Estimate Apple Crop Smaller in Canada This Year

OTTAWA, Aug. 24 (CP)—The dominion bureau of statistics today issued its first forecast of the 1938 apple crop in Canada, placing it at 4,905,000 barrels, a reduction of 243,600 barrels from the 1937 crop. The fruit and vegetable crop report said the weather, except in British Columbia, generally has been hot with an abundance of rain. In British Columbia rainfall has been so light that in some sections of the irrigated areas the water had to be cut off. Estimates of the apple crop by provinces, with 1937 production in brackets, are: Nova Scotia 2,250,000 barrels (2,250,000); New Brunswick 28,400 barrels (44,000); Quebec 148,600 barrels (177,000); Ontario 693,420 barrels (745,300); British Columbia 5,391,000 boxes (6,400,000).

McBride Wins Own Cup for First Time Since He Gave It

R. L. McBride Wednesday afternoon battled his way for 29 holes with R. E. Horton, the other finalist, before he captured the cup bearing his name, for the first time since he gave it, at the Nelson Golf & Country club, in finals of the McBride cup competition. The tourney was started last Saturday and continued Sunday. At the end of the first 18-hole match, McBride and Horton ended all square. Rules in handicap match stipulated at least another nine-hole match, so they started out on the third round. Both players were playing carefully and although McBride carded a medal round of 35, Horton did nearly as well, with a 37, to end up still all square at the 27th hole, McBride sinking a 10-foot putt for a half. By mutual agreement, contrary to ruling in handicap match play, they decided to play until the tie was broken. The 28th hole was halved, and McBride won the 29th and the match with a par three. While McBride has never before held the trophy of which he is the donor, Horton has held it once. H. W. Seamon, formerly of the Ymir Yankee Girl mine, was holder of the cup last year. Consolation rounds are yet to be played in the competition.

 Attorney-General Wismer asked the committee also to forward evidence regarding the charges that had been collected by D. Godfrey Isaacs, Oyama fruit grower who first made the allegations at a meeting of fruit growers in Vernon last week. If the charges fell under Dominion jurisdiction the provincial government would press Ottawa for an investigation, Mr. Wismer was said to have assured the committee. If the investigation was to be held by provincial authorities, it would probably be conducted by a special commission rather than under the Sales and Consignment act, it was said. The fruit growers committee, appointed by a meeting of the association here yesterday, includes W. E. Haskins, chairman of the B. C. Fruit Board, Mr. Isaacs, and President H. A. Lloyd of the Fruit Growers association.

MORE ABOUT PLANE ATTACK

We could really get clear of the plane the Japanese returned again, and again, machine-gunning us mercilessly.

"I was hit by a bullet in the neck and could do no more than swim and run blindly under the diving airplanes. My impression is that many passengers never had a chance even to get out of the plane." Pilot Woods and Radio Operator Loh escaped serious injury. Woods was taken aboard the United States gunboat Mindanao at Macao.

PROMINENT BANKERS
Two passengers unaccounted for were prominent Chinese bankers—Hsu Sing-Loh, member of the Shanghai municipal council and president of the National Commercial Savings Bank, and Hu Pei-Kong, general manager of the Bank of Communications.

Officials of the China National Aviation Corporation said the Japanese probably thought the plane was carrying Dr. Sun Fo, head of the legislative council of China, just returned from Europe where he sought foreign aid against the Japanese.

Dr. Sun cancelled his reservation overnight and flew to Hankow, where he arrived today. He is the son of the late Dr. Sun Yat-Sen, founder of the Chinese Republic.

A British gunboat and Chinese troops set out from Canton to search the waterways to Canton's south for any other survivors. A United States gunboat left Hong Kong on a similar mission.

PREMEDITATED
An official of the C.N.A.C. said: "There is no doubt that the attack was entirely premeditated. The plane was clearly marked and was on a regular scheduled run. . . . United States interests hold a 45 per cent share of the aviation corporation and the Chinese government holds the remainder."

SPECTACULAR PRODUCTION GIVEN OF CLASSIC TRAGEDY

Magnificent Setting For Outdoor Performance of "Faust" Thrilling

By W. B. CLAUSEN
Associated Press Staff Writer
HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 24 (AP)—
The little doctor of Cracow whose black magic 430 years ago gave him undying fame would surely be flabbergasted could he witness the wizardry with which his story was told last night in Hollywood hills, under the stars.

The 1300 spectators, from movie stars to curiosity seekers in the brilliant premier audience, gathered in the open air pilgrimage theatre, were thrilled and amazed. The Viennese producer, Max Reinhardt, achieved his desire in inaugurating the first annual Salzburg festival in Hollywood, bringing to the new world of the west an atmosphere of enthusiasm as great if not greater than any of his European efforts.

Since Christopher Marlowe on Sept. 30, 1594, presented the first recorded showing of a play about the Cracow doctor's compact with the devil, no such combination of atmosphere and talent has been attempted as in last night's production.

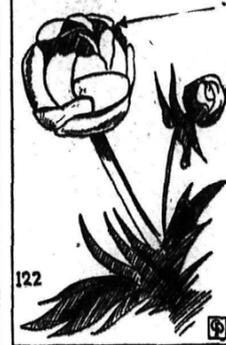

Superb as was the acting of Conrad Nagel in the title role of Faust, Margo as Marguerite, George Houston as Mephistopheles and Lenore Ulric as Martha, the play blended into a harmonious three-hour entertainment in which the critic thought more of the unity of the spectacle than individual performance of the actors.

While Reinhardt follows the Goethe text, albeit in English, his staging of a prologue, two acts and an epilogue, embraces many episodes of the Faust tales not in the opera versions of Gounod, Berlioz or Boito.

He has woven a living tapestry with the piece de resistance he has been producing year after year since 1909 in Europe. To use his own words, it is a "more dramatic and spectacular Faust."

Globe Flower Is the Tulip's Rival

FLOWERS ARE LIKE BUTTERCUPS

Globe flowers

Early blooming tulips have a rival for showy beauty in the trillium or globe flower. It is one of the most flamboyant of the early spring perennial blooms. It flowers at the same time as the early tulips and continues to bloom for a considerable period.

Globe flowers are ideal for use as cut flowers, and as shown in the Garden-Graph the blooms are like huge buttercups.

Trilliums should be given an abundance of water, or grown in partial shade to assure good growth and blooms of the proper size. The globe flower comes in both single and double varieties, and in colors carrying from a pale yellow to a deep orange. A dwarf variety called Fumulus is very attractive when used in rock gardens, bog gardens or as a planting about a garden pool.

Ingenuity in New Dress Designs

By PRUNELLA WOOD

This simple but very subtle black crepe dress is by a Paris designer, Balenciaga, who appears to know just what American women prefer. The sketches here are of a single model, with a neckline that can be changed with the aid of a scarf. This scarf treatment is shown at top. In the other sketch of the dress, the scarf is worn as a sash belt and the bat wing bodice is folded into itself to give a basque effect.

In the low-necked version, summer accessories are suggested; in the other, advance fall millinery, shoes and gloves. No wardrobe has a dependable backbone if a plain black frock is missing from it. This imported notion is a particularly happy suggestion.

away an hour or so. "You're very sentimental, aren't you?" Ruth Chester said superciliously.

"I believe finding Jimmy would have a lot to do with Laurie's getting well," Noel said quietly.

Ruth Chester lifted her beautifully arched dark brows. "I'm the one to do the thinking around here. You're merely supposed to carry out orders."

"I'm going to find Jimmy whether you instruct me to or not," Noel said with quiet emphasis, fighting back a wave of anger. There was something about Ruth's superior attitude that aroused her, no matter how hard she tried to control herself.

Before leaving, Noel asked Mrs. Blarson to stay within call of the sick room until she returned. Mrs. Blarson agreed rather ungraciously.

A few minutes later Noel was off on her errand. Bickford was on the north side of town and Court street on the south, so Noel had to go entirely across the city.

At last she found herself in front of a neat white cottage with frilly curtains in the windows, the number 288 on the curb in front of the house.

A neat, elderly woman in a big wrap-around white apron, her gray hair in curlers, answered the door. "I want to see a young man by the name of Jimmy. I don't know his last name, but it's very important that I see him," Noel couldn't keep the eagerness from her voice.

"He isn't here," the woman said. "He lived here about a month ago. I think," the woman said, looking regretfully into Noel's anxious face. "Do you know where he is now?" Noel asked in a voice that hoped against hope.

The woman shook her head. "No, I don't. You see, I didn't know him." "Then you don't know his last name?" Noel asked, feeling suddenly sick at heart. She had had every confidence that she would find Jimmy, but she felt that every hope she had was now slipping away.

The woman didn't know his last name. Then Noel asked if she had any idea where he worked. The woman shook her head again. "I just know that a man by the name of Jimmy lived in this house about a month ago, and moved away," the woman said regretfully. Then added, "Give me your name and telephone number. If I can find out anything about him, I'll let you know."

Noel gave her the information, but she didn't have much hope that she would hear from her. There wasn't anything else to do but to go home and admit failure, and possibly hear Ruth Chester say, "I told you it was a foolish idea."

Prepare Now... Brilliant Colors to be Worn in Fall Call For Real Skin Beauty

August offers few of the delicate blossoms, but many interesting species of the garden variety, and it is these simple blooms the smart florists like to make up into corsages. Some of them are the combination of the colorful little zinnias—we mean the small button kind—relieved with sprays of babies' breath, and any tiny blue or purple blossom. These are smart for the nosegay size. Dahlias in the new fuchsia, purple and ruby shades are most effective with the pastel gowns, but for the corsage we must depend upon just now, the gardenia is about the most satisfactory, and therefore the flower of August.

According to the famous couturiers of Paris, we are to be more color conscious than ever, and those colors they have already brought over are in the rich fuchsias, violets, wood browns, charterhouses, purples, magentas, rich blues and saffron greens. They will be in your fashion news, but to prepare you, we must tell you in advance they all call for a careful makeup. These colors are the most difficult for everyone, even the young, and for your comfort there is always a makeup to go with each tone.

Brunettes will find most of the shades quite flattering with their dark eyes, but the skin will have to be in a warm tone without the suggestion of the blue sallow tint that reflects fatigue.

If you are feeling the strain of the long summer, try to get away for a change and rest, and, if possible, make arrangements to have a course of facials with the whole treatment of stimulation and the firming mask to bring the tired muscles back to their fine contours. Take care of your hair so it will make a lovely contrast against these lively shades. And if it is not possible for you to go to a good shop, you may secure all the cosmetics as well as the lovely silken mask and do your treatment at home.

Wear your tan and freckles until you are about through with your beach and out-of-doors life, and then go to work. An offensive breath is unpardonable. To avoid it, keep the system clean and healthy by eating moderately and by drinking plenty of water and fruit juices. Have the teeth looked over frequently, and if there is any suggestion of bad breath, consult a physician.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Letters unsuitable for publication will be answered personally provided they contain stamped, self-addressed envelope. All names are held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, in care of this paper.

Dr. Patty Hill... Work of Pioneer in Kindergarten Field is Praised

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Most who read this column are familiar with the modern nursery school, kindergarten and primary grades and their methods of educating young children, which also work well in the home.

The most outstanding figure in this movement is Dr. Patty Smith Hill. As early as 1893 her pioneer work with young children in Louisville, Ky., where she was director of kindergarten and primary grades, was attracting wide attention of educators. That year she was called to Teachers college, Columbia university. There, in 30 years, up to her retirement from active duty in 1936, she made herself the world's leader in this movement.

In an interview published in "American Childhood," Dr. Hill admitted:

"We were considered dangerous radicals down in Louisville and later at Teachers college. We were something of a curiosity simply because of our break with traditions. As you know, Froebel outlined his theory in Germany in 1840, introducing play materials novel for his day but too small to appeal to the self-active bodies and eager, creative minds of young children.

"Not only I, but my teachers, studied with the best psychologists of the period who were then pointing out the dangers to hand and eye resulting from the use of these small materials. Then it was that we invented large, heavy blocks that demanded the use of the child's whole body and also stimulated the need for social co-operation with his fellows. . . .

"Criticism was continued when we attempted to abolish all formal games and to give opportunities to children to create their own dramatizations, drawings, paintings and modeling. All of these procedures, lawless to the people of that day, are

HABITS CARRIED HOME

"In all these experiments we were deeply interested in our endeavors to get parents to carry over into the home the same habits and attitudes started in the school."

During the recent summer convention of the National Education association, Dr. Hill was the special guest of honor at the dinner of the kindergarten-primary section. It was my unusual privilege to introduce Miss Hill on that occasion.

Woman Told... Must Forget Own Comfort to Make Marriage Success

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Dear Miss Chatfield: I tried as hard as a woman could to make a go of my first marriage but it was not in the cards that it should succeed. When my little girl was seven years old I divorced my husband and took a job to support me and my child. A year later the boss proposed and I accepted him, mainly because he seemed devoted to both of us and promised me that my little daughter would have all the advantages that I could never hope to give her even with her father's help. He has kept his promise but he has made a prisoner of me. He's insanely jealous; has fits when the child sees her father and doesn't want us to go out anywhere without him. If it weren't for the disgrace of two divorces, I would quit tomorrow for I am utterly sick of being in jail. Please tell me what I can do to make my husband see how foolishly he's behaving. T. R.

Answer: My dear lady, you are trying to make the trip through life with your own comfort and peace of mind paramount. You will never have any satisfaction in living until you begin to include your dear ones in your scheme. Your pretty talk about care for the child's future doesn't amount to a row of beans; for you have jeopardized it once and are on the point of jeopardizing it a second time, merely because life is not to your liking.

Granted that husband No. 2 is unreasonable; his attitude is attributable to the fact that he loves you and the little girl and is fearful that her own father will come before him in her affections. Right there is the guarantee of her future with the step-father; yet you would toss it aside but for the thought of your reputation which might be injured by a second divorce. You are taking no account of your daughter whom you profess to love, and you are taking no account of the husband who is magnanimous and

Tuberculosis... Theories Differ But It's Wise to Avoid Exposure

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The question of whether tuberculosis can be caught from a consumptive in not as simple as it may seem on first sight. The theories on the matter have gone through a number of changes.

A hundred years ago, when very little was known about the cause of tuberculosis, the idea was that it was not contagious at all. Then the French physician, Villemin, pointed out that if a case of consumption were brought into a hospital ward, several other cases would develop there. He was an army physician and he put his conclusions this way: "The consumptive soldier is just as much a danger to his fellows in the regiment, as a sheep with anthrax is to the rest of the herd."

When the cause of tuberculosis—the tubercle bacillus—was discovered, opportunity was afforded for more intensive study of early cases. The conclusions arrived at were that tuberculosis probably always begins in infancy or very early life. It goes through a certain stage of development in childhood. Childhood tuberculosis is entirely different from adult tuberculosis.

CATCHES IT FROM ADULT

The child usually catches tuberculosis from an adult in the family who has an open unsuspected case of tuberculosis of the lungs. The course of the disease depends on the amount of immunity that can be developed—most often the condition gets well in childhood and leaves nothing but a scar. Sometimes it goes on and develops consumption.

The question of whether an adult can catch the disease from another is not entirely settled. One view states flatly that nobody catches tuberculosis after childhood. But there are others who disagree. Myers, for instance, studied groups of medical students and nurses in training—groups that are likely to be exposed to patients with tuberculosis—and found that they did become infected in a far larger percentage than that of the general population.

So the safest thing is to avoid exposure. This especially is true of infants. They frequently are infected by some old member of the household, who has had a chronic bronchitis for years. At least, that is what is called. Really when the examination is made it turns out the person has had tuberculosis unsuspected for many years.

Serial Story... TWO WORLDS

By MAUD McCURDY WELCH

The letter from Jimmy which Noel found in Laurie's purse read as follows:

"Dear Laurie: I can't persuade her to see reason. But even if we can't be married, there's no harm in seeing each other once in a while. Please let me see you, won't you, dear?"

"Jimmy."

There was no address on the letter. There wasn't even Jimmy's last name. But on the back of the envelope, Noel did find an address. Two eighty-eight Bickford was written in small letters.

At last Noel was sure she would be able to find Jimmy. She asked Ruth Chester to come out in the hall, and explained that she was going to find Jimmy and might be

Hints for Housewives

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

This is the season when good cooks "swap" recipes for jams, jellies and preserves. Kitchens are fragrant with the appetizing odor of cooking fruit. Cupboard shelves are hosts to rows of well-filled jars. The flavor and acid content of oranges and lemons make these fruits valuable additions to other fruits in many popular jellies, jams and conserves. Slices of the unpeeled fruit, the grated peel or the juice may be used in cooking and canning such fruits as peaches, apricots, figs, peaches, and rhubarb. Inclusion of the peel will give a subtle fragrance as well as enhanced flavor.

LEMON JUICE HELPS
The cloying sweetness of preserves is overcome by the addition of one tablespoon of lemon juice to each cup of fruit about two minutes before removing from heat. With conserves, one lemon sliced thin is added to each pint of fruit. This may be done with pear, peach, apricot, pineapple or tomato conserves. Experts recommend the use of a tablespoon of lemon juice and one teaspoon of salt to each pint jar to increase the certainty of success in canning such vegetables as corn, artichokes, peas, beans, asparagus and greens.

Baked orange and peach jam is a sure-fire hit. No standing over a hot range to make this one—the oven does the job. Ingredients include two medium oranges, one lemon, one dozen fresh peaches and sugar. Cut unpeeled lemon and oranges in pieces and put through food grinder. Peel and slice peaches. Combine fruit. Measure an equal amount of sugar. Place in shallow pan and bake two hours in a slow oven (300 F.). Stir occasionally. This recipe yields about two pints.

Order Kellogg's Corn Flakes for breakfast tomorrow. Ready to serve with milk or cream. Always oven-fresh in the exclusive heat-sealed inner bag. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

If a competent expert could pass on each purchase you make, you would be sure of getting full value for every dollar you spend. But experts are rare, and even then are seldom trained to know more than one type of merchandise. What an imposing retinue of these specialists you would need to pass judgment on your routine purchases of gasoline and gloves, hammocks and hosiery, linen and linoleum!

But you can get competent and honest counsel on almost everything you buy without ever meeting an expert. How? By being ad-vised in advance by the advertising pages of the Nelson Daily News.

Here you will find all kinds of reputable merchants and manufacturers telling you about their best bargains, and inviting comparisons. In a matter of minutes, you will find more bona fide bargains in print than you would discover on the counters of all the stores you could visit in a six-day shopping trek.

Read these advertising pages regularly for just one week, and then you'll know first-hand that it pays to be ad-vised before you buy. Your money will s-t-r-e-t-c-h further, and your purchases be more satisfactory.

REFUGEES BENEFIT THOSE WHO GIVE THEM SHELTER

Nobody in his right senses would maintain that war in the Far East is anything short of calamity. However, the New York Times is authority for the statement that the war has brought an incidental boom to the British port of Hong Kong.

Refugees from Canton have swelled the population of the city and its neighbor, Kowloon, from 800,000 to 1,400,000. "Hong Kong's harbor is crowded with ships—most of them bringing munitions, war supplies, trucks and airplanes for China. And the Hong Kong government is not only out of debt but reports a cash surplus on hand exceeding $15,000,000."

Of course, this local prosperity in Hong Kong—probably of a fleeting nature—is not even a drop in the bucket to compensate for the vast losses to British trade and capital in China proper.

Many of the refugees at Hong Kong are wealthy, the Winnipeg Tribune reports. They have given encouragement to those local industries which did not rely upon an undisturbed market in China or upon the receipt of Chinese raw materials. Some Hong Kong industries are reported to be stealing Japanese markets.

The fact that many refugees are wealthy has an important bearing but it should not obscure the broad fact that in the past, refugees have often brought prosperity and have repaid materially those who gave them political asylum.

None so blind as those that will not see.—Mathew Henry.

WILD LIFE IN NATIONAL PARKS IS TOURIST ATTRACTION

One of Canada's strongest attractions to tourists is its wild life.

An abundance of wild life in the national parks of Canada is reported for fiscal year ended March 31, 1938. While a census of the game animals in the larger scenic and recreational parks is not practicable owing to the extensive area over which they roam, an estimate of species in fenced enclosures in the national parks discloses a total of 5600 buffalo; 3600 elk; 1512 mule deer; 907 moose; and 320 antelope, in addition to a small number of hybrids (cattalo), Rocky mountain goat, Rocky mountain (big-horn) sheep, white-tailed deer, and yak, which are kept for exhibition purposes.

Perhaps before long, we will see Kokanee "National park" included in such reports.

The conservation and protection of wild life in all its forms continues to be one of the primary functions of the national parks, and constant patrols by the park warden service insure the safety of the game animals, in addition to supplying reliable information on the quantity and general health of the different species. Observations during the year indicate that moose and elk are particularly abundant in Jasper and Banff National Parks, while grizzly bear are reported to be more numerous than usual in certain areas in Jasper National Park. Bird life is reported to be on the increase, with an abundance of waterfowl in evidence at Elk Island, Point Pelee and Prince Edward Island National Parks. A recent check of bird life at Elk National park revealed a total of 190 species.

The exhibition herds maintained in the animal paddocks at Banff, Prince Albert, and Riding Mountain National parks continued to be popular points of interest. Late in the season the number of animals in the enclosure at Banff was greatly reduced, leaving only a few buffalo and elk. Ten Canada Geese were obtained as an added attraction for Riding Mountain National park.

OPPORTUNITY HERE FOR THE RIGHT PEOPLE

Eastern Canadian newspapers are taking a great interest in the visit to British Columbia of Sir Henry Page-Croft, British parliamentarian and industrialist. He is investigating settlement opportunities in the province, on the invitation of the Prince Rupert city council and with the approval of the provincial government. Of his visit the Toronto Globe and Mail says:

While extensive unemployment exists opposition to immigration will continue, on the ground that charity begins at home, and when unemployment is normal there will be opposition, as in the past, on the theory that more people mean more competition for jobs. If there is no disposition to work out a plan to develop the vast inland empire of the western coast province with home talent, what justification for placing obstacles in the way of British settlers? Big Gen. Hornby, whose campaign to keep Canada British is well known, as an inspiration behind the British Columbia movement. According to the Vancouver Province, his view is that nothing prevents a revival of immigration but government inertia and a sort of defeatist attitude in the public mind. Yet there are hundreds of miles of rich territory around Prince George to be occupied and developed.

The Overseas Settlement Board has become increasingly concerned with the subject of migration, noting the danger, in this Dominion particularly, of the British element being overwhelmed by a population of non-British stock. The danger point is near, and it is becoming more difficult to get immigrants from the United Kingdom. Various forms of legislation have provided security which is lacking here. The British birth rate is falling. In the meantime other crowded nations are viewing our open spaces with envious eyes.

If British Columbia cannot get rid of its Japanese settlers it can help to offset them by opening the doors to more Britishers. Whether or not the right kind of people can be obtained in sufficient numbers has yet to be shown. Success for the proposal will encourage Saskatchewan to renew its immigration efforts, which must be described as courageous in the light of that province's difficulties.

Probably Sir Henry will find that the opportunities in the province are many but that they are not generally those who have failed in England.

In Nelson By-Paths

On its way, stage by stage, toward the sunny southland, and in some instances no doubt already arrived there, the bird population that a few weeks ago was calling from trees and bushes and weed-stalks, or filling the air with flight, is gone from this district.

The Kootenay today, as far as my observation goes, seems drained of birds.

WEATHER TURNED PAGE

Probably the break in the weather about the first of August called the turn for most species, which were then clearly flocking. With the confirmed cooler weather and occasional rains, succeeding waves have gone, till today only the odd bird is to be seen.

Late in July it seemed to me the swallows, our formerly so numerous violet-greens, which used to weave patterns in the air over the waterfront, were down to small numbers, and after a week's camping at Ainsworth—where, by the way, we saw not a single swallow—I was back here August 10, when they seemed about cleaned out. Various waterfront observers noted small groups for a few days, with August 15 seeing about the last of them.

The small sparrow species, savannah and chipping, apparently lighted out the first week in August, if not earlier. The last chipping sparrow I saw were at Mile-Point, Ainsworth, August 3 and 4, but in Nelson I heard not a note nor saw one of these diminutive sparrows after the last week in July.

Robins were down to small numbers when August opened, and many believe that groups seen after that were birds from further north, passing through on migration. George Brown saw a concentration of robins the weekend after which practically none were to be seen. Catbirds vanished about the first of August, and the song sparrows as well. Even the weaver finches or house sparrows seem now down to the small winter numbers.

LANE DESERTED

As a test, on a recent morning I went home by the lane where on July 27, despite the absence of bird songs, in an elapsed time of four minutes 12 bird species disclosed themselves to me. This time I was able to see only a solitary kingbird, and to hear an invisible robin singing. Most people would have been unconscious of the robin, whose quiet little sigh seems almost a small insect sound, but I detected it though I failed to exactly locate the bird. However, a high flight of cedar waxwings passed over.

This has been a great year for cedar waxwings in Nelson, particularly the month of August. There were weeks that casual observers would have taken them for swallows over the waterfront, as they hawked for insects much as the swallows were doing earlier. However, as they would turn in the sun high in the air, there would be gleams of yellow body color and as they alighted on wires, or board walks, the perky topknotted little birds, with the form-fitting pearl-grey plumage and the barred tails, were easily distinguished. They were even walking in the water's edge with the blackbirds.

Through most of the season cedar waxwings can be identified in flight by their looping tactics, accompanied by a tse-tse-tse chatter, especially in the spring, before nesting, but now they have a variety of other calls, prominent being a chibby-chibby. While Saturday we still had heaps of cedar waxwings, this week even they seem to have almost disappeared.

ODD BIRDS LEFT

Today our Nelson birds seem to be represented by a few cedar waxwings, a few kingbirds, a few mountain bluebirds, the occasional robin, and some house sparrows, with the

General William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, told this story to his friend Arthur Croxton—for many years manager of the London Coliseum Music Hall—who retells it in his reminiscences, "Crowded Days and Nights": A newspaper reporter, seated at the reporters' table at a great relief service, was asked by a pretty Salvationist: "Are you saved? Come to the penitent form." "Press," was the reporter's reply. "Oh," said the Salvation girl, gently and respectfully, "I beg your pardon."

DID YOU EVER pass the opponent's suit bid because you were loaded to give him trouble and only hoped you could get a crack at him upon a higher level? As he fell for the bait, did you then try to push him still higher by sticking in a supporting bid for one of your partner's suits? If he succumbed to this, soared to new levels and you then came out of your ambush and doubled him, didn't you feel smart and happy? What would become of your joy if your partner then took out the profitable double with a rebid of his own suit, which got doubled and set?

R. J. B. Nelson—I have an Azalea which had a lot of blossoms last year but it is growing rather tall now and I wonder if it should be trimmed back for blooming this fall. Should most of the new growth be cut back?

No trimming should be done at this time of year. If you wish to trim your plant you should do so after it has finished blooming or in the early spring. The new growth should not be cut back as it is on the new growth that next year's blooms will come.

Inquirer, Castlegar—Could you tell me what colors to mix with a warm drab color paint to make it a French grey or a deep cream?

Mix black paint (or a very dark brown for a warmer shade) with the drab paint to make a French grey. Yellow and white paint mixed with the drab will make a deep cream.

M. F. Nelson—Can you explain why New York City is called Gotham?

Gotham was the name of a town in Nottinghamshire, England, the inhabitants of which, about 1200, were ridiculed for simplicity and shortsightedness and were later termed in derision "the wise men of Gotham." Washington Irving in his book, "Solomon Gundy", applies the name Gotham to New York, satirizing the short-sightedness of many of the inhabitants.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning! Rinse to go. The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, weak and the world looks punk. A more bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of catalyst but have no colored or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c. (Adv.)

Arrangements For Rebuilding Dykes At Creston Made

CRESTON, B.C. — Financial arrangements have been made and other details worked out for an immediate start at replacing the washed out section at the Wynndel end of Creston Dyking District and a comprehensive plan of strengthening the dyke generally, following the receding of the waters that inundated the 7500-acre area early in June. At least $20,000 will be required for repairs—and more, if necessary, to thoroughly rehabilitate the levees.

Information to this effect was forthcoming following a meeting of the landowners in the United Church hall, which was largely attended, and was presided over by Guy Constable, chairman of the dyking district board of trustees.

A statement of the expense incurred in the attempt to avert the going out of the dykes was presented and was generally conceded to be very reasonable. A great deal of the outlay was for sacks, all of which are still on hand and available for future emergencies.

Dyke repair work will be in charge of Creston Reclamation Company, Limited, in active co-operation with the dyking district executive. The company has purchased a dragline, which will be here this week, and repair operations will get under way immediately. A start will be made at the south end, but as soon as the big shovel can be used at Wynndel end a shift will be made to the north and full advantage taken of the fine weather of early fall to complete the break which extends about 800 feet.

In addition to acquainting the landowners with the flood expense and rebuilding cost, farmers were asked to express themselves on suggested betterments, and amongst other things they were unanimous in asking that if satisfactory arrangements can be made, that the dyking district purchase the dragline for its own use.

It was also agreed that as far as possible the landowners and their trucks be given the preference when dyke rebuilding commences.

Chops Off Hand, Gouges Out Eye

District Attorney F. A. Silveira quoted Harwell as saying he and his two young step-sons knelt in prayer yesterday afternoon in their room cabin while his 28-year-old wife read from the Bible.

Mrs. Harwell rose from prayer, her husband related, saying her left hand offended her and she wished forgiveness for her sins.

Silveira said the husband was held for questioning because authorities did not believe it was possible for the woman to chop off her own hand.

HOLIDAY NOTES

By G. S. REES

(Part 1.)
Definitely I like train travel, though salt-water voyaging appeals to me more. Nations muss each other up and get in each other's hair, governments go haywire, and the unemployed sleep in art galleries; budgets remain in a perpetual unbalance and businesses go bust, but through all these vicissitudes and with many troubles of their own, trains leave on time day-after day, month in, year out, in all weathers, and people arrive at destinations on time, or nearly always. Traffic officers require to know all the answers for delayed trains for their own good. I like to snuggle into seat or sleeping berth, wheels clicking below, with the melodious whistle telling 'em I'm coming right along. You take the high road, I'll take the railroad (with hardly a pause for station identification!) It is a fine tribute to the methods which have been developed during recent years for handling traffic and scheduling runs to the increased tempo of modern transportation that the giant miracles of steam, oil and electricity rattle the rails do not get in one another's way—at least not very often! Rail transport today is faster and safer and more friendly than ever: it has taken to modernism from tail to tail with slim shafts of silver streaking the steel racetrack like everybody's business at more than a mile a minute clip on split second schedules. Gorgeous trains of all colors, long gleaming dragons that attract the rail-rider with alluring interior decors of Persian blue, or peaches and cream color-schemes; with soil-less chromium gadgets housed in lighter-than-steel rustless equipment. Soon we shall have conductors wearing gardenias, and offering patrons a boutonniere of orchids!

It is interesting to note (or is it?) that if all the cars and engines of the American roads were coupled together they would make a train 17,000 miles long, but what would a master mechanic or a train dispatcher do with it; also that all the dining cars serve enough meals each year to feed everyone in Nelson, with an indefinite period. What a pity, by the way, that Uncle Sam and John Canuck cannot adequately feed the thousands of their destitute citizens starving in the land of plenty.
The travelling public is impressed by the clean appearance of the coaches they are invited to patronize, and also in a measure by the motive power at the head-end, but railroad men know that the road-bed itself and the equipment that goes with it are the real foundation of successful and safe rail transportation. The railway takes its very name from its road of steel. Vast sums are spent annually in keeping the track in first class shape; for this indirect tax on revenue, rubber-tired carriers covoring along the roadways are entirely free and are thus placed in a preferred position.

PAST AND FUTURE
Yea verily, the old iron horse has been re-shod, and train travel has regained a full fledged flavor and favor; streamline, air conditioned and fast operating schedules have boomed passenger business by capturing the imagination of the travelling public. The modern vacationist — 1938 model — in this technological age has conquered space and time, and seeks recreation in ever-widening areas. The rapid development of transportation systems to meet these up-to-date vacation requirements has been one of the prime factors in booming the travel business to the world's third largest industry — only food and housing rating higher. There has been a rebirth of the pioneering spirit that put the railways on the North American map in the first place; the railways form an essential link in the economic structure, and in Canada we have the "All-red" route that is a vital link in Empire communications and vital for its defence against aggression. When the rubber-tired vehicles cannot "deliver the goods", the tried and trusty engine hitches on to half a mile of box cars, and "takes 'em through" without more than a casual notice of atmospheric hazards.
SIMPLE LIFERS
California's caravanners are familiar adjuncts to California's highways. Trailers trailing smoothly in rear of autos number over fifteen thousand in the States; these rolling homes provide quarters for about fifty thousand "floaters", who sleep nightly under the rounded roofs of their covered wagons. Many trailers are positively luxurious, and enable trailer-fans to get back to Nature the easiest way, or even get off the map, and to wander comfortably with the freedom, though not the mode, of raggle-taggle gypsies. Many have the conveniences of luxury: flutes. Trailer nomads may not be quite as "comfy" as in an anchored house, but one cannot keep a house moving ahead of the tax-collector! Doubtless the Powers-that-be will soon discover ways and means of chasing the elusive tax-dollar to its lair, and cause the wandering tribes to contribute to the high cost of Government.

Gardiner Opposes Immigration if Not Assisted, He Says
LILLOET, B. C., Aug. 24 (CP) — Hon. James Gardiner, federal Liberal member of parliament for British Columbia, said here today he was opposed to placing settlers from the old country on "raw land," and leaving them to "fight out their own destiny."
Mr. Gardiner was commenting on proposals for British emigration to British Columbia. One proponent of such a policy, Sir Henry Page Croft, is at present touring British Columbia to study possibility of placing British settlers in this province.
"If provision is made for financing the settlers over the first difficult years, and of training them and equipping them for the task, then the plans should be satisfactory," the minister said.
He arrived here by plane yesterday, accompanied by J. G. Turgeon, Liberal member of parliament for Cariboo, and Louis LeBourdais, Liberal member of the British Columbia legislature for Cariboo riding.
TRADE UNIONS ARE OPPOSED TO SCHEME FOR IMMIGRATION
VANCOUVER, Aug. 24 (CP) — The trades union movement is opposed to any "wholesale immigration scheme," Percy Bengough, secretary of Vancouver, New Westminster and district trades and labor council said today.
Bengough was commenting on proposals of Sir Henry Page Croft, British parliamentarian now in British Columbia investigating the possibility of assisted British emigration to western Canada.
"I haven't had time to look fully into this latest idea," Bengough said, "but at our conventions we have always opposed such schemes."

FREDERICK NIVEN, NOTED BRITISH AUTHOR, PREFERS TO WORK IN KOOTENAY

Why? See, to the left, picture of Mr. Niven's home on the West Arm of Kootenay Lake, near Nelson. No longer "a rolling stone".

"Who's Who" says of the famous author of "Justice of the Peace", of "Mrs. Barry", of "Triumph" and of "Coloured Spectacles" that he is "somewhat of a rolling stone."
But that is not true of his life since he left the British Ministry of Information, which he served during the war.
He was born in Valparaiso, Chile, sixty years ago, he was educated in Glasgow and during his "rolling stoning" is said to have trundled for a short time freight trucks at the C. P. R. station at Nelson. That was in Nelson's quite early days. In "Wild Honey," Mr. Niven tells delightful stories of tramps in British Columbia's wilds and of "queer fellows" (the title of the book when published in England) that he met.
Niven's "Justice of the Peace" is included in a library of classics. Its worth has been honored by introductions by Christopher Morley and Sir Hugh Walpole. Both "Triumph" and "Mrs. Barry" have been recommended by the English Book Society.

Kootenay's internationally admired author loves mountaineering, but most of all he seems to love his literary work in his cottage at Willow Point, working beside shelves of books, always a friendly and shaggy dog not far away. He likes to roll his own cigarettes, but no longer with elusive Bull Durham he once learned to twine in the prairie.
The Niven home is in the kind of surroundings that used to be called "sylvan", but it is not in the wilds. It is four miles from Nelson, by highway or motorboat, it has electric light, and all the rest of it. By telephone Mr. Niven may talk to his publisher in New York or if he desires by trans-Atlantic phone to London. He tells an amusing story about wayward copy and proofs of "Coloured Spectacles" which suggest trans-Atlantic telephoning possibilities.

Nor is the atmosphere intellectually that of the wilds. Mrs. Niven, who was Mary Pauline Thorne-Quelch, makes one think of Chelsea rather than of Skookum Creek, of Montparnasse rather than Tete Jaune Cache. Of charming and very real personality, she comes of a family devoted to the dramatic art and herself has been associated with literary work and literary people almost since school days.
The adjacent photos are intended to suggest why Mr. Niven prefers to write his books on the shores of Kootenay lake, rather than in London, or New York, or Cannes.

Sir William Johnson Had Uncanny Way With Six Nations Indians

JOSEPH BRANT
The marks of his tomahawk are still on the stair-rail of Johnson Hall.

SIR WILLIAM JOHNSON
"... largely responsible for making North America an English-speaking continent."

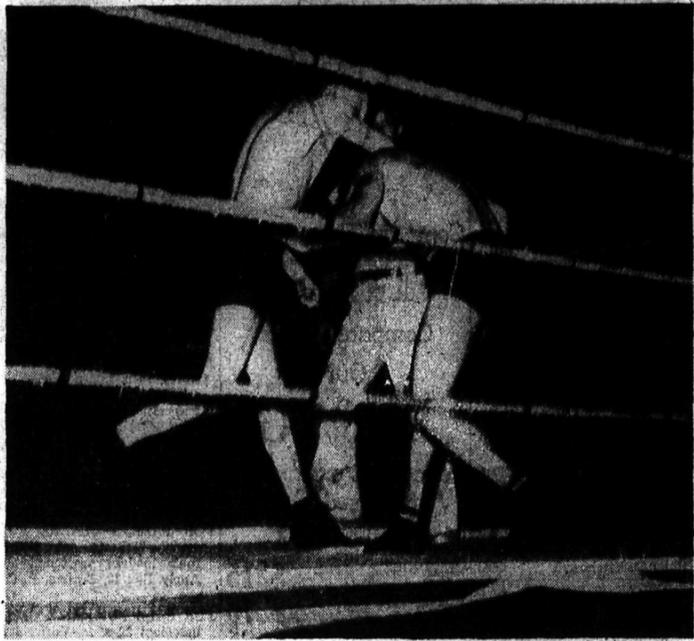

Up in the beautiful Mohawk valley of New York state they are celebrating the 200th anniversary of the arrival in this country of a young Irishman who was largely responsible for making North America an English-speaking continent. He was Sir William Johnson of Johnson Hall, "Johnson of the Mohawks".

Up in the beautiful Mohawk valley of New York state they are celebrating the 200th anniversary of the arrival in this country of a young Irishman who was largely responsible for making North America an English-speaking continent. He was Sir William Johnson of Johnson Hall, "Johnson of the Mohawks".
The marks of his tomahawk are still on the stair-rail of Johnson Hall.

His rich uncle "set him up" in life by lending the greater part of the money, with which he purchased 100,000 acres of land in the beautiful Mohawk valley around what is now Johnstown. All his life he added to that land. For his remarkable services with the Indians the British parliament made him a grant of 5000 pounds. He defeated the French in a critical battle, and the king made him a baronet and Indian superintendent.
His last years of life saw the American revolution impending and the grim prospect saddened him. He was torn terribly between his lifelong habits of loyalty to the British crown and his innate sense of justice and the spirit of freedom which had grown out of his work and contacts—out of the air itself.
Which way would the gallant old soldier have turned had he lived? No one can say, but I have always believed he would have cast his lot with the colonies, and kept his Indians neutral. He died in 1774, at the age of 50.
PHILATELIST DIES
NEW YORK, Aug. 24 (AP)—John Newell, 77, leading philatelic expert for many years, died yesterday at his home here. In 1902, he wrote "The Postage Stamps of the United States", which still is considered standard in the field.

from the Gulf of Mexico to the St. Lawrence, with the logical purpose of confining the English to their narrow stretch of sea coast. But before them, stretching from Niagara to the Hudson, was the country of the Iroquois—that powerful confederacy of Senecas, Cayugas, Onondagas, Oneidas, Tuscaroras and Mohawks, which had long been at odds with the French. This was the "long house" of the Six Nations. And as the Senecas were its western guard, the Mohawks were keepers of its eastern gate.
WON IROQUOIS TO ENGLISH
Sir William controlled the Six Nations of the Iroquois, won them to the English side in the final struggle between French and English and held all but one of the tribes neutral in the bloodiest of the Indian wars. He was as the bicentennial program says "largely responsible for making North America an English-speaking continent."
Sir William's mansion Johnson Hall remains today little changed from what it was when the council fires of the Six Nations flared on its spacious acres and Sir William smoked the pipe of peace with the great Hendrick, war chief of the Mohawks.
He was a long, lean, flaming-haired Irish lad of 23 when he came over as the protégé of his uncle, the famous Sir Peter Warren, British admiral, for whom Warren St., in New York, is named and who once owned about all the Hudson river waterfront below 14th St., along with most of Greenwich village.
UNCLE GAVE JOHNSON START
His rich uncle "set him up" in life by lending the greater part of the money, with which he purchased 100,000 acres of land in the beautiful Mohawk valley around what is now Johnstown. All his life he added to that land. For his remarkable services with the Indians the British parliament made him a grant of 5000 pounds. He defeated the French in a critical battle, and the king made him a baronet and Indian superintendent.
His last years of life saw the American revolution impending and the grim prospect saddened him. He was torn terribly between his lifelong habits of loyalty to the British crown and his innate sense of justice and the spirit of freedom which had grown out of his work and contacts—out of the air itself.
Which way would the gallant old soldier have turned had he lived? No one can say, but I have always believed he would have cast his lot with the colonies, and kept his Indians neutral. He died in 1774, at the age of 50.
FUR TRADE WAR
Two hundred years ago France and England were still fighting out their long battle for the fur trade, and incidentally for the richest slice of the continent. Enrailing posts and missions of the French stretched

Alice Marble and Mrs. Fabyan Squeeze Out a Win in Net Play

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 24 (AP)—The women's United States doubles tennis competition, which has been relegated to sideshow status since it was incorporated with the men's team title play, today became the main attraction at Longwood.

Although the only former winners in the men's section, Don Budge and Gene Mack and the twice successful Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn, played into the semi-finals, the feminine stars provided the thrills.

Budge and Mack had an easy assignment gaining the second last round by defeating Russell Bobbitt of Atlanta, and Frank Guernsey of Orlando, Fla., 6-3, 6-2, 6-3.

Allison and Van Ryn entered that bracket for the eighth time in the last 10 years, by trouncing Bobby Riggs of Chicago, and Bryan Grant of Atlanta, 6-1, 8-6, 6-2.

Only one domestic pair had the right to compete in the remaining men's quarter-finals, Gardner Mul-

Kelly's Porker Wins Pig Derby

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Aug. 24 (AP)—Roy Kelly's prize porker from his Lowden farm responded to much tugging, pistol shooting and personal speed just night to win Walla Walla's pig derby, was out in front of the entries of Guy Kent, Sudbury, and Jake Smith, Waitsburg.

While the speed shown by the champion razorback discounted Kelly's claim his porker could beat a jack rabbit in an uphill sprint it did establish him as the "Seabiscuit" of the United States pig pens.

882 IN U.S. GOLF

NEW YORK, Aug. 24 (AP)—Defending Champion Johnny Goodman of Omaha and British Amateur Champion Charley Yates of Atlanta head a list of 882 entries for the 1938 United States amateur golf championship, to be played Sept. 12-17 at the Oakmont Country club, Pittsburgh.

Goodman and Yates, fellow-members of this year's beaten United States Walker cup team, are exempt from sectional qualifying competition. The district eliminations, with 858 men battling for 150 places in the 170-man championship starting field, will be held Aug. 30, at 31 points throughout the United States.

Twelve other players also are qualified automatically to compete at Oakmont. They are T. A. (Tony) Torrance, veteran former British titleholder; Leonard Crawley of the winning British Walker cup team; Brig-Gen. A. C. Critchley of Calgary and London, recent winner of the Belgian open; W. H. Hattersley of Australia; and eight former United States amateur champions.

The latter group includes C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville, of London, Ont., several times Canadian Amateur champion and winner of the United States amateur crown at Baltimore in 1932. Sandy has said he is going to try again this year. Nine other Canadians will help him carry the Dominion's challenge.

Montanez Beats Canadian Boxer

NEW YORK, Aug. 24 (CP)—Pedro Montanez strengthened his claim as number one challenger for the lightweight boxing championship of the world by scoring a decisive five-round technical knockout victory over Orville Drouillard of Windsor, Ont., at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Drouillard weighed 137 pounds to 138½ for the Puerto Rican. The Canadian veteran was grasping the ropes in his tired hands, trying to raise himself to his feet after a vicious volley of rights and lefts to the head, when Referee Arthur Donovan stopped the fight after two minutes and 14 seconds of the fifth round. The bout was scheduled for 10 rounds.

Curt Davis Misses No-Hit, No-Run Game by Lone Bunt; Cards Win 5-0

The Cincinnati Reds combined five hits and four Philadelphia errors for a 5-1 victory to sweep the two-game series and place them one-half game behind the Giants.

Two big first innings gave the Yankees and Chicago White Sox their second straight doubleheader split.

The Sox scored six runs in the first inning of the opener, featured by Manager Jimmy Dykes' homer with two aboard, and went on to an 8-4 victory. The Yanks failed Frank (Garbo) Gabler for seven tallies in the opening frame of the nightcap and coasted in with an 11 to 1 decision.

The Pittsburgh Pirates belted the Boston Bees 6-2 on seven hits to take the series two out of three and reinforce their National league lead to six games over New York.

Pep Young tripled with the bases loaded in the fifth inning to spark a four-run rally which proved the margin of victory as Russ Bauers and Ira Hutchinson engaged in a sliptouch pitching duel.

The Cubs backed up Rookie Vance Page's four-hit pitching with a five-run rally in the fourth inning to whip the New York Giants 6-1 and gain an even break in the two-game series.

The defeat dropped the Giants six games out of first place and only half a game in front of third-

FAVORITES FALL IN PUBLIC GOLF

CLEVELAND, Aug. 24 (AP)—The longhairs set a blistering pace which ran one favorite after another—among them the defending champion—out of the United States National public links golf championship race today.

The 1937 title winner, Bruce McCormick, of Los Angeles, headed a group of highly regarded entries who were blasted to the sidelines in first and second round match competition which saw "unknowns" take almost complete command of the annual working man's classic.

As a result, the title battle was "wide open" as 18 survivors headed into tomorrow's third round and quarter final duels.

McCormick, the fire fighter who won the championship at San Francisco, was a first round victim, bowing to Lloyd Nordstrom of Davenport, Iowa, one up over 19 holes. Other "well liked" players to fade were Walter Burkemo, the curly-headed medalist from Detroit; Don Erickson, of Los Angeles, medalist and runner-up a year ago, and David A. Mitchell, of Atlanta, Ga., a former champion.

Bradman, in a Hospital Bed, Sees Match by Television as Australian Batsmen Collapse

Aussies Get 201 and 123, Replying to Record 903

LONDON, Aug. 24 (CP cable)—The long-heralded, fight-to-a-finish battle winding up the 1938 test series between England and Australia ended today in the crushing defeat of the invading cricketers. England's margin of victory—an innings and 579 runs—was the biggest for either country in 62 years of international contests.

Fifteen hours' battling netted the Englishmen a record total of 903 runs for seven wickets, declared. Australia's response was so feeble that the team was dismissed twice in five hours for scores of 201 and 123.

Tired and discouraged by absence of Captain Don Bradman and J. H. Singleton, injured earlier in the game, the nine remaining Australians threw off the restraint that characterized their batting in previous tests. But the effort to score some highest, the more vulnerable and they were easy prey for the opposing bowlers.

The five-game series ended with the countries on equal terms with one victory each. The first two tests were drawn and the third abandoned through rain without a ball being bowled. The Aussies retain the mythical Ashes won in England in 1934 and defended successfully against Gilbert Allen's team in the 1936-37 series in Australia.

Today's victory was the 55th for England, two less than Australia. Thirty-one matches have ended in draws.

When Leonard Hutton, Yorkshire's 22-year-old first-wicket batsman made 364 runs yesterday to become highest scorer in test-match competition, he also emerged as leading batsman of the current contests. Playing in three of the four tests, he compiled 473 runs in four innings for an average of a little more than 118 runs. Bradman, Australia's leading batsman, made 434 runs in six innings, twice not out, an average of 108.50.

BEST BOWLER
J. O'Reilly stood out as the most consistent bowler in the four tests. The tall New South Wales schoolmaster captured 20 wickets for 610 runs, an average of 30.50. The only English bowler to play in all the matches was Kenneth Farnes, 1ne Essex amateur dismissed 17 men for 841 runs, an average of 34.1.

Only 5000 spectators saw today's anti-climax when the overseas players retired beaten in mid-afternoon. Chief honors for bringing about the double collapse went to William Bowles, another Yorkshireman, and Farnes, although a slightly worn wicket gave them some assistance.

Bowles took five first-inning wickets for 49 runs and followed it up with 2 for 25. Farnes did most damage in the Australians' second venture, dismissing four for 63 after getting one for 54 in the initial innings.

BY TELEVISION
Bitterly disappointed at being kept out of the concluding stage of the international match, Bradman lay in bed at his hotel nursing a fractured shin-bone. He watched the match by means of a television set.

"I am keenly disappointed at not being able to carry on in the match," Bradman said, adding his appreciation for sympathetic messages sent to him.

The stocky batting wizard may be allowed to leave his bed in a few days, but he is unlikely to take any further part in the old country tour.

Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, rangy Detroit pitcher, rang up his 16th consecutive victory for the Tigers, at Washington four years ago today. He lost in his next appearance at Philadelphia four days later. One of the hurling sensations of the American league, Rowe developed a sore arm last year and early this season was shipped to Beaumont in the Texas league.

being called on this case when you were in my office. Doctor Merri-dew has been trying to get in touch with me for several days and only succeeded after you left."

"I'm so glad, so glad you're here," Noel murmured. "I know you can save Laurie. I know you can."

"I hope I can justify your faith," Julian said gravely. Then asked, "Who is this chap Jimmy? She murmurs his name over and over. I think it might be well to have him here."

Before Noel could answer, Ruth interposed. "Nobody seems to know anything about him, Doctor Paige. I think myself we should have him here. There's a psychological effect to that sort of thing."

Noel looked at her, an expression on her face of silent disgust. But Ruth smiled sweetly and went on: "Miss Shayne has been trying to find him."

Noel explained, then, the efforts she had made and how she had failed to find any trace of Jimmy. A thoughtful frown came to Julian's face. "There should be some way we could trace him," he said, then added, "Laurie is very ill, Noel. There's only a fighting chance."

"But you will save her. I know you will," Noel exclaimed passionately.

A little while later she went over to the nearest drug store to get a prescription filled. When she came back, Julian and Ruth were talking together, quietly and earnestly just outside the sick room door.

Noel went in and sat down beside Laurie. She could not get the tears from her eyes when she looked at the wasted little form, the white, ravaged face. This was the first time she had ever been face to face with anything so terrible as death. Still she would not—could not believe—that Laurie would die.

Then Julian and Ruth came back to the bedside, and Noel moved away. For something like 10 minutes they stood there studying Laurie's condition, nodding at each other now and then in silent understanding.

Noel had never seen two people work together in such perfect harmony as Julian and Ruth Chester. It seemed that the nurse anticipated his every need, even his thoughts.

Seeing them together, realizing how much they had in common, Noel relinquished every faint hope she had had that some day she and Julian would find each other.

Julian was a real man. Thoughtful, highly intelligent. He knew what he wanted. To him Ruth Chester seemed an ideal woman—the perfect mate. Noel remembered only too well that Julian had said that a marriage between himself and Ruth Chester would be most suitable, had they been attracted to each other. And it was plain enough to see that an attraction did exist between them. They seemed to belong together.

Sitting out in a chair in the hall, so as to be close when needed, Noel was because in her thoughts by Julian's grave voice. "I didn't know until Ruth told me that you were helping out during the day. Are you still dancing at—that place?"

She nodded. There wasn't anything else to do but admit the truth. Then Julian said, "Miss Chester thinks we should make different arrangements."

Noel might have expected this. Ruth Chester's plan didn't include having Noel around where Julian could see her every day.

Noel's first impulse was to come out frankly and say that she wasn't going to give up staying with Laurie during the day just because Ruth Chester didn't want her. But instead she asked quietly: "Don't you think I'm capable of real help?"

"I've not been here long enough to judge as to that," Julian answered frankly.

Noel's expression fell. Then she looked up at him eagerly and said: "Kitty Perry said I obeyed instructions well. And I'm not going to leave Laurie during the day, unless—unless," but she didn't finish.

Julian looked at her gravely. "But I thought you were doing it only because there didn't seem to be any other way?"

"I'm doing it because I want to, and because I know Laurie wants me near," Noel said firmly. "And if you don't think my inexperience is jeopardizing Laurie's chances, I'm going to stay. If you do—" but once again Noel couldn't finish.

"I do not think that at all," Julian told her quickly. "I was afraid it was too much for you. That's the main reason."

"Then you will let me stay?" she questioned hopefully.

"Provided you get sufficient sleep and eat the proper amount of food," Julian, I promise to do both."

Noel agreed seriously. She knew Julian was giving her orders just as he would any other person under his care. But, somehow, it was ineffably sweet to have him thinking of her again.

The next morning, quite early, the woman who lived out on Bickford telephoned and gave Noel the name of the place where Jimmy worked.

Daladier, who on Sunday announced his plan to alter the 40-hour week law which now applies to 8,000,000 workers, promised that the principle of the short week would be maintained, and that the longer hours would be applied only to industries where absolutely necessary.

E. C. Traves, Trail Blazer of B. C., Last Original Member P. Burns & Co. Dies at Nakusp; Was 74 Years of Age

Backed Nelson Power Plant and Trinity United Church

A trail blazer of British Columbia, where he has lived for 48 years, and the last remaining member of the original P. Burns & Co., Edmund C. Traves of Edgewood, died in Arrow Lakes hospital at Nakusp Tuesday, following an illness of about nine months. He was 74 years of age, and was a brother of the late T. A. Traves of Nelson, who died five years ago.

In 1890 he came to Nelson from Calgary, working for Wilson & Perdue, butchers. In 1892 he married Miss Mary Ann McEachern, their marriage licence being the first licence issued at the registry office in Nelson. Mrs. Margaret Madden, and her husband, the late Thomas Madden, secured the second licence. Mr. Traves and Mr. Madden and their families were close friends, wished to have a double wedding. Their wish was to have Mr. Traves and his bride, who were Protestants, and Mr. Madden and his bride, who were Catholics, stand back to back, with a Protestant preacher and Catholic priest, respectively, before them. Permission, however, was not granted for the double wedding.

ENTERED BUSINESS 1896
Mr. Traves entered business for himself in Nelson in 1896, opening the West Kootenay Butcher company, on Ward street. He continued in business for himself until 1909, when he sold out to P. Burns & Co., and moved to New Westminster as district manager for the company. He retired in 1928 from P. Burns & Co., and went to his ranch at Edgewood where he lived until the time of his death.

While in Nelson, Mr. Traves was one of the organizers of Kootenay lodge No. 16, I. O. F., and was a member of that lodge until his death. He was also one of the original organizers and directors of the Nelson fair.

He was an active supporter of municipal power in Nelson. Another of his "causes" was the erection of a modern Trinity church. Born in Rochester, Mass., in 1864, Mr. Traves moved with his family to London, Ont., as an infant, and lived there until he was 20 years old. He received all his schooling there.

In 1884 he moved to Winnipeg, and in 1885 came west to Calgary with the militia at the time of the Riel rebellion. While in Calgary he was associated with the original P. Burns company.

Only last Monday, Mrs. Traves received a letter from Richard Burns, one of the officials of P. Burns & Co., thanking Mr. Traves and herself for information regarding early days in the Kootenays, but Mr. Traves was too ill to hear the letter read. The company is preparing a book on early life of the company, and a great deal of material in it is from Mr. and Mrs. Traves.

Besides his wife, he is survived by one son, C. W. Traves, of Edmonton, poultry commissioner for Alberta. Another son, E. C. Traves, jr., was killed in France in 1917, and the eldest son, Arthur, died in infancy. An adopted daughter, Myrtle, died in New Westminster in 1930.

The funeral will be held today in Nelson.

MORE ABOUT EYSTON

Eyston summed up his emotions afterwards in a typical understatement: "Only one word, whistling, describes it. I just whistled through the air."

To the spectators herded far back from the black line down the 13-mile straightaway the passage of the "Thunderbolt" was just a flash of flame from the exhausts and a cloud of salt.

NARROW ESCAPE
There was one narrow escape on the second trip. An automobile wandered near the course. Eyston swerved but the car stopped short of the track.

That the record will fall seemed certain, for waiting to do his bit is another Englishman, John Cobb, who has proclaimed his shark-shaped machine as faster than anything on wheels, which includes Eyston's car.

Concealing the chagrin he must have felt over the technicality that kept his amazing records off the books, Eyston declined to predict what his car would do if pressed. He didn't let it out, he said.

"Just for an experiment I gunned her to the floor at the end of the mile on the south trip," said Eyston. "She shot ahead amazingly."

Cranbrook Wire Theft Results in Two-Year Term for Roy Ribich

Charged with the theft of 7000 pounds of transmission wire in Cranbrook neighborhood, Roy Ribich was sentenced Wednesday by his honor Judge G. H. Thompson to serve two years in New Westminster penitentiary, stated a radio message to provincial police at Nelson. Committed after a preliminary hearing for trial in a higher court, Ribich elected speedy trial and appeared before Judge Thompson.

Andy Hoffman, who was arrested with Ribich and charged similarly, was tried summarily and sentenced to nine months in jail.

They were charged with the theft of copper wire and other materials, the wire alone being valued at $1100. Sold in Calgary, it was traced by police from the foothills city to the B. C. coast.

"Sudden Death" for United or Rossland in Soccer at Trail

TRAIL, B. C., Aug. 24—Confidence of a win over Rossland at Butler park Thursday night was expressed today by "Jock" Lilley, manager of the Uniteds, who meet the golden city team in a sudden death game to decide which squad will play Adanacs Monday for the Schofield soccer cup. When Gunners failed to field a team last Monday it was decided to finish off the series with two games. Adanacs drew a bye to advance to the final.

Seven Prisoners From E. Kootenay Jailed at Nelson

Seven prisoners were added to the population of the Nelson jail in a single group when Constables R. K. Leighton, Robert Ring and D. G. Neff escorted six men and a woman to this city from East Kootenay. Seven prisoners released kept the jail population on an even keel at 67. The newcomers were: Agnes Tennese, Windermere, sentenced to one month for manufacturing intoxicating liquor, and Moses Isaac Tennese, Windermere, sentenced to six months for assault occasioning bodily harm, both having appeared before A. M. Chisholm, stipendiary magistrate.

Patty Berg Wins

CHICAGO, Aug. 24 (AP)—Lightning struck figuratively and literally in the Women's United States western golf championship tournament today as Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky., defending champion, was blasted out of the second round played in drenching rain, thunder and blinding lightning flashes.

The young defending champion, twice winner of the honor, was beaten 3 and 2 by Mrs. Court Weil, Cincinnati, seasoned veteran.

Patty Berg of Minneapolis, winner of eight of 11 tournaments this year, who is strongly favored to succeed Miss Miley, easily conquered Phyllis Buchanan, Denver, 7 and 6.
