsky batted the puck out of a face-off with Art Chapman and Babe Siebert, who figured in both Boston scores, returned it to him as he swept to the net to register his first goal of the season.

The Amerks threw five men into the attack. With less than two minutes to go, Art Chapman carried behind the Boston net and his pass-out was caged by Lorne Carr.

The Bruins stormed into the New York ice, with Siebert carrying. The burly defenceman charged into a corner, passed out to Red Beattie and the puck was relayed to Dit Clapper, who decided the game with a blistering 10-footer that almost dropped Worters in his net.

CLOSE TO 16,000 SEE TORONTOS GET 2-0 BEATING FROM CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Feb. 2 (AP)—Toronto Maple Leafs fumbled a chance of regaining the leadership, or at least tying for first place, in the Canadian division of the Natonal Hockey league tonight by dropping a tough 2-0 decision to Chicago Black Hawks before a season record crowd of 15,876 spectators in the stadium.

Leafs, who conquered the Hawks 3-2 in an overtime struggle at Toronto Saturday night, out-rushed Chicago most of the way, but could not beat some inspired goal-tending by Mike Karakas.

Both goals were scored in the final period while men were in the penalty box. Paul Thompson connected on a gang play while Nick Metz was in the coop, and Don McFadyen scored on a solo during the final minute, with Mush March and King Clancy serving majors for fighting.

The victory gave the Hawks first place in the American section by a one-point margin over Detroit.

Mutiny on the Bounty

Have you ever been so enthused about anything that you wished everybody else to enjoy it too?

On my return from a recent trip south I told Mr. Doctor that Mrs. Horner and myself had had the motion picture thrill of our lives when we saw "Mutiny on the Bounty".

The anticipation of again seeing this marvelous production which plays the Capitol Theatre this week brings me to hope that none will miss it . . . the genius of production leaves me at a loss to state just what part of this entertainment thrilled me most.

It is throbbing drama, superb romance, adventure, historical realism and that undeniable something that makes it one of the WORLD'S GREATEST MOTION PICTURES.

See it, then tell me, friends if I am wrong.

Sincerely,
R. R. HORNER,
