highway to the mill "is in very good shape" Mr. Whimster said.
Seventy-three men are already under canvas, and another 17 are expected early this week. Recon- struction of 11 bridges on the road is scheduled to begin today. A bul- dozer and several trucks have been obtained by the forestry department, under whose direction the camp is being operated, and work will be pushed rapidly.

William Miller is in charge of the work, assisted by W. J. Turner.
Twenty-five of the tents are for sleeping quarters, with four men to a tent, while the others are used for kitchen, dining room, recrea- tion hall and office and store room. The kitchen is 18 by 24 feet; the dining hall 18 by 70; and the recrea- tion 18 by 66 feet. The tents have wooden floors and three-foot board walls.

One of the greatest cries in camp is for something to read, and sev- eral men asked Mr. Whimster if any magazines could be obtained. Maga- zines or papers left with the forest branch at Nelson would be taken to the camp, he said.

More About Danzig Nazis
First Forster spoke at Oliva, pic- turesque town near the Baltic sea. There he warned Poland Danzig had adequate defences against any "aggressive" action Poles may be contemplating.

Then he appeared at the harbor city of Neufahrwasser, near the Western Poles, where he advised citizens of the community to "smash" Polish influence wherever possible.

"The construction of the competi- tive Polish harbor of Gdynia, less than 10 kilometres (6 1/4 miles) from the spot on which I stand has been a decisive factor forcing us to recognize the necessity of political union with Germany," Forster said.

At the Oliva meeting the crowd laughed when the Nazi leader referred to "hanswursts" in London—a term indicating stupid fellows. He twitted Great Britain and France for "irresolution and weakness."

"They want to prevent Germany from becoming too great," he said. "But their designs are futile."

Mickey Prestley Hurls 1-Hitter in Midget Ball
Mickey Prestley, crack pitcher of Nelson midget baseball ranks, came close to every pitcher's dream at the Recreation grounds Saturday evening as he pitched his club, the Cougars, to a 16-1 victory over the Rock Rabbits.

Running his efforts was a fluke home run into right field by Forky Percival in the seventh with none out on a hit the Cougars protested was foul. Previously only two men reached first, both on errors. He struck out 15 men, walking none.

Emmett Anderson, his opponent on the mound, fanned 10 and walk- ed eight but his support was weak.

McPhail Winner of Sweep Golf
L. A. McPhail, a past winner this year, carded a net 65 to gain first place in a medal sweep competi- tion at the Nelson Golf and Country Club course Sunday afternoon.

A large entry was posted for the sweep. Close on McPhail's heels was A. M. Parker with a net 66. B. Townshend, W. Barwick and O. G. Gallaher were right behind with 67's.

Tied for fourth place were James Cherrington, Gordon Allan and T. R. Wilson with 68's, two over par, to win an "entry credit" each.

Golfers reported that the condi- tion of the course is exceptionally good for the time of the year, due to rain. They are playing on green fairways instead of the dried-out ones common in the mid-summer months.

None of the scores were above the "low seventy" mark, all com- petitors playing golf that was in keeping with the weather—hot.

Larger Number at Open Air Service
A larger congregation than last week attended the second open air service of St. Paul's United church in Lakeside park Sunday afternoon. There was little or no interference from boats on the lake, or from picnickers and swimmers.

Rev. Foster Hilliard, speaking on "What to Do About That Impulse?" said "science calls it inhibition, but religion calls it reverence." He discussed impulses and inhibitions from a religious standpoint.

Old favorite hymns were sung, with Mrs. David Maloney at the portable organ.

His Net Score Is 62; Piper Has the Low Gross Score
ROSSLAND, B. C., July 9—J. W. Slinger of Trail was medalist with a net score of 62 when the qualify- ing round and the championship and second flights of the Warren cup tournament were played Sunday at the Rossland-Trail Golf & Coun- try club. L. S. Piper, also of Trail, had the lowest gross score, 71.

Four matches, three in the cham- pionship flight and two in the second flight will be played at a later date.

THE RESULTS
Results were:
Championship flight — George Cady, Trail, beat J. W. Slinger, Trail; Sid Simcock, Rossland, beat Al Cairns, Trail; Harry Donaldson, Rossland, beat Ernie Paulding, Trail; L. Landucci, Trail, beat "Scotty" Ross, Trail; James Wright, Rossland, beat Maurice Sawyer, Rossland.

Second flight—J. N. Cran, Rossland, beat R. E. Hawkes, Trail; D. D. Morris, Rossland, beat F. Fortier, Trail; E. Blackwell, Rossland, beat B. Sutherland, Rossland; James Mitchell, Trail, beat T. O. St Denis, Trail.

Matches still to be played follow: First flight—M. Wright, Trail, vs. Ed Jandrell, Trail, and L. M. De- Long, Rossland, vs. L. S. Piper, Trail. Second flight—T. W. Ross, Trail, vs. J. Atwell, Trail; Dr. E. A. Ellis, Trail, vs. R. G. Anderson, Trail.

Nelson . . . 9 4 161 152 .692
Trail . . . 6 7 154 152 .463
Rossland . . . 0 4 33 54 .000

With a string of six straight vic- tories already hung up, Nelson Maple Leafs go out in an effort to bolster their first place advantage over Trail Golden Bears tonight at the Civic arena when they engage the Trail team.

The Bears sharpened their claws considerably following their recent losing streak of four successive games. They have won their last two games and are apparently back in their winning stride with two of their main cogs, Bruno Sammarino and "Baker" Merlo, back in the lineup.

Coach Jock Walmsley will send out the same team as against Rossland Redmen Friday with the addition of Harold Mayo, who re- places injured Al Hooker. The Leafs played a man short in the last game.

MORE ABOUT CHAMBERLAIN
The French government, it was said, has been consulted regarding the declaration and has agreed to its contents.

Usually reliable sources said Mr. Chamberlain would take into con- sideration Polish views on whether the Danzig tension had subsided to a point where his silence would be more effective at the moment than a statement.

Political commentators are gen- erally agreed that Mr. Chamberlain has decided against a present re- organization of his cabinet but they do not agree he was wise in his apparent decision against taking Winston Churchill into the minist- erial fold.

GARVIN COMMENTS
J. L. Garvin, well-known com- mentator, writing in the Observer (Conservative) said: "The Polish government has been satisfied that Britain will make war in common rather than purchase a false and fatal respite of any kind or surrender or betrayal."

"Mr. Chamberlain believes *** British determination is now more effectively recognized by all con- cerned and that to bring in Mr. Churchill as a demonstration would act as a superfluous irritant, would be denounced in Ger- many as a glaring proof of ag- gressive designs and might be deliberately exploited for all pur- poses which are inimical to chances of peace."

"Meanwhile we must not be misled by the pause in Nazi arming of Danzig. If the peril comes, a de- cisive direction from the Reich will lead through Hungary to Rumania. For this major plans are laid."

However, Mr. Garvin adds: "Yet, for aught yet known to anyone, whether in the government or out of it, drastic (cabinet) reconstruc- tion may become imperative during the next six weeks or so."

FOOD RESERVES
The noted economist Sir Arthur Salter, arguing in the Observer that Great Britain should have built up food reserves during the past few months, guardedly mentions the same time limit for a new crisis.

Sir Arthur urges quick steps to remedy the situation claiming this country would experience a serious food shortage in event of a pro- tracted conflict.

"Suppose now we have not six months but only six weeks, is there anything we can do more quickly?" he asked.

He suggested immediate importa- tion "of the utmost capacity of all available ships and ports, reserves of all essential imports which can be stored without difficulty and do not quickly deteriorate."

Mrs. Hilliard in Pulpit of First Baptist Church
Taking the pulpit for Rev. Gerald M. Ward while he is attending a Baptist convention at Winnipeg, Mrs. Foster Hilliard asked the con- gregation of the First Baptist church Sunday night "How Much Do You Believe?"

She asked if people really coun- ted on and believed in the love of God and sought His help in their troubles. She gave illustrations of frustrated love and related them to frustration of God's love.

Special Train to Koolaree
Boys 50 to 60 in number go into camp today at Koolaree for two weeks. Their camp closes July 24. A special train from Trail passes through Nelson at 1 o'clock this afternoon en route to Koolaree. Nelson boys will board it here.

Applications for junior boys' camp came from Cranbrook, Lum- berton, Creston, Nakusp, Grand Forks, Trail, Rossland, Ymir, Salmo, Sheep Creek, Nelson, Willow Point and other points along the West Arm.

The senior boys, who have been in camp for 12 days, leave today as the juniors go in.

23 Young People Hike to Kokanee
Leaving Nelson Saturday evening, 23 members of St. Saviour's Young People society and friends made a weekend hike to Kokanee glacier park. They returned to Nelson Sunday evening.

Reaching the glacier Sunday morning, they broke up into small parties and thus were able, collectively, to traverse a large part of the park.

MORE ABOUT SUICIDE CORPS

The Soviet-Mongolian troops last night were slightly less than two miles from the Khalka.

Copyright, 1939, by the Havas News Agency
HAILAR, Manchoukuo July 9 (CP-Havas) — Retreat of Soviet Mongolian forces from the battle- fields around Momonhan Heights has been cut off, Japanese military headquarters announced today. All bridges across the Khalka river have been successfully blown up, it was stated.

The fighting zone along and near the Khalka river is about 150 miles south of Hailar.

Japanese officers predicted the battle southeast of Lake Bor would end within a day or so. They said only a final push by the Japanese-Manchoukuo forces was required to annihilate the opposing enemy, estimated at about 4000 men, in- cluding Soviet regulars.

They described the Soviet-Mon- golian troops as caught on the delta between the Khalka and Holsten rivers and the shore of Lake Bor. Japanese officers said many more were brought down.

At the airfield I saw wreckage of an all-metal light Soviet bomber, the "SB" four-seater. Most of the planes shot down were the "B-15" type which, according to Japanese officers, is a slightly improved type of the model which performed well early in the Spanish civil war.

Japanese military sources say the 46 Mongul planes which appeared on the front Saturday—of which 18 were shot down—represented the last surviving squadron of the Mon- golian air force of 400 planes. Two Japanese planes were missing fol- lowing today's battle.

Big Night Planned at Salmo Tuesday in Box Lacrosse
SALMO, B. C. — Tuesday will be bargain night for the big crowd of boxla fans who are expected to be on hand for the Sheep Creek-Nelson league fixture in the Salmo arena.

Added to the big night will be the added attraction of a midget boxla game between Sheep Creek and Salmo. This game started on July 1st, but came to an unhappy end- ing when the officials stopped the game half-way through, because the boys were getting out of hand and roughing each other up in real fashion.

The fans of the Salmo valley are boxla-minded at present and are really looking forward to the visit of the Nelson F. A. C. After the game the Nelson club will be guests of the Sheep Creek and Salmo boxla clubs at a weiner roast and pow-wow out at Erie. The officials of the league are doing everything to make the Tuesday night game the big game of the season. Ian Dingwall of Nelson has been asked to handle the whistle.

No One Hurt as Trail Car Turns Over When Off Road at Rossland
ROSSLAND, B. C., July 9 (AP)—A car driven by Rupert Faulkner of Trail went over the bank on the Trail-Rossland highway, just above the junction at Columbia avenue and Monita street, about 9:30 Sat- urday night. The accident occurred when Faulkner attempted to pass a truck driven by Ivan Blair of Sheep Creek. Blair was coming down the hill. The car turned two complete somersaults, but neither the driver nor four passengers were injured. The car was badly damag- ed.

8 in Running for Golf Title at Edmonton
EDMONTON, July 9 (CP)—Eight players remained in the run- ning for the Edmonton amateur golf title tonight following two of the hottest days' play in the history of the tournament.

Defending Champion Henry Mar- tell won the qualifying medal over the municipal course with a three- under-par 69 and 31 others shot 78 or better to fill the other places in the championship flight. The qual- ifying score was the lowest ever recorded here. Players who shot 85's found themselves in the third flight.

Alaskan Pilot Drowns
SEATTLE, July 9 (AP)—Drown- ing of Capt. John G. Nord, widely- known Alaska steamship master and pilot nearaines, Alaska, Satur- day night, was announced here today by the Alaska Steamship Co.

The company said Nord was a passenger in an automobile which plunged into a river.

Salmo Trounces Rossland 13 to 1 in Senior Ball
SALMO, B. C., July 9 — Rossland made a game bid to win a West Kootenay Senior baseball game Sunday afternoon, but after hold- ing the home club to a 2-1 score after five innings, blew up to lose a 13-1 decision.

"Rusty" Wynn, chunky first base- man of the visitors, suffered a cracked bone in his left hand in the fifth and was forced to retire from the game. Bill Hartnett replaced him on first.

Ted Clever pitched steady ball for Salmo. The win entrenched Salmo more soundly than ever in first place with five wins in as many starts. Bert Gibson was on the mound for Rossland.

George Petruska, regular Rossland catcher, was unable to play on ac- count of a split finger, and Duke Scodellaro took his place behind the bat.

Nelson Smashes Out 8-3 Victory Over Trail Cardinals in League Baseball
Homesters Shell Ewing for 16 Hits and 26 Bases; Card's First League Loss to Nelson

Nelson's swatmen trounced into action at the Recreation grounds Sunday afternoon to sweep over the visiting Trail Cardinals by an 8-3 score. They smashed out 16 sat- isfies, seven of them being extra- base hits, it was the first decision the Nelson club gained over the Cards in three league starts. The victory cut Cardinal's lead over Nelson for second place to half a game.

Beatty Guthrie, making his first appearance on the mound before local fans, didn't hurl spectacularly, but pitched good enough ball to win with his mates hitting solidly behind him. Vic Howard, who was expected to go to the hill, was called out of town. Guthrie hurt his pitching hand early in the game, and got into trouble in every in- ning but the last two, when only one man got on base. He was aided by a swim kick engineered by Tom McInnes with the help of Doc Chodoroff at first.

LOTS OF HITS
Base hits rained off the Nelson bats. Jesse Seaby hit a perfect three for three and sacrificed once in four trips to the plate to raise his batting average for the season to an even .300. Chodoroff, Alles, Rich- ardson and McInnes each slashed out triples, and Richardson, Seaby and Gelling hit two baggers.

The Blesky brothers, Julie and Andy, smacked doubles over the fence for the visitors.

Failure to bring home men on the bases was the downfall of the Cards. They got plenty of men on, but left 12 of them there. Twice men were nipped at the plate trying to score on close plays.

Ernie Beland, Nelson shortstop, was twice knocked flying as he lagged out runners on attempted steals, but hung in with the ball on both occasions. The second time, in the fifth frame, he received a bruised left eye and bled from the nose after Simpson crashed into him.

FIVE NELSON ERRORS
Nelson committed five errors but none of them were of a serious nature, from a fielding standpoint, the Cards presented an airtight de- fence.

Nelson crowded all but one of its eight runs in three successive in- nings, the third, fourth and fifth. The big fourth, in which the homesters scored four runs, practically decided the game, giving them a temporary 6-0 lead. Two triples, a double and two singles by the first six men to face Ewing in the fourth had Coach Louie Demore worried. He had Wolfe warming up for re- lief duty but didn't have to use him as Ewing tightened up.

But Demore wasn't the only coach who began to waver. As early as the fifth and several times sub- sequently Jake Alles instructed Steve Smith to warm up.

Trail Catholics Go Down Twice to Nelson, Softball
Nelson Catholic softball teams made a clean sweep over Trail Cath- olic teams at the Recreation grounds Sunday, the girls winning 15-2 and the men staging a sensa- tional finish to win 12-11 in 10 in- nings.

At the end of the sixth the Trail men were ahead 11-2 but a seven- run spurge in the seventh paved the way for the home Catholics to tie it up and go on to win.

Nelson Smashes Out 8-3 Victory Over Trail Cardinals in League Baseball
Homesters Shell Ewing for 16 Hits and 26 Bases; Card's First League Loss to Nelson

Nelson's swatmen trounced into action at the Recreation grounds Sunday afternoon to sweep over the visiting Trail Cardinals by an 8-3 score. They smashed out 16 sat- isfies, seven of them being extra- base hits, it was the first decision the Nelson club gained over the Cards in three league starts. The victory cut Cardinal's lead over Nelson for second place to half a game.

Beatty Guthrie, making his first appearance on the mound before local fans, didn't hurl spectacularly, but pitched good enough ball to win with his mates hitting solidly behind him. Vic Howard, who was expected to go to the hill, was called out of town. Guthrie hurt his pitching hand early in the game, and got into trouble in every in- ning but the last two, when only one man got on base. He was aided by a swim kick engineered by Tom McInnes with the help of Doc Chodoroff at first.

LOTS OF HITS
Base hits rained off the Nelson bats. Jesse Seaby hit a perfect three for three and sacrificed once in four trips to the plate to raise his batting average for the season to an even .300. Chodoroff, Alles, Rich- ardson and McInnes each slashed out triples, and Richardson, Seaby and Gelling hit two baggers.

The Blesky brothers, Julie and Andy, smacked doubles over the fence for the visitors.

Failure to bring home men on the bases was the downfall of the Cards. They got plenty of men on, but left 12 of them there. Twice men were nipped at the plate trying to score on close plays.

Business, Industrial Economy's Directly Related to Well-Being of Farmer Squires Tells Trail Board

Solution Country's Problems Is Dependent Upon Farmer's Situation; Farming Is Basic Industry.

Problems of agriculture and the relation of agriculture to industry were outlined by C. S. Squires of Robson in an address to the Trail board of trade in which he urged industrial and business leaders to study the problem of agriculture from the viewpoint of their own well-being. The farmers' problem, he said, an economic problem which must be solved if the country was to come out of its slough.

The address, in part, follows: Interest is developing on the part of industry and the public in general in agriculture. It is an encouraging sign that this interest is developing from the sentimental or sympathetic to the economic, and that our boards of trading manufacturers' associations and other industrial organizations are beginning to realize that cooperation with, rather than adverse criticism of, agricultural organization is necessary for the solution of our economic problems. This fact has been fully realized by many of our industrial leaders for a considerable time.

AGRICULTURE BECOMES BASIC INDUSTRY

Agriculture has developed from a mode of life to what is termed a basic industry, and those engaged in that industry are known as primary producers. What then are basic industries? Are they not those that are necessary for the life and welfare of mankind, and for the development of other industries? As such agriculture surely occupies a predominant place in the economic life of the world. It is unfortunate that some of these products are becoming increasingly important in the militant life, and it is also remarkable that probably the most valuable from an exchange point of view is of least importance from a utilitarian standpoint. For gold there is an unlimited demand at a fixed price, but the price of wheat has, in my estimate, more important bearing on the economic life of the nation than has the price of gold. If all the gold in the world were suddenly to vanish it would doubtless cause a considerable disturbance, but if all the wheat suddenly disappeared that surely would be a major calamity. Here then is the fundamental difference between agriculture and other basic industries, in that the products of the former are essential to the maintenance of life as well as the development of other industries.

WHEAT IS BASIC COMMODITY

Wheat is the basic commodity of the basic industry of agriculture, for not only is it necessary for the life and welfare of humanity, but in a large degree it establishes the value of all other agricultural commodities. In Canada it is largely responsible for the development of our extensive transportation systems, our Consolidated fertilizer industry and our British Columbia fruit industry, to mention only a few of the industries whose development it has influenced. Wheat with its products, representing as it does approximately 50 per cent of the export trade of the Dominion, is a dominating factor not only in the commercial life of the three prairie provinces, but of the whole Dominion. That wheat is recognized not only as a national but as an international problem I think that all will agree. Notwithstanding the fact that the lowest wheat prices in four hundred years were recorded in 1932-33, according to records compiled by the United States department of agriculture, the price has dropped to 38 1/2 cents, delivered at Fort William, the surplus that was responsible for these prices was needed and disposed of by the end of the 1937 crop year, when 205,751,476 bushels were exported at an average of $1.03 per bushel.

The fact that 205,751,476 bushels in the 1937 crop year brought approximately $212,000,000 whereas 443,061,000 bushels in 1932, or more than twice the quantity, brought only $187,700,000, and that the surplus had disappeared at the end of the 1937 crop year, would seem to offer sufficient reason for some government stabilizing influence. As stated by John I. McFarland, who under the policy adopted by the Bennett government saved the Canadian wheat grower and the government many millions of dollars through his refusal to be stampeded, "No surplus producing country can afford to discontinue Governmental mediation."

COMPETITION BRINGS INCREASING COSTS

We are told that 42 per cent of our population is directly dependent on agriculture, irrespective of the processing and packing operations which are complementary to the industry. Nearly every article you see in a grocery store today, is a product of the soil, some in their natural state, and others processed and dressed up in fancy packages to engage the interest of the consumer.

Keen competition, not only in our domestic but also in foreign products, is continually increasing the cost of distribution through advertising and special services that are necessary, and demanded. In the advertising of a well-known farm product we are continually hearing about contented cows, but unfortunately, contentment on our Canadian farms seems to be pretty well limited to the beasts of the field. Why is this the case? We are told that wheat represents but 14 per cent of the value of a loaf of bread. Of the contents of a package of breakfast food, or a can of fruit or vegetables, the primary producer receives an even smaller share. Out of every dollar that the consumer paid for a box of apples on the prairie during the past season, the producer has received around 20 cents, and it took from four to five bushels of wheat to pay for that box of apples. Out of every dollar paid over the counter, an average of about 85 cents is absorbed in the payment of human services. The share the farmer receives of the consumer's dollar is too small.

Production in industry is based on a large demand at a price that will cover the cost of material, labor, distribution, interest on investment and a margin of profit, and only where a fair and reasonable balance is maintained as between all these factors can an industry be truly stated to be successful or prosperous. When asked which was the most important factor in industry, labor, capital or brains, Andrew Carnegie inquired, "Which is the most important leg of a three-legged stool?"

FARMER GETS SMALL RETURN FOR HIS LABOR

The farmer, as an independent manufacturer, which he surely is, may be putting all three of these so-called requisites into his operations, but through his lack of organization and his failure or inability to secure a fair and equitable distribution, receives little or nothing for his labor; often loses his capital, certainly receiving no interest on it under present conditions; and well-nigh loses his reason.

Concerning control of production, I would like to read you a little verse which I ran across a few days ago, to which I have added another line, the fourth, so that the verse now reads as follows:

"Still once again to plow and sow
We gallantly advance,
But whether we shall reap or mow,
Or what we wet for what may grow
Is but a gambler's chance."

While it is quite impossible to take the gamble out of agricultural production, we are endeavoring in so far as possible to remove the gamble from the price we receive for the commodities we produce. I think that it is an admitted fact that the costs of human services represent from 60 to as high as 85 per cent of the costs of production and distribution. How then do the wages of the primary producer compare with those paid in other industries? Labor in industry, through powerful trade and labor organizations and government minimum wage acts and regulations, is able to secure an increasing remuneration for services rendered. An increase of six million dollars in C. N. R. wage costs during the past year is explained as being due to union pressure. It is reported that the minimum wage of carpenters in this district is to be set at 75 cents per hour. C. W. Peterson, editor of Farm and Ranch Review, in the May number of that magazine, estimates that 50 per cent of the reward for labor expended, is the equivalent of approximately 20 cents per hour for carpenters and bricklayers and 475 per cent for railway engine drivers.

In giving evidence before the Senate railway committee, J. L. MacDougall, assistant professor of commerce at Queen's university, pointed out that the power of railway unions has so bound the railway to wage regulations that rates of pay and working conditions no longer bore any relation to the ability of the roads to carry them. In the senior branches of road service, locomotive engineers today were getting more than $4000 per year for working 15 days a month. In the lower wage classes, unreasonable regulations had forced widespread lay off of labor—so widespread that there are enough unemployed railway men in Canada to run the whole service.

storage, milling and distribution costs, the balance if any after all these fixed charges are taken care of, going to the grower. Do not lose sight of the fact that we are marketing an extremely perishable commodity, which must be standardized, stored, and over 50 per cent exported in an orderly manner if our markets are not to be demoralized. Of a total of approximately 5,750,000 boxes of apples, 2,850,000 boxes were exported during the past season. In order to regulate the flow, cold storage facilities for 1,833,813 have been provided, representing an investment of approximately $950,000. This, of course, does not include packing houses and equipment.

UNIFY, CONSOLIDATE CONTROL OF PRODUCT

Once the product is out of the hands of the farmer, it must bear the fixed charges of handling and distribution, his income being what may be left after those charges are taken care of, and not based by any means on his cost of production. Surely the reasonable thing to do then, is to unify and consolidate the control of the product in the hands of the producer to the fullest possible extent, and as far as possible on the road to the consumer.

Until the income of the agricultural producer is brought more nearly into line with that of other industries, producers to give him an opportunity to purchase some of the goods and services of which he stands in such dire need, I can see no hope for a general betterment of economic conditions. I can see no other solution for our unemployment problem than by putting purchasing power into the hands of the farmer, or in other words, by putting him on an equitable and reasonable trading basis. The only possible way in which the farmer's cost of production can be lowered, is by the lowering of the price of the goods he buys and services he must employ.

We have in this province our minimum wage and hours of work legislation, the object of which is to secure for labor a just and fair return for services rendered, and I submit that our marketing legislation is no more coercive or undemocratic than our minimum wage legislation, its object being to secure for the farmer a just and fair return for his services. While time will not permit me to go fully into all the circumstances leading up to the enactment of our marketing legislation, I would like to clear up a few points concerning which there seems to be a great deal of misunderstanding and misinformation.

DEMOCRATIC METHOD TO OBTAIN CONTROL

1. Commodities can only be brought under the operation of the act by a majority vote of the producers concerned.

2. When the producers of a certain commodity signify their desire to operate under the act, the scheme under which they propose to operate must be approved by the whole body of the scheme administered by a board elected by the producers concerned, and all expenses of that board and in connection with the carrying out of the scheme are borne by the producers.

I might mention that our B. C. marketing legislation has been upheld on an appeal to the Privy Council, and that the provinces of Alberta and Manitoba have recently passed similar legislation.

In discussing this matter with a friend a short time ago, he offered the opinion that there were too many of these boards, and that more attention should be given to the rights of the consumer. Who is this consumer whose rights have been neglected? In my opinion it is the farmer who represents 42 per cent of our population and is engaged in providing food not only for the people of Canada, but for the nations as well; an employment for a large number of people who process, transport and distribute his products. Surely, through his bitter and discouraging experiences, he should be in the best position to solve his problems, and in their solution receive the cooperation and moral support of other branches of commerce and industry.

FARMER WANTS TO PAY HIS DEBTS

The farmer wants to be in a position to pay his just debts and meet his obligations. He wants to be in a position to provide necessary medical and dental services for his family. He wants to be in a position to buy paint and plumbing, lumber and light, furniture and fixtures, and decent clothes for his family, and something in the way of clothing besides overalls for himself. He does not like to work 12 hours to 14 hours a day any more than the urban dweller, and would like to be able to employ more help in his farm operations. He might even like to take his family to a show or for a trip once in a while. Does this mean anything to you gentlemen from an economic standpoint? I would like you to regard it in that manner, rather than from the sentimental or sympathetic point of view.

I believe that we should all try to realize the direction in which our laissez-faire policies are leading us as a nation, and should give our moral support and whole-hearted cooperation to any honorable course of action that will tend to lessen the burden of debt which we are incurring, and which will help us to escape national insolvency, we must each and every one of us realize and accept our responsibility.

CARLISTS, FALANGISTS CLASH, ONE DEATH

HENDAYE, France, July 9 (AP) — Border reports Saturday said an increasing number of clashes between Carlists and Falangists in the predominantly Carlist province of Guipuzcoa and Navarra brought police and troop reinforcements from the two northern areas from central Spain.

At least one death was reported as having resulted from the clashes. A Falangist sergeant was killed in a running battle on the highway between Hendaye and Bayonne, and a Carlist soldier was killed and a Carlist civil war veteran.

ASK AMATEUR INVENTOR LIFE-SAVING DEVICE

LONDON, July 9 (CP)—The admiralty has invited an amateur inventor, Frank Taylor of Fife, Scotland, to submit plans for a submarine life-saving device he has conceived.

Taylor said several years ago the admiralty turned down the same plans because his life-saving chamber, which would be attached to the outside of submarines, would take up too much room. Recent overseas disasters have revived interest in the invention.

FILM MAN'S DAUGHTER GOES TO JAIL

LOS ANGELES, July 9 (AP) — Calling her a "spoiled child," Municipal Judge Byron Walters sentenced Arlyne Sherman, 22, the daughter of Harry Sherman, film producer, to serve six months in jail.

Miss Sherman pleaded guilty on Feb. 8 to charges of driving without a license and other traffic violations. She was fined $250, which she paid, and as a condition of probation was instructed to have a psychiatrist examine her.

Tearfully she told the court her mother, Mrs. Lillian Sherman, divorced from the film producer, is travelling in the east and her father refused to advance her the $50 examination fee.

Miss Sherman's lawyer filed notice of appeal, but she went to jail.

She's worked since her marriage, saved, a neat bank account with the expectation of retiring from business, having a family, settling down to enjoy life as wife and mother. All the while her husband has been soldiering in his job, taking more and more time off to play golf and see others play baseball or football. He's changed jobs, wasted his money, got in debt and now has taken to drink.

Ten years she's worked, kept house, been a good wife, kept up the hope that one day she would pull down the office desk, go home, have a baby and live as her friends are living, a happy and contented woman with husband and children. Then, one year, and she's not only failed to gain ground, she's lost ground; her high hopes are laid low.

Should she leave the husband, she asks, keep her own egg, add to it and make a new life for herself or shall she take her savings to pay her husband out of debt, give up her dreams of a normal life and devote herself to putting that husband back on his feet? What would you advise her to do reader, bearing in mind that she loves her husband and feels a vast pity for him?

Too late to let her that she should have pulled down that office desk when she first saw signs of the husband's weakening. Too late to tell her that she might have made

Suspicious Be Careful Not to Teach Child How to Tell Lies

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Many conscientious parents train their children to untruthfulness. When we suspect that our child has done something wrong, we are likely to ask him about it at once; we want to make sure he is always punished for the wrong he does.

Of course, many convict him in this particular instance and administer "appropriate pain." But our success this time is almost sure to mean our failure in the future. Besides, the child almost certainly has had training in falsehood and has lost his respect for us.

After we have cornered the child once or twice, we become intoxicated by our skill, we find detecting his ventures fascinating. We may become a bully then. "You can't lie to me and get away with it!" is a favorite expression of the parent who becomes this kind of bully. "I always know when you are telling me the truth." Self-righteous, silly parents sometimes actually believe themselves when they do so.

"What fool they are!" their children think of them. No one can always catch a child who has learned to lie. The more often he is caught the more often he escapes; and his escapes mount faster than his failures.

Salmo Enthroned as New Queen

Enthroned during the Knights of Pythias celebration, Miss Sara Hamberg is the reigning queen at Salmo. She received her golden crown from Mrs. Russell Binning, Salmo's first Dominion day queen, who acted in the absence of last year's queen, Mrs. Jens Erickson of Sheep Creek. The latter was on her honeymoon.

Takes Spotlight in Reich Society as the Fuehrer Gives Grand Parties

BERLIN (CP). — Frau Emmy Goering, wife of Germany's No. 2 Nazi, Field Marshal Herman Goering, has climbed to a notch above her husband. She has emerged as Germany's No. 1 woman — the first hostess of the Reich.

Chancellor Hitler is using the 40-year-old former actress more and more as his official hostess. She was particularly in the spotlight recently during the state visit of Prince Regent Paul of Jugoslavia and Princes Olga, Standing beside the bachelor chancellor, Frau Goering received the guests at the state banquet.

At numerous other recent functions she has acted in the same capacity, and her success in the role seems to have solved Hitler's social problems to a great extent.

Frau Goering's rise in prominence is said in Nazi circles to have strengthened her husband's position and her example is pointed to as proof of the great asset a wife can be even to one so high in official circles. This is well in line with the Nazi creed that all Germans should marry to raise sons and daughters for the Reich. The former actress is mother of a year-old daughter.

The Reich is having "coming out parties." Many of them are politics — state visits with an eye to "selling" Germany to some foreign chief of state.

The Fuehrer believes he is providing Germany with talking points the old Germany lacked. Expensive parties are impressive and worth what they cost in the Nazi view. That is why Bellevue Castle, in the heart of Berlin, has been fitted out for the use of Hitler's guests.

The world thinks of the 50-year-old chancellor as being at home only when haranguing a cheering crowd. But he is equally at home when receiving. He likes it. His view that they cost in the Nazi view. That is why Bellevue Castle, in the heart of Berlin, has been fitted out for the use of Hitler's guests.

Hitler frequently upsets protocol — thus driving his foreign office experts to despair — by demanding that such and such a lady be seated beside him, regardless of rank.

WINGS OF YOUTH

By HELEN WELSHIMER

SYNOPSIS
 SARAH ANNE MELTON, minister's daughter and close friend of JUDITH DRAKE, daughter of luxury, who had a childhood romance with JACK COURTNEY, who attains sudden fame by flying the Pacific. BOB KENNEDY, close friend of Jack's receiving a broken leg in a crash at the airport.

CHAPTER 9
 It was Judith who had driven past the hospital, and her wide brown-gold eyes had seen the two who came down the broad, white steps together. She stepped on the gas, let the speedometer mount to 70, 75, 80. She wanted to get away from herself. Not in the sky tonight. Jack was up there, would be there always for her now.

So she raced down the night and her thoughts would not stay behind. So much had happened today, and yet—nothing, nothing at all. That was the irony of life. Why couldn't a bugle blow or a curtain fall when something ended or something began? Why did events sud-

Formulas . . . Choosing Milk for the Baby

By LOGAN CLENDENING M.D.

In discussing the artificial feeding of babies, we have recommended the use of boiled milk. In the summer, certainly, for most people, this is the safest plan.

Other forms of milk are, however, available and can be recommended. Sterilized milk, of course, represents in those communities where it can be obtained the very highest standard of raw milk, both from the standpoint of cleanliness and nutritive value.

Evaporated milk (not to be confused with condensed) is an excellent, clean form of milk. It is purchased in cans, is made by driving off the water from good whole milk by heat until it is reduced about half. All that is necessary is to restore the moisture by adding an equal amount of boiled water to the evaporated milk. Some forms of dried milk are equally good and are more easily digested than whole milk.

ON ANY MIXTURE
 Most infants will thrive on nearly any mixture provided some sensible plan is followed in its preparation.

FAVORITE SPORT

A favorite indoor sport of parents and teachers is to make the child confess when all the facts are in, to make him "fess up" when they absolutely know that he is "guilty." What causes parents to torment the child so? The same thing that makes a cat torment a slowly-dying mouse. It gives us joy to catch the child, to get him in the corner, to kick him when he's down; we like to see him suffer. Our power over him exalts our sense of self-importance. Somewhere in us there also lurks the notion that to make the child confess will clear his soul of sin. But forced confession is of no avail for good; it only makes the child despise the tyrant who applies the force.

No parent can afford to play detective. We cannot be a sneak and a comrade, too. We must choose to be the one or the other. The danger is that unawares we shall be a sneak. We surely shall unless we are on our guard.

TRAINING THEM
 If we would not train our children to lie, then we must not ask them to testify against themselves; and when they volunteer evidence which seems to warrant punishment, we shall not administer it.

On the other hand, we shall not make the mistake of saying, "If you always tell the truth, I shall not punish you." The suggestion is unwholesome. It implies that the child lies sometimes. It may also prove for him a kind of insurance against pain no matter what he does; for he is free to do all sorts of wrongs if he reports them soon enough.

If you suspect that your child has done something culpable, but do not have objective evidence, do not ask him about the suspected wrong; if you have the evidence, do not ask. Whether you know or do not know the facts, avoid asking him about them.

Serenity . . . Glasses Need Not Be 'Unglamorous'

By DONNA GRACE

Beautiful faces are serene and poised. The comfort of the feet and body in properly fitted shoes and clothing, and especially the comfort of the eyes, is reflected in the face. There is nothing "unglamorous" about wearing glasses. The girl or woman in need of them attains a warming composure and assurance when wearing them.

According to a noted optician who has made an extensive study of the correction and prevention of eye trouble, the care of the eyes can't begin too early in life.

Avoidance of strain, correct diet and cleanliness must all be taken into consideration. It is often possible for a child who wears glasses in early years to discard them in later life. Many disturbing symptoms in one's physical condition may be laid to some defect in the sight, and a yearly examination of the eyes is a good investment, even though the sight may be tested and found perfect.

Modern opticians are adept at fitting glasses that will conform with the contours of the face. Both the coloring and features are taken into consideration.

Contrary to the belief of many, eye makeup should be included when glasses are worn. The brows should be smooth and definite, and the lashes will be improved with a deft application of mascara. When renewing your makeup, be sure to include the upper part of the cheek just under the eye.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

I. C.: "I am allergic to wheat, and have had wheat out of my diet all my life. Since reading of your recent column on the importance of vitamin B in the diet, I am positive that I am badly in need of the administration of that vitamin which is found mostly in wheat. Will you please tell me in what way this can be administered to get quickest and best results?"

Answer: Use crystalline Vitamin B tablets (thiamin chloride).

fill with layers of asparagus and egg, cover all with jelly and cool. Unmold on lettuce.

CHOCOLATE ICE BOX CAKE
 Four squares unsweetened chocolate, one-fourth cup sugar, dash of salt, one-fourth cup hot water, one tablespoon cold water, teaspoon of granulated gelatin, four egg yolks, teaspoon vanilla, four stiffly beaten egg whites, one half cup cream, whipped and 38 lady fingers.

Melt chocolate in top of double boiler. Add sugar, salt and hot water, stirring until sugar is dissolved and mixture blended. Add cold water to gelatin and mix. Add to hot chocolate mixture, and stir until gelatin is dissolved, then cook until mixture is smooth and well thickened.

Remove from boiling water, add egg yolks, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each. Place over boiling water and cook two minutes, stirring constantly. Add vanilla; cool. Fold in egg whites. Chill. Fold in whipped cream.

Line sides and bottom of mold with waxed paper. Arrange lady fingers on bottom and sides of the mold. Add thin layer of chocolate mixture, then arrange lady fingers and chocolate mixture in alternate layers, topping with the chocolate mixture. Cut off lady fingers around sides of mold and arrange cut pieces on chocolate mixture. Chill 12 to 24 hours in refrigerator. If a still richer mixture is desired, add one-half cup finely cut walnut meats to chocolate mixture before turning into mold. Recipe serves 12.

"SOMETHING DIFFERENT"
 Coffee Caramel Ice Cream offers that sought-after "something different" in the ice cream department. It is made with two-thirds cup sweetened condensed (not evaporated) milk, caramelized; also one-half cup double strength coffee, one and one-half teaspoons vanilla and one cup heavy cream.

Immerse can of sweetened condensed milk in pan of water and boil three hours. Cool and measure. Add hot coffee and vanilla. Blend, using rotary beater or electric mixer. Chill. Fold in the whipped cream.

Pour into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator and freeze it quickly until firm. Remove to a chilled bowl and beat until light and smooth. Return immediately to refrigerator and finish the freezing. Serves eight.

ORANGE JUICE COOKIES
 This recipe is made with two and one-half cups flour, one-half teaspoon baking soda, one-fourth teaspoon salt, three-fourths cup shortening, one cup sugar, two eggs, one cup shredded coconut, three-fourths cup orange juice.

Sift flour three times with baking soda and salt. Cream shortening until light. Add sugar gradually, beating after each addition. Slowly add the eggs, beaten stiff. Add dry ingredients alternately with orange juice, beating after each addition until smooth. Add ungreased baking sheets. Sprinkle with additional coconut if desired. Bake in 400 degree F. oven 10 to 12 minutes.

denly hake shape from the fog or mist?

It had happened that morning, when Jack came to meet her for lunch. His face was jubilant and he strode on his own clouds. Because he must confide in someone he had taken her hands and held them as he said: "I'm to manage the airport! And we're starting the school!" He broke off ruefully. "It's every fellow's dream, but I let myself go into a taintain of double whoopee. You're a girl, you may not see it."

She interrupted, indignant, then. "I do see it! Don't I fly? And now—oh, now, you won't be going away!" She hadn't meant to sound so reverent, so grateful, so adoring. Hadn't realized that she had until he looked at her quizzically.

"You're glad?"

"More glad than I have any right to be!" That was meant to be said with laughter, but the laughter didn't come. So the words stood out, clear and distinct, as though a sky-writer had inscribed them.

The tall young man looked at her seriously, questioningly. Then his voice became coolly impersonal, as though it did not know how to respond. "Shall we hunt a palce for lunch?"

Lunch had been a quiet meal in a large restaurant. Their were people everywhere, but no one talked much. Judy and Jack might have been any two people at a table for two. A boss and his secretary. A brother and a sister. A husband and a wife who couldn't see the need of saying anything. Certainly the waiter think that the girl had told the boy she cared for him more than she should. At least, so Judy thought, as her car leaped down the miles.

Jack had been busy all afternoon, going over charts and maps and contracts. She had idled the time away at a movie, looking into shop windows, wishing it was time to leave. Then, when Jack met her, he shook his head.

"One more matter to take up. The conference is called for eight. It's a good night and the trip's short. Can't we wait over?"

In the afternoon's excitement she thought her admission had faded from his mind. She was relieved and began to talk and laugh again. After all, couldn't he think he had misunderstood?

So they had next to dinner, at a small, dusky restaurant, this time where blue candles burned low on tables covered with yellow cloths, and there were booths, discreetly hidden from the other diners. Even now Judy didn't know how the subject had come up, why it had been necessary to mention Sarah Anne's name.

But after a while she couldn't misunderstand that baffled, young hurt look in Jack's eyes. Even his words didn't surprise her.

"Judy, you're one of the two sweetest girls I know."

"Thanks. How could she say that?" "And you're the sweetest man I know."

That had been the beginning, and pretty soon Jack was saying, "How did this happen, Judy? Where did it begin? Why, I love Sarah Anne. In the back of my mind I've always intended to marry her. I can't think of life without her."

"But when I heard your voice on the telephone that night, that voice that was deeper than most girls' voices, with music in its depths. He remembered the wild impulse to see the girl who possessed it.

"Maybe we are being sentimental," Judy said, and tried to smile. "After all, 24 hours ago you didn't know me!"

"Some things come quickly. Sometimes one is sure . . ." He broke off miserably. "Judy," he cried fiercely, "believe me when I say I love Sarah Anne!"

Looking into the anguish in his eyes, she nodded softly. "Of course you do. And so do I. Finish your coffee and let's go buy her a present."

Judy put her hand on a package on the seat beside her. It was the choker and bracelet she had bought for Sarah Anne. They were made of a dozen strands of crisp, her beads woven together and would go with the silly, adorable linen frock which made the minister's daughter look as though she were going to a party, and couldn't ever have been worn by Judith.

She was remembering how quiet she and Jack had been on the home-ward flight, and how steady and grave his eyes had been when he helped her from the plane.

"If it helps any — though what good a roving flyer's opinion is, I don't know—I think you're glorious, Judy."

His words were safe. But his eyes and the touch of his hand on her arm took them and made them perilous.

Anyway, she must forget. How could anything which had happened in the span of a clock remain always? Maybe she needed some sleep.

But during the week that followed Judith seldom went any place where Sarah Anne was likely to be. At first Sarah Anne thought the other girl was busy. Then she began to wonder. But she was too occupied to think about it much. School ended. She went often to talk to Bob Kennedy.

The Sunday school picnic was being held and she had to count out glasses, plates and cups for the janitor to send out to the picnic grounds. And on top of that, Miss Sarah and Miss Anne Motte came to town.

Miss Sarah was tall and angular and her face was rugged.

"Something like Abraham Lincoln's twin sister would have looked like if he had one," Corrine once said.

Miss Anne was big and heavy and her round eyes beamed in her round face. They had been the best paying members in the church for which Reverend Melton was preaching at the time of his first child's birth.

water should be given by mouth. Gas and colic. Gas occurs in both breast and bottle-fed infants, and is usually due to air swallowed during feeding. The best treatment is to hold the baby well up on your left shoulder and pat it gently on the back until the swallowed air comes up. This is also the best treatment for regurgitation. Sometimes there is enough fermentation in the intestines to cause an attack of colic. The babies scream with pain and become red in face and body. A tepid soapsud enema usually results in the passage of the gas with consequent relief.

W. McKay of Ymir, Miss Matheson of Silverton, Wed

SILVERTON, B. C.—A quiet wedding took place at the home of Mrs. W. Hunter Thursday morning, when Hughena Margaret, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Matheson of Silverton, became the bride of William McKay of Ymir, second son of Daniel McKay of Ymir.

Rev. F. Browne of New Denver performed the ceremony.

Daniel McKay was best man while small sisters of the groom were bridesmaids.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a becoming gossamer frock of queen's blue. A lovely white veiled hat with shoes and gloves in tone completed her attire. She carried a bouquet of roses in several tones of pink from which hung a shower of satin ribbon streamers.

The bridesmaids wore dainty blue taffeta frocks. Later the wedding breakfast was held at the home of Mrs. W. Hunter, where the bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake, topped with a silver bell. Various flowers completed the table decorations. Only immediate relatives of the bridal couple were present.

Later Mr. and Mrs. McKay left on a honeymoon trip to Spokane and other points and on their return they will reside at Ymir. For traveling the bride was attractively attired in a blue taffeta embroidered frock, smart blue topper and accessories all in white.

NELSON SOCIAL

By MRS. M. J. VIGNUEUX

With its reasonable decorations of Canterbury bells, carnations and roses, the front hall of the Canadian Legion presented a gay scene Friday night for the social evening honoring Mrs. Duncan A. McLean on the occasion of her twentieth anniversary in the Kinney lodge Ladies auxiliary of the B. O. E. T. The affair was under the supervision of Mrs. Percy Jeffery and Mrs. J. C. Bellamy, while Mr. Jeffery was master of ceremonies. Mrs. F. E. Laine, Mrs. W. Percival and Mrs. H. J. McLean were in charge of the banquet arrangements. Mrs. A. D. Oliver, Mrs. D. D. McLean and Mrs. David Laughton composed the committee in charge of out of town guests. Pleasant features of the evening were the presentation to the honor guest by Mrs. W. V. Ryckman of Trail of the Auxiliary jewel pin, a corsage of roses by Mrs. David Laughton, and from Queen Alexandria lodge, Cranbrook, a handsome handbag. At the conclusion of the banquet, a huge birthday cake illuminated by 30 tapers representing the number of years of the Queen Alexandria lodge, Cranbrook, was cut by Mrs. McLean, a charter member of that lodge. Among others attending were Mrs. Ryckman and Mrs. Charles Beliner of Trail, Mr. Hugh Wood, Mrs. Harry Caldwell, Mrs. James McNeill, Mrs. C. Branch and Mrs. Robert Leonard, all of Cranbrook; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bellamy, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Robertson, Mrs. T. A. Wallace, Mrs. H. Prout, Miss Irene Laughton, Miss Grace Laughton, Mrs. Charles Sewell, Mrs. W. H. Markle, Miss Phyllis Percival, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Oliver, Mrs. T. L. Marquis, Mrs. J. T. Edwards, Mrs. D. D. McLean, Mrs. H. Stanton, Mrs. K. Higgs, Mrs. Rosa Parker, Mrs. Robert Parker, Mrs. Robert Laughton and Mrs. W. Huffy.

Mrs. O. B. Appleton of Sunshine Bay was a city visitor Saturday.

Mrs. P. Kennedy, Josephine street, has a guest, her daughter, Mrs. G. B. Russell of South Slovan visited town Saturday.

At high noon Saturday, July 1, in Vancouver, the wedding in St. Raphael's church of Mabel Elizabeth (Thea), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Latta of Nelson, and Robert Dalby Hobson of Victoria, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Hobson of West Vancouver, took place. The ceremony was performed by Father Barney. Given in marriage by her uncle, Adam deKinder, the bride wore a frock of deep coral crepe with brief jacquette. Her hat was a matching model trimmed with navy, and she carried a bouquet of pale pink roses and blue sweet peas. Miss Evelyn E. Jenkins, who attended as bridesmaid, wore a blue crepe afternoon frock with wide trimmed leghorn hat, and carried a bouquet of blue iris, pink carnations and sweet peas. Graham Noble acted as the groomsmen. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Devonshire hotel, where guests were received by Mrs. Hobson, mother of the groom, assisted by Mrs. W. S. Jenkins. Later Mr. and Mrs. Hobson left for their honeymoon. The bride's former home, for travelling the bride changed to a mauve frock with white accessories. On returning they will reside in Victoria.

R. Kirby of Trail is spending a few days in the city.

J. Y. McCarter of Vancouver was a weekend visitor in town.

ROBSON FARMERS Will Aid Purchase Park Lots by W.I.

ROBSON, B. C.—The Robson Farmers' Institute held a general meeting in the Robson hall July 4, with O. B. Ballard in the chair.

J. T. Webster, the Robson Farmers' institute delegate to the annual convention held in Robson, gave his report, saying that the resolutions from the Robson institute were carried, and gave a brief outline of the day's activities. The convention was well attended by institute members as well as the board of trade members from both Nelson and Trail.

After the report a vote of thanks was given to the entertainment committee for the work they did to make the convention a success. Also the letter of thanks from the Nelson board of trade was read.

A letter from the Robson Women's institute regarding the feasibility of purchasing a park for the local people was read, and an invitation inviting a delegation from the Women's institute to this meeting to discuss it with the farmers. The directors, Mrs. Duncan Carter, Mrs. R. T. Waldie, Mrs. W. R. Campbell, Mrs. R. H. Foxlee, and Mrs. C. F. Duplat, attended, and after considering the project it was decided to buy two lots with a good beach, cost of which will be $224. A committee from the Farmers' institute was appointed to form a park board in cooperation with a similar committee from the Women's institute to raise funds for purchasing lots and oversee work to be done on the park. The committee chosen were O. B. Ballard, Duncan Carter and George Miller.

C. S. Squires gave a report of the work accomplished by the electric light committee and a vote of thanks was accorded them.

The telephone committee report was given by Mr. Squires, stating that Mr. Fisher had been in the valley and marked the location of subscribers and an effort was being made to improve the service.

Abeys, Mrs. S. A. Hunter, and Mrs. Ronald Hewat.

Mrs. Rouleau, the secretary, gave the monthly report and the treasurer, Mrs. Papworth, gave the financial report, both being satisfactory.

Mrs. Helme, chairman of the house committee, gave the list of hospital needs for the current month and with her purchasing partner, Mrs. Hendricks, was given authority to make the required purchases.

The fine report of the Sunshine secretary was read by the president in the absence of Mrs. George Morton. Representatives of the various local women's organizations also gave good reports. The representative on the board of directors, Mrs. Chandler, stated that needed repairs had been made in the operating room and in the house-keepers' private room. Also that the board would purchase a bed.

After an open discussion, the ladies decided to have the kitchen repainted and other necessary work done there. Mrs. Chandler, Mrs. Helme and Mrs. Hendricks are to be the committee in charge of this work.

The Aid will sponsor a garden party to be held on the hospital grounds on the afternoon of August 5. Mrs. Chandler, Mrs. Hild and Mrs. Hendricks volunteered to do the necessary canvassing. Final arrangements will be made at the regular August meeting.

Mrs. Ronald Hewat invited the ladies to her home for the August meeting. Mrs. Papworth was accorded a vote of thanks for the use of her home and for the refreshments served after adjournment when she was assisted in serving by Mrs. Davie, Mrs. C. Dawson, Mrs. C. R. Abeys and Miss Olive Link.

BARTER DEAL HAS NOT AFFECTED CANADA

Hon. W. D. Euler, minister of trade and commerce, has expressed satisfaction that the barter deal between the United Kingdom and the United States did not include wheat. That satisfaction will be shared by all who realize what the inclusion of wheat would have meant to Canada. Obviously if Canada's best wheat customer had taken United States wheat to the extent of 100,000,000 bushels, it would have required that much less from Canada, assuming that the supply from the United States was of sufficiently high quality.

Whether or not the Canadian government's representation to the United Kingdom government were a deciding factor is a moot point. When the issue was first raised, Canadian government officials, including the minister of trade and commerce, were surprisingly coy on the subject. They even took the trouble to deny a report that strong representations had been made.

It seems probable that an appraisal of the current wheat crop of the United States showed it would be just about equivalent to domestic requirements. In other words, any export surplus was likely to consist only of old crop carry-over. Thus there was not much incentive for the United States to press for the inclusion of wheat in its barter deal.

It was pointed out at the time that if Great Britain wanted to be assured of emergency wheat supplies, Canada was in an excellent position to meet that requirement, and furthermore, that it was logical for a deal to be made with Canada, an Empire country with Empire responsibilities very directly related to the acquisition of emergency wheat supplies.

That the barter deal is definitely out so far as United States wheat is concerned may be considered satisfactory to a degree. It would be more reassuring to know that not by force of circumstances but by a recognition that the deal was wrong in the first place, the wheat transaction did not go through.

If Great Britain wants wheat and Canada, or any other country of the Empire, has a surplus available at proper competitive price levels, surely it would be only reasonable for the Empire country to get the business.

Long before the barter question was raised more or less following Germany's lead, Great Britain was stocking up on wheat and flour, to build up a reserve for the event of war—much to the benefit of Canada.

It may almost be assured that tradition will not be departed from, in this matter.

UNCLE SAM'S "G-MEN"

A rather remarkable record in crime detection has been made south of the line by the famous "G" men, or government men—the title "G" Men having been bestowed by the underworld upon the federal bureau of investigation organized and led by J. Edgar Hoover.

Since the Federal Kidnaping law was adopted in 1932 the federal bureau of investigation has handled 156 cases falling within the purview of that statute. All of these except two are recorded in its files as "closed." They are so marked, Mr. Hoover said in effect to the Junior Chamber of Commerce in Tulsa, Okla., recently, because the wrongdoers are either dead or in jail. These constitute a miscellaneous lot of rogues, including "crooked lawyers, gang doctors, money changers, finger men, fixers, harborers of criminals."

But instead of being satisfied with its 154 successes, the personnel of the bureau is evidently concentrating on the two cases that thus far have baffled it—the kidnaping and murder of the Levine boy in New Rochelle and of the Mattson boy in Tacoma, on the other side of the continent. Mr. Hoover holds the opinion that, sooner or later, the perpetration of these crimes will be caught.

It is common knowledge that Mr. Hoover has surrounded himself with a rather remarkable group of young men. Their average age at the present moment, he says, is less than 34 years. To qualify for appointment a man must be between 23 and 35 years old, graduate of a recognized law school or of a school of accountancy. If an alumnus of a law school he must have had at least two years of legal or business experience; if of a school of accountancy he must have had at least three years of practical experience. After joining the force, recruits undergo 16 weeks special training in "scientific deduction, detection and apprehension." From the beginning they are indoctrinated with the idea that no case shall be considered closed until after the wrongdoer has been brought to book.

That helps explain why the Levine and Mattson cases not only have not been marked closed, but apparently have never entered into a phase of suspended animation. In its investigation of the New Rochelle case Mr. Hoover reports that agents of the bureau have interviewed more than 8000 persons, checked up on 450 automobiles, inspected 500 premises, studied 560 anonymous and crank letters. In the Tacoma case, he says, they have interviewed no fewer than 20,000 persons. If pertinacity, backed by scientific method and indefatigable zeal, can accomplish what is sought, the day will surely come when these cases also will be marked "closed" in the accepted FBI manner.

NATURE NOTES

G. H. RICHARDSON

The porcupine is a rodent whose appearance is pretty familiar to most of us. Its heavy body, clumsy actions and formidable armament of quills make it a marked creature. As a rule so slow moving, it can and does exert itself upon occasion, and I remember one which found itself in the middle of the road in

QUILLS LOOSELY ATTACHED

An interesting point which regard to the quills is their loose attachment to the skin. Authorities state that it is their coming away at the slightest touch which gives the impression of their being thrown, since actually the porcupine is unable to throw its quills.

Porcupines are purely vegetable eaters, taking leaves as well as bark. Their fondness for salt leads them to cabins and cottages where they will chew any object of wood which contains any of his precious substance.

Another of our fair-sized mammals which although it may be fairly common is none too frequently seen, is the fox. Once while painting a landscape from the top of a lonely hill, a slight scuffling in the leaves behind me drew my front of an automobile, lumbering along for a short distance before making for the ditch. Its broad hind feet padded down at surprising pace.

In contrast to this experience, the next one observed was sound asleep in a red oak tree. So deep were its slumbers (or was it playing possum?) that sticks thrown against the trunk near it failed to arouse the slightest movement, it remaining curled up in a ball, the only noticeable distinction being its tall. But this one evidently did its work at night, for the following day it was again found asleep, this time less than a quarter of a mile from the first spot. And again no action could be induced in it.

Certainly from the point of view of really seeing the creature at work, fifteen minutes spent watching two at Riverdale zoo in Toronto were more productive. The same thing has been found true of a number of our mammals. And while it is true that the animals are not in their natural environment, observers have noted many interesting points at zoos which give a starting point for definite observation of the animals in a wild state. Many of our mammals are much more difficult to watch at close quarters than (for instance) birds, and so the student of them is grateful of every bit of help along suggestive lines which he can get, and which zoos do provide.

attention. A red fox trotted into the clearing and nosed about in full view not less than fifty feet away. The muscle action could be seen through its sleek silky fur, and its stride was remarkably graceful and easy. This one was not shy, although I turned to watch it, and it was only the sound of my voice which startled it into a leisurely lope to cover.

It is easy to understand Ernest Thompson Seton's reaction when he found the den of a fox which was preying on his chickens. In the story he wrote he says he forgot all about the chickens, enjoying the sight of the cubs playing while their mother looked on.

ADVANCE WEATHER BULLETIN

For Western and Central Canada, embracing British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario.

Mon. July 10, 1939.—Considerably cooler in nearly all sections with light rains about most of the central provinces, though fairly clear on the Pacific coast.

Tues. July 11.—Cloudy, rainy conditions drift toward the Manitoba country and southeast as weather changes to cool and clear in most of west.

Wed. July 12.—Somewhat unsettled and cloudy about the prairie provinces, but in general cool and clear nearly everywhere; on Pacific slope turns warmer.

Thur. July 13.—Generally clear and changing to warmer in most sections, though about Manitoba country some indication of clouds and light rains.

Fri. July 14.—About east Saskatchewan and the great lakes regions of Manitoba indications of cloudy conditions, but not very much rain; turns warmer.

Sat. July 15.—Cloudy, rainy conditions indicated as drifting into central regions from northwest Alberta, with temperatures rising in most parts.

Sun. July 16.—Weather rather warm, unsettled in central provinces with light clouds and some rain drifting across to Manitoba and the southwest.

Week of July 10 to 16, 1939, in central provinces begins with a short period of quite cool weather though nearly everywhere soon changing to considerably warmer with only a few light rains, coming mostly in scattering showers about central regions. Around last part of week some indication of more general rains, though probably quite unevenly distributed on account of the scattered numerous clearing spaces. For most of the central provinces about normal moisture and just at end of week turns cooler.

Around the middle of July this year the weather should be quite cool, though for a few days near the 15th a warm period, up to but not very much above normal. The rainfall about this time drops to below normal for a short time and although this is the rainy season there will probably be only scattered and showery rains much of the time. Normally this is the hottest month of the year, but his year, on account of two or three cool spells it seems probably the average temperature for the month will be somewhat below normal near July 3, 11, 18, 31, but near or above normal on 8, 15, 24. The lowest may be 59 while highest should not be up to 81.

Tells How to Bid and Play

SEPARATING YOUR FOES

DEFENDING YOUR contract, you and your partner are like a couple of allies fighting against another pair of allies, one of them the declarer and the other the dummy. If you can break the lines of communication between the declarer and dummy, you may sometimes demolish your enemies. The best way to do this, sometimes, is to try to knock out the side entry for a dangerous suit, which may be in either the declarer's own hand or that which is face up on the table.

Here was a deal which got played at 2-Spades at most tables of a duplicate tournament, the bidding generally being approximately thus: East 1-Diamond, South 3-Clubs, East 3-Diamonds, South 3-Clubs, East 3-Diamonds, South 3-Hearts, North 2-Spades and all pass.

Invariably East led the diamond K against this, ruffed in the dummy and overruled by West. Also in every case West returned a spade to the J and K, and only one East player had the vision now to lead a heart and take that crucial entry from the dummy. At one table a diamond return resulted in the contract being made, and at another the return of a spade enabled the declarer to make four-odd.

The man who returned the heart saw the trick won by the A, then a club led to the K. The returned club was won by the Q, then the spade 10 taken, followed by the heart K and Q. The club A won, but the club 10 was ruffed by West, forcing North to over-ruff with the Q. Declarer then won the spade A, but had to finish by giving up two diamond tricks, being set one trick.

The Opposition of Mars

(By W. G. C. LANSKAIL)

The planet Mars is now rapidly approaching opposition to the sun, which occurs about midnight of July 22-23. It will then be on the meridian due south, at midnight and will continue to be nearly so at the same time for many nights.

On July 27 it reaches minimum distance from the earth, a mere 36,033,000 miles, and will be in the constellation Capricornus (the Goat). The present opposition brings the planet almost to its minimum possible distance, the closest it may ever come being about 34,800,000 miles, but it will not be very favorably placed for observers in these northern latitudes, as its declination south of the equator will be about 26 degrees. It will therefore be seen by us rather low down in the southern sky. Even so, it will, on clear nights, be very much brighter than the brightest first magnitude star, and nearly as bright as the planet Venus at its best. Its color is dull red.

Mars is much smaller than the earth, being somewhat more than half the earth's diameter. Its period of revolution, relative to the sun, is 687 of our days, and this constitutes its year. It rotates on its axis in 24 hours 37 minutes, so that its days are about equal to ours.

Its revolution relative to the earth, (called the synodic period) is 780 days, so that every two years and 50 days it comes to opposition, but all oppositions are not equally favorable, the planet's orbit being highly eccentric. Every 15 or 16 years there is a very favorable opposition, about this time of year, when Mars is in that part of its orbit nearer to the sun, and also to the earth. The last highly favorable opposition was in 1924.

ARE THERE MARTIANS? At this time, when Mars is in the public eye, there is much speculation as to whether the planet may be inhabited. There can be no certainty as to this at present. It has an atmosphere, though less extensive than the earth's. Clouds pass over its surface, winter alternates with summer in its northern and southern hemispheres, the seasons being longer than ours, due to the greater revolution period. When winter approaches in the northern hemisphere of Mars, the white polar cap increases in size, spreading towards the planet's equator; similarly in the southern hemisphere when winter approaches there.

Mars, however, is farther from the sun than the earth in the proportion of 1 1/2 to 1, so that solar light and heat received by the earth is 2 1/4 times greater than that received by Mars. The changes in temperature there between day and night are also greater. If the planet, then, is inhabited, it must be by beings inured to greater cold than we experience, and extremes of temperature such as we know nothing of on earth.

It may be that many millions of years ago there was life similar in some respects to ours, and it may also be possible that the changed atmosphere has been gradual that life there has adapted itself to these changed conditions.

MARS HAS TWO MOONS

If life ever existed there, the nights must have been interesting to a high degree. Mars possesses two moons, both small, and visible only in very large telescopes. The nearer one to the planet is only about 40 miles in diameter, but it revolves in a nearly circular orbit at a distance of only about 3700 miles. Consequently it moves very fast, making a complete revolution in 7 hours and 39 minutes. Thus in the lunar month is less than one-third of the Martian day, with the curious result that it rises in the west and, 5 1/2 hours later, sets in the east. Although so small compared to our moon, it is so close to Mars that it would appear about the same size there as our moon appears to us.

The outer moon is about 14,600 miles from the planet's centre, and its period of revolution is 30 hours 18 minutes, somewhat longer than the Martian day. This involves very interesting consequences. The outer moon rises in the east and sets in the west, but its progress is so slow that it takes 66 hours to do so, which is more than 2 1/2 of the Martian days, and during that time it goes through all its phases, from new to full, twice.

If Romeo and Juliet had lived on Mars, Juliet might well have altered her admonition to Romeo thus:

"O, swear not by the moon, the inconstant moon, That nightly changes in her circled orb, Lest that thy love prove likewise variable."

WHAT THE PRESS IS SAYING

WAR SCARE NEWS Please do not run away with the idea that newspaper editors are a lot of ghouls waiting to pounce with sensational "war scare" news and turning with gusto to the delightful job of frightening readers out of their wits. They are human; but, like most of the rest of humanity, they are in business—and that business is to present their readers with a daily resume of the important happenings of the world over. They do their best to present a fair report; so, if their stories are sometimes a little biased or are sometimes attacked by "jitters" blame those who are responsible for the disturbing events, not those who report them.—Owen Sound Sun-Times.

LIKES MAX

In any case it is a perfectly clear thing that, with the addition of Max Baer to its rolls, the New England Knighthood takes on a new lustre. No man in our time has more sincerely or more successfully devoted himself to art and beauty than he. Behind all the wonderful attitudes he has struck, the delicate intellectual coolery and exquisite jibing, there has been a passion for perfection that is rare in any age; rarest of all perhaps in our own.—Baltimore Sun.

Jitterbugs Taboo in Germany, but They're Having a Tough Time Locating the Line of Demarcation

Perfectly in keeping with the Reich scheme of things is the famous goose step which a section of the army struts above. But jitterbugs—perish the thought! Getting swung into music and the dance like the "step cats" alongside—well, there's much too much improvisation and not enough regimentation in that!

It would appear that the nation of this latter day which aspires to shining, unblemished virtue must look sharp to draw the line between good and evil, so that it may unflinchingly cleave to one and put away the other. Such is the difficulty of Adolf Hitler's millennium, stacked out for quite a few thousand years of virtuous steeplechase, according to Herr Hitler.

"Swing Tanz Verboten" is the official sign in the dance halls, but there is confusion and contention, due to the fact that proprietors, patrons and police have no clear idea as to just what a swing dance is, or what swing music is, or just where lies the boundary across which you will hitch-kick yourself into a concentration camp or why swing should be forbidden.

SETTING BOUNDARIES The Hamburg dancing school has been drafted to lay down definite metres and bounds for the bewildered hofter, and if it can do that it will achieve something which nobody else has been able to do. The still respectable tango and fox trot shades off into swing, but I find the authorities become almost metaphysical when they try to tell you just which is one and which is the other.

The difficulty, which even now may be giving Adolf Hitler insomnia, is, I believe basic, and beyond the grasp of even such great hierophants of the Nazi priesthood as Herr Goebbels, in whose department it would seem to be. First off, swing is improvisation, and if there is one thing forever outside the German cosmos, it is that. The goose step—yes. That is machined movement which can be calibrated, clocked, set to a measured beat and geared to a mass step. The goose step is the nadir to the zenith of swing and in between lies a world of trouble for the authoritarians.

ALWAYS IMPROVISING In several of Kipling's poems, variously expressed, there is a suggestion that the poet alone can and does confound the devil. Not that we are trying to hang the Memphisian tag on Herr Hitler—there are plenty of others eager and ready to do that. We are merely noting that there is an ecstasy of abandon in swing as there is in some great poetry, and abandon is something that the hob-nailed state cannot and must not allow. Their instinct to forbid it is right, for their survival purposes if they can find out what it is, but here they come to a dead end.

In the long history of the race, there isn't an inch of progress that wasn't recorded in continuous adaptation, and if adaptation isn't improvisation, it isn't anything. There is creativeness in getting the feel of things and making them work, even by trial and error. There is sterility, finality and always a blind alley in the state which is perfect by decree. Where do we go from here? Nowhere, indeed, unless to jail for working in a random, kick or two in the "Blue Danube."

The perfectionist and the precisionist is always surprised in the long run, sometimes disappointed and sometimes elated. We can bring this closer to home. Here's a computer who 10 years ago bought himself a quaint old house to remodel. He is a methodical chap and he laid out the financing, the lawn, the garden, the shrubbery and what not, neatly and precisely. Just about then, there came the big slide, and his income was cut in two. He had to revise his plans, with makeshifts here and there and heaven knows how much juggling and contriving there was on the mortgage.

At last, he's bringing the whole thing through, standing down at the foot of the lawn in the cool of the evening, looking it over, smoking his pipe, with his thumbs in his vest, feeling pretty good.

Hope for a Good Time, Castlesgar—If a man is unemployed and his family is badly in need of dental care and medical treatment, how and where can they receive such treatment, when paying is out of the question?

It would depend entirely on personal circumstances where and how you could receive such treatment. Would advise you to write the Public Welfare department, Nelson.

H.R., Bull River—Where is the Isle of Man?

It is a small island in the Irish sea, nearly equally distant from Ireland, England and Scotland. It has an area of 227 square miles, and a population in 1931 of 50,000. The Isle of Man is not considered a part of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, but is a separate British island.

E.H., Procter—Why is the stage referred to as the legitimate stage?

It is so called in the sense of it being normal, regular, conformable to a recognized standard type. Originally the legitimate drama was that body of plays; Shakespearean or other that have a recognized theatrical and literary merit.

M.B., Nelson—At what time does the day begin?

Most modern peoples begin the day at midnight. The Babylonians began it at sunrise, the Jews and Greeks at sunset, but the Egyptians and Romans began it at midnight as we do.

G.T., Nelson—What will remove scorch stains from white linen?

Hydrogen peroxide or sodium hypochlorite.

Three Passengers on One Ticket

No wonder Captain Maurice MacGregor, of Trans-Canada Airlines, was looking perplexed when this shot was taken at Regina, Sask., airport. Here was a problem! Three passengers on one ticket! If Mrs. Albert O. Urness, of Regina, had missed the westbound plane that morning she would have had to pay for two people more than she did, for Jackie and Teddy, her twin sons, were just one day under two years of age—the "free fare for children" limit—when they left the western city for a three-month visit with their grandparents at Victoria.
