Nelson Shopkeeper Is Prepared to Take Up Arms Czechoslovakia

His Country Has Only Liberty Fight for Asserts Hanic

PEOPLE WILL DIE IN DEFENDING IT

"If anything happens in Czechoslovakia, I'll go. And every man from Czechoslovakia in Canada and the United States will go, or he'll sell his shirt to help. That's the way we feel about our country."

So spoke Louis Hanic of Nelson Monday, as he discussed Europe's crisis from the viewpoint of a man who sees the entire future of his country suspended in the international balance.

"Czechoslovakians have been fighting for hundreds of years for liberty. They have it now. They are ready to die in defence of it, for after it is gone they will have nothing left."

"About this plebiscite—will Czechoslovakia consent to the Sudeten Germans voting on it?"

HITLER TO MEET CHAMBERLAIN ON WEDNESDAY FOR DECISIVE TALKS

Such Is Semi-Official Supposition; Il Duce Is Lauded

SITUATION RIPE FOR FINAL MOVE

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
Associated Press Foreign Staff

BERLIN, Sept. 19 (AP)—The Czechoslovak-German problem is ripe for a final decision, in the opinion of German foreign office circles.

It was announced semi-officially Reichsfuehrer Hitler likely would receive Prime Minister Chamberlain at Godesberg, near Cologne, Wednesday.

It was believed Mr. Chamberlain would lay before the chancellor an Anglo-French proposal for settlement of the dispute.

DECISIVE MEETING

Dienst aus Deutschland, a correspondence service whose chief editor works in collaboration with the foreign office, wrote in a release for tomorrow's papers:

"The decisive second meeting of the fuehrer with Premier Chamberlain in Godesberg differs in marked manner from the first meeting at Berchtesgaden.

"While in the latter place the two men, conscious of their enormous responsibility, for the sake of the peace of their peoples and Europe, frankly laid their cards on the table as to what they desire, fear and believe possible as a positive solution, work meanwhile has been done on a possible platform as a result of this clarification of ideas."

French-British Plan to Cede Sudeten Areas to Germany Not Acceptable

Police Armed With Sabres Are Increased as State of Emergency Applied More Rigidly; Press and 'Phone Censorship Ordered

CZECHS ANGERED BY BRITISH-FRENCH PLAN; CURRENCY EXPORT IS BANNED

LONDON, Sept. 20 (Tuesday) — (AP) — Great Britain, urgently prodded by Germany to produce a solution of the Czech-Sudeten problem, immediately, was growing embarassed today by Czechoslovakia's failure to agree promptly to French-British proposals for the surrender of the Sudeten areas.

It was freely reported in London that Adolf Hitler has asked Prime Minister Chamberlain to meet the German demands by tomorrow (Wednesday).

PRAGUE, Sept. 20 (Tuesday)—(AP)—A source often regarded as a spokesman for the Czechoslovak foreign office declared today the Franco-British proposals for splitting the nation's territory to appease Chancellor Hitler was unacceptable to the Prague government.

The authoritative newspaper, Lidova Noviny, whose diplomatic editor, Hubert Ripka, often reflects the foreign office viewpoint declared:

"If the guarantees of borders made us 20 years ago are invalid today what assurance have we that promises made now will be kept in the future?"

The newspapers' comment came as other sources, usually having access to government information, indicated the govern-

SUDETEN GERMAN REFUGEES SAY WILL "FIGHT FOR OUR FREEDOM"

DRESDEN, Germany, Sept. 19 (AP) — Sudeten German refugees tonight told Czechoslovakia by broadcast that "with gun in hand we are going to fight for our freedom."

This call to arms was thundered across the Czechoslovak-German frontier from a fiery mass meeting at which 5000 refugees gathered in the Dresden exhibition hall shouting "we are going home to the reich."

Fugitive Sudeten leader Konrad Henlein, who did not appear, deputized two speakers to represent him, both of whom said union with Germany was the only solution to their trouble.

The Sudeten propaganda chieftain, Wilhelm Sebekowski, in a speech filled with threats of direct action against Czechoslovakia, said:

"We offered the Czechoslovaks an honorable peace which they rejected; now with gun in hand we are going to fight for our freedom.

"We started our Sudeten Free Corps with gun in hand. What the kaisers for centuries demanded, Adolf Hitler will achieve."

DEATH CLAIMS STAR, PAULINE FREDERICK, 53

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Sept. 19 (AP) — Pauline Frederick, 53, famous star of the stage and silent motion pictures, died at her home today, apparently from asthma and a heart attack.

Miss Frederick was known on the stage as "the Girl with the Topaz Eyes." She rose from the chorus ranks to become, in her heydey, the United States' most popular actress. She was stately in carriage, black-haired, and talented.

Her private life was not so happy or successful. She had five marriage ventures, all of them ending in divorce or death.

Miss Frederick was born Pauline Libbey in Boston, August 12, 1885. Her stage experience began in "Rogers Brothers in Harvard," an early extravaganza and her only adventure into musical comedy.

Among her outstanding stage dramas were: "Joseph and His Brothers", "Innocent", "Samson" and "When Knights were Bold".

On the screen she appeared in "ZaZa", "Madame X", "La Tosca", "Fedora", "Bella Donnan", "Mrs. Dane", "Slave of Vanity", "The Lure of Jade", "Paid in Full", "Resurrection" and "the Eternal City".

When talking pictures came in, she played in "On Trial", "Evidence", "The Sacred Flame", "Social Register" and "My Marriage".

Miss Thomson to Go to the San Francisco Exhibition Represent South Interior at Mine Exhibit

Miss Edythe Thomson, secretary of the Chamber of Mines of Eastern British Columbia, will go to the world exhibition at San Francisco next year representing southeastern British Columbia at the provincial mining exhibit.

Miss Edythe Thomson

Seal of approval on a proposal of the Nelson junior board to raise funds was given by the chamber Monday night after a board delegation had explained the project and outlined what it proposed to do. J. R. Hunter, president of the chamber, was in the chair.

Mr. Hunter pointed out no definite information had been received as yet as to what part southeastern British Columbia would play in the exhibit to be prepared by the provincial government for the San Francisco exhibition. Executive members agreed that the chamber could not be certain as to the actual exhibit, and they also agreed that in any case the district would benefit by being represented.

OUT TO BOOST DISTRICT

"These boys are out to boost the whole district," said Samuel Pond, "not only Nelson but the whole territory."

"It doesn't matter who puts up the exhibit," commented E. W. Widdowson, "we want a free lance there to give information about the Kootenays to anyone asking. . . . Miss Thomson has as good knowledge of the Kootenays, and understanding of it, as anyone I know, and she's thoroughly impartial."

Expressing the opinion that he would like more definite information as to the government's plans for the exhibit, Mr. Hunter declared, "We'll be glad to have the junior board jump in and help."

The delegation consisted of J. G. McKay, Fred Leno, Stanley Penney and Arnold Leew.

VANCOUVER, Sept. 19 (CP)—Vancouver city council today appointed a special committee to prepare for next year suggestions to prevent alien ratepayers voting in civic elections.

"No questions are asked regarding their nationality when they register property," he said, "and as property owners they automatically go on the voters' list."

VANCOUVER, Sept. 19 (CP)—"I, for one, will not let a man out of the asylum, under those circumstances," said Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald in supreme court today when refusing an application of Mrs. Anna Murdoch, Victoria, for an inquisition to determine whether her husband, David Murdoch, former chief of police of Kelowna, has regained his sanity.

Murdoch was charged with the murder at Kelowna in January, 1932, of Jean Nolan, and was acquitted on the ground of insanity.

A second murder charge arising out of the death at the same time of Archibald McDonald, a Kelowna constable, is still pending against Murdoch.

Following the insanity verdict, the accused, in November, 1932, was committed to the Colquitz mental home.

Mrs. Murdoch, whose counsel was E. A. Lucas, alleged that her husband has been sane for the past two years.

CZECHS TO PLEAD FOR CHANCE TO SUBMIT THEIR SIDE IN ARGUMENT

PARIS, Sept. 19 (AP)—Czechoslovakia will ask for a chance to plead her side of the case before giving Great Britain and France a definite answer on their reported plan to cede her Sudeten area to Germany, it was learned on good authority tonight.

A source in close touch with Prague said the Czechoslovak reply neither flatly rejecting nor accepting the proposals advanced today by the two powers, would be delivered in London tomorrow.

Since Prime Minister Chamberlain flew to Berchtesgaden to hear Chancellor Hitler's side of the Czechoslovak-Sudeten German dispute, this source said, the Czechoslovak government's reply would contend that in all fairness the western democracies should give equal attention to its objections.

This move was represented by Czechoslovak circles in Paris as throwing the Sudeten problem back into the hands of the French and British governments who today through their cabinets approved proposals formulated at a conference of their premiers in London yesterday.

Prague, hoped, it was said, to gain time by this manoeuvre.

It was learned the Czechoslovak minister, Stephen Osusky, asked Foreign Minister Bonnet flatly: "Is France ready to honor her signature on the Franco-Czechoslovak treaty in case of Nazi aggression?"

Bonnet was reported to have replied; "We have not come to that yet."

Tension relaxed in the capital. It appeared France was resolved to stay out of war. The government was disclosed to have issued orders to cease military preparations, widespread in recent weeks, placing an estimated 2,000,000 men under arms.

Preparations for Nelson Fair Surge Toward Climax as Booths Go Up and Midway Show Arrives

Fine Arrangement to Be Feature at Opening

Pounding hammers made the Nelson civic arena a zone of discard Monday as preparations for the Kootenay district fair this week surged toward a climax. George Horstead, secretary-manager, had a big gang of men busy with hammer and saw putting up booths on the big floor and in the curling rink, while another gang erected collapsible tables and prepared them for the exhibitors to place displays today.

Commercial and competitive exhibits will be displayed to their best when the fair opens Wednesday, new arrangements having been worked out and the "free acts" platform having been moved out into the Recreation ground, leaving the entire boxla floor free for exhibits. In addition a section of the curling rink has been blocked off with booths for the fine arts and schools displays, and with advantage taken of the layout of the curling rink, these will be shown to better advantage than in years. Benches and big boards are being used.

GROUP COMPETITION

Large-sized group competition will be keen this year. Three women's institutes, Nakusp, Nelson and Bonnington-South Slocan — have had big booths allocated to them. Two of the district's leading farmer's institutes, Nakusp and Balfour, will compete for top honors in this class.

F. H. W. Chanter started to bring in produce for his individual rancher's display Monday afternoon; and Jack Page was preparing to make a big showing in the new professional gardener's class.

Commercial exhibits are likely to be impressive this year. Electric washers, flour, cleaners, musical instruments, hardware and so on will each be emphasized in its proper place.

One of the feature booths will fasten the attention of district residents on the "iron lung", equipment to force respiration of sufferers from infantile paralysis and give medical science an opportunity to fight off the disease.

MORE DISPLAYS

The women's hospital auxiliary plans another display, old timers will come to the fore again, and an exhibit of the Kootenay ores for which the district recently won the provincial championship will be prominently placed.

Out in front of the grandstand a platform 32 feet square has been prepared for the "free acts", where some of the outstanding performers in the show business will display their art for fair patrons.

A new midway will attract fair visitors this year, the Patrick shows having been engaged. In addition to five rides providing "all the fun of the fair," the Patrick shows have a number of sideshows. The midway is scheduled to open tonight.

Judging of exhibits will begin early Wednesday morning and will be carried through to completion in time for the fair opening gala Wednesday afternoon.

Two general entrances will be in use through the civic centre building from Vernon street, and through the gates at the west end of the grounds.

Public Supports Drive for "Iron Lung" at Nelson

Public interest has swung to support of the newly-organized Kootenay District Infantile Paralysis committee, and in the three days which have passed since it was formed Friday night new impetus has been given the plan.

A meeting of the committee executive Monday night learned of this reception of the proposal and immediately laid plans to go ahead with the campaign, aiming to make an "iron lung" available at the Kootenay Lake General hospital to treat district cases. The Trail-Tadanac hospital at Trail already has one.

Out of five cases in the district this year, one in Nelson and four in the district, the only fatality was a boy suffering from paralysis of the respiratory organs, a condition for which the "iron lung" was designed.

A life-size model of the "iron lung" designed to show its usefulness, will be a feature of the public health exhibit at the Kootenay district fair opening at the Civic Centre Wednesday.

MORE ABOUT

LONDON

Details of the Anglo-French peace plan were sent to the Prague and the Czech cabinet met to consider them in an emergency session. It was impossible to forecast the attitude of the last free democracy in central Europe to the plan to give up a slice of her territory to gain the bigger objective of world peace, but it was generally agreed that the Czech government eventually would comply.

WIDER DISMEMBERMENT

Not only were the Czech and Slovak statesmen asked to surrender the Germanic sections to Hitler but they were also faced with growing demands for the further dismemberment of their Polish and Hungarian populations.

In Warsaw it was announced the Polish ambassadors to European capitals had been instructed to inform the respective governments of the reported Polish view a full central European settlement could be attained only by detachment of the Polish minority from Czechoslovakia.

Admiral Nicholas Horthy, regent of Hungary, was reported en route to Germany to get the aid of Chancellor Hitler and Prime Minister Chamberlain in settling Hungary's dispute with Czechoslovakia over the 700,000 Hungarian minority.

CZECH MINISTER COLLAPSES

Indicating the full force of the decision to be made by the Czechs were two incidents, in London and Paris. In Paris, the Czech minister, Stephan Osusky, left a conference with Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet with tears in his eyes and exclaimed: "They have condemned my country without hearing it."

In London, the Czech minister, Jan Masaryk, collapsed and could not accept an invitation to call at the foreign office for consultation.

A man in high office used a phrase illustrating the frightful dilemma facing Prime Minister Chamberlain ever since he met Chancellor Hitler in Berchtesgaden and realized that the fuehrer stood firm either for war or Czech territory without the formality of a plebiscite.

The phase was that it would be better to accept an 'inconceivably repugnant" plan to dismember Czechoslovakia than to take the opposite road, which would lead irresistably and inevitably to a devastating world-wide war.

INTERVIEW OPPOSITION LEADERS

Mr. Chamberlain and Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary, tonight interviewed Clement Attlee, Arthur Greenwood, and Sir Archibald Sinclair to acquaint the opposition leaders of latest developments. Winston Churchill also was received.

An unofficial version of the Anglo-French plan was as follows:

1. The Sudeten districts of Czechoslovakia which in municipal elections last May and June voted 75 per cent or more for the Sudeten German party candidates shall be considered to have decided on union with Germany.

2. A new frontier shall be drawn to include all such districts within Germany as far as it is practicable.

3. Districts which voted between 75 and 50 per cent for Sudeten candidates shall be grouped in autonomous areas inside Czechoslovakia.

4. Arrangements shall be made by the exchange of populations to safeguard the liberty of German minorities which do not wish to come under the rule of Germany; there shall be similar arrangements for Czechoslovakia's Polish and Hungarian minorities.

5. The new frontier of Czechoslovakia shall be guaranteed by Britain, France, Italy, Poland, Hungary and Rumania and she shall be released from her alliances with France and Soviet Russia.

Markin of Tarry's Fined for Hitting a Rossland Youth

ROSSLAND, B.C., Sept. 19 — Pleading guilty to a charge of occasioning bodily harm to 15-year-old George Watson of this city, William Markin, a Tarry's Doukhobor, was fined $50, and $35 costs by Joseph Speakman, stipendiary magistrate, in Castlegar late last week.

Markin allegedly struck the boy in the face with his fist, drawing blood and lacerating the features.

That the victim of the assault and his companions were trespassing on his property, was the excuse the accused presented.

It was proved that the property had been rented to another party, and that Markin had no jurisdiction over it.

Provincial Constable John Henry prosecuted.

ment probably would consider the London proposals but only as a basis for further negotiation.

BEWILDERED AND HARASSED

Bewildered and harassed between the two desires—to maintain their republic intact in the face of the drive of totalitarian powers and to solve the differences with their minorities which they claim always have been well-treated — Czechs saw in the French and British proposals a sounding board for additional parleys in the future.

While the government stationed police throughout Prague and took extraordinary measures to prevent unfriendly popular demonstrations against the proposed surrender to Germany of Sudeten German areas containing much of the nation's defence fortifications and a large percentage of her industrial resources, a glimmer or two of hope lifted up the Czechs who earlier had almost despaired of outside aid.

After a nearly 12-hour session of the cabinet it was indicated in sources close to the government that the assistance of the Czechs' French allies had not entirely disappeared.

LITTLE SUNLIGHT

These sources said as the cabinet meeting broke up that two new developments threw a little sunlight into the otherwise gloomy situation:

1. A majority of the cabinet stood firmly against Hitler's purported suggestion that all cities which gave the Sudeten German party, now outlawed, a 70 per cent or more plurality in the last municipal elections be handed over automatically to the Reich.

2. The French cabinet was understood here to be exercising no pressure on Czechoslovakia to accept the Franco-British program.

Semi-official information reaching here from Paris said the French were caught between these alternatives: Either to agree at least to formulation of the fuehrer's suggestions or to accept the fact that Great Britain could not be considered as a potential fighter on the side of France and Czechoslovakia if war comes.

In this situation, it was said, Premier Daladier of France had replied by taking the partition plan back to Paris for discussion, but what he did not do was to promise Britain he would attempt to force its acceptance upon Czechoslovakia.

POLICE WITH SABRES

Steel-helmeted police armed with sabres appeared in greater numbers in the main streets of Prague. Everywhere there was a feeling of tenseness and uncertainty about what might happen next.

The government applied more rigidly the state of emergency proclaimed Saturday. It ordered censorship of the press, requiring all newspapers to give an hour's notice to the ministry of interior of what they intended to publish.

A limited telephonic censorship also was believed in effect.

New regulations provided also that letters going abroad must be mailed unsealed and prohibited the use of "little known languages or telegraphic codes."

The interim parliamentary committee, acting in the capacity of parliament as a whole, enacted regulations against the exportation of currency.

FLASHY SIGNS TABOO

Mayor Peter Zenkl of Prague asked shop owners not to permit the display of flashy electric signs at night but he specified that store windows could be lighted.

The Czechs were more angered by the Anglo-French plan as reported here than at any other time in a week of fast-moving developments.

Their attitude generally was pessimistic over their future.

DEPENDING ON RUSSIA?

GENEVA, Sept. 19 (CP) — Czechoslovakia was reported to have fallen back on Soviet Russia tonight in the hope Moscow might back her up against French and British pressure to give her Sudetenland to Germany.

Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff of Russia was said to have sent to Moscow a Czechoslovak request for support delivered to his delegation earlier in the day by Edouard Heidrich, Czechoslovak foreign office expert.

Both Russian and Czechoslovak officials refused to give any details of a talk Heidrich had with Jacob Suritz, Soviet ambassador to France, and they denied Heidrich talked with Litvinoff.

They openly stated the last hope of Prague lay with Russia.

GRADS WALLOP CANTON, 77-52

Grads, who have held the trophy since 1923, won the first game 75-25. Third game will be played Wednesday.

POLICE TESTIFY GOOD WOBBLY; DEFENCE SAYS LIBATIONS FEW

Intoxicated Driving Case Will Go on Today

While police witnesses at the trial of A. H. Good, Monday, on a charge of driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated, claimed that Good was staggering, incoherent, and abusive, and had a breath that smelt of liquor, evidence of the first two defence witnesses called suggested Good's libations were limited to a total of three glasses of beer.

After an all day session, Magistrate William Brown adourned the trial to Tuesday morning at 10 a.m. when three more defence witnesses, including Good himself, will be heard.

The charge arose out of a collision of a car driven by Good and another by Mrs. G. A. C. Walley at the corner of High and Park streets, shortly after 8 p.m., September 12. Mrs. James Johnston, occupant of the Walley car, is in Kootenay Lake General hospital suffering from a laceration of the scalp and an injury to her breast bone. Mrs. Walley and Mrs. Roy Freeman, in the same car, suffered cuts about the face, and Mrs. Walley also received an ankle injury. Police Chief Alex Stewart is prosecuting and H. C. Irving is counsel for the defence.

CHIEF TESTIFIES

Chief Stewart testified that when he arrived at the scene of the accident at about 8:45 p.m., Good was staggering, his speech being incoherent. He was quarrelsome and abusive, and his breath smelt strong of hard liquor. The chief added that when he was investigating the accident Good had said: "I was hit by another car and shoved off the road."

In crossexamining Chief Stewart, Mr. Irving asked if that remark was "incoherent" or "unintelligible." The chief replied that the words that followed were incoherent.

Constable Wilfred Icard, who had arrived at the scene of the accident before Chief Stewart, also testified that Good was abusive, and made fun of his remarks.

Laurence Simpson, first prosecution witness called, testified that he was driving toward town at about 8 p.m. when at the hospital corner he met a car proceeding in the opposite direction. It left him only nine feet of a 29-foot highway, to get by. A few seconds after the car passed, he heard a crash. He parked his auto on Park street and walked back to investigate.

Mr. Simpson described the position of the cars.

Dr. G. A. C. Walley told the court the estimated damage to his car was $300. On arriving at the scene of the accident he recognized Good to be a man he had seen earlier in the day and who apparently had been drinking.

EXTENT OF DRINKING

Wolfgang Hauffe testified that he and Good each had had a glass of beer at the Savoy beer parlor. He was in Good's car when the collision occurred, but said he did not see the Walley car until it was within two or three feet of them. He said he had no time to brace himself for the collision. The lights on the Walley car were bright, he said. He only remained at the scene of the accident for 15 or 20 seconds. He was bleeding freely and went up to the hospital.

Louis Aurella, waiter in the Savoy beer parlor, was the first defence witness called. He testified that he had served Good and another man each one glass of beer.

Kurt Westphal, second defence witness, told of meeting Good down town at about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and testified that each had had two glasses of beer at the Hume.

He contended Good was sober, for he had spent some time with him, Good later driving him home. He invited Good and his wife to supper which they usually had around 7 p.m. Good went to get his wife but they never came. He later learned of the accident.

This witness told the chief that Good did not have a bottle on him.

Pattullo and Four Cabinet Ministers Leave For Ottawa

VICTORIA, Sept. 19 (CP)—Exodus of provincial cabinet ministers from Victoria commenced last weekend and by tomorrow night only three members will be left in the capital.

Gordon S. Wismer, attorney general of British Columbia, left Vancouver for a short hunting and fishing trip in the Kamloops district of the province before joining Premier T. D. Pattullo and three cabinet colleagues at Ottawa.

Tuesday night Premier Pattullo, Hon. G. S. Pearson, minister of labor, Hon. John Hart, minister of finance, and Hon. George M. Weir, provincial secretary, plan to leave for Ottawa to discuss provincial matters with federal authorities.

This will leave in Victoria Hon. A. Wells Gray, minister of lands, as acting premier, Hon. W. J. Asseltine, minister of mines and Hon. K. C. MacDonald, minister of agriculture. Next week-end Hon. F. M. MacPherson, minister of public works, will return from the Canadian good roads league convention.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Creston Hospital W. A. Make Plans

CRESTON, B.C.—After the July-August vacation Creston Valley hospital Women's auxiliary resumed its monthly sessions Thursday at the Trinity Church hall. The president, Mrs. Frank Staples, was in charge, with Miss Marjorie Hamilton, secretary. 18 members were present.

The members were unanimous in the decision to have the usual hope chest, to be filled with articles donated by friends of the hospital, which will be raffled prior to Christmas. This year, in addition to the chest, there will be six extra prizes, instead of four as in the past. Mrs. Hipwell will be asked to take charge of the effort, assisted by Mrs. R. J. Forbes and Mrs. W. L. Bell.

Mrs. C. H. Hare replaces Mrs. G. G. McKenzie on the buying comittee for the balance of the year, the latter having moved to Vancouver.

Mrs. McKenzie's report was submitted by Mrs. C. H. Messinger, and the committee was authorized to do considerable purchasing to replenish the linen closet at the hospital.

The meeting agreed to have the annual fruit, jam, jelly and pickle shower in October, and a committee to supervise the effort will be named next month. All interested are advised that there is still a supply of empty sealers at the hospital that can be had for the asking.

The action of the executive in presenting Miss E. Cooke, retiring matron with a set of costume jewelery prior to her departure was concurred in by the membership.

Giant Liner To Be Launched Sept. 27

GLASGOW, Sept. 19 (CP)—Close to 40,000 tons of steel will slide into the River Clyde when the liner Queen Elizabeth is launched here September 27.

The giant liner, about 85,000 tons, will be launched at an angle and it is estimated she will travel only 200 feet in the water before coming to rest. The launching presents a difficult problem, for the width of the river is less than the length of the Queen Elizabeth, 1031 feet from stem to stern.

A combination of electric eye and moving picture apparatus will be used at the actual ceremony. The electric eye was used during the tests, registering the time a model took to clear the slip and stop moving.

When the launching takes place the electric eye, placed opposite the stern, will photograph on a motion picture film the movement of the hull. Any hitch or deviation from normal would thus be registered instantaneously. This data is expected to prove of value in subsequent launchings.

Aberhart Made Error in Not Cooperating With Dominion, Says

VICTORIA, Sept. 19 (CP)—Premier Pattullo stated today he had received a letter from Premier Aberhart of Alberta, suggesting that the provinces should come together in conference without representation of the central government.

Mr. Pattullo said he advised Premier Aberhart he thought the Alberta government made a grave error in not cooperating more fully with the Dominion government in endeavoring to arrive at beneficial conclusions regarding Dominion-provincial relationships.

Premier Pattullo also advised Mr. Aberhart that he thought such a conference as proposed would only create new dissentions and result in nothing of practical character so far as Dominion-provincial relations are concerned.

Inquiry Into Bren Machine Gun Contract Adjourned For a Week

OTTAWA, Sept. 19 (CP)—The inquiry into the Bren machine gun contract between the Canadian government and the John Inglis company of Toronto was adjourned a week soon after it opened here today.

The adjournment, requested by Hon. J. L. Ralston, commission counsel and former minister of national defence, was agreed to by other counsel and approved by Mr. Justice H. H. Davis, commissioner.

The adjournment was for the purpose of obtaining from the British war office permission to file correspondence and documents passing between the Canadian and British governments, and between the John Inglis company and the British government.

The documents to be presented, if the British government agrees, include the contract between the war office and the John Inglis company for 5,000 machine guns. The Canadian contract for 7,000 guns, which prompted the criticism contained in a magazine article by Col. George Drew of Toronto and led up to this inquiry, was tabled today.

Col. Ralston said a firm of chartered accountants had been engaged to examine the books of the John Inglis company and had not yet completed its work. Some of Col. Drew's allegations related to the financial set-up of the company and it was important that a report on it be obtained.

Col. Drew asked specifically that a statement made by Hon. Ian MacKenzie be filed and Col. Ralston agreed.

Paul Belcourt of Ottawa was sworn in as secretary. Aime Geoffrion of Montreal and J. C. McCruer of Toronto represented the John Inglis company. I. F. Hellmuth of Toronto said with Col. Drew he was representing the Maclean publishing company. Col. Drew declined the government's offer to pay counsel fees on his behalf.

Col. Drew suggested all correspondence between any person at Canada House in London and anyone in Czechoslovakia, Australia or Canada relating to the Bren gun be filed and also all correspondence making any reference to Mr. MacKenzie, General LaFleche, any member of the Plaxton family or Major J. E. Hahn, head of the John Inglis company, be available.

Col. Ralston said this appeared a reasonable request subject to the discretion of the commissioner as to the admissibility of particular documents.

Hon. Ian Mackenzie, minister of defence, was an interested spectator at the opening proceedings.

He said it was impossible to say where the centre would strike but it probably would be somewhere between Palm Beach and the string of keys off the southernmost tip of the peninsula.

Nutrition . . .

How Energy Is Supplied and Utilized Told

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The central thing that we do is to make our muscles move. Of course, it would be more logical to say that the central thing we do is to think. We are going to discuss that somewhat tomorrow and will reserve the debate until then, simply saying that movement of muscles is what all the processes of digestion and respiration and circulation are formed to produce. Digestion gets from food energy for the muscles, respiration gets oxygen to produce the spark, the circulation brings them together to the muscles, where the energy is to be utilized.

That, of course, is not all there is to this process of metabolism. But the muscle makes a typical unit to study the processes of metabolism or nutrition.

SUGAR FROM STARCH

The movement of the muscle, the thing that does the work, depends on the metabolism of sugar. Most of the sugar in the body comes from the starch in the food. In order to make a muscle contract, glucose sugar has to unite with oxygen in the body of the muscle itself.

When the muscle begins to grow or hypertrophy because there is more work to be done, then is protein required for metabolism.

In contracting, the muscles require certain minerals to be present in the surrounding blood in order to function smoothly. A lack of calcium will cause a purposeless contraction called "tetany", for instance. And vitamins affect at least the nerve impulses, if not the muscle fibers themselves.

So in this apparently simple process of the contracting of a muscle, we have the utilization of all the foodstuffs absorbed in digestion except fat. And it is quite possible that the metabolism of fat plays some part in muscular contraction. From a study of the tension of muscles in which the carbohydrate had been reduced by insulin convulsion, Myernof and Gemmill concluded that part of the total energy is supplied by other material than carbohydrate, and that material must be fat.

OTHER ORGANS, TOO

Metabolic changes, of course, go on in other organs, and the fundamental foodstuffs and minerals are used by the brain and the bones and the visceral organs, as well as the muscles.

All of these metabolic processes may go wrong—each one in its own field. If carbohydrate mechanism fails, diabetes results. If fat metabolism goes wrong, obesity or emaciation ensues. If protein metabolism goes wrong, there is gout. The minerals also produce disease by not conforming to their proper function — we have already mentioned tetany as a result of calcium deficiency, and it is easy to recall iron deficiency as a cause of anemia.

In regulating all these intimate central processes, the vitamins in the food, and especially the secretions of the ductless glands are regulatory.

New Hair Styles Make Eye Make-Up A Necessity But It Must Be Subtle

By JULIET SHELBY

"From woman's eyes this doctrine I derive:
They sparkle still the right Promethean fire:
They are the books, the arts, the academies
That show, contain, and nourish all the world."
—Ibid.

It was the marvelous article of "Eyes" in the September Harper's Bazaar written by the clever Elinor Guthrie Neff that lifted us into this poetic vein. We are thrilled with the new makeup and lovely colored illustrations showing the new tints and frames in this season's eyes.

She ushers us along from the naive past, then eye makeup was considered just "Too, Too" for the nice girl, to the smart and sensible present of subtle eye beauty.

Miss Neff thinks the revival of coquetry, the romantic attitude and up-brushed hair make eye makeup a necessary theme in our beauty harmony. It must be deliberate but at the same time subtle and built up on aesthetic principles. A soulful expression and arch glance is not enough. Your eyes may be naturally beautiful, limpid as water and exquisitely set, but now with your brow bared and crowned with curls, they must be accented. They must hold their own against that scarlet exclamation point which is your mouth.

Think first of their framing. The eyebrows are the frames and must be clear, defined and gleaming against your smooth skin. We no longer accent the frames and you will be deft in the coloring and avoid the firm, defined line, but paint light hair-like strokes with the well-sharpened pencil point. A touch of eyelash grower will assure the glamor to the arch and a suggestion of oil on the lids makes them youthful in their softness.

Eyeshadow is the rule for everyone who will apply it with restraint. Small eyes are made interesting with the shadow blended almost to the eyebrows.

Always keep the rim of the lids dark. This is done by a pencil that will easily trace the line at the roots of the lashes. Miss Neff reminds us to keep the shadow well within the outer tip of the brows when they are set far apart, but for the close-set brows it may be blended out toward the temples.

NOTES IN THE DIARY OF A FASHION MODEL

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Stunning travel coat

We are winding up our business in Paris, and then we are going to London. Eileen is so eager to get home again and to see the children.

Consuelo wants to give a little party before she leaves Paris. There are several nice people visiting from home, so it will be nice to see them. I don't mind confessing that I am awfully homesick. I've been dining at the smartest places, but believe you me, I'd like to be perched on the stool of my favorite drug store luncheon counter right now ordering a nice toasted sandwich and a malted milk.

Talking of going home reminds me of a beautiful travel coat. It is of hairy-surfaced woolen in one of the new lavender shades and is worn with a scarf and gloves of purple velvet. Decorative seaming forms slit pockets at the hips. The waistline is defined at back and sides by a narrow fold. Sleeves have slight under-arm fullness, and the coat blouses slightly in back. It has matching leather buttons.

Canadian Schoolgirls Attend School Founded By the Late Rudyard Kipling

By MOLLIE McGEE
Canadian Press Correspondent

LONDON (CP)—Canadian school girls are learning how to keep fit in England. About 50 young women from various provinces in Canada, attending the summer school organized by the Overseas Education League at St. Albans, Kent, are taking part in the regular exercises of the English Gymnastic society and their programs of folk dancing and physical jerks, as well as the curriculum of British art, music, speech and traditional culture.

This may sound a little strenuous, but the school inaugurated by the late Rudyard Kipling with the object of bringing Canadian and English girls together is one at which school hours are really enjoytd. Formation of friendships and interchange of ideas is the main object rather than the acquirement of intellectual polish.

As well as the visiting Canadians and their British hosts this summer the roll of students includes six German schoolgirls and a young Hungarian whose father is a noted orchestra leader in Budapest.

Students attending the summer school visited Canterbury Cathedral and Kentish seaports and villages famous in history and fiction.

Announcements have been made by the Overseas Educational league of a number of scholarships awarded to British schoolgirls who will visit the dominion next year and attend classes in schools in Canada. Among those who were successful are pupils from such well known colleges as Pate's Grammar School, Cheltenham, Gloucester and Lyndney Grammar schools.

The Clothesworkers' Eompany (one of the wealthiest London City Guilds) has awarded scholarships to two pupils of the Mary Datchelor school, Camberwell.

PRICESSES IN SCOTLAND

While other little girls are attending such classes, the two most interesting young scholars in England, Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose, are having a real holiday. They each packed their bags before they left on the royal yacht for the trip with their parents to Scotland. Princess Elizabeth has a dressing case in blue leather, Princess Margaret Rose one in rose pink with a travelling clock to match.

Up in the north their greatest treats are picnics and with their parents they are frequent visitors to the lonely coves of Loch Muick where the two young princesses can take off their shoes and stockings and spend the afternoon paddling without fear of being disturbed by inquisitive onlookers.

WOMEN AVIATORS TRAIN

Meanwhile the women's army in the air, the Civil Air Guard, is proceeding with its training. The practice outfits are most becoming white overalls in a pattern worn by mechanics with baggy trousers and wide belts.

Although the public is a trifle dubious as to what will happen when the women try their wings, several hundred are already at the "up in the air" stage and no casualties have been reported yet. Whether such interests will interfere with household work and "doing the dishes" remains to be seen when husbands write to the papers.

Good Advice About Constipation!

A doctor would tell you that the best thing to do with any ailment is to get at its cause. If you're constipated, don't fiddle with makeshift remedies. Find out what's giving you the trouble!

Chances are you won't have to look very far, if you eat just the things most people do. Most likely, you don't get enough "bulk"! And "bulk" doesn't mean just a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is what you lack, your ticket is crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the intestinal tonic, vitamin B1.

Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and join the "regulars"! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

In Babies . . .

Lack of Sunshine Or Cod Liver Oil Is Cause Rickets

Question: Why do some babies get the rickets?

A. For the want of enough sunshine or its nearest substitute, cod liver oil, or other deep-sea fish oil. Richitic children, when they begin to stand and walk, become bow-legged. Next time you see an adolescent or adult noticeably bow-legged, you can say to yourself: "Not enough sunshine or cod liver oil in babyhood." Isn't it too bad that thousands and thousands of babies and young children who easily could have sunshine, do not, because their mothers do not know enough or care enough that they should?

Q. Can the thumb-sucking habit be prevented?

A. Yes; if the mother works on herself and the infant early enough—chiefly on herself—provided it has adequate diet. If she is calm and serene, never rebukes the infant for having thumb or finger in mouth, nor jerks it out; if during the early months the baby's hands are enclosed in a roomy sleeping bag, or very long sleeves of nightes, that are shut with drawstrings. Only a competent doctor may be able to advise the mother about the infant's diet.

Q. If the habit of thumb-sucking is long practiced, what may be done?

A. The longer the habit has been practiced, the less can be done by working on the child, and the more by the parents' working on themselves. The older the child, the more important it is to strive for a calm and serene atmosphere; and the less effective will mechanical device be, as a rule.

If the child fightingly resists mechanical devices, you had better put no faith in them. Trust to winning the child's cooperation in a more satisfying atmosphere. And don't look for immediate cure.

HAS NIGHT TERRORS

Q. My bay, almost two, gets night terrors. What should I do?

A. See a good doctor at once. See that he checks on the child's diet; also that he carefully examines the baby's nose, throat ears. Inflammation of the ear, breathing obstructions, or digestive disorders sometimes cause night terrors. Much more often than not, perhaps, night terrors induced psychologically by day experiences. Protect this child from emotional shock and strain while awake. Let the radio be silent then. Adhere rigidly to schedule in all his routines, especially of his sleep. Work on yourself and the rest of the family for quiet voices and serenity. Rest more yourself. Neglect more things. Put yourself and the baby first.

Q. When my three-year-old boy get angry he will bite anybody near him.

A. Spank him instantly with several lusty smacks by your bare flat hand low on his bare fat thighs. Make it hurt. The spank must be immediate or not at all. Be always present when other children are with him until the habit is corrected. Don't bit him back—too dangerous.

Girls Can Train Boy Friends to Do Their Share

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Dear Miss Chatfield:

We are in a pocket and we don't know how we got in or how to get out. My sister and I used to have boy friends that took us out to the movies and to dances and to sport events. Gradually we have reached the point where we sit at home, play ping pong, listen to the radio and talk. We never have a bid to go out. We are sick of it and while we aren't mercenary and aren't gold diggers in any sense we feel that the boys are taking a mean advantage of us Please help us for we are desperate. SISTERS.

ANSWER—Regardless of how you got in the pocket, the way to get out is to break out and do it with a bang. Either your present crop of beaux is composed of tightwads and deadbeats, or they are ignoramuses who don't know what's expected of a boy friend. If they are worth teaching you might try that plan first.

Everybody knows that a ping pong table and a radio and a victrola are good boy bait and it's grand idea for girls to set them out; but when the boys continue to take the bait and leave the hooks bare, this is time to fold up the table, (cut off the victrola, and tell the dates that you are movie hungry that you can't keep your feet still another evening and that you think it would be fun to have a late snack after the dance.

If they don't take the first hint you should go out and get some new boy friends which I know is more easily said than done. You have made the mistake that is frequently made by sisters nearly the same age, you have chummed with each other and neglected to make girl friends. Yet this is the best way to widen your acquaintance among the boys: get into a group of girls whose dates know what's expected of them. Gradually you can ease out your positions as hostesses, always at home to a bunch of bait eaters.

Serial Story . . .

TWO WORLDS

By MAUD McCURDY WELCH

CHAPTER 47

Noel was so astonished by Nick's unexpected words, when he told her he was taking her out of the country with him, that for a moment she couldn't speak.

"Of course I intend to marry you," Nick went on in his tight-voice. "That can be arranged on shipboard. I think we had better go to the Riviera."

"You're mad—utterly made," Noel exclaimed.

"Yes—about you. If I hadn't been, do you suppose I'd have done what I did? And now that I have you, do you think for one minute I'm going to let you go to that young doctor? Not me. Not Nick Luigi," he repeated.

"This is the twentieth century. A man can't force a girl to marry him. Tha time has long ago passed."

"Times may have changed, but men haven't," Nick said briefly. "There's a hundred different ways I could manage it. I could take you onto the ship on a stretcher, pretend you were ill with the aid of something to insure your being quiet. I could keep you in your cabin until the ship docked. Could either have a ceremony performed on the boat, or let it be understood that you were my wife. That I was taking you to Europe to some specialist."

"Nick, you wouldn't dare try a thing like that. You wouldn't dare!" Noel exclaimed furiously.

"Oh, wouldn't I?" he retorted. "I've gotten by with other things a lot more difficult," he went on. "There's no danger of a slip-up. None at all. However, you are right in one thing," he admitted, "the day of the racketeer is over. The government has become too smart for us. I'm anxious to settle down in one of the beauty spots of the world. I've got my pile, to say nothing of what you've got. We could have a very enjoyable life together."

"That's what you think!" Noel returned with spirit. She kept saying over and over to herself that Nick couldn't get away with this. If he slowed down again, she had made up her mind to leap from the car.

But the speedometer showed 55, now and then 60. If they were not close to town, he would have driven faster than that, Noel thought. But there might be some danger of a speed officer. "There are women," Nick began, glancing once at Noel's face, "who have found me interesting and not exactly hard to look at."

"I can believe that," Noel replied indifferently.

"I put my life in danger for you—don't you owe me something for that?"

"You're asking too much. Anything reasonable—" Noel let the sentence hang in mid-air.

"I'm only asking what I mean to have," Nick said grimly. Then he added. "You probably haven't realized it, but we're on our way to New Orleans. There's a fruit boat sailing at midnight. I believe we can make it."

Noel sat perfectly still. She knew nothing on earth would induce her to get on a boat at New Orleans, even if Nick succeeded in getting her there.

Nick was driving faster now. The speedometer jumped up to 60—65—70. Even with Nick's skillfull handling of the wheel, Noel knew they were going at a most dangerous speed.

There was little chance of making him hear her now, but Noel did beg him to slow down. The speedometer registered 75. Noel thought Nick might have read her thoughts and knew that she had been thinking of leaping from the car. Perhaps that was why he was going at such a terrible speed so she wouldn't dare risk it.

The car wasn't a very heavy one. Noel did not know the make of it, but there were times when it actually seemed to bounce in the air.

Gradually, it came to Noel why Nick didn't dare slacken his speed. Over the roar of the motor and the rush of wind, she could hear a car behind them It was evidently in pursuit. Nick didn't dare slow up!

Even at that, Noel thought their pursuers were gaining. She could hear the sound of the car more plainly now. It had a strange sound—not like an automobile. And yet what else could it be, she wondered.

Nick said between lips, "If those ruffians catch us, they won't stop at anything."

A sick shudder passed over Noel. Were their pursuers the men Nick had left tied up in the house?

"I've taken money," Nick was saying above the roar of the car, "any way I could get it. But I've never shed blood. Been squeamish about that. But these men are killers."

The pursuing car was still gaining. Noel carefully moved around so she could look through the glass at the rear. But all she could see was an immense cloud of dust, caused by Nick's car.

Then all at once something came hurtling through the dust, snorting, sputtering, charging like a thing possessed of demons. At last Noel could see that it was a motorcycle. Then it couldn't be the men Nick left behind tied up with ropes!

Noel glanced at Nick. His jaw was set grimly, he was hanging on to the wheel with all his strength and yet he must have known that his game was up.

And the next thing the motorcycle had roared past them in a whirling cloud of dust. Noel's heart sank as it disappeared. She had thought is was a motorcycle policeman, that she would be rescued. Now—what?

Then she came to the realization that Nick was slowing up. At last he brought the car to a complete stop. There was the motorcycle standing directly in the path of the car. A figure leaped from it in cap and goggles—ran over to the car just as Nick jumped out.

"Look out!" Noel screamed. "He has a gun."

A strange thing happened then. Noel had expected to hear a shot. Instead, she saw the revolver suddenly fly up in the air to land a few feet from where the two men now stood locked in a desperate grip.

It was the work of a minute for Noel to run and pick up the gun, removing it to a safe distance against a tree, concealing it under some leaves. She didn't intend for Nick to find it, and she knew he had given the other one to Vincent.

The two men were fighting desperately, dealing each other vicious blows right and left. But it was Nick who was losing under the onslaught of such terrific blows. He might even be killed, Noel thought. She didn't want that. She couldn't bear it. "Let him go," she cried frenziedly. "He hasn't harmed me. Stop—stop, I say!"

It seemed several minutes before her voice penetrated the mind of the man who was fighting Nick with such superhuman strength. His arms fell suddenly away. Nick staggered backward, reeled groggily for a moment, then regaining his balance, he limped painfully to his car.

Noel glanced at Nick's assailant. Then a cry came from her lips, "Julian, oh, Julian!"

He had taken off the goggles and cap and stood there, panting a little. In another minute he had a protecting arm around Noel.

"It seems that your friend is a better fighter than a doctor," Nick said wryly, as he leaned against the car. "He would have killed me if you hadn't stopped him."

"Nick, please go on to Italy, or wherever it was you were going." Noel's voice was pleading.

Nick glanced questioningly at Julian, then climbed painfully into his car. "We're even, I guess," he said to Noel. For a moment his eyes lingered on her. Then he drove off.

"I suppose I did go after him like a maniac," Julian said.

"You were wonderful," Noel exclaimed. She picked up the gun, then asked how he had managed to throw it out of Nick's hand.

"Jiu jitsu," he said with a smile. Then added. "Come on, I'm taking you home. And this time you're going."

Hints for Housewives

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

Some native peoples rub noses as a farewell. We give gifts and parties as send-off gestures. And the food gesture is one of the nicest and most practical. It is nice to be able to present a surprise box of food to speed the parting guest on a day-long trip!

BON VOYAGE BOX

For a bon voyage box it is a good idea to choose a metal box with a tightly-fitting lid, and don't forget, waxed and transparent paper for packing. Stuffed dates are perfect for child or adult; they are a fruit and a confection all in one. Stuff them with nuts or fondant and roll them in sugar. Nuts, such as Brazil nuts, or almonds are nice, and if there is to be a party given in cabin aboard ship, then it is a nice gesture to send along a box of toasted nuts that can be served.

BRAZILIAN TOFFEE

Candy made at home is always a nice gesture, so here is a good recipe. Brazilian toffee requires two cups sugar, one and one half cups each dark corn syrup and thin cream, one half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons butter, one and one half teaspoons vanilla, one and one half cups chopped Brazil nuts.

Put sugar, syrup, cream and salt into a heavy saucepan and stir till sugar is dissolved. Cook to 244 F. Stir mixture thoroughly to prevent burning. Add butter and cook to slightly brittle stage or 252 F. Remove from heat; add vanilla and nuts. Pour onto greased slab and mark into squares, while still warm.

PARTY PUNCH

Right here is as good a spot as any to give a recipe for a splendid party punch, nice to speed the parting guest or welcome home the vacationist. Ingredients include one half cup sugar syrup, six stalks fresh mint, two tablespoons lemon juice, one half cup canned grapefruit juice, one cup ice water and two cups ginger ale.

To make the sugar syrup, put sugar and water in saucepan and stir until sugar is dissolved. Remove tips from mint and crush stalks in one half cup of the hot sugar syrup; let stand half an hour then strain. Add fruit juices and water. Add ginger ale just before serving.

COFFEE IMPERIAL

Coffee imperial is another delicious drink, exotic and different. Ingredients include four two-inch sticks of cinnamon, six cups hot, freshly-brewed strong coffee, one third cup sugar, one cup whipping cream and chopped ice. Add the cinnamon to the hot coffee and allow to stand for about an hour.

Remove the cinnamon, add the sugar (add more if desired) and one half cup of the cream, then chill. Pour the mixture into six tall glasses and fill with chipped ice. Whip the remaining cream and add a little sugar, also, if desired, some almond flavoring.

Place a spoon of cream in each serving. Incidentally, a nice gift, especially for the person who is off to far lands, is a nice big container of his or her favorite brand of coffee.

CITRON PRESERVES

Cut the melons in quarters and the quarters into smaller pieces and remove the rind; then cut the pieces into such shapes as desired. Cubes or squares about an inch and a half in length are suitable. Cover the pieces of melon with cold water to which a little table salt has been added (a tablespoonful to a quart) and let stand over night. The next day drain and rinse repeatedly in cold water, then set to cook in boiling water. When tender and transparent, yet whole, set to drain in a colander. Allow three quarters of a pound of sugar, half an ounce of ginger root or stems, and one lemon for each pound of prepared melon; slice the lemon and discard the seeds; slice the ginger root or stems; set to cook separately in boiling water and let boil until tender. Make a syrup of the sugar and water drained from the lemons and ginger, skim, then add melon, let cook until the pieces of melon look plump and full of syrup; skim the melon into jars and return the syrup draining from the melon to the rest of the syrup; add the pieces of lemon and ginger and let cook until thick, then use to fill the jars. Glass cans, earthen jars or empty ginger jars may be used for storing this preserve. Casaba melon may be put up in the same manner.

FERNIE PIONEER DIES AT AGE 77

FERNIE, B. C., Sept. 18 (CP)—Mrs. William Eschwigg, 77-year-old pioneer of the East Kootenay interior of British Columbia, died Saturday after a brief illness.

Mrs. Eschwig came to this district in the late 1890's before the railway through the Rocky mountains' Crows Nest Pass was built. Her husband, proprietor of the old Northern hotel, died four years ago, and Mrs. Eschwig kept the business operating with the help of her daughter, Mrs. L. Barrett.

William Eschwig and Clarence Eschwig of Whitefish, Mont., are sons.

Manion Will Not Visit the West

OTTAWA, Sept. 19 (CP)—Hon. Robert Manion, Conservative leader, will not make a trip to western Canada or attend the British Columbia Conservative convention at Kamloops, B.C., next Friday and Saturday.

It was understood that press of party business in eastern Canada and the uncertainty concerning the dates of the four pending federal by-elections was the reason for the cancellation.

Audience Applauds Col. Baker As He Tells of Work For Blind

Blinded Officer Urges Support for Works of National Institute for Blind; Says Soldiers Saved Canada

Appreciative to a man, an audience that applauded with "Hear, hear's" and "Bravo", listened to Lieut.-Col. E. A. Baker, blinded in October, 1915, in the Great War, tell of the work and development of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, at the Civic Theatre Sunday evening.

Col. Baker, who is managing director of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind received his B.Sc. degree in electrical engineering from Queen's University shortly before the Great War. He enlisted and served with the 6th Field company of Canadian Engineers and went overseas as a lieutenant. A wound resulted in total blindness in October 1915. He was promoted to the rank of captain and awarded the Military Cross and Crois de Guerre. After training at St. Dunstan's London, England, the world famous hostel for blinded soldiers, he returned to Canada. For two years he was with the hydro-electric power commission of Ontario.

He left that position in 1918 to take charge of training of blinded soldiers for the Canadian government. He became a charter member of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, and was made managing director. He is a dominion executive officer of the Amputation Association of the Great War, and secretary-treasurer of the Sir Arthur Pearson club of blinded soldiers and sailors. He is a member of the Canadian Council of Defence associations, representing Canadian Military engineers. He is also chairman of the Soldiers' Aid commission for Ontario, and is a member of the Forest Hill, Ont., board of education. He was made a member of the order of the British Empire by King George V, and has recently been promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

Mayor N. C. Stibbs, on behalf of the citizens of Nelson, welcomed Col. Baker to Nelson.

W. A. Woolls, president of the Nelson branch of the Canadian Legion, was chairman.

H. E. Thain, secretary of the Nelson branch of the Canadian Legion, formally introduced Col. Baker.

Col. Baker thanked Nelson people for the honor of having him visit here. He stated it was almost as good as a spot back east "that I love dearly", and said he could understand why people here could love the district.

WORK OF ST. DUNSTAN'S

Describing his work, Col. Baker paid high tribute to Sir Arthur Pearson, who was an inspiration for some 2300 blind soldiers in St. Dunstan's, in London.

He said a blind person could tell a great deal about a person by that person's voice. "There are what people call poker faces, but there are no poker voices," he said.

Giving a few examples of blind persons who have lived up to St. Dunstans' motto, that "Nothing is Impossible Until It has Been Proven So," Col. Baker told of a blinded sailor who entered St. Dunstan's, and wanted to be a deep sea diver. Col. Baker told of how a diver must work in comparative darkness anyway. The blind diver made use of this fact in his contention that he could become a diver. For several years, Col. Baker said, the man has been acting as a successful deep sea diver.

Another case was of a barber who was blinded, and after training at St. Dunstan's, went back to his barbering.

Canada was the first country to get free postage for Braille books for the blind. A book could be shipped anywhere from the Braille library and back again without cost.

CANADA'S BLIND

The number of blind soldiers in Canada in 1919 was 150. Since then, 60 have been added. These are drawn from 1600 who lost part of their sight in the Great War. Forty-eight of the blind soldiers have died since the war. There are 162 left. Of these, 120 are in Canada, and the rest scattered over other parts of the world. Including civilians, there are 9400 blind persons in Canada, of all ages. The youngest is seven months, and the oldest 111 years. There are over 30 blind people over 100 years of age.

Such things as Braille books, watches, tape measures and other things were supplied the blind by the Canadian National Institute. Col. Baker explained briefly the Braille system, stating there were six dots, which could be formed into different groups to form an alphabet.

TALKING BOOK

The greatest thing developed for the blind so far was the Talking Book, much the same as a phonograph. Whereas the common phonograph makes 76 turns per minute, the American Talking Book makes 33 turns per minute, and the English one, 25 turns.

Delving into the question of "Seeing Eye" dogs for the blind, Col. Baker said the training of the dogs was not yet quite developed in Canada. Not only the dogs had to be trained, but blind persons had to be trained to cooperate with the dogs. The first training place for dogs was set up in Switzerland, and later moved to Morristown, N.J., in the United States, where headquarters are at present. The training centre can turn out about 100 dogs a year.

A trainer to train both dogs and people was hard to find, Col. Baker said, as he must understand both animal and human psychology.

DIVERSIFIED NEEDS

Blind people represented a cross-section of the community as a whole, Col. Baker believed, as they came from every walk of life. The blind could not be grouped, as they were all different in class, outlook, work and other things.

The Canadian National Institute tried to teach and train every person in his own line of work, as far as was possible, he said.

"We can appeal to many people for aid in the Institute through their hearts, but more through their pockets," Col. Baker stated.

People don't appreciate what they have, he said, until they lose it. Even a blind person expresses appreciation for what he has. One case in a blind hospital was that of a man who felt sorry for a fellow patient because that man had lost an arm as well as his sight.

Col. Baker expressed the appreciation of the Canadian National Institute to the people of Nelson and district for help they had given. He declared it was the amount of help the Kootenay people gave now, that might determine how many Kootenay people in later years were aided.

He had met many men of the Canadian Legion all over the world, as well as other men, and he was sure that the Legion men were the strongest in heart and deed for the Empire. They were seeking solidarity and unity for the Empire.

Col. Baker said he had heard people nowadays say that youth was being cheated out of its heritage. But what heritage would they have at all, if Canadians 24 years ago had not been willing to fight for what they had, he asked. "I don't want my boys to have to march to war, or any other boys, but I would be ashamed to think they would not fight for what they have."

FIGHTING COULD BE PREFERABLE

"No one can accuse the Canadian Legion or me of not being peace loving, or even pacifists—but we know war. We don't want to go through it again." Among "Hear, hears", Col. Baker declared, "But we would rather fight than live under conditions some other would impose on us."

The militia is Canada's first line of defence, he said. And it is badly neglected. Equipment that was obsolete before the Great War is being used to train the men.

Officers right across the country are putting their own time and money into developing the militia. The people should help them, he said, as Canada was a rich prize if it were to be taken by any one. Speaking on behalf of veterans in Canada, Col. Baker stated they wanted peace, and would certainly back the peace movement in Canada.

Dr. H. H. MacKenzie thanked Col. Baker on behalf of the citizens for his talk.

Col. Baker is accompanied on his tour by Richard Myers, national secretary of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, and honorary Dominion secretary for the Amputation Association of the Great War.

Six Women's Institutes Compete Inonoaklin Fair; Edgewood Wins

Splendid Exhibits a Feature of Tenth District Fair

EDGEWOOD, B.C. — The tenth agricultural fair of Edgewood and Inonoaklin valley, held last Wednesday and Thursday, was a splendid success, proving as popular as ever, and drawing large crowds from the surrounding district, as well as visitors from Nakusp, New Denver and Nelson. While live stock entries were down, the farmers, despite an unfavorable season, came through strongly in all the produce classes, with heavy entries, and remarkable quality. Total entries were 550, about the same as last year.

Honors were widely distributed, and outside points naturally took the bulk of the awards, particularly in the fruit classes.

The feature of the fair was the Women's institute section, which amounted to a bedroom suite exhibition, no fewer than six institutes competing, as compared with three last year. This section took up the whole space along one side of the show building. Curtains at the back of each exhibit formed an attractive background. Mrs. Evans, in judging, gave the Edgewood institute 212 points out of a possible 250, with Needles 188, New Denver 162, Arrow Park 128, Nakusp 122, and Bonnington-South Slocan 118, these being the final marks after deducting the membership handicap, institutes with over 20 members being handicapped one point for every 10 members or major fraction.

The "Junior Farmers"—otherwise the young folks—had seven entries in the beef calf class, seven in the poultry classes, and three in the vegetables.

H. H. Evans of Vernon judged the farmers and floral sections, Mrs. Evans the domestic science, H. H. Jenne of Nelson the dairy section, and Dr. McKay of Kamloops the live stock. F. K. Littlewood was responsible for the hall decorations. Among visitors from Nelson were E. W. Somers, D. D. Townsend, J. B. Gray and R. Andrew, and also W. H. Kitto and Teddy Romano, the latter pair playing a game of tennis against local players. J. Taylor, Frank Broughton and Mr. Draper were on hand from New Denver.

On the second day, children's sports took place in the afternoon on the ground adjoining the hall, and in the evening, after the exhibits had been removed, a big dance was widely patronized.

Japan, China Same in Many Ways Rev. F. Hilliard Tells Rotary

China Gives Up Soft Ways; Has Vast Man-Power

Resources, geographical conditions and similarities of China and Japan were unfolded to Rotarians by Rev. Foster Hilliard, new pastor of St. Paul's United church, at their luncheon meeting in the Hume hotel Monday.

Illustrating his talk with a map, Mr. Hilliard, who was a missionary in Japan, stationed at Kobe for seven years, pointed out the five different parts of the Chinese republic. Besides China proper there were Inner and Outer Mongolia, Chinese Turkestan and Tibet.

Whether China could hold out against Japan was on a teeter-totter because of the comparatively small area of China that was populated. A large part of the country was open desert, and what was not desert was mountains, he said, and few people inhabited the regions. Areas of Japan and China that were populated were about the same.

Japan, in recent years, had taken to eating mainly bread, rather than rice, as formerly.

China, as a whole had about 430,000,000 people, equalling about two or three times the manpower of Japan, but many of them were untrained for military service.

Resources of China were hardly touched as yet, he said. Hankow had many large factories, in which some Japanese had considerable sums of money tied up.

MUCH THE SAME

In explaining similarities and differences between Chinese and Japanese, Mr. Hilliard said they were much alike in many ways. Koreans were particularly like the Japanese. They had been taken for one another many times. The Koreans had a particularly "leathery" skin on the face, stretched tight over high cheek bones. The Chinese had a round, fattened face, due mainly to his diet, while the Japanese had a thinner face. The Chinese relied largely on pork and chicken for his diet, while the Japanese ate but little meat.

Until 1911, a soldier was placed at the bottom of the social list in China, while in Japan he was at the top of the scale. Languages of the two countries were much alike.

ADMIRAL PERRY WOKE JAPAN UP

During the years from 1550 to 1850, Japan closed her doors to other countries, but in 1850 Admiral Perry "woke them up" to the rest of the world, when he landed there.

Prince Sionji, a little man high up in the Japanese government, was all that is holding Fascism out of the country, Mr. Hilliard said. Prince Sionji partly "ran" the country.

With its markets gone, and other causes contributing to its downfall, the Japanese government had been going "down hill" since 1918.

CHIANG KAI-CHEK

Mr. Hilliard traced the history of General Chiang Kai-chek and his wife during the generalissimo's abduction at Sian about Christmas time, 1936. Chiang was born the son of a wine seller. He studied hard and got two scholarships. He went to Tokyo to study, then went to Russia, where he remained from 1921 to 1925. Sun Yat Sen, the great Chinese leader, died in 1925. After a time the leadership went to Chiang Kai-chek, who had now been leader for 11 years.

The Chinese had changed their attitude of being soft and easy going, and nowadays, there was a "Go west, young man" movement in the country China was becoming really progressive In the last few years, 60,000 miles of good roads had been laid down.

Lieut.-Col. S. P. McMordie thanked Mr. Hilliard on behalf of the Rotary club.

J. P. Fink was chairman in the absence of Dr. D. W. McKay, president. Mr. Fink read a letter of thanks from J. C. Forbes, secretary of Kootenay Lake General hospital, for $100 received.

C. H. S. Bamford of Winnipeg and R. H. Potter of Saskatoon were guests of the club.

A noble deed is a step toward heaven.—J. G. Holland.

IT WON'T STAND EXAMINATION, SAY IRISH

Another big pin has been stuck into Premier Aberhart's oft-reinflated social credit bubble. The new Eire has been advised to have nothing to do with such schemes. After about four years of study, the Irish commission on banking, currency and credit, which, no doubt, had been observing proceedings in Alberta, gives President de Valera a lot of sound advice. Such credit schemes "largely suffered from faulty reasoning," and, though they might contain elements of truth, "these co-exist with large amounts of error."

Dealing with the Aberhartian idea that banks could create credit without cost, and that this credit might be placed at the disposal of society without any charge for interest or need for repayment, the commission says "that assumption does not stand examination."

The commission, which included eminent economic and financial experts, seems to have been guided by sound, if old-fashioned, views, including the virtue of budgetary frugality. It emphasizes the overriding need for tax relief and reduction of the national debt. It warns the government, as recorded in New Statesman and Nation, that "Eire's future lies primarily in agriculture, that high protection has depressed the standard of life of the urban consumer, and that the state has assumed a costly and (if things go ill) unmanageable load of industrial commitments." In short, Eire is advised to follow the lines of orthodox economy.

So it seems unlikely that anything in the nature of social credit will find a foothold in Eire. To a highly imaginative and enthusiastic people it might make appeal, though it is hard to envisage an Irish crusader with the general obtuseness of an Aberhart. So wild a scheme could not run the gauntlet of Irish humor and Irish ridicule. "Social credit" isn't even a good fairy story. And if Major Douglas would not come over to help Mr. Aberhart, it isn't likely that he would run the risk of going to Eire.

DON'T PLUCK RED LEAVES THAT ARE THREE TO A STEM

While the poison ivy may not be of wide occurrence in the Kootenay, it is common in some sections, and at least occurs in many others. The Trail area is one of those where this plant is common enough to justify special measures against it, and some years ago S. S. McDiarmid, then Trail city engineer, organized a drive for its eradication. This undesirable native is also common in the Pend d'Oreille valley, along with the beautiful sumac, and it is to be found at Ainsworth. Doubtless there is a sprinkling of poison ivy more or less through this country.

Now that it is adopting its gorgeous autumn dress, the time is opportune for residents in all parts of this district to scrutinize carefully all wild shrubs bearing red leaves, to see if they are in the type poison ivy form.

Respecting this plant, the Health League of Canada has just issued the following timely bulletin:

"The Rhus Toxicodendrom, or poison ivy, is about the first of the sumac family to change color in the fall. This change, due, not as popularly supposed to frost, but to chemical reaction in the chlorophyll of the plant turning the former green leaves to an attractive red, is liable to induce children and others to pick the leaves for house decoration. This is a costly error, for the sap from leaves and broken stems carries on oily substance that, in the more susceptible, causes an inflammation of the skin of greater or lesser severity.

"The plant is not difficult to recognize. Its fruit at first is a pale-green and about the size of a pea. As the fruit ripens, the pale-green and poisonous berries become cream-colord; they lose their poisonous properties and become food for many of the winged denizens of the forest. The leaves are in threes, hence the rhyme, 'Leaves three, let it be.'

"The susceptibility to ivy poisoning varies greatly. About one person in every 18 is badly poisoned by contact with it. Children are more susceptible than adults because their skins are more delicate.

"The best treatment of ivy poisoning is prevention. The individual plants should be uprooted. In the process gloves should be worn. The tools used should be washed in soap and hot water, and clothing and shoes should be carefully cleaned after contact. In cases where the oily sap has reached the skin the latter should be thoroughly washed with yellow soap and hot water. In more severe cases a doctor should be called.

"Children and adults should be educated to recognize the plant in order that they may avoid it. The authorities should be supported in their efforts to eradicate it, for contact is liable to spoil a summer holiday. Nature has provided an antidote which grows side by side with poison ivy. This is jewel weed, a plant with succulent stems and a small yellow flower resembling a ladies' slipper. The juice of this plant, if rubbed on the affected part, will prevent the poison ivy from taking effect."

Benevolence and feeling ennoble the most trifling actions.—Thackeray.

SALLY'S SALLIES

Laugh and the world laughs with you — growl and the world laughs at you.

In Nelson's Bypaths

"Nature calling all Columbian ground squirrels! Nature calling all Columbian ground squirrels! All Columbian ground squirrels ordered to retire to their nests, curl up, and go to sleep!"

We may not see Nature's radio system, not hear her accents calling but we may see the results of her orders communicated silently and mysteriously, and deduce their nature with reasonable exactness.

If you have noticed, the Columbian ground squirrels—"gophers" to you and me—have disappeared from their summer haunts; have disappeared from sight, in fact, and field and roadside are lifeless, so far as they are concerned. In a long day's drive, after the first week in September, you may glimpse one belated gopher scuttling across the road. Fields where they used to gambol, orchards where they used to feed, are empty, and their "Peep," Peep" calls are stilled till the winter's hibernation is over.

Our British Columbia ground squirrels belong to the large squirrel tribe, which has many ramification on the American continent. Though they resemble the marmots, including such giant representatives as the woodchuck of the south, and the whistler of our own mountain. The relationship is more distant, though both groups belong to the rodent order.

To the newcomer, especially if said newcomer has not previously had acquaintance with the gophers of the prairie wheat lands, he is quaint and attractive. To the golfer he may have less appeal. With this latter statement, anyone who has seen a favorite golf ball disappear into a deep gopher hole will warmly agree.

A ground squirrel he essentially is. In general form, including the broad and flowing tail, he is a squirrel, albeit an awkward and cumbersome one, and he has many of the squirrel mannerisms, including the "sitting up" pose, in which he completely distances his frisky relatives of the tree tops. He is also a squirrel in paying close attention to his line of retreat. A squirrel will not wander far from a tree; our fat-bodied, waddling "gopher" of the fields will always be within easy distance of one of the mouths of his burrow, to which he can scramble in a rolling, roly-poly way when danger threatens.

HAS TAKING WAYS

It is interesting to make personal acquaintance with individual gophers. Their taking ways are more appreciated on first acquaintance. As acquaintance matures, their cuteness is usually called by other names. Thus, the first day of your camp on some beach, you may hear the whistled or chirped "Peep" "Peep," from the surrounding brush, and be puzzled to know whether you are hearing a gopher or a spotted sandpiper. If the peeper is a sandpiper, sooner or later you will spot it on the stony creek-bank or in the water's edge; if it is a gopher, you will presently detect it watching you stealthily, from the edge of cover, into which it can vanish if you make a hostile move.

When meal time arrives, it will respond to crusts or other bits of food tossed its way, and in a day or two it will be accepting you as a friend.

On putting out a small "beans with pork" can, with a few beans, and possibly the infinitesimal official piece of pork, left, you will be amused at the way it will hook its teeth over the edge of the can and walk off with it. All these antics, and its other responses, are intriquing and you will be pleased at the way creatures of the wild are responding to your intelligent approach.

But when you come back after a day's fishing on the lake or up the creek, to find the pancake flour carton with a gaping hole in one corner, and the flour liberally spread over everything, your affection for your forward little neighbor will somewhat diminish. If you camp as long as a week, you will be obliged to size up your gopher family as entirely lacking in perception, and the chances are you will be throwing sticks at them, for you will have found that nothing that their chisel teeth can cut is sacred from their attentions, and that you cannot leave the tent safely for half an hour unless you have locked up everything capable of being damaged.

In due time, as the years pass, Mr. Gopher is nothing but a pest to you.

CENTS FOR GOPHER TAILS

To the ranchers, he is a proper subject for extermination, and most of the Women's Institutes of the Kootenay territory pay kiddies prize-money for gopher tails. To such a degree does disillusion progress, when the association with the gophers is too intimate, and they board at your expense on garden and field crops!

As it happens, I was a resident of the Kootenay the best part of a year before I came in contact with our Columbian ground squirrels. This is accounted for by the fact that I arrived at Nelson late in the year—September 27, a date when they were in retirement for the winter. It was not till the following July that they dawned on my horizon, when I made a trip to the Sheep Cheek camp, going up on horseback from Salmo. I must have been a wonderful sight to the natives; in fact I recall that all eyes at the hotel were bent in my direction as I walked my horse up the road and guided it around the corner. But we got to Archie Bremner's Halfway House at last—this was in 1910—and I watered the animal, hooked on its nosebag, and turned it loose to go home judging its own time.

I was used to the ordinary small light-colored gopher of the prairie, and to the tiny striped species, and the wonderfully large gophers with the brown backs and the rich fulvous under-bodies were intensely interesting to me. One of my trips, up Fawn creek and over Dominion mountain to the motherlode, was punctuated with these big fat boys. Just like the prairie gophers, they popped out of their holes to "freeze" in a sitting posture as they looked to see what was doing; and like the prairie ones they dodged out of sight on a close approach, to pop out of another entry for a safer and more distant observation.

HOW ABOUT GOPHER FUR?

I just wonder whether our Columbian ground squirrels could be turned to use as a source of fur. Our trappers market the pelts of flying squirrels. Of course "gopher" pelts would be coarse compared to the gray velvety pelts of the flying squirrels, but they might prove to have some utility. It would be interesting if some of the rural Women's Institutes would experiment in this matter.

The HUMAN SIDE OF THE NEWS

BY EDWIN C. HILL

(Central Press Canadian)
(Copyright, 1938)

Recently I told in an article the story of the beach of diamonds and of the discovery of the long-lost gold mines of King Solomon. Since that column appeared in print, interesting tales have come to me about the romantic history of some of the most famous diamonds ever found.

The Regent, which you may see in the Louvre, in Paris, was brought to light at Parteal, south of Golconda, by a slave who concealed the stone by cutting a gash in the calf of his leg and covering the stone with a bandage. He told his secret to a sailor who promised to find a purchaser, but who murdered the slave and sold the diamond for $1,000. He spent the money and hanged himself.

The Regent fell into the hands of Thomas Pitt, grandfather of William Pitt, Earl of Chatham, who paid 20,400 pounds for it. But it brought him no happiness. So fearful was he of losing it that he never slept twice in the same house. The Regent of France bought it for 135,000 pounds, and much later Napoleon wore it in the hilt of his dress sword. It is the size of a large plum, perfectly white and without spot or flaw.

SOVIETS HAVE ORLOFF

Murder and sudden misfortune seem to be attached to these fabulous gems The great Orloff diamond was stolen from an Indian temple by a French soldier. Orloff, lover of Catherine the Great of Russia, purchased it for half a million dollars and gave it to his royal mistress. She had him assassinated. When Napoleon captured Moscow in 1812 the Orloff was hidden in a tomb in the Kremlin. It is now in the diamond treasury of the Soviet government.

The sinister story of the Hope diamond, which Mrs. Evelyn McLean, of Washington, D.C., wears constantly as a pendant, defiant of its ill-omened past, has cost the lives of at least 12 men. It was stolen by a French adventurer from an idol in a Hindoo temple and eventually became the property of Thomas Hope, a banker of London, who paid

The Jonkers diamond, uncut, compared to an engagement ring stone.

$90,000 for it, Edward B. McLean, the yate owner of the Washington Post, bought it for $300,000 and presented it to his bride. McLean is dead, but Mrs. McLean still clings proudly to that sinister blue stone of an ordinary sapphire blue, one and one-eighth inches long, and seven-eighths of an inch wide.

KOHINOOR IN ENGLAND

Probably the most celebrated of all the great diamonds in the Kohinoor, which now blazes in the crown worn on state occasions by Queen Mary of England. Unnumbered centuries ago, it was found in the diamond mines of Southern India. In 1304 Ala-ud-din, Sultan of Oelhi, seized it from a conquered rival. Later it was set into the Peacock Throne of Persia.

In the Sepoy Mutiny, in India, it fell to the English as booty, and Lord Dalhousie took it to England enclosed in a leather bag made by his wife. He wore the bag in a belt, which was fastened to a chain locked around his neck. During the months of the voyage to England, the packet never left Dalhousie's person, day or night, until he placed it in the hands of Queen Victoria. Victoria wore the Kohinoor in a brooch after it had been cut to 106 carats. Queen Alexandra wore it in a diadem.

The legend is that the Kohinoor brings good luck if worn by a woman, evil luck if worn by a man. And always it has been worn by women of the British royal family.

The story of the Cullinan is also interesting. Just after sunset, one January in 1905, Fred Wells strolled out of the office of Premier Mine Number Two, near Pretoria, South Africa, and started off on a casual inspection tour after the day's work was finished. Wells was surface manager of the mine and each day it was his duty to make one final tour of inspection late in the afternoon.

He was gone 20 minutes. Then his fellow-workers saw him running back—shouting like a madman. They saw in his hands what seemed to be a large piece of rock. To the excited group that gathered in the company's weighing room, Fred Wells sputtered out his story. He had been walking along an embankment when his eye was caught by a gleam of light. He found that the last rays of the sun had been caught by a shining object high up on the face of the mine.

Only half-believing what he saw, he climbed to the spot and found—as he immediately realized—an enormous diamond. He tried to loosen the dirt in which the stone was embedded. He tried with his fingers and then with the blade of his pocket knife. The blade snapped in his hand without moving the stone. He tugged and pried and pulled and finally out it came, and Fred Wells hurried back to the office.

AMONG CROWN JEWELS

The scales showed that the rough diamond weighed 1¾ pounds avoirdupois, or 3024 carats. It was three times the size of any diamond that ever had been discovered before. That night the wires out of Pretoria hummed with the story of Fred Well's discovery. Wells received $10,000 from his company and world-wide fame.

The founder of the company was Thomas H. Cullinan, and it was his name that was given to the four-inch diamond before it was sent to England. It arrived in London by ordinary registered mail, and at the request of Edward VII was taken to Buckingham Palace soon after its arrival. The king held it up to the light and remarked, "I should have kicked it aside as a lump of glass if I had seen it in the road."

The diamond was still uncut and had not been polished; but the first steps in turning it into a thing of beauty began at once. Several months later the work was completed and the finished stone was sold to the Transvaal Colony, which voted to present it to the king on his 66th birthday as a testimonial of gratitude for the grant of autonomy accorded by Great Britain.

The rough stone had been valued at $750,000 but when it was cut the value increased. The original stone was cut into two large stones—Cullinan I, also called "Star of South Africa" by George V, which weighed 516½ carats and was placed in the handle of the royal sceptre; Cullinan II weighed 309 carats.

In addition to these two large stones, there were several other fine stones, and one hundred small brilliants, some of which were used in a necklace for Queen Alexandra of England. You can see the Cullinans today among the British crown jewels, exhibited in the Tower of London.

?? Questions ?? ANSWERS

This column of questions and answers is open to any reader of the Nelson Daily News. In no case will the name of the person asking the question be published.

F.T.B., Nelson—What were the first 10 cars manufactured in the United States?

Not until early in the twentieth century were there 10 or more gasoline automobiles on the market in the United States. These were the Duryea, Ford, Franklin, Haynes, Knox, Olds, Packard, Pierce Arrow, Stearns, Thomas and Winton. They are not given in order of their appearance as this is a matter of controversy.

Curious, Salmo—Please tell me what is meant by "dry" wine?

Wines are referred to as dry when completely fermented, only 0.1 per cent of sugar remaining.

A.N., Trail—Can you give me the Ten Commandments in rhyme? I used to know them but have forgotten how the rhyme went.

A version that has been arranged for children follows:

"Thou no Gods shalt have but me,
Before no idol bow the knee.
Take not the name of God in vain,
Nor dare the Sabbath day profane.
Give to thy parents honor due,
Take heed that thou no murder do.
Abstain from words and deeds unclean,
Steal not, for thou of God art seen.
Tell not a wilful lie, nor love it;
What is thy neighbor's do not covet."

M.C., Rossland—What is the difference between condensed and evaporated milk?

It is a difference of sugar content and method of preparation. Condensed milk is preserved by adding sugar before evaporating. Evaporated milk is made by evaporating part of the water and preserving by heat after the product is in the final container.

D.R.S., Nelson—Who was it said that you can't fool all the people all the time?

"The Wisdom of Lincoln," published in 1908, says that Abraham Lincoln, in a speech made at Clinton, Illinois, Sept. 8, 1858, said, "You can fool all of the people some of the time; some of the people all of the time; but not all of the people all of the time."

G.W., Ymir—Why did the soldiers in the Great War call England blighty?

This originated with British soldiers in the Indian service. In an Indian vernacular, Bilayati stands for Europe. It is a corruption of the pure Urdo word Wilayat.

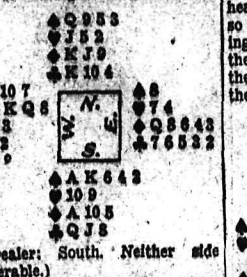
TRUMP HIS ACE

TRUMPING YOUR partner's ace is such an old joke that many fair players would never think of doing it. Once in a blue moon, though, a hand comes along which demands that very play. If you make it and thereby set the contract, you have something to crow about.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South bid 1-Spade on this deal, West 2-Hearts, North 2-Spades, South 3-Spades and North 4-Spades.

When West led the heart K, East played the 7 and when the Q was cashed, East dropped the 4. This signal by East could only mean that he held at least one trump and was in a position to ruff the next round.

Because West continued with the heart A, instead of leading a small one, as East had expected, the latter refused to trump the trick. The play of the spade 8 by East would have forced one of South's high honors and set up a trump trick for West.

As East failed to trump the heart trick, South was able to do so with his spade 2. After drawing trumps, he correctly finessed the diamond 10 to West. He therefore lost only two hearts and the club A.

Gable as a "Shower Singer"

Clark Gable's name does not appear in the cast of "Sweethearts", but his voice will be heard in the chorus of the title number.

Herbert Stothart, composer and conductor, made the request when Gable dropped in on the stage to visit Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy.

"You sing too, Clark," said Stothart.

Gable took his place in the chorus with Dr. Edouard Lippe, Eddy's singing teacher, and contributed lustily to the number.

"A robust voice that could be developed to advantage," was Dr. Lippe's verdict.

"Not me", said Gable. "I'm a confirmed shower singer."

NO NEED

"We did not make hateful comments when England held manoeuvres," declares Nazi Propaganda Minister Goebbels. The answer to that one is easy—there was no reason for "hateful comments" when England held manoeuvres.— Vancouver Sun.

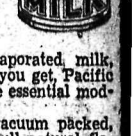
FOUR FACTS ABOUT MILK



When you buy evaporated milk, make sure the milk you get, Pacific Milk, has all of these essential modern advantages:

1. Pacific Milk is vacuum packed, to give you the full natural flavor.
2. Pacific Milk is irradiated. Irradiation helps bring strength to growing bones and teeth.
3. Pacific Milk is packed in the new sanitary can which prevents chances of contamination through lead or solder.
4. Pacific Milk is packed by B.C. farmers . . . our own folks.

Champion of Spectacular Game

Ready to swing into action, this fine picture shows Piston, world's champion jai-alai player, now in New York where the spectacular game is being introduced by fight impressario Mike Jacobs. Like all those who play what has been called the "world's fastest game" effectively, Piston began when very young and is a veteran of 16 years' experience though only 25 years old now. He's been tops for the past nine.

Mrs. Page and Dorothy Traung Golf Medalists

CHICAGO, Sept. 19 (AP)— Two stars from the United States south and west coast divided medalist honors today in the qualifying round of the 42nd United States women's golf championship.

Playing water-soaked Westmoreland course like the defending champion she is, Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page of Chapel Hill, N. C., turned in a card of 41-39—80, one over par.

A few minutes later Dorothy Traung of San Francisco sloshed off the 18th green with an identical total, built on nines of 40-40, to share the role of pace-maker into tomorrow's match play competition.

Mrs. Eric Phillips of Toronto barely managed to qualify. Playing through rain, mud and chilling winds, Mrs. Phillips tied with seven other players at 94 and survived the playoff. The other Canadian in the tournament, Miss Kaye Farrell of Vancouver, failed to qualify, shooting a 97.

Victor and Victim of Tennis Upset

Bobby Riggs, right, congratulates Gilbert Hunt of Washington, after the latter had defeated him in the fourth round of the United States tennis championships at Forest Hills. The defeat of youthful Robert, ranked second only to Don Budge, was the biggest surprise of the tournament and came after five hard sets.

Trail's Oldtimers Rough on Youth in Crellin Benefit

TRAIL, B.C., Sept. 19 — "Youth must be served." But somebody forgot to let Trail's oldtime baseball men in on that little fact Sunday, when they banged youth about in the Ed Crellin benefit program. The old boys cleaned up in a big way as they walked off with the oldtimers-bantam relay and then set the bants back 7-3 in an exhibition ball.

The benefit, staged at Butler park, netted $120, just $30 short of the required amount for Crellin's expenses.

Ed. Crellin, snappy Trail diamond man, broke a leg while sliding into home sack at the Penticton Labor Day competition.

ALSO WIN RELAY

Off to a good start with Fred Lauriente carrying the stick, the old boys were never headed in the relay that saw Steve Mattovich carry home the baton 15 feet ahead of bantam Joe Monaldi. The teams were: Oldtimers, Lauriente, Cliff Morgan, "Doc" Endicott and Mattovich; Bantams, Freg Pagnan, Jake McLeod, Ivo Tufalo, and Monaldi.

Blame for the Bantams' baseball loss can be laid at the respective doors of Billy Molisky, oldtime second sacker, and "Mystery" De Pasquale, behind the catcher's cage. Flashing plenty of his oldtime ball form, Molisky snagged up everything that came his way; while the mystery talked the kids out of the ball game. His continual chatter "had them crosseyed."

Dr. T. J. Muir fogged them through for the old boys, but the bantams sent two moundsmen to the sidelines before they got Edmunds to hold the oldtimers.

The teams were:

Oldtimers—Muir, p; E. De Pasquale, c; Joe Renatta, 1b; Molisky, 2b; Gus MacDonald, 3b; Steve Mattovich, ss; "Patsy" Morgan, lf; James Buchanan, cf; and Fred Lauriente, rf.

Bantams—Edmunds, p; Joe Monaldi, c; Wagner, 1b; Bill Dimock, 2b; McLeod, 3b; Pagnan, ss; Jones, lf; Lauriente, cf; and Maitland, rf Sammartino, Norberg, utility.

Umpires were MacDonald and Loblick.

Frisch Exits Paul Dean Reenters

Frankie Frisch, left, who a few hours later was through as manager of St. Louis Cardinals, chats with Paul Dean, before the latter went in against Pittsburgh's league-leading Pirates and turned them back, 6-4. It was no big event for Frisch, as just before the game it was announced he had been released as manager of the team he had guided since 1933. But for the younger of the clan Dean, it was a glorious event, marking his comeback from the Texas league, where he had been sent when he lost his effectiveness in the majors.

EYSTON STILL NOT SATISFIED

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah, Sept. 19 (AP)—Fired by a secret ambition to hold every world land speed record at one time, Captain George E. T. Eyston, quiet retired British army officer, rushed plans today for another lightning-like ride across this lake bed Wednesday.

Behind the graying captain's desire to hoist his own unprecedented mark of 357.5 miles per hour for the measured mile and to test further numerous changes in his car are these reasons:

He hopes to lift the record to a point—possibly 365 m.p.h.— where none can touch it for at least one year.

He expects to recoup the fortune —reputedly $250,000—spent winning, then defending, the title.

He yearns for the endurance speed records now held by Utah's Ab Jenkins.

1200 BOOM CHAINS SALVAGED

BROWNS AGAIN WALLOP YANKS

The Yankees fell apart yesterday. The team that has won its third straight American league pennant lost to St. Louis Browns 13-1 with three second-string hurlers failing to stem the seventh place club's attack. The victory gave the Browns a sweep of the final three-game series.

Washington Senators gained a split in their final American league baseball series of the year with Detroit Tigers by scoring a 12-2 victory.

Jeff Heath's homer helped Cleveland Indians turn four hits into four runs and gave Mell Harder his 17th victory, against 10 defeats in the American league baseball race. Philadelphia Athletics were on the losing end, 4-3.

The Indians collected only three singles off George Caster in his seven innings, but one of them was the first-inning circuit blow by Heath, a former Fort William, Ont., boy, with two aboard.

Rain and cold which forced cancellation of the complete National league program, also caused postponement of the Boston-Chicago fixture in the American league.

NELSON SHOPKEEPER

"No," Mr. Hanic replied. "If they did consent, it would not be a free and secret plebiscite and there is no doubt how it would result. Then Hitler wouldn't be satisfied with that piece of Czechoslovakia. Another month or two, or six, and he would want the rest of it. The people know that, and they won't consent to voting on it. If Britain and France think that they might stop war by letting Hitler have that piece of Czechoslovakia, they will be much mistaken and will be sorry."

HISTORY

"How did that part of Czechoslovakia come to have the Germans in it?" he was asked.

"That was the outcome of the last 'War of the White Mountains'," he said, and on a scrap of paper the Nelson shopkeeper sketched rapidly an outline map of Czechoslovakia, its main divisions, how the frontiers were set by international agreement at the close of the Great war. A flying pencil and a flying tongue produced a picture of an empire hundreds of years ago overrun by Attila and the Huns; of repeated conquest of a peace-loving people, of the submergence of boundaries after the last of the Bohemian kings was beaten, and of absorption in other more modern empires, which in turn were shattered by the Great war.

"In all our history you will never find that Czechoslovakians have taken the field to start a war with another country," he said, "but you will find again and again that our country has been attacked by others and that our people have not hesitated to fight for their own."

Even at their most hopeless stages Czechoslovakians kept love of country first in their hearts, said Mr. Hanic, the gleam of a patriot in his eyes as he talked. When the leaders were exiled from their own country, or when they had to flee because of their politics, they went to England or France. Saving their money or lending whatever other ability they possessed, they sent money or their sons back to carry on the fight for liberty. This has gone on for three centuries.

FOREIGN LEGIONS

At times Czechs, or Slovaks, or Moravians, have formed "foreign legions" with other powers and marched against the constituted authority in Czechoslovakia — not against their own people; but against the power against their own people.

Liberty, said Mr. Hanic, has always been one of the first loves of Czechoslovakians.

He told how when democratic government was achieved after the war war, the government from feudal landholders the bulk of their large acreages, and gave to the peasants who had been vassals, land to work for themselves.

"Do you think they would give up easily, and go back to living on tiny strips of land, barely existing? Do you not think they will fight for it?" he asked.

"My people have everything to gain by fighting, and everything to lose. If they lose, it will be because they are wiped out, for Czechoslovakia will die for liberty."

3 TEAMS OUT OF BIKE RACE

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 (AP)—Three of the original 15 teams were dropped from the six-day bike race tonight.

Laurent Gadou of Montreal, was carted off to a hospital with a broken collarbone and his teammate, Eddie Testa of Hollywood, Calif., was given the usual four hours in which to find a new partner. Two rookie combinations, Charley Bergna of Paterson, N. J., and Charley Morton of Long Beach, Calif., and Danny Esposito of Newark, N. J., and Lou Comen of Brooklyn, were withdrawn when they fell 11 laps behind the leaders.

At 8 p.m. M. S. T., the 25th hour, the Italian team of Alvaro Georgetti and Cesar Moretti held a one-lap advantage over five teams that were tied for second including the Victoria riders, Doug and Torchy Peden.

Pink Hawley Dies

BEAVER DAM, Wis., Sept. 19 (AP)—Emerson (Pink) Hawley, 66, former major league baseball pitcher, died today. He was the pitching end of the "Pink and Blue" battery famous in Wisconsin's baseball history nearly half a century ago. His twin brother, Blue, died in 1891.

Pink trained with Adrian (Pop) Anson's Chicago Colts of the National league in 1892. Later he pitched for Fort Smith, Ark., went to St. Louis for two years, then to Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and finally New York.

Wheat Futures Down, Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Sept. 19 (CP). — Stop-loss selling drove Winnipeg wheat futures three cents lower today and short-covering in late trading on unfavorable Czechoslovakian reports failed to wipe out losses.

Final quotations were 2⅝—2½ cents lower, October at 63⅞, November 64⅛, December 63½ and May 66⅝—¾.

A more optimistic outlook for peace in Europe and lower outside markets brought out a general selling flurry at the start. Virtually no Canadian wheat export business could be confirmed.

Liverpool fell off from a steady open to close 1¾—2d lower. Buenos Aires was two cents down at noon and Chicago about two lower.

Cash wheat dealings were quiet with spread generally unchanged.

Coarse grain dealings were slow. A few flax orders in a thin market resulted in its irregular trend.

Flax closed 2—1¼ cents lower.

Sharp Advance in Prices in New York Due Lessening of War Scare

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 (AP). — Prices moved ahead sharply in the stock market today as Wall Street took the Franco-British agreement with Germany on the Czech crisis as a sign immediate hostilities in Europe were unlikely.

Steels, metal issues, motors, chemicals, farm equipments and a wide variety of miscellaneous manufacturing shares were in the van of the push.

Turnover, reflecting the still uncertain tenor of European advices despite a brighter outlook, was restricted. Transactions were about 800,000 shares.

Ahead one to around three or more points were Bethlehem Steel, U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Westinghouse, General Electric, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, Goodyear, International Harvester, American Smelting, International Nickel, Anaconda, Cerro de Pasco, Kennecott, Western Union and American Telephone.

Du Pont, up as much as 5 in the morning, lost much of the gain. Philip Morris was more than four higher near the final gong. U. S. Gypsum and Crane Co. added about three each.

Canadian shares advanced broadly. Lake Shore gained two with Dome and Hiram Walker trailing closely. McIntyre Porcupine added about a point while a fractional gain was made by Distillers.

Record Shipment of Macs From Creston

CRESTON, B. C.—A solid trainload—26 cars—of McIntosh Reds moved out of Creston and Erickson, Saturday, to give the valley the biggest single day's apple shipping in its history.

Packers, sorters and warehouse help had worked overtime during the week to assure the filling of all orders for "Macs" whose release date had been set by the B. C. Tree Fruit board for September 17, picking getting under way about a week previous.

Enquiry at the packing sheds indicated that the movement was about 50 per cent fancy and extra fancy and the balance jumble and face (household). The latter grade is having a big run at the smaller prairie centres this year.

The feature of the movement was the considerable volume going to the 1937 drought areas in Saskatchewan. One firm reports rolling more apples on opening day this year than was sent in the whole of 1937 to drought-stricken Saskatchewan.

"Mac" color is spotty. In some orchards the trees are coloring uniformly. In others two pickings will be necessary to get the usual high color standard in this variety.

With the opening day rush taken care of the warehouses will be active this week in getting out export orders. The overseas demand this year is excellent. Selling agencies are unable to book all the orders offering due some uncertainty as to having the sizes asked for by the British consumer.

Prices on McIntosh open about 10 cents a box lower than in 1937 and in Creston, as well as through the Okanagan, there is an insistent demand that the Tree Fruit board advance prices When here a week ago G. A. Barrat and O. W. Hembling, board members, predicted a rise would come inside a month.

Opening prices on the variety follows:

Extra fancy 150 and large, $1.25. Fancy 163 to 198, $1.25, Eastern Canada only. Extra Fancy 113 and larger $1.00, tiered and unwrapped. Fancy 150 and larger $1.15. Fancy, 163-198 Eastern Canada only $1.15. Cees 150 and larger wrapped $1.00. Cees, 163-180 Eastern Canada only $1.00. Face and jumble 80 cents.

Garland Discusses Dictatorship and Democracy, Gyros

"The capacity to compromise is the difference between democracy and dictatorship," stated C. B. Garland to the Gyro club at its first meeting of the season in the Hume hotel Monday evening. Discussing the two forms of governing from many angles, Mr. Garland said there was a bulwark in democracy that was not in dictatorship.

"If we should have to shoulder a rifle in the near future, and that is not at all impossible, we should know that what we are fighting for is worth while," he declared. "It is our duty . . . if we think it is worth while to do something for democracy."

David Beatty, assistant superintendent of the C.P.R. in Nelson, was installed as a new member of the Gyro club, R. E. Crerar acting as installing officer.

R. D. Barnes, program chairman, thanked Mr. Garland for his talk. Ado W. Diebolt, club president, also thanked Mr. Garland and welcomed Mr. Beatty into the organization.

J. P. McLaren reported the Cranbrook Pioneer Reunion.

CONCESSION AT FAIR

A committee appointed to look after the Gyro concession at the Kootenay district fair included P. E. Poulin, chairman, J. J. (Mickey) McEwan, F. D. Cummins, Dr. G. A. C. Walley and R. D. Barnes.

Dan McNaughton, recently president of Rossland Gyro club, and now resident in Nelson, was a guest.

Group singing was led by R. E. Crerar, with Vic Owen at the piano.

Pair Sentenced to Two Years; Violent Robbery

William Murphy and Peter Kwiczak pleaded guilty to charges of robbery with violence from Mike Zarakoff, Castlegar, when they appeared before Judge W. A. Nisbet in country court today.

Each was sentenced to two years less a day in Nelson jail with hard labor, but when Murphy asked that his sentence include the extra day so he could go to the B. C. penitentiary, his honor altered the sentence for both.

Zarakoff was robbed of $8.65 and a pair of shoes at Castlegar on September 7.

Many Inquiries Chamber Mines

She reported a large number of inquiries recently, including requests for general information, prospecting information, geological data, mining properties and so on.

Forgets Speech in Paying Honor to Jenny Morris

NANAIMO, B. C., Sept. 19 (CP) —Jenny Morris, wartime "mother" of Princess Patricia's Canadian light infantry, came to the rescue of a shy post war "Pat" near here today when the young soldier presented her with a bouquet on behalf of his company.

"Jenny Morris, please accept these flowers as a token of esteem and—oh heck, I've forgotten my speech!"

"Never mind, I know how you feel," Jenny said encouragingly after thanking him for the bouquet. 'I have to make a speech myself and shall probably forget it. Will you please stay here and hold my hand to help me?"

"Yes, ma'am, I can do that all right," the lad replied.

The occasion was an informal meeting between company "B" of the P. P. C. L. I., one of Canada's permanent force infantry regiments, and the woman who ran a Bedford Place boarding house in London for Canadian soldiers overseas.

The troops lined up and were presented to Jenny by Major J. N. Edgar, M. C., their commanding officer who introduced her as a "guardian angel who mothered the Pats throughout the long years of the war."

BERLIN

Official commentators said a method of letting the Sudeten Germans determine their own fate had not been indicated in London. Czechoslovak Premier Milan Hodza, it was said, therefore had shot at a "bogey man" when he declared yesterday a plebiscite would not be acceptable to Prague.

Dienst aus Deutschland made much of the fact Premier Mussolini of Italy desires a plebiscite while Mr. Chamberlain and French Premier Daladier apparently want a simple amputation of Sudetenland from Czechoslovakia.

"One can make the interesting observation that of all people the Fascist Mussolini demands a democratic plebiscite within the framework of a totalitarian solution . . ," the correspondence service said.

"On the other hand," Dienst aus Deutschland went on, "commentaries from London . . . would indicate that the western powers prefer an out and out operation to a plebiscite in the case of the Sudetens while no mention is made of the other minorities."

Chamber of Mines May Advertise in Montreal Papers

Chamber of Mines of Eastern British Columbia proposes to advertise in Montreal papers inviting to inquiries as to district mining properties. At the suggestion of Thomas Brown the executive Monday night authorized Miss Edythe Thomson, secretary, to spend up to $20 on such advertising.

Mr. Brown said that cost of opening a property in British Columbia was much lower comparatively, than in eastern Canada, and that some means of informing mining investors as to this was necessary.
