PAYS $30,000 TO KIDNAPPERS FOR DAUGHTER

Kansas City Miss Not Ill-Treated While Kept by Abductors

FIRST DEMAND WAS FOR SUM OF $60,000

Gunmen Forced Her to Leave Bath and Accompany Them

KANSAS CITY, May 28. (AP).—Miss Mary McElroy, 25, was ransomed from the hands of kidnappers today by her father, H. F. McElroy, city manager of Kansas City, Mo.

She was abducted by two men at 11 a.m., yesterday from the fashionable McElroy home in the Country club district.

McElroy and his son, Henry F. McElroy, Jr., 23, made contact with the kidnappers this afternoon on a lonely road in Wyandotte county, Kansas, across the state line; they handed over a package containing $30,000 in bills, on the promise that Miss McElroy would be freed within two hours. The girl appeared at the Milburn Golf club about 4 p.m.

She was unharmed but appeared exhausted. She said her abductors released her from a car at the gate entering the club grounds.

Miss McElroy related tonight that the kidnappers were courtesy itself. She was held in a basement room of the "kidnap-house." She had an electric fan, music and a clean bed on which she said she slept well throughout the night.

The girl said that while she was held the abductors illustrated for her edification the workings of a machine gun.

One of them gave her roses while the other provided a detective story magazine to read.

Ransom of $60,000 had been demanded at first. News of the kidnapping was withheld until the girl's safety was assured. The kidnappers had threatened to kill her if police or newspapers were notified.

The newspapers learned of the abduction shortly after it occurred but published nothing until she was safe.

Two unmasked gunmen forced Miss McElroy to leave her bath yesterday, dress and accompany them in a large sedan. They entered the house by brushing boldly past a maid. They passed as cosmetic salesmen.

The kidnappers established contact with the McElroy home by letters and telephone. The letters, signed by the abducted girl, were delivered at the McElroy home.

Farmers Kept From Homes When Ferry Runs Wild

HUDSON BAY JUNCTION, Sask., May 28 (CP)—Unfinished seeding in the Etomami settlement, across the river from here, may never be finished.

Several farmers of the district came in town early Saturday to make weekend purchases and now they can't get home again with their horses.

The government ferry, across the Red Deer river, three miles south of here, broke away from its moorings on Saturday and drifted several hundred feet down stream. The ferry is waterlogged and it is expected that a new one will have to be built, a job that will take two or three weeks. The river is the highest it has been for years.

SAAR ORDINANCES TO GIVE PEOPLE FREEDOM OF OPINION AND FAITH

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SAARBRUCK, The Saar, May 28 (CP cable).—Concerned over growing acts of violence, the League of Nations governing commission of The Saar, is issuing a new series of ordinances. They are frankly based, although less extensive in scope, on these decrees with which the Bruening government sought to enforce order in the Germany which finally fell to Hitler.

The aim of the new Saar ordinances, it is officially intimated, is to preserve to the people of The Saar, their right to freedom of opinion and particularly their right to freedom of faith. Here, it is understood, the application is especially to Jews, who fleeing from Germany, have sought asylum in The Saar.

The first ordinance empowers the governing commission to prohibit certain meetings and processions; to forbid wearing the uniforms of political associations.

It authorizes dissolution of certain associations. It requires newspapers to publish certain government statements without charge. It authorizes the closing of premises considered dangerous to public order.

A further section of the same ordinance guarantees the free exercise of religious rights and a free vote in the plebiscite.

Two other ordinances authorize the governing commission to replace any municipal police officer who fails to carry out the ordinances and to dismiss instantly any police officer found guilty of grave offence.

These new ordinances are a sequel to previous decrees dissolving Nazi organizations in The Saar. Examination of documents had shown, President Knox of The Saar commission reported to the League council, that Nazi storm troops and defence troop formations were organized in The Saar on definitely military lines.

The documents showed, Mr. Knox reported, members of these associations were carrying on activities of a military character such as day and night marches, field drill, sometimes in connection with motor services.

Nazi organizations, troop formations in particular, were therefor dissolved.

But acts of violence showed no diminution. Court records show that from April 1 to May 3 this year, proceedings had to be taken against 258 persons. They included 112 for grave injuries, 38 for use of and carrying prohibited arms, 15 for acts of violence. These 258 were part from any such cases which did not reach the courts of justice.

German attitude towards The Saar was bruntly summed up by Gustav Stresemann in one of his last speeches at the League. "We regard The Saar," Streseman said, "As an integral part of Germany."

Profits of several millions of dollars in these transactions were reported by the Morgan firm.

Whatever these profits may have amounted to, they were in addition to more than the $18,000,000 in profits disclosed yesterday for the five-year period as arising from the flotation of securities.

STAR RAYS OPEN ILLUMINATION ON BUILDINGS AT THE CHICAGO FAIR

CHICAGO, May 28 (AP).—Success was stamped today on the efforts of science to reach out 240 trillion miles into the universe to inaugurate a century of progress illumination. The rare feat was accomplished Saturday night to conclude the gala opening day ceremonies for the world's fair—ceremonies an estimated 250,000 witnessed.

Favorable weather conditions at three to four astronomical observatories which trained telescopes on the star, Arcturus, permitted successful accomplishment of the unique plan to touch off the fair lighting effects with star glow.

Dr. Edwin B. Frost, director emeritus of Yerkes observatory, who conceived the idea and acted as master of ceremonies for the cosmic phenomenon, said the experiment was successful and that from the distant heavens came the rays to throw the fair ground into a blaze of modernistic man-made lights. It took 40 years for Arcturan light that arrived Saturday night to reach its destination here.

Precisely at 9:15 p.m. (CDT) Arcturan light filtered through the three unobscured telescopes, was ensnared by photo-electric cells, amplified and relayed to Chicago and made to turn on a master switch which flashed the fair into its first night of glory.

As the current supplied by the far-off star turned the master switch, a huge searchlight made a circuit of the main exhibition halls like a magic wand, playing on photo-electric cells. Each building thus was lighted.

OTTAWA HOUSE PROROGUED IN FAST FINISH

Contentious Redistribution Bill Passes in Late Afternoon

MEMBERS SHOUT AND SING AT CLOSING

No Mention of Conference in Speech From the Throne

OTTAWA, May 28 (CP)—With prospects of another session in the fall, members of parliament today were homeward bound after a session lasting nearly seven and a half months had closed.

With a whirlwind finish, parliament passed the contentious redistribution bill late Saturday afternoon and was prorogued in the evening by the governor-general.

Liberals maintained to the end their opposition to the bill remapping the 245 federal constituencies but were outvoted by the government forces 45 to 15. Several last minute changes were made by the administration, including one to the riding of Prince Albert, represented in the house by Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberals. Opinions differed on the probable outcome of the next election in Prince Albert, the general opinion being it would be fair fighting ground for both parties.

NO FUSS AT CLOSE

Prorogation ceremonies were without the fuss and feathers of a formal opening. The governor-general arrived on Parliament hill with motorcycle policemen substituting for the usual cavalry escort. The red-walled senate chamber presented a strange contrast between the brilliant uniforms of the military aides who surrounded the governor-general, the gold-braided Windsor uniforms in Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and Senate Leader Arthur Meighen and the senators and members in business suits of greys, blacks and browns and a few women in afternoon dresses who had seats on the floor of the senate. The galleries were not crowded.

The speech from the throne was

Four women were arrested but released after questioning.

Brookhart of Iowa, named by administration agriculture leaders to develop foreign trade for American farm products, tonight had disclosed that he was seeking new trade arrangements with Soviet Russia and that "already very important moves have been made."

Appointment of the former Iowa senator was announced Saturday by George N. Peek, chief administrator of the new Farm Relief act. He said Brookhart's work as a special advisor would be concentrated on developing the possibilities of trade with eastern European countries.

Brookhart asserted that "if we had the arrangements last year," the United States could have sold 2,000,000 bales of cotton in Soviet Russia." He said mills there were running far below capacity.

U.S. Treasury Is Behind Gold Idea

Would Do Away With Clause Making Bonds Redeemable in Gold

WASHINGTON, May 28. (AP). — The powerful weight of the treasury department was thrown behind the Roosevelt proposal to do away with the gold clause in public and private contracts of the United States.

As Democratic leaders planned to have the measure brought up in the house, they received word from Dean Acheson, under-secretary of the treasury, that enactment was imperative in view of the department's plan for a huge financial operation probably in June.

The resolution, approved speedily Saturday by the senate and house banking committees, was described by administration officials as clearing away all doubt as to whether any form of legal currency or coin may satisfy holders of government or private gold bonds.

About $,200,000,000 of the government's $23,000,000,000 of indebtedness is to be refinanced. In view of the gold situation, the government does not desire to include in the new bonds, the clause that they will be redeemable in gold.

Senator Glass, Virginia Democrat, reiterated today his belief that the administration move was "rank repudiation" and was "unconstitutional". He plans to fight it on the senate floor.

Passengers and the Crew Spent Night in Heavy Fog

FOUR INJURED, ONE QUITE SERIOUSLY

Lighthouse Keeper Does Wonderful Rescue Work

HOUGHTON, Mich., May 28 (AP) —One hundred and eighteen persons, victims of the first Great Lakes disaster of the season, returned to shore this afternoon after a night spent in the cold fog of barren Rock of Ages reef in Lake Superior following the grounding and wrecking of the passenger steamer George M. Cox late Saturday.

The coastguard cutter Crawford, which had put out early today, brought to Houghton all but six of the 124 persons aboard the George M. Cox, which crashed while en route to Port Arthur, Ont., from Chicago to pick up 250 Canadian residents and take them to the Century of Progress exhibition at the latter city.

Three injured crew members and George M. Cox of New Orleans, one of the owners, and a nurse were taken to Port Arthur, by the freighter M. B. Tremaine, which with coast guard craft, responded to distress calls last night.

The 32 passengers lost all their personal effects.

Capt. George Johnson of Traverse City, Mich., veteran Great Lakes shipmaster, who commanded the steamer, said today:

"We hit a reef while going at a speed of 17 knots. The impact was severe, causing a large hole to be torn in her side. It listed to 20 degrees and the ship's stern submerged in about four minutes, I should judge."

Three men and a woman were injured, one of them seriously, in the wreck which occurred at 5:15 p.m., Saturday, while the passengers were at dinner.

Plowing through a heavy fog, the steamer struck an extended ledge of rock a short distance from Rock of Ages lighthouse with such force that her engines and boilers were ripped loose. The impact threw pas-

NO MILITARISM IN RELIEF CAMPS

Bruhn Denies Story of Camps Coming From Interior

VANCOUVER, May 28.—Contrary to rumors which have been circulated in the interior, there will be no military discipline of any kind in single men's relief camps of B. C., which are being placed under jurisdiction of the federal department of national defense.

Expressing the desire to nail such gossip, Hon. R. W. Bruhn, minister of public works, made this fact plain in the course of a statement Saturday.

"Life in the camps will be exactly the same as it is today, declared the minister.

"The only reason the department of national defense is taking over the camps is that it is the only federal organization in existence which is in a position to do so without setting up a new administrative system.

"The staff in charge of camps will be retained so long as they do their work efficiently.

"The men in charge of camps will all be civilians."

Attorney Ralph B. Potts, who with Edgar C. Hamilton, defended the father and son, said tonight that a conference with Prosecutor Robert M. Burgunder would be sought tomorrow.

"We believe the elder Walters deserves leniency because of his advanced years," Potts said.

GRANT HALL SEES DISTINCT REVIVAL

WINNIPEG, Man., May 28.—"It is true that industry and commerce have not made any substantial advance from depression levels, but there has been a distinct revival of hope and restoration of confidence, which, in some lines, is reflecting itself in increased activity."

This was the statement of Grant Hall, senior vice-president of the Canadian Pacific railway, on his arrival here today after a three weeks' inspection trip which took him to the Pacific coast. Mr. Hall was accompanied from Winnipeg by D. C. Coleman, vice-president western lines.

CORBETT GRANTED A GOODLY MARGIN ON M'LARNIN TONIGHT

Southpaw Versus Right-hander Is the Line-Up

LOS ANGELES, May 8 (CP) — James Archibald McLarnin of Vancouver, whom "the Angel city" summarily dismissed as just another fighter after a campaign here eight years ago, returns tomorrow night against young Corbett 3rd, bent on correcting the error.

A baby-faced youngster of 17 was Jimmy then, battling as a flyweight. Now at 26, he has challenged the right of the Fresno, Calif., southpaw to the world's welterweight title.

The bout is scheduled for 10 rounds with Corbett in his first defence of the championship favored by a goodly margin to turn back the threat of the Irish youth from Canada' Pacific coast.

Superior strength and weight coupled with his unorthodox fighting stance, favor Corbett. But McLarnin, with his impressive list of knockouts his clever foot work and dazzling speed seems to question the logic of the odds against him.

Corbett won the title three months ago when he defeated Jackie Fields at San Francisco. Prior to that time he had defeated young Jack Thompson and Fields in non-title bouts. In his 141 fights, Corbett has lost decisions only twice.

While Jimmy started fighting a year ealier than Corbett he has had only 71 bouts winning 18 by knockouts. But decision in his favor over the best in the game are impressively numerous.

George Blake, nationally prominent manager of Fidel LaBarba, former world's flyweight champion, will referee the main event, which is due to start at 9:30 p. m. (P.S.T.)

The fighters will weigh in at three p. m., Monday, with McLarnin expected to tip the scales at 145 pounds or less. Corbett expects to have no difficulty making the 147-pound limit.

A crowd of 25,000 are expected to see this bout of a Canadian with a right hand as rugged as the Rocky mountains which tower over his home province, and a champion with a killing left.

DECKS AWASH

Keepers of the Rock of Ages light said they saw the spars of the steamer above the low-hanging fog and made frantic but futile efforts to attract the vessel's attention with the siren. A few moments after the vessel struck she had broken open and filled with water until her top decks were awash.

Only the fact that the lake was calm enabled the keepers of the light and the crew of the steamer to transfer everyone to small boats and rafts and avoid loss of life.

The injured, accompanied by Adeline Keeling, 23, staff nurse on the steamer, were put aboard the Tremaine along with Mr. Cox, president of the Isle Royale Transit company, owners of the wrecked steamer.

The remainder of the passengers and crew spent most of the night on the Rock of Ages reef, a desolate promontory jutting out into Lake Superior from the western tip of Isle Royale. The rescued took turns going into the tiny lighthouse for warmth, only a few being able to get in at a time.

The injured, who are in Port Arthur hospital:

Beatrice Cote, stewardess, Manistee, Mich., injured spine.

John Gancarz, Freesoil, Mich., deckhand, legs, one hand and shoulder hurt.

Alex. Mack, Portland, Me., deckhand, severely burned about the legs and forearms. Hot grease spattered on him in the kitchen.

George Williams, who suffered a lacerated scalp, returned to Houghton.

There was no panic aboard the steamer after the crash. The crew lowered five boats on the port side. These craft, with boats and rafts sent out from the lighthouse, took off all passengers and crew. The rafts were towed ashore by the lighthouse power boat. The rescues were completed in 45 minutes.

Several persons were cut and bruised. After the ship's first aid supplies gave out, women tore pieces from their clothing to be used as bandages.

Coastguard craft from Grand Marais, Minn., and Portage Entry, Mich., stood by the wrecked steamer until late tonight.

They left the 307-foot steel vessel broken open on the reef, her prow in the air and listing about 70 degrees, most of the ship was under water.

The George M. Cox, formerly the steamer Puritan, had been known in Great Lakes ports for 30 years. The vessel recently had been refitted and was valued at $200,000.

a resume of the important legislation passed at the session but, contrary to expectations, it made no mention of the world economic conference at which the prime minister will represent Canada and which may be the cause of a fall session of the parliament.

It was the only Saturday sitting of the session and was devoted to a day-long debate of the redistribution bill. With less than five minutes debate, the schedules for British Columbia, Alberta, Manitoba, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and the Yukon Territory were passed.

After two and a half hours of debate, the Quebec schedules were passed and, later in the day, those for Saskatchewan. One change was made in Quebec, a portion of the Montreal riding of St. Mary was transferred to St. James, and in Saskatchewan, the name of the riding of Redberry was changed to North Battleford.

LAPOINTE ATTACKS BILL

"I will carry this fight the length and breadth of the province of Quebec," threatened Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Liberal chieftain from that province, in a final attack on the bill. It had been contended all through the debate by the Liberals the bill was a gerrymander, an attempt by the Conservatives to win the next election by unfair means. On the other hand, government supporters termed it a fair and reasonable redistribution of seats, actuated by the best interests of the country, not political interests.

The vote was the smallest of the session due to the large number of members having already left for their homes, only one Progressive voted, Robert Gardiner, leader of the group, and he cast his vote with the Liberals against the measure.

For the last hour of the sitting, members on both sides of the house were impatient for the vote. And during the vote itself, the stately house of commons resembled a schoolroom just before summer holidays. Paper was thrown high in the air, order papers torn to ribbons, the members sang and joked and last-minute good-byes were said. And the house closed with French-Canadians singing "La Marseillaise," drowning out the voice of Speaker Black who was intoning the usual adjournment notice.

TRAIL PASTOR GIVES REPORT

Rev. Mr. Wallace Speaks Upon United Church Conference

TRAIL, B.C. May 28.—Sunday morning, Rev. Bryce Wallace, pastor, Knox United church, gave a very interesting talk on the summary and highlights of the ninth annual United church conference, held in Vancouver, May 17 to 23.

He stated it was one of the best attended and interesting of all conferences held by the church thus far. About 400 delegates were in attendance, and from the opening day until a week later, there were few dull moments. The conference were preceded by a meeting of the Laymans association, where matters vitally affecting the work of the lay members of the church were taken up. A number of outstanding speakers gave addresses at this layman's meeting, including two of the professors of economics from the university. At a similar group meeting held by the ministers before the opening of conference, a number of the Vancouver clergy, who have been attending meetings of the Oxford Group, told of their reactions and experiences of the movement which has been causing such a stir in religious circles.

The new president elected was Rev. A. D. Archibald, who has been secretary of conference for some six years. A message from the retiring president, Rev. G. O. Fallis, was one of hope and encouragement.

Conference was honored by a visit from Dr. James Endicott, a former moderator of the church, and also Rev. D. K. Beaton, one of the secretaries for home missions. Both of these speakers presented the claims of their work, at later sessions. Dr. Endicott, dealing specially with the foreign mission work and the general policy of the church.

The statistical report revealed the fact that although financially the church in common with other institutions was suffering at this time, yet there had been a great deal of advance on every line. The total membership as of December 31, 1932, was 34,171, an increase of 412, over the previous year. Exactly 1500 persons had joined the church by profession of faith during the year, while 1408 had come into membership by certificate from other churches. The church raised from all purposes the sum of $782,214, of which about $112,000 was spent in definite mission work, and in benevolences. The church in the province holds in property about three and three-quarter million dollars, an increase or $163,430 over last year.

There are 32,566 pupils attending the Sunday schools of the church, and almost 5000 young people from 18 to 24 attending their special groups. The advance of the C.G.I.T. work is most remarkable, almost 4000 girls being enrolled within the United church; an increase of 31 groups during the year.

Home missions in British Columbia held the attention of the delegates. Interesting stories were told of the work among the fishermen and lonely settlers on the coast and inland waters, and how the church was giving medical service, educational and evangelistic teaching with her five boats, five hospitals, her Indian and oriental pastors, and teachers within the province. It was shown that the United church was doing two-thirds of all the religious work being done among the Indians of British Columbia and in one Indian institution, giving educational facilities up to matriculation. A splendid account of what First Church, Vancouver is doing for the needy and the out of work was presented by Rev. A. Roddan.

The most contentious part of conference, said Mr. Wallace, was in the report of the evangelism and social service presented by himself. Some sections of this report, came in for keen debate, especially that dealing with the proposal to form a "League for Christian Social Action"—which had a very definite policy for meeting the present distressing situation. While the part dealing with methods of evangelism was endorsed by conference, there was a great unwillingness to launch out into what seemed to be an adventure into the political field. A number of the more radical members were unwilling to present pious resolutions to the conference, and held that the time was opportune to step out into a new field, with such a platform, to present to all aspirants to political office. After several days of debate, it was decided not to endorse such a league officially, but to encourage the formation of groups to study an endorsation of conference, Rev. H. A. Allan of Terrace being president.

Reports from the colleges were presented. Both Columbian and Union colleges presenting good statements for the year. Union college, the United Church Theological college, reported more students in attendance than at any former time, two graduates were presented for ordination. Incidentally three members of the faculty of the college have arranged to give one week's special course to ministers, their wives, and any interested, during the summer at Koolaree camp.

The most crowded session of conference was the closing evening, when some 1500 young people, as well as the delegates, held a young people's night. Pictures showing vacation school work in the far north were put on the screen, and a magnificent address by Dr. Endicott brought to an end a memorable evening. His message was a vindication of "victorious youth," ending with a plea for greater daring for the cause of Christ today.

It was a great conference, said Mr. Wallace. Summer skies, with a touch of Vancouver weather, greeted the delegates. Fine arrangements had been made by church people of Vancouver. There was a touch of sadness in two events. One, when four veteran ministers signified their intention to retire, the other in the closing of old Wesley church during conference. This church for many years was a landmark in church history in British Columbia, held its last services on Sunday, May 21. But these events were overshadowed by the opening of the new St. Andrews-Wesley church, a dignified, and beautiful structure, one of the most imposing in the city, under the ministry of Dr. Brewing.

At the evening service the subject was "I Am the Way," when the pastor spoke on the challenge of Jesus to this generation. Internationally, and religiously, the claims of Jesus were being questioned today. Thus far along the path of human life, no greater leader had appeared to guide the path of mankind, than Jesus Christ. He did not narrow, but rather widened the viewpoint of man. The best of the thinkers of today were pointing to His way of living as the only possible way out. His way was not some church dogma, nor yet an ecclesiastical theory, but was a revelation of the God-given plan and purpose for persons lives. It was a message which touched the finest things in human life, and issued in the noblest type of human action. Because of man's disdain of God's revelation in Christ, the present chaotic situation was imperilling. "Only as we returned to the simple way of Jesus—the way of love and brotherhood, could the world be won back to sanity," said Mr. Wallace.

SALMO NINE TAKE OPENER

Beat Fairview 8-4 in Fast Game on Salmo Field; Snappy Fielding

Salmo won the first game of the Nelson-Salmo baseball league by handing the Fairview Athletic club an 8-4 defeat in a fast game played on the Salmo diamond Sunday afternoon.

Fairview crossed the plate three times in the first inning, and maintained a 3-0 lead at the end of the second inning. From then on the Salmo team tightened up, and by snappy fielding prevented the visitors from scoring any more except for one run in the fifth inning. Salmo scored twice in the third, once in the fourth, three times in the fifth, twice in the sixth and once in the eighth.

Steve Smith local southpaw pitched the first six innings for the Fairview team and struck out 14 Salmo batters but had a tendency to wildness that got him into several bad holes. Harold Chapman relieved him in the last two innings, and struck out two. In the seventh Chapman retired the side, one, two, three.

Frank Postlewaite making his first appearance on the diamond this season starred at bat, and had a three bagger and a two base hit to his credit. He also starred in the field. Bill Vance also made his initial appearance and played a bang-up game although having had no practice. George Fawcett hit one of Gill's pitches for a three-bagger. Alex Ioanin cut off many Salmo threats by snappy fielding. Fred Gill fanned eight Fairview men, and held his opponents to six hits. Gill also starred at bat, and slammed two of Smith's offerings for two-baggers.

Payant and Bradley starred for the Salmo club but all the team played snappy ball to hold the Fairview team after the first inning. Fred Lindstrom appeared in a new role as umpire and made a good job of it. Bert Walton was base umpire.

ROULEAU WINS

While the foregoing events were under way the trap shooting contest was going on between Garland and Glegerich stores on Front street. There were not as many contestants as is usual, the limit was 25 birds in a 10 and 15 bird shoot, F. S. Rouleau was high with 17, O. E. Desmond with 15, H. Abey with 14 and C. J. White with 13. The other contestants trailing along with much lower scores. At 1:30 the baseball game between the Senators of Nelson and the local nine, drew a good crowd, and though the score, 16 to 1 in favor of the Senators, was a very one-sided one, the game proved very interesting, showing splendid team work on the Nelson nine, with excellent material shaping up for a real team in Kaslo.

The footbal team from Arrow Park arrived in town about noon, and appeared on the grid promptly on time. The game was most interesting and the crowd of spectators stayed until the last minute enjoying the excellent work done by both the visiting and local elevens and getting a real thrill from the good sportsmanship shown by both teams.

The lineup follows:

ARROW PARK PLAYS WELL

The score was 8 to 1 in favor of Kaslo, but might very easily have been reversed, as the Arrow Park team played a fine game, but just didn't get any of the good breaks. S. J. Mayzes was the official referee. After the game the local footballers tendered the visiting eleven, a supper given in the I.O.O.F. hall.

After the foregoing events had been satisfactorily pulled off, two races which drew the crowd from Vimy park to Front street were the finishing sports events, these were a 100 yard dash for men with W. Gillett of Nelson coming first followed closely by Tommy Allen of Kaslo a close second, the second was 220 yards, with Gillett winning again and T. Allen of Kaslo and Ty Culley of Nelson tying for second place.

In the evening the local branch of the Canadian legion sponsored a dance in the drill hall which was attended by about 250, S. J. Mayzes, A. Carney and Fred McGibbon producing excellent dance music. At midnight refreshments were served the dance continuing until an early hour. The committee in charge of the affair was composed of T. H. Horner H. Abey, William Whitaker, A. Seamark and E .C. Cottonwood Egg Collection Over

200,000 Mountain Trout Eggs; Six-Mile Cold

Collection of eggs of mountain trout for fish culture purposes, at the collecting station on Cottonwood lake, was completed Friday, when Assistant Superintendent P. B. Stratton estimated the total placed in the troughs of the Dominion fish hatchery at Nelson as 200,000.

Ralph Hale was on duty at Cottonwood lake during the collecting period of several weks, and Nelson Jackson was Mr. Straton's assistant in bringing in the eggs every second day.

Although the fish trap at Six-Mile lakes has been in place for some weeks, with A. G. Bush on duty there, the spawning has not yet begun there, owing to the colder water—the snow not yet having gone—and the consequently later season.

It is understood that the spawning fish of Cottonwood lake were prevailingly thin, apparently from the lake being over-stocked for the quantity of feed in it. It is stated, however, that absence of fat in the parent fish increases the vitality of the eggs. The Cottonwood collection is of about the usual dimensions.

Among the coins of Roman Britain, archaeologists have found some so small that 50 can be arranged inside a circle the size of an English penny.

TO CALL SECOND RIFLE MEETING

TRAIL, B.C., May 28—On very short notice a meeting was called Friday for the Trail-Tadanac Civilian Rifle association at the Memorial hall, but only two persons turned up. Purpose of the meeting was to decide whether the association would carry on this year. Another meeting will be called for Friday, June 2, when it is hoped members will attend.

Persia spent nearly $4,000,000 in railway construction in the past year.

FERTILIZER TESTS IN B.C. SHOW PROFITS FOR FARMERS

Wardner Potato Grower Adds Great Sum to Profits

CRESTON GROWER DOUBLES OUTPUT

Must Study Soil Conditions; Tonnage Cost Is Less

VICTORIA, May 28— Fertilizers, properly utilized, undoubtedly make profits for farmers. Paul Black, formerly of the field crops branch of the British Columbia department of agriculture makes the assertion, and is in a position to prove it.

Last year was completed a three-year program of research work into the matter of fertilizers in British Columbia, which work was supervised and the results tabulated by Mr. Black.

The results are convincing, some of them amazingly so. Take the actual experience of Ed Anderson, at Wardner, with potatoes. In 1930 when the tests began the use of fertilizers added from $14 to $75 per acre to his profits. In 1931 the results from fertilizers ran from $22 to $89 per acre profit with spuds, and last year the fertilizer showed returns in the form of profit per acre ranging from $12 to $56 per ton. These figures are actual results based on yields of marketable potatoes only with potatoes at $15 per ton.

60 FARMERS MAKE TESTS

Prior to the three-year tests referred to tests with commercial fertilizers had been carried on by the department of agriculture on a comparatively small scale and in a more or less haphazard manner. Under Mr. Black trials were conducted on a comprehensive scale with the cooperation of 60 odd farmers.

Tests were conducted with the following fertilizers: triple superphosphate, ammonium phosphate, both 10-48 and 16-20; sulphate of ammonia (chiefly on orchards); sulphate and muriate of potash, and various formulae of complete fertilizers.

To ascertain the most profitable quantities of fertilizer to apply per acre on various soils and crops the three-year program of field trials was commenced on alfalfa, grain and pastures at the rates of 100, 200 and 300 pounds per acre. On other crops, including vegetables, root crops, small fruits, orchards etc., at the rates of 200, 300 and 400 pounds per acre. On many soils disappointing results were secured from the 400 pounds per acre of both triple superphosphate and ammonia phosphate. In several cases a certain toxic effect on the soil resulted in actually diminished yields and for that reason the 400 pounds per acre rate of application of fertilizer was discontinued except were justified by results attained.

It has been found to be more advantageous to apply the fertilizer with a regular fertilizer drill than to broadcast. The tests showed most conclusively that most B. C. soils are deficient in phosphates and in some parts of the interior, the Fraser Valley and Vancouver deficient in potash, especially on peat lands. A great many soils, particularly in the lower mainland and Vancouver Island, need liming.

At Royal Oak ammonia phosphate drilled in with seed oats at the rate of eighty pounds to the acre resulted in an addition of from five to seven bushels per acre to the yield—a good paying proposition Ten per cent phosphate and 48 per cent potash was the fertilizer used.

PROFITABLE TO MOST CROPS

Fertilizer proved profitable on most crops. A light application of phosphate gave fally good results on hops at Sardis—hops are again a paying proposition after years in the doldrums of prohibition. Fertilizer added materially to profits on potatoes and tomatoes, both important B. C. crops. Ensilage corn, onions and canning peas well repaid. The Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co., Fernie, assisted materially in the tests, and it is notable that fertilizer costs are down at present from former levels. One commonly used fertilizer sold at $26 per ton in Okanagan last season which a year or two ago was quoted around $70.

For the best results the farmer must have a practical knowledge of his soil conditions, and then apply the proper fertilizer at the right time in correct quantities. Most complaints of poor results from the use of fertilizers are due to wrong application. Fertilizers must have moisture or humus to become available to the crops, but, says Paul Black, who surely knows, "For every dollar spent in fertilizers intelligently the grower gets a return of at least $3."

The detailed results of Mr. Black's work has not been published, but is available through the B. C. Department of Agriculture of the District Agriculturists, who co-operated in the tests.

Paul Black himself made farming pay before he was prevailed upon to undertake these tests. In many cases an application of phosphates alone has given good results, but in most instances crops have been most responsive to phosphates combined with nitrates.

POTASH LACKIN

On coast soils and on soils in many parts of central B. C., there is a deficiency of potash. In the irrigated sections of the interior, notably in the Grand Forks section however, potash does not give definite results except in the case of potatoes. Potatoes are peculiarly responsive to an application of complete fertilizer containing a relatively high percentage of potash. Potash has also given a very definite response in crop increase when applied to the peat soils of the Province.

To quote actual results from fertilizing, just as examples: Cannery peas grown on Barston Island by H. Nesbitt showed a profit over fertilising cost of from $52 to $84 per acre. Tomatoes grown at Oliver last season showed additional profits up to $144 per acre as the result of fertilizer, an application of 300 pounds per acre of complete fertilizer giving the best return.

Last year a Creston orchard of Macs shipped double its previous season's output under the fertilizer test.

MAY QUEEN IS CROWNED AT FORKS

Pretty Ceremony Marks Annual Sunshine Valley Event

GRAND FORKS, B. C., May 28.—The eighth May queen of Sunshine Valley was crowned on Monday. The weather was ideal and the beautiful lawns of the local public school made a fitting setting for the coronation and also the May pole and folk dances which followed. The reigning queen, Jean Glanville and her escort George Tonks, her maids of honor, Joan Pearson and Doris Mallocks, also page bearers, flower girls were conveyed to the school in a beautifully decorated float. Queen-elect Gerda Slater with her escort, Aulay Miller, the maids of honor, Norah Chapman and Eileen Markell, flower girls, and page bearers, were brought to the school in another float. The Grand Forks Cubs preceded the parade to the school.

After the crowning of the new queen children of all ages took part in the May-pole dance, flower drills, etc., while the local citizens band and Mrs. Ommaney's orchestra also provided entertainment. All arrangements were under the capable supervision of Miss Alice Spragett.

In the evening a delightful entertainment was held in the Bouchron block. A procession of former May queens gowned in beautiful pastel shades and each carrying a sheaf of flowers, made a beautiful sight. After several dances and drills given by the school children, Queen Gerda presented the medals and cups to the athletes who were successful in the track meet. A. F. Crowe acted as master of ceremonies and Mayor T. A. Love spoke a few words of congratulations to the successful athletes and expressed his appreciation of all those who had contributed to the success of the meet and the May day festivities.

Mr. Crowe on behalf of the Amateur Athletic association presented the queen of the May with a pen and pencil set.

Trail Bowlers to Arrange for Prizes

TRAIL, B.C. May 28—At a meeting of the Trail City Bowling club tonight in the Memorial hall, a special committee consisting of W. Rigby, C. Lauriente, E. Provost, F. Morrish, D. Dallas and Joe Vannatter, was appointed to look into the matter of arranging for prizes to be awarded to winners of the City Bowling league and for the games to be played between Nelson and Trail. Preparations for a banquet at which the prizes shall be awarded was also put in their charge.

Date of the banquet cannot be arranged until the local club hears from the Nelson teams as to what day they can visit Trail.

Sixteen prizes will be awarded in all at the banquet, besides the Nelson Daily New cup which goes to the winning city.

Individual prizes will be awarded to each member of the Progress Studio team, winners of the recent spring session of the league, and also to the Kootenay Hotel team which won the first session of the league last fall, there being two prizes for the 1932-33 games. Prizes will be also presented to individuals who have the high averages and high singles in each case. For the Nelson-Trail games additional prizes will be given for the high aggregate and high single.

As the Trail Bowling club has not had a constitution in the past P. R. MacDonald, chairman of the club, presented a constitution based largely on Canadian bowling rules, which was accepted by the club, subject to any amendment that might be submitted at a general meeting at the beginning of next season's league.

AN AGE OF LOQUACITY

The present time will go down in history as an age f loquacity, says the Victoria Colonist. Whether that a good thing or a bad thing, only history can decide. ertain it is that there was never so much talk, and erhaps never so much futile wastage of words, in can-assing the pros and cons of practically every issue that rises or of any fad that is seized upon by humanity and ransformed into a custom, if only an ephemeral char-cter. This is the day of societies, organizations, clubs, onventions, conferences, debates, sermons, addresses, nd scores of other ways in which men and women fore-ather to air their views. So much time is occupied in l these vents for verbiage that there is so much the ss time available for work.

What men and women are discussing is doubtless f interest, but it is another question if all the discus-on is leading anywhere. If it is, so much the better the world is benefitting. If there are no results, so uch the worse, for there is a lot of time wasted. Here e some of the subjects which are being canvassed in any countries: That lotteries should be made legal; at the League of Nations does not justify its existence, that it does, as the case may be; that the external af-irs of a nation are of more importance than the inter-l; that prophetic visions are of more value than tra-ition; that competition is the force that produces pro-ress; should education be a mental training or a prep-ration for special pusuits?; is it beneficial to be ortho-ox?; is disarmament possible?; does a philosophic out-ook make for happiness?; what is the better policy in usiness—courage or safety first?; that self is the dom-ant motive of modern society; that education in elemen-ry schools should be cultural rather than vocational; hat economic nationalism, as shown in the growth of ariff barriers, provides no solution to world difficul-es; that there is no solution to the problem of poverty; hat utilitarianism is the only rational basis of conduct; hat we can have no faith in youthful idealism; that leasure is life's greatest purpose; an International rmy—is it possible or desirable; that mankind is not t to control nature; that a general assurance against d age is detrimental to enterprise; that religious views re the outcome of temperament; that the development f the imagination is essential to success; that public pinion is a sufficient safeguard against success; that aughter is the salvation of mankind; should wives have ages?; is Russia a menace to the progress of civiliza-on; can and should the development of civilization be ndependent of religion?; has Puritanism been a good nfluence?

These few examples might be multiplied a hundred old and still not exhaust the subjects that are being dis-ussed far and wide. That they should be discussed o the extent they are is perhaps a tribute to the spread f education, but the discussion raises the question mark, s well, as to the manner in which education has enabled hose who benefit from it to reach conclusions. On prac-ically every subject that arises the world is divided into wo camps. That is the case in the parish church as well as in the international arena. There is an immense ascade of words flowing down the stream of time. They re jostling each other in endless confusion. There is rrevelant blather everywhere. It is largely bemusing nd futile. The strength of a people as well as that of n individual is more often found in silence than in oquacity.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

CHILDREN ARE TALLER AND HEAVIER THAN PARENTS AND GRANDPARENTS

Notwithstanding all you have heard ut the mighty men of the past, r great height, their width, and r weight, it has been found that men of today are taller and vier than those of the past years. a great amount of this increase come within the past 75 to 100 s.

an old preparatory school in nto, Canada, a school where dfathers, fathers, and grandsons attended, it was found that the that was long enough for the dfather and also for the father not long enough for the grand- and it became necessary to buy beds.

Harvard university and at East-women's colleges it has become arent that the members of the nt generations are on the average r and weigh more than did r parents and grandparents who ed these same institutions in ious years.

rdon Townsend Bowles who has investigating the records at above institutions is convinced some of the causes for the eased stature in the student p are as follows:

) Increased medical attention in erving those children who have own their strength until they have become mature and acquired a normal state of resistance to disease.

(2) Better food, in more abundance and in greater variety.

(3) More exercise.

(4) Thoughts about health and physique on the part of the parents before entering into the married state.

(5) More varieties of occupations for parents.

I believe the first three causes mentioned above—more knowledge of health on part of parents, better food, and more exercise—are worth the serious consideration of all parents and teachers. In these days when the facts of health are available for use by everybody, it becomes the duty of every thinking individual to use these facts for the benefit of themselves and their children.

It is certainly inspiring to the young generation to know that physically at least they are better men and women than their parents and grandparents.

But the big point is that it is because their grandparents and parents have been using these basic laws of health that the grandchildren are taller and heavier than they were.

It is therefore the duty of the grandchildren—the children of today—to remember why they are benefitting so much.

"Between You and Me"

Last year, so the fishery returns tell us, the people of Great Britain bought and ate 730,000 hundredweights of rock-salmon. Now this is funny, because there is no such fish. Salmon there are of many varieties, but no "rock" salmon. The fact is, of course, that cat-fish coal-fish, pollock, etc.—fish which the housewife won't buy under their true names—are camouflaged as rock-salmon.

Trade terms are odd, and many of them calculated to leave the layman guessing. A woman in search of a fur coat is shown one made of "coast-seal." Nothing but rabbit in disguise. Or she may be offered "skunk-wallaby." If she knows anything of natural history she will be aware that there is no such animal.

"Adelaide chinchilla" provides another puzzle, if she knows that the chinchilla is a creature peculiar to South America and unknown in Australia.

A man sends his clothes to be "dry-cleaned." It is true that there is such a process as dry-cleaning, but the usual method employed by the cleaner is to put the garments into a spirit bath which is certainly not "dry" cleaning.

There was a case reported in the press of a customer buying a necklet made of gems set in platinum. But the platinum proved to have nothing whatever to do with the metal of that name. It was gold alloyed with nickel. This was of a fine white color responded to acid tests, and it appears that this alloy is sometimes sold as platinum.

Industry has a language of its own—in fact, you might say that each trade needs a special dictionary. If, in a boot shop, you were offered a pair of "shin plasters," you might not easily guess that this was a trade term for gaiters or leggings. "Gummers" are india-rubber boots, while laces are called "bishops," a term the origin of which is difficult to discover.

Many of us are aware that a "puddler" has something to do in an iron foundry, but would be puzzled to know what work a "nobbler" does, or what is a "dragger-down" or a "bumper-up." The blast furnace also has its "pig lifters," whose pigs are, however, of iron, not pork.

A "bargain letter" is an official in a quarry where men are employed on piece-work, his duty being to let out the work to the various men employed. A "backer" may have nothing to do with a race-track, but be a man employed in a printing works where he "backs" books.

The London county council employs "flappers," sturdy fellows who handle the flaps of the great sewers and so arrange for an even flow of water in times of heavy rain.

A "trouncer" is a man who helps his mate in an ice van, while a "commons-hanger" is an artist in wall-papering.

One day he met Mrs. Martin and they stopped to talk.

"Do you know, Mr. Wilson, my husband is 40 today," she told him. "You wouldn't believe it, but there is actually 10 years' difference in our ages."

Wilson smiled.

"Impossible," he exclaimed. "I'm sure you look quite as young as he does."

Here's what a business man has to say about the present time of stress and economy:

"I like the depression. Three years ago I was so busy and my wife so busy, that we didn't see much of each other; consequently we sort of lost interest in each other. I never went home to lunch. About twice a week I went home to dinner at 6:30 o'clock. I never had time to go anywhere with her. If I did go on a party, I could never locate her. My wife belonged to all the clubs in town. She even joined the young mother's club. We didn't have any children, but she was studying—and between playing bridge and going to clubs she was never at home. We got stuck up and highfalutin'. Now I haven't been out on a party in 18 months, I have lost my book of telephone numbers. My wife has dropped all the clubs. I believe we are falling in love all over again. I like the depression."

The Fairview Camp

"Canada needs gold and the men of the country need employment," remarked Stephen Mangott, veteran prospector, as he signed his name to an agreement turning over his interest in the Morning Star mine to R. L. Clothier, of Penticton. The signing of this agreement means that "Roaring Fairview," mecca of the gold seekers in the early nineties may once again come into its own. Signing of the agreement on the Morning Star property is hailed as being of the highest importance to the Oliver district and the South Okanagan. Residents there are elated at the prospect of the re-opening of the big gold property after an idleness of thirty years.

The Morning Star mine is situated four miles west of the town of Oliver and is reached by a good motor road, a considerable change from the days of Fairview camp's former glory.

It has long been claimed by those conversant with the history of the camp that the Morning Star produced approximately fifty thousand dollars worth of gold, during the nineties, from surface operations alone and that a large body of gold ore had been partially developed underground. A main shaft was sunk to a depth of three hundred and fifty feet, and drifting on the vein was done on the one hundred and two hundred-foot levels.

Last winter Mr. Clothier unwatered the mine to the first level and thoroughly sampled the ore body exposed in the old workings. The development done in that level consists of a drift two hundred and twenty feet in length, all of which is in ore and a cross-cut at the northerly end of the drift, which shows the ore body to be thirty-four feet in width from wall to wall. This evidently compares very favorably with some of the biggest mines of the Dominion. When asked regarding values, Mr. Clothier said he did not care to comment particularly in this respect beyond saying that the per ton values revealed through systematic sampling and assaying were eminently satisfactory and would produce an excellent profit on operation.

Coupling this statement with information derived from old records, it is considered that the ore values leave nothing to be desired. Records show net gold recoveries to have been from eleven to fifteen dollars per ton. The ore was treated in what would be considered, today, a crude milling plant, from which, beyond doubt, the losses were high and it can only be concluded that the gross values per ton must have been of high standard to produce the results already mentioned. The operations in the "nineties" were carried on by Mr. Mangott and Mr. Dan McEarchern, then partners and owners.

In later years, a one-half interest in the mine was taken over by the late Senator L. W. Shatford and W. T. Shatford, well-known and successful pioneers of the Okanagan Valley, the other half interest remaining with the two original owners. Last autumn Mr. Clothier obtained an agreement covering three-quarters interest in the property and the event of the past week makes possible the re-opening of one of B. C.'s oldest gold camps.

It is generally understood that most of the other claims in the Fairview gulch have been taken up by various individuals and a number of large companies have interested themselves in the district.

One cannot say at this time whether the Fairview camp will actually be revived, but all indications point to considerable development, assuming that capital in the hands of the right type of men can be put at work.

Fairview can hardly be described as a poor man's camp. But it offers excellent opportunity for the operations of a large company in control of the bulk of the claims. The Guggenheim (Federal) interests must have had this in mind at one time, for they held the Stemwinder and other adjacent properties for many years. In fact they probably still have them for all we know.

The Granby people have been studying the field, and it has also been said that Britannia, Premier and Hecla interests have all cast an enquiring eye at Fairview within the past few months.

Fairview is by no means the ordinary wild cat proposition. It has real merit, we believe, and if properly and carefully handled will bring several hundred men working in mine and mill before many months have passed.

The importance of gold mining and milling operations about thirty miles of good road from Penticton is not to be overlooked. Fairview is even more important still to the nearby town of Oliver.

The subject of gold development in this district brings up also the fact that the Mercer interests, which have certain working arrangements at Nickle Plate near Hedley are still prosecuting their search for new and more extensive leads. They have not yet got just what they want, according to Hedley report, although little or nothing leaks out from Nickle Plate itself. However, there seems to be a good deal of confidence that they will find what they are evidently looking for, before the summer is over. Revival at Nickle Plate will mean revival at Hedley, and as both places are connected with Penticton by highway, Nickle Plate being less than thirty miles distant, we should receive some local benefit in due time.

Our cup of mining satisfaction would be full if these two propositions worked into big things, if Camp McKinney also came back and the placer workings on Rock Creek met all expectations.

Perhaps also we should not forget the extremely valuable field of Beaverdell, recently encouraged very considerably by the fillip given to silver prices.—Penticton Herald.

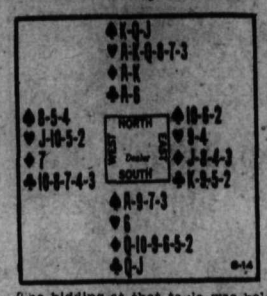
Auction and Contract Bridge

By the World's Leading Authority, MILTON C. WORK

A CLEVELAND COUP

On the following hand Messrs. Phil E. Leon, North, and Alexander Printz, South, obtained the top score in a Cleveland duplicate.



The bidding at that table was bold but the brilliant play seemed to justify it. North and South were using the Two-Club Game-Demand bid and the auction went as follows:

South	West	North	East
P	P.	2 C	P
2 D	P	2 H	P
3 D	P	4 D	P
6 D	P	7 D	P
P	P

South's first Diamond answer denied an Ace and King, or two Aces, but his other Diamond bids were strength showers. North's first Diamond raise was made because South without the Ace and King of Diamonds must have at least five, probably six, Diamonds with some side strength.

The play was even more interesting than the bidding. West led a small Club and Declarer played the Ace feeling sure that the King of Clubs was in the East hand. West would not have been apt to lead from a King suit against a Grand Slam; and Declarer expected to discard his losing Club on a Heart. The Ace and King of Diamonds were led and when West refused the play became more difficult. East had the Jack of Diamonds Guarded, South had four Diamonds to the Queen-Ten; therefore a double Grand Coup was necessary and Declarer made it as follows:

Trick 4 the Ace of Hearts from North, trick 5 a small Heart ruffed by South. North was put in with a Spade and the King of Hearts led on which East, refusing to bite, discarded a Spade. South ruffed, reducing his trumps to the number held by East. A second Spade was led; if East could ruff, he would take that trick and also the King of Clubs. However, the risk had to be taken and when East followed all was well. North led a good Heart and South sat, much as a crouching cat at a mouse-hole, waiting for East to ruff. If East ruffed, South would over-ruff, draw the remaining trump, put North in with a third Spade and discard his losing Club on North's good Heart. If East declined to ruff, the Club would be discarded immediately and another Heart would be led. Consequently the Declarer fulfilled his ambitious contract.

"When I'm tellin' my troubles, it makes me mad for somebody to horn in an' spoil it by tellin' about somebody that's worse off."

"SHARLIE"

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XC

"Why don't you stay with us all night? You can sleep with Gertrude and let your mother know where you are first thing in the morning," he suggested: "Your grandmother isn't expecting you, is she?"

"No. I should have let her know that I was coming tonight. But I didn't. I thought surely she'd be here," Sharlie answered. "Jim, my bag's on the back porch. I left it here tonight. You go and get it."

Jim got it, walking through the darkness like a tiger or a footpad. Then they drove back to Halstead Street. Jim scarcely spoke until they got there. Sharlie looked at him once or twice. His face was set and hard, as if he was thinking hard unpleasant thoughts.

"I'm going to leave my car in the lot behind the building tonight," he said. "You want to drive around there with me, and go up the back way? Gertrude and Guy were listening to the radio When I left. They'll let us in."

Sharlie saw that there was a light in her mother's kitchen when she reached the second-floor porch.

"I'm going to peek in at the window," she whispered to Jim, "and see who's there. She and Maud were having a little card party."

Her mother and Maud were in the kitchen with two men. Dodie had a white apron tied on over her best pink evening dress and she was making toasted cheese sandwiches. Sharlie could smell the browning cheese from her place in the darkness outside the window.

One of the men was helping her. He was extremely tall and excessively blond.

He was dressed in white flannels and Sharlie decided that he was the best looking man she had ever seen. Compared to him the man of the dance hall had no attraction whatsoever.

"But what's he doing with Dodie?" she wondered.

It made her angry and resentful to see the four people in the kitchen—Dodie and Maud Hanaberry and those two men. For an instant she thought wildly of stepping into the kitchen and telling the men to go—and ordering Maud out with them.

Sharlie lay awake for hours in Gertrude's bed, angry and sick to her very soul. . . . To think of her mother putting her out of the flat so she could have Maud Hanaberry and those two men there for the evening! And to think of her doing it the very first night that her own husband and Maud's husband were out of town!

"It's cheating—that's what it is!" thought Sharlie as she stared into the darkness. "It isn't fair to Dad!"

He was the one who was paying for the party, she went on thinking. His money had bought Dodie's pink evening dress and slippers. It had paid for the very sandwiches that Sharlie had seen Dodie toasting in the oven!

The walls of the apartment house were not very thick. And every now and then a muffled burst of laughter came from the Dunns flat. Once someone bumped against the wall.

At 2 o'clock Sharlie heard the clock in the Barnum's living-room strike, and a few minutes afterward there was a sound of laughter and loud voices from the landing outside.

"Goodnight, Norman!—Goodnight, Jody!"

"Goodnight!—Goodnight, girls!"

Then more loud goodnights.

Moving very slowly and stealthily, Sharlie got out of bed and tiptoed into the living room. From the Barnum's front windows she saw the two men cross the street and climb into a big cream-colored roadster that stood against the curb. They started it with a roar and streaked away down the street.

Early morning in the Barnum household was a time of pleasant hurry and bustle.

At 8 oclock Sharlie woke up to the sound of water running into the tub in the bathroom next door to Gertrude's room.

The green blinds of the room were drawn and only a thin line of sunlight showed beneath them. In the half-light she could see Gertrude's little clock on the dresser.

"Oh, its early—for Sunday morning," she thought and went back to sleep.

The next time she woke up it was nine. Mrs. Barnum, flushed and smiling above her print housedress, was standing in the doorway.

"Jim's gone out for a drive, and you girls can come to the table in your bathrobes if you like," she said to me. "Breakfast's all ready."

There was a bowl of nasturtiums on the table in the cool dining room. There was iced cantaloupe to eat and poached eggs on toast and the best coffee that Sharlie had ever drunk.

"Well, Sharlie, I hope your mother's little party went off nicely last night," Mrs. Barnum said, in her innocence, when they were seated at the table. "I heard them all having such a good time when I went to bed."

At half-past nine Sharlie unlocked the door of her mother's flat. There wasn't a sound to be heard in it. The rooms were as silent as an enchanted palace.

The air in them was "so thick that you could cut it with a knife." Sharlie murmured to herself, standing in the middle of the living room.

There were at least a dozen tall, empty glasses standing on the big table between the windows. Every ash tray in the room was filled with cigarette stubs and there was a thin, gray film of ash everywhere.

Four of the sofa cushions lay on the floor. In the middle of the rug were a pair of dice and a big platter with two or three dried-up sandwiches on it.

And over all this was the odor of stale orange juice and alcohol. It hung in the air like poisonous gas of some kind.

"Ugh!" said Sharlie aloud, and threw open all three of the windows, letting in the clear sunlight and a riot a summer morning.

She went out to the little hallway that led to the bedrooms. The doors of her mother's room and her own room stood open.

Her mother lay sleeping like a child, her long lashes etched upon her cheeks and one hand tucked under her cheek.

Some women show their age in their sleep and Maud was one of that kind. From where she stood Sharlie could see the deep lines that ran from Maud's nostrils to the corners of her painted mouth. The cold cream that she had smeared on over her make-up only served to bring out all the shadows and sagging places in her face.

As Sharlie looked at her she opened her eyes. Then she sat bolt upright in her bed. "Great Galusha! How you startled me, standing there like an owl, Sharlie Dunn!"

She reached out for the jewelled wrist watch that lay beside her on the bedside table. She looked at it sheepishly, rubbing the back of her neck with one hand.

"Oh, it's early," she sighed, and sank back upon her pillows.

"Be a nice child and make your Aunt Maud some coffee," she said after a little pause.

On her way out to the kitchen Sharlie saw that the receiver of the telephone was hanging by its cord. As she bent over to pick it up Maud called to her:

"Don't touch the telephone, Sharlie. Your mother and I don't want to be bothered by it all morning . . . It would be just like the men to call up from Bowdie."

Bowdie was the little town where Sharlie's father and Carl Hanaberry were to get their mail and their groceries during their vacation.

"All right," snapped Sharlie.

"I wish she'd get her own coffee," she said bitterly to herself as she began to fill the percolator in the kitchen.

There were three or four burned pieces of toast and cheese on the open door of the oven. She was scraping them off with a knife when the door bell rang shrilly through the flat.

"That's probably a telegram for me, Sharlie!" she heard her mother call as she hurried to answer the door. "Bring it to me!"

But it was not a telegram.

When she opened the door, Grandmother Dunn was coming up the stairs from the vestibule.

She was dressed for church and she had her prayer book in her gloved hands.

FRED WARREN WISES-UP HIS FRIENDS ABOUT DOROTHY DIX

She Is Not a He; Trail Man Has Distinguished Friends Aboard

To the editor:

Sir—I forgot to number this letter, before mailing my last to you, at Penang, so if the number does not jibe, you will understand it.

Tuesday, March 21, we are on our way for Singapore, the sea is quite calm and a number of the little flying fish are in evidence, the first I have seen this trip. It was quite noisy on the ship last night, as quite a number were down to see friends off and I thought that they would never get through saying goodbye.

I got my first letter since leaving Victoria today from my good friend W. A. Coghlin, M.D. When he told me of the skating, curling, snow and cold of Trail, I wished he had put a little of it in the envelope for me to enjoy while it was so hot down here, for we are pretty near the equator, and when we reach Singapore it will be our closest to that much abused spot on the map of the world.

I wonder how your readers would like to hear a little of the great people we have on board the Hayes, besides myself. First there are Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Gilmer of New Orleans. Mr. Gilmer is a cousin of "Dorothy Dix" who writes for the Vancouver Sun and many other papers. Some people in Trail have told me that Dorothy is a man, but she is not. Her maiden name was Elizabeth Merryweather, and she married George Gilmer when she was about 20. A few years ago her husband died, and she is now living in New Orleans and well and happy. She and a party of friends are leaving in June for England and the continent. I believe that her work is now syndicated to the Curtis Publishing company.

Then we have Mr. and Mrs. Waldeman Young of Hollywood, Calif. I believe that Mr. Young brought out the picture "The Sign of the Cross" which is proving quite a success. They are taking this trip, after a long postponement, for some four years ago Mr. Young had made all his arrangements even to paying for tickets, when he took appendicitis, and was rushed to the hospital for an operation. This is his first chance since. They are going to Marseilles, and expect to spend most of their holiday in France with friends. Mr. Young is due back in Hollywood August 1. He is a very nice, quiet, sociable style of man, and I quite enjoy talking to both him and his good wife.

At Manilla Miss Maria Nam joined the Hayes. She was, or is, the secretary of Governor Roosevelt, who has just given up the governorship of the Phillipines. While speaking of our passengers, I might state that Dr. H. L. Miller of Grand Rapids, who is one of them, and I was agreeably surprised to find that he knows Mrs. Seymour Wilson, nee Miss Lorna Anderson, who is a daughter of J. D. Anderson of Trail, quite well, in fact, he is her dentist in Grand Rapids, and is away on a trip "around the world." One more case of the world being small.

Saturday, March 25, arrived at Singapore early in the morning, and I soon made arrangements for driving around the city. This was not hard to do, for a great many Englishmen who have been in the rubber raising business are now using their cars for driving tourists about, and trying to make a little money, as the rubber business is very dead. Too much produced, hence no market, and very low prices, and things in rubber are pretty much at a stand-still all over the Straits settlements. A great many acres are being neglected, and a few have already been chopped down. I was given to understand that a few of the natives are able to produce rubber at a profit, and the Dollar line stays at Singapore three days and a half, so as to permit these small planters to get their rubber to Singapore on barges, and thereby save dock charges by loading it directly on the ship. Whether this is true or a legend I can't say, but I heard a well posted man make this statement as a reason for the Hayes staying so long at this city.

We took on board a great many tons of tin, which is one of the, if not the, principal exports of the Straits settlements.

DEER HARMFUL AT LONGBEACH

LONGBEACH, B. C., May 28 — Graigend Gardens, the residence of Commander and Mrs. B. A. Smith have been looking lovely with their profusion of tulips and other spring flowers.

The Rock garden also is particularly attractive. Many visitors have recently taken the opportunity of visiting them. The season which is now almost over has been an extremely good one and Commander and Mrs. Smith have shipped 1742 dozen blooms.

Everyone in this district is very much worried this spring by the depredations of the deer. These so-called pretty creatures invade the ranches and gardens by night and eat the young growth from trees and plants.

Healthy young trees have all the green bitten off them. Strawberries are grazed off level with the ground.

Tender garden plants are either taken or trampled underfoot, and one early potato patch looks like a bear garden. Many ways have been tried to keep them away, Napthaline flakes supplied by the Game Department are useless, and it is feared that considerable loss will be incurred unless some steps are taken by the authorities to dispose of them.

I.O.D.E. HEARS ESTHER STORY

Attend Church at Trinity; Guides and Brownies There

Two discourses, one suited to those of tender years, and the other to those of ripe judgment and present accomplishment, were delivered by Rev. W. C. Mawhinney Sunday morning, when Kokanee chapter, I.O.D.E., accompanied by the I.O.D.E. Girl Guide company and Brownie pack, attended service at Trinity United church, ranked under the folds of the Union Jack.

In his discourse to the young folk, which came at an earlier stage than the sermon, Mr. Mawhinney gave his young hearers a message based on the five letters of the word prize.

MESSAGE FROM PRIZE

"P" he said stood for "purpose," which would mean something not only for the organization, but for one's life. "R" stood for "resolution," for one could not go far in life without resolution, which was to one's life what steam was to an engine. "I" stood for "industry," for industrious girls and boys, women and men, who applied themselves to their tasks, their lessons, or to helpfulness. "Z" stood for "zeal," which meant putting all one had into whatever one was doing. "E" Mr. Mawhinney said, stood for "expectation," one who had done everything faithfully and to the best of one's ability having the right to expect the prize.

Recalling the story of the Duke of Wellington when, as the boy Arthur Wellesley, he determined to climb a tall tree near his bedroom window, and, undaunted by falls, made it on the third attempt, the preacher told his young hearers that with perseverance they could turn failure into success, and mount the ladder, rung by rung, till they reached to top. He advised them to climb well and climb high.

ESTHER'S NOBILITY

From the words of Esther, the beautiful Jewish exile who was to become the consort of a heathen monarch, "If I perish, I perish," the pastor preached to the Imperial Order of Daughters of the Empire." Though the name of God was not mentioned in the book of Esther, and though the only worship mentioned was fasting, Mr. Mawhinney declared the story of Esther carried a noble and inspiring lesson to all Christian womanhood. Her life, he stated, was one of the greatest examples of fearless heroism and of worth while service recorded in the world's annals. Her sacrificial spirit, he asserted, was an inspiration to the women of all ages.

There was no domain like duty, no soverignty like service, and no loyalty like character, he told the members of Kokanee chapter. Esther might have accepted a queenship of oriental idleness, but she chose to make her position serve an infinitely important duty.

OPPORTUNITY TODAY

Coming to today, Mr. Mawhinney spoke of the greatly enlarged sphere of women's work, both for community and for home service, while everywhere doors for service were opening. He asked his hearers to think of life as a keyboard on which might be played a noble harmony—a Christian character.

Nowhere did he perceive women rising more to their opportunities for service than in the Dominion, or than in "your great patriotic oganization," which struck the chords of sacrifice and of achievement.

Commending to his hearers the motto of the British royal family, "I serve," the preacher said there were as many noble women today proportionately as in the days of Miriam and of Deborah, and he stated the opportunity that was open to the Christian woman of today could not be measured.

Denounce Necromancy in Science Church

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in the Christian Science church on Sunday was "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hynotism, Denounced."

One of the Bible texts was Mark 3: 11: "And unclean spirits, when they saw him, fell down before him, and cried, saying, Thou art the Son of God."

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from page 469 of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Mind is God. The exterminator of error is the great truth that God, good, is the only Mind, and that the suppositions opposite of infinite Mind—called devil or evil—is not Mind, is not Truth, but error, without intelligence or reality."

HIGHER QUALITY —that's CURLEW

To make just "Ice Cream" is not a triumph, because the natural ingredients of ice cream assure its tasting all right whenever, and wherever made.

But to make CURLEW ICE CREAM, as Curlew Creamery makes it, IS a triumph. The fine blending of the pure, perfectly toned cream from near-by Kootenay farms; its velvety texture; its delicious blending of flavors; and the choice varieties Curlew Creamery has contrived, are a few of the reasons why CURLEW ICE CREAM is the most popular refreshment with Nelson and Kootenay people.

When ordering Ice Cream say, "CURLEW"—50 per cent higher in butterfat than required by the government, it is richer, purer, and has an unparalleled flavor. It is best for adults and children, and they like it better.

CHICAGO WHEAT PRICE UP 4

CHICAGO, May 28 (AP)—Excited buying on a big scale shot wheat prices 4 cents skyward Saturday as a result of presidential proposals to change the United States gold standard law.

Despite immense selling to realize profits, most of the wheat rise was held when the day ended. By far the majority of traders construed the proposed altering of the gold standard act as outright inflation.

Aided by reports that European importing countries had grabbed all available offerings of wheat from this side of the Atlantic, wheat closed buoyant 2¼ to 3 cents above Friday's finish, with corn 1 to 1⅝ up, oats ½ to ⅝ advanced, and provisions showing a jump of 15 to 27 cents.

Instantaneous action the moment business began brought about the maximum flight of 4 cents in the wheat market. A tremendous rush of buying orders overwhelmed the speculative pit. Biggest upturn in prices was in contracts for December delivery of wheat, which rose to almost 80 cents, outdoing the season's high record, and sweeping the market up approximately 33 to 35 cents a bushel, compared with five months back.

STOCK TURNOVER PROVES RECORD

Million Shares Change Hands in Two Hours

TORONTO, May 28 (CP)—Mining stocks were given another whirl up in an exciting two-hour session yesterday, all groups taking their cue from the new inflation spurt in Wall street. More than a million shares turned over, a record for several years for a two-hour market, and at the close gains extending up to 1.50 were registered.

Sharp advances at the opening induced traders to take profits and the heavy selling at the end of the first hour gave the price structure a wobbly appearance from which it did not fully recover though the market was firming rapidly at the close.

Lake Shore advanced to $42.65 and closed at $41.32 for a gain of $1. McIntyre reached a top of $33.25 and closed 50 cents lower at $32.75, up $1. Dome held its entire gain, closing 1.50 higher at $32.50, Pioneer advanced 70 to $12.70, Wright Hargreaves 10 to $6.60 and Teck lost 5 cents to $16.25.

Reno Gold featured the cheaper gold shares with an advance of 50 cents to 2.20 while advances of 1 to 5 cents were chalked up for others.

Base metals were strong, led by Nickel and Noranda, the former closing 50 cents higher at 16.60 and Noranda 65 higher at 31.25. Hudson Bay gained 50 to 3.75, Coast Copper 25 to 3.95 and Fend Oreille 15 to 1.24.

U. S. A. Dollar Drops on Montreal Market

MONTREAL, May 28. (CP).—As a result of the United States government's resolution to cancel the gold clause in existing contracts and make public and private obligations payable in legal tender money, the United States dollar declined one per cent on Montreal foreign exchanges Saturday.

United States funds dipped sharply at the opening to 13¼ per cent premium but recovered to 14½ near the close. At the end of the session funds were quoted at 13½ per cent premium, off one per cent.

The pound sterling was buoyant throughout the day. It closed slightly under its high of the day, the last quotations being $4.50⅞, a gain of 2⅜ cents. The French franc rose .06 of a cent at 5.29 cents.

BUYERS ACTIVE AT NEW YORK

Share Sales Almost Record; Staples Active

NEW YORK, May 28 (AP)—Stocks and commodities looked through inflation sights Saturday and blazed away with a fresh supply of buying ammunition.

Shares had a boisterous market, finishing fractions to more than 10 points up after the second heaviest Saturday volume on record. Sales of 4,311,340 shares have been exceeded only in a weekend session by the volume of 4,867,500 shares traded on May 3, 1930. Wheat's gains topped 2 cents a bushel and cotton, rising to the best level since last August, was up around $1 a bale. Silver, rubber, sugar, copper and most other staples felt the midday touch.

Markets, placed a bullish interpretation on the United States government's move to cancel gold clauses in public and private debt contracts, although since Friday's close they had learned, contrary to first reports, that the new bill does not repeal the gold standard act of 1900. However, they still had in mind the newly-started credit expansion program of the federal reserve system, including a rediscount rate cut, as well as administration for lifting commodity price levels, and were distinctly in a mood to do some anticipating.

Buying of shares was particularly vigorous in the industrial section where many sharp gains occurred. Gold mining issues shone brilliantly, as did most other metals. Utilities again hung behind the parade, doubtless because of current rate discussions. Rails liked last week's loadings figures, while a number of specialties were among the market's leaders.

Freight car loadings were again above last year's line, the increase being 3.1 per cent. There was, however, only a nominal gain over the previous week; favorable comparison with 1932 reflected largely the shrinkage in traffic that was occurring at this time last year.

WHEAT PRICES GAIN 2 CENTS

Buying Bursts Send Prices Climbing at Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, May 28. (CP).—Swept upward on another wave of "inflation" buying, that three weeks ago sent commodity values mounting to new season's high marks, wheat futures soared more than two cents higher on the short Saturday session of the Winnipeg grain market.

Advances of nearly three cents were scored at one time, the customary influx of profit-taking traders nicking fractions off the extreme gains. But values still clung tenaciously to 2¼ cents of the upturns at the finish, the May future at 65, July 65⅝, October 67½ and December 68½ cents.

Held in check by two weeks of lethargic and easing markets, rampant "bulls" seized their opportunity Saturday following the announcement from Washington the United States would go off the gold standard by statute. Bursts of buying sent prices climbing. Previous "short" sellers were forced to cover their commitments, accelerating the upturn.

Though not a factor in the bullish enthusiasm, approximately 500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat were booked for overseas shipments.

Cash grains, however, did not reflect acitvity in futures. Demand for most grades was light and offerings were sparing. Spreads generally were unchanged. Coarse grains mounted with wheat, flax again featuring that market.

18 ISSUES HIT NEW HIGH MARK

Nickel Advance 90 Cents; Profit-Taking at Toronto

TORONTO, May 28 (CP)—The magic in the word "inflation" churned the Toronto stock market on Saturday. Volume was the heaviest of the year for the two hour session. Eighteen stocks reached new high prices for the year before profit-taking took a considerable toll but a final rally put them back up close to the best level for the day.

Stocks closely allied with basic commodities reaped the main benefit from the inflationary move. Nickel returned to the spot light with a turnover of 10,000 shares and an advance of 90 cents to 16.90 and Smelters gained 1 to 109½.

Walkers common took the lead in volume with a trade of 16,000 shares. It advanced 1½ to a new top for the year at 18¼ and the preferred picked up ⅛ to 14⅞.

Ford of Canada was strong in the interlisteds, advancing ⅜ to 10½, Brazilian improved ⅛ to 13¼ and C.P.R. ⅝ to 15¾. All bank stocks closed 1 to 7 points higher and agricultural implement stocks reflected the advance in wheat by adding fractions to Friday's closing figures. Food and heavy industrials worked higher with the general trend.

BUTTER PRICES JUMP ONE CENT

MONTREAL, May 28 (CP)—Wholesale butter prices advanced a full cent a pound on the Montreal dairy and produce market last week. The general quotation at the close of the week's trading was 18¼ to 18½ cents a pound, for No. 1 regraded as against 17 to 17½ cents a pound the previous week. Offerings were substantially heavier at 12,192 boxes. Receipts the previous week were 10,850 boxes.

STERLING JUMPS OVER FIVE CENTS

NEW YORK, May 28. (CP).—The pound sterling jumped up more than five cents in active trading on the New York foreign exchange market Saturday. Strength in currencies followed decision of the United States government to nullify the gold clause contract in United States government and private securities.

The Canadian dollar advanced a major fraction, closing at 88 cents for a net gain of ⅝ of a cent. The pound reached its top for the day at $3.98¼ soon after the opening and at the close eased to $3.97¼ where it was up ⅛ cents from Friday's final quotation.

SECONDARY BOND ISSUES ADVANCE

NEW YORK, May 28. (AP).—Sharp advances in secondary issues was the feature of an active bond market Saturday and gains of 1 to 6 or more points were scattered over a wide front. The average for 60 domestic corporate loans gained half a point and reached another new high for the year at 75.7, or close to the peak of last September.

Some United States government securities eased a trifle, but others were fractionally higher. The highest grade corporation maturities were also not unduly enthusiastic, but losses were usually small.

Heaviest commitments of the day were made in rail liens.

BRINGING UP FATHER: By Geo. McManus

UMP'S HOURS MADE TO ORDER

George Hildebrand's record of umpiring over 3,100 straight ball games in the American league, rather dwarfs Everett Scott's and Lou Gehrig's continuous performances as players.

Certain umpires possess "color" just as do certain players. Ray Van Graffian, "Beans" Reardon and Bill Klem have plenty of it.

Tim Hurst, Silk O'Laughlin, Billy Evans and Hank O'Day were dripping with it and never umpired a drab and listless game.

While the umpires do not get the publicity and salary of the star athletes, as the inimitable late Tim Hurst put it—"You can't beat the hours of our job—three to five o'clock!"

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY
May 29, 1928—Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig each hit two home runs bringing Ruth's total to eighteen and Gehrig's to ten.

I'm afraid the ball has a little less "rabbit" in it now than it had in the good old days of homers and prosperity.

Fun a-Fishin'

The following sport feature on fishing, while not including all fish caught in the Kootenay, but including many fish caught in other parts of the country, will be of interest just the same to fishermen.

For the live-bait fisherman who uses worms, there are worms and there are worms.

Trout fishermen who are not above baiting their hooks with this crawling fish food are mighty particular about the worms they use. One type much favored by the finny fighters is the blackheaded worm, two or three inches long, found in old gardens or clay.

These are nice pink fellows that clean nicely and put up a dapper appearance in the water. A wise angler generally digs his worms about a week before he goes fishing. This gives him time to "scour" them.

This scouring process is accomplished by putting the worms in a box with damp moss and sand. The habitat prevents the worms from filling their systems with dirt, and they come out of the mixture a bright pink. If they are to be kept for a while a light diet of milk and bread crumbs can be sprinkled over the top of the mass.

These small worms also are the favorite of pan fish, such as blue gills, croppies, perch, sun fish and rock bass, but the big boys get the call when going after fish with big mouths.

The night crawler, mastodon of the earthworm family, is the favorite of those voracious bottom feeders, bullhead and catfish.

NELSON NINE WALLOP TEAM FROM IRVING

Play Airtight Ball to Outclass Visiting Boys to Tune of 21-3

Playing airtight ball all the way, and slamming the offerings of Allen and Shearer for 19 hits, which netted them 21 runs, the Nelson senior baseball team defeated the Irving Washington nine 21-3, in a listless game played at the Recreation grounds Sunday afternoon. Reported to be the same team that played here last year under the name of Rathburn, the visitors put up a very poor exhibition, and were completely outclassed from the start.

Kraft pitched the first five innings, and held the Irving team to three hits and a like number of runs. One of the hits being Allen's four base clout over the left field fence in the second inning. Kraft struck out 10. Lefty Gillett, making his periodical appearance on the mound in the last three innings held the visitors hitless, and struck out four batters. Only 10 batsmen faced him in the three innings he was on the mound, one, Richardson, reaching first on Kraft's error.

Tick Hall was the heavy hitter for the locals, with four hits, including a three-bagger and a two-base hit to his credit. He crossed the plate five times. Slim Horswill slammed out three hits in three times at bat, one being a two-bagger. Henry Bey had three singles to his credit, with three hits, Hughie Horswill polled one over the road in right field for a homer in the first inning with two on bases, and duplicated the same feat in the second, as he rounded second he hurt his leg, and was called out at home on a close play. Dick Drew knocked one of Shearer's pitches over the fence for a homer in the fifth. Gillett, Drew and Roynon had two hits each. In the eighth, Manford took Kraft's drive, and threw out Bey at second, the runner been doubled at first, Ahlstedt to Richardson, for the only double play of the game.

RODOSTO SCRATCHED FOR THE DERBY

PARIS, May 28 (CP cable)—Princess de Faucigny-Lucinge, owner of Rodosto, French challenger for derby honors in Wednesday's running of the great classic said today she had decided to scratch the big chestnut colt because he was stiff and not in the best shape.

"A derby horse must not have the slightest thing wrong with him," the princess said. "Rodosto is stiff. I don't know how badly. I shall have him brought back in a day or two and placed in the care of a vetinarian at Chantilly. It is a pity for it was the chance of a lifetime. Rodosto's pace would have given him great advantage and I am sure he could have stood the course."

Spent Money to Make Money in Publishing Business

Bad boy of American journalism, father of the yellow press, autocratic emperor of the biggest publishing empire on the Western Hemisphere, William Randolph Hearst was 70 years old last month. Virile, active in mind and body, still "The Chief" to newspapers and magazines serving his 20,000,000 readers, it is difficult to realize that Hearst is arriving at old age.

Hearst, at 70, has become something of a myth. His father was Seanyor Hearst, of California, and when the son left Harvard he asked only for the old San Francisco Examiner, taken over by his parent for a bad debt.

It was a pitiable rag, but Hearst's sensational methods soon built it into one of the best dailies in United States. He lost $10,000 a month for two years, but in the third year made it all back with some profit to spare, which he promptly proceeded to spend.

W. R. HEARST

In his college days, as a rich man's son, he contracted the habit of entertaining friends to win them, a practice which has stuck to him all his life, and is continued today on his 240,000-acre estate in California—the most fabulous dwelling in North America. To his Examiner payroll he bought such great names as Ambrose Pierce, Gertrude Atherton, Joaquin Miller and Mark Twain, Harrison Fisher and Bud Fisher. Hearst hired special trains at the drop of the hat to get scoops on big stories. He knew the truth in the bromide, that to make you must spend money.

MANHATTAN INVASION

From his mother, four years after his father's death in 1891, Hearst got a $7,500,000 advance on his patrimony and for $180,000 bought the tottering New York Journal, and stalked quietly into Manhattan to knock the breath out of imperious, blind Joseph Pulitzer. To add to the cream of his imported San Francisco staff, he began quietly to buy up the best brains in Pulitzer's organization, including Arthur Brisbane, history's highest-paid editorial writer, Richard Harding Davis and a dozen others of his ilk were on call. In three months the circulation of the Journal rocketed from 20,000 to 150,000 and in ten months to 400,000 copies daily. Hearst sank $2,000,000 into the property in a year, but as usual it came back to his treasury with interest. There is little doubt that Hearst and his papers, with their hyperbolic extravagances and their crazy jingoism, were largely responsible for the Spanish American war. Hearst even got himself commissioned an ensign in the front lines. Hearst's incendiary editorials after the war excoriating President McKinley were also blamed for the latter's assassination. He changed the Journal's name to the American.

By then he was 41 and taking himself very seriously. He was also taken seriously by the public and was several times hanged in effigy. Hearst's political ambitions were illimitable. He managed to get himself elected to Congress but it was the greatest disappointment of his life when he saw carefully-laid plans leading to the presidency frustrated. His motives were never trusted by his closest associates, let alone the people as a whole. He has almost been more or less considered as a sinister figure.

THE HEARST HEIRS

When a mighty man reaches 70, people eye his heirs. There are five sons, no daughters, of whom two, twins — William Elbert and Randolph Apperson—are too young to be considered. Of the other three, George, 29, is the senior, a fat, good-natured fellow, but very unlikely to succeed his father as emperor of the publishing business. He has been tried out on New York and San Francisco papers, but took more pleasure in entertaining the staffs at near-by bars than in working. The second son, William Randolph, Jr., is 28, and like his brother also divorced and remarried. He has his father's capacities for quick thinking and has worked hard to learn the business from every angle. He has applied himself to being publisher of the New York American within the limits imposed by a crown-princely aura and his father's incurable autocracy.

The wise birds today are saying, "Keep your eye on Jack," who is John Randolph Hearst, aged 23 years. He also is divorced and remarried, the Hearst boys seeming to have a penchant for the divorce courts. At 19 he was president of the Stuyvesant Company, which controls a group of magazines of which Harper's Bazaar is a good example. Then he was moved to the vice-presidency of the International Magazine Company which publishes such magazines as Good Housekeeping and Cosmopolitan. He did so well that his father tried him in a new role, understudy to General Manager Thomas J. White, of all Hearst papers. His current task is supervising administrative economies.

These are the boys from whom William Randolph Hearst must choose his successor.

NEARING THE END

Hearst has seen the journalism he perfected surpassed in profits even by such sober journalism as that of the New York Times, says the magazine, Time. He has seen that democracy in politics which he championed altered to a dictatorship even more absolute than the one which made him attack Woodrow Wilson. In the internationalism which he always shunned—to the point of being called pro-German during the Great War— he now sees his country taking the lead. Five years or so ago it was the fashion to regard Hearst as a "failure" and a "tragic figure." But though he may need cash, as he always does, and though his papers' prestige is low now that his country has outgrown them in both directions, above and below, it is doubtful that so subtle a mind as Hearst's is trapped in tragedy. He knows he has lived a full life, had a great career and bent the course of millions of other lives. By the dark mental spiral that is called "inconsistency" he can accommodate himself and his past to whatever is new. That is what he always has been, a newsman and a showman.

HISTORY OF CHINA OUTLINES COUNTRY'S PERIODIC HUANGS

Chinese Depressions Are Known as "Desolations"

Depressions are nothing new in history; they have been recorded periodically in the official history of China. The nearest Chinese word for depression is huang, which means desolation. A depression of want is called chi huang, while a depression of fear is k'ung huang. There is a classical term "huang cheng," which means political measures to deal with desolations. The oldest record of these measures can be fund in the Chow Li, or the Book of Governmental Rites of the Chow dynasty. The Chow Li is one of the 14 Confucian classics, the authorship of which is generally attributed to the Duke of Chow of the 12th century, B.C.

The following translation from the Chow Li was made by Dr. Kiang Kang-hu of the Gest Chinese library of McGill university. The 12 items themselves are given in capitals. Commentary upon meaning of these statements has grown through the centuries, but the explanation here summarized, after each item, is supposed to have been written in the first century, A.D. It should be re-emphasized that no part of the comment is made by the Royal Bank of Canada which includes the translation in its May bulletin, or by the translator.

1. The Distribution of Surplus Treasures. The government will provide only funds for the relief work, but will also open up all storages of accumulated grains and other necessities of life for direct distribution.

2. The Lowering of Taxation. This will relieve people from public burdens and thus enable them to be self-supporting. The average land tax was less than 10 per cent of its productive value and there were very few other taxes. During the time of depression the land tax was usually halved, or from the famine-stricken regions totally exempted.

3. The Mitigation of the Severity of Criminal Punishment. This is because people are more easily driven to crime when in distress, and therefore they deserve special mercy.

4. The Withholding of Labor Conscription. In the ancient times all male citizens, excepting officials and scholars, were subject to government conscription for public works between the planting and the harvesting seasons. This conscription would be withheld in times of depression, so that the people might work more profitably.

5. The Lifting of Legal Prohibitions Against the Use of State Property. According to the law of the Chow dynasty, all mountains, rivers, forests and mines were publicly owned and were prohibited from private exploitation. This prohibition would be lifted and the people would be allowed to enjoy the products of the state property.

6. The Abandonment of Trade Restrictions. Although there were no customs duties in the Chow period, inspections and restrictions were in force on both imports and exports between states. These would be abandoned in times of depression to facilitate free transportation and quick exchange.

7. The Elimination of Social Ceremonials. This is a measure of social economy and thereby unnecessary expense would be saved for necessary purposes.

8. The Simplification of Funeral Rites. The Chinese often over-do funeral and burial services, and this would rule out all superfluous expenditures for the dead.

9. The Prohibition of Public Musical Performance and Amusement of Any Form. Aside from sacrificial and educational purposes, theatricals and musical performances for amusement would be banned in times of depression, much in the same way as it would be in mourning.

10. The Encouragement of Simple and Easy Marriage. As marriage in old China was expensive and difficult, this would be a great relief for poor people in hard times.

11. The Holding of Prayer Services. When the Emperor led the officials and the people to pray to heaven and to the national patron gods for the speedy return of prosperity, it would certainly have a psychological effect on the populace.

12. A Check on Thieving and Banditry. Since depressions always brew more unrest and uprisings, an effective check of these from the very beginning would save the country from revolutions and wars.

These twelve items form the important measures of the Huang Cheng since the time of ancient China.
