BLOODY CLASHES ON BORDER OF RUMANIA

Eastern Germany Is Battered by British

Oil Plant Smashed in Politz; New Hunt for Factories

ACTION IN BERLIN

BERLIN, Sept. 6 - (Friday) - (AP - Via Radio) — The German wireless broadcast early today that an air raid alarm had been sounded in Berlin and that searchlights were in action.

LONDON, Sept. 5 (CP).—Royal Air Force long distance bombers, flying 1200 miles mostly over enemy territory, delivered shattering attack early today on a synthetic oil plant at Politz on the Baltic, the farthest East they have flown in Germany.

Politz is a few miles North of the key Baltic City of Stettin.

While these bombers were carrying out their mission others renewed their search for objectives in the forests of Germany and left tracts of forest land a sheet of flame in the famous Black Forest, in the Thringer Forest, South of Weimar, and the Oberhartz, West of Halle.

Tonight the bombers roared into action again, gun flashes and the flare of bombs on the French side of the English Channell indicated that advance Nazi air bases and artillery emplacements were being systematically harassed by the R. A. F.

German radio stations went off the air late tonight, another indication that the British bombers were once more over Reich territory. Geneva had an air raid alarm — a sign that the R. A. F. was on its way to bomb Italian objectives.

Wednesday night's and Tuesday morning's operations included another attack — the sixth — on Berlin objectives.

"Over Politz itself the (anti-aircraft) fire was at first slight and inaccurate," the Air Ministry News Service said, "though from Stettin a few miles South, it was much more violent."

"Anti-aircraft batteries on the other side of the River Oder also joined in and as the raid proceeded the fire grew."

The first salvo was dropped at Politz soon after 11 p.m., and the attack went on for two hours. With visibility good the results in numerous cases were clearly evident.

A pilot who made a shallow dive attack saw a stick of bombs fall right across the centre of the plant. More bursts mushroomed into sight in the middle of the building and then two of a line of tall chimneys fell as a result of a later attack.

"I saw the long building of the refineries and six tall chimneys," the pilot concerned said. "As soon as we were satisfied of our position we made a dive attack at 350 miles an hour. We released a salvo of high explosive bombs and scored direct hits on the other end of a big building at the Southeast approach to the target. We could see a couple of chimneys topple over and crash. Then there was a big explosion which was followed by a fire you could see 70 miles away."

Another section of raiders attacked the Berlin West power station at Charlottenburg for a second night.

Two Destroyers Sunk; Another Is Hit But in Port

LONDON, Sept. 5 (CP). — The Admiralty announced today the destroyers Ivanhoe and Esk had been sunk by torpedoes or mines and that the destroyer Express had been damaged.

A communique said:

"The Secretary of the Admiralty regrets to announce that the destroyers H. M. S. Ivanhoe (Commander P. H. Hadow, R. N.) and H. M. S. Esk (Lieut. Comm. R. H. Couch, R. N.) have been sunk by enemy torpedoes or mines.

"A German communique issued today claims to have sunk during the last few days five British destroyers, including the Express, Esk and Ivanhoe.

"The truth is that, apart from the Ivanhoe and Esk, no other British destroyer has been sunk, although one destroyer, H. M. S. Express (Capt. J. G. Bickford, D. S. C., R. N.) was damaged, but is safely in port."

Japan Is Given Right-of-Way for Attack on China

By C. YATES McDANIEL
Associated Press Staff Writer

HONG KONG, Sept. 5 (AP).—A preliminary, basic agreement giving Japan right-of-way in French Indo-China for a backdoor attack on China in an effort to wind up the three-year-old war was reported tonight by authoritative neutral quarters at Hanoi.

This concession of a "limited" right to land Japanese troops and supplies at Haiphong, was said to have been reached between Tokyo and the Vichy Government in France. It was still subject to negotiation of details at Hanoi.

This was the latest and apparently best informed version of the crisis in the most populous segment of defeated France's troubled Empire.

Threat of a forcible invasion of Indo-China — the essence of a reported Japanese ultimatum of Monday—appeared to have passed. One explanation was that Maj.-Gen. Issaku Nishihara, Japanese negotiator in chief, had overstepped himself.

Confronted with a French warning of armed resistance to any invasion and a declaration that acquiescence would be incompatible with Vichy's instructions, Nishihara, under pressure from Tokyo, was said to have re-entered conversations with French colonial officials.

Britain, meantime, has "reminded" Japan through diplomatic channels that it wants Indo-China's integrity preserved, it was announced in London.

The men are charged with taking the gold from the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company's property at Slate Creek, tributary to Manson Creek.

Londoners Are Sent to Shelter for Over 7 Hours

39 NAZIS DOWNED

LONDON, Sept. 6 (Friday) (CP)—An Air Ministry bulletin today said that 39 enemy aircraft were destroyed yesterday.

Twenty British fighters were lost but the pilots of nine of these are safe.

By HAROLD FAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 6 (Friday) (CP Cable)—Londoners, emerging from their air-raid shelters early today after the longest raid of the war, were sent back underground as sirens throughout the London area sounded warning of a new raid. The alarm lasted half an hour.

The all-clear signal had sounded at 4:50 a.m. after seven hours and 33 minutes of siege, and day was breaking over this capital of the Empire as they emerged.

Exactly half an hour later—at 5:20 a.m.—the alarm rang out again. The all-clear signal came at 5:51 a. m.

Although the longest of the war the raid was marked by less activity than in a number of previous raids.

Raiders came also over other points in England and Wales dropping bombs in some areas.

Roofwatchers in London saw no more than one or two searchlight concentrations and heard no more than two planes at a time.

Nearly 1000 persons escaped when a high explosive bomb scored a direct hit on a shelter they were occupying in a square. The chief warden there said the bomb hit the edge of the shelter burying two persons who soon were dug out and taken to hospital. Both were seriously injured. Three persons in the road when the bomb burst also were injured and removed to hospital.

A bomb burst in a square in front of a block of tenements in another section. Windows were shattered and buildings damaged, but the casualties, chiefly from flying glass, were few.

One woman was killed and two persons injured when a bomb hit a house in a nearby street.

A German plane shot down crashed in flames on two houses in the main thoroughfare of a working class district in a Northeast coast town and set fire to the dwellings. The roof of one house collapsed on a shelter in which a number of persons had taken cover. A woman was killed and two were injured.

Nazi bombers also were over eight towns in the London section. They crossed the East coast in great force. Incendiary bombs were dropped in clusters.

The overnight raids came after waves of German bombers harassed Britain yesterday, disrupting temporarily an important session of the House of Commons and scattering bombs which caused some damage to industrial property on the busy Thames.

The glare and thud of bursting explosives, the cough of anti-aircraft fire and the dancing pencils of searchlights came last night with the siren wail of the day's third alarm—at 9:17 p.m.

The Nazis' attack brought simultaneous clusters of searchlight beams in several areas; and thus it appeared that they had come in from a number of directions at once.

Heavy bomb rumbles from the distance formed a deep bass undertone to the sharper notes of the anti-aircraft artillery.

Once a great glow sprang up, lighting buildings in sharp silhouettes. Some observers thought it might be an oil fire.

Two hours after the beginning of the raid it still was in progress. There were four explosions within 15 minutes.

Nazi planes also were over the industrial Midlands, the Northeast, the Northwest, Southwest and Wales.

MINISTER STILL HELD IN INTERNMENT CAMP

MONTREAL, Sept. 5 (CP).—The Executive Committee reported to the Montreal Presbytery, United Church of Canada, today that efforts to have Rev. D. Scalera released from an internment camp have been without success so far. He was minister of the Italian Church of the Redeemer here.

Beatty Backs Joint Measures of Canada, U.S.; Sees Prolonged War

VANCOUVER, Sept. 5 (CP). — Development of defence measures jointly by Canada and the United States was endorsed tonight by Sir Edward Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in an address here.

"It has always seemed to me axiomatic that Canada must remain in perpetual alliance with Great Britain and the United States," he told a joint gathering of the Vancouver Board of Trade, Bar Association and Canadian Club.

"The interests of these two great nations will, please God, never be divergent, and there is nothing to give alarm to the most ardent British patriot in the spectacle of British North America agreeing with the United States to make tangible plans for common effort against aggression."

Sir Edward, confident in victory for the democracies and urging every sacrifice to further the Empire's war effort, foresaw the necessity for maintenance of power pending restoration of order and good Government in Europe.

One of the most puzzling questions, he said, was how the war is to be brought to its final conclusion after victory had been achieved. It seemed unthinkable that a peace conference could be held with Hitler and Mussolini present. He added:

"My own feeling is that we shall have to continue the war until revolutionary alterations of the Governments of several countries have occurred, and that we may even see the necessity of policing a great deal of Europe by comparatively large numbers of troops until order can be restored and the life of many nations assumes a more normal aspect."

Aided by the United States to whatever extent it feels it desirable to participate, the British Empire must continue to prepare a military force capable of restoring order. "And I think it might change the minds of the dictators if they could see the preparations that we, in this country, are making for this purpose," he said.

Each nation of the Empire was contributing, realistically and practically, to the common effort. But, as might be expected, the brunt of the battle falls on Britain. "This small group of peoples have met the onslaught of German force with a courage and calmness which will shine in the pages of history," he said.

MacIsaac Dies of Explosion Burns, Death Accidental Trail Jury Finds

Steam Jets Worked Automatically When Three Blasts Occurred; Experts Agree Explosion From Dust

TRAIL, B. C., Sept. 5—John Angus MacIsaac, 27 year old Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company employee, died at Trail-Tadanac Hospital at 7:30 this morning, of injuries received in the explosion of the sulphur flaking plant Wednesday night.

At an inquest held this afternoon, the jury returned a verdict of accidental death due to shock caused by severe burns, as the result of the explosion.

E. A. G. Colls, Assistant General Superintendent of the chemical fertilizer department, told the Coroner's Jury that the explosion was most probably caused by the sulphur dust being ignited from a static electrical spark.

The plant was equipped with steam jets as a precaution against such explosions, he said. Mr. Colls said he had noticed three explosions, one in the building, one in the elevator pit, and the third in a tunnel.

He stated a potential explosive atmosphere was by no means always present in the plant.

DIFFERS AS TO SPARK

J. F. Millican, Assistant Superintendent of the Sulphur Dioxide Recovery division, did not believe a static electric spark caused the explosion, as he knew all equipment was grounded and repeatedly checked, he told the Coroner's Jury. A spark could have been made by two pieces of steel coming together. The plant equipment comprised many steel parts, he said.

He said MacIsaac, who was a regular employee, was a furnace operator, and he understood he had gone outside to cool off after attending to the furnace. Possibly he had gone over to Donald Smith, the second man who was injured in the explosion, who was standing about 250 feet away.

Stanley S. Gallamore, shift boss in the plant, testified he had seen MacIsaac at his work two minutes before the explosion. MacIsaac smoked occasionally at his work, he said. After the explosion, Mr. Gallamore said, he went to look for MacIsaac, and the safety steam jets were operating at that time.

DEATH FROM SHOCK

Dr. F. L. Wilson, who attended the two injured men, stated he had given MacIsaac medical treatment and that he had rallied, but had later relapsed. He confirmed Dr. J. S. Daly's testimony that MacIsaac's death was caused by shock following severe burns.

Dr. Daly stated a post mortem examination revealed that MacIsaac had received second degree burns on his face, chest, arms and back.

William John Davis, first aid attendant, said that, after investigating to see if no others were injured, he had notified the relatives of the men.

The jurymen were L. F. Tyson, foreman; George Goddard, S. R. Walley, A. L. Reading, W. J. Ternan and J. T. Margetts.

Mr. MacIsaac is survived by his wife, and a small son, John, at Warfield; a brother Stephen at Trail; and his father in Nova Scotia.

Funeral services will be held on Saturday.

Dr. J. B. Thom, District Coroner, presided over the inquest.

SMITH CRITICAL

At a late hour tonight, Donald Smith, the other explosion victim, was in a critical condition in Trail-Tadanac Hospital, but holding his own.

Attempt to Engage Italian Fleet Fails

CAIRO, Sept. 5 (CP)—Britain's Mediterranean fleet in an extensive six-day operation smashed Italian airdromes, torpedoed "an enemy unit" and shot down at least 13 enemy planes, British naval headquarters announced today in a review of manoeuvres in the Central and Eastern Mediterranean from Aug. 30 to Sept. 5. (Also See "British, Page Seven).

The British forces once again were forced to watch the Italian battle fleet steam away from action and race to its bases.

The Italian fleet first was sighted Aug. 31 by British submarines which torpedoed "an enemy unit", headquarters said, and later before dark, planes of the Fleet Air Arm spotted the Italians 15 miles from the British fleet. The enemy turned toward his base "and no contact was possible".

No other enemy forces were sighted throughout the operations, the statement said.

The Admiralty in London announced the submarine Parthian on Aug. 31 made two hits on an Italian cruiser and destroyer force, apparently the same action referred to by the naval headquarters at Cairo.

The statement told of the Fleet Air Arm's bombing of Maritza and Calato in Rhodes, part of the Italian Dodecanese Islands, Sept. 4 during which aircraft on the ground were damaged and ammunition dumps, barracks and other buildings hit by bombs.

The Australian cruiser Sydney with two destroyers, including the Ilex, carried out a successful bombardment of the Port of Makri Yalo. The Ilex shot down eight Italian planes and damaged six others which bombed the British naval forces as they subjected the port to heavy fire.

Other Italian planes on the airdromes at Makri Yalo were damaged. Six British planes were lost.

Before this attack, bombers attacked the fleet Southwest of Malta. The British anti-aircraft guns and the Fleet Air Arm planes shot down five of the bombers.

Legion of Death Defies Hungarians and Civilians Riot

Tense Conference King Carol and Rumania's New Dictator Ends at 3 a.m., Report New Demands Made on Carol

CLUJ, Transylvania, Sept. 6 (Friday)—(AP).—Small but bloody clashes between retreating Rumanian soldiers and the advancing Hungarian army of occupation occurred on the North Transylvania border, it was officially announced tonight.

The chief executive official of Cluj said a number of deaths had occurred. He said the skirmishes were isolated and the withdrawal was in general orderly.

Col. Strat, organizer of a "Legion of Death" which was reported preparing to resist the Hungarians with a force estimated at 3500 men, still was at his frontier post of Sacueni, having defied the Rumanian Government's order to leave.

Deep in the Carpathian Mountains, in the area of Transylvania ceded to Hungary, numerous outbreaks were reported.

In Southern Transylvania, which remains in Rumania, angry citizens at Arad broke into Hungarian and German shops and attacked Germans and Hungarians on the streets.

At Timisoara, Germans were beaten and stripped.

In Cluj, workmen in Hungarian-owned plants established an armed guard after they had been driven out by Rumanian soldiers.

Hungarian soldiers began the occupation of Northern Transylvania yesterday, carrying the ancient flags of the Magyars back toward the high slopes of the Carpathian Mountains.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Sept. 6 (Friday) (AP)—A tense conference between King Carol II and Rumania's new military dictator, Gen. Ion Antonescu, broke up at 3 a.m. today and the general hurried to a conference with army officers through crowds of demonstrators clamoring for Carol's abdication.

There was no indication of the outcome of the conference between the king and the man who reduced him to a puppet ruler, but it was reported authoritatively that Antonescu had presented demands on the monarch for the application of certain new orders.

Just before Antonescu left the king's palace, the gendarmes on guard there were replaced by steel-helmeted soldiers.

In official circles it was reported that a decree had been issued removing from office Ion Morozea, chief of the palace secret police.

This move was considered significant for Morozea long has been known as Rumania's "mystery man." He often travelled abroad on secret royal missions and was reputed to be the most powerful single figure in Carol's regime.

He came and went at the royal chambers by night and day without question. He made and broke ministers of state and shaped vital policies.

During the conference between the king and the new dictator-premier, reported on the authority of a Government official to be concerned with a demand that Carol renounce his throne, a group of Iron Guardists kept up a noisy vigil near the royal palace.

Hemmed in by soldiers and gendarmes, these demonstrators shouted again and again:

"Carol must abdicate! But don't let him take the money!"

The Iron Guardists already had been involved in a bloody riot near the palace, which was broken up by troops only to spread out then into sporadic rifle and pistol clashes at numerous points in the city.

In this initial outbreak, hundreds of troops, using armored cars and machine guns, fought the pro-Fascist Guardists.

Despite the ferocity of the action, on the main street of Bucharest, first reports indicated only one person had been killed and several wounded.

The outbreak was set off by a crowd's demonstration against King Carol. They shouted denunciations within earshot of the palace, and sang songs critical of the monarch.

Then they began to cry "long live Antonescu!"—thus saluting Rumania's new military dictator, Gen. Ion Antonescu, who was forming a new Government that reduced Carol to a figurehead and broke up a "court Camarilla" headed by Carol's redheaded mistress, Magda Lupescu.

For a short time the demonstrants had control of an armored car equipped with powerful motor hoses. They turned the nozzles upon buildings and scores of them were damaged.

They dismantled sidewalk cafes, throwing steel chairs at gendarmes.

Five Drivers Pay Fines on Charges of Double Parking

Five Nelson drivers paid fines of $10 each in Police Court Thursday for "double parking". They were brought before Magistrate William Brown on charges of parking their vehicles more than 13 inches from, and parallel to, the curb on Baker Street. Each pleaded guilty.

Those paying fines were Lloyd Catley, Ar Sam, Merion Brown, James Lundie and Nick Smith, all of them except Brown being truck drivers.

A sixth charge, of failing to park at a 45-degree angle, was dismissed by His Worship. Hans Farenholtz, after pleading guilty to a charge of failing to park a truck at the required angle on the East side of Hendryx Street between Baker and Vernon Streets, explained that the truck was over 18 feet long and that Section 34 of governing bylaw required that it be parked parallel to the curb.

The prosecutions were launched after the City Council demanded that its new traffic bylaw should be enforced. Additional cases are to be heard today.

Nazi-Dropped Powder Is Not Mustard Gas

LONDON, Sept. 5 (CP). — German aircraft dropped a white powder on streets in a Welsh district today. It first was reported to be mustard gas in solid form, but The Press Association said it was "officially informed there is no truth whatever in that suggestion." (Powder noted on the ground after a raid earlier in the war was believed to have been used to explode bundles of propaganda leaflets as they were dropped from the planes).

Two more checks for $50 each, received by the Nelson Daily News Thursday, boosted the district bomber fund to $1952.25—11 checks short of the 50 set as the objective.

A. Tregillus, Nelson old-timer, boosted the fund by $50.

A woman whose gift was the second of the day wrote:

"Have been saving for some time for a new coat, but know I would get more pleasure in giving enclosed to the Nelson District Bomber Fund. Wishing this gift to be anonymous . . ."

12-Year Bonds Bearing Coupons at Three Per Cent on Sale Monday

OTTAWA, Sept. 5 (CP).—Canadian investors will be called upon next Monday morning to subscribe to Canada's second war loan when 12-year bonds bearing coupons at three per cent will be offered to the public at $98.75, which means an average interest yield of 3.125 per cent.

Bonds sold for cash will be limited to $300,000,000. Provision also is made for holders of 4½ per cent bonds, which matured September 1, to convert their bonds to the new issue.

If oversubscribed the $300,000,000 will be allocated under a system designed to give preference to small investors. The coupon bearing bonds dated October 1, 1940, will be in denominations of $100, $500 and $1000. Fully registered bonds, the interest on which is paid by check, will be in denominations of $500, $1000, $5000, $10,000 and $100,000.

Successful disposal of this loan will mean that, after a year of war, the Government is able to borrow money at an interest rate lower than when hostilities were just getting under way. Last January, the first war loan, amounting to $250,000,000, including conversions, was sold at a rate of 3¼ per cent yielding an average of 3.25 per cent.

Finance Department officials said that, so far as they were aware, the rate on the forthcoming loan was as low as that paid on similar bonds in any part of the Empire outside of the United Kingdom, and possibly lower.

The bonds may be redeemed in whole or in part at par value on and after October 1, 1949, or on any subsequent interest date, on 60 days' notice.

Because the smaller investors have an opportunity to put their surplus in War Savings Certificates it was decided not to issue the new bonds in denominations lower than $100.

Wholesale Row Steps Up Business Pace to September Level; School Opening Brings Customary Flurry

Fresh Meat Demand Is Livelier; Peaches About Over

With school opening over and the flurry of business customary at this time concluded, business generally was at normal September levels toward the end of this week. School opening had only minor direct effect upon wholesale row, but the general stepping up of business was reflected in a slightly larger volume of sales.

September brought a better demand for fresh meats, and a corresponding slackening in sales of smoked and cooked meats. The change to cooler weather gave an impetus to this seasonal swing.

Meat and egg prices were steady through the week.

PEACHES ABOUT OVER

Movement of Okanagan and local peaches neared its end. The season has been short and demand had been good.

Sales of other fruits and of vegetables are slow on wholesale row due to large local supplies. Cabbages, while available, are in lesser volume than ordinarily at this season due to inroads made by cutworms.

New pack dried raisins and currants from Australia arrived on the market during the week. New pack canned vegetables are beginning to arrive, but movement of canned fruits has not yet started in any volume.

With no more dates from Iraq available, buyers are being advised to obtain supplies early. They are described as "good buying" at present prices.

PINK SALMON ADVANCING

While the pack of sockeye and coho salmon is above normal levels the pink salmon is down and prices are advancing.

Fruit jar sales continue good and local supplies are low.

One of the best known lines of malt extract is off the market. This extract was shipped in bulk from Britain and canned in Vancouver.

Flour and feed sales were at a seasonal low ebb. A reduction of 15 cents per bale in the price of rolled oats was the only price change. First cars of 1940 hay—alfalfa from Salmon Arm—was unloaded during the week. Good district crops of hay are reported.

Jam manufacture is currently concentrated on plums and peaches. One car of jam was shipped during the week to the Prairie and another will roll in a few days.

Carlot arrivals of the week included one of jam cans, one of California fruit, two of alfalfa, one of flour, and feed, one of groceries, one of sugar, one of dried fruit and two of meats.

Fruits moving at present consisted mostly of Bartlett pears, plums and Wealthy apples, Mr. Foxall said. Italian prunes were expected at the end of the week.

EDMONTON, Sept. 5 (CP).—Magistrate A. I. Millar called time out for further consideration when John Walyshyn was arraigned before him in police court today on a charge of having failed to register under the National Resources Mobilization Act.

Walyshyn, who was arrested for begging, presented papers to show that he had been discharged from the Canadian Active Service Force Aug. 30. Under the National Registration regulations, members of the armed forces were not required to register during the registration days, Aug. 19, 20, and 21.

There is no clause in the Mobilization Act covering such a situation so the magistrate adjourned the case for a day.

Seek Solution to Grain Problem

OTTAWA, Sept. 5 (CP)—Three conferences were held in Ottawa today in an effort to reach some solution to grain marketing difficulties. Producers are unable to cash in on their crops for lack of elevator space.

Official circles declined to comment on the success of the conferences tonight but Agriculture Minister Gardiner said he did not expect a decision by the Government before Saturday at the earliest.

The first meeting was between the wheat committee of the cabinet, headed by Trade Minister MacKinnon, and high officials of the chartered banks. It is understood the suggestion was made that the banks make loans to the farmers on the wheat held on the farms and the Government protect the banks from losses to the extent of 15 per cent of the total amount so loaned, much in the same way as in the Home Improvement scheme.

Trail Bruins Blast Out 25-10 Victory in First Game of Lacrosse Finals

Last Second Goal Wins for Burrards

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Sept. 5 (CP).—Bo Bradford's goal five seconds from time tonight sent Vancouver Burrards into a 17-16 win over the Canadian champion New Westminster Adanacs to give them a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series for the Inter-City Box Lacrosse League championship.

During the match Bo sank three goals and co-starred with Johnny MacDonald who drove in four. MacDonald subbed for Chuch Morphitt, who suffered a fractured jaw in a fight with Adanac's Bob Lee in the initial game. It was MacDonald's first league game this year. He had been recuperating since last season with an injured eye suffered in the 1939 playoffs.

Redmen's Play Erratic as Meet Decisive Defeat

HOMAGE IS PAID C. D. BLACKWOOD

TRAIL, B. C., Sept. 5—The Rossland Redmen went down before the savage attack of the Trail Golden Bears in losing the first game of the West Kootenay senior boxla finals 25-10 at the Smelter City rink Thursday night.

The first two periods were carried at a furious pace that kept the fans alternately cheering and booing, while the Bears' superior combination plays, aided by wild passes and uncertain shots from the Redmen, put them ahead 7-0 at the end of the first canto. The lead widened into a 10-goal margin by halftime, the score standing at 13-3.

Red-headed Marcus Smith broke away three times to send sizzlers past Saprunoff, and Merlo scored one in the first stanza when he tore down the floor unchecked from behind the Bears' citadel. Joe Laface earned the high-light goal of the game, breaking through the Trail defence with seconds to spare and throwing a tricky shot past Moro.

ROSSLAND PLAY RAGGED

Rossland's play was spasmodic, with shot after shot going wide of the Trail goal, and passing ragged. Their plays clicked few times, but the Bears' steady defence broke up the formations before the Rosslanders could register.

Al Sitton threatened to be a stretcher case when he went into the boards in the opening period, but he was on his feet again in a minute. At the beginning of the third, Bill Turik, carrying everything behind a scorcher that went sizzling past Saprunoff, went headfirst into the boards, and went down for a two-minute count. The sound of the impact carried clear across the rink.

Booney Sammartino turned rebel and added a 10-minute misconduct penalty to a back-talk stretch, deliberately tripping Referee Len Wilson as he headed for the boxegow.

A one-minute silence was observed in honor of the late C. D. Blackwood, of Nelson, before the game. R. R. Burns, M. L. A. for Rossland-Trail, gave a short speech in memory of Mr. Blackwood, referring to him as "the father of lacrosse in the Kootenays."

The second game will be played in Rossland Monday.

Ship Launched on West Coast

A WEST COAST CANADIAN PORT, Sept. 5 (CP). — Another addition to Canada's growing list of fighting ships — a trim Corvette type vessel — slid down the ways into the waters of a flood tide here tonight amid the cheers of a group of naval and military officials and the men who built her.

The ship was christened "Malpeque" after an East coast bay, by Mrs. G. L. Stephens, wife of Engineer Captain G. L. Stephens, R. C. N., in charge of naval construction on the Pacific coast.

The dedication of the latest addition to the Royal Canadian Navy was read by the Senior Naval Chaplains, Father A. B. Wood and Rev. Arthur Bischlager. The launching took less than 10 minutes, one of the shortest on record.

Unusual Summer in Cranbrook District

CRANBROOK, B. C., Sept. 5 (CP)—Meteorological Bureau records testify to an unusual Summer in July and August for this Kootenay District.

Most unusual was a rainfall of over two inches during the two months, when usually no rain falls. Despite the rain however the humidity was high and created one of the worst forest fire years for a decade.

Maximum Summer temperature was 101 degrees in July, and the low grazed the freezing point on the night of July 31. An unusually large number of thunderstorms occurred.

U. S. Base Experts Explore Bermuda

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Sept. 5 (CP Cable) — The 10,000-ton United States cruiser St. Louis steamed into Hamilton harbor today with defence experts aboard, signalling the opening action to establish U. S. bases on British possessions.

The United States experts are here to study the possibilities of establishing a defence base in Bermuda for the protection of the Western Hemisphere. Similar naval and air bases will be established at points in the British West Indies and Newfoundland also leased by Britain to the United States. Rear-Admiral J. W. Greenslade headed the United States delegation.

The United States experts will carry on discussions with Governor Sir Denis Bernard and Vice-Admiral Sir Kennedy Purvis.

Admiral Greenslade said in an interview the United States experts would remain in the British colony for "several days" and he was anxious to be here Sunday to attend the Cathedral Empire Day of Prayer for peace.

KISS YOUR TIRED FEELING GOODBYE!

Pepless Many Suffer Low Blood Count—And Don't Know It.

The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can weigh about as much as you ever did — even look healthy and strong, yet — you can feel as if you had lead in your legs, dopey, tired and pepless.

Low bloodcount means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your car and make the power to turn the wheels, so you must have plenty of oxygen to explode the energy in your body and give you going power.

Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today. They are world-famous for the help they give in increasing the number and strength of red corpuscles. Then with your blood count up, you'll feel like bounding up the stairs as if you were floating on air. Ask your druggist for Dr. Williams Pink Pills today. (Advt.)

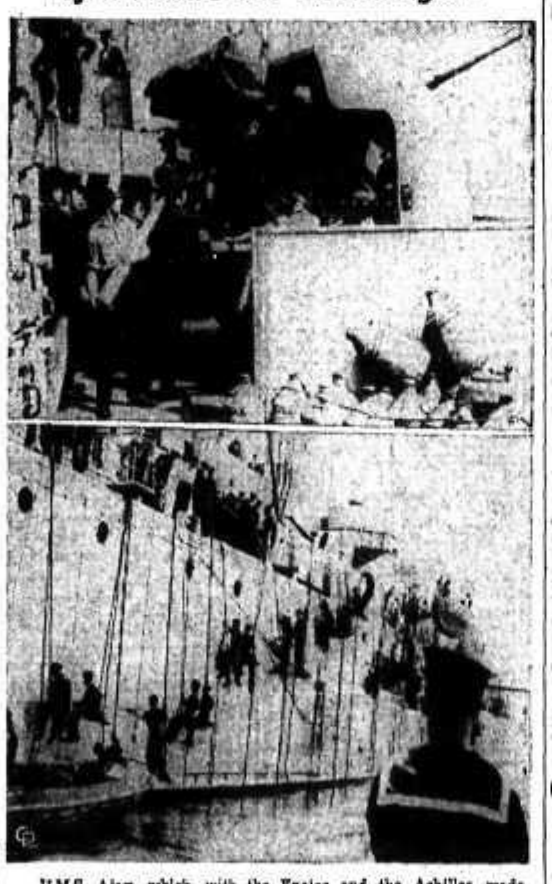
Ajax Shows Her Teeth Again



H.M.S. Ajax, which, with the Exeter and the Achilles, made rings around the Graf Spee and finally drove her to suicide in the dramatic River Plate action, has been recommissioned. At top, a gun crew aboard the Ajax is shown at practice with twin four-inch guns. At bottom the warship is shown being painted.

Relationship of Doctor, Patient Changes Rapidly

Relationship of medical men and patients was changing rapidly and significantly with the advance of medical science, and as evidence of this changing relationship the B. C. Medical Association would inaugurate, at its convention in the Kootenays next week, public meetings at which visiting doctors would discuss recent advances in medical science, stated Dr. F. M. Auld at a luncheon of the Board of Trade Council Thursday. The public meeting would be a new feature of the B. C. Association, he said.

Dr. Auld, currently President of the Association, declared that the advance in science was such that it was impossible today for a doctor to give complete service himself, covering the whole field. The result was a great increase in the number of specialists and consultants and greater team work between doctors in many ways. They were cooperating with hospitals as advisors, were acting as advisors to military and civil authorities, and were contributing to the health education of the citizens at large.

It was largely in the latter field that the public meeting of the forthcoming convention would be of greatest service, he said.

CALGARY FLIER AWARDED D.F.C.

LONDON, Sept. 5 (CP Cable). — Acting Flt. Lt. Sidney Robert Gibbs, born at Calgary in 1916, today was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross after an exploit in which he destroyed three Heinkels and damaged five others while on a long distance reconanissance flight to Tromsoe, Norway.

The citation said Gibbs was captain of a Sunderland flying boat detailed in August to carry out a reconnaissance of the Arctic port region.

"After a long night flight under bad conditions," the citation added, "he located eight Heinkel planes which he promptly attacked. As a result three of these aircraft were destroyed and the remainder seriously damaged."

It added that Gibbs brought his machine safely home after a flight of 15½ hours with valuable information on shipping in the Tromsoe area.

Gibbs was educated at Santa Cruz High School in California and in Peterborough, England. He became a pupil pilot of the R.A.F. in 1936. In July he was mentioned in dispatches.

4 Cases of "Scarlet" Among Evacuees

VANCOUVER, Sept. 5 (CP) — Dr. Stuart Murray, Vancouver's Medical Health Officer, said today that four cases of scarlet fever had been discovered recently in the examination of children evacuated here from Britain.

Dr. Murray said that a total of about 150 children had been examined here but except for the four scarlet fever cases all were in good physical condition. The medical health officer said it is possible the scarlet fever was contracted after the children embarked for Canada.

The ailing children are now in hospital.

Manchester Production Normal Despite Numerous Raids on Area

By TAYLOR HENRY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MANCHESTER, Eng., Sept. 5 (AP)—The great Manchester industrial area—one of the world's most densely populated—is functioning normally despite three weeks of sporadic bombing by German night raiders.

On an unimpeded tour of this area I have been unable to find a single factory that has been hit. All were working full-blast.

In a survey made without official guidance and without official knowledge, I checked factory after factory, mill after mill, along the Ship Canal in the industrial suburbs, Stockport and Trafford Park.

Cotton mills, steel and iron works, chemical factories and rubber plant officials said they have not lost an hour's production.

When I started out, I hired a driver and picked the streets myself so there would be no chance of a loyal Briton hiding evidences of damage from a foreigner.

At the end of three hours I still wasn't satisfied and called for official help at the local office of the Ministry of Information. There my personal observations were confirmed.

"Not a factory has been hit in the whole area," the office director said. When I expressed amazement, he produced his official log book and handed it over for my inspection.

It showed that while literally thousands of bombs had been dropped, most were incendiaries which were put out quickly.

The total damage done has been a few persons killed, some dozen houses demolished, farm fields set on fire and village windows shattered.

Life in Manchester goes on in the stolid Lancashire way.

No work is stopped when warnings are sounded now. People get off the streets but production goes on.

Factories post lookouts to sound the final warning if things get too hot. But so far that hasn't been necessary.

Survivors of British Ships Landed in U.S.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 5 (AP). — Thirty-seven haggard and disheveled British seamen, eight of them injured, told a grim tale today of disaster and death in the war at sea.

Landed here unexpectedly last night by the Swedish freighter Eknaren, they were sole survivors of crews of two British vessels, the 4000-ton freighter Blaimore and the Royal Navy sloop Penzance. Both torpedoed and sunk Aug. 24 about 700 miles off the Irish coast.

More than 100 of their shipmates were lost.

Their stories, pieced together indicated the eight injured men were the only survivors of the Penzance.

Not Dead . . .

Typhoid Ready to Strike When Precautions Lag

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Not the least interesting parts of Dr. Hans Zinsner's recent book of reminiscences are the accounts of his journeys to far corners of the earth looking for reservoirs of almost extinct diseases. Where now is yellow fever? Cholera? Typhus fever? Plague? I have been in practice for over thirty years and never saw a case of any of these diseases.

Yellow fever visited Philadelphia, Baltimore and New Orleans year after year, during Colonial times and early in the nineteenth century. The old women gossiping on the porches could diagnose it. Now I doubt if all my colleagues on the faculty would recognize a full blown case if it were brought in the hospital. But it isn't dead. Doctor Zinsmer found it in Russia and Turkey.

Typhus fever, which used to be called jail fever, is an old offender which also has almost disappeared. A few years ago Doctor Brill, described a peculiar febrile condition that had been occurring in his wards. The patients had a fever and broke out in spots. The condition was so mysterious that a new name had to be coined for it. It was called Brill's disease. But it turned out to be really typhus fever, a disease once as familiar as pneumonia. Where had it been all this time? We know it is carried by lice and fleas. The gradual disappearance of these little companions of men probably accounts for the disappearance of typhus. But it is not gone. Doctor Zinsmer found a huge reservoir of typhus in the bodies of rats.

There is a lesson here which applies to typhoid fever. Once at this time of year it was among the commonest of diseases. Now it has almost disappeared. But our knowledge of how diseases sleep, ready to break out again, should teach us that the precautions against typhoid should not be neglected. We have no means of protection against the other diseases I listed, but against typhoid we have means of protection. It's probably the widespread employment of typhoid immunization that accounts for the rarity of the disease today.

Separation Best for Mother and Daughter Rows

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Dear Miss Chatfield:

I am nineteen. I have the best father in the world but my mother is not kind to me. Every day she tells me she hates me and lives for the day when I will be married and out of her sight. I would love to get married and move away from this home but how can I when she refuses to let me go out of the house with a boy friend—even to a movie? After I finished high school I wanted to get a job but she wouldn't hear of that, said I should stay at home and help her with the housework. Father thought I should be allowed to try for a job, but he let mother have her way. If things were pleasant at home I wouldn't mind staying home but you can imagine how bad it is to live where you are hated by your own mother. Don't you think I ought to get out?

Jenny L.

Answer:

With your father on your side, you should be able to count on his sympathy and help in finding a position and a new home, though it stands to reason that if your mother is as mean as you make her out, your father is scared of her too. Yet, if you and he put your heads together you can work out a plan.

A nineteen-year-old girl should be permitted to have dates at home and go to movies, as well as other places of amusement. Her mother should be hand in glove with these social arrangements and if she isn't, daughter should get her ducks in a row to move to more congenial surroundings. Aunts and uncles are sometimes very convenient friends on such occasions. But if there aren't any relatives to provide the way out, the cause isn't lost. We can usually find something to run to when we are in an unbearable jam.

When you see women devoting their lives to the business of making their husbands and children contented and happy, you wonder how it is that other women miss the mark so completely. You wonder how these unsympathetic mothers can fail to think of the future when they shall be old and dependent upon these daughters.

Yet we have seen that the bitterest enemies on earth are an antagonistic mother and daughter. The fact that they are under each other's noses all day, coupled with the fact that each of them feels a sense of shame at the bad blood between them, makes life intolerable for both. Once it was not decent to admit this. Today we not only admit but openly advocate separation and say the sooner and the wider, the better.

Homogenization is the process which prevents cream rising to the top of a can of Carnation Milk. The last spoonful is double-rich and creamy-smooth, just like the first. You get unvarying results in creaming or cooking.

CASTLEGAR MISS HAS BIRTHDAY PARTY

CASTLEGAR, B. C. — A delightful party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. Bourdon on their daughter's, Fay Marie, fourth birthday. Balloons and whistles, peanuts and candies were given as favors.

Guests were Beverley Spiers, Jean Blanchard, Patsy Rigby, Kenneth Rigby, Stella Erickson, Donna Muirhead, Freddie Salekin, Geraldine DePoe, Joan Lightle, Billy Watson, Shirrel Riley, Paul Dwillis, Ioline Redding, Betty McArthur.

BALCOMBE, Australia (CP) — Through the generosity of three brothers, the Y.M.C.A. has been enabled to erect and equip for all types of indoor sport at a cost of £2600 ($11,520), a large hall for the Australian Expeditionary Force.

Activity . . .

Age No Longer Excuse for Loss of Good Looks

By DONNA GRACE

From their appearance and activities, it would seem that modern women are determined to ignore age. They are so clever in everything they do, a few score years more or less is no tragedy. This is what they try to think, ut as we all know advancing years can be depressing for some.

One of the best things about these mature girls is their lack of artificiality. Certainly they use makeup and keep their hair the most becoming shade, but they have learned that only expert work will preserve the natural effects. Even those who cannot go to the better salons regularly make a point to be advised by those who know what is best for them and they do avoid all beauty aids that have a tendency to juvenile or garish effects.

The regular activities in which they indulge is the main beauty aid. They know dormant muscles will take away youthful grace and suppleness and make them stiff and old-looking. Physical activity stimulates circulation and this means the eyes will retain their sparkle and the skin and hair an attractiveness that never suggests age.

The few who have given up all activity should begin at once to get back to earth and remember that there will never be a time in their lives when they can afford to be passive and dormant. We do not recommend the very strenuous exercises for those past 50, but even they can stretch and do some of the simple movements. They will find a new buoyancy in the regular deep breathing, combined with stretching.

On arising the first thing is the brushing of teeth. This wakes one up and refreshes the breath. Then stand up and exhale all the air from the lungs. Fill with clean fresh air. This is done rhythmically 10 times.

Stretch the arms forward, upward and down so that you feel the stretch to the finger-tips.

Raise the leg as high as possible either by kicks or muscle strain. Do 10 for each leg, then rise on toes and bend knees in the crouching posture. This is the only hard one, so practice it slowly at first and before long balance and renewed suppleness will be the reward.

Don'ts May Build Fear in Children

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

It is disheartening to hear so many parents shout at little children, "Don't run among those weeds, you might step on a snake!" Or, "Throw down that dirty thing, it will bite you!" The thing might be no more harmful than an earthworm, lady bug or caterpillar. Warned constantly against the lowly creatures, the child soon learns to attack and kill them, being in constant fear of most small living things as harmless as kittens.

With due caution concerning the very few harmful creatures, we should train our children to enjoy observing them and being kind to them. I have see a little child treated to watch a group of ants for half an hour, or a toad eating his dinner, or having an earthworm crawl between his fingers or toes to the youngsters great delight. Why not?

LIVING ANIMALS IN SCHOOL

The school is doing much good for wise education in this direction. In classrooms from coast to coast I have seen almost every kind of living animals, wild and domestic, including dogs, cats (even a lamb), chickens, pigeons, rabbits, white rats, squirrels, turtles, frogs, tadpoles, snakes and many others.

Always the children learn to handle these creatures with proper care and to feel kindly toward them.

LOVE WITHOUT MUSIC

CHAPTER 38

Linda recognized the woman on the Staten Island ferry as Sue Ackerman, sister of Clarabell Ackerman, the girl who had been so ruthlessly murdered in the main office of the Bagley Models' agency.

Linda had wondered what had become of this older sister and whether or not she had been seeing Mina Nevins.

It was odd to meet the sister on a Staten Island ferry, though. The Ackerman apartment was far uptown, in no way related to this distant island.

"Have you relatives on the island?" Linda asked casually.

"No, I have no relatives at all, now that my sister is dead." The voice was not bitter, rather it was mocking.

"Miss Ackerman, who wanted to kill her?" Linda asked impulsively.

"Not anyone, my dear child. Don't you realize those bullets were for you?"

The boat was nearing the New York skyline and people were crowding around so they would be able to leave the boat when it docked. Linda spoke quickly.

"Do you know who did this thing?"

The woman didn't answer for a moment. Then she shrugged her shoulders. "What makes you think that I would know? And why wouldn't I be as eager to find out as you are?"

"Of course you would. It's just that it's spoiled so many things for me." The boat was almost in.

"Have you seen the evening paper?" the woman asked.

Linda shook her head. "No. I've stopped reading the stories entirely."

"Yes? And looking at the pictures, too? You photogrpah very well, my dear, and the newspaper likenesses aren't half bad. I think you might be interested in this."

She was holding a paper toward Linda, a slim finger in a shabby glove, pointing to a special paragraph.

Linda read it. "The revolver from which the two fatal bullets were shot has been identified as one belonging to Miss Sarah Markley, glamor queen of last season, and daughter of the well-known producer, Peter Markley."

The story went on to say that Miss Markley's actions were completely accounted for on the night of the fatal shooting and she herself had not missed the gun until men or the ballistics bureau had confronted her with evidence that it was her weapon which was responsible for the death shots.

However, police were investigating the iron-clad alibi, the words went on. Linda read them, fascination growing. Had Ronald known this when he talked to her? Had he been afraid that Sarah would in some way be implicated, and so been willing for an old man to suffer a few more days until Sarah was entirely free?

Men were only human. But Ronnie couldn't do this. Yet, why wasn't it more worthy to ask a few days' reprieve for a girl than for a career?

"I should like to come to see you some day, Miss Avery," Sue Ackerman said as the boat swung into its berth. "Are you home nights?"

"Yes, usually." Yes, she would be at home at night from now on. Ronald would not be coming and Robert had gone away.

Robert! At the name her heart felt the lift of wings. Robert! She couldn't let him sail away forever, and yet she loved, or maybe had loved Ronald.

It was lonely in the apartment when she returned to it. She missed Caroline. There was no one now who might call her whose voice she especially wished to hear. In some undefinable way she knew that Ronald would not try to reach her, would not apologize.

Well, that was all right, she told herself as she lay in a warm tub of perfumed water. It was better to know when a road divided instead of trying to walk side by side with an ever widening distance between. Life was good, it had to be good. It had to be worthwhile, whatever happened. The road went on, ran to somewhere, and no one could lag by the roadside.

She dried herself, brushed her amber curls until the electricity gleamed, wrapped herself in a yellow silk negligee and sat down by the window. She could see a red candle burning on the altar in the monastery across the way. She could hear low voices chanting prayers. Across the garden there was peace.

Because Ronald had been first to her so long, because she had waited for him so many months, she put her head down on her arms and sobs shook her slender body. But when she raised her head, with its tear-swollen eyes, the storm was spent. No one would know that the platform upon which she stood had crumbled, she told herself.

And yet—and yet there was that odd happiness when she thought about Robert, a happiness that persisted even in the midst of the debris that Ronald had made of her life. Worn out with emotion, she went to bed.

She did not know how long she had been sleeping when she became aware of a bell ringing somewhere. First it was vague and distant and she moved her head so she need not listen.

It persisted and at last she opened her eyes. The telephone was ringing. Without analyzing her emotions, she hoped that it was Robert calling her.

She picked up the instrument from its cradle on the bedside table. Ronald's voice came to her, strained and worried, and she felt a sweep of the old tenderness. Not the old love, she thought even then. But the old devotion. His words drove it away.

"Linda, will you dress and meet me right away? It's Sarah— we have to find her."

"Sarah? Where did she go? What has she done?"

"That's it. I'll tell you when I see you. She's not done anything. But those papers, and well—how soon can you be ready?"

"Fifteen minutes, maybe 10." In that moment she was aware that for the first time since she had moved into the apartment she could not find the red light on the altar of the sanctuary next door.

She slipped into the thin black dress with the Peter Pan collar and pulled a white turban over her curls. Her pumps and bag were black, but she found a fresh pair of white gloves. It might be cold outside, she decided, and took along a thin black coat.

She did not wait for Ronald to ring her bell, but went down the stairs. She would wait for him outside the entrance on the wide steps. Had he forgotten their differences that he should come back like this? Or was Sarah so important to him that he had no pride, no hesitation in asking her, Linda, to help him?

It didn't matter, she told herself.

It was sweet and quiet in the street. City trucks were dampening the pavement with long sprays of water.

Ronald's car slid up to the curb and he spoke her name just as a tall figure swung up the steps.

"Robert," she called, not quite conscious that she spoke his name.

She saw him look at Ronald, then he smiled, said good evening, and turned toward the door.

She took a step toward him. In that moment she knew she must act quickly, act now, or it might be forever too late.

But the door was closed and Ronald was calling, a trace of impatience in his voice.

9 Married Women Fly Airplanes From Factories

LONDON, Sept. 5 (CP). — Nine married women, two of them mothers are flying Royal Air Force aircraft from factory to maintenance unit and from there to R.A.F. squadrons.

They are among the women's section, now numbering 18 pilots, of the Air Transport Auxiliary. Commander Gerard d'Erlanger is in charge of the unit and says of the women:

"They work hard, fly conscientiously and take no risks. I think these qualities were ingrained in them."

Some of the women are allowed to fly the Miles Master, the monoplane with which the R.A.F. train their fighter pilots in the stages before they are graduated to Hurricanes and Spitfires.

One of the "flying wives" is Mrs. Grace Brown, 42, who has a boy of 10, and who astonished R. A. F. pilots in France last Christmas by landing on a rough, advance field with a consignment of blood for transfusions. That act made her the first woman to pilot an airplane to France on Active Service.

Then there are Mrs. Margaret Fairweather, sister of Leslie Runciman, Director-General of the British Overseas Airways, and daughter of Lord Runciman; Mrs. Gabrielle Patterson, who before the war was appointed on the Guild of Air Pilots to test instructors in the air; Mrs. Alan Butler, Mrs. M. K. Wilcrforce, Mrs. L. Lamton, Mrs. V. Preston and Mrs. Winifred Crossley.

FOSTER PARENTS WANT ADVICE ON CHILD RAISING

By GLADYS ARNOLD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Sept. 5 (CP) — The problem of being a good father and mother is puzzling growing numbers of Canadian foster parents who have opened their homes to British guest children. They've been asking Dr. Janet Lang of Ottawa about it.

Dr. Lang is in charge of maternal and child hygiene at the Canadian Welfare Council headquarters here and today during an interview, she exhibited a pile of written requests for the Council's series of letters to parents on the care and development of children from the prenatal period to the age of 10 years.

"Being willing to take children is enough," said Dr. Lang. "Our booklet of 10 letters called 'The First Years at School' and covering the ages of six to 11 years is one of the most popular apparently. Many foster parents want it and we're getting requests from foster parents in the United States too."

Students Will Don Uniforms at Universities

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Sept. 5 (CP). — Arrangements under which every physically-fit male student at the Canadian universities will eventually don the khaki and become a part-time soldier at his place of learning now are taking shape, the National Defence Department made known tonight.

Outlines of the military training program at Canadian universities during the coming scholastic year have been sent by the Defence Department to officers commanding military districts.

Only as mall proportion of the students — most students are under 21 years — will be liable to compulsory military training under regulations promulgated so far by the Department of National War Services. But the university authorities have undertaken to see that all fit male students receive training in arms.

They will receive it either in the Canadian Officers' Training Corps units already established in universities or under a new arrangement.

The C. O. T. C. has been established for years and forms part of the Non-Permanent Active Militia. Its purpose has been to enable youths receiving benefits of higher education to qualify for service as officers.

The plan adopted by the universities this year after consultation with the Defence Department, is that students who were in the C. O. T. C. last year will remain in it together with a certain additional number of selected students who show promise of making suitable officers.

All others will receive basic military training similar to that given private soldiers in the N. P. A. M.

Dismisses Appeal for Acquittal, Defence Case

KAMLOOPS, B. C., Sept. 5 (CP).—Judge J. D. Swanson in County Court today dismissed the appeal of the Attorney-General against the acquittal of Reinhold Kluge, German-born private of the Rocky Mountain Rangers, who was accused in July by fellow soldiers of having made subversive statements in a military camp.

Judge Swanson found that Police Court proceedings against Kluge were instituted before the Attorney-General had signed a consent order, as required by the Defence of Canada Regulations as amended on January 19 last.

BRITAIN GETS THE AMERICAN DESTROYER FLEET

Equivalent in value to two or three naval victories, the acquisition of the American destroyer fleet by Britain, for value received by the United States in military bases, is clearly the great news of recent weeks, from the British Empire standpoint.

Who is to receive the credit for this deal is a minor point of interest.

Should it be General Pershing, who, the same night that a man named Lindbergh was urging the United States to accept Hitler and play his game, urged that this country, as a measure of self-protection, turn over 50 old destroyers to Britain?

Did the Churchill Government open the negotiations, and offer air bases?

On the other hand, did the Roosevelt Government invite discussions?

Did the Canadian Government feel out one party or the other? Did it provide the spark, or possibly the meeting ground?

Whatever the mode by which the results came about, both sides can claim to have won.

The British have obtained an important addition to their surface patrol ships, a destroyer fleet of numbers sufficient to count heavily in blockade enforcement and in defensive convoy duty.

For its part, the United States has gained the use of bases which are simply invaluable to its general scheme of defence. American papers, even those that think the deal should have been made more openly by the Roosevelt Government, seem to think that the United States has obtained the greater value.

Of immense present importance to both parties, the deal's greatest implication, however, is with reference to the future. No one in future will be able to separate the defence of British North America and the defence of the United States and its "Hemisphere."

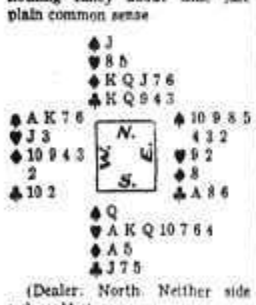
So far as the destroyer fleet is concerned, the ships are good ships, as destroyers go. Until two or three years ago the United States experts considered them just about perfection. Then it was discovered that they needed to be stauncher, in order to stand up under the battering of the seas and the stresses and strains from high speed maneuvering. They were billed for alterations and installation of new bracing. "Technically obsolete," because the United States Navy has a better model now, these ships are highly serviceable under all ordinary conditions.

Many a German U-Boat will these destroyers send to the bottom; many a torpedo will they discharge at German warships if there should be a general naval action. They will add to and extend Britain's command of the seas. They may even be in time to extend appropriate welcome to Germany's invading force if Hitler decides to take the chance and risk an army in a Channel crossing.

CONTRACT . . . By Shepard Barclay

NOT A FANCY PLAY

JUST AS you tell your partner, by a high card in normal situations, that you want a suit repeated, and by a low card that you do not, so you give equally logical messages in other kinds of situations. If it is perfectly clear, to every player at the table, that your partner will shift on the next trick to one of the other two side suits, you should tell him which you prefer. If you favor the higher ranking one, such as diamonds instead of clubs, you play a high card on his spade trick. If you do not, you play your smallest, thereby indicating likely preference for the lower. There is nothing fancy about this, just plain common sense



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1♠	1♠	3♥	3♠
4♣	4♠	5♥	Dbl

West led his spade K, and of course saw that he must shift to one of the two minor suits. Shifting to hearts would be out of the question, since that would insure South's ability to run off the trumps and then tackle whichever minor he preferred—the one in which he held the ace, as he almost surely would do in one of them, in view of his bidding.

West's double, after he saw the dummy, was dependent for its soundness upon whether or not his partner held the ace in one of the two minors. So he made a guess. He guessed diamonds, and as a consequence, the declarer took the rest of the tricks. If he had led a club to the second trick, the contract would have been beaten.

When the hand was all over, West bemoaned his hard luck, or at least began to. But East broke in and called him unobservant or unthinking. If East held one of the aces, and it was in the higher of the two side suits, diamonds, he would have played a high card on the spade K, or at least he said so. Consequently, when he put the spade 2 on the first trick, it meant he did not want a diamond lead. The only remaining side suit was clubs, and therefore West should have led it.

What bidding would you recommend on this hand, if you as South considered your opponents extremely weak defensive players, in order to try to steal a game?

Wondering, Nelson—Where would one write to obtain information about joining the R. C. A. F. as a wireless operator and about joining the T. C. A. in the same capacity? Where would one write for the same information as regards commercial steamships?

Write Officer Commanding, R. C. A. F., Vancouver, B. C., and Trans Canada Airlines at Ottawa. For wireless operator on commercial steamships, write Canadian Marconi Company, 500 Beatty Street, Vancouver, B. C.

M. M., Rossland—I would like to have the address of the department handling soldier's dependents income and what amount dependents receive?

Address all mail pertaining to soldier's pay to the Treasury Officer, Dependent's Allowance and Assigned Pay Treasury Office, Ottawa. A soldier's (private) wife receives $35 per month and 15 days pay of her husband. The sum of $12 per month is allowed for two children under 16 years of age.

The list of hospitals which you requested is a little too long to publish, but we would be very glad to give you the names of hospitals in any particular cities in B. C. or Alberta.

T. M., Nelson—Several months ago you published a method to make Yule logs from old magazines. Would you please publish this again?

Roll up any fairly thick magazines and tie securely in three places and soak in the following solution for three weeks: Four pounds bluestone, three pounds rock salt and two pounds of salt petre dissolved in one gallon of water. Put magazines and solution in to a five gallon crock or wooden container and turn magazines about occasionally so that all parts are soaked. Take out and dry in sun or in basement. It is essential the magazines are thoroughly dry before using.

W. B. K., Trail, has kindly sent the words to the song requested by R. P., Nelson:

THE FARMERS BOY

The sun had set behind yon hills,
Across the dreary moor,
When weary and lame a poor boy came
Up to a farmer's door.
Can you tell me said he, if any there be
That will give me employ
To plow and sow, reap and mow,
And be a farmers boy.
And be a farmers boy.

My father is dead and mother is left
With her five children small.
And what is worse for my mother still,
I'm the biggest of them all.
Though little I be I fear no work,
If you will me employ,
To plow and sow, reap and mow,
And be a farmer's boy.
And be a farmer's boy.

The farmer's wife cried, "Try the lad.
Let him no further seek."
"Oh, yes, dear father," the daughter cried
While the tears rolled down her cheek.
For those that will work 'tis hard to want,
And wander for employ.
Don't turn him away, but let him stay
And be your farmer's boy.
And be your farmer's boy.

In course of time he grew a man,
The good old farmer died,
And left the lad the farm he had,
And his daughter for his bride.
Now the lad a sturdy farmer is,
And oft he thinks with joy
Of the lucky day he came that way
To be a farmer's boy.
To be a farmer's boy.

WHAT THE PRESS IS SAYING

NEW DEAL IN RELIEF

The Dominion has admitted its responsibility for unemployment, but it has never admitted responsibility for unemployables, though it may have helped with them. There are, however, a considerable number of unemployables whose unemployability may be assigned directly to the circumstances that they have for years had no real employment. Some have never had employment. It would be entirely unfair to make these wards of the municipalities. The municipalities have no real responsibility for their plight, and have a hole for every dollar of their restricted revenues as it is. Besides, it should be possible for one of the senior Governments to work out a plan under which the provision of work for employables and the provision of subsistence for those unable to work could be coordinated. The municipalities, with their more restricted activities and smaller revenues, have fewer facilities for doing this.—Vancouver Province.

Board Council Pays Tribute Blackwood as 'Ranking Citizen'

Standing in silence, members of the Nelson Board of Trade Council Thursday paid tribute to a member of over 30 years' standing, C. D. Blackwood, who died this week. E. A. Mann, President, described him as a "ranking citizen of Nelson. There was no one more popular nor more deserving of that popularity."

Seven-Point Road Program Will Be Urged Upon Leary by Nelson Board; Would Avoid Spring Traffic Tie-Up

Surfacing on Taghum Hill and at South Slocan Urged

A seven-point program of highway improvement needed in Nelson district, proposed by the Roads and Bridges Committee of the Nelson Board of Trade and approved by the Board Council at its luncheon at the Hume Thursday, will be submitted to Hon. C. S. Leary, Minister of Public Works. Mr. Leary recently suggested to the Board that it should recommend a program that will not entail too heavy expenditure, since available funds were limited.

The American officers began their survey almost immediately, while some of them toured Bermuda in one of the few automobiles permitted on the Colony, others flew over the group of islands in planes launched from St. Louis soon after its arrival.

The recommendations follow:

That the unsurfaced section of the Nelson-Trail Highway in the vicinity of South Slocan should be surfaced this Fall.

That a temporary surface should be placed on the Taghum Hill section of the Nelson-Trail road pending the time when sufficient funds would be available to reconstruct this section of the Nelson-Trail road.

PREPARE FOR SPRING

That sections of the Nelson-Sheep Creek road likely to cause traffic tie-up in the Spring should be placed in good condition this Fall, this work being urged in view of the projected withdrawal of Great Northern Railway passenger service between Nelson and the international boundary.

That sections of the Nelson-Nakusp highway likely to cause traffic tie-ups in the Spring should be placed in good condition, particularly in view of increased mining activity in the Slocan.

That ferry service at Castlegar should be improved.

That Kootenay Lake ferry service should be investigated with a view to possible improvement in 1941.

That the Department of Public Works should be asked, in view of restriction of interior-coast traffic via the United States, to keep either the Cascade or the Monashee route to the Coast open during the Winter, selecting the route on the basis of the cost of keeping it open.

The program included making an offer to Trail to cooperate in seeking improvement of the traffic 'bottleneck' condition at the Castlegar ferry.

Trail School Board Declines to Be Represented at Nelson Convention

B. C. Body Not Worth 5 Cents to Trail Says Trustee

TRAIL, B. C., Sept. 5—Members of the Trail-Tadanac School Board rejected Wednesday night the invitation received from the British Columbia School Trustees Association to join the association, and to attend the 1940 convention being held at Nelson, September 23, 24 and 25.

"It is just a waste of time and money. We are an amalgamated district, and can do far better through our local members. It means a nice holiday for a couple of members of the School Board at the public's expense, and I don't think any member wants that. The membership costs $50 a year, and isn't worth 5 cents a year to us," commented H. G. Palmer, Chairman.

STAFF MEETINGS

Announcement of I. H. R. Jeffries, Principal of Central School, that he was organizing monthly meetings between members of the Central, Tadanac and Annable School staffs was received with approval. Mr. Jeffries stated that while he had no jurisdiction over the East Trail School, the East Trail staff would be welcome to attend.

Principal Jeffries reported 76 pupils from Annable were attending Central School.

Purchase of 10 more chairs for the High School music room was approved.

Canadian Ship Sunk Last Month

By LOUIS HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 5 (CP Cable)—The sinking by enemy aircraft of a Canadian steamship with the loss of 10 lives was disclosed today, but, in accordance with Admiralty practice, her name was not announced.

The vessel went down last month after a bombing and a Welsh lifeboat picked up 14 survivors from a raft. The disclosure was made with the announcement by the Royal National Lifeboat Institution of special awards to two members of the lifeboat crew for heroic rescue of the captain who was found clinging, badly wounded, to a plank in heavy seas. It was not immediately known if the crew was Canadian or British.

Survivors launched the raft in heavy seas during the attack which ended when a British fighter plane chased the enemy home in a hail of bullets.

When the rescuers were heading for the raft on which the survivors were huddled together around a pole with a jacket flying from the top, they saw the captain clinging to the plank, almost exhausted. Two rescuers jumped into the sea and dragged him to the lifeboat where he was bundled into warm clothing after which artificial respiration was practised.

Another member of the ship's crew was also picked from the wreckage and placed aboard the raft with two other survivors, one of whom was injured but is recovering.

Troops Eat Well as Fight Wind and Rain in Iceland

By FRANCIS STEVENS

SOMEWHERE IN ICELAND, Sept. 5 (CP). — The way Montreal youths are becoming friends with Icelandic farmers in this isolated part of the country is one of those things it took a Hitler to arrange.

A French Canadian army unit stands guard over an airdrome beside a glacial river where salmon leap. Boys who have lived all their lives in Montreal build themselves sod houses, construct a three-mile road. All the while the wind blows an endless gale, the rain apparently never ceases. In the background are the cinder-strewn volcanic hills. In the foreground the ocean thunders against the treacherous coast.

Confronted with stern conditions, these city lads somehow keep as cheerful as Spring birds. For recreation, they ride across country on little Icelandic horses which they hire from the farmers.

Here I am a guest in the officers' mess where the walls are built of turf, the roof made of petrol tins and light is supplied by candles stuck in bottles.

This is the menu: A 12-pound salmon caught an hour before dinner, plenty of butter made from the milk of the weather-proof Icelandic cows, new potatoes (incidentally Iceland potatoes are unsurpassed), fresh tomato and lettuce salad with dressing, turnips, peas, wholewheat muffins smothered in corn syrup, finishing off with tea.

Bomb Splinters

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 5 (CP)— Bomb splinters from the battle of Britain:

The Evening service at a church in Southeastern England was conducted around a bomb crater outside the building. All the windows were smashed, tiles were stripped from the roof and piles of plaster littered the edifice.

A family of five were machine-gunned by Nazi planes while picking blackberries on the Sussex Downs. They took refuge in nearby bushes and this is how the mother described the interruption: "The murderous villains made us upset all those nice blackberries and I'm sure the brambles tore this pair of stockings. When it was all over we started picking again."

The warning sounded at a cinema in Sussex. Few people left the theatre and the audience settled down to see the next film. Title: "One Hour to Live."

One London newspaper is running a column called, "Games to pass the time in your air-raid shelter." A chess board and men, a pack of cards and draughts are listed as necessities.

A whistling bomb made of cardboard but without any explosive was dropped during a Nazi raid in Southwestern England. Authorities believe it was designed simply to terrify people.

British Fleet and Planes Pound at Dodecanese Islands and Airdromes

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 5 (AP) — British planes carried out sustained raids all day yesterday on all the principal Italian airdromes in Eastern Libya, including Tobruk, El Tamini, Bomba, El Gubbi and El Gazala, the Royal Air Force announced tonight.

WITH THE ROYAL NAVY IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, Sept. 5 (AP)—British cruisers and destroyers bombarded the Italian island of Scarpanto, Southwest of Rhodes in the Dodecanese, yesterday while the Fleet Air Arm attacked Rhodes itself.

Many direct hits were made on military targets.

The Italian fleet was sighted only once—at a distance of some 15 miles—and it was steaming in the opposite direction.

Italian airdromes at Morizza and Calato in Rhodes were heavily bombed by the fleet aircraft and a number of planes were destroyed at Calato and ammunition dumps set on fire.

Barracks also were set on fire. Two main hangars were hit at Morizza and huge sheets of flame rose in the air when gasoline stores were ignited.

ROME, Sept. 5 (AP). — Damage was caused to Italian bases on the Dodecanese Islands off the coast of Turkey by British air and naval bombardments, the Italian High Command admitted today.

The Island of Scarpanto, Southernmost of the Islands, was shelled from the sea before dawn yesterday, and a British air attack on airfields at Gadurra and Marizza resulted in the wrecking of Italian planes on the ground.

The communique sought to minimize the damage of the attacks and claimed Italian planes and torpedo boats retaliated by attacking British naval and merchant ships.

125 Soldiers Reach Britain After Torturous Trek Across Scandinavia

A NORTHERN BRITISH PORT (CP).—Epic tales of a trek across 200 mountainous miles of Scandinavia into the security of Sweden were told by British soldiers repatriated to the United Kingdom many weeks after the end of the ill-fated Norway campaign.

A party of 125 reached this port to tell of hiking across deep valleys, over precipitous snowclad mountains and through icy rivers before they reached Sweden and were interned.

Sergeant G. S. W. Frank of the York and Lancaster Regiment said he and his comrades met superior German forces in battle near Sjoa, 400 miles South of Narvik, on April 26. Eventually they had to withdraw.

Frank took charge of 70 men and rearested into the mountains. Several times they were heavily ambushed. Finally they split into small parties and then followed days and nights of retreat, scaling mountain slopes five feet deep in snow, sometimes fleeing from the ubiquitous Germans.

"Some of the men became so weak we had to leave them in caves," Frank said. "We never knew what became of these men. . . . We sheltered in mountain caves or farmers' outhouses. Once we were five days without food and had to eat snow."

The sergeant said he stayed in hiding for a month with a Norwegian farmer while others struggled on by themselves.

He got civilian clothing and a supply of food and started for Narvik. En route he heard the Allies had evacuated that Arctic port so he headed for the Swedish frontier and was interned with others who had arrived ahead of him.

While the party was being repatriated to the United Kingdom Germans interned in Sweden were being sent back to their own country, Company Sergeant-Major John T. McCarthy said.

The party reached Britain by ship from Petsamo, Finland.

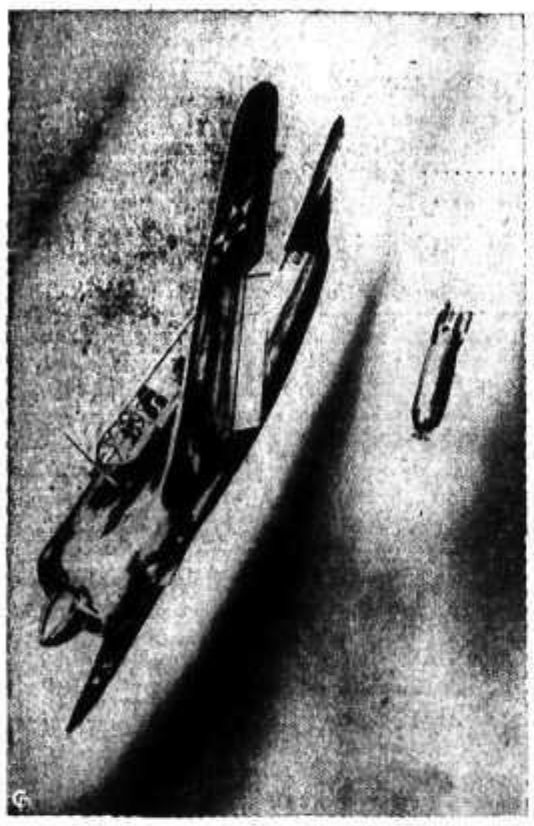
New Dive Bomber for U. S. Navy



Here is an artist's conception of the new low-wing all-metal Curtiss Wright XSB2C-1 dive-bomber which the Curtiss-Wright Corporation revealed it has developed with the U.S. Navy and which is now nearing completion for delivery to the U.S. Naval Trial Board. The new plane is powered with a 1700 h.p. Wright double-row cyclone 14-cylinder engine, and establishes new standards for aircraft of this type by having unusually heavy fire power, increased bomb-carrying capacity and general performance.

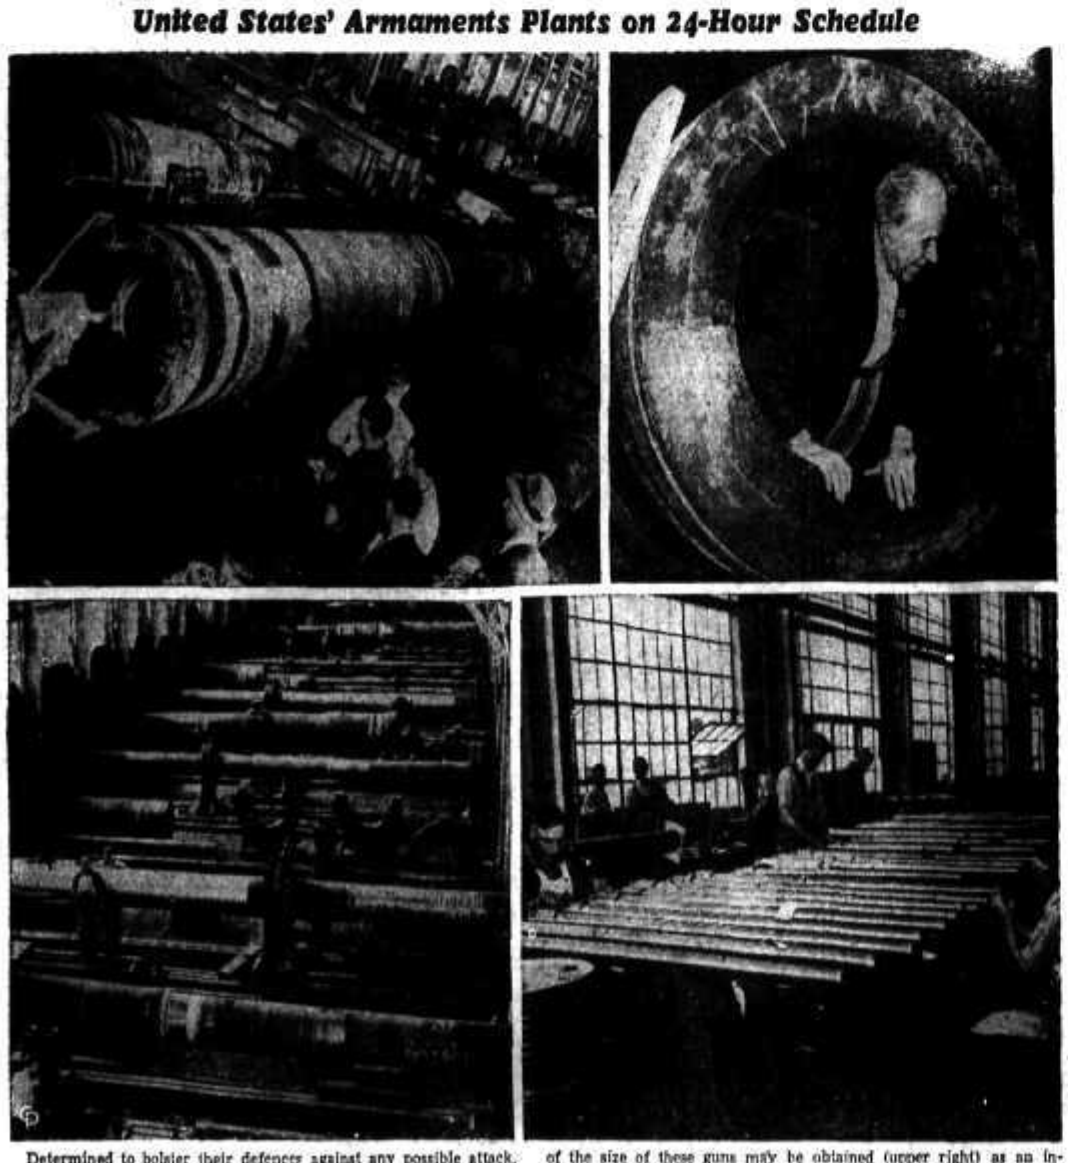
United States' Armaments Plants on 24-Hour Schedule



Determined to bolster their defences against any possible attack, the United States' great re-armament drive is rapidly gaining momentum. At the Watervliet arsenal huge 16-inch and 14-inch cannons for the army and navy are being turned out. A workman is shown peering through the barrel of a big 16-incher (upper left), while some idea of the size of these guns may be obtained (upper right) as an inspector crawls through the barrel. Former French Air Ministers Formally Charged

RIOM, France, Sept. 5 (AP). — The Petain Government today lodged formal charges against Pierre Cot and Guy Lachambre, both former Air Ministers, in the war blame case before the Supreme Court and ordered their immediate arrest.

Cot and Lachambre were the first men named in the proceedings instituted by the Vichy regime to fix responsibility for France's pre-war policy and subsequent conduct of the war.

Hitherto the case had been confined to investigations concerning various "Messieurs X" although it has been expected that former Premier Reynaud and Daladier and Gen. Gamelin would be called to account.

Five Destroyers Is German Boast

BERLIN, Sept. 5 (CP). — The text of Thursday's German communique:

"The navy recently sank five British destroyers. Besides two destroyers which were reported sunk by German submarines Sept. 2, three modern British destroyers — Express, Esk and Ivanhoe — have been sunk. A submarine sank several armed enemy merchant ships, totalling 27,000 tons, from a strongly protected convoy.

(These claims were not confirmed by the British Admiralty.)

"On Sept. 4 our battle planes, pursuit and destroyer units repeatedly and effectively bomb-raided airports, airplane plants and a munitions dump. Hits were scored on hangars, a building of a plane motor factory at Rochester and a plane factory at Weybridge. During these attacks several air fights developed which were won by our chasers.

(The British Air Ministry said "some damage was done" to industrial premises in these raids and there were casualties.)

"At night, fighting plane units concentrated attacks on port and dock facilities on the west and east coasts of England, as well as on several airports. Numerous fires were started at Liverpool, Swansea, Bristol, Weymouth, Poole, Chatham, Tilbury, Great Yarmouth and Hull. Mining of British ports for the air continued.

(A British statement said the numerous fires were quickly put under control. There was damage to houses in many areas.)

"British planes last night again penetrated the Reich's territory. An attempt to attack the capital foundered in the face of strong anti-aircraft defence. The foe succeeded in dropping bombs merely over two points of the city and region which here, as well as in other places in the Reich, caused unimportant damage. In a northen German town one bomb dropped in workers' quarters, killing 18 civilians who were outside a raid shelter.

(The Air Ministry at London announced C.A.F. planes bombed a power station and plant factory in Berlin last night as well as other objectives.)

B.C. Ship Damages Propellor in Fog

VANCOUVER, Sept. 5 (CP) — The Canadian Pacific steamship Princess Charlotte damaged her propellor blades when she ran too close to shore in a dense fog early today while returning here from Alaska, C.P.S.S. officials announced today.

The hull of the vessel was undamaged however and a passing tug towed her to Klemtu, about 300 miles north of here. The C.P.S.S. tug Kyuquot is now on its way north to take the vessel to Esquimalt for drydocking.

S.S. Princess Louise from Vancouver will be sent to take aboard the 200-odd passengers, most of them Americans. They will arrive here Saturday.

Six German Ships Sunk Near Oslo

NEW YORK, Sept. 5 — Six German merchant vessels were sunk near Oslo, Norway, during the week of Aug. 18—26, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported today in a broadcast heard here by N.B.C.

The report added that between Trondheim and Tromsoe, Norway, hundreds of bodies of German shidiers had been washed ashore recently. The radio said they were believed to have been from troop ships carrying men and material to and from Narvik, Norway.

Italians Attack British Cruisers and Destroyers Off Algerian Coast

ROME, Sept 5 (AP)—The text of Thursday's Italian high command communique:

"Three British cruisers and two destroyers navigating off the Algerian coast were violently bombed by our planes. Two cruisers were hit with large calibre bombs, and big planes were seen on the deck of one of them.

"In the Aegean Sea, a large enemy convoy escorted by naval forces was sighted and pursued during the day of Sept. 3. With the purpose of protecting this convoy at any cost, enemy naval and air forces attempted to attack our naval bases in the Aegean in the early hours before dawn yesterday. The attack was carried out by two air formations on the fields at Gadurra and Marizza, where two of our planes were struck on the ground, and by a naval formation which bombarded Scarpanto, causing slight damage to civilian dwellings and wounding some among the population. The intervention of our pursuit planes and anti-aircraft batteries soon repulsed the attack, shooting down seven enemy planes. The crew of three planes totalling eight persons, were captured.

"With the enemy repulsed, our air forces began a counter-attack.

"Between 7 a.m. and 5:30 p.m., five successive bombing actions were launched on the enemy formations. Despite the intervention of enemy pursuit plans and anti-aircraft defence, four ships were seriously hit and damaged, and five pursuit planes shot down. Two of our planes failed to return. Some were injured aboard others.

"At the same time our mas (motor torpedo boats) hurled themselves on the naval formations, successfuly attacking an enemy cruiser and two destroyers in the Strait of Caso. One mas failed to return.

(There was no comment from the British Admiralty on the above claims.)

"In North Africa there was intense activity by both air forces. Enemy air raids caused light damage, one death and injuries to 11. Four enemy planes were shot down, two of them by anti-aircraft defence. All our planes returned.

"In East Africa during enemy air raids on the field at Javelin a Hampden plane (British bomber) was shot down. One of our bombing formations seriously hit an English steamship in the Red Sea."

TO REMIND JAPAN OF BRITISH INTEREST IN INDO-CHINA

LONDON, Sept. 5 (CP). — Sir Robert Craigie, British ambassador in Tokyo, has been instructed to "remind" the Japanese Government of "the interest of His Majesty's Government in the preservation of the status quo in Indo-China," Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax told the House of Lords today.

Canadian Troops Go to Join Camps

By EDWIN JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A NORTHERN BRITISH PORT, Sept. 5 (CP Cable). — The largest contingent of troops Canada has sent to Britain during this war, guided safely past lurking dangers, sped through the beauty spots of Britain today to camps where they join the growing Empire force poised for defence of the Motherland.

Thousands of sun-bronzed Canadians, forming the sixth contingent from Canada, augmented the thousands of Canadian Active Service Force men already in Britain, probably completing the 2nd Canadian Division and its ancillary troops. On Aug. 21 there were 40,000 troops outside Canada, virtually all in England.

Although no official announcement was made, it is likely these men complete Canada's contribution in troops for the present.

Defence Minister J. L. Ralston announced July 29 it was not intended to send more men overseas after the 2nd Division had landed.

They will shortly be included in an exclusively Canadian Corps under Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton who now commands an army corps consisting of the 1st Division and another Empire division.

En route to their destination, the new arrivals were given a close-up view of Britain transformed into a theatre of war. They had their first glimpse of the damage that was wrought by enemy air raiders. They passed through zones guarded by balloon barrages and saw something of the defensive network that girds the land. But what impressed the Canadians most was the calm, buoyant "business as usual" spirit of the populace.

Sudeten Settlers to Harvest First Crop in Peace River

EDONTON, Sept. 5 (CP) — A Coarse grain crop of about 60,000 bushels will be harvested this year by Sudetenland refugees in the Upper Creek district of British Columbia's Peace River Block, F. B McConnell, supervisor for the settlement, said here today.

In addition they will harvest enough wheat to fill their year's flour need.

The settlers have broken 1200 acres of new land this summer and will have 3000 acres ready for crops next year. They have about 450 head of duel pupose cattle and are preparing 600 hogs for market.

All breaking, seeding and harvesting operation are carried out on a cooperative basis, McConnell said.

Urge Bases to Protect Panama

WASHINGTON, Sept 5 (AP)—Acquisition of bases in the Galapagos and Cocos Islands to protect the Panama Canal in the Pacific was urged today by Rep. Ed. Izac (Dem.-California.)

"With the perfect screen which new Atlantic and Caribbean bases will afford," Izac told newsmen, "all we need now to make our defence set-up virtually complete are bases in the Galapagos and Cocos Islands.

"But we should lose no further time in obtaining them."

Spokesman for a congressional group which has advocated such action, Izac indicated the destroyer-base exchange with Britain would bring a renewed campaign for facilities on the Pacific Islands.

Discussions have been held with Ecuador over a period of many years regarding the Galapagos, but the South American country has not reacted favorably. Recently, however, a party of Ecuadorean and United States experts visited the Islands in a United States gunboat but the result of the trip was not described.

Confident 'Third Reich to Pass Away Swiftly'

Churchill Says U.S. Now Able to Take Danger by the Throat—"All Clear" Signal Sounds While He Speaks

LONDON, Sept. 5 (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill declared in Parliament today that the British-American exchange of destroyers and defence bases will enable the United States "to take danger by the throat whilst it is still hundreds of miles away."

The Prime Minister, speaking for a time during a general London air raid alarm, declared, however, that Hitler "no doubt will pay the United States out if he ever gets the chance."

Nevertheless, he expressed his boundless confidence that the Third Reich "will pass away as swiftly—perhaps more swiftly—than did Napoleon's army, although, of course, without any of its glitter and glory."

Mr. Churchill told the House of Commons that no one must read into the British-American agreement anything more than is on its face, and he stressed that it did not affect "in the slightest degree the non-belligerency of the United States."

Turning to the battle of Britain, the Prime Minister declared the Germans had used a greater proportion of their air strength already than Britain, warned of heavier fighting to come, and predicted:

"The whole nation will stand up to it, grim and gay."

While he was speaking the deep bleat of the London sirens sounded the "all clear."

Mr. Churchill declared a British-American agreement had been completed to the "general satisfaction of the British and American peoples." The house cheered loudly.

The transfer of destroyers did not constitute "the slightest violation of international law" or affect "in the smallest degree the non-belligerency of the United States," Mr. Churchill declared.

There will be no delay in bringing the destroyers into active service, and British crews are already meeting them at various ports where they are being delivered "by the long arm of coincidence," Mr. Churchill declared amid laughter.

Dispatch of the destroyers to Britain will allow the United States to "take danger by the throat whilst it still is hundreds of miles away," he said.

"That is why I am very glad that the armed air and naval frontiers of the United States have been advanced along a wide arc into the Atlantic Ocean," Mr. Churchill said.

Turning to Balkan and European developments, Mr. Churchill said "no one can say how far Herr Hitler's empire will extend before this war is over. But I have no doubt it will pass away swiftly—perhaps more swiftly—than did Napoleon's army, although of course without any of its glitter or glory."

"We are going to be a good deal stronger next year than we are now, although we are quite strong enough for the immediate work in hand."

He said Germany's need "to obtain a decision is very great" and warned the house that Germany should be able to "magnify and multiply" her attacks during the month.

He spoke of August as a "real fighting month."

"The Germans have made a very substantial and important effort to gain the mastery and they have certainly put forth a large proportion of their total air strength than we have found it necessary up to the present to employ against them.

Their attempts to dominate the Royal Air Force and our AA (anti-aircraft) defences by daily attacks have proved very costly to them," he said.

"Even if the air attacks are doubled or trebled, the Prime Minister said, he believed the nation "can stand it" and "emerge from it stronger in the air than we were before."

Of the Balkans, Mr. Churchill said he had always thought that Southern part of Dobruja, which Rumania is ceding, ought to be restored to Bulgaria, and he had never been happy about the way Hungary was treated after the last war.

He disclosed that Britain had "almost doubled" the strength of the fleet in the Eastern Mediterranean by the addition of "some of our most powerful vessels" and that although the movements were known to the Italians "we are unmolested."

"We must expect heavy fighting in the middle east before very long," he warned the House.

"No one must suppose that the danger of invasion is past," he further warned, and the "greatest vigilance is necessary to save our lives and our cause." But he said Britain was "very much better off than a few months ago," and if the problem of invading England was difficult in June it "has become far more dificult in September."

He said Britain had sent "a continuous stream of convoys with reinforcements" to the Middle East and "we have every intention of maintaining our position there at the utmost strength."

After reviewing the situation in the Middle East, Mr. Churchill declared that "in this way both at home and abroad we shall persevere along our course however the winds may blow."

1075 CIVILIANS KILLED

Disclosing 1075 civilians were killed in air raids in August, he said "our sympathy goes out to the wounded and to those who are bereaved but no one can pretend that out of 45,000,000 people these are losses which, if they are multiplied two or three times as they may be, would be serious compared to the majestic world issues which are at stake.

"Apart from minor or repairable injuries, about 800 houses have bee ndestroyed or damaged beyond repair. This is out of a total in this land of 11,000,000 houses.

Mr. Churchill said he favored re-examination of the question of insurance against air raid damage particularly for the "small man."

"The actual figures of British losses which we have published daily for these two months (July and August) amount to 558," he said. "Our loss in pilots is, of course, happily very much less. I do not know whether Herr Hitler believes the truth of his own published figures (laughter). I hope he does."

He said the German claims of British aircraft destroyed during the month of July and August totalled the "surprising figure of 1921 British aircraft destroyed.

"It is rather like figures we have heard about our fleet which has had many ships sunk many times over."

EDMONTON, Sept. 5 (CP) — A film depicting life in Alberta's Peace River country will be made for use of Canada's trade commissioners throughout the world, James Beveridge, staff member of the national film board, said here today.

The film will be the second made in color by the board. The first was of Icelandic settlements near Winnipeg.

Lone British Bomber Sticks With It Until Sure German Factory Hit

LONDON, Sept. 5 (CP). — A Swedish seaman gave the Swedish newspaper "Ny Dag" an account of a British bombing of a German Baltic port in which he told of the Royal Air Force pilots making determined and successful attacks on military objectives.

The account, as translated and issued by the Ministry of Information, follows:

"I have been torpedoed once while in the North Sea and that certainly was a dreadful experience but I had never seen or heard the real war break loose before this last trip. The first night that we lay in a German Baltic port there was an air raid alarm and so it continued for nearly every night of the three weeks that we were there.

"And what a bombardment we went through. They (the Germans) lie in their official war reports when they say that the enemy's aircraft caused little damage and did not hit military objectives. It is certain that the English are not backward when it comes to the question of using their dive bombers. We saw that for ourselves one night when hell broke loose a couple of hundred yards from our boat. And that was from an attack by one English plane.

"But those on board it knew their job. This was acknowledged by the Germans. When we spoke to the soldiers the day after they all hoped that the British bomber was able to get back safe home. They acclaimed it as a brave adversary.

"Most of us were asleep when we were awakened by noise as if the world were breaking in pieces. It was caused by all the A. A. guns around the aircraft factory near the harbor firing at once. No alarm was given which showed that the attack was a complete surprise. It was a fine sight to see 20 searchlights throw their beams into the sky and tracer shells fill the air like sparks from a flaming torch.

"We looked in vain for a long time for any machine but at last saw a large bomber appear between two clouds. They hid themselves again and played hide and seek with the A. A. batteries for a quarter of an hour. Then they dropped a flare which came down near the aircraft works and bathed it in light.

"Then they dropped and then came the dive. It began with the worst engine noise I have ever heard and the aircraft dropped like a stone towards the facorty buildings. Two hundred metres from the ground it turned sharply and let fall some bombs. We heard the cries of the A. A. men as they were swept off the factory roof.

"The Englishmen were apparently not satisfied. They withdrew to the clouds for another 15 minutes and let fall a further flare. The factory again shone out and we could see the damage done to one of the buildings. Then the racing of the engine was heard again and we knew what that meant. The A. A. guns fired for all they were worth but nothing touched the diving aircraft.

"The English seemed to be more content but they did'nt give up. For one hour and 40 minutes the solo machine made continuous attacks and dropped its well-aimed bombs. Towards the end most of them were dropped outside the factory and the morning after we found the places marked with red flags. This precaution was advisable as the bombs exploded from time to time. Of the whole range of factory buildings there was only a steel skeleton left but in the war report for that day the British bombardment was described as without object."

Giants Show Bees They're Masters In Two Games; Yankees in 2nd Place

By The Canadian Press

Boston Bees nad New York Giants gave two versions of baseball in a National League doubleheader yesterday, but the Giants proved masters of both to win 8-7 and 4-1.

There were 25 hits in the first game and the Giants got 15 of them. Al Schumacher and Manuel Salvo tangled in a hurling duel in the nightcap which Schumacher won by allowing only three hits.

Brooklyn Dodgers were forced to 11 innings to whip the Phillies but when the chips were down in the 11th they put the ball game out of reach by scoring three runs to win 8-5.

Cincinnati Reds gave Johnny Vander Meer a push along the comeback trail, coming from behind to defeat Pittsburgh 6-3 for the young baseballer's first National League decision of the year. The champions retained their eight-game margin over the runnerup Brooklyn Dodgers, who also won at Philadelphia.

The collapsing Cleveland Indians, playing like anything but potential American League champions lost their fourth consecutive game to sag within two games of their conquerors, Detroit Tigers and the crushing New York Yankees. The score was 11-3.

Rudy York and Bruce Campbell each belted a four-base drive with two teammates on base to pace the vicious Tiger attack.

Although they won, the Tigers fell back into third place a single percentage point behind the Yanks, who swept a doubleheader with the Washington Senators. York slammed his 35th homer of the year in the sixth, scoring behind Charley Gehringer and Greenberg. Campbell's eighth homer produced Detroit's three scores in the seventh.

New York Yankees battled back into second place by grabbing two difficult decisions over Washington Senators 2-1 and 8-1.

Young Walter Masterson held the champions to one hit for five innings and four for seven in the nightcap but even so the Yanks controlled the ball game and finally blasted through six runs in the last two innings.

A seven-run Philadelphia rally was offset by Boston Red Sox as they made a clean sweep of a three-game series by topping the Athletics 9-7. Bob Johnson of the A's hit his 25th homer of the season with two on in the third inning.

Behind Ed Smith's four-hit pitching, the Chicago White Sox defeated the St. Louis Browns, 4-2 before 14,749 in the closing night game of the season at Chicago. Joe Kuhel hit his 22nd homer and a double for the Sox. Harlond Clift homered for the Browns.

Beating the Ball to Second

Coscarart, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, crouches over second base and eagerly stretches for the ball but Warren, of the Philadelphia Phillies, manages to get to the bag first to be safe in seventh inning. Umpire Sears calls it. Warren came on from first when Catcher Phelps of the Dodgers failed to hang on to a pitched ball.

Casilegar Drops Out of Softball Junior Playoffs

TRAIL, B. C., Sept. 5—The Castlegar Pirates have dropped out of the West Kootenay Junior Boys Softball League, to leave the Fruitvale All-Stars and the Trail Red Devils in a semi-final series.

The Castlegar team's decision followed a meeting of the Junior Softball Executive at Trail Tuesday night, when the Fruitvale-Castlegar protest was threshed out. The Executive voted to stand by the All-Stars, who had protested a recent win made by the Pirates on the grounds that three men, who had been signed up for the senior league, had played in the game.

This leaves the semi-final battle between the Fruitvale team and the Trail Red Devils, best of three games, starting at Fruitvale Sunday. Winners of the semis will play the Trail Gulch Reps for the championship.

15,000 Expected to See Pastor and Conn Tonight

NEW YORK, Sept. 5 (AP). — The tussle to decide who's going to help Joe Louis keep the wolf from the door, and at the same time, work up a little exercise, comes off in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night between Billy Conn and Bob Pastor.

Some 15,000 persons are expected to drop about $50,000 into Promoter Mike Jacobs' cash registers to see the once-postponed bout between two of the best boxing "big fellows" in the game—Pretty Boy Billy, who is about to abdicate his light-heavyweight championship and ex-College Boy Bob, who went 20 rounds with Louis before being bombed to sleep.

The odds favoring Conn, which had been dropping all week, suddenly went up again today. The gambling men offered 5-9 on the Pittsburgh Irishman.

In addition to experience, Pastor will carry a pull in the weights. He expects to scale about 183 pounds, while Conn's highest hopes are that he will be within shouting distance of 180.

641 Rifles and Shotguns Listed by Police So Far

A total of 641 rifles and shotguns, the property of Nelson residents, have been registered so far at the City Police office. Approximately 100 revolvers have also been registered.

The number of registrations increased sharply this week with the addition of rifles and shotguns carried in store stocks. Storekeepers must now have permits to sell, and purchasers must have permits to buy firearms.

Registration of firearms must be completed by September 15.

The registration has revealed that where there are guns in a household, the average is two—a rifle and a shotgun. In many cases persons registering also have a .22 calibre rifle in addition to a game rifle. The number of revolvers registered has been larger than anticipated.

Youthful Kramer Leads Net Field to Quarter Round

NEW YORK, Sept. 5 (AP) — A 19-year-old kid with a touch of magic in his racquet led the field into the quarter-final round of the 50th annual national singles tennis championships at Forest Hills today.

Jack Kramer's smashing triumph over Hank Prusoff of Seattle, by 6-2, 6-4, 5-7, 6-0 has caught everyone's fancy.

He is co-holder with Ted Schroeder of the national doubles title. Alongside the young Californian were Don McNeill, who disposed of Harris Everett, North Carolina University student, 6-4, 6-3, 6-3; Elwood Cooke, who beat Charles Olewine of Santa Monica, Calif., 6-3, 6-3, 6-0; and Frankie Parker who defeated Bill Gillespi of Atlanta, Ga., 6-2, 6-3, 10-8.

Defending Champion Bobby Riggs headed the lower half of the draw with a 6-4, 6-3, 6-3 win over Hal Surface of Kansas City. Schroeder outlasted Bitsy Grant, 2-6, 6-3, 9-7, 8-6.

The feminine contingent produced the day's major upset when Mary Hardwick, English Whightman Cup ace, blasted pretty Sarah Palfrey of New York by 6-1, 6-3. Champion Alice Marble defeated England's Rita Jarvis 6-3, and 6-0.

The other English entry, Valerie Scott, beat Mrs. Penelope A. McBride of Shorthills, N.J., by 6-1, 6-4.

CINCY CONTINUES MARCH

While Cincinnati Reds took another step toward clinching their second successive National League pennant, things were thrown into more of a scramble than ever yesterday in the junor circuit race.

Even though their closest rivals, Brooklyn Dodgers, also won, Cincinnati took the Pirates into camp, and every victory, even though the Dodgers do the same, moves the Reds closer to the World Series. Cincy is eight games to the good right now, and even if Brooklyn does burn up the league in its remaining 27 games, the Reds can play at close to their season's pace and still finish on top.

Two teams, Philadelphia and Boston, are already mathematically out of the chase, and in two or three days the Cubs will definitely be on the outside also. There will still be an exciting tussle for the bottom two first division berths, for there are but 5½ games separating St. Louis, Pittsburgh, New York, and Chicago, and each of them stands a reasonable chance of cutting in on the World Series swag by finishing among the first four.

No team has yet been mathematically eliminated in the American League, but it won't be long for Philadelphia, St. Louis and Washington. They are far behind the White Sox, who in turn have to step to get into the first division before the end of the month.

FOUR-WAY RACE

But Cleveland, New York, Detroit and Boston are already in the throes of a titanic stretch struggle, there being only four and one-half games between first and fourth place. The Red Sox, after ranking high all season, hit the skids badly some time back, but now are back in the thick of the fight.

Largely because of the fact that the schedule now favors the Western clubs, for the seaboard outfits soon hit the rails for the last inland swing, Cleveland and Detroit have slightly the better of it, but the momentum of the furious Yankee pace may speed the New Yorkers right through to the Fall classic. The Red Sox have a sad lack of pitching strength, but if Joe Cronin gets his chuckers to support his powerful hitting to any decent extent he can make it a great finish.

Cleveland and Detroit tangle in the third game of their crucial series today, and tomorrow the Yanks and Red Sox start a two-day tussle in Fenway Park in Beantown. Then the big trip through the West.

Deciding Game of Ball Semis May Be in Nelson Sunday

Con Cummins, Manager of the Nelson Baseball Club, said Thursday night he had been talking by long distance telephone with Gerry Thomson and Glen Mason, Secretaries of the Trail Cardinal and Indian Clubs respectively, and that negotiations were under way to have the third and deciding game of the Nelson-Cardinal series played in Nelson Sunday Afternoon.

A dispute arose between the Nelson and Cardinal teams where the third game of the semis was to be played, the Cardinals claiming that they should get the third game by virtue of their higher standing in the league while Nelson insisted that the constitution said that a coin would have to be tossed to decide the venue of a deciding game.

Trail won the first game in Trail 6-5, and then Nelson evened the series with a 10-6 victory here last Sunday.

The series winner will meet the Trail Indians in a best of five game struggle for the league championship.

Cummins also denied a report prevalent in Trail that his club had withdrawn from the league playoffs.

Again Southpaw Golf Champion

ST. LOUIS (AP).—Alvin Everett of Rome, Ga., a righthander until a severe burn weakened his grip, is proof that Southpaw golfers can be wronged more than wrong.

The thirty-one-year-old Southerner shot as good golf as you will see most anywhere as he defeated Sammy Alpert of Chicago, 5 and 4, recently, to win the national left-handers' tournament and become the first player ever to capture the event twice in a row.

Alpert was the tournament medalist by virtue of a brilliant three under par 68 on one round, but Everett, one of the longest drivers in the amateur ranks, was too much for him in match play competition.

The United States Golf Association does not accept their exclusive annual tournament as a duly registered event, but the port-siders are so used to being snubbed they don't care.

Schindler Is Chosen One Most Valuable

CHICAGO (AP). — Ambrose Schindler of Southern California, joined Cecil Isbell and Bill Osmanski, former Purdue and Holy Cross stars, respectively, to the select class of most valuable player in an all-star football game.

Sports writers at the recent seventh annual all-star contest voted Schindler outstanding for the collegians, the Trojan ace beating out Nile Kinnick of Iowa by a small margin.

Isbell won the honor in 1938, first year of the award, and Osmanski was voted the trophy a year ago. Schindler will be presented a trophy between the halves of next year's game.

Schindler put on a brilliant performance despite the fact that the Green Bay Packers passed the all-stars dizzy for a 45 to 28 victory. Schindler paved the way for the first touchdown with an intercepted pass, scored twice himself and blocked effectively.

Because of doubtful weather conditions and the fact that the evenings now are too short for regulation softball games, the challenge men's softball series between the Hume and Savoy Hotels has been called off.

After the Savoys won the City title in three straight from the Catholics, the Hume team challenged the champions for a three-game series, with proceeds going for some patriotic cause. The Humes were knocked out in a hectic semi-final tussle with C. Y. O.

Adding to the factors against holding of the series, the Savoy team has lost a number of players, and would be unable to field a team without drawing on players from other teams.

The decision of the teams to drop the series now brings down the curtain on softball in Nelson this season except for exhibition ball Sunday and the remainder of the West Kootenay men's playoffs. The Nelson and Rossland rep teams will finish their semi-final series in Nelson Sunday, and rounding out the day's softball card, a touring Kimberley team will play exhibitions.

Goofers to Bowl in Coast Tourney

The Gas House Goofers plan to take part in the Northwest bowling championships to be held at Vancouver next Spring, Jack Hamson, captain of the Goofers, said Thursday. The crack Nelson squad has been intending to participate in big tourneys for some time, and definitely intend to go to the Coast.

The team comprises Hamson, Johnny Aurello, "Lefty" Mydansky, Louis Aurello, Len Bicknell, Tanny Romano and Tony Arcure.

Meanwhile preparations for the Nelson Senior League season are under way, the annual meeting scheduled for the Hume Hotel tonight.

Migrating Fowl Circle Nelson

A flock of loudly calling large birds, presumably wild fowl of some kind, circled Nelson about 8 o'clock Thursday morning, apparently attracted by the city's lights, but confused by the pouring rain and mist. Some of the birds dipped low enough to be dimly seen moving in the low mist.

The calls emitted by the birds sounded like those heard in the Spring, when a large flock circled Nelson many times one misty night, and 170 Western Grebes were counted on the water next day, remaining only for the day.

No strange water fowl were noted on the lake at Nelson yesterday.

FIRST CRIBBAGE DRIVE SLATED FOR NEXT WEEK

The Nelson Cribbage Club plans to hold its first drive of the season September 13, and not tonight as was first reported. The club recently returned Leonard Warren to the Presidency for the ensuing season.

Passeau Is Accused of Using Equivalent Spit-Ball Delivery

CHICAGO — Claude Passeau of the Cubs they say gets away with a trick pitch equivalent to the outlawed spitter by the method of moistening his finger tips with perspiration from his brow.

The rumor about Claude's spitter probably is a base canard, and he must be accepted simply as a blamed good pitcher, and one who has now won more games than he ever did before in the majors.

Fishing License Helps to Finance Propagation Work

If other sources of revenue were available, the B.C. Game Branch would be willing to see fishing licenses discontinued, but at present they formed the basis of fish propagation work carried on by the Branch, stated C. W. Kearns, Inspector for B. Division, at a luncheon at the Board of Trade Council Thursday at the Hume. His talk followed a recent criticism of license fees charged non-residents, the Board seeking his viewpoint.

Propagation work was currently being carried on at Cranbrook, Kaslo, Nelson, Summerland and Revelstoke in B Division, and where the Game Branch was not wholly responsible, it was supporting local endeavor, he explained.

LICENSES HELP FINANCE

Licenses were instituted to help finance increased fish propagation demanded by such bodies as Boards of Trade and Rod and Gun Club, he explained. Since the Province had taken over administration of sport fishing there had been a great extension of activity.

He had found that 25 states in the United States charged less than British Columbia, these states being mostly in the East and the South, but that 20 charged more. In Canada two provinces charged an average of $2.25 for non-residents, but six charged more than the $5 season fee of British Columbia.

H. B. Gore, who brought the original criticism to the Board, stated there were over 1300 active fishermen in Nelson and District, and that over 240 non-resident licenses had been issued up to a recent date. The revenue obtained from these approximated $1600, which was "not a great deal".

If any reduction in non-resident fees was to be made he felt that Canadians of other provinces should benefit before visitors from other countries.

Copper Mount. Man Wins High Shoot Prize

MONTREAL—A British Columbia marksman, J. H. Tappay, Copper Mountain Target Club, became the proud holder of one of the highest distinctions in sporting rifle marksmanship in Canada when he recently won the coveted Dominion Marksmen expert shield award.

In winning this prize the B.C. rifleman posted a score of 5815 out of the possible 6000 points. Only a small number of expert rifle shooters in Canada have ever accomplished the feat of scoring the required number of points to attain this honor, which is held by only a few hundred of the 30,000 registered members of the nation-wide shooting organization.

It requires outstanding marksmanship to post a score better than the necessary minimum of 5800 points of the possible 6000 in this competition in which each marksman must shoot 20 targets from each of the standing, sitting and prone positions. To gain the shield, the rifleman must shoot 20 possibles that is, a perfect score in the prone position, 20 98's or better in the kneeling or sitting position, and 20 95's or better in the standing off-hand stance.

Gonzaga to Open Football Season at Home on 21st

SPOKANE, Wash.—Fifteen lettermen—at least one for every position—nine varsity reserves from the 1939 squad, and 17 high-class sophomores will answer Coach John (Puggy) Hunton's Gonzaga University roll call September 12.

Highly responsible for that ecstatic gleam in the Hunton eye is the experienced line which will average a respectable 205 pounds and a versatile, tricky set of backs capable of varying an offense from sheer power to sticky-fingered legerdemain.

Gonzaga faces a well-balanced nine-game schedule, opening in Spokane against College of Idaho September 21. Also playing in Spokane will be University of Detroit in the homecoming contest November 16 and Washington State College November 23.

The Bulldogs take the road to face St. Mary's, Idaho, University of Portland, Montana, Willamette and Arizona Teachers at Tempe.

Hunton, in his first year of college coaching last year, found his personal combination of Notre Dame and razzle-dazzle offense so effective that his year he expects to feature the trickiest ball-handling outfit on the Coast.

Heading the list of well-equipped backs are the Gray Ghost, Captain Tony Canadeo, last year Little all-American, and Cecil (Little) Hare, 195 pound line crusher.

Pat LaMarche, glue-fingered pass catcher, will quarterback the team, and 180-pound fleet George Darr will round out the starting backfield.

Nick Daviscourt, 207, and Dick Jordan, 216, will start at the wing positions. Starting tackles will be Gerald (Buck) Baker, 245 pound veteran, and Bill Tessendorf, 210. Wendy Feldhahn and Jake Schell will be at guard, and big Al Deschenes, converted from tackle, at centre.

Speculate on New Tennis Queen

NEW YORK, (CP).—Alice Marble, undefeated since 1938, apparently is a long way from being through.

Already, however, tennis observers are watching the youngsters for a possible successor. Few have more than an outside chance this year of dethroning a national champion, a veteran at 26, but from a group of 10 or 12 young players will come the star who finally upsets Queen Alice.

Virginia Wolfenden, pretty Californian, will be dangerous with continued improvement, Pauline Betz, former indoor titlist, is a threat and so is stocky Helen Bernhardt, Pat Canning, another Californian, also shows great promise.

DIZ IS BLASTED IN TEXAS LEAGUE

CHICAGO, Sept. 4 (AP).—Dizzy Dean, who will rejoin the Chicago Cubs Saturday for their final tour of the East, ended his comeback campaign in the Texas League on anything but a happy note.

Making his farewell appearance with Tulsa, Dizzy was clouted by Oklahoma City for 10 hits and five runs in three and one-third innings.

Dean won seven and lost nine while with Tulsa, appearing in 21 games and pitching seven complete games. He worked in 142 innings, struck out 49 batters and walked only 19.

When Judge Haynes Brought Law and Order to Wild Horse Creek

Part He Played Is Told Historical Quarterly

"Though more than 50 years have passed since his death, the name of Judge Haynes, who pioneered in the Okanagan and in Kootenay, remains familiar to many," writes Hester E. White in the British Columbia Historical Quarterly.

To people in Kootenay one of the most interesting parts of the article by Miss White deals with the period that Judge Haynes, who was then in the colonial customs and government agency service—he had not yet been appointed to the bench—was at Wild Horse Creek in East Kootenay. He had served at Rock Creek and Osoyoos, in those days often called "Sooyoos", as well as in other parts of the Crown Colony of British Columbia. Of his transfer to Wild Horse Creek, near what is now Fort Steele in East Kootenay, Miss White writes:

ORDERED TO NEW CAMP

In the Summer of 1870, Haynes was instructed once again to proceed to Wild Horse Creek and take charge of the Kootenay district. It was an assignment which he disliked heartily, and the salary offered, though higher than that paid to him at Sooyoos, was not in his opinion adequate. As he remarked in a private note to P. J. Hankin, the new colonial Secretary, he was being "obliged at great personal inconvenience to do duty in the most out-of-theway and unpleasant station in the Colony at a lower rate of pay than any other magistrate receives." Nevertheless he stated that he would leave for Wild Horse as soon as a suitable companion for Mrs. Haynes could be secured — which, he added, was a problem "of no small difficulty in this part of the country where there is but one white woman besides my wife within a circle of nearly 100 miles." After much searching, he was able to get Miss Annie Ellen Mackin, who had come to British Columbia with an uncle and aunt in 1869. As the party had stopped at Sooyoos on their way into the valley at that time, she was not a stranger.

Wild Horse Creek proved to be quite as uninteresting as Haynes had anticipated. "The place is nearly as dull as Rock Creek," he wrote on October 16, "and I do not think there will be 30 white men in the district after another month. Unless I receive very strict orders to the contrary, I will leave for Sooyoos about the beginning of next month. . . . There is scarcely anything to do in the office, and only one County Court case has been entered since my arrival." A week later he expressed the fervent hope that he would be able to "leave this confounded place" as planned.

In 1871, and again in 1872, Haynes received the nuwelcome instruction to return to the Kootenay. In 1871 it was a return with a difference, however, as he was accompanied by Mrs. Haynes. They passed through Colville in July, and Walter Moberly, in his Rocks and Rivers of British Columbia," recalls a visit with them at Wild Horse Creek in September. Mrs. Haynes's ride from Kootenay to the Coast, at the end of the season, was a performance of which any horsewoman might well be proud.

Part of the Winter was usually spent at New Westminster, where Haynes had purchased Ince Cottage, the former residence of Judge Cresse. There he left Mrs. Haynes when he returned to Kootenay, and there his son, Fairfax Moresby Haynes, was born on February 10, 1872. Unhappily, this event cost Mrs. Haynes her life, for she passed away on May 3, having very foolishly insisted upon riding, and thereby exposing herself to cold. Judge Haynes knew nothing of his loss until a traveller arrived at Wild Horse Creek and handed him a newspaper, in which he discovered the notice of his wife's death.

GOLD RUSH IN 1864

As early as November, 1863, Haynes passed on for the information of the Governor a report that gold had been discovered in Kootenay. By the Spring of 1864 it was known that a rush was taking place to Wild Horse Creek. From the point of view of the Government, this rush simply duplicated the problems created by the Rock Creek excitement of 1860, with the additional complication that Wild Horse Creek was both farther away and more difficult of access. The presence of an able and experienced official in the new camp was obviously essential, and on July 9, 1864, the Colonial Secretary wrote to Haynes and instructed him to proceed to Wild Horse with as little delay as possible.

Haynes acted promptly upon these instructions, and was able to leave Osoyoos on July 20. He was accompanied by William Young, an Indian. For Colville was reached on the third day, Haynes was anxious, if possible, to travel the rest of the way North of the boundary, in British territory; but inquiries indicated that the going would be too hazardous for his horses, and he therefore continued his journey by way of Spokane. He crossed the frontier on August 6 and arrived at Wild Horse Creek on the 10th.

COLLECTED REVENUES

"There were about one thousand men here including miners, shopkeepers, and laborers," Haynes reported to Victoria a few weeks later. "The mines so far discovered on this creek extend for about four miles and a half and are divided into five hundred feet each, including creek and Bar." He went on to give a detailed account of 10 outstanding claims, employing a total of 114 men, which of late had been producing, on the average, no less than $4308 in gold per day.

But the most interesting and significant thing about his report was the simple statement that he had collected duties "on all merchandise and animals found in the District on my arrival," and had "made proper arrangements for the collection of Revenue in future." The unpopularity of the licence fees and customs duties which Haynes set out to collect can be imagined, and the successful manner in which he enforced the law in a turbulent and remote community is proof both of his own sense of duty and his ability to handle men.

That ability had been further tested by the aftermath of a shooting affray that had occurred just before his arrival at Wild Horse. An interesting account of this affair is given by Daniel Drumheller, who reached Wild Horse in June, 1864, in a letter to the late R. L. T. Galbraith, of Fort Steele, some years ago. It will be noted that Drumheller's recollection of the exact date of the shooting is incorrect, but there would seem to be no reason to doubt the essential accuracy of his story. It reads as follows:

OUTLAW KILLING

"I shook hands with Judge Haynes before he dismounted from his horse when he arrived at Wild Horse. This was about the 1st of July (sic) and the next day (sic) after the free-for-all fight in which Tommy Walker was killed and several wounded. Within less than two hours after the judge arrived, he came into my little store to discuss the intolerable conditions then existing in the camp. We went into my little sleeping-tent, where we spent more than one hour discussing the situation. I told the judge the camp was full of outlaws and gun-men. The judge asked what per cent of the population I really thought was bad. I told him about 20 per cent. He said that he was horrified to think of such a thing happening in Her Majesty's Domain. He asked how many men there were in camp he could depend upon. I told him hundreds of them, and gave him the names of many, which he dotted down. I told him furthermore that at least 75 per cent of the population would willingly aid him in enforcing the laws. The judge thanked me, and said he had come to me because I was, perhaps, the only man (in Wild Horse whom) he had ever met before. The Judge asked me what I knew (about) the scrap the night before. I told him it was caused by a feud existing between two certain elements, and that the aggressors had been worsted, and there had been so many men engaged in the fracas I doubted if convictions could be had against any of them. A few days afterwards Overland Bob, East Powder Bill, and Neil Dougherty were tried before Judge Haynes, acquitted, and peace for ever after ward in the camp prevailed."

That law and order did prevail, is evident from the fact that Haynes collected substantial sums in cash and gold, and that these funds were never molested, although it was common knowledge that no safe was available in which to deposit them. At the end of September the Colonial Secretary, Arthur N. Birch, reached Wild Horse on a tour of inspection, and his report contains the following amusing and enlightening entry:

COLONIAL SECRETARY ESCORTED GOLD

"Mr. Haynes had collected a large amount of Revenue, considering the short time that he had been resident in the district. I found his 'Treasury' to consist of an old Portmanteau, which he zealously guarded by night and day, in the log hut in which he is at present living.

"At the urgent request of Mr. Haynes, I relieved him of a portion of his responsibility, by taking over some 75 lbs. weight of gold. This I brought down with me, and have safely deposited in the hands of the Treasurer. It is an interesting incident for Mr. Evans, Mr. Bush and myself to remember that we were the first Gold Escort direct from the Rocky Mountains to the sea-board of the Colony."

Hayne's own accounts show that he collected over $16,000 between August 10 and September 30, over $9000 of which was in customs duties, so that the 75 lbs. of gold is well accounted for.

An experienced administrator, such as Birch, was well qualified to appraise Haynes's activities at Wild Horse. It is of interest therefore to find that the report which he submitted to the Governor upon his return to New Westminster concluded with the following very generous tribute.

MINERS' MADE OWN LAWS

"I cannot conclude this letter without expressing my sense of the admirable manner in which Mr. Haynes has carried out his duties under most difficult circumstances; arriving as he did with only one constable to assist him, among a body of 1500 Miners from the adjoining territories, many of whom were known as utterly regardless of law and order; he found them banded together making their own laws and meting out their own ideas of justice; each man, as many have owned to me, carrying his life in his hands. In fact, so insecure had life and property become in the eyes of many of the miners that Mr. Dore, one of the original discoverers of the Creek, and a few others had formed themselves into a committee, and drawn up a code of laws which they intended enforcing on the community had not a Government Officer arrived at the moment. Copies of these laws were handed to me by Mr. Dore, and I enclose them as interesting documents. I would add that the gentlemen forming the Committee have cheerfully rendered Mr. Haynes every assistance in their power in maintaining law and order. I arrived, within 6 weeks of Mr. Haynes' residence in the District, to find the Mining Laws of the Colony in full force; all Customs Duties paid; no pistols to be seen, and everything as quiet and orderly as it could possibly be in the most civilized district of the Colony, much to the surprise and admiration of many who remembered the early days of the neighboring State of California."

TO LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

Shortly after he submitted his report, Birch was able to write to Haynes and inform him that the Governor had been pleased to appoint him a Member of the Legislative Council of British Columbia. Haynes accordingly left for the Coast soon after Birch's letter was received, in order to attend the forthcoming session of the Council, which opened at New Westminster in December, 1864, and continued until April, 1865.

While at New Westminster, Haynes received a number of reports upon affairs at Wild Horse Creek from Constable William Young. The first of these brought news of the beginning of the rush to the Big Bend country. "A great excitement is at present raging in this camp relative to reported fresh gold discoveries on several creeks emptying in to the Columbia River," Young wrote on December 1, 1864. "Numbers of men have been leaving the town every day for the last week. . . . There are not more than 300 men remaining in this camp." Later Young reported that snow-covered trails and severe weather had prevented most of the gold-seekers from progressing far, and that practically all of the had returned to Wild Horse. "Christmas week," he added, "passed cheerfully and quietly. I do not think a more orderly community than this of three or four hundred men, principally idle, is to be found on the coast."

U. S. May Release Tanks to Canada

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall, United States Army Chief of Staff, said today that the United States is considering a proposal to release several hundreds of its obsolete war tanks of the last war to Canada for use in training.

MAY SEND SUPPLIES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (AP) — Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York, chairman of the American section of the Joint United States-Canadian Defence Board, said after a White House conference today that the question of America furnishing military supplies to Canada had been discussed by Board members.

La Guardia also indicated that the United States would establish two bases for armed forces in Newfoundland, sites for which were obtained from Great Britain as a gift simultaneous with the destroyer-naval base agreement.

The mayor said he had made a preliminary informal report to President Roosevelt of what had taken place to date in discussions with Canadian Board members.

He also discussed the agenda for another meeting here Monday and Tuesday with the Canadians, he said.

Mexican Govt. on Watch for Disorder

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 5 (AP). — The administration of President Cardenas took precautions today to forestall any public disorders as a result of the claims of General Juan Andreu Almazan's political supporters that he was elected Cardenas' successor in the July election.

A statement by Angel Trechuelo, who claimed to be an executive of Almazan's party, that an armed attempt to seize power might very shortly begin was repudiated by the Almazan party, Emilio Madero, head of the party, said he had "never heard" of Trechuelo, and had heard no such reports.

The Government patrolled highways, watched airports and kept all trains under surveillance to check on movements of Almazan's followers.

Libel Suit Halts Japanese Ship

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 5 (AP). — A $200,000 libel suit halted today the sailing of the Japanese freighter Sakito Maru which rammed and sank the fishing barge Olympic II yesterday with a probable loss of eight lives.

The freighter, scheduled to have departed for Kobe, remained in San Pedro channel for repairs to two minor holes in the starboard bow and a long dent on the port side.

Seventeen men, women and children were rescued after the collision in heavy fog two miles offshore from San Pedro. The bodies of two victims were recovered. Six other persons are missing.

The libel suit was filed by the Hermosa Amusement Corp., owners of the barge, against the N.Y.K. line and the s. s.'s captain Samsato.

Houses Straddling Canada-United States Boundary Present Problems

Citizenship of Babies Rests on Doctor's Certificate

Where in the world outside of Canada could one find inhabited houses straddling the line between two separate countries? "Line houses" are found in that international community known in Canada as Rock Island, Quebec, and in the United States as Derby Line, Vermont. This good-sized community has grown up helter-skelter over the invisible border. It is quite questionable how many of the natives of that district can tell exactly where the line runs. So if one desired to study international buildings, and the odd quirks they give to the administration of customs and immigration laws, no better locality could be offered than the towns mentioned.

Here are houses built at such various angles across the boundary line that the families living in them lead a sort of international existence, with a part of their household activities taking place in Canada and the balance in the United States. Naturally such situations often cause amusing incidents. Under certain conditions, while it would be quite legal to serve beverages stronger than tea or coffee in one side of the house, it might be strictly against the law to do so in the other side. Again, cigarettes made in the United States, not duty-paid into Canada, could be served in some rooms of those houses but would be contraband in the other rooms.

Even the citizenship of babies born in such "line houses" rests on the attending doctor's certificate, for he, in addition to his medical qualifications, must be somewhat of a surveyor to be able to certify where the line runs.

REAL POSERS

And so, quite naturally, both Canadian and United States customs and immigration officers located at this point, are often asked questions that are real posers. One of that order that is asked frequently of the Canadian Customs officers is whether persons residing in houses that "straddle" the line could drive United States automobiles. This problem was finally solved by taking into consideration the legal domicile of a person so housed as interpreted by the Immigration Services. Thereby a Canadian family moving from a point in Canada into a "line house" would not be considered to have lost their Canadian domicile until they had paid their head tax and entered themselves formally through the United States immigration office. Similarly, a United States resident would not be considered as domiciled in Canada unless he had after moving into a "line house" regularly entered himself through the Canadian immigration office.

Not only houses, however, are built exactly over the line but many other types of building. For instance, there is a large factory, a community library, an opera house, an express company office, a furniture repair shop, and there are a couple of stores. An interesting situation is afforded by one line building the ground floor of which is occupied by a blacksmith shop with an entrance door from the United States, whilst exactly underneath in the basement of the building is a wheelwright shop with a Canadian entrance only. Under such circumstances it is possible for a man to have his horse shod in the United States shop while his wagon is being checked over in the Canadian shop immediately below.

Necessarily, too, the towns' activities are to a great extent international. The water supply comes from the United States, the electric current from Canada, and a joint railway station in Canada serves for both the United States and Canadian towns. The Masonic Temple stands on Canadian soil, the Odd Fellows Hall graces the United States side, and these organizations in common with the local Chamber of Commerce draw their members from both countries. The same may be said also from the church congregations, and the flags of both countries are prominently displayed at most public functions. On breaks out in one town the fire department of the neighboring town, even though in a different country, either assists or stands ready to do so if required.

INTERNATIONAL SPIRIT

Needless to say the daily and close contacts made by the public of these two towns of Rock Island and Derby Line have served to deepen the international spirit and cooperation and good-will.

Another interesting example of close cooperation of towns on opposite sides of our friendly border is that of St. Stephen and Milltown, N.B., and Calaise, Me., which face each other across the St. Croix river. These three towns enjoy an international aspect that is unique. A few miles up stream is a power development on international waters. The powerhouse and residences are in United States territory, and until a few years ago the only method of entrance or exit to this settlement was by cross the stream bed below the dam and entering Canada, and by driving nine miles through Canadian territory, reaching United States soil again at Calais.

Calais is the Eastern terminus of the Main Central aRilroad which has a branch line running along the United States side of the St. Croix river to Woodland, about 11 miles away. The railroad, about midway of this branch line, leaves United States territory and crosses the river into Canada, where it continues for about three miles, again entering Maine just below the town of Woodland, its Northern terminus.

The various industries of the three towns derive their power from international waters, and electric energy generated at Milltown is transported by transmission line through the United States territory for about fifteen miles, thence by underwater cable to the town of St. Andrews, which is 22 miles down river from the sources of energy. Industries and homes in St. Stephen using gas for heating and other purposes, secure their supply of this commodity from a plant situated in across from that place.

The water supply of the combined towns originates in a plant owned by the town of St. Stephen, and is piped through that town and across to Calais, where it is sold to a company for distribution. This American company in turn sells to the city of Calais and to Milltown, and uses its own pipe line in both towns on the American and Canadian sides of the boundary.

FIRE CALLS

In connection with fire fighting arrangements and equipment, these three towns are also exceptional, in that, for an alarm in St. Stephen or Calais, both departments respond and for an alarm in Milltow nor the Northern district of Calais, both departments there respond. In the case of a general alarm in either section, all four departments respond and this without monetary arrangements between municipalities.

The St. Croix river, the dividing line between the two countries, freezes over in Winter and shipping cesses unless it becomes necessary to break the ice to allow coal boats to discharge cargo. One Winter, several years ago, there was an exceptional demonstration of the international aspect when a United States coastguard boat was engaged in opening this international boundary river so that a Norwegian steamer could discharge Welsh coal at a Canadian dock for immediate transfer to the United States for consumption in that country. It frequently happens that United States coal is discharged from a ship at St. Stephen after direct shipment from the United States and trahsferred to Calais by truck and highway bridges because of the fact that Calais does not possess a dock at which ocean steamers can discharge cargo.

Both Calais and St. Stephen have street decorations consisting of flags on standards with are set in sidewalk receptacles. It is the usual custom upon special days that the flags of each country are flown in both towns.

Imports Dropped in New Zealand

AUCKLAND, N. Z. (CP)—Drastic reduction in New Zealand's importation of motor vehicles as a result of general import cuts is shown by figures for the first six months of this year. New Zealand bought only one motor-car and 672 commercial vehicles in this period from Canada, of a total value of £125,533 ($451,918). In the same period last year New Zealand bought £1,308,664 ($4,911,090) from them.

Even so, New Zealand bought more commercial vehicles in the first six months of this year from Canada than from any other source. Britain supplied only 206 and the United States 163. Canada has held the lead in this field for many years.

Imports of motor vehicles of all kinds and from all sources have been banned for the remainder of the present year.

Copper Price Up to Former 11½ Cents

NEW YORK, Sept. 5 (AP).—Phelps Dodge Corp., one of the leading primary producers of the United States, today raised the price of refined copper ½ cent a pound to 11½ cents.

The new quotation puts the red metal back to the level prevailing from February until August, when a series of reductions in the outside market and by customs smelters, brought a reduction to 11 cents.

Board of Trade Is Urged to Protest G.N. Withdrawal

Council Will Place Question Before Whole Board

Recommendation that the Nelson Board of Trade protest to the Canadian Transport Commissioners the projected cancellation of passenger service over the Great Northern Railway line from Nelson to Spokane will be placed before the Board for action next week.

The Council of the Board received from its Freight and Transportation Committee Thursday a report urging an immediate telegram to the Transport Board protesting the projected withdrawal and asking for a hearing. On a standing vote the Council decided that instead of taking direct action it would refer the problem to the whole Board, asking the Committee to present its facts then.

The Committee's report also recommended that copies of the proposed telegram of protest should be sent to Salmo, Fruitvale, Trail and Rossland in B. C.; and to Chewelah, Colville, Deer Park and Kettle Falls in Washington.

A letter from J. L. Close, G. N. Divisional Superintendent at Spokane, stated the decision to withdraw the service had been avoided for a long time, but for the past year a loss of $3580 a month had been incurred and with highways improving steadily there was little hope of increased traffic.

Possibilities of a change in schedule improving patronage and increasing express business were discussed briefly by Council. It was argued that the line was paying for itself from Nelson to Waneta.

Brightening Signs at London Close

LONDON, Sept. 5 (AP) — The stock market edged up a notch or two today as the trading community interpreted Hitler's speech of last night as evidence the German "time table' attack on England had run into difficulties.

Volume of dealings was still below average, but there were signs of broadening market interest. In the industrial division particularly, there was a shortage of stock for sale as a steady stream of small buying orders flowed in, pushing values higher.

Chicago Wheat Prices Up 2 Cents

CHICAGO, Sept. 5 (AP)—Wheat prices shot up almost two cents a bushel at one time today following the trend of securities and stiffening prices of other commodities associated with the national defence program.

Buying of grains came from mills, elevators and speculative interests. Trend was some reaction from the day's best level but prices retained most of their gain.

CALGARY, Sept. 5 (CP)—Trading in oils was very light on Calgary Stock Exchange today. Prices, however, were slightly higher for the few issues traded. Transfers 2960 shares.

Extension, heaviest trader this morning, gained ¼ at 17½. Arrow added a point at 27, and Royal Canadian, only other stock traded, added ⅛ at 11⅛.

Court Orders Pay Increase Due to High Living Cost

AUCKLAND, N. Z. (CP) — To meet the increased cost of living resulting from higher prices for all goods on account of the war the New Zealand Arbitration Court has made an order increasing rates of pay under all awards and industrial agreements by five per cent.

The order was made after a lengthy hearing in which much larger increases were sought by workers' representatives, and increases of any kind were opposed by the employers.

In his judgment Mr. Justice Tyndall, president of the court, said that he had not taken into account the new national security tax of a shilling in the pound levied on all wages and other incomes, nor other special taxation introduced for war purposes in assessing the changes in workers' incomes. To take this into account would be in effect reviewing the decision of the legislature which had introduced the increased taxation.

Little Activity in Winnipeg Trade

WINNIPEG, Sept. 5 (CP)—Wheat buyers showed little interest in pit dealings at the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. No export business was reported and prices closed at fixed minimum levels of 73⅝ cents a bushel for the October future and 74⅛ cents for December.

Exporters and shippers took a fair amount of cash wheat for shipment into eastern position. Spreads were generally unchanged.

Mills and exporters were moderately active in oats trade in the course grain pit. Eastern and domestic interests took fair amounts of barley. Purchases of rye were believed made to offset sales at Chicago.

Buying at Montreal

MONTREAL, Sept. 5 (CP)—The stock market continued to attract buyers in active late dealings today.

Canadian Car preferred tacked on a point while the common was slightly better. National Steel Car, Dosco and C.P.R. also firmed.

Fractional gains were boarded by St. Lawrence Corporation, Dryden, St Lawrence Corporation preferred, St Lawrence Paper preferred and Bathurst.

Ferry "Trailer" Is Completed; Will Be in Service Shortly

In an attempt to relieve congestion at the Nelson ferry in rush periods, a scow "trailer" has been completed and launched and will shortly be placed in service. The "trailer", accommodating eight cars will be placed on ferry cables and during rush periods will be attached to the end of the present ferry. When traffic does not require the extra accommodation the "trailer" will be detached and left at the South shore, serving as an approach to the ferry proper.

The scow was built by A. C. McCharles, contractor.

Trade Quickens on Wall St. Exchg.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5 (AP)—A better brand of war and business news today helped the stock market extend Wednesday's rally by 1 to around 4 points despite comparatively heavy profit selling.

Dealings, amounting to some 1,300,000 shares, were the fastest since mid-June, although slowdowns appeared now and then as prices shifted from their tops. After absorbing offerings, leaders generally resumed the advance.

Wall Street, brokers said, was more hopeful than ever, in the light of European dispatches, that Britain would succeed in beating off the Nazis. Domestic business news also continued to serve as a market prop.

Revived optimism in the financial sector was reflected in the transfer of a Stock Exchange seat for $40,000 up $5000 from the previous sale.

Strength of British Empire loans in the bond department, as well as improved tendencies among corporates, was interpreted constructively.

Canadian issues moved forward in a body. Hiram Walker gained one point and Canadian Pacific, Dome and Lake Shore Mines and Distillers gained fractions. Canada 4's in the bond market advanced 1½ points.

Vancouver Gains in Active Trade

VANCOUVER, Sept. 5 (CP). — Trading continued active on Vancouver Stock Exchange today and gains of fractions to 15 cents were general at the close. Transactions totalled 48,915 shares.

Cariboo Gold Quartz climbed 15 to 2.15 and Pioneer at 2.30 was up 10 from yesterday's closing bid. Premier at 1.05 and Hedley Mascot at 49 both rose 5 from Wednesday's bid and Privateer at 44 and Kootenay Belle at 26 each gained 4.

In the oil issues Pacific Petroleum advanced 5 to 35 and Anglo Canadian firmed a cent at 44. Royal Canadian closed fractionally higher at 11½ while Home was off 2 at 1.90.

Pend Oreille led the base metals with a five cent gain to 1.75 and Grandview was up 2 at 17.

Farm implements and machinery were imported into Canada in June to the value of $3,056,000, recording a considerable gain over last year's total of $1,808,000. Maglio Receives U.S. Patent for His Plum; Is Proud of Peaches and Pears

The pear he is holding is 10 inches in circumference.

Mr. Maglio has received United States Plant Patent 413, granted July 23, covering his Maglio plum, developed locally, the patent being for 17 years. In it descriptions are given of the tree, leaves and fruit, their distinguishing characteristics being set out.

The patent sets out that "the tree . . . is the product of a long history of cross breeding", the object of this cross breeding being "to produce a plum tree with a fruit of good keeping qualities, late maturity, large size and improved flavor, which would be suitable as a dessert plum."

Canadian Chamber Lacks Unanimity on Daylight Saving

Nelson's proposal for Dominion-wide daylight saving had been reviewed by the Executive Committee of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, but in view of the past history of such proposals in the Chamber no action was taken, stated a letter received by the Nelson Board of Trade Council at its luncheon at the Hume Thursday.

Lack of unanimity when a committee on policy dealt with it in the Spring, preceded by similar lack of unanimity in 1939, led to this course, it was explained.

Canadian Sandlots Rival Eton's Fields as Producers of Soldiers

By EDWIN JOHNSON

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, (CP)—The sandlots of Canada may yet become as renowned as the playing fields of Eton in the development of efficient and courageous soldiers of Empire.

Sport, part of the army training curricula, has not only helped to round out the army's general hardening process but also contributed towards a higher standard of morale and team spirit. That is the unanimous opinion of those responsible for turning out the finished soldier.

A British staff officer watching a group of Canadians in an inter-unit softball game had this to say:

"Your soldiers earned a well-deserved name as doughty fighters in the last war. Your airmen were among the best. We were told that this dash and daring was largely due to the sports-loving qualities of your men. If that is so that present generation of Canadian soldiers should compare favorably with the last.

"I am sure they will fight as well as they play."

Whether in the fields behind the reserve lines of Britain's forward zone of defence or within the regions of their encampments, the Canadians play the way they work—hard and well. They are even teaching neighboring English units the intricacies of softball, volleyball and lacrosse.

Through cooperation of the Canadian Auxiliary War Services over 2000 softballs and bats have been distributed among units now overseas.

On a recent move of the 1st Division, the men reached their halting point for the night dusty and wet with perspiration. The Y.M.C.A. rented a large swimming pool in a nearby town and more than 21,000 soldiers availed themselves of the pool during the week they were there.
