New British Plan To Be Submitted

Copyright 1937 by the Havas News Agency

LONDON, July 22—(CP)— Great Britain has devised a new compromise non-intervention proposal which will force critics of the original plan to take a "yes or no" stand on whether foreign volunteers should be evacuated from Spain before the combatants' belligerency status is recognized, it was reported tonight.

According to informed sources, exact nature of the new plan will be kept secret until it is presented to the sub-committee's next session. Those responsible for its formulation were understood to be confident it would answer criticism levelled at its predecessor at last Tuesday's deliberations of the non-intervention sub-committee.

A number of witnesses told Alex Stewart, chief of police, that Dorothy ran down a hill and jumped in front of the car on Cedar street at the alley between Vernon and Baker. These witnesses estimated the speed of the car variously at 12 to 18 miles per hour.

Dorothy was knocked down and the car passed over her, stopping with the girl under the rear of it, but the wheels did not pass over her.

FLEE HOMES AND HOTELS

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, July 22 — (AP)—Half-dressed men and women hurried from homes and hotels, frame buildings shook and merchandise tumbled to the floor as a strong earthquake struck Fairbanks and the Alaskan interior today.

The quake began about 7:09 a.m., Fairbanks time (9:09 a.m., PST). The peak of the first shock lasted more than a minute, and tremors were recurrent throughout the day.

The second severe shock came at 7:55 a.m., and the third, at 8:01, was so severe it put the north-south motion of the University of Alaska seismograph out of commission.

Dr. Ervin H. Bramhall, university physicist, said the east-west movement showed a very strong epicenter of the quake apparently either southwest or south-southest. Dr. Bramhall was a scientist with the second south pole expedition of Commander Richard Bird.

Motorists arriving later today from the south reported the quake cracked the earth from four to six inches in places along the Richardson highway, forcing up gushers of water and mud from four to six feet high along some stretches.

Diving Chute at Park Has a Queue All Day

New Apparatus Used Continuously Up to Sundown

Erection on the diving float at Lakeside park, Thursday morning, of the new diving chute recently purchased by the city from an Indiana house, was a red letter event to Nelson youngsters, who all day long were shooting from it into the water at the rate of probably three a minute.

The sport was not discontinued until after sundown, and for hours there was a continuous queue of waiting candidates, starting with 10 or so on the ladder leading to the top of the slide, while those coming out of the water from the swift plunge raced to rejoin the queue.

While every user, youngster or adult, used the conventional sitting posture as one method of entering the water from the chute, most developed some other methods, many doing the dive. Some expert divers made a feature of trying many different methods, and entered the water in all conceivable attitudes and combinations. In some instances two girls, or two boys, would pair up, in these stunts.

HAND LUBRICATION

As the waterpipe was not yet installed for providing the flowing water for the chute, various youngsters volunteered for the job of throwing water on the slide and keeping it "lubricated". But in a few early instances bathing suits or trunks showed wear, and their owners went up town to get new ones.

It is expected the water will be installed and working Friday, and that the chute will be operated wholly "under its own power."

The chute faces the beach, its lower end projecting a couple of feet over the water.

Three Provinces Sign With Ottawa for Youth Training

B. C. Agreement Provides for Placer Mining Training, Forestry Work, Occupational Instruction and Health Education

OTTAWA, July 22, (CP) — Agreements with Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia for youth training projects have been approved by the Dominion government, Labor Minister Norman Rogers announced today.

The Dominion's contribution comes from an appropriation of $1,000,000 approved at the past session of parliament for youth training and reconditioning projects.

All agreements apply to unemployed men and women betwen 18 and 30 years old. They must be necessitous and registered with the employment service of Canada. In localities where there are no employment service agencies, applicants must be certified by the clerk of the municipality or appropriate provincial authority as being necessitous.

Four training and reconditioning projects designed to benefit unemployed youth in both rural and urban districts have been approved in the agreement with British Columbia. Forestry work training, placer mining training, urban occupational instruction, and physical and health education are included in the plan fo which provision is made.

A project to provide physical training and health education by assisting to extend, in approximately 75 centres, present activities of the provincial department of education in this field is another feature of the British Columbia agreement. The flyers took off without fuelling, as Hawkridge thought the Fernie field too rough for an airplane with a full load.

Headquarters for the annual picnic of Consolidated Mining & Smelting company employees was established at Lakeside park yesterday when the advance party, consisting mostly of committee chairmen, put in a full day at the park putting up tents and booths, in connection with the big outing Saturday.

The party came over early in the morning from Trail in a gaily decorated C. M. & S. company truck, which also carried equipment, and the truck was seen dashing about town and up the West Arm, during the day.

As usual, the picnic tents are on the south side of the park near the main entrance, and they embrace the first aid tent, two for the four visiting bands, the refreshment tent, and the store tent.

BABY CORRALL

By itself, on the west side, is the baby clinic tent, and near it the corrall for the little kiddies, where they may crawl around in the sunshine and play with sand piles.

In front of the row of tents are four fenced enclosures—the booths from which the ice cream, soft drinks oranges, and other things for kiddies with a sweet tooth will be handed out, in exchange for tickets, issued by the committee, for the juvenile members of the picnic party of thousands.

The store tent, among other contents Saturday, will have supplies of milk on ice, for the kiddies.

Expansion of the regular park catering service for the day is also foreshadowed by erection of a booth adjacent to the regular stand.

Alderman N. C. Stibbs, chairman of the parks committee of the city council, and R. E. Potter, city engineer, were at the park making arrangements for the work that the city always does, in providing special facilities for the picnic.

IS NOT "WORTH FIGHTING FOR"

"As long as I am at the admiralty, I am determined that no single British sailor will fail for this cause."

Rossland Host Nelson Boxla Squad Tonight

Nelson boxla team, with two of its spearpoint attackers missing, goes to Rossland tonight to meet Redmen in another West Kootenay boxla fixture—Red men reinforced in goal by George McNaughton, ex-Vancouver and ex-Winnipeg goalie who will take the place of Gidinski.

in the Nelson lineup as a result

Just what changes would be made were not announced. Bryant had only a game or two with the team in any case, but Hubie Smith may be missed from the post of playing-coach. He gaves the lads a real groundwork, evident in their last game when they humbled Rossland, and fans will be watching to see whether they can repeat.

Redmen have been riding high for some time, and meting reversals as regularly as they appeared ready to go to town. Tonight's game may therefore have quite a bearing on the league.

Interesting and educational program was presented at the Memorial hall Thursday evening when J. A. Bramham of the Canadian Forestry association presented moving pictures and a lecture dealing with the preservation of forests and the destruction caused by forest fires.

Mr. Bramham stressed the necessity of preserving the forests for the boys and girls who would soon be Canada's leaders. He also pointed out that by saving forests, fish, wild life, irrigation and many other natural resources were conserved.

The pictures showed the beauty of forests, abundance of wild life, the desolation after a fire, and various means of preventing forest fires.

Gray Announces Barring Former Trail Seniors

Archie Gray of Salmo, president of the Kootenay-International Baseball league was in Nelson Thursday evening following a trip to Metaline Falls, Wash., and other district points that have teams in the league and he stated that he was writing the Trail Billiards club officials that all clubs in the circuit were opposed to Red Tulloch, George Petrunia, and any other former Trail senior players competing in the league, and that these players would not be allowed to play in any league games in the future, although no objection would be entered to them playing in exhibition games.

Mr. Gray also stated that he was advising Trail that if it could not field a full line-up without these players, as stated Wednesday, the league would carry on with five teams. In any event, it was likely that three teams would enter the playoffs instead of two teams as originally arranged for.

Miss Hesse, Grand Forks is Bride of Former Nelsonite

GRAND FORKS, B.C.—The wedding took place at high noon Thursday, July 15, of Ruth Elizabeth, only daughter of Mrs. Hesse and the late Charles Hesse, and A. Kinahan of this city, formerly of Nelson. Rev. D. M. Perley, performed the ceremony. St. John's United church was beautifully decorated with pink and blue flowers and tall pink tapers. The chancel was massed with pink rambler and other roses, pink snapdragon, blue delphinium and white gypsophila while large baskets of pink snapdragoned Japanese forget-me-nots banked in front of the pulpit.

The bridal party entered the church to the strains of the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohenghrin. The bride, who was given in marriage by A. B. Fenwick wore a gown of ivory taffeta made with close fitting bodice, corded puff sleeves and corded circular skirt which swept the floor. Her veil of silk net edged with lace and was held in place with a coronet of seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and maiden hair fern. Her only ornament was an antique necklace which for many generations has been worn by brides of the Fenwick family.

Mrs. Alice McMillan, matron of honor wore a shell pink taffeta gown with a large hat to match. She carried a sheaf of yellow roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Dorothy Ralph wore ice-blue taffeta and large hat trimmed with white flowers. The two flower girls, little Frances Hartinger in pink and Nellie Gowans in blue ruffled taffeta with bandeau of pink and blue satin roses, carried old-fashioned nosegays tied with pink and blue ribbons.

Arthur Hesse, brother of the bride, supported the groom and the ushers were Robert McKay and Hugo Woods. During the signing of the register Mrs. W. Gowans sang "I Love You Truly" with Mrs. J. C. Tonks accompanying her on the organ.

About 50 guests attended the reception at the Grand Forks hotel. The toast to the bride was proposed by A. B. Fenwick and responded to by the groom. Other speakers were Mrs. A. McMillan, Mrs. Tonks, R. D. Kerr, A. Hesse, H. Eureby, Mr. McMullen and T. T. Walker.

For travelling the bride wore a smart suit of brown wool crepe with brown toque of chip straw, and brown accessories. After a short motor trip to Portland, Seattle and other coast cities Mr. and Mrs. Kinahan will take up residence in the city. The bride who is a native daughter of Grand Forks is well known throughout the boundary having taught in the district for several years. Mr. Kinahan formerly resided in Nelson but for the past four years has lived in this city.

A Bland, Smooth Diet, Treatment Irritable Colon

(By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.)

IN DESCRIBING the colon, or large intestine in a previous article this week, we said that it was a muscular tube lined with mucous membrane. Mucous membrane normally secretes a certain amount of mucous which is useful for lubrication.

The colon is plentifully supplied with nerves, and though ordinarily sluggish, it sometimes becomes very irritable and spasmodic. Sometimes the mucous glands secrete very large amounts of mucus which create colonic spasm with great pain and discomfort. Just what causes this varies in different cases. Mostly it occurs in nervous individuals when they are worried or angry or fatigued. In a person susceptible to the condition a business loss, a family quarrel or an unhappy turn of a love affair will invariably bring on an attack.

All sorts of variations occur. There may be irritable colon entirely without mucus formation. These people form the majority of those who refer to the condition as colitis. It is really not colitis at all, as we pointed out previously, but simply an irritable colon.

Causes Dragging

This irritable colon causes a heavy dragging sensation and feeling as if the bowel were overloaded, which may lead to the cathartic habit. The cathartic habit is one of the prime causes of making an irritable colon worse. I know one physician who got into the bad habit of having a box of senna in his office and taking a dose, as much as he could get on a knife blade, two or three times a day. He finally was seized with such severe cramps that he fainted in his office, and it was found that the inside of the intestine was covered with small hemorrhages.

The treatment of these cases is just opposite of what the patient usually prescribes for himself. A bland, smooth, non-residue diet rather than a rough diet with cathartics. Rest is important, and even if the patient is at work, rest periods two or three times a day should be enjoyed. Colonic irrigations, which are the opposite of rest, are very generally condemned. The practice of the so-called internal bath designed to clean out the entire large intestine with vigorous irrigations, which was practiced quite extensively a few years ago, has largely been given up. Physio-therapy, in the form of massage and baths, is also helpful. Most important of all is psychotherapy to try to get the patient's mind off his large bowel.

Mr. James Thurber has recently been writing a series of articles commenting on our modern wave of books on psychology, which he has called "Let Your Mind Alone." If the 'colitis" patient can be taught to let his bowel alone, he will be halfway to recovery.

Girl Is Patient . . .

Boy 23 Has Never Had Job, Says He Can't Work, Sick

By VIRGINIA LEE

"ALL THE WORLD'S a stage, and all the men and women merely players. They have their exits and their entrances, and each man in his time plays many parts." So said that much quoted gentleman, William Shakespeare. We answer, yea, verily.

But sometimes we wonder about folks we meet. They are playing a certain part as we know them, and we wonder whether they are miscast or whether they are acting "according to nature". We wonder whether they possibly could be put into another role and play it more successfully, or, rather, get more out of life through playing it.

The preamble was caused by a letter from a girl who signs herself, MISS PATIENT TOO LONG. She has been going with a boy for two and one-half years. She loves him very much, she writes. She is sure that he loves her.

His health is the fly in the ointment. At least he claims he is ill, and never has had a job although he is 23. "Perhaps he IS ill," says Miss Patient. But she has gone to his home and found him laughing and talking in seeming good health, only to have him grow silent and "sick" after her arrival. "To me it seems that he is just playing on everybody's sympathy," she writes. Doctors want to "observe" him, but she doesn't say they ever find anything wrong with him.

He has promised many times to marry her, but makes no effort to look for work. She has had two offers of marriage, one of the suitors now being engaged, the other patiently waiting for her "to wake up", he says.

"I love the boy I have been going with," the girl writes. "I know I can be happy with him even though I know I will have to take a lot from him. He doesn't realize that some of the things he does hurt so bad. Shall I have a heart to heart talk with him? Do you think I am impatient and should wait until I'm sure he is well before I speak?"

Yes, I think you should have a heart to heart talk to your boy friend right away. He MIGHT be ill, of course, but according to your letter he is too self-centered and plain lazy. Can you talk to his family physician? You have a right to know his condition. If he really is too ill to marry, you don't want to wed an invalid. And if he's "stalling" you should tell him that if he wants to marry you, he had better hunt a job right away and forget about his feelings.

If he doesn't, I think the wise thing would be to break off with him. You can take a lot from him if you love him, of course, but I doubt very much whether your love will survive supporting him for the rest of your life, although Marjorie Hillis, in her "Orchards on Your Budget", says that if you can afford a non-producing husband and want one you have a perfect right to take him for your "orchid".

Parent Realized Sarcastic Child Imitated Mother

"Arguments! Sass! Backtalk! That is all I hear from my 13-year-old daughter. This had been going on for so long a time that I had grown somewhat resigned to may fate. I felt the situation to be the most hopeless of any I had ever handled.

"Why! Two years ago, when we had such a time over washing and drying dishes, it never seemed so difficult at this situation which now faced me. The dish question had been one of unceasing argument until I suggested we try alternating nights, and on our respective duty nights we would not only be expected to wash, but wipe the dishes as well. This suggestion met with approval and it worked like a charm.

"But getting back to the petty arguing—One day I was especially tired from a busy cleaning day. I was finishing the dishes and felt very 'touchy'. What annoyed me most was the fact that there were still things to be done and my daughter ignored them and and went about her own business. I immediately took exception to this and started 'picking' on her. 'You never make any effort to help me,' I complained. 'What is the matter with you? Can't you see that the rooms must be dusted? Must I always tell you what to do?

NOT THE END OF COMPLAINT

"The foregoing was not the end of my complaint by any means. In fact, it was just the beginning of a heated argument between mother and daughter. I suddenly realized that my daughter was not only talking back to me, but her phrases were definitely sarcastic. The fact startled me! This was the limit! I grabbed her and said, 'Young lady, explain exactly why you dare to speak to me in that one of voice!' The child turned her large brown eyes on me and staring boldly into my face answered clearly, 'that is how you talk to me!'

"I need not say the explanation quite stunned me. Of all the reasons that had run through my brain in trying to fathom this problem, I had never once examined myself for the answer. Since that day I have paid particular attention to my manner of speech and caught myself many times in the act of being sarcastic and 'grouchy'. I feel that with improvement in myself I will automatically correct this fault in my girl."

Beauty in a Nelson Garden . . .

The garden pictured above is owned and cultivated by Mrs. Emily Greenway, Hoover street. Someone has said they seem nearer to God in a garden than anywhere else. Sunshine and rain made gardening easy this season and as we look around at the beauties of Nelson we are reminded of the words of the Psalmist, "As the mountains are round and about Jerusalem, so the Lord is round about His people" and also "The strength of the hills is His also."

Love is for Tomorrow

By VIRGINIA SCALLON

CHAPTER 33

Garrett lost no time. He never had met anyone like Marcia before, and he resolved to waste no precious days of her friendship. With a somewhat shame-faced grin, he stopped in the club florist's on the way to his office.

"You have 'nother banquet, maybe so?" queried Nobu, the little Japanese girl who helped him on the infrequent occasions when he came to buy flowers.

"No. Something for a lady," he answered rather quickly to cover his embarrassment. She began to search busily among the bright flowers on display.

"Is she orchid lady, or maybe gardenia?" she asked tentatively.

"No. This girl is different, Nobu. Sort of crinoline—"

"Gen-u-ine?" the tiny clerk said slowly, trying to catch the unfamiliar term.

"That's it. That's it—genuine!" Garrett was immensely pleased over the little incident. Convinced that Nobu had second sight or uncommon intuition, he urged, "Now you help me find something for her?"

With a quick nod the girl vanished into the cool dark interior of the shop, and soon returned with some tiny pink rose buds, with lillies of the valley.

"You like?" she smiled expansively, sure of his approval. When he nodded in relief, she bobbed a quick curtsy and then brought him a card. With a great show of indifference, Garrett went to the desk, and devoted himself to the unaccustomed task of penning a romantic note to a lady.

Suddenly, it seemed that he never had had such an important or such a difficult note to write. If Nobu had been an American she would have smiled at his intense concentration. Being an impassive Oriental, she merely waited patiently till he handed her the folded card and hastily left the shop.

He was back in a moment, full of embarrassment.

"I forgot to tell you," he apologized. "Send the flowers to Miss Marcia Madden, 827 South Multern drive. And rush them."

Marcia was just leaving her apartment in mid-morning when the messenger called. Soft color flooded her cheeks when the boy handed her the elaborate box, and she thought tenderly of Sandy. How sweet of him to remember her on a busy Monday!

She unwrapped the box quickly, then lifted the card from the quaint little bouquet. Disappointment, then surprised pleasure were reflected on her face as she read Garrett's laborious note: "To the Crinoline Lady—Hoops for you, and whoops for me now that I've met you. May I see you tonight on a matter of great importance? Remember me? I'm—Garrett Warren."

After the first disappointment that the flowers were not from Sandy but from a new friend, Marcia's smile deepened. Despite herself, she felt that she could like Garrett Warren tremendously and the idea of combining personalities with business disturbed her. She remembered vividly the real interest Garrett had evidenced in her during their brief acquaintance.

Hesitantly, she walked back into the apartment and dialed the publishing house that bore Garrett's name. She received an immediate connection to his office . . . an almost unheard of accomplishment. If she had known how difficult it was to reach this busy executive, she would have realized that Garrett had anticipated her call and instructed the operator to put her through without any of the usual inquiries.

Garrett greeted her exuberantly, and explained rather guiltily that he wanted to see her on a matter of business, suggesting that she call at his office about 5.

"Then we could have a spot of dinner, and possibly a theatre," he concluded rather lamely.

Marcia was inclined to plead a previous engagement, but she felt that she owed him the courtesy of accompanying him. Surely she could guide their friendship into calm, safe channels.

She wore a jaunty little grey suit and a pull-down hat that barely hid her bright hair. Garrett looked her over appraisingly.

"What's the matter? Did you expect me to wear those beautiful flowers right in the middle of the day? You should know I don't wear my crinolines when I go to work."

HOLLYWOOD STYLIST SAYS MANY GIRLS RUIN HAIR

Blonde Hair Suffers Most . . .

Overexposure of Hair to Sun's Rays Harmful, Certain Amount Beneficial

JOAN BENNETT

Hollywood coiffure stylist says that girls do more injury to their hair during the summer months than during any other season. And all because, as he puts it, they permit their foolish heads to soak up too much sunshine.

This coiffure stylist believes that a certain amount of sun exposure is beneficial to both the hair and scalp. But he considers overexposure to the sun's rays just as harmful to the hair as it is to the skin. And he regards it as especially harmful to bleached hair.

According to Joan Bennett, he's right, too. Joan, who is a natural blonde, always sprays a bit of oil on her locks before exposing herself to the sun, for this, she claims, helps to keep blonde hair glossy and lustrous.

You know as well as I, of course, that a streaky head of blonde hair looks anything but attractive. I've never met any blonde yet, bleached or natural, who really wanted such a head of hair. Bleached blondes want to appear naturally blonde, and a streaked, strawy effect is the last thing they desire.

Nevertheless, when a bleached blonde overexposes her hair to the strong rays of the sun, she is very likely to acquire a streaky head of hair regardless of the skill of her beautician. For too much sunshine tends to bleach the hair, too. Not evenly, as a good beautician does, but in such a way that some strands look silvery, some look tow-colored and some appear a brassy gold.

HAIR TEXTURE SUFFERS

The texture of bleached blonde hair also is likely to suffer through overexposure to the sun's rays. In the first place the usual bleaching process tends to remove a great deal of the natural oil from the hair. Sunlight has somewhat the same effect. And if bleached hair is overexposed to the sun's rays, it becomes dry, strawy and brittle.

Protection, of course, is the remedy for the bleached blonde. A bit of fine oil or brilliantine sprayed over the hair will give it some protection, but bleached hair needs more protection than that. Use those gaudy beach umbrellas and wide-brimmed beach hats if you are at the seashore. Use a bandana or one of those smart berets if you are indulging in any of the sports or going picnicking or motoring in an open car. Give your bleached locks ample protection always, and you'll be amply rewarded by their continued loveliness.

Catching the disappointment he evidenced, she hastened to assure him, "But I love your flowers! It was so—so different of you to select such a charming bouquet. Thank you, Garrett."

The man smiled, then waived her to a chair. In a few brusque words he outlined the work he proposed to give her as a test, and his manner was reassuringly business-like. She thrilled to the promise of real opportunity in the assignments Garrett mentioned, and saw a changing vista of work—a leisurely inspirational path that was to lack some of the hustle and scramble of the agency.

Even the office had a more refined "genteel" look. Heavily carpeted, a stained glass window with rich burgundy-toned drapes, and a massive carved desk were the highlights of this sanctum-sanctorum.

One wall was lined with bookcases, and even from where she sat Marcia could sense the beauty of these volumes. As an artist, she was entranced by the real charm of her surroundings.

"And now let's go to dinner," Garrett jumped up suddenly, and shed his formality like a flash. Since college days he had been so seriously engrossed in his profession that he had found little time to squire the ladies. No girl seemed worth the effort until he met Marcia. Since their brief acquaintance he had changed many of his ideas about women in general, and formed some very definite conclusions about this one in particular.

If his classmates at Yale could see "Old Ironsides" now as he plunged deep into this business of courtship! With characteristic seriousness, he planned a methodical siege of this girl's heart.

"Let's try Luigi's?" he suggested.

"Let's," she agreed. At the same time she thought how queer it was that Garrett seemed to demand and get her attention so completely.

Dinner was a hearty, satisfying affair—a genuine "stomach stretcher" as Sandy would say. The Italian restaurant was filled with little round tables, each covered with gleaming white cloths that touched the floor, and surmounted by candles in colored glasses.

In the dim light, Garrett studied his table companion. His conversation revealed to Marcia that he was indeed the idealist he had described himself to be, and his undisguished interest in her again aroused her defences. She realized the consequences and with an attempt at gay banter, she turned the conversation.

"Do you think we'd better go to a theatre after this dinner?"

"You're not ill?" Garrett asked with quick solicitude.

"No. But as the little colored girl said, 'I don't smell so good.' Garlic, you know, is a fragrant little flower that is particularly abhorred by theatregoers."

"Sorry. I'm a stupid sort of a fellow; I didn't think. What would you suggest?"

Marcia was amused and flattered, too, by his solicitous attitude. Sandy's take-it-or-leave-it love making had none of these super niceties. When she hesitated in her answer, he took the initiative with:

"Maybe we'd better take a drive. How about Lookout mountain?"

As he mentioned the favorite rendezvous of romantic couples, Marcia took quick stock of the situation. Instinctively she knew Garrett was not the type to force his attentions, yet she mistrusted that inspirational setting: a wind-swept mountain top, drenched in moonlight, with Hollywood and all Los Angeles spread out in a rich blaze of glory right at its foot. Gary could not resist this invitation to romance!

"I think," she said with an air of great deliberation, "that an ounce of cure is worth a pound of something or other. What about peppermints, some cigarets, and gum? I'd really enjoy a show, and if we're well fortified—?"

As they entered the brilliantly lighted foyer, Marcia looked almost apprehensively at the sign which seemed to flash a personal warning for her: "TROUBLE AHEAD—Coming Soon."

Leave Burlap at Bottom, Planting Balled Evergreen

By DEAN HALLIDAY

ORDER ALL your broad-leaved evergreens and all your coniferous evergreens to be delivered well balled and burlaped.

To plant the shrub or tree correctly, leave the burlap under it. First place the plant in its proper position without removing the burlap. Then, before filling in the soil, cut the rope and the top of the burlap away. Roll down the sides of the burlap, leaving it at the bottom. This will leave the ball of earth unbroken, which is very essential to the evergreen.

The burlap will rot away quickly and not interfere with the root growth of the plant. It also helps to hold moisture about the roots.

Few flowers of small size have the intense brilliance of the Cherry Sunbright. This native of the southwest got its popular name from its similarity to the polished rose-cerise color of a Montmorency cherry with the sun shining upon it.

KEEP THE MILK SUPPLY SAFE

Nelson's milk situation is relatively good. It is infinitely better than that which existed a few years ago when the looseness of control was a menace to the health of four people.

But eternal vigilance is required. Dr. Sparks, the new medical health officer, has found it necessary to ask the city council that he be informed when any milk is sold by an unlicenced vendor. Otherwise there can be no effective control.

"Bootlegging" of milk must not be permitted and the M.H.O. is doing the right thing in letting it publicly be known that he will carry out his duties to the public and do all in his power to prevent it.

AT THE WHITE HOUSE

Death of Senator Robinson, Democratic leader in the United States congress, personal mouthpiece of President Roosevelt and said to have been the choice of the president for one of the new seats on the supreme court bench if the White House plans to gain control of the court succeed, may offer Roosevelt an easy way out of the imbroglio into which he has got as a result of his proposal to plug the supreme court with enough new judges to make it amenable to White House dictation.

It is suggested that the president may find that the death of the chief proponent in the senate of the supreme court changes will open the way to delays in pushing the legislation which will permit it to die a natural death.

For legislation to die in the United States congress is easy. Like most legislatures it probably passes too many new bills, but it also probably has a world's record for the number of bills which are introduced but killed by technicalities.

Fear that Roosevelt has gone too far in the direction of a dictatorship is being expressed much more openly in the United States than a year ago, even though an election campaign was then in progress. Possibly this is largely because of the president's scheme to add enough judges to the supreme court who would be favorable to his own political viewpoint to ensure final legal approval to legislation he favored. Much Roosevelt legislation has been negatived by the United States supreme court on constitutional grounds. N.R.A. is a case in point—and for that decision most Americans probably thank the framers of their confederation. The Wagner act, among the most liberal of the president's measures, has on the other hand been found constitutional by the highest court.

There has, to the outsider, been evidence of an atmosphere of dictatorship about the White House since the Roosevelt regime began. Perhaps this was due to the drastic actions taken by the president, and most people think he had to take them, when first assuming office—such as in connection with the banks—and to that enormous popularity, translated last November into votes for Roosevelt himself.

He is a radio orator par excellence, but whether a charming voice, a gift for phrases and for headline-making utterances which create a marvellous ephemeral effect over the radio and in the newspapers can prove permanently convincing remains to be seen. It is doubtful if a former Roosevelt's phrase "malefactors of great wealth" had any more lasting effect on American social development than will the present Roosevelt's "economic royalists". These happy phrases don't seem to last unless there is sound thought behind them. Teddy's error was that if his phrase meant anything it meant that a man of great wealth must be a malefactor. The public, once it lost the glamor of the expression, knew that this was neither logical nor true and because of this and similar brilliant but misleading hertoric lost sight to some extent of Theodore Roosevelt's real and solid contributions to American government.

Franklin Roosevelt is on the same dangerous spot. Too many of his brilliant phrases are more brilliant than truth-conveying. And the public really does hate to be fooled, even though it enjoys listening to the Circean notes of the most sympathetic radio voice on five continents.

It is a pity, because the achievements of President Roosevelt under tremendously difficult conditions are real enough, that they are so intermixed with unsound economics, college-professor experimentalism and the vague intangibilities of which he is a master.

The HUMAN SIDE OF THE NEWS

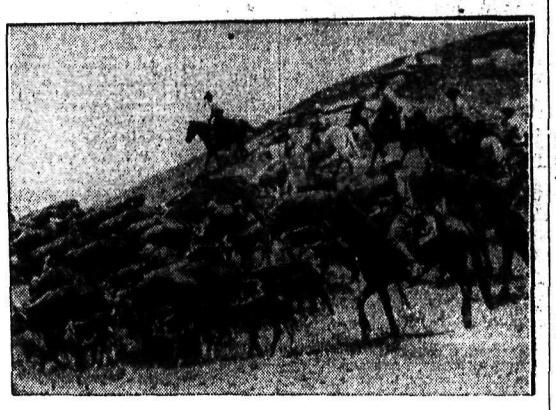
Cattle Rustling Again Showing Increase—Present Rustlers Now Use Modern Devices



Picture this scene dear to the heart of every writer of "westerns":

The night is dark, moonless, with drifting clouds obscuring the pale stars. The herd of Herefords is bedded down for the night, and around and around them two cowboys walk their bronchs, crooning, to keep the cattle lulled, the cowboy's lament, "Bury me not in the lone Prairee". Of a sudden, out of the black night, come wild yells, and the cracking of 45's and a rush of night-riders. The cattle get to their feet and stampede in terror, and the buckaroos, caught in a trap, are shot down. And next morning the Lazy S finds itself short of a hundred head of good beef critters worth $30 a head.

That was the way the rustlers often worked it in the old west. But times change, and so does the technique of cattle-stealing. The rustlers ride again. Trampas and Steve are on the hoot-owl trail, their long ropes looping, and there isn't much that the Virginian can do about it. For the up-to-date rustler of western cattle country works in fast motor trucks. He's out for calves, and when he finds an unguarded herd of beef he rounds up the calves and drives them into the truck and is away at 60 miles an hour, over *good automobile roads, to his hide-*out, or to a dishonest market waiting for just such goods.

Reports coming to this writer from the cattle country say that rustling is on the increase. Whole herds have disappeared. Big ranches and little spreads have been badly hurt, in Kansas and the Dakotas, and in Wyoming and Montana, typical cattle country in the United States. The rustler of the nineties was a picturesque outlaw (Trampas of "The Virginian" was a good specimen). A game rascal who took what was coming to him without the whine when he got caught.

RUSTLERS LYNCHED

And the punishment in the old days was swift and salutary. A rope over a branch of a cottonwood and something that had been a man turning gently in the breeze. Lynching was the only way cattle thieves could be dealt with then, when the law was mostly conspicuous by its absence or with crooked sheriffs sometimes in with the thieves. The rustler rode with his life in his hands and knew it every minute. The oldtime cattlemen hadn't much use for jails or courts. They took the law into their own hands.

But time has changed all that. The modern rustler is not the hard hombre of the familiar western novel. He's a slick fellow, up in all the modern dodges—with forged bills of sale and fast automobiles and a ready market. He's more of the city gangster type, and, as a matter of fact, many tough guys from big western towns have gone into the cattle-rustling racket.

The losses run into millions a year in the big beef-raising stretches of the prairie country, and the ranchmen are again beginning to make their own law. Lynching is gone. All that rutlers fear now is a fine or a jail sentence, and they laugh that off. Recently though, vigilantes have been organizing, and the stockmen's associations are importing range detectives, as they did back two-score years ago. In some sections, rewards of $1000 a head have been offered for the capture of any cattle-thief, dead or alive—preferably dead. Less trouble and expense.

BACK TO OLD METHODS

Curious how things will swing back to the old models when similar sets of circumstances are at work. Back in the seventies and gone. All that rustlers fear now is picturesque villain of the day—an hard-boiled, owl-hoot rider was the unforgettable character of fact and fiction. The ranches were enormous spreads, often taking in half a million acres with free range. The King ranch, in Texas, at one time encompassed a million and a quarter acres and today holds at least a million, under Robert Kleburg.

There were few towns, no telephones, and, usually, no laws. The rustler had it easy. With changing times came the growth of towns, fences, motor-cars and more valuable stock. And the rustler changed his style to suit conditions. But we're back again to about the same old pattern, with different weapons and implements, and once again the ranchers are riding the rustlers' trail.

Refute Report of Doukhobor Parade

To the Editor:

Sir—We are Doukhobors who took part in parading to Nelson with an appeal to the Canadian government and the people to set free our imprisoned brethren, which are found today in Canadian jails, among which is found an under-aged girl, who was for no reason imprisoned for two years.

When the police attacked the house of the said girl and parents refused to open the door, the police then broke their way in. The girl in fright ran to the neighbors to tell that police came to take her away, as it was said before that children not attending school will be taken away from their parents. On her way home she met the police and tried to stop them thinking that they were taking her mother. And just for this she was sentenced for two years, in a court with a closed door.

In protest against all this we Doukhobors decided to parade on the first of July when we were stopped by police near Bonnington.

The police with Inspector MacDonald paid no attention to our appeal which was written on our banner, but strictly ordered us to turn back. We refused and asked them to set free our brothers and then we would turn back. Then we heard the orders of inspector to the police and they started shooting tear bombs and using their clubs. In results there were many suffering from their eyes and many were unconscious.

Our crowd was forced to turn and the wounded ones were unconsciously lying in blood.

The police did not care to pick them up, so the passers-by picked then up and brought them to the nearest dwellings.

It was published in the Nelson Daily News on the second of July that the Doukhobor demonstrators were using their fists when police attacked them.

This statement is absolutely false and nothing but provocation, which we think was fabricated by the reporters in order to hide the barbarian actions of the police, which are however written in the hearts of men.

When the police rushed to tear away our banner we made no move but gave it to them.

We are surprised however to hear from the same people that Canada is a free educated country.

For the last 30 years in this country we have noticed as well as the others have noticed that these civilized educated Canadians have treated us quite rough without paying attention to the sex or age. That's something wild jungle races would not do.

Well, let it be so, but we undoubtedly believe that the truth will uphold the victory and there will be the kingdom of God on earth.

May God be praised forever.

With kindness to you, "Named Doukhobors" of Canada:

Science Mechanics

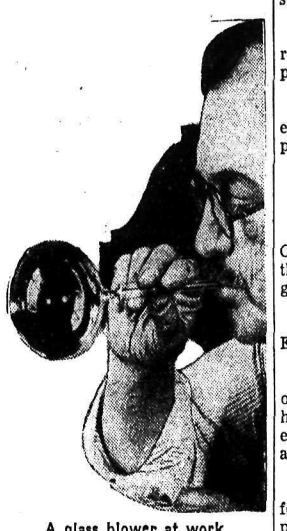
BERLIN, July 22.—Glass is fast and victoriously advancing into the field of metals and other raw materials, and is therefore called upon to play a prominent part in the German four-year plan.

"Glass for everything!" is the new slogan. Glass can be produced in any shape, in any degree of hardness, for luxury, everyday use, and for technical purposes, even where metals with high technical qualities are required.

GLASS USES INNUMERABLE

After first launching a glass buttons craze for ladies' garments, manufacturers soon found out that there is practically no limit to the use of glass, especially since the purchase of such metals as copper, zinc and lead caused considerable difficulties owing to the foreign exchange restrictions imposed upon German trade.

Pipelines for beer, for instance which used to be made of lead, will from now on be made of glass. There is no reason why water-pipelines for the general drinking water supply should not be made of glass in the future. Thin walls are being made of coarse glass with several layers of wirenetting inside especially for the construction of bungalows, bathing cabins, etc.



A glass blower at work

"GLASSED" FRUITS NEXT

"Canned" fruit or vegetable will soon be known as "glassed" fruit or vegetables, and laundry equipment, which used to be fitted with corrugated sheet iron, has been successfully fitted with glass instead. Glass wool is used for insolating and tightening purposes, and has also successfully replaced ebonite in electric batteries.

The German glass industry, comprising 1252 factories and workshops, now employs 75,000 workers against 57,000 in 1933, but it is pointed out that in spite of this increase, these factories are being operated with only 72 per cent of their full capacity.

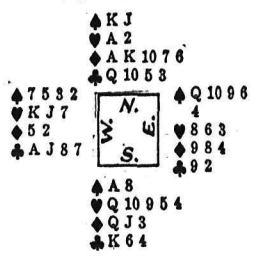
CONTRACT BRIDGE

As Written by SHEPARD BARCLAY

SURETY VS. GAMBLING

Frequently the least efficient player will gain the same result as the star, but by the use of speculative efforts which risk the making of his contract. Upon any one occasion the result may be the same, but in the long run the air-tight safety tactics of the more able performer will secure more successes than can be gained by pure gambling.



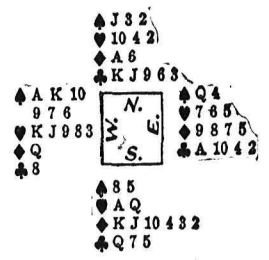
(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable).

Most North-South pairs in a duplicate played this deal at 3-No Trumps, but one enthusiastic North player took his partner into 4-No Trumps, and although some of those playing for only 3-No Trumps were defeated, the declarer who played for 4-No Trumps succeeded in making his contract.

The Spade 2 was the opening lead, which South won in the dummy with the K. The Club 3 was led to the K and A and a Spade lead continued, knocking out South's last card of that suit. Five Diamond leads were now taken, on one of which West played the Heart 7. As South had no entry to his own hand and as it was quite evident that two Hearts might be lost, the declarer cashed his Club Q, hoping for a three-three distribution of that suit.

It was now quite evident to South that West's remaining cards were two Hearts and two Clubs, so he threw West in to cash his two clubs. The latter was now forced to lead into the declarer's Heart suit, so that the contract was made with the loss of only three tricks in Clubs.

TOMORROW'S PROBLEM



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable).

South arrived at a contract of 4-Diamonds, West having bid both Spades and Hearts. West cashed the Spade K and switched to the Club 8. What interpretation should his partner derive from this?

First Shipment by Truck of Boswell Cherries, Regina

CRESTON, B.C., — Boswell and Creston valley orchards contributed to the first truckload of cherrries ever to be shipped from this district. It left Creston Wednesday with W. Mackie of Boswell in charge and was made up of about 450 crates, Bings and Lambers with Regina, Sask., as destination.

The fruit was top class. Central pack is featured at Boswell under ideal conditions in the cement basement of the Boswell Fruit Growers warehouse, and under equally ideal conditions at Creston Co-Operative Fruit Exchange ventilated packing quarters.

The trip will take about 24 hours and travel will be through Crows Nest pass which is the coolest during the day, and across the prairie at night so as to escape the usual prairie heat of July. Following the success achieved in truck transport of strawberries it is certain the cherries will arrive in perfect condition, and can be delivered at the jobbers' warehouse at a substantial saving on the express rate.

Boswell is looking for cherry crop of around 3500 crates. The crop has escaped splitting but there is some end rot in evidence. Between careful sorting at the ranch and external viligance at the packing shed the Boswell crop is of unusual excellence this year, both for size and appearance.

His place as runner-up to Lou Gehrig in the loop-hitting race was taken by Sam West of the Browns, who hit three-for-five to boost his mark four points to .360, thereby causing the only change in the top half dozen.

TO STAGE ANNUAL BOWLING TOURNEY AT CRANBROOK '38

East and West Kootenay Lawn Bowling association's 1938 tournament will be held in Cranbrook, and Bob Laurie and Ed Dingley of Cranbrook, are named president and secretary, respectively.

July 1 and 2 were the dates set for the annual event. All further arrangements were left in the hands of the new executive. Greens of the Kimberley club might be employed to accommodate the 1938 bowlers during the heavy program of the opening day, it was intimated.

Prepare for Title Tennis Play

TORONTO, July 22, (CP) — Qualifying tests for Toronto players began today, preliminary to the Canadian lawn tennis championships opening Monday at Toronto cricket club. The tournament proper will attract the starriest field in years.

While not one of the titles captured at Vancouver last year will be defended, the field will be augumented by members of the British Wightman cup team and United States male aces. For the first time in history the Dominion's top-ranking 10 men will be brought together in one tourney.

Mildred Horrigan to Pitch for Reps in Trail Sunday

Nelson and Trail rep girls' softball team take the field in Trail Sunday. Last week Hazel Spiers, who has fanned 153 batters this season, was forced to go 18 innings on the mound, but next Sunday Mildred Horrigan, who scored two mound wins over Trail reps last season, will be on duty to pitch one of the games. Rosa Stewart and Gertie Whitehead are both in shape to relieve.

Fifteen players will make the trip to Trail and it is expected all will be used, whereas last Sunday only 12 players were available.

Hazel Spiers' long session on the mound did her no harm and "Major" Albert Wallach has acted as trainer all week, with the result that she showed plenty of steam at Thursday night's workout.

Nelson Opens New Ball Park Grandstand

Mayor J. P. Morgan, who officiated at the opening of Nelson's new grandstand, Wednesday, offers congratulations to Robert Nelson, winner of a special prize, while he announces the winner over the "mike", while Con Cummins, business manager of the Nelson Senior Baseball club, looks on, ticket box in hand.

HAMILTON, Ont., (CP).—Hamilton publicity committee misses few bets. When 30 Iowa tourists were held up through a minor accident to their bus, the committee took them on a tour of the city.

ALONG TRAIL'S SPORTS WAY

As far as the lads in the press-box are concerned it's a big help. Manager William Ramsay should be congratulated on his innovation.

At the last fixture he had other dooties to perform and handed over the announcing to another fellow. After that we couldn't make much out from the speakers. Despite "Willy" having the Scotch brogue, his voice is clear and distinct. We're sure the fans appreciated learning the names of the players who scored and of those who assisted.

* * *

"Ther-r-r's a gentlemon in the fur-r-st bay on the river-r side of the r-r-ink in a blachk shur-r-t smoking a cigar-r-rette. Will he please stop smoking."

* * *

During the last fixture here the inside of the rink was as warm as anyone would wish it to be. Despite the warm temperature inside the building a big crowd was in attendance which is one indication of how the game is "taking". Imagine how the players suffered. And that is one reason Mr. Ramsay wishes people not to smoke in the building. It is tough enough on players' pipes without the atmosphere being impregnated with smoke.

Perhaps you noticed the large number of spills near the north end of the rink.

"Holy smokes," said Gus Wick, "There was a fellow smoking a pipe and throwing matches onto the floor. Fellows were trying to stop in a hurry but stepping on the matches upset them."

Mr. "Pipe-smoker", consider yourself bawled out.

* * *

Have you noticed the regular attendance at boxla games lately of Messrs. Blaylock and Buchanan? Keep the smoke clear of your eye corners and you'll notice the big kick they get out of the game. No sir, it's not perfunctory patronage. They get a bang out of the game. But goalies are their favorites. When they make a spectacular save its a big hand.

* * *

Earl LeRoy, Trail's netminder has shown a decided improvement. We could let it go as one of our observances, but to be honest, we got it from Hughie Miller, that popular blond-haired defenceman who is back there long enough to take notice of Earl's actions.

He's moving around more in his net," said Hugh. Which, according to Mr. Miller, makes it more difficult for the potential scorer.

* * *

Confession is good for the soul, it has been written. But sometimes confessions are hard to believe. For instance, would you believe that Miller did not play the famous game of boxla till he turned out to practice with the Trail team early this season.

Of course you must not forget that this lad was a members of the Dominion champion Adanacs of New Westminwster, so there must be something up top.

On the other hand Fire Chief A. A. MacDonald, who is Miller's boss, Hughie being one of the laddies at the firehall, says that light hair is a sign of nothing inside.

* * *

It "is" hot in Trail. And there are two ways of looking at the situation. Some sit down and moan, others do something about it.

Thousands are frequenting Gyro park daily and a goodly number are splashing about in Jubilee swimming pool these warm days.

Those who prefer a change of surroundings take a jaunt outside the city. When one wakes up and realizes Trail's location, despite its bleak immediate surroundings, there are many beautiful spots a few minutes away. It is only 11 miles to Fruitvale and any day you'll find Trail residents out there drinking in the beauties of nature. Rossland enjoys beautiful evenings (and Trail's are pleasurable too). It's only about 20 miles or so to Robson. Summer camps are springing up like mushrooms all over the district. There's a regular little settlement at China Creek. Many Trail businessmen and smeltermen live at their summer camps during summer and inside of less than a half hour are at work, envigorated by the country air. If you were living in a big city, you'd have to be a millionaire to enjoy anything like it.

There's that summer sport of fishing too that many enjoy immensely There's Big and Little Sheep creeks, Beaver Creek and Whisky creek, right handy. They are pulling them out of the Columbia regularly as well.

* * *

We saw "Doc" Muir and "Curly" Wheatley leaving for Slocan pool intent on getting a few big 'uns. "Curly" contends a No. 10 hook is plenty big enough when using the fly. His contention is that a huge hook protruding from the supposed body of a fly does not look natural

Bob White and Jim Young went fishing in the Columbia in the vicinity of Birchbank this week. During their fishing they lost the key to their car. So it was a walk home, a distance of seven miles.

* * *

The first game of the Trail bantam ball league was somewhat of a flop, pitchers falling down badly and the batters running rampant, the game ending in an 18-17 score.

Wednesday's game, in which Giants beat Beavers 14-2, presented a different type of ball. The large number of runs for Giants was largely due to many errors on the part of Beavers and many walks allowed by Smart. But Giants made but one error and displayed some splendid heads-up ball in the in and out gardens. (Those are pet expressions of friend Kelly's). Raymond Ciarelli, who pulls 'em from the port side, played his first competitive game and won. We hope his chucking in that game will be the worst he ever does.

* * *

Talking to Elmer D. Hall, who knows baseball, played baseball and managed teams here for years in the past, about young Ciarelli, we mentioned what little style he had, hardly any windup.

"That's what we need more of," replied Mr. Hall. "Better pitching and less style."

CUBS WALLOPED

PHILADELPHIA, July 22 (AP)—The Phillies punctured Clyde Shoun's tight pitching in the eighth inning today with a seven-run barrage that carried Chicago to defeat 7-4, and dashed the Cubs' hopes of strengthening their National league lead.

Two bases on balls and hits by Norris and Martin produced two runs and started a rally that Larry French, who replaced Shoun at the point, could not check.

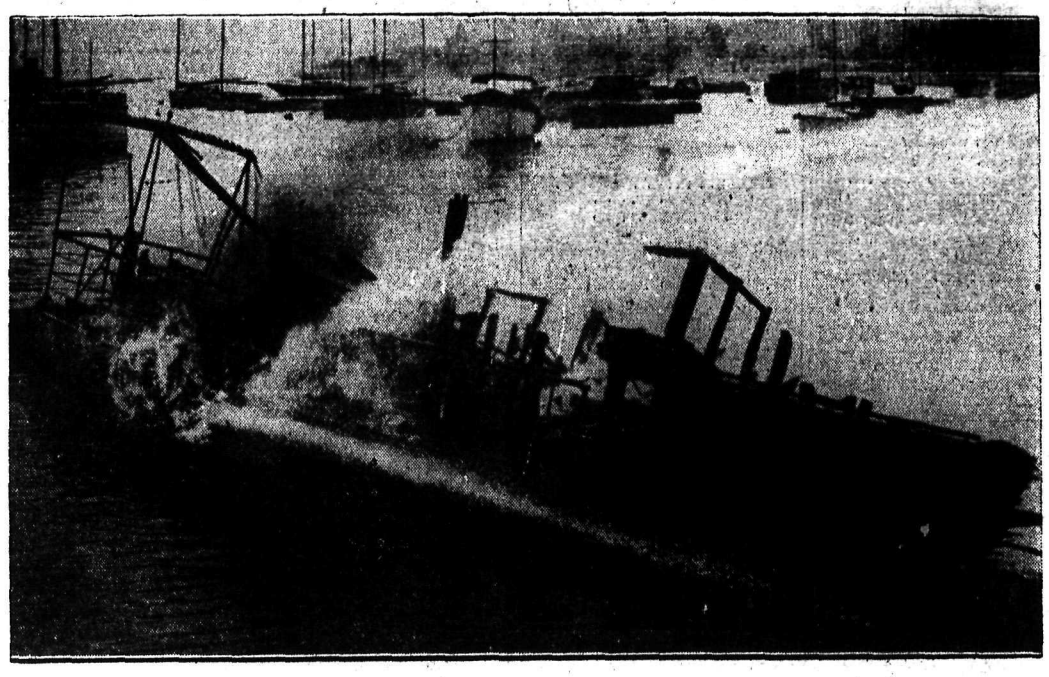
Gasoline Explosion Wrecks $30,000 Luxury Cruiser in Toronto Harbor



A terrific explosion, cause of which is undetermined, ripped the $30,000 luxury cruiser Arawa apart as it was being refueled at the wharf at the National Yacht club, Toronto, injuring George Young, club steward, who was on the dock, and hurling a deckhand into the waters of Lake Ontario. The latter was reported severely burned. Roaring flames enveloped the bulk and stream of water from a fire boat is picture playing on the wreckage as it floats in the bay. R. M. Calvert of Toronto was the owner. It was the second explosion on a boat of the National Yacht club within three days.

'Hoppers Ravaging Great U. S. Wheat Belt

Adding to the ravages caused by drought and soil drifting, billions of grasshoppers are destroying ripening grain crops in the great wheat belt of midwestern United States, where entire areas have been devastated by the invading insect hordes. It is anticipated that railway workers, farmers, WPA employees, National Guardsmen and other bodies may be organized to combat the scourge and save crops in areas not yet ruined. The grasshopper menace has not been reported acute in western Canada's wheat areas yet this year. This unusual close-up picture shows the hoppers at their destructive work on wheat heads.

Between Innings

'Dolph Camilli

Once Cleveland prided itself on the number of local products to the big leagues. With the advent of the Di Maggios, San Francisco now may well claim such an honor. That brings us to Adolph ('Dolph) Camilli slugging first sacker of the Philadelphia Phillies.

'Dolph was born in San Francisco in 1908 and got his start in pro baseball with the Frisco Seals. That was in 1926. Two years with the Seals and 'Dolph was sent to a minor club, Logan, in the Utah league. He didn't stay there very long, for Sacramento of the Pacific Coast league grabbed him.

For five years 'Dolph stayed with the Sacs, batting in more than 100 runs for four straight years. The Chicago Cubs purchased him in 1933. He played one full season with the Cubs in 1934—and he was traded to Philadelphia for Frank Hurst.

He has been the regular first baseman of the Phils for two years. His best batting average was compiled last season, .315, and he drove in 102 runs.

The San Francisco slugger has been a holdout frequently. He has expressed a desire to be traded and may be found wearing a new uniform at any time. 'Dolph is a left-handed batter and thrower. He is five ten inches tall and weighs 185 pounds.

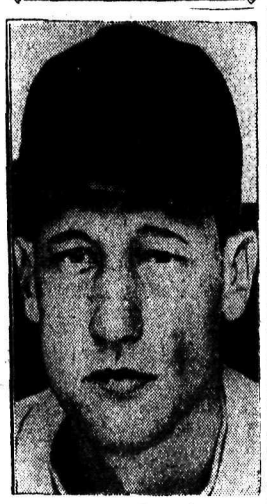
TOP + OSSERS In the Majors



LON WARNEKE

For years the ace righthander of the Chicago Cubs, Lonnie (Dixie) Warneke, German-American Ozark boy, continues to maintain his pitching mastery over National league batters as a member of the St. Louis Cardinals.

After a couple of seasons in the minors, he was purchased by the Chicago Cubs for $10,000 and was shipped to Reading for a brief spell. That was in 1930.

It was his first full season with the Cubs, 1932, that Lonnie barged through for a 22 games won-six lost and a .722 for his best average in the majors. He since has pitched superbly, winning 22 in 1934 and 20 in 1935. In the 1935 world series he pitched two victories for the Cubs.

Lonnie was big baseball news in October of last year when he was traded to St. Louis for Jimmy Collins and Leroy Parmelee.

The tall farm boy was born in 1909. He is six feet two and weighs 185 pounds.

TITLE GOLF ON NEXT WEEK

OTTAWA, July 22, (CP)—Just how powerful may be the massed invasion from the United States converging next week on the Ottawa hunt club was somewhat of a mystery today but the capital's golfing experts conceded that Freddie Haas of New Orleans will be right up front gunning for the Canadian amateur titles—his second.

A field of 125 is expected Tuesday.

On the British Columbia team is Ken Black, who reached the finals on the coast in 1933 when Albert (Scotty) Campbell of Seattle took the title.

Check Passer Is Brought Nelson

Sentenced at Grand Forks to serve 25 months in penitentiary for obtaining money and goods by false pretences by cashing a forged Associated Growers check, Ralph Blackwood, alias Jack Dunwoody, was brought to Nelson Thursday for possible identification by Nelson merchants who recently were victimized by spurious checks.

Wind and Rain Spills Bike Riders

Apparently the bike riders got the worst of things when a severe wind and rain storm broke during the course of a 205-kilometre bicycle road race between Chemitz and Erfurt, Germany. The riders in this picture are international participants. They slithered into a collision on the slippery pavement and were thoroughly upset.

Experimental Farm Substations Seem Assured at Creston

CRESTON, B. C. — Experimental farm sub stations on both dyked and orchard lands seem now definitely assured, following visits Friday and Saturday of Herb Chester, supervisor of experimental farms in southern Alta., and R. G. Newton, superintendent of the experimental farm at Windermere, who were sent in by the federal department of agriculture to arrange for tracts for this work.

Frank Putnam, M. P. P., president of Creston Reclamation company, limited, showed the visitors over the entire area of Creston Dyking district, and offered them any ten acre tract they might choose, with the visitors showing a preference for a location across the channel from the golf course. It is expected they will recommend this site and assurence was given that a man to take charge of this work would arrive here by the time the wheat was harvested.

Possibly two acres will be acquired on the bench close to Creston for the horticultural experimental work which will be on a modest scale at the start. It is understood some of the bench land not now in trees will be acquired, if possible, and along with fruit trees some attention will be paid to vegetable culture.

The fee to an individual for a Free Miners' Certificate is $5.00 for one year. To a Joint Stock Company having a capital of $100,000.00 or less the fee for a year is $50.00; if capitalized beyond this the fee is $100.00. The Free Miners' Certificates run from date of issue and expire on the 31st of May next after its date or some subsequent 31st of May. Certificates may be obtained for any part of a year terminating on 31st of May for a proportionately less fee. (Free Miners' Certificates are also applicable to the Placer Mining Act.)

Mineral Claims

Size: 51.65 acres.

Recording fee: $2.50 per claim.

Representation: Assessment work to the extent of $100.00 must be done each year and recorded on or before the anniversary date of record of the claim. Cash in the sum of $100.00 may be paid in lieu of such assessment work. Fee for recording assessment work, $2.50. If the required assessment work has been performed within the year, but not recorded within that time, a free miner may within thirty days thereafter record such assessment work upon payment of an additional fee of $10.00. The actual cost of the survey of a mineral claim to an amount not exceeding $100.00 may also be recorded as assessment work. As soon as assessment work to the extent of $500.00 (or cash paid of a like amount) is recorded and a survey made of the claim, the owner of such claim is entitled to a Crown Grant on payment of a fee of $25.00, and giving the necessary notices required by the Act.

PLACER MINING ACT

Four types of placer claims:

Creek diggings; bar diggings; dry diggings; and precious stone diggings. (For details see Part II, Placer Mining Act.)

Representation: A placer claim must be worked by the owner or someone on his behalf continuously as far as practicable during working hours. Lay-overs and leaves of absence may be declared by the Gold Commissioner under certain conditions. To hold a placer claim for more than one year it must be re-recorded before the expiration of the record or re-record.

Placer Mining Leases

Size and method of staking, etc.

Eighty acres in extent, staked along a "location line" not more than one-half mile in length. In this line one bend or change of direction is permitted. Where a straight line is followed two posts only are necessary, i.e., an "initial post" and a "final post." Where there is a change of direction a legal post must be placed to mark the point of the said change. The leasehold is allowed a width not in excess of one-quarter mile. The locator is required within thirty days after the date of the location to post a notice in the office of the Mining Recorder setting out the name of the applicant; the number of his free miner's certificate; the date of location; the number of feet lying to the right and left of the location line; and the approximate area or size of the ground.

Dredging leases on rivers for five miles below low-water mark are also granted.

Fees: Annual rental on placer mining lease, $30.00; annual development work required to be expended, $250.00; annual rental on dredging lease, $25.00 per mile; annual development work required to be expended, $1,000.00 per mile; the value of any new plant or machinery employed to count as money expended in development. Fee for recording certificate of work, $2.50. Lease fee, $5.00.

Provisional Free Miners' Certificates, (Placer) Act

Department of Mines Act

Among other things, these Acts provide for the staking and representing of placer claims without payment of fees, and assistance to prospectors by free assays, etc.

A detailed synopsis of the above Acts; also the "Mines Development Act"; "Mineral Survey and Development Act"; "Iron and Steel Bounties Act"; and "Phosphate-mining Act"; are available at the Department of Mines, Victoria. Complete copies of the Acts may be obtained from the King's Printer, Victoria.

Chicago Tumbles

CHICAGO, July 22—(AP)—Steep downward plunges of corn prices, more than 12 cents a bushel in the last 48 hours, tumbled all grain values wildly lower late today.

Surprise notices that unexpectedly large deliveries of corn would be made on Chicago July contracts did much to bring about today's collapse of values. The notices aggregated 653,000 bushels, a quantity of corn far in excess of what was generally believed available.

Dealings dwindled as proceedings drew to a conclusion. Transfers amounted to 955,780 shares compared with 981,460 yesterday. The Associated Press average of 60 issues was up .3 of a point at 69.3.
