CABINET RECEIVES THE KIDD REPORT COMMITTEE THIS MORNING AT 10 O'CLOCK

Nearly All Members of Cabinet at Victoria for Meeting; Government Divorces Own Affairs for the Moment

VANCOUVER, B.C., Aug. 15.—The Vancouver Province today carried the following from Victoria.

The Tolmie government met today to decide whether it should scrap party politics or not. A decision on the proposal to form a coalition government with the best brains of the province in it, should be reached during the next 48 hours

PREMIER S. F. TOLMIE

After a week-end of conferences at the Tolmie home in Saanich, those of the premier's colleagues were hopeful as the cabinet assembled. But they were by no means sure that they could carry the government in favor of their program. The final decision, in a divided government, must rest with the premier himself.

The premier had nothing to say for publication.

"I can't say anything yet until I have discussed the whole situation with by colleagues," he explained.

FIVE YEAR PLAN UPON TRADE AGREEMENTS SEEMS PROBABLE

RUSSIAN DUMP SITUATION IS WORRY CANADA

Canada-United Kingdom Pact Runs Into Snag in Evening

CONTROL SOVIET IMPORTS DEMAND

Dominion Proposed Guard Wheat, Lumber From Dump Tactics

OTTAWA, Aug. 15.—The Empire conference is moving toward a five-year plan.

Trade agreements negotiated, it is proposed, shall have a minimum duration of five years, and shall then be terminable at six months' notice on either side. The Canada-Australian agreement (to extend the agreement now existing) has virtually reached the printing stage. Other agreements between individual dominions are almost equally advanced. The agreement between India and the United Kingdom merely awaits conclusion of the other large agreements before being finally completed. Russian dumping and food taxes in Great Britain still crop up in discussions, but there has been no change in the day of final plenary.

It still stands for Thursday.

STILL UNSETTLED

Difficulties which have arisen between Great Britain and Australia over Argentine chilled beef remain, however, unsettled. ROOSEVELT WILL VISIT WEST IN NEXT TWO MONTHS

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Adopting a new method of campaigning, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt and Speaker John N. Garner, the Democratic National ticket, will meet frequently during the campaign to estimate results and discuss future efforts. After a conference between Roosevelt and Garner today, Mr. Roosevelt said the Texan would "undoubtedly make speeches in the east".

Mr. Roosevelt explained his own schedule for the next few weeks is elastic because of the Mayor Walker ouster hearing. He has, however, laid plans for a "big swing" to the Pacific coast in September and early October.

RECRUITS RUSH JOIN THE WHITE FORCES, ERIN

New Army Is Being Recruited to "Maintain Law and Order"

NEITHER MENACE NOR CHALLENGE

So States Organizer; Danger of Free State Clash Not Likely

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Aug. 15 (AP).—A new "white" army is being formed in the Irish Free State with the announced purpose of maintaining law and order.

Dr. O'Higgins, president of the volunteer division of the Soarstat Army Comrades' association, declared today his organization is neither a menace nor a challenge to the Free State government.

There already are two armies in the Free State—the "green" force of Soarstat regulars, and the "red" Irish Republican army, which was an illegal organization under the old Cosgrave government. Much interest has been aroused in the new association.

"We only stand between the people and the menace of secret organizations," Dr. O'Higgins said.

NOT DRILLING FORCE

"Our division is not a military organization likely to precipitate war, and our immediate object is peace. There is no intention to issue arms, and there will be no drilling so long as drilling remains illegal in this country. The backbone of the organization consists, of course, of men already trained."

Recruits are flocking to join the division, and it is anticipated that within a few weeks Dr. O'Higgins—who is a brother of Kevin O'Higgins, vice-president of the Free State who was assassinated July 10, 1927—will have under his command a formidable force of trained men. And there is no shortage of guns.

One widely held view is that the formation of the new force is a tactical move to compel the government to abolish both it and the Irish Republican army, thus removing what Dr. O'Higgins and his associates regard as a menace to future peace.

There appears to be no immediate danger of any clash.

Leave for Western Tour

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL AND COUNTESS OF BESSBOROUGH

OTTAWA, Aug. 15 (CP).—Their Excellencies the Governor-general and the Countess of Bessborough left this afternoon for a tour of western Canada.

Led by Premier R. B. Bennett and Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, heads of delegations at the conference interrupted their labors long enough to participate in the send-off to the vice-regal party.

There was little ceremony, but his excellency was greeted with a royal salute by a guard of honor from the governor-general's foot guards, and the guards' band was in attendance.

Looking beautiful in a navy blue dress with beige dots and a large picture hat, her excellency chatted for some time with Mrs. Baldwin and other conference visitors. Their excellencies' son, Viscount Duncannon, who is to accompany them, took pictures of the scene with his ever-present motion picture camera.

500,000 PLAN TO STRIKE

Britain's Vast Cotton Industry Threatened by Walkout; Ask Settlement of the Existing Wage Dispute

BLACKBURN, Eng., Aug. 15—(AP)—Britain's vast cotton industry was threatened today with a strike which would involve almost 500,000 operatives.

The central board of the Northern Counties Textile Trade Federation decided to call a strike August 27 unless the existing dispute over a new wage agreement is settled.

The walk-out was scheduled for 12 days hence in order that the employers might have an opportunity to make new proposals. Thus the door to peace was left open.

Negotiations have been going on since December when the mill owners announced they intended to terminate the agreement on wages and hours under which the industry has been operating for a decade.

Luke Bates, secretary of the federation, said there was no alternative except to strike unless more reasonable proposals were forthcoming.

Farmers on Strike Block Roads, Sioux City Terminal

Pickets Keep Watch as Farmers Demand Cost Plus Fair Profit

DES MOINES, Iowa, Aug. 15.—Farmers' strike in Iowa, born a week ago in seemingly mild protest against low prices for farm products, tonight had effected an increasingly tightening blockade of the Sioux City terminal as its leaders ers considered its extension to other states.

Picketing, boycott and threats were invoked by the farmers in northwest Iowa to advance the strike which would withold produce from markets until assured that production costs plus a fair profit will be realized by the growers.

Stockyards in Sioux City, a major mart of the middlewest, today received 3500 animals as compared to 6500 a week ago and 8500 last year on the corresponding date.

Hundreds of farm men and women barricaded roads to prevent produce-laden trucks from entering that city and a crisis there was considered close at hand.

A younger child who did not venture into the center of the pool saw his companions drop out of sight and screamed for help. The bodies were recovered.

Prominent Labor Leader Suicides

Karl Axelson Found Hanging in Alberta; Was Dominion Candidate

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., Aug. 15.—Prominent in farmer and labor movements and a doughty fighter for Socialist principles, Karl Axelson was found dead today at his farm home at Bingville, near Medicine Hat. Mr. Axelson was 55 years of age, and had spent the majority of his life in a great struggle on behalf of the farmer and laborer.

Mr. Axelson left his farmhouse at 6 o'clock this mornin, and when he failed to make his appearance at the breakfast table a search was started. The daughter of his housekeeper discovered his body hanging to a beam in an outbuilding on the farm. What led to the labor leader's death is unknown, and his close friends were at a loss to explain.

At the last Dominion elections he entered the fray under the Farmers' Unity league banner in the constituency of Athabasca. A Conservative captured the seat, Mr. Axelson receiving only 2000 votes.

SEARCH FOR CHEWING GUM REVEALS LOST CITY OF 1500 YEARS AGO IN HEART OF THE JUNGLES OF MEXICO

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15— Demand for chewing gum has uncovered in Mexican jungles a lost city that 1500 years ago was a metropolis of an Egypt-like civilization.

Great pyramids and the ruins of temples and palaces in which a teeming population once lived have been found buried in what is now an uninhabited, almost impassable jungle, by an expedition of the Carnegie Institute of Washington.

Native chewing gum hunters, who explored the region for chicle, the "chewing" part of chewing gum, first found the ruins, said the Carnegie institute in announcing the find today.

The city was built at the height of the vanished civilization of the "old empire" of the Mayas. Soon after the time of Christ they developed what many archaeologists call the most brilliant of the ancient Indian civilizations of America.

DR. AULD MADE CITY'S HEALTH HEAD, NO PAY

Serves Free While Salary Put in Fund for the Laboratory

SAME OFFER MADE TO SCHOOL BOARD

Stipulates Nurse to Be Employed Also on Temporary Basis

An offer by Dr F. M. Auld, made to the city council and to the school board in identical terms, to act as medical health officer without remuneration temporarily provided the salary be paid into a fund toward equipment or the proposed pathological laboratory, was accepted by the city council Monday night, so far as it was concerned, and Dr. Auld was appointed to the civic vacancy.

The school board has not yet had a meeting since receiving the letter from Dr. Auld, of Monday's date. A proposition put forward by the Kootenay Medical association has been that the two governing boards boards should appoint as their joint medical officer a qualified pathologist, who could also handle the laboratory when it should be established.

Dr. Auld, in writing to the city fathers, said—

"I am writing this to express to the mayor and the city council my willingnes to serve temporarily as medical officer of health without remuneration, but with to attach as a condition that the funds accruing from the unused portion of the salary of the late health officer, Dr. E. C. Arthur, be set apart as a fund for purchase of laboratory equipment.

"If this proposal be accepted by the mayor and council, it will, I think, be necessary to engage the services of a nurse for the more detailed work, since it would be impossible for me to afford all the time which would be required without assistance.

"In arranging for the services of a nurse, it should be definitely understood, I think, that the arrangement was a temporary one only, in order that the way may be clear for such action as may be considered desirable when more permanent arrangements are being made at a later date."

"FRED M. AULD

The condition respecting a nurse is assumed to be directed toward the school board, which has had such a development more or less in contemplation.

KIDD REPORT

the government's attitude toward the Kidd report, and the larger question of future provincial policies, the fact was not mentioned. Officially nothing was said, other than the cabinet would receive the committee in the morning.

Behind the scenes, there is reason to believe, members of the government had plenty to say, as detailed consideration was given to the report and also to departmental comment filed in respect to its various sections. From all sides, it was apparent the ministry is preparing to take its hurdles one at a time. Consideration of a coalition, a reduction in the legislature, a smaller cabinet, still further reduction in provincial outlays, and many other matters, including an early election, was not likely to bring an answer in 48 hours.

KIDD REPORT

At its first business the government is expected to settle the question of the Kidd report, and its publication. Premier Tolmie, on his arrival home last week, gave an advance indication of the view of the ministry on the report as a whole when he praised its originators and said the document contained many valuable suggestions. Little secret has been made of the fact, however, that certain of the comments made in the report are repugnant to the government on specified ground, and the deletion of these may be invited.

What the government will do about its own affairs as a ministry is likely to be divorced completely from the discussions of the moment. On this phase of the situation Premier Tolmie has already intimated that he will require time to take up many matters with his ministers, and will not be rushed into a haphazard decision on any point. In that event, all that will go before the cabinet Tuesday may be the Kidd report, its recommendations, the government's initial views on these and arrangements for publication of the document. Nearly all members of the cabinet will be in the city for the meeting.

Lawyers Argue Lancaster Case

States Attorney Charges Mrs. Keith-Miller With Protecting "Lover"

MIAMI, Fla., Aug 15.—With nearly two weeks of evidence finally at an end, arguments by counsel over the qestion whether Haden Clarke committed suicide or was murdered by Captain W. N. Lancaster as the culmination of a love triangle were begun here today. Both sides rested shortly before noon.

Clarke, a young writer, was fatally shot April 21 in the home of Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, Lancaster's former flying partner, and who admitted she had loved and been loved by both men.

Henry M. Jones, assistant state's attorney, attacked the defence claim Clarke committed suicide and charged Mrs. Keith-Miller "with protecting the lover who is alive after the death of another lover."

Arguments were not to be limited as to time.

Rossland Council Grant Lots, Pool

Two Lots Adjoining Swimming Pool Granted for Wading Pool

ROSSLAND, B. C., Aug. 15.—At the request of a committee consisting of James Wright, R. Crawford and Dr. J. S. Daly, representing the swimming pool owners, the city council this evening voted to convey to the committee the title to the two lots east of the third at present occupied by the pool. The committee plans to clear and level the lots and plant shade trees and install a wading pool for the smaller children. The consideration will be $1 per lot.

Merchants on the west side of Washington street submitted a complaint that mothers found it impossible to push baby buggies up the steps on the side walk, and business on that side of the street suffered thereby. The council will install a temporary ramp on the outside of the walk.

Stop signs will be painted on the sidewalks on five intersections on Columbia avenue. The council feels that the city's finances do not warrant the purchase of stop owls.

Fireman George Dingwall was granted two weeks' holidays starting August 18.

TORONTO TO BOAST THE SECOND LARGEST TELESCOPE IN WORLD

TORONTO, Aug. 15 (CP)—Details of the erection near Richmond Hill north of here, of the second largest telescope in the world, at an estimated cost of $300,000, were made public tonight.

Officials of the University of Toronto, to which Mrs. Jessie Dunlap is donating the David Dunlap observatory in memory of her husband announced construction would start at once on the two main buildings of the plant.

BUGLE BAND IS GIVEN A GRANT

City Council Finds $150 to Help It Go on Good Will Trip

After hearing a deputation from the Canadian Legion Bugle band and on its behalf asking for a grant toward a desired trip to Spokane to take part in Spokane's jamboree for the American Legion on September 10, or a grant toward a more ambitious trip to Portland to officiate in connection with the American Legion, the city council Monday night voted $150 to the band toward its objective

The cost of the trip(if limited to Spokane, will be $200 to $225, or if extended to Portland, $750, and its object will be to advertise Nelson. The band is laying plans to raise funds which, with the city's grant, will enable the trip to be made

H. C. Pitts, president of the band Fred Hartwig, former bandmaster; G. M. Benwell, secretary; and President Joe Holland of the Canadian Legion, all urged the request, pointing out that the band had never before asked a civic grant or anything, in spite o its extended community service, and was only asking this time because the Dominion Day celebration left it with a treasury deficit of $160. On the Spokane trip, which is at the invitation of the state American Legion and of the Spokane chamber of commerce, the Nelson boys will be "on the air" two nights, in a band contest with other bugle bands will be the guests of the chamber of commerce at the opening of a park, and will furnish the international flavor in connection with the celebration, which it to be put on for the benefit of American Legion delegations heading for Portland

Sentiment of the council was unanimous for a grant if the money could be found. It was discovered that of the $1250 set aside for donations for 1932, just $250 remained, so the council gave the band the larger share of this balance.

IMPATIENCE IS CAUSE OF DEATH

Transient Trapped on Bridge Has Right Idea But Looks Wrong Time

KAMLOOPS, B. C., Aug. 15 (CP)—Impatience when a few seconds would have placed him in safety cost an unidentified transient his life here today.

Trapped on a high railway bridge over the Thompson river east of Ashcroft by an approaching train, the transient stretched himself on his stomach at the edge of the bridge to allow the train to pass. He raised his head to see how close the train was, and the fender of the train struck him. He was pitched, fatally injured, into the river and the body disappeared.

Another railway fatality was reported today. Gabriel Michell, 25-year-old Indian of Shuswap, was run over by a train as he lay on the tracks between Shuswap and Squilax. He was on his way to Squilax where a job was awaiting him.

BENNETT DENIES HINTED MISUSE FEDERAL FUNDS

Clears Up Misunderstandings Regarding Municipalities' Relief Funds

VICTORIA, Aug. 15.—Premier Tolmie today gave out a written statement from Premier Bennett, clearing the provincial government of a suggestion that it had, itself, us- federer unemployment moneys intended for British Columbia municipalities.

Mr. Bennett's statement to Dr. Tolmie is as follows:

"The prime minister has had brought to his notice certain references in the press to his telegram of January 29, addressed to Hon. J. W. Jones, minister of finance of British Columbia.

"One sentence in particular has been seized upon to give an entirely wrong impression to the public. That sentence is as follows: 'Apparently you have used funds in whole or in part for provincial purposes at the expense of accounts due municipalities'—The criticism in the press has taken the form of practically accusing the government of British Columbia of misappropriating funds advanced by the Dominion.

"No such thought was in my mind in sending the telegram. There is no dispute between the province of British Columbia and the Dominion as to the amount of money which has been advanced by the Dominion. The province has accounted to its own legislature for its distribution. The difference of opinion arose as to that distribution"

SCHLEICHER MAY BE CHANCELLOR

Is Neutral in German Cabinet Crisis; Hitler Cancels Meeting

BERLIN, Aug. 15 (AP).—General Kurt von Schleicher, one of the imperial military leaders who is recognized as the power behind the throne in the present cabinet, emerged today as a strong possibility for the chancellorship.

The name of Dr. Franz Bracht, deputy federal commissioner in charge of the state of Prussia, was twined with the general's in the manoeuvering that was going on in an effort to compose the cabinet crisis. Dr. Bracht was mentioned for the Prussian premiership.

This tentative slate was set forth in party newspapers which suggested Von Schleicher was properly neutral to head a cabinet in which Adolf Hitler's National Socialists and the Centrists would be represented in a ratio of two to one.

Without issuing any explanation, Hitler suddenly cancelled a meeting of Nazi representatives from all over the country which had been scheduled for tomorrow.

A general cleanup of the city weigh scales was ordered.

quate. Great Britain declines the Australian request, pointing out that she has 550,000,000 pounds sterling invested in the Argentine. Australia replies that British investments in Australia total 600,000,000 pounds, and that she is kin. Late tonight, the difference over chilled beef dominated the whole Australian position.

The present intention is not to announce full details of the trade agreements even when signed. It is proposed rather that official announcements shall be confined to statement of the general principles but not giving specific figures or preferences. These would not be announced till legislation to give them effect is introduced in the various parliaments throughout the Commonwealth. Earlier announcement, it is thought, would precipitate wide dumping of foreign goods.

Decision on the point, however, is not final.

Committee and sub-committee are winding up.

The proposed Canada-United Kingdom trade pact and Australia-United Kingdom negotiations ran into snags.

Until well after midnight, the Canadian cabinet, United Kingdom delegates and Australian representatives were gathered in separate conclaves. Tomorrow will witness a resumption of discussions between these countries on the difficulties encountered.

Lack of full details on some of Great Britain's proposals to Canada and control of Soviet Russian imports into the United Kingdom retarded progress in the contemplated Canada-United Kingdom agreement. The treaty is drafted; but, it is learned, Canada is maintaining her stand for adequate control of imports from the Soviet union. The Dominion proposes to guard her wheat, lumber and other products against any repetition of the "dumping" tactics of Russia into Great Britain which have proved so disastrous to the primary products of this country.

Agreement between Canada and the United Kingdom for control of Russian imports into Great Britain was virtually reached some days ago.

Tariff preference is not sufficient to deal with Russia, Canada has told Great Britain. And this is the attitude which the Dominion took early in the conference.

TRAIL, B. C., Aug. 15—Six more track men qualified for the Vancouver Daily Province junior Olympic trials to be held at Vancouver August 27 and 29, when trials were held here today.

Three men qualified for the pole vault, Carl Baillie jumping nine feet, six inches, and William Ferguson and Alex McKendrick, nine feet, four inches.

Paul Haley also qualified in the 220 yards running in the time set for the trials, 24 2-5 seconds. Bob Martello ran it in 24 3-5.

Carl Baillie made the shot put with a heave of 37 feet, nine inches, the standard being 37 feet.

The 440 yards is yet to be run and no one turned up for the 880 yards.

To Clear Acre in the Cemetery

On the recommendation of the parks and cemetery committee, the city council Monday night authorized the clearing of an additional acre of land in the City cemetery, for the general plot.

Already this year interments have numbered 75, against 98 for the whole of last year, and enlargement of the accommodation is required.

The cemetery is being used as a thoroughfare by residents of "Cottonwood City," one of Nelson's jungles, and the council issued orders for stopping of this misuse.

City Engineer Boyd C. Affleck was authorized to renew the fence around the cemetery, or the portions of it requiring renewal, so as to keep out cattle, which are entering at the southern end.

Ideals Inspire Canada—Baldwin

OTTAWA, Aug. 15 (CP). — Three ideals inspire the people of Canada, ideals derived from the two races in which the civilization of this country was cradled, Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, leader of the United Kingdom delegation, told the Canadian club today. The first was instinct in the religious life of the community which he said it would be presumptuous of him to speak. The second was the respect of Canadians for law and order, the third, maintenance of the standard of education and the building up of a tradition of public service.

Britain's former prime minister revealed himself today as much more than a figure in contemporary politics, a man with interests utterly dissociated from the tumult of modern public affairs.

NELSON IS FEATURED IN SUNSET MAGAZINE

Is Described in Board of Trade Article as Interior Capital; Administers, Serves Great Territory; Developments Help

Under the caption of "Nelson, British Columbia's Interior Capital," the Sunset Magazine of Vancouver, published by McLennan, McFeely & ... for circulation to the retail trade of the province, had in its June number the following illustrated article on Nelson, described as "Written especially for Sunset by the Nelson Board of Trade, Nelson, B. C."

Situated in the heart of southern British Columbia, at the convergence of all transportation routes serving this territory, and at the center of the lake region, Nelson, the province's interior capital, has every endowment of Nature to assure its permanence.

Seven railway or rail-and-steamer transportation routes radiate from Nelson, which has the Canadian Pacific terminal for this territory as well as a branch from the Great Northern main line, while nine busses of the Central Canadian Greyhound Lines operate on the highways radiating from this center. The lordly steamers that only recently still plowed Kootenay lake are missed—they still ply on the other lakes—but the through rail connection that replaces them over the new C. P. R. link gives improved service.

GEOGRAPHY CAPITALIZED

Thus favored by geography, Nelson is the distributing center for all this territory, and 25 or more wholesale houses provide the back-log of its established commercial position. Over 50 travellers, including resident travellers of numerous outside houses, permanently work out of Nelson. This city is also the retail trading center for a large and developed continguous district, with extensive ramifications, and probably directly serves the actual bulk of the West Kootenay's population south of the Canadian Pacific main line. For the same reason it is the banking center for West Kootenay. Hundreds of mining companies have their registered offices in Nelson, not to speak of other lines of district industry. Many general insurance agencies are maintained here.

Also related to its location, is the result that Nelson is the administrative center for most of the southern interior, some of the governmental jurisdiction administered from Nelson extending from the Alberta border to the coast range. This applies to all provincial departments, and most of the Dominion departments, not to speak of railway administration. The city is as well the judicial and legal center for West Kootenay, and a very important medical center, with resident specialists, and fine hospital facilities. It has built up a reputation as an educational center, among its special facilities being a full high school course as far as it is possible to go, a junior high school, St. Joseph's Catholic academy, and the Nelson Business college. Similarly its modern amusement facilities draw patronage from the entire district.

CHEAP ELECTRIC POWER

Among Nelson's distinctions are that it develops its own electric power at Bonnington Falls, furnishing cheap power to industries inside and outside the city; is the best lighted city in the interior; has the only gas plant in the interior; and has no fewer than five parks, one of them with a magnificent bathing beach.

It has also every tourist facility, with hotels, garages and motor storage, tourist park, cabin and other camps, and boating facilities. An active board of trade and other local institutions are at the tourist's command.

The present basis of wealth in the great Kootenay territory, most of which, particularly in West Kootenay, Nelson serves, is industrial.

MINING STILL FOREMOST

Mining, the industry that first made the Kootenay known to the world, is still foremost, and is the most widespread. While under the present metal market conditions the silver-lead-zinc districts in all parts of the Kootenay are necessarily resting on their oars, in all the many mining camps former producers, and developed prospects, are only waiting for the recovery to resume or begin production. The gold districts, notably the Nelson district and the Boundary country, are exceptionally busy and in production, and many new developments are in progress.

At Trail, Nelson's sister city, are the smelter and refineries of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company of Canada, now also the seat of Canada's chemical fertilizer production, and at Kimberley, in East Kootenay, is the smelter's principal ore supply, the Sullivan mine, the greatest zinc mine in the world, one of the world's largest lead mines, and British Columbia's largest silver mine.

The timber industry permeates every part of the Kootenay, and though present conditions are not advantageous to production, the lumber operations are proceeding, generally on short time, and the mills are equipped, when normalcy returns, to contribute their usual quota to the country's output of wealth. So far as the pole division of the industry goes, West Kootenay is the province's center of production.

Through all the lakes and valleys of West Kootenay, radiating more or less from Nelson, is a widespread agriculture, chiefly featuring orchards and small fruits, and long since the stage of production was reached. The West Arm and Kootenay river, Kootenay lake, Slocan valley, the Salmon valley, the Arrow lakes, and the Inonoaklin valley are sites of a permanent and productive orchard industry.

CATARACTS HARNESSED

Four power plants of the West Kootenay Power & Light company on Kootenay river, below Nelson, develop an aggregate of 227,000 h. p., and a fifth is shortly to be undertaken. Besides this, is the Pend d'Oreille river, south of Nelson, on which the company plans to erect the largest power development in western Canada. Present and future needs of the great industries at Trail, of which the power company is a subsidiary, are thus provided for, as well as most of the southern interior.

With abundance of pulp timber and of cheap power, a future great pulp industry in this district is plainly indicated, probably centering at Nelson, as other pulp areas are depleted.

In the last two or three years four great developments have taken place that have been outstanding in character, all of which, besides changing the face of Nature and bringing into being new energies, industries, facilities, or channels of human activity, have also involved the expenditure of such generous funds that this district is told: "You do not know that there is a depression."

FOUR GREAT DEVELOPMENTS

First is the $10,000,000 initial unit of a chemical fertilizer industry on which the Consolidated Mining & Smelting company has embarked at Trail.

Second is the practically continuous construction program of the West Kootenay Power & Light company, which is still under way, with its biggest individual project, that on the Pend d'Oreille, still ahead of it.

Third is the construction by the Canadian Pacific Railway company of its 35-mile railway link around the head of Kootenay lake, connecting the portions of the system on either side, and converting its southern main line between Medicine Hat and the coast to an all-rail basis.

Fourth is a great highway development all through East and West Kootenay, more or less in all directions, but culminating in completion of the links in the Southern Scenic Highway, to give a magnificent trans-provincial, and in fact, trans-Canada, highway.

TOURIST PARADISE

Great and sound as the industrial basis of Kootenay prosperity may appear to be, a new commerce, that of "selling the scenery" of this wondrous upper country of cloud-kissing mountains, majestic lakes, azure skies, glaciers, mighty cataracts, and a vast native wealth of game, to the touring world on wheels, is about to arise, as a result of the through highway routes, and this territory, with its sisted territories, will become in reality, as now potentially, the summer playground of the continent.

Already the towns from southern Alberta half way through the southern interior of this province are linking themselves in an advertising association to place the facts regarding the Southern Scenic Highway's attractions before the motoring public of nearby portions of the continent.

Ultimately the great tourist traffic that may be expected to become annual and steadily increasing, will, besides leaving money in this part of the province, have a reflex upon its own development, in investments made by visitors, and in development of the summer home cult, for which these lakes offer such enticement.

BROADVIEW, Sask., Aug. 15—Armies of sugar-beet webworms recently passed through a number of Saskatchewan towns, and have been seen in all sections of the province in amazing numbers this year.

These worms, or caterpillars, do not eat wheat and barely touch oats and barley. But when an army passes through a grain field it will clean out every weed except those of the grass family. They like garden truck, however, and have done considerable damage to gardens.

The worms evidently march in a straight line and cannot be deflected from their course. When they come to a house or barn they crawl up the wall and over the roof and continue their journey.

In 1868 Japan's population was 32,000,000. Within 60 years it had doubled. According to the census of 1930 there were 64,450,005 in Japan proper. The ratio of increase in 1930 was 15.19 per thousand, or 1,000,784. Taking 1,000,000 as the annual average increase of her population, she would have 100,000,000 by 1965 in a territory smaller than the state of California—and not more than 16 per cent of her land can be cultivated.

CANADA RULERS SHOW COURAGE SAYS GUSCOTT

Baptist Pastor Admires Bennett for Reliance on Devine

'A GENERATION THAT DISCARDED CHANCES'

Canaan Unpossessed Because Israelites Lacked Qualities

"There are those who predict that the Imperial economic conference at Ottawa will fail of any important result, but, thank God, there are men at the head of affairs at Ottawa who have the courage of their convictions. I am not here to pass judgment on Mr. Bennett, or on his politics, but one thing I admire about him, and many others admire him for it too, and that is that he frankly admits that it will be by God's grace that Canada will come out of this mess."

So spoke Rev. H. W. Guscott, pastor of the First Baptist church, Sunday night, when preaching on "A Generation That Threw Away Its Chance." The pastor declared if Canada came out well from its present difficulties, it would be by prayer, and by the personal effort of everyone, plus the grace of God.

ISRAELITES SCARED

The sermon was based on the action of the Israelites in adopting the majority report of their spies sent into Canaan, who, though admitting the land flowed with milk and honey, claimed its conquest was impossible, while Caleb and Joshua, the minority, favored moving on immediately to take possession and expressed confidence in the nation's ability to conquer the giants. The Israelites tabled indefinitely God's invitation to take the promised land, and not until that generation had entirely passed away did the nation gain the promised objective.

Mr. Guscott found three major reasons for the failure of the Israelites of that generation as a people, the first being their lack of faith, the difficulties and obstacles in the path of their conquest of Canaan looming larger to them than God Who would have helped them over the difficulties. In every age, nations failed in achieving what might have been their destinies, because of a similar lack of faith in the Divine Power, he said. He found the same cause of failure in institutions and in individuals.

A second reason for the Israelites' failure was their lack of a wholesome self-respect. Believing that they were to the Canaanites as grasshoppers, they were in effect grasshoppers, the preacher said. The man who started out with a belief that he was inferior to others would find that others appraised him at his own valuation. Mr. Guscott cautioned against being ashamed of Christ, Who died for men; of the institution, His church, that He had founded; or of the land of which He permitted Canadians to be citizens.

UNWILLING TO PAY

The third reason for the national failure of the Israelites Mr. Guscott diagnosed as lack of willingness to pay the price of success. No story in the Bible so well illustrated the besetting sin of the twentieth century, Mr. Guscott said, as this story of the failure of the Israelites on that occasion to take their heritage because the taking would be attended with difficulties. The spies reported very definitely that the land was worth taking, telling of the milk and honey and exhibiting the giant bunch of grapes, but seeing the cost as too great.

When Christ's disciples questioned Him as to why they could not raise the dead, as He did, He told them that this kind of power went out "only by prayer and fasting."

The powers of darkness, the preacher said, never got cold feet with the half-hearted Christian or the half-hearted church.

EARNEST WINNERS

All the promised lands in history were won by men and women who were in earnest, he said, illustrating with the case of John Wesley, who, coming converted out of a church, "rode his horse through the eighteenth century," changing the temperature of the world from winter to summer.

If ever men and women were called to undertake great tasks, it was today, Mr. Guscott declared. Souls were needed with the courage to say, "We will enter into our Canaans"

There was One who challenged—the Son of Man, Whose blood-red banner streamed afar. Who would follow in His train, asked the preacher in conclusion.

The copper zone of Rhodesia, Africa, contains the greatest accumulation of copper in the world.

CANADIAN HOUSE WILL LIKELY GET BUSY IN OCTOBER

OTTAWA, Aug. 15.—The Canadian parliament may be assembled the middle of October to give effect to the agreements made at the present economic conference. It is explained the government had pretty well decided on November 3 or thereabouts for the opening of the session but that was based on the expectation that the conference would last a couple of weeks longer than seems probable at present. Accordingly the question will be considered as soon as the conference is over.

MILLION-DOLLAR STEAMER FETCHES $22,000 IN SALE

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 15 (CP)—McNab's island, that storied bit of land at the mouth of Halifax harbor, has watched the ships come and go for more than two centuries . . . the sloops of war, the transports of early settlers, the barques, the white winged clippers, the schooners, the old paddle wheel Cunard steamers . . . today giant motor-liners slip by her on the one side, carrying passengers and the cargo in and out of a great port . . . on the other side she shelters a fleet of steamers ousted from the shipping lanes by craft of greater speed.

Anchored side by side in the eastern passage, these vessels represent the former Canadaian government merchant marine. They are not old, as vessels go, but their work seems to be done as far as the Canadian National Steamships, their new masters, are concerned.

They number 15. Last month there were 16, but the Canadian Commander since was sold to an Italian syndicate for $22,000, and now is on her way to sunny Italy under a new and funny name. She cost the government about $1,500,000.

Built in 1919 and 1920 to find new trade routes for Canadian goods, this fleet accomplished its purpose—at heavy expense—and now is for sale at "how much will you give me?" prices.

Here they are:

Canadian Beaver, Canadian Britisher, Canadian Explorer, Canadian Farmer, Canadian Importer, Canadian Inventor, Canadian Mariner, Canadian Miller, Canadian Otter, Canadian Pioneer, Canadian Prospector, Canadian Runner, Canadian Scottish, Canadian Traveller, Canadian Volunteer.

Cellophane slices for women are to be placed on the market.

CHAPTER XXXIX

But she wouldn't write. Lynn knew that. Farewell to Jennie . . . farewell.

Slim, reporting to Tom, was taciturn. "Jennie's leaving. She's going west with"— he swallowed unpleasant words; calling names didn't help —"with him."

Tom commented, tinkering with his newly built set, "Oh yeah? Well, what did you expect?" He kept his eyes away from his friend. Darn all women, he thought.

"Its oke by me," Slim said, magnificently indifferent.

"Did you see her?"

"Jennie? No, I saw Lynn."

Tom almost dropped the new tube he was testing out. "Lynn, eh?"

"She called me up."

"Don't suppose she mentioned me, did she?" Tom asked carelessly.

"Nope."

Silence. Then Hank, knocking out his pipe, "They're all alike. Look here, Tom, we've time for a glass of beer before we trek uptown. Let's go to the Hole in the Wall."

Slim had seen Lynn. How did she look? Is she well? Is she happy? Has she forgotten me? But Tom, shrugging himself into an overcoat, spoke no word. Funny, isn't it? he thought. I'd give my right hand to see her—and Slim, who doesn't care if he never sees her again . . .

Not long afterward Tom saw her at the Cherry Blossom.

He had gone up with his two black bags and the announcer to supervise the broadcast. Busy, he was, behind the screen, testing the lines, waiting for signals, waiting for the broadcast to go on. It was a gala occasion; an anniversary broadcast.

Tom was oblivious of everything but his work. Forty-five minutes of Cherry Blossom music was broadcast. Then it was over.

"Pretty gay crowd," said the announcer, and looked around the screen.

Tom looked, too. The room was well filled; they were dancing. "Swell music," Tom agreed, tapping his foot.

"Let's get going," suggested the announcer. "Hey, what's the big idea?" he asked in amazement.

Tom had seen Lynn. At a corner table with Dwight. Her hand lay on the table. Dwight's covered it. He was leaning close, speaking to her eagerly.

She was listening. Once she spoke. Once she nodded and smiled.

"Lord!" said Tom, aloud.

"Come on," urged the announcer impatiently. "Have you taken root?"

After a moment Tom stumbled after the other man out into the sleeping gardens where snow was falling and lanters swayed in the wind.

Dwight had been saying, back there in the noisy room, "But you must have known always that I loved you, Lynn. I've come to an agreement with Mrs. Dwight. She will set me free. She's abroad now; we'll run in through, routine fashion, in Paris, and I'll come back for you. Or would you join me there in the late spring? We could be married in England."

She said slowly, astonished beyond measure, beyond computation ashamed of herself: "I don't love you."

"But you like me?"

This was where she nodded and smiled. She said, "I like you very much. But—"

"Darling, you'll love me. You must. I want you so much—and I need you."

"Why me?" Lynn wanted to know. "It seems so strange. All the people you've known, the women."

"I've never known any," he said, and believed it. "There is only you. No one else has ever existed."

Tom had gone from her. Tom no longer cared or he would have returned before this. She did not know how near he was now. She had no warning, no premonition. Suddenly she felt tired of unhappiness and of struggle.

"Don't answer now," Dwight said quickly. "I'll wait. I'll not speak of it again until you're ready. Shall we dance?"

Tom saw them rise, saw her go into Dwight's arms, before he left. His duties for the evening were over. He went straight to Lynn's apartment house and was announced to Sarah. She opened the door herself.

"Why, Tom!" she said, astonished.

It was late. She was ready to go to bed. To rest, not to sleep. She had not slept well recently.

"I had to see you. I've just come from a roadhouse out Yonkers way. I saw Lynn there with Dwight. He was holding her hand across the table, looking as if he could eat her up. What does this mean, Sarah?" Tom demanded.

Sarah sat down in the nearest chair. "I don't know," she admitted. "She belongs to me," said Tom. "She knows it. What is she doing with him?"

PENDULUM OBSERVATIONS

OTTADA, Aug. 15—Pendulum observations by the Dominion observatory, department of the interior, show that the mountains of British Columbia are buoyed up by abnormally light material extending down into the earth's crust for about 60 miles. The excess of gravity revealed by the pendulum on the prairies is believed to be due to an extensive underground ridge of abnormally heavy rock.

The remarkable sight of an 86-year-old clergyman playing the trombone in church was witnessed in St. Peter's church, Rochester, when Prebendary Carlile, founder and chief of the Church Army, conducted the evening service and led the band into the church.

NO PICTURE IN A RUNAWAY MATCH

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am just sixteen years old and have two more years to go before I am graduated at high school. There's a boy I've known all my life; he's nineteen, and I always looked on him as just a good pal. We've danced, skated, played tennis together ever since we were kids, and I never thought of him in connection with love. Imagine my surprise the oher night when he proposed to me, and suggested we run away and get married.

I'm sick and tired of school and would even marry him so that I wouldn't have to go back, but a run-away marriage I think is silly. A girl only gets a chance to wear a lovely white wedding dress once in her life, and have bridesmaids dressed in different colors, and all the lovely presents and everything. If she runs away, she passes up all that. But he insists his folks wouldn't hear of his marrying when he has no job, and I know mine wouldn't either. I just don't know what to do. Will you please answer this in your column?.

MILDRED E.

You're not in the least in love, my dear Mildred and as the chance for the kind of wedding on which you've set your heart is but out of the question why consider marriage at all? Sixteen is entirely too young for such fancies. You'd probably be bored to dearth with any responsibilities you might incur, before the year was out. My best advice to you is to finish high school. And please, please don't think of running away with a young man of nineteen who has no job. That would be fatal to the interests of everyone concerned.

She Didn't Fit Into the Picture

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A year ago I was over head and heels in love with a girl three years older than I am. She seemed smart and wonderful to me then, even when she drank too much and smoked an endless chain of cigarettes. We became engaged and I took her to my home to visit, I have a mother and two sisters. Never a word of criticism from any of them. My family was cordial and absolutely courteous. But, heaven!—the difference between those women, which I realized for the first time.

My girl leaving cigarettes on everything, burning holes in the tablecloths and bedspreads, always painting on a new mouth and entreating me to get her gin. I just couldn't get it in that town, and she sulky and ill-natured, raving about country villages. At last the awful visit ended, even as I want to end the engagement, too. My family has said nothing, but I feel sure they'd be relieved to see out of it. What would you suggest that I do.

FREDERIC

The day has passed when a young man must feel in honor bound to marry a girl he no longer cares about, and it's a good thing, too. Tell her that you find your tastes are not congenial. If this is too difficult to say, just write her a letter telling her the truth as kindly as you can. She must have been a bit thick to demand gin in a household such as you describe your mother's to be. Next time watch your step.

Doesn't Want to Be Serious

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am writing to ask you to settle my affair as you have so many others. I went with a boy for four months. He saw me every night and said he loved me. Now he is running around with other girls and he is taking one of them to most of our dances.

He still comes to see me about twice a week but never says he loves me any more. His explanation is that he does not want to get serious, but don't you think he is as likely to get serious with this other girl? Why does he keep coming back to see me if he wants to break off? I am really very fond of him.

A READER

The reason he keeps coming back, my dear, when you think he wants to break off, is that you still have some influence over him. If you want to keep it, don't be too meek and humble about accepting his changed schedule and attitude. He used to come every night, now comes twice a week. Can't you manage to have another engagement on one of those evenings? He sees you're too serious and that frightens him. Young men are afraid to commit themselves to an engagement these hard times. The other girl has told him perhaps, that she isn't serious. That gives him a feeling of "safety" in visiting her. He is not committed to anything. A great many young ladies, gifted with deep wisdom, do that. Then the young man realizes too late that he is serious.

Answers to Inquiries

Steady Reader: "How can a brown stain be removed from the door of a gas stove oven?"

Answer: I always use an abrasive powder on a wet cloth, to remove such stains.

Mrs. Q.: "Do you advise burning a sulphor candle to get rid of fleas in a room?"

Answer: Yes, that is one way of exterminating this pest, but you must remove all brass and silver ornaments from the room, as sulphor turns them dark. Another good method is to use any one of the fine flea powders sold in the stores for extermination, following directions which come with it.

Miss. G.G.: "Is there any general rule which one may follow in dividing one's food money for a balanced diet?"

Answer: Yes, many women follow this plan, to achieve well balanced menus: Divide every dollar in the food budget so that 25c of it goes for milk; 20c for vegetables; 20c for bread, cereals and legumes; 20c for fats and sugar; and 15c for meats, fish, eggs or cheese.

Bride-to-Be; "Someone told me to cut an old rubber ball in half and make a hole in one half of it, so that it could be slipped up the handle of a paint brush to catch the paint drippings, which otherwise drip downward. Isn't this a fine hint? Thought others might find it useful."

Answer: Thank you, reader friend. It is indeed helpful to those of us who like to do our own painting around the house.

Tomorrow—Salt-Rising Bread

The Beauty Box
By Helen Follett

Pretty hands should move gracefully. Awkward gestures are sometimes due to lack of flexibility of the wrist. Piano players and violinists whose fingers and wrists are limber and who understand muscle control invariably use their hands perfectly. No ugly poses, no meaningless flutters, always on their best behavior. Hands should be capable of sustained repose since fidgety fingers toying with beads, fussing with tresslocks, pulling at ruffles use up energy and rasp on the nervous system of the beholder. Plenty of attention is given to girl's little paws and the pink shell tips, not enough to graceful, easy movement.

Biting the lips is bad busines. Surface ragged, abrasions made that invite infection. What to do? Make it a habit to keep the lips extra pretty. Anoint every night with camphor ice or a white lipstick, taking time to friction in the lubricant, covering the inner sires of the lips as well as the outer surfaces. The biting habit is aroused when lips are dry. By keeping them moist and well oiled, the bad habit will be overcome.

Do you or do you not, Miss Beauty-Seeker, take a clean face to bed with you? The complexion is entitled to that much attention and will show up fresh, fair and blooming in the morning. Remove make up with cold cream or a thin cleansing oil. Scrub with a cloth, plenty of soap suds and warm water. Rinse with tepid water, tap in a massage cream, say your prayers and fall in. In the morning use cold water.

To brighten blonde hair that has suddenly taken on a dull rust, use a lemon rinse after the shampoo. To one quart of warm water add the juice of three lemons and one half teaspoonful of salts of tartar. Pour the solution over the head into the wash bowl so it can be used again, a cupful at a time. This rinse does not take the place of peroxide. It is not a decided bleach. It merely brings a glimmer.

What Would You Do—Go to Jail. Or Pay Alimony?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Why do men prefer to go to jail rather than pay alimony, one wonders sometimes; then you get the inside story of a few cases, and your wonder ceases.

If there are minor children to be taken care of, or an invald wife incapable of self-support, one hopes the judge will see that a man who is capable will pay his alimony to the last penny. But when a woman is young, able-bodied, and as capable of earning money as her ex-husband, I've got to be shown why the alimony envelope should cheer her on her way.

The other day I got a lengthy letter from one of these alimony martyrs which I should never have room to print even if the editor gave me an entire page.

The man had been married to a widow with several children when he was a minor—a clear case of cradle-robbing. After a life of prolonged quarreling, the inevitable happened. They were divorced. The wife was awarded $15.00 a week alimony. The man's salary was cut, and cut, till it hit the low at $12.50 a week. The alimony was reduced to $10. which gave the man a cheering budget of $2.50 on which to subsist.

He was forced to take up his residence with an invalid sister who sews for a living, and they both near-starved together. Meantime, his wife runs a successful boarding house and her oldest son, by her first marriage, makes her a generous allowance.

The man mailed me great quantities of documents to prove the truth of his statements, which I've mailed back with a letter of genuine condolence, and a feeling of wonder that any court of justice could have rendered such a verdict.

But the prize alimony story comes from Detroit. Joseph Posensky of Halfway, Michigan, three moths ago missed his first alimony paymsnt in 31 years, and his wife, who had obtained a seperate maintenance decree in 1900, had him brought into court for missing three $12 monthly installments. Posensky, who is 72 years old, testified that he failed to pay because he had lost his job. The case was continued.

PRICE ELLISONS HOME BURNED

Flames Wreck Well-Known Vernon Home; Furniture Is Saved

VERNON, B. C., Aug. 15 (CP).—Price Ellison's home, the center of many historic events in the development of the Okanagan valley, and noted for its hospitality during the period of the military camp in 1915 training days, was destroyed by fire Sunday afternoon. Damage is to the extent of more than $15,000 at present-day replacement values. Through efforts of most of the men of the community, valuable furniture, sterling silver and large quantites of cut glass and china were salvaged.

Price Ellison, well known figure in the Okanagan valley, and minister of finance under the McBride government, was roused from his Sunday afternoon slumbers by his daughter, Mrs. Debeck, and her children, Roy and Donnie. Flames, which apparently started in the upper story or roof, had a good hold.

Treasury Dictatorship Required

For some time The Nelson Daily News has been advocating that under present conditions of financial emergency the Finance Minister of British Columbia should be given powers of financial dictatorship. Hon. J. W. Jones, Minister of Finance, has proved himself to be a capable Finance Minister, but no Finance Minister can perform his work satisfactorily under present conditions unless he has in effect the power of veto over expenditures by other departments for which he cannot raise the money.

At the Coast there is difference of opinion on this question, and the Victoria Colonist quotes an opinion by Lord Northbrook, which was given sixty years ago. The Victoria paper, in quoting this opinion, makes the declaration that the power of the Minister of Finance in carrying out effective control over public expenditure extends only to the seeing that sums appropriated by a Parliament are not exceeded in the expenditures. It further believes that if a Finance Minister could interfere with other departments of Government and order a curtailment of the outlay of money voted by Parliament, it would be destroying the constitutional responsibility of a Minister of the Crown. "Such control," it says, "exercised by the Department of Finance has never been obligatory, not even in the hey-day of the Gladstonian period." Not obligatory, perhaps, but we know that what Goschen said just about "went."

The Northbrook opinion quoted by the Victoria paper is as follows:

> "There are two totally different conceptions of financial control—The first and more or less the traditionary one, based on constitutional analogies, is that administrative departments are to be distrusted, watched and checked—the practical tendency of such a theory, when put in force, is toward the creation of twin rival antagonistic powers; the administrative branch seeking to spend, the criticizing financial branch to criticize and check; efficiency and economy are thus at war—or rather, the expenditure which should be directed solely to secure efficiency tends to degenerate into extravagance, and economy which should check waste to result in incomplete efficiency. The second and more modern notion of financial control means the union of finance and administration so that financial consideration may attend and determine administrative policy from its inception, as well as control it during its progress and review it in anticipation of each new financial year.
> "There are two ways in which estimates may be constructed: (I) They may be allowed to grow up out of the requirements of the spending departments, put forward without any sufficient sense of responsibility for financial results, ultimately to be cut down to suit the financial exigencies of the time; or (II) they may be constructed, ab initio, under the guidance of clear ideas of the financial and administrative policy of the minister, and with complete responsibility for financial results. The latter is the method by which alone the great permanent administrative economies can be secured. Whatever formal rule may be laid down, estimates must originate with the departments which have to administer and to spend, and it is upon the heads of those departments, therefore, that should be imposed the duty and responsibility of constructing their estimates from the first in accordance with the financial and administrative policy of the Government."

No one will question the Northbrook view from a purely pedantic constitutional view-point. But one of the merits of the British constitution and of British constitutional practice is felxibility. We are not chained by a written constitution. All though British history in times of emergency, when unusual conditions have had to be met, we find instances of temporary departure from established practice, such as the case of last fall when the National Government in Great Britain carried through a policy of protection, and three or four Free Trade Cabinet Ministers, who disapproved of it, voted against it in Parliament and still remained in the Cabinet. This departure from constitutional practice was severely criticized, but actually it was simply a logical development of the result of the policy of the British public when the National Government was returned to power.

Under normal conditions in British Columbia, or in any other state operating under the British principal of responsible government, Parliament does not have to concern itself very much with the question as to whether or not the Finance Minister has the power to raise money which Parliament decides to vote. The Legislature may be wickedly extravagant, but under normal conditions, the Finance Minister has always been able to float the necessary bond issues and get the money even though fearful retribution may follow, when times become hard. In British Columbia today, we are living through this period of financial retribution, and we have reached the stage where there is a very definite limitation to the amount of money which a Minister of Finance is able to obtain. It is difficult enough to float bond issues, to pay for past expenditures, but it is virtually impossible ot float bond issues to cover new expenditures which should be met only out of revenue.

British Columbia paid 6½% interest on the first bond issue which was made this year, that which was floated in Canada. What will probably turn out to be a more satisfactory loan was made later on in Great Britain, but the actual cost to British Columbia of the loan was made in Great Britain is on the lap of the gods to the extent that everything will depend upon the trend of exchange as between Canada and London.

A still further improvement in rate of interest to be paid is marked by the issue of two-year Treasury Bills which has been floated in New York, at a rate of 5% interest, and selling at $105.50. This issue will give the province a yield of 2.16%, the best price obtained for British Colubia securities since 1867, but here is the point, only if Canadian funds are at par in New York two years hence. If there should be a 5% discount against Canadian funds two years hence the cost to the province would not exceed 4.90%. But of course we have no assurance that Canadian funds will be at par or anything like it for two years from now. To spend money on the assumption of par exchange would be exceedingly dangerous.

Mr. Jones has undoubtedly made a good deal both in London and in New York under present circumstances, but we must not blind ourselves to the fact that the ultimate average rate of interest is likely to be considerably greater than the minimum that the most optimistic might hope for.

There is also good news in the statement of Mr. Jones that he has every expectation that he will be able to balance the budget for the current fiscal year. What has been accomplished as a result of putting into effect, at least to a partial degree a system of treasury control of expenditures. While the veto has not been definitely established, a special committee of three members of the Cabinet, including the Finance Minister, has been scrutinizing every expenditure before it has been finally authorized by the department concerned. The result has been that large sums of money which would under the old system have been expended have been saved. In times of emergency, to circumscribe the powers of the Minister of Finance to the mere business of seeing that expenditures do not exceed appropriations authorized by Parliament would make the Minister of Finance little more than an auditor. In effect this function is today being performed by the Auditor-General.

The Legislature meets early in the year. It bases its authorized expenditures upon the guesses of the Department of Finance as to the amount of revenue which will be received. If this revenue falls off, to a material extent, which is what happened this year, it is perfectly obvious that the Minister of Finance should be given the power, after consultation with other Ministers, to put his foot down firmly, and refuse to agree to the expenditure of money which he knows he cannot raise.

It is a time for strong measures by the Minister of Finance and the public knows it.

Ho—ho—ho—hum.

That about expresses my feelings. Never felt it so hot in this office before this summer. Would sooner sleep than write a column. Some people have told me it would save space and save myself and my readers a lot of time and trouble were I just to continue sleeping. Arms feel so tired they don't even want to be held up in front of the typewriter. Eyelids so heavy they want to follow the force of gravity and keep shut. Mouth feels like opening and emitting long, loud, resting snores.

Ho—ho—ho—hum.

Charlie Pearson just came in. Said he never felt it so hot. Perspiration was standing out on his brow. H. H. Currie opened a door to let the breeze through. It must be hot. One of the boys in the composing room has shed his shirt. I am positive now it is hot. Well we can't help that. We'll just get out a hot paper tonight.

But it can't be so hot here as it is in Bellville, Ont. There, while thousands of people sweltered in the terrific heat wave, one employee of a local storage plant, F. Archer, suffered a frost-bite in his right ear. While he was walking down the main street the ear suddenly began to tingle and sting. Examination at a drug store showed it to be frost-bite.

From Wisconsin comes a new tale of aldermanic cunning.

Edward Robert Branigan, city father, grew weary of attacks on the council, which had been coming thick and fast from press and pulpit in his native town of Beloit.

He found it hard to silence the editors. They did not seem to mind when he cancelled his subscription.

So he thought up a way to get even with the preachers.

He went to one of the churches, dropped a dollar into the collection plate and, when the sermon was over, demanded his dollar back.

The minister had declared from the pulpit that the city was in the hands of unscrupulous men, and called for the election of honest men.

The church refused to refund the dollar.

Now Branigan is suing the minister for obtaining money under false pretences.

"He made a political speech," claims the irate alderman, "when the congregation were led to expect a sermon. When a minister of the gospel inveigles me into his church to hear the word of God, which undoubtedly my soul needs very much, and then delivers a political oration, I feel he has obtained my money under false pretences."

I hear from Tank Corps headquarters writes "B" in the Manchester Guardian, that the guards recently received as a recruit a young man from literary Bloomsbury, who found trade so bad that he tossed up one night after a party to decide whether to join the angels or the army. The coin came down tails up, much to his subsequent regret.

Utterly exhausted after several hours of marching and countermarching, one day he heard the officer order "Stand at ease."

"How wonderful is death!" remarked the young gentleman to his neighbor in the ranks.

The officer switched round on his heel. "Who said that?" he demanded, in a voice of doom.

The culprit smiled wanly and replied: "Shelley, I believe, sir."

Ardent Amateur Politician: "And look at the unemployed figures!" The Other: "I am, old man—I am!"—London Opinion.

Buyers Need Not Blush

The keeping-up-with-the-Joneses urge appears to have gone into reverse. Today too many of the Joneses and of those who are able to keep with them, seem to be trying hard to keep down with the jobless minority. True, this minority is of considerable proportions, and the Joneses probably feel very modest, considerate—even sacrificing—about their efforts to appear no better off than anybody else. But the fact is, their attitude is not helping the minority. Rather it is hindering the reduction of the unemployed ranks. And it is doubtful whether it is appreciated by those whose feelings it seeks to spare.

For it is being more widely recognized that one important factor prolonging the slack period of business is a reluctance on the part of those who have money and more than average security to buy things they want or even need. At an old-fashioned gathering on an Iowa homestead recently this matter came in for some decidedly new-fashioned discussion which was widely reported. The belief was expressed that it had become fashionable to appear poverty stricken, and that many who could buy were refraining from doing so because of fear of criticism by business associates, relatives or neighbors.

This was not the first time such a thought had found expression. About a year ago a large automobile manufacturer pointed to the existence of this sentimental obstacle to recovery. And at that time there was put forward a method of surmounting it. That method might well be pursued at this time. It calls upon those who "have not" to view this spending not with envy but with approval.

The organization of public thought against the fear of such criticism as might be directed at those who are living merely up to their means is a good sign. It portends a swing of the pendulum of business sentiment away from the obsession of hard times. It signifies a growing tendency to look toward success instead of failure, prosperity instead of poverty.

But perhaps it would be well to guard against a tendency to overestimate the public's fear of criticism. And even better to bear in mind that this criticism may easily be magnified. The average thinking person today is in possession of enough information to know that he can only gain by his neighbor's spending. Moreover, there has been noted in the last few years a trend toward a wiser valuation of the things money can buy. They are not so widely regarded as infallible signs of success. They are not so widely trusted as means of bringing contentment into the home, or satisfaction to the individual. Their possession, therefore, is less likely to be cause of envy or criticism.

The fact remains, however, that many persons who can afford to buy have not been doing so. And it is significant that these persons are in a key position as regards business recovery. No doubt when they find it is no longer fashionable to "do without," but that the trend of the times is toward higher rather than lower living standards, the fear of envy and criticism will be forgotten, and those who have dollars will become eager to spend them while they are big, and at a time when such spending will buy not only things for themselves but jobs for their neighbors.—Christian Science Monitor.

Pressure Shows Signs of Lifting

There are definite signs that economic pressure is lifting. While too many problems remain yet unsolved to say definitely that the uphill climb has finally started there are daily new reasons for belief that such is or will shortly be the case. The agreement among European nations on the war debts, while largely vitiated in its practical aspect by the so-called gentlemen's agreement on war debts, was nevertheless a step forward and when taken with the remarkable volteface of that typical American political spokesman, Senator Borah, on the same question, must be regarded as of great significance. The atmosphere that has pervaded the imperial economic conference sessions has also been one of compromise to a degree greater than has appeared in most post-war international gatherings.

The incipient bull market in New York must be taken with a grain of salt for it is so far a purely professional venture and it must not be forgotten that the United States is in the midst of a presidential election and any outward semblances of returning prosperity will win votes for the party whose representative sits in the White House, and which is the traditional supporter of the bigger units of business.

But a world-wide rise in high-grade bond prices need not be taken with the same scepticism, It was an inevitable fore-runner of any change for the better. True, in the past, the cheapening of money and the rise in the more gilt-edged securities has often come so far before the final turn in business that the lag has proven disappointing to the rank and file of business workers. But a strong bond market is a necessary preliminary to the funding of temporary indebtedness and always marks a milestone in recovery.

The depression crisis will end slowly step by step and a convalescent economic world cannot expect to do a hundred metre sprint to the top of the hill. We should at least be thankful that some of the hair graying pressure is being lifted.—Financial Post.

Who Is Mr. A. N. Other?

Mr. A. N. Other, whose name is so familiar as 11th man—and as an 11th-hour addition—on many English cricket teams, has written to the Times to ask whether any reader of that paper remembers the date of his first public appearance. The response to this inquiry has been disappointing. Almost the only positive information it has elicited is that one correspondent recollects Mr. Other batting with Mr. O. N. E. More at Fenner's for the Cambridge team in 1870.

It might be thought from this that the future biographer of Mr. Oother is going to have a difficult time finding out authentic information about his hero. But really his task will not be insuperably hard. Scanty as is our knowledge of Mr. Other's career, certain facts about him can be deducted by the observant. He is obviously a university man, since he was educated at Cambridge. He is of a modest and retiring temperamet, shunning the limelight. Such games as lawn tennis or billiards, were the light of notoriety beats fiercely down upon a single head, have rarely or never known his prowess.

Doubtless, the point upon which controversy in the future will rage most violently is the question whether or not Mr. Other is a relative of that second mysterious and more literary gentleman, Anon. Apparently not. Anon—or Anonymous, to give him his full ancestral surname—appears to come from a more exalted rank in society than A. N. Other. Any reference to Mr. Other invariably includes his initials, indicating he is a commoner. But Anon with exception signs his name with no initials at all. This can mean only one thing. There is only one class of English society to whom this privilege is permitted. Anon must be a peer of the realm.—Christian Science Monitor.

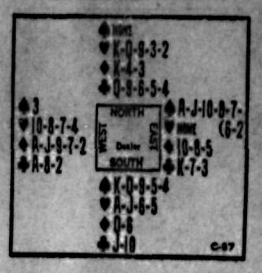
AN OVERCALL IN AN ADVERSE SUIT



A higher bid in the adverse suit usually is notice that the bidder has no losing tricks in that suit and thinks that slam is probable either at partner's declaration, if he has made one, or else at some declaration to be named by the bidder.

But an overcall in the adverse suit, showing strength in it and having no conventional meaning, may nail a "psychic" bidder. To illustrate: With South a psychic bidder and starting with one Spade a two-Spade bid b, West, instead of having the conventional meaning above given, might be used to show a hand strong in Spades. However, the number of players addic to psychics is so insignificant that it is better to give the first overcall its conventional meaning and to show strength in the adverse suit, when such strength exists, by a second overcall.

Circumstances sometimes alter cases and in today's hand there was no supicion of a psychic, and yet the overcall made by a nationally known expert was bona fide as well as the original bid.

It was a rubber game with both sides vulnerable; the score was North-South 70, East-West 30. The bidding was: South one Spade, West two Diamonds, North two Hearts, and East two Spades. South instead of doubling as many players would have done, bid three Hearts. West and North, not sure what it all meant, passed; and East then bid three Spades which clearly showed great strength in Spades. South, however, decided to double.

South's opening lead was the Ace of Hearts which East ruffed. East then led the Diamond Ten, South and West ducked, and North won with the King. North led a second Heart on which East expended a second trump and led a second Diamond, South's Queen falling under West's Ace. West then forced South with a third Diamond, South forced East with a third Heart, and East led a small Club which was won by West. West now led the Nine of Diamonds which forced South a second time, East discarding Club; and to trick 9 South led the fourth round of Hearts on which East had to expend his fourth trump.

East now cashed his King of Clubs, and at trick 11 the tricks stood 7 for East-West and 3 for North-South; Declarer needed two more tricks to fulfill his contract. East had left the Ace-Jack-Ten of trumps and South the King-Queen-9; it was then a simple matter for East to take two trump tricks and fulfill the contract by leading one of his lower honors.

STRAIGHTENING A TALE

In the London New Statesman and Nation quite recently a book reviewer pointed her moral and adorned her review by telling a story that is known from China to Peru. There were some slight errors in it, however, and purely to keep the record straight, the proper version is given here. The story concerns the well-known Englishman, the German, the Pole and the Frenchman who arranged in a Paris cafe to spend one year in the jungle and then report their findings on the habits of elephants.

At the end of the year they did. According to the version given in the New Statesman, the Englishman produced one volume entitled "With a Rifle Among the Elephants." The German delivered himself of three tombs on "The Psychological and Biological Reaction of Elephants in Their Natural State"; and the Frenchman produced one volume called "The Elephant and His Armours."

It will be noted that the Pole is not included in this recounting of a twice-told tale. Yet there is no doubt that the Pole was actually at the meeting, and formed one of the elephant pact. And the titles of the books produced were slightly different from those given above, although, at the same time, we grant the pertinence of these titles. In the original version the Englishman produced a book bluntly entitled "The Elephant." The German produced three massive volumes called "An Introduction to the Study of the Elephant," while the Polish explorer called his two volumes "The Elephant and It's Relation to the Polish Question."

We do not differ on the Frenchman, except for a suspicion that one of these new up and a-coming publishers got hold of his manuscript, issued the book in a thin, limited edition signed by the author, the illustrator, the printer, the proofreader and maybe the janitor of the building it was printed in; and cleaned up big on the proceeds.

After all, as will be noted, there is little difference in the two versions; but it is just such slight differences that might cause confusion in future historians. And we are quite certain ours is correct, because it was told to us by a man who knew a man who knew the brother of the Pole's second cousin. —Winnipeg Free Press

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON

EPSOM SALTS

When your liver is not working properly it can cause so much general disability that you feel 'half sick' all over the body—tired, gas pains, and a feeling of depression.

Fortunately some time in the long ago it was discovered that what was helpful in a great many cases with these symptoms was a dose of epsom salts.

The idea of giving Epsom salts was that it was such a strong purgative that it cleared out all the wastes in the large intestine. This in itself was worth much to the system, because Dr. Alvarez has shown that when the large intestine is too full of wastes it causes a tired or depressed feeling in the body aside from the absorption of some of this waste matter into the blood.

Another thing about the Epsom salts is that it drains a lot of water out of the body and in this water are poisons in solution.

By removing acids and furnishing alkalies to the system, the Epsom salts are also helpful.

However it is only in emergencies, that the Epsom salts should be used—when liver, gall bladder and intestines are sluggish. Epsom salts taken in regularly in large doses will prevent storage of bile in the gall bladder, will make the liver pour out bile to rapidly, and will thin the blood by taking out much of its richness in food value thereby causing anaemia. It is only an 'emergency remedy.'

Thus research men have been able to make use of Epsom salts in the investigation of the liver and gall bladder. What is known as Lyon's test consists in putting Epsom salts down a tube which goes down through the stomach into the first part of the small intestine into which the bile flows from the liver and gall bladder. The Epsom salts causes the gall bladder to empty itself.

After five minutes, specimens of the bile are withdrawn through the tube.

The first sample that is withdrawn should be of a transparent golden yellow color, and comes from the ducts or tubes leading from liver and gall bladder. The second specimen is darker, thicker and consists of gall bladder bile. The third is thin and watery, coming directly from the liver itself.

By examining the bile coming from these three parts—ducts, gall bladder and liver—the condition of these various parts can be learned.

Remember Epsom salts is an excellent remedy for emergencies but not for regular or daily use.

MISS LEEMING HAS VICTORY

Wins Her Draw in United States Tennis Title Battles

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 15—Stripped of much of its accustomed glamour by the absence of the champion, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, and England's leading stars, the women's United States tennis championship moved through the opening round today with no upsets and very little excitement.

Helen Jacobs, an overwhelming favorite to attain the title she has fought for these many years, was awarded a bye in the initial round. Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper alone of the seeded players failed to brush aside her first rival in two sets. The left-handed star was extended to defeat Eleanor Goss of New York by scores of 6-2, 5-7, 6-3.

Marjorie Leeming, Victoria, former Canadian champion, scored the first victory of the tournament, defeating Anne Page, Philadelphia, 6-2, 2-6, 7-5.

WILLIAMS STILL FASTEST, CANADA

Has Best Sprinter From Dominion in Sprints Despite Beating

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 15—With an uncertain leg, some of his one-time winning speed missing, his Olympic laurels lost, Percy Williams is still the best sprinter in Canada. He showed this beyond question at the Los Angeles Olympics.

Just a shell of the schoolboy wonder who whipped the world's greatest runner twice at Amsterdam in 1928, winning both 100 and 200 metre championships, Williams ran more just as many experts thought he would—desperately, bravely but hopelessly. But he ran better than any other Canadian in the 100-metre dash.

The most disappointing showing of Canadian trackmen was made in the sprints. Eddie Tolan, Michigan Negro boy, captured the 100 and came back to annex the 200 in one of the games' biggest upsets. No Canadian even reached a sprint final. Only one member of the Dominion's print division ran to form. Harold Wright of Edmonton did all that was expected of him, reaching semi-finals in each of his events and running a brilliant leg in the 400-metre relay.

Bert Pearson, sensation of the Canadian tryouts at Hamilton, lost his form and was not a serious contender. The fiery sprinting he showed in the trials seemed to have left the 18-year-old high school boy without enough stamina to match strides with men who shade world and Olympic records in nearly every race.

LOST STAMINA

In the totals Pearson broke the Olympic 100-metre record and equalled the Canadian mark for 200-metres. He may have lost his form during the long train ride to Los Angeles or perhaps international competition is a little too stiff for a school boy. At any rate Pearson was quite two-fifths of a second slower in the 100 here than he was at home.

Fields in the semi-finals of both the 100 and 200 metres were much too fast for Wright and Pearson. Neither could get within yards of such speedsters as Tolan, George Simpson and Ralph Metcalfe of United States; Arthur Jonath of Germany, Daniel Joubert of South Africa. He was fourth, inches behind the South American.

Canadian Olympic officials are confident Pearson is a coming champion. At 18, they point out, he cannot be expected to beat international opposition.

"But Williams?" is the query.

"There was only one Williams. It happened Percy at 19 was faster than any man in the world, but it may be years before another boy can duplicate his feat," believes M. J. (Bobby) Robinson, secretary of the Canadian Olympic committee.

HORSE DIES IN HEAT OF RACE

Jockey Unhurt; Second Horse Breaks Ankle at Ottawa Meet

OTTAWA, Aug. 15—Race track tragedy, that snuffed out the lives of two thoroughbreds, stalked at Connaught park this afternoon.

As eight horses raced around the first turn in the fourth race, J. W. Griffiths' four-year-old chestnut gelding, at random, dropped dead under Jockey Eddie Smith. The boy was hurled heavily to the ground but luckily escaped being trampled as the tail end of the field swept past.

As the field went down the back stretch, C. Crook's three-year-old chestnut gelding, Satan's Pte, was seen to falter, and he finished on three legs, his ankle having been broken in the running. He was destroyed.

Big League BASEBALL

Second Baseman's Duty

By AL DEHAREE

The second baseman is really the "key stone" man of the infield. The majority of the plays in a ball game revolve around him and he is either assisting in the play or making it himself.

Not only does he start a number of double plays but there are several he can make without the assistance of the shortstop. I have shown two of these in the above illustration.

The second baseman should make a study of batters and where they usually hit. He should also watch the catcher's signs to the pitcher carefully, for by following them he can make plays that would otherwise be impossible. On a fast ball be ready to go to his left and on a curve ball sign to his right. With left handed hitters, he does just the opposite. By leaning in the direction he expects the ball to be hit he gains at least a step or more.

Al Demaree has prepared an illustrated leaflet on "The Art of Pitching" which he will gladly send to any reader requesting it.

Address Al Demaree in care of this paper and be sure to enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.

VANCOUVER HIGH JUMPER RETURNS

Olympic Victor Declares It "Tough" to Beat Own Pal

VANCOUVER, Aug. 15 (CP)—The Vancouver boy who won Canada's only victory in the track and field sports at the Olympic games, Duncan McNaughton, is home relaxing after accomplishing one of the greatest upsets of the Los Angeles meet—his triumph in the high jump.

An ironical fact of the Olympic final pitted McNaughton against one of his best friends, a fellow University of California student, Van Osdel.

McNaughton did all his training with "Van" and it was with his help that he made the university team and finally won the California championship with a new intercollegiate record for the state.

"It was tough to have to beat your own pal for a championship like that," Dunc said today

"Some of the American papers rated "Van" away ahead of me, but actually, I have beaten him as often as he has beaten me."

McNaughton reveals that when he and Van Osdel were tied for first place they approached the judges and asked that the first place points be split between them. After four hours of strenuous competition both realized, he says, that it was only a matter of the breaks, and they were content to leave matters as they were. However, the judges ruled that the event must be completed, and he went to clear the bar as his college mate failed, and to win the Olympic laurel wreath.

McNaughton was of the opinion that if the take-off had been a little firmer the record would almost have certainly gone by the boards.

McNaughton will remain in the city until early in September when he will leave again for California to resume his studies. He is endeavoring to qualify as a pretologist. He hopes to obtain a position as a field man for an oil company in the northwest when his course is completed.

HOOKS and SLIDES

by WILLIAM BRAUCHER

Perhaps the picture of broken-down fighters begging for a pittance with which to keep soul and body together has been exaggerted. That may be because I is such an easy sory to write.

Good old Joe Whoozles, in his day hero of many thrilling and gory battles, deserted now by fair weather friends who helped him to spend it when he had it, furnishes a Grade A sob story. It is often forgotten how many fighters have played their cards close to the old vest and finished up with a bank balance sufficient to care for their needs for life.

HEAVY DOUGH

Heavyweight champions seems to have been particularly fortunate. Jim Corbett, in a beautiful home on Long Island, doesn't have to worry about his nickels. Jeffries has a ranch and is prosperous. Jack Johnson has allowed an awful lot of money to slip through his fingers, but he is still able to make a very good living on his name. Tommy Burns is fairly well fixed.

Jess Willard lost a pile in Los Angeles recently, but he has enough laid away to buy plenty of groceries, according to his friends.

Part of Jack Dempsey's roll is planted where it will guarantee him an income for life. Tunney is a millionaire. Max Schmeling is rich enough to consider marrying a Czechoslovakian actress. Sharkey is wealthy and will be as long as he lives.

SITTING PRETTY

In the next flight of fighters, Will Stribling has made hi pile and saved it wisely. Johnny Risko has a trust fund that will take care of his needs if he lives to be a hundred. Tommy Loughran is well set. Offhand, the names of Ernie Schaaf, King Levinsky and K. O. Christner must be added to the list of prosperous ringmen.

Tony Canzoneri has salted away but has a fat bank account and a prosperous cafe in New Orleans.

Sammy Mandell can retire to his home in Rockford, Ill., without fear of missing any meals. Jimmy McLarnin has put away a nice heap of marbles.

PETROLLE IS EXAMPLE

Billy Petrolle, the Fargo express, is an example of the fighter who handles his coin with prudence. While Billy refuses to tell just how much he is worth, his property holdings an other interests are valued around the $200,000 mark. And Billy will take down a nice chunk Aug. 8 when he meets Tony Canzoneri for the lightweight championship.

Petrolle has invested heavily in government bonds, his theory, he says, is "if the country is broke everybody is broke, so what's the difference?"

He is an officer and chief stockholder in the Duluth Ornamental Iron Works. While he doesn't take an active interest in the business, he confided to Henry Hurlye, a Fargo, N. D., newspaperman, that he "has a say-so."

TAKES MORTGAGES

Billy is owner of a great many beautiful homes in West Duluth. Most of these have been obtained through foreclosures on mortgages. Billy is a tiger in the ring—and goes along on the same principles in business.

Billy's wife and four-year-old daughter, Kathleen, have a beautiful home and lack none of the comforts of life. Billy also takes care of his parents. Often he has helped his brothers and sisters financially. Petrolle uses his own noodle. Here's how he explains his business successes:

"I just read up on these things, keep in close touch with bonds and investments, and if I lose I have nobody to blame but myself. If I make I can take the credit."

Billy remembers that life was not so sweet when he toiled in the roundhouse at Dilworth, Minn., and fought at night. He doesn't want to go back to the roundhouse after his ringyears are ended. And it appears he won't.

SHARK LOSES EIGHT TEETH

DIGBY, N. S., Aug. 15 (CP).—There were teeth in the keel.

If you want to go fishing around Digby Gut yo should have a staunch boat, otherwise a shark may bite a piece out of it with consequences too horrible to contemplate.

On Digby beach is now drawn up a boat with eight shark's teeth in the keel—count them—eight. Two fishermen were only saved from being bitten in two by the fact that their boat was of a sufficient thickness to tear the teeth from the shark's jaw and send him away discomfited, prodded by boathocks and wallowed by oars, minus his molars.

The oldest inhabitant recalls a case 45 years ago when two Indians in a canoe waged battle with a shark and came off with the loss of one life. Louis Pictou was the Indian who successfully swam ashore after he had let the shark have both barrels of a shotgun. His companion, exhausted by the struggle, could not reach the beach.

In this epic the shark attacked without warning and bit a piece about two feet in diameter from the hull. Pictou, standing in the bow, took careful aim and let him have it. The shark, discouraged, went away. Thousands of people came to Digby to see the canoe with the hole in the bottom. They are all dead now but hundreds of their descendants have come to see the eight shark's teeth.

CONNAUGHT RIFLE RANGES, Ottawa, Aug. 15 (CP)—Climaxing a day of exciting shooting, Calgary Cadets won the inter-corp match, feature event of today's Dominion of Canada Rifle association's two-day miniature meet. The Calgary team of four Cadets scored an aggregate of 367 points.

GYLES ENTERS THIRD ROUND

Winnipeg Veteran Seems Well on Way to Western Canada Title

WINNIPEG, Aug. 15 (CP).—Taking his second stride on the road to the retention of his western Canada singles title, Walter Gyles, veteran Winnipegger, advanced into the third round of the western Canada hard court tennis championships by downing his youthful fellow-citizen, A. Devlin, 6-1, 3-6, 6-2.

Leadley McMaster's comparatively easy defeat of B. Frissell, Winnipeg, in straight sets, 6-0, 6-4, provided the only other interesting match of the second day of the tournament play. The Calgarian, ranking Canadian netman, is conceded a more than even chance of sweeping the laurels from the brow of the Winnipegger.

Invading women from the plains fared not so well as the men. Mrs. G. McCarthy, Regina, lost to Miss M. Burton, Winnipeg, after winning the first set. The score was 4-6, 6-4, 6-4. Miss E. Ehman, Regina, succumbed to Miss G. T. McDonald, Winnipeg, in straight sets, 6-4, 7-5.

COUNTESS ASKS BIRTH CONTROL

Organized Help or Radical Suicide, Says Lady Limerick, at Brighton Eng.

BRIGHTON, Eng., Aug. 15 (CP).—The importance of state or municipally supervised birth control services was urged by the Countess of Limerick in her presidential address to the maternity, child welfare, and school of hygiene section of the annual congress of the Royal Sanitary Institute here.

Referring to the social aspects of birth control, the countess said that in that field we must guard particularly against sentimentality. "We are having brought home to us increasingly," she said, "the fact that social legislation of recent years has been largely vitiated by sentimentality and false values. Indeed, many of the present problems of eugenics may be traced to the unwisdom and unkindness arising from soft hearts uncontrolled by hard heads.

"One of the first things that strikes a social worker is the amount of avoidable misery found in most poor homes. Most of us believe that a keener sense of responsibility is essential if we are to maintain our pride of citizenship and our efficiency, and most of us believe that the family must remain the social and economic unit. We must concentrate, therefore, on strengthening the sense of parental responsibility from which such qualities spring.

"We must start," declared the countess, "by placing within the reach of the poorer parents—in this regard our main problem—the necessary knowledge and facilities to enable them to organize their family unit on a basis which, while permitting a normal physical life, will not debar them from obtaining a healthier, more responsible, and free existence as citizens.

"Without such organized help we must undoubtedly face a future in which the haphazard bearing of children by the ignorant and uncontolled sections of our population, encouraged by our present social legislation, will inflict on posterity the inescapable sentence of racial suicide.

"I suggest as a proper object of state expenditure a service which I believe to be self-liquidating and productive of positive benefits to the community, and I submit without fear of serious contradiction that a service which mitigates the evils of unfit mothers, uneconomic families, and useless citizens will reduce the need for many of the curative and preventive services which are now maintained at public expense. A true profit and loss account on this question would show a big credit in favor of centers giving contraceptive and gynaecological advice. I am strongly in favor of maintaining birth-control institutions as far as possible on a contributory basis, but I desire to see them under state or municipal supervision and receiving grants in aid to provide for the necessitous.

"Objection is occasionally raised to the use of public funds for a service which is controversial on religious grounds, but it is not a question of forcing a minority opinion in a matter of Christian ethics; such a service would be permissive. To use our growing medical knowledge and social experience in a matter so vital as birth control is not to degrade human nature, but is to raise it from the level of thoughtless and brutal procreation, no longer modified by nature's normal corrective, and survival of the fittest, to a new plane in the history of man's development," The countess said it was in the interests of the race to produce a limited number of healthy children rather than an unlimited number who were weaklings and a charge on the community.

The Chinese postal service is the oldest institution of its kind in the world, dating back at least to the Chou dynasty, 1122 B.C., when despatches were carried to the far corners of the empire by foot and mounted couriers. This courier system was known as the "Ichan" and this existed continuously in one form or another for more than 3000 years.

Nelson Hatchery Winds Up Spring Campaign on Four Species

KAMLOOPS TROUT EGGS SHIPPED IN

Cutthroat From Cranbrook; Over 40 Waters Are Stocked

NELSON HATCHERY OUTPUT, 1932
Eastern brook trout	240,117
Rainbow trout	358,999
Kamloops trout	257,099
Cutthroat trout	94,512
Total of all species	950,727

Distribution of eggs and fry of various trout species from the spring campaign of the Dominion fish hatchery at Nelson aggregated 950,727 individuals, according to the report of P. B. Stratton, officer in charge. These figures cover the eastern brook trout, rainbow or mountain trout, Kamloops trout, and cutthroat trout.

The collection of eggs of the Kokanee, redfish, or silver trout, will begin late this month, inaugurating the fall campaign.

Over one-third the eggs and fry sent out by the hatchery originated outside the district, comprising both the Kamloops trout and the cutthroat trout.

MORE BIG FELLOWS

In past years the Gerrard hatchery has shared its Kamloops trout eggs with the Nelson hatchery, which has made the distribution for this part of the district after bringing them to the stage of eyed eggs and fry. This year the entire Gerrard collection has been handled in the troughs at Gerrard, to replenish the stock of "salmon" in Kootenay lake, while the Nelson hatchery received its Kamloops trout eggs from the Lloyd's creek hatchery in the Kamloops section. The eggs shipped in amounted to 267,500, and the distribution from them was 257,099, the difference being the working loss.

Thirteen areas in West Kootenay benefitted by this Kamloops trout importation, including Crawford Bay and the West Arm, both of which are arms of Kootenay lake.

In the case of the cuthroat trout, the source of supply was the Cranbrook hatchery, jointly maintained by the Cranbrook Rod and Gun club and the fish culture branch, from which 95,000 eyed eggs were received here. They were further developed here, and then distributed to six waters, one of which was Cathedral lake, in the Okanagan. This has been the only planting from the Nelson hatchery this season to go outside the West Kootenay-Boundary territory, with the exception of two planting of eastern brook trout fry in the Windermere—in Enid and Eileen lakes.

The rainbow trout—formerly called on the records here the mountain trout—had their origin in Cottonwood and Six Mile lakes, while the eastern brook trout eggs were collected from spawners in Rosebud lake.

Over 40 waters in West Kootenay and Boundary have been stocked from the Nelson hatchery from the spring campaign, now over, the details of the distribution being as follows:

HUME JUNIORS BEAT FAIRVIEW

Win Last League Game 8-3 for Third Place; Enter Playoffs

Hume Juniors Sunday afternoon defeated the Fairview A. C. squad in the last game of city Junior league 8-3 to take third place in the league and to earn the right to meet the Falcons, second place holders, in the playoffs. The junior game was played following the senior's exhibition game with Ione and many of the senior game spectators stayed for the junior battle.

PITCHERS GOOD

Although the field work of both teams deserved the hand it received from the stands, pitchers held the game in their fingers most of the time. "Slim" Horswill, lanky Hume hurled, disappointed 13 Fairview batters while "Steve" Smith waved 12 Hume sluggers back to the benches.

Tanny Romano, Hume center fielder, starred in the field while Bob "Speedy" Bell and "Slim" Horswell were Hume's hitting menaces Sunday.

Hume held the Fairview team to one lone run until the seventh when Haines and Scott scored for Fairview and Smith struck out with Duffy and Wilson on bases.

Players with individual scores were—

Hume—Tanny Romano, 1; Tom Bird, 1; Harry Stirzaker, 1; "Slim" Horswell, 2; Bob Bell, 1; Ted Romano; Jones, 1; Bates,1; Aurelio.

Fairview A. C.—Scott, 2; Duffy, Wilson; Steve Smith; Renwick, Archie Bishop, Haines 1; Forenholtz; Ed Waterer.

Umpires—Elmer Gustafson, 'Lefty' Gillett, and E. Gibbon.

British Conversion Loan Is Success

Amount Converted Is Approximately Eight Billions of Dollars

LONDON, Aug. 15 (AP).—The government announced today that the amount converted under the war loan conversion scheme now is approximately £1,850,000,000 (currently $7,770,000,000). Officials described his as a highly satisfactory result.

Options in the conversion operation continue until the end of September, after which all holders who have neither converted their stock nor applied for cash redemption will be deemed to have accepted the new conditions of 3½ per cent securities, redeemable in 20 years.

Government circles expect beneficial results for British finance and industry from the successful conversion and the effects it will have on Britain's credit before the world.

The conversion is expected to relieve the 1933 budget to the extent of £23,000,000 (currently $96,000,000).

POUND STERLING CLOSE UNCHANGED

NEW YORK, Aug. 15 (CP).—The pound sterling closed unchanged at $4.48¼ for cable transfers on local foreign exchanges today after opening at $3.47⅞ to $3.48.

The Canadian dollar started the week fractionally lower, closing at 86 15-16c, 1-16c lower than Saturday's close. The dollar opened unchanged at 86c.

RAILWAYS MEET TRUCK CHARGES

TORONTO, Aug. 15—New and lower freight rates for shipment of live stock within a radius of 150 miles of Toronto were in effect today on the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways. The new rates were put into effect to meet competition by trucking companies which had been carrying cattle at prices below those charged by the railways.

BULLS ACTIVE, TORONTO LIST

Nickel, C.P.R., Smelters, Show Strength in Final Burst of Day

TORONTO, Aug. 15.—There was a buoyant tone at the close of the Toronto stock exchange today, with stocks that had been rising still in demand.

Canadian Pacific and International Nickel were chiefly in demand, with the heaviest buying in evidence just before the close. Nickel sold up to 9½ and closed at 9¾, with a net gain of ¾. Smelters also closed with a net gain of 2⅜ at 71½. In the case of C. P. R., the day's net gain was 1⅞ at its close of 16¾.

While improvement in other parts of the traded list was more moderate, all groups felt the effect of renewed buying sentiment. Bell Telephone at 95 was up 1, and Canadian General Electric preferred was up 1¼ at its close of 52¼. In the steel section, Page-Hersey was up 1 to 54. Ford of Canada was up ⅜ to close at 9½.

There was also strength and moderate demand in connection with domestic farm implement issues. Beatty Bros. common was up 2¾, to close at 8, the preferred gaining 9 at 50.

In the oil section, British American was off ⅛ at 10¼. Imperial gained ⅛, Pete at 12½ was up ⅛, following announcement of the regular dividend to be paid again in new funds.

Beverage issues were irregular, although a generally firm undertone was maintained. Canadian Industrial Alcohol "A" was off ⅛ to 2, while the "B" gained ⅛ to 1⅛. Distillers-Seagrams at 7 was up ¼.

C. AND E. CORP. RAISES THREE

Premier, Reno, A. P. Con. All Up One Point; Nickel Firm Trader

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 15.—Trading extended over a wide list of issues, with prices generally firm to higher, on the Vancouver stock exchange today. At the close gains ranged from fractions to a point, with an extreme gain of 3 in one case. C. & E. Corporation at 33 was up 3. Premier at 63, Reno at 43 and A. P. Consolidated at 10 were each up 1. Lorne Gold and Royalite advanced ¼ each at 8¾ and 6¼ respectively. International Nickel was a firm trader, closing up ¾ at 9¼.

Georgia River, the most active issue of the session, eased 1 to close at 2¾.

COPPER PRICES EASE, NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—It was reported in copper circles today that metal is being offered in the export market at 5.425c a pound. This shades the recently established quotation of 5.45c by Copper Exporters, Inc. Previously, Copper Exporters quoted 5.50c to 5.55c.

In the domestic market prices have eased slightly, with the price again at 5⅝c delivered to the end of 1932. Demand is less active and more agencies are willing to sell at 5⅛c as against the 5⅜c to 5½c quotation in effect last week.

WOOD PULP PRODUCTION

OTTAWA, Aug 15.—Over three-quarters of the wood pulp produced in Canada in 1930 was manufactured and used in mills which use their own pulp for the production of paper. About 21 per cent of the total quantity of pulp produced was made for export.

EXCHANGE RATES

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Sterling exchange steady at $3.46½ for 60-day bills and at $3.48 for demand. Canadian dollars 13 1-16 per cent discount.

WHEAT FUTURES MOVE UP CENT

Strong Liverpool Cables Aid; Cash Trade Slow at Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Aug. 15 (CP).—Strong Liverpool cables teamed up with good outside support to produce advances of an even cent in all wheat futures on the grain exchange here today.

October closed at 59½, December at 60⅝ to 60¾, and May at 65½.

Very little actual export business could be traced to pit operations, but there appeared to be moderately good support of another kind, and prices showed gains of 1¾c at the high points, which held stubbornly even in the closing minutes, when a little more wheat came out. Liverpool's strength seemed attributable to a bullish statistical position.

Hedging pressure did not assume large proportions, although the movement in the country is steadily increasing and elevator companies will soon be offering freely.

Trading in cash wheat during the morning was slow. Demand for the top grades of red spring wheat continued good, but offerings were very light and sales were restricted. Cash interest in all coarse grain commodities was light, and the only business reported done was a small export trade in barley and a few odd cars of oats for domestic use.

GAINS FROM $1 TO $7, NEW YORK

Trading in Small Volume; Upturn One of Most Sweeping

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—The stock market leaped forward today in one of the most sweeping upturns of the year, which erased most of the losses of the last half of last week and carried the general level back close to the peak of summer recovery.

Trading was in small volume. In fact it was the smallest for a full session in nearly a fortnight, but the sag since last Wednesday appeared to have left a vacuum on the upside, and prices snapped back with little effort. Net gains ranged from $1 to $7 a share in prominent issues.

Other markets performed more conservatively than stocks, but bonds and the principal commodities were mostly steady to firm. Checking of the recent decline in wheat had a stimulating effect in speculative quarters. That staple, taking its cue from the Liverpool market, advanced about 1c a bushel in Chicago. Cotton, hides, coffee, rubber and silver bullion were also worked a little higher in the New York markets.

Stocks appeared to be influenced primarily by cessation of the selling which had appeared late last week.

WHEAT PRICES GO UP, CHICAGO

Curtailment of Amount Wheat Afloat Helps Stimulate Gains

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Higher prices for wheat today in Chicago accompanied New York stock market upturns, together with a sharp advance of wheat quotations at Liverpool.

wheat afloat for importing countries

Big curtailment of the amount of helped stimulate price gains. There were also reports of a wet harvest in Russian winter wheat territory, as well as continuing crop deterioration in the Russian spring wheat region.

Wheat closed unsettled, but at almost the day's top, ¾ to 1¼ above Saturday's finish; corn, ⅛ to ⅜ up; oats, at ⅜ decline to ⅜ advance, and provisions unchanged to 5c higher.

A striking bullish development was that the amount of wheat on ocean passage totalled only about half as much as at this time last year. The decrease in the last week was 2,664,000 bushels, making the supply afloat 24,508,000 bushels, the smallest in a long time. Export trade advices, however, were bearish, European continental demand being small, in spite of the fact that stocks of wheat abroad are now ultra-light.

Indications pointed to reduced estimates of Italy's wheat crop, and this was regarded as balancing larger crops in France and Germany. There were signs, though, denoting that estimates of European import requirements would be slashed. Meanwhile, the United States wheat visible supply increased 1,543,000 bushels, and crop reports from Canada, especially territory whose harvest operations are latest, were favorable.

BOND TRADING OFF, NEW YORK

Low Priced Rails and and Some Utilities Show Some Gains

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—The bond market maintained a firm position today, although the trading volume was the smallest in around two weeks.

Price gains were recorded by some of the low-priced rails and various utilities.

The industrials were quiet and steady.

United States treasury loans were soft. Foreign issues had a slightly irregular trend. The Germans finished all even and the British and French were steady.

BUSINESS SEEKS ANSWER TO DEPRESSION RIDDLE

Many Factors Now Point to Upturn But Fundamentals of Business Recovery Must Not Be Overlooked

"Is business on the upturn?"

"How long will the depression last?"

These are questions everyone has been asking for the past two years or more and although as yet there is very little favorable statistical evidence available, there is little doubt that the general tone of business sentiment has improved markedly in the past few weeks, particularly in Canada.

NINE FAVORABLE SIGNS

Here are a few of the more outstanding favorable omens which are helping to induce a better sentiment and replace doubt and fear by courage and confidence.

1. The rise in agricultural, particularly livestock prices which will materially aid farm buying power.

2. The first important upswing in wholesale commodity prices generally, that has occurred since 1925.

3. Constructive influence of Lausanne conference indicates real strides made toward world cooperation and the prospect of an early removal of the war debt-reparation incubus which has been gradually strangling world business for the past decade.

4. Empire parley at Ottawa and subsequent world economic parley which it is confidently believed will clear the clogged channels of empire and world trade.

5. In the United States where domestic and international relations must be improved to pave the way for permanent economic recovery on this continent, several factors are noteworthy:

(a) Saner attitude on war debt question exemplified by Borah manifesto.

(b) Raid on the dollar successfully met and ended. This indicates that confidence in the U. S. dollar has been re-established both in United States and abroad.

(c) Adjournment of congress removes uncertainty and enables business to act and plan more freely.

Two great national industries, namely oil and railways, have made substantial progress in putting their house in order and are showing definite improvement along sound economic lines.

6. Prospect of a good crop of wheat in Canada ensures wide distribution of purchasing power even though return to individual farmer may be small. Also ensures widespread activity for transportation and other industries directly dependent on the crop.

7. Bond prices have gained 15 per cent in the past month on the basis of Dow-Jones averages. Market prices of leading industrial stocks are now roughly 50 per cent higher than the low points of a month ago. The entire security market is on a much firmer basis and the recent success of the British conversion loan is heralded as an important indication of a new atmosphere of confidence in financial matters.

8. Foreign exchanges display more stability indicating prospect of less disturbance to foreign trade from this source.

9. Consumption running ahead of production. General production has been cut far below the rate of consumption. Inventories are very low, and real shortages are developing in some lines. Manufacturers,' wholesalers', and retailers' supplies are small. Just as hog and cattle prices are now advancing because shortage was allowed to develop many other commodities can easily move upward on the slightest buying movement.

HOW ABOUT FUNDAMENTAL FACTORS?

Thus the economic and fiscal background for fall business is undoubtedly brighter than it has been for some time. But there have been false starts before and once the seasonal impetus of fall buying has been spent and the bullish propaganda which is already evident on a large scale as the necessary background of a United States presidential election, has shot its bolt, what will prevent a further lapse in economic depression and stagnation?

In other words, to quote Hugh Bancroft, publisher of the Wall Street Journal and head of the Dow-Jones services, it is not sufficient to answer the question 'How much longer will the depression last?' by merely saying what has been said with intermittent regularity for the past two years. "The worst of the depression is behind us; from now on things should improve."

What is needed is a really frank answer, and in his opinion the only real answer to question is: "That depends." It depends, he says, upon how much longer it will take to accomplish those things that must be accomplished before business can revive.

"Those things are extremely distasteful to a great many people," he says. "In the past three years an enormous effort, much of it successful, has been expended in hindering, delaping, and preventing the accomplishment of those things that must be accomplished before sustained recovery can set in. There are four prerequisites to business recovery. To estimate accurately the length of the depression one must be able to foretell how much longer it will be before they are accomplished. These four things are:

WAGE SCALES

"Wage scales generally must be adjusted to levels not higher than those prevailing in 1917. The same is true of the related items as salaries and rents.

TAXATION

"Federal, state and municipal budgets must be balanced with expenditures and taxes reduced not less than 25 per cent.

INTERNATIONAL PAYMENTS

"Reparation and war debt payments must be completely suspended for a considerable term of years. Final settlement of these obligations must be made in some other way than by the payment of gold or its equivalent.

TARIFFS

"World tariffs as a whole must be revised where they have destroyed international trade without creating equivalent domestic trade."—Financial Post.

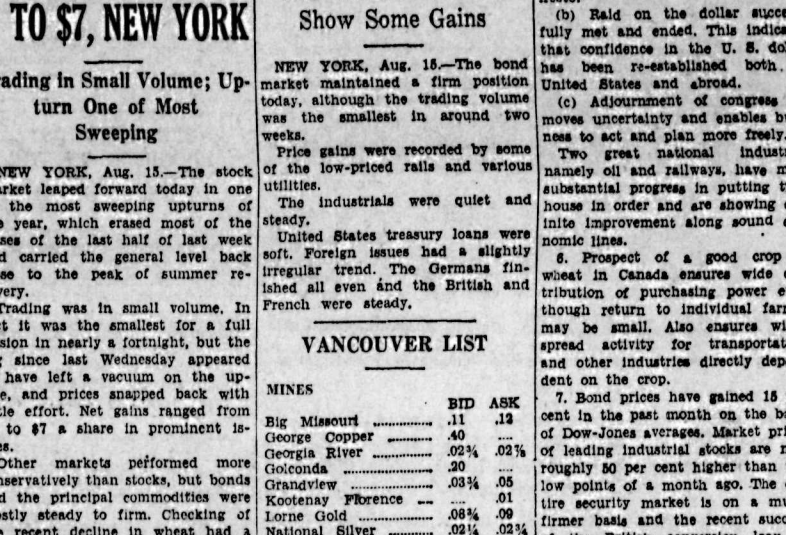
Inventor Shows War Machine That Jumps!



If the claims of Inventor J. Walter Christie, left, are borne out, tanks like the one shown here would become the terrors of another war. For this machine, he says, not only can travel over rough country at the rate of a mile a minute, but can leap over obstacles eight feet high or ditches 30 feet wide. And it also is light enough to be carried by a bombing plane. The tank here is pictured during a demonstration for U. S. army officers at Linden, N. J. Tested on a highway, using its wheels instead of caterpillar treads, it attained a speed of 110 miles an hour. Its jumping ability, not yet demonstrated, is said to be due to a powerful spring device under the machine.

VEGETABLE AND FRUIT STEADY

U. S. A. Canteloupes Invade B.C. Market; Lots Spuds in Alberta

VICTORIA, Aug. 15—The fruit and vegetable market has held steady during the week with few changes in prices. Field tomatoes are quoted at $1.25 for No. 1. Some nice local plums, Golden variety are selling at $2 per box. The last of the Okanagan cherries, for this season, are on the market. Carrots are selling at $1 per sack. Local Duchess apples are quoted at $1 to $1.25 per box. There is an abundant supply of vegetable marrow and green peas on the market.

Vancouver—Australian oranges and lemons are here. The market is conspicuously bare of California oranges just now as dealers have been reducing their stocks in anticipation of the Australian shipments. Okanagan apricots are now off the market. Okanagan canteloupes are due on the market in carlots in a few days. In the meantime canteloupes are coming in from Washington despite the increased duty. Dealers will not handle Honeydews and Casabas at the advanced prices. Canteloupes, Jumbos 36's, are offered at $4.50 per crate. Local corn on the cob is becoming available. Walla Walla onions are off the market and they are replaced by Okanagan onions which are offered at $1.75 to $2 per 100 pounds. Field tomatoes are now offered at 75 cents to $1.25 depending on grade.

Calgary—A fairly general rain over central and southern Alberta, makes the crop outlook much better. Raspberry prices firmed up considerably during the week. Jobbers are quoting $2.50 to $2.75 per crate. Blackberry receipts are comparatively small but enough to satisfy the demand. The strawberry movement is sluggish. The potato market is weak with plenty Alberta Whites offering under $1 per 100 pounds delivered. The future potato market looks like a repetition of last year's low prices as Alberta expects a heavy yield on a large acreage both north and south. Field tomatoes and onions are practically the only vegetables on the market not grown within the province.

BASE METALS ARE ACTIVE, TORONTO

Oils Listless; Teck Hughes Gains; McIntyre Takes Soft Turn

TORONTO, Aug. 15.—Mixed prices with minor gains featured the movement of shares on the Standard stock and mining exchange for the opening session of the week. Leaders in the metal groups showed an edge of firmness, while oils were listless.

The base metal group was favored in the trading list, with all the leaders closing with favorable gains. International Nickel and Noranda were under accumulation. Nickel jumped 55c to $9.30; Noranda recovered 25c to $19.10; Coast Copper advanced 25c to $2.25; while Base Metals fell 10c to 85c and Hudson Bay lost 5c to $2.70. Teck-Hughes rose 2 points in moderate trading to close at $4.02; Mining Corporation was firm, moving up 5 points to $1.60, and Dome advanced a like amount to $12. McIntyre turned soft, closing down 25c to $18.75, while other issues in the group were featureless.

CARRIERS NULIFY COLUMBIA BASIN DIFFERENTIAL

OLYMPIA, Wash., Aug. 15—The state department of public works today ordered carriers serving the southeast Washington wheat district to establish intra-state rates comparable with the inter-state tariffs now in effect between the district and Portland.

In a statement accompanying the department's order Fred K. Baker, director of the department, said the new rates would have the effect of nullifying the so-called Columbia basin differential, long a controversial question between Portugal and Puget sound ports.

The order directs the Northern Pacific, Oregon Washington Railroad and Navigation company and the Spokane, Portland, Seattle railway, to place the lower rates in effect on or before September 5, 1932.

TYLER INVITES ROTARY BODY TO CITY, 1933

Reports to Club on District Assembly Held at Salem, Ore.

CANADIAN WORK IS TOPIC OF MEETING

Main Gathering Hears Many Able Discussions; Varied Entertainment

Reporting to the Nelson Rotary club Monday on the proceedings of the Rotary district assembly at Salem, Ore., which he attended August 8 and 9, the gathering consisting of presidents and secretaries, President C. W. Tyler stated it was announced that Victoria would get the district convention, the date yet to be fixed, last year's, which was originally fixed for Victoria, having been foregone on account of the Rotary international.

He seized the opportunity, he said, after conferring with the Canadian delegates, to invite the district assembly to Nelson for 1933. The actual decision, he stated, would rest with the next district governor, who would fix the place and date. Wenatchee, Wash., also had an invitation in, but of later date.

Of the 71 clubs in this Rotary district, all were represented at Salem but 15, and the assembly, over which District Governor William Gilchrist Jr. presided, was a splendid success. Salem being the state capital, the legislative chamber was used as the assembly hall.

NELSON MOVE IMPRESSES

President Tyler said he spoke to the Canadian delegates regarding Nelson's move regarding naturalization, and they were much impressed, and said they would like to be furnished with copies of the letter in which the suggestion for making naturalization something impressive was referred to the Canadian advisory council, so that their clubs could take action if deemed advisable. He therefore recommended that copies be sent to the clubs as requested.

At a session of the Canadian delegates with James Horn, the work of the Canadian advisory council was outlined. Two matters discussed were the advisability of procuring high class speakers, whose expenses on tour should be shared among the clubs benefitted, and the desirability of deciding which among the six versions of "O Canada" should be used by the Rotary clubs of the Dominion. The delegates were unanimously against the Weir version, Mr. Tyler reported.

From a session of the secretaries came a request for reduction of the per capita tax from $2 to $1. The governor promised a reduction of the district expenses so that not more than $1 would be asked from each club per member.

FELLOWSHIP IDEAS

One of the points stressed by President Tyler was the possibility of developing the fellowship work by various devices. One suggestion was that members should be seated by those of similar classification; another was that the president should ask guests if the club could do anything for them. To prevent groups of intimate friends sitting together, Revelstoke club reported it used place cards, which were dropped by the secretary on the plates indiscriminately, the members hunting up their cards.

Another subject of special interest to President Tyler was that of making the most of new members. While in most clubs new members were accepted on the theory that they believed Rotary had something for them, and were then very often let alone, to be active or inactive on their own initiative, the Vancouver club had a system for letting every new member hear a talk on Rotary, and for presenting him with a framed copy of the Rotary Code of Ethics. President Tyler favored requiring new members to report for their committees at the earliest opportunity, and to see that they were injected into the activities.

He said both the governor and the past governors laid stress on retaining good members, and on stretching the classifications if necessary to keep them. Rotary, they said, needed men more than it needed classifications.

MODEL CLUB MEETING

An interesting feature was the exemplification of a model club assembly, the Salem club being used for illustration, with the governor quizzing the committeemen.

President Tyler described the numerous and unique entertainment features of the two days, including the presidents' breakfast, presided over by Estes (Pete) Snedecor, the luncheon with the Salem club, luncheon at the Country club, tea at the home of President W. L. Phillips of Salem, all of these being the occasion of valuable addresses, of which he gave some notes.

SECRECY SHROUDS PROGRESS ON THE WHEAT BOARD PLAN

CALGARY, Aug. 15.—A veil of secrecy completely enshrouds discussions for the establishment of a national wheat board. Called together to lay the foundation for the creation of a board similar to that which operated in the post-war years of 1919-21, representatives of the governments of Alberta and Saskatchewan and the three western wheat pools met and as silently stole away.

If any decisions have been arrived at, they have been closely guarded.

Authorities in France are now working a rigid ch[illegible] on all foreigners, with secret police riding on all international trains to bar violations of passports. Sojourners are now required to have police cards after two weeks' residence.
