Tip-Toeing Through the Tulips

Little Marie Greenfield presents a delightful picture, which will no doubt be appreciated by those parts of Canada and the United States which have been undergoing April blizzards, as she picks tulips in Washington, D.C., where Dutch culturists raise the graceful flower in large quantities. Owing to their premature arrival this year an attempt will be made to replace the traditional Easter lily with tulips. Thousands of the blooms are being shipped from the Washington gardens daily to all parts of the continent.

'I EARNED MILLIONS OF DOLLARS AND DON'T HAVE ANYTHING NOW', CHARGE OF JACKIE COOGAN IN SUIT

"My Stepfather Is Rolling in Wealth" He Asserts; Coogan Will Not "Get a Cent" Stepfather Replies at Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, April 12 (AP)—Jackie Coogan declared today that during the Santa Anita racing season he sat in the dollar seats and made $2 bets, while his stepfather, Arthur L. Bernstein, sat in the clubhouse "with the rich people" and made $100 bets.

He was discussing the suit he has filed against his mother and Bernstein demanding they turn over $4,000,000 he said he made while a child film star.

"All I know is that I earned millions of dollars and don't have anything now," Coogan said, "while my stepfather is rolling in wealth.

"Two times last winter I went to the Santa Anita racetrack and sat in the dollar seats, but I could look up and see my stepfather in the clubhouse with the rich people.

"I made my bets at the $2 window and he was making his bets at the $100 window. That's how it has been with everything else."

"YOU'LL NEVER GET A CENT"

Coogan, now 23 and married to Betty Grable, film actress, filed his suit yesterday, quoting his mother as saying "It's all mine and Arthur's, and so far as we are concerned you will never get a cent."

"I am deeply hurt by Jackie's actions," Mrs. Bernstein said. "He and I have always been so close and there never was any trouble between us. I am sure he has been misguided by outside influence.

"He says he has nothing and that I refused to give him any part of the estate. No promises were ever made to give him anything."

"Jackie has had all that he is entitled to and more. He isn't entitled to that money. It belongs to us."

FOREIGN MILITARY OBSERVERS SEE JAPAN TROOPS IN EXTREMELY DIFFICULT SPOT

CHINESE TROOPS RETAKE CITY IN A HAND-TO-HAND FIGHT IN STREETS

Japanese Rushing in Reinforcements by Thousands

BIG JAPANESE 'PUSH' COMING?

SHANGHAI, April 13 (Wednesday) (AP)—Foreign military observers believe the Japanese are in an extremely difficult military position in south Shantung province, where persistent Chinese counter-attacks have put the Japanese on the defensive along the 150-mile battlefront.

Continuing their aggresive tactics, the Chinese said today they had retaken Chufu. Chinese said they scaled the walls of Chufu and engaged the Japanese in hand-to-hand combat in the streets.

The Chinese said they occupied hills surrounding Yihsien, on a spur line east of the Tientsin-Pukow railway, in a night attack and were engaging the Japanese defenders of that city in a sanguinary battle. Centre of fighting shifted to Yihsien, according to the Chinese, after they drove the Japanese from Taierhchwang, 25 miles to the southeast.

RUSH TROOPS

Reinforcements by thousands were being rushed into the Shantung war zone by Japanese in an effort to repel the Chinese offensive.

The Chinese, although already engaged in the fiercest fighting of Central China operations, were preparing for even harder conflict when the Japanese are reinforced.

A Japanese army spokesman here professed to have no available information on progress of the Shauntung fighting but said "important operations" are proceeding now of a character which he could not reveal.

There was every indication the Chinese, while hammering mercilessly at the Japanese all along the line, do not intend to meet the reinforced Japanese armies in the middle of Shantung province.

They plan instead, to keep the conflict on their own chosen ground in the southern part of the province, where the Japanese will have to use extended supply and communication lines, always in danger of being cut by guerrilla raiders.

Franco's Drive to Sea Resumed as Gov't. Lines Crack and Troops Start General Retreat Toward Albocacer

MORELLA, Spain, April 12 (CP-Havas) — General Franco's insurgent drive to the sea was resumed on the southern Catalonian front today when veteran insurgent troops cracked the government lines south of the Morella-Valencia road over a 15-mile front.

General Miguel Aranda's campaigners, given the job of "mopping up" between Alcaniz and Montalban while other insurgent columns were pressing into Catalonia, returned to the front lines and carried the brunt of the offensive.

Government troops began a general retreat toward Albocacer, about 12 miles southwest of San Muteo, insurgents announced.

GOVERNMENT TRIES TO DRIVE WEDGE

HENDAYE, France, April 12 (AP)—Spanish government troops in heavy fighting today tried to drive a wedge between northern and southern insurgent forces closing in on Catalonia, Spain's northeastern corner.

Supported by machine-gunning planes, government troops beat back insurgent forces east of Lerida, recapturing one village and forcing the enemy back across the Segre river.

The new strengthened aircraft were said to have been even more effective southeast of Morrella where insurgents are only 15 miles from the Mediterranean. There government planes bombed and mahine-gunned ground troops in an attempt to check their march to the sea.

VERNON SPENCER IS "NOT GUILTY"

Former Pro Baseball Player Acquitted of Murder

SAULT STE MARIE, Ont., April 12 (CP)—An Ontario supreme court jury tonight acquitted Vernon Spencer, 40-year-old formwer professional baseball player from Wixon, Mich., of a charge of murdering Helen Grier, his companion on a hunting trip in northern Ontario last fall.

The verdict was returned at 8 p.m. (5 p.m. P.S.T.) as court resumed after an hour's dinner adjournment. The jury retired at 4:45 p.m. after Mr. Justice C. P. McTague, in a 90-minute charge, said: "I could not reconcile my conscience to convict the accused on the type of evidence that is offered here."

The judge's charge came at the end of six days of evidence-taking. Witnesses told of finding Miss Grier's body, a rifle nearby on October 28 after Spencer told police "Helen's killed herself."

Throughout the trial Mrs. Spencer, wife of the prisoner, was a spectator as witnesses told of Spencer's trips to the hunting lodge with Miss Grier during a period of six years.

The trial judge's charge to the jury last 90 minutes. He warned them the crown must prove Spencer killed Miss Grier and that he mean't to kill her. In this case, he said, the accused must be guilty or not guilty of murder.

Sanitarium Patient Went Three Days Without Treatment for a Fractured Leg, Probe Reveals

GUELPH, Ont., April 12 (CP)—Death of Walter Scott, former premier of Saskatchewan, at Homewood Sanitarium was not hastened by suffering he endured following the breaking of his leg, Dr. Harvey Clare, superintendent of the sanitarium, told F. N. Barlow, K.C., royal commissioner investigating the institution, here today.

At the same time the superintendent said removal of the former premier to hospital in his excited condition following the scuffle with an attendant when his leg was broken in a fall would have caused serious injury to the patient.

Dr. Clare was called to the stand after the commissioner had heard Crown Attorney J. M. Kearns of Wellington county say the Homewood board of visitors had not functioned in recent years as it had at one time. Visits were fewer and the members felt they could not give the institution the inspection it should have. The lay members of the board were dependent on the medical members for opinion as to whether a patient should be released.

SHOULD HAVE REPORTED

G. L. Snyder, commission councel, referred to Mr. Scott's injury when he asked Dr. Clare: "Is it correct that the attendant, McKendrie, did the wrong thing when he did not report the incident to the night supervisor?"

Mussolini's assurance of a welcome came after Great Britain yesterday called upon the League of Nations to reopen the question of Italy's two-year-old conquest of Ethiopia.

VOTE IS 508 TO 12 AS DALADIER IS GIVEN A SECOND HUGE MAJORITY

Bill Goes to Senate Where Approval Is Expected

WOULD BE IN FORCE 3 MONTHS

PARIS April 13 (Wednesday) (CP) — The chamber of deputies by a vote of 508-12 early today approved Premier Edouard Daladier's request for power to govern France by cabinet decree for three months.

The bill was presented to parliament yesterday as an emergency measure to enable the new government to cope with troublesome financial and labor problems and was approved shortly after midnight.

The vote was the second huge majority the chamber gave Daladier in 4 hours. The bill now goes to the senate.

Last night the chamber gave the premier a 576-5 vote of confidence, while the senate greeted his outline of policy with almost unanimous applause.

Political observers believed the senate would also approve the decree powers regarded as less extreme than those Socialist Premier Blum asked, and the senate refused, last week.

Flotation of a 15,000,000,000 franc (about $465,000,000) national defence loan is chief among projected measures of the government drawn from moderate Left and Centre parties of parliament.

If the senate approves the government will be empowered to enact such financial measures as

DEPORTATION OF THREE GIRLS TO U. S. IS HELD UP

VANCOUVER, April 12 (CP) — Deportation to the United States of three girl wards of the Catholic Children's Aid society was hailed today when Chief Justice Aulay Morrison granted a writ of habeas corpus in supreme court.

The children, between eight and 11 years old, arrived with their mother from the United States where they were born to join their father, Robert Nathaniel Moxon, a Canadian citizen.

Elmore Meredith, counsel for the immigration department, asked a judicial inquiry to determine whether the children were "properly landed" in Canada. He contended the mother who brought the children into Canada overstayed her temporary visitors' permit and rendered herself and her children liable to deportation.

"I hold the children were landed in Canada," the chief justice said in granting the writ. "What is the common sense of splitting up a family? Where is the statute?"

NO. 94835 TAKES PLACE IN SING SING'S 'MOST ABOMINABLE' CELL

Combined Liabilities of Richard Whitney and His Firm Exceed Combined Assets by More Than $11,000,000 Check Shows

OSSINING, N.Y., April 12 (AP) —Richard Whitney, until lately a symbol of integrity and power in the world of finance, dropped his name today to become convict No. 94835 in Sing Sing prison.

In a few quickly moving hours, the former broker who served as president of the New York Stock Exchange for five terms, had been rushed from the old Tombs prison in New York City, taken aboard a train for Ossining, thence to the big state prison, stripped, bathed, questioned, and given a suit of gray shoddy.

As these dismal formalities went on in the prison, bankruptcy schedules were filed before a referee in New York City showing the combined liabilities of Whitney and the firm he dominated exceeded the combined assets by more than $11,000,000. The firm's liabilities were put at $7,654,659, and included $554 in taxes due the old age benefit fund and $1196 due to employees. Its assets were shown as $1,161,345. Whitney's personal liabilities were listed at $5,646,719 and his assets at $1,077,432.

By the time the sun was setting behind the Palisades across the broad Hudson, he had finished a Sing Sing dinner which included bologna and potato salad, tea and cornstarch pudding, and was locked up in what Warden Lewis E. Lawes has described as "the most abominable cell block in the world," a dreary gray building 113 years old.

5-TO-10-YEAR SENTENCE

Thus he began serving a 5-to-10-year sentence for grand larceny imposed upon him yesterday for having misused $214,000 worth of securities entrusted to his care by the New York Yacht club and members of his family.

He took the whole thing with the same grim composure he has shown since March 8 when his firm crashed. Five prisoners accompanied him to Sing Sing, two of them handcuffed to him. Five thousand persons swarmed in and around Grand Central station, but Whitney did not wince.

Nor did he show any dismay as the big gate closed behind him and he was shut off from the outside world, to remain behind bars for at least three years and four months, the minimum he must serve if he gets time off for good behavior.

He will stay in the old cell block seven or eight months, depending for removal to the new cells on the time it takes to liberate men now occupying those cells. The prison population at present is 2739.

Battery Says Au Revoir, Guscott With Fine Gift

Appearing at parade for his last time as chaplain of the 111th field battery, R. C. A., Captain Herbert W. Guscott was presented with a fine pen and pencil set by Major A. E. Dalgas on behalf of the battery at the regular battery supper following parade, Tuesday night.

In presenting the pen and pencil set, Major Dalgas said that it was easy for a man in a small position to have the courage of his convictions, but for a man in a conspicuous position, especially a minister, it was a different story. "Captain Guscott has never failed to live up to his convictions, which is something the battery will never forget, and which is a great lesson to them," Major Dalgas said.

Sergeant-Major Lionel Leask, Sergeant-Major Gene Gillott, Sergeant A. D. Oliver and Gunner Tom Lee all backed up Major Dalgas' compliments to Captain Guscott, and said it would be hard, if at all possible, to replace him in Nelson. He was greatly appreciated by all of them. R. W. Dawson, honorary member of the battery, agreed with the other speakers, and said "Captain Guscott has fought battles for us about which we know nothing."

Captain Guscott replied that it was hard for him to express his appreciation for the gift the battery had bestowed upon him, and he would treasure it highly. Among seven years in Nelson, some had been hard years, but since joining the battery about 1¼ years ago, he had, so to speak, "taken a new lease on life," and felt much younger. He said that what he had always believed in had been proved again—that true comradeship was found nowhere else except in His Majesty's forces, whether on land, sea or air.

Request of the Fairview Athletic club that the lots purchased by the city for a Fairview playground some time ago should be put in shape was given to the public works committee by the city council Tuesday night

A letter from M. N. Porter, president, suggested an expenditure of $5200 was authorized by bylaw. Mayor N. C. Stibbs explained the public had voted only upon a referendum which authorized the council to buy the lots. The council had thereupon passed a bylaw to purchase the lots required for $2100.

The mayor added that levelling of the grounds was proposed this year, and that a quotation had been asked by the council.

MORE ABOUT

JACKIE COOGAN

"The law is on our side," Bernstein declared. "Jackie Coogan will get not a cent of income from his past earnings. Lawyers tell his mother and me that every dollar a kid earns before he is 21 years old belongs to his parents. None of that money he earned belongs to him."

Explaining his actions, Coogan, the "Kid" of silent pictures, said:

"I have waited patiently for some time for my mother and Mr. Bernstein to make an accounting to me of my property. I owe a duty to my wife and to myself not to wait any longer.

REGRETS COURSE

"It is a course which I deeply regret to take. It is my intention at all times to see that my mother and my little brother are amply provided for. I am satisfied that if she were not under the influence of Bernstein she would have made a proper accounting to me long ago.

"If my father had lived, no controversy of this sort would ever have arisen."

Superior Judge Emmet Wilson set April 20 for a hearing of the suit, appointed a temporary receiver for the assets of Coogan and Mr. and Mrs. Bernstein and issued a temporary order restraining the defendants from disposing of any property pending the hearing.

Coogan set forth in his complaint he believed Bernstein had dissipated considerable of his money by playing the horse races.

REVIEWS CAREER

He reviewed his career as a child actor, beginning in 1919 with Charlie Chaplin, when he played a bobbed-haired, dark-eyed little waif. His family at the time, was having "a struggle to get along" on the meagre earnings of his father, who was a vaudeville trouper.

From "The Kid" and 17 "hit" pictures that followed, Coogan said, all he received was an $800 automobile, a $6.25 weekly allowance and a $7000 insurance policy.

As for the million dollar "trust fund" supposed to have been left him, it never existed, Coogan asserted.

He expressed belief his father, killed in 1935 in an automobile accident, had been unselfish in wishing him to live, not as a boy with a huge income, but as any other child.

ALLOWANCE STOPPED

When he became of age, he said, even his small spending allowance was stopped by his mother and Bernstein and he has since been dependent upon occasional stage and screen engagements to earn his living.

Bernstein, financial advisor to the late Mr. Coogan, continued after his death as administrator of Jackie's property. In December, 1936, he married the widow, just a year before Jackie's marriage to Miss Grable.

COOGAN'S CHARGES

Young Coogan charged that:

Bernstein is operating a beer distributing business and charging the overhead to Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc.

Bernstein once told him, when he asked to look at the books to "get out and stay out. You can't see the books and you'll never see them—"

Bernstein induced him to sign away his rights to the $7000 insurance policy.

Bernstein now is wearing a $2500 platinum watch that was sent Jackie by an admirer when he was a child star.

Pease Asks City Get Guarantees for Fire Truck

Says Mayor Wrong in Affirmative Vote

Letters from G W. Pease claiming Mayor N. C. Stibbs was wrong in giving an affirmative vote on purchase of a new fire truck for Nelson, and urging the city to ask for guarantees from the vendors of the truck whose tender was accepted a week ago were filed by the city council Tuesday night, no action being taken.

Replying to the letter which stated the mayor's vote should have been negative under provisions of the Municipal act, Mayor Stibbs declared that Mr. Pease was wrong in his interpretation.

In his other letter Mr. Pease repeated his conviction that the equipment purchased would not be suitable and urged that the city obtain a guarantee it would pump 500 gallons an hour with the throttle 80 per cent advanced, so as to have 20 per cent reserve. He also urged that the city require the manufacturers to put an engine governor on the motor so the motor could not exceed 3040 revolutions per minute, and also urged that an engine revolution indicater be placed on the dashboard to check when it exceeded this.

Daladier also made a big start in settling labor disputes which at their height found 160,000 strikers occupying France's key national defence factories yesterday.

This number was reduced to 140,000 last night when an arbitrator appointed by the government sent 20,000 strikers in 16 aviation plants back to work starting this morning. Further progress was achieved when employers and "stay-in" strikers in the plants still deadlocked agreed to submit their differences to arbitration.

New Frogs Are Needed, Street Railway Tracks

Repairs Under Way to Cars; "Track Won't Stand Up"

That repairs were being carried out on Nelson street cars, but that new "frogs" were required was information given the city council Tuesday night by Alderman A. G. Ritchie, chairman of the street railway committee. No action was taken by the council. He explained that trucks on the cars were being repaired.

R. E. Potter, city engineer, stated the frogs had been condemned by the railway inspector for several years, but that they "might get by for another couple of years." Alderman Ritchie explained that while the car repairs would be good for some time "the track won't stand up".

Questioned as to what progress he was making with a report requested on trackless trolley buses and motor buses, Mr. Potter stated he had yet to hear from one city using trolleys and two using buses.

The council urged that the street railway committee keep expenses as low as possible until a course of action was decided upon.

Trail Rotarians See West Indies, Through Dr. Thom

TRAIL, B.C., April 12—Dr. J. B. Thom, Rotarian, who recently returned from a six week's trip to Jamaica, gave an interesting talk on the West Indies, illustrating his remarks with lantern slides, at the luncheon of the Rotary club in the Crown Point hotel Palm room today.

Gwilym Jones, Rotarian, who leaves Thursday for his home in Cardiff, Wales, was bade a hearty farewell by Frank Pennoyer, secretary, on behalf of the club.

Mr. Jones said that he had enjoyed his short membership with the club, and regretted he had not belonged to Rotary years sooner. He hoped that the music of the club would continue to flourish. Mr. Jones, a noted choir leader, had conducted the Trail Rotary choir in its Kootenay Musical festival competition.

Mr. Jones, who sails for his home land from Quebec April 30 stated he had been a keen hockey fan during the years he had been in Trail, and had missed only two games in which Trail Smoke Eaters had participated during that time. He declared that should the Smoke Eaters go so far as to cross the Atlantic, whether they played in England, Ireland, Scotland or Wales, he would be there to root for them.

Guests included C. E. Brown, Winnipeg, Dr. T. H. Mather, Calgary; Pat Field and Jack Girvan, rotarian, Vancouver.

Instructions were given for letters of thanks to be sent to these two organizations.

Letters of condolence will be forwarded to C. H. Hamilton, vice-president of the board; and to Miss Sybil Keeler, R.N., supervisor on the maternity floor of the hospital.

"What Do You Think"

Columns of the Nelson Daily News

Letters to the Editor perform a valuable public service. They express public opinion on a great variety of subjects. They are widely read by members of governments, by leaders in community affairs, by the general public. Often plans of great public importance have first seen the light through a suggestion in a Letter to the Editor.

Opinions can be expressed on even the most academic matters. All are interested in the views of their fellow men.

A letter about Hitlerism, about the success or failure of the Five-Year plan in Russia, the recent decisions in the Alberta Social Credit cases, the reasons we now hear little about the "School of Seven" in art, the latest literature—about anything under the sun—will be read with interest and may be the means of starting to move an avalanche of thought that may influence the course of the world.

The Daily News welcomes Letters to the Editor. We will use a nom-de-plume if the writer so desires. All we ask is that we are given, for our information and as evidence of good faith, the actual name of the writer. It need not be published, though letters over the writer's actual name often bear most weight.

Martin Pleads Not Guilty in Gaming Case; Others Pay

Six men apearing before William Brown, police magistrate, in city police court Tuesday morning, who did not appear Monday, to face charges arising out of the police raids on four Baker street cigar stores Saturday night, pleaded guilty, five paying fines of $25, and one paying a fine of $5. Those paying $25 were participants in card games, and the one paying $5 was an onlooker.

Those who pleaded guilty were Peter Hansen, T. Dolphin, Weldon Reid, Thomas Clam, Charles Walton and William Smith. All paid $25 except Clam.

Marcus Martin, the seventh man appearing was the only one who would not plead guilty.

He admitted part of the charge, which said he was found without lawful excuse in a common gaming house, to which persons did resort for playing games of chance, but declared his conscience would not allow him to plead guilty to playing games of chance. He asserted that Dolphin, Walton Smith and himself were sitting quietly, playing a game of solo, which to his knowledge, was not the slightest bit illegal, when the police walked in. His partners backed up his statement, and said none of them had ever gambled.

As Magistrate Brown explained that he must plead guilty to all of it, Martin pleaded not guilty. He will appear for trial Thursday morning.

Doukhobor Jailed Failing Register

Nick Rosinkin, Doukhobor of Glade, is serving three months in jail on three charges under the Vital Statistics act and two under the public schools act. Arrested when he failed to answer a summons, he appeared before John Cartmel, stipendiary magistrate, and pleaded guilty.

On the vital statistics charge he chose to go to jail rather than pay fines of $20 on each of three counts based upon failure to register the birth of children, and he chose jail rather than $10 fines for failure to send two children to school. The jail sentences were made to run concurrently, so that he will serve three months.

Quints Not to Be Exhibited in Yard After This Summer

By GUY E. RHOADES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, April 12 (CP) — Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe told interviewers today the famed Dionne quintuplets will not be exhibited in their Callander, Ont., play-yard after this summer. He said some other means of showing them would have to be found.

Dr. Dafoe said their exhibition had done them no harm but the guardians were beginning to feel it might be harmful if it were prolonged unduly. He added he believed one more season under existing conditions would be harmless.

Here on a shopping expedition for the quints the country doctor said also any offer from the New York 1939 world's fair for exhibition of the children would be rejected.

"I don't know officially that any offer has been made," he said, "but I have heard unofficially that some world's fair people approached the guardians. The children won't be moved."

He described the health of his charges as excellent, said they spoke French and understood English. Hereafter their education, now in pre-kindergarten stage, will be in the hands of the Ontario department of education.

New Canadian Tomato Developed to Capture Trade in Great Britain

OTTAWA, April 12 (CP).—A new Canadian tomato will be moving on the British market in a few months and Dominion horticulturists hope it will capture the bulk of the trade now held by Spain and Italy.

Known as the Jan-Ru, it was developed by John Janicky, 52-year-old Ukranian market gardener of York Township, Ont., and Robert Rumball, supervisor of York Township unemployed garden plots. The tomato's name recognizes the work of both men in its development.

M. B. Davis, Dominion horticulturist, said today the tomato had great possibilities in the canning trade. Its main feature was it had less moisture than the ordinary Canadian variety and its flesh was firmer. When canned, it held together so well it could be sliced.

In addition, the Jan-Ru had a milder flavor than most tomatoes and was not quite so acid. It was smaller in size, comparing favorably with Italian and Spanish tomatoes, favorites on the British market.

Janicky began his experiments back in 1903, gathering seeds from all over the world. Last year, the Dominion department of agriculture canned a few samples and sent them to trade commissioners in Great Britain who were impressed with their possibilities.

This season will be the first when the Jan-Ru is planted on a commercial basis, 30 pounds of seed having been distributed by canning companies in various parts of Ontario. This would represent 200,000 or 300,000 cases of canned tomatoes, Davis said.

WORKERS MUST ORGANIZE EMPLOYEES ARE TOLD

VANCOUVER, April 12 (CP)—Workers must organize to meet the threat of the present business recession, according to Mrs. Dorothy Steeves, member of the British Columbia legislature.

The Cooperative Commonwealth Federation member for Vancouver North spoke before Vancouver Retail Employees association last night. She said government curtailment of relief projects, cessation of aid to single men after June 1 and general business recession would result in "lower wage standards unless employees create strong organizations."

Harold Winch, C.C.F. member of the legislature for Vancouver East, told the meeting activities of "spotters" in the three leading Vancouver department stores prevented hundreds of retail clerks from attending the meeting.

Sorenson Pays $10 Failing to Stop

Apearing before William Brown, police magistrate, in city police court Tuesday morning, Soren Sorenson was fined $10 for failing to stop at the intersection of Baker and Stanley streets, Monday night. Sorenson pleaded not guilty, but on testimony of Constable Richard House of the city police, who stopped Sorenson after he had rounded the corner, Magistrate Brown decided the accused was guilty.

Sorenson testified he was coming down Stanley street in second gear, and brought the car to a full stop, though only for a few seconds. He looked both ways, east and west on Baker street, before proceeding. Sorenson, holder of a driver's licence in Nelson since 1931, said he always stopped at intersections, and to the best of his knowledge all cars stopped at the Stanley street intersection with Baker street. He was going about 10 or 12 miles per hour and signalled he was stopping.

Constable House refuted his statement, and declared Sorenson had not stopped, but merely slowed down. He said the auto was travelling about 10 or 12 miles an hour.

Alex Stewart, chief of police, conducted the case.

Take Moral Stand Nonchalantly Is Advise to Youth

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

A techer and mother writes: "I appreciate your recommendation to young people on smoking. I read this treatise over and over again. You gave a plan of action which should help young people meet the tobacco situation.

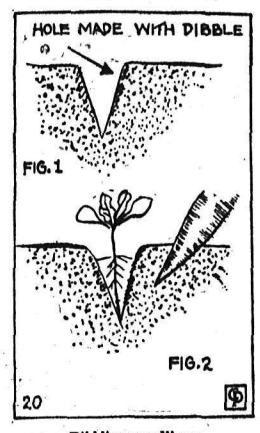
"Third, now I wish you would publish recommendations to young people as to how to meet the sex question as nonchalantly as you suggest they meet the smoking problem."

In the article referred to, I took the position that young folk must, after all, decide for themselves whether they are going to smoke or drink, but that so many who think that they do the deciding, merely let others decide for them; that, moreover, it is much easier to act independently of the "gang" in such matters than most youths suppose; that those who do smoke and drink do not look down on the one who doesn't, if he merely makes his choice nonchalantly without announcing his awareness of moral superiority over the rest. No reasonable person objects to another person's asserting his own individuality so long as this person does not, by word or gesture, suggest a feeling of self-righteousness, so long as he makes his choices as if they were turnips or spaghetti he decided not to eat.

It seems to me that the same general principle applies concerning sex relationships. Each young man or woman who likes to count himself or herself his or her own master, sets self-standards—in regard to necking, for example. Those who choose not to neck lose no respect for the kind of other men and women whose ideals they share, especially if each takes the attitude, "This is my choice," without suggesting a feeling of self-righteousness or superiority. The girl who supposes she must permit all sorts of "liberties" to her body by the boy in her company runs all the risk, of course, of losing his genuine esteem and, besides, the risk of his telling others about her—not to mention her own self-esteem. The boy who seeks these liberties endangers his future esteem by this girl and her friends.

I wish our adolescent boys and girls would, while they are wholly calm and objective, give these matters their serious thought. It might help them if, occasionally, they would imagine themselves ten or twenty years older than they are looking back to now. How would these problems appear to them then, I wonder. Do young folk have as much independence and individuality as they suppose they have? How many really choose the direction of their own conduct? How many let others choose for them?

"Dibble" Is Handy Tool for Gardener



Dibbling seedlings

A "Dibber" or "dibble" is a handy tool for any gardener. This type of tool comes in two sizes, the large size being useful for planting bulbs, while the small size is particularly useful in transplanting seedings.

The following is the proper method of "dibbling seedings": Thrust the dibble into the soil and remove it, leaving a pointed hole, as shown in Figure 1 of this Garden-Graph. Make the hole just deep enough to take the full length of the seedling's roots easily. Then, as shown in Figure 2, place the seedling in the hole, and insert the dibble in the soil the width of the hole away from the hole. As the dibble is then thrust full length into the ground, the soil will be pushed over to fill the hole containing the seedling. When properly done the thrust of the dibble will fill the hole containing the seedling without leaving air pockets around its roots.

Some dibbles are made entirely of wood, while others have brass or iron points. The point is a blunt and not a sharp one.

This season of the year is normally an excellent one for moving all sorts of woody plants except evergreens and the magnolias and oaks, all of which transplant much more successfully later in the spring. The late summer blooming herbaceous plants are also dormant at this time and can be lifted, divided and replanted with great probability of no loss.

Can Older Man and Young Girl Marry Happily?

By VIRGINIA LEE

I have been asked for my advice on the subject of a marriage between a widower of middle age and a young girl of nearly 21. The man has two children, a boy in his teens and a younger girl.

These two are very congenial, in fact they met while they were studying along the same line. Their tastes and interests, then, are identical. The man's children and relatives like the girl, but her mother and friends are opposed to the match although they have no fault to find with the man. The girl is of a serious type of mind and seems older than her years.

Ordinarily I would not advise such a marriage because there is a middle-aged man who has been married and had children and a young and inexperienced girl. But in this particular case, I am inclined to think there is a pretty good chance for happiness. The man, by the way, thought the girl was older when he started devoting himself to her.

MAKE ALLOWANCES

Each should take the other's age into consideration and resolve to make allowances. The man must remember that a girl of her age cannot be expected to have the mature judgment of a woman of 40. He must make up his mind to enjoy her youthful outlook and not grow impatient.

On her part, his views may often seem old fogyish, and she must learn to rely on his more mature judgment and not grow restless because he may seem conservative and reserved.

She will be a wise girl, too, if she can steer an even course with the children, keeping them her very good friends, not "bossing" them, but helping them when she can in a big sisterly way.

It will not be an easy position for her, I have warned her in a personal letter, and probably not for him, either, but if they face facts courageously, with full knowledge of what they are up against. I see no reason why they cannot be happy together.

Pressure . . .

Circulatory Ills Aided by "Glass Boot" Treatment

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Nicknames are pinned on all our apparatus and treatment methods in this age. The respirator is to the public "the iron lung". Now the passive hyperemia apparatus for circulatory disorders of the legs is called the "glass boot."

It consists of a Pyrex vessel shaped like a large boot. The upper part has a rubber ring attachment that fits over the leg so that no air can get in or out. A push-pull air pump is attached by a rubber tube to the inside of the "boot" and the pressure inside is alternately increased and decreased.

The purpose is to force blood into the small blood vessels of the extremity. It is a peripheral or accessory heart which, during the negative phase draws blood into the heart and during the positive phases forces it into the small vessels of the surrounding parts.

It is used for conditions due to diminished circulation in the small vessels of the extremities. These conditions are numerous.

Right now it can be used with advantage for those painful conditions due to chilblains during the winter. For chilblains are due to poor circulation in the toes or feet.

RELIEVES POOR CIRCULATION

The poor circulation is caused by a narrowing, hardening or sometimes obliteration of the small arteries, and it can easily be seen that relief will result if these partially collapsed vessels are opened up under suction and then collapsed so that they get something that resembles normal motion.

It is also used in those obliterative conditions of the leg arteries that result in intermittent lameness or spasm with cramps. Diabetics who are very prone to foot trouble find them useful. Impending gangrene of a toe has been relieved, and amputations have been avoided.

Indolent leg ulcers have been healed under this treatment.

The "glass boot" form of apparatus is not the only one used in this way, nor is the treatment all brand new. Long ago there was introduced a treatment in surgery called "Biers hyperemia," which consisted in causing an increased supply of blood to an extremity by constriction with a rubber bandage. It was used mostly for inflammations—arthritis, abscesses, etc. This old method has been revived with more scientific apparatus by which pressure can be better controlled—called "intermittent venous occlusion."

Serial Story . . .

One More Wedding!

By HELEN WELSHIMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Garry Page, New York columnist, has just sailed for a few weeks abroad. Among his friends at the pier to see him off was Barbara Kingsley who came to New York the day before to fill a vacancy on a child magazine at the suggestion of her close friend Natalie Kendall. Barbara and Garry became interested in one another a few weeks previously when she was society editor of the Martinsville Post and Garry had come to Martinville for a wedding. Jack Metcalf, an author and friend of Garry, takes a kindly interest in Barbara after Garry sails. He invites Barbara to come see Garry's apartment where he is staying temporarily, and Natalies goes along. Jack is surprised to see her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 7

"My thoughts aren't worth a bright green stamp," Barbara answered Jack Metcalf's careless bet. She was remembering, though, that there had been a scene in one of Jack's books which might have been played by him and Natalie. He had even described Natalie! That, then, was why Natalie had wanted to come along. Did she still care for the man, or did she know his wiles too well to let any other girl risk his charms?

Barbara dismissed the matter with a shrug of green-clad shoulders. A Japanese servant, squat and old, was bringing in the tea in a copper service, and the teakettle, round and old, was bubbling on an alcoholic flame. And in the wake of the servant came Ray Lipton.

"Hello, everybody," he greeted them. He crossed to Barbara. "Remember me? I'm the guy who wanted to know you better. I had a hunch I'd find you here. That's why I came."

"Don't believe him, Babbs," Natalie's voice drawled. "He has a way of making a girl think he's on a treasure hunt and she's the prize package. But he's a good egg. He'll treat you well."

"Meaning what?" Jack asked. "Natalie, haven't I bought you a winter full of dinners and first night seats, my love, in olden days?"

Natalie made a laughing remark but Ray was speaking again so Barbara didn't listen.

"I do mean my words, Barbara Kingsley. You met Garry Page last summer one night when he missed a train at a wedding and now you are going to out Disney Disney or something of the sort in rhymes for children. Garry didn't miss a thing when he told about you. Except—," drew his brows together, "he overlooked the dimple in your cheek, and the freckles on your nose, and that curl that keeps getting in your eye. I change my mind. Mr. Page was not a good reporter! Anyway, he's on the high seas, and here I am."

Three of four others came presently. The waiter kept passing trays of canapes and minute sandwiches. The lights of the city swung through the darkness. The tall buildings became checkered with yellow panes of brightness. On the street, far below, the traffic lights changed colors and their brilliance faded before the onrush of taxicab lamps, throbbing lanterns that fireflies could no longer carry. The rhythm of the city after dark began — haunting, insistent, a little lonely, sobbing as though it had lost something. Someone turned on the radio and found a swing band. Far out at sea, where a ship went steadily on, maybe another radio found that same music. Barbara felt a little sad suddenly.

Back in Martinsville Peter would be going into the Shanty for a steak, or ham and eggs. Peter—he was so remote tonight. She wished she could slip into the chair across from him and talk. She must write to him before she went to sleep tonight.

"You're half asleep so you didn't hear the plans we're making," Ray Lipton said. "We are all going on to dinner somewhere and then find activities on Fifty-second street or elsewhere. Do you mind?"

"I'd like it." She liked Ray Lipton, too. He was so genuine, and his eyes had such a funny quirk when he laughed. He was good looking, too. Not as good looking as Garry. Better looking than Peter—dear, homely, lovable Peter.

"Most of the things you'll do in New York that you will remember longest you will do on the spur of a moment." Jack said. "The things you hold are the unexpected gifts. Take what the gods bring. They never repeat."

"I'll remember," she answered, but her eyes were on the green knitted dress. It wasn't appropriate for dining out, unless she went to an automat or cafeteria, she thought ruefully.

"Nobody's dressing," Ray explained.

Nobody else needed to, she was thinking. For the most part they wore black. Crisp black or soft black, relieved with white touches, clean as a snowball or pop-corn.

"Never mind the white on it," a voice spoke slowly. "You don't need it. Not with that hair." Jack Metcalf, sitting near, had turned in time to hear the scrap of conversation.

Now, at Barbara's puzzled glance, he laughed softly. "You were thinking that tomorrow you must buy a black dress, weren't you? It's the natural reaction of a newcomer. It marks you as a member of the established group. I'd wear green beads, or green earrings and a bracelet with yours. They'll increase the depth of your eyes."

Inconsistently, Barbara decided she would buy a colored dress. But black with green earrings. . . . She put the thought away until tomorrow.

They crowded into taxicabs, a little later, and went spinning over to the river. When the smell of fish and salt came to her nostrils, Barbara turned to Ray Lipton. "The docks again?"

It had been so long since she had taken that lonely cab to say goodbye to Garry. So much had happened. Tonight he was somewhere on the ocean and he didn't know that she had been at his house.

"We are headed for Sweets'," Ray was saying. "It's a famous old fish place—terribly ancient. I think George Washington liked its mackerel or something. It's up a flight of stairs and at noon the gents with money from Wall Street fill it. It's not crowded at night. There's an old-fashioned sideboard where the silver is kept. . . . Say, can't you even look as though you are listening?"

Barbara laughed. "I'm sorry. I was listening. They have a sideboard— But I was wondering when you all work? Do you ever do anything?"

His laughter was spontaneous. "Do we?? In this group is the busiest fashion designer in this town, and an attorney who gets his name in the papers twice a week, and a newspaper guy—that's me." He grew serious. "We get tired about dusk and relax."

There was nothing relaxing about the evening as far as Barbara could see. They had dinner, and went up to the Rainbow Room to dance to a tango-rumba band. They dropped in at the Versaillies.

"Let's dance," Ray said, and for a few moments she felt the sweet swiftness of the music.

Famous Conductor Records Music for Cartoon Still to Be Drawn

By DAN DE LUCE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

HOLLYWOOD, April 12 (AP).—Walt Disney, Mickey Mouse's papa, is like the old woman who lived in a shoe. He has so many brain children he doesn't know what to do.

While other film studios are cutting out jobs and slackening production, Disney's plant employs more than 700 workers—a record number.

Mickey, who made his first hit 10 years ago, is still the No. 1 star. Disney says so. But Mickey was almost crowded out as the Disney family grew.

As Disney sees it, Donald Duck and other upstarts have been getting the best gags. Unintentionally the animators slighted Mickey. Donald now's an established star.

Pluto and Goofy, the dogs, have won popularity. Wilbur, the grasshopper; Gus, the goose, and Donald's three duckling nephews, Huey, Dewey and Looey, are on the upswing.

The three little pigs are coming back—with the big bad wolf. This time they will use a lie detector to foil the wolf, who by now has three little wolves.

A Disney ambition is to animate cartoons to fine music. He had Leopold Stokowski record "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" recently, but the story has yet to be drawn.

"I never cared a hoot for music when I was a kid," says Disney. "But I might have if I'd heard it in a cartoon."

Daily Brushing in Right Way Is Necessary With the New Coiffures

By JULIET SHELBY

Just as predicted earlier this season, the new upsweep hair arrangements have taken the smart spits by storm. It's hair high almost to a woman.

If you have overcome that first

ANN MILLER

timidity over something so radically new as these popular coiffures, you are probably realizing the charm and femininity of the new styles. When you have an attractive neckline and a lovely throat, there is nothing which makes you quite so appealing as to have your hair swept cleanly off the neckline and high on your head.

It isn't terribly difficult to care for the new graceful upsweep that your hair is taking, but it is important to remember that the health of your hair, encouraged by daily brushing, will play a definite part in retaining the loveliness of your hairdress. The very fact that hairdressers were first in calling these styles "brushed-up coiffures" indicates the importance attributed to brushing.

So get yourself a good hair brush, and learn to use it correctly because this is one of the requisites if you are planning to brush up your coiffure. There are some narrow, lightweight brushes on the market that strand the hair as they brush, and don't destroy your wave or curls. Naturally you have to do your brushing the right way to get the most out of your efforts.

ROUTINE DOES TRICK

This routine will do the trick. First throw your head forward. The blood rushing to your head is extremely healthful and will aid your treatment. Place your brush on its side at the back of the head, then, turning the brush under until you feel it gripping the hair, begin brushing up and out to the very tip ends of the hair, using the vibrating movement. This is a sort of jerky, lightning streak motion that will grip the hair and give a tug to the hair roots. It exercises lazy scalp muscles and stimulates the circulation, meanwhile massaging the scalp thoroughly. Work all around the hair line to sweep away unbecoming scalp debris and cosmetic particles which have lodged in the hair. Then part your hair on top of your head in strands and brush each one individually with a vibrating motion. The friction caused by the brushing treatment will bring out the natural oils, and the bristles of the brush will distribute them over the hair strands, polishing them until they gleam with new life and luster. Remember to keep wiping your brush on a towel during the brushing.

Brushing like this gives renewed elasticity and buoyancy to the hair, as you will be happy to note when you start arranging your hair and combing your ringlets. They will jump back into place as though they had springs. For your last lick, brush the hair upward beginning at the back of the head, until it is arranged in the style you have chosen.

LUNCHEON
Split Pea Soup — Toast
Stewed Rhubarb — Cinnamon Rolls

DINNER
Baked Potatoes — Frizzled Beef
Broccoli — Spring Salad
Frech Pineapple — Tea Cake
Tea

Split pea soup is a good hearty dish for cool days. You can get a ham bone on purpose, although truth compels me to admit that I usually use a leftover bone, the end of the perfect ham.

TODAY'S RECIPES

SPLIT PEA SOUP — One ham bone, fairly large, two cups green split peas, soaked overnight, two carrots, cut in pieces, two onions sliced, two small bay leaves (optional), few sprigs parsley, nine cups water, one quart milk, one cup chopped ham bits or three slices bacon fried. Put all ingredients (except milk and ham bits or bacon) in large kettle and simmer slowly (this burns easily) about two hours. Peas will be mushy and stock thick. Strain and add the milk, cream and all. Bring to boiling point and add chopped ham or bacon.

FRIZZLED BEEF — One-fourth pound dried beef, two tablespoons cups milk, pepper. Tear or cut the beef into pieces. I usually cut it with kitchen scissors. Melt butter in frying pan, and cook beef in it for a few moments. Sprinkle flour in pan, stir well and gradually add milk, stirring constantly until it boils and is thick. Let it boil for one minute and serve.

DELICATE TEA CAKE —Whites of three eggs, beaten stiff, one cup white sugar, one-half cup butter, one-half cup sweet milk, two cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, flavor with vanilla. Cream butter until very soft, add sugar, creaming in gradually, then add vanilla. Sift baking powder with flour and add alternately with milk, and lastly fold in the beaten egg whites. Bake at about 350 degrees in loaf or layers.

CALL TENDERS FOR ADDITIONS TO HOSPITAL

Tenders have been called by the directors of Kootenay Lake General hospital for projected additions to the hospital. They will be considered at a meeting of the board's finance and building committees Monday.

Arrangements have been made to borrow $4000 to augment money held in reserve for building, the board was informed Monday night.

A letter from Hon. Dr. G. M. Weir, provincial secretary, stated no government grant would be available in the current fiscal year. It was decided to press for inclusion of a grant in the 1939 estimates of Dr. Weir's department.

The projected extensions, as designed by W. F. Williams, include a wing on the maternity floor to provide two private wards with baths, and a women's public ward containing four beds; and a rear wing to provide a children's ward of six beds separated by glass partitions and provided with toilets and baths, together with two semi-private wards with baths and toilets on the floor above. Altogether 16 additional beds would be provided.

The three tiered birthday cake decorated in green, white and gold was the work of Mrs. Hackett and having nine candles, was held in the centre of the stage until it was cut to give each one present a piece. The top tier was drawn for and was won by J. Wigen. A splendid lunch was served by members of the Institute.

"He should have reported it to someone."

Dr. Clare said he had told Mr. Scott he had to go to hospital but the patient insisted he be left until the next day. On the next morning, Monday, it was put off until Tuesday because it would have been harmful to move Mr. Scott in his excited state. On Wednesday he learned Mr. Scott had died. Dr. F. H. C. Baugh of the Homewood staff had been looking after him.

"Do you think he should have been rushed to hospital Sunday morning?" asked Mr. Snyder.

"No," said the doctor. He said he had inquired on Monday if Mr. Scott had his leg fixed and he had been told Mr. Scott would not go. He did not believe the suffering hastened his death.

NONE ARE SHAREHOLDERS

Denying he was urged to make profits as big as possible Dr. Clare said neither he nor any other employee was a shareholder in Homewood. The only instructions he had ever received were from the late president, Fred Jarvis, who told him "quit your worrying about getting patients. If it doesn't pay it isn't your funeral."

"Statements have been made, very general I admit, that the beds must be kept full," said Mr. Snyder.

"No such thing. No such statement was ever made," said Dr. Clare.

"A bizarre falsehood" was the way Dr. Baugh described a statement that he had told Angus McIntosh, wealthy patient from Montreal, he was there for keeps. Dr. Baugh said McIntosh's evidence at the inquiry exhibited delusions of persecution typical of sufferers from paranoia.

Modernization of the Hudson's Bay Store Under Way

New Front, Windows, Entrance; to Take Out Inside Walls

Sweeping alterations comprising a modernization campaign are under way at the Nelson store of the Hudson's Bay company. T. H. Waters & Co., Ltd. have the contract.

An entire new store front and show windows, and a new large entrance will mark the exterior modernizations. In the store the dividing walls between the main store and the annex will be removed, the ground floors brought to one level and fixtures modernized, it was announced Monday by T. H. Glover, manager.

Black tile with chromium finish will be used in modernizing the store front. The entire building exterior will be painted in white terra cotta effect. Windows will be finished in modern manner with appropriate modern lighting. Upon completion of the new entrance the present entrances at the corner of Baker and Stanley street and at the grocery annex will be closed.

In the interior the walls, between the main building and the annex, both on the ground floor and the second floor, will be removed. This work involves considerable structural steel. On the upper floor veneer walls are being erected in order that the present walls may be taken out without interfering with customers doing their shopping. The floor of the grocery section will be raised to the level of the main floor and new, modern fixtures will be installed.

Part of the rearrangement of the upper floor is already complete, the general and store manager's offices having been removed to the front of the building, facing Baker street. The dry goods section has been moved into the main store and the annex henceforth will be devoted to home furnishings. Tables and counters have all been rearranged on a uniform basis.

Space formerly occupied by the offices is now given over to the millinery section and fitting rooms.

Other improvements are now being planned, to follow completion of the structural work.

Highlights of Scouting In Nelson and District, Week Ending April 9, 1938

By L. P. W.

Nelson and District Boy Scout association held its annual general meeting Monday night in the board of trade rooms. President Clyde Emory was in the chair. A new executive was elected as follows: Mayor N. C. Stibbs, honorary president; Clyde Emory, president; R. A. Aldersmith, first vice-president; and Frank A. Stuart, secretary-treasurer. R. B. Morris was appointed auditor for 1938. The working executive was made up of L. P. Walton, Roy Hood, Dr. G. A. C. Walley, N. R. Freeman, T. A. Carew, George Abey, Charles Brett, Mrs. Leslie Pickard, Mrs. George Hornett, R. B. Morris, Major A. E. Dalgas, Mrs. G. S. Rees and Mrs. Jorgenson.

LEADERS' ANNUAL SUPPER

Tuesday, April 5, Commissioner J. M. Dronsfield and his Scout leaders held their annual Dutch treat supper at the L.D. cafe, and the boys really went to work for an hour, and held their Scout leaders meeting later on in the evening.

The Scout leaders elected Scoutmaster G. L. Rossington, chairman, and L. P. Walton, secretary for the year 1938.

It was decided that a visit to Camp Busk must be made in the near future to put it into shape for the camp this summer.

CAMP INVITATIONS

It was suggested by Commissioner Dronsfield that invitations should be sent out as soon as possible to the troops at Trail, Rossland, Creston, New Denver, South Slocan, Slocan City, Salmo and Willow Point, when Nelson will entertain Pullman, Wash. This is the first time an international Scout camporee has ever been held at Camp Busk, and it is hoped by the commissioner and the Scout leaders that it will be a great success.

The Nelson Cub packs will be invited for the last week-end of the camp, and if the proper arrangements can be made it will be five days.

A picture of the decorated bicycles of the Scout Apple Day was sent to the Scout Leader magazine at Ottawa with a short editorial and a copy of the Scout column for that week.

SECOND NELSON TROOP

On Thursday the Second Nelson troop of Boy Scouts held its weekly meeting at the Scout hall. Scoutmaster George Rossington was in charge. There were only two absentees. A group of the boys were asked to bring some planking to fix the trek cart. Two other boys were set to work to fix the wheels. Mr. Anderson took the other three boys on first aid. After this was over, a group had a try at fire making with a bow, Indian style. A hike, in order to pass the First Class Journey test, was planned for the coming Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ure were visitors.

FIRST NELSON TROOP

The First Nelson troop met in the Scout hall Friday, with an attendance of 22 Scouts, and only two absentees. Dr. F. P. Sparks brought a movie projector down to the meeting and showed the entire troop how an epidemic of a disease could be spread by one person having the disease.

After the meeting there was a meeting of the Scouts who wished to start a bicycle patrol. Norman May was elected patrol leader and Morris Aldersmith second.

FIRST NELSON CUBS

First Nelson Cubs held their meeting Tuesday. Trying a new idea in treasure hunts, the First Nelson pack held one this week, with eight separate trails. The trails were laid beforehand by David Rees, Stanley Hodgson, Morris Aldersmith, Martin McLennan, Phil Brewer, Roland Zubec, Bill Affleck, Norman May and John Holland. Most of the boys arrived on schedule, but the Senior Sixers, who were following a trail laid by John Holland, were delayed some time. The reason for this was that the notes were written in semaphore code. The lucky six that won the treasure were led by Sixer Bill Jarvis. The treasure was a bag of peanuts, freshly roasted, and a box of licorice. The meeting was closed at the end of the trail, on the old skating rink.

THIRD NELSON CUBS

Third Nelson Cubs held their meeting Wednesday. Forty-eight Cubs opened the meeting with the Grand Howl, the law and promise. Cubmaster Donald Ure thanked the Cubs on behalf of the Scout leaders for their splendid work on Apple Day.

The remainder of the meeting was used for Cub work and signalling, knot tying, physical exercises, and compass points. The program was then closed with the Grand Howl, and the meeting with the Lord's Prayer. The meeting was in charge of Cubmaster Donald Ure, and Assistant Cubmaster Frank Oliver, assisted by Instructors Robert Thain, David Webster and Richard Thain.

KING'S PARTY WINS IN EGYPT

It is to be hoped that the triumph scored by Egypt's 18-year-old monarch in the recent elections in that land does not make it necessary for him to buy a larger fez. Certainly it is a remarkable feat for one so young.

The young king, acting in all probability on the advice of old and wily political leaders, suddenly demanded that Nahas Pasha, leader of the Wafd or Nationalist party, dissolve his private army of "blueshirts." Nahas, confident in his popularity as the leader largely responsible for winning Egyptian nationhood, refused. He was dismissed and an old rival, Mohammed Mamoud Pasha was named. There was a near-riot in the parliament which refused to indorse the new government.

By a coincidence which appears to have been fortunate for King Farouk, his marriage to a daughter of a popular Egyptian family occurred just prior to the date of the elections. The Egyptian people were wildly enthusiastic about the wedding. Apparently they voted for the newlywed king rather than for his ministry. Both in Upper and Lower Egypt Nahas and his party met crushing defeat. From 159 seats their representation dwindled to 12. Nahas and his chief lieutenants lost their own seats.

Of course the popularity of the new king was not the only cause for this amazing swing. Other Nationalist leaders were jealous of Nahas and two of them seceded and formed the Saadist or "True Wafdist" party. Then, too, Nahas had won much previous support for his opposition to Britain and this claim lost its force when British suzerainty was withdrawn.

Particularly significant was the supporter of the king by the venerable Sheikh Mustapha al-Maraghi, Moslem leader, who is believed to have dreams of creating Farouk caliph of Islam, an office vacant since Kemal deposed the Turkish incumbents. It is thought Farouk might be the centre for a new Moslem group of powers.

It would be foolish to hail the election results as a triumph for simon-pure democracy or a blank check indorsation of King Farouk. Reports from unbiased observers indicate that there was a good deal of intimidation. Several Wafd leaders were placed under "protective arrest". Campaign tactics seem to have been copied more from Italy and Germany than from Britain. Yet it would appear that the success of King Farouk is a blow to Mussolini and will work against Il Duce's hope of making Italy the protector of Moslem. Egyptians are beginning to appreciate the wisdom of having Britain rather than Italy as their world sponsor.

NATIONAL TOURIST PLANNING

Great possibilities are seen by the Financial Post, in the matter of a national tourist policy, a subject that should be receiving consideration when the federal government is preparing to spend millions in seeking to bring in tourists. The paper says:

"In a few weeks Canada will enter another tourist season. Prospects for a "bumper crop" are not as rosy as they were at this time last year but an expenditure of at least a quarter of a billion is assured. Last year's estimated expenditure was $295 millions, which stamps this industry as one of the top-ranking "exporting" trades of the nation.

"Yet Canada still lacks any well-balanced plan for tourist business such as can be found in many European countries.

"Italy is a case in point. That country offers a complete "plan" to its visitors which is definite and attractive. It includes a 10 per cent reduction in currency if purchased before entering the country; a 50 per cent reduction in rail rates; a graded hotel service which fixes the rates chargeable in each of four types of accommodation; 30 per cent reductions in entrance fees for all state museums, art galleries, etc.; an abundance of well-informed guides at very low rates; cheap taxi-cab rates, etc.

"It is true that Italy's plan is part of her scheme of control of foreign exchange. But beyond that the arrangements serve to make the visitor's stay as pleasant and profitable as possible; to protect him against over-charging and discrimination.

"Canada need not follow such a plan slavishly. Yet she could profitably work out simple, definite policies which would help our visitors to plan their trip in advance; ensure they were well-treated and satisfied when they arrived. Specific suggestions along this line were made in the final report of the National Employment commission issued at Ottawa. Hon. N. W. Rowell, chairman of the Dominion-provincial relations commission, also made some pertinent remarks on this subject at Vancouver the other day.

"There is an equally important job to be done in making sure that those who will play host to our millions of visitors also have the "tourist viewpoint"; that they treat our visitors in a manner befitting guests rather than as people to be victimized and squeezed dry before they leave."

It follows with the injunction "Drive carefully." That is the keynote. Carelessness causes more accidents than

POOLS IN BRITAIN

Parliament may find the subject of gambling legislation an unpleasant and thorny one; it has been the bugbear of many governments. But it is time to consider the expediency of intervention in the unexampled situation caused by the swift growth of the pools. It is not suggested that "the poor man's flutter" should be proscribed or even limited; the practical question is one not of stoppage but of regulation in the public interest, and of exacting from the ever-rising tide of money flowing through the pools a percentage which can be usefully applied to the national benefit.—London Daily Telegraph and Morning Post.

THE RESURRECTION

How still it is around the Tomb!
What magic spell
Has lifted up the soul of Christ
To light and power, Fame and glorious love?
Hark to the music of the elfin pipes
Of Easter morn!
It comes and goes and comes and goes again.
How still it is!
What is the Resurrection?
What does it mean—
To man?
A mirage at the equinox of life
The ghost of deeds well done, of sacrifices made
For those less fortunate than we.
Of beauty strewn along the way,
To help some passer-by.
Reward. A symbol of enchanted power,
That will be ours;
When day shall balance up with night
For work well done.
How still it is around the Tomb
HE has risen;
So can I!

Japan Creates "Dope Addicts"

So long as narcotic addicts in the United States can be unmbered by the hundreds of thousands, Japan will always have a rich and unfailing source of revenue with which to finance war, says Lowell Thomas, famous newscaster and editor, in the April Commentator. Japan didn't originate the idea but she certainly has improved upon it, he adds.

In using opium revenues for government the Japanese have taken a long-establihed precedent from Europe. Every European country that has possessions in Asia, depends upon the drug traffic for part of its income.

This, however, continues The Commentator's editor, does not constitute an excuse for any nation's forcing such degradation upon its neighbors. It cannot be shown that European countries have been parties to the deliberate increase of the traffic by making new addicts.

And that is the serious charge against the Japanese. Medical officers returning from China say the officials from Nippon have reduced the price of the drugs in North China so as to make it available to even the poor. The Commentator finds that one hundred thousand new addicts are being brought into the fold in those parts every year.

The Tokyo government has issued bonds against the opium revenues. The plan is to continue using the profits from narcotics to develop the gigantic mineral fields, manganese, iron, tungsten, etc., which lie in the newly-conquered territory. After that will begin the next stage of the prodigious scheme of empire planned by the war lords of the Rising Sun.

CHANCE FOR THE MAJOR

Major Douglas, whose name is now a household word in Alberta, has intimated to Premier W. L. Mackenzie King that he has qualms about coming to Alberta for fear that he may be put in jail, as was his disciple. If the major will come out and see to it that we all get $25 a month in this sunny province of Alberta, we will guarantee he will never see the inside of a Canadian jail. It was Major Douglas who started all this adventure in Alberta, and we believe he should be on the job while things are humming. —Hanna, Alta., Herald.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

As Written by SHEPARD BARCLAY

DOUBLE LEAD THROWS

ANY KIND of a lead-throwing play which makes the opponents present a trick to you is a pretty maneuver. The simpler forms of these occur with fair frequency. But once in a blue moon there comes a chance to use two such plays in the same deal, perhaps making first one defender give you a trick and then the other.

(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

One-No Trump was West's opening call here, followed by 2-Spades from North, 3-Clubs from East and 3-No Trumps by West.

North elected to lead the club Q against this contract and West won with the A. When the diamond A was cashed, North's void became apparent, and West switched to the heart 5 and A. The heart J was next finessed and the heart K cashed. North's distribution was now pretty well known to the declarer, so he cashed the club K and threw North in with a club. After winning two clubs, North was forced to lead a spade to West's tenace in that suit. The spades Q and A were followed by a heart to South's Q, it being evident now to declarer that South had nothing to return but diamonds. South took the heart Q and diamond K and then had to give up a trick to dummy's diamond Q.

Two clubs and a heart were all the tricks the opponents were able to capture because of West's ability to time properly the placing of each opponent in the lead.

Rio Tinto, Oldest Working Mines in the World, Are Main Sources of Revenue for General Franco's Fractricidal War

For the last 2,500 years the Rio Tinto mines of southwestern Spain have yielded pyrites and copper, to be transformed into blood and gold of war. Current news dispatches tell of British annual payments of $6,250,000 to General Franco for the privilege of working their own property , and, according to these accounts, this is the general's main source of revenue in prosecuting his war.

British and German capitalists bought the mines from Spain in 1872 for $20,000,000. They have repaid the investment many times over, but just now the Germans are getting the copper and the British the pyrites which is iron disulphide and, like copper, useful in making of munitions. Sir Auckland Geddes, head of the Rio Tinto company hints that the British are getting hijacked, but the British no doubt know what they are doing.

These are the oldest working mines in the world. The Carthaginians discovered and developed them. When Rome overwhelmed Carthage, she drew her copper supply from Rio Tinto for centuries. The Romans were never good at iron-working. Their tools and weapons were made of bronze, an alloy of copper and tin. The copper coinage of the empire was made from Rio Tinto copper. Many a savage international dogfight has raged around the vast desert of slag which surrounds the mines and discolors the waters of the river—hence the name Rio Tinto.

When the Moors conquered that region in 711, they abandoned the mines. They had small use for copper. For a thousand years the mines were left to wild beasts, to the seepage and ruin of the centuries. But when the dark ages were over, we picked up our fighting where we had left off, and copper again became a valuable war material.

An enterprising Swede named Wolters assembled what was a vast amount of capital for that day, leased the mines from the Spanish government in theyear 725, and again let the light into the deep and dank old diggings, where Roman and Carthaginian whips had cracked over the backs of slaves. When the lease expired, Spain, on the downgrade, worked them in a desultory way, again with slave labor, until the British and Germans bought them.

SIR AUCKLAND GEDDES
head of the Rio Tinto mines

John Buchan's new biography of Caesar Augustus—a brilliantly written and fascinating book, by the way—discovers the Rio Tinto mines as an important factor in power equation, which Augustus weighted to his advantage in his winning struggle for power, as deep, dark and devious as this ancient labyrinth itself.

It is a forbidding region. It has shed enough blood to discolor the river, even without the copper tinting. The Swedes, with their brief commercial foray, seem to have done better with the mines than anybody else. After Gustavus and Charles had demonstrated that war didn't pay, they knocked off fighting. Fortunately they have no Rio Tinto in their own country to invite trouble.

UNITY NEEDED

There can be no doubt, we think, that if the United States today were to announce that she was prepared actively to cooperate with Britain and France in the defence of democracy and in resistance to oppression, the onward march of the dictatorships would be halted in its tracks.—Ottawa Journal.

They Certainly Know Their Sports

The "Winner" (London) in its first four pages contains the following:

Article: "In War Time We Will Have Gas Masks For All, But. . . !"

"Poignant short story of a doctor called to attend to the man who saved his son's life. . . The man is a murderer and a fugitive. . . "

Human document: "My Son is a Thief!"

". . . Grim story of a boy who killed his friend and was. . . Hanged By His Own Father!"

We see the "Winner" describes itself as the "official organ of competitors and sportsmen." They certainly know their sports.

The Importance of the Retail Clerk

"It has been my observation during twenty-five years that the most neglected, least emphasized, least appreciated of all kinds and classes of salesmanship, is that of retail salesmanship," said R. W. Carney at Toronto. "The retail clerk is the real and only salesman. He sells to the customer for actual use and consumption. Other salesmen are merely agents for the transferring of goods for redistribution."

ONE MORE WEDDING!

"Corney," Ray said. "A sweet band. I like them when they swing."

The orchestra was shooting off at tangents now, and he brightened up. "Ah, that's better. You dance like nobody in Martinsville's business, my lass."

Barbara smiled happily. This was the first swing band to which she had danced first-hand. She suddenly realized what a lot of her intertainment had been vicarious these past two years. Always, always she had been writing about other people's lives.

The floor show was going to begin when they finally went back to their table. Barbara watched it idly. Her heart insisted on trailing a ship, far out on the ocean. But when the lights came up, she made a little sigh that was an audible gasp. Jack, sitting next to her, followed her gaze.

At another table, at the far end of the room, two people were talking earnestly. They did not know about the ebb and flow of chatter and music that surrounded them. Their table was a cliff, impregnable for the moment. One was Ruth Merryweather, whose gold hair shone like a halo and whose eyes were dark in some seious mood. The other was Bill Jameson from Martinsville, the man who had married Marie Rinehart. Barbara's quick eyes observed that the table was set for several more. But where was Marie?

Jack's voice was low in Barbara's ear. "You've guessed it. That man is the one Ruth loved, the one who married the other girl this summer."

TOKYO, April 12 (AP) — The United States, Rear-admiral Tota Ishimaru asserted today, holds the key to the position whether there will be a world war in the near future.

Regarded by Japan as one of her most authoratative naval experts, Admiral Ishimaru said in an interview "the stage is all set for an outbreak which may come in 1939."

Father O'Brien Tells the Gyros Priests' Duties

Mingled with a fine musical program, Rev. E. J. O'Brien, youngest priest in the Nelson diocese, gave Gyros an insight into the life and activities of a priest, at the club s supper meeting Monday night in the Hume silver room. He said that, as Most Rev. Martin M. Johnson, bishop of Nelson, had given the Kinsmen club a few insights into the life of a bishop, he would give the Gyros a little idea of a priest's life.

Scattering humorous little stories and jokes throughout his talk, Father O'Brien said the Nelson diocese was the youngest in Canada. It takes in 48,000 square miles. Now there are some 28 priests, whereas when Bishop Johnson came, there were 17 priests.

"Four or five years ago, I with a lot of other chaps, was just an average young man in the same walk of life as nearly all the rest, but today I have been plunged into a new ocean. We priests are entrusted with the care of souls. We are called 'Father' by men that are actual fathers, and that are anywhere from 20 to 70 years old," he related. Before entering seminary, Father O'Brien had taken a business course, dealing in stocks, bonds and other phases of business.

"The Bishop has full authority in a diocese. A diocese is like a corporation, but it is not a money making corporation. The bishop gets his expenses paid, but receives no salary," Father O'Brien continued.

POULIN AMPLIFIES

Eugene Poulin, in charge of the program, told a few facts about Father O'Brien that the speaker had omitted. Though he is the youngest priest in the diocese, he is chancellor, and deals with the diocesan finances. Also he is business manager of the Prospector, the Catholic weekly, and must "make ends meet" at the fiscal year's ending.

Besides Father O'Brien's address, Miss Katherine Reid of Calgary, a guest of J. J. (Mickey) McEwen, and Mr. McEwen, entertained with a number of accordion and saxaphone duets.

Mr. Poulin rang in a little family entertainment, with three of his little daughters, prettily costumed, singing in French. "Daddy Gene", who accompanied them, ended each selection with an emphatic "good!"

Before the meeting began, R. E Crerar led community singing. D. G. Beatty, Morris McTavish and E. W. Kopecki were guests.

Nakusp Board Seeks a Road to Hot Springs

NAKUSP, B.C.—The importance of a road to Nakusp hot springs was stressed by members of the Nakusp board of trade at a luncheon at Pine lodge Thursday. A resolution with regard to the surveying of such a road is being drawn up and will be sent to government headquarters immediately.

The organization is also protesting the condition of the Nakusp-Nelson highway at the junction of the Nakusp and Trail roads at South Slocan. It is thought that an improvement to the road at this point would do much to encourage tourists to visit this district.

Plans for tree planting on the streets of the town other than those in the business section are under way. Steps are being taken to make the city nuisance ground more accessible. Attention is also to be given to road signs throughout the district.

Conveners of the various standing committees were appointed as follows:

Finance and advertising — F. Rushton.

Tourist and reception—H. W. Herridge.

Entertainment—W. Jupp.

Mining and fishing—Dr. H. B. Morrison.

Civic improvement—F. H. Jordan.

Self-Sacrifice

Not long ago a young school girl was taking part in a school entertainment with a number of her classmates. She wore a costume of flimsy gauze, and she carried a sparkler in her hand.

Just as she came on the stage in front of the audience, a spark from her sparkler set fire to her gauzy dress. At once she was a mass of flames. Although the pain of her burns was almost unbearable, she rushed from the room and from the building, carrying with her the flames and the danger to all the other children.

This brave and quick-thinking little girl prevented a serious fire and probably saved a number of lives, but she lost her own life in doing it, for she was fatally burned. Our pity goes out to her, but our sorrow is mixed with the most sincere admiration for her courage—courage as great as any soldier ever showed in battle.

One thing we should all learn from this tragedy, however, is that we must always be very careful with fireworks, even those considered most harmless.

A WEATHER BAROMETER

Here's an idea for making a barometer of your own to watch the changes in the weather. You can adapt it to any season, if you want to use it as a gift or a favor, by using the various "emblems" of the day—hearts for Valentine's Day, flags for the 4th of July, lilies for Easter, bells or holly for Christmas. Or you can use a bunch of flowers if you want one for yourself or your classroom. For these instructions we'll use flowers.

Cut a number of tulips, roses, cosmos, or any flowers you prefer, from white blotting paper. Then cut enough green blotting paper leaves and stems to go with them.

Now cut a basket or bowl, or a flower pot, from colored blotting paper, and arrange the flowers and leaves as attractively as you can behind the bowl. Mount the whole thing on a heavy piece of dark cardboard, which has been cut to suit the shape and size of your bunch of flowers.

Get some cobalt nitrate at the drug store, and stir as much of it as will dissolve into about an ounce of water, then soak your flowers with this solution — just the flowers, not the leaves. The easiest way is to use a medicine dropper. Be sure the blotting paper is thoroughly saturated.

Now hang your card beside an open window and watch the flowers turn pink when there's rain on the way, or signal fair weather by remaining blue!

The 'Monkey's Fist'

By GEORGE H. HADDOCK

INSTALLMENT 2

Running back, Tom manged to get a line to the dock, as Captain Olsen maneuvered the tug's stern in. Tom looked up resentfully as the burly dock hand took his line, and called down to him, "You'd better get back on the farm and throw corn to the chickens, kid. You don't belong on no boat."

Captain Olsen leaned out of the wheelhouse and looked up at the dock hand. "All right, Jack," he called, "lay off. You got something else to do besides talk all day."

Shutting off the engine, the captain walked slowly aft where Tom was pretending to examine a rope. "All right, kid," he said gruffly, "Drop it, and sit down there, on the rail. I wanta talk to you.

"I know you only been on here a little while," began the old man, filling his battered pipe, "but you got to get more handy around here if you want to say aboard. I need somebody to handle the lines, and once in a while to take the wheel, and if you can't do it, I'll have to get somebody who can."

Tom gulped. "I know I'm green, Captain," he said earnestly, "and I look clumsy, but I'll improve. I know I can learn. My father laughed at me when I got this job, and I want to show him I can stick."

Captain Olsen lit his pipe, peering at Tom over the bowl. "What'd he say?" he asked.

Tom swallowed, embarrassed. "I told him I wanted to go to sea," he said, "and some day command a ship. He told me that going to sea was not as fine as I thought. Then, when I told him I had a job on a tug, he laughed at me, and asked me if I called that 'going to sea'."

The captain scratched his grizzled head, and looked quizzically at the uncomfortable Tom. "Being on a tug ain't so bad, boy," he said mildly, "and I reckon you can learn plenty from me, at that. Here, lemme show you how to use that line."

Picking up the heaving line, he carefully made it up. "See how I do it—make it up in one coil." Then, taking the weighted end and holding out to Tom—"This is called a lot of things, but I call it a 'monkey's fist'. Inside it's weighted with lead so it'll carry. Here"—handing it to Tom—"heft it. That's heavy enough to knock you cold if it hits you right.

Now watch." Taking it from Tom's hand, the captain stood up. "Take part in your left hand, and enough in your right to carry from the boat to whatever you're throwin' at. Then you swing it wide, and heave it—like this!"

Captain Olsen heaved the line up on the dock. Pulling it back, he made it up and handed it to Tom. "Now, lemme see you try it," he said, sitting on the rail.

Tom took the line, and standing rigidly, made an awkward cast, which barely carried to the dock. "Is that the way you mean, Captain Olsen?" he asked.

The old man chuckled. "Not exactly," he said. "But you're gettin' the idea. Don't be so derned stiff. Loosen up a little.

"I'll tell you what you do," the captain continued. "Carry a heavin' line all the time, even on shore, and use it every chance you get. And when you go home tonight, tell your father you're going to stay aboard the tug at night after this. That's get you used to boats, and you can keep watch here for me, besides. There's been some thievin' goin' on lately, anyway."

Captain Olsen stood up, knocking out his pipe. "Better go home now, boy," he said. I'll see you tomorrow."

Tom put his jacket on, picked up the heaving line, and climbing the dock, halted abruptly as he saw three men with their heads close together, standing right in his path. They were talking in low tones, and glancing furtively around to see if they were observed.

"Don't worry about me disposin' of this stuff," one was saying, half hidden in the near-dusk of approaching night. "I'll get rid of the stuff coming in on the Prince John, too."

Then one of the men swung around and saw Tom. "Shut up!" he whispered warningly, "here comes somebody."

With a sinking heart, Tom recognized Jack's voice. "Oh, gosh," he groaned, "him again! And I'm getting into something!"

Jack peered through the twilight at Tom, and then grunted contemptuously. "Well, look who's here," he laughed roughly. "If it ain't the Old Salt!" As Tom started past the group, the burly dock hand reached out a thick hand and grabbed his arm.

"Wait a second, Barnacle Bill," he rasped. "What are you sneakin' around here for?"

Smoke Eaters Wear Saskatoon Uniforms in 1st Game Tonight

If Experience Counts, Cornwall Has Good Chance

Regular Uniforms Similar to Cornwall's in Color; Both Teams in Fine Shape for Opener of Allan Cup Final Series

HERE'S "WHO'S WHO" OF FLYERS

CORNWALL, Ont., April 12 (CP)—The Cornwall Flyers meet Trail Smoke Eaters in the first game of a five-game series for the Allan cup at Saskatoon tomorrow night, and if experience counts for anything the Flyers have a good chance of winning the trophy Sudbury Tigers captured last year.

Every man on the Flyers' lineup is a first-class puck chaser. Many are veterans of the hockey wars and under Coach Don Penniston, who built up quite a reputation in his native Montreal, the team compiled an enviable record this season.

"Who's who" on the Flyers:

Floyd Perras, goal—Native of Kenora, Ont., Floyd played with Kenora and Port Arthur junior teams before coming east for a tryout with Montreal Maroons of the National Hockey league. He played his first senior hockey with Montreal Canadiens of the Quebec Senior league last year. He is 22.

Kick McCann, alternative goalie —the traveller of the team. Born in Ottawa, Kick was in goal for Dalhousie, N.B., when a team from that New Brunswick town won the Maritime title several years ago. Two years ago McCann played in Paris, then went to England. He is 32.

Mike McMahon, defence—Mike, 23, is serving his second year with the Flyers. McMahon, while playing in Ottawa, attracted the attention of N.H.L. scouts and twice tried out with the Chicago Black Hawks. He is a native of Brockville.

Farrant Gillie, defence—Gillie, Cornwall's "prodigal son", returned to amateur hockey here after an absence of 10 years. He saw service in the International league with Detroit Olympics and other teams before returning to amateur hockey two years ago. He is 32.

Wib Landymore, defence—Wib, 24-year-old Ottawa-born player, has been handicapped by injuries all season. Last season he played in England with Southampton Vikings.

Conny Brown, centre—A native of Vankleek Hill, Conny has played most of his hockey around Ottawa. He is one of the youngsters on the team, 20 years of age, but was awarded the Finlay McRae trophy this year for the most valuable player in the Ottawa Valley Senior league.

Ab MacDonald, left wing — Ab made sports headlines as a member of the famous Shamrock juniors in his native Ottawa a few years ago. He since has played with Noranda, Kirkland Lake and New York Rovers. Ab is 24.

Vince Godin, right wing—Born in Rockland, Ont., Vince also did most of his puck chasing around Ottawa, before going to Praha, Czechoslovakia, two years ago for a season. He is a great opportunist and threatens each time he nears the nets.

Fred Gardiner, centre—Fred is serving his first season in senior company. Only 19, he was one of the high scorers of the league this year and has developed rapidly under Penniston's training.

Dick Proulx, right wing—Dick, from Montreal, started his hockey playing with Verdun juniors. During the past two years he played in Paris, France, and Manchester, England, and is one of the fastest and trickiest men on the team. He is 21.

Harvey McClelland, right wing—One of the best right wingers in present-day amateur hockey, in the opinion of observers. Born in Toronto, Harvey played with West Toronto juniors, Memorial cup finalists several years ago. McClelland, 25, turned down a contract to play for New Haven Eagles this season.

Tilden Donihee, centre—Donihee is playing his second year with the Flyers and has played well this season. Tillie, 24, was born in Cornwall.

Jim Utman, left wing—Utman starred in all branches of hockey in his native Ottawa. He played senior with Lake Shore Mines in northern Ontario before moving to Pittsburgh of the United States Amateur league. He is 24.

Bill Meloche, right wing — Meloche, from Ottawa, played junior hockey with North Bay Trappers and then moved to the Maritimes for a season. He was with Verdun, Que., last year. He is 26.

SASKATOON, April 12 (CP) — In final workouts before opening the Allan cup hockey finals, Trail Smoke Eaters and Cornwall Flyers went through brief skating sessions here today.

With the exception of Jimmy Morris, Trail's playmaking rearguard, all players on both teams were reported in fine condition for tomorrow night's game, first of the best of five series.

Morris, whose ankle was strained in the final game against Port Arthur, claimed his ankle, with a rest, will be in perfect condition for the second game Saturday at Calgary.

Because of conflict of colors, the western Canada champions will wear Saskatoon Quakers' red and white uniforms in the opening game, first Allan cup final in Saskatchewan since Melville and Winnipeg tangled in the 1915 challenge game.

Similarity of colors — Cornwall wears gold, black and maroon while Smoke Eaters' sweaters are gold and black,— recalled the uniform dispute of last year's playoff, assertedly the cause of ousting Frank Coulson as coach of North Battleford Beavers, the west's representatives in the 1937 finals.

If Morris does not start tomorrow night, Jimmy Haight, formerly with Saskatoon Wesley juniors, will get a chance on the British Columbia champion's defence.

LAST YEAR'S COLORS CLASHED

Prior to the first game of the western Canada finals last year it was decided one team would change uniforms because both North Battleford and Fort William wore blue and white.

Beavers took the ice with their 1936 sweaters and next day Coulson announced he had resigned because of a dispute with Manager Jack Abbott regarding sweaters.

Coulson claimed Abbott had tossed a coin to see which team would change sweaters, and lost. Coulson stated Abbott wanted the team to wear Calgary Bronks uniforms and added he refused because his team would not wear uniforms of a beaten team and Beavers had won 16 straight games in their own sweaters.

Abbott replied Coulson's ousting was the climax of a series of disputes and showed a petition, signed by all but one player, asking Coulson to resign.

JUNIOR HOCKEY EVEN AS SEALS DEFEAT OSHAWA

By RICHARD SHERIDAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, April 12 (CP)—Oshawa Generals withered before the scorching speed of St. Boniface Seals and went down to a 4-0 defeat in the second game of the Memorial cup junior hockey series here tonight.

The Manitoban Seals outplayed the easterners in every period to avenge the 3-2 defeat suffered in the first game here Saturday.

On their form tonight, the westerners established themselves as overwhelming favorites to take the best-of-five series.

Playing their seventh game in two weeks, Generals lacked the zip of the rangy Red River speedsters, and tired noticeably near the end of each period when three of the four goals were registered.

B.C. Hoopers in 48-34 Win, First Western Final

SASKATOON, April 12 (CP)—Vancouver Westerns, British Columbia champions and winners over Alberta in the first round, gained a 14-point lead over Saskatoon Grads, Saskatchewan titleholders, in the first game of the western Canada senior basketball semi-finals here tonight. The final score was 48-34.

The second game of the total-point series will be played here on Thursday night. The winners will meet Bert Oja's Winnipeg St. Andrew's in the western final.

Although the coast champions led 26-19 at half-time tonight, they did not make sure of victory until the last five minutes of play when the homesters lost the range. Midway in the second the Grads showed unexpected power against the highly rated Westerns and deadlocked the score at 31-31

CHICAGO BLACK HAWKS TRIM THE LEAFS, 4 TO 1, TO TAKE STANLEY CUP AFTER STRANGEST PLAYOFFS

Got Into Play-Offs in Last Place but Leave No Doubt of Superiority by Taking the Final Series in Four Meetings

By SYDNEY GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, April 12 (CP)—Chicago Black Hawks finished one of hockey's strangest playoffs tonight, beating youthful Toronto Maple Leafs 4-1 to win the Stanley cup and the world professional hockey championship in four games from the National league champions.

In their most decisive victory of the series, the veteran Hawks climaxed their climb from the last playoff slot to the cup. They won the first and third games also, by 3-1 and 2-1 respectively.

VOSS BREAKS UP SERIES

Carl Voss broke up the series with what proved to be the winning goal late in the second period. From then on Hawks, who used three different goalkeepers in the four games, were on top. A crowd of 17,204 gave them an ovation at the end.

After beating Boston three straight for the league championship, Leafs completed a crack-up, starting with the goal Voss scored when the Hawk centre stole the puck from George Parsons in front of the Toronto goal. Little more than a minute later, Jack Shill lofted the puck between Goaler Walter Broda's legs from behind the blue line.

That finished the champions, victors only once over the collection of veterans and cast-offs who staggered on the verge of elimination twice in the Stanley cup preliminaries. Leafs beat them 5-1 in the second game at Toronto when Rookie Paul Goodman tended goal for the injured Mike Karakas.

OPENING GOAL

For the first time in the series, Hawks fired the opening goal when Cully Dahlstrom batted home a short shot with the aid of Shill and Louis Trudel at 5:59 of the first period. Less than three minutes later, Gordon Drillon tied the score with Jimmy Fowler's help.

Mush March wound up the scoring late in the third period in the midst of futile Leaf rallies to pierce Chicago's great defensive tactics. The customary Leaf dash and speed got nowhere against the ceaseless Hawk checking.

The two successive errors by Broda and Parsons, both comparative youngsters of National league play, proved Toronto's undoing. Once they had the lead, Hawks didn't take an unnecessary chance, and the experience of their veterans was superior to Toronto's youth.

LEAST VICIOUS

It was the least vicious game of the bitterly fought series. Only five penalties were given and after the early part of the first period there was little of the stick swinging and heavy board bumping that marked the other games.

Hard feelings were forgotten in the end, though. At the final whistle the opposing players and officials shook hands amid the flashing of camera lights.

Underdogs from the start of the playoffs, Hawks beat down Montreal Canadiens and New York Americans on their way to the final. Both times they came back after losing the first game.

HOW THE HAWKS TOOK THE CUP

First period—1, Chicago, Dahlstrom (Shill, Trudel), 5:52.

2, Toronto, Drillon (Fowler), 8:26.

Penalties—March, Drillon, Parsons, Jenkins.

Second period—3, Chicago, Voss (Gottselig, Jenkins), 16:45.

4, Chicago, Hill, 17:58.

Penalties—None.

Third period—5, Chicago, March (Thompson, Romnes), 16:24.

Penalty—Davidson.

Blaylock Attacks Cost Government Recommends Unification Railways

MONTREAL, April 12 (CP) — Multiple taxation and overlapping in processes of the Canadian government were attacked and unification of the two great railway systems was recommended in an address today before a Montreal service club by S G. Blaylock of Trail, B. C., vice-president and general manager of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada, Ltd.

"We have been so concerned about cutting our costs, improving our products and increasing both the volume and variety of our production that we have been blind to the steady increase of indirect costs to a point where they threaten a complete sterilization of industrial effort which would rapidly be followed by stagnation or death of our present civilization," Mr. Blaylock said.

"The indirect cost — mainly the cost of government—has grown so rapidly that it has more than offset the industrial improvements in a great many cases."

The speaker recommended division of a workman's wages into three parts— one for cost of living, one as a bonus for "extra efficiency" and one as "an equitable share in the profits of the undertaking."

"Unification for operation" is the only solution to problems of mounting railway debts," said Mr. Blaylock. "If the railways must continue to operate as they are, I think the handwriting is on the wall. It will not be long until the entire assets are wasted away and in my opinion railway rates will have to be raised on the classes of freight which are not subject to truck competition."

The prominent mining man asserted there was "talk in the western provinces as to whether Canada can afford 10 full-sized governments. I would say definitely that we cannot, if they are to be run on the present lines. . . .

"The very high charges of government in the western provinces, pyramiding as they do on the high federal cost, make us seriously question whether the time has not come when Canadian should consider the possibility of running provinces with councils appointed by the Dominion government where the residents of a province so desire. . . . in any event, all duplication shou'd be cut out as a first aid measure."

Kootenay Belle Stock Off Point

VANCOUVER, April 12 (CP) — Sharp gains were posted in all leading oil issues on Vancouver stock exchange today. Metal prices were mostly unchanged and transactions totalled 129,553 shares.

Activity in the oil stocks was the result of encouraging news reaching here from the Alberta oil fields.

Premier Gold slipped 4 at 2.00 while Kootenay Belle at 1.16 and Big Missouri at 40 each dropped a cent. Hedley Mascot eased 2 at 1.07 and Bralorne at 8.45, Pioneer at 3.05. Reno at 51 and Sheep Creek at 95 remained unchanged.

Base metals were quiet. B. C. Nickel at 18, and Whitewater at 4¼ were unchanged while Nicola at 4¾ and Grandview at 5¾ firmed fractions. Pend Oreille added 2 at 1.57.

SMELTERS GAIN

TORONTO, April 12 (CP)— The Toronto market about-faced in the last 10 minutes of trading today and moved ahead to show net gains in all index groups but the industrials. At noon all were down but western oils in which a persistent advance ruled throughout the session on expanding volume. Trade in the last hour reached 223,000 shares against 414,000 in the preceding four hours.

International Nickel led the late recovery in the base metals and held a net gain of a point at 46½ at the close. Smelters also changed a lors of 1¼ for a gain of ½, while Noranda netted a point gain and Hudson Bay finished unchanged.

COLWYN BAY, Wales (CP) — Drastic action to halt the effects of silicosis among men working in slate mines has been promised by Clement Davis, chairman of government inquiry here.

Whitney's Seat on Stock Exchange Is Bought for $59,000

NEW YORK, April 12 (AP) — Richard Whitney's seat on the New York stock exchange was sold today for $59,000. Announcement of the transfer was made about the time Whitney, convicted of grand larceny, was entering Sing Sing prison to begin serving his term of five to ten years.

Whitney bought the seat in 1912 for $65,000.

$796,222,150 FOR AGRICULTURE U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)— The United States house of representatives appropriations committee recommended $796,222,150 for the agriculture department's use during the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Offerings Light Winnipeg Wheat

WINNIPEG, April 12 (CP).—Unexpected buying flurries at the close of Winnipeg grain exchange today found offerings light and wheat futures moved upward from low points, more than a cent under yesterday's final quotations. At the final bell values were ⅜ higher to ⅞ cent lower, May at $1.24¾, July $1.13⅜—½ and October 89—89⅛.

Trading was virtually at a standstill for two hours after the opening. Prices were easier due to a lull in export buying and bearish influences of a large United States winter wheat crop.

Continued easier cash wheat prices, with Nos. 1 and 2 Northern slumping two to 15 and 5 cents premium above the May future, respectively, also was a factor. No. 1 Northern premium was 29 cents less than two weeks ago.

Canadian export sales were small overnight.

Liverpool closed 2⅜—2½d lower. Buenos Aires futures fell 1⅛ cents at noon.

Coarse grains averaged lower. Volume of trade was small and losses were generally less than a cent.

Montreal Steady

MONTREAL, April 12 (CP) — Some minor losses were scattered through the list on Montreal stock exchange today but inter-listed leaders either held unchanged or made narrow advances.

Metals were unsettled but closed firm with Smelters and Nickel up ½ each. In rails Canadian Pacific was steady but Canadian Car & Foundry common and preferred sold down fractions. Dominion Bridge gained ½ and Cement eased ¼. Utilities were practically stationary.

Majority of newsprints held firm but St. Lawrence Paper Pfd. sagged a point at 30.

Canadian Celanese made a late advance of ¾ at 11¾. Ogilvie Milling was up ½ and Imperial Oil gained the same.

Steel Shares Lead Mild Upward Closing Push on New York List

NEW YORK, April 12 (AP) — Steel shares stepped out in front of a wavering stock market today and provided leadership for a mild forward push just before the close.

Attracting attention to the steels was the statement of Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel, at the company's annual meeting, that he believed it had operated in the black in the first three months of this year.

Apparently taking this as a hint steel reports generally for the first quarter would not be as bad as many had expected, traders boarded the steels for a ride.

However, buying lacked the kick it had on the broad upswings from the March lows, culminating in last Saturday's spectacular upsurge after the house defeat of the reorganization bill. Most of the day stocks floundered aimlessly, looking for a signal in the news to point the main road.

Bethlehem closed 1½ higher at 48 ⅛, U. S. Steel was up 1 at 46 and other representatives of the group rose fractionally to a point or so. Many others in the motor, electrical equipment, aviation, chemical and other industrial sectors scored advances running to about 2 points but minor gains and losses were the rule in the rank and file.

The Associated Press composite price of 60 stocks was up .2 of a point at 39.2. Transactions decreased to 600,300 shares from 1,100,254 yesterday.

SUPPLY OF CANADIAN PULP SPRUCE GETTING FARTHER FROM MILLS

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP).—F. A. Silcox, chief of the United States forest service, has told a house of representatives appropriations sub-committee one factor entering into the higher price of newsprint is that the supply of Canadian spruce is getting further and further away from the mills.

His testimony, given at hearings on the agriculture appropriation bill, was made public today.

Silcox said a hasty survey of world conditions indicates softwood pulpwood margins now are confined to the southeastern and northwestern United States, Alaska, British Columbia and Russia. The Soviet nation, he said, will use all the pulp she can produce during the next few decades.

VALUE FISH PRODUCTS LOWER THAN IN 1936

VICTORIA, April 12 (CP)—Value of British Columbia's fish products during 1937 totalled $12,617,127 according to estimates released by the provincial fisheries department here today. This was slightly below the previous year's total, but fisheries output as a whole, taking in the fresh fish catch, was worth approximately $17,000,000, about $200,000 more than in 1936.

The drop in manufactures was due mainly to the lower salmon pack and a slight decrease in the meal and oil output of reduction plants.

LOOKS LIKE A HAPPY EASTER FOR BRITISHERS

By I. NORMAN SMITH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 12 (CP)—It looks like a happy Easter for Great Britain. The weather is fine. Even the international storm clouds are becoming puffs on the horizon. It is well, for old England has been worried the last two months with crisis here and crisis there every week.

The country is in gorgeous attire to receive holiday-makers. cherry trees look like great snowballs while magnolias, apples and plums radiate warmer pinks and reds. Even rhododendrons are bearing large red blooms on green, platelike leaves. But daffodils are almost gone, so warm and advanced has been the spring weather.

Easter will be no joy to trainmen who will be obliged to keep tab on 12,500 extra week-end trains with folk going home to break the festival egg or holidaying to get away from a different kind of old egg. The flying Dutchman will be operated in at least three sections each day, while the lunchtime expresses for the north will run in six sections.

TRAIL GYROS SEE B. C. ON SCREEN

TRAIL, B.C., April 12 — Gyros were treated to a show of beautiful scenes of different parts of the province at their supper meeting tonight, when Morrison McTavish, Vancouver Gyro, projected colored transparencies on to a screen in the Crown Point Palm room. The original pictures were taken by Mr. McTavish, who makes a hobby of this type of work.

Cecil Stratton rendered several baritone solos and was accompanied at the piano by B. E. Smith.

It was reported that preparation for the May 24 celebration and the Queen carnival contest was progressing smoothly.

Several Gyros intimated that they would attend the Gyro convention at Fairmont Hot Springs, near Cranbrook, in June.

Included among the guests was William Girvan of Vancouver.

"So he won't talk, eh!"
Grumpy (he's the "no-man" of SNOW WHITE) won't talk. He won't tell you about the thousand artists that worked three years to make this full-length feature . . . or about those eight swell new songs . . . or the spine-tingling chase . . . or the thrilling effects in multiplane Technicolor. Grumpy won't even tell you that Time Magazine called SNOW WHITE "more exciting than a western . . . funnier than a hay-wire comedy" . . . so you'd better come to see it for yourself.
