Starting in the York Rooming house on Durick avenue, the fire had gained headway and spread to the adjoining buildings, Dezall's garage and the Italia hotel, before the fire apparatus was on the scene.

Huge Memorial to Canada's Dead Unveiled on the Ridge

By The Canadian Press

The thoughts of Canadian war veterans flashed back 20 years yesterday as thousands upon thousands held special services in all parts of the Dominion to join in spirit with the 6000 who stood upon Vimy ridge and saw King Edward VIII unveil the Dominion's war memorial.

In city, town and hamlet special church services were held. War years were recalled by special speakers and the events of the great battle at Vimy were retold by veterans who gathered in hundreds of their own special meetings.

VIMY RIDGE, July 26 (CP Cable)—Enfolding flags released at the touch of a King's hand disclosed to the world today the white stone symbol of Canada's sorrow and her honor and remembrance.

On this battle-pocked ridge of Vimy—its scars healed now by the immortality of grass—King Edward VIII stood in the presence of rapt Canadian veterans, of grey war mothers, to dedicate the stately monument to those other thousands who sleep in the encircling plains.

KING EDWARD

High dignitaries were there. Representatives of the British and Canadian governments, the president and ministers of France, joined in a rejuvenation of the comrade-spirit that led the allied armies through four years of war.

But the day belonged to men who talk with the living only in spirit, and to the 6000 of their comrades and kin who stood with faces upturned in the sun toward the white-cowled heroic woman before the monument's two towering pylons, the woman who is Canada, brooding over her dead sons who lie in a foreign field.

King Edward touched the heart of this commemoration in

GLADE SCHOOL IS COMPLETELY DESTROYED BY FIRE; GASOLINE OR KEROSINE USED TO START IT

Twice Scene of Dynamiting; Repairs Following Last Bombing Within Week of Completion

VICTORIA, July 26 (CP) — Seriously concerned with continued bombing and blasting outrages in the Doukhobor district of British Columbia, the provincial government is offering rewards of $2000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of perpetrators, Attorney-General Sloan has announced.

Latest in a number of similar outrages was the burning of a school in course of reconstruction near Glade, B. C., Friday night.

Glade school, twice the scene of dynamite bombings, was razed Friday night in an incendiary fire.

Coal oil or gasoline apparently was scattered copiously over the wordwork of the building—the school is of brick construction—and the fire was away to a fast start. Flames were seen about 8:45 and Provincial Police Constable Pomeroy of Castlegar rushed to Glade to investigate. There was little or no evidence available as to who started the blaze.

Some years ago one end of the school was wrecked by dynamite, and was rebuilt. June 21 last the opposite end was dynamited. Reconstruction of this part of the building was almost complete, another week's work remaining, and the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood limited had posted a guard. In another week, with reconstruction complete, a provincial police guard would probably have been placed on duty at the school, as has been done with other schools in Doukhobor centers throughout the district, it has been suggested.

"BILL" RAMSDEN RESIDENT OF CITY 25 YEARS IS DEAD

Illness Contracted on Holiday Is Cause of Death

Funeral of Wilhelm Henry Ramsden, who died Saturday afternoon at Kootenay Lake General hospital, will be held Tuesday afternoon. He became ill a short time ago while holidaying at Aisnworth and was rushed to hospital by ambulance.

Mr. Ramsden was born 46 years ago in London district. When a boy he was a member of one of the first few Boy Scout troops in England, and later became scoutmaster of that troop.

Emigrating to Canada, he came directly to Nelson, arriving in 1911, and resided here continuously since. As a public accountant, he was well known in Nelson business circles. In 1923 he went into business for himself, conducting a music store, and seeing it through the great changes in this type of business since radio became popular and electrical equipment came into wider use.

Mr. Ramsden was an enthusiastic gardener, spending a great deal of time with his flowers. He was a past secretary of the Nelson Horticultural society, and a former president of the Sons of England lodge at Nelson.

Besides his wife Mr. Ramsden is survived by three children, Allan, 10, Rose Marie, nine, and William Henry, one year; his father, J. V. Ramsden; three brothers, Joseph and Henry at Nelson and Caleb at Revelstoke; two sisters, Alice in Vancouver and May at Bridge River. His mother and a brother "Dick", who predeceased him, also were Nelson residents of long standing.

TWO KILLED

RADISSON, Sask., July 26 (CP)—Joe A. Stahl and Margaret Sarvis, 34, were instantly killed near here today when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into another. Two men were injured.

Consolidated Employees Sixth Picnic at Nelson Is a Pronounced Success

Four Trains Bring Merry-Makers From Trail and Rossland to Lakeside Park; Splendid Weather; Nelson Cooperates Fully

Favored by simply gorgeous weather, and with all transportation and other arrangements clicking to perfection, employees of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company of Canada in the Trail-Tadanac-Rossland-Fruitvale area held their sixth annual basket picnic Saturday in Nelson, with headquarters at Lakeside park, with one of the best turnouts of picnickers in the history of the series. The attendance of women and children broke all records, making up for an observable deficiency in the usual number of men, accounted for by Trail commentators by the heavy scale of operation of the Tadanac plants.

Approximately 4000 came over by the four trains, the last being late in the afternoon, but in addition to that mode of conveyance, hundreds came in cars. A good many of the motor parties, however, spent the day up the West Arm or the main lake, and the number of visiting adults up-town was not as large as usual, though in fact they were there in crowds. All places of amusement and entertainment did fine business with the visitors.

As usual the picnic trains ran straight through to Lakeside park to discharge, and at 10 a.m. the first 1200 visitors were entering the park, to be followed 20 minutes later by another large contingent.

NELSON SERVICES

Simultaneously Nelson's own friendly services for the visitors went into action, with the free street car rides for women and children, their big red tickets being their passports, and with the guest cars arranged by the board of trade. The rush for the street cars started at 10, and did not cease

BRITAIN'S LINER QUEEN MARY SETS OCEAN CROSSING RECORD

NEW YORK, July 27 (Monday) (AP).—The Cunard-White Star line claimed a new record for transatlantic crossings as R.M.S. Queen Mary reached New York harbor early today from Cherbourg, France.

On the basis of figures wirelessed from Ambrose Light by the Queen Mary's master, Sir Edgar Britten, the British line put the ship's elapsed time in crossing at four days, eight hours, 37 minutes.

The line said the Queen Mary's average speed per hour was 29.61 knots, or within .03 of that of the French liner Normandie. Cunard officials explained the Queen Mary took a shorter route than had her French competitor.

The record had been held by the French line's Normandie with a crossing of four days, 11 hours, 42 minutes.

Rossland Lad on Missing List for Day Safe at Home

TRAIL, B.C., July 26. — John Gordon Jr. of Rossland, aged eight years, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gordon, caused his parents considerable alarm Sunday when he was still missing in the evening after having disappeared at about 9:30 in the evening. Police of Rossland and Trail were notified that the boy was missing from home but half an hour later were informed he had returned. Asked where he had been, John was reported to have said he went to Trail, having hitch-hiked both ways.

Pickets Arrested

PIERCE, IDAHO, July 26 (AP)—First arrest of pickets in the month-old North Idaho lumberjacks' strike coincided with increased tension from reports along the strikers' lines that Potlach Forest, Inc., might try to open construction camps Monday. Robert W. Peterson, assistant Clearwater county prosecutor, reported the arrest last night of 10 I.W.W. strikers on a charge of intimidating truck drivers at Hollywood, near here.

KING EDWARD IS HOME AGAIN BY AIR

LONDON, July 26 (CP)-Havas)—King Edward landed at Croydon airport at 8:40 tonight after a flight from France where he unveiled the Vimy memorial to Canada's war dead.

Although the King has made a number of flights since he ascended the throne, this was his first across the English channel.

WOMEN FIGHT IN RANKS OF THE LOYALISTS IN SPANISH REVOLT

MADRID, July 26 (AP).—Leftist Spain poured thousands of loyalist reinforcements into hard-won passes in the Guadarrama mountains today and thrust resolutely forward to beat out civil war on other scattered battlefronts.

(Communications from Madrid were still poor and censorship rigid, but dispatches from the capital, received by the Associated Press correspondent at Perpignan, France, said a column of 12,000 government troops was marching north along an open road to Burgos after smashing rebel opposition in the mountain pass of Sono Sierra.

(This was in direct conflict with rebel headquarter's claims at Pamplona, which said the Fascist insurgents had won a victory in the Guadarrama range.)

Armed recruits, some of them women, moved not only into the mountains, where loyal artillery silenced big rebel guns yesterday, but also marched toward Zaragoza, in the north; Seville, in the south, and other rebel hotbeds.

NELSON, KASLO JOIN HANDS IN VIMY PROGRAM

Legions Parade to the War Memorial and Lay Wreath

Kaslo branch of the Canadian Legion joined with the Nelson branch Sunday evening in public exercises on behalf of Nelson marking the unveiling in France Sunday morning by King Edward VIII, of the Canadian memorial on Vimy Ridge to the 60,000 Canadians who laid down their lives in the great war.

Following a march past the war memorial on Vernon street, when the parading veterans, under A. E. Dalgas, stood with bared heads while a wreath was deposited, and while the bugle sounded the "Last Post", pipes played a lament, and the bugle completed the ceremony with the "Long Reveille", the veterans, the Ex-Service Women's club, their ladies, and a few members of the public gathered in the Canadian Legion hall for a lecture on Vimy Ridge by Lieut.-Col. Fred Lister, D.S.O., of Creston.

Col. Lister's splendid lecture, which followed in the main the "Vimy Pilgrimage" book issued by the Canadian Legion, but included material regarding the Fourth division attack from his own knowledge as second in command of the 102nd battalion, was preceded by a silent tribute to the fallen with the bugle and pipes repeating the cenotaph program; by a short introductory address by Mr. Dalgas on the meaning of the memorial, which he hoped would ultimately prove a monument to peace; and by a sing-song, opening with "O Canada" and "The Maple Leaf", and including "Tipperary", "Bells of St. Mary's", "Smiles", "Pack Up Your Troubles", and "Sweet Rosy O'Grady".

Wondering whether the people of Canada realized the significance of the day, and noting that while the government of Canada spent $1,250,000 on the memorial, the entire publicity regarding the meaning of the event was left to the veterans' organizations, Col. Lister expressed the hope that while the memorial commemorated the sacrifice made by the 60,000 heroic Canadian dead, it would have the peaceful significance referred to by the chairman.

With the aid of maps, some of them prepared by Mr. Dalgas, the Colonel then gave an absorbing address of over an hour's duration, describing Vimy Ridge physically, and tactically, both from a German and an Allied standpoint, referred to the loss by the French of over 300,000 men in two abortive attempts to take it, the second with 17 divisions, and described its triple defences by the Germans. The Ridge was nine miles long, rising abruptly at the northern end from the Scarpe river, and flattening out at the southern end at the Scarpe, streams little bigger than Cottonwood creek in Nelson.

Behind the Ridge was the plain of Douai, from which it rose very sharply, giving the German's fine protection from artillery fire, their dugouts going down into it. Facing the Canadians they had a triple line of trenches, and then over the crest a further system for the reserves, which was to be held at all costs in case of an attack, until the counter-attacks on which the Germans always relied to gain any ground lost, could be promptly organized.

The four Canadian divisions were in line from the right, for a distance of four miles, the senior divisions having the lower land, while the height on the extreme left was assigned to the Fourth or younger division.

Besides a winter's preparation which included much road construction by the troops, accumulation of artillery ammunition, and construction of 11 tunnels into the base of the ridge for sheltering ammunition and troops, Col. Lister detailed the careful rehearsal of the attack by all the units concerned, with the aid of trenches duplicating the German system, until the troops were letter perfect.

In the actual attack, the three older divisions made their various objectives at the scheduled times, the troops following closely on field artilery's rolling barrage, the attack following two weeks of incessant bombardment to cut the enemy's wire, deplete his supplies, and ruin his trench system.

TAKING THE HEIGHT

But the Fourth division was only partially successful the first day. While the 102nd and 54th battalions carried their line forward, it was discovered that those on their left had not come up, and they were subjected to an enfilading fire, and had to partly face around to meet it. The trouble, he said, was that the adjoining battalions had not followed up the barrage closely as instructed, with the result that when it lifted off the German trenches, they were not there to jump down into them, and the Germans were able to man them and mow down these battalions when they advanced.

The lecturer told of the stubborn fight waged, and the gradual winning of the ground, a part being played by the newly arrived 85th Highlanders from Nova Scotia, when they took the final trenches without artillery support, but supported actively on the right by the 54th and 102nd, and on the left by the 12th brigade.

On motion of Lieut.-Col. John Murray of South Slocan, seconded by R. W. Dawson, Col. Lister was warmly thanked for his address, and Mr. Dalgas for his initiative in organizing the commemoration.

Nurses from Kootenay Lake General hospital were present in uniform by Mr. Dalgas' arrangement, and they and the Ex-Service Women's club, headed by Mrs. Simpson, occupied chairs at the front, as did also Col. Murray, and E. C. Cherry, president of the Kaslo branch, which came down 17 strong. Mr. Cherry spoke briefly.

Ice cream was served, and after further remarks by the chairman, the function ended with "God Save the King".

PIPER BABY IS LIKELY WINNER

Boy born to Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Piper of Milligan avenue, Trail, at 9:55 p.m. Friday at Trail-Tadanac hospital apparently is the winner of the "stork race" of the Consolidated Employees' 1936 picnic. Prize was posted for the baby born nearest 12 noon of picnic day in the Trail-Rossland clinic area, and a checkup Sunday indicated no other claimant to the prize. Unless a baby was born in a home in that area at an hour nearer 12 noon, Baby Piper has won the prize.

GEORGE YOUNG SMILE WINNER

When it came to smiling, tiny George Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Young of Trail, had it all over the other babies at the Consolidated employees' picnic Saturday. This, at least, was the opinion of the judges and so George was awarded the prize for the "smilingest baby" of the 1936 picnic.

And it was to Harry Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith of Trail, that the honors went for having the dirtiest face of all picnickers less than a year old.

Jean Laurie had more freckles than any other girl, and Fred Keeler more than any other boys. Each of them received a special prize.

Another feature of the day was the presentation by Mayor J. P. Morgan of a birthday present to Baby Lorna Muriel Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Turner of Trail, winner of the 1935 stork race. A colored photo of the baby was presented to Mrs. Turner.

Pat Beley Only District Winner

KELOWNA, B.C., July 26.—Pat Belay of Rossland was the only Kootenay winner in the B.C. tennis championships completed here at the week-end, when he paired with Miss Wadsworth of Kelowna to defeat Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Weldon of Tadanac in the final of the mixed handicap event by scores of 6-4, 6-4.

Kootenay entrants lost in the finals of four other events as follows: J. McDonell and Miss Brydges were taken easily by E. Forst and Miss E. Young 6-3, 6-1, in the mixed open doubles; Miss K. Nisbet lost to Mrs. Mangin 6-2, 6-4 in the finals of the ladies' consolation; J. McDonell lost to W. Winter 1-6, 6-4, 6-0 in men's consolation singles; MacAllister and Draper lost to Phipps and Clark 6-4, 1-6, 7-5 in the finals of the Veterans doubles.

Results follow:

Mixed doubles handicap—B. Clark and Miss I. Kerr lost to Embrey and Miss Brydges 4-6, 6-3, 6-4; McDonell and Miss Pease beat Williams and Miss Nisbet 6-3, 6-2; Beley and Miss Wadsworth beat Aitken and Mrs. Stewart 6-1, 6-3; Haley and Miss Richards beat Mr. and Mrs. Mangin 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

Third round—Mr. and Mrs. Eldon beat Embrey and Miss Brydges 6-1, 7-5; Haley and Miss Richards beat Marshbanks and Miss Allan 6-0, 7-5; McDonell and Miss Pease beat Isowsky and Miss Stiell 6-3, 6-2; Beley and Miss Wadsworth beat Ewing and Miss Sumon 6-4, 6-3.

Semi-final—Mr. and Mrs. Weldon beat Haley and Miss Richards 6-4, 6-4; Beley and Miss Wadsworth beat McDonell and Miss Brydes beat Pearson and Miss Britton 6-0, 6-2.

Men's doubles—Langlie and Nordstrom beat McDonell and Haley 6-4, 7-5.

Ladies' consolation singles, semi-final—Miss K. Nisbet beat Mrs. T. Weldon 6-7, 6-3.

Men's consolation singles, semi-finals—J. McDonell beat B. Clark 6-0, 7-5.

Veterans doubles, semi-final — MacAllister and Draper beat Stirling and Stubbs 1-6, 6-2, 6-2.

William Gopp Crosses Lake

William Gopp, the veteran Trail swimmer, who at 66 takes his daily dip in the Columbia summer and winter, and who a day or two ago expressed the wish that the Consolidated picnic committee would offer a prize for a swim across the lake at Nelson for men over 50, was in attendance at the big outing Saturday, and not only swam the lake, but dived from the 18-foot level of the diving tower.

The dive lost him temporarily his glasses, but they were recovered by Miss Shorley Boomer, who succeeded in bringing them up.

It was after the dive that he swam the lake, attended by "Slim" Collins in his boat, doing the crossing in 18 minutes. Mr. Collins brought him back.

China's first railroad was built in 1876 between Shanghai and Wu-Sung. It was viewed with so much superstition that the rails were torn up.

NEW DIOCESE IS FORMALLY ERECTED HERE

Archbishop Vancouver Presents Papal Bulls

New Catholic diocese of Nelson was formally erected in a service at the Church of Mary Immaculate Sunday evening, Most Rev. W. M. Duke, D.D., archbishop of Vancouver, officiating. Notable in the ceremony was the reading by the archbishop of the papal bulls of erection of the new diocese, which centers in Nelson and comprises the territory west to Penticton and Kelowna, north to Nakusp, east to the Alberta boundary line, and south to the international line. The church of Mary Immaculate has been created a cathedral church.

Following the service the documents of erection were signed by the clergy present, including Rt. Rev. Monsignor A. K. McIntyre, V.G., of Rossland, Rev. Father Anthony of St. Eugene mission, Cranbrook, Rev. P. Freney of Trail, Rev. J. G. Cheevers of the Slocan missions, and Very Rev. J. C. McKenzie of Nelson, and by members of the church committee. These documents were then prepared for forwarding to Rome.

Archbishop Duke pointed out that while organization would proceed according to the rules of the church, to be successful the diocese must have unity. He bespoke the prayers and cooperation of the people in this.

Previously the archbishop asserted the creation of the diocese revealed the growth of the work of the church. It was difficult to keep up with its needs, he added.

The new diocese contained some of the most important parts of British Columbia and he felt that under normal conditions it should enjoy considerable growth.

Although the diocese was actually created in the ceremony of the evening, the jurisdiction of the territory would remain unchanged until the new bishop was installed, Archbishop Duke pointed out. His relations with the people of this district had always been pleasant, and he hoped they would continue to be.

STUDENTS GET EXAM RESULTS

While the majority of Nelson residents gave their attention Saturday to the Consolidated Employees' picnic, there was one group for whom the picnic hardly existed. They were High school students who thronged the post office waiting for fateful envelopes from Victoria. Most of them knew whether they had passed or whether they had failed, but just what their marks were they had no idea, and this was what they wanted.

There was a great scurrying about as soon as the envelopes were placed in the respective boxes and eager hands unlocked the boxes to get them. And the excitement intensified when they began to compare marks. The picnic meant nothing to them then.

HOCKEY PRIZE GOES TO TRAIL

G. G. Cumming of Trail is believed to be the winner of the $200 merchandise prize in connection with the Trail Hockey club's membership drive which concluded Saturday at the Consolidated Employees' picnic in Nelson. The name on the winning ticket was not clear.

Prizes of $25 each were won by S. Langill, Nelson, R. Hendry, M. R. Landucci and J. Harrison, Trail.

Winning tickets were taken from a churn by H. W. Hankin, picnic chairman.

Alderman and Mrs C. Lauriente of Trail Celebrate Fortieth Anniversary of Wedding Today

TRAIL, B.C., July 26.—The above reproductions are of recent photographs of Alderman and Mrs. Camille Lauriente of Trail who Monday at Banff celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary. They said before leaving that they were unable to have a honeymoon trip when married, so are making up for it now.

Residents of Trail for the past 36 years, they arrived in the city in 1904 when Mr. Lauriente opened a tailoring shop. Since that time he has entered and successfully conducted other businesses. Mr. Lauriente is also a justice of the peace. He is an ardent devotee of ten-pin bowling, lawn-bowling and curling.

Five children, two sons, H. R. (Hank), and Fred; and three daughters, Mrs. C. B. Dawdy, Mrs. A. Vass and Miss Edna, all reside in Trail. They have one granddaughter, Corrine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Lauriente.

Both Fred and Hank are well known in Trail sport circles, both having been members of the Trail senior hockey and baseball teams, Hank at present being coach of the city senior baseball club.

Mr. and Mrs. Lauriente, before coming to Trail, travelled extensively in Europe, South America, the United States and Canada, and decided to settle in Trail as he foresaw a great future for the smelter city. Many of his prophecies have already come true and he hopes to be spared long enough to see the day when Trail has a water route linking it with the markets of the world.

Fireworks Display at Trail Inspires Cheery Picnic Mood

By ARTHUR R. JOY

TRAIL, B.C., July 26. — Boom, zoom, bang, pfft! Another rocket exploded in the heavens, its kaleidescopic sparklers promiscuously falling earthward as the "Oos" and "Ahs" emanated from a crowd that literally filled Butler park to within 50 feet of the display and held back by a cordon which members of the C. M. & S. company employees' picnic committee formed, when a district oil firm gave a 40-minute fireworks display Friday night.

Fireworks always cause people to confess their appreciation of beauty and as each successive rocket exploded to spread its incandescent shroud to the full, approving comment issued from the enthralled audience.

The wise-crackers were provided their opportunity to pour fourth their wit to a susceptible audience.

As a rocket exploded with terrific percussion one onlooker said "I hope it doesn't bring rain to the picnic tomorrow."

"Ah, isn't it pretty," "There's the best one yet", "What a hook that one had", and such remarks were lost in the incessant commingings of comments.

Not a solitary onlooker spoke lugubriously of the spectacle. People don't at fireworks displays. They gaze amazed at the intricate composition of the drab-looking packages that provide a pleasurable sight, and marvel at the beauteous forms that burst forth.

The Trail Maple Leaf band started out from Colombo hall at about 7:30 and in its march across the river drew a more prodigious following that the Pied Piper did children of Hamelin to the mountains.

A few roughly constructed wooden frames were all that were noticed at Butler park until darkness fell and the fireworks started.

Perhaps the most beautiful signt of the 40-minute display was a picturesque resemblance to Niagara falls.

At the conclusion of the free show the greater part of Trail's total population rendered spontaneous applause.

As the crowd dispersed and cars drove away, the city received a taste of big town traffic congestion as police officers directed motorists as cars converged at the bottleneck entrance to the Columbia river bridge.

All returned home in pleasant mood, the proper spark to be fanned on the morrow at another C. M. & S. company picnic at Nelson.

C. Albutt of Seattle was the pyrotechnician in charge and set off the fireworks with caution and dispatch.

NELSON HOPES TAKE ROSSLAND CAMP TONIGHT

Stronger Defence to Take Charge of Visitors

Hoping for full strength on defence, Nelson boxla team will go all out tonight at the civic center arena in an effort to defeat Rossland, and Rossland will be just as determined to prevent that happening, for every game means plenty in the West Kootenay league. Rossland has yet to taste defeat at the hands of Nelson.

The locals expect to be considerably stronger on defence than they were in Rossland last week, and if this department holds up well, they are quite likely to turn in a brand of attack that will make the customers sit up and take notice. The lads have demonstrated fairly conclusively that when they have confidence in their defence they play a much better game up on the attacking line.

First half of the schedule concludes with tonight's game, and the second half slate is expected to be announced within a few days.

Nelson's lineup tonight will be: Gibbons, goal; Atwell, Smiley, Cherrington, Townsend, Gelinas, defence; Bishop, Fleet, rovers; Desbrisay, Bonneville, centers; Paterson, Carr, Cooper, DeVoin, forwards.

VIC OWEN WINS SUNDAY GOLF

Vic Owen was the winner of Sunday's sweepstake competition at the Nelson Golf and Country club, with a net score of 64. Three others tied for second place with scores of 66, A. Baird, W. R. Dunwoody and Jimmie Allan.

A fair turnout was recorded, the sweep proving as popular as ever. First prize was three golf balls, while second prize is two balls and two packets of tees, a playoff being necessary to decide the winner of the second prize.

Other entries were: R. L. McBride, T. R. Wilson, W. J. Waters, Dr. T. H. Bourque, J. D. Kerr, Judge Hanbidge, L. A. McPhail, and W. Duckworth.

Tennis Players' Auto Over Bank Cascade Summit

Miss Nisbet's Injury to Foot Major Casualty

Party of Trail, Rossland and Nelson tennis players returning home from the interior tournament in the Okanagan counted themselves fortunate Saturday night even after they had counted numerous bruises.

Attempting to pass a fruit truck on the first summit their car went over the bank, turned over once and stopped against a tree. It was the only tree of any size for yards in either direction, and had their car not come to a stop there it would probably have rolled down the bank for a distance they preferred not to judge.

Miss K. Nisbet of Nelson suffered a foot injury which proved to be the major casualty of the accident, though all were bruised. Other passengers were Miss Rene Kerr, of Nelson, D. K. McAllister, Basil McAllister and Pat Beley of Rossland; and Bert Clark of Trail.

The car went over the bank about 10:30 p.m., and the Trail and Nelson passengers did not reach Trail until 5 a.m. Sunday.

BOGSTIE BREAKS STRIKEOUT MARK AS TRAIL WINS

TRAIL, B.C., July 26.—Cliff Bogstie, Trail ball club's star southpaw hurler, broke his own strikeout record for the Eastern Washington Baseball league when he whiffed 16 Deer Park batters to win a 3-0 victory at Butler park Sunday afternoon. Earlier this season Bogstie struck out 15 Deer Park men on the same diamond.

"Slivers" Decembrini, Trail first baseman, had a good day, collecting two hits for four trips up, a circuit clout and a double.

Ball fans saw two new players on the Trail team, Hodges, former Lethbridge ball club manager, and Bob Marshall of Rossland. Hodges relieved Tick Hall at short, the latter being absent from town, and Marshall played right field.

"Christy" Christeson, the visiting hurler, although allowing nine hits kept them well scattered. Trail managed to bunch three in the first inning for one run but after that collected no more than one in any inning. After the run in the first by Rothery Decembrini crossed the plate on his homer in the fourth for the second and Fisher reached home for the third when Demore was safe at first on Lowry's error after two were out.

LOUD SPEAKER

A loud speaker was set up on the beach connected with the Anglican Church mission boat which held the officials and the announcer, S. A. Hunter. The arrangements for this had been made by City Electrician F. S. Chandler and City Clerk H. T. Hartin.

The midway at Lakeside park Wednesday afternoon added greatly to the success of the regatta. Ring tossing, ball throwing, a magic wheel of fortune, "housie-housie", and the "hot dog" stalls all did a thriving business. Gus Carney, Charlie Webster, Rex Matthews, A. L. Grayling and Roy Krueger were among the attendants. In the evening a monster dance was held in the drill hall, attended by about 200 persons, and lasting until after 3 a.m. All entertainments during the two-day regatta and water carnival were under the auspices of the Kaslo Boat club of which F. S. Rouleau is commodore and R. A. Chester the mate. The various committees in charge of the affair were:

Finance—R. A. Chester, R. Hewat and B. F. Palmer.

INFANTS AND ADULTS JOIN IN SPORTS CONSOLIDATED PICNIC; CONTESTS SOURCE LOAD LAUGHS

Trail Ladies Win Joe Meagher Cup for Tug-of-war

"DONKEYS" RUN IN ALL DIRECTIONS

Novelty Race for Men and Women Adds New Fun

Infants to adults joined in the fun of the sports at the Consolidated employees' picnic at Lakeside park Saturday, and provided a full day's work for the large committee in charge. Children's sports started about 12 o'clock and were run through in good order, and after a short recess adults took over the field and had their fun out of it, the ladies providing the feature competitions of the day.

The ladies' tug-of-war for the Joe Meagher memorial cup trophy was about the most keenly contested event of the day, but the winners left no doubt at all as to which team was strongest in the tug. An East Trail entry outpulled Rossland in the first elimination tug, and was as quickly eliminated by the strong Trail team in the final. The teams were:

Rossland—Miss Delphine Vetere, Mrs. William Ling, Mrs. Dosin, Miss Gene Flynn, Miss Rose Sdao, Miss Kathleen McLean, Miss Helen Tedesco and Miss Hilda Smith.

East Trail—Mrs. Harry Cox, Mrs. John Ferguson, Mrs. A. Marchiori, Mrs. G. H. Hill, Mrs. G. Handley, Mrs. A. Laurlente, Mrs. A. G. Cottrell and Miss Eda Vetere.

Trail—Mrs. A. Macdonald, Mrs. Angus Macdonald, Mrs. Don Macdonald, Mrs. Harry Eperson, Mrs. Joe Wilkinson, Mrs. Tom Young, Mrs. Ed Laarz and Mrs. James Callan.

PICTURES TAKEN

Not the least interesting angle of the event was taking pictures of one or two competitors and a mere male friend trying on some of the prizes won by the second-place winners.

The new competition, the men's and women's novelty race in which the runners were paired, their hands tied, while they had to run to two stations and pick up batons, provided a big tangle and plenty of fun.

Another contest in which there was a good deal of interest was the blind donkey race. In this the men were blindfolded, turned around and set off in the general direction of the tape, carrying their "jockeys". Some of the jockeys were a little lax on guiding their "steeds", but it was lots of fun.

Lads Missing the Last Train Home Look for Rides

Any driver of a car bearing a Trail license was hardly safe in Nelson late Saturday night and early Sunday morning. He was liable to be stopped anywhere on the street, shouted at every time he stopped at an intersection and at times almost hauled off the road car and all. The reason for it was the number of Consolidated employees who missed the last train home at 11 p.m. Saturday and who, having to go to work Sunday, were chasing here, there and everywhere looking for someone going their way with whom they could ride home.

"I TRIED 'em all. I know. Those ordinary dressings can never give you the wonderful flavor and creamy goodness of real mayonnaise like Best Foods."

It's what goes into them that counts. You see, Best Foods is all mayonnaise. It's made only from fine salad oil, freshly-broken eggs, a specially selected vinegar, and imported spices. And double-whipped to give it that wonderful creamy-smooth texture.

So remember, if you want your salads to be at their very best, always ask your grocer for Best Foods Real Mayonnaise. It is so good . . . and costs but a trifle per salad!

MOTORISTS TO BLAME FOR MOST CROSSING ACCIDENTS

That the exercise of care and caution on the part of car drivers would appreciably cut down the number of level crossing accidents and fatalities is the conclusion that must be drawn from statistics recently released by the Board of Railway commissioners.

An analysis of fifty-three accidents at protected C.N.R. crossings during a six months period and of one hundred and sixty-three accidents at protected C.P.R. crossings during another six months period indicates that carelessness was chiefly responsible for the collisions that occurred.

In twenty instances autos ran into the side of trains. Two drivers failed to see or hear the train, three attempted to cross ahead of approaching engines, one did not have his car under control, eleven approached crossings at excessive speed, two drove past the watchman's signal, twenty drove under gates as they were being lowered, four drove through lowered gates, thirty-seven disregarded stop signals.

These statistics do not constitute an argument against grade separation at dangerous points where there is heavy traffic. They do suggest that car drivers can safeguard themselves to a greater extent than has been the case in the past if they will take the time and trouble to do so. Many of the level crossing accidents which take such a lamentable toll of human life are easily avoidable. If all motorists remembered their responsibility the annual lists of killed and injured would be reduced to comparatively negligible proportions. When unnecessary chances are not taken the element of danger is small.

QUAINT TRADITIONS

The London correspondent of the Detroit News has collected an interesting list of local British superstitions and customs of long prevalence in various sections. He says that in Hertfordshire recently a servant refused to iron the tail of a man's shirt because she said financial ill luck would follow.

In Lincolnshire, it is believed a married woman who suddenly develops a curl at each temple where formerly the hair was straight, will soon be a widow. There, too, an even number of eggs "never metches nowt but stags" (roosters).

In parts of Oxfordshire it is believed that grease from the church bells is endowed with certain curative properties. It is held lucky for a bird to enter the house if it alights on the curtain. If a piebald horse is seen, one should cross fingers until a dog is seen. Having done so good luck will follow.

In parts of Norfolk to eat blackberries after October 11 (when the devil set his mark on them) or to fall down on Good Friday is positively "asking for trouble."

In Bedfordshire one must either bow or spit on seeing a magpie if you are to avoid disaster. In parts of London it is said to be unlucky for an engaged couple to be photographed together.

Falling of a picture, which is supposed to foretell death, woke four people when fire broke out in M. Craig's home in London, and consequently saved their lives.

Being written Sunday night.

It is so quiet in Nelson following the Trail employees' picnic that it is a relief.

Someone from Trail suggested I write an aftermath column.

And the same person declared the column was so rotten it had a bad odor.

Well, I suggested they stop reading the darned thing.

But the answer was, after reading Andy Gump, "I always look to see what J.B.C. has to say."

Now I ask you, can you figure that out?

From what I can gather the picnic was a great success.

Many people drowned their sorrows but there were no real casualties.

The picnic committee had a wonderful organization and everything went off like clockwork.

I hope the visitors enjoyed themselves—and I believe they did.

A TURNOVER

Hamilton man, arrested while turning somersaults on the highway, was freed after his sanity was established.

Motorists, according to the press, became alarmed when they saw the man turning somersaults—over and over again. Of course, this is the season of summer romance—when anybody is liable to fall head over heels in love—and yet, we think the police who arrested the somersaulter did right. Authorities can't be too careful, in these days of revolutions.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

I have just been spending some time with a physician, who, in his sanitarium, has one of the most successful systems for the treatment of chronic arthritis in this country.

His idea, in plain, blunt language, is that all the "scientific" treatments for this condition have proved to be failures, so he sticks to the good old-fashioned methods of heat, massage, time and manipulations.

We have heard a great many scientific discussions of lots of things about arthritis. Diet, for instance. What this man says about diet seems to me to be the most sensible word on the subject that has yet come my way. He says that if his patient is overweight, with a big stomach on him, he starves him until he gets it down; that if he is thin and underweight, he gives him extra foods; and if he is right weight, he lets him alone.

That is all there is to the dietary treatment of arthritis and I, for one, heartily agree with him. If diet does an arthritis case any good, it is gout—not arthritis.

TALK OF VACCINES

We have also had a great deal of "scientific" discussion of vaccines and strains of streptococcus and attenuations of specific strains for inoculation purposes in arthritis. I once visited a laboratory for the study of arthritis where one big room was lined with shelves filled with test tubes, each with a culture of a different strain of streptococcus. When the patient's blood was tested against these, it reacted to a certain particular strain. Then they made a vaccine from that strain and thty started out to inoculate the patient with something like a one-millionth dilution of the toxin of this streptococcus. According to my doctor friend's ideas, all this elaborate procedure is worthless, except as any vaccine, acting as a foreign protein, might warm the patient's body up and be beneficial in that way.

The method of inducing artificial fever is being used in many different conditions since it was first introduced for paresis. It has proved very useful, and taught us that fever itself is a defensive reaction on the part of nature in an attempt to throw off infection. It is not surprising that it is proving successful in many widely varying conditions, including chronic arthritis.

In chronic arthritis, we have a sluggish process which does not create enough reaction in the body to make it form antibodies which would conquer the disease. The artificial fever does this, and this aids nature or stimulates nature to do her stuff.

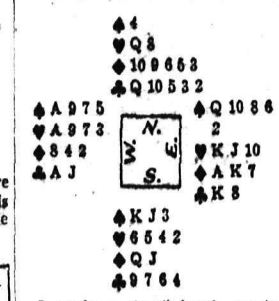
"Teacher of Teachers"

INTUITION PREVENTED LOSS

The instinctive knowledge or feeling, which we term intuition, often saves a player from doing the wrong thing. That inner knowledge of what should be done is strongly developed in successful players, and it should be cultivated by all of us. Commonly we refer to a strong urge to take a certain course, when reason alone seems unable to guide us, as a "hunch". Call it what you will, but follow it when all else fails, as I had to do on the following hand.



I made a fourth-hand opening bid of 1-spade, sitting East. When partner jumped into 2-No Trumps, I went 3-Spades, to allow him to make the final choice. To my great surprise he bid 6-Spades, which South doubled, and who could blame him.

The opening lead was the Q of diamonds. Declarer's K won the trick. The double seemed to show that South held the two missing trump honors. I led the 6 through the doubler. He played low. The 6 held the trick. North played the 4. The 2 of spades was covered with the J. Dummy's Ace won. There was no sense in leading another spade to bring out South's K. Let him ruff with it if he wished.

The normal way to play hearts was to lead high, or play high, from the short end of the suit. Four heart tricks would enable me to make my contract. I led a low heart from dummy. There were 6 of the suit missing, with odds of 65 to 35 that they would not be divided adversely 3-3. North put up his 8. My K won. I had played the suit automatically. The moment after I had gone up with the high honor I instinctively knew that I had played incorrectly. Now I had to make amends. I led off the K of clubs while I thought over the heart situation. Then I knew what to do. I led the J of hearts. South played the 4. Dummy's Ace won the trick, dropping North's Q and insuring my contract. The 7 of hearts was taken with my 10. Dummy was put in lead with a club. The 9 of hearts was led. On it went my hand, offering the doubler his good K of spades, which was all he could win. Intuition had saved the day for me.

In duplicate games remember to score honors only when total points are to be counted. Honors are not scored in match point counting.

Every bridge player should own a copy of the Laws of Contract Bridge. Any book dealer should be able to furnish this inexpensive book. It is published by the John C. Winston Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

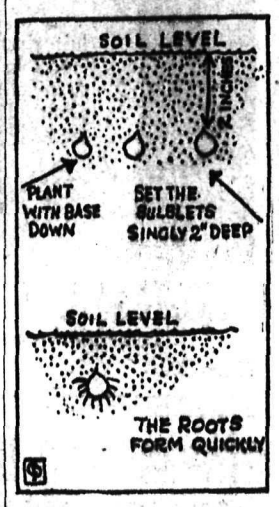
TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Copyright, 1936, Central Press Association, Inc.

Many garden lilies can be propagated from the tiny bulblets about the parent bulb. When planning to dig lily bulbs to obtain the bulblets or bulb scales, do not leave them out of the ground, but immediately replant them, for the bulblets start growth and form roots quickly, as shown in Fig. 2 of the above Garden-Graph.

The bulblets should be planted base downward and about two inches deep, set out singly, as shown in Fig. 1. The ideal soil for propagating lily bulblets consists of a sandy loam well mixed with peat or leaf mold.



Growing Lilies From Bulblets

Since herbs are much in vogue at present, says Elizabeth Lawrence, in House Beautiful, their enthusiasts may be interested to know that two of them are chrysanthemums. The familiar tansy, picturesquely called "Bitter Buttons," is C. vulgare. Tall and rank with spreading roots, it is considered a weed by most gardeners, but its luxuriant curled foliage and bunches of bright yellow flowers can be used to advantage in some bare spot. It takes hold in poor soil, and becomes permanently established. Tansy is aromatic, but bitter to taste. The other herb among chrysanthemums, costmary (C. balsamita), is grown for its sweet-scented foliage, which brings out the fragrance of other herbs.

ADVANCE WEATHER BULLETIN

For Western and Central Canada, embracing British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario.

Monday, July 27, 1936—Light and showery rains about southeastern sections, but in northwest clearing; fairly warm for the season in all the country.

Tuesday, July 28—Cloudy, unsettled condition drifts east, while nearly all the west becomes fairly clear and temperatures rather above the normal.

Wednesday, July 29 — Nearly every part of the country now quite clear and warm, except a few clouds and may be light precipitation about the southeast.

Thursday, July 30—Some indications of slightly cloudy and unsettled conditions to the southwest of central provinces; most of country clear and warm.

Friday, July 31—Slightly unsettled about the southwest and along southern borders of central provinces, but generally fair weather and definitely turning cooler in the west.

Saturday, Aug. 1 — Along the southern borders of central provinces and in southeastern sections somewhat unsettled, but most of country clear and cooler.

Sunday, Aug. 2 — In west and southwest indications of light rains but in general fair weather and temperatures change but slightly in most sections.

Week July 27 to Aug. 2, 1936, in central provinces begins with cloudy and mildly unsettled conditions in the west, which soon drift to east and a period of fair and generally clear weather sets in, though about southwest and along southern borders of central regions some slight disturbances and probably a few showery rains. Temperatures up to end of July ought to be around or above normal in most sections, with a slight decline just at first of August, after which changes occur in narrow range near or slightly above normal.

The last few days of July are expected to be warm and fair for the most part, with but few scattering rains which probably carry something less than the normal moisture to most sections, as it seems a dry period now sets in, and while cloudy at times, and even some stormy conditions, the rains are expected to be light. The rainy season in this country is normally from May to August with the peak late in June, and as a rule there is a dry period late in July; yet the normal is sufficiently high to warrant the expectation of some fairly frequent and medium heavy rains. On account of the temperature of August being unusually equable and near normal this year it is probable there will be no more than normal rain.

RAPS A. FABRO OF KIMBERLEY

The Editor:
Nelson Daily News.

Sir—Quite a controversy has arisen in our little town of Kimberley in the last day or so, through the appearance in one of the Vancouver papers of an article by one of our local business men who had taken exception to an editorial entitled "Discrediting Italians." Not caring for ancient history, I do not take the coast papers, and so missed this editorial, but I saw the reply to same under the heading "Italian View" and with your kind permission I would like to express my opinion of A. Fabro's reply to the coast editor.

To begin with, I will admit that Mr. Fabro probably had some provocation for feeling hot under the collar under the circumstances, but provocation is no excuse for such an outburst of anti-British sentiment as expressed in his letter. He certainly had no mercy on the editor who evidently is a sport, too, to publish Mr. Fabro's reply. I will quote one or two paragraphs from "Italian View" to make my case more clear.

Mr. Fabro says: "To begin with, Mr. Editor, please bear in mind that we Italians, whether in Italy, in Canada, or in any other country, are always quite able to take care of ourselves."

In another part he refers to Britain's dominion over one-fourth of the globe, and asks, "whether this dominion is a gift from God, or the result of war, plunder, and chicanery?"

Later he goes on cheerfully with, "When you talk of plunder and banditry, please remember that we Italians will never be able to catch up with you Britishers."

Toward the end of his epistle he makes everything as clear as mud in this very concise fashion: "The whole truth of the matter is, however, that there was a time when we Italians were at the bidding of you Britishers. There was a time when Italian statesmen and scrounging diplomats were falling over themselves to do as London intimated. That time is gone, however, and you Britishers, and by that I really mean you Englishmen, cannot reconcile yourselves to the fact that we Italians are also deserving of a little respect."

This outburst seems all the more incredible to me in view of the fact that Mr. Fabro himself must be a British subject, having, I believe, gone overseas with the Canadian army, and being quite a big shot in one of our local political efforts, around election time, I mean. When he refers to "we Italians" I'm forced to wonder if his epistle to the editor is purely personal, or did he have a pow-wow with his fellow before taking his foolish step? If countrymen, British or otherwise, the latter, then his opinion is the opinion of a great number of Italians resident in this town, and herein lies the stupidity of it all. In Kimberley we have quite a large community of Italians, many of whom have taken out citizenship papers and many who have not. Now, when the Ethiopian fracas referred to by Mr. Fabro was at its height, Mr. Mussolini sent a clarion call across the world for all good Italians, who had the price, to come home and help in the fireworks display. The response here was amazing. Every good Italian who had the price stampeded to take out naturalization papers!

In other words, they enlisted the protection of the selfsame British Empire, of which Canada is no small part, and which Mr. Fabro holds up to ridicule in no uncertain manner.

Most of the men earning their living here in Kimberley are dependent on work in the mine or mill and I have heard it said that British born subjects are actually in the minority in the former, allowing for Italians, Swedes, Norwegians, and men from many other European countries. Does not this say something for the tolerance of the British public? The mere fact that Mr. Fabro was allowed to publish his letter, whether his own or his fellow countrymen's views, should say something for the freedom of the press. A Britisher even breathing as much in Italy at the present time would find himself star performer at a hanging, or at least resembling an Ethiopian, covered with feathers.

I know of one or two British subjects who have had to leave this town for a mere infraction of our so-called code, yet I suppose we will have to swallow Mr. Fabro's opinions and like them. He evidently remembered too many ancient historical facts and over-looked to much which has happened in comparatively recent years. I should like to remind him of some of them. We all remember the depression here, and how, of necessity, our numbers were reduced to suit the circumstances. I can recollect how many of our British subjects were dispensed with including some ex-service men, when at the same time many men of foreign extraction were retained, including some who actually served against us during the war. Does this not also speak volumes for the magnanimity of the good old long suffering British public? Then came the gradual reinstatement as conditions improved. Who came back first? I'll give you two guesses. Mr. Fabro should have thought of his fellow countrymen here instead of in Italy, here where many of them have as good places in the mine as any British subjects, here where they are shown as much consideration as any local born lad, if not more. A few Italians are in business here, patronized by we British as well as by we Italians.

What about Trail? On Picnic Day there, when they visit Nelson, an outsider looking on would almost imagine it were an Italian lodge outing. They are even strong enough numerically to have one of their own number elected mayor of the city. Yet the British or Canadian ordinary working man in these communities just grins and takes it as part of his ordinary burden.

Did he think of the unemployment situation? Should the British element here in Kimberley, Trail, or all over the country demand a reviewing of this grave question, and be lucky enough to make some of our politicians wake up and have all unnaturalized citizens returned to the bosoms of their respective countries then there would be no unemployment farce. Then there are our young men, growing up out of their 'teens, and still dependent on father. These could be put to work as is their due, as soon as they come to a workable age. Father himself would still have work instead of being told he is too old at 55 or thereabouts. These foregoing are only some of the problems brought on by bringing out to this country more foreigners than can be absorbed on the labor market, and I ask Mr. Fabro, is it just and right that his fellow countrymen should be allowed to be a contributing factor to this state of affairs? I have heard a lot about the cooperative movement around Trail and Kimberley, and I don't think it would do any harm if some of their live wire committee men remembered some of these points when discussing their labor problems with their management.

To get back to the start of all this again, the Italo-Ethiopian affair, I think Mr. Fabro, and also the editor with whom he crossed swords, would have been well advised to have left this matter undiscussed, as I believe the public, British or Italian, are not in possession of sufficient data to warrant an opinion of any sort, for or against, a situation which has the best diplomats of the world baffled. Mr. Fabro winds up his little tirade in these words to the editor of the coast paper, "I would also humbly and mildly suggest that you leave Mussolini to Italy and the Italians," and I heartily agree with him, but at the same time my conscience won't permit me to close this letter to the editor of our daily interior paper without these words, "Canada for Canadians and British Subjects."

Ken Black Sets Record to Win Vancouver Golf; Beats Lawson Little and Manero, U. S. Champ

Vancouver Amateur Has Record Round of 63 to Top Crack Field and Make Total of 275, 13 Strokes Better Than Par

By EVERETT GRAEME
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

VANCOUVER, July 26 (CP).—Ken Black, young Canadian amateur, was in Victoria today to attempt some more giant-killing after his upsetting nine-under-par 18-hole round which yesterday brought him out of the ruck to victory in the Vancouver $5000 Jubilee golf tournament.

The 24-year-old, poker-faced Shaughnessy club shotmaker, playing over his home course where his father, Dave, gave him his first golf lesson 16 years ago, couldn't go wrong as he turned in a scorching 63. It set a new record for the par 72 course scarcely 24 hours after Lawson Little of Chicago, former British and United States amateur champion now turned pro, cracked the previous mark with a 64.

Not since Bobby Jones won the United States open has an amateur topped such a crack field, one of the smartest ever to stroke a Dominion tournament. The field was crowded with champions from the United States.

13 UNDER PAR

Young Black clipped 13 strokes from par 288 over the 72 holes with his 275, and was three up on two young American pros, Byron Nelson of Ridgewood, N.J., and Jimmy Thomson, Shawnee-on-Delaware, with their 278's for second place.

Little ended up with a disappointing 289. After his par-smashing 64 of Friday he toured the first 18 yesterday in even 72, then slipped on the second 18 to card a 75, three strokes under his first day's round when his putter failed him.

With two sub-par 70's and an even 72 for his early rounds Ken was not considered in the running as the final finishers came home with Nelson and his blazing 65, Tony Manero of Greensboro, N.C., United States open champion, with 69 and Terle Johnston of Decatur, Ill., with 68.

Then came word to the gallery crowding the 18th green that Ken was seven under par at the 15th. The crowd streamed over the fairways to the 16th to see Ken pick another stroke from par with a birdie and cheered almost hysterically as he repeated on the 17th.

When he sank his second putt on the 18th the crowd swarmed through the ropes encircling the green to congratulate the modestly smiling Black.

PRIZE MONEY POOLED

Owing to the number of ties and the fact the players had to leave at midnight last night for the $3000 three-day Victoria tourney opening tomorrow, officials pooled prize money among tied groups of the pros and split it.

Nelson and Thomson, tied for second place in the field, collected $950 each from first and second place money.

MacDonald Smith, taciturn Scot from Nashville, Tenn., tied with Manero with 279's to take third and fourth place awards of $500 each.

Smith and Manero both found the greens and fairways to their liking yesterday to finish up with 68 and 69, respectively, the veteran Scot

Another stroke back was Johnprovoking the gallery with the golfing perfection that has won him the title of greatest stylist in the game.

Another stroke back was Johnston, who cracked out a par-breaking 68 for a 280 total and fifth money, $350.

Freddy Wood, young pro from Vancouver Municipal links, who led the field until yesterday's final 18, was alone with 281 and seventh in the field. It got him $350.

Wood, who carded a 67 in the first round and added two 70's, cracked under the strain of pacing the smart field in the final round and needed 74.

Two American pros, Emory Zimmerman of Portland, Ore., and Ralph Guldahl of St. Louis, tied with 283's to split $500 for seventh and eighth place money.

Dave Black, father of the tourney victor, Dewy Longworth of Oakland and Willie Goggin of San Francisco were next on the prize list with 285's, collecting $165 each.

GOLF

by ALEX MORRISON

A good golf swing is like a fine piece of machinery, it performs better and lasts longer. Henry Picard has such a swing.

During the last year Picard has played in almost every open tournament. Naturally, this meant playing over all kinds of courses in all sorts of weather and when he was feeling good or bad. If he had been without a good swing I'm sure his average would have been much higher than even fours.

Only two or three times did his high scores go over 74. Many times his low scores were in the 60's, the lowest being something like 66. Many a pro would like to feel that 74 is about as high as he can go.

Most of the money players have a habit of running up into the 80's at the wrong time. Only a few of them have learned that the swing is the most important part of the game. The young Hershey pro leads the field toward better swings.

"Games" Are Not Wanted, Picnic

Strangers Who Want to Play Unable Get Permission

There were a number of strangers in Nelson Saturday who came from far places looking for "pickings" and apparently figuring the Consolidated Employees' picnic with a throng of merrymakers here from Rossland, Trail and Fruitvale would provide those "pickings".

These strangers had a number of "games" they proposed to play with the picnickers, and some of them were exceedingly diligent in seeking to obtain concessions at the park. When city officials refused them they turned to picnic officials and told some really ingenious yarns in an effort to obtain the desired permission to "play" with the picnickers.

But they didn't get the permission.

Several guitar and vocal specialists "made hay while the sun shone", however, invitations and encouragement for them to sing and play being numerous at all times.

MONTREAL WINS

SUDBURY, Ont., July 26 (CP).—With both teams playing some of the weirdest football seen in Sudbury for many years, Montreal Hamilton United deadlocked the eastern Canada Dominion cup soccer playdowns here last night and forced a third game Monday by scoring a 1-0 victory over Falconbridge Falcons. Falcons won the first game Friday night 2-0.

ALL SET FOR THE HOUSE OF DAVID

Steve Smith to Start on Mound Against Colored Team

Heralded as the feature travelling baseball attraction all over the country where they have played this season, the strong Van Dyke's Colored House of David baseball club will come to Nelson Tuesday to play the local New Grand Cubs in what is expected to be the outstanding game of the local season. The game is billed to start sharp at 5:30 p.m.

Steve Smith, who appeared to have struck his true form, judging by his smart exhibition Sunday afternoon, is slated to start on the mound for the Nelson team with Gordon (Fat) Richardson behind the plate. Smith generally pitches his best ball when the opposition is strongest and Nelson and district fans will be pulling strong for the local favorite to hand a defeat to the strong touring nine.

12-0 AS ROYALS WIN PLAY-OFF

VANCOUVER, July 26 (CP).—New Westminster Royals, British Columbia soccer champions, ran through a disorganized Calgary Callies eleven Saturday for a 12-0 victory, the worst defeat an Alberta team has ever suffered in this province, and eliminated the Albertans from the Dominion soccer series.

The Royals won the first game of the best-of-three series here Friday night 2-1. Royals will now meet an eastern division champion yet to be named.

Batting Leaders

Lou Gehrig of the Yankees moved back into a tie for the American league batting lead yesterday, as the Chicago White Sox slugging twins, Rip Radcliff and Luke Appling, slipped somewhat. Gehrig collected four hits in eight times at bat to boost his mark to .374, to climb from fifth place and tie Radcliff for the lead. Appling, leader on Saturday, could get but one hit in seven trips to the plate, falling to .373 and a tie with Earl Averill of Cleveland. Averill hit safely three times in nine chances. In the National league trio Frank Demaree of the Cubs got six hits in eight times up to boost his average to .355 and take over second place from Paul Waner of the Pirates.

Standings (first three places in each league):

GIRL REPS GO THROUGH PACES

Although four regulars are still out of the city, Nelson girls' representative softball team which plays the Trail All-Stars in the third and fourth games of the West Kootenay championship series here next Sunday, held another stiff workout at the Recreation grounds Sunday morning with nine players in attendance. Alice Gillett, who was missing from the Nelson lineup in the first two games in Trail a week ago, turned out and will probably hold down a regular position next Sunday.

Further practises are called for Wednesday and Friday evenings at 6:15 o'clock.

BOLTON LANDING, N.Y., July 26 (CP).—Kaye Don, famed British speedboat and automobile pilot, stood alone today as the only foreigner ever to drive a winning boat in the 33-year-old gold cup regatta, premier motor boat classic of the United States.

Pounding Saturday over Lake George's waters without competition after the first half mile, the stocky Isle of Man racer piloted the 11-year-old Impshi, Detroit Yacht club entry, over the 90 miles in one hour and 58.13 minutes, an average speed of 45.734 miles an hour.

CUBS TRIM THE MONARCHS 10-4

Smith Hurls a Fine Game Against the Spokane Squad

Playing practically errorless ball behind a smart pitching performance by Steve Smith, the New Grand Cubs senior baseball club defeated the Spokane Colored Monarchs 10-4 in a well-played game before a fair turnout of fans at the Recreation grounds Sunday afternoon.

Smith, who hurled the first seven innings for the locals and was then rested as he is slated to pitch against the Van Dyke House of David Colored team here Tuesday, struck out 12 batters and allowed two runs and three hits. Two of the hits came in the opening inning. Smith fanned seven batters in succession in the second and third innings and the first batter to face him in the fourth.

In the second inning the local southpaw struck out three batters on 10 pitched balls. In the second, third, fourth and fifth innings not one visiting batter reached first base.

Not only did Smith hurl a smart game but he also led his team at bat with four hits in as many times up, including three doubles, two of which cleared the left field fence.

The local club bunched five hits including doubles by Smith and Asbell in the second inning to push three runs across the plate, and added five more in the fifth on three walks and as many hits. Two more runs in the seventh completed the Cubs' scoring.

The visitors scored single counters in the first, sixth, eighth and ninth innings.

In addition to Smith, Richardson, Enerby and Anderson showed up well for the winners, with Harris, pitcher, Burnette, third base and catcher, and Richardson, center field, all displaying fine form for the Spokane colored club.

"Tiger" Jack Fox, who is well known to several local pugilistic fans, provided most of the fun of the game, and his hit in the ninth inning brought a big hand from the crowd.

Slim Kraft and Tony Scanlan umpired the game.

Piling up a 7-2 lead in the first three innings off "Donkey" Scott, the Leos baseball club took the second game of the local midget playoffs with the Panthers Sunday evening, the final score reading 7-2. Jim Niven blanked the winners in the last four innings. The third and final game is scheduled for next Saturday at 5 p.m.

Les Trainer, who went the route for the Leos, fanned eight batters and also received fine support from his teammates. Scott struck out three and walked a like number. Jim Niven fanned seven batters.

BRITAIN WINS FIRST SINGLES

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 26 (CP Cable).—Great Britain's three-year supremacy in Davis cup tennis competition appeared today to be assured for another year.

With the first two singles matches of the challenge round series with Australia won, the British team has only to capture one match out of the three remaining.

Fred Perry did the expected Saturday as he conquered the Australian champion, Adrian Quist, in four sets, 6-1, 4-6, 7-5, 6-2. But Henry W. "Bunny" Austin, the slender, stylist number two player of the home forces, had previously shown the way by a convincing victory over Jack Crawford, 4-6, 6-3, 6-1.

The Aussies had counted on Crawford to beat Austin to give them a chance of capturing the series. With that match lost, their task appeared insurmountable.

REMEMBER WHEN?

By The Canadian Press

The test cricket series was tied at two-each between Australia and England at Leeds, two years ago yesterday. The Aussies had a commanding lead in the fourth game when rain interfered and the contest declared drawn. The first test was won by Australia, the second by England, while the third also ended in a draw. The fifth and deciding match of the year ended in a win for the Aussies.

U. S. Golf Champ Pays Homage to Young B. C. Star

VANCOUVER, July 26 (CP).—Twenty-four years ago Dave Black became a proud father—of a husky eight pound son. Today he was even prouder—father of the winner of the Vancouver $5000 Jubilee golf championship, Ken Black.

"My boy," beamed Dave, "what a lad. 'Tis the likes of him—" He stopped, then added:

"When he was a wee lad in Montreal I wanted him to be a golfer. Well, I guess he is."

It was Ken's stunning 63 in yesterday's final 18-hole round, nine under for the par 72 course, that gave him the championship. Being an amateur he didn't share in the money awards. He got a cup instead.

That didn't bother either of the Blacks, or anyone else.

"It's the glory, not the gold, that counts," said swarthy Tony Manero, United States open titleholder from Greensboro, N.C. "If I could do a round like that I'd pay, not collect."

Jimmy Thomson, Shawnee-on-Delaware pro who played around with Ken and incidentally shot a 65 himself to tie for top shot among the pro's, swore in admiration.

ENGLAND OFF TO GOOD START

MANCHESTER, Eng., July 26 (CP cable).—A vigorous onslaught by England's batsmen in the first day's play of the second test match with India put the mother country in a good position to obtain a big first-innings lead when play is resumed tomorrow.

After India had been dismissed for 203 runs Saturday, the English players compiled 173 for two wickets, Walter Hammond, Gloucestershire's dependable all-rounder, smashing out 118 not out. Hammond had been kept out of the first test through illness but his play showed him to be as clever as ever. He gave a display of powerful driving and his century included 16 fours.

CHAPTER 35

If Joan had had a mirror, she might have peered into it with interest. She was curious to know whether she had a naturally sympathetic face or what strange quality it was in her that brought out all the confidential things that were constantly being thrust upon her.

For Sheila True to ask her what to do about "poor Pierre" topped all of them and Joan had no answer.

"Pierre is so impetuous. You know how Latins are. I wanted to help him when he first came over"—Joan had some idea of what Sheila's help was—"but he is getting to be a problem. After Jose, I promised myself I wouldn't get interested in the artistic careers of any more continentals and here I am."

Joan had an awful feeling that at any moment Sheila was going to begin to get confidential about Julian. She thought it might give her a chance to do something helpful for him. This was the opportunity she had wished she might have but now that it was here, she changed the subject to clothes.

"You'll help me, won't you, Joan? You know, in the first act, I'm a very simple person. I want to wear the sort of thing you do and I shall need your advice.

Joan didn't particularly like that remark. She didn't think that she looked like such a simple person in her beige wool frock with a touch of mink at the collar.

Joan had developed a taste for clothes. She had a flair for chic and her salary, since she had no expenses, permitted her to indulge it.

Much to her surprise, Sheila did ask her to go with her when her costumes were being designed for the play and she did take Joan's advice.

Sheila had done a complete right-about face where Joan was concerned. Whereas one time she had treated Joan like a servant, her attitude now was that of a big sister.

Joan had to see a matinee with Sheila over Julian's protest. Joan must come to the photographers, must select the pictures for publication. Joan must decide between the blue and the gray gown for Sheila. Did Joan think red roses or white violets would be most effective at a dinner party? Would Joan come over and read to Sheila when Sheila was "simply exhausted" from a lengthy rehearsal?

Wouldn't Julian please spare Joan to her for the week-end when she simply had to get away from people and Broadway and the telephone? She couldn't go alone and Joan was "such a sweet, refreshing child?" Joan went.

And Joan began to enjoy it. Sheila was a stimulating person even if she did talk of nothing but herself. Joan was seeing a great actress living the role of being a great actress. Sheila absorbed her to some extent and kept her mind from her own self which was a relief.

Linda had not yet gone to Reno and Joan was evading the subject with Donald.

"When are you going to bring him up to meet me?" Sheila demanded, speaking of Donald.

"Soon," Joan answered and wondered why Sheila was so anxious to meet him.

"Sunday," Sheila said firmly, "I'm having some people in. Lots of young people that you like."

Donald said he'd be delighted.

Then, on Sunday, Joan and Donald came.

"I wanted to meet you—so much," Sheila said to him and in that short sentence conveyed to him that she had waited and now that he had come, there was no need for other words.

"Maneater!" Joan said under her breath, watching Sheila exert her charm on the not inexpert Donald.

Sheila had tricks for which Joan forgave her. Being charming, fascinating, holding her audience utterly, completely was her business. And she knew her business!

It amused Joan a little to watch her. You couldn't be scornful of an artist.

Sheila was so superbly that! This afternoon she wore a sheath of mauve sheer fabric. It had long, tight sleeves, a smooth and clinging skirt and was wound adroitly over the lovely curving lines of her bosom yet altogether, it suggested the slim, greyhound lines of the figures that it revealed rather than concealed. Sheila had thrust a corsage of violets into her belt and the effect was as carefully casual as that of her ash blonde hair which framed her face so softly that it seemed to have been blown by a soft wind into caressing lines. A very nice job Sheila had made of herself.

That she was not the only one who appreciated it was soon apparent to Joan.

Pierre Durand, thinner and darker-eyed than she remembered him, was at the party.

Joan had the impression in speaking to him that he heard nothing she said, that, though his eyes met her own politely, they were burning into Sheila's smooth back. He was not the same young man who had offered Joan a cigaret in Julian's garden the summer before.

Joan gathered her wandering thoughts. They were all different somehow. Julian, Sheila, Pierre Alex and herself. Small wonder that one did not stay young. Events happened so swiftly and left their marks so deeply. What had touched them all?

"What is his name?" She almost missed Pierre's question; it was spoken so quietly and so intensely.

"Whose?" Joan hadn't any idea until she followed Pierre's glance and saw that he was staring at Sheila as she bent her graceful head in answer to something that Donald was saying to her.

Her glance arrested Donald's and she waved airily to him. She didn't know whether she did that to allay something that was in Pierre's mind or whether to assume an air of proprietorship for Sheila to see, Donald's answering flash of smile came back to her immediately and she turned to Pierre.

"That's my beau," she said. "His name is Donald Newberry. Come over and meet him." She almost dragged the reluctant Frenchman across the room.

"If Donald is telling stories, we want to hear them, Sheila"—it was Joan and Sheila now—"and Mr. Durand is dying of thirst. I'd like some tea, please."

"Jealous?" Donald asked with glee and a delighted grin when Sheila had crossed the room to get tea for Joan.

"No, but I had a horrible idea that Pierre was going to come over and strangle you or take a bite out of the table. I thought it was a good moment to become a Diplomatic Delight."

Donald nodded in the direction of Sheila, remarking:

"Im afraid you're not much help," Joan's glance followed Donald's. Sheila, with a cup in her hand, was engaged in earnest conversation with Pierre at the other end of the room. It was hardly perceptible but both Donald and Joan saw that she was quietly trying to release herself from Pierre's grasp on her arm.

"Some day that lady is going to overstep her distance," Donald said. "Don't worry about it. She's all right even if she was going to try to vamp my only beau."

"She'd try to vamp anybody's beau, little one, but she wouldn't bother unless she wanted something. She wouldn't both about anyone but herself, unless she had something up her sleeve."

"That's not fair of you, Donald. You don't know her and I do. Sheila isn't like me but then, I'm not a personality. You make excuses for people like that."

"I'll make you a little bet right here and now that she is playing a game with you. Don't say I didn't warn you."

The King and His Brother Go Flying

Here is an excellent informal snapshot of King Edward and his brother, the Duke of York, heir apparent, as they reviewed the Royal Air Force. Wearing sun glasses and attired in R.A.F. uniforms, both flew in the same airplane during the review. It was remarked at the time that a disastrous airplane crash might have made 10-year-old Princess Elizabeth a queen.

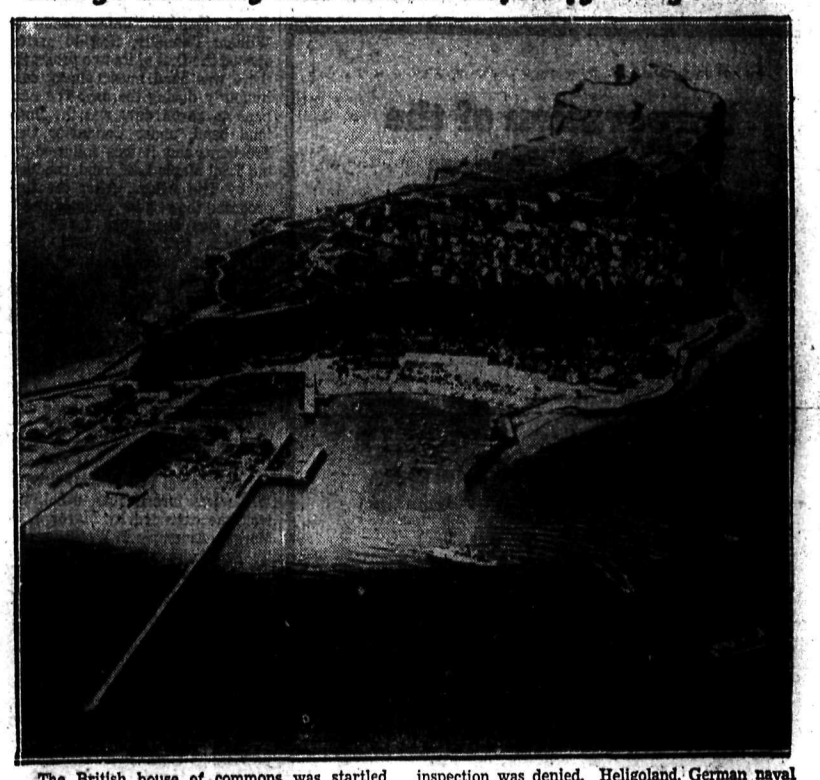
Nanking, China, is planning a big celebration to honor its 1040 citizens who are at least 80 years old. The city's population is 3000,000. At the celebration will be 58 nonogenarians and two centenarians.

The largest Roman Catholic church is St. Peter's in Rome. The seating capacity can hardly be estimated, as much of the edifice consists of corridors and halls. The building covers four acres of ground.

HIS MAJESTY REVIEWS HIS ROYAL AIR FORCE

Making a 300-mile aerial tour of England's air stations, King Edward VIII, who is commander-in-chief of the Royal Air Force, is shown (saluting) as he inspected a fleet of England's mightiest bombers at Mildenhall airdrome. The King's brother, the Duke of York, is second from right in rear.

Charge Germany Has Started Refortify Heligoland



The British house of commons was startled when it was revealed by Lord Cranbourne, under-secretary for foreign affairs, that Germany was further violating the Versailles treaty by refortifying Heligoland. Lord Cambourne stated that Germany had advised no one, and that the right of inspection was denied. Heligoland, German naval fortress in the North sea during the world war, was demilitarized and her fortress demolished after the war. Two towns remain, one at top of cliff and the other on the shore line. An air view of Heligoland is shown above.

Canadian Dollar Tops Par

NEW YORK, July 26 (CP).—Canadian dollars featured a quiet market on the foreign exchange Saturday by topping par with United States funds for the first time in several months. Dominion funds closed at par after selling at $1.003.

The upturn was ascribed to the fact that grain interests suddenly entered the market to acquire Canadian funds with which to meet wheat contracts.

The pound sterling climbed ⅜ of a cent to $5.02 3-16 and French francs ended .00½ of a cent higher at 6.61½.

The natives of Timbuktu put up roosting poles on minarets to serve as resting places for the returning spirits of their dead.

ONE DROWNS IN PLANE CRASH

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER
Associated Press Staff writer
(Copyright 1936 by the Associated Press)

ABOARD S.S. EXERMONT OFF NANTUCKET, Mass., (By Radio) (AP)—An 11-passenger plane plummeted into the Atlantic ocean five miles east of Nantucket light ship early Sunday night, bringing death to one man and sensational rescue to eight others, including myself.

Edwin T. Ramsdell, 46, veteran aerial photographer for the Boston Post, drowned. The others suffered various degrees of bruises and immersion.

The plane, carrying Boston newspapermen and others, had flown from Boston to greet the British liner, R.M.S. Queen Mary. We circled the ship several times. Then, as we flew somewhat astern of the giant liner, our plane crashed.

For 20 minutes we clung to the wave-washed pontoons until a rescue boat from the American export liner Exermont reached us.

Captain William W. Wincapaw, who piloted the big seaplane, said the accident was unavoidable. He did not say what had happened.

TO CLIMB AGAIN

VANCOUVER, July 26 (AP).—Henry S. Hall of Boston, secretary of the American Alpine club, and Hans Furher, a Swiss guide, were in Vancouver today preparing for another journey into British Columbia's hinterland after completing a successful attack on the previously unclimbed 11,700-foot peak of Mount Monarch.

FIRE-FIGHTERS OUT OF TRAP

BLAIRMORE, Alta. (CP).—Fifty-six men, trapped since late Thursday by a forest fire in Kootenay pass, on the Alberta-British Columbia boundary, emerged safely from the fire zone early Sunday, it was reported here.

All the men were in good condition. Coming out from behind the swiftly advancing flames at 8 a.m., they showed little effects of their long ordeal. They said they merely walked behind the fire as it burned over timber land in its path.

F. J. FULTON, K.C., IS DEAD

KAMLOOPS, B.C., July 26 (CP)—F. J. Fulton, K.C., 74, British Columbia attorney general in 1907 and city solicitor for Kamloops since 1910, died here Saturday. He was a resident of Kamloops for 47 years.

He was three times member of the provincial legislature, 1900 to 1909, resigning in the latter year when he disagreed with Sir Richard McBride over Canadian Northern Pacific Railway guarantees. In 1917, Mr. Fulton was elected to the house of commons as Unionist candidate for Cariboo.

B.C. PIONEER DIES

NANAIMO, B.C., July 26 (CP).—W. L. McG. Gisholm, 41-year-old member of one of British Columbia's best known pioneer families and a native son of Nanaimo, collapsed on the street here Saturday and died before medical aid could be summoned. He had been in ill health for some time.

MARTELL WINS ALBERTA GOLF

EDMONTON, July 26 (CP). — Henry Martell of Edmonton won the Alberta open golf championship Saturday, defeating Bob Procter, also of Edmonton, in an 18-hole playoff. Tied with Proctor in last Monday's title play, Martell shot a 76, three strokes better than his opponent.

Another Successful Picnic

The sixth annual picnic of employees of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co., of Trail and Rossland has passed into history. The picnic held in Nelson Saturday was larger and better than ever, and the day was ideal.....and the bathing beach at the park presented an animated scene, as men, women and children enjoyed the cooling waters of Kootenay Lake.

MORE ABOUT TRAIL PICNIC

till the evening, all three street cars being in service, many parties putting in most of the day on these rides.

As for the guest cars, they were loaded under police supervision as fast as they returned to the loading point on Nelson avenue, and made straight trips through to the Bank of Montreal on Baker street, by way of Vernon and Railway. The Bank of Montreal was the embarking point for those up-town returning to the park and these went straight east on Baker, and through to the park by the regular route. As in the case of the street cars, it was noted that many family groups kept going back and forth all day, this being the height of the picnic to them.

PICNIC GROUPS

But the main consideration with the bulk of the heads of family parties, on arrival, was to get squared away for the day's activities by satisfying ravenous appetites that had come into being from the long train ride, breakfast having been a very early morning affair. So in a short time all the park tables were occupied, while all over the park lawns, blankets and tablecloths were spread for hungry groups. Shade and sunshine were about equally favored, and there was no corner of the park with any grass at all that was not requisitioned. Even down among the rushes on the water's edge at the west end of the park, various parties that apparently favored comparative solitude, found accomodation.

Meanwhile the free refreshment stalls for cold drinks, ice cream, peanuts, oranges and candy, operated by the Trail refreshment committee, on a ticket basis, were in full swing, while pint bottles of milk were obtained from the refreshment tent, where they were kept on ice.

MUSIC ALL DAY

After 11, when the Trail Canadian Legion band under Conductor William Donnelly, first to arrive, opened the first of its two programs, there was band music almost continuously during the day. The next band to go on duty was the Rossland band, under Conductor Carl Freeberg, and it was followed by the Trail Maple Leaf band, conducted by Tito Allega. After the first program, the regular elevated bandstand was abandoned for a new platform, just off ground level, with more accommodation, which was built Friday for this purpose.

This platform was also the headquarters of Fred (Slim) Hunter and Leo (Doc) Holden, Trail entertainers, well known to radio fans, who put up a loud-speaker equipment and handled the broadcasting of announcements throughout the day.

WELCOME INFORMAL

Informality particularly marked this picnic, and the usual welcoming ceremonial was dispensed with. While less formal than usual, the welcome extended by Mayor J. P. Morgan, Alderman T. W. Slader and H. B. Lindsay and other council members, and City Clerk W. E. Wasson, to S. G. Blaylock, vice-president and general manager of the Consolidated, Mayor Bruno Lerose of Trail, and other visiting dignitaries, was as heart as ever. Mr. Blaylock was seen packing his movie camera around and using it at intervals, adding to his series of films of this institutional picnic, now in its sixth year. Other Consolidated executives seen were R. W. Diamond, B. A. Stimmel, and James Buckanan.

By noon hundreds of picnic baskets and parcels were stowed away in the Trail check-room, in the pavilion, while the crowds of visitors were giving themselves to the various picnic activities.

A space was cleared on the main lawn, and there a sports program was carried out throughout the afternoon.

The play apparatus was of course never idle for an instant, and except for changes of children from time to time, was working to capacity all the time.

A marionnette show from a little tent theater always had a crowd of kiddies.

An ever-interesting sight was the fenced area arranged by H. L. Jackson, chairman of the grounds committee, about 60 feet square, for the tiny tots, who were given water-balls, balloons, and pails and spades, with which they played at sand-piles, ice cream cones being handed out from time to time. This was a new feature introduced by Mr. Jackson.

WATER POPULAR

Many young people had their bathing suits, and the lake and the beach presented an animated picture, with plenty of swimmers in the water, and small kiddies splashing about in the shallow water or playing in the sand.

Boating was also a favorite recreation, and many craft were playing the water about the park.

The daily passenger count of the ferry rose by over 2000, and every time the ferry returned to the Nelson side, it disgorged a mob of Trail youngsters, only to take on a similar mob for the short ride across the lake and back.

SAFETY SERVICES

Safety arrangements were just about perfect.

The Kinsmen club of Nelson again operated its baby clinic tent, which was in charge of four nurses, Mrs J. G. Bennett, Miss Mary Madden, Miss Paula Gansner, and Miss Kitty Scott. A glance into the marquee at any time of day showed every cot occupied by a sleeping infant. "About 10 an hour" was the rate at which babies were received at this ten., for needed naps.

Both Nelson and Trail had lifeguards on duty for the water. Lifeguard Lorne Stewart was in charge of the Nelson service, having as assistants Paul Brooks, Gordon Stirzaker, Alex Peltzer, and Miss Shirley Boomer, who suspended her swimming classes for the day. The Trail lifeguards, arranged for by H. L. Jackson, were James Kinahan, Ash Baillie, C. J. Creighton, and William Edgett, the latter a Vancouver visitor. L. Pickard's launch patrolled the water on behalf of Trail, while the city boats were also used as required. Every part of the park water was under constant observation.

Only a couple of times was any lifeguard service required. Charles DeGirolamo of Trail was seen to tire in the water, and to go under when close to the shore. Norman MacLeod and Lifeguard Stewart plunged in from the float and assisted him to shore. In another instance a man was taken out of a boat for safety's sake.

FIRST AID TENT

About 50 cases were treated by the Trail First Aid tent, in charge of W. J. Davies, first aid instructor at Tadanac, with Charles Jones and Cecil Burgess as his assistants. The only serious case was of a little girl, five or six years old, daughter of George Aitken of Trail, who collided with a woman who was carrying a teakettle of boiling water. The little girl was badly scalded on her body, but it was not necessary to send her to the hospital. The tent had the usual equipment of cot, table, chairs, medical supplies, surgical kit, splints, and inhalator for the asphyxiated.

The Trail check-room, which this year occupied increased space in the pavilion, handled approximately 845 checks, which was below last year's record. There were no parcels reported lost or found, probably because the broadcast men were giving all such details and bringing together parents and children who had become separated. The check-room service was operated by H. L. Jackson, with the assistance of J. D. Pearson, W. Heslip, R. Laurie, and D. McIntosh.

TRAIN ARRANGEMENTS

Safety arrangements regarding the trains and regarding traffic were also most complete. In connection with the trains, Bridge and Building Foreman Duncan Smith, Resident Engineer H. R. Younger, Master Mechanic George Twist, and Roadmaster A. Olson made the round trip on the several trains, while Division Superintendent E. S. McCracken kept a close eye on the movement within Nelson. The Trail committee also had committeemen on the trains, the members of the transportation committee, which made all the arrangements, being Chairman T. O. Davies, G. Martinelli, and B. E. Smith of Trail, and G. McKay of Rossland. Constables S. F. Cunnington and J. D. M. Bliss, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, were on train duty, and of course C. P. R. Constable D. A. Sinclair.

MANY POLICE

General policing was in charge of Chief of Police Alex Stewart, who had on duty Sergt. Robert Harshaw and Constables H. E. G. Penny and William Fowles, and Specials R. House, R. Robinson, B. Hoogerwerf, L. Fryling, and W. McFadden, all in uniform.

The chief also had the cooperation of the entire Tadanac police force, composed of Chief W. Campbell, Constable E. Schwarz, Constable W. Stevenson, and Constable R. Somerville, and of four provincial officers loaned him, Constables W. R. MacIntosh of Nelson, R. B. MacKay of New Denver, R. Leighton of Ymir, and C. W. House of Salmo.

City Engineer R. E. Potter also had a number of city public works men on various duties. Each of the street cars had a safety man to see that the public embarked and disembarked safely, these men being S. Patterson, E. Jordison and J. Chapman. Men in charge of the parking were R. Kennedy, F. Dunn, A. Cathers, D. Doerkson, and E. Barclay. J. Linden was on general duty, including with the trains, and George Scott and W. Phillipent looked after the open-air heaters. Foreman Robert Hickey was in general charge of the public works men.

D. L. Kerr, of the board of trade, was in charge of the guest cars, just over 40, which operated between the park and Baker street, W. S. King doing efficient service at the Bank of Montreal, where the cars discharged and loaded uptown. At the park end, the Trail guest car committee had charge of the loading and unloading.

TRAIL COMMITTEES

The sports program was handled by the sports committee, headed by R. W. Savage, the other members being D. J. Duffus, R. Savage, R. W. Savage, jr., Mrs. D. J. Duffus, Harry Priestner, E. Ramsden, and "Doc" Holden.

Refreshments were under a committee composed of Chairman Tim Buscumb, Alfred Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Laarz, Gordon and Dorothy Laarz, Mr. and Mrs. Dan McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. J. McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Reid, John Ferguson, Bert Repton, W. Allardyce, D. J. Duffus, and D. Calder.

Duty of seeing that the committees and staff were well fed was handled by committee headed by Mrs Fred Cullen, in the dining tent, her assistants being Mesdames George Palmer, J. P. Power, C. Howe and S. Lennox and Fred Cullen.

The general committee that supervised everything consisted of H. W. Hankin, chairman; R. W. Savage, vice-chairman and sports; E. B. Smith, secretary; Win Allardyce, treasurer and equipment; H. L. Jackson, grounds and safety first; Tim Buscumb, refreshments; W. J. Davies, first aid; T. O. Davies and Guido Martinelli, transportation; G. McKay, Rossland transportation; I. R. Forgie-Thomson, guest cars; A. Spiers, auditor; D. J. Duffus, assistant sports; J. Pearson, assistant grounds; Ed Laarz, assistant refreshments.

SUPPER AND GOODBYE

Following the sports, the picnic supper held attention throughout the park, and the refreshments that were left were dealt out indiscriminately to the kiddies.

The first train pulled out at 6 o'clock, followed by others at 7:15 and 7:45, leaving the park deserted.

A final clean-up of the picnic visitors was made by the 11 o'clock train which left from the station.

Numbers of the visitors patronized the Rotary dance in the evening at the civic centre, catching the final train, which left from the station at 11 o'clock.

MORE ABOUT VIMY MEMORIAL

a sentence; "Though the mortal remains of Canada's sons lie far from home, yet here where we now stand on ancient Artois their immortal memory is hallowed upon soil that is as surely Canada's as any acre within her nine provinces."

Here, the King said, was the living truth of Rupert Brooke's parable:

"If I should die think only this of me,
That there's some corner of a foreign field
That is forever England."

Brilliant sunshine — the first Vimy had seen for a week—glistened today on the meadows and cornfields round about Vimy, etched on the plain moving shadows from a sky dappled with white clouds.

RESIDENTS ATTEND

The slopes were thronged by the farmers, the coal-miners, the factory workers of northern France with their wives and children, come to honor the men from a far land who stormed this ridge nearly a score of years ago. A hundred thousand saw the white pylons of Canada's memory closer against the sky.

The immediate area surrounding the monument was hemmed in by a line of French soldiers, and inside this line the Canadian pilgrims and official representatives had their places. Drawn up at the rear were Canadian veterans and sailors, and Moroccan Spahis in their colorful uniforms—white cloaks with kahki turbans, red tunics and blue trousers. The Spahis rode white horses. Fronting the monument were the 6000 pilgrims who crossed the Atlantic for this day od dedication.

"God Save the King" and "O Canada" heralded the arrival of King Edward with Hon. Ernest Lapointe. After inspecting the guard of honor from H. M. C. S. Saguenay, he ascended the monument where a number of Canadians were presented.

"HE'S A JOLLY GOOD FELLOW"

Formal presentations over the King mingled with cheering veterans who broke into the unmartial strains of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" as the sovereign stopped to talk with one on other of their number. He spent 20 minutes chatting and asking questions, smiling broadly at the enthusiasm.

Squadrons of the Royal Air force and the French air force zoomed over the memorial in an aerial salute as the King and those having an official part in the dedication service proceeded to the dais.

Plaintive strains of "The Flower of the Forest," the Scotsman's traditional lament in any country, for the fallen, concluded the religious ceremony after addresses by Rev. Cecil C. Owen of Vancouver, Rev. G. O. Fallis of Toronto, and Monsignor E. A. Deschamps of Montreal, official chaplains of the pilgrimage.

All offered "the homage of an unfailing gratitude," as Monsignor Deschamps phrased it, and spoke of the necessity for making of the 1914-1918 sacrifice a pathway leading to permanent peace.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King's message was then read by Hon. C. G. Power, minister of pensions and national health. The prime minister, in Canada's name, appealed to the nations of Europe "to obliterate whatever makes for war and for death," to unite "in an effort to bring into being a world at peace," the only memorial "worthy of the valor and the sacrifice of all who gave their lives in the Great war."

"MEMORY OF HEROES"

Mr. Lapointe followed. Official delegates, ex-soldiers, representatives of all classes of Canada's population were gathered to offer in a unique pilgrimage, a testimony to their remembrance, their gratitude and their proud sorrow, he said. Europe and America were communing "in the conception of a mutual desire, arising out of the immolation of the great conflict." To the triumph of the ideal of liberty and justice Canada would devote her energies, faithful to the memory of heroes.

Hon. Ian MacKenzie, minister of national defence, spoke of the monument's symbolism—the veiled figure of a nation mourning, the two united civilizations represented in the tall columns, the spirit of sacrifice throwing the torch, the figures of peace, justice, honor and faith—and the cross. It was time for the world to turn to the cross "emblem of faith and hope and love, and emblem here of the invisible crosses that in the realm of the spirit hold sentinel watch over those graves which are not known to men."

"Land of Hope and Glory," "La Marseillaise" and "God Save the King" accompanied presentation of visitors to the president. His Majesty and President Lebrun then placed wreaths on the monument, followed by Major Power, who placed the governor-general's wreath, and other wreath-bearers in order of precedence.

WORLD SHORTAGE OF WHEAT

NEW YORK, July 26 (CP)—The New York Times today carries under a Chicago dateline an announcement of a world shortage in wheat.

The Times correspondent says:

The world is short more than 500,000,000 bushels of wheat, it is estimated. Practically every major wheat belt in the world produced less than a normal crop this year. There will not be enough wheat threshed this year to provide consumers with their normal ration of bread.

Figures show that if consumers ate their usual amount of bread and cereal during the next 12 months there would be not a single bushel left for a "nest egg" to carry over into next year.

MAY PAY RELIEF IN SILVER

VANCOUVER, July 26 (CP).—Alderman W. W. Smith, chairman of the Vancouver relief department, today was investigating the possibility of making relief payments in silver instead of by check. He has proposed discussing the scheme with Hon. G. S. Pearson, British Columbia minister of mines. Payment of relief with silver would save the city approximately $1000 in stamps and bank service charges on 20,000 checks each month, the alderman said.

DIES IN HIS OFFICE

VANCOUVER, July 26 (CP).—R. A. D. Todd, assistant superintendent of city sewers, collapsed in his office at the city yards Saturday and died almost instantly. Todd was connected with the city departments since amalgamation and was formerly with the works department of Point Grey.

SOCIAL CREDIT IN THE BALANCE

CALGARY, July 26 (CP). — The next six months will decide whether Social Credit succeeds or fails in Alberta. Within that time, Provincial Secretary E. C. Manning told the Prophetic Bible institute here today, "the die will be cast" one way or the other.

MORE ABOUT CRANBROOK FIRE

and the invaluable assistance of a new booster pump recently purchased by the city, the blaze spread to the Home Inn, next to Dezall's garage, to the building of the Chinese National league next the Italia hotel, and across the alley to the building occupied by the Kootenay Motors, which was soon a roaring inferno. Adjacent to this, a small building and the Davey's bakery on the one hand and the Cranbrook hotel annex on the other side followed. The main body of the Cranbrook hotel was saved, though the passageway from the annex was burned.

Inmates of the rooming house escaped in their night clothes, leaving all their effects behind. Adjacent streets presented wild scenes as clothing, furniture and property were rushed from burning buildings and deposited in more or less safe places. Many guests of the Cranbrook hotel carried their clothes to the street in bedspreads and packed their grips on the sidewalks.

Nine autos, including the Dezall's personal car, were burned in the Dezall garage. Books and office effects were saved with difficulty. All cars and property of the Kootenay Motors were moved to safety. Home owners and occupants of nearby offices and stores had their effects loaded on trucks ready for removal if necessary.

CITY LIGHTED BY INFERNO

The entire city and surrounding hills were lighted by the blaze and the heat of burning oil and the wooden buildings was felt for blocks. Many of the firemen are today feeling severe effects of working at close range to quell the flames and cover threatened buildings.

The cause of the fire in the York rooms is still undetermined. A full estimate of the loss has yet to be made but Fire Chief Adams stated that it would be approximately $30,000.

All buildings, except the Dezall garage, which was of cement, were of wood construction and over 30 years old. The loss is stated to be practically covered by insurance.
