MORE ABOUT PEN BILL

(Continued From Page One) While such might be an exaggeration, nevertheless it was out of such an attitude the government had been driven to the expense of securing the services of 1800 convicts as to whether they were fairly treated, the Conservative leader said.

The first function of a penitentiary is to punish criminals, the second was regeneration.

COMMISSION UNNECESSARY

An administrative commission was unnecessary. It seemed Canada was unable to "run a hen-roost without a commission". To hear Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, one would have thought administering penitentiaries was a giant's job.

"This is a mere matter of administration, a large one; but not more than that," he declared. To say one capable man could not perform the duty was an affront. The real work of penitentiary management and test of its success was not the superintendent, who was many miles from these institutions, but the warden and deputy warden.

LAUDS ORMOND

He had known General D. M. Ormond, superintendent of penitentiaries, for many years and was proud of his record as a soldier. He did not like the slightest sign of unfairness directed against a war veteran with General Ormond's record. But the minister following the dictates of a report that condemned the superintendent "for and aft", sought to abolish the office, establish a commission and leave General Ormond to his fate.

"Then he says: 'I have a high opinion of General Ormond,'" commented Senator Melghe.

The pastor was also remembered with a "Thanks Badge" from second Creston Scout troop, which came from Scoutmaster J. A. Avery.

There was variety in the musical program arranged by Mrs. W. Fraser and Mrs. W. Weir. The ladies served lunch.

Rev. Mr. Walker is leaving here after a successful seven years as pastor of the churches at Creston, Wyndel and Canyon. His new field is Second United church at South Vancouver, and he is to take his first service there the second Sunday in July.

In addition to this testimonial he was remembered at a like gathering at Wyndel where he received an umbrella. A collection of table linen was the remembrance at Canyon.

Creston branch of the British Israel association gave the Walkers a silver rose bowl, engraved, and Creston Masonic lodge favored him with a pen and pencil set. Creston lodge, Knights of Pythias, gave him an electric clock. Mrs. Walker's Sunday school class gave her a cup and saucer, and Goldie was the recipient of a photo album and local views from the C. G. I. T., and a bracelet from the pupils of Grade XI. of the high school.

All three will be missed from the district to which they gave generously of their time and talent to promote anything for the betterment of the community. In musical circles Goldie has been a frequent winner in piano classes at both the West and East Kootenay musical festivals.

The new pastor for Trinity is Rev. H. J. Armitage of Robson Memorial church, Vancouver, who is to take two weeks' holidays before assuming charge, and will make his first appearance July 17.

Weather Changes May Affect Some Ills, He States

By LOGAN GLENDENING, M. D.

WE HAVE ALL heard—indeed we are probably all hearing right now—about the weather affects our feelings, and perhaps it does, but nobody has ever been able to prove it.

If you ever have rheumatism you will sympathize somewhat with Uncle Henry's long complaints, because there is no question that damp, cloudy weather makes the sore bones throb, and that warm, high weather makes them feel prettily spry. Most of us feel better in the summer, and this is not entirely due to the fact that we lead a more outdoor life then, but to temperature and barometric changes.

Skill doctors are unable to explain exactly why these changes occur. An American physician, Dr. William F. Peterson, has done more than anyone else to elucidate them. His explanation is that the weather causes fluctuations in the capillary bed of the blood stream. The capillary bed contains more blood than all the rest of the body put together, and this blood is enclosed in thin-walled little vessels the size of which could easily be influenced by changes in barometric pressure and by temperature fluctuation. A great many of our general sensations are due to capillary supply; we may feel faint or elated, sleepy or full of ginger, depending on them.

HEART AFFECTED BY WEATHER
It is easy to understand how heart disease is affected by weather in this way and also how changes in the blood supply of a rheumatic finger or leg would lead to aching or comparative comfort.

Dr. Peterson has gone on to other diseases and has shown, for instance, that diabetes fluctuates considerably with weather changes. The blood sugar was followed in a number of individuals and it fluctuated quite regularly with the weather. This is a disease in which the patient is not aware of his condition by sensations—he has not the guiding symptom of pain—but he may be better on some days, and worse on others, without knowing it.

Tuberculosis has its ups and downs also, depending on weather. It has been known for a long time that there is a gross relationship of tuberculosis to climate—that it tends to occur under certain weather con-

Wedding Dress Worn in 1772 Shown At Meeting of U.E.L. Association

WINNIPEG, June 30 (CP)—A honey-satin wedding dress worn in 1772 in Burlington, N.J., was shown here by Mrs. Andrew Grieve at the closing meeting of the United Empire Loyalist Association.

Little sprigs of flowers were embroidered here and there on the voluminous wedding dress. "She was a Quakeress so it couldn't be very gay," they said. The whole dress was lined with soft buff silk "still as good as ever."

The girl who wore it, Nancy, became the bride of Hon. the Rev. Jonathan Odell, first provincial secretary of New Brunswick. The Odells came to Canada when their home ceased to be British at the close of the American Revolution.

Miss Laura A. Bingham, genealogist of the association, displayed the U.E.L. list printed for Ontario.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald McLeod, Vernon street was the scene of a lovely garden wedding Wednesday, June 29, when their eldest daughter, Margaret Falls Stuart, was united in marriage to George Curtis Wallach, third son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Wallach, Lattimer street.

Under an archway beautifully decorated with orange blossoms, white roses and carnations, Rev. T. J. S. Ferguson performed the ceremony. The bride, wearing a floor length model of periwinkle blue chiffon with pink accessories, entered the garden on the arm of her father to the strains of Loehgrin's Wedding March played by Mrs. A. K. Gains of Trail, cousin of the groom. The bride's shoulder length hair was held in place by a Watteau cap of natural flowers matching her French nosegay. Attending her were Miss Georgia McKeown and Miss Gladys McLeod, sister of the bride, the former choosing a floor length gown of Iris yellow chiffon with mauve accessories, and the latter a pink and white flowered organza dress wearing a handkerchief decorated with matching French nosegays. Cleanse Skin Morning and Night To Clear Up Blemishes on Face

By JULIET SHELBY

Dry skin has long been a problem for women. Now, however, a more difficult question has arisen. It is what to do for a dry skin with blackheads and enlarged pores?

Of course dry skin is caused by the inactivity of the oil glands which are supposed to secrete enough natural oil to give your skin resilience to resist drying, parching and scaling. This same inaction is generally responsible for blackheads and enlarged pores. So go in for a regime that will get those glands of yours back into healthy, efficient working order.

This type of skin must be thoroughly cleansed every night and morning, and you'll have to take a little longer with the process than if you have either a dry or an oily skin. Now don't get discouraged, because you will get results and the clear beauty of your corrected skin will be a sound investment.

When starting your corrective treatment you should first cleanse your face with a good pure cold cream. This will remove all makeup and soil from your skin. Always be sure that you have gotten all the cream off your face before going on to the next step.

Hold a clean washcloth over your face after dipping it in hot water and wringing it out. This will relax and open your pores so that your more drastic cleansing process will be more effective. The third step will probably cause some of you to raise dissenting voices, but we really believe that it is the best and most satisfactory method. Go to work with warm water, a mild soap and a complexion brush. And give the areas that harbor blackheads and enlarged pores a good going over.

REMOVES ACCUMULATIONS
This will remove the accumulation of natural oils and waxes and deposit of dust and dirt that have settled in them due to the inactivity of the oil glands. Wash all the soap off your face very carefully. If any residue is left on your skin it will also clog your pores. When this is done dash your face with lots and lots of cold water. The water will act as an astringent and stimulate circulation.

Since your skin is dry you will need to apply a good rich lubricant, otherwise the soap and water cleansing will make it feel chapped and irritated. Pick a good lubricant, such as a reliable fish oil or cream. Smooth it all over your face and neck and leave it on for at least half an hour. In the evening plan to let it stay on over night. This will make the skin soft and supple and counteract any drying effect.

In this campaign don't overlook the importance of internal care. Drink plenty of water in order to supply your skin and body with much needed moisture. Eat sensibly and get as much exercise and fresh air as possible.

No Definite Reason For Increase Of Crime Among Children, He Says

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

HARDLY A DAY goes by that one may not read in the newspaper one or several accounts of crime committed by one or several boys under 20, often in their early teens. Frequently the crime reported is of the most horrible sort. Not only is crime definitely on the increase, but the average age of criminals is decreasing year by year. Slowly crime is creeping toward the crib.

There is, of course, no single cause of crime, and those causes which have been given most emphasis may be the least.

Economic factors such as poverty and unemployment were effected, there surely would be far less crime, for a while at least. We know there are "crime areas" in large cities, in those sections which afford poorest housing, and poorest opportunities for wholesome play, recreation and character building. Yet in the very depths of the depression the juvenile courts of large cities reported a decrease of juvenile delinquency especially of crimes against poverty, as theft and robbery.

Neighborhood druggists and school principals in suburban and other higher economic areas, hundreds of whom I have interviewed throughout the United States, say that petty thieving is woefully on the increase by boys from eight to 14. These parties are comfortable in their homes and are themselves considered good citizens, sometimes crime leaders. The number of serious crimes by teen-age boys from so-called better homes appears to be increasing by leaps and bounds. Destruction of property by children in well-to-do neighborhoods is appalling.

FOREIGN BORN NOT CRIMINALS
Foreign born: Books are filled with statements about the foreign born and their children as contributors to crime. Yet the Wickersham committee, appointed by former President Hoover, reported that, in proportion to population, there are no more criminals among the foreign born than among our native whites; that even there is no conclusive proof that the children of foreign born, in proportion to population distribution, produce more criminals than children of native born white parents.

Instead, a more recent study reveals that the reformatories in the United States have no larger proportion of boys with one or both parents foreign born, than of native born parentage. This in spite of the cultural conflicts, and lesser opportunities of the children of the foreign born, as compared with children of native born parents. With the same opportunity as native born families, the foreign born in our midst would probably show a citizenry that is superior to that of our "100 per cent Americans."

What about the problem of the feeble-minded? It, too, has been greatly exaggerated, as I shall show tomorrow.

SPIES INDICTED

Uncle Sam's drive against spies does not impress the Detroit News very seriously, and it is inclined to treat the subject lightly, in the light of the trivial results the recently unearthed German spy ring appears to have achieved. It says, on this subject:

"Since the last previous spy scare, in 1935, American authorities appear to have been exceptionally vigilant against foreign espionage. The following year congress authorized the president to take unusual measures for guarding the secrecy of such military or naval reservations as he might designate. His law provided penalties, theretofore lacking, for the violation of secrecy regulations, and not long afterward congress doubled the confidential fund used to finance counter-espionage.

"The steps taken appear to have been justified by subsequent events. These have included a rather impressive series of espionage disclosures now culminating in the indictment at New York of a group of Germans accused of various spying activities. Most of the disclosures have been serio-comic, in the seeming ineffectiveness, triviality or down-right stupidity of the spying attempted. Yet in the past two years one member and two former members of the armed forces—all native-born Americans—have been convicted of accepting the pay of foreign powers.

"From the standpoint of the information collected, however, espionage in this country must be of slight value, even potentially, to the powers wasting money on it.

"Stealing airplane plans is serious, of course, but six months or a year from now the purloined papers are apt to have all the timely military importance of a set of blueprints of the Merrimac.

"Information on the location and character of coast defences might be of less perishable value, but mostly could be obtained at any souvenir stand or by visiting the post in question on Army Day. The military attaches of foreign countries at Washington probably know more, quite legitimately, about our defence arrangements than all their spies.

"The danger in espionage, we would guess, is largely the danger to amicable foreign relations that would result from letting its stupidities go unchecked. There is evidence in the present case—in the use of the grand jury procedure and in the subsequent exodus of 'witnesses'—that the main intent was to warn Germany. She was warned in effect that if she wants to play spy in our backyard, she at least must find smarter spies."

Judge not of actions by their mere effect; Dive to the centre, and the cause detect; Great deeds from meaneast springs may take their course, And smallest virtues from a mighty source.

IS THE NAZI SALUTE PURSUING US?

Is British Columbia destined to be soil for the Nazi cult.

Apparently the Victoria Colonist sees a drive proceeding in this province, and not entirely under cover, for under the heading, "The Bund Tells Portland", it discusses as follows the activities of that interesting organization as seen on the Pacific coast:

"Germans in Portland are being exhorted to join a 'new war of independence' against 'international Jewry' and Communism. Standing beneath the swastika symbol Wednesday night, Herman Schwinn, western director of the German-American Bund, exclaimed that 'the Fatherland does not intend to give the blessings of her new National Socialistic philosophy of government to this or any other nation.' We are not told how the people of the beautiful Oregon city took Schwinn's announcement that the Bund is not a Nazi organization.

"Apart from the fact that the great majority of Canadians and citizens of the United States are neither seeking nor wanting any of the 'blessings' of Nazi philosophy, the fact remains that the German-American Bund—openly its adulation of Hitlerian policy—is an active body, a definitely aggressive subversive element, in the states of Washington, Oregon and California. It is an open secret, moreover, that every possible effort is being made to obtain such moral support for Nazi ideology as may be thriving in a similarly reactionary body in British Columbia. Bund members hope to see the swastika flying in this province to taunt democracy as it is being flown in some other parts of the Dominion.

"The two-day convention which the Bund held in San Francisco at the end of last month brought out striking pronouncements. On that occasion, Henry Lage, the chief spokesman, said of himself and his fellow delegates, for example: 'We consider ourselves the best citizens of the United States.' The newspapers of the Golden Gate city agreed that the organization was 'un-American in spirit, endangering, by its activities, all the American people have established as a democracy.' The machinery it controls on the Pacific coast responds to another form of Nazidom's 'new technique.' Let there be no mistake about it."

It has been well observed that few are better qualified to give others advice than those who have taken the least of it themselves—Goldsmith.

Contract Bridge

Shepard Barclay Tells How to Bid and Play

LYING TELLS TRUTH
SOMETIMES a false-card is not as deceptive as the natural play would be. The declarer may be able to read from the peculiar maneuver that something is wrong somewhere. One defender or the other is trying to fool him. If he can figure out that one had a possible good reason to try deception and the other could not, your craftiness may prove a boom-crang.

At one table, East in his endeavor to fool the declarer, played the 7 on the first lead of trumps. South, not seeing the 6, figured East could have a reason to false-card whereas West could not, so decided to finesse. This enabled him to make five-odd.

After two diamond tricks have been cash against South's 3-No Trumps contract and he wins the third round, how should he plan the balance of the hand?

players chose, the situation simmers down to whether South, with sure losers of the spade A and diamond A, should play for the break in trumps or finesse. The majority decided in favor of the break and were set one.

In Nelson By-Paths

A publicity item regarding a mink in Glacier National Park in Montana reminds me of an interesting episode that occurred at Passmore in the Slovan Valley a couple of months ago, and that came to notice longer after it could be used as news.

Have you ever had a wildcat invade your home?

I don't know what the average Nelsonite would do in such circumstances. Certain ones would reach for the baseball bat, and certain others would phone the police. The size of the animal might also have something to do with the course a law-abiding citizen might take. If he felt the animal was "his meat," he would probably go after it, but he wouldn't employ a shotgun unless he was careless of the wallpaper.

How many would employ a broom as the weapon of attack—or of defence, as the case might be? Yet a broom is almost always the first resort of the housewife—according to both story and cartoon, and it was the broom that Mrs. A. F. Whiteman of Passmore made use of when she found a wildcat in her domicile and thought that it was after her pet white cat.

A YOUNG LYNX?
Now, it couldn't have been a full-grown wildcat, for Mrs. Whiteman described it, for it did not have the long legs and tall stance of the adult lynx, nor yet the tufted ears, nor the side-whiskers, but it was in every other respect a wildcat, with typical cat face, mottled fur, and the cat habit of snarling and spitting. It could not possibly have been a cougar, either young or old, she asserted.

She also ruled out fisher, martin, mink, otter, and every other member of the weasel tribe, after an inspection of their colored likenesses in our natural history books. It was not a wolverine. And it was not a whistling marmot; anyway the marmots, from the whistlers down to the Columbian ground squirrels or "gophers," were at that time still asleep underground.

The only course left, after many comparisons, was to put the creature down as a long lynx, still to get growth, but able to bound high just the same, and for some reason forced to do its own foraging. If you have noticed young kittens grow up, you'll recall them at first crawling, then tumbling and stumbling around, then able to play awkwardly, then able to bound around while still retaining their low-hung kitten shape while still quite a distance from adulthood. The intruder's head was smooth on top, that is, the hair was lying close.

I give all these particulars so that any reader who happens to be familiar with these various creatures of the world, and makes a different identification, will write in and give the information. Mrs. Whiteman's first and last stories—the last after seeing the books—were the same, that it was a short-legged wildcat without the ear-tufts and side-whiskers. Whatever its tail was like, it was not long and flowing.

BROOM VERSUS WILDCAT
The room in this story opens off the woodshed, if I remember correctly, and it was apparently from that quarter that the young wildcat obtained entrance, and when Mrs. Whiteman, broom naturally in hand, came upon the scene attracted by the noise, she last after from the wild was stalking the cat, and the cat was trying to keep its distance.

Now anyone who knows Mrs. Whiteman—who may not weigh a large number of pounds, but who is one of the most active beings in Slovan Valley whether on the war-path or not—knows how the encounter ended.

Declaring war with a businesslike "Scat!" she wielded the broom: in the best shillelagh fashion, and succeeded in landing a couple of good kidney swats on the snarling intruder, which gave up its quest of the pet cat in order to seek its own personal safety. It was able to bound up and claw its way out of a partly open window, and the lady with the broom saw it no more.

And I think Mrs. Whiteman would have used the same tactics had her opponent been a full-grown Canada lynx, or even a cougar; and I am confident either of those hypothetical creatures would have accepted discretion as the better part of valor and yielded her the battle-ground.

I do not suppose that many readers of The Daily News have seen a Canada lynx, or any lynx, in a wild state. I happen to have seen just one. I was on the tail-seat of a motorcycle going through the low road in the deep forest that lies across the route between Seattle and Snoqualmie, an hour or so after midnight, when my fellow-rider and I

Speak Just Letters Into an Automaton
It is no longer a novelty to get chocolates, cigarettes, subway tickets, and what not from an automaton. But postal authorities in Holland have made it possible to obtain phonograph recordings in this manner—and not only that, but recordings of one's own voice! In Amsterdam and The Hague the main post office buildings are supplied with machines which furnish these "spoken letters." You simply throw a coin in the slot, talk into a sound funnel, and say your little speech. A moment or two later, pop! and out drops your record, neatly wrapped and ready to be stamped and mailed like an ordinary letter. The recipient plays it on his phonograph and the effect is much more personal and intimate than the written word. Truly a practical and useful application of what has hitherto been a costly hobby for the private individual. And so handy for the vast number of people who "just hate writing letters!"

Too Tough For Her
Of course there are men who roll cigars about with their lips, chew the ends to unsightly wet rags, let a cigar stick up out of the corners of their mouths, or dangle cigarettes gangster fashion. Such habits stamp the smoker as neither a discriminating lover of tobacco nor a gentleman. Women, however, have as yet no such distinctions. They smoke any old way they like and don't criticize one another. They may not be guilty of such vulgarity as men, but their smoking is crude and unpleasant all the same, because almost all of them are guilty of conspicuous affectations.

Just a Little Mathematics
At first it does not seem impossible to fold a piece of paper fifty times. But when you think about it, you realize that practically it is impossible.

When you fold a sheet of paper three times, it is eight times its original thickness. When you fold it seven times, it would be about twenty yards thick; and if you folded it 24 times you would have a stack of paper 450 yards thick. By the time you folded it thirty times, the thickness would be the diameter of the earth. By the 44th time, the sheet of paper would reach the moon.

But where in the world could you find a sheet of paper large enough?—it would have to cover the surface of the United States.

CHAPTER 28

Mr. Ephraim Brown, of no town in particular but "at home" since about 1890 anywhere in the southern Arizona hills, was a man of extraordinary talents. Not only could he shoot surpassingly well he had acquired the name Buckshot as a tribute to that, but he could sit down calmly and do what he called plain and fancy thinking. As a combination not to be scorned.

He would undoubtedly have died slowly and agonizingly in the isolated canyon, if Ellen hadn't found him. To have been thus rendered helpless by a fall was a matter of shame, in his mind. He had maintained self-sufficiency for half a century and more; to fall like a tenderfoot was disgraceful now. As he lay there on her tent, he reckoned he was getting a mite old. And that thought also served to infuriate him; 71 years is not old enough for any man to retire and come to live in a town.

He was giving thought to these personal matters when Bill Baron drove into the canyon. He knew "his boss" he called. Ellen's Pintado horse was a sight, but Bill's eyes sought the girl.

Buckshot made such noises as he could, hardly a strong call, for his voice was still husky. Bill peeped in, momentarily alarmed.

The young man stared in amazement. "Where's Ellen?" he demanded quickly. "Who are you?" "Keep your shirt on, son. She's went for a doctor."

"What for? What are you—how'd you get in here?" "She sot me here. I'm Buckshot Brown, son. Got game leg. Ankle. She won't come. Saved my life. She—"

He explained his presence, Bill sitting attentively on a folding camp chair. Presently Bill had ordered the Mexican woman to bring hot water, and was soaking the old-timer's foot, continuing to talk.

"Who'd you say you was? Buckshot asked Bill, finally.

"Nope. No, sir. I'm her foreman. Work for her. We'll have a new ranch setup here in a few days. Ellen has some—she is a woman of some means, and I expect she'll go in for stock improvement work, experiments to produce a better grade meat than Arroyo that's my plan. For her, I mean."

"You a Tejano, ain't you?" "Yes, sir. Why?" "I can always tell a Texas man, from his slow brogue. Borneed just south of San Tonia m'self, by dads!" They shook hands, Bill, like old acquaintances, nudging.

"You say you calculate on upbreedin' range cows? Improvin' 'em?" "Yeamp. I been pannin' it for years. I can pay you."

They settled the matter amicably, amid much talk, and Bill sent his Mexican employe to drive the doctor home. Ellen took on herself the responsibility of soaking Buckshot's foot, changing the water to keep it hot.

It was not an unpleasant task. She had fleeting memories and smiled to herself at them—of her two maids in Hollywood, efficient servants who had obeyed her slightest wish. Somehow she was relying out here in doing things not only for herself but for another person as well.

Concepcion Rivera, the Mexican woman, and her daughter, presently came with an excellent camp meal. For the second time Buckshot ate heartily. He asked for water to clean his face and hands and by 9 p. m. he declared he felt fit as a fiddle except for the swollen foot.

Bill was busy with Pablo Rivera fashioning a bed under a lean-to for Buckshot. The old-timer swore he would not sleep that night in Ellen's tent, depriving her stars, he declared, made the best canopy. Could-Bill lend him a blanket or two? His own duffel was back in the hills about three miles.

While Bill worked outside, Buckshot talked to Ellen in the light of her gasping lantern.

"You ain't done so well, miss, at picking a lover," he came straight to the point he wanted to make. "I had a long talk with him."

Ellen looked up in surprise. She had no experience with western characters such as Buckshot Brown.

"He doesn't really love me, I'm afraid," she answered. "He won't ever say so. But what's the matter with him? Are you serious?" "I been studyin' on it, ever since he come here. His eyes don't look right, miss. He been around here plenty of people, good and bad. Look into a man's eyes; they're winders to what's in his mind."

"He has lovely eyes!" "Yeamp. Mebbe so. But lemme tell you somethin'—er you figger to marry a man, he better have more'n good looks er you'll regret it. If you had to pick you a man why'n't you pick this? This'n that works for you? He's from Texas and that's a point in his favor to start with. He ain't no un-hand-some 'is he? He's got brains—"

"You say you've been around here before you come back. You had sense enough to hire him. Ain't he got sense enough to court you? I ain't nothing against the Mexicans, by and large; they's some fine people below the line. But the slicker claimin' to be a gentleman."

Ellen felt his contempt for some body, but did not understand him. "What are you—er you talking about Bill? Mr. Baron? The man who was just in here?" She was highly interested as well as amused.

CANNING ACCESSORIES AND SALAD DRESSING IN DEMAND WHOLESALE ROW; HOT WEATHER FOODS LIVELY

Strawberries Moving in Volume; "Cots" Due Soon

SPRING LAMB IS PLENTIFUL

Canning supplies and salad dressings are the most popular commodities on wholesale row at Nelson. Wholesalers during the past week have been kept on their toes meeting the demand for sugar and canning accessories such as jar caps and rings as strawberries reach the market in volume. Demand for fruit jars is not expected to reach its peak until the peach and pear season is in swing.

Between canning and the lively demand for hot weather foods such as salad dressings, cooked and smoked meats and cooling drinks, fresh fruits and vegetables, it has been a busy week for the wholesalers.

APRICOTS SOON

Plums, apricots and peaches from California are now on the market at fairly reasonable prices, and it is expected Okanagan apricots will begin to come in next week. Strawberries are available in quantity and a few black currants are being offered.

Cantaloupe and melon from California are on the market in quantity. Fresh vegetables are being drawn for the most part from the Okanagan, though local bunch carrots and beets are on the market and are coming on faster.

With crop prospects on the prairies, particularly in Saskatchewan described as better than at any time since 1928, flour prices are dropping. On three successive days drops of 10 cents a barrel have been announced.

Bran dropped back 50 cents, making the spread between bran and shorts $1.50.

SPRING LAMB

Spring lamb is a feature of the meat market, being fairly plentiful. Prices of pork and pork products are climbing rapidly and the effect is extending to cooked meat prices. Butter has advanced one cent a pound but eggs remain steady, despite the scarcity of local supplies. Four carloads of sugar featured the week's carlot arrivals. Four more are expected during the coming week. Other arrivals including two of meats, one of oranges and lemons, two of melons, two of flour and feed, one of summer cereals, two of groceries and one of bananas.

MORE ABOUT RAIL PROBE

As a parting shot the committee urged the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways to "speed up" their work in the way of effecting economies, and reductions in expenditures.

The report had been unanimous. Senator C. P. Beaubien (Con, Montarville), the other joint chairman said. The committee had done excellent work, of great value to parliament and the country. He was proceeding to discuss the inability of the country to continue losing "between $90,000,000 and $100,000,000 a year" when Rt. Hon. Raoul Dandurand, government leader, asked that "since the labors of the committee are not terminated" Mr. Beaubien dwell as little as possible on that aspect.

"I doubt if there is any member of the committee who is not convinced that very large economies could be accomplished if unification or amalgamation is effected," said Senator Beaubien.

The revelation gave the surprised house a new sensation. Then surise changed to bewilderment as Mr. Sandys later interjected that his question contained no reference to disposition of guns but only to their number and condition.

Reference to the committee, moved by Prime Minister Chamberlain, found ready acceptance in all quarters. The debate stressed the importance of maintaining parliamentary privileges intact.

MORE ABOUT CONFEDERATION

Sir George Etienne Cartier, leader of the Quebec advocates of the union, made this contribution "to the confederation of the British North American provinces necessary to increase our power and to maintain the ties which attach us to the mother country. As far as I am concerned, I do not doubt it."

UNITY FOR STRENGTH

With the vision of founding a great British nation there was also in the minds of the Canadian statesmen the need for unity as a bulwark against possible aggression from the United States, just then emerging from the rigors of civil war. Confederation went far in union even though Prince Edward Island at the time delayed its entry.

It is recalled the promoters of Confederation looked to Newfoundland to become part of the Dominion. In the parliament buildings at Ottawa plaques were mounted to receive the coat of arms of each province as it came in. Newfoundland's stone still awaits the sculptor's chisel.

Canada's status grew as her territory and population increased. Twelve years after Confederation the Canadian government obtained the right to give tariff preferences to the coast of arms of each province as it came in. Newfoundland's stone still awaits the sculptor's chisel.

Since 1831 the Statute of Westminster has brought another phase of national development. By the definition from the Balfour report of 1926 adopted in that far-reaching Westminster measure Canada is one of the "autonomous communities within the British Empire, equal in status, in no way subordinate, one to another, in any aspect of their domestic or external affairs, though united by a common allegiance to the Crown and freely associated as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations."

Powers Agree to 45,000 Ton Limit On Battleships With 16-Inch Guns

LONDON, June 30 (CP)—An agreement among Great Britain, the United States and France setting the limit on battleships at 45,000 tons with 16-inch guns was announced in the house of commons today.

The agreement, announced by Alfred Duff Cooper, first lord of the admiralty, was a sequel to the decision of the three powers to abandon the 35,000-ton limit of the London naval treaty of 1936.

This was made public March 31 in accordance with the escalator clause of the treaty, invoked by the signatories because of reports that Japan was building mammoth men-of-war.

Cooper indicated that the 45,000-ton limit was higher than Great Britain

Two Western Members, Both Farmers Attack Handling of Wheat Problem

OTTAWA, June 30 (CP)—Two western members of parliament, one a Conservative and one a Liberal but both farmers, attacked the government in the house of commons today on its handling of the wheat problem. They were E. E. Perley (Con., Qu'Appelle) and Hon. W. R. Motherwell (Lib., Melville).

Both were critical of the Turgeon royal grain commission grain report. Mr. Perley said Mr. Justice W. F. Turgeon failed to make a thorough inquiry and his recommendations for regulation of the Winnipeg grain exchange did not go far enough. There had been 17 grain inquiries in Canada during the past 30 years, Mr. Perley said. The Turgeon committee reported two years after its appointment. It had been a "useless and unnecessary" expenditure since the reports were almost duplicates of those made by previous commissions except for some additional clauses put in to "whitewash" the present method of grain market operation.

"If you want to know what I think of the Turgeon report, I can tell you in two words, N. G.," declared Mr. Motherwell.

The house has been unanimous in passing the 1935 wheat board act, said Mr. Motherwell.

The present Liberal government assumed joint paternity for the act but "it has committed infanticide and practically killed its own child," he said.

The government was wrong in changing the operation of the wheat board without consent of parliament.

Mr. Perley regretted no action was taken on the wheat problem this session. He suggested a national grain board to handle all coarse grains and perhaps grain products as well as wheat.

Further he urged supervision of the exchange by a special branch of the board of grain commissions including representatives of the producers and grain trade. This branch would licence all grain traders, control lines of credit, operate the clearing house and regulate the volume of trading.

Several times Mr. Perley clashed with Hon. W. D. Euler, minister of trade, and Prime Minister Mackenzie King. Mr. Euler declared a suggestion that the Turgeon report had been reviewed by the wheat committee of the cabinet of which Mr. Euler is chairman before being put in final form was "absolutely untrue."

Saskatchewan Liberal members were now promising an effective wheat board and it was reported they had been induced to vote for the budget on the promise of such a board, said Mr. Perley. The government should make a clear statement.

Mr. Mackenzie King declared nothing of the kind had been suggested and no promise had been made. Mr. Perley said he understood reports on a recent Liberal caucus were to the effect there was a promise.

"This subject was never discussed in caucus," said the prime minister. "I announced weeks ago there would be a wheat board and the price would be fixed later on," said Mr. Euler. "The pools know it and my friend (Mr. Perley) knows it too."

The minimum price for wheat should be fixed at 90 cents a bushel, said Mr. Perley, and the price would be fixed later on," said Mr. Euler. "The pools know it and my friend (Mr. Perley) knows it too."

(For the past two years the minimum price of wheat has been fixed at 87 1/2 cents a bushel but the wheat board has been authorized to buy any wheat unless the open market price fell below 90 cents.

Young Scientist Wins High Honor

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH, Assoc.-ed Press Science Writer

OTTAWA, June 30 (AP)—One of the world's youngest scientists, 28-year-old Dr. Charles E. Code of Mayo Foundation, Rochester, Minn., was today awarded the Theobald Smith medal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

When histamine is present in abnormal amounts in the blood it produces a physical condition resembling surgical shock or the reaction which follows severe burns, both of which are often fatal under conditions of an upsetting of the balance of chemical elements in the body.

Bush Fruits, Raspberries Soon To Be Ready For Shipment From The Kootenay-District

Alfalfa Cutting Near Completion; Tree Fruits Sizing

Strawberries are being moved to market, bush fruits with raspberries and tree fruits are sizing up in the Kootenay-District. It is reported in the department of agriculture's fortnightly newsletter.

Alfalfa cutting has been completed in the Kootenay and Arrow lakes districts and the Boundary, and is nearly complete in Creston area. Hay crops are somewhat lighter, but they have been put up under good weather conditions and will be of better grade than last year.

"The small fruit crop is coming along well and most of the Grand Forks strawberry crop is being processed with sulphur dioxide. Results from processing a portion of last year's crop were very satisfactory. Raspberries, currants and gooseberries are coming along fairly well although the dry weather will affect the yields and size of the fruit. The acreage of small fruits in the district is down as compared with the survey of 1938 especially strawberries and raspberries.

"Local vegetables are late this year, the only supplies so far on the market being lettuce and bunch onions. Early potatoes should soon make their appearance. "The grain crops in the Midway to Bridesville section are suffering the most from the dry hot weather and much of the crop will not be threshed if the dry spell is not broken immediately. Some fields of fall wheat are fairly good but the crops of spring wheat and oats will be very light. The first crop of alfalfa is all harvested and the quality and yield were good. Owing to the dry weather in June there was practically no damage to the hay crop which is unusual in this district.

"Raspberries have finished blooming and the early set is developing nicely. They should be making their appearance within the next two weeks. In several instances the canes are showing damage from the winter frost. The crop yield will run a little less than last year.

"Cherries are sizing. Indications are for an increase in crop over last year if the rains are not too much delayed. Tree fruits are all nicely sizing. Growers are watching closely the effect of the June drop irrigation is quite general. "Bush fruits are well advanced and a good crop is assured. Gooseberries will soon be ready. "The home market is well supplied with local grown head lettuce. Early peas are in pod and potatoes in flowering.

"Alfalfa cutting is still in progress, but the yield is only average. As May was dry and windy, the early stands got under cover safely.

Gains Offset by Profit-Taking on Montreal Market

MONTREAL, June 30 (CP)—Profit-taking late afternoon trading on the stock exchange today more than offset the wide gains made at the opening of the market.

The papers alone retained a large part of their advances. Price appreciation showing a net gain of three, the common 1/4, St. Lawrence Corporation preferred and common and Bathurst about 1/4 each, although Dryden and St. Lawrence Paper preferred were off 1/4 and Nickel 1/4. Dominion Bridge, in the construction was off 1/4, and Cement and United Steel a small fraction each. Steel of Canada firm 1/4.

Canadian Car was the only strong spot, the preferred C.P.R. and National Steel Car being fractionally weaker.

Gain in Winnipeg Wheat Transient

WINNIPEG, June 30 (CP)—Advances of Winnipeg wheat futures which reached 4 1/2 cents for July proved transient today as values receded on reports of beneficial rains in northern wheat fields of western Canada and easier Chicago prices. Final quotations were unchanged to 1/4 cent lower, July at $1.02, October 83 1/2, November 82 1/2 and December 81 1/2.

Flour prices of dealings marked the preliminary session and at one time advanced to a tight July situation.

Chicago advanced 1 1/4 earlier but declined due to failure of Winnipeg's July to hold gains and an easier trend in securities.

Canadian export sales were estimated at 200,000 bushels, mostly old-crop wheat.

Liverpool advanced 1/4-1/2. Buenos Aires at noon was 1/4-1/2 cent higher.

Argentine estimated weekly wheat clearances of 1,740,000 bushels are almost double actual movement a week ago.

Coarse grains followed wheat but increased sales drove prices down from their high points. Rye was as much as a cent off.

Chicago Wheat Prices Lower

CHICAGO, June 30 (AP)—Despite 1 1/2 cents temporary rise here and 4 1/2 cents at Winnipeg, Chicago wheat values later today showed decided losses, 1 1/2 nets in some cases. To a large extent, wheat in Chicago paralleled the action of securities, gaining sharply but then falling. Lowest prices of the day were reached in the final transactions.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1 1/2-1 3/4 down compared with yesterday's finish, July 75 1/2-3/4, Sept. 75 7/8-5/8, Oct. 75 1/2-3/4, and oats unchanged to 1/4 off.

Expect Potential Production 50,000 Barrels Crude Oil

CALGARY, June 30 (CP)—By mid-July Turner Valley crude oil producers are expected to have a potential production of 50,000 barrels daily, E. W. Kolb, secretary of the Petroleum Producers' Association, said today.

Approximate daily potential to-day is 18,687 barrels, which includes 11 new wells brought into production this month. The new wells have a daily potential of 11,687 barrels.

Leaders Shoot Up But Later Take Nose-Dive, Wall Street

NEW YORK, June 30 (AP)—Stock market leaders shot upward in one of the fastest flights of the past several years during today's early trading but subsequently suffered a sharp decline as the market was swamped with overnight buying demand from all parts of the United States and abroad at the opening. Blocks of 1,000 to 15,000 shares changed hands in the wild dash and the ticker tape, for more than an hour, was as much as 10 minutes behind.

Numerous new highs for the year or longer were posted before the general aggregate for this period since the slump of October. Dealings began to dwindle as quotations fell and transfers for the day amounted to only 2,500,000 shares, despite a moderate pick-up in activity in the final lap. Top marks of

B. C. Mine Output Value in 6 Months $31,665,817

Is Drop of $5,010,449 From Same Period of Last Year, Dr. John F. Walker Reports; Development, Output Maintained

VICTORIA, June 30 (CP)—The estimated mine production value in British Columbia for six months ended June 30 is $31,665,817, or a decrease of $5,010,449 as compared with the same period in 1937, according to the half-yearly report issued by Dr. John F. Walker, deputy minister of mines, today.

Dr. Walker in his report says that it is now apparent that the gross value of the mining industry for 1938 will be about $10,000,000 less than for 1937. However, development and production with consequent employment is being well maintained, and the industry, in spite of low base metal prices, is experiencing a very good year.

Mining dividends, he says, are applicable below last year and it is extremely unlikely last year's record can be attained.

THE REPORT The report follows: At the beginning of the year it was apparent that due to low base metal prices there would be an appreciable decrease in the gross value of mining production for 1938. It was hoped that copper would average 10 cents a pound and lead and zinc four cents a pound throughout the year, in which case the gross value of the mining industry would be about $67,000,000. It was pointed out that a quarter of a cent a pound in the price of lead and zinc would mean a fluctuation one way or the other of $1,750,000.

The production, indicated at the first of the year on base metal prices current at that time was about $44,000,000. The first six months have shown that the hope for better prices has not materialized and that it is extremely unlikely the hoped for averages can be attained this year.

The price of copper, lead and zinc has decreased throughout the first six months of the year, and while it is now believed that the bottom has been reached, there is no assurance of any appreciable increase during the next six months.

Both lead and zinc show an estimated increase for the first six months, and it is anticipated that the output for the year will show a substantial increase over 1937.

Silver has shown a slight volume increase, and with a price only slightly lower than last year, it is anticipated that if there is no great change in price during the next six months, the volume and value will be about the same as in 1937.

Copper has shown the substantial increase in volume anticipated due to capacity production of Britannia and Coppor Mountain, and a slight value increase is also apparent. However, the price of copper has decreased, and at the moment will be sufficient to give what may be

TRAIL SOCIAL

By MRS. H. S. ALLEN

TRAIL, B. C., June 30 — A pretty wedding took place in St. Francis Xavier church at 8:30 o'clock Thursday morning, when Rev. A. Ranudo united in matrimony, Theresa Alameda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Olfkey of Cupar, Sask., and John Bunn, eldest son of Mrs. Rosalie Bunn and the late Fred Bunn of this city. Entering the church on the arm of her uncle, F. Shirley, who gave her in marriage, the bride was attractively attired in a white organdy frock, with fitted bodice and full skirt, which was trimmed with white satin. Her long flowing veil was held in place with a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses. Miss Fanny Bunn, sister of the groom was bridesmaid. She chose an embroidered pink organdie frock, white felt hat, with pink trimmings for her costume. Her accessories were white and she carried a bouquet of rose-pink carnations. Little Frances Shirley, as flower girl, was daintily attired in a dress of gold organdie, her poke bonnet was in tone, and her basket of flowers contained purple and yellow pansies. Peter Bunn, the groom's brother was best man. The junior choir was in attendance with Miss Semma Orlando at the organ. Mrs. W. Fitzgerald and P. Lagan sang the duet, "Ave Maria," and during the signing of the register, Miss Nellie Lesuk sang "O Lord, I Am Not Worthy." Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shirley, Milligan Hill, after which Mr. and Mrs. Bunn left on wedding trip to Spokane.
