TOKYO PLANE IS REFUELLED

Old Landmark Goes ... en Creston Hotel Burns

Early Morning Fire Completely Erases Old Frame Building

Property Owned by F. Labelle, Well-Known Hotelman

FIRE STARTED IN KITCHEN VICINITY

Was Built in 1898 by F. Campbell; No One Injured

CRESTON, B. C., July 8.—The most disastrous fire in the history of Creston at an early hour this morning completely destroyed the Creston hotel, the flames making such a thorough job of it that there is hardly the burned end of a plank or scantling to be seen on the site of this old-time hostelry. The loss is placed at about $10,000, on which there is some insurance. There was no loss of life or injury of any sort to any of the hotel inmates.

ORIGINATED NEAR KITCHEN

It appears that the fire originated in the vicinity of the kitchen at the rear of the hotel, and had gained considerable headway before it was discovered almost simultaneously by the proprietor, F. LaBelle, who was awakened by the smoke and immediately aroused the guests, and M. J. Beninger, proprietor of the Commercial hotel, which is directly opposite the burned structure on Fourth street, who was aroused by the glare of the flames across the rather narrow street.

Mr. Beninger was prompt in giving the alarm and the volunteer fire brigade made a quick response, but the fire had been under way for some time before discovery, and when the firemen arrived there was little they could do but confine the blaze to the doomed building and protect the surrounding property, which they were able to do successfully. The water supply was excellent.

A corps of volunteer workers salvaged all the furniture in the dining room and front part of the building, but due to the thickness of the smoke in the hallways upstairs, little was rescued from the upper story.

The early morning was unusually calm, and due to the absence of wind, and with some considerable protection against the heat given by a row of tall maples alongside the burned building, structures on the other side of the street, which included the Commercial and King George hotels, Creston restaurant and the Nastasi bakeshop, survived with but a slight scorching.

BUILT IN 1898

The Creston hotel was a stopping place of about two dozen rooms. The front section was built late in 1898 by Frank Campbell. Later on it was owned by R. J. Long, who put a couple of additions to it during the time he was in charge, and at the time of the blaze it extended through from Sirdar avenue almost to Gurd avenue. It was of frame construction.

About 10 years ago the building and equipment was purchased by a Chinese syndicate headed by Dong Barney, who still resides here, and about a year ago was leased by Frank LaBelle, a well known hotelman in East Kootenay.

VALEE "CROONS" HIS WAY TO THE MARRIAGE RAIL?

NEW YORK, July 8. (AP)—The marriage of Rudy Valee, crooner of love ballads, and Miss Fay Webb of Santa Monica, Calif., on Monday, was announced tonight at the National Broadcasting company's office.

Valee and Miss Webb, who is a musical comedy actress, were married secretly at West Farms, N. J., by Judge Herbert Lithplite. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Webb, and her father is chief of police of Santa Monica, the statement said.

The couple met on the west coast while Valee was filming his "Vagabond Lover" picture.

YOSHIHARA TO RESUME FLIGHT ACROSS ACEAN

Japanese Will Include More Stops in Itinerary Than Were Planned

JUNEAU, Alaska, July 8.—(AP)—Seiji Yoshihara, youngJapanese aviator, who started on a leisurely 6000-mile flight from Tokio to Seattle and San Francisco, will resume his journey from Shimushu island not later than August 3, Governor George A. Parks was informed today.

The message from Japanese officials said Portland, Ore., and Kodiak, Alaska, have been added to Yoshihara's itinerary, which includes about 20 stops. He will leave Shimushu, 950 miles northeast of Tokio, to follow the Kuriles and Aleutian islands on his way around the North Pacific.

The governor's information said Amchitka island, in the Aleutian group, has been selected as an emergency landing place and that Japanese vessels are to be stationed along the Aleutian chain.

Yoshihara damaged his plane at Shimushu early in May, a week after starting out, and later obtained a new one.

ANDERSON MAY PRESENT DATA ABOUT MARKET

WINNIPEG, July 8 (CP)—Premier J. T. M. Anderson of Saskatchewan is expected to be the nominee of the prairie premiers to present testimony before the agriculture committee of the house of commons considering the marketing situation. Both Premier J. E. Brownlee of Alberta and Premier John Bracken of Manitoba today pointed out that prairie provinces' representatives have already presented to Ottawa a picture of the western situation.

WIVES OF POST AND GATTY IN CRASH IN OHIO

COLUMBUS, O., July 8. (AP)—An airplane bearing the wives of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, round-the-world flyers, cracked up as it landed at Port Columbus shortly before 6 p .m. tonight.

The accident occurred just after the arrival of Post and Gatty in their world-circling plane, the "Winnie Mae." The women were not injured. The couples are en route from the east to their homes in the west.

LORDS, COMMONS SHOW SPEED IN PASSING ISSUE

LONDON, July 8.—(C. P. cable)—Both the house of lords and the house of commons have shown what is possible in the way of speedy legislation by passing through all stages in less than six days, a bill introduced on July 3.

The bill is expected to settle the coal dispute by giving the miners a seven and a half hour day for the next 12 months with maintenance of existing wage rates on the same level. The bill passed its final stages in parliament and received Royal assent today.

MOSLEY PARTY MAKES DEBUT IN THE HOUSE

MOSLEY VOICES HIS DEFIANCE

Rank as a District Opposition Party Apart From Torys

LONDON, July 8 (By George Hambleton, Canadian Press staff correspondent)—Sir Oswald Mosley, heading his little band of five, crossed the floor of the house of commons today. They sit at the extreme left of the Conservatives behind the Liberals. They have appointed their own whip, Dr. Robert Goran, and are creating their own party organization.

"Back home again!" scoffed the Laborites. The reference was to Mosley's Conservative affiliations before he with his wife Lady Cynthia—who sat beside him today—joined the Labor party. Though the Mosleyites sit on the Conservatives' left they have not joined the Conservatives. They rank as a distince opposition party.

Status of the new party was definitely recognized today when from his new seat Mosley rose to attack his old colleagues in the government Oswald has rarely been seen in the house since he resigned from the government, and Tom Williams, parliamentary secretary to the minister of labor, asked Mr. Speaker whether members in regular attendance should not be given preference.

The speaker, Rt. Hon. Edward Fitzroy, drily replied that he thought the chair should have commiseration on the multiplication of parties.

"We are to understand then," pressed Williams, "that a member has only to form a new party in order to have his speech guaranteed?"

Once in possession of the floor Mosley attacked the unemployment anomalies bill on the ground that it was perpetuating unemployment instead of seeking to cure it. "You are pretending to the country you are doing something," Mosley turned scornfully toward the government benches—"when you are really doing nothing. By this measure you are only buying another short lease for your own miserable lives."

George Buchanan, Independent Labor member for Gorbals, Glasgow, described the bill as taking $25,000,000 from the poor to save the faces of income tax payers. The bill had not a good line in it, he asserted.

NORFOLK, ONTARIO ELECTS A. C. BURT

SIMCOE, Ont., July 8. (CP)—Unofficial summary of results in the Norfolk provincial byelection today showed the Conservative candidate, A. C. Burt, elected by a majority of 156 votes over a Liberal opponent with the third candidate, an Independent, losing his deposit.

Unrevised final figures were:
Dr. A. C. Burt, Conservative, 5710.
Eric W. Cross, Liberal, 5554.
A. C. Stewart, Independent, 272.

TRANSIENT ARESTED 20 MINUTES AFTER FORGING NAME TO CHECK; CITY POLICE MAKE QUICK CAPTURE

John Howe leads Guilty to Forging Name; Given Six Months

Arrested by Sergt. Alex Stewart shortly before midnight Monday just 20 minutes after he had cashed a check for $71.62 by means of a forged signature, John C. Howe, a transient, elected summary trial before Magistrate William Brown in city police court Tuesday, pleaded guilty to the charge of forging the signature of R. F. Irwin, and was sentenced to six months' imprisonment with hard labor in the provincial jail at Nelson.

Practically 12 hours after he forged and simultaneously "uttered" or passed the forgery, Howe was in jail serving his sentence, this constituting one of the swiftest cases of quick justice on record locally.

The check was drawn by Nelson Iron Works, Ltd., for $71.62, in favor of R. F. Irwin, the company's foreman, and was left in the company's office from which it was stolen.

Late Monday night Howe presented himself at the office of the Nelson Transfer company, and asked to have a check cashed, stating he was R. F. Irwin. He endorsed the check then and there, using that name. Asked if he were any relation to Mr. Irwin, of the Nelson Iron Works, he stated he was a distant relative. At the direction of George Ferguson, president of the Nelson Transfer company, D. Proudfoot, the accountant, gave the man the cash.

Two or three minutes later Sergt. Stewart heard on the street about the episode, and on hearing that the man who got the cash was over six feet decided to check up on the two Irwins. Getting the real R. F. Irwin out of bed, he ascertained that a check for that amount was supposed to be in the Nelson Iron Works office waiting for him. This made it clear that the tall man was masquerading, and recognizing Howe from the description, the officer started on a search for him, and 10 minutes later found him in a restaurant.

ALL BUT 12 CENTS

Howe had $71.50 of the ....71.62 still on him, having spent the difference for a sandwich.

When Mr. Irwin arrived at the Nelson Iron Works Tuesday morning, he found the office had been burglarized, as effected.

In court Tuesday Howe, while pleading guilty to the forgery, which had been committed in sight of three or four people, denied the burglary, claiming he had received the check from another man.

Cranbrook Court Hears Odd Story of Prospector Posing as "Death Valley Scotty"

Charged With Intent to Obtain Property Fraudulently

IS CLEARED OF SUCH A CRIME

Accused Tells Weird Tale of Passing Off as a Millionaire

CRANBROOK, B. C., July 8—An elderly prospector, known in Cranbrook and surrounding mining circles for the past year as "Death Valley Scotty," today in the Cranbrook county court, faced the charge, "That he did at Wycliffe, British Columbia, unlawfully and with intent fraudulently to obtain property from John S. Sur and Ray T. Pendray, impersonate Walter Scott, or 'Death Valley Scotty,' of Death Valley, San Barnardino county, California, contra to section 408 of the Criminal Code."

HE WAS FOUND NOT GUILTY

The hearing brought out a dramatic story of the accused, who is "Burro" Wilson, well known as a prospector and mule skinner in Nevada, British Columbia, and other mining fields, regaling visitors at the 1930 Calgary stampede with stories of his life so closely corresponding with the life of the real Death Valley Scotty, whose fame is now known in every village and hamlet, that the rumor went out that the notorious millionaire prospector was at the stampede in the flesh. Sensing a chance to tie up with the mysteriously lucky Death Valley Scotty, the plaintiffs made arrangements with the accused to investigate claims in the vicinity of Lumberton and grubstake him for the venture. They came back and forth and spent some considerable time on the venture as well.

WIRED HE WAS BROKE

At Christmas the accused wired them that he was broke. Pretending to be out of funds is said to be a trick of the real Walter Scott to find out what friends would stand by him in adversity. Pendray wired him $100. In February, when articles

TO CROSS WEST IN AUTO BUILT IN YEAR 1905

SHAVIAN PLAY TO APPEAR IN GAELIC TONGUE

LONDON, July 8 (By Thos. T. Champion, Canadian Press staff correspondent)—Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man" will be produced in the Gaelic tongue at the Galway Gaelic theater two weeks hence. This will be the first performance of any Shaw play in the damatist's native tongue.

The announcement is made by the Manchester Guardian, which expresses the opinion it will be interesting to see whether the linguistic sugar will sweeten the pill of Shaw's critical temperament. "Like many Irishmen, Shaw is happier at exposing the shortcomings of other races than his own," the Guardian added, "but a good deal of his criticism applies to all people alike and is most painful, not to the greatest sinners but to the thinnest skins."

SIGNATORS OF YOUNG PLAN TO MEET JULY 17

LONDON, July 8.—(AP)—Representatives of the chief countries signatory to the Young plan will, failing some unexpected hitch, meet in London July 17 to discuss those points connected with the plan and with the Hoover moratorium which were left unsettled by the Franco-American agreement in Paris.

Although the United States is not a signer of the Young plan, she will be represented by an "observer." Preliminary negotiations will be conducted by financial experts only, but it was regarded as highly probable tonight that these technical discussions would be followed by a meeting of statesmen of major calibre.

Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, a high treasury official who was the principal British financial adviser at the Hague conference in 1929 and 1930, was widely mentioned tonight as the most probable choice as head of the British delegation at the experts' conference.

WOULD LIQUIDATE 1929 OVERPAYMENT

REGINA, Sask., July 8.—Approval of proposals for liquidating the 1929 overpayment was voiced in the form of a resolution by delegates of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool at the second day's proceedings of their semi-annual meeting today. This resolution came at the close of the afternoon session, after several hours had been devoted to detailed study of the plan.

PEOPLE ON THE PRAIRIE FIND NEW OPTIMISM

Saskatchewan's Desperate Situation Is Cleared Some

WINNIPEG, Man., July 8. (CP)—The Winnipeg Tribune publishes the following under the... lishes the following today under the name of its editor, W. L. MacTavish:

"Saskatchewan's situation, desperate on June 29, has improved tremendously since that date. On the evening of June 29 the drought was broken by a prolonged and heavy downpour of rain. Since then there have been continuous heavy showers and cool weather.

"They came too late to bring normal crops. They have, nevertheless, repaired in considerable degree the damage wrought by the prolonged drought.

"The need for relief is still great. The situation is still, as Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett described it on Dominion day, a national calamity, but it is fully 50 per cent better than it was 10 days ago. With normal weather until harvest time, the drought area will garner some wheat and ample feed crops. If the frost holds until late in the season, the wheat yield will confound the pessimists.

"Even today the wheat fields and pasture lands would astound anyone who had not inspected them since the rain fell."

LONDON, July 8. (AP)—The government had an easy triumph tonight in the house of commons over recalcitrant left-wingers who moved the rejection of the unemployment insurance anomalies bill, which aims to remove some of the unsatisfactory features existing in unemployment insurance.

GERMANY VOWS NO ARMAMENTS WILL BE BUILT

Funds Realized by Reparations Moratorium to Be Used Elsewhere

PARIS, July 8. (AP)—The German government through Ambassador Von Hoesch tonight gave Premier Laval its solem word that it would not use the funds realized by the reparations moratorium for building armaments. Ambassador Von Hoesch gave to the premier the text of Chancellor Bruening's statement of July 2, in which the chancellor assured the United States government that its moratorium benefits would be used for economic purposes.

After the interview tonight, Premier Laval issued a statement in which he said that the German government made the move on its own initiative.

Paris began today to prepare to the disarmament talks which it expects after the arrival here of United States Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson on July 15.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 8—The Hoover administration reaffirmed today its adherence to the integrity of the inter-allied war debt agreements.

Castle also announced that the United States government had decided to participate in the forthcoming meeting in London of experts who will work out the details of the president's plan. An observer will attend the conference.

ITALIAN ARMY LEADER BURIED

SUSPEND MARRIAGE AUTHORITY OF MINISTER WHO UNITED COUPLE AT WALKATHON CONTEST IN VANCOUVER

Second Marriage Is Staged But Carefully Within the Bonds of the Law

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 8.—Undaunted by the edict of Attorney-general R. H. Pooley, declaring Monday's walkathon wedding illegal, and threats of instant prosecution of the principals and all others connected with the ceremony, a second endurance walker was united in wedlock to his fiancee tonight, while thousands sat in Athletic park and heard, but did not see, the ceremony performed.

Bud Ferguson and Daisy McLaurin were truly wed and the law was duly compiled with. While the thousands that had flocked to see the knot tied were denied the pleasure of actually seeing the participants going through the customary procedure, they heard the service performed. The couple was united privately at Cotillion hall, Davie and Granville streets, by Rev. Robertson Orr, pastor of the New Presbyterian church, and the ritual was broadcast by means of amplifiers spread throughout the park.

Representatives of the Vancouver police department were in attendance at the park, but as the ceremony was held in a private place, which the promoters claimed conformed with the marriage act, action on their part was unnecessary.

VANCOUVER, July 8 (CP)—Suspension of the marriage authority of Otto R. Karlstrom of the Swedish Lutheran church here, who read the marriage service for two contestants in a "Walkathon" contest Monday night, was announced in Victoria today by Attorney-General R. H. Pooley. Mr. Pooley also announced that he would prosecute any pastor who performs another "Walkathon wedding" and all persons connected with any such ceremony.

"Marriage cannot be made a commercial attraction," said the attorney-general in his edict.

A second "Walkathon wedding" had been scheduled for tonight at Athletic park, an enclosed field with grandstand, but while it was not called off, it was not held in the park. The groom, Bud Ferguson, one of the Walkathon contestants, and his fiance, Daisy McLaurin, were wedded privately in the downtown hall, in strict compliance with the law. The service was broadcast for the benefit of those at the park, while after the ceremony the bride and groom were taken to the park where the other Walkathon contestants were continuing their "grind" under the bright floodlights.

LOST MEMORY BROUGHT BACK BY HEAD BLOW

MORRIS, Ill., July 8 (AP)—A blow on the head from a robber he had befriended brought back Lewis Bronson Sherrill's memory and reunited him with his family after 20 years.

Sherrill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sherrill of Minooka, near here, left home in the fall of 1912 to farm in Montana. He had been missing since.

For 20 years, he had lived in California under the name of John Clark, after amnesia obliterated his memory of home. Eight years ago he had married. About five weeks ago, he offered a ride to a vagrant, who struck him on the head and robbed him. He credits the shock and subsequent aimless wandering and threat of death from starvation for the recovery of his memory.

Tokyo Fliers Complete First and Hardest Third of Flight

ARE FLYING NEAR THEIR SCHEDULE

Elaborate Plans Being Made for Fliers in Tokyo

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, July 8—(AP)—The Fort Worth, bound on a 5100 mile non-stop mid-air refueling flight from Seattle to Tokyo, Japan, arrived over Fairbanks at 7.33 p. m. (9:33 p. s.) to-7:33 p.m. (9:33 P.S.T.) tonight.

With head winds for the last 300 miles of their flight, the elapsed time from Seattle was 17 hours and 36 minutes. By airline the distance between the cities is about 1400 miles but the fliers' course took them inland, north over British Columbia and Yukon Territory, probably adding another 200 miles to that distance.

The two Texas aviators, Reg. L. Robbins and Harold S. Jones, arrived at Fairbanks near their scheduled time, 7 p. m. (9 p. m. Pacific

EXPECT PARLEY ON DEBT ISSUE TO BE HEATED

LONDON, July 8 (AP)—Gratification at the calling of a conference of financial experts next week to settle the details of the Hoover debt holiday was expressed by London newspapers today.

It was foreseen that the negotiations might be difficult but it was believed a comparatively early settlement of the points at issue could be expected. The question of payments in kind was regarded as likely to occupy more time than the guarantee fund since the matters involved are more complicated.

The times argues it was essential that whatever technical details respecting deliveries in kind should be agreed on, the temporary burden of financing them should be lifted from German shoulders in view of the precarious situation of her credit.

Among other points emphasized was that Great Britain had reached the limit of concession and could not accept further commitments beyond those already undertaken in carrying out the moratorium.

ONE ARRESTED AS 2000 MAKE DEMONSTRATION

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 8.—William McGowan, 54, no fixed address, was arrested by police on a charge of vagrancy during the course of an unemployed demonstration this afternoon in which some 2000 took part.

A mob gathered at 2:30 p. m. in front of the city hall. Squads of police moved it along Hastings street to the jeers and hoots of members of the mob.

An attempt was made to gather near the cenotaph at Victory square and again at the post office.

Following dispersal of the gathering at the post office, about 150 men wandered back to the city hall, but they were not allowed to congregate.

WRESTLERS FALL INTO BASEMENT AND FIGHT ENDS

LOS ANGELES, July 8. (AP)—Joe Savoldi and Dr. Earl Sarpolis ended their wrestling bout tonight in a draw—and in the basement of the Olympic auditorium, wherein they had fallen from the ring after a series of flying tackles.

Up to the time that the wrestlers hurled themselves out of the ring and fell down a flight of stairs leading into the arena, each had one fall. They were unable to scramble out of the cellar in the customary 20 seconds, and so the bout was called a draw. The third fall had gone 18 minutes, 34 seconds before the wrestlers took their basement dive. Neither was reported badly injured in the fall.

TRAIL FOOTBALL TEAMS TIE FINAL GAME OF SEASON

Trail East and Thistles Play Scoreless and Thrilling Game

TRAIL, B. C., July 8.—Trail East and Thistles played to a scoreless tie tonight in the final of the Trail football league. The game was one of the most closely contested that has been witnessed this season. Mayor Bruno LeRose, who with J. A. Wadsworth, Frank Vellutini and Pete Vorsato, donated the prizes, was present to kick off and to congratulate the teams in their success during the year.

If anything Trail East had the edge on the play, but lacked the finish at the goal mouth that would have resulted in scoring. Thistles did not press into the danger zone as often as Trail East players, but when they did they gave Goalie Tommy Rutledge a rough time.

The teams were:

Thistles—Baillie, goal; Lilly and Stewart, backs; Millegan, Barr, Johnson and Cruickshank, P. Laurie, Nutter, Watson and Thompson, forwards.

Trail East—Rutledge, goal; Kitchen and Morrison, backs; Fish, Smith, Shearer and Williams, Ferguson, Minto, McVie and Bell, forwards.

Excavations near Mexico City have brought to light well-preserved remnants of the bathing places of the ancient Aztec aristocracy. The "tubs" were carved out of solid rock.

NATIONAL BOARD TO PLAN WHOLE RELIEF IS URGED

Social Service Council of Canada Prepares Memorandum for Government

TORONTO, Ont., July 8. (CP)—Appointment at once of a small national board or committee, composed of the best informed and most capable persons available, to plan, co-ordinate and direct unemployment relief measures, is urged by the social service council of Canada in a memorandum of resolutions passed by that body, to be submitted to Premier R. B. Bennett and Hon. Gideon Robertson, minister of labor.

Rev. Canon C. W. Vernon of Toronto, president of the council, and Dr. J. Phillips Jones, general secretary, expect to go to Ottawa shortly to present the resolutions to the government.

The council recommends the proposed national committee include representatives of Dominion, provincial and municipal governments, various technical experts and outstanding business executives and labor leaders. "To be effective before it is too late," says the memorandum, "such a committee would have to be provided with sufficient powers and sufficient funds to command the services of an expert staff at once."

ABLE TO BEAR TAX

The council suggests there are many citizens who, because of the lower cost of living, and incomes maintained at former levels, are better able to bear the burden of taxation than they were a year ago.

"There seems a clear case for the Dominion raising its share of the relief fund through drastic increases in the income tax rates, both those that bear on the wealthy and the middle classes," it states.

The council recommends the proposed committee consider very seriously the advisability of a moratorium, or some other measure to protect impoverished farmers from foreclosure. It is submitted there is grave danger of small property owners being dispossessed of their homes with serious economic and social results to the whole Dominion, unless careful protection measures are devised.

It is further recommended that the "threat of deportation should be withdrawn completely from British-born citizens and aliens who at present are liable for it on the technical ground they became public charges while drawing unemployment relief."

PLUMBING BYLAW FINALLY PASSED BY CITY COUNCIL

Master Plumber Disappears; Now Called Plumbing Tradesman

After having caused debates without number, and having come up at session after session, the new plumbing bylaw is at last enacted, and duly listed.

As finally revised and adopted, the bylaw omits all mention of the much discussed party, the "master plumber," who could be an individual, a firm, a contracting plumber, a supply man or supply firm, or anyone undertaking to do plumbing contracting in accordance with the bylaw, but was not required to be a qualified plumber. The practically unanimous voice of the council was against calling this party a master plumber.

His place is taken by the "plumbing tradesman," a term invented for the job by City Engineer Boyd C. Affleck. The plumbing tradesman is the master plumber under a new name—but, in the opinion of the council, a much truer name, and one that does not tend to mislead.

COMMUNIST SOUP KITCHEN PROBED

SUDBURY, Ont., July 8 (CP)—Investigation of the soup kitchen being operated here by Communist societies has been undertaken by Major Frank Rothery, city relief inspector, at the request of the police department.

Until recently, relief meals were provided only for members of the Finnish organization of Canada. Now, however, meals have been served to all comers by a combined body, composed of the Finnish organization, the Ukrainian Labor league, the Workers' Unity league, and several other organizations.

Fears are expressed locally that an influx of foreign-born unemployed into Sudbury from all Canada will result. One local "Red" leader said that the organization now feeding the unemployed is affiliated with an international relief association, whose headquarters are at Moscow, Russia.

Between 200 and 300 meals are provided daily.

BODY OF DROWNED VANCOUVER YOUTH IS FOUND, TRAIL

Occupant of Boat With Victim and His Rescuer Make Find

TRAIL, B. C., July 8—The body of Albert Edward Coles, 21-year-old university student, who was drowned in the Columbia river at Trail on June 25, was found Wednesday in Indian Eddy, where the drowning occurred. Norman Berkley, who was in the boat which tipped over, causing the drowning of Coles, and Paul Barach, who saved the former, found the body.

Mr. Coles, who was working at the Tadanac plant of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company of Canada during the holidays, was crossing the river on his way to work when his car presumably caught in a rock and the boat was overturned.

COURT HEARS A WEIRD STORY OF OLD PROSPECTOR

and pictures of the real Death Valley Scotty appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, the suspicions of the plaintiffs were aroused, but calmed on his assurances that he was the genuine Walter Scott. Wilson was stated to have said that the boy pictured sitting on the knee of "Scotty" was his son and was now assistant secretary of war in the United States government. He also said that a long illness had decreased his size from the 200 pounds mentioned in the article. In June, finding that the man they had staked was not the genuine Scott, the plaintiffs abandoned him, leaving the cabin to him. Late in the month the charges were laid.

Pendray and Sur were the first witnesses called. They gave an account of their dealings the accused and of their faith that they had had the luck to link their fortunes with the well known ability and luck of the Death Valley prospector. The cross examination brought out the fact that the accused had in no was sought out the plaintiffs. The move toward a partnership had been theirs. The accused had accepted the role thrust upon him and had benefitted to the extent of their grubstake. G. J. Spreuil, consel for the defense, told the witnesses that they had been "taken in," especially after the contrary description of the real Walter Scott in the Post. He brought out that it looked as though they had been playing for suckers and, the venture not turning out well, were not taking their medicine in a sporting manner, especially as they had staked mere hundreds against what they thought was the skill, luck and millions of Walter Scott.

WILSON IS WITNESS

Sergeant Wilson of the Mounted police was the next witness called. He told of going to Wilson's shack at Lumberton, accompanied by Sergeant Davis of the provincial police, and of facing Wilson with the question of his identity. Wilson had stated that it was his brother who was the genuine Death Valley Scotty but that he also went by that name. Asked whether he had any documents to prove his identity the old man said that he had not. Sergeant Davis produced clippings from the Calgary papers of the time of the stampede and other articles about Death Valley Scotty found among the possessions of the accused.

W. Steward of the Cosmpolitan hotel, stated that he had seen the old prospector on and off during the past year and had been introduced to him as Death Valley Scotty and had introduced him as such to others. He stated that Wilson had shown him the articles, apparently about himself, in the Post.

Dan MacDonald, a prospector of the district identified the accused as "Burro" Wilson, whom he had known well in the Nevada fields five years before. Asked by H. Herchmer, prosecuting attorney, whether he would know the real Walter Scott he said that he knew him well. Asked if this were the man he replied that he was not.

TWO THINGS TO BE PROVEN

In his summary of the care Judge Thompson stated that two things were required to be proved by the crown. One was that the accused was not the man he had impersonated and the other that he had impersonated with the fraudulent intention of obtaining property. The first, he stated, had been proven on the testimony of the police who had visited MacDonald's shack and on that of MacDonald, who had known the real Scott. On the second count he reviewed the fact that the accused had not sought out the plaintiffs and had not, so far as had been brought out, made any attempt to benefit by the accident of being acclaimed the notorious miner. He had simply accepted the burden of the role created for him. But, his honor stated, it was possible to act as well as tell a lie and this the accused had done. In this he was a disgrace to the prospecting fraternity, whose word was as good as their bond and who had always in this district faithfully carried out their parts in unwritten contracts. But of intent to fraudulently obtain property through his impersonation the accused was found not guilty.

GOVERNMENT BILL PROVIDING FOR TARIFF BOARD PASSES COMMITTEE

Stands for Third Reading; Provides Appointment of Board of Three

OTTAWA, Ont., July 8. (CP)—After a rough passage and much buffeting, the government bill providing for the appointment of a tariff board finally passed the committee stage in the house of commons tonight. It now stands for third reading, which in the majority of cases is merely a formality. It is possible that members of the Liberal opposition will seize the opportunity offered by the motion for third reading to voice briefly once again the many objections which they have developed. Discussion, however, must now be limited.

The bill, in brief, provides for the appointment of a board of three members, of which one is to be chairman, with the powers of a court of record. Its function, as indicated by the prime minister, will be to "find facts" upon which tariff duties may be based. It will endeavor to determine the cost of producing similar commodities in Canada, and the rates of duties necessary to equalize costs. Its findings shall be reported to the minister of finance.

Salaries are placed at $12,000 for the chairman and $10,000 for each member of the board, and the term of office is fixed at 10 years. In addition to its purely tariff activities, the board is empowered to perform certain functions under the Combines Investigation act. It also assumes the duties now attaching to the board of customs.

TOKYO FLIERS MAKE FUELING CONTACT FAST

standard time), which they had set as their goal on leaving Seattle at daybreak this morning.

By the first hop to Fairbanks approximately one-third of their flight to Tokyo has been completed.

The refueling plane, flown by James Mattern and Nick Greener, was awaiting the arrival of the Fort Worth, and took the air after the Fort Worth had circled over the town. With the Tokyo-bound plane throttling down its speed for a contact with the heavily-laden trimotored refueler, a contact was established at an altitude of about 1000 feet. Two hundred gallons of gasoline was taken aboard within a short time as the two planes turned westward down the Tanana valley.

REFUELED QUICKLY

The contact required only a few minutes, with one of the men in the Fort Worth, believed to be Jones, catching the swinging hose while standing in the hole in the wing. As the contact was broken a shower af gasoline came hurtling out of the hose.

The Fort Worth was met by an escort of three planes, and it circled twice about the town before the refueler left the ground. No messages were dropped.

The refueler took the air with a load of 753 gallons of gas, gaining altitude slowly, and both planes proceeding westward toward Nome.

Before taking off, Mattern said the refueler would probably land at Solomon to take on more gasoline. He said the refueler would accompany the Fort Worth across the Bering sea ti Siberia for the second refueling.

With a flying speed of approximately 100 miles an hour, the Fort Worth has now passed over the worst mountain ranges to be encountered on its 5100-mile flight to Tokyo.

The weather report tonight here showed a ceiling of 4000 feet in the vicinity of Nome.

TOKYO PREPARES

TOKYO, July 8. (AP)—Elaborate preparations were being made today at Tachikawa airdrome, near here, to welcome Reg. Robbins and H. S. Jones, Fort Worth aviators who took off from Seattle yesterday on a projected non-stop refueling flight to Tokyo.

If all goes well the flyers are expected to land at Tachikawa airdrome some time after 10 p. m. Friday (1 a. m. eastern standard time).

Special military floodlights are being installed at the airdrome. In the event the flyers should not arrive until daylight, however, a dozen Japanese aviation societies and other civilian planes will meet Robbins and Jones and escort them to the landing field.

Extra telephones also have been installed at the filed for the benefit of the press.

The Tokyo central meteorological observatory said today some fog prevailed over the Kuriles islands, over which the flyers will fly. Also it was reported cloudy over Kamchatka peninsula. General weather conditions along the flyers' route however, the observatory said, were favorable.

SENATORS VOTE DOWN PROBE OF "CANADA" AFFAIR

Division Falls 32 to 27 Not in Favor Investigating Senator Belcourt

OTTAWA, July 8 (CP)—By a vote of 32 to 27, the senate today turned down the proposal to have a committee investigate the position of Senator N. A. Belcourt in connection with his acting for the publishers of the magazine "Canada" in securing a contract with government departments. The contract provides that the departments buy a certain number of copies of the publication.

A motion to have a senate committee investigate the case was moved by Senator Rufus Pope. Senator Belque moved an amendment that the committee, instead of investigating this particular case, investigate the broad question as to whether the senate should not adopt a rule defining just what a senator's privilege was in acting for any outside client in dealings with the government.

The division followed closely to party lines. All the Liberals present voted for the amendment except Senator J. Legris, who voted against. All the Conservatives present voted against except Senator P. Poirier who supported the amendment.

ATTENDANCE AT LAKESIDE PARK SEASON'S BEST

New Float and Diving Stand Provides Splendid Accommodation

Wednesday saw the largest crowd of the season to date in attendance at Lakeside park. With sweltering heat for the half-holiday, many sought respite from hot kitchens and had their supper and dinner at the park. Many canoes and boats were also in evidence in the vicinity of the park Wednesday afternoon.

During the day, the newly erected high diving tower proved the center of attraction. The new structure is built good and solid, the splendid jointings and the heavier timbering giving a rigidity that was lacking in the stand in use last year. The new float, now well equipped with numerous ladders, a boathouse anti diving stand, offers accommodation better than was ever enjoyed here previously.

THORNTON WOULD PROBE THE WHOLE OF TRANSPORTATION

OTTAWA, Ont., July 8.—(CP)—Reduction as far as possible in capital expenditures on present works and consideration of the suggestion of Sir Henry Thornton that an outside commission of leading Canadians be appointed to consider the entire question of Canadian transportation are likely to be recommended by the special committee of the house of commons on the Canadian National railways report.

In parliamentary lobbies, it is also reported that the committee may suggest to the house of commons the abandonment and sale of the Canadian government merchant marine, the original cost of which was $80,000,000 when purchased in the days of the Great War.

Another probability, it is understood, is a recommendation for considering the abandonment of the Canadian National steamship service between Vancouver, Seattle and Victoria.

The building of receiving sets is now both complex and expensive, but with short wave length aparatus, the experimenter can occupy himself effectively and without great expense.

TO INVESTIGATE COMPLAINT ABOUT PRISON DISMISSAL

OTTAWA, Ont., July 8.—(CP)—Complaints in connection with the penitentiary at New Westminster have reached the government and are being considered by the department of justice, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, minister of justice, told the house of commons tonight. No enquiry, however, had been started and no commissioner appointed.

The question was raised by Thomas Reid (Lib., New Westminster), who said it was reported an inquiry was to be made. Five men had been dismissed in 1926. He belived the yhad been dismissed unjustly after 10 to 20 years service and they were denied a hearing. He thought an inquiry should be made and that its scope should be as wide as possible and should go into the hours the men were required to work.

MOVIE MAGAZINE EXPOSES METHOD OF TAKING SOME ANIMAL PICTURES

Rob Wagner's Script Asks Where Art Leaves Off and Cheating Begins—Protests Slaying of Half-Tame Beasts to Make "Roman Holiday"

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., July 8.—Cruelty to animals in the production of moving picture "thrillers" is denounced in a leading article by Bob Wagner, editor of Script.

Under the title, "Movieland Goes Roman," Mr. Wagner writes in the April 4 issue that he has formerly held his tongue in the hope that the industry would correct its own abuses. Since, he says, conditions are growing worse, he feels bound to inform the public. Excerpts from his article follow:

Nobody has been more loyal to the motion picture industry than this writer, who for years has been celebrtaing its postive factors, and leaving the knocks to the novelists who seems bent on recording only its weaknesses and infamies. The time has come, however, when even we must protest against the slaughter of animals for enteralnment purposes.

We recall the indignation expressed at a recent Russian picture wherein a group of nobles were shown fleeing from the Bolsheviki In loading their automobile, a trunk fell off and killed a dog. It was, in a way, a shocking episode, but at least the killing had dramatic value, for in the end it was the dog's grave that betrayed the burial place of royal treasure. Furthermore, if governments will send millions of men forth to die for their country, the death of a dog does not seem too great a sacrifice for a new and struggling state to make in order to put over a frankly propaganda film, whether one agress with the propaganda or not.

In the light of some of the horse and cattle killings we've indulged in to make our super-westerns, our indignation over that dog episode does not ring very true.

THE PRIVILEGES OF ART

In a recent editorial regarding the filming of "Trader Horn" we said that inasmuch as the picture was frankly fiction it was nobody's business how the director got his stuff. We knew, for instance, that all the dialogue scenes and sound effects must have been made in Hollywood and we believed that this was the artistic privilege of the director.

Also, we were quite convinced that the "musical comedy" sequences of the white captives were undoubtedly made here. In fact, we thought we recognized among the savages some of our Central avenue friends. We were also to believe by the "million dollar" publicity that the animal shots were made in Africa where those dreadful killings are constantly taking place.

So long as they were part of the country's drama, we felt that it was nobody's business how Mr. Van Dyke manoeuvered his equipment to get picture of the shocking stuff.

We have since learned, however, that the big fight punches of "Trader Horn" were not made in Africa, but in Mexico—just across the border from the U. S. A. And that t hey were made under circumstances utterly inexcusable even in a work of art.

WE PASSED UP MUCH BIG MONEY

For years we have watched with sickening heart many cruelties perpetrated upon animals in order to get "punches." We have seen running horse tripped by wires, thrown over cliffs and killed; we have seen lions stirred to violent action by charging a wire-meshed floor witn electricity; we have seen comedy dogs driven almost mad with rubber bands about their muzzles and roosters choked with chewing gum in order to make them crow.

However, with the perfection of trick camera work that permitted cheating, many of the old torture stunts were disappearing and the growing public apathy regarding animal stuff seemed for a time to mark the end of that kind of entertainment. So even though we could have cashed in handsomely on this sensational stuff, we held our pen and never wrote one muck-raking article for the Post or Collier's that would shed the slightest discredit upon the industry.

THE JUNGLE SPEAKS—

The invention of sound-film, however, has stirred a whole new public interest in animal stuff. In the silent jungle a lion slinking in a bamboo jungle was only mildly terrifying, but now he emits a roar that curdles the blood, and those simple scenes have become horrific punches. Naturally, the studios wish to cash in on this new interest.

The question therefore arises: Just how far is it ethical to "cheat" on such scenes? Obviously, it is perfectly correct to set up a camera in the jungle and patiently wait for a bit of dramatic action; on the other hand, to set a camera on one side of a river and then by backfiring drive a herd of hippopotami over a cliff to their death, or at least great injury, right into the camera angle—a shot we once saw—is highly improper.

SUPERVISORS HAVE TO DELIVER

We have said that we can see no objection to filming big game stuff when the hunting of these creatures is a necessity of survival in the countries where the sportsmen are operating. Personally, however, we have always thought the Buffalo Jones expedition was the most sporting African expedition of them all, the purpose and success of which was not to kill the various animals but to rope them—a far more dangerous enterprise—and bring them into camp alive.

The jungle killings made in Movieland, however, are an entirely different matter. We believe that if Will Hays and the studios don't stop them, public indignation will. Obviously, the purpose of going below the border to film these monstrous killings is to get away from the jurisdiction of the American Humane Societies—Mexico evidently has no such organizations. It can mean but one thing—that the studio knows that they could not be made here.

Another reason these shots are particularly shocking is that as a rule they are made with animals which, having been in captivity for generations and knowing nothing of jungle habits, have to be prodded into action. In a recent picture made in Mexico a lion was expected to pounce upon and slaughter a gazelle but—so those who were present told us—the moment both animals were released in the big three-acre corral, the gazelle chased the lion all over the place.

The fact is that these poor "milk-fed" creatures are so utterly bewildered in the strange environment of the open spaces that all they wish to do is to get away and hide. Fighting is their last thought.

THE LUST FOR BLOOD

Jungle directors, however, are very resourceful and know all the tricks of compelling animals to fight; sometimes they can be prodded into action; or simply thrown at one another; or, as a last resort, starved into ferocity. We have recently heard the story of a camera-man who worked on some of this "Trader Horn" stuff and although he and his friends were buried safely in submerged cages, several of the fellows went downright sick at the horror of the scenes they were supposed to register.

We can easily share the disappointment of the M-G-M when they learned that the African stuff, that cost so much to make, was lacking in punch; but we still think they should have suffered their loss rather than punch up the story in the way it is said to have been done down in Mexico. The downright slaughter of beautful animals just to make a movie holiday—or more to the point, to boost box-office receipts!

THE SCRIPT TO BECOME A CRUSADER

If Will Hays won't do anything to stop such obscenities, might it not be proper for the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences to establish a bureau of ethics? If something isn't done inside the industry to discourage this kind of stuff, the public will take action. And the Script, honoring the in will make it its business to keep the dustry often beyonds its deserts, public informed.

Rome's fall started when the public conscience began to enjoy slaughter as a form of entertainment. We don't believe our public is in any such state of lustful degradation. We feel sure it would protest if made aware that animals are slaughtered just for entertainment purpose. —Christian Science Monitor.

GOOD FOR

Young Tummies

Just after they grow out of the high-chair, you can introduce your children to a wonderful and healthful drink—Canada Dry, The Champagne of Ginger Ales.

No other ginger ale is finer for the children. There is a friendliness to this sparkling liquid that captures a child's fancy. For many years, the ultra-violet ray has been used to insure the absolute purity of its water. And a secret process of carbonation gives it a lasting life and sparkle. These are the reasons why no other ginger ale has ever surpassed it in purity and healthfulness.

You will find it very handy to buy the carton of six or twelve bottles of Canada Dry. For it will save you time and trouble when the children are clamouring for "something good to drink." And of course, serve this delicious ginger ale at dinners and parties.

RADIATION GIVES CANCER PATIENTS LONGER LEASE LIFE

NEW YORK, July 8.—A too-little-known use of radium and X-rays which enables some cancer patients to resume work and social enjoyment in comfort while awaiting a delayed end is described today in a report by Francis Carter Wood, M.D., to the Radiological Society of North America. Dr. Wood is director of the Crocker Institute of Cancer Research at Columbia university.

The radiation relieves these persons of most of their suffering, takes them out of the obviously invalid class, and enables them to lead much the same normal lives as persons with weak hearts or other incurable but non-crippling ailments.

LIMITATIONS OF MODERN ELECTRIC SET

It is impractical to extend the wiring in a modern electric radio in such a way as to make it operate from either A. C. or from A and B batteries. It is, however, practical to design a receiver that can be operated either from batteries or from the A. C. circuit. The ordinary battery type receiver operated from eliminators becomes virtually an A. C. set and this is conceivably a satisfactory arrangement.

WILL LOOK OVER MACADAM PAVING NEEDING REPAIRS

Works Committee Will Take Jaunt; Scarifying or Patching?

Hard surfaced streets that are supposed to be in need of repair will be inspected by the civic public works committee Wednesday, as a consequence of a debate in city council Monday night on the nature of the repairs needed on certain streets with macadam paving.

Aldermen had mentioned some places where cars had worn curves badly, and had recommended scarifying those places and completely reconstructing them, when City Engineer Boyd C. Affleck entered an objection to the scarifying, saying he considered it waste of money to do more than serviceable repairs until the time should arrive that the pavement should be changed to the concrete type.

The city engineer asserted the regular repairs would serve fully, and that he could not recommend the present outlay.

As to the wearing, he said each year convinced him more that a concrete pavement was the only one that would stand up at the curves.

When the time came to replace a macadam pavement, it could be replaced with a concrete one, but that until that time came, he said he felt that a policy of patching worn places, and not one of tearing up the macadam and resurfacing it, was the one the city should pursue.

The city engineer said there was no difficulty in making good repairs, given fine weather.

By VIDA HURST

CHAPTER FORTY-SEVEN

"If you think you can make me care anything about you after this . . ." Corliss cried, stormily.

"It isn't a question of your caring or not caring. I'm not going to let you make a fool of yourself, that's all."

Standing inside the bachelor apartment where he had brought her as a bride and later refused to admit her, she wept, "You've humiliated and insulted me."

"Not half so much as Gomez would have done. I know him better than you do. You should be grateful that you've been saved before it's too everlastingly late."

An idea as daring as it was sudden made her saw defiantly, "That's where you've made a fool of yourself, Jerry."

"What do you mean?"

"What do you suppose?" she asked, in the tone she hoped would have been used by one who had burned all bridges behind her. "The damage is done."

Jerry's face was inscrutable. Eyes like ice. Mouth tight and hard.

"I don't believe it."

"All right. Ask the Japanese boy if this is the first time I've been there."

* * *

She saw his faith in her tottering on its pedestal and felt a little ill, but continued, mercilessly, "You think you've been awfully clever. But not clever enough, Jerry."

He repeated, stiffly, "It's a lie. If I believe that I'd punch his face into a pulp."

"He's going to New York tomorrow. I doubt if any earthly ruse could get you back there tonight."

She was tormenting him deliberately. If she could make him believe it she would be spared his attentions for the rest of her life. But she was wrong.

"Even if it is true," Jerry said, surprisingly, "I want you. If you've permitted a man like that to make love to you I'm sorry, but who am I to criticize you?"

Corliss was touched. Tears flashed into her eyes, but she would not retract her statement.

"That's broadminded of you, Jerry, although I don't know just what you expect to gain by it."

* * *

He was at her side, holding her hands in his firmly gentle grasp.

"It's my fault if you've gotten in bad. But if you'll give me one more chance. . . ."

She withdrew her hands from his coldly.

"You're asking me to do something it is no longer in my power to do."

"Because you don't want to do it, Corliss. If I could force you to listen to the dictates of your own heart."

"I should think you'd have too much pride to go on asking me."

"Love," said the editor of the latests movie magazine, passionately, "has nothing to do with pride. We were happy when we were first married. We could be again. We know each other's weaknesses now and should be able to overlook them."

"Meaning," said Corliss, cruelly, "that I would overlook yours while you continue to do as you pleased."

"Not at all. I was more to blame than you were, but both of us expected too much. Father was right. Each side should be willing to offer sacrifices."

"And just what would you be prepared to offer?"

"I'd be willing that you should continue your work in motion pictures. It isn't fair to ask you to stay at home with no friends or interests of your own."

"Big hearted you! And what about children?"

"That's up to you."

* * *

Corliss blinked. Two years ago he would have waxed eloquent upon his right to become a father.

"In return for this consideration I suppose you would expect and take unlimited freedom where other women are concerned?"

"Where my WORK is concerned," he corrected. "As for the other sex we should be willing to exhibit and deserve equal confidence and respect. If I wanted to take a woman to lunch or you wished to have dinner with a masculine friend, it should not cause either comment or suspicion."

This coming after he had just compelled her to return from her supper engagement was too much.

"You're consistent, aren't you?"

"I am," Jerry insisted. "Having supper with a man like Gomez alone in his apartment is different."

"Theoretically your ideas are very beautiful, Jerry, but as I've said before they'd be utterly impossible to carry out. And now if that's all I'm going home."

He permitted her to walk to the door. But it was locked.

"You're not going home tonight," Jerry said, gently.

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

Even then Corliss could not quite believe he meant it.

"If this is your idea of a joke, Jerry. . . ."

"It isn't," he assured her.

"What is it then? I won't stay here tonight. Nothing could induce me to stay."

"You can't leave," Jerry insisted. "There's only the one door."

He was so exasperatingly calm the situation seemed absurd rather than dramatic. He perched on the arm of a chair, alternately smoking and frowning.

Corliss said, "You don't seem to realize that we are not married any more."

"Oh, yes, I do."

"Can't you see how it would look if I stayed all night in your apartment? Granting for the sake of argument that I wished to stay, which I certainly don't."

"Down in your heart you do," Jerry said, stubbornly. "If you'd stay with me for one night you'd realize it."

* * *

"You've never struck me as the cave man type, Jerry."

"Well, the fact that you'd go alone to the apartment of a man like Gomez shows me how utterly reckless you've become. And I'd rather you'd stay here until he's out of town."

"Don't worry," she said, bitterly. "Gomez will never try to see me again."

"I hope not. But I'm taking no chances. Make yourself at home, Corliss."

She faced him, eyes flashing.

"I'm NOT staying. . . ."

Jerry tossed his cigaret into the fireplace and rose to his feet.

"I've tried everything else I know of. Tried to appeal to you in every possible way. If you'd stay here one night. Sleep here as you used to, I feel sure you'd realize that in spite of everything that's happened the relationship between us has never changed. Love is not an emotion that can be turned on and off like an electric switch. There's more to it than that. . . ."

* * *

"I was a fool," continued Jerry, "and more or less of a brute, but you were at fault, too, darlin'. . ."

"I've never said I wasn't. But even you can't revive a love that has died. I'm utterly, completely, disillusioned. Not at all the innocent, inexperienced girl I was. . . ."

"I hope you aren't. Much better for both of us if you really have acquired a little more sophistication. But you're not half as hard boiled as you'd like to pretend you are."

"I am so. I've been places and done things. . . ."

Jerry laughed.

"Little liar! If you have it hasn't hurt you. Perhaps it was what you needed. You're a thousand times more fascinating. . . ."

What was she to say to an argument like that? Corliss sank upon the davenport and in spite of her hard-boiled sophistication, began to cry.

"I've never hated anyone so much in all my life. You're like the dog in the manger. You didn't want me and you won't let anyone else have me."

"I didn't realize how much you meant to me, Corliss, until it was late. But I'm not going to give you up without one final effort. If, after you've spent the night in this apartment where you came as a bride, you still insist that you don't care about me, I'll let you go and I'll promise never to annoy you again."

She felt so nervous. So unsure of her reactions.

"You'll promise not to touch me?"

"Unless you ask me to I won't come in your room. I'll sleep in here on the davenport."

* * *

It's the weirdest idea I ever heard of," Corliss said, "but evidently I have no choice about it. After all, if you let me alone afterwards it will be worth trying."

He brought her a dressing gown and a pair of his pajamas, which she scorned. Disdainfully, she took off her dress and crept into bed. She could hear Jerry moving about in the living room. There was only a curtain between them. Would he keep his promise not to enter her room? The man was crazy. Utterly undisciplined. She shouldn't have gone to bed. Should have stayed up all night.

But that was admitting she was afraid. And she wasn't. Of HIM. . . . If he came to her and kissed her. . . .

That wasn't love. She hated his highhanded methods. The trouble with Jerry was that he had gotten by with anything he attempted and always would. . . Except with her. She'd show him.

Now he, too, had gone to bed. The lights were out. Traffic noises outside had dwindled to an occasional speeding taxi. It was late. They had argued long and violently. If she could go to sleep. She tried to think of Gomez, but was too utterly exhausted. If Jerry Newman thought he could interfere like this again. . . .Next time she'd be more careful. . . .

She was roused from deep, dreamless sleep by the roar of fire engines.

Before Meals Appetizers

Fruit and Vegetable Combinations Offer Much "Cocktail" Variety

Just at this time of year when appetites need tempting, a fruit or vegetable combination often can be served to precede or wholly replace the soup course.

These so-called "cocktails" serve a two-fold purpose in that they act as appetizers as well as adding color and elaboration to otherwise simple meals.

There is one precaution to keep in mind—do not repeat the flavor of the cocktail in some other course. The general rule for serving cold foods thoroughly chilled should be observed and the cocktail be left on ice until the last minute. Do not let a fruit cocktail be too sweet lest it defeat its own end, and cloy rather than whet the appetite.

Very often left-overs can be used most satisfactorily and attractively. The portions for serving are quite small, four tablespoonfuls being enough for each person, so a few tablespoonfuls of several materials used in combination will make enough cocktail to serve a number of persons.

In making fruit cocktails it's well to include one bland-fruit in combination with two or more tart ones. A dash of lemon juice improves all cocktails, fruit and vegetable. Fruit cocktails gain much if mixed and placed on ice in a covered glass jar for at least four hours before serving. The flavors blend, then, into delightful mellow whole.

Fresh pineapple cocktail is particularly good as a starter for a fish dinner. Mint and orange suggest roast lamb or veal, but any piquant, well-chilled, cocktail, be it vegetable or fruit, will prove acceptable preceding any menu.

FRESH PINEAPPLE COCKTAIL

One cup diced fresh pineapple, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 tablespoons blanched and shredded almonds, 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Cut fruit in neat dice. Sprinkle with sugar and let stand on ice over night. One hour before serving add almonds and lemon juice. Serve in chilled glasses, using the juice as well as the fruit. This rule will serve four to six persons.

CABBAGE AND CARROT COCKTAIL

Three-fourths cup finely shredded cabbage, ½ cup grated carrot, ¼ cup minced celery, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Let cabbage stand for one hour in ice water, which more than covers. Dry between towels. Add carrot, celery, salt and lemon juice. Lift with a fork until thoroughly mixed. Chill well and serve garnished with threads of green pepper.

POP-OVERS

Have you had any of those delicious pop-overs lately? They just add the needed touch when the dinner is of left overs ad something in the line of hot bread just fills the space. One egg, one cup of milk, one cup of flour, a pinch of salt. Beat the eggs lightly, add milk, then stir in sugar and salt. This quantity will make six pop-overs. Pour into greased gem or pop-over pans and bake in a hot oven for ten minutes, then turn down to moderate and cook for 35 minutes longer. Must be eaten as soon as they come from the oven for real enjoyment.

PROTECTION FROM SOILED HANDS

Cook books, if used frequently, are bound to become soiled and greasy. Cover them with white or colored oilcloth, then they can be washed off with warm water and soap and save you the necessity of continually having to recover them, besides adding to the life of the books.

JOAN OF ARC

HONORED AT ROUEN

When Rouen recently commemorated the fifth century of Joan of Arc's death, Mlle. Cicelle Brabant, clad in medieval armor, took the role of the Maid of Orleans.

FOR THE NOTE BOOK

Fruit stains can be removed from the teeth by rubbing with common table salt.

A cloth moistened with gasoline will keep the kitchen stove looking bright as new.

When selecting a lobster, be sure and get one of those who tail is curled tightly to its body, for this is a sign of freshness.

When the red tiles of the fireplace or porch floors become dull, rub them with a cut piece of lemon and a little salt and then wash with warm soapy water.

If the towel is folded into a small square and stuffed into the knee of your stockings, you will be very glad by the time all the floors are scrubbed and cleaned.

BITS OF KNOWLEDGE

Corn fritters are good with the chicken dinner.

Finger-shaped sandwiches are so easy and pleasant to handle for afternoon tea.

When a recipe calls for buttered crumbs, allow one-fourth cup of melted butter to one cup of bread crumbs.

Rub the inside of the chicken with the cut half of a lemon before putting in the stuffing. It will improve the flavor.

Roll the celery in brown paper, then wrap a towel around it and place it in a dwark place until an hour before using. Then place it in a basin of ice water until ready to serve. This treatment will refresh celery that is a week old.

PRUNE FLUFF

Soak one pound of prunes in over night in water to cover. Stew slowly until tender. Stone and add one-half cup of sugar to the pulp. Dissolve one tablespoon of gelatine in one-half cup of cold water, then in hot water and add to the prunes, along with the juice of two oranges and one lemon. Continue beating until foamy, then add the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Pour into sherbets and chill. Serve topped with sweetened whipped cream.

LESS BREAKAGE

Put the new glassware or lamp chimneys in a pan of cold water and heat gradually until the water has reached the boiling point. Remove from stove and let the glass cool in the water. Theis process will greatly reduce the chance of breakage.

Getting Years More Wear Out of Window Curtains

If some of your windows need new curtains this year you may be interested in a suggestion that will enable you to obtain several years more wear from the new curtains you purchase.

Purchase about eight or nine inches extra of the material for each curtain length, and fold these extra inches into the top hem (or heading and casing) of the curtains. Finish the bottoms of the curtains as desired.

The greatest wear on the curtains comes just above the hem, where the curtains have been whipped against window screens, or out of the window in the summer, and where the sun has caught them daily and destroyed the material. When you find that the bottom portion of the curtains have become worn, take them down, clean them, rip out the heading and casing at the top, then carefully press out the material, using a damp cloth and a not too hot iron. Then lay all the curtains together, and cut off the bottom worn portion, or about eight or nine inches of it. Now, carefully baste in a new casing or heading, basting it at the end of the curtain which previously hung at the bottom. This places the tender material at the top, where there is neither strain nor wear on it. Stitch in the new heading and casing, then hang the curtains and trim off evenly at the bottom. If there is enough material, baste in a hem, then take down the curtains and baste it on the machine. If there is not enough material, trim off the curtains until they are about one and one-half or two and one-half inches above the window sill, run in an inch wide and sew on a two inch or three inch fringe, according to the amount of material that has been trimmed off. Stitch the fringe on by machine, then press the stitching and rehang the curtains.

Sometimes even the price of fringe may be saved by using the material in the old hem, which is sometimes in fairly good condition. Use it to face the portion of the curtain which will be used in the new top heading and casing. As the curtain is going to be reversed, neither the worn portions that have been left on the curtains nor the facing will srow from the room.

I purchased the material for a bay window several years ago, paying in the neighborhood of $24 for the silk net and fringe. An extra yard of material was purchased by mistake and instead of cutting it off I worked it into the top of the curtain as described, and rehung the curtains. This spring I have taken them down and cleaned them, and I believe that they are good for several years' more wear. In the condition they were in last year, with the lower portion of the curtains torn to ribbons when they were returned from the cleaners, one would not have believed that good curtains could have been made from the material. Always, in the future, when I purchase material for new curtains, I shall buy these few extra inches for each curtain, to be used when the curtain becomes worn and are reversed top to bottom.

If ten or twelve inches at the bottom of the curtain are worn, do not cut off the whole amount. Just cut off the amount equal to the portion you have at the top, then carefully mend the torn portion. This will form the back of the casing at the top of the made-over curtains, and it will not show.

Sports Clothes Are Now Almost Conventionalized

Sports clothes for the woman who does something more than just stand on the sidelines and watch are conventionalized almost to the point of being uniforms. There are the sleeveless, washable, full-skirted tennis dress, the knitted golf frock topped with a jacket, the practical woven swim suit and the regulation riding attire, on which one cannot go wrong except by adding a fancy hat.

Tennis clothes are quite devoid of accessories, a visor or a silk band to keep the hair in place being about the only decoration permitted herself by the girl who really cares about her backhand stroke. Lisle stockings, with or without accompanying socks of colorful angora and buckskin or canvas shoes with crepe or hard rubber soles complete the costume.

The three-piece knitted suit for golf, consisting of skirt, slip-on sweater and jacket, is rivalled in popularity only by the woven one-piece dress with accompanying sleeveless vest, worn under a chamois jacket. These jackets are usually collarless, buttoned from top to bottom in a businesslike fashion, and come in more alluring pastel shades this season than chamois has ever known before. With these are worn a felt hat in simple mushroom shape, although for hot weather wear the shops are prophesying the vogue of washable, reversible fabric hats.

In the matter of gloves the golfer is permitted the privilege of buying one at a time, instead of a pair. The reason for this, as all golf fans are supposed to know, is that the right-handed golfer is addicted to calluses only on the left hand, and vice-versa.

In the newly opened dress department of a famous sporting goods store the two accepted types of glove are the chamois mitt with cut-off fingers and perforated backs and the equally perforated affair which has a fabric back and a kid palm.

Golf shoes are of the inevitable brown and white or black and white buckskin, sometimes with spiked soles.

The simpler one's swimming suit the better, whether the two-piece consisting of skirt over tights or the one-piece with double pants. The heavy rubber caps which always used to wrinkle unbecomingly at the back of the head are now cut in strips and seamed together on the bias, so that they adjust themselves smoothly over any type of coiffure.

A group of furniture that would be appropriate as the fitting for any kind of lounging and playroom would include a comfortable triple settee, a deep armchair, a low davenport table and a high table for flowers, to put refreshments on, or to keep magazines or games.

The metals, woods, leathers, compositions, textiles and cork that go itno them create the most pleasing appearance plus utility and comfort. No wonder the new modified modern furniture is becoming staple in many homes.

Stepmother's Problem

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Two years ago I married a widower with three daughters. Two of the girls are still in boarding school, but one has a position and lives with us. Her attitude toward me is like a stranger. She criticizes me openly and has asked me not to use her mother's linens so frequently. My husband once said no woman would ever cause his children to leave home.

I love my husband but, as he never reprimands this daughter for her insults to me, I cannot help questioning his love for me. At 46 one has to dress well and, when I make a purchase, my stepdaughter lectures me on "thrift." I have tried to keep peace because my husband is not well. EILEEN.

I agree with you, Eileen, that yours is a very hard situation to meet. You love your husband and wish to keep peace, but you are in a constant state of unhappiness by the critical attitude of your stepdaughter. Why not start out on a campaign to win this girl's affection? It will take a great deal of patience, no doubt, but I believe it could be done. Perhaps you could start by planning some pleasant vacation surprise for the two younger sisters. Ask her cooperation in giving them a party. If you are unselfish, and she sees that you are genuinely interested in the welfare of her sisters and herself, she will find it hard to continue her unkind attitude.

Shall She Wait for Him?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Perhaps you can help me, as you have helped other girls. "A" and I have been going together for six months. We started as "pals" but now we find we love each other dearly. The reason we haven't married is that "A" still goes to school and it will be three or four years before he'll be able to get a position that pays well enough.

What shall I do? Wait three or four years, or give him up now? You see, I am quite old, almost 21. But I'll always love him, no matter what happens. JUST D.

Goodness, what an old lady, almost 21! Don't you know, dear child, that 25 is considered by many people the ideal age for a girl to marry. It seems to me that you are very fortunate to be in love with a young man who has ambition and a career in prospect. But you must be sensible and put all thought of marriage out of your heads until he can get through school. Why not take up a course yourself, in domestic science, the arts, or some interesting subject that would keep you busy and content while those few years slip away?

Old-Fashioned Girl

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 20 years old, and lots of people tell me I am pretty, but I cannot seem to meet any nice young men. Girls say I am too old fashioned because I do not drink. I do not care for that. I find enjoyment out of going to a show and having a friendly conversation, but it seems that such diversions are not the enjoyment of today.

I work in an office and see the same faces every day. I do not care to belong to any clubs. Could you suggest how I could meet some nice young men? LONESOME

At the risk of seeming possibly a little unsympathetic, my dear Lonesome, I am going to say that I believe part of your trouble is your own aloofness. For the most part, people are responsive to good nature and cheerfulness. There are many gay young people who have no thought of drinking or leading a wild life. Be cheerful and pleasant, and you will attract the right type of friends. Good luck to you!

Is Love Ever Wasted

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am writing you in regard to the letter of "Steve S." It just proves what inconsiderate creatures most men are. Hasn't a girl a right to break an engagement if she finds she no longer is in love with the man? Steve S., I think you are a very lucky man. Marriage is no blessing after love has ceased. The idea of insinuating that two years spent in the company of a girl you love are wasted! Apparently you didn't love any more than she loved.

Two years ago I had the same sad experience. The man I promised to marry told me he no longer loved me. I do not feel that my love was wasted—it is the most beautiful thing in my life, and I shall always wish him happiness—if he is happy. I am happy. What do you think? A. G. L.

I think that you are very fortunate to have such a philosophy of love, my dear A. G. L., and I hope that the future holds much happiness in store for you. No, I do not think that love is ever wasted—it enriches every life it touches.

Loves Pal's Girl

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I feel foolish writing this to you, but here goes. I am 17 years old, and have been to South America. I arrived home eight weeks ago. When I got home the "gang" had a party for me. My pal was there, and introduced me to his girl. We found out we loved each other and have been going together for some time, but my pal does not know anything about it. I am asking your advice as to whether I should tell him or not. I don't want to lose either of them. EDDIE.

I imagine, if your pal was anywhere near your age, 17, he was not engaged to the girl and therefore it is not quite so bad for you to have won her away from him. However, you know that you are absurdly young to be going out with just one girl, even though you have travelled a good bit. I hope that you will look around you and take note of all the nice girls you meet, and try taking others out once in a while. Good luck to you!

He Is Too Young

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Here is my problem. I am engaged to marry a young man of 19. I am 22. Do you think that is too much of a difference in our ages? Right now, I am much younger looking than he is, but he is of the Latin race and I am English. ANXIOUS

I do not think the difference in your ages is of as much importance as the fact that the young man is too young to marry. Nineteen seems to me entirely too young to marry. Nineteen seems to me entirely too young for a boy to take on the responsibilities of married life. It is an age when he should be studying, or working toward a better future. By assuming the burden of providing a home, food, and clothing for a wife and possibly children, he will soon be crushed and old—too tired to make the effort necessary to secure a better position. Better wait until he is older, if you really love him.

The Beauty Box

BY Helen Follett

Glory be to cosmetic chemists. One can't imagine what this modern world would be without them. They stir up sweet, creamy messes, balmy lotions that warm our hearts, fill our nostrils with floretted odors and incite the belief that old beauty ills will vanish and new ones won't appear. They don't work instantaneous like magic; there are no cure-alls among them. But their oils and essences keep the skin surface clean, urge blood streams to gallop faster, compensate for the ravages of wind, strong sunshine and atmospheric dust.

Coarse pores are one of the stubbornest of beauty ills. Changing the texture of the skin is like changing the spots on a tiger. The beauty supplicant must be hopeful and persistant, using ice freely, laving the complexion with cold water every morning, using an astringent after the cold water bath, seeking light powders rather than heavy ones, going slow with heavy applications. She must delete fats and sweets from her diet.

Any good liquid cleanser mixed with oatmeal makes a first class beauty pack. One that comforts the skin if it has had to weather strong sunlight. Pour two tablespoonfuls of the cream into a saucer, fold in oatmeal with a fork until the mass is the constistency of whipped cream. Place on the face, cover with two layers of cheesecloth then lay on hot compresses. Finish up with ice rub.

Little pale-face whose complexion is too much of the lily and not enough of the rose, should drink milk, lapping up a quart each day. She should also eat liver and plenty of green salads and fresh vegetables. Good grub is what makes the skin take on color, and good grub means a balanced diet. Of course, dipping into the old rouge pot gives temporary blushes.

Poor grade powders should be avoided; they produce blackheads. The soiled powder pad is another miscreant among the galaxy of toilet accessories. A paste made of peroxide and kaolin is good to banish blackheads. Let remain on the skin for 15 minutes.

In the svelte anatomy there is what is known as the "vital center." Place your finger tips between the breasts at the point where the ribs meet. There it is. Keep that point extended, pushed forward. The chest will expand and be lifted, shoulders will fall naturally where they should. Head will be erect. By keeping this beauty rule in mind there need be no worry about ungraceful carriage or unlovely posture. Stand against the wall with toes and vital center touching the wall.

BLACK AND TURQUOISE

Not only in dress have the colors black and turquoise formed an alliance but many decorative objects for the home, such as trays, vases and other decorative are in black, either glass or composition, and are lined with turquoise, in striking effectiveness.

PRICKLY HEAT

Prickly heat can be relieved by sponging with equal parts of vinegar and water. Dry the skin thoroughly and then powder with one part of boric acid to two parts of cornstarch.

How about the utensils for the summer canning and preserving? The first green things of spring are here and all articles should be in readiness when the fruits and vegetables are at the right price. There are sales about this time that include all necessary preserving utensils. Take an inventory.

Sensational Pyjamas
Deauville Beach Parade

DEAUVILLE, France, July 8. — With the first glimpse of returning summer, twenty picked mannikins of the Rue de la Paix fashion houses showed the 1931 beach pajamas on the fashionable Deauville bathing beach.

The mode this year is transparency and there will be the same trend in bathing costumes. Last year's wide-trousered pyjamas and bare-side and bare-backed bathing suits did not cause sufficient sensation, so this year the fashion czars, aided by their army of creators, have gone out to bring back prosperity to France's fashion resorts.

Although everyone tries to deny it, there is no doubt Deauville and the neighboring resorts suffered badly last year because America did not export her millionaires to the French bathing-stations in the same proportions as she did in 1928, the boom year for France's tourist, gaming and fashion industry.

The foretaste of beach fashion was breath-taking. New sheath-like material has been employed in the pyjamas which will grace Deauville's golden sands. There are bell trousers, tight right down to the calf, and the transparent material is supported by two narrow strips of heavier material cross the body. The effect, however, is to leave legs, body and arms visible.

look! listen! taste!

JUST pour milk or cream in a bowl of golden brown Rice Krispies and your own ears will tell you how crunchy every toasted bubble is. So crisp they actually crackle out loud!

Rice Krispies are delicious for breakfast, lunch, bedtime snacks. Great for kiddies. At your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Radio as a "Rival"

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

One hardly can imagine the RADio in the role of an alienation of affections defendant, but it would seem the voice which brings the world to your armchair has aroused jealousy on the part of some "dateless" girls.

One letter accusing the radio of keeping the boy friend at home in happy bachelor contentment would mean no more than that single swallow which does not make a Summer but, after reading many such letters with—"we had a date but his mother had a new radio and he didn't notice the time fly," or "he doesn't come as often as he did since they got their new set," one feels that there may be some grounds for the accusation.

A girl from Massachusetts writes me at length about the modern young man and the luxuries that keep him from marrying. He is too comfortable, too independent, too well looked after. He has no incentive to marry. Here's her letter:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

If you ask any modern young man, near the thirties, what is playing on the radio, he can tell you almost all the latest programs. He sits at home and listens to these, smoking his pipe or cigarette. Now why can't he take his pipe or cigarettes and go to some nice girl's home, and listen to the radio there?

With summer coming, now would be the time for young men to try to meet the girls who are interested in sports, who play tennis, golf, and can talk amusingly.

Girls of today are no more anxious to marry than the men are. Many have good positions and would gladly do their share in such ventures. But how is a man to find this companionship if he is satisfied to stay at home and listen to his radio? How can he find the one if he finds consolation in his radio instead of one who would be only too glad to listen if he would only seek to tell her?

Do you think I am right, Miss Fairfax? Perhaps not. Nevertheless, from personal observation of my friends both men and women, I seem to have come to the above conclusion. I should love to read your own version of this. F. O. T.

This interesting question raised by the Boston girl—Radio versus Woman—is now offered as a basis for discussion. I am led to wonder what, if anything, may be said by young and middle-aged men. Now that they have radios, do they stay home more and let the girls go "dateless," or is woman still the angelic pest she has been from the beginning?

The radio as the modern Lorelei is a new one to me.

ATTRACTIVE BATHROOMS

Today when new houses are having the new colored porcelain bathroom fittings installed—when "color schemes" are as much a part of the bathroom as of any other room in the house—many of us, who live in old houses, feel that we are handicapped with antique plumbing fixtures and that it is hardly worth while to try to improve the appearance of our bathrooms.

Yet much can be done with a can of pain Of course, I do not mean that porcelain can be painted. But wood should be touched up with a little color in the bathroom, and here is a plan which anybody may follow:

For walls in a bedroom, straw color paint is excellent (no matter what the exposure—dark or sunny). Straw color harmonizes with just about everything. So, if your bathroom walls are unattractive, dark, or otherwise not to your liking, why not set about painting them? You will find comfort in bathroom walls painted in straw-colored enamel, for this smooth finish may later be washed (if not too badly soiled) merely with borax water, instead of soap. (For a very grimy wall, especially one with a stippled finish, it will be necessary to sprinkle a little powdered whiting on the rag used for washing, and also necessary to add one tablespoon of kerosene oil or a little washing soda to each pailful of water used; wash with long, vertical strokes, rinse with clear water and wipe with a soft cloth.)

The next step in improving an old-fashioned bathroom is to cover its floor with linoleum. Select a small pattern. I personally like green on a bathroom floor. With this color I like lavender. To carry out this color scheme, you could paint woodwork, water-closet seat, Turkish stool and the frame to the mirror over the washbowl, lavender. At the window use lavender theatrical gauze decorated with slender lines of green at the bottom; this decoration is made by pulling threads above the hem and tying the green thread to the gauze-thread you pull out—so that the one being pulled out will pull the other colored thread in. Either a lavender or a green bath mat should be chosen And either color could be selected for towel bandings, wash cloths, and so on.

Tomorrow—Chili Sauce.

American rubber gloves are now more popular than any other, including the British products, in the United Kingdom.

Clothes Made Out of Wood

PARIS, July 8—Wearing a wooden kimona" used to have an entirely different significance from what it carries today. Then you only got to wear once—now you can not only wear a wooden kimona as many times as you like with perfect safety and even with undeniable charm, but you wear, whether you realize it or not, wooden stockings, wooden underwear and wooden dresses, more times than you have any idea.

I have been closeted for hours with one of the world's greatest makers of materials in Paris, and he told me things that made my eyes grow large with wonder. Imitation silk is made largely of wood fiber, and would you belive that during 1930 there were from 120,000,000 to 125,000,000 pounds of this artificial or imitation, silk used?

Nor are men exempt from wooden attire. They have worn many wooden ties, consciously or unconsciously and they have mopped their brows with wooden hankerchiefs and donned wooden socks to say nothing of the numerous times they have jumped hurriedly into wooden shirts and "shorts."

Rodier's sinellic is one of the most important of all artificial silks and it is enjoying a vogue in Paris, this year that surpasses any previous year because Rodier has been studying thousands of different weaves and weights for it, with the result that there is scarcely an article of wearing apparel to which it cannot be adapted. It takes colors perfectly—from the palest pastels to the deepest colors of the raindow.

Colors for Dining Room Housecleaning, Fixing Up

With house cleaning going on apace, and Mr. Householder wondering how improvements can be made on a thin purse. "East Ender," who passed on his experience in regard to the kitchen, has the following suggestions to make in regard to the dining-room.

"Color Scheme No. 1—By having the walls in a quiet fawn color and doing the baseboard in walnut makes a very pretty dining-room. For draperies, use chintz, which hangs so prettily. Always use striking colors. The draperies should touch the floor, hanging from valance boards, finished in walnut to match the baseboard.

"The next thing to do is to pick the glass curtains. Ecru fishnet or filet net make very attractive curtains. A rug in two tones is suggested if the floor is in bad shape. A border of marble linoleum around the sides of the rug give the room a pleasing look. The dining-room should be furnished with dark wood furniture to make the room complete.

Color Scheme No. 2.—Ivory or cream and mauve or orchid make a pretty combination in fixing a dining-room. Do the ceilings and walls down to the plate rail in ivory or cream and below it in a delicate shade of mauve or orchid, doing the baseboard and plate rail in a deeper shade. Use chints for the draperies. The tone of the background should be in mulberry or egg plant colors to get the decided effect. For glass curtains use rayon panels having over drapes hanging from poles, painted with the same color as the baseboard is painted, doing each end wth the mulberry shade. A rug in rich Oriental in Wilton or Axminster design puts the finishing touch.

"Color Scheme No. 3.—If color is desired, and, as one knows, color is the most essential thing in creating a fine interior, use a tile or flagstone linoleum in two shades of red for floor coverings. Instead of papering the walls finish them up in light green paint, doing the baseboard in black and painting an edge on each side in red or vice versa. In choosing the draperies, use material in linen finish or rough texture, having back of sand or putty shade, with flowers in two shades of brick red and green. Hang draperies on iron pole on which the rings are to be painted in black. For glass curtains use heavy ecru net. This color scheme is suitable for heavy and dark furniture.

"In arranging china or bric-a-brac on the plate rail, arrange in groups, letting the colors blend. Between each group leave a space of one and one-half to two feet.

PANTALLETED DRESS IS CAUSING A STIR

The flurry that sounded about the world of fashion when Maggy Rouff showed a beruffled petticoat beneath the hem of her black afternoon frock was real enough, but there is a newer whimsy that gives the petticoat a merry chase for interest and feminity.

It is nothing less than a pantaleted dress. The strange thing is that the modern girl, after seeing one of these, does not hesitate to say, "I'd like to wear one. Wouldn't it be fun?"

Fun, indeed it would be to the girl born in the twentieth century who, until the renaissance of feminity a year ago in August has known only a life of short skirts, boyish lines and bobbed hair.

This pantaletted dress is going to cause a stir. There has been no doubt since it was thought of enough in significance to break forth in the editorial columns of the Outlook as follows:

"We supposed it was another of those Civil War writers," says a writer in the Outlook, "when we came upon a full-length newspaper advertisement showing a Garbolike lady with a ringlet on her forhead, a ruffled capelet on her shoulders and one hand holding up a voluminous skirt to reveal eight of 10 inches of ruffled pantalette. Then we looked more closely. This was no talkie. The dress was for sale. It could be had, we read, 'in misses sizes....in party colors ... pale blue taffeta, or in white, with pink net pantalettes.....At a price to suit the modern mood.

"So we reflected, the return of feminity, predicted for the last two years, is at last actually upon us. Quickly adjusting our mind to the thought of women blowing clouds of cigarette smoke around their ringlets and grumbling when cocktails were spilled on their capelets, we found we rather liked the idea. A pantaletted ankle climbing into a rumble seat or swinging from a drug store stool—bit piquant.

"Then we began to think of wordlets like pantalettes and capelets. Of sleevelet, socklet, armlet and flowerlet and the rest which are sure to follow. The modern woman is emancipated, we thought. She makes speeches. Yet she can talk of capelets. She can discuss the Hawley-Smoot bill and the political situation in the second ward while shopping for pantalettes. She cannot only adopt her great grandmother's garments but refer to them with great-grandmother's sentimental diminutives without thought of incongruity. Well, she has taught us something; perhaps you've known it all along. It is that feminity has not returned—it has never been away."

FLOPPY HATS FOR SUMMER

PARIS, July 8.—"Let the blessed sunshine in," is the old familiar song the new large and floppy hats are singing this summer, for the mesh of their wide brims is so large that fresh green acorns could drop through it, wrapped in triangular, round or square cuts of sunshine. Figared designs one of these in pink straw and lifts the brim just enough from the center of the front around the left side to put a row of five pink roses with a green leaf or two in between each one. On the right side of the crown the roses are on the outside. There is no "best" side to a hat like this. One may be sure of compliments right and left.

Hats on the "hole" are very interesting. There is one especially so with the hole just above the left ear and through which a little cluster of curls is encouraged to tumble out and over. Another has an opening right in the crown's peak where a short curly bob may be exposed to the warmth of summer without danger of a sunstroke. The "quareness" of this creation is that when it is very hot the opening can be closed by means of two little straw doors that shut and lock with a tiny ribbon bow or a flower or a button, if one prefers.

More and more are hats becoming like jackets. First they are brimless, like the little sleeveless boleros that are only large enough to be called jackets by courtesy. Then come tiny brims like the eaves on an old-fashioned roof. Eaves for Eves, they might be called. These correspond to the jackets with elbow sleeves and waist-length hems. The third stage casts a shadow just over the end of the nose and the nape of the neck, and their sister jackets have long sleeves and include the hips in their wrapping. Lastly the umbrella bonnet bobs its huge floppy brim like the petals of full-blown poppy folded almost backwards. For this the jecket magnifies its sleeves and lets its lower border drop to the knees.

SENSE IN HOUSE SHOES

It is not economical to finish out your old slippers around the house while working. Women who do their work require a sensible shoe, one with a moderately low heel and one that will give some support to the ankles, such as an oxford. You will find you are less tired at the end of the day if you have the right sort of house shoe.

Lakeside Park a Health Center

What is the most popular spot in Nelson? There is little doubt that Lakeside park holds the honored position. With the advent of the hotter summer weather, Lakeside has become the mecca of both young and old Nelson and district people.

Yesterday hundreds disported themselves about the hot, clean sands, or in the cool, refreshing waters, or were content to shade themselves under the spreading trees.

Some Nelsonites do not realize the value of Lakeside park. Here is one health center that should be patronized. It costs nothing.

Nelson's city fathers have had moored at the park a large float. It provides excellent diving facilities. It is spacious and will hold a large crowd, and is well supplied with ladders upon which swimmers may climb from the water.

Nelson city fathers have two instructors looking after the young at Lakeside park. Swimming and life-saving classes are on the summer months' program. Hundreds of children will learn to swim at Lakeside this summer.

Lakeside has excellent playground facilities. There are swings for the kiddies, merry-go-rounds, and other equipment. The grounds are large, and easily can accommodate two or three softball games.

Lakeside park has an adorable flower garden, which is well kept and admired by all who visit this pleasure spot.

Lakeside park has excellnet catering facilities. Boiling water is procurable at all hours. Tables and benches are numerous and well scattered.

Bathing houses to accommodate large crowds are provided, and are used daily.

These are a few of the features of this beauty spot, right in the city of Nelson on the sandy shores of Kootenay lake. District people visiting Nelson will not regret a day at the park. Make it your summer out-of-doors home.

Care on the Highways

Automobile accidents have been numerous throughout the district in the past few weeks. One or two deaths have occurred, and several persons have suffered serious injuries. Other accidents have resulted in only damage to the automobiles concerned.

Considering the thousands and thousands of miles that are piled up each month by drivers of automobiles, the accident toll may not be considered large. Some accidents are always to be expected. Unsuspected mechanical defects are always a danger to the motorist who covers ground at a great speed. Yet there are constantly accidents that could be avoided were caution used.

Many of the accidents that have occurred in the past two, three and four weeks may have been avoided had reasonable care been exercised.

In Ontario in the month of May 47 persons were killed in 839 accidents. Of the Ontario motorists involved in the accidents, the Toronto Telegram points out that 54 were travelling too fast for road conditions and traffic, 86 were on the wrong side of the road, 36 did not have the right-of-way, 30 were cutting in, one passed a standing street car, five passed on a curve on a hill, two were passing on the wrong side, and 11 failed to signal. What applies to Toronto applies also in this district. Automobile accidents the world over are caused by carelessness. The above averages are about the same in East and West Kootenay as they are in the larger cities. Reasonable care would prevent many of the accidents reported in the press daily.

Equinoctial, by Heck!

In the good old days, when farmers and not meteorologists were the chief weather prophets, severe storms in summer were called "equinoctial storms." The sun crossed the line, they told us, and crossing, raised the very devil with the elements. Nowadays the government's weather experts will not let us believe such stuff.

Perhaps the meteorologists are right, but their high-sounding, technical expositions will not knock it out of the heads of goosebone prophets and their multitudinous following that the severe storms common at this time of the year are equinoctial storms and have something to do with the sun passing over, or about to pass over, the equator, or equinox. It is then that conditions are most propitious for the storms and most dangerous for those who dwell in their path. In other words, they are equinoctial, and in a very literal sense.

All of which goes to show that the old-fashioned weather forecasters knew what they were talking about after all, just as they knew what they were talking about when they repeated their little jingles, such as:

Rain in the morning, farmers take warning;
Rain in the night, farmers' delight.

It often happens this way. Scientists labor for years and produce finally a great truth; which truth happens frequently to be exactly the truth that everyone had known all along.

Canada and Australia share in Pearce's victory at Henley. He brings the coveted Diamond Sculls back to this country for the fourth time.

Canada's two new destroyers have arrived at Halifax, but this will not bring the Dominion under the naval limitation schedule.

A German Zeppelin will pay a visit to London shortly and will receive a much different reception than during the war.

Another place where there is no unemployment is among pedestrians at a busy intersection of the city.

THE EDITOR'S PARADISE

When earth's last paper is printed,
And the forms are dusted and dried;
When the last delinquent has paid up
And the youngest "devil" has died;
We shall rest, and faith we shall need it,
Lie down for an hour or two,
Till the Genius of all Good Printers
Shall set us to work anew.

And we who were good, shall be happy,
Lie back in our office chair,
Or pen editorials brilliant,
With never a worry or care.
We shall never lack for "copy,"
All subscribers will pay their dues;
And "ads" shall come in a-plenty,
And creditors shan't abuse.

At the dance hall—"I'm sorry I stepped on your toe and put my elbow in your eye."

At the bank—"I'm sorry, Mr. Teller. You gave me $20 too much. Here's the $20."

To the transient beggar—"of course I've got a quarter. But here's a dollar. Go and have a real drink."

To the auto salesman—"I've no complaint at all. This used car is working like a charm."

To the boss—"I see you have given me a $10 raise. But I could not think of taking it in these times of depression."

And some more:

Street car passenger to conductor—"Do you mind if I move up to the front?"

Motorist to pedestrian—"I'm in no hurry; walk over at your leisure."

Pedestrian to motorist—"I'm so sorry I got in your way. Please accept my apologies."

Fresh air fiend—"Does this open window annoy you? If it does, I'll gladly close it."

"I can't understand how my light bill is so low; there must be a mistake."

"Here, conductor, you didn't collect my fare on my way in and I forgot about it myself."

Father: "Do I need to pay for this boy? He's older than he looks."

Schoolboy—"I'm sorry I left those peanut shells on the floor, but if you'll send me the bill for cleaning the car, I'll gladly pay it."

Shopper—"Here, let me put these parcels on the floor. I completely forgot I was using up a seat."

A GAIN FOR SAFETY

It is encouraging to discover a decrease in the dangers of automobile travel, even though the improvement applies to a limited area. Connecticut is claiming a record for success in a safety campaign, reporting a 22 per cent reduction in automobile accidents for the last year. This is the second time the state has reduced the toll of traffic. Credit for the achievement is given to a policy of public education rather than to legislation or its unusual success in enforcement. The improvement is contrasted with an increase in population and automobile registration, so that it may be considered an actual gain. At the same time it is pointed out that one person was injured or killed by motor vehicles for every 119 residents of the state. There is ample room for further improvement. — New York Evening Post.

Moroccan Harems

Comparatively few Europeans ever become really acquainted with the life led behind the protecting walls of the Moroccan harem. But Mme. Celarie, the wife of a French officer stationed for many years at Morocco, not only went behind those walls but made friends among Moroccans, both men and women, so that they discussed their problems with her and told her their histories. Speaking their language, liking them and their country, she was a welcome guests in Moroccan households of various degrees. From two books in which she related her experiences and gave pen pictures of the lives of some of the Moroccons she knew, Constance Lily Morris has translated and adapted the sketches, some of them really short stories, collected in this volume published by the Macmillan Company.

No one who delights in the "Thousand and one nights," can fail to enjoy a book which transports the reader into a realm of colorful, almost adventurous and different from our own as that ruled over by the Caliph Haroun al-Raschid.

SLAVES IN NEARLY EVERY HOUSEHOLD

Before the French protectorate was estaqnished, one great fear hung over every Moroccan household, and especially over those living in the country, the dread of the slave trader. "Two thousand little girls were sold yearly. . . just around Marrackech," declares Si Abderrahmen, whose own wife, Lella Zohra, had been stolen and sold when only about seven or eight years old. Even at the time these accounts were written, although the French had suppressed the slave markets, and slavery was contrary to both civil and religious law, condemned by many of the Moroccans themselves, "There is scarcely a native household where one or more slaves are not found." The majority were well fed, not overworked and seldom beaten, but there were exceptions, and the way in which a brave Frenchwoman helped one of the exceptions to escape from the harem of a cruel master provides the book with a thrilling episode.

SUBTERRANEAN VAULTS AS PRISONS

Even more horrible than this picture of children taken from their parents is the account of the prisons of Marrakech during the rule of the Pasha. In the subterranean vaults beneath the ruins of a once splendid palace, where there was not even a door which could be opened to let in a ray of light, but only a hole through which men were pushed head first, prisoners were left to die of thirst and starvation. "Those who had relatives and succoring friends received food. The others got nothing." And it is said that when the French came and put a stop to these subterranean vaults, "The prisoners in them numbered more than 4000."

It is a relief to go from these dreadful scenes to the enchanting patio of Si Taher, a lovely place, "colored in turquoise and emerald . . . . a luminous symphony of color . . . . whose brilliance is tempted by the green shade of tree branches." There supper was served from four hooded dishes. What they contained Mme. Celarie knew before the covers were taken off. One surely held mutton with either carrots or sweet potatoes; another with mutton and sweet potatoes or carrots; a third with mutton and chick-peas, and a fourth, couscus. Apparently there is a certain sameness to Moroccan diet! Yet even at that food is a powerful weapon in the hands of a Moroccan woman. If a Moroccan husband quarrels with his wife, the mistress of things, he may not only find his meals cold or burned; but he may eat and die. The women's minds are full of superstition; desire or fear turns them to sorcery, and to perhaps the use of some fatal concoction. Usually, husbands bargain with their wives, giving them freedom to do as they will in the house, provided that they do not use magic art, or put powders in the food. But sometimes poison is used deliberately. How often it is difficult to say, since "Moroccan households have no contact with the outside world, and this is a very convenient thing for the hushing up of secrets."

WOMEN WEAR MANY GARMENTS

Moroccan women, declares the author, do not dress in filmy scarves, save in the visions of painters and romancers. For though the sun may be fierce, Morocco is a cold country and there are no fireplaces in native houses. Moreover a bizzarre custom states that a woman of rank may not wash herself. The only way a lady can keep comfortable is by wearing many garments, and making them of cloth and velvet. The heavy caftan falls to the feet, a bit stiffly, but with a certain dignity, even nobility of its own.

We hear, too, in this volume something of the husband's difficulties, of the methods used by deceitful wives, and of the way young girls occasionally go astray, despite a surveillance so strict that in high caste Moroccan houses they are rarely allowed to see any men save those of their own families. But changes are coming fast. Men, whose fathers never went outside their own city have themselves not only gone up in airplanes, but Journeyed as far as the United States, and that for pleasure, not business. Some of the women, too, especially those whose husbands have taken them abroad and given them a taste of freedom, are becoming restive under the restrictions imposed by the Koran.—"Behind Moroccan Walls," Reviewed by L. M. Field in N. Y. Times.

USES OF CHROMIUM EXTENSIVE. VARIED

"How do they keep that tower shiny?" This question, says the Graphic News Bulletin, is often heard on the streets of New York when visitors come within eyeshot of the gleaming chromium-alloy towers of the city's newest skyscrapers.

Chromium was a curiosity to metallurgists a century ago; now a single American factory plates more than 2000 articles with it. For years after chromium was discovered, science failed to utilize it. The metal needed society. When it was found to mix with other metals, it began its meteoric rise in the metal world.

"A small percentage of chromium mixed with steel, iron, brass and other metals, produces a hard, tough alloy with high heat-resistance. Chromium thwarts rust and corrosion; it resists the atack of all but two chemicals. Perhaps the most widely known feature of chromium is the mirror-like polish of chromium plate.

"Without chromium a leading American motor car factory would require a plant seven times its present size to produce the same number of cars, because tools and machine parts containing chromium withstand the stress and strain of high-speed machinery.

"The commuter has a somewhat 'chromiumized' day. When he awakes one of the first things he sees is the bedroom wallpaper, which probably was printed on a chromium-plated press, and his wife dons a dress with colored desings that were printed by a chromium-plated die. He turns a bright, chromium-plated door-knob on the bathroom door, makes a shaving lather on his face from chromium-plated faucets and shaves with a chromium-plated razor.

"His coffee may be percolated in a chromium-plated pot. The knife that cuts his morning grapefruit does not stain, because its blade contains chromium. Possibly his cereal was cooked in a brilliant chromium-plated pan, and his eggs and pancakes were fried in chromium-plated utensils.

"Available for preparation of another meal is the spotless, chromium-plated waffle-iron, toaster and tea-pot of permanent luster.

"The paper money his wife uses to purchase the day's groceries and the postage stamps that adorn his morning mail were printed from a chromium-plated engraved die.

"Watches and locomotive axles, engine driving rods and rails are treated with the magic metal.

Although chromium plate has been in wide commercial use less than 10 years, many motor car makers, we are told, now plate radiators shells, headlight shells, door handles, bumpers, hub caps and trimmings with chromium, says the Literary Digest. Under the hood are numerous chromium-alloy and plated parts. Without their strengthening qualities, the motor would be larger. Chromium may have been mixed with the steel of which the chassis was molded.

"Many tons of chromium alloy and chromium plate go into the construction of modern buildings. Chromium alloy usually is employed where its strengthening qualities are required and chromium plate where metal is exposed to atmospheric corrosion and gleaming trimmings are desired.

"No longer must the mariner gaze upon the pock-marked brass rails and fittings on his craft, for a little chromium mixed with brass resists the corrosion of salt spray.

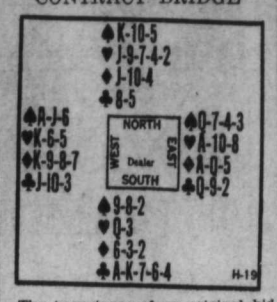
"In the paper industry, chromium plate has lengthened the life of tubes used for the evaporation of waste sulphate liquor. Heat-resisting qualities of a chormite, the mineral source of chromium, makes it valuable as a lining for open-hearth furnaces.

"Maryland led in production of chromium from 1830 to 1870 It was unseated by Turkey, which held first place until 1903. Rhodesia and New Caledonia jockeyed for first position after Turkey relinquished its place. Today, South Rhodesia is the world's greatest chromite producing region."

Auction and Contract Bridge

By the World's Leading Authority, MILTON C. WORK

CONTRACT BRIDGE



The importance of an original bid even when the hand contains nothing more than ace-king and three small cards of a suit, is illustrated by the above hand recently played at the Recreation club of Detroit. Nine tables participated in the duplicate contract game in which it was dealt; neither side was vulnerable. At seven of them south passed, west bid one no trump, north passed, east bid three no trumps and that ended the contracting.

North led his fourth best heart (the four), east played the eight, south the queen and west the king, thus marking north with the jack of hearts and making three heart tricks sure for declarer. Declarer then led a diamond, putting east in; and next a spade, finessing in the west hand. North won and in desperation led a club. South took two club tricks, but the declarer made four-odd, scoring 105 below the line, 50 above and 300 for game—a net plus of 455.

At two tables south started with a bid of one club. West, just too weak to double and with no suit to bid, passed. North, too weak to take out, passed; and east willingly permitted the declaration to be played at "a harmless club."

Of course the contract was set two tricks, but the 100-point loss was small compared with the large score that was made at the other table's by west's going game. If west or east had ventured a no trump bid after south's club bid, they would not have made game; so this hand presents a strong argument in favor of bidding with acekng and three small without any other high-card tricks.

Congratulates "Plucky And Sensible Editorial" Referring "Free Speech"

To the Editor of The Nelson Daily News:

Sir; Hearty congratulations on your plucky and sensible editorial "Inexcusable Interference with Free Speech." We differ our views on so many matters that it is a pleasure to find one great subject on which we are in cordial agreement, and I know that it took real pluck to publish that editorial which will meet with a lot of adverse criticism.

There are always well meaning people who are anxious to use a little force to maintain things as they are.

That old Jewish Sanherdin that tried to suppress the Aposties are an excellent example of such misguided zeal. How thankful we should be to that wise old statesman, Gamaliel who advised them to "leave these men alone lest haply ye be found to fight against God."

We Englishmen are proud of John Milton and his championship of free speech. We remember that John Bunyan wrote "The Pilgrims Progress" from the Bedford jail. We think of the foolish laws against the Roman Catholics, Quakers, Atheists and Jews, and we remember how utterly unavailing they were to achieve even their miserable purpose and how gradually we have won our liberties.

In this case Dr. Telford has already gained tremendous notoriety. More people are talking about him, and what he stands for, than he could ever have reached if the government had not so adroitly come to his assistance. For my own part I have listened to his broadcast speeches and read "The Challenge" with the greatest interest and sympathy so I hope that this effort to suppres him may continue, and give him and his ideas even wider publicity.

Whether we believe in socialism or not nearly all of us will agree that we want a vastly different world from the one that we have at present. Also nearly all people have come to the conclusion that the world is changing rapidly, whether we want it to or not.

Change is dreaded by very many and heartily welcomed by few. I continue an optimist, though at times it is hard to keep up my spirits. It is easier to be hopeful when one reads a good sensible article in a Conservative paper.

So once more I thank you—

Yours for justice—

Thomas Jones, manager of the Onnodaga mine, of Syracuse, N. The Onnodaga mines are the owners of six mineral claims on the divide between the Kootenay and Columbia rivers, being situated about and equal distance from Waterloo on the Columbia, and Robson on the Kootenay.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By JAMES W. BARTON

THE ERECT CARRIAGE

I have spoken before about the controversy between British and American surgeons as to the relation between the way you carry your body and certain ailments. British surgeons are of the opinion that the illness or ailments cause a poor posture or position of the body, whereas American surgeons believe that the poor posture, poor standing or sitting position of the body, causes the ailments.

Now you and I are not interested in the controversy but we are interested in trying to prevent a slouching or stooping position of the body.

With most individuals the slouching attitude is not due to illness or weakness but just to carelessness.

Nature put a mass of muscles on the front of your body which would pull you over on the front of your face if there were not a mass of muscles on the back of the body, working to pull you backward. Thus each set of muscles balances the other and keeps you erect.

How can you keep erect? Dr. Philip Lewin gives us the following 10 commandments to be followed:

1—Stand tall.
2—Sit tall.
3—Walk tall and chesty, with weight on the balls of the feet.
4—Draw in abdomen, pulling it in backward and upward.
5—Keep shoulders high and square.
6—Pull chin straight backward toward collar button.
7—Flatten hollow of back by rolling hips downward and backward.
8—Separate shoulders from the hips as far as possible.
9—Lie tall and flat.
10—Think tall.

You will see how nearly this advice follows the instructions given by a sergeant major when he has his squad at "attention." You may remember his commands; head up, chest out, chin in, abdomen drawn in, hips back, weight of body on balls of feet.

Sitting is where most of the slouching and carelessness occurs. The back should be against the back of the chair, the legs at right angles to the thighs, and the feet firmly on the floor. So try to remember that by simply following the suggestion to stand, sit and think tall, the erect carriage may be attained.

INTERNATIONAL GOLF PLAYERS READY TO PLAY

18 Holes Are on the Program for Today and Another 18 Friday

TORONTO, Ont., July 8. (By Edwin Johnson, Canadian Press sports writer)—The boys who play for the highest stakes in the realm of international golf were metaphorically champing at the bit and impatiently waiting for the rise of the barrier that will send off a select field of 154 aspirants tomorrow over beautiful Mississauga on the opening lap of the Canadian open title chase.

Eighteen holes are on the program for Thursday, and another round of 18 on Friday. But for the stretch drive on Saturday the field will be narrowed down considerably. Only those competitors who negotiate the first 36-hole route within 20 strokes of the leader will qualify to continue in the championship battle.

Judging from previous performances today, old man par is going to be given a merry ride. Jimmy Johnston, Toronto professional, provided a bit of pre-tournament fireworks by posting a smashing 68, four strokes under par.

There was some uncertainty concerning the entries of several of the recognized showmen of golf on this continent. Walter Hagen, George Von Elm, Gene Sarazen, MacDonald Smith and "Wild" Bill Melhorn had not reported, but officials of the Canadian Golf association had not been advised of their withdrawal. Their appearance, however, is expected in the morning.

Georgia Holds Sway With Stars

By AL DEMAREE

Athletes from the good old state of Georgia have carved their names high on the annals of competitive sport. Young Stribling, Bobby Jones, Ty Cobb and George Stallings have all made athletic history. Bobby Walthour and Nap Rucker, one of the greatest southpaws of history, are the other Georgians who have cut a devastating swath against competitors.

The neighboring state of Alabama has its share of sport luminaries also.

Riggs Stephenson, the slugging Chicago Cub outfielder, Heinie Manush, Washington fly chaser, and the Sewell brothers are pretty fair major league contributions.

Mississippi has its Hughey Critz of the Giants and Guy Bush of the Cubs.

BAER KNOCKED FOR A ROW BY CUPID'S WILES

Most Colorful of the Young Heavyweights Marries Mrs. Dorothy Wells

RENO, Nev., July 8.—(AP)—Never knocked out in the prize ring, California Max Baer, one of the most colorful of the younger heavyweights, was floored for the count tonight by Kid Cupid.

While a fashionable gathering looked on, the 22-year-old fighter was married to Mrs. Dorothy Wells at the home of Harry Scheeline, prominent Reno banker. The event marked the third matrimonial venture for Mrs. Wells and the first for Baer.

Judge Thomas Moran, celebrated divorce judge, performed the wedding ceremony with Mr. and Mrs. Scheeline as witnesses.

The couple will remain in Reno until Friday and then leave for Oakland, Calif., where Max said his parents are waiting to give them their blessings. Baer's father and mother at first objected to their son's marriage but tonight Max said that they had decided he "knew what was best."

Honeymoon plans have not been arranged, but will probably include either a trip to Honolulu or to Europe.

YOUNG PEOPLE PLAY SOFTBALL AT RIFLE RANGE

Blues Win Second Victory Over Reds; McHendrick, Trail, Speaks

Monday evening at the rifle range, the Baptist Young People's union played another softball game. Both teams were augmented by two new recruits, and after an exciting game the Blues scored their second consecutive win over the Reds, bringing the two teams on a par, each having won two games.

Following the game, the young people met at the church parlors, and the final plans were made for a garden party to be held this week.

Bob McKendrick of Trail then gave an interesting talk on the boys' camp at Powder point, which he was attending.

Before the end of the evening it was decided to hold further softball games in the near future.

SCHMELING WILL RISK TITLE IN CARNERA FIGHT

Next Heavyweight Fight to Be Staged on September 17; Place to Be Named

NEW YORK, July 8—Max Schmeling, king of the heavyweights, will be back in the ring September 17, risking his championship and swapping punches with another challenger, this time Primo Carnera, the man mountain from Italy.

Less than a week after he blasted the hopes of Young Bill Stribling in the Cleveland Municipal stadium ring, the dogged German agreed today through his manager, Joe Jacobs, to his second championship defense of the summer season. Schmeling, en route to Germany, will return in August to resume training.

The distance will be 15 rounds but the site for the match must remain a guessing puzzle for several weeks at least. Unless Schmeling is reinstated in New York, a remote possibility since he has so far refused to meet Jack Sharkey in a return engagement, the bout will be taken by the Madison Square Garden Corporation of Ohio to Chicago, Jersey City or Philadelphia.

TRUCK DRIVER IS FREE FROM BLAME FERNIE ACCIDENT

Sam McDonald Exhonorated; Faulty Gear Cause of the Death P. Oakley

FERNIE, B. C., July 8.—Sam McDonald, driver of the forestry car from which Percy Oakley was thrown and killed on June 26, was exhonerated from all blame at the inquest held at the Fernie court house on Monday night.

Percy Oakley was killed on the evening of June 26 when the forestry truck, driven by Sam McDonald, left the road, about a quarter of a mile east of Hosmer bridge at an easy curve in the road. Sitting beside the driver was William Morris, in the employ of the forestry department, and in the back of the truck were Vernon Uphill and Percy Oakley who had asked for a ride from Corbin to their homes in Fernie.

The truck crossed the ditch, hit a stump and rolled over, landing about 140 feet from where it left the road. All ocupants were thrown out. Vernon Uphill escaped without injury. Percy Oakley was thrown against a fence post breaking his arm and jaw and fracturing his skull which killed him instantly. Morris and McDonald suffered bad bruises and were taken to the hospital.

ASKED FOR RIDE

The evidence showed that McDonald and Morris were returning from the Flathead valley where they had been on forestry duty. Morris was coming in for a horse and intended to return immediately. At Corbin Uphill and Oakley asked them for a ride to Fernie and on their way home they stopped at Natal for a few minutes and McDonald and Morris had one glass of beer. They also stopped at Hosmer and had a glass of beer. They then drove to the home of Mr. Perry a mile west of Hosmer on business and returned to Hosmer a little after 7 p. m., to see a man, where they all had a sandwich at the hotel before starting for Fernie. All witnesses examined said there was no sign of intoxication or strong breath on any of them.

About 200 feet from the point of the accident they met Frank Galagher teaching a Mrs. Shaw to drive the car. Mr. Gallagher drew his car to the side of the road to let them pass and Mrs. Shaw stated that the car seemed to be on the center of the road when it passed them. They did not hear the accident happen and drove on. The witnesses stated that the forestry truck was going fast but none of them would say the speed was over 40 miles an hour, which was not considered excessive for that part of the road.

STEERING GEAR BROKE

The sterring gear was exhibited in the court room and showed a fresh break in one of the cogs. Mechanic Frank Naden was questioned whether pieces of metal broken loose could jam the wheel and he said they could do so. Sherwood Herchmer drew from one of the witnesses the fact that the wheel tracks were a straight continuation of the last road tangent and did not turn on the curve. Just after the accident McDonald told Ira Brown, warden, "The car started to go off the road and I tried to pull her back and she wouldn't come." Neil McCallum stated that McDonald had told him just after the accident occurred that he was going too fast to make the turn.

Great interest was taken by the public in this inquest, the court room being filled.

Coroner Robert Duthie presided. The jurymen were John Wood, foreman, Tom Duncan, Tom Allan, E. Hesketh, E. Harper, J. V. Rewers.

WINNIPEG WHEAT REMAINS STEADY

Trading Is Dull and Featureless; Cash Wheat and Coarse Grains Quiet

WINNIPEG, July 8—Wheat prices changed but little in dull and featureless trading here today. Values at the close were unchanged to ⅛ lower than Wednesday's finish.

July at 60¼ and October 62⅛ each closed unchanged while December eased a fraction at 63⅜.

The fractional dip saw commission house buying and close observers said there was more of this class of trade under the market.

Cash wheat and coarse grains were quiet with little change in price. Some barley was worked for export.

NEW YORK LIST FLOUNDERS TO IRREGULARITY

Stocks Rally After Heavy Opening But Sell Off Sharply in Afternoon

NEW YORK, July 8—(AP)—Financial markets were reactionary today.

Fully aware that the benefits of the moratorium will probably materialize slowly and that Germany's financial situation is still in a rather delicate balance, speculative quarters also gave consideration to the summer dullness in domestic trade and to declines in commodity prices.

Stocks, after a heavy opening, rallied under the guidance of the railroad issues during the morning, but sold of sharply in the afternoon. Late cavering brought the list up from the lows, reducing the average decline to a point. Coppers were the weakest group, influenced by the reappearance of eight-cent metal. Steels were sold on the argument that even if July sees the bottom the current basis of operations is unprofitable and is likely to remain so for some time. Oils had to contend with further price cutting in East Texas, but were affected only mildly.

Activity tapered off and the turnover of 2,400,000 shares was 600,000 less than yesterday. U. S. Steel flopped to 94⅞ before the decline was checked.

STEEL PRICES OFF

Closing prices on steel were 96⅛, off 2¾. American Telephone reduced a three-point loss to ⅜. Radio was heavy, down two points net, while Allied Chemical lost three. Net recessions in Westinghouse, General Electric, Woolworth, American Can, Consolidated G. S., North American, International Telephone, Texas Corporation and Bethlehem Steel, ran from a fraction to about a point.

General Motors was firm in sympathy with the June sales figures, which were better than had been indicated from earlier estimates. National Biscuit recovered from its recent weakness and joined several of the investment rails in gains of a point.

Metal issues were down one to two

The bond market receded irregularly today. Activity declined also. Sales totalled $8,274,000, the smallest total for a full session since June 8 when sales aggregated $8,206,300.

Lower prices were distributed over the list but the decline was more marked among the rails than elsewhere, probably because they were out of the most active groups. Rail issues closing with net losses of one point or more after steady selling included: Canadian Pacific debenture 4s, St. Paul 5s of 1975, Erie refunding and improvement 5s of 1975, Southern Pacific 4½s of 1968, and Southern Consolidated 5s.

CHICAGO WHEAT STRIKES SLUMP

Market Adversely Affected by Weakness of Securities and Cotton

CHICAGO, Ill., July 8.—(By John P. Boughan, Associated Press market editor)—Adversely affected by weakness of securities and cotton, grains tumbled late today, carrying wheat down to fresh low price records unequalled since 1896. The break in wheat was simultaneous with two bank suspensions in Spain and collapse of a big German concern. Another rebearish factor was a report that Russia had chartered vessel room for the export of 40,000 000 bushels of grain and that Great Britain had arranged for substantial credits to Russia.

Wheat closed nervous, ⅛ to 1⅛ cents down; corn unchanged to ⅝ off; oats unchanged to ⅛ decline, and provisions showing two cents to 15 cetns setback.

VERNON LAD AND FATHER AWARDED $3336 DAMAGES

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 8.—Following trail at the recent Vernon assizes, Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald has awarded 17-year-old Gordon St. George Baldwin $2250 damages, and has allowed a claim of his father, St. George P. Baldwin, farmer, for $1086. Defendants are John W. Bell, farmer, and William Hay, truck driver. The parties reside at Okanagan Mission.

The plaintiff youth was injured last November 4 when Bell's truck, driven by Hay, scraped the side of Baldwin's motor car, which was in charge of the boy. As a result of the accident young Baldwin has been deprived of the full use of his left arm. The accident occurred near Kelowna.

The trial judge found that the boy was one-fourth to blame for the accident and that Hay was three-fourths at fault.

The boy's damages were assessed by the judge at $3000, and those of the father, for expenses incurred through the accident, at $1448. Judgment of findings of liability works out to $2250 for the boy and $1086 for the elder Baldwin.

YOUNG HEROINE SAVES LIVES OF 20 FROM FLAMES

SEATTLE, July 8. (AP)—A freckle-faced, red-headed 5-year-old girl today was credited with saving the lives of 20 persons, including her aged, crippled grandmother and a blind uncle, when fire damaged their home and a Buddist church next door.

Missing her grandmother, Mrs. Jane Burke, 72, the child went back into the burning house and assisted the elderly woman down the steep steps. Half way down, the grandmother remembered the blind uncle, and refused to go farther until he was by her side.

Smoke was curling down the stairway as the child led the two out of the house to the street.

CANBERRA, Australia, July 8—(Canadian Press cable via Reuters)—The commonwealth house of representatives today passed the second reading of the government's finance emergency bill providing for reductions of from 20 to 25 per cent in parliamentary salaries and allowances, 20 per cent in civil service salaries and varying reductions in old age, invalid and maternity pensions. The bill also provides for the reduction of the gold bounties. Hon. E. G. Theodore, treasurer of the commonwealth, has announced the bill will affect a saving of $30,000,000.

Hundreds of vaudeville performers who a year ago were earning salaries ranging from $200 to $700 a week, are walking the streets of London penniless and with no work in sight.

HEAVY BUSSES REFUSED PERMIT ON FRASER ROAD

Minister of Public Works Says Traffic Would Spoil Tourist Business

VANCOUVER, July 8—Convinced that the use of heavy buses on Fraser River canyon is not in the best interests of tourist traffic, Hon. R. W. Bruhn, minister of public works, has revoked a temporary permit for the use of these vehicles. The transport company is now using large touring cars for the Kamloops-Vancouver bus service.

Questioned about the condition of the highway west of Abbotsford, the minister of public works said that bituminous surfacing of the road as far east as Abbotsford is under way and will be completed this season. The department is also working on the Delcair cutoff, involving an overhead railway crossing and a straightening of the route near Abbotsford. The work will be completed this summer.

Mr. Bruhn added that the department is carrying on work between Spences bridge and Ashcroft, widening the highway in dangerous places.

It is hoped that the department will be able to undertake widening operations on the road through the Fraser canyon this winter as part of the relief program. This, of course, depends on the attitude of the Dominion government. Tentative plans are in hand for widening work in a number of places where the road is not now standard width.

DIPHTHERIA IN DOUKHOBOR AREA MENACE TO CITY

Dr. Arthur in His Annual Report Says They Refuse - Obey Regulations

URGES CAMPAIGN IMMUNIZE NELSON

Whooping-cough, Chicken-pox and Flu Epidemic in the Year

That diphtheria in the Doukhobor settlements under present conditions, such as the refusal of Doukhobors to disinfect their houses, or to observe quarantine, constitutes a menace to Nelson, is declared by Dr. E. C. Arthur, city medical officer, a copy of which has been furnished to the city council. That deaths are believed to have occurred in the settlements from this cause is stated by the medical health officer, who recommends a campaign of immunization in Nelson in respect to this contagious disease, especially for the children.

In the absence as yet of a pathological laboratory here, he suggests Kootenay Lake General hospital as a site for the work, which he will undertake when supplies arrive.

His report, which is for the year ending June 30, and bears date of July 6, is as follows:

CHILDREN'S EPIDEMICS

"Total cases of communicable diseases reported during the year numbered 159.

"During the year July 1, 1930, to June 30, 1931, chicken-pox, whooping-cough and influenza reached epidemic proportions.

"Chicken-pox—Probably less than 25 per cent of cases of this disease are seen by a physician and parents frequently fail to report cases of this disease, especially where so mild as were many of our cases. Therefore it is not surprising that only 52 cases were reported out of a probable total of about 200.

Whooping-cough— Because many undoubted cases of this disease occurred which never developed the characteristic 'whoop', and because of the concurrent existance of influenza and common colds accompanied by severe and persistent cough, the diagnosis was made unusually difficult. This difficulty probably accounts for the fact that only 53 cases were reported.

"Anterior Poliomyclitis (Infantile Paralysis)—Only two cases of this disease were reported during the year. One case died, and one was left with a paralysis of one arm and shoulder, which it is hoped will ultimately completely disappear.

"Erysipelis—Seven cases of this disease were reported, but no deaths from it was reported.

"Typhoid Fever—Five cases of this disease were reported, but at least four of them were infected at points outside the city and were brought here for treatment. No deaths from this cause was reported to me.

DOUKHOBORS AND DIPHTHERIA

"Diphtheria—Only one case was reported to me in the city. This case probably was infected by a member of the family who had the disease at a distant place and came here to recuperate. A case in an infant occurred just outside the city limits. It was impossible to trace the source of infection in this case. During a considerable part of the year cases of this disease have been reported as occurring in Trail. Also, several cases are known to have occurred in Doukhobor families in the surrounding district, and some deaths are believed to have occurred from this cause. This condition constitutes a great menace to our safety, as these people do not observe quarantine or disinfect their houses after cases occur, and constantly mingle with others under conditions very suitable to the spread of the disease.

"In view of these facts a campaign of immunization of our population, especially the children, against diphtheria is urgently called for.

"If the proposed pathological laboratory were in operation this would be a comparatively simple matter.

"I have discussed this question with the matron of Kootenay Lake General hospital and if the council will arrange with the hospital board for room at the hospital and the services of a nurse, it will undertake the work as soon as a supply of toxoid can be had. This is a very urgent public health need.

"Pneumonia—Five cases of lobar pneumonia and one case of bronchial pneumonia were reported. This is probably much less than half the total number of cases that occurred.

Mumps, Septic Sore Throat, Syphilis, Tuberculosis—Only one case of each of these diseases was reported.

"Our physicians persistently neglect to report cases of tuberculosis and of venerial diseases.

DAIRY HERDS T. B. FREE

"The dairy herds from which comes the city's milk supply have recently been inspected and found free from tuberculosis. Also, the dairy premises have been re-classified with the result that, according to the new score cards, none can rank above class B. Under a previous grading all ranked as class 'A'.

"I am pleased to be able to report the installation of a pasteurizing plant by the Kootenay Valley Co-operative association. This makes the second plant operating in the city.

"During the past winter the city installed a much needed, safe and abundant water supply for the employees of the city electrical plant.

"Yearly in the calendar year the city council authorized the installation of an electrically driven Babcock milk tester. The year is more than half gone and as yet this has not been done."

Emma Cecelia Thursby, 74, noted soprano of half a century ago, who gave concerts in many parts of the world but refused an operatic career becausce of religious scruples, died Saturday in New York.

ZIONIST SENDS APOLOGY TO DR. STEPHEN WISE

BASEL, Switzerland, July 8. (AP)—Dr. Stephen S. Wise, New York Jewish leader, has received a letter from Dr. M. D. Eden, British general Zionist, apologizing for impeaching Dr. Wise's veracity during the Zionist congress.

Dr. Wise denied in an address last Friday that he had asserted the Palestine riots of 1929 would not have occurred under a Conservative government in Great Britain. Dr. Eden was quoted by the Jewish telegraph agency as calling him a "liar."

The Canadian delegation of four members was admitted to the congress yesterday with full rights and privileges in spite of the fact that the credentials committee had barred them a week ago.

Dr Chiam Wiseman's chances of being restored to the head of the Zionist movement were considered slim today on word that the Laborites, one his strongest supporters, were seeking to form a coalition administration without him.

CRANBROOK DOGS WIN PRIZES AT MOOSE JAW SHOW

Police Dog of W. J. Wass to Compete for Championship Ribbon

CRANBROOK, B. C., July 8.—Honors were awarded two of Cranbrook's pedigree dogs at the Moose Jaw show held on June 30 and July 1. Cilly Von Der Enilienhoehe, the trained Doberman Pinscher, the breed trained for official use by the German police force, imported and owned by W. J. Wass, was the winner of four points in the female entries and Toby, registered Amor Von Seigelburg and progeny of Cilly, owned by G. F. Marsh, won four points in the male class.

Ten points are necessary for a championship ribbon among the Canadian shows and Cilly, Mr. Wass animal, has been sent on to the shows of Calgary and Edmonton in an effort to gain these points. Accomplishing this, she will be sold at the high figure of $750 and will not return to the city. She is valued for her expert training and her almost uncanny intelligence in the work for which she was perfected, the Berlin force. Her awards were second best dog in the show, all breeds, best of the Dobermann Pinscher breed and winner of females and first in the open.

Honors awarded to Mr. Marsh's "Toby" were: First Canadian bred male in Doberman Pinscher class, first in the open males and winner among dogs.

SONS OF FREEDOM PROTEST AGAINST JAIL FOR FRIENDS

Inspector Cruickshank Agrees to Confer Again on Friday

A party of about 50 Doukhobors, of the Sons of Freedom body, from the Kootenay river settlements, drove to Nelson Wednesday afternoon to make representations to Inspector Forbes Cruickshank, commanding "B" division of the provincial police, against detention in jail of the Grand Forks Sons of Freedom who were arrested in connection with the census trouble there, eight being now in Oakalla jail at the coast serving terms of three months, while the last man arrested, Paul Mitin, is yet to be tried.

The inspector received the deputation, five spokesmen putting the views of the Sons of Freedom before him, while the main body lined up on the sidewalk in the shade.

It was arranged that the inspector should give the deputation its answer Friday, at Thrums.

DEPORTATION OF COMMUNISTS MAY NOT CURE UNREST

WINNIPEG, Man., July 8. (CP)—Stirred by reports from Ottawa that Communists would be deported from Canada, leaders of the party in Winnipeg today declared such deportations would not cure the present unrest. Several believed it would stir up further trouble and aid in the spread of Communistic doctrines.

W. N. Kolisnyk, former alderman, and a leader of the Communists in Winnipeg, who has been a resident here for 33 years, declared he would "welcome deportation." Many workers, he added, would also welcome deportation, especially to the Soviet Union, where there is no unemployment.

Hon. W. Major, attorney-general, denied that the assistance of the province had been sought by the federal government for a round-up of Communists and agitators.

Edward Fairhurst, prominently identified with Communistic activities, was arrested last night, charged with sedition. When he appeared in court today he was remanded for one week and released on bail of $5000.

FRASER HIGHWAY'S NEW "PAYSTREAK" IS THE TOURISTS

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 8.—Old Father Fraser river is again showing a pay streak.

Not on its smooth sand bars, not in its rushing tributaries; but on the daring highway which clings to its bluffs and races across its grinding margin is this showing of "color." In other words, tourist traffic on the Cariboo highway to date this year is from 35 to 40 per cent greater than in the corresponding period last year. This is in the face of a slight decrease in tourist traffic throughout the province generally.

Authority for this statement is Hon. R. W. Bruhn, minister of public works. Mr. Bruhn was delighted when he made a recent check-up on the canyon traffic, and is confident that the flow will continue. If it does, the Cariboo highway will establish a new season record.

FOX BREEDERS MEET IN EAST

SUMMERSIDE, P. E. I., July 8—Approximately 40 members of the Canadian Silver Fox Breeders' association, representing nine provinces of Canada, and other countries, assembled today for their annual meeting.

The directors' eleventh annual report showed that during the past year the membership reached a total of 6586, an increase of 822.

During the last inspection season 99,616 puppies were marked by inspectors and 92,823, the largest number in history, were examined. The number transferred during the year was 28,943, also a high mark. The number of pelts consigned to the marketing department numbered almost 22,000, double the number recorded the previous year.

JOBLESS DEMANDS IGNORED, COAST

VANCOUVER, B. C. July 8.—The civic finance committee this afternoon declined to listen to the demands put forward by a delegation of four from the Unemployed Workers' association, on request of Mayor Louis D. Taylor.

Alderman W. C. Atherton, chairman of the civic relief committee, said his worship was opposed to the hearing because of a bulletin issued by the Unemployed Workers' association today urging the jobless to parade against the police commission's orders. He asked that the delegation be referred to the police commission.

This was done.
