TWO IDAHO DYKES GIVE WAY UNDER FLOOD

Evelyn Stratton States Jacob Wolf, Petitioner Divorce, Asked Her Say She Did Not Know Him

Petition Dismissed in View Contradictory Evidence

That Jacob Wolf of Ross Spur, petitioner for a divorce from Helen Mary Blanche Wolf, also of Ross Spur, had called on her May 13 and "asked me to say I didn't know him", and "that I did not know anything about what happened in November," was the testimony of Evelyn Stratton of Kaslo, sister of Paul Stratton, formerly of Columbia Gardens, co-respondent in the Wolf petition, when the adjourned divorce hearing reopened before Mr. Justice A. I. Fisher in assize court at Nelson Friday.

Wolf's petition for divorce was dismissed, with costs against him, it was the only defended petition of the spring assizes.

A. C. D. King of Trail represented Mrs. Wolf, and Leslie O. Baker of Trail acted for Wolf. The hearing required almost four days in all.

Contradiction followed by contradiction in examination, cross-examination and rebuttal, marked the hearing throughout.

SUBPOENAED WITNESS

Miss Stratton was the witness for whom his lordship requested, on May 13, that a subpoena be issued. Her name was mentioned frequently during the hearing previous to that date, as a member of the theatre and supper party attended by Mr. and Mrs. Wolf at Trail November 16, following which it was alleged Mrs. Wolf and Paul Stratton had been seen in a parked car near

NEGRO IS HELD AFTER WOMAN IS SLAIN

CHICAGO, May 27 (AP) — Mrs. Florence Johnson, 34, wife of a city fireman, was raped and brutally beaten to death early today by a Negro who entered her south side apartment through a window. Her body was found on the bedroom floor with a brick nearby.

A few minnutes later police seized a Negro near the building. He identified himself as Thomas Crosby, 18, automobile washer. Sergt. Harold Fogarty said Crosby's hand bore scratches and his clothing was blood-stained.

STEVENS STANDS AGAINST SWEEP

OTTAWA, May 27 (CP)—The bill to legalize sweepstakes was the subject of a brief debate tonight in private bills hour in the house of commons. P. J. Rowe (Ind. Athabasca) and Hon. H. H. Stevens (Recon. Kootenay East) were opposed but O. B. Elliott (S.C. Kindersley) supported it and adjourned the debate.

The bill was introduced some time ago by Ernest Bertrand (Lib. Laurier) and would amend the criminal code to permit one sweepstakes each year in each province for the support of hospitals or universities.

Mr. Rowe said any state which legalized lotteries would have to face the consequences which included an increase in the relief problem, new rackets and racketeers, harm to the morals of children and irresponsible adults and public disrespect for government and laws.

SYPHILIS HITS MORE THAN T. B. COMMONS TOLD

OTTAWA, May 27 (CP) — Syphilis affected more people than tuberculosis, Dr. J. F. Howden (Lib. St. Boniface) said in the house of commons today in pleading for national measures to combat spread of venereal diseases. Health department estimates were under consideration.

J. S. Woodsworth (CCF-Winnipeg North centre) endorsed Dr. Howden's stand, objecting to the estimates providing only $5000 for the Health League of Canada.

Mrs. George Black (Con. Yukon) urged Hon. C. G. Power, minister of health, to presss for a grant of $50,000 to the health league next year in place of the $5000 grant made this year.

Social Crediters placed human values first said John Blackmore, Social Credit leader. The government would have the full support of that group for any increase in appropriations for prevention of disease.

INSURGENTS RAID VIA MOUNTAINS

HENDAYE, France, May 27 (AP) —Spanish insurgent armies attacked today through mountain ranges north of Valencia and northwest of Barcelona.

Air raids which extended to Cerbere, France, last night bore evidence they were campaigning to shatter rearguard and front line resistance at the same time.

Insurgent advices reported occupation of El Castellar, nearly 16 miles east of Teruel and 65 miles from the coast, in the drive toward the Teruel-Sagunto highway.

HEDLEY LIABLE TO MRS. WORTH

VANCOUVER, May 27 (CP)—The British Columbia court of appeal today ruled Hedley Consolidated Mines Ltd., was liable to Mrs. Rose Worth of Vancouver for 50,000 shares of the company's stock but dismissed her action against C. H. Clendenning jr., Vancouver accountant.

The court's ruling was a reversal of a judgment by Mr. Justice D. Murphy in supreme court which dismissed the woman's suit against the company and awarded her $3750 against Clendenning.

78 OTHER TICKETS HELD IN CANADA

One of the $2650 prizes in the Irish hospitals sweepstakes will be shared by 75 Nelson ticketholders, who drew Onslaught, a non-starter, in the Derby to be run at Epsom Downs Tuesday.

A member of the syndicate checking the draws received at the Daily News excitedly yelled: "By goah, it was us!" Until verifying their luck through the News list, they had found it hard to believe the cable received earlier in the day.

The winning ticket number was CC60467; the nom de plume "Auxiliary".

FULL LIST OF TICKET HOLDERS ON PAGE NINE

DUBLIN, May 27 (CP) — Ticket holders in Canada today won £41,870 ($209,350) and a chance at a much larger slice of the Irish sweepstakes fund.

Each of the 79 residents or groups of Canada who drew tickets on horses in the original entry for the Derby, to be contested next Wednesday at Epsom Downs was assured of $530 ($2650).

Women's Council Backs Up Jobless

VANCOUVER, May 27 (CP)—The national council of women threw its support behind Vancouver's single unemployed late today and urged that the federal government offer temporary relief assistance to the men and endeavor to establish a long-term public works program to meet the unemployment problem throughout Canada.

A week ago today more than 1000 single unemployed marched into three downtown Vancouver buildings and peacefully occupied the ground-floor lobbies. They were paid $500 by the city council to evacuate Hotel Georgia, but are still in the central post office and civic art gallery.

The national council, now holding its annual convention here, decided to send a telegram to Ottawa.

Besides unemployment, the national council dealt mainly at its afternoon session with resolutions concerning war and human welfare. These were submitted for consideration of the Canadian body by international council of women whose convention will be held later this year in Edinburgh.

DROWNED IN B. C. PLANE CRASH, JURY FINDS

PRINCE GEORGE, B. C., May 27 (CP) — A coroner's jury decided here today that Dan Miner, Fort St. James prospector and lone victim of an airplane crash on a central interior lake Monday, died from drowning after he suffered concussion in the accident.

"We find that Dan Miner came to his death on Thloastlee lake in an airplane wreck, the cause of death being drowning following concussion," the jury under Dr. Ross Stone, announced.

Their verdict was returned shortly after the body of the 55-year-old prospector was brought here from the wreckage of the plane at the lake 100 miles north of Fort St. James where a plane piloted by Charley Elliot crashed. The pilot, Bill Martin, mechanic and Mrs. A. East of Fort St. James, were injured in the accident and are in hospital here.

The body of Miner was jammed tightly in the wreckage it could not be recovered until Wednesday.

Flame-Spitting Tanks Lead a Chinese Counter Drive as Major Battle Staged

Fighting at Lanfeng as Intensive as Any in 10 Months of Conflict; Cholera Breaks Out in Pootung; Villages Are Razed

SHANGHAI, May 28 (Saturday) (AP)—Flame-spitting tanks led a Chinese counter offensive that turned scattered fighting along the Lunghai railroad today into one of the major battles of the Chinese-Japanese war.

Both sides declared the fighting at Lanfeng, 28 miles east of Kaifeng, was as intensive and bloody as any in more than 10 months of conflict.

Chinese reported several villages razed and more than 1000 Japanese killed in fighting that spread along the railroad almost to Kweiteh, 59 miles east of Lanfeng.

Chinese reported a tank-led column recaptured Lanfeng, important as a key to defence of Kaifeng, just south of the bend of the Yellow river.

Health authorities in Shanghai disclosed a cholera epidemic had broken out in Pootung, devastated industrial area across the Whangpoo river from the city's international settlement. No foreigners were among seven reported cases.

An increasingly large number of modern tanks, some equipped with flame throwers, have bolstered the Chinese lines, Japanese reports said, indicating the defence troops' strength is by no means spent.

Chinese declared the recapture of Lanfeng had broken Japan's pressure on Kaifeng, which the Japanese must capture to reach Chengchow, junction of the Lunghai and the important north-south Peiping-Hankow railroad.

DENTAL COLLEGE CAN APPEAL THE COWEN VERDICT

VANCOUVER, May 27 (CP)—The British Columbia court of appeal to the supreme court of Canada against a recent appeal ruling handed down in favor of Dr. David Cowen, Spokan dentist, concerning his advertising activties in the province.

Dr. Cowen was successful in an appeal from a judgment of Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald in supreme court which restrained him from advertising in British Columbia newspapers.

MAY SHORTEN RAIL ENQUIRY

OTTAWA, May 27 (CP) — When the special senate committee studying the railway problem reassembles Tuesday it will be furnished with memoranda which, it is expected, will shorten the enquiry. Several senators have protested that questioning of witnesses has occupied too much time and could be avoided if comprehensive memoranda were provided.

Today's session saw T. E. MacDonnell, president of the Canadian Pacific Express Co., and R. A. Pyne, motive power superintendent of C. P. R. western lines, give evidence. Mr. MacDonnell's testimony related to estimated saving of $1,450,000 a year, if the express systems of the C. P. R. and the Canadian National were unified.

THREE-YEAR BATTLE BY ESLING IS WON AS COMMONS PASSES HIS BILL

OTTAWA, May 27 — Without a dissenting voice, the house of commons concurred in the senate amendments to the Esling bill to curb the activities of the Canadian Performing Rights society. The bill has been before the banking and commerce committee of the senate for the past three months, hearing protests from representatives of the English Performing Right society, of the French society and the American and Canadian societies, all of whom were supported by counsel.

The bill was sponsored in the senate by Senator R. F. Green and was spoken to by Senator Haig.

The bill as passed exempts from payment of royalty to the Canadian Performing Right society, all users of commercial music by radio and gramophone, such as stores, skating rinks, lodge halls, entertainment halls and all other places except theatres.

The exemption was based on the ground that this music is paid for at the source, which is the broadcasting station in so far as radio music is concerned, and the manufacturers of gramophone records as applied to gramophone reproductions, and that second royalties should not be paid.

In addition it also exempt from payment of royalties on music in any form, all churches, colleges, schools, religious, charitable or fraternal organizations, where the public performance is in furtherance of a religious, educational or charitable object as well as any music used without motive of gain at any agricultural or industrial fair which receives federal, provincial or municipal grants in aid.

One clause of the bill was to require the Performing Righ's society to publish a list of music on which it collected royalties but this was considered by the legal departments of the government to be a violation of the international copyright convention.

However the society must file with the copyright commissioner titles of music which it actually does control, instead of such titles as it claims to control.

The passage of this bill is the result of three successive years of effort on the part of Mr. Esling.

Troops quickly surrounded the site of the forced landing at Estanzuela, about nine miles northwest of here. Cedillo and his followers had jumped from the plane and fled into thick brush.

Reports reached San Luis Potosi that the rebel chieftain had been captured, but they were not confirmed officially. In fleeing, Cedillo left behind five suitcases.

1000 BATTLE TO SAVE OTHERS AS DANGER LESSENS IN B. C. DISTRICT

Rise of Kootenay's Waters Seems to Be Checked

FERNIE RINKS ARE FLOODED

BONNERS FERRY, Idaho, May 27 (AP)—More than 2600 acres of farm land, nearly all in crops, were under water tonight in two Kootenai valley dyke districts and other thousands of acres of crops were threatened.

The breaking of two dykes, protecting District 7 and the Fitzpatrick district, the first to be flooded in 1933, temporarily relieved the pressure against other sections.

The torrential Kootenai river dropped from 30 to 29 feet when the dykes went out, but Mayor Frank Lenhart, directing the 500 flood battlers, said the rise would continue for another 48 hours because of recent high temperatures in the higher area. Cooler weather today brought hopes the hot spell responsible for the floods might be broken.

Mayor Lenhart said dykes where nearly 1000 WPA workers were battling the stream near town would not withhold an increase of more than three feet from today's level. Besides the two districts already flooded four other districts were in danger tonight.

DANGER EASES IN KOOTENAYS

Public works department and railway officials in the Kootenays looked at raging spring freshets yesterday with a great deal more ease, believing that, having carried through successfully for four days while a hot sun melted snow in the upper hills, the worst of the danger was over, at least as far as creeks were concerned. In some instances the creeks and streams were dropping; and in others it was believed the streams had reached their peak. In almost all cases the rate of rise was checked.

No Collusion States Robertson on the Stand

Subpoena of Archibald Vivian Robertson of Nelson, respondent, as a witness in the suit of his wife, Georgina Lorraine Robertson of Nelson, for divorce from him, featured the resumption of this hearing before Mr. Justice Fisher at the adjourned spring assizes at Nelson Friday. He was subpoenaed by W. W. Ferguson, counsel for Mrs. Robertson, at the direction of his lordship, and was questioned closely by the court as to "collusion or connivance" at divorce evidence, as suggested in an anonymous letter received by his lordship after he had originally granted a decree absolute, and which led to the petition being reopened. The witness denied unequivocally that there had been collusion or connivance.

After the fifth presentation of the petition late Friday afternoon, each time being marked by additional evidence, his lordship again stated he would grant a decree absolute.

ANONYMOUS LETTER

On the first presentation two witnesses were heard. Following the receipt of the anonymous letter the next day his lordship returned the case to the assize list and requested that anyone having such evidence come forward. He also asked that another witness be called. This witness was heard at the next presentation of the petition and Mrs. Robertson was questioned exhaustively as to collusion.

General Election In Eire Is Set for June 17 as Government Quits

DUBLIN, May 27 (CP Cable)—Determined to seek a clear mandate to carry on the work of national reconstruction, Prime Minister De Valera of Eire today decided to dissolve the Dail Eireann, the lower house of parliament. A general election was called for June 17.

The prime minister was known to have felt keenly the insecurity of the government because it is in the position of being an actual minority of one as compared with all other parties in the dail.

Defeat in a snap vote Wednesday over the question of an arbitration board to deal with grievances of civil servants—a step the government opposed—gave Mr. De Valera the chance.

He was determined to seize it although the defeat did not compel him to do so under the constitution.

He will go to the country while his political credit is high due to his success in reaching an agreement with Great Britain to settle differences of long standing.

Under the new constitution dissolution of the dail means selection of a new senate, but the present upper house, only recently chosen, will continue for three months.

It will be the second general election within a year. Last July 1 Mr. De Valera went to the country seeking reelection as well as ratification of his new constitution. He succeeded in both but lost some ground in the dail.

Because of the election, the installation of Dr. Douglas Hyde as president, originally set for June 1, was postponed indefinitely.

Czech Gov't. Postpones Special Session; German Press Silenced

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia, May 27 (AP) — The government tonight postponed indefinitely the special session of parliament called for next Tuesday as it faced slow progress in efforts to reconcile differences with the autonomy-demanding Sudeten German minority.

It had expected at that time to submit for legislative approval the nationalities statute designed to solve the country's problem with it's minorities.

It was reported unofficially, the Czechoslovaks hoped to have ready by tomorrow an outline of the maximum concessions they would be willing to make for the sake of satisfying demands of the 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans.

Dr. Ernst Eisenlohr, German minister, again called the government's attention to alleged violations of the German border by Czechoslovak military units.

Official quarters reported the Czechoslovak minister in Berlin was instructed to make similar representations concerning alleged German violations of the Czechoslovak frontier.

GERMAN PRESS SUDDENLY SILENT

BERLIN, May 27 (AP) —As if by order, the German press today ceased abruptly its blasts against Czechoslovakia and western democracies it accused of pro-Czechoslovak sympathies.

The lull in hostile talk was said in official quarters to be due to Reichsfuehrer Hitler's firm determination to preserve peace in spite of "provocations" by the Czechoslovaks.

It was announced also a rally of Sudeten German students scheduled for June 2 at Usti, Czechoslovakia, near the German border, had been postponed until October in order to avoid possible trouble.

VICTORIA, May 27 (CP) —In a new segregation of lists compiled from April records British Columbia's relief problem today resolved itself into some 16,500 persons who are employable and potential wage-earners if they could get jobs.

In the month government relief was drawn for 13,257 heads of families and 5241 single persons, a total of 18,498. Out of these, however, about 2000 are farmers who can contribute something toward their own support, leaving 16,500 odd entirely dependent on relief. Dependent on these people are 37,911 women and children, and aged persons.

Says Government Will Take Over Bank of Canada

OTTAWA, May 27 (CP)— The government will take over complete ownership of the Bank of Canada by legislation this session, Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced today in the house of commons.

Shares outstanding in the hands of the public will be acquired by the government at the average price at which they have sold on the market during 1938.

Shares outstanding number 100,000 with a par value of $50 each. The government already owns more than 50 per cent of the capital stock, issues in the form of new capital by legislation in 1936.

Mr. King made his announcement when giving an outline of legislation ahead of the house for the rest of the session. In addition there would be measures to assist in construction of low cost, low rental housing and authorizing loans to municipalities for self-liquidating projects, already forecast by Hon. Norman Rogers, minister of labor. There would also be amendments to existing statutes and possibly measures arising out of reports of Royal commissions and committees of the house.

SUES FOR COST OF BEER HE DRANK

LINCOLN, Neb., May 27 (AP) —A lot of people lean against the bar because they enjoy it, but Elmer Swenson of Lincoln told the district court here it's just painful expense to him.

Swenson sued the Iowa-Nebraska Light and Power company for $454.50, which represents the cost of beer and alcohol he said he had to drink as medicine after being injured in a fall at the company's plant eight years ago. A judgment obtained against the firm in 1933 provides the utility firm should pay all necessary and reasonable expenses.

OTTAWA, May 27 (CP)— Dominion control over "maintainable and renewable" natural resources, as a guarantee of protection of the interests of this and future generations, was urged by the federation of Ontario naturalists today before the Rowell commission.

In that way, long-range policies essential to the preservation of those resources could be set up under suitably trained staffs on a strictly non-political basis, the federation suggested.

MAY QUEEN IS KASLO FEATURE

KASLO, B .C. — The crowning of Kaslo's 1938 May Queen was an extremely pretty event of the May 24 celebration.

Meeting in the Canadian Legion hall the participants marched to the Government building of a fine setting for the event which took place on the high steps of the building. Miss Chrystal Driver, the newly elected Queen, succeeded Miss Maureen McGibbon, who was crowned in 1936, this phase of the celebration being omitted last year.

Queen Chrystal's maids of honor were the Misses Pauline Riley, Mary Morton, Betty Dykstra and Winnie Chandler. Young Beverley Adams was train bearer. Betty Dykstra carried the crown on a satin pillow. Winnie Chandler presented the queen-elect with a lovely bouquet. The new queen was crowned byEx-Queen Maureen, whose maids of honor were the Misses Connie Cherry and Doris Sutherland. Young Ann Carney was her train bearer.

The flower girls were the Misses Jean McQuarrie, Sally Singel, Joan Tinkess, Fay Armstrong, Jessie McLanders and Mildred Augustine.

Frank Carney, Allan MacPherson, Allan Speirs and Douglas Singel formed the guard of honor. All the children were appropriately and beautifully garbed.

Following the actual coronation the National Anthem was played and school children, who had been instructed by their teachers, Mrs. Ball, Miss Kydd and Miss Welch, sang several choruses.

Health Run Down Housework A Burden

Nature intended women to be strong, healthy and happy instead of sick and miserable, but is it any wonder that when they are run down in health they become nervous and irritable, weak and worn-out, and the lightest household duties seem a drag and a burden?

Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills are a remedy that all nervous, tired-out, weary women should take to help them back to the blessing of good health, and when this is done their household duties will be a pleasure instead of a burden.

Mrs. A. K. McLean, Pleasantfield, N.S., writes:—"A short time ago I was in a badly run down and nervous condition. I got so that my housework became a burden to me. I started taking Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills, and now I feel like a different person, and again am able to do all my own housework.

Hereafter I shall always recommend H. & N. Pills to my friends."

Roosevelt Will Not Sign Tax Bill To Call Attention to "Unwise Parts"

ARTHURDALE HOMESTEADS W. Va., May 27 (AP) — President Roosevelt announced today at Arthurdale Homesteads school commencement exercises today he would permit the United States $5,000,000,000 tax bill to become law without his signature.

"If I sign the bill," Mr. Roosevelt said, —"and I have until midnight tonight to sign it— many people will think I approve the abandonment of an important principle of American taxation.

"If I veto the bill it will prevent many of the desirable features of it from going into effect.

"Therefore for the first time since I have been president, I am going to take the third course which is open to me. I am going to let the act go into effect at midnight tonight without my approval."

The president said he was permitting the tax measure to become law in that way to call attention to "unwise parts" of the bill.

The tax measure, which thus becomes law, contains a remnant of the undistributed profits tax, recommended by Mr. Roosevelt and condemned by business. It completely overhauls former capital gains taxes—also attacked by business—by substituting flat rates for a graduated scale.

Noting the legislation retains the principle of the undistributed profits tax, the president said: "The penalty for withholding dividends to stockholders is so small —only two and a half per cent at the most —that it is doubtful whether it will wholly eliminate the old tax avoidance practices of the past."

As to the adoption of the flat rate capital gains tax, the president asserted: "The abandonment of the principle of progressive tax payment in accordance with capacity to pay may encourage a small amount of capital to go into productive enterprises but chiefly, it will help those who make large profits in buying and selling existing stocks."

Wanted - More Snobs in Winnipeg

TORONTO, May 27 (CP)— Dr. Sidney Smith hopes that more snobs will enter the University of Manitoba at Winnipeg, of which institution he is president.

"Not social snobs," he explained in an interview, "but snobs with a sense of obligation. The American ideal of one man being as good as another has been done to death.

"Great leaders are generally snobs with a sense of responsibility. They are conscious of belonging to a class and they won't let it down. It may sound strange, coming from a man named Smith, but I do think this country still has to gain a pride of family."

Dr. Smith said "the old idea of a man living on porridge and working his way through college has cost too great a price. It is a definite loss for a lad to have to work for his living during the college session."

Dr. Smith was also emphatic the day is past when universities on this continent need to tag along behind the great universities of Europe.

"Some of the great universities of North America are quite the equal scholastically of Oxford and Cambridge, even in snobbishness," he said. "They say of an Oxford man that he walks on the ground as if he owned it and a Cambridge man walks on the ground as if he didn't care who owned it. I don't admire that.

"But snobbishness that has not merely social pretensions makes a man feel he is set apart. It keeps him from losing his distinctiveness, a thing at which our universities so often fail. The snob who is not merely a fool must have a strong sense of obligation."

MORE SHELTERED LIFE FOR QUINTS AFTER THIS SUMMER

Here Are Some Tips . . .

Pedicure Is Necessary to Make Your Feet Smart and Attractive

HOW YOU CAN Attract MEN

OF course, you have no men friends if you've let yourself become dull, cross, and nervous. Men like lively, peppy girls—girls with plenty of energy to go places and enjoy life.

Don't let love and romance pass you by. Help build up your pep and you, too, should have gay friends.

Here's good advice: Start taking time-proven, reliable Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and note the difference. This famous Compound, made especially for women from wholesome herbs and roots, helps Nature tone up your system and thus soothes jumpy nerves and gives you more pep to really enjoy life.

Tear out this notice NOW as a reminder to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound TO-DAY without fail.

For over 60 years one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" distress from female functional disorders with Pinkham's Compound. Let it help YOU.

By JULIET SHELBY

Some time ago this department gave a step-by-step home pedicure, but since the days for bathing suits and bare feet are now upon us, we thought that you might be interested in a few more tips on how to keep your feet looking chic and feeling fine.

True, rosy-red polishes are about the best bet for your toes because of their lively tone. A good shade is a true tulip red. Of course with a suntan you can wear browner shades like heather or robin red. There are lots of other good clear reds like pimento and red banana, and other brownish tones are flower-pot red and rust.

If your cuticle has gotten beyond control and grown down over your toenails, or if it is just plain difficult to work back, this is a good point to remember. Dip pads of cotton in oily cuticle remover, but be sure it is the oily type. Place one over each nail and leave them on for three or four minutes. Then go to work with an orange stick wrapped around with absorbent cotton. Press your cuticle back gently. Don't try to push it back until it has become soft and pliable. Next rinse your toes and remove the loosened particles of cuticle with a soft towel.

Often the continual rubbing of the tops of your slippers against your heels causes an accumulation of skin just above the slipper line. In some cases where feet are neglected the skin will get so hard and heavy that it is almost a callous.

BATH BRUSH HELPS

If you have only a mild case of this type roughness, the daily use of a stiff bristled bath brush will soften the skin and keep the heel smooth. It is often a good idea to rub a little hand cream on the area two or three times a week

When the skin on your heel is really hard and rough it is best to use more drastic measures to get it back in condition. Put some of your oily cuticle remover on a piece of absorbent cotton and rub it over the rough spot. This will take off the hard, dry skin.

These pretty feet belong to Ethelreda Leopold, screen dancer

Try giving yourself a foot massage to make your tootsies feel as fine as they look. The point to focus on is the transverse arch which is across the foot just above the toes. This is where strain and pressure are felt, and the higher the heel, the more the pressure. Most foot troubles start at this very spot. Use a non-greasy hand cream and go to work, with your fingers under the foot, and thumbs above the foot, using a round and round motion. This will relieve nerve strain, relax muscles and pep up your entire system.

Husband Says He Will Never Live With Wife Again

By VIRGINIA LEE

Lonesome and worried is still a young girl—22 years old—but she has been married four years and has two children. Her husband left her a week ago, and the poor girl is so desperate she doesn't know what to do. The husband says he never will live with her again.

She charges that he goes with a gang of young men and does whatever they say. If she wants him to go anywhere with her he says, "Wait until I come back", and then he doesn't come back. He loves the children and says he will do anything for them. It makes her feel dreadful when he comes to see them and makes a fuss over them, when her heart is aching with love for him.

The trouble seems to have started when the husband got into some kind of trouble and his wife, thinking it was for his own good, told on him. "That is one thing he hates me for", she writes in her somewhat incoherent letter. "He has been a swell man to me," she says until these last eight months, when he has done what his boy friends tell him. He wants to take the children away from her and she thinks she would die if he does. She can't eat now because of love and grief.

"Should I give the children up to him?" she asks. "or should I keep on loving him and then he might change his mind and learn to love me again."

No, don't give your children up, dear. No one can take them from you if you are a good mother to them. Little children need their mothers.

Go to the Domestic Relations court or to the Probate court and ask them to try to straighten the matter out. I can understand that your husband would be very angry if he felt you had told on him and made trouble for him, and it would be hard for him to think you had good intentions. But he won't stay mad forever—at least I hope not. People don't usually, especially young people.

Keep on loving him, dear. Love never harmed any one—real love. Do everything you can for him and try to win him back. Try not to cry and feel so badly when he comes to see the children. That does no good, only if it relieves your full heart. Couldn't his mother or a very good friend intercede for you—try to make him see that he should not treat you so, and get him to come back home to live?

Going out with the boys and leaving his wife and children is no way for a married man to act. He still is responsible for your welfare and should act more like a man.

Public Forums Encouraged in Modern Schools

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

In principle, the public forum is a revival of the old New England Town Meeting. From the earliest days of our country, there have been informal public forums at the village store or blacksmith shop; more recently in the sorority and fraternity house or college dormitory.—"bull session".

While serving as leader in demonstration forums recently in Somerset county, New Jersey, I witnessed a public forum put on by representatives from Westfield high school before the high school assembly of North Plainfield. Several students of Westfield presented, briefly, some statements on propaganda. The students of North Plainfield having been the audience, freely participated in the open discussion.

Said the student-chairman: "This morning we are going to have a discussion on the question: Is there a propaganda menace in the United States? Before 1914 the word propaganda had only a dignified meaning. Propaganda meant simply the means which a believer in a religious or political faith used to convince the unconverted. In loose popular usage it now means the next thing to a lie.

"This meaning developed during the World War, due to the type of propaganda used to inspire the people for war. During this time the people developed such a dislike for the word that the United States, instead of calling their press bureau a 'Department of Propaganda' or 'Counter-propaganda,' called it the 'Committee on Public Information.'

"We will discuss propaganda this morning in both the sincere and the loose meaning. William Blout will start with the story of the Fascist Propaganda in Italy."

Following his brief statements, William Blout said: "The Fascists in Italy recognize the value of music as a propaganda method and sing the Giovanezzi" — presented in part from a record. Eileen Mundt next told of communistic propaganda in Russia, and we heard a bit of the Internationale, from a record.

Then Connie Clark spoke on Nazi propaganda and we heard snatches from "Deutschland Erwache," a song that is given more credit than any other piece of propaganda for helping Hitler's rise to power. Also from "Host Wessel Lied."

Steven Woodruff told of propaganda in our country during the World war, and the Westfield High school band played parts of our war songs of that time.

After considerable discussion from the floor, one student said, "I guess it is all a matter of education that is most desirable for our democracy."

One More Wedding!

By HELEN WELSHIMER

CHAPTER 45

To the other people in the lunchroom on the quiet London treet, Barbara was merely a pretty girl in a yellow dress who suddenly seemed to be ill. The proprietess gave her a glass of water, and flew to measure ammonia drops in a spoon.

"I'm quite all right," Barbara answered the kindly inquiries. "It was a shock, that's all. Some unexpected news."

Holding her hands steady, with effort, she picked up the newspaper. No, it had not been a nightmare or a trick of her nerves. She had read that Garry had been kidnaped. In whole sentences and paragraphs the news leaped from the page and swung before her frightened eyes.

A baby had been kidnaped and held for $100,000. She recognized the name of the family as a wealthy and famous one. But what did Garry have to do with that? Had he followed some clue that resulted in his own capture? The story did not say. A ransom note, addressed to the newspaper for which Garry worked, had said that he was being held and had asked another $100,000 for his release. The abductors, being caught up in the business of the holdup game, were going the limit.

The story concluded with a statement that the police and the executives of the paper feared for Garry's life. The child, unable to identify his kidnapers, might be returned but hardly a grown man who had looked upon them, it said. Unless the kidnapers had concealed their identity from the newspaperman, his situation was critical, was the general tone.

Even now, while the lamps shone so steadily and the people ate sandwiches and drank coffee in the little lunchroom, Garry might be fighting for his life, Barbara whispered to herself. She was so far, far away.

The new, strange picture of danger would not come. They were so foreign that she would not grasp them. That last view of Garry, waving a gray felt hat from the pier and smiling at her, alone remained.

Small good it did to remind herself that it was Garry who turned away from her that night in the old Ninth street apartment. That apartment and that night were 3000 miles and a century of time away.

In that first hour of which she knew of Garry Page's danger Barbara longed for someone with whom to talk. If Ray had been there, she would have talked to him. But in all of London, in all of the British Empire, there was only Wenda who might be interested. Wenda would be amazed, but not sympathetic.

One thing Barbara knew she could do. She could cable Natalie for any news. She sent the cablegram. Four words sufficed: "Keep me posted Garry." After that she telephoned the press wire offices but they had no further dispatches.

There was nothing that she could do then but go to her hotel and try to sleep.

Today she had found Garry only to lose him again. Oh no, it could n't be that! Something would happen. It always did in stories, in the theater, in the movies. Miserably she realized that this was not an fictious drama acted on a stage or the pages of a book. It was life.

She would wind up her work as fast as she could and sail, that she knew. A day or two more would do it. She had been glad that she was permitted, six weeks of absence at first. Then she had wished to lengthen it indefinitely. But now she wanted to go home. Anyway, in another week her original six weeks would be up.

She slept restively. Once she dreamed that Garry was calling her. Another time she was following him through a labyrinth of rooms, never overtaking him. Her head ached when she wakened in the morning, and her eyes were shadowed with circles. She longed for an American shower where the water would come swift and relentlessly and waken the dormant cells of her mind and body. But a warm tub made her feel some better.

She pushed aside the new suit that she had planned to initiate today. Instead, she found an old lack dress, an old black dress that she had bought one day in early September, when a boat from Europe had come in. She knotted the green handkerchief, which had been a gift of Garry's at the throat, as though its fragile silk would support her today.

During the morning she called the steamship office. A boat was leaving that afternoon. She would not have time to pack, get to Southampton and catch it. Besides, she was waiting for Natalie's answer. On the ocean it would be more difficult to hear news of Garry, and the next day or two in London might reveal some. She would wait until the next boat which left two days later.

Late in the afternoon an American at the press wire headquarters called her. She had left her telephone number and a request that she be notified if any word came.

"Miss Kingsley?" From the gravity of the voice she knew the news was not good.

"Is there any clue?" she asked in a tight, small voice.

"There isn't any doubt but that it's Page the abductors have. He seems to have a play manuscript with him. The maniacs who have him mailed that, with a note in Page's own handwriting, to the publisher of his paper. Negotiations are under way to meet the demands of the kidnapers. The cable's brief. I'm awfully sorry."

"Then maybe he'll be released?"

"If he hasn't looked too closely at the faces of the birds who have him! I'll call you if anything turns up."

Garry had seen the faces of his aductors all right. They had had no chance to disguise themselves when they unexpectedly met him. However, in the room where he had been spending his time since that meeting, he had contact with two of them only.

The whole situation seemed to him like a second act in a melodrama. He didn't even know just where he was. After his inadvertent meeting with the four men who were carrying the kidnaped baby, he had been blindfolded, led Brain Functioning . . .

Electrical Changes in the Body Recorded by Hospital Apparatus

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

The human body is an electric field, and changes in electric potential occur with many of its activities. In the modern hospital this fact is daily used by the employment of an apparatus which records the heart beat through the changes in the electric potential associated with contraction of the heart muscle. But many other, even subtler, changes can be recorded.

For instance, changes in the electric potential of the brain can be measured by an instrument known as the electroencephalogram. To obtain such a record, electrodes are placed close to the head on the different sides and the oscillograph records different waves. These were first described by Hans Berger over a decade ago and are called "alpha waves". They are also called the "Berger rhythm".

The most prominent waves that occur are regular at the rate of 8 to 15 per second. They are interrupted when the eyes are opened or if a light is flashed, if the experiment is conducted in a darkened room.

The waves evidently are the result of the functioning of the brain, not just casual circulatory changes, because mental activity, such as solving a difficult arithmetical problem, will change or interrupt the rhythm. Slight mental activity, such as being read to or listening to a boring conversation (unless this has emotional effects, as is usually the case) does not affect the rhythm. Intense emotions, such as worry, anxiety, embarrassment, abolish the rhythm altogether. Sleep changes the pattern of the brain rhythm.

This rhythm does not make its appearance until the fourth month of infantile life. After that there is a gradual increase in frequency until the tenth or twelfth year, when the adult frequency is established.

When this apparatus is attached to people in a hypnotic sleep, the pattern of the waves is the same as that of an awake but resting person. The suggestion of light abolishes the waves in a hypnotized person in the same manner as the actual stimulus of light. When, in a daylit room, it was suggested to the hypnotized subject that he was blind, the rhythm appeared; when it was suggested that he could see, the rhythm disappeared.

Probably Last Year When Public May Watch the Quints at Play

By ORMA TONGUE
Canadian Press Correspondent

CALLANDER, Ont., May 27 (CP)—Before the Dionne quintuplets are five years old—they will be four tomorrow — they may disappear from the front pages, cease to smile from the ads and end their screen careers.

Completion of their fourth year of life has brought renewed consideration among quint guardians whether it would be wise to withdraw them from their public and give them a chance to grow up as other youngsters.

Indications the guardians are leaning toward a policy of sheltering them more than in the past are seen in arrangements for tomorrow's birthday celebration. It will be a quiet affair with the international broadcasts that have marked other birthdays not on the program.

Their screen careers were terminated, for some years at least, recently when Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, their physician, announced they would make no picture after the feature film on which they will start soon is completed.

Decision of their guardians on May 19 to reunite the quints with their parents, Oliva and Elzire Dionne, and their seven brothers and sisters increased the possibility this will be the last summer visitors will be permitted to watch the children at play. More than 400,000 are expected to see them before fall.

Within the next few months a home will be built near the Dafoe nursery, where the girls now live to house the whole Dionne family and bring them together for the first time since Sept. 22, 1934, when the quints left their farmhouse birthplace.

Their father is to be given a louder voice in the affairs of Annette, Cecile, Emilie, Marie and Yvonne. This also may be a force tending to withdraw them from their present money making activities as darlings of the screen and the newspaper picture section.

Menu Hint

Ham and Veal Muffins
Creamed New Cabbage
Carrot and Lettuce Salad
Corn Sticks — Fresh Pineapple
Coffee or Tea

I am giving you the recipe for a very good dish which will make a change in your menu. Ham and veal are particularly good together, as the ham gives a good flavor to the rather bland taste of the veal. These "muffins" will make a very good dinner, supper or luncheon dish. And corn sticks seem to me the very best sort of hot bread to serve with them. By the way, how about a set of corn stick pans for the shower or wedding present for the bride?

Today's Recipes

HAM AND VEAL MUFFINS — Three-fourths pound ham, one-half pound veal, one small can spaghetti with tomato sauce, one small onion, one egg. Have ham and veal ground. Chop onion fine and cut spaghetti with a knife. Place all in bowl and mix well. Butter muffin

Bake about three-quarters of an hour at 350 degrees. Serves eight. Muffins are moist and delicious.

CORN STICKS — One-fourth cup butter, one-half cup sugar, two eggs, one cup milk, two cups flour, one cup corn meal, four teaspoons baking powder, one and one-half teaspoons salt. Cream butter; add sugar and eaten eggs. Stir in milk alternately with the mixed and sifted dry ingredients. Beat well and pour into greased iron corn stick pans. Bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees F., for about 20 minutes.

The hall and tables were beautifully decorated. Covers were laid for 45.

LINE ABANDONMENT ONLY SMALL PART OF BEATTY PLAN

There seems to be some misunderstanding regarding proposed abandonment of existing railroad lines, chiefly on account of duplication, which has been under discussion in connection with the Beatty plan to reduce losses by some $70,000,000.

It is not the Canadian Pacific alone which proposes to cut out duplicated operations. The Canadian National has the same policy. Both companies outlined their policies in this respect in 1932. The Canadian National proposed the abandonment of 2439 miles and the Canadian Pacific of 4963 miles, the C.P.R. in each stating the alternate route on which traffic would be handled. Both companies proposed abandonment of some of their own lines and some of those of the competing company.

Too much is being made of line abandonment in discussion of the Beatty plan to cut down our losses on railway operation. Both concerns have proposed line abandonment and, in any event, it does not represent more than 10 per cent of the total savings Sir Edward Beatty proposes. The reason is obvious: Lines to be abandoned carry little traffic and consequently employ few people and little equipment. Some changes in the Okanagan are proposed, none in Kootenay.

KEEPING UP CHINESE MORALE

Cinema vans, gymnasts and musicians are making regular visits to the Chinese forces on the northern fronts. This social work, which has a marked effect on the morale of the troops, is organized by the War Area Service corps, a department of the national military council at Hankow.

The current impression abroad seems to be that hospital and social services for Chinese solders are negligible, and that such work is for the most part in the hands of foreign missions and other philanthropic societies.

In actual fact the military council, whose chairman is Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, has organized since the beginning of the war a hospital service for the wounded on a large though still inadequate scale and is also the means of coordinating the many voluntary bodies which are working for the social and physical welfare of the troops at the front, writes a correspondent of the Manchester Guardian.

The task of providing sufficient hospital and medical supplies is enormous. But funds from this and virtually every other country in the world continue to come in large amounts and help to maintain the essential work.

For convalescent soldiers, the military council has established ten army convalescent camps, each capable of accommodating from 3000 to 5000 men. The camps, situated some distance from the fronts, have a particularly good effect on the morale of the men, who are treated with the utmost care so that they may return to active service as soon and in as good health as possible.

An interesting aspect of the convalescent camps is the questionaire which is put to the men from time to time. They are asked what they think of the war, of the camps and of the prospects of victory. To the question whether they wish to rejoin their old divisions when they are fully recovered the answer is invariably affirmative.

When the film vans go to the front the showing of the picture is preceded with a lecture and a display by one of the accompaying gymnasts. The films are usually of a patriotic character, but comedies are shown almost as much and are greatly appreciated by the soldiers.

After the film comes the musician—also part of the company—who teaches the men to sing new songs which the war has created. Such activities, combined with lectures, plays and distribution of food, clothing, cigarettes and sweets, do a great deal in the remaking of the Chinese soldier.

An inevitable and deeply significant effect of this social work among the fighting forces of China is the sense of political consciousness and unity which is permeating even to remote villages far from the fronts. In tiny hamlets in Hunan and Kweichow—many hundreds of miles from the fighting—women are knitting clothing for soldiers, men are sending little sums of hard-earned money into a village or district fund for the comfort of the men at the front.

General Chiang's "New Life" movement was never very popular with the people and was sometimes unduly puritanical. But the present war is showing, and itself fostering, a spirit of solidarity among the masses of China which will be the real test of Japan's strength.

We judge ourselves by what we feel capable of doing, while others judge us by what we have already done.—Longfellow.

The HUMAN SIDE OF THE NEWS

BY EDWIN C. HILL

Bees Never Eat Honey Made by Their Own Generation

Bees practise communism but never waver in their loyalty to the queen bee who is pictured in the circle.

The modern streamlined train harbors no hoboes. There isn't anywhere on its shiny surface so much as a toe-hold for a bum. But tramp bees fare better. Horning in or buzzing in on the shipment of a half-million bees from the south to northern states and Canada are many thousands of "hobo bees," cheerful pan-handlers who usually go along on expeditions like this. And the solid bee citizens and the tramps alike ride the crack trains.

Bees are communists with a strictly regimented social organization. But the only bee who ever gets a snack of honey made by his own generation is the hobo. To him honey is where he finds it. Diligent law-abiding bees eat only the honey made by their predecessors. Their busy lives go to storing up golden manna for bees to come.

That seems a quaint insectivorous idea, but if you will consider the ownership of the train they ride on you will be reminded that men, too, launch their industry far into the future. The West Shore railroad has security obligations set to mature in the year 2361. That is, it promises to deliver so much "honey" in that year to consumers still to be born.

The difference seems to be that the bees never extend their pledge beyond one generation, and when they die they leave a full discharge of their obligation. A bee will starve before he will eat honey which belong to his descendant — unless he is a hobo, and the hobo doesn't have descendants.

As human society moves farther along the road to complete bee-hive regimentation, the more tramps it makes, although the bees manage to keep the proportion down. In our planetary hive, indigence or slavery seems to be in close proportion to complexity and centralized control. Looking at nature, we are apt to regard any stable organization as benign and inevitable and in accord with biological laws. But isn't it possible that the vagabond bees are like old Carter Glass, "unreconstructed rebels" and hold-outs in a lock-step society?

Nature is neither a moralist nor a precisionist and recognizes no fait accompli. The bees have to work just as hard as we do to maintain the stability of their society. There are 15 policemen in each hive. If a hobo comes around he gets the bum's rush unless he brings a bit of honey. If he has this price of admission they will let him in for a visit, but out he goes after a look around.

Frequently the reserve police force of the hive is summoned to repel an attack of bees. They have prowlers, gangsters and extortionists, and there are curious crime waves in the bees' world. Usually the outlaws are killed when they are caught, but sometimes a bee will reform, bring some honey to the hive, take a work card along with the others, and live in peace with the community.

The bee police are constantly on watch against other racketeering insects. There is a tiny beetle which hides deep in a flower, grabs the rides unnoticed to the hive—or to the cave if he is riding a bumble bee He is so small he is apt to get away with some honey unless they are watching.

And here is a curious bit of soundly authenticated bee lore. When the bees catch one of these intruders, the crowd gangs him, wads him up in a ball of honey and rolls him out—wasting far more honey than he possibly could have stolen. It seems stupid, although it does visit poetic justice on the thief.

Those bees travelling north are sold by the pound—5000 of them to a pound. There wouldn't seem to be much of a chance for individuality in anything sold by the pound, yet Foster A. Lockhart of Lake George, who has raised bees and studied them for 52 years, says they dance for joy, moan in sorrow and sing with happiness. He winds wide emotional and temperamental differences among any predatory neighbors. Italian bees are quick-tempered and given to loud and ferocious buzzing.

To supply you or me with one drop of honey, a bee has to make 3000 round trips to a flower. In any hive, about 1000 of them die each day and 2000 are hatched. In addition to their policemen, they have undertakers, laborers, chemists, air-conditioning experts, nursemaids, and structural engineers. Theirs is the most extreme division of labor in the insect world and the nearest approach to communims—or fascism. Their queen won't even feed herself.

Every day, queens are shipped around the country through the mails. They ride in little two-room and kitchenette apartments cut in a piece of wood four inches long, an inch wide and an inch deep. The rooms are circular, and in them are the queen and 15 attendants who feed her. In the kitchenette is a slab of cream candy and honey. And they are the oldest royal dynasties in the world.

All this to make honey for future generations. And how like our own hive as we go on, more and more, discounting the future.

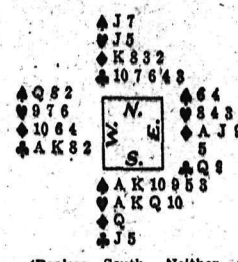
TOO LAZY TO COUNT

THERE ARE people who either can't or won't add up to 13. Usually they just "wouldn't be bothered". Or perhaps they "only play for fun". Others would like to ask them what fun they can find in just playing any old card. The real joy of the game is in figuring things out.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

The bidding on this deal was opened by South with 1-Spade, to which North responded with 1-No Trump. South's next bid was 3-Spades. After 3-No Trumps by North, South showed his heart suit at four and North went to 4-Spades.

West started the defense by cashing the club K, followed by the A. When both East and South followed on both rounds, it was apparent that a switch was in order. The diamond 10 was next led by West and a small card was played from dummy. East decided to hold up his ace to knock off the king. The result was that the diamond Q captured the trick and South had no difficulty in making his contract. His losses amounted to the two club tricks and the spade Q.

Had East been awake and listened to the bidding he would have realized that, as South followed on two club leads and had shown a distribution of six spades and four hearts by his bidding, he held only one diamond.

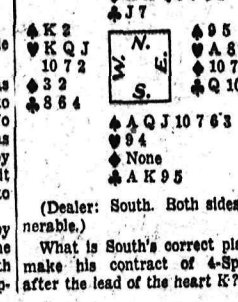
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

What is South's correct play to make his contract of 4-Spades, after the lead of the heart K?

Curious, Nelson—Can you give me some idea of the increase in religion in Canada in the last few years?

Following are figures given in the 1921 and 1931 census: Roman Catholics, 3,389,626 in 1921; 4,285,289 in 1931; United Church, 2,017,375 in 1931; Anglicans, 1,407,780 (1921); 1,635,615 (1931); Presbyterian, 1,409,406 (1921); 870,728 (1931); Baptist, 421,730 (1921); 443,341 (1931). F. G., Trail—Does the south magnetic pole attract a compass needle?

While the north magnetic pole attracts the north end of the needle and repels the south end, the south pole repels the north end and attracts the south end. This is true no matter in what part of the earth the needle is placed, and there is no reversal of the needle when the magnetic equator is crossed.

K. M., Salmo—How old do wild geese live to be?

It is difficult to say just how long they live but there is an authentic case of two Canada geese captured in 1855 in Chesapeake Bay that were still living in 1923.

C. E., Ymir—Are beet leaves really good to eat?

Beet leaves are more valuable food than beet roots. However care should be taken to select only leaves which have no diseased or dead-looking spots.

WHAT THE PRESS IS SAYING

LATEST WHEAT PROBE

The Turgeon report, like that of Sir Josiah Stamp and other experts who have been connected with the various investigations, states that the futures market is essential, not only to allow hedging by traders, but also to stabilize the price and to give the grower a steady market. Without the futures market the buyer would be compelled to allow himself a far larger margin for loss and that margin would be deducted from the price paid to the farmer. As it is, there are few commodities in which the margin of profit is so close as in the grain business, a fraction of a cent per bushel, often being the deciding factor between profit and loss.

Mr. Justice Turgeon found that, during the period when the wheat pools were the dominant factor in the western grain trade, there had grown up a feeling of hostility towards Canadian grain among the importers, a feeling which must be dispelled. The alleged effort to hold up the importers and secure a price not warranted by world conditions had resulted in an increase in unsold stocks in Canada, and finally in resort to the governments of the country to guarantee the advances made by the banks.

—Fort William Times-Journal.

PRIME MINISTER AND THE PRESS

The tributes paid to the prime minister, at the annual dinner of the Parliamentary Press Gallery to the British Press, and especially his declaration of faith in the value of a free press, will be peculiarly gratifying to journalists and to the public at this moment. A few weeks ago there was genuine, and not unreasonable, suspicion that the extreme sensibility to criticism of foreign dictators might impose restriction, of an unofficial kind, on the liberty with which they are criticized in Britain, if not at home; Mr. Chamberlain's speech should satisfy everyone that their protests will have no effect on him. But his remarks inspire some pertinent reflections. He has now, in turn, guaranteed that there shall be no military conscription, no industrial conscription, no attempt to restrict the right to criticism and expression. In this he has the support of the vast majority of the country.—London Spectator.

ADVANCE WEATHER BULLETIN

For Western and Central Canada, embracing British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario.

Monday, May 30, 1938—Warmer, with showery rains about central regions, but on Pacific slope and also in regions of great lakes of Manitoba fairly clear.

Tuesday, May 31—Temperatures nearly everywhere considerably above normal; clouds, showers, windy conditions in central regions; on Pacific slope rainy.

Wednesday, June 1—Most of country fairly clear, but some cloudy conditions, with light showers on Pacific slope and in southwest sections of central regions.

Thursday, June 2— On Pacific slope and about west central provinces unsettled, cloudy, light rains, but most of east fairly clear; warm, but temperature quite variable.

Friday, June 3—Changeable temperatures about the central regions with somewhat cloudy, unsettled conditions, though not much rain, as much of country should be fairly clear.

Saturday, June 4—Some cloudy conditions and probably very light raining about Pacific slope and the southwest central regions, but most of country clear, cooler.

Sunday, June 5—Light rain clouds about [illegible] and cool weather in central provinces.

Week May 30 to June 5, 1938, in central provinces begins with temperatures up to or above normal in most parts, with some cloudy, showery conditions in the Alberta and Saskatchewan regions. Around middle of week temperatures change for most part cooler, but in general quite variable. No great rain storms expected, but there should be showery conditions throughout the country, and as these occur in various parts, the total rainfall for the region is estimated as up to or above the normal for the mid summer season.

In nearly every part of this region the month of June is the rainiest month of the year and the general forecast for the year of 1938 is for fully normal rain in all sections. It is true these June rains are showery, which means that they cover only local territory, leaving wide spaces in between, to be moistened by later showers. But the showers around this time should be frequent, so that total moisture ought to be fairly satisfactory for most of the region. The amount of rain to be expected in a normal June varies with the locality, though the figures in general show very fair amounts nearly everywhere. The Shot That Raised Cain

Jimmy Dunn has written a book called "Paper Chase". He tells amusing stores of the Great war. For instance:

In a neighboring battery was a newspaperman and an observer named Jim Broom, who, during the temporary absence of an officer, had to plot the range of his howitzer. "He was chatting merrily to us, and perhaps the plotting was a little haphazard. Broom telephoned the range to his howitzer. It fired.

"It was an interesting shot," records Dunn. "It missed the Ypres sector. It missed a great deal of Flanders. In fact, it missed the war. But somewhere, somehow, in the lord knows what important sequestered nook, Broom had made a clean sweep. Personally, I think he hit a corps commander.

"What we all knew was that shortly afterwards every gun in the German armament, and some they had obviously hurried over from the Italo-Austrian front, opened up. They bombarded all night and they bombarded next day. . . .

"Our dug-out was one in which the entry was made by sliding down, and as we crouched at the bottom we listened. There would be a volcanic noise. We would ask: 'Is that a shell, or is that Broom?' Happily it was always Broom.

"For two days the German army tried to hit Broom. Even today, when the lights are low and the fire is flickering, I close my eyes and try and imagine just what Broom did hit. . . .

When Domestic Ice Was Novelty

"An importation of an entire cargo of ice has just taken place by a vessel arrived in the river from Leer (Hanover) . . . The quantity contained in this cargo was something less than 100 tons weight in bulk. This is the first arrival of ice during the present season from any of the States of Europe, although there has already been one of considerable extent from the United States.—The Times, March 28, 1848.

MORE ABOUT MOTOR FIRMS

Charges against the three motor companies were contained in three separate indictments. These alleged the district attorney said, that the companies conspired toward "stifling and interfering with the interstate commerce for promotion of monopoly" and that their action caused "irreparable damage" to small automobile finance companies.

One indictment was against the General Motors Company, the General Motors Sales corp., the General Motors Acceptance corporation, and 19 individuals, including Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., and William S. Knudsen.

Another named the Ford Motor company, the Universal Credit corporation and its divisions, and Edsel Ford and 12 other individuals.

A third was against the Chrysler corporation, the Chrysler Sales corporation, the Dodge Brothers company, the DeSoto Motor corporation, the Plymouth Motor corporation, and the Commercial Credit company, and its branches. This also named Walter P. Chrysler and 17 other persons.

It was the government's second attempt to obtain indictments against the "big three' of the automobile industry. A grand jury at Milwaukee considered similar evidence last winter, but was dismissed on December 17 before it could make a report.

MORE ABOUT FLOODS

The West Arm of Kootenay lake at Nelson was up 10.8 inches, making the rise slightly more than 2½ feet in three days.

FOUR-DAY RUN

Normal freshet expectation in the Kootenays, it is pointed out by engineers, is about three days of peak run in the normal year. This year there have been four days of continuous high runoff in the creeks and streams, and it is hoped the bulk of the heavy runoff is past. It is admitted, however, that should there be heavy snow still in the upper hills, and should there be continued hot weather, high water may continue for several days yet.

Cooler weather Thursday night assisted in checking the creeks.

The Goat river near Creston was less troublesome yesterday, stated O. G. Gallaher, assistant district engineer for the department of public works, on his return from that district, where he joined in the fight to keep the river from overflowing and causing extensive damage. The river rose about six inches Thursday night and was belived to be at its peak then.

QUIET NELSON AREA

"Everything quiet" was the report in Nelson district. South of Salmo, where the rising Salmo river covered the road to a depth of four to six inches beginning Tuesday, there had been sufficient recession to clear the road. None of the bridges on the Nelson-Nelway highway were in particular danger.

Along the West Arm, while creeks were still running high, none of the bridges were in particular danger. There has been little or no threat to the safety of bridges west of Nelson to Robson, the report for Rossland-Trail riding covering Castlegar west beyond Rossland, Fruitvale to Trail and Pend d'Oreille valley, was that "everything is under control". The Columbia and smaller rivers were still rising however.

The Slocan made no report Friday of threatening or dangerous conditions, and hence it was taken that creeks and streams in that district were not causing apprehension. Snowfall in the Slocan was not as heavy as in some of the other districts, it was pointed out.

TRAINS UNINTERRUPTED

Some apprehension was caused by the height of the Michel river in East Kotoenay and crews were standing ready to take action if needed, but there appeared to be little immediate danger.

Since clearing of debris from the Canadian Pacific railway track at Blake early in the week after an old creek bed filled again and brought down an accumulation of rubbish, there has been no major obstruction of railway lines on the Nelson division. Railwaymen as well as provincial government public works men were watching the freshet waters closely, however, standing prepared to meet each situation as it arose. Major concern of both railway, government bridge and road crews was to prevent streams becoming dammed up by logs and debris jamming in the creek beds and against bridges.

ELK RIVER HIGH

FERNIE, B.C., May 27 — Hot weather of the past few days has brought the Elk river to the flood stage.

A crew of 30 men has been sent to Hosmer, eight miles east of Fernie, where the road is under two feet of water. If the flood conditions are not checked at this point traffic will have to be stopped.

The river is over the banks at the West Fernie bridge and both the curling and skating rinks are flooded.

FRASER RISING AT RECORD SPEED

MISSION CITY, B.C., May 27 (CP) —Annual flood danger from the racing Fraser river struck Mission City district again today as the river gauge showed a rise of more than three feet in 24 hours.

River observers said the rise was faster than "any other time since records were first kept 40 years ago."

MONTANA THREATENED

LIBBY, Mont., May 27 (AP) — Northwestern Montana streams, swollen by water from rapidly melting snow in the high mountains, neared the flood stage tonight.

At Rexford east of here, the Kootenai river was reported rising at the rate of an inch an hour today. The Yaak river, in the western part of Lincoln county, was reported to have left its banks.

At Libby, the Kootenai was dangerously high and rising steadily.

Conservatives Hear Morgan, B.C. Organizer

J. H. Morgan, official organizer of the British Columbia Conservative association, addressed a lengthy meeting of the Nelson Conservative association in the Canadian Legion rooms Friday night.

He had just arrived from a meeting of the Cranbrook Conservatives, where four delegates were elected to the provincial convention to be held in September.

Mr. Morgan announced the provincial convention would be held at Kamloops, but on a suggestion by C. B. Garland that Penticton would be more accessible for Kootenay and Okanagan people, he said he would take up the question with the provincial executive. Trail and Nelson were also discussed as possible convention centres.

Owing to the length of the meeting, no resolutions were drafted, but a committee of five was appointed to draft resolutions for the Ottawa convention and present them to a larger meeting in the near future, possibly on June 9. C. F. McHardy, Stanley Horswill, C. B. Garland, H. B. Gore and Morris Bercov were named the committee with Mr. McHardy chairman.

MORE ABOUT WOLF DIVORCE

Fruitvale under compromising circumstances. Carl and Paul Wolf, brothers of the petitioner, and William Bagg and Arthur Bagg, their companions, testified to seeing Mrs. Wolf and Stratton. Mrs. Wolf denied there had been any wrongdoing by herself and Stratton, and claimed she was the victim of a plot.

When the case was called Friday Miss Stratton was placed on the stand by Mr. King. She testified Jacob Wolf asked her on May 13, in the presence of her mother and Carl Wolf, to state when she appeared in court that she did not know Wolf, and that she did not know anything about the November occurrence. "A couple of months" before the theatre and supper party in November Wolf had told her he was going to get a divorce, she said.

LETTERS ARE ENTERED

In cross-examination Mr. Baker entered as an exhibit a letter in which Miss Stratton said she was "very much insulted" by the appearance of her name in the Nelson Daily News in connection with the case, adding she was engaged to a young man in Kaslo and that the publicity was causing trouble. She suggested an apology in the newspaper. Miss Stratton told the court she made an untrue statement in the letter when she said: "I don't see why I should be mentioned in this case when I don't know this party."

Regarding two other letters dealing with her "nights off" when working at Trail, Miss Stratton described as untrue the statements in the letters that she was not able to go out Thursday nights.

She had never been engaged to Jacob Wolf, but when after residing on a neighboring farm at Wood Mountain, Sask., he left for Grenfell, "he promised he would send for me." She had known Wolf seven or eight years, she testified.

NOT IN KASLO

Called in rebuttal, Wolf denied he had been in Kaslo May 13, and stated he had not seen Miss Stratton "until today". He never lived at Wood Mountain except to work for a month or so in the spring on his father's farm, and never told Miss Stratton he would "come back for her." He did not know Miss Stratton then, he said, no did he know where she lived.

John Wolf, his father, detailed places in Saskatchewan where the family lived, stating his son was home "part of the time and part working out". He had never seen him with Miss Stratton.

Carl Wolf, brother of the petitioner, third rebuttal witness of the day, stated he had never been in Kaslo as alleged by Miss Stratton. He said he had never been there in his life.

LETTER, CHRISTMAS CARD

Recalled by Mr. King, Miss Stratton identified a letter she said she received from Jacob Wolf while he was residing at Grenfell, Sask., and a Christmas card she stated received from him in 1936, identifying the handwriting and adding that she had other letters from him, as well as pictures, at home. She had known both Jacob and Carl in Wood Mountain and they had visited in each other's homes.

On the stand again, Wolf denied that he had sent the Christmas card and declared the writing on it was not his. Nor had he seen the letter before, he said. He had never written to Miss Stratton. Some of his personal belongings such as pictures, papers, snapshots, cooking utensils and so on, which he had left in the house he and his wife occupied previous to separating, were missing after his return from the prairies, he added.

Summing up, Mr. King argued that evidence of adultery was not supported and that the circumstances alleged made it almost impossible. He charged an attempt to connive was shown by the stories of the prosecution witnesses.

The only reason Evelyn Stratton was brought into the case was because Mrs. Wolf lost her husband's affections and blamed it on another woman, Mr. Baker argued. He charged "a deliberate attempt to fabricate evidence" in the form of a letter to Mrs. Wolf, said to be from her father-in-law. He submitted Mrs. Wolf "has put on an act in the courtroom", suggesting "she has been to too many picture snows."

The burden of proof of adultery rested on the petitioner, his lordship said. There had been contradictory evidence to a marked extent throughout the hearing, and "in the midst of all this contradictory evidence the petitioner has not satisfied me that the respondent committed adultery. The petition is dismissed."

MORE ABOUT Robertson Case

Friday morning the petition was again presented and Pete Kapak, proprietor of the New Grand hotel, was called to identify the hotel register as of February 18.

It was after he had been heard that his lordship requested Robertson be subpoenaed, and late in the afternoon the case was called again for the fifth time.

Robertson denied that he and his wife had made any arrangement, agreement or bargain as to provision of divorce evidence. He denied there had been any collusion to provide divorce evidence, and volunteered that he had "given her cause" for divorce.

DUTY TO INQUIRE

His lordship in giving judgment stated it was his duty to inquire into the question of collusion between the petitioner and respondent.

"I do not think one should begin with the suspicion of collusion," he said, "but it is necessary that the court satisfy itself whether or not the petitioner is an accessory to or conniving at the adultery, and the court inquires whether or not the petition is presented or prosecuted in collusion—

"I have done my utmost to investigate the matter fully and have asked anyone having evidence to come forward—"

Stating it was unusual to request calling one of the parties as a witness, his lordship stated he could not find that Mrs. Robertson "has during the marriage been an accessory to or conniving at adultery, nor that the petition was presented or prosecuted in collusion."

In justice to the petitioner "and to the public who are concerned in this matter" he could come to no other conclusion than that adultery had been committeed, he stated, and had no reason to refuse the petition.

MORE ABOUT CAPT. ORR

was first promoted to captain of one of the lake tugs, the Valhalla, on October 1, 1905. All his service was performed on Kootenay lake, and included handling of tugs and passenger steamers. At the time of his retirement, due to ill health, he was master of the Moyie, but previously was master of the Nasookin before it was taken off the Kootenay Landing run in December, 1930. Before that he was master of the Kuskanook on the upper lake run.

He enlisted in January, 1917, but before the war was over was invalided home from Mesopotamia.

Captain Orr had made his home at Nelson from the time he came to the Kootenays. Ranchers and residents in nearly every cove and bay on the main lake and west arm knew him. He was a member of the Nelson District Oldtimers association.

Wait Information From England on Smoke Eaters' European Trip

TRAIL, B.C., May 27—Nothing definite on Smoke Eaters proposed trip to Europe next winter had been received to date, but through the C.A.H.A. and the B.C.A.H.A. the Trail Hockey club was awaiting information on plans of the British Ice Hockey association, London, England, it was divulged by O. H. Nelson, reelected president of the Trail Hockey club at the general annual meeting in the city hall tonight.

All possible was being done to hurry receipt of necessary information so the local club would know what action to take from there, Mr. Nelson said. Copies of letters received from Prof. W. G. Hardy, C.A.H.A. president, Edmonton, concerning communications with the British association, had been given to each member of the team.

When several asked about whether the team would be intact to make the trip, Mr. Nelson replied that so far none of the boys had told him they planned leaving Trail.

FINANCIAL MATTERS

Alderman J. A. Wadsworth informed the meeting that the Trail hockey club trust fund, for which a drive was made after the team arrived home, amounted to $3642.

Financial report of the club for the year showed that after starting with a balance of $268.87 and handling $7037.36, there remained a cash balance of $382.56.

The hockey players accident fund began the year with $802.23, received donation of $300 from the hockey club and disbursements were $168.4 leaving a cash balance to date of $933.76.

Other officers elected were as follows: James Buchanan and L. A. Campbell, honorary presidents; "Rusty" O'Sullivan, vice-president; C. E. Crowe, Jimmy Morris, "Buck" Buchanan and Clifford Morgan, executive.

CHEQUE PROVES BLESSING IN TIME OF NEED

On Tuesday we received a letter from a young woman who is in domestic service in an Ontario city. She acknowledged the cheque for insurance policy No. 368,243 on the life of her sister and said:

"This policy was a wonderful asset. My sister and I work in private homes. Mary always kept her insurance paid but saved little otherwise. Having no home she was taken to the hospital and was sick for three weeks. There were doctors, special nurses, and finally burial expenses. Had it not been for her insurance I would have been in debt for a long time. Now her debts are paid and I have some money to make me feel independent in my lonely hours."

It is to those receiving modest incomes that insurance often means so much. In the case stated above it meant the difference between independence and a lengthy financial burden.

When choosing your life insurance company consider the 68 year record of this Canadian "mutual" company. Any of our representatives, or Head Office will be glad to assist you in selecting the right type of policy.

For Better Telephone Service
The Operators Will Say,
"THANK YOU"
Instead of Repeating the Number

Adopting a method already in use in Vancouver and other British Columbia cities, Nelson telephone operators will shortly cease to repeat the number back to the calling party. They will simply say, "Thank you," after being given the number, and will then proceed to put the call through.

The new method, which is widely and successfully used on this continent, not only provides a higher degree of efficiency in handling calls, but also sets a standard of courtesy which tends to make more pleasant the innumerable daily contacts between the Telephone Company and the telephone users.

The new operating practice will go into effect in the Nelson exchange on May 30. Here is how a call will be placed under the new method:

Operator: "Number, please?"
Calling Party: "123."
Operator: "Thank you."

But if the operator is not certain that she has heard the number correctly, she will say, "What number, please?" so that it can be repeated to her, and she will not proceed with the call until she is sure of the number.

ONE MORE WEDDING!

to an automobile, and taken for a ride. He did not know where the building was located in which he was held captive. However, he judged it was a couple of miles from the spot where he had met the men.

He had been taken to a fairly comfortable bedroom-living room, whose windows were barred, and left. First, he had been searched for weapons. Four days had passed and he was growing restless. He welcomed any events that broke the monotony of the hours. When the men hit upon the idea of asking ransom for him, which followed discovery of his police card and other identification papers, he approved the idea—silently. At least, the world would know he was somewhere.

"What's this?" one of the two examiners queried, picking up the pages of his play.

"Some drivel I was writing I had a hunch it might be a play."

They left it with him. During the hours that followed he continued to work on it. It was quite remarkable the way that the human mind could function, the clarity and aloofness that it could portray, when it stepped aside from its own living contacts, he mused once in a while. He was doing good work, that he knew. Good work that would be burned probably, in order to destroy all evidence.

Now and then he thought of Barbara. He hoped she would be very happy with Ray. If he, Garry Page, struggling young playwright who had hit Broadway, by some quirk of fate, were going to have his curtain rung down, it was much better for everyone concerned that Barbara was in love with Ray, and that Wenda was entirely removed from the scene.

His kidnappers came into his room, interrupting his flow of thought.

"Hand over the pages, guy," one of them said.

"A lot of them. They'll make a big bonfire," Garry answered.

"Not on your life. This is proof that we've got you here. We're mailing 'em to your office."

They were taking chances! If these men would go to such risks, they were as desperate as he had imagined.

"Then what?" he asked. He had not heard the baby crying all day. The day before it had been fretful. Apparently it was in a room next to his.

"If those rich bozos come across, it will be worth the risk. Take a note."

Garry wrote as they dictated: "I am certain my release will follow if you comply to agreements of the men holding me. Garry Page."

"Wouldn't you like to be really certain?' 'one of the men asked.

"What about the child?" Garry asked. "Any word from his parents?"

"They are leaving the money at a place we told them to, tonight at 12. If it's unmarked money, all ones and fives and tens, we're dropping the kid off in another spot two hours later. You might as well know. You won't be telling anyone."

Under the half smile on Garry's face the muscles of his chin and cheeks were taut. Yet he talked with a gay half drawl: "Thanks for telling me. It gives me something to think about."

"Not so dumb, are you, brother?"

Garry shrugged. "The cards are stacked against me."

The men closed the door as they went out. They did not lock it. After a while he heard the chugging of a car and knew that some of the group had gone away. He had a premonition that things were going to happen an dhappen fast.

Bird Bath Should Be Safe Place

In the winter we lure birds to our gardens with feeding trays, and in the summer with bird baths for both drinking and bathing purposes. There are wrong and right ways of planting about a bird bath, and many people by making a wrong planting unthinkingly endanger the lives of the very birds they wish to atttract.

Figure 1 of the Garden-Graph shows a bird bath set in wrong type of planting. It is surrounded with tall growing shrubs and perennials which are permitted to grow close to the bird bath itself. This is dangerous for the birds that come to drink or bathe, since the tall, thick planting affords a screen in which their four-footed enemies can hide, ready to pounce upon the unsuspecting birds.

Figure 2 shows a decorative type of planting around a bird bath, and one that does not permit bird enemies to lie in hiding.

When buying or making a bird bath do not select one which holds any great depth of water, as the small birds are afraid of deep water. The depth of water at the outer rim should not exceed one inch, and the depth in the center should not exceed three inches.

A mulch of peat moss or other light material about the base of the newly planted trees and shrubs

Wrong and right bird bath planting will conserve moisture and save labor.

Seeds of herbaceous plants may be sown outdoors from now on.

If herbaceous plants are moved from now on they should be pot grown in small divisions, especially the asters and similar plants which may become woody with age.

Inside & Out!

OF NELSON HIGH SCHOOL

WITH R.J.C.

What fun to always tell the truth,
And never tell a lie.
Some day, when I am very old,
I'll give the thought a try.

(Dedicated to "Inside and Out" by R. M.)

Good Morning! Like black plush on which a cosmic hand has laid an arrangement of diamond-studded dominoes, against whose almost geometric brilliant-on-black pattern the monument and the dome stick up like chessmen of mother-of-pearl, abandoned by some vanished giants who grew wearied of their games. Or don't you care for quaint conceits? You're right. The above simile of verbal nonsense is what one flier told a newspaper what he thought Washington looked like from the air. (He may be right, but I don't like his altitude. A Pun, my soul!)

IS IT THE TRUTH?

You seldom see two co-eds matching coins or tossing to decide who shall pay the carfare, the soda check, or such small (?) item. Boys and older boys do it a lot—girls almost never. Why? . . . At a certain gathering the other night I heard an argument about this. It was said as proof that women are merely good-sport or social gamblers who love any play of chance for its own sake. If we were, it was agreed, we'd toss and match coins among ourselves the way the boys do. . . . "Nonsense!" shouted my gentleman escort. "Women don't toss a coin because they know they'd probably drop it on the floor, and get mussed up scratching around for it. The girls like to gamble just as much as the men—only they're too butterfingered for coin tossing." I will admit that it wasn't an exactly complementary observation, but I wonder if it's true? What is your conception?

FASHION HINTS

According to your correspondent's correspondent in Spokane: "Co-eds here at Lewis and Clark High school fired right back at the gentlemen students who criticized their dress as 'dowdy'.

"The girls posted these suggestions for the school boys (or should I say 'us school boys'?) on the bulletin board:

"1. Shave. Why increase blue Monday with a blue beard?

2. Wash your neck. (Daily if possible).

"3. Wear a shirt under your sweater and have the sweater cleaned occasionally.

"4. Press your trousers so they will look less like burlap sacks.

"5. Carry a handkerchief."

OUR FAN MAIL, Singular

From Elaine Eous we get this lovely letter:

Sir—I have been a fairly steady reader of The Daily News for the past two or three years, and I see no reason why a perfectly good and sensible newspaper should be spoiled by the illiterate babbling of a nit-wit who got into the wrong school by mistake. Last year, the column "Out of the Mouths of Babes" was sparkling with witticisms, but this year the column has lost all the sparkle. (I think that a person with some sound common sense should be appointed to take charge of this column.)

(Sgd.) "Miss Elaine Eous, alias "Giggles," Silica, B.C."

Thanks "Giggles" for your "sparkling" letter. And how is everything at Silica? (In your next letter would you mind giving me full particulars. We used to live near Silica in a very simple farm called "One Shy Cow.")

GASSUP

It is rumored that there is to be a popularity contest at Nelson High school. Our vote for the most popular boy would be Howie Campbell, with yours truly a close second. (Oh yeah?) And remember boys, the next time you throw tomatoes please take them out of the can first. . . . We haven't come to the most popular co-ed yet, but all their names can be found on the back of Mr. Campbell. . . . We wonder why the Boy's Health class is getting so small these days. Is it this hot weather or the tough assignments? . . . It appears that Sheila Dunwoody is a bit "fed up" with school life. . . . And Sheila, Jim Dodding is still living in the same place. Yes, and I know Wright MacIntosh. I hope Phyllis enjoys this column. . . . Maybe it is good that the Daily News "cut" some from our chatter. . . . There was no one on the floor dancing but Bud Emery and Kay Maber. Little did they know they were dancing to "O Canada" at the track meet in Kimberley. . . . Seen around on the 24th: (a) Audrey Emery, Edna Bush and two companions (m) this side of Blaylock's. Audrey was sitting in the boat washing her feet, while the others were standing on the sand talking. (b) Georgina Williscroft and Jack Whitfield going to a dance. (c) Shirley Scatchard, Genevieve Grizzel, Muriel Smith, Bill Taylor and Hank McKenzie were at Ainsworth with Duchess in the lake. (d) Jerry Mann told yours truly and company all the good fishing spots. P.S.—We got one small fish. (e) Frank Swerydo was laughing his eyes out at two boys who couldn't get their boat going. (f) Annie Kosmo and Leonard Jenny tried to hide in the back seat of the car on Baker street. We didn't see them. (g) It was unlucky for eighteen-year-old Jim Allan. He lost to Leigh McBride in a ripping game of golf. (And we (?) thought he couldn't be beaten.)

It never fails to happen: It rained and hailed at Salmo on the great day. And in Ymir they were singing "Hail Columbia". (I think it was "hail") . . . Three cheers for the boys and girls who cleaned up the lab. . . . Now we know why the grade X's are looking so well, they're living up to their menus. . . . We hear the Blue Bombers are going to blast the 111th Artillery softballers. (or be blasted.) That will be a real fight. . . . What is the matter with the other part of "Inside and Out"? Have they run out of those flowery phrases they used to have? . . . That reminds me, this column emphasizes the "truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth." . . . We send the best of luck to the students who are about to take exams in their music. (Especially B. F.) . . . It appears that what we prophesied came true. Have you noticed Hazel Smith's ear? . . . The little dig at the House "A" softballers was all they needed. They played "B" last Wednesday and made the game a good clean one. They managed to squeeze out a 32-2 victory. It must have been 'Bad breaks'. Live up to your slogan boys: "Pep without purpose is piffle". . . . Goodness Haskins, the fog seems to be a little heavier this week.

Kimberley and Cranbrook Gunners in Tactical Exercises and Practices

CRANBROOK, B.C. — The 107th field battery R. C. A. and the 108th howitzer battery from Kimberley with brigade headquarters of the 24th Kootenay field brigade R.C.A., took part in tactical exercises in the vicinity of Fort Steele May 22. Guns were placed in position to cover a certain field of fire, and observation posts set up to communicate with gun positions by field telephone.

In the afternoon guns and equipment were withdrawn to Peckhams lake where valuable practice in shooting and observing were carried out with the use of an aiming rifle and the 18 pounder gun.

Members of 107th Field brigade who passed in the recent artillery examinations following a six weeks course were Lt. P. N. Russell, who took a technical course, to qualify in artillery subjects and gunner at Winnipeg, and Lt. F. C. Aitkens, Lt. N. Reid and Lt. F. Jensen who qualified for lieutenants at Cranbrook.

KIMBERLEY, B.C. — The 108th Field Battery Royal Canadian artillery left Kimberley with guns and field equipment Sunday morning, May 22, to take part in field manoeuvres. The convoy traveled to Fort Steele, via the Wasa road, and was led by Lieutenants Foubister and Todd in a light car, followed by No. 1 Howitzer 4.5 drawn by Leo Rivet's truck and No. 2 Howitzer 4.5 drawn by E. Therreault's truck. The next car to leave was Capt. Reeves', accompanied by Lieut. Smith and B. Q. M. S. Forteath, which overtook the convoy and proceeded to place designated to give Lieut. Smith an opportunity to select the observation post before the batteries arrived. Last to leave was Capt. Kennedy, the battery commander, who made an inspection of the entire convoy and led them to their gun positions and made ready for an inspection by Lieut. Col. D. Philpot, which took place later on and was very instructive, giving the 108th splendid practice in transport and field work.

The officers and personnel of the 107th Field Battery R. C. A. Cranbrook had taken up a position nearby, and had with them a complete equipment for field service.

The two batteries proceeded to Peckham's lake for lunch, afterwards engaging in target practice with the 107th 18-pounder. The colonel instructed the Cranbrook battery to demonstrate their gun drill and target shooting for the 108th battery, also allowing the Kimberley battery to do practice on their gun, which was immensely enjoyed by officers, N.C.O.'s and men.

The day's scheme was arranged by, and under the command of, Lieut. Col. D. Philpot (D.S.O.) (O.B.E.) O. C. 24th (K) field brigade R. C. A., who led the combined convoy on their return home.

Those taking part from Kimberley were Capt. Kennedy, battery commander; Lieut. Smith, assist. battery commander; Lieut. Foubister, gun-position officer; Lieut. Todd, battery leader and section commander; Capt. Reeves (Brigade head quarters staff), checking details; B. Q. M. Sergeant Forteath, acting Sergeant Major; Sergeants Backstrom and Muraca in charge of gun crews.

On the guns were Bombadiers Bennett and Lye and Gunners Peltola, Neumann and Holt.

FOOD, BATHS AND SOCKS "LEAST OF WORRIES" SAY VANCOUVER UNEMPLOYED

VANCOUVER, May 27 (CP).—Spokesman for 700 unemployed holding Vancouver's central post office and art gallery said today that food, baths and clean socks were the least of their worries.

The spokesman said a Vancouver department store had donated 500 pairs of socks. A large majority of their food was donated by sympathizers who ordered it sent to them direct from the stores.

Two Vancouver sports clubs have donated the use of their showers and soap and the men leave the post office in groups for regular baths. They don't even have to worry about towels — a Vancouver towel supply company took care of that too.

Six Inning Pitcher

SYNOPSIS

Gordon Locke is a good pitcher for the Burnham High School baseball team for about six innings, but because of his slight build, he always weakens in the late innings. Usually he is relieved by big, handsome Robinson, who also pitches and wins his own share of the team's games. Playing against Lincoln on Lincoln's diamond, Gordon has a three-run lead going into the seventh, and hopes that for once he can finish the game. But a couple of bad breaks give Lincoln one run, and put two men on base with only one out. Coach Graham takes Gordon out once more and he walks disconsolately to the bench, knowing that Mary Widener, sister of Catcher Red Widener, is a witness to his humiliation. After the game, Gordon expects to ride home with Mary, Red and Ann Taylor in the Widener car, but Mary explains that Hal Robinson has asked her to ride with him. When Red protests, saying he is tired and wants Mary to drive their car, Mary says she will ask Hal to excuse her. She returns a few minutes later, accompanied by Hal, who laughingly makes Gordon sit in the back seat with Red and Ann, while he sits up front with Mary. He has let one of the other boys drive his car home, so he can ride with Mary.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

INSTALLMENT 3

Gordon felt pretty much like the spare tire on the ride back to Burnham. Up front, Hal was keeping up a steady flow of conversation with Mary, while in the back seat, Red was enjoying Ann's company in his usual gay fashion.

"Tell me again!" he was saying to her. "You think that I'm a far better catcher than Bill Dickey of the Yankees, don't you?"

"Of course you are!" said Ann grandly.

"How about Gabby Hartnett of the Chicago Cubs?" inquired Red. "Compared to me he's a bum—right?"

"Right," Ann agreed promptly.

"Ah!" said Red rapturously. "The loyalty of women!"

He paused for a moment and shot a glance at Gordon, on the other side of the car. Then he cleared his throat importantly.

"Ann," he said, "please tell the boys and girls who's the best player on the Burnham team."

"Of course," said Ann. "Red Widener is the best player on the team."

"Sure!" said Red. "Why, he's as good as any other two put together. For example, we used two pitchers today, but only one catcher Good old Red Widener!"

Mary took her eyes off the road long enough to shoot a scornful look at her brother.

color changed, Red," she said. "It should be Violet, because violets are so modest."

Before Red could think up a retort for that, Hal turned in his seat and spoke to Gordon.

"I thought you were going to pull through that game today," he said. "You were doing swell until that bird doubled to start the seventh."

"He was doing swell after that," Red said quickly. "We were robbed on that second batter. The umpire should have called him out on strikes. And then the bad hop on that ground ball was another tough break."

"Oh, well," said Gordon, grinning rather wryly, "as long as you're there to pull 'em out of the fire, Hal, I won't worry."

"Maybe you'll do the same for me one of these days," Hal replied.

Gordon said nothing. He wondered if the day would ever come when Hal couldn't finish a nine-inning game!

Back in Burnham, they stopped to let Hal out in front of the large impressive house in which he lived. Then after taking Ann home, they drove to the Wideners'. Gordon got out with Red and Mary, for he lived only a short distance from them.

"Goodbye, Gordon," said Mary "Sorry that Hal shunted you into the back seat, but after he had asked me to ride home with him, I couldn't blame him."

"No, that was all right," said Gordon. "Thanks for the lift."

With a "so long" to Red, Gordon proceeded home. His father was reading the evening paper in the living room when he entered. Mr. Locke attended all the Saturday games, but the game against Lincoln had been played after classes on Tuesday.

"Hello, there," Mr. Locke greeted heartily. "Well, how did you make out?"

"We won," Gordon told him. "The score was 6-5."

"H-mm! Pretty close. Did you pitch the whole game?"

"No. I got yanked with one out in the seventh."

Mr. Locke was silent for a moment, while Gordon sank into a chair.

"Sam, are you ever fired with enthusiasm?"

Planning Entertainment in Advance Insures Success of Summer Party

By Seth and Margaretta Harmon

Are you planning a class picnic? Or does your family have a big get-together on the First of July? Whatever the occasion, a picnic means a big lunch spread out under the trees, then rousing fun for everybody afterward. You'll have a much jollier time if you make these few easy plans before the big day. Let's call it a picnic jamboree, though it will do for almost any big gathering indoors or out at any time of year.

Here's a jolly game to play while the lunch baskets are being unpacked. Any number of people can take part, so late-comers may begin the moment they arrive, and others may drop out to help make the lemonade or unpack the ice cream. It is called "Ordering Lunch" The players stand in a big circle, facing the centre. The one who is "It" carries an empty paper bag around outside, stops behind someone, and places the bag on that player's head.

"Chef," he says, "have you seen my lunch?"

"How is it wrapped?" the chef replies. Then the one who is "It" describes the way his "lunch" (some other player in the circle) is dressed. The instant the "lunch" recognizes himself from the description, he must run clear around outside the circle and back to his original place with the chef after him, while the one who was "It" steps into the chef's place. If the chef tags his lunch, the lunch must take the chef's hat and be "It", while the chef takes his place in the circle. If the lunch gets back safely to his place, however, the chef must be "It".

THREE NOVEL RACES

Races are always in order at a picnic. Here are three novel ones which everyone will surely enjoy.

(1) Line the players up one behind the other in two teams. Give the leader of each team an empty pop bottle and a hard-boiled egg. At a given signal, each balances his egg on the mouth of his bottle and carries both to a designated spot and back, handing them to the next player and taking his place at the foot of the line. The egg must not be touched with the hands. If it falls off the bottle, that player must run back to the head of the line with it and start his trip again. The team first completing the race wins.

(2) Hand the leader of each team a cup or tumbler full of water. At the signal to start, the leader bends knees to the player behind him. This one passes it up over his head to the third in line, who passes it between his knees to the fourth, and so on, under and over, to the end of the line. The last player carries the cup to the head of the line. The team whose cup still contains the most water wins.

(3) Have the players stan. side by side, the two teams facing one another. Give each player a sipping straw, and a two-inch square of ordinary tissue paper to the leader of each team. At the starting signal, he must suck his square of paper to the end of his straw and turn so his neighbor can take the tissue by sucking in turn on his straw. In this way the paper is passed all the way down the line and back again, without anyone touching it with his hands. If the paper drops, it must be "sipped" up off the ground again by the player who dropped it.

PASSING PEANUTS

"Passing Peanuts" is a hilarious sitting-down stunt. Seat everybody in a circle on the lawn. Each crosses his arms in front of himself and slips his fingers between those of his neighbor on either side. Place a plate of unshelled peanuts between two of the players. With their hands still clasped, they must pick up a peanut and pass it to the next pair of clasped hands on their right. Then another and still another peanut is started around the circle. Until you try this, you can't appreciate how much fun it will create for everybody.

Another riot-provoking stunt is "Shoe Exchange." Stand the players in a circle—or in two or more circles if the crowd is a large one. Give one player in each circle a paper drinking cup half filled with pebbles. He must balance this on top of his head without holding it, and while doing so stoop and untie or unbuckle the shoe of the next player to his right. If he succeeds without dropping the cup, he hands it to that next player, who repeats the stunt with the shoe of the next player in the ring. If he spills the pebbles, however, he must take off his own shoe and hand it to his neighbor. Repeat this around the ring, making each player drop out when he loses both shoes. The player with the biggest armful of shoes at the end of the game determines the forfeits the others must pay to reclaim their shoes.

"Riding the Merry-Go-Round" will bring any outdoor picnic to a rousing conclusion. The players form a double circle, one inside the other, facing the center. The "horses," or those inside, join hands. Each of the "riders" outside places his hands on the shoulders of the player standing in front of him. At a signal from the manager, who stands in the center, all start sidestepping to the right instead of the left, singing any popular tune. They move slowly at first, gradually increasing speed until the riders can barely keep their hold. Then the manager shouts "Change!" and the horses and riders change places. When the merry-go-round starts moving again, it should turn to the right instead of the left.

Do What You Like

One of the greatest college football players in history says that the difference between just a good football player and a real star is a love for the game. Two young men may have equal speed, equal brains, equal size and strength, but if one of them is passionately fond of football and the other does not care much about it, it is certain that the lover of the game will be the better player.

Now, not all of us like the same things—the same sports, the same studies, the same kinds of work. And, of course, we must often do things that we don't like very well. In that case, we should try to learn to like them better, but in the meantime we should give them the best we have.

Still, the fact remains that we must like a thing a whole lot to be expert at it. Remember this, in choosing your sports, your studies, and your hobbies. And by all means, remember it when you begin to think about what sort of work you intend to follow permanently. Liking your work is the first step toward success in it.

Pointers on Pets

By Horace Mitchell

Sometimes it seems as though no first-class dog can be a hero. Most of the dog stories we read and hear tell of mutts or runts or "the weak one of the litter" smashing ahead to do something great. And you must have wondered, as I have, if the pure-bred dogs that conform to their breed standards have any chance at all in anything except prizes for looks.

Of course, Albert Payson Terhune's great collie stories are about handsome dogs that are also intelligent. But stories like these at times seem to be very scarce.

In real life, it works out that handsome dogs have just about as much chance of having brains and using them well as the mutts and the runts.

Some doggy "champs" aren't very smart, but I think that's probably because they've never had a chance. They've been confined too much and brushed too much and coddled too much. They're valuable property, so they can't be allowed to go out and get all messed up adventuring round the country.

On top of that, so far as the fictioneers are concerned, there isn't the story value—sentimental value—in the success of a prize winner as there is in the triumphs of a little yellow dirty mongrel that rises from the gutter and saves a life.

We expect high-class dogs to do things well. Maybe that's half the trouble. We expect them to do well without training, and without the contact with the world that the roaming mongrel acquires.

So don't you be afraid that a pure bred puppy isn't going to be satisfactory. If he's a good one, he'll provide you with just as much fun and satisfaction, and maybe more.

There's one thing to remember when you buy a pure bred dog: Get him from a reliable breeder! There are some dealers in dogs who care for nothing except making a sale. They've been known to give fraudulent pedigree papers, and to make all sorts of claims for the pups that proved false after the dogs grew up.

But there are plenty of honest dog men. They're good fellows and can be relied upon. They'll help you a great deal with your dog.

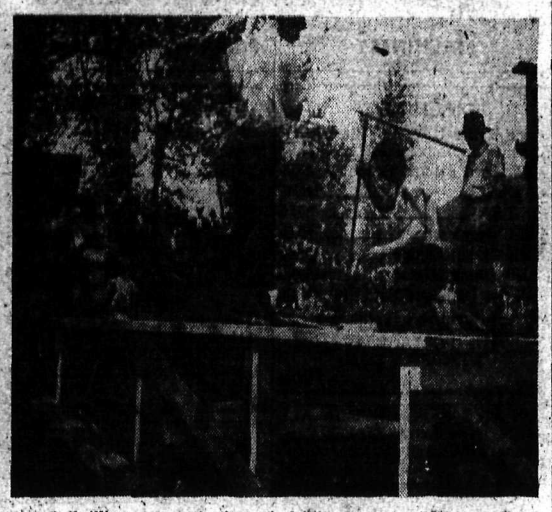
Camera Catches Drill in Mid-Air



A thrilling moment in the rock-drilling contests at Ymir on Empire Day. Drill which shows nearly horizontal was just thrown out of the hole and replaced by another without loss of a stroke. Winners were: Ed Emilson and Sonny Burgess, first; Andy Erickson and George Kirk of Silverton, second; Fred Lufstrom and John Johnston, Ymir, third; Harold Watson and Johnny Clark of Ymir, fourth; Ben Tran and Johnny Ruud, Salmo, fifth.

Backswing

It takes a lot of strength to hit a bad shot. Evidence of this is had in the way many players take the club back. Some will take it back much more than is necessary for the distance the ball is to be sent, others will tie themselves into knots in their efforts to use a lot of strength and develop a lot of power.

In the first place, it is not the length of back swing but the correctness with which the wind-up is made. In the second place, the distance the ball travels is not determined by the amount of strength used but by the way the strength is applied. Taking the club back too far and then slowing up in the downswing is the more common mistake. It shows that the player does not recognize the relation between the back and downswings.

Obviously the club should speed up and not slow down as it nears the ball in the downswing. Any number of things can cause the player to slow up in the downswing, but the main reason is divorcing the backward from the downward motion. Once an interruption has been made, the following action is entirely a matter of guesswork and a good guess is impossible.

I always recommend a comparatively short backswing for approach shots where the average player is prone to overswing. The shortest backswing places him in a position to speed up in the downswing without the danger of sending the ball too far.

CRICKET IS NO TEA PARTY, BUT DANGEROUS SPORT COACH WARNS

By LLOYD A. PERCIVAL

With cricket gaining in popularity in Canada, and many people having but a slight knowledge of the game, a few explanations might find favor with you. First, one thing should be made clear—cricket is no easy pastime, no pink tea affair. It is just as dangerous as most games played with a ball. To become proficient at the game is a task worthy of any athlete's ability.

By way of explanation, let's put ourselves in the shoes of a batsman. The bowler is a fast right-hander, who can "swing" the ball. "Swinging" a cricket ball is equivalent to curving it. A bowler of this type can in addition, make the ball break in the air very late. Besides the speed and the curve, the batter must judge how high and where the ball will bounce. Each type of bowler places his fieldsmen according to the kind of ball he uses. With eleven men in the field, the batsman must be good!

Percival demonstrates the "googlie". His hand is at the top of the delivery, the ball hidden from the batsman's view. When it lands it may break either way.

IT GETS TRICKIER!

Another class is the medium pace bowler who breaks the ball both ways off the ground. By spinning the ball with his fingers, he can make it change direction on hitting the ground. This break can be varied anywhere from one to 12 inches. A left-hand bowler has a natural break that goes away after curling into the batsman as a southpaw delivery does in baseball.

Then there is a type called a "googlie" bowler. This kind delivers the ball from the back of his hand in such a way that the batter cannot tell by watching his hand which way the ball will turn.

Summarizing we find: A bowler can curve the ball, make it break off the ground in different directions, and in varying degrees, and change his pace. There is a tremendous variety of attack against which a batsman must pit his ability. Remember, these bowlers can be changed at will, and a never-ending variety kept up. Combine this with the fact that for each type of bowler there are many planned fielding traps, and you can understand a little better that Bradman must be good!

ONLY 15 WAYS TO BAT

In batting there are 15 fundamental shots. Each one has many variations, and a cricketer must be well versed in all of them to be successful. There are nine ways in which a batter may be put out.

Good eyes, smart footwork, patience, strong wrists and forearms, and first-class co-ordination are prime requisites for successful batting. Courage is also a necessity as a cricket ball is appreciably harder than a baseball and hurts plenty! Some fast bowlers deliver the ball at over 100 m.p.h., and with only about 60 feet separating the batsman from the bowler, accidents are not uncommon.

The fielders do not wear gloves, and this angle of the game can be quite unpleasant. Many fielders are placed as close as five or six feet from the batsman, so they have to

Ross-Armstrong Bout Postponed

Rain Washes Out; Is Set for Tuesday Night

NEW YORK, May 27 (AP) —That stubborn fellow sometimes known as Jupiter Pluvius gave the Barney Ross-Henry Armstrong world welterweight title fight its second consecutive setback today and caused Promoter Mike Jacobs again to postpone the 15-round battle, this time until Tuesday night.

Not only was the big Madison Square Garden bowl on Long Island thoroughly soaked from heavy rains yesterday and this morning, but more showers were forecast for tonight.

Both gladiators hustled back to the training grind in the same midtown gymnasium. They went through their paces this afternoon and will continue through Sunday. Neither will work Monday.

SPORTS ROUNDUP...

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, May 27 (AP) — Looks like the jinx may be hounding Barney Ross agan . . . Last time one of his New York fights was postponed (and it was an 11-day setback) he lost his welterweight crown to Jimmy McLarnin in the same arena . . . Mike Jacobs was the only one around the place who refused to get excited . . . He remembers when he took Ross to Miami to fight Frankie Klick and it snowed the night of the battle.

Suppose you've noticed Lou Gehrig has worked himself back into clean-up position for the Yanks . . . Joe Louis pitched camp at Pompton Lake yesterday and will begin training for Schmeling Saturday. Branch Rickey may put in a bid for Van Mungo (again reported dissatisfied) before he leaves these regions . . . Jimmy Hagan, dean of road secretaries in the National league, has travelled 497,108 miles with the Phils in the last 16 years.

The entry was bettered only last year, when the record was set at 1402, and in 1936, when there were 1277 contenders.

WAR ADMIRAL RACES TODAY

NEW YORK, May 27 (AP)—War Admiral, originally scheduled to meet Seabiscuit in the $100,000 match race Monday, will tangle instead with eight other turf rivals in the $20,000 Suburban Handicap at Belmont park tomorrow.

The odds are 4 to 5 the little Admiral from Samuel D. Riddle's barns will be in front at the end of the 1¼ mile just as he has been in his last 10 races.

He hasn't trailed another horse home since he finished second to Bottle Cap in his last two-year-old start in 1936. Eight victories last year, including the coveted triple crown, and two this season, one of them $50,000 Widener Challenge cup, boosted his earnings to $231,625.

SENATORS BEAT NATAL MINERS

NATAL, B.C.—The Crow's Nest Pass Baseball league opened up with a bang at the Natal ball park Wednesday, when the Elk Valley Senators, newly entered team in the league, invaded the lair of the Natal Miners, 1937 Crow's Nest Pass Baseball league champions and holders of the J. SOMERVILLE IS ELIMINATED IN GOLF SEMI-FINAL TROON, Scotland, May 27 (CP)—It's Charley Yates, from the same Atlanta, Ga., that gave Bobby Jones to golf, against Cecil Ewin, the Sligo slasher, for the British amateur championship over 36 holes tomorrow.

The devil-may-care American with the golden putting touch and the burly athlete from western Eire with the appearance of a rugby full back, emerged today as finalists of a field of more than 200 who set out Monday in quest of the most coveted amateur golf title.

Ewing blasted Sandy Somerville and Canada's hopes this afternoon. While the Canadian champion from London, Ont., actually beat himself by saving his worst round for the semi-final, Ewing, one of the game's longest hitters, still had the shots and the steadiness to match par on the all-important home hole and a clinch a two up victory.

The youthful Yates gained the final by firing a birdie on the first extra hole after a bitter semi-final against Scotland's Hector Thomson, the 1936 titleholder. With a crowd of 10,000 attempting to look on, Yates walked up to his ball on that 19th hole, took scarcely a glance at the line and tapped it nine feet into the cup.

Neither of the finalists ever held a major title.

CUBS, TIGERS ARE WINNERS

By The Canadian Press

Those up-and-coming Chicago Cubs and the Detroit Tigers did some plain and fancy sneaking up the league ladders today as rain washed out other scheduled games in both the National and American leagues.

CUBS DOWN 2 GAMES

The Cubs climbed to within two games of the New York Giants as they won the only National game 5-0 over Pittsburgh while the Tigers climbed into fifth position in the American circuit with a 5-2 decision against Chicago's White Sox.

HOMER RECORD

The day provided its tidbits for the record-recorders too. Hank Greenberg hit a 440-foot homer, his eleventh of the season, and the first ever hit into the dead centrefield bleachers since the Chicago stands were erected in 1927.

The homer was part of the timely supporting offensive the Tigers gave Vernon Kennedy, Detroit screwball artist and a former White Sox himself. He held his former mates to six hits for his seventh consecutive victory.

PIRATES FAIR

The Cubs visited Pittsburgh for the National league engagement and combined Bill Lee's right arm and Gabby Hartnett's big bat to put down the re-vamped Pirates. The Cubs put four runs across in the fourth and made it unanimous with another in seventh.

START WORK ON NEW PLANT FOR CRESTON CO-OP.

CRESTON, B. C. — A bulldozer and a small crew of men started work Monday morning on the excavation for the new three-story, 100 x 50 foot cold storage building of Creston Cooperative Fruit Exchange, on C. P. R. trackage to the east of the present warehouse.

Six bids were received on the works and the contract was let to Poole Construction company, limited, of Edmonton, whose superintendent, H. Lamont, is in charge.

The Poole firm is much interested in Creston. It has an interest in 2200 acres of dyked land on Nick's Island, which it reclaimed a year ago in partnership with Dr. C. P. Bruner of Calgary.

The building will provide storage for 50,000 boxes of apples. Construction will be rushed. Outside of a very few supervisors the firm will bring in, labor on the new building will be local.

Power for the new plant and its erection will be from West Kootenay Power & Light company, limited, which has completed erection of the pole line. Things are ready for putting in the transformer.

Market and Mining News

Winnipeg Wheat Futures Steadier

WINNIPEG, May 27 (CP).—Fair outside buying steadied Winnipeg wheat futures late today after both losses and gains of more than a cent had been posted. Final values were ½ higher to ⅜ cent lower, May $1.10½, July 95½ and October 79¼—⅜ cents.

Cable reports Greece is in the market for 5,000,000 bushels of wheat including about 1,500,000 bushels from Canada attracted considerable attention. Argentina and Hungary are expected to share in the business.

Liverpool lost opening gains to close ¾—⅛d down. Buenos Aires dropped 4—4⅛ cents at noon. Chicago was down a cent.

Cash wheat dealings were dull despite reports Canadian wheat export business overnight would total 100,000 bushels. Spread on No. 2 Durum improved ½.

Coarse grains moved listlessly with flax sagging up to three cents. Oats, barley and rye were steady.

N. Y. BETTER

NEW YORK, May 27 (AP)—Leading stocks took a turn for the better in the final hour of today's market after a series of feeble earlier rallies failed to hold.

Short covering and buying for quick profits, brokers said, were largely responsible for the last-minute improvement which reduced extreme declines running to two or more points or replaced them with net gains of more than a point in many cases.

Selected coppers, aircrafts, utilities, rails and specialties were prominent in the belated forward tilt which was accomplished on a moderate turnover. Despite the brighter tone at the finish, however, there was a large assortment of losers.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues was unchanged at 37. Transfers totalled 760,710 against 781,370 yesterday.

BONDS LOWER

NEW YORK, May 27 (AP) — Bonds recorded another general decline today and thereby gave up what little remained of the early May advance. U. S. governments were steady. Loans of Chile, Uruguay, Argentina, Japan and Panama led the dip. Some Italian and German issues had moderate gains.

4 Good Reasons
Save with ICE
Why Ice Is the Best

It's Safe . . . Ice does not give off fumes, nor are there any electric wires to cause a short-circuit.
It's Silent . . . No noise or vibration accompany ice at work; the peace and quiet of your home is unmarred.
It's Dependable . . . Power shut-offs and blown fuses do not hinder ice refrigeration in the least.
It's Economical . . . No "service bills" because there are no mechanical parts to wear out. Only a cent a pound!
