RUSSIA DENIES SHE AGREED TO NAZI MARCH

Bulgarians Might Have to Enter War Declares Premier

Speech Believed to Mean Nazi Entry Will Be Under Protest; Nazis, Communism and Fascism Will Not Be Accepted

RUSE, Bulgaria, Jan. 12 (AP).—Premier Bogdan Philoff told the Bulgarian people tonight that they might yet be brought into the war but he said he was sure they "would not forgive anybody who tried to make Bulgaria National Socialist (Nazi), Communist or Fascist."

In a speech at this frontier town, just across the Danube from Rumania (where hundreds of thousands of German soldiers are massed), the Premier avoided reference to reports abroad of German pressure on Bulgaria but said specifically that Bulgaria wants to follow her own traditions.

"National Socialism, Fascism and Communism may be good for Germany, Italy and Russia," he said. "But they cannot be transplanted to Bulgaria soil."

WILLKIE FAVORS ROOSEVELT BILL TO AID BRITAIN

With Modification It Should Be Adopted He Declares

GOING OVERSEAS

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP).—Newell Willkie announced today his personal approval "with modification" of President Roosevelt's "lend-lease" arms bill and said he would go to Great Britain as a private citizen to make a survey of the situation there.

The defeated Republican presidential candidate said: "The so-called 'lend-lease' bill now before Congress asks for an enormous grant of executive power. It is the duty of the opposition to examine every provision thoroughly."

"I have examined this bill in the light of the current emergency and I personally have come to the conclusion that with modification it should be adopted."

Willkie, emphasizing in an interview that he is going to London purely as a private citizen, said he would make the trip by Clipper, but he would leave "in the near future" and stay for two or three weeks.

During the interview, Willkie issued a 1200-word statement which, although it did not mention by name Alfred M. Landon, the 1936 Republican presidential candidate, took exception to Landon's recent statement regarding national security with the declaration:

"I refute the statement that our national security is not involved in a British defeat. The difference between a British defeat or victory is not only military but economic."

Willkie recommended that Congress carefully discuss and review the bill and said Congress "must not be hurried" into quick passage.

"The bill," he said, "should be subjected to thorough debate and amendments should be made as Congress represents the people, may deem necessary to retain in its own hands the fundamental power to declare war."

Night-Bombing Solution Nears

LONDON, Jan. 12 (CP).—The Press Association's air correspondent said today Germany's admission that six planes failed to return from Friday night's raids, in which the British Air Ministry claimed only two, may mean "progress" is being made in the search for a thoroughly convincing answer to the night bomber.

The writer added that a scientific search is being made by the best brains of Britain for methods of locating high-flying raiders and there is reason to believe British instruments already in use are in advance of anything yet evolved by the enemy.

The Press Association's correspondent quoted one senior army expert as saying "it shall not be content until we bring down 10 per cent of all night raiders."

Experts, the correspondent added, are not overlooking the possibility that the German Air Force may be using sub-sonic bombers when lower altitudes become too hot for them.

Already against low-flying raiders the British gun, equipped with a new predictor, has shown itself to be an absolute "killer," scoring a hit in every 20 rounds the correspondent said.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 12 (AP).—The liner Manhattan, of the United States Lines, bound from New York to California with 200 cruise passengers, went aground off Lake Worth Inlet early tonight. The ship was reported in no immediate danger.

GUNS OF BARDIA BEGIN SHELLING FALLING TOBRUK

More Air Raids Made on Italians in Libya

20 PLANES FOUND

CAIRO, Jan. 12 (AP).—Fresh guns hauled across the Libyan sands joined the shelling of besieged Tobruk tonight under the constant protection of Royal Air Force fighters who dived Italian planes have been chased from five air bases in Eastern Libya.

The new artillery came 70 miles from the Bardia region, where it had played a major role in softening Italian defenses for the final attack on that captured Fascist base.

Tobruk, with a garrison believed smaller than the nearly 40,000 troops who were killed, wounded or captured in Bardia, has been caught in a ring of British steel for five days with the defenders' retreat cut off.

A Royal Air Force communiqué tonight told of more attacks on the Italians in Libya and a raid by the Fleet Air Arm on Palermo, on Sicily's Northern coast.

The R.A.F. said fighters maintaining a constant patrol in Eastern Libya reported "Derna, Mariut, El Timini and El Gazala were all clear of enemy aircraft except for a considerable number that were unserviceable" and that the Bomba seaplane base, between Tobruk and Derna, "appears to have been abandoned by the enemy."

"Twenty burned-out aircraft were reported as abandoned on the Galtzara landing ground," the communiqué said.

In the Palermo raid, "one bomb fell very close to a merchant vessel of about 8000 tons," it said. "Of 12 ships along the outer mole, one received a direct hit and four others were believed to have been damaged. Fires and explosions were caused among warehouses."

The R.A.F. also raided Benina and Berka airbases again and told of bombs straddling buildings, "causing large fires and a number of explosions near dispersed aircraft."

Other aircraft raided Bengazi, capital of Cirenaica, and "one heavy bomb hit a large building of military importance."

The Caproni workshops and gasoline dumps were bombed in another raid on Mal Adaga Italian East Africa, the communiqué said. It also reported air attacks on Berbera, Somaliland, captured by the Italians last summer, and the Jiga-Jiga landing ground.

The fire started in a Long Island railroad station and within an hour had covered three square blocks. It was Queensborough's second five-alarm fire in the last 40 years.

Fire fighting apparatus was moved in from as far away as Brooklyn before the blaze was an hour old. Police and ambulances were summoned from neighboring precincts and hospitals.

The area was covered mainly by Summer homes of frame structure that served as tinder for the advancing front of fire.

Walker to Lead Alberta Party

EDMONTON, Jan. 12 (CP).—Polls to be followed at the next session of the Alberta Legislature and selection of J. H. Walker of Raymond, Alta., as House Leader, completed developments at the caucus of independent members of the Legislature here Saturday.

Announcement of Mr. Walker's appointment came as a surprise to the 18 M. L. A.'s at the caucus because of the fact his name had not been mentioned at any previous meeting with regard to leadership.

After a poll had been taken and the newcomer's name announced his election was made unanimous on the motion of two of the runners-up.

According to a member of the Independent group, Mr. Walker had not been seriously considered for House Leadership until immediately prior to the taking of the vote, because of his short time in the political field.

This factor, apparently swung the vote in his direction, members agreeing that the public would rally to the Independent movement quickened if someone not previously connected with any particular party were put in charge.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 12 (AP).—The month-old mystery of what happened to the Duke of Windsor's raitan furniture from Hong Kong was cleared today in a forgotten hold of the ex-liner City of Norfolk. L. W. Hartman, customs broker, said the 32 pieces of furniture and other cargo, totalling 50 tons, were discovered in the ship's hold after the United States Lines reported the shipment could not be found on the docks of San Francisco or Los Angeles.

Nazis Again Attempt to Set London Afire

Former Coast Athlete Killed in Plane Crash

WINNIPEG, Jan. 12 (CP)—F. O. R. S. (Bob) Dixon, one of Canada's outstanding athletes, and veteran pilot of the Manchurian Air Force, and two civilian mechanics were killed instantly Saturday when a Royal Canadian Air Force twin-motored training plane hurtled to the ground during a test flight near Goose Bay, Man.

Eye-witnesses said the machine, which had just been delivered from the Cessna Aircraft Manufacturing Company, Wichita, Kan., to the No. 2 Air Command at Winnipeg, had looped the loop and then dived into a field where it burst. Bodies of the victims, F. O. Dixon of Lulu Island, Vancouver, Stanley Muddeman of Wichita, Kas., were thrown clear of the flaming wreckage.

Muddeman, 23, was a civilian maintenance employee at the R.C.A.F. repair depot at Stephenson Field here and had been stationed at the depot since last November. Malatka came here as a representative of the Wichita aircraft firm.

VANCOUVER, Jan. 12 (CP)—Flying Officer R. S. (Bob) Dixon, 33, killed in a plane crash at Winnipeg, was one of Canada's outstanding athletes who had flying experience in the Manchurian Air Force before he joined the Royal Canadian Air Force to get into the war in Feb. 1939.

Dixon represented Canada at the British Empire Games at London in 1934, where he won the javelin 100 feet 11 inches, despite the fact his side was taped for a sprain suffered in a previous fall.

Termed one of the best javelin men on the continent, Dixon also was outstanding in the shotput, high jump and pole vault. He also took part in the discus and broad jump and was a fair runner in the 100, 400 and 1500 metres.

Vancouver born, Dixon let his adventuresome spirit lead him to the Orient late in the 1920's.

GENEVA, Jan. 13 (Monday)—(AP).—An air raid alarm sounded in Geneva at 2:53 a.m.

LONDON, Jan. 13 (Monday)—(AP).—A number of persons were killed in London and "at a place in Southwest England" in intensive raids during the night by German aircraft, the Government announced today.

BANGKOK, Thailand, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Thai (Siamese) High Command reported today that fighting is developing in the French Indo-Chinese Province of Cambodia, which Thai troops invaded last week.

Firemen and Civilians Risk Lives to Halt Spread of Fire FIGHTERS GO UP

LONDON, Jan. 12 (CP).—The Nazi Air Force made another attempt to burn London tonight, showering down high explosives and incendiaries on certain districts while regular firemen and Auxiliary Fire Service men, aided by hundreds of civilians, risked their lives to prevent the spread of flames.

Great numbers of planes passed over the city at intervals to the accompaniment of violent anti-aircraft fire.

Raiders also spread their operations over other parts of England, attacking a Southwest town for some hours before the ground defences drove them off.

Reports said scores of Nazi planes were turned back at the Thames Estuary and jettisoned their loads in the marshes under the heavy anti-aircraft fire.

Some time after the London sirens sounded, Royal Air Force fighters were heard circling overhead, indicating that a night combat force was taking the air against the raiders.

The incendiaries which dropped on one town in the Thames Estuary were reported to have done little property damage and all fires were quickly controlled.

A dozen incendiary bombs fell on houses in a town near London and were quickly extinguished. Auxiliary Territorial Service girls and volunteer watchers kept extinguishers close by.

The raiders began coming over early in the evening while the capital was still clearing away the debris of Saturday night's four-hour raid.

German planes also were reported over Liverpool and a town in North-East England.

The Press Association said the Nazi invaders were flying in relays over the Thames Estuary at intervals of about three minutes.

Reports were still coming in on the extent of Saturday night's raid on London.

One report said eight pedestrians were killed and many injured by a bomb which fell in a London street. Eight persons were killed and many injured in a hit on a hospital and three were killed at another hospital.

As a result of Saturday night's fire raid, the Press Association's lobby correspondent said today, there is likely to be further pressure on the Government for conscription of men for air raid precautions duty.

Herbert Morrison, Minister of Home Security, has urged "at least one member of every family to volunteer to ensure that not a single house, office, factory or building" be left unprotected.

Entry to Bulgaria Consent Was Not Sought of Soviet

Denies Knowing if Passage Has Already Been Made; Bulgaria Never Asked Russia Regarding Move

By HENRY CASSIDY—Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, Jan. 12 (AP).—Soviet Russia has not consented to any passage of German troops into Bulgaria nor has she been informed of such a move if it has occurred, it was announced late tonight.

A special communique distributed by Tass, Soviet News Agency, was broadcast by the Moscow Radio at 11 p.m., an hour ahead of the usual news bulletin.

The Tass statement, in denial of foreign press reports, said Germany never has asked Russia's consent to the entrance of German soldiers into Bulgaria and Bulgaria never, has approached Russia with an inquiry regarding the passage of German troops through her borders.

A similar communique was issued at the time on the entry of the Germans into Rumania last Fall. Russia and Bulgaria traditionally have maintained close and friendly relations as "sister Slavic" nations.

Tass denied reports allegedly published outside Russia usually constitute the Kremlin's method of making its position known by indirect rather than direct statement.

With German troops stationed on the Danube River across from Bulgaria, there has been speculation as to whether Germany asked Russia to permit soldiers to enter Bulgaria, a friend of the Soviets, or to pass through that country to attack Greece.

The Tass statement said that if German troops actually are in Bulgaria and if the further dispatch of German troops to Bulgaria is under way, "all this has occurred without the knowledge and consent of the U. S. S. R., since the German side never raised before the U. S. S. R. with an inquiry regarding the dispatch of German troops to Bulgaria."

"In particular," Tass added, "the Bulgarian Government never approached the U. S. S. R. with the question of the presence or dispatch of German troops to Bulgaria."

The Tass statement began with an assertion that the foreign Press, "referring to certain Bulgarian circles as the source of information," had circulated a report that a certain number of German troops already have been sent to Bulgaria, that the dispatching of Nazi troops to Bulgaria is continuing with the knowledge and consent to Russia and that the Russian Government had "replied by consent to an inquiry by the Bulgarian Government concerning the passage of German troops to Bulgaria."

The convention which ended with the signing of the Internationale had as its main object, it was explained, the establishment of a "People's Parliament" to end the war and appeal to the German people over the head of Hitler in the belief the two countries can make a lasting and sincere peace. The platform also calls for close friendship with Russia.

The convention called for a "people's peace" by working peoples of all countries and the broad right of all peoples to determine their own destiny. One plank is national independence for India, the right of all colonial peoples to work out their own future, and "an end to the enforced partition of Ireland."

Chairman of the meeting was Harry Adams, London organizer of the Amalgamated Union of the Building Trades who was expelled from the Socialist Party last July. He claimed the movement for the convention developed from within the Labor Party.

Adams headed a long list of speakers, some of whom were Communists, others expelled members of the Labor Party.

Letter Series Given Coast Cars

VANCOUVER, Jan. 12 (CP).—Victoria registrars cars in the Victoria and Island area will be given "A" series numbers; Vancouver "B" numbers, and New Westminster car owners "C" numbers in the new blue and white motor licence plates for 1942. Inspector G. A. Hood, of the Traffic Division of the British Columbia Police, said today. Registrars, for both vehicles and drivers, are obligatory before March 1, and will open formally on February 1. Mr. Hood explained.

The new motor vehicle plates will have blue letters and figures on a white ground. The fast growth in motor traffic led to adoption of the letter series, as a means of reducing actual figures in the licence number; and also to segregate drivers roughly into different areas.

While drivers' examinations did not reduce the toll of accidents materially, it had been hoped, physical defects, such as poor vision are being slowly remedied. Increased accidents the police state, came mainly from speeding and carelessness, as heretofore.

Ancient Law Called Into Force Dispute

VICTORIA, Jan. 12 (CP).—Brought to light in Victoria for the first time in 20 years, an ancient law that has lain dormant on the Statutes of British Columbia for many years, was revived Saturday to settle a fence dispute between two neighbors.

The City Council of Victoria was required to appoint a "Fence Viewing Committee," including an ex-Alderman, a surveyor and a contractor, to view the disputed territory.

The law, which applies to both boundary fences and ditches, is an old English law that has never been amended on the Statute Books of the Province. It was originally passed for the benefit of farmers and ranchers, and requires that both parties share in the expense of any boundary fence.

Tepleni Taken by Greeks; Means Definite Break

BELGRADE, Jan. 12 (AP).—The capture by Greek troops of the mountain village of Tepleni, which the Greeks said meant a definite break of the whole Italian front in Central Albania, was reported tonight in Yugoslav border advices.

Frontier reports said the town fell with hardly any Fascist resistance and that the main Italian Army is fleeing to the mountains Northwest of Tepleni.

The fall of Tepleni, if verified, means the Greeks have achieved the object of a two-pronged offensive against Tepleni and Kilsura, 10 miles East of Tepleni. Kilsura was captured Friday.

ATHENS, Jan. 12 (AP).—Italian troops driven out of Kilsura when the Greeks took that Albanian town Friday continued their Northward retreat tonight with the Greeks in close pursuit, it was reported here.

Pursuit was no confirmation that the Greeks had captured Tepleni, as reported in advices received on the Yugoslav frontier, but the town's fall has been expected.

Reports from the Albanian front said Greek planes again machine-gunned the fleeing Italian column, which includes hundreds of trucks, tanks and other motorized equipment.

New Daylight Attacks Made by R.A.F. Planes

LONDON, Jan. 12 (CP).—Daylight forays along the Netherlands and Belgian coasts Saturday and heavy Saturday night attacks on Wilhelmshaven and Turin were carried out by Royal Air Force bombers.

An Air Ministry communique tonight announced bomb damage to barges in a canal at Middelbarnis and hit on the mole at Zeebrugge in the daylight raids. Troops drilling in a barracks square at Domburg were machine-gunned.

Saturday night, the communique said, R.A.F. bombers attacked shipyards at Wilhelmshaven, Germany, while a smaller force went to Turin and "scored direct hits on the Royal Arsenal, causing one major and several minor explosions."

"Four fires and a heavy explosion occurred in another target nearby," the communique said, but the crew of one was known to be safe.

The Air Ministry News Service said batteries of Italian anti-aircraft guns, ranged on the slopes of the Alps, represented a new attempt to bar the way of the British airmen, who found "an almost clear sky" waiting for them over Turin soon after midnight.

The news Service said, dropped "very heavy bombs" and showers of incendiaries on the Royal Arsenal, and dropped pamphlets of Prime Minister Churchill's recent broadcast to the people of Italy.

Hubbard was last seen shortly after midnight Friday walking on the deckhead. Officers fear he may have fallen overboard in the darkness.

Gardiner Suggestions Disappoint Farmers, Would Up Cheese Price

LONDON, Canada (CP) — The Dairy Supply Board would set minimum butter prices. He did not state what the minimum would be.

Canada could not compete in the British butter market either in wartime or in peacetime and it is therefore important that we should keep our production in proper relationship to our consumption, if farmers are going to be able to obtain costs of production.

Mr. Gardiner announced the recommendations he will make to the Cabinet near the end of a two-day, six-days stormy conference with Ontario farmers and farm-organization representatives Saturday. The immediate comment on Mr. Gardiner's announcement was that the recommendations were not altogether satisfactory.

Hon. P. M. Dewar, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, was "considerably disappointed in some regards."

These were the main points enunciated by Mr. Gardiner:

1. That there is no need for an increase in hog production and that consideration of a bonus on hogs should be based on this fact. Present hog production is adequate to meet the three needs for bacon: to maintain and improve Canada's position on the British market through agreements and grading; to supply the domestic market and to maintain a position to take advantage of increased markets "through the raising of the blockade in Europe through the success of our arms."

"An increased production at present would so glut the home market as to force prices down to a level which would be unprofitable for the farmer," Mr. Gardiner said. "To follow a price bonus from the treasury would also bring up the question of individual production control."

2. That it is "much more effective" to set a minimum price for butter in the Summer and control the price in the Winter than to allow a free and open market.

In his opening address to the conference Friday, Mr. Gardiner said:

Reported Raiding German-Occupied France

It was reported in New York that British motorcycle troops, forming "suicide" squadrons, have made lightning raids into occupied France during recent weeks, harassing German forces and bringing back valuable information. They are said to have been taken to France across the Channel in trawlers and fishing boats. While no immediate military objective is served, the raids are said to be staged for the effect on German morale and for the capture of prisoners from whom information is elicited.

First Nazi Bomber Bagged by British Pilot in U.S. Plane

LONDON, Jan. 12 (CP)—The Air Ministry announced yesterday "Germany has lost her first bomber to an American fighter aircraft flown by a British pilot."

The Ministry told the story this way: Three of these (American) aircraft were on patrol when weather conditions necessitated recall to the bases.

The leader had actually landed when he caught sight of a JU-88 (Junkers bomber). He promptly took off again and climbing back into the clouds, rejoined his two companions just as one of them opened fire on the raider.

Smoke at once enveloped the raider and when the leader joined the fight the German machine began to lose height as the pilot apparently searched for a landing place.

The crippled raider glided down and the three aircraft kept close watch to make sure it was not a ruse to dodge away in the mist. The JU-88 eventually crashed in a bog. The fight was watched by a retired naval captain and his home-guard son, who farm nearby. They watched the wreckage as one of the crew was attempting to set fire to the machine. The captain covered them with a shotgun and the son fired the four men and took them prisoner. One had been slightly injured.

CHARGES RAID DAMAGE TO GOV'T CONCERNED

DUBLIN, Jan. 12 (CP)—The Eire Government announced yesterday the "external Government concerned" would be asked to accept liability where "the origin of bombs or other weapons of aerial attack dropped on this country can be established" and added:

"Pending the outcome of such representation, the Irish Government takes responsibility for making good damage caused and relieving distress."

Radio Controlled Robot Planes Are Tested by U.S. Army

DETROIT, Jan. 12 (AP)—Robot planes, controlled by radio from another airplane or from the ground, are undergoing experimental testing by the United States Army Air Corps at Selfridge Field, headquarters of the Sixth Pursuit Wing.

Long talked of as an eventual force in both peacetime and wartime aviation, radio control already is being used successfully on an everyday basis in flights from the Army air field. It was learned today.

The four planes currently in use originally two-place machines, have been converted into single-seaters and carry the intricate radio receiving apparatus in the fuselage behind the pilot's cockpit.

For test purposes, a "safety" pilot is carried in the robot plane during flight. A flip of a switch and he can take over manual control.

Sending apparatus installed in the observer's cockpit of an observation plane, or in a truck on the ground, enables a pilot to maneuver the robot plane from a distance.

Before him the control pilot has a wheel resembling the wheel of the control column of a transport or bombing plane. Movements of the wheel corresponding to those used in normal flight control the radio impulses which activate the receiving unit and fly the robot plane.

Rudder movements are controlled by wheels also, instead of by foot pedals as in the conventional plane. Thus in a single movement of the control wheel the distant plane can be banked and turned.

German Planes in Mediterranean

BERLIN, Jan. 12 (AP)—The German High Command issued the following communique Saturday:

"One submarine, of whose operation partial results have been previously reported, sunk a total of 52,800 tons of shipping during a recent cruise. Thus the submarine, commanded by Cmdr. Hans Gert von Stockhausen, has destroyed a total of 101,530 tons of enemy merchant shipping space and also severely damaged an armed enemy merchantman of 8000 tons that its loss is certain.

"The Air Force yesterday carried out armed reconnaissance and continued mining of English ports.

"An attempt by enemy chasers and bombers to enter occupied French territory during the day was repelled by anti-aircraft and chasers before the enemy could score any success. Chasers downed two, and anti-aircraft six enemy planes.

(No British planes were lost in this operation, the British Air Ministry announced.)

"German airplane formations on Jan. 10 for the first time participated in a fight in the Mediterranean region. In this operation several hits were scored by them on two warship units among which was an airplane carrier.

ITALO-CANADIANS PLAN WORLD-WIDE CAMPAIGN

Predicts War Climax Nears

LONDON, Jan. 12 (CP)—Hugh Dalton, Minister of Economic Warfare, told an audience last night that the war would move to a climax in the "next few months perhaps in the next few weeks."

Hitler, he said, "cannot afford much longer to remain passive while his junior partner in crime is being hammered in Africa, Albania, on the seas and in the air."

He declared American supplies which Britain is allowing to pass through the blockade to unoccupied France would be limited to medical supplies "in the strict sense," vitamins in concentrates, preserved milk and baby clothes.

Over 300 Casualties as Japanese Troop Train Strikes Mine

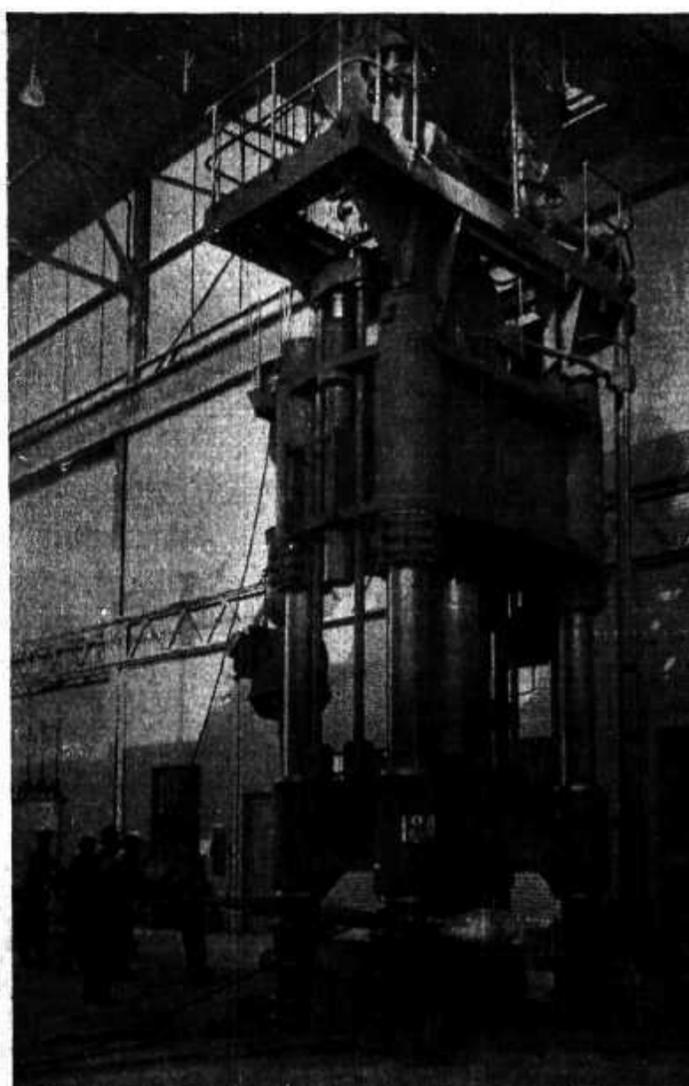

HONG KONG, Jan. 12 (AP)—More than 300 Japanese soldiers were killed or injured and a quantity of war supplies destroyed when a Japanese troop train struck a Chinese mine on the Peiping-Hankow railroad in North Hupeh Province, the Chinese capital. Central News Agency reported yesterday.

The locomotive and 13 coaches were reported wrecked. The same agency reported also that a Japanese transport carrying troops and supplies sank in the Yangtze River off Hanking Jan. 1 after striking a Chinese mine. The vessel went down with all aboard, the agency said, but the number of casualties was unknown.

Discipline... Be Consistent in Training Child

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.
We parents would not care to be machines but if we were, what difference would it make? What difference would it make to our children if they always knew what to expect of us in relation to their discipline, if we were always consistent, if we didn't wobble.

CHILDREN SUFFER FROM UNCERTAINTIES

"Regardless of our motives, our children suffer from our inconsistencies. The more inclined we are to wobble, the more uncertain is the child concerning what he is to say or do, or what is about to happen to him. Much of his annoyance in relation to authority comes from such uncertainties. He adjusts himself readily to the inevitable. But when doubts arise, submission to parental authority in him all sorts of conflicts. Much easier it is for the child to go to bed when the clock tells him to than to go when his father or mother announces that he should be in bed when he wobbles, while the clock does not."

"After all is said about punishment, its brutality and the heartaches and physical suffering flowing from it, the major point is generally missed, namely, insecurity. The most important thing for the child's mental health and happiness is to know always, without shadow of a doubt, exactly what will happen to him in relation to those who assume responsibility for his conduct."

Wouldn't it be a source of satisfaction to our children if they practically always, before asking us a question that involved authority or responsibility, exactly how we would respond? Then they could very often answer for themselves, acquiring much more independence and initiative, certainly more security."

SERIAL STORY

Murder Makes a Hero

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN
Kaye was too much absorbed in the story she was telling to notice how I started at her words.

"He would tell something I would rather die than have known," she repeated. "I asked him what it was, but he wouldn't tell me. He said he'd give me a week to think it over, and if at the end of that time I didn't promise to marry him, he would tell what he knows. I can't get it out of my head, Nancy. Her voice was a wail. "It must be something about Dave."
I suppose for a girl in love, Kaye had jumped to the only conclusion possible under the circumstances. But I didn't think that the story Procter Rand could tell had anything to do with Dave. I believed it had to do with Miss Althea and Horace Rand's trying to prevent Cary's book from being written. Or, on second thought, that wasn't it either. Miss Althea made a lot of fuss and fury about the book, but if I were right in my conjecture — and I was sure I was — she didn't care if that book were written or not, provided she could prevent Cary and her father from reading the papers which were in her brother's chest.

I knew intuitively knew that Horace Rand was in that with her. If so, what more likely than that he had told his son, and that son was using it as a club to compel Kaye to marry him. I certainly had been mistaken in my summing up of Procter Rand. He was a better actor than I had deemed possible. Kaye was waiting for my reply.

"Didn't he give you any hint what it was about?" I asked to find time.

"No, he just repeated it over. He would tell something I would rather die than have known if, at the end of the week I didn't promise to marry him. Of course no matter what it is I shan't marry him. I'm no old-time heroine, sacrificing myself to save the mortgage on the old home! But it does worry me. What do you suppose Dave has done?"

"I can't imagine. Perhaps he wasn't referring to Dave?" I could give her a hint to look elsewhere, even if I didn't feel that I had a right to reveal my ideas to her.

"Who else can it be?" Her black eyes opened wide.

"I don't know, but I just wondered if it might be something else."
"No, it's about Dave all right. I suppose he got tangled up with some other girl while he was away. After his father died, he went away to school. He's only been back in Wetuxet since he was graduated. Procter roomed with him in college. But I should worry what Dave did or didn't do before he met me, though — I'd just as soon the family didn't hear about it."

"That's the way to look at it, Kaye, and I wouldn't worry about it if I were you. Whatever it may be, it doesn't concern you, personally, unless you give it to him. Procter Rand has no power over you."
"I'm not worrying about anything he can do, Nancy, truly I'm not, though I'd hate to have him spread some mean story about Dave. I'm worrying about Dave."
"Why worry about him if you think this something of Procter's happened during their school days. That's a long time ago."
"Not so long ago — Procter and Dave are only a year younger than Cary, 27 years old. They finished school just four years ago."
"Four years are a long time in a case of that sort. Stop fretting, Kaye."
"I'll try but — I don't want Dave hurt! Oh, here's Janet calling, as we heard her voice in the hall. "I must go." Thanks a lot for listening to my tale of woe, Nancy. When my week is up I'll tell Procter to go leap in the deep, deep sea. Coming! And she was gone.

Left alone, I reviewed what she had told me. It was hard for her to be worrying over Dave now when their lives should be all sunshine. But so long as she thought Procter's threat referred to him, she wouldn't be worrying over the family trouble which I was convinced was a real one. I couldn't imagine what it could be, but from the various steps which had been taken to prevent those papers from coming to light, I believed it was nothing small.

I sighed heavily as I thought about it. Since my love life had

Inflammation... Pleurisy Often Follows a Cold

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Among the conditions that are liable to arise during the winter weather is pleurisy — an inflammation of the pleura which surrounds the lung and is reflected over the inside of the chest wall.

The pleura is quite a wonderful piece of mechanism. It is a thin layer of smooth tissue, constantly bathed in a small amount of moisture. It covers, as I said above, the inside of the chest wall and is reflected over the lungs as if they were wrapped in two layers of very smooth, thin cellophane. The lubricating fluid constantly poured out between the layers of the pleura allows the lung to move — expand and contract — in breathing with the greatest of ease. If it were not for the pleura we would creak when we breathe, and it would also probably be painful.

SYMPTOMS

That, of course, is exactly what does happen when pleurisy comes along. The inflammation makes the layers of the pleura gritty and rough and the lubricating fluid is thickened and changed to an inflammatory fluid. The two layers of the pleura grate on each other — you can't hear it unless you put your ear against the chest wall, but it is a definite sign known as pleuritic friction. In fact, it has been recognized since the earliest times, and Hippocrates, the father of medicine, spoke of the sound as resembling the creaking of a new leather strap.

The pain, however, is easily perceived by the victim and constitutes one of the main signs of the condition. It may be described as a stitch in the side. Every time the lung expands in breathing the pain begins, so that the person with pleurisy tends to lie on that side. In the direction of the pleurisy and when stripped he can easily be seen favoring the affected side.

TREATMENT

The treatment is directed to aid him along those lines. The thing which gives the greatest relief is to strap the chest on the affected side, enough to reach from the backbone to the breastbone are applied while the chest is in external expiration, i.e. with all the air forced out. A strip after strip is put on like a set of shingles until movement in that side is very largely immobilized.

Pleurisy may follow inflammation of the lungs, such as a cold or pneumonia, or it may arise spontaneously in the pleura alone. We have described a simple form, but it may go on to the formation of a good deal of fluid, or even pus. Pus in the pleura follows pneumonia. When fluid forms in the pleura, with fever, and without any antecedent lung inflammation, it is well to suspect tuberculosis. After the fluid is drawn off X-ray of the chest should be taken, and a tuberculin test done. Under any circumstances the patient should be treated as a potential case and made to rest in bed six months. Simple pleurisy is also to a certain extent, suspect in the same way.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. L. O.: "Please tell me the first symptom of a cancer on the outside. Does it start as a sore, or like a little scale? Does it burn or pain?"

Answer — I presume you mean cancer of the skin of the face or hands. This may start in various ways. Pain or burning is unfortunately not often associated with it. I say "unfortunately" because if it were more people would consult a doctor early enough to take treatment. It may start as an ulceration or sore or simply a little scaling, which scabs over, bleeds on picking, and then scabs over again, but never completely heals. Any change in the skin in a person over 35 years old should be cause for consultation with a doctor.

Formula... For Working Wife Who Wants to Quit

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Dear Miss Chatfield:
I married my husband after knowing him three weeks, have been married three years and am getting nowhere. With good management we could live on his salary but he prefers to spend it and let me continue working at a nerve racking public job. When I handle him with gloves he is gentleness and kindness itself.

At present he has the urge for a country place with animals and chickens and growing things with which I would be in complete sympathy except for the fact I realize it will keep me at the drudgery of my job for the rest of my days to get for such a place. I suppose you will say the trouble is I married on too short acquaintance.

Answer:
Husbands, says a famous woman executive, first condone their wives working; then expect their wives to work; and then exact work of their wives. Consequently she thinks a wife makes a great mistake to continue at her job after she sees her husband expects her to contribute to the family budget. So it would seem the first step in the solution of your problem is to convince your husband that both of you will be happier and more contented with your retirement from business. You can do this if you put your mind to it.

Not with martyr airs about being crucified, not with the cat and dog daily doom, not with allusions about too short acquaintance before marriage, not with high pressure hysterics ascribed to overwork at a nerve racking job. You see a man isn't amenable to reason when he's on bad terms with his wife, even if his wife could reason with him, which she can't when she's on the verge of a fit. He has to be got in a good humor before he will listen to reason.

Not feasible to tell a woman exactly how to get on good terms with her husband because she knows better than any outsider what is necessary to bring him to terms. However, as a general proposition, it may be said that the method she employs before marriage may be employed again to best advantage. She must remember the old saw about feeding, flattering, fondling and making fun for him. All of this done with discretion invariably brings desired results — if begun in time.

Thanks for candies, oranges balloons and money will be sent to donors. Letters of thanks were read from recipients of gifts. The President reported several repair jobs done free by J. Applewhite.

Three lovely made-over dresses by Mrs. S. Brinley for refugees were displayed. Letters of condolence will be sent to two families, in bereavement. It was decided to help the school board financially, in giving hot cocoa at the school.
Mrs. B. Heddie and Mrs. A. Dayman were tea hostesses.
Mrs. B. Townsend reported on the activities of the Red Cross, giving a list of articles sent. An afternoon donated by Miss A. Scott in aid of Red Cross funds was won by Mrs. P. Shannon. The Red Cross bridges have resumed with one each week.

Three Suggestions Offered

At the left is a delightful lounging robe made of off-white wool twill, tailored but feminine, with a saddle pocket with large black initials applied on in navy braid. A sophisticated woman would enjoy the combination compact and cigarette lighter. Dainty girls like nice gloves and those shown, top, are perfect to wear with tailored suits and sports coats. They have pigtex back combined with kaywood palms, and will keep the hands warm in the coldest weather.

You see a man isn't amenable to reason when he's on bad terms with his wife, even if his wife could reason with him, which she can't when she's on the verge of a fit. He has to be got in a good humor before he will listen to reason.

Not feasible to tell a woman exactly how to get on good terms with her husband because she knows better than any outsider what is necessary to bring him to terms. However, as a general proposition, it may be said that the method she employs before marriage may be employed again to best advantage. She must remember the old saw about feeding, flattering, fondling and making fun for him. All of this done with discretion invariably brings desired results — if begun in time.

Beauty Plans... Taking Time to Become a Belle

By ALICE WADE ROBINSON

Give yourself three hours out — to catch up on yourself in a beauty way for that big country club affair. Lay out your plans — household, shopping and personal — so that you may show your best self on that day of days.

Tonight study yourself in the mirror. Is that a blemish you see? Answer for yourself. If it falls short of being the prettiest you have ever seen, take steps.
In three hours at home you can accomplish a startlingly attractive "after" transformation from the weary-looking "before" that faces you.

YOUR TOPKNOT

Schedule an appointment for a "set." (That is the only step in your rediscovery of charm that will take place away from home). But laundress your hair yourself — a budget-saving in time and money. Use either that bay rum shampoo of mine or that egg shampoo which so many of you say makes for extra fluffiness and manageability.

YOUR TWENTY DIGITS

Fingernails and toenails to you. Give each such a refurbishing as no professional has time to allot. It's amazing how many women — society hostesses, actresses and cinema stars, have taken to doing their own nails.
But for less hangnail woes during this time when pine and spruce boughs do their best to scratch the skin about nails, soak fingertips in warm olive oil.

Christians Should Be Willing to Die to Save Weaker in War-Bishop Adams

Britain's Task Proud Privilege; Must Reconstruct

True Christians should be willing to step out to service and to die to save the weaker in this war against the ways of the devil, Rt. Rev. Walter R. Adams of Vernon, Bishop of Kootenay, Sunday morning told the congregation at St. Saviour's Pro-Cathedral.

Christ gave his life for His weak-making an honest endeavor to return in goods and services full er friends when He stepped out to face the powerful posse of police and soldiers confronting Him and the Apostles following the Last Supper. Christians in giving their lives to help their weaker brothers would only be doing what Jesus did when the soldiers came.

PRIVILEGE

Proud was the privilege that had fallen to Britain to maintain the ways of right and Christianity in the war against the ways of the devil. Bishop Adams referred to the Second Great War as a "Holy War."

However the task of Christians had only begun when the organizers of terror were crushed. "Our lives must be on a divine line... our purpose must be to destroy but to reconstruct."

The ultimate result of the war of right against evil must be a federation of nations held together by goodwill and brotherhood, as was the organization of the Church.

"That must be our prayer and thought," the Bishop said.

Christians could only do their duty by realizing that God could save the world only through them and that they were the body of God. The work and thought of God was the Christians' first charge and therefore they must do their share in the restoration to come.

"Is the future sound?" he asked, and answering, replied, "Certainly, for He must win. When and how depends on us."

Lieut. A. M. Parker Tells of His Staff Work in England

Lieut. Arthur M. Parker of Nelson tells of his work as a staff officer, living in London, England, attached to Canadian Corps Headquarters, in which he supervises members of the Canadian divisions arriving in or departing from England, in a letter to Captain H. A. Fearson, 324 Latimer Street, in a report published Saturday she was incorrectly called Mrs. Myrtle Palmquist.

In his letter, Lieut. Parker speaks of the staff work as a staff officer, living in London, England, attached to Canadian Corps Headquarters, in which he supervises members of the Canadian divisions arriving in or departing from England, in a letter to Captain H. A. Fearson, 324 Latimer Street, in a report published Saturday she was incorrectly called Mrs. Myrtle Palmquist.

Extracts from his letter follow: "Everything is going along pretty well. Captain. I not rather a good break a short time ago when C.M.H.Q. wrote me to report for duty at headquarters. I am to replace one of the staff captains who is leaving tomorrow on a four-month's staff course.

LIKED WORK

"My chief job is looking after all personnel returning to and coming from Canada and I assure you it keeps me very busy. I am more or less under the gun all the time as you know C.M.H.Q. is full of Senior Officers. However, I like the work. I am gradually getting acquainted with which is quite a job in itself. The only part about it is that living in London is not particularly comfortable at present as, apart from being under the gun all day, we are under a different kind of fire most of the night. However, it really hasn't been so bad the past few nights.

"Roy Johnson and A. W. Parker arrived about a week ago. Roy is under the same - he has all the news. He says Dalgas is over here in the Second Division. However I haven't seen him. I dropped Chris Hickman a note a short time ago but haven't seen him yet.

"Captain, if you ever think of it, I would certainly like to see some Nelson News. My address is Canadian Military Headquarters, No. 2 Cockspur St., London."

Many Pheasants in Sirdar Area

SIRDAR, B.C. - The 1940 hunting season was of little note in comparison with other years. With so many of the young men in the forces hunters were very few and fewer U.S. hunters were in the field. In the other hand game was very plentiful and hunting conditions were ideal most of the season. Many ducks are here yet and some geese with the swans on the big lake as usual at this time of the year. It is noted that the number of deer is abnormally high. Wherever there are berries, especially elderberries, flocks of pheasants are to be seen in the Sirdar-Albera area.

Few bear were got this year and no cougar were reported in the district. The black-tail deer is now plentiful, since forest fires in the lumbering area.

HEADED STORES IN OLD LONDON

LONDON (CP) - Harriet Sarah Hill who married her employer as a girl and then helped him establish what later became London's first departmental store, is dead.

Back in 1881 Miss Hill went to work as a clerk in a little store owned by William Whitely. Shortly after, they were married and both worked in the shop which gradually developed into a big store which people used to say sold "everything from a needle to an elephant."

Just after the business became established on a large scale, Whitely was shot and killed by a youth, Horace Bayner, who claimed the storekeeper was his father. Mrs. Whitely immediately assumed control of the business and led her entire staff of 4,000 employees to the graveside for the burial services.

From the huge fortune left by Whitely, more than £1,000,000 ($4,450,000) was left to charity but no mention of his wife was made in the will. She continued to head the firm until her retirement when she moved to her estate in Sussex. It was there she died at the age of 85.

Approximately $1,000,000 are refunded each year by the Provincial Income Tax Department to those whose taxes are deducted from their pay checks.

Y.M.C.A. EXTENDS TROOPS' WELFARE

LONDON (CP) - A new drive by the Overseas Committee of the Canadian Y.M.C.A. to extend welfare work among Canadian troops in Britain is under way.

The immediate object is to provide the troops with additional sports and recreational facilities this winter, together with an extension of "Y" services generally. A war services campaign fund will be opened in Canada Jan. 15.

W. N. McDermath, Chairman, said a large measure of health and happiness for the men of the C.A.S.F. depended on the success of this drive. The work of the Canadian "Y" spread so fast, as troops increased and were moved from place to place, that increased support was imperative.

Several members of the committee demanded a more vigorous policy on the part of the department at Ottawa responsible for "Y" services. A schedule of requirements drawn up and presented to Ottawa mentioned in particular the need for more trained personnel, experts in sport and entertainment and in the use of sports equipment.

Woman Counsels Labor Secretary

LONDON (CP) - One of Labor Minister Bevin's chief counselors on matters pertaining to women is Miss Caroline Haslett, director of the Women's Electrical Association.

Miss Haslett is the best authority on training women in engineering in the country and much of the drive behind the labor ministry's plan for training large numbers of munitions workers was supplied by her. Her interest in engineering began when she was earning 10 shillings ($2.23) a week in a boiler-maker's London office and she soon rose to the top of her profession.

Largely due to her effort, a plan was put through in a few weeks whereby women's training will be organized under fairer conditions than were accepted before.

Netherland Armies Eager to Stand With Allies Says Envoy to Canada

OTTAWA, Jan. 12 (CP) - Hon. F. E. Groenman, Netherlands Minister to Canada assured Canadians tonight that Netherlands armies "are eager to stand shoulder to shoulder" with their Empire Allies in the war of liberation.

"The sorry part which some individuals may be playing must never make us forget that Canada and Holland are friends," the Minister said. "You will not forget, will you, that we are your friends? You will not allow anybody to divide us?"

Mr. Groenman spoke on the weekly "We Are Not Alone" series arranged by G. H. Lash, Director of Public Information. The address was heard over a national net work of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Germany's action in invading the Low Countries may 10, 1940, compelled Netherlands "to lay aside all trust in humanity and decency" as far as the aggressors were concerned, Mr. Groenman said.

"When Canada was involved in war, it was because she decided to assist in making a rowdy keep the peace. But when Holland was involved in war, it was simply because she was in the way of a rowdy. Have you ever noticed how terribly the innocent are in the way of the guilty?"

"We have never done the Germans any harm. But when it suited their convenience, they sprang at our throats. We have it from their own lips that when they were about to do this, they could not sleep for joy. They have done us a terrible wrong in attacking and maiming our countrymen, but a still greater wrong they have done and are doing not only to us, but to future generations: they have compelled us to lay aside all trust in humanity and decency where they are concerned - we must be, we have to be, at the peril of our lives, suspicious, diffident, prepared for their evil thoughts and evil actions. This we cannot forget, even if the betrayed re-elected and the dead forgive."

"Yes, we were in the way. We were between Germany and that coast from where she hoped so comfortably to invade Britain. So we were attacked. We tried to defend our country. On the first day of the invasion we brought down about as many German planes as have been brought down in any single day over the whole of Great Britain. But when after four and a half days the German army, in spite of its overwhelming strength, had not made more headway, over a front as long as that, on which nearly the whole French army fought in France) than an average of from 10 to 15 hours a day, the Germans decided that that was not good enough. Our small air force had been practically wiped out and so the German army could safely carry out a device which few armies would have thought of, to break Holland's resistance."

"They started to bomb the heart of a defenceless city systematically going backward and forward in parallel tracks, so that everything was destroyed to their satisfaction. Then the Netherlands military authorities, seeing that if fighting went on, it would mean the wholesale destruction, in a few hours, of about one-sixth of Holland's civil population by methods which the army could not prevent, gave the order to cease firing in that densely populated part of the country. But the war went on in another part of Holland as long as it held out. It went on in the endeavor of Holland's overseas territory, in the Councils of State, henceforth held in England, but above all in the hearts and minds of Hollanders all over the world."

"So this is the story of how we became your Allies."

"Sacrament" Theme of Lesson-Sermon

The Christian Science Churches all over the world had for the subject of their Lesson-Sermon on Sunday, "SACRAMENT."

The Golden Text was: "The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God and the communion of the Holy Ghost, be with you all." (II Cor. 13: 14).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "And as they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessed it, and broke it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, 'Take, eat; this is my body.' And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, 'Drink ye all of it.' (Matthew 26: 26, 27).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The disciples had eaten, yet Jesus proved and gave them bread. This would have been foolish in a literal sense; but in its spiritual significance, it was natural and beautiful. Jesus prayed; He withdrew from the material senses to refresh His heart with brighter, with spiritual views. With the great glory of an everlasting victory overshadowing Him He gave thanks and said, 'Drink ye all of it.'"

BRITISH PRODUCTION AFFECTED BUT LITTLE

If the air blitzkrieg of many months waged by Germany has not cut deeply into British production of war equipment and materials, then it is fairly certain that it is not going to, unless the German Luftwaffe suddenly develops an efficiency it has not yet shown.

That actual destruction of industry has been small, as contended by the British Ministry of Information, is supported by the report of an Associated Press correspondent of military standing, Taylor Henry, who made a special survey of the bombed industrial areas, before returning to the United States.

Here is in part what he reported in a dispatch from New York a few days ago:

"While German night bombers in four months of blitz against England have laid waste some cities and blasted and burned huge hunks out of others, British officials claim that damage to the island's essential war industry so far has been surprisingly small.

"Naturally, the extent of damage to military objectives in individual raids is a closely guarded secret. That is the reason official communiques constantly refer to the destruction of homes, churches and shops' and never mention that factories, railroads or bridges have suffered as well.

"But the average of estimates I gathered from a large number of observers places damage to all war industry in the country at less than 5 per cent, while damage to the aviation industry has been no more than 10 per cent.

"Just before I returned to New York from England as the old year ended, I made a week's intensive survey of the damage Nazi explosive and fire bombs had done to war industry.

"Without official sponsorship, I went where I wanted and saw what I wanted. I visited factory after factory and talked to officials and workmen in every city that had been blitzed: Coventry, Southampton, Bristol, Birmingham, Liverpool, Manchester and dozens of smaller industrial centres in the Midlands.

"I found many factories that had been destroyed or damaged sufficiently to stop production, but I found almost 10 times as many that had not yet been hit.

"And to your wartime Englishman all that matters is to keep up war production.

"Two days before I left England I talked with a high official who has charge of tabulating damage to what are officially termed 'key points'—essential industry and communication.

"To us it is a question of brutal realism," he said.

"Naturally it's hard if your wife or children are killed by bombs, if the business your family has worked for generations to build has been destroyed overnight. But as far as the war is concerned, to use one of your favorite American expressions, so what!

"Our factories are still turning out the arms with which to smash back at Germany, and our communication networks are still transporting them."

Mr. Henry points out that other factors than destruction can slow down industry, such as damage in the cities, disturbance of transportation, and so on.

But he points out that two facts are holding down damage to small proportions, the way in which British industry is decentralized and widely scattered, and the great height from which the German bombers have to operate—if they wish a reasonable chance of being able to repeat.

"No, there's nothing wrong with his legs, sir, but we've got to protect the nursing staff."

England Is a Good Mudder Always Worth a Bet on Past Performances

Things may get considerably scrambled in England before this winter is over. There is reported a serious shortage of silk and rayon to make the old "school ties." They are beginning to ration them. It may become serious. A neck with an old school tie around it isn't stuck out so readily as one lacking such drapery, but a night in a bomb shelter, without a blanket or an old school tie, is a great leveler.

The substance as well as the symbol of British education, political and academic, is at stake. Under the stress of Britain's terrific ordeal slum boys are being herded into the private schools—public schools, as they call them there. Even Eton and Harrow are being invaded.

There is a great cultural makeup or perhaps shake down in old England. The newspapers and the air are loaded with discussion and debates about a "new England" emerging from this war. Too many onlookers, in my opinion, conclude that this is really "Good-bye, Mr. Chips." They think that Tories will be thrown out of the cabinet, that the stuns that aren't blown up will be rebuilt, with model housing, and that England will find her own form of socialization of industry, within a framework of essentially democratic processes.

I should like to stake any sizeable bet on that. The love of the Britisher for his king and queen is as deep as is his love of life and his patient acquiescence in what is done or not done.

Just suppose that this war should end say within two years, in a victory for England. The first order of business would be to toast to their Majesties, in the Limehouse pubs, Buckingham Palace and all between. There would be a rallying of pageantry and a wave of one and rejoicing all over England and I am strongly inclined to believe that after a deep-dish pork pie and a pint of ale all around, random citizens would snap into their wonted routine and it would be "business as usual" in England. Staying put is one of the best things the British do.

Former Ambassador Joseph Kennedy, in that famous football interview of his, said democracy was through in England, and the implication was that it would move along into the Nazi-Fascist pattern of authoritarian government. We would not want to put a bet on that, either. British democracy—and there is such in spite of the rigid class distinctions—has been devised through centuries of compromising of adjustment and adaptation, give and take and above all, with practical expediency.

The British never went in for the grand flourish of the French encyclopedists. They have an instinctive and long-conditioned aversion to noble generalization about the rights of man and the sovereignty of the people. Their democracy is a thing of shreds and patches, but all their own and durable. The strata of class are as firm and as sharply marked as ancient geological formations but institutional cultural democracy just the same is there.

If we were making book on the next few years, we would lay six to five against England making such a shift either right or left. There is much talk about the new labor ascendancy in the Government. But England's labor leaders, Ernest Bevin and Herbert Morrison, never were leftists. And the old school of still predominant in the 33 offices of England's high government command.

The man who will bring them through, is Winston Churchill, to whom they have handed a temporary dictatorship. He surely will dominate reconstruction when victory comes, and Mr. Churchill is not one to fool around with strange economic gods. We are clocking old England as a good mudder, always worth bet on the records of past performances.

THE WORST LEAD OF ALL
PLAYERS with any practical experience know that the underlead of a king in an unbid suit is nearly always bad tactics against a suit bid. But a certain number of them, in all sections of the country, seem to consider the underlead of an ace a better lead. It is not. As a general rule it is a much worse lead. Frequently it catches the declarer or dummy with a singleton and the king in one hand or the other. In those cases it just throws away a first-round trick. A king can never produce a first-round trick, however, and the lead of it is protected if it finds the partner holding either of two cards—the ace or queen—whereas the underlead of an ace does not find the ace's priority protected unless the partner holds one particular card—the king.

Put All at Work and Duty Before Personal Liberty to Win the War

To the Editor of the Daily News: Sir—What, no useless Canadians? Just try to imagine Canada without any useless people in her. Every adult under 60 making an honest and intelligent effort to "do his bit." All the awful crowds of our educated youth, whom our statesmen so wisely and helplessly shake their venerable heads over, going cheerfully to work that is worth doing, and also our crowds of wealthy, or at least "independent" citizens, who have lived and are expected to live, in ease and comfort on the backs of their neighbors, having to "do their bit" also.

Added to these would be the great crowds of decent Canadians who work quite hard at present and are often very skillful in their arts and professions, but whose work (often highly paid) has little or no social value. Such unfortunate people, whose lives are being wasted through no fault of their own, must be rescued and their skill directed to some useful purpose. Let us blame nobody for the tremendous muddle society has been in. All three of these great classes are the products of our present civilization and of false ideals. We can and must do far better. Or worse things will befall us.

DUTY MUST BE FIRST

Our absurd worship of Liberty has been our undoing. We have placed Liberty before Duty. Now this awful war has arisen to bring us back to Sense and Justice. By our well earned sufferings God corrects us and teaches us and humbles us. We do begin to be sensible in war time. We at last put the individual back into his proper place. Duty comes far before Liberty, and we insist that rich and poor must try to "do their bit." It takes us some time to make a real team out of the conflicting mob that was Canada. However, we have made a

"Steinbach Post" Mennonite weekly published in German, Steinbach, Manitoba. Editorial comment on statement issued by Polish Consul-General in Canada:

The hand of Moscow falls heavily on Russia-occupied Poland. Those who know present-day Russia from their own experience will sympathize with unfortunate Poland. They know that only will silver, gold and precious stones be confiscated but that nothing which can be taken away will remain the property of the owner. The male population of South Russia was transferred by force for construction of the Siberian Railway, the White Sea canal, the Danube canal, to help in factories in Siberia and in the Ural. The unfortunate residents had to sign a statement that they were voluntarily changing their residence. These statements are then shown to curious foreigners and the "voluntary" settlers compared with American migrations to the West.

HISTORIC ENEMIES

The present battle between Greece and Italy is a continuation of the historic struggle between Greece and Rome. The enemy between the two has lasted to modern times; not only has Italy seized Greek territory in the Balkan War of 1912 but there is also a strong commercial rivalry between the Greeks and the Italians in Egypt. It is not surprising that the present attack by Italy is being resisted with a remarkable fierceness.

Stern Necessity Causes Restriction of British Imports From Dominion

By HAROLD FAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 12 (CP-Cable). — Despite a steady reduction in available shipping for bringing food to this war-torn island, Lord Woolton, Minister of Food, declared today that "we haven't starved yet" and reiterated Britain would not be starved out by the Nazis.

The Minister, responsible for the feeding of more than 40,000,000 persons, described the food situation as "much better" than in the last war but added that the dangers confronting supplies were greater due to bombings at sea and on land.

Due to ship losses through enemy action and the need for shipping for munitions and for supplying the troops overseas, the Minister said, a number of ships which in pre-war days brought 21,000,000 tons of food to Britain annually are no longer available. Hence a reduction in imports is necessary.

The Dominions are affected by such restrictions. The Minister who has banned imports of fresh fruit except oranges and some lemons said that "as far as Canada is concerned I see no prospect of bringing in any apples or any of the tinned fruits."

He indicated Canadian canned vegetables were in the same class as tinned fruits, while a ministerial associate said some Canadian dairy products will increase, "like bacon for instance."

The effect of the restriction means less meat from New Zealand, less wheat and sugar from Australia and a reduction in Indian oil seeds. He thought South Africa was not greatly affected at present.

The Minister said he was conscious of the suffering such action caused in the Dominions but added "it was nothing other than stern necessity which made us do it."

U.S. Officials Will Go to London to Work Out Formal Leases on Airbases

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP). — The State Department announced today that a delegation of United States officials would leave for London January 17 to work out formal leases for American naval and air bases acquired from Great Britain.

The eight bases in the Western Hemisphere were received in return for 59 First Great War destroyers transferred to Britain from the United States.

The announcement said: "The President has designated the following American officials to proceed to London to work out the technical details of the formal leases in connection with the military bases of the United States in Newfoundland, Bermuda, the Bahamas, Jamaica, St. Lucia, Trinidad, Antigua, and British Guiana agreed upon in exchange of notes between the Governments of the United States and Great Britain under date of September 2, 1940."

Charles E. Faby, Assistant Solicitor General, Colonel Harry J. Malony, Field Artillery, United States Army; Commander Harold Biesemeier, United States Navy.

Pending signing of the formal leases the British Government will permit work to proceed, official said, to avoid delay.

Actual construction work has started on the Newfoundland base. U.S. parties, and engineering and survey parties are working on other sites with a view to starting construction at an early date.

Just prior to the announcement State Secretary Hull told his Press conference it was not sure that the British Government had charged the United States for the land involved.

In answer to questions he also denied reports the British Government was charging duties on American materials being shipped to construct the bases. He also termed untrue reports the United States would have to pay taxes on the base sites.

Dust of Gold

"If ye do not forgive, neither will your Father who is in Heaven forgive your trespasses."
—Mark 11:36

Earnestness, coupled with a forgiving heart, must be the first approach of anyone seeking answer to prayer. If a man cannot forgive his enemies before praying, he will never have a prayer answered. This is clearly outlined by Jesus in the Lord's Prayer. Everyone who prays must also be determined to win remember to that a quitter never wins and a winner never quits. If you have a grudge against anyone, you have lost the race before you have begun. You must forgive if you expect to be forgiven.

Lethbridge Comes From Behind to Score 4-3 Win Over Nelson

Stewart Fires in Three for the Visitors, Mann Two for Nelson; Lethbridge Excels on the Defensive

Giving a well-nigh perfect exhibition of defensive hockey, Lethbridge Maple Leafs came back from their decisive defeat in Trail the night before to take their namesakes of Nelson for a 4-3 ride in an inter-Provincial league game in the Civic Arena Saturday night.

It was one of the fastest games of the season, and the near capacity crowd had plenty to satisfy them, despite the fact that the visitors had an edge on the play after the first period. Ken Stewart, tricky, although not overly speedy centre of Lethbridge's second string who is giving Eddie O'Keefe a race for the Alberta scoring championship, duplicated the Edmonton Irishman's feat Tuesday night in scoring three goals. Like O'Keefe, he is a great opportunist and doesn't miss many chances. Possessing a dazzling double-shift, Stewart had his opposite hopping every other way trying to hold him in check. He was also a power of strength with his set poke-checks.

EXCEPTIONALLY FAST
Another of the Lethbridge stars was Alex Kaleta, fast-moving forward at centre on the other forward line. With Mel Lundie on his right side, whom Coach Frank Coulson says is ready for the big time right now, and Don Culley on his left, his line was one of the fastest to howl in Nelson for a long time.

But what was most impressive about the visiting club was its consistent two-way game. Giving all they had after the beating they took in Trail, they had the business of back-checking down to a science. Obviously extremely well drilled in this department of the game by their coach, whose maxim of "Clip their wings and they can't fly" is renowned all through the West, the Lethbridge Leafs went the absolute limit of the rules in keeping their men out of the play through their shadowing tactics which bordered on holding and hooking.

They also had it all over Nelson in breaking fast. At least one man would be at their own blue line all the time to take a forward pass, and they'd be away, leaving the Nelson forward line trapped most of the time. Nelson stick-handled the puck out of its zone for the most part, losing time, and enabling the opponents to get back.

SEABY STARS
The boy who stole most of the glory was Jesse Seaby, who turned in a marvellous game in the Nelson side. In the second and third periods, he was repeatedly at the mercy of the Albertans, but he managed to keep Nelson in the game with saves of tickled shots.

Bob Gilmour started the Proulx-Sturk-Algar line against the Lethbridge team in place of the Kilpatrick-Haire-Mann string, but with Proulx badly off color, the move didn't prove too successful. Proulx, with a new pair of skates, couldn't get going at all, and reduced the effectiveness of his line considerably.

Nelson scored the first two goals of the game, and had an edge of the play in the first period. Then Lethbridge got four successive goals to put a different complexion on the game. That a final Nelson goal couldn't erase, Jake Mann, slim and tricky little Nelson left winger, showed definite signs of returning to his brilliancy of last year by picking off two of his team's goals and playing well throughout.

SCORE ON POWER PLAY
Both teams played tight hockey as the game got under way, neither taking many chances. The first break of the game came at the 18-minute mark when Alex Kaleta tripped Proulx. Nelson tried to organize a power play, but for the first minute was unsuccessful in shaking off the fine checking by the visitors. Curly-headed Ken Stewart looked like he was away on a break at centre ice, but Bicknell came back fast to skate him off the pack along the boards. Bicknell wheeled around and carried the puck to the Lethbridge blue line, passed to Kilpatrick who in turn relayed the puck up ahead to Jake Mann. Mann worked his way into the clear and then beat Andy Young for the first goal of the game.

While Kaleta was still off, Darting Stewart on a breakaway, but it was offside at the Lethbridge blue line, and the play was called back. As soon as Kaleta got back, his line made it extremely troublesome for the Nelson Leafs, and Seaby once was called upon to make a sensational save by doing the splits.

ALGAR GETS PRETTY GOAL
At 15:33 Bus Algar scored the prettiest goal of the game. He wound up at centre ice, wheeling around in a perfect circle, anticlockwise, to evade his check, squeezed through the Lethbridge defence although jolted hard once or twice, broke into the clear, and although off balance when he was gathering, but Bicknell came back fast to break up the play. On another occasion three Lethbridge players broke ahead with no one between them and Seaby, but Jess beat them and a terrific ovation from the crowd. Stewart was fed the puck at the Nelson blue line, and when Ken moved in close, and had Seaby apparently drawn he passed over to his right winger, but Seaby managed to block it, and then save the rebound.

CHIPPED ICE
Lethbridge has a chance tonight to duplicate Edmonton Flyers' performance against the Kootenay teams last weekend. If the Maple Leafs win at Kimberley tonight it will give them a record of two wins in three starts. . . . Nelson's next game is Wednesday night against Kimberley, and then the Lakesiders tour Alberta.

Walter (Whitey) Rimstad is a younger brother of Morey Rimstad who had a tryout with the Montreal Canadiens this fall after an impressive few seasons at Vancouver. With Lorin Mercer, former Trailite, he was sent down to the American League for additional seasoning. The blond-haired Walter, including last season, put in four seasons with New York Rangers. The brothers hail from Edmonton.

Andy Young, former Weyburn star and best in the Alberta League for the past two years, is particularly adept with his hands. He is ambidextrous, and catches pucks with either glove, and holds his stick either way.

Nelson has incurred but one penalty in the past two games, which is certainly a notable record. But Buddy Hammond, retired flash who set the league on fire toward the end of last season, thinks that perhaps a good old donny-brook would help the Leafs a lot. Thinks they haven't got their hearts in the game the way they should, and they need something to give them some real pep and drive.

SKI SLANTS

By I. SLIDE
The weather man has not been kind to us this week, and the snow—what there was of it—was wet and sticky. It is a myth, however, to think one has to have plenty of dry snow to enjoy skiing. Personally I found the fire in the cabin very comforting, and judging by the crowd I found there, I was not alone in this.
It is one of the advantages of skiing that you can take the sport just as energetically or as un-energetically as you want to, if you feel like bounding about like a frisky colt, by all means do so; and if you feel like being lazy, stand around and watch the world go by—or tumble over—it is just as much fun and not half so tiring.
Everyone was going great guns—and it is ski-on the slalom, I half suspect this was because a certain tree has been removed from the bottom of the run. It used to stand, a monument to skiers who wished a quick trip to eternity, at the very bottom of the slalom course. Unhappy skier, having vanquished the ups and downs, turns and twists of the course, came to this last obstacle. Needless to say the tree presented a terrible mental hazard, and if you were unfortunate enough to strike it, the hazard became far more than mental. The skiers who removed it are to be congratulated on their work. However, I can't help feeling a twinge of sadness at its decease. How many sets of brains have been dashed out on its sturdy trunk I am not in a position to know, but it did add a little spice to the trip down. Only last year a great friend of mine hurled his brand new camera into a snow drift, in order that he might be able to catch a quick trip to eternity, at the very bottom of the slalom course. Plans to Build Air Bases From U. S. Line to Alaska To Be Announced Shortly

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (CP).—An Associated Press dispatch Saturday from Ottawa said it was reliably reported that a plan to construct a series of airbases between the United States border and Alaska will be announced shortly by the Canadian Government.

The bases will be built by Canada, but will be available for use by United States military planes flying to or from the United States and Alaska, the dispatch said. The construction, it was reported, is in line with the principles of joint Canada-United States defence.

The dispatch continued: "The project will provide the United States a safe year-round airway to Alaska for fast pursuit planes—not only singly but in large squadrons.

"An existing commercial route already in being flown Winter and Summer, but pursuit planes have a short range and thus better facilities are needed to insure adequate landing space and radio guidance for squadrons flying in short jumps.

The new bases will also be equipped to handle the largest bombers, which fly long distances but need longer runways when they land.

The existing commercial line operates two or three times weekly from Edmonton to Grand Prairie to Fort Nelson and thence to White Horse by way of Watson Lake and Teslin. At White Horse it connects at Juneau with Panamerican, which, however, suspended operations in Winter. From White Horse the line runs to Dawson and thence to Fairbanks.

"Ships already can fly a radio beam to Edmonton and it is understood that beams will be installed over the whole route. Small, short-

Italians Claim Carriers Hit

ROME, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Italian High Command issued the following communique Saturday:

"Enemy naval formations were subjected to successive intense attacks by our detachments of torpedo launching planes and dive bombers in the Sicily Channel. Two torpedo launching planes commanded by Capt. Bernardini with Naval Lieut. Bassago as observer and by Lieut. Caponetti hit an aircraft carrier with a torpedo.

"A section of three dive-bombers commanded by Lieut. Nalvezi, Sgt. Mazzei and Sgt. Crespi hit a cruiser with two heavy bombs. Another squadron of dive bombers attacked and hit an anti-aircraft carrier with heavy bombs.

"Despite the most violent anti-aircraft reaction and repeated attacks by enemy planes, all of our planes returned to their bases.

"Simultaneously, for the first time units of the German Air Corps, in fraternal close cooperation with the Italian air units, participated brilliantly in the attack on the same naval units, succeeding in hitting one of the aircraft carriers with heavy and medium bombs. They also hit a destroyer.

"(No confirmation of above claims available in London.)

"Port Valetta, on Malta, was bombed early on the day of Jan. 11 on the Greek front, local actions continued in the sector of the 11th Army. Attempted enemy attacks in other sectors were repelled.

"In Cirenaica, artillery actions took place in the Tobruk zone and near Jarabub.

"One of our formations of assault and fighter planes attacked a formation of tanks and armored cars, destroying several. A hurricane fighter plane was shot down in air combat.

"Enemy air raids in the Tobruk and Bengasi zone caused some damage and nine deaths, including seven children and injuries to four, all Mohammedans, by crew of an English plane which was forced down and captured.

Plans to Start Second Great War Veterans

CALGARY, Jan. 12 (CP).—Decision to organize the Second Great War Veterans Association in Calgary was reached at a meeting of men discharged from the Canadian army since the outbreak of the present war because of physical disabilities.

Don Woods heads the new organization which will complete its Friday.

Need for organization of veterans of the present war was stressed at the meeting. Upon discharge, it was stated, the men were only given a clothing allowance of $35.

A committee will request Mayor Andrew Davidson and Manley Edwards, M.P., Calgary, to impress on the authorities in Ottawa the advisability of prompt payment of the promised grant of one month's army pay and allowances to each discharged soldier. Also, the men want assistance from Ottawa in finding work and generally reestablishing themselves into civil life.

FIRST PAYMENT TODAY
OTTAWA, Jan. 12 (CP).—First checks in payment of the new rehabilitation grant to men discharged from the armed forces after 183 days' active service in the present war will go out on Monday, the Defence Department announced on Saturday.

The grant is for the purpose of assisting men who served in this war to become reestablished in civil life. It is the equivalent of one month's pay and dependents' allowances, on the scale received by the soldier, sailor or airman concerned at the time of his discharge.

Controversy Arises on Usefulness of Present British Convoy System

By ROBERT BUNNELL Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP).—Losses inflicted by German submarines on British shipping in recent months have stirred debate in shipping circles here as to whether the convoy system has outlived its usefulness.

Some quarters, pointing to weekly losses averaging 60,000 tons, believe the system needs radical overhauling while others contend it should be discarded completely.

Before the Germans won a foothold on the Bay of Biscay, with submarine bases outside the English Channel bottleneck, convoys offered 95 per cent protection for merchant ships.

During the last week of 1940, losses declined to 37,556 tons, but informed sources attributed the drop to bad weather and a consequent decline in submarine activity rather than to any positive solution of the problem.

Arguments advanced against the convoy system are:

1. It keeps urgently needed shipping tied up in port awaiting the convoy formation and then slows the movement of every ship to the speed of the slowest in the convoy.

2. A convoy presents a better target for bombing planes than single ships and is easier for planes, bird-dogging for submarines, to locate.

3. Because a convoy moves slowly, planes can shadow it until submarines get on the job or until an air attack is planned.

4. It makes ships in the convoy line vulnerable to a spread eagle discharge of torpedoes.

Defenders of the convoy system contend:

1. British shipping losses from January to June, 1941, were 2,087,000 tons but after institution of the convoys declined to 1,572,000 tons in the last half of that year.

2. That uncontrolled merchant shipping would multiply the problems of patrol and make easier the work of Nazi submarines and planes that could lie in the areas of the Southwest and Northwest of the British Isles, through which virtually all sea traffic to the islands has to pass.

3. That single fast ships can and do travel alone and do suffer losses.

4. That convoy ships are slow anyway and in any case would be easy targets.

The Royal Navy, which Maritime sources say now has to do three times more work than in 1937 and 1938, when the United States and French navies were aiding the patrols, would like more destroyers for the United States—or elsewhere—for convoy patrol work.

Many in naval circles believe that if the Navy had an adequate number of destroyers in addition to bases in five, Britain would have shipping issues licked.

Soldiers Killed by Freight Train

CHATHAM, Ont., Jan. 12 (CP).—Sgt. J. Hyde and Sgt. George Harrogate, Canadian (active) army, were killed yesterday when hit by a freight train in the Canadian National Railway yards here.

They were members of a detail about to entrain for London for duty at the barracks there. They were wedged between the train and the freight sheds as the cars were being backed into the yards.

FORMER U.S. OFFICER TO BE SENTENCED JAN. 16

MONTREAL, Jan. 12 (CP).—Robert R. Wood, former United States army captain wanted by police in nine other Canadian cities yesterday pleaded guilty to having obtained $122,985 by forgery and false pretences through the use of three forged cheques and one forged bank money order. He will be sentenced Jan. 16.

ALDERSHOT (CP).—Three hundred mobile film units are entertaining troops in Britain—150 at bigger camps and garrison centres and 150 in outlying and isolated defence posts.

Expect Congress Battle Will Be Market Factor

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP)—The Stock Market pattern was slightly ragged Saturday with small fractional price changes either way, emphasizing the lack of a real trend for leaders.

Fair sized blocks of low priced issues such as Willy's Overland, Graham Paige and American Power & Light accounted for a large portion of the two-hour turnover of around 400,000 shares. These stocks held to an extremely narrow range.

Wall Street discussion centered mainly on the bill before Congress calling for all-out aid to the democracies. It was suggested the battle expected on this measure next week might be a market factor.

Among Canadian stocks today Dailien's Seagrams advanced 3/4 point and the Shore Mines dipped 1/4. Other Dominion issues were either unchanged or inactive.

Canadian Car & Foundry posted a net advance of 3/4 at 25 and the common was up 1/4 at 10 1/2. Dominion Bridge was strong. Cariboo Gold firm 10 or more. Hollinger and McIntyre were up narrowly.

Home Oil was the strongest of the Western oils, gaining 7 to 2 1/2. Royalite held unchanged and Pacific Petroleum at 20 1/2 gained 1/4 from Friday's closing bid and Home was up 1/4 at 2 1/2. Other oils were inactive.

Grandview, only trader among the base metals, closed at 14, up 1/4.

Western oils finished the session with a narrow balance of gains over losses.

Fast Freighters for 'Common Cause'

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP)—A fleet of fast freighters to be operated for the "common cause" of Britain and her allies will be built at the old Groton Iron Works shipyards at Old Groton, Conn., Alfred Holter, a refugee Norwegian industrialist and head of a private American-Norwegian combine which acquired the yards, said yesterday.

Holter said the combine purchased the yards for "around a half million dollars for construction in 1918 and 'may be even 19' freighters a year.

The downward trend of prices of eggs, which has prevailed for the past month was checked Saturday at the Nelson Public Market. Quotations ranging from 35 cents a dozen for large down to 38 for pullets, were the same as the previous week.

Generally there was little change in the various lines of produce. Cauliflower reappeared at one stall, selling at 10 cents a pound, Sauerkraut, selling at 10 cents a pound, also returned to the scene.

Home-made liver sausage, priced at 30 cents a pound, was placed on sale at one stall. With the holiday season over, turkeys were removed from the market.

Trail Italian Legion Helps Bomb Victims

TRAIL, B. C., Jan. 12—Given in aid of the London bombing victims, the Trail Italian Legion held a splendid concert at the Columbus Hall Friday night. The concert was later followed by a dance.

Pietro Forte, President, pointed out the urgency of the need for relief of the bombing victims, and stated the concert was replacing the annual concert and dance.

The Maple Leaf Band, under the baton of Adelino Ghetti, led the concert with "Colonel Bogey", "Carry On", "Father of Victory" and "The Parade of the Wooden Soldiers".

Louis Parsotti, tenor, sang "O Sole Mio", accompanied at the piano by Miss Irma Salsoccioli. Helena Sammartino, accordion soloist, played a medley of patriotic airs, "Under the Double Eagle", and a polka; Enzo Tazi, violinist, accompanied by Miss Gloria Angerelli, played "Gavotte" and "Hearts and Flowers".

Mrs. Emilio Pisapia, soprano, accompanied by Miss Hazel McDonald, sang "Giannina Mia", and "Like a Rose"; the Daughters of Columbus sang "The Ferry Boat Serenade", depicting the words of the song, accompanied by Miss Irma Salsoccioli.

Miss Hazel McDonald played "Nola" and an arrangement of "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes". Cecil Stratton, Master of Ceremonies, sang "I Love You" and "Be Mine Tonight", and a medley.

Lydia Sammartino, accompanied by Helena Sammartino, sang "The Woodpecker Song" and "Roll Out the Barrel". David Leschutta played a selection of old-fashioned melodies on the accordion.

It was his twenty-first birthday. The evening was spent in playing cards and games, after which refreshments were served by the hostess. Fighters Turn to Boot-Heels; Assault Found TRAIL, B. C., Jan. 12—The traditional picture of a woman defending herself with a hat pin has been changed, by modern mode of apparel, to the substitution of a shoe with a formidable heel. This, in principle, was apparently voted a good idea during a fight between Ole Albritson and Rudolph Bittner, both of Trail, who really got down to business during a fight in a local cafe in Trail, Christmas Day.

After fists appeared inadvisable, or perhaps ineffective, they backed up about six feet, took off their rubbers, and squared off for their second round. The success of the weapons remained unproven, however, as the contestants were dissuaded.

Relating the unique method of fighting before Magistrate Parker Williams, in City Police Court Friday afternoon, neither man could account for the inspiration, which appeared simultaneous — and mutual.

The case was brought before Magistrate Williams, when Bittner laid an assault charge against Albritson after the fight. Albritson was convicted and fined $20 and costs.

M.R.K., Panther Midgets Start 2nd Half, Tie

M.R.K. Midgets and Panther Midgets held each other to a 3-3 tie Saturday forenoon in the opening game of the second half of the Midget Hockey League schedule. The same teams were rivals all through the first half of the schedule, which ended with the M. R. K.'s in front by two points.

In Saturday's game — which was freakish in that the players had to dodge around a garbage can near one of the penalty lines which protected new ice being made following repair of one of the brine pipes, a face-off following each hitting of the can — the M.R.K.'s took an early lead. Dalton Boomer and Alex. Allan each scoring unassisted Jack Jarbeau then scored unassisted for the Panthers before the first period ended. In the second period Gordon MacDonald netted Jack Breeze's pass for the Panthers, to tie up the score. The third period saw the Panthers take the lead when Len Appel scored, but Bill McMorris restored the balance for the M.R.K.'s on Red Warlick's pass, and the game ended that way.

Hugh Wallace, Panther, drew the game's only penalty, in the third period.

Bill Galliano was Referee, and Bud Whitfield was Scorekeeper and Timekeeper.
