SUGGEST RAIL SYSTEM MIGHT BE UNITED YET

Ottawa Discusses Joining of C. N. R. and C. P. R.

TWO SYSTEMS ARE DRAWN TOGETHER

Joint Action of Two Presidents Is Responsible

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 17.—Discussing the problems of the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National Railway companies, the Financial Post, in a despatch from Montreal, today says:

"While Ottawa frankly discusses amalgamation of the C. N. R. and C. P. R., while the announcement of the proposed royal commission on railways hangs fire, the two systems are being brought closer together by joint action on the part of Sir Henry Thornton, chairman of the C. N. R., and Edward W. Beatty, chairman of the C. P. R., to trim expenses, avoid new capital commitments, eliminate duplication and otherwise solve common problems. But the railway presidents are hampered by public indifference, sectional jealousy and political control —three troubles for which the remedy is believed to be a royal commission of inquiry.

"But despite the difficulties, progress is being made and announcements of vital importance to the railways and users of railway service will shortly be made in Ottawa and Montreal."

APPEAL TO LABOR MINISTER TO AID STRIKE SITUATION

ESTEVAN, Sask., Sept. 17—With no prospects of a settlement of the difficulties between the coal miners and the mine operators in the Estevan-Beinfait lignite fields, Mayor Banmatyne of Estevan, and Joseph Hill, Reeve of Coalfield R. M. No. 4, have appealed to Hon. G. D. Robertson, federal minister of labor for a board to arbitrate the question and bring about operation of mines in the lignite field. Mine operators have consented to meet mine workers in a conference at Estevan tonight to discuss a basis on which the miners might return to work.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 17. (CP)—Officials of the department of labor declined to comment tonight on the request of Mayor Bannatyne of Estevan, Sask., for a board of arbitration to settle the strike of coal miners in that section. Senator G. D. Robertson, minister of labor, to whom the mayor addressed his request, could not be reached tonight for a statement.

EMPLOYEES OF COAST SAWMILL GO ON STRIKE

Walkout Follows Rejection of Demands for Increased Wages

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Sept. 17.—Canadian Western Lumber company's big sawmill on the Fraser river was closed indefinitely today following a strike for money wages and disturbances by alleged agitators, for Vancouver.

Late tonight, picketing was maintained by the strikers and orders have been issued to the New Westminster police to be on hand tomorrow morning in the event of a further demonstration.

Henry J. MacKin, managing director stated tonight that no effort would be made by the company to re-open the plant. He said that recently the mill had been operating on short time and the plant was only kept open to aid in alleviating unemployment.

The walkout followed the rejection of demands from the men for increases in the wage scale. This morning the strikers congregated around the mill entrance. A detachment of police were rushed from here during the morning but their services were unnecessary.

Liquor Warehouse Blast Starts a $10,000 Blaze

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 17 (AP)—Explosion of two large liquor stills in a warehouse here late today scattered flaming debris that started fires in a dozen or more nearby dwellings and sent hundreds of persons fleeing for safety. Several firemen were slightly burned but first reports indicated no one was killed.

After preliminary investigation by federal prohibition agents, police and fire department officials, Chief Field Agent Thomas Nee of the government prohibition bureau, said he had evidence rivalry between two bootlegging organizations was responsible for the blast.

Nine fire companies were called before the flames at the warehouse and the neighboring residences were extinguished.

Fire department officials estimated loss resulting from the explosion at $10,000, not including the distillery.

U. S. [illegible] JUSTICE GIVEN DISGRACE LABEL

American Lawyer Calls It a "National Disgrace"

LAW INSTITUTE STUDYING CODES

Think Re-Stating Law Is Basis for Readjustment

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 17. (AP)—Prohibition had its brief moment at tthe American Bar association convention today when the subject was dismissed with the official reading of the association's year-old poll favoring repeal.

It was the first time the vote obtained in a referendum last October had been given to the association in convention assembled and was proferred without comment.

The convention took no action, nor did it discuss the vote, which showed almost 14,000 members favoring repeal and 6340 opposed.

William Draper Lewis, director of the American Law institute, in an address, called criminal justice in this country a "national disgrace." Lewis said the lawyer had a greater responsibility for reformation of this condition than has any other class.

STUDYING CODES

The American Law institute is participating in a scientific study of the criminal codes with a view to restating the law as a basis for readjustment of the law.

The advice of George Washington to the first continental congress that public distilleries be built to make liquor for the revolutionary army was related to the association by Charles A. Boston, president of the association, in his opening address to the convention. Boston suggested if the advice had been fol*lowed America probably would have* no prohibition problem.

Three prominent lawyers representing France, Canada and the United States made a joint plea for international amity and understanding.

They were W. D. Herridge, Canadian minister to the United States; Fernand Payen, leader of the Paris bar, and William D. Guthrie, past president of the association.

MacDONALD NOT WORRIED ABOUT LABOR REQUEST

LONDON, Sept. 17 (C P cable)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald is not taking very seriously the resolution of the local Labor executive in Seaham, Durham, the constituency he represents in parliament, calling on him to resign his seat as a consequence of breaking with the Labor party.

The resolution, indeed, was only carried by 40 votes to 39. Mr. MacDonald had an overwhelming majority in Seaham in the last elections. In a letter to the local executive tonight he taunts them with being "anxious" and not affording him any chance of a hearing.

The prime minister added he does not regard the vote of the local parts as guidance to him or to anyone, and so he proposes to let the matter rest there.

Montreal Soprano Plays New Role

CHOSEN AS QUEEN OF THE ORIENT AT THE C. N. E.

Choice of a girl to play the role of Queen Aria in Canadian National exhibition spectacle, "Orientia," fell on Cedia Brault, of Montreal, a soloist with the Grenadier Guards band of that city. Miss Brault is a striking brunette, fairly tall, of regal poise and presence, and has a soprano voice of rare power and color. Her singing ability, as well as her charming appearance, fitted her for the role, which calls for singing of a grand opera caliber. There were many candidates for the role from all parts of the country. Miss Brault sang last year when the Grenadier Guards were a feature of the C. N. E.

GANDHI THINKS PARLEY GETTING NOWHERE AS YET

May Even Withdraw From the Conference; Too Much Debating

LONDON, Sept. 17 (By Alvin Hallman, Associated Press staff writer)—Mahatma Gandhi, who has sat with his legs tucked under him during the sessions of the federal structures committee of the round table conference since Monday, listening to much debate, occasionally sipped goat's milk and saying nothing except for one address, today protested that the proceedings were leading "practically nowhere."

The committee, he declared, has become a "debating society." The deliberations are "interminable." A feeling of oppression has been growing on him from the very beginning.

He hinted that he might not remain complacent. His advisers have learned that the long discussion of details of the proposals for India's new government have made him restless, and already there has been talk that he considered withdrawing.

The mahatma declared at today's meeting that the committee seems to be composed "not of the chosen ones of the nations they should be representing, but of the chosen ones of the government."

His second reason for complaint was that "these proceedings seem to me to be interminable and to be leading us practically nowhere. If we go on at this rate I do not know that we shall proceed beyond having discussed threadbare and various points raised."

His third "gentle, humble complaint" was against "His Majesty's advisers," who, he said, failed to lay their cards on the table and to "give the members of the committee a lead."

DEMANDS THAT COURT RETURN ALL HIS BEER

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 17.—The province must give Charles Spearenberg his beer back or Charlie will know the reason why. Unless the beer to the amount of 28 pints is returned to him pronto. Charlie promises to take the matter to court.

A year ago. Spearenberg was charged by a provincial traffic officer with keeping liquor for sale. Although the charge was dismissed, the court recommended his liquor permit be cancelled. Spearenberg had to hand 28 pints of beer over to the police, because he could not legally have it without a permit.

Now the board has returned Spearenberg's permit and he claims he should get his beer back. He was at the court house today to "see about it."

TOLMIE NAMES MARKET BODY

Lougheed, Hinchliffe and Atkinson to Form Extension Committee

VICTORIA, Sept. 17—Premier Tolmie named the market extension committee of the cabinet today as follows: Mon. N. S. Lougheed, chairman, Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe, and Hon. William Atkinson. The special committee, which is the third group of the cabinet to be detailed to add[illegible] duties this year will examine all means of aiding stimulation by private enterprises of Empire and world markets for British Columbia goods.

The unemployment committee, facing the largest task before any single cabinet group in a long while, and home products committee created to foster increased home consumption of British Columbia goods are the other groups.

FORGET ABOUT NAVAL TROUBLE SAYS SEA LORD

Naval Discipline Act Will Deal With Future Trouble

THINKS DISCIPLINE SHOWS UP WELL

Attack From the Labor Benches Does Not Materialize

LONDON, Sept. 17. (Canadian and Associated Press cable)—"The past is past," declared Sir Austen Chamberlain, first lord of the admiralty, in the house of commons this evening. "It is in the interests of the men in the navy and those outside the navy to forget it."

Sir Austen was opening the debate on the reductions in naval pay which the Laborite opposition had clamored for since yesterday. The debate was short-lived. The expected attack from the Labor benches failed to materialize. After brief statements from one or two private members who followed Sir Austen, the matter was by general consent allowed to drop.

SPEAKS WELL

"It speaks well for general discipline," said Sir Austen, "that the matter should have passed so quietly with no disturbance except in the usual routine of duty." He emphasized the intention of the ad*miralty to investigate all cases of* hardship arising from any reductions, and he intimated that men involved in the unrest would not suffer penalties.

Earlier in the day Sir Austen stated that if any more naval ratings refused to obey orders they would immediately be dealt with under the Navy Discipline act. A few ironical questions came from the Labor members, one of whom wanted to know whether the cuts had been provisionally approved by the late Labor government. Sir Austen replied that he found instructions to make the cuts awaiting him when he took office as first lord of the admiralty last month.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald said the Labor government had been told by the admiralty that the men would accept the cuts loyally.

The ships of the Atlantic fleet tonight were steaming southward from Invergordon to their home ports.

BEOTHIC RETURNS

NORTH SYDNEY, N. S., Sept. 17. (CP)—Back from her yearly journey into the regions of berg and floe and hardihood, the steamer Beothic came to her dock here today. Seven weeks had elapsed since the government's supply ship pointed northward with supplies and relief for the police posts, medical stations and scientific expeditions scattered throughout Canada's vast Arctic archipelago.

To reconcile her for the loss of the husky which used to be her pet in northern Ontario, Cecelia now has a toy Boston dog called Queen Madge; a jet black kitten, Bob; a mud-turtle, Pete, and three canaries. The little Canadian is now busy with preparations for a new talkie.

FIRST BOATLOAD OF WHEAT SAILS FROM CHURCHILL

Has Cargo of 277,000 Bushels of Number Two Northern Wheat

CHURCHILL, Man., Sept. 17 (By Gillis Purcell, Canadian Press staff writer)—First boat load of prairie grain to traverse the Hudson Bay bound for overseas starts its history-making journey tomorrow. Loaded with exactly 277,000 bushels of number two northern wheat, the steamer Farnworth is to leave Churchill at high tide before mid-day.

The steamer, chartered by the Canadian government to handle half of a 540,000 bushel trial shipment by the Bay route, lay at the dock today as grain trimmers filled thousands of bags with grain in bow and stern holds to prevent cargo shifting. Her sister ship, the Warkworth, to be loaded with the remainder of the test shipment, rode high ahead of the same dock.

ASK PROVINCIAL TOWN PLANNING BUREAU

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Sept. 17—Appointment of a provincial town planning bureau will again be asked of the provincial government by the Union of British Columbia Municipalities it was decided today. This request was made to the government at the last session of the legislature, but the municipal committee of the house deferred action for a year.

The request was referred by the union to its executive to discuss with the government again.

ELECTION TALK BRINGS ACTION OF FINANCIERS

Press States Nation Reached Extremely Grave Position

MAXIMUM TERM OF TWO YEARS URGED

Election Would Bring Alarming Fall in English Credit

LONDON, Sept. 18.—(Friday) —The London Daily Mail this morning says that the board of governors of the bank of England have taken the "unprecedented step" of visiting the house of commons to inform the prime minister that the national government must remain in power at least two years if a heavy fall in exchange is to be avoided.

The Mail for several days has been conducting an energetic campaign against the conservative proposals for an early general election. Its story this morning was published under heavy headlines.

EXTREME GRAVITY

"The affairs of the nation reached a position of extreme gravity Thursday, it said. "Information was conveyed to the government from the city (London's financial center) that a precarious exchange situation exists . . . and it would appear on reports thus conveyed to the government that the recent unrest in the fleet had a profound effect on British credit and that the time has come when all other considerations save those of national existence must be put aside."

The board of governors of the bank, the paper said, asked the government to make a definite announcement that there would be no general election and that the government remain in power for its full possible term of two years. It said that the board gave Premier Ramsay MacDonald "an alarming estimate" on the amount of fall in exchange which would follow any

SOVIET TIMBER HEAD IS TRIED

Appears Before Soviet Supreme Court to Answer for Heavy Losses

MOSCOW, Sept. 17. (AP)—A. P. Kanutin, head of Sevvostles, on of the largest Soviet timber trusts, was on trial with eight fellow officials of the trust in the Soviet supreme court today on charges of having caused a heavy loss to his organization through general mismanagement.

The trust, whose operations cover 22,000,000 acres and which employs 126,000 workers, is alleged to have lost more than 30,000,000 rubles by the close of the year 1929-1930, as a result of mismanagement.

Kanutin, as president of the board of directors, was charged by the newspaper Izvestia with "establishing a curious kind of self regime," and acting in consert with a group of favorites, including pseudo-specialists, who were found to be class enemies of the state.

Will Strictly Protect All Bird Life in Canada and U.S.

Temporary Changes to Be Made in the Game Regulations

OTTAWA, Sept. 17 (CP)—Pending the completion of negotiations between Canada and the United States for the protection of migratory bird life, temporary changes in the game regulations were announced here tonight. Because of the prolonged drought period in the nesting areas of western Canada and United States, the situation, according to experts of the government, has become serious. Stringent regulations will be enforced to preserve bird life. The migratory habits of most of the birds will necessitate concerted action by Canada and United states to eventually reach a lasting solution. The regulations announced here tonight are of a temporary nature and will lead to international action by the two countries.

PACIFIC FLIERS WILL GET $2000

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 17.—(AP) — Asahi, Tokio, Japanese newspaper, which put up a $25,000 prize for the first airmen to span the Pacific from Tokio to Puget sound in a non-stop flight, will give Don Moyle and Cecil A. Allen 5000 yen ($2000) for their "courage and bravery", according to a cablegram received here today by John Buffelen, from that newspaper. It was in Buffelen's plane, the Clasina Madge, that Moyle and Allen took off from Samushiro beach 10 days ago in a projected flight to Puget sound. Yesterday news of their being forced down on an uninhabited island off the Kamchatka peninsula brought first word of their safety.

NELSON TO BE SCENE OF THE B. C. MUNICIPALITIES CONVENTION, 1932

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Sept. 17—Reeve W. A. Pritchard of Burnaby was elected president of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities at the organization's convention today. The reeve was second vice-president.

Nelson was chosen for next year's convention.

Mayor W. J. Moffatt of Kamloops was re-elected first vice-president, after declining to accept nomination for the presidency. In declining this office, Mayor Moffatt said that, with unemployment conferences likely to be held with the government, it would be better for a coast man to head the union. He nominated Reeve Pritchard.

The new head in his presidential message, discussed unemployment, and the need for better distribution of commodities.

"In fact," he declared, "today we have stark poverty staring pop-eyed into the great galaxy of useable goods ever produced.

The second vice-president is Reeve W. Crouch of Saanich.

Mayor A. Wells Gray of New Westminster was chosen secretary-treasurer for his fifteenth term. G. E. Martin of New Westminster, is again solicitor and parliamentary agent.

The executive is as follows: Reeve D. W. Poppy of Langley, ex-officio as past president; clerk: R. F. Blandy of Saanich, acting Mayor John Bennett, Vancouver; Reeve R. C. MacDonald, Coquitlam; Reeve J. T. Brown, Surrey, Mayorne. H. Bridgman, North Vancouver; Reeve R. M. Grauer of Richmond; Comptroller A. J. Pilkington, Vancouver and Ald. J. O. Worthington, Victoria.

Reeve Poppy, past president, was elected an honorary life member of the union.

An Important Disarmament Discussion Believed Near

Arrival of Naval Expert at Geneva Brings Belief

GENEVA, Sept. 17—(AP)—Belief that some important development in disarmament discussions might be imminent was aroused here by word that Robert Craigie, British naval expert, would arrive in Geneva tonight or tomorrow.

Authoritative quarters gave no explanation for his coming, but informed persons suggested his mission might have two possible objects.

One possibility was that the British negotiator might be coming because the Italians wished to make a counter proposal to the recent French proposal regarding Franco-Italian naval construction programs, a counter proposal in which British advice and collaboration would be needed.

The other suggestion was that Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy wished to developed before the disarmament committee of the League of Nations tomorrow the Italian proposal for an "armaments truce." Viscount Cecil welcomed this proposal for the British government and Mr. Craigie's advice probably would be desired if Signor Grandi went into technical detail as to how it might be realized.

There was not much optimism, however, that any practical advance toward solution of the disarmament deadlock would be realized soon.

BURSTING TIRE SCARES CHINESE

WINNIPEG, Sept. 17 (CP)—Winnipeg's China town experienced a near panic today when an automobile tire blew out. Startled and fearing a recurrence of the tong war which broke out last week persons scurried from the streets and occupants of houses peered under slightly raised blinds to see what was up. Police are still keeping the Chinese district under observance but the tong leaders are holding their peace.

Judge Thinks Dog Is Not Worth $275

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 17—Not only could John Black's dog perform sagacious deeds, but it could do the work of 12 men. This claim was made in court at Stoney Creek today when Judge Carpenter quashed a decision of Magistrate Vance awarding John Black $275 for the loss of the bright dog, which was shot by Peter Berkes.

The judge held Berkes had lawful excuse when he shot the wonder-dog. A farmer had a right to protect his chickens.

Ernie Passmore, a witness, declared that the animal could do the work of a dozen men. The owner had asserted that the dog was as good as any two humans.

INDIAN VICEROY MAY TRAVEL BY AIR IN FUTURE

Both Earl and Lady Willingdon May Have Planes to Help Duties

SIMLA, India, Sept. 17 (C P cable)—Earl Willingdon, former governor-general of Canada and now viceroy of India, is understood to be considering the purchase of a cabin airplane in order to facilitate his journeyings. Travel by air would reduce the cost and eliminate many expensive arrangements which are attached to the vice regal movements.

The airplane contemplated, after allowing for wireless equipment, operator and pilot, will accommodate a party of six and leave room for ample baggage.

In this connection it is being suggested that Lady Willingdon will have a light airplane at her own disposal in order to carry out with expedition and economy her extensive engagements.

LEAD, S. D., Sept. 17.—(AP)—William Cothern hanged himself in the Lead jail last night after confessing that he helped start 35 forest fires in the Black Hills during the last week. Police today were seeking six alleged accomplices named by Cothern.

Officials said all members of the "I. W. W."

Forest fires raged in the northern Black Hills last week, covering 25,000 acres.

BELIEVE MUSIC HALL RETURNING

London Feels Talkies Not so Popular; Revival Old Style Mooted

LONDON, Sept 17.—(By Thos. T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer)—Is the public tiring of "talkies" and of the film entertainment in general? The question is exercising the big men amongst the amusement caterers of London. There is an impression abroad that a return to the style of music-hall entertainment of 20 years ago or more might prove profitable. At once, the further question arises—is there nowadays a sufficient number of "variety artistes" of the old-time calibre to draw upon? No doubt if a big demand for single-turn performers should arise the supply will be some how forthcoming.

Perhaps it was by way of testing present day public taste concerning the music hall as we used to know it that the Palladium management put on a program which included several which used to head the bill a generation ago. Chief among the veterans to come forward was Gus Elen, who representations of coster life used to rival those of Albert Chevalier in the favor of the public. Not a few, indeed, believed Gus Elen to be the finished artist, for Chevalier's ditties—take "My Old Dutch" for example—often had something of the mawkish in their sentimentality. Gus Elen's coster, on the other hand, was always robustious. One of his songs has become almost a classic. At any rate the present-day Palladium audiences fairly lapped up the chorus:

It's a great big shame and if sh belonged to me,
I'd let 'er know who's who;
Naggin' at a feller wot is six foot three,
And 'er only four foot two!
And they 'adn't been married not a munff or more
When underneaff her fumb goes Jim,
Isn't it a pity that the likes of 'er,
Should put upon the likes of 'im!

70 YEARS OLD

Gus Elen is 70 years of age but his technique remains as superb as it ever was. "E Dunno Where 'E are" is the song he made famous when the middle aged of today were children, and yet, thanks to his inimitable rendering, it comes up as fresh as the latest flower. The Palladium program also contains an artiste every bit as clever—Vesta Victoria. How many years is it since we were singing "Daddy Wouldn't Buy Me a Bow Wow?" Nearly 40, if we are not afraid to confess it. The "Bow Wow" song is not included in Vesta Victoria's present repertoire. Perhaps the refrain, if it is to be rendered with the volume that orthodoxy requires, is too much for Vesta Victoria nowadays. But she gives us "Waiting at the Church" which seized the fancies of all the boys and girls a generation back. Vesta Victoria in her prime was nearly the equal of the unforgettable Marie Lloyd. A comparison indeed on some occasion might have tipped the scale in favor of Vesta.

Another representative old timer in the Palladium program is Harry Champion. The red-nosed comedian who flourished a battered umbrella and bawled at the top of his voice about mothers-in-law, about losing your clothes while bathing, and about even more delicate subjects, was common enough (sometimes in double sense) in the days gone by. Harry Champion belonged to this family of popular entertainers, but unlike the general ruck of them, he always had a distinct personality. Whether his style of performance is worth very much now, except as a reminder what used to please the multitude 30 years back, may be doubted. The reception he re-shows that he is sure of a vociferous ceived at the Palladium, though, welcome whenever he again occasionally "obliges."

TO EXTEND STEEL TRADE IN CANADA

Montreal to Be Headquarters in Canada of British Steel

MONTREAL, Sept. 17.—(By the Canadian Press)—Further efforts to extend Canada in the market for heavy steel beams and structural sections and plates over 60 inches, not rolled in this country, are being made by the British Steel Export association. Julian I. Piggott, manager of this great selling organization, has recently returned to Montreal after an absence of nearly two months in Great Britain, and announced that a permanent sales executive for Canada had been appointed.

Montreal will be the headquarters in Canada of the British Steel Export association. Mr. Piggott expects to remain here until the middle of October, when Edward N. Martin, his new representative in the Dominion, is due back from Great Britain. Mr. Martin, he explained, is a Canadian and graduate in engineering of McGill university, class of 1905, where he served for a year as demonstrator in the department of metallurgy.

Seek Roman Remains of Tiberius' Period

NAPLES, Italy, Sept. 17.—(By the Canadian Press)—The Italian government has granted funds for carrying out excavations on the Island of Capri under the direction of Professor Maiuri, superintendent of excavations in the Campania. He proposes to reveal and display, so far as possible, the ancient topography of the island, as it was in the Roman era. The many Roman buildings which lie buried and have only been partially excavated so far, are to be laid bare, the roads of access to them are to be made more practicable, and a general work of embellishment undertaken so that the ruins may be presented in a setting worthy of their past glory.

In the days of Emperor Tiberius there were 12 palaces in the island, named after the 12 gods, and the emperor is supposed to have lived in a different one during each month of the year. The most important of these is the Villa Jovis, which lies at the extreme southern part of the island overlooking the sorrentine peninsula. It is built on a peak, and from the cliffs on which it stands there is a sheer drop of about 700 feet to the sea. It is about 700 feet to the sea. It is from here that the emperor is supposed to have thrown down slaves as a pastime, and the spot is still called the Salto del Tirario (the Jump of Tiberius) today by the inhabitants of the island.

It is on the ruins of this palace that Professor Maiuri will begin work early in October.

announcement that an election had been decided upon.

MEETS UNTIL LATE HOUR

The mail added that the cabinet met last night until a late hour and that Mr. MacDonald asked the members to come to a definite decision for or against an election.

Talk of a general election soon has been growing during the past week and there was a widespread conviction in the parliament lobbies last evening that it would take place the last week in October or early in November, when an appeal to the electors would be made by the National government, headed by Mr. MacDonald, and not by parties.

A section of the conservatives who have been urging their leaders to engineer an election on the tariff question seemed last night to be veering to the view that the appeal should be by the national government rather than upon party lines.

WILLING TO HEAD APPEAL

It was believed in the lobbies that Mr. MacDonald would be willing to head such an appeal and it was said that doubts about the wisdom of an early election were held only by the liberals and were regarded as based upon that party's hostility to a tariff policy.

Lobby conversations, however, said there were enough prominent liberals like Sir John Simon who has been converted to the tariff policy to make possible continued representation of the liberals in the national government should the latter declare for a tariff.

Notwithstanding these current views, there are many who believe that an election at this time would be a great mistake.

Lindberghs on Way to Chinese Capital

NANKING, China, Sept. 17 (AP)—A simple welcome was planned today by the capital of flood and war racked China for Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh who are expected to fly here from Fukuoka, Japan, Saturday afternoon.

Fair weather and moderate winds are hoped for Saturday on the 600-mile air passage over the eastern sea, which is not expected to exceed six hours.

If the famous couple fly directly to Nanking, they will traverse the vast flooded north Kiangsu province basin, scene of the calamity of August 25 where more than 100,000 persons lost their lives in the overflow of the Grand canal.

Canadian-Australian Goodwill Ship Brings Fine Cargo to Canada

TORONTO, Sept. 17—Arriving in Montreal October 21, the Canadian-Australian goodwill ship, "Canadian Constructor" brings the largest cargo and the most varied list of Australian products ever shipped from the commonwealth to this country, according to advices received from Brisbane by L. R. Macregor, Australian trade commissioner to Canada.

Large shipments in wines feature the cargo. These are of a different type from Ontario native wines, and are expected to compete with European varieties. The types include Sherry, Port, Claret and Burgundy and there are red and white sparkling wines on the list. Tinned and dried fruits are another important item.

The largest shipment of canned Australian pineapples ever made abroad is included, as well as raisins, Sultanas and currants. These fruits, together with oranges are expected to compete with the California product.

Australian hardwood of which many varieties are grown nowhere else, is particularly suited to use in veneering furniture, and several shipments for this purpose are included in the cargo. A wide variety of items concludes the list, including wool, gelatine, tallow, canary seed, millet, pawpaw and peanuts.

NATIONAL GALLERY HIGHLY PRAISED

W. G. Constable Commends Policy of Canada's Art Institution

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 17.—(By the Canadian Press)—While Wembley and Paris are still filled with enthusiastic memories of the "vigorous and original art," contributed by the Canadian artists to the British Empire exhibition in 1924 and 1925, and echoes seem to linger forever of the comment aroused by the remarkable group of Canadian paintings sent over there, more emphasis is brought in the awakening of an art consciousness in Canada by the generous reports and many words of praise by W. G. Constable, assistant director of the National Gallery in London, England, who was in Canada recently on a tour of museums of the New World.

Mr. Constable has been writing and speaking so much about the achievements of the National Gallery of Canada that we are brought to consider his statements with increased interest in our own art institution. We should all be familiar with the facts that he brings to the English public since his return abroad. And what he says is, that since its incorporation in 1913, the National Gallery of Canada has already built up a group of old master paintings which would be a credit to a much older institution anywhere in Europe. He remarks enthusiastically on how valuable is the collection of drawings and prints already formed and the collection of Canadian paintings and sculpture. He lauds the policy of the gallery which circulates freely throughout the Dominion, groups of pictures which serve as an education and inspiration to people living in out-of-way communities. Canadians feel all the more proud of these remarks when they realize that all this has been accomplished in barely 10 years—for during the years of the war, all activities were of course dropped.

CONFIRMS PRAISE

As a confirmation of the high praise of Mr. Constable, it may be said again that the trustees of the National Gallery were asked to lend three paintings to the important Italian Exhibition which was held at Burlington House in 1930. "Christ and St. John," by Boticelli; "Portrait of Man," by Cariani and "Portrait of His Servant," by Tintoretto. These paintings were given good position in the exhibition and fully held their own with the wealth of masterpieces which Italy had sent to the exhibition.

Visiting again the old master paintings recently, the writer was brought to think how valuable it would be to add to the existing collection the works which are at present in Canadian hands but may be bought one of these days by collectors out of the country. Also on viewing these notable paintings in their present surroundings, one cannot help feeling how a new building is urgently needed so that the present possessions of the gallery and its future acquisitions can be properly housed and properly displayed.

In expressing his wish that such a building be granted to Canada, Mr. Constable remarked that the value of art to a young country such as Canada should not be overlooked as the appreciation of art "quite apart from its influence on the cultural level of people, and its effect on national prestige, is one of the most effective barriers against the creation of useless wastes of ugliness which can only be redeemed later at vast cost." And to those who need a more palpable argument perhaps we should point to the figures reached by the sale of art works in all the big capitals of Europe and in New York and Chicago as well, all of which estify to the solidity of serious art investments. Also a knowledge and appreciation of art, in a fast developing country like Canada, is a direct and valuable aid in securing original and fine design in industry, both on a small and large scale.

Looking back at the foundation of the National Gallery of Canada in 1880 by the Marquis de Lorne, governor-general of Canada and the Cobourg days of Paul Kane, then painting very formal portraits in preparation to his journey through the Rock mountains and Vancouver Island, where he recorded scenes of the life, customs and native rites of the Indians, one realizes the scope of the evolution of Canadian art and of a Canadian art consciousness. The part played by all the factors of art development and culture appears all the more important. Of these factors, there is no doubt the National Gallery is one of the most essential, and the lauding reports and words of praise of Mr. Constable are most encouraging.

Mrs. M. Ferrabee, Montreal, president of the women's auxiliary to the Missionary society of the church, was invited by Most Rev. C. L. A. were honored with seats on the floor of the house.

Court Goes Against Dr. Phelp's Prelacy

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Sept 17—(By the Canadian Press)—Wide public interest was taken in the law suit against the recently elected archbishop of the Anglican church of the province of South Africa, Dr. Phelps, in which the supreme court here gave judgment against Dr. Phelps, declaring that the archbishop was incapable of being a trustee of one of the Anglican churches which refused to recognize the right of the majority of South Africa Anglicans to have declared themselves to be the church of the province of South Africa and independent of direct control by the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Justice Watermeyer, who delivered the judgment, said that though Dr. Phelps had been properly elected archbishop of the province of South Africa and bishop of Cape Town, could not be held to be the legal successor of the corporate lord bishop of Cape Town, created by Royal Letters Patent in 1853. Therefore Dr. Phelps could not be the trustee of one of the churches of the "Church of England in South Africa." The judgment expressly relates only to the facts disclosed in the present case, which is in the form of an interlocutory application against Dr. Phelps.

Dr. Phelps has given notice of appeal. The two previous archbishops of the province of South Africa had both been consecrated bishops in England before their election to the archbishopric. The question of the ownership of a good deal of church property is also indirectly involved in the case just decided by the supreme court. Complete recognition of the local church of the province of South Africa has always been accorded by the church of England, which summons the South African bishops to the Lambeth conferences and treats them in every was as members of its community.

The dissentient section here is strongly evangelical and claims that the church of the province is so predominantly high church that evangelicals cannot conscientiously become members of its community.

Pennsylvania is one of the few states in the union where fishing on Sunday is prohibited. A bill to permit it has been presented by sportsmen at every legislative assembly for many years, and killed. Pennsylvanians do fish on Sunday, however,—so many go to surrounding states, that New Jersey and Maryland, to discourage the Sabbath invasion, have passed laws closing their inland waters on Sunday to all anglers on Sunday whose home states do not allow Sunday fishing.

WHIPPING TREE HAS REFORMED

ALFRED, Me., Sept. 17.—An ancient oak, gnarled and battered by years of conflict with blizzards and showers, the zero temperatures of Maine winters, and the sizzling heat of the Maine mid-summers, is the only relic of the old whipping posts left in the state. It stands on a corner in Alfred, a quaint little shire town of York county named for Alfred the Great when it was incorporated back in 1794, with a small bronze tablet on its enormous trunk. The tablet was placed there by the New Century club of Alfred, and bears the following inscription, "Whipping Tree, 1800-1830."

In the good old days, the records how that a public whipping was often the punishment meted out to those who kissed in public, used tobacco, gossiped, swore or scolded their fellow citizens. Women, as well as men were taken to the whipping tree and lashed 20 or 30 times on the "bare skine."

AFFLECK MAKING SURVEY OF SITE OF POSSIBLE DAM

Would Mean More Water; City Making Survey as to Possible Works

For the past two days City Engineer Boyd C. Affleck, pursuant to instructions of the city council, has been engaged in running a survey line on Five Mile creek, the source of the city's water supply, from the intake to a site suggested for a higher dam. The survey will show a materially shorter distance than was roughly estimated by Mr. Affleck after covering the ground on foot.

It is estimated that the waste of water through the intake being situated in a gravel area amounts to a substantial fraction of a cubic foot per second, and a dam at the higher site, of which the city engineer is now making a study, would hold the water now lost, as the creek bed there is solid granite, while the higher site also lends itself to screening arrangements which would keep out the fine leaves that now intermittently retard the flow into the intake.

The city council is making a survey of the general situation regrading civic works in view of the desirability of taking advantage of the federal and provincial funds that will be available to assist with civic relief projects.

INVERMERE SCENE OF GARAGE BLAZE

Almost Entire Loss to Owner; Cars and Some Contents Are Saved

INVERMERE, B. C., Sept 17,—On Sunday afternoon when no person was present, the Lake Windermere garage, a two story frame building on Laurier avenue, Athalmer, was completely destroyed by fire. The automobiles which were in the building were saved and some of the contents, but the bulk of the garage equipment and what belonged to the entertainment hall above was destroyed. This is one of the buildings which has survived the boom age of Athalmer. It was built by James J. McKay as a public garage with a concert and entertainment hall above, and at the time of its erection stood near to the site of the old Windsor hotel. Some years later Mr. McKay moved it to its present site where with a short intermission it has been used as a public garage on the ground floor and a place of entertainment upstairs.

The garage business was carried on by Reginald Bavin, who suffered almost an entire loss.

CASTLEGAR, B. C., Sept. 17,—The Castlegar Girl Guides provided the entertainment for the Castlegar Community club meeting on Tuesday night. It is proposed to form an athletic association in connection with the club and to hold a drive for members.

In the program of games and songs that followed the meeting, Miss B. Watson gave a piano solo. Being her birthday anniversary, a birthday cake with candles on it was served at the gathering.

SKIPPER RELATES WEIRD RITUAL USED BY THE MOHAMMEDAN TRIBES

Capt. F. R. Elwell Describes the Feeling of a Sailor From the Devil

SAINT JOHN, N. B., Sept. 17,—One of the few glimpses ever accorded a Christian into the supernatural spheres of Mohammedan religious beliefs was recently granted Captain F. R. Elwell, of the S. S. Harmonides, which discharged sugar here this week, when a Lascar member of his crew became suddenly "possessed with the devil" and to all appearances was stricken dead on the ship's deck.

Accompanied by murmured chants of a venerable holy man, the shrieks from the devil-possessed seaman and the fear-laden mutterings of the followers of Allah, who comprised the ship's crew, the ritual of "clearing the Lascar's soul of the evil spirit" was permeated with the weirdness of the mysterious east, surpassing the strangest sights the skipper has seen in 30 years of handling Mohammedan crews.

"I have seen strange things in connection with the beliefs of the natives of India," Captain Elwell said, "but this casting out the devil beats all. Their fakirs, snake charmers and mango growers are futile and insignificant compared with the ritual and experience of being taken possession of by His Satanic Majesty."

Captain Elwell, in his own words, related the weird occurrence as follows:

PROCEEDING WEST

"We were proceeding westward. It was midnight. The third officer called me, saying there was a man dead in the forecastle, at least the natives said so, but he thought he was still alive. I went aft to see the man and they told me he was in the fo'castle, I told them to bring him out on deck; six of them did so, and laid him on the hatch. He was perfectly rigid, not a move out of him; I though it was a fit.

"All the native crew were there, jabbering excitedly in their native tongue; all talking at once. The third officer and I had a look at the Medical Guide on the subject of 'fits' but could make nothing out of it. The man, however, came round in about half an hour, but he had been transformed from a man into a devil. He struck out right and left when anyone went near him, but when left alone assumed the posture of a Buddah, arms and legs crossed. They all said the devil was in him and from all appearances he had a devil with a vengeance.

At eight o'clock the next morning he was still there, never having moved or spoken since 2 a. m. Several times they had tried to move him, but he flew at them so violently they had to give it up. The Seacunning (native quartermaster) told me the devil had gotten into him, and that he would be no better until he was taken out.

"At 10 a. m., the chief officer approached him and attempted to talk to him softly and tried to move him, but he flew at the chief officer singing some weird tune. So the chief officers came to me and advised me that the man should be locked up. I went after him and a look at hi mand thought it would a bit of a job to get him shifted, without using force. I beckoned to him, however, and said: 'Come on with me, Jimmy,' and to our surprise he immediately jumped up and followed me along the deck, to a spare room in the alleyway, went in quite quietly, and resumed his Buddah attitude on the settee. I went down several times later to have a look at him; there he sat, staring at the wall, not a move out of him. One of the crew looked in at the door, but he made at him, causing the native to beat such a hasty retreat as to make one think that 'the devil was after him.'

DEVIL COMES OUT

"It turned out from the story the crew gave that this man had turned out at 11:30 p. m., preparatory to going on watch at midnight, and the devil came out of the wheelbarrow and followed him into the lavatory where they fought, the devil getting the best of the matter, and entering into possession of him. That was the gist of the story. At any rate, the man was found lying stiff on the deck outside the lavatory door. I have not the slightest doubt but that the man thought it all true and was frightened stiff. Nothing would convince the crew but that His Satanic Majesty was inside the man, and intended to stay there until forcibly ejected.

"The Seacunny again came to me and told me there was a man among the crew who knew how to put the devil out of anyone. This Lascar, an old man, had a good growth of whiskers, which is a sign that he is a holy man, and reads the Koran to the others. He is a sort of padre to the crowd. The Seacunny also approached the chief officer to have the devil cast out of the man. At 4 p. m., the chief officers came to me and suggested that we should give it a trial as the man was getting a bit of a nuisance, so we decided to get on with the job.

"We went down to the room 'Buddah' still sat staring at the wall. The Seacunny brought the padre Lascar along, and I asekd him if he could get the devil out of this man.

"'Achs Sahib,' he replied. I said, 'go ahead.'"

"He then explained that it would be necessary to have him in the fo'castle for the ceremony. The Seacunny stepped into the room, but 'Buddah' flew at him so viciously that he came out of the room faster than he went in. I beckoned to the 'Possessed One' again, saying, 'Come on, Jimmy.' He jumped up at once and followed me down into the fo'castle without looking to the right or to the left and sat down in the middle of the deck in the same attitude.

INTEREST INCREASES

"Now it began to get interesting. The padre put on clean clothes, red lion cloth and fancy cap. He opened his sea chest and rummaging through it took out a lot of articles, including two different kinds of powder—black and yellow—tore out some white cotton and wool, putting the powder onto it, along with some rice and Bhall, a native split pea, or lentil.

"In the meantime they got five Lascars down to pinion the man as they explained the devil would fight pretty hard, which from prior events I quite agreed, and which I might say, he did. Next, in came the Bhandary (native cook) with a shovelful of red hot coals. I was a little bit alarmed at that, but thought I had better not interfere with their ceremony until I saw a real cause.

"So they drew a chalk line around the man. The idea is that the devil cannot get outside the chalk line at them, but would have to fly straight up.

"The fo'castle door was now shut to keep the other members of the crew out. Inside were the man possessed, Padre Lascar, Seacunny, Serang, Chief officer and myself; also the five men who had been brought in to secure the possessed one.

"The padre gave the word and the five men pounced on him. Then the rough and tumble started; the devil had the best of it for a while, at one time having two of them beneath.

"Eventually they got the upper hand of him, however, and lashed his hands together, then his feet, then lashed all four together, and and had him trussed up like a fowl fowl and put him inside the chalk mark. The padre questioned him as to where he met the devil and how he fought him, and strange to say the man answered all questions although he had not spoken a word from the time he had been picked up off the deck the previous night.

"He said he saw the devil come out of the wheelhouse and follow him into the lavoratory where they fought; much the same story as he told before. It took the padre about five minutes to get this information from him. In the meantime the first was burning on the shovel and all seemed to be in order.

"The padre and Seacunny got around the fire and put the white cotton and other ingredients onto it, the smoke curled up through with a brimstone smell about it. They were now after the devil 'hot foot.' They then put some kind of oil in the man's eyes, up his nostrils, and smeared his face with it. This done, they took up the fire and held his face in the smoke, the padre continually shouting, in his ear, asking him how the devil was getting on, the man always shouting back that the fight was going strong, but that the devil was not coming out yet.

"Then his face and head would be pushed a bit further into the smoke and after a good deal more bawling and shouting they laid down the fire. All seemed happy. The man had told them that the devil had departed from him.

NO JOKE

"It was really no joke with them; all was done with solemn earnestness. To show the confidence they had that the devil had been expelled, they took off all the lashlings from the man and he stood up without a kick from him.

"They then told him to get a broom and sweep the devil away. I noticed in the preliminaries that they had to put a broom down handy. The man took the broom and most vigorously swept His Satanic Majesty out of the fo'castle, up the stairs, on the deck and overboard, then he dropped the broom and fell flat on the deck from exhaustion and remained motionless. I thought it was another fit but they all exclaimed, 'Abi Accha,' meaning, 'now he is alright.'

"In about five minutes he sat up and they gave him a drink of water after which he got on his feet, smiled, salaamed the chief officer and myself. All the crew were around now and when the man got on his feet they walked off to their different jobs with happy countenances. The man had a bath and changed his clothes.

"Half an hour later he was in the galley again, all smiles, with a plate of rice and curry in his hand. The next day he could not return to work, complaining that he had 'too many pains all over him,' which I could well understand, for he had been through a few rough and tumbles since the devil had got hold of him. But the following day he was at work as if nothing had happened."

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Giles Chittenham, distressed over the suicide of his younger half-brother Rodney, returns to Europe from America, where he had made an unhappy marriage. Rodney had killed himself because a notorious woman, Julie Farrow, threw him over. Giles is introduced to Julie Farrow by his friend Lombard, in Switzerland. He resolves to make her fall in love with him, then throw her over as she threw Rodney. She tells him she has made a bet with her friend 'Bim' Lennox that she can drive her car to the top of St. Bernard Pass and back. Giles challenges her to take him with her and she accepts. They start out in the face of a gathering snowstorm.

Chittenham discovers, to his amazement, that the girl beside him in the car appeals to him as no other woman has ever appealed. And something intangible convinces him that her feeling toward him is similar to his own toward her. "Do you believe in love at first sight?" he asks her, as the car toils up the mountain toward the hotel.

At the hotel, after refreshment, Chittenham and Julie found their mutual attraction so strong as to be irresistible. In the morning they returned to the town below, Julie apparently jubilantly happy. Lombard tells Chittenham that he has made a mistake, that this Julie Farrow is not the one who ruined Rodney, but her cousin of the same name. Chittenham is horrified. He calls at Julie's hotel and confesses that he had tried to win her love for purposes of revenge, believing her to be the other Julie.

Giles goes with his mother to a London night club, where he meets Julie Farrow—his Julie—who is drinking heavily and trying to appear to be having a good time. A mutual friend introduces him. He says he has met her before, but she laughs in his face and declares they have never met.

Mrs. Ardron's face was a study. She was trying to smile and look as if she thoroughly enjoyed the situation, and yet there was a timid look in her eyes as if she were not quite sure if it were the right thing to laugh or not.

"Miss Farrow has been telling us that she has a cousin so like her that they are often mistaken for one another," she said.

"Yes, so I understand," Giles said rather shortly.

"It must be very awkward," Mrs. Ardron murmured.

"I find it rather amusing," Julie said flippantly. "You don't know my cousin, do you, Mr. Chittenham?"

"I have not that pleasure."

"Oh, you'll love her," Julie rattled on. "All the men do. She's got the biggest scalp collection in London."

Giles made a little movement to rise but Julie was too quick for him.

"Dance with me, Mr. Chittenham!" she commanded. And before he was aware of it Giles found himself back again in the whirling throng, his arm round Julie's slim body, her hand resting lightly on his shoulder.

He looked down at her and felt that it must be a dream.

The same, and yet such an utterly different Julie to the girl he had held in his arm a few weeks ago.

He tried to think of something to say, but no words would come, and it was Julie who broke the silence.

"Isn't this a filthy band?" she said disgustedly.

He avoided her eyes as he answered.

"My thoughts were so far away. I was thinking of a wonderful night you and I spent together on the top of the world."

"Oh, that!" she laughed carelessly. "Fancy remembering it! I've forgotten all about it ages ago. Fearfully uncomfortable, wasn't it? And cold . . Ugh!" she shivered. "And so boring, wasn't it?"

"I was not bored."

"Really!" she shrugged her white shoulders. "Queer man! Let's talk of something pleasant shall we?"

Chittenham's face flamed.

"Isn't all this rather—cheap, Julie?" he asked quietly. "For you to deny that we had met before."

She made a little grimace.

"I thought you might not like to acknowledge me. I'm earning quite a reputation, you know, as the bad girl of the family. I believe even Bim—dear Bim is shocked sometimes! I believe even Julie—the other Julie would not be too pleased with me if she knew some of the things I do—"

"What things, Julie?"

"Oh—just things! Men, and things like that."

Chittenham caught her slender wrist in iron fingers.

"I should like to thrash you," he said savagely.

For a moment she struggled to free her arm, then suddenly she stood very still looking up at him.

"You did thrash me—once," she said.

"Bye-bye every one! I suppose we shall meet again some day. Doris will tell you where I live, Mr. Chittenham, if you ever feel like running in for a cocktail, and if she doesn't remember you've only got to enquire of the police! I'm well known to the police."

She laughed again recklessly, waved her hand and strolled back to her own corner where she was greeted with ironical cheers and banter.

"Shall we dance?" Doris asked, and he rose at once.

He tried not to see Julie as they went around the room, but she seemed the only real thing in a crowd of unrealities. Laughing, always laughing in that shrill, reckless fashion! He longed to go across to her and pick her up in his arms and carry her away from the noise and heat and glare, and soothe her into rest and sanity again.

Bim Lennox sat by the fire, a cigarette between her lips, and her feet thrust into a queer-shaped pair of Chinese embroidered slippers.

A clock on the mantel shelf had struck four, and Julie was not yet home.

It was the third time running that Julie had arrived home in the small hours of the morning. Jaded and pale, and trying hard to pretend that she had enjoyed herself.

"And no man is worth it!" Bim told herself almost savagely as she threw her cigarette end into the grate and rose to her feet. "No man is worth breaking yourself to pieces for!" And Bim knew! For three years she had waited and hoped and suffered and told herself that some day a miracle would happen, but she had been wrong. The only thing that had happened had been that the man she loved had married another woman.

"We're such fools! Such pathetic fools!" she told herself, as she walked over to the window and pulled the curtain aside. Presently a taxicab turned into the street and stopped with a squeaking of brakes outside the block of flats.

Julie at last!

Bim listened anxiously. She was not alone. A man's voice was answering her laughing words, and presently the steps of two people ascended the stone staircase. Bim went to the door, turning up the light as she went.

"I thought you were lost?" she said.

"Lost!" Julie swept past her into the flat. "Why should we be lost? A fire! How can you bear it? I'm so hot I don't know what to do."

The man who had come with her was looking at Bim with enquiring eyes, hesitating in the doorway.

"It's usual to introduce people, Julie," Bim said.

Julie turned. "Sorry, I forgot! This . . ." She broke into a little laugh. "I'm sorry, I've forgotten your name," she told the man. "One meets so many people! This is my friend, Miss Lennox—"

"My name is Schofield—Lawrence Schofield," the man said.

He was rather an ordinary-looking man, obviously a gentleman, and not very young. He kept looking at Bim in a half-puzzled, half-apologetic way, and after a few desultory remarks he said good-night.

"Good-night!" Julie twitted him. "Don't you mean good-morning? It's nearly five."

THE GREEN TOMATO

I know of no more delicious tarts than those filled with green tomato Mincemeat. The following recipe will fill three pies or 18 tarts. You can seal whatever of it you do not wish to use at once in sterilized glass jars, over new rubbers, and keep it in the canning closet for future use.

Green Tomato Mincemeat: Through the food chopper put six large green tomatoes, six large, pared, cored and sliced apples, and one-half pound of large seedless raisins. Mix these three ingredients and to them add one tablespoon of ground cinnamon, one teaspoon each of salt and ground cloves, one half teaspoon each of ground ginger and allspice, and a generous pinch of grated nutmeg. Also stir in one-half cup of orange juice, one-half clup of chopped or shaved citron peel, one orange (juice and grated rind), and one half teaspoon of lemon juice. Cook gently over mild heat till thick, then either use at once or can.

Piccalilli is the favorite pickle in many homes. To make it, slice four quarts of green tomatoes and sprinkle these slices with one-half cup of salt; let stand over night, and next morning drain off the liquid which has gathered. Now put the tomato slices through the food grinder, also chopping four peeled onions, three green sweet peppers (seeds thrown away) and one red sweet pepper. In a small saucepan over the fire mix together four scant cups of cider vinegar, and one cup of granulated sugar, and when the mixture has boiled up once or twice add to it the chopped vegetables and also add a small bag containing the following spices: One tablespoon whole cloves, one-half teaspoon of allspices, one-half teaspoon of nutmeg, and one-half teaspoon of cinnamon. Boil five minutes and then let simmer for two hours, stirring often. Turn into hot, sterilized jars and seal airtight at once, over new rubbers. Tomorrow—The young girl's Bedroom

WHAT PARIS IS WEARING

To have and to hold, when it comes to beautiful clothes, is the secret wish in the hidden recesses of every real woman's heart. Even if otherwise there seems nothing particularly feminine about her, her strictly tailored attire will prove that she did not choose it in a haphazard fashion.

Bows can be severe or frivolous, depending on how they are tied and of what they are made. Some types of silk or satin and taffeta are like mischievous children that refuse to stay still a second, and dance and hop and skip around fluttering this way and that all the time, while other types have passive natures. They stay where they are put and never so much as turn their smart heads this way or that. Even when breezes blow they seem to show real will-power and defy them to move a loop, or a loose end.

We have in mind just such a bow made of white satin with black dots. It is actually on the blouse that is worn with a plain, almost severe coatsuit of black faille. The bow ties closely at the neck on the outside of the left shoulder. With the coat on one loop of the bow goes over the shoulder and the other loop and two ends remain in front.

A Domestic Crisis

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Under threat that she would leave home for good, a young girl of excellent family was given liberty by her parents to come and go as she pleased and keep such company as she chose. This has been going on for some time.

The anxious mother, clinging to ideals of an older generation, spends hours in prayer, if not in fasting. She looks on with fear—but bravely, while the modern youth has its fling. She no longer opens the door with tears on her cheeks and reproaches on her lips.

But this does not mean that she has any other than uneasy sleep. For rarely does she rest until her daughter has come home. From her room, despite the lateness of the hour, the girl often calls up her friends. These broken snatches of talk which the mother overhears adds to the anguish of her burdened mind.

The father has been appealed to and in the early stages he suggested discipline. Finally, when on agreement could be reached, he said (when he heard the daughter's threat) "Don't wait for that, throw her out."

A mother's heart is made of braver stuff. Hope was her alternative. Hope is being tried while to appearances things go at loose ends.

Now while this case is the recital of a true story, I have dealt only with its presentp hase. In her early girlhood a little discipline may have helped. But it is true that this child was always over-indulged. She had merely to make a demand for something; the parents would run a race for her favor, each wanted to be the first to win their darling's approval by fetching and carrying.

Finally, even as a young girl, her extravagance went beyond their bounds. The father was the first to revolt. His position at the moment is one of disgust if not of indifference. He openly tells his intimates he would like to cut the whole show.

To cut the show would relieve his responsibility. It won't help his daughter, nor will it bring ease to the stricken wife and mother.

Perhaps a solution is impossible. For, in addition that is fed by the mother's evident suffering, and the sensation her conduct is making among the family and friends.

It is needless to say that the discipline which was lacking in childhood his largely responsible for the present actions of the girl. Her selfishness and cruelty are monstrous. But condemnation will not help.

While the mother was weak and indulgent during this girl's childhood, she is now giving a heroic example of forbearance and patience. And I cannot withhold a certain sympathy from the father.

Indeed, both parents seemed to have ered through kindness to an only child. One can only hope that, through inheritance and patience, this girl may still turn the corner toward happiness for herself and her parents.

New Interests Needed

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a woman 24 years of age, married eight years to a man seven years my senior. We love children but have none. All my married life I have not been able to go to a dance for the reason that my husband doesn't want to go, and the last two years he always had an excuse when I ask for a kiss. If I argue about it, he says, "Well if you don't like it, you know what we can do."

I'm young and good looking, but I feel like 40. What would you advise me to do? Should I leave him so he can marry again, or should I stay and wait for gray hair to come along? But the funny thing is, I love him.

TIRED OF EVERYTHING

People who have been married as long as you have, especially if thre are no children, often drift into the depressed state you describe, the doldruns of married life.

Why not try to put some fresh interests in your life? Take up a new line that interests you. If you're fond of children, borrow two or three from an institution and give them a good time at your own home. It takes so little to make children who have no home life, happy.

Or you could take up some vocational training and earn a little money. As for going to dances without him, that's all right if he's willing. As you still love him, why think of separating? Try to snap out of the depression into which you have drifted.

BATHROOM CLEANING

Old Turkish towels are excellent for cloths for bathroom cleaning. They are so soft they will not scratch, yet heavy enough to stand the hard wear of the cleansing powder.

The Beauty Box

by Helen Follett

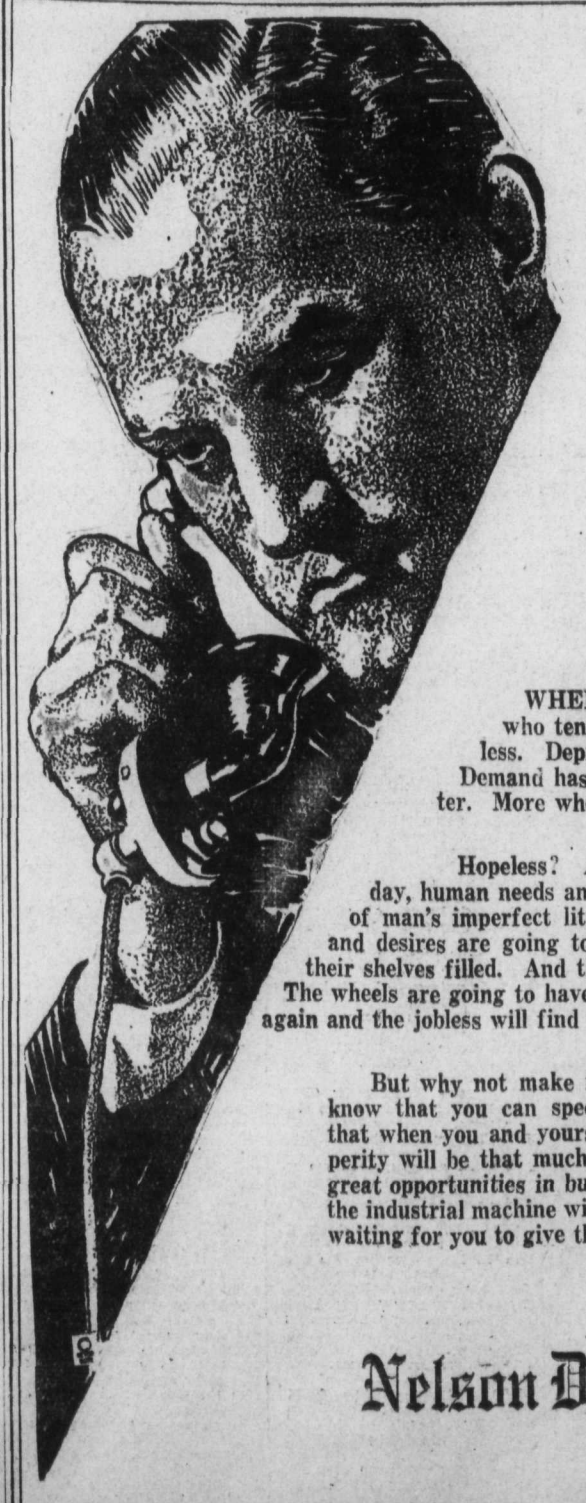
Complexions in general show improvement; beauty stock is going up Due to the use of creamy cosmetics and astringents, the texture is better, there aren't so many oily faces, wrinkles are staved off until late in life. The only lack is natural coloring. Where are the blushes of yesteryear? Nobody knows. They were overcome by late hours, stress and strain of modern life, too much hurry. In yore-times ladies took afternoon naps. The all-night party was a rare occasion. Life was more leisurely then and women grew their own roses.

Bobbed wigs have reached a state of perfection. No telling how many lovely heads around you at the theater are transplanted, made of tresses to which the wearer is not naturally attached. Time was when the parting net was a dead giveaway. Not now. The hair emerges from a substance that is an almost perfect imitation of real scalp. Women wear wigs to give their hair a holiday. They have the old thatch slipped close, oil the scalp twice a week, watch the new growth sprout.

There should be unity in perfumes. Soap, bath crystals, toilet water, perfume, complexion and bath powders should carry the same scent. Then there aren't aromatic fights going on, one odor destroying another, as happens when one's toilet accessories are a hodge-podge of floretted and synthetic nose ticklers.

Fastidious femmes buy their lamb's wool powder pads by the dozen. They are small, not expensive, come in a pretty box in which they stay clean and sterile until they are called upon to furnish the dull finish to the royal nose. Attractive zipper bags are offered to gals who are always on the go. They are for bath brush and soap.

We've had our summer of sunlight and now comes the autumn of beauty gloom. Complexions, nacks and arms must be bleached. Lemon juice will serve, so will peroxide. Or you can buy something from the drug store. Anyhow, get busy and remove the rust spots.



INDUSTRY and the JOBLESS are Awaiting the Word from YOU

WHEEL after wheel has stopped turning. The men who tended those wheels have found themselves jobless. Deprived of income, they have stopped buying. Demand has tumbled and Supply has come tumbling after. More wheels have stopped turning.

Hopeless? A vicious circle? Not a bit of it. Day by day, human needs and desires are piling up. Time takes no heed of man's imperfect little systems. Sooner or later, human needs and desires are going to overflow. And the shops are going to want their shelves filled. And the factories are going to have to fill them. The wheels are going to have to fill them. The wheels are going to hum again and the jobless will find themselves with jobs.

But why not make it sooner? You've heard and seen enough to know that you can speed up the processes of Nature. You know that when you and yours resume Normal Buying, the day of Prosperity will be that much nearer. At present, you are passing up great opportunities in buying and letting Industry lie idle. Buy, and the industrial machine will revive Prosperity. Wheels and men are waiting for you to give the word to GO.

Chiropractic for Heart Trouble

The heart is a hollow muscular organ. Its function is to pump the blood to all parts of the body. It must contract approximately 72 times per minute, and it is a well known fact that the heart must receive force from some source for to accomplish that work. It gets its force from the brain, which is carried by the nerve if the nerve is impinged between the bones of the spine. Then the heart must fail to do its work. Chiropractic will relieve that pressure.

The Census Figures

Nelson's population, according to the census just taken, is 5931, an increase of 701 in the past 10 years which is nearly 13 per cent.

This is a great showing, as Nelson is one of those steadily-growing, dependable cities of the most solid type. Of course, it would be a very nice thing if we cold get established within the city borders a large industry or two, but, failing that, the growth shown by the census figures is most satisfactory.

Surprise is sometimes expressed that Nelson, with its relatively small population, should have such large businesses, that the stores should be able to carry such modern and complete stocks, and that the annual turn-over of business in the city should be so large. The reason is that Nelson does not live either within or upon itself. Its business comes from the people of the surrounding district Nelson has a large and populous trading territory and trade and business come to the city from all quarters of the compass.

Consequently per capita turn-over of the businesses in the city is very large; that is to say, the total turn-over of the various businesses and services in Nelson is out of all proportion to the number of people who live within the municipal limits.

There may be some who expected that the census would show a larger figure, but The Nelson Daily News from its own surveys has for some time figured that the total would not exceed 6000.

This does not include the suburbs of Nelson; Rosemont, the area to the south, the area to the east and south of Fairview are all to be added to the 5931 in orded to obtain the correct figure of the population of the community. Probably, another one thousand could be counted in the extra-municipal parts of Nelson.

More Taxes?

Hon. J. W. Jones, British Columbia's minister of finance, suggests that the people of this province may have to pay increased taxes.

It would not be surprising if this proved to be the case, unwelcome as higher taxes would be.

Every country in the world is being faced with tremendous difficulties in governmental financing, and British Columbia is no exception to the rule.

Mr. Jones presented a balanced budget to the legislature last session, but this winter large unanticipated expenditures must be made on unemployment relief. These expenditures must be bond issues and presumably by as long-term financing as practicable. But bond issues have to be paid. There is interest and there is sinking fund.

Fortunately, the unemployment relief program provides for permanent work which will be beneficial to the province for many yeras to come. Every time a good highway is constructed it stimulates business in British Columbia and thus produces extra revenue.

"We Will Not Serve"

It would be foolish to mask the seriousness of the protest against wage cuts from the lower deck ratings of the British Navy. Loyal in tone, undoubtedly truly loyal in spirit insofar as the overwhelming majority of the sailors concerned, the letter to the admiralty is nevertheless a threat. "We will not serve" unless the proposed wage reductions are canceled.

To discuss the merits of the case at this distance and with virtually no knowledge of the facts and figures would be futile, but the situation is a delicate one which must be giving the British government and the admiralty deep concern.

Loyal and true as are the great majority of the sailors, there is always present at a time like this, and under such circumstances as those surrounding the menacing message to the admiralty, the fear of communistic activities.

Gandhi has added a shawl to his loin cloth. Evidently preparing for a hard winter.

Ostrich feathers will soon be all the rage on the Empress Eugenie hats.

Looks as if the Conservative party in Quebec has lost its lively Houde.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

WHY TH ES[illegible]ALL POPULA[illegible]ON IN CITY OF NELSON?

Editor, Nelson Daily News:

Sir—Observing the entire eternal economy of your publishing quarters torn to pieces, and flung out on the curb, I concluded your disappointment with the result of the recent Beer Plebiscite was so intense that you ran amok, and took it out on the furniture!

I now see, however, that it can only have been due to your frantic efforts to synchronize your movements successfully with the queer times ahead of our city for at least another month.

By the way, how come such a small population? I have always spoken of Nelson as a city of 7000 people and more.

Dr Johnson must have had Nelson mind when he wrote "And panting Time toiled after her in vain."

At the present time, which is no time at all, according to Herr Einstein, it is 9:30 p.m. by my watch, and the kitchen clock has stopped; it is approximately 2 a.m. in Yokohama, and in London, it is still raining, and the milkman has just delivered the morning milk at Buckingham Palace: Likewise they are having a dickens of a time in the Westminster Houses of Parliament.

The radio announcer says it is five seconds past eight, basing his calculations on some kind of standard time, by the courtesy of the—— Watch Company, and now threatens to sing "When the Mountain Comes Up Over the Moonlight!"

Tempora Mutantur"—Times have changed indeed, so if not troubling you too much, my editional friend, will you please tell me the exact time in Nelson, as sooner or later, I hope to catch a train or a boat, that is, unless some of our merchants decide to alter the day in the week, and fool us all again.

Or, more timely put, when is a plebiscite not a plebiscite, and should the plebiscite on the "Time" question not be treated at least as respectfully as the recent Plebiscite on the great Beer question.

Why have a mayor and council, and pay them an honararium if, in interpreting the wishes of a majority of the citizens, their promulgations are treated as "a scrap of paper."

TEMPUS FUGIT

Nelson, B. C., Sept. 17, 1931.

"ON THE SPOT"

(By "O.J.W.S.")

Nelson high school has gone collegiate — with a resounding thump.

* * *

Yesterday for the first time in the history of the local institution, the newcomers to the school this fall, more commonly known as freshmen, were put through their paces in honor of the event.

* * *

The initiation committee (whose members are usually cold-blooded second year students and upper classmen) left few stones unturned in the dispatch of their duty. Boys and girls alike were affected by the new order which decreed that they appear at school dressed as the initiation committee commanded.

* * *

Freshmen boys and girls were first required to have placards with their names printed thereon, slung across their backs. Ribbons—preferably green—adorned the girl's hair while odd stockings were the prescribed dress for pedal extremities.

* * *

The boys (and it must have been a shock to their modesty) had to go around all day with one pant leg rolled well up above the knee—and the sock on the same leg rolled down to the ankle.

* * *

Now boys' and men's legs aren't exactly as beautiful to gaze upon, as are some others—and so, there was a good deal of merriment among the initiates and others (not to speak of the members of the teaching staff) at the expense of the ungainly under-pinnings, shamelessly exposed.

* * *

There was one modest youth who paid dearly for his flaunting of initiation decrees—at noon pedestrians on Hendryx street were startled by screams when a group of high school huskies swooped down on a delinquent freshie who had rolled down one pant leg—for the sake convention.

* * *

His punishment was the business end of a wooden "paddle" applied on that portion of his anatomy where it would have the greatest effect.

He was more scared than hurt.

* * *

Perhaps some of the teachers themselves remembered days gone by when they suffered such (and worse) indignities in high school, college or fraternity initiations—for some initiations especially in college and fraternity, can, and do, closely approximate— cruelty (to dumb animals).

* * *

While the local high school initiation was excellently ordered, your scribe remembers one particular initiation in which he took part that was far from being well ordered—in fact, it was closer to guerilla warfare than anything else.

* * *

Freshmen and sophomores in a certain eastern college had been waring for a week in a more or less haphazard manner—one bright fall morning the well-known chip was knocked from the shoulder of the freshman class when its members appeared on the campus one morning to find the crimson sophomore flag fluttering from flagpole.

Traditional anger of the frosh(or freshmen) simmered all morning until a mighty convulsion of student warfare broke loose at 11 o'clock.

It was a lazy, sunshiney morning—the sort of a day when those lucky persons seated next to the windows are looking out across the campus instead of concentrating on the valiant efforts of the lecturing professor. In this case it was a sophomore who saw the start of a daring act of piracy—it was a freshman at the foot of the flagpole pulling down the sophomore bunting—

* * *

With a roar of rage the sophomore leaped to his feet and screamed a battle cry as he rushed from the lecture room—word flashed from room to room and building to building—freshmen and sophomores answered the call as they flung books and notes to the winds and scuttled out to do battle—the whole institution was demoralized and professors and upperclassmen gathered on the sidelines to witness the fray which was to go down in annals as the "battle of the century."

* * *

There was no time to throw off coats or don old clothes, for revenge was sweet—and among the sophs that that day—many noble deeds were wrought.

To make a long story short—the end of a half hour of terrific rolling and mauling found almost the entire freshman class securely trussed up and lying under the trees awaiting their fate—but the freshman co-eds hadn't been figured on and there was a fresh onslaught when the clothesline, trussing a number of the frosh, was severed by these enterprising females.

But finally the trussing was completed again—auxos were commandeered by the sophs and the benighted freshmen were taken down to the river, unbound, and given a chance to jump in of their own free will—otherwise they were just unbound and dumped in off a bridge without further ceremony. Many trusting sophs were jerked in also by wily frosh who did not give in easily.

* * *

That afternoon the campus was replete with frosh and sophs, alike looking for money, watches, clothing, books and so forth that had been scattered broadcast—and black eyes—plenty of 'em.

* * *

Your scribe had one—but it wasn't the doing of a freshman—rather, it was accidentally inflicted by the flying heel of a classmate (and incidentally) a fraternity brother—a family affair so to speak.

Enough of initiations—for this year.

Something should be done about this business of cigare[illegible] lighters—J. B. Stark was getting a light (???) from Norman Lauritz yesterday afternoon—but it came from a match.

And Alex Leith and Charles Morris were in a "huddle" on the street—possibly the topic was this business of daylight saving and its oft-heard merits and demerits.

The Present State of Business Depression

(By J. T. BEALBY)

Part Three

Even after the depression struck, energetic attempts were made to overcome its effects by speeding a sort of fiery cross throughout the country shouting the slogan, "Buy now for prosperity." But the effort fizzled out. Of the special devices of forced salesmanship the one which secured the most success was persuading people to buy on what is inherently the costly installment system of deferred payments, known in Britain as the hire-purchase system. Some eight or nine months after the depression set in Senator James Couzens thus admonished the Manufacturers association of Michigan, "Who ever heard of a person having fever doing things to make the temperature go higher? Yet that is what American business has been doing— This unemployment situation that enters into this winter's (1929-1930) depression is your fault, no one's but yours. You could have prevented it. You could have refrained from your high pressure salesmanship; your forcing luxuries upon people who were unable to pay for them, which you in your sane moments know they can never pay for. But you will say, that a man ought to know enough not to buy these things. You will say, that people must protect themselves. You will say, that you cannot help it if a man is foolish enough to buy beyond his means to pay. But I submit, gentlemen, that you are the ones who have forced upon them these articles, of luxury which they cannot afford—I wonder if you really thought that this pyramiding of installment sales up into the billions of dollars would keep up. Did you really think there was no stop (limit) to it? Did you really think that people would go on buying on the installment plan for ever and ever?" At the time these words were uttered American writers estimated the total oustanding indebtedness of the American people under the instalment system as ranging from three billion to five billion dollars, a later estimate put the agregate at eight billion dolars. A stupendous amount, indicating the extent to which the people's earnings for the immediate future were mortgaged. How can a country be called prosperous that has an internal debt such as this, probably most of it for luxuries that people did not really want and could in many cases very well have done without?

Running through many of these high powered drives and campaigns for selling and profit making, was no small element of sheer speculation. Everybody knows, too, how many commodities are advertised which exist for no other purpose except simply to be sold, to put money into the pockets of the advertisers. The active existence of the spirit of sheer speculation is proved by mass production itself, that is producing in advance of demand, in face of the necessity to create customers subsequent to production. But it is proved even more convincingly by the fact that during the 10 year period of 1921 to 1930 inclusive, close upon 7000 banks failed in the United States, involving depositors' money to the aggregate amount of $2,000,000,000 or one bank in every five; and of these failures, 60 per cent occurred, not after the slump began, but during the high tide of unparalleled prosperity. Clearly nothing but speculative credit giving on the part of the banks can account for the result plus speculative production on the part of manufacturing plants. A small fact which has just come to me privately illustrates this conclusion. This year the apricot growers in the state of California have destroyed no less than 12,000 acres of apricot orchards. Now to have planted to that extent in excess of market requirements a commodity such as the apricot cannot be called evidence of good business sagacity or be jusified on grounds of common sense. Another illustration is afforded by what has just happened in Texas and Oklahoma. Oil was being produced in such enormous quantities in these two states that the price fell to 12½ cents per barrel (yes, per barrel) in the former state and to 20 cents per barrel in the latter. Sheer waste of valuable natural wealth, now stopped by the two governors forcibly closing down the wells.

A steadily expanding market is the surest guarantee of material prosperity. If you sell today to the limit of your possible expansion of next year, and the year following, and maybe the year after that, you knock the bottom out of your market and cancel the fruits of expansion for the three next coming years. If you push your discounting of the future to the verge of saturation, so that a slump ensues, you instil into the public the fear of buying and paralyze their desire to spend. Even if sufficient wealth were distributed evenly throughout a community, there are limits to the desire to buy. Few people are willing to buy what they do not really want. If persuaded to buy such things, the buyers cannot resist a feeling of secret resentment against the facile persuader, a feeling that reacts to the hurt of the industrial producer. A purchaser who stows his prudence, thrift, self-restraint, to say nothing of his common sense, away in the lumber-room of careless unconcern is not a customer worth having anymore than he is a desirable citizen.

The wider we happen to be acquainted with the social and economic history of past generations the more we become convinced that these recurrent business depressions are the outcome of the lack of self-discipline on the part of those who direct and determine the work of the larger industrial nations. Since the modern industrial era started—the date is usually put at 1776, the year after the publication of Adam Smith's Wealth of Nations, the principal responsibility for them must be placed upon the shoulders of the industrialists. But while that deduction seems to be well waranted, it is also true, that the severity of these recurren depressions of business is accentuated by the special conditions which inevitably attend the operations of modern machine industry. In proportion as individual businesses grow in magnitude, so do an increasingly larger number of workers become dependent upon a constantly diminishing number of employers. Specialization of skill or specific performance on the part of the workman lessens the range of occupations in which he is able to find employment again whenever he is discharged as superfluous or slack time supervenes. Further, the manner of living which in many cases he is constrained to follow—concentrated in large cities in narrow quarters, which debar him from the advantage of stored reserves of food and force him to live from hand to mouth. This helps to intensify the distress which accompanies business depression. For, when the worker is laid off, or when his working days are curtailed by half time or so, he comes all the more quickly to the verge of want, unless of course he has savings laid by. But, as we know, the modern economic doctrines do not approve of savings; they preach insistently, "Spend—spend for prosperity."

Now all this stupendous output of industrial energy, and the substantial rewards that accrued to it could not but exercise a powerful effect upon the minds of the general public. They could not help seeing, that "service to the people" meant also, under interpretation, the accumulation of great wealth in the pockets of the industrialists, especially those who carried on big business and mass production. The rates of industrial profits were dazzling and were made with almost delirious swiftness. Entire communities became affected with the contagion of making money quickly. The leaders of opinion proclaimed noisily that a new era of prosperity such as the world had never experienced before, had dawned, at any rate upon the people of the United States. Wages were climbing and the standard of living amongst the workers was steadily rising. Periodical business slumps, like those of 1873, 1893, and 1921-1922 and many others before them, never would occur again. The millenium, so often dreamed about, was surely come at last. Everybody was making money hand over fist, everybody was on the road to wealth and millionairedom. Universal and permanent prosperity had made its entry upon the stage of civilization.

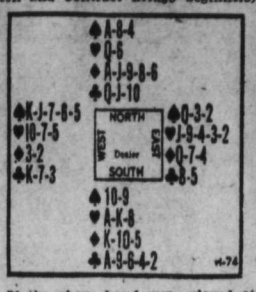
Auction and Contract Bridge

(This article is intended for Auction and Contract Bridge beginners)



If the above hand were played at Contract, South probably would bid one No Trump in preference to declaring a Club. North, with a count of 15, would bid three No Trumps. At Auction, South's bid of one No Trump would be followed by three passes.

In the play West led a Spade which was won by East's Queen. Declarer permitted West's Jack to take the second round. The third, of course, was won by dummy's Ace, West leading the Five and South discarding a Diamond. Declarer now counted seven sure tricks; one in Spades, three in Hearts, two in Diamonds, one in Clubs. A successful finesse in either Diamonds or Clubs would make game. The question was: Which finesse should be tried?

South noted that a successful Club finesse would yield four additional tricks, while the Diamond finesse would yield but three. So he decided to try Clubs. The Queen, led from dummy, was won by West's King. West cashed his two good Spades and set the contract one trick. North entered an indictment of "rotten play". South noting that the Diamond finesse would have failed also pleaded "not guilty". What is your verdict?

THE CORRECT PLAY

South was guilty of the common error of playing for the "extra trick" in place of cinching contract and game. West, having led the Six of Spades to trick 1 and the Five of Spades to trick 3, was marked with the two long Spades; so an unsuccessful Club finesse would be fatal. But East had no more Spades, so an unsuccessful Diamond finesse would permit South to make game.

A Diamond should have been led to trick 4 and won with the King; then South should have returned the Diamond and North should have finessed. If East should lead a Club South should play the Ace. Declarer thus wins four Diamonds, three Spades and one Club.

OFFICIAL SYSTEM POINTERS

No. 5

A hand for original suit-bidding is valued by the number of probable tricks it contains; the way in which these tricks ares estimated, has been stated in the pointers this week. A couple of illustrations for a spade bid follow, "H.C.T." being the abbreviation for high card tricks, and "L.C.T." for low card tricks;

		H.C.T.	L.C.T.
Spades	A-K-x-x-x-x	2	2
Hearts	A-Q-x	1½	0
Diamonds	Q-J-x-x	½	0

Hearts	K-J-10	1	0
Diamonds	K-Q-10	1½	0

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON

TREATING AILMENTS

During the epidemic of influenza some years previous to the epidemic of 1918-19, a busy practioneer in a large city made 64 visits in one day.

He was asked what medicine or medicines he was using, and quietly answered that he wasn't using any in the families of his regular patients, but was prescribing some medicine for new patients, As the new patients did not know him, they would likely be wanting some medicines, so he felt that he should prescribe some, until the family knew him better. "However," he said "I have put a nurse on in every case wherever possible, and with proper care, they will all pull through all right.

This is what Sir Willism Osler had in mind when he said, "The new school of medicine does not feel itself under obligation to give any medicine whatever, while a generations ago, not only could few physicians have held their practice unless they did, but few would have thought it safe or scientific. The modern treatment of disease relies very greatly on the so called 'natural' methods — diet exercise, bathing and massage; in other words, giving the natural forces the fullest scope by easy and thorough nutrition, increased flow of blood and removal of obstructions to the removal of wastes from the body."

What does this mean?

That when we are not well we should help nature in any and in every way to get us back to health and strength without medicine if necessary but with medicine when absolutely necessary.

The use of heat, massage, bathing, rest, careful dieting, exercise, can often do the complete job of restoring the health, and it is unwise therefore to use medicines that may upset the stomach, or overstimulate the heart, intestines or other organs.

However there are times when medicines must be used if life is to be saved and a prolonged illness rendered bearable.

Thus digitalis will steady a failing or irritable heart and actually ileria must be treated by quinine, save life, there are degrees of pain that opium alone can relieve, mastrychnine used in opium poisoning anti-toxins must be used to prevent tetanus (lockjaw), diphtheria, rabies, (dog bite poisoning), vaccines for other disease, and so forth.

The thought then is that if your doctor uses natural methods instead of medicine, or if he feels that you need medicine, remember that he knows you, knows your ailment, and knows what to do.

REVENGE

Robinson, one of the set, was on his way to the city one day when he met Brown in the second-hand car.

"I'm going to the station," said the car owner. "Would you like a lift?"

"No, thanks," said Robinson, seizing his chance. "I'm in rather a hurry."

Oxford Professor Runs and in

John Fothergill is probably the most original innkeeper in England. He is a painter and a former Oxford don, and he conducts his inn—the seventeenth-centure Spread Eagle at Thame, 13 miles from Oxford—in a velvet suit and buckled shoes.

Mr. Fothergill is responsible for the legend of the tall men of Thame. About five years ago, Mr. David Plunket-Greene, who is six feet, nine inches, signed his name on the wall of the inn as high as he could reach. Since then 2000 men, distinguished for personal charm or altitude, have added their autographs. Many of them have names honored in the worlds of arms, literature and the arts, and all are personal friends of Mr. Fothergill. The longest reach so far has been achieved by Charles Maslin, whose signature is written at a height of nine feet, three inches.

TADANAC TO BE THE SCENE OF TENNIS FINALS

Nelson Concedes to Trail's Request in View of Circumstances

Contrary to plans which have prevailed since the Kootenay tennis schedule was split into two, due to inclement weather, with the finals to be played in Nelson Sunday, September 20, the finals will now be called for the Tadanac tennis courts on Sunday afternoon. Tadanac courts are in the best condition and will assist for good tennis.

W. Williams of Trail, first vice-president of the Kootenay tennis association was in touch with President Lawrence Simpson Thursday afternoon and requested that they be allowed to have the finals there. Trail players had lost much time and had been put to considerable expense when they came over at the beginning of the tournament and in view of that they would appreciate having the finals there. Mr. Simpson immediately got in touch with the remainder of the executive, with the result that the request was granted.

Nelson tennis players have about twelve draws to complete before Sunday Cars will leave about noon to be in Tadanac about two o'clock when play will be commenced. Draws not finished Saturday will need to be slated early Sunday morning.

TRAIL RAISES OBJECTION

Trail is objecting to players who have already been beaten in the men's doubles, by W. Rice and R. Renwick, playing further in the schedule. Having been beaten, they are out of that event, Trail claims. Those not eliminated should continue to play, with the winners meeting their winners, the advocate. Nelson, however, will proceed as they intended, and should a combination appear in the final bracket, who have suffered defeat from Renwick and Rice, Nelson will automatically concede Trail the Rose bowls.

FINALISTS FOR MIXED DOUBLES EMERGE TRAIL

TRAIL, B. C., Sept. 17.—W. O. Williams and Miss M. Caldicott are finalists in the Trail-Rossland mixed doubles playdowns of the postponed Kootenay Tennis association annual tournament. They won the right to meet the Nelson finalists by beating Mr. and Mrs. George Hamson, 7-5, 6-3, winning from K. D. McBean and Miss M. Bingay by default; and they defeating J. McDonnell and Miss E. McDonnell by the same score as in their first match, 7-5, 6-3.

Mr. McDonnell and Miss McDonnell won by default from W. B. Hunter and partner to enter the finals.

Playing off the Trail-Rossland brackets of the tournament has been repeatedly interrupted and delayed by rain.

TOMMY ARMOUR BEATEN OUT BY WET FAIRWAYS

Young Shute Likes Plenty of Dampness and Eliminated the "Black Scot"

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 16.—The weather today played a cruel trick on Tommy Armour, this year's British open champion and defending titlist in the professional golfer's association tournament for it rained heavily a short time before he started out to play his 36-hole quarter-final match with young Denny Shute of Hudson, Ohio.

Shute wants plenty of dampness when he is competing and the Wannamoisett course must have been just soggy enough to suit him for he blazed along in such spectacular fashion that the "Black Scot" was forced to drop out of the championship quest at the 35th hole where Denny had him topped by three holes.

"MUDDER" ABILITY WINS

Denny's ability as a "mudder" put him into a semi-final match with his ryder team-mate, Billy Burke, this year's open champion, who handed Abe Espinosa of Chicago, a decisive 5 and 3 setback. Gene Sarazen, twice A.P.G.A., champion and runner-up to Armour last year, had to wage a stubborn uphill fight against Horton Smith of Detroit, before he overcame the latter's early lead with a brilliant afternoon display of shot-making. Horton was two up when they quit for lunch but Gene, with two wild streaks that gave him a total of eight second round holes, was 5 up when the match ended on the 32nd. hole.

Sarazen will clash with the other successful youngster, Tom Creacy of Albany, N. Y., who put out Cyril Walker of Ridgewood, N.J., the 1924 champion by a 3 and 1 margin.

TERRY, BOTTOMLEY AND KLEIN FIGHT FOR BATTING TOP

Are All Tie With an Average of .342; Simmons Heads Americans

Batting races got no tighter than the three cornered fight now on between Bill Terry, Jim Bottomley and Chuck Klein for the national league title. The three sluggers were in a deadlock today, each with an average of .342, and Chick Hafey, Bottomley's teammate on the Cards, threatened to make it a foursome. He had a 340 mark. Terry held what he had yesterday by collecting two hits in five trips, while Bottomley lost two points and Klein one to make matters all square. Babe Ruth gained a point on Al. Simmons in the American league by belting four hits, including his 41st and 42nd home runs against the Browns.

SALMON ARE BITING ON THE MAIN LAKE

Several Big Fish Have Been Taken Off Procter; Rough Thursday

Following the advent of the fall rains, the salmon are biting once more on the main lake, and daily there are fishermen out from Procter. Four salmon, one of them weighing 15 pounds and another 12½, were taken Sunday, and others have been taken during the week.

Yesterday it was rough on the main lake and fishermen were driven off the water, though it was calm at Nelson.

If the week-end is at all favorable, several Nelson anglers will go up to the Outlet to try for the big fellows.

Road Commission Plan Is Approved at Trail Board of Trade Meet

In Wednesday's issue of The Nelson Daily News, in a Trail dispatch dealing with a board of trade meeting, the word "again" was replaced by "against." This was a typographical error. "Big League" BASEBALL

Checking Double Steal

By AL DEMAREE

Often a double steal is started with runners on first and second base, the idea being to put both men in position to score on a single.

The baserunner on second base usually flashes the sign and tries to get a flying start with the runner on first following. The latter often loafs slightly, figuring the catcher will throw to third. A smart catcher, if he sees the play at third looks close, will throw to second and get the runer coming from first. This play is usually attempted with one or two men out, so if the catcher throws the man out at second he is practically as well off as if he had nailed the man stealing third.

Al Demaree has prepared an illustrated leaflet on "base running which he will gladly send to any reader requesting it. Address Al Demaree in care of this paper and be sure to enclose a self addressed envelope.

MANITOBA DUCKS NOW CREATE FINE RECORD

Most Numerous in History of Province Attracted by the Larger Lakes

the Canadian Press)—Attracted by the largere bodies of water in Manitoba this province at present has the most ducks ever known in the vicinity of Lake Winnipeg and Lake Manitoba. The Winnipeg Evening Tribune quotes a member of a local grain company as saying: "There are more ducks in Manitoba than ever before in its history, due to the migration of the birds from the west to larger bodies of water."

Duck breeding grounds feature the large lakes of the province, and there flocks of young ducks may be seen any day. This applies also to the larger flocks of young ducks may be seen any day. This applies also to the larger lakes of Saskatchewan, but the ducks in this province are not nearly so numerous as they are in Manitoba. The drought has not affected the ducks seriously, though some sportsmen in the United States have been giving the impression that ducks in the prairie provinces are in danger of extinction. They may have thought so from the fact that the number of ducks raised in pot holes and sloughs in Saskatchewan have been negligible in the past three years of drought as a result of the duck migration to larger bodies of water.

There are between 50 and 60 species of deer found the world over, except in Australasia and South Africa.

DOMINION TO BE HARD PRESSED TO FIND SPRINTERS FOR THE OLYMPICS

Williams and Ball May Be Right for Fast Events, and They May Not

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 17.—(By Elmer Dulmage, Canadian Press Sports Writer.)—If there are four legs in all Canada capable of streaking over cindered stretches like those lightning limbs two young men from the west flashed at Amsterdam in 1928, delving detectives of the Dominion's Olympic committee will find them. They must uncover speed and more speed if Canada's sprint supremacy is to be retained at Los Angeles next summer.

It may be a simple matter to find the quartette of flying limbs—perhaps the four which Percy Williams and Jimmy Ball held sway over the world's fleetest three years ago aren't entirely leaden—but the fact is gradually asserting itself that this country hasn't a sprinter at the moment who could beat an international field or more than one quarter-miler who could carve a fraction from 49 seconds over the 440-yard route.

That is why the men who will select an Olympic team next year are looking into the hidden places, the byways and even more intently into the class-rooms for material. They aren't so sure Williams is going to come back or that Ball will ever return to form. They hope so—almost everything depends on these two events—but they must be dashmen of quality so they can't take chances.

NO PROBLEM

Should Williams become once more the peerless runner he was in 1928, the year he graduated from high scholo, or race as he did at the British Empire games two years later, Canada won't have a problem to all so far as its sprinters are concerned. The Vancouver marvel can look after the defence of his 100 and 200-metre titles without assistance if he is right. But the Williams who was beaten by 10-second sprinters last summer wasn't.

Besides a few of the old guard who ran for Canada in the last Olympiad and are still going strong, the selection committee can put its collective finger on half a dozen youngsters who might ably fill William's shoes in another year. They seem to have about everything the British Columbia boy had 12 months before he became a national hero.

If anything, Johnny Fitzpatrick, the bronzed Hamilton flyer, is faster than ever and if he were in training this season probably would trounce any sprinter in Canada, including the Olympic champion. He passed up the Dominion championships this month at Winnipeg and it was at Winnipeg that a battalion of youths paraded in big company for the first time—but not the last. One of them stands out as Canada's most promising sprinter.

At 17, blonde Bert Pearson, of Hamilton Central Collegiate, is national 100-yards champion. His big win came only a week or so after he won the schoolboy championship of Ontario. In the opinion of his coach, Captain J. R. Cornelius, Bert Pearson, at 18 may have a Maple Leaf crest tacked on his breast and crack runners of the world's nations lined up beside him. If the widespread surge of schoolboy talent invades the Olympic field, Pearson will lead the way.

Already on his heels are several young fellows whose futures seem just as bright. Bill Robinson and Eddie Dore, schoolmates and teammates of Pearson, loom as possibles that no selection committee can ignore. George Powell, the slim speedster from Toronto, has raced his way into a front-rank berth, and Vincent Forbes, of Vancouver, showed at Winnipeg he can match strides with the fastest steppers of the eastern contingents.

Ralph Adams, who ran for Canada at Amsterdam and, with Fitzpatrick, is the best sprint relay man available, bowed to Pearson's speed in the century final at the Winnipeg championships, but Adams is not through. He defeated just as good a field as Pearson downed when he captured the 220-yard final.

ONLY ONE ON PRAIRIES

The prairies seem to have only one outstanding sprinter—Buster Brown, of Edmonton. Consistently a 10-second man in the 100, Brown slipped under the mark several times this season as he campaigned and would have been a favorite to cop one of the Dominion titles had he competed in the meet. Laurie Cohen, curly-headed little Winnipeg star, plans a comeback next spring that he hopes will land him an Olympic job.

Unless Jimmy Ball, who lost an Olympic 400-metres title at Amsterdam by turning around to see what was coming up behind, manages a notable recovery of form, the Dominion must look elsewhere for a quarter-mile ace. Alex Wilson, just as good at the quarter as the half, prefers the latter and probably will concentrate on the longer distance next spring.

Fred Martello, husky Trail, B. C., youth, and Maurice Hughes, of Montreal, sped into the limelight this fall by their showing at Winnipeg and either may turn out to be a successor to Ball—if the great Jimmy really is through as a top-notcher. Hughes, a slim, gritty, boy, beat Martello by a scant two yards in the 440-yard event.

Captain Cornelius has hopes that the aces of his own quarter-mile corps may definitely push ahead and he particularly points to Fred Shaver, Mickey McBride and Ed Burrows. Shaver, however, is almost certain to become an 880-yard star.

Coach of the Canadian teams in 1924 and 1928, Captain Cornelius is optimistic regarding the new crop of sprinters, but he hopes that Percy Williams and Jimmy Ball may be back next summer to lead the Canucks into Los Angeles.

SUTCLIFFE SETS NEW RECORD AT BAT IN CRICKET

LONDON, Sept. 17 (C P cable)—New record for English batting in England was set up by Herbert Sutcliffe, Yorkshire international, in the cricket season which ended yesterday. Despite the consistently bad weather which adversely affected most of the other stars Sutcliffe had the remarkable average of 96.96. The best previous average of an Englishman was the 91.23 set up by Major Poore of Hampshire in 1899, 32 years ago.

Sutcliffe's performance does not qual the work of Don Bradman, wonder batsman of Australia, who turned an average of 98.66 in England last year. Sutcliffe was the only cricketer to score 3000 runs this season.

Harold Larwood, the Nottinghamshire professional, won the bowling honors.

KOOTENAY JUNIOR BALL TITLE GAGE IN SHORT SERIES

Nelson Juniors at Trail Sunday; Trail Here a Week Later

A two game baseball series has been arranged between Nelson and Trail junior baseball teams for the West Kootenay championship and strong teams have been lined up in both cities. The first game will be played in Trail on this coming Sunday, with a return game at the recreation grounds in Nelson on Sunday. In an exhibition game on the day of the Consolidated picnic here Nelson won over the Trail juniors 8-2, but since then both teams have been strengthened, and a close series is expected.

NELSON TEAM

A number of new faces will appear on the Nelson team and they have added considerable batting punch to the team, as well as being strong fielders. In all probability Nelson will line up for the Trail game as follows:

Lottie Kitto, Roy Anderson, Pat Duffy, George Stewart, Allan MacLean, Ted Chace, T. Harrison, Harold Long, D. Varner, and D. McQuaig, although there may be some changes before game time. Gilbert Rowling will accompany the local team as manager, and Lorne Stewart, who unfortunately will be unable to play for Nelson due to a broken collar bone sustained in rugby practice, as coach.

WARBLING VIREO ENTERS WINDOW

Species Very Numerous in Nelson This Summer; Are Diminutive

Warbling vireos, diminutive olive-backed birds with white eye-streaks, have been very numerous this summer, and a day or two ago one found its way into a Baker street residence through an open window.

It was caught, and after being identified, was liberated, to launch itself precipitately into the nearest tree.

Three vireos are found in western Canada, the Red-eyed, the Warbling, and the Solitary. All are about of a size, are of a green or olive shade, with white beneath, and all have eye-streaks. The Warbling and Solitary have black eyes, and in the Solitary the eye-streak becomes a white circle. Except when held in the hand, the species are practically indistinguishable.

Eddie Tolan, negro sprinter, formerly of the University of Michigan, recently bettered his own 100-meter record of 10.4 seconds when he defeated Frank Wykoff, Southern California, by two yards to win the feature race of the British Columbia track and field meet in Vancouver. His time was 10.3 seconds.

Fishing in the state hatchery at Lebanon, Mo., cost J. H. Richa $85. He caught 15 large trout.

1156 Cars of Fruit and Vegetables Roll from the Okanagan State Bureau Reports

248 Straight Cars and 908 of Mixed; 130 Cars of Bulk Apples Shipped

VERNON, B. C., Sept. 17.—Movement of 1156 cars of fruits and vegetables is the feature of the records by the bureau of markets information.

Of these 248 were straight cars and 908 were mixed. During August 76 straight cars moved and so far in September 127. The figures of the mixed car movement are 491 cars in August and 417 in September.

In the returns is included 130 cars of apples in bulk. Of these four went to B. C. points, 40 to Alberta, 46 to Saskatchewan, and 40 to Manitoba.

At the present moment there is more or less of a lull.

A lot of jobbers are holding off, waiting for the Macs to open. The shippers' council decided some time ago that Macs would roll on September 21, and in anticipation there has been some selective picking.

The indications are that there will be a smaller rush of Macs on the opening date that at any time during the years when there has been agreement of an opening date and that the early rush will contain a better sample of apples.

MOVEMENT CAUTIOUS

It is anticipated that the movement will be a cautious one because jobbers do not want to stock up a boxed apple while they are still rolling the Wealthies that are going out.

The big questions before the shippers' council will be the prices on Macs and whether they can stick to their dictum that they will refuse to roll McIntosh in bulk cars. Members of the shippers' council control about 90 per cent of the tonnage.

Macs will be a splendid apple for cold storage and more of them will go this year than ever before. Vancouver jobbers are demanding Macs loose in boxes.

MACS DEMAND STIFFENING

The demand for Macs to fill export orders is stiffening and may help to steady the situation. There are two reports about the crop. One, and the most general one, is that it will be fully up to estimates. The other is that there is a considerable shrinkage due principally to several districts being short of moisture at crucial times of the period of growth. Plums, prunes and peaches are about over.

The pear movement is not as some would like to see it, but it is fair.

There is a fair movement of onions and a good crop of fine quality. Prairie points have grown enough celery to supply the market for a time, and celery and cabbage are moving slowly. The tomato movement is over. No semi-ripes are going out, and a few canneries are operating.

DEVELOP A NEW GRASS IN WORK

Fine New Varieties Are Produced in England; Points Out Values

LONDON, Sept. 17.—(CP)—The making of two blades of grass to grow where one grew before.

This has been accomplished by Professor Stapledon at the Welsh plant breeding station, Aberystwyth, who has bred leafy pedigree grasses which often give twice as big a yield as the plants grown from foreign seed. Also, they are hardier and have a longer growing period. In a year of two these superior grasses are expected to be on the market for the benefit of British farmers.

The importance of this achievement is emphasized by Dr. O. McConkey, who during two years leave from the Guelph agricultural college, Ontario, has studied the subject of grass cultivation at Cambridge, Aberstwyth, Aberdeen and various grassland centres in this country, and in continental countries.

In his mongraph on his investigation entitled "Recent advances in pasture management," Dr. McConkey points out that since grass is the raw material for milk, butter, cheese, meat, mutton, wool and hides, pasture is the Empire's most important crop. The products of grass form 94 per cent of the total exports from New Zealand, 60 per cent from Australia and over half from the Irish Free State.

About 70 per cent of the total area of the British Isles consists of grassland, and it is estimated that the British grass crop—that is the home production of grassland products—is worth $625,000,000 a year.

The total annual consumption of grassland products in the United Kingdm reaches the enormous sum of $1,875,000,000, or nearly $50 per capita, while that of wheat is only $500,000,000.

LIMITING FACTOR

"The limiting factor for the production of these products is not the number of cattle and sheep, which can be increased indefinitely, but the raw material which they transform," states Dr. McConkley.

"With a fundamental understanding of the 'pasture animal complex' it is possible to grade up the pastures of the Empire, as has been demonstated in a practical way in various regions, to an increased carrying capacity from anything between 50 and 100 per cent a practical possibility of no small economic importance to the British Commonwealth."

Dr. McConkey remarks that one of the first impressions of a Canadian visiting England is the apparent low consumption of fresh milk, and the difficulty of securing fresh cool bottled milk in restaurants and homes, and he considers a practical step in relief of the agricultural depression would be the development of this potential market by marketing higher grade, standard fresh, cool, bottled product which appeals to the consumer. For the first time in the history of agricultureal research there had been a strong co-ordinating influence throughout the Empire. Grassland studies had been the basis this co-operative effort. A world search for new grasses is suggested by Dr. McConkey. "There is no doubt that careful exploration in Scandinavia and Russia would yield strains valuable for Canada," he says. "The best drought-resistant grass in western Canada today was brought over from Hungary."

British Films Good in Australia's View

LONDON, Sept. 17.—(By the Canadian Press)—British films are higher in popularity in Australia at present than ever before, according to the Melbourne correspondent of The Times, who states that British producers have captured an important part of the Australian market. Whether they will retain it depends largely on whatever efforts they may be making now to develop a techinique of the sound film akin to that which is being shaped in the United States and on the continent of Europe.

English companies have had to overcome prejudice which for a time seemed to be insuperable. By skill in light comedy and several happy accidents they have reached a position in which their films command the longest of the long runs at the best theatres. But competitors are active. British producers will have to bestir themselves if they are to keep what they have gained.

As recently as two years ago the announcement that a film was British was enough to keep people out of Australian picture theatres. English silent films had become notorious for bad lighting, crude settings, and poor photography. Popular taste, which is by no means rather than helped by appeals to English films were probably hindered exacting, rebelled. Distributors of patriotic sentiment. Those people that went to British films felt that they were performing a necessary but painful duty. English films, however, seldom reached the better theatres.

With the coming of talking films, and the announcement that the British film industry was being reorganized, both its methods of production in England and its system of distribution in Australia, picture goers were ready to concede producers another chance. Even the, English "talkies" were slow in coming. As it proved, that was fortunate. By the time the first British films were shown audiences had become bored by the "backstage" films which Hollywood was then making with such monotonous regularity, and the American accent had lost its novelty and was beginning to pall. A contrast was welcomed both by exhibitors and by audiences. Happily, the first film fulfilled expectations. The system of distribution has been re-organized and the British films are being given publicity in which for many years they were lacking.

South African Wool Farmers Will Unite

BLOEMFONTEIN, South Africa, Sept. 15.—(By the Canadian Press)—The wool farmers of South Africa will be organized under the name of the National Wool Growers' association. The decision to form a new association of wool growers on a broader scale than thep resent South Africa Wool Council was taken at a recent meeting of the council here, and it was agreed that the campaign for the new organization should be pushed as rapidly as possible.

The council recommedned an expenditure of $10,000 on organization and propaganda work for the next five months. The council felt that this was the most important work that could be accomplished on behalf of the wool industry at the present time, and that the success of the organization movement, depended largely on a full measure of assistance from organized farmers.

A scheme of organization was approved for the Caps province and J. C. Lotz, was appointed full time organizing secretary for six months. The Free State, Natal and Transvaal members of the executive committees of the respective provincial wool growers' associations will undertake organization and propaganda work. In the Free State each member of the executive wil receive an area to supervise, and Natal wil be divided into north, Midland and East Griqusland areas.

The Wool Council is convinced that if the organization plan is properly tarried out, wool growers wil lsoon be in a position to show a united front on any matter affecting the industry, such as uniform classing, judicious rationing of the market and packing.

ARCTIC CAMP'S RELICS FOUND WELL PRESERVED

P STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sept. 17—(CP)— The remarkable preserving qualities of ice are once more evidenced by a recent report from a Swedish arctic expedition, headed by Professor Ahlman of the Stockholm university, after many months cruising on the "quest" in the icy waters between Spitzenbergen and Navaja Zemlja. The expedition landed at Foyn islands and there struck the abandoned camp of Captain Sora, the Italian alpinist, and Van Dorphen, the Norwegian flyer, who three years ago attempted to rescue General Nobile's Italia expedition. They had been marooned on Foyn island and were on the verge of starvation when finally saved by Swedish flyers.

The men from the "Quest" at the abandoned camp found a damaged tent, a polar sleigh, a photographic apparatus, a silver watch, a hip flask, a Primus stove and various other objects, all remarkably well preserved by the ice, so much so that the watch when drawn up at once started going. The photographic camera was not damaged. A pocket-book, besides Italian and Norwegian bank notes, contained photographs and hastily penned notes, which still were decipherable. The life rope was as strong as if it had been bought yesterday. All these finds are now on board the "Quest" and will in due time be restored to the rightful owners.

MAKE MOTORBOAT TRIP NORTHWARD

TRAIL, B. C., Sept. 17.—Travelling to Northport by motorboat, the Norge, H. Bothun and Leonard Murdock covered the distance in one hour and 20 minutes. The trip was made to bring back a boat which had drifted to Northport from Castlegar.

There were no difficulties encountered. Officials at Waneta and Northport seemed interested and gave the young men every assistance possible, they reported.

The Norge was built by Mr. Bothun and some of his friends in Trail.

One of the rarest birds in North America is the Kirtland warbler. The only spot in the world where it is known to nest is in the north or Michigan. It spends the summers and winters on the Bahama islands. Twenty eight mountainous areas in the national forests have been set aside by the United States forest service as "primitive areas" to be devoted to the use of those who prefer their outings in virgin wilderness.

TORONTO STOCKS WORK TO LOWER TRADING LEVELS

Sharp Upturn at New York Comes Too Late to Benefit Toronto List

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 17. (CP)—With the exception of the oil group, prices on the Toronto stock exchange today worked to lower levels. A sharp upturn at New York came too late in the day to benefit the local list.

The rally was credited to the appearance of support for such leaders as U. S. Steel, Westinghouse, American Telephone and Telegraph, and American Can. Total sales were 22,312 shares.

Utility issues were forced downward. B. C. Power "A" closed at a new low of 29¾, off 2¼. Brazilian Traction was off ½ to 13¼. C. P. R. closed up ½ at 17½. International Utilities "A" and "B" each touched new lows, closing with fractional net losses. Montreal Power gained 1½.

Steels were still weak, with Canadian Car at a new low of 7, Page-Hersey down 2½, and Steel of Canada off fractionally.

In the base metal group, International Nickel was up ⅜ to close at 10½, and Smelters at 75½ was up the fraction. Oils were mixed in trend.

In the beverage group, Distillers-Seagrams lost ¼ to a new low of 7¾, while Hiram Walker at 4½ was unchanged.

CHICAGO GRAIN AVERAGES DOWN

Unsteady Stock Markets Sends Prices Sliding; Low-Priced Cotton Helps

CHICAGO, Sept. 17 (By John P. Boughan, Associated Press market editor)—Disturbed anew by an oscillating stock market, and faced by fresh low-record prices for cotton, grain averaged lower today, especially corn. Relative steadiness at time was imported to wheat owing to an active export demand for wheat from North America, with Europe estimated to have bought more than 1,000,000 bushels this side of the Atlantic. Black sea shipments of wheat, however, including Russian exports of 5,040,000 bushels, were heavy for the week, more than double those of a year ago.

Wheat closed irregular at ½ cent decline to ¼ cent advance, corn ⅛ to 1⅜ down, oats unchanged to ⅛ higher, and provisions showing 2 cents to 12 cents setback.

MONTREAL CURB MARKET IS WEAK

MONTREAL, Sept. 17—Prices on the Montreal curb market continued generally lower during today's session. New low levels were stablished by Associated Oil, off 1 cent at 4 cents. Distillers Seagram, down ⅜ at 7½, International Utilities "A" off 1½ at 28¾ and the "B" issue down ½ at 5. Other recessions included British American Oil and Hiram Walker. Small gains were made by Imperial Oil, Imperial Tobacco, International Petroleum and Service Stations. The oils were moderately active and firm while the beverages and public utility group were generally weaker.

Lake Shore gained 15 cents to close at $27.50 while Abana and Moss were fractionally lower. Siscoe made a slight gain to finish at 55½ cents.

A BETTER APPLE PACK

The new regulations for the packing of apples in barrels and hampers strictly by size, which were introduced by the Dominion fruit branch last year, proved to be popular with the distributor and buyer alike, and the department was compelled to make them compulsory for 1931. Last year's operations, however, showed that some minor changes were desirable and these rules have been modified and applied on a voluntary basis for the 1931 crop. Under these rules apples are packed according to size, grading machines being used largely for the purpose. Only two grades are packed—No. 1 and domestic. Th size spread in the package is clearly marked and provision made to include the smaller fine fruit which because of size formerly went into the No. 3 grade.

WHEN TO CUT THE SAMPLE

L. H. Newman, the Dominion cerealist, discussing the best time at which to cut grain intended for exhibition use points out that the majority of exhibitors prefer to let the crop become fully ripen before it is cut. When to cut depends very greatly on the locality and season. At the central experimental farm at Ottawa and on the branch farms the usual practice in to let the crop become fully ripened before it is cut. Harvested grain dries up better and is likely to have a better color if stocked in rather small stooks. These should be protected against rain to prevent damage through sprouting and to preserve the color.

Railway Commissioners Turn Down Application of the City of Victoria

OTTAWA, Sept. 17 (CP)— The board of railway commissioners for Canada, in a judgment handed down today, dismissed the application of the corporation of the City of Victoria together with the Panama Pacific Grain Terminals, limited, for an export rate on grain by the Canadian Pacific railways equal to that to the city of Vancouver.

The charge that the existing rates were discriminatory, upon which the applicant based its case, was unfounded, C. P. Fullerton, chief commissioner stated in handing down his decision which was unanimously concurred with by the other two members of the board. The hearing was held here Sept. 10.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17 (AP)—For the second time in two days electrolytic copper dropped to a new low price in the history of the industry when a customers smelter agency sold the red metal at seven cents a pound in the domestic market.

The Revere Copper and Brass company reduced prices on copper and brass products one-quarter of a cent a pound to the equivalent of 7¼ cents for Valley copper.

Big Missouri Shipping 95 Tons Concentrates to the Trail Smelter

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 17.—Ninety tons of concentrates, averaging $200 to the ton, have been sent from the Big Missouri mine to the wharf at Stewart for shipment to the Trail smelter. It will come south on one of the Union Steamship company's boats next week.

The concentrates are the cleanup from the operations of the Big Missouri and do not represent regular production. The mill, according to Vancouver officials of the company, will be closed for the present. It is understood, however, that general mining development at the property will continue. The Big Missouri is under control of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting company.

WINNIPEG WHEAT FORCED DOWN

Reports of Heavy Sea Shipments Down Damage Despite Bullishness

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 17. (CP)—Reports of heavy Black sea shipments caused the wheat market to decline in the face of bullish domestic reports and reported damage to Russia's crops. Threshing operations throughout the west were at a standstill due to bad weather, while reports were current of frost in some sections.

Prices held fairly steady, but had no special feature, and at the close were ⅜ to ½ lower than yesterday. At 52⅜ October was down ⅜; May the same at 57⅛, while December lost ½ at 53⅛ to 53¼.

Broomhall's report today said that serious damage to crops is authentic, confirming the practical withdrawal of spring wheat. Big rejections of Argentine wheat are also reported.

Trading in cash and coarse grains was rather dull and featureless.

NEW YORK LIST RALLIES AFTER TOUCHING LOWS

Average Net Improvement Is 1.7 Points; Bond Market Declines

NEW YORK, Sept. 17 (AP)—Stocks sold themselves into a technical rally today but not until an unusually large number had recorded new lows. The average net improvement was 1.7 points, the best showing since last August. Sales totalled 2,392,950 shares.

Before the turn, scores of favorite issues, including American Telephone, Atchison, Union Pacific, American Can, General Electric, Consolidated Gas and North American, had made new minimums and U. S. Steel had duplicated its previous bottom. The general run of losses, however, was moderate and the stiffer resistance that was soon offered by important leaders, enabled the market to work toward the eventual turn.

At the close, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Can, General Electric, Westinghouse, General Motors, National Biscuit, and Consolidated Gas, among others were up 1 to 2 points or slightly more. Union Pacific exchanged a 5-point loss for a net gain of 1½ and New York Central which acted fairly well, was up 3¼. Norfolk and Western's break of 5¾ was cut to 2¾. American Woolen preferred, Western Union, American Telephone and Allied Chemical made better than average advances.

Foreign exchanges were more or less steady, with sterling cables easing to $4.85 15-16.

The bond market declined irregularly again today and a diversified group of issues touched new minimum levels.

The average prices of 60 leading issues consisted of 20 bonds each of railroads, public utilities and industrials and of the railroad and utility groups, individually reached new lows.

Trading was somewhat less active.

TWO MIXERS ON CITY CONCRETE PROGRAM NOW

Box Mixer Is Laying Sidewalk on Fairview; Small One up Hill

Nelson's concrete program is now being pushed by two crews, one operating in Fairview with the big mixer, and the other up the hill with the small mixer.

The small mixer is at present on the lower of four blocks on Latimer street which are to be improved on the north side with concrete curb and gutter, with new catchbasins as required. On the street intersections and alley entrances concrete approaches are being constructed.

This crew, which is now in the block from Stanley to Ward, consists of four to six men, the larger number being used when the pouring is in progress.

FAIRVIEW PROGRAM

It is probable that the big mixer, which has a crew of 12 to 14, inclusive of truckmen, will remain in Fairview till nearly the close of the seaon, working on the extensive concrete program in that section. It is at present on Third street, where two blocks of sidewalk are being laid, between Cottonwood and Elwyn. The next job will probably be the two blocks on Fourth.

Petitions for concrete sidewalks are still being turned in, to come before the council, and concrete work will probably be in progress until the cold weather brings the concrete season to a close.

"GOOD SAMARITAN" AIDS HITCH-HIKER

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept 17,—While hitch-hikers should be warned that sleeping in the rain by the roadside generally means a cold or worse, one road hiker, Henry J. Mooney, of Main, found it meant money—four dollars.

After working nights all week in a New London restuarant, Harry had a disagreement with the proprietor when he asked for his pay, and discovered he had been laboring seven days for just his meals. He lost a rather heated argument about it and decided it was about time to go to Maine to visit his father, whom he had not seen for seven years. Walking nearly 20 miles on the first day he finally succumbed to weariness, and lay down on the side of the road. Rain fell, but he was asleep.

A motorist passed, and making sure the sleeping man was alive, put four dollars in his pocket. Later he requested attendante at a gasoline station to impart the details to the police. The police arrived, and still asleep, Henry was taken to the polic station, where he was revived. He was then asked if he wanted something to eat, and why, if he was hungry he didn't use the four dollars he possessed.

"Where did I get this?" he asked, as he fingered the money he was directed to take from his pocket. Officers explained the motorist's act.

Noel Coward Comedy Comes Back Merrily

LONDON, Sept. 17,—(By the Canadian Press)—The revival of Noel Coward's old comedy, "The Young Idea," at St. Martin's theatre, under the management of Alec L. Rea, has been well received by critics and the public. "It is true as Mr. Rea said, at the fall of the curtain that this early comedy of Mr. Coward's bears no marks of age," The Times says: "What weaknessess it has are not the weaknesses of fashion, its humor having that pleasant challenge and impudence which belong not to a particular season but to Mr. Coward himself and no other. It preserves its freshness because the imprint of style is stronger upon it that the imprint of any momentary trick.

"The audiences at St. Martin's greatly enjoyed it and with reason. True, it is not, as hay fever is, consistent in its mood. Already Mr. Coward is seen to be swerving, as he swerved disastrously in one or two of his later pieces, from mockery of sentiment into sentiment itself, but here the swerves are brief and the recoveries graceful; reconcile their mother and father the girl outrageously plotting to the story of the young man and is allowed to move freely to its own delicious extravagances and is very seldom broken into by contrary solemnities.

KEPT ON RIGHT SIDE

"The performance is, moreover, extremely accomplished. Cecil Parker very dexterously keeps the husband's wit; Miss Jane Mallican contributes facetiousness on the right side of the second wife's ill temper and Miss Iris Hoey the first wife's erratic charm; the two children are given the authentic impudence by Miss Ann Trevor and Arthur Macrae, upon whom the mantle of Mr. Coward's own acting has marvellously descended, but who wears it with an air of his own; and all the lesser sketches are admirably done, Cecil Ramage giving a persuasive ease to Cicely's lover, Miss Margaret Halston a very clear and shrewd outline to the most vigorous of the hunting women, and A. R. Whatmore supplying a little stolid decoration of his own. A very amusing evening, made the more amusing my Miss Elizabeth Pollock's private mimcry which precedes the first act."

Pioneer Films Lost

LONDON, Sept. 17,—(By the Canadian Press)—Famous pioneer films, based on incidents of H. M. S. of the Duke of York, now King Crescent's cruise under the command George V., in 1898, and shown before Queen Victoria at Osborne, have been lost for some time, and the owner, Alfred West, is anxious to recover them. Mr. West, one of the earliest of the movie men in this country, is 74 years of age, and at present is on a visit to his son in Australia. The films in question were of a noted series, "Our Navy," presented for many seasons at the London Polytechnic institute and elsewhere.

Historically, these films, which extend to about 2000 feet, are of great value as a permanent record of the Royal Navy as it was at the end of the last century. When Mr. West retired from business some years before the war, he left his show in the hands of a licensee, who has been dead for some years. Inquiries have failed to reveal the whereabouts of the films, but it is likely that thy are in the hands of some private individual who has no idea of their importance. Mr. West's forst moving pictures were taken half a century ago. They show yachts racing in the Solent.

Miss Helen Hicks, the hard-hitting young golf star of Long Island, N. Y., is one of the outstanding entrants in women's national championship at the Country Club of Buffalo, on September 21. She won four of the last five tournaments in which she has competed this year.

ASK GOVERNMENTS TO BEAR PORTION MATERIAL'S COST

B. C. Municipalities Decide on Action; Federal Aid to Be Sought

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Sept. 17.—Federal and provincial authorities will be asked to bear a portion of the costs of material for municipal relief works it was decided by the Union of B. C. Municipalities.

The union without debate adopted a resolution drafted by Reeve W. Courch of Saanich and recommended by the resolutions committee, which on Wednesday night after long debate was charged with preparation of a resolution on unemployment.

The resolution follows:

"That this convention of the Union of B. C. Municipalities thanks the government for its offer of 75 per cent of the labor costs of work but respectfully points out that certain municipalities are so situated that they are financially unable to carry out an agreement on this basis. Therefore this convention accepts so far as possible the proposal of the government that this union appoint a small committee to meet them and discuss the situation, and we hereby authorize the committee appointed by the executive to strongly urge upon the government to bear a proportion of the materials, or else bear all labor costs."

Oysters Good Any Time Says Expert

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 17,—Strictly speaking, there is no oyster season, according to Dr. Thomas H. Connolly, chairman of the state board of purification of waters. Dr. Connolly, a prominent dealer, declared the oysters were as delicious and healthful in July and August as they were in fall and winter months.

To explode the hardy myth that oysters are good only in the "R" months, the so-called oyster season got the jump in September this year by opening August 31 in Rhode Island. Several factors, such as recent favorable spawning, the absence of pollution in oyster bearing areas, the growing practice of certifying shipments and the largest number of "set" oysters in recent years, assure an unsually successful season this year for the island oyster men.

Whether the scallop season, will be marked by a larger crop which begins officially September 12 than the relatively small one last year at this time, cannot be determined until the season starts.

Unlike the scallop season, which is defined by a law providing a jail sentence for fishermen who go out before the opening date, there is no law against gathering oysters at any time, Dr. Connolly explained. They are not gathered in large quantities in summer, he said because that is the oyster spawning season and because "people prefer ice cream to oysters in summer."

Although the opening of the oyster season at the start of September each year results more from a "gentlemen's agreement" than from a strict law of nature or the legislature, it was not altogether unheralded. For the last 1500 years the Lord mayor of Colchester, England, has marked the opening by toasting the King with gin, gingerbread and an oyster. On August 31 mayor of thee American opened the season by sampling the bluepoints of the halfshell. The gin and gingerbread were omitted.

Plunges Into Ocean to Put Line on Swordfish

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 17,—Sam Clark of Halifax never caught a bird by putting salt on its tail, but he landed a swordfish by tying a line to its tail, according to Capt. Joe Emberley of Dartmouth, who brought his schooner, Catherine M., to port recently.

It happened a few miles south of Sable Island. The captain and his crew were after halibut but their trawls were not bringing in many, and they were glad to land an occasional swordfish to swell the catch. Numerous swordfish had been sighted in the vicinity and on two occasions three to a dory had been taken on trawl gear. This day a 100 pound fellow broke the water at the side of Sam's dory and put up a terrific struggle on finding itself detained by th trawl. Sam made a hasty mental calculation, figured that about $10 was slipping from his grasp. Over the side went Sam just when the weakened fish was about to escape, and tied a buoy line on its tail. He clamored back into the dory and he and his mate soon had the prize on board.

Capt. Emberley had only 3000 pounds of halibut to show for his trip and the 12 swordfish were a big help.

Reports from Cape Breton indicate that the fisheman there are having a fair season but swordfish are not plentiful. More than 500 vessels, from different points along the coast of Nova Scotia and Newfoundland are operating from Cape Breton ports and 200 were counted recently at Louisburg.

A New Start at 68

EDMONTON, Alta., Sept. 17,—(By the Canadian Press)—"It happened in the Victoria cafe Tuesday night," says the Edmonton Journal, telling about a farmer 68 years of age announcing that he was tired of being "on the land" and intended going into the muskrat industry, and was taking his father, 96 years old with his to Saskatchewan, where the new enterprise would begin. "There were three of them," the journal continues. "One was a young man of about 40. A second looked like what the novelists call 'middle aged.' A third was obviously an old gentleman. 'I tell you what,' said the middle aged fellow, 'I have been on the land all my life and I have come to the conclusion there is nothing in it.'

"'Well,' he went on as he munched a hamburger sandwich with evident relish, 'Iwas 68 last Sunday and I've decided to make a new start, I'm going back to Saskatchewan and open up a muskrat farm. There's money in that, and if my dad here, likes to come along, why he's welcome.'

"And dad, smiling gently, nodded his white haired 96 year old head in acquiescence."

COMMMUNIST PAPER SUSPENDED

BERLIN, Sept. 17 (AP)—The president of police today suspended the communist newspaper "Rote Fahne" for four weeks because of a dispatch printed in the paper addressed to the British workers, sailors and soldiers, and specifically to the crews of the battleships, congratulating them on behalf of revolutionary German workmen.

The dispatch urged the British sailors to "disobey and disarm the officers and chase them from on board."

The telegram was signed by the central committee of the Communist party of Germany.

It has been estimated that one snake will eat nearly 150 mice in six months.
