Interpreting The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON—Associated Press Staff Writer

An admission from Berlin that powerful Russian armies still confront Nazi legions lunging toward the Donets-Dnieper basin lends colors to Moscow's claim that substantial elements of Marshal Budenny's hard-pressed forces have escaped the Kiev trap.

The Russian spokesman in Moscow admitted, however, that there was yet no assurance that the force of the German drive to cut the prime source of Russian oil at Rostov had been spent. Vice-Commissar Lozovsky expressed concern that both Khar'kov and Rostov might yet be lost. This would gravely impair Russia's war industry as well as cut her off from the Caucasus, source of nine-tenths of her oil for ordinary needs.

It seems obvious, however, that the Russians have quickly absorbed the first shock of the Kiev disaster and not only have brought up fresh armies for defence of the Khar'kov gateway to the Donets, but also have strongly braced their flank Southward to the Sea. That is the short road to Rostov and its vital pipeline to the Caucasus fields.

Once the Germans complete the mopping-up operation in East of Kiev, they say they have encircled 500,000 Russian troops in two pockets. The scene of most furious action is apt to shift Southward. Moscow reports an unestimated portion of Budenny's men retreating from Kiev out of the trap via the Hadyach-Okhtyrka escape route and reforming for the defence of Khar'kov. Just where the two Berlin-reported pockets are located is not certain. One, however, is certainly West of the Kirov-Romen-Kremenchuk line where the Germans made their first encirclement of Kiev, 125 miles East of the city.

Port Still Held by Reds; Nazis Held Back at Leningrad

Germans Claim Troops Within Sight of Docks of Leningrad; Grave Concern Held for Southern Area by Russians

By HENRY C. CASSIDY—Associated Press Staff Writer MOSCOW, Sept. 25 (Thursday) (AP).—Soviet troops smashed a new German offensive against the far Northern ice-free port of Murmansk and fought back stubbornly along the whole front, the Russians said today.

Dispatches from the Northern front to the official military organ Red Star said Murmansk, one of the most important harbors in European Russia, was still in Soviet hands.

The early Thursday communique said fighting continued along the entire front and reported 75 German planes shot down for a loss of 25 Red aircraft Tuesday. Soviet patrol boats were said to have sunk a German transport in the Gulf of Finland.

Besides announcing failure of the Nazi campaign to seal all of Russia's European gateways to aid from abroad, Red Star said defenders of Leningrad had beaten the Germans farther back by recapture of a position on the city's approaches. Nazi attempts to retake the position were said to have been broken.

Moreover, military informants reported the Red counter-offensive at the centre still unchecked, and said that far to the South about Odessa attacking units of two Rumanian infantry divisions had again been driven back in wild disorder.

The long and bitter struggle for Murmansk started in July, said Red Star in telling for the first time some of the details of the campaign, but the Russians forced Germans on the defensive through the wangle of August.

Then, reinforced by Blackshirt battalions and mountain regiments transferred from Norway, the Nazis opened their second offensive in which they lost 800 dead in the first day's action and at least 42,000 by mid-September.

As to the area protecting the industrial Southern Russian armistice, the German offensive in an attempt to hold the strongest of the Nazi offensives, there was frankly expressed Russian concern. Beyond the Donets lie the bases from which the Germans might seek to spring upon the Caucasian oil fields and the Allied supply route through Iran (Persia).

Russian accounts stressed that the Soviet Baltic and Black Sea fleets—particularly the former—were still in craft offensive action. Naval air craft supporting the Leningrad ground defenders, reported the destruction of two German anti-aircraft batteries, 11 anti-aircraft machine guns and 14 armored cars.

Berlin, Sept. 24 (AP).—Nazi claimed tonight German siege troops have fought their way to within sight of the docks of Leningrad, and driven Russian defenders out of two or more villages at the outskirts of the big city.

One German infantry unit was said to have advanced until activity in part of the dock region was visible through binoculars. The dispatches said Leningrad's defenders still were throwing themselves upon the Germans in counter-attacks after counter-attacks.

OTTAWA, Sept. 24 (CP).—Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced late today the establishment of direct diplomatic relations with the Argentine Republic and Chile and said the first Minister to Argentina will be Chief Justice W. F. A. Turgeon of Saskatchewan.

It is expected he will leave for Buenos Aires in the near future," said a statement from Mr. King's office.

There was no mention of the naming of a Canadian to the post in Chile, but Canada's relations with Argentina are in a more advanced stage than with Chile and Mr. Justice Turgeon's appointment has been reported pending for some time.

It was learned that a statement regarding appointment of a Canadian to Chile may be expected shortly with the possibility that legislation may be combined with Canada's Argentine and Brazilian representation.

tank, but these were alleged to be decreasing steadily in intensity. D. N. B. threatened: "It is to be expected Leningrad and its population will suffer the fate of Warsaw." The News and Progress magazine expressed the opinion bombardment of the city and bitter street-to-street fighting would be necessary because of Russian determination to defend it.

Germans were told the mopping up of Soviet forces trapped East of Kiev was proceeding methodically, with the encircled Russians split into two tightly-held rings.

The High Command asserted that the trapped troops would be destroyed within a few days.

Dispatches claimed the German Air Force had bombed the Red Army's defence ring around Leningrad and had renewed its bombing of industries at Moscow and Khar'kov in the Donets Basin.

East Coast Cities Vulnerable to Nazi Air Attack Says La Guardia in Effort to Boost U. S. Defence

By FRANK I. WELLER Associated Press Staff Writer WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—Talk of winter war in the Atlantic plus the mystery over whereabouts of Germany's catapult air fleet, may put a little life into the popular will for United States civilian defence. Fiorello La Guardia believes. New York's Mayor, who is National Director of the Office of Civilian Defence, has warned hostile planes could—and probably would—launch token hit-and-run raids on seaboard cities if the United States decides to fight.

The sweetest romance is certain to end if either partner begins to offend. Bath tonight with LIFEBOUOY — THE ONE SOAP ESPECIALLY MADE TO PREVENT "B.O." (Body Odor) attack stepped up civilian defence. That was when France fell and Britain seemed on the verge of invasion. One million persons, chiefly in coast states, enrolled for anti-air raid service.

AGRICULTURE MARCHES WITH OUR ARMED FORCES

Behind the lines where men and women are risking life to defend home and country, men and women are toiling to supply the materials of war—ships, planes, tanks, guns. These manufacturers—management and workers alike—are thus fighting shoulder to shoulder with our armed forces.

But what about the farmers? They are doing a work of equal importance. They too are marching to battle, by toiling early and late to persuade nature to increase the food supply on which the issues of the fight so greatly depend. The farmer marches side by side with the soldier and his armourer.

Farmers who are doing their bit to help Canada's all-out war effort may find it necessary to borrow money at the Bank. You should not hesitate to discuss your requirements with our nearest branch manager. Your business will be regarded as strictly confidential.

Difficult . . . School Mornings Cause of Strain for a Mother

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Mothers of only children have told me they often had to lie down for an hour to recover from the nervous strain of getting a child off to school in the morning. Here is one mother's letter:

"Dear Dr. Myers: I have just been through the usual morning scene with my seven-and-a-half-year-old and I have just reached the point where I feel I must come to you for advice.

"I have tried getting her up half an hour earlier, but she lingers just that much more.

"Marion gets good marks at school and is doing fine with piano, taking lessons for a year. I obtain books from the library and we read them together. I have read to her since she was a year and a half old. I try to devote a lot of time to her, see that she has playmates, proper rest and food. She can be the most thoughtful child in the world, but doesn't make any effort to get off to school on time. I feel these unpleasant instances on school mornings are damaging her personality, ruining my patience and disposition, and destroying our closeness as mother and daughter."

THE DOCTOR'S REPLY

Tell your daughter today when she must appear ready for school at breakfast tomorrow morning and every school morning thereafter, allowing at least 20 minutes for her breakfast. Call her at a reasonable regular time. Tell her also that if she arrives at breakfast a minute late, she will not go to school for the first half day but will have to sit doing nothing all morning, with a five-minute recess at the end of each hour; nothing to read, no radio, no newspaper. Carry her out to the car. One dose of this medicine should cure her. If not, repeat the procedure as often as necessary.

Go about your work as if all were well, keeping your lips sealed, except to talk to other mothers if any one should wish you to do so. If you can stick to this program you and your child will soon be new creatures. Good luck.

Byron, Keats and Shelley had unusually small heads.

Injuries . . . Says Football Is Hazard to Youth

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

In a previous article I emphasized that it was particularly hazardous for boys of grade school and high school age to play football because their bones have not finished development and they are especially liable to permanent injury. Here are some examples:

A boy, seven years old, in Minneapolis, suffered a fractured collar bone in a football game. A ten-year-old in Oklahoma suffered a severe neck injury. A thirteen-year-old in Seattle had a broken jaw. A seventeen-year-old boy in Wisconsin suffered a ruptured kidney. A boy (age not recorded) had a broken thigh. Three other fractured legs at the ankle, one involving both leg bones in boys under fourteen.

ACCIDENTS OF 1940

A high school boy found football is a rough game because after a scrimmage he found someone had taken a bite out of his finger.

September 3rd, 1940 — Football star, 18 years old, dies of football injury.

"Local youth dies of football injury was a heading repeated several times in the 1940 Clippings, Colleges, Universities, Teachers' Colleges, Polytechnic Schools and High Schools all shared in these tragedies.

One school had to get up a benefit dance for their injured players. They had quite a few of them: the quarterback sprained his collar bone, the fullback injured his leg, the lightest man on the squad sprained his ankle. The benefit was successful enough to provide a sinking fund for medical supplies for future injuries.

It seems to be the principle source of regret, when seven or eight men on one football team are injured, that the substitutes didn't win the game while the injured heroes were in the hospital.

Some halfbacks didn't come up to expectations last season because of a continuous struggle against recurring injuries sustained in early season scrimmages.

A sixteen-year-old boy had his leg amputated at the knee. We are told that if we had asked him if he had fully survived the injury, would he have ventured on the football field again?—The chances of his saying no are about as strong as a Kentucky thoroughbred placing last at a side show race track. It takes more than a broken leg to break the spirit of American youth."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A F. "In my family there is a diabetic case who has had diabetes for eight years and during that time four children have been born. Will this be inherited by the children?"

Answer: Joslin's statistics on the occurrence of diabetes in the children of diabetic fathers and mothers do not indicate any hereditary tendency. Diabetes in elderly people part the child-bearing period is due to arterial changes in the pancreas. This may be hereditary, but only shows up when the children are themselves old.

SERIAL STORY . . . Death at the Switch

By RICHARD HOUGHTON

CHAPTER 37

Henry feared that more earth would fall from the sides of the well, burying him alive. In terror he struggled to pull his legs free of the grip of rocks and dirt. He clawed with his hands, tearing at the broken, rotten timbers.

It was ten minutes before his legs became loose. He stood on top of the pile, staggering and weak, and looked up at the disk of sky that let in the faint light for his dark prison.

In this extremity he gasped: "It must be a hundred feet deep! I'll never get out."

His voice was loud in the narrow hole. He stopped. A deadly silence fell, like a giant hand shutting over his ears. The inanimate earth became dreadful. He was so small and powerless against it.

A cold came tumbling down. Henry ducked, expecting another cave-in. The cold glanced off his shoulder. A trickle of earth sounded above him for a moment, then was still.

He pictured the vertical walls, already broken, loose and ready to fall at the slightest touch. He did not dare to climb, even if he could. The flashlight was in his pocket unharmed. He brought it out with trembling hand and played its light over the pile of debris on which he stood. To dig his way back into the well ten feet or more.

"I mustn't lose my head," he warned himself.

The spoken words were comforting. Trying to figure out what had happened was good mental exercise. There was no emotion in it. Henry

Marriage . . . Too Many Boy Friends Make It Hard to Choose

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A letter arrived the other day from a girl who signs herself Betty T. She writes:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"How can I decide whom to marry? How can I discover my own destiny, if I have one? I am past 21 years. I've always had plenty of boy friends and have led a charming life. But isn't it about time I closed a deal, so to speak? And about matrimony? Miss Fairfax, do give me a tip!"

About this matter of destiny—I'm not quite sure. My guess is that our love-affairs represent our own choice, but not all of us are good choosers. In any case, it seems to me that obedience to common sense is a pretty good substitute for destiny.

Betty, you see, is perhaps a little spoiled by being unusually attractive and having had a great many boy friends. She just hasn't happened to fall in love; one nice boy seems pretty much like another nice boy to her.

In such a case, a girl needs a sensible, tactful mother to show her clearly just which young man will make the best husband, and why. That's the whole story, really. The way he wears his clothes and the kind of dancer he is are infinitely less important matters, though I grant that they're pleasant additions to the picture.

Have you ever noticed that it is the girl with few admirers who often gets married first? That's the whole story, really. The way he wears his clothes and the kind of dancer he is are infinitely less important matters, though I grant that they're pleasant additions to the picture.

This is the kind of girl who, young as she is, begins to feel a bit lonesome. She's weary of idleness, knows that what she needs is a man she can adore. She becomes expert in playing the game of love, and now her heart begins to long for reality.

She begins to ask herself if it is worth while to have precious gifts of beauty and charm when so many dull and unglamorous young con-

Measurements . . . Figure Should Be Balanced

By IDA JEAN KAIN

If you are beginning a figure program on your own, you can dispense with some of the frills. But by all means take the four important measurements—bust, waist, hips and thighs. That is the only way you can get a clear picture of what is wrong. You can't trust your mirror. It registers your faults but it is hard for you to be your own critic. You'll find the tape is not in the least biased.

Start with the bust. Take a deep breath and exhale, then circle the tape around the back and draw it across the center of the bust. If this portion of the figure is not naturally high and firm, measure with your brastraps on.

Now for the waistline. Circle the tape smack at your waist and draw it comfortably snug. Then, so as not to cheat, ease up a bit.

The hips should be measured at the largest circumference to include all protuberances. Take a side view of yourself in the mirror and circle the tape around that part which the doctor dubs the buttocks.

The thighline is not one of the so-called pivotal measurements but it is influenced by the hip measurement and should be included in your plans for slimming. The slight protruding thigh has a lovely thigh at 20 inches, the stocky girl at 22 inches. Measure one thigh at a time, circling the tape around the largest area.

Get all your measurements so that you will be able to see just what you are up against. In the well-proportioned figure, the waistline is about eight inches less than the bust—if you were a model or a movie star you would aim at a nine to ten-inch difference between the two measurements. Your hips should not be more than two inches larger than the bust. By comparing your measurements as they actually are, you will know where to concentrate your exercise.

Measurements are not the whole story. As a final checkup on your figure, stand sideways to the mirror again for a critical view of your silhouette. It may be that sway back and protruding abdomen are to blame for your hips, rather than excess hip inches. In this case, the correction is to tone the muscles of the lower abdominal wall and to strengthen the lower back muscles and well on into the type of exercise in a later article.

British War Children Have Taken Place in Hearts of Canadian Parents

By GLADYS ARNOLD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA, (CP). — Mrs. T. M. Snow, British representative in Canada in charge of the Children's Overseas Reception Board, says one of the problems to come is the heartache attached to returning children in Canada to their own fathers and mothers in Britain.

Already with the skies over England more tranquil there is much talk on both sides of the Atlantic of repatriation.

Mrs. Snow said taking care of British children could be termed a real part of the Canadian war effort and in her opinion there was not sufficient appreciation of the part some 8000 mothers have been doing in this respect.

"Everybody has been interested in the children," Mrs. Snow said. "But those people who have really made a success of the scheme have been the women who have taken the children. It's perhaps one of the most selfless of the war jobs."

MOTHER'S CARE

On the Canadian women who opened their homes to take in British children fell the responsibility for the daily living of the child. For more than a year these women have been seeing that "John" or "Joan" were properly washed behind the ears before starting off to school; sitting up at night with the tooth, ear and stomach-aches, and finding ways to make the homesick children happy in Canada.

One of the questions in the minds of foster mothers, British mothers and the children themselves was "what's going to happen after the war?"

"It's a dreadful thing to say, but the end of the war isn't going to be all joy in this locality," one Children's Aid representative wrote to Mrs. Snow.

"The children have found their way into the hearts of their foster parents so well that many of them are already wracking their brains for a solution."

Some letters from Britain and foster parents and many more from the children themselves suggest that a solution has already been found," Mrs. Snow said.

"It's the simplest," she explained. "British families are planning to settle in Canada after the war."

MATTER OF COSTS

One Canadian family has become so attached to their small English guest the foster-father remarked recently, "We simply cannot lose sight of her again. So we're arranging to bring her father and mother and if necessary set them up in business alongside of us here."

Since many of the people who took children opened their homes war demands have changed their financial situation. Higher taxes, more war claims, and changing cost of living has made the sacrifice even greater," Mrs. Snow said.

"But those who have the children are all the more tenacious, and are willing to sacrifice everywhere else in order to keep the child and give it a good life," she added.

Considering that these foster mothers are cheerfully facing the prospect of losing the children they have grown to love and for whom they have often sacrificed much, Mrs. Snow said that there is no ordinary scale by which can be measured the quality and how essentially their efforts have been true war work.

"In the simple tasks of scrubbing and feeding and loving these children they have set an example which cannot be estimated in its repercussions in Britain," she said. "These are the sort of jobs which can't be done in uniform but they are just as essential."

Incendiary Bomb Fragments Used as Hand-Warmers in Scotch Town; So Cousin Tells Shirley Herron

In a letter received by Miss Shirley Herron of Nelson from her cousin, Janet Caldwell, of Glenville, Scotland, it is related how at Clydebank German "incendiary" fragments were used as hand-warmers. Other cousins mentioned in the letter are Susan and Scott. Their father, S. B. Herron, is the brother of J. P. Herron of Nelson. Isabel, a friend mentioned, is a concert singer.

The letter is as follows:

Glenville, Faushead Rd., Rentfrew, August 8, 1941.

Dear Shirley - This morning I posted to you a box of white heater. If it reaches you, I should like you to give a spray to all your Canadian friends who are helping us in our trouble. I understand that the Hitler gang tried to start a whispering campaign in Canada and America, that we were not grateful for the assistance you are giving us. We are not just grateful, we are touched to the bottom of our hearts, and knowing that we have your support gives us greater courage to fight to the bitter end.

NEIGHBOR KILLED IN HER SHELTER

Some months ago when Clydebank had its heavy raids, we too had a bad time. The houses on either side of us were burned, and my neighbor was killed in her shelter. Fortunately John and I were out that night. We have no shelter, and I usually visited Mrs. McGregor in hers. Her maid had her evening off, so that saved her life. The husband had just gone out to try to put out five incendiary bombs which had fallen on the house, but it was already ablaze. As he turned to go back to the shelter, a bomb fell on it, and he was buried in sandbags. He suffered from shock but otherwise was alright. We were lucky although two bombs fell quite close to our house and incendiaries all round it; we had really very little damage, apart from a few windows blown out, and doors burst open. One incendiary bomb fell on my rock garden at the back of the house, and was only a foot from my roof of white heater. A little boy of 12 ran to it and scooped on earth with his hands, until some men came along with spades and put it out properly. I thought my heater would be dead, but it has grown better than ever this year - another sign that Hitler can't crush the Scotch! The first night of the Clydebank raids was a perfect one. The sky was clear, and a brilliant moon shining.

John is a captain in the Home Guard, and has very few free evenings. We never leave the town at night in case of raids - John must be on the spot. However, this evening we decided to go to the local picture house, and had just almost seen the full program through, when the siren went at 8:30 p.m. We decided to wait a bit, but five minutes later the picture house rocked when some big guns opened fire. We then thought it was time to get out.

TOOK REFUGE IN CLOSE

John wanted to take me home before going to Headquarters, and we were hurrying along the street when a warden stepped out from a close (this is an entry to a block of flats or tenement houses) and asked us to take cover. Things were getting so hot that I decided to let John go to H.Q. and wait until things got a bit quieter before going on home. I was in that place for four and a half hours, and was frozen stiff. The close was strutted with beams of wood. This is the only shelter the tenement dwellers have, and it has been proved to be quite reliable.

Daily Reader, Nelson—Would you please tell me whether an adopted baby is entitled to the Dependent's Allowance. The child was legally adopted after my husband enlisted.

Would I have to apply to the Province of Alberta to apply for same, as that was where the baby was adopted?
 If a child has been legally adopted and final papers of adoption have been granted to the foster parent we see no reason why application for the dependent's allowance should not be made from this Province. In case the adoption has not been completed, it would be necessary to return to Alberta to take out the final papers. We suggest you write T. R. Blaine, Superintendent of Child Welfare, Edmonton, Alta.

A. H. Creston—Could you please tell me how much aluminum by weight is used in the making of some of the modern bombers?

The figure varies greatly, but an average size bomber takes about 28,000 pounds of aluminum. A fighter takes approximately 4,000 pounds.

Words of Wisdom

"Keep aloof from sadness," says an Icelandic writer, "for sadness is a sickness of the soul." Life has, indeed, many ills, but the mind that views every object in its most cheering aspect, and every doubtful dispensation as replete with latent good, bears within itself a powerful and perpetual antidote. The gloomy soul aggravates misfortune, while a cheerful smile often dispels those mists that portend a storm.—Mrs. Sigourney

Today's Horoscope

Mixed fortunes await those who are celebrating birthdays today, it is foreseen. There will be good fortune, but some disappointment, perhaps in connection with elders, it is prophesied. They should watch their health. Their business will expand. Born on this date a child will enjoy the cooperation and valuable help of employers, but will be subject to setbacks and sudden upheavals through feminine relatives.

Words of Challenge

Not only Britain's fate is being decided over there, Canada's fate is being decided over there, the Empire's fate is being decided; the fate of all the unhappy peoples now overrun and enslaved is being decided; the fate of freedom itself is being decided a few hours flight distance away from where we stand today. Sir Patrick Duff, Deputy High Commissioner for the United Kingdom to Canada.

Wants Senior Hockey, but Not at Expense of Promising Juniors

To the Editor:
 Sir—Kindly allow me a small space in your paper to express an opinion I know is shared by many in this city on the question of hockey for the coming Winter.

Most people want to see senior hockey, and I can be included among them providing it does not rob the junior hockey team. Under normal conditions I would say to push your hockey talent ahead as fast as possible, but the present set-up in Nelson is far from that.

At least six excellent men must be brought in if Nelson is to compete successfully with Trail and Kimberley, and can that many be found, even supposing the kind of jobs can be provided that these "excellent" men will approve. If they are good men they will want good jobs, and jobs have been woefully scarce of recent years. As for second rate men, we have seen enough of them in the immediate past seasons. Not only are they ten-cents-a-dozen hockey players, but they are the type who consider it beneath their dignity to have to work, and they got in their best efforts after most of the city has gone to bed.

The only other way of filling in the gaps in the ranks of the seniors is to draw from the junior ranks. If this is done, and it must be remembered that that is what should be done in years to come, it will still leave us with a very weak senior team, and a weak junior club.

I would say by all means leave the junior intact. Most of them have two years junior play ahead of them, and it is too much to expect them to break into senior company, especially in the Kootenay, when they have just passed their eighteenth birthdays. Give our kids the chances they deserve, and they will give you the kind of hockey you want.

New Zealand Takes Job of Making More Cheese for Britain

Although shipments of cheese from New Zealand to the United Kingdom set a record during the 1940-41 season, when they were 20 per cent above the previous season, the United Kingdom Government has contracted to purchase a greatly increased quantity in the current season, and for the remaining years of the war, and one year thereafter. Under an agreement reached in late June with the New Zealand Government, Britain will purchase up to 160,000 tons of cheese, which is about 50,000 tons more than shipped by New Zealand last season. The cheese will be paid for, whether shipped or not, for the coming season; in subsequent years payment will be made on the basis of the quantity shipped.

To meet this request from the United Kingdom for still more cheese, writes C. B. Birkett, Assistant Canadian Trade Commissioner at Auckland, a greater number of New Zealand farmers will have to switch over to cheese from butter, which has been New Zealand's most valuable item of export. The change will involve considerable expense in plant alterations and considerable reorganization of the dairy industry. Steps taken to ensure fulfillment of the contract include payments up to £20 by the Government to each individual or organization making the change-over and the payment of reasonable compensation to butter and cheese producers for costs incurred and for any loss sustained in plant or buildings acquired for cheese production and unlikely to be required for that purpose after the war.

Steel and Aircraft Production Records in the U. S.

Production of steel and output of military aircraft formed the highlights of industrial activity in the United States during the first half of this year. Reflecting the heavy demands arising from the defence program, steel production reached the highest figure on record, notes D. S. Cole, Canadian Trade Commissioner at New York, reviewing United States business conditions in a report to the Department of Trade and Commerce. According to the American Iron and Steel Institute, the output of steel amounted to 40,911,886 tons, as compared with 29,403,502 tons in the first half of 1940, showing a gain of almost 40 per cent. This output was within 20 per cent of the production in the entire year 1917, which was the peak of the First Great War effort, and within 40 per cent of the output for the whole of 1940, the best previous year in United States steel history. Operations totalled 98 per cent of capacity as compared with 72.4 per cent for the corresponding period of 1940. However, consumption is estimated to be much in excess of production, and the industry has been called upon to make plans for expanding its annual producing capacity by 10,000,000 tons as quickly as possible.

In the aviation industry, the long months of preparation for large-scale output of military aircraft are now showing results in the form of sharply increasing production. In spite of a strike in one of the leading aircraft plants, 1476 military planes were produced in June, bringing total output to 7243 planes for the first six months of the year. In the past two years plant space has risen from 9,454,550 square feet to 32,786,531 square feet, and another 20,871,195 square feet is under construction. From the beginning of 1939 to April 1 last employment in the industry rose from 44,296 to 237,267 persons. At the end of June, the industry was obligated for business in excess of $7,500,000,000, one-third of which was government orders placed in the period of one month.

He Didn't Vote

It is pretty hard to envision any rancher, farmer, fruit grower, stump rancher, courtesy rancher, or any other variety of agriculturist, in this district, who has not received circulars of the marketing boards that effect the agricultural products of this region. It is even hard to envision one who has not lighted his fires with such circulars, so numerous are they. Supplementing mailed circulars, there have been public notices published of meetings called for purposes of growers taking steps necessary to representation.

While it is possible of course for newspaper notices to be overlooked, it is quite impossible to imagine that there is a rancher in this territory who does not know that controls are exercised, and that he has the opportunity of participating in choosing the board or boards that concern him.

Yet we have the case of the Minister of Agriculture recently being asked at a public meeting in a Kootenay centre, "Who elected the Vegetable Board?"

There may be the most valid grounds for criticism in connection with the Vegetable Board—in this district, which is distant from the big production; but the grower who has firmly refused to register in accordance with the law, and has firmly refused to have anything whatever to do with exercising his rights of suffrage under the law, is in a poor position to heatedly demand, "Who chose this bunch, anyway?"

In civil law the man who refuses to appear in court to answer a suit, is deemed to have conceded the suit. Even if he appears, but has failed to file written answer to the plaintiff's pleadings within the time limit mentioned in the writ served on him, he has automatically lost his case in principle, and will be allowed to make representations only as to the amount to be assessed against him.

The civic elector who fails to cast his vote is considered to have only himself to blame if the choice of his fellows doesn't suit him. The same applies to those who feel too busy to exercise their franchise in Provincial and Dominion elections. Whatever happens, they have "asked for it."

Aalesund Mob Only Quelled by Marines as Hostages Removed

Description of the serious clash between the population of the Norwegian West coast city of Aalesund and German military forces is given by News of Norway, issued at Washington. The trouble occurred when the Germans started to transport about 70 hostages who had been collected from Aalesund and the surrounding districts and who had temporarily been placed in the Free Masons Hall in Aalesund. Although the time of departure from Aalesund was kept secret, it was soon learned that the prisoners were to leave during the night in a specially chartered steamer.

Large crowds numbered about 5000 gathered around the Masonic Hall. Bus drivers refused to transport the prisoners to the steamer, and the Germans finally had to take the two drivers to take the job. The police were able to clear the streets of about 1000 persons. The city Chief of Police Lindheim appeared on the scene. Lindheim was immediately surrounded with insulting words from the crowd and started a heated demonstration against him. The deputy chief retained by ordering his men to arrest all demonstrators, including a white-haired woman.

Later on the crowd broke up the steamer over which the buses had to pass. A German Lindheim reappeared the tempo of the crowd had reached the boiling point. They found the deputy police chief took refuge among his German friends, and the Nationalist forces finally ordered marines from windows to assist the police. Marine demonstrators, especially a woman, attacked the Germans with stones and grenades, and a police officer fired a shot into the air.

In order to prevent bloodshed, Hans M. Roemerberg, a prominent citizen, who was among the prisoners, intervened. He appealed to the crowd to behave quietly and said that such demonstrations would not help the prisoners. Concluding his little speech, Roemerberg shouted, "Long Live the King!" and asked the crowd to sing the royal hymn. Taking up their hats the whole crowd sang "G. G. Save the King!"

Afterwards they opened the steamer to let the buses pass and followed them to the pier, which the police vainly tried to prevent. As the steamer pulled out the huge crowd sang the royal hymn and the national anthem. Later the people turned their attention to the police station which was besieged the whole night. Chief deputy Lindheim tried to leave the building several times but finally had to remain at the police station the whole night. He also stayed there the next night, and then left the city of Aalesund.

Council Approves Atlantic Charter

Eden Proposes Vast Pool of Food Reserves Be Created; Maisky Makes Plea for Correct Placing of Supplies

By HAROLD FAIR, Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 24 (CP Cable)—The Inter-Allied Council meeting in the green-walled picture gallery of St. James' Palace today gave an adherence to the "common principles of policy" contained in the Roosevelt-Churchill declaration and promised effective cooperation.

The endorsement—in the form of murmured Yes or "Oui" from members of a long red cloth-covered table—came at the end of a series of speeches by Allied representatives, including Soviet Ambassador Ivan Maisky's plea for correct allocation of economic resources and war supplies.

Foreign Secretary Eden proposed creation of a vast pool of food reserves for supplying Europe in the emergency period after the war—a plan upon which the United States already has been consulted. The Foreign Secretary read a letter from United States Ambassador John Winant declaring the undertaking to be "of great prospective usefulness."

A resolution embodying the proposal was adopted without dissent. Mr. Eden, who presided, was the only Empire speaker, although five members of the Government—Arthur Greenwood, Minister Without Portfolio, Viscount Cranborne, Dominions Secretary, L. S. Amery, Secretary for India, Lord Moyne, Colonial Secretary, and Richard Law, Foreign Affairs Undersecretary—were at the side.

In dealing with the Atlantic charter, Mr. Eden explained the United Kingdom and the Dominion were not mentioned in the preamble of the resolution before the conference because the United Kingdom was a party to the original declaration and "The Dominions are already associated with it."

Mr. Eden's resolution called on each of the Allied Governments to prepare estimates of foodstuffs, raw materials and other articles of "prime necessity" which would be required by their countries. He explained a large portion of these commodities would have to come from the United States and British Dominions.

The Netherlands, Polish, Belgian, Norwegian and Czechoslovak Governments already are taking initial steps to prepare estimates of their needs, Mr. Eden said.

The Inter-Allied Council is composed of the following Governments—several of them in exile as a result of German occupation: Britain and her Dominions, Russia, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Greece, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Yugoslavia and Free France.

Representing Canada in High Commission Vincent Massey, attendance was Frederick Hudd, Secretary of Canada House, who was one of 31 men around the conference table.

Regarding the food plan, Mr. Eden said he had given Mr. Winant assurance that the United States Government will be kept fully informed of the discussions both at today's meeting and later.

Mr. Eden said the statement that the Ambassador had authorized him to present today, indicating the United States was interested, "shows that they will not be unwilling at the right time to join in framing plans for supply of Europe's needs on a basis of cooperation."

Approval of the Roosevelt-Churchill declaration had come earlier.

A resolution to this effect was adopted by a voice vote after the Soviet Ambassador, Ivan Maisky, had declared Russia was in agreement with the fundamental principles of the declaration and asserted the Soviet Union would defend the right of every nation to independence, territorial integrity and the social order and form of government of its own choice.

Before the vote was taken The Netherlands Foreign Minister, Dr. E. E. N. Van Kleffens, objected to Point IV of the Roosevelt-Churchill declaration, which provides equal access for all nations to world trade and raw materials, but "with due respect for their existing obligations."

Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, presided at the Council meeting, the first of its kind since Russia entered the war, and made a special point of presenting Maisky early in the proceedings.

Mr. Eden welcomed Maisky as a representative of a people who are "defending themselves with a courage, tenacity and skill which have won the admiration of the world."

Maisky said the U.S.S.R. had consistently respected the "sovereign rights of peoples" and declared it would "defend the right of every nation to independence and territorial integrity of its country and its right to establish such a social order and to choose such a form of government as it deems opportune and necessary for the better promotion of its economic and cultural prosperity."

He said Russia also consistently sought general disarmament and a foreign policy based "upon the desire to maintain peaceful and neighborly relations with all countries which respect the integrity and inviolability of its borders."

A joint Polish-Czechoslovak declaration was presented to the Council declaring the two Governments were "determined to assist in a spirit of close and friendly collaboration in realization of the principal aims of the Roosevelt-Churchill declaration."

Mystery of Exiled Shah's Fabulous Gems Unsolved

TEHRAN, Iran, Sept. 23 (Delayed) (AP)—A grimy motorcade of limousines bearing the former Shah of Iran into exile was reported tonight near the wild desert frontier of Baluchistan.

With the deposed ruler on the dusty trek were his wife and three sons but whether $4,000,000 worth of royal jewels also were with him or safe in a steel vault here was not known.

By the time a Parliamentary committee completes an inquiry into the mystery of the gems, the Shah, said to be despondent and given to spells of weeping, expects to be deep in India preparing, if possible, to continue to South America.

Even conservative estimates of his wealth in Britain, the United States and other countries, accumulated from oil revenues and other monopolistic industries in Iran, place the total at more than $30,000,000. Some put it as high as $300,000,000.

Report on Grand Coulee Probe to Be Made Soon

OTTAWA, Sept. 24 (CP)—Effects of United States dam projects on Canadian rivers in the West have been under study by members of the International Joint Commission, Hon. Charles Stewart, Chairman, said today.

Commission members recently returned from journeys in the Rocky Mountains where they investigated possible flooding of the Columbia River within Canadian territory as a result of the Grand Coulee Dam built in the State of Washington.

"The dam is 170 miles from the boundary but it is expected that when the dam is filled to its crest, which has not yet been done, that the river level within Canada will be raised," Mr. Stewart said. "The Commission has made an inspection and will report on its findings."

Also under examination was the proposal of the city of Seattle to raise the height of a dam on the Skagit River, whose headwaters are in Canada. This raising of the dam crest would also be likely to heighten water levels within Canada.

Battered but Inspired Leafs Seek Victory Tonight to Tie Up Series

SCUBY IS ELIGIBLE

VANCOUVER, Sept. 24 (CP).—The Executive of the British Columbia Lacrosse Association tonight ruled Bill Scuby, Nelson goaltender, eligible to play for the West Kootenay team until all Provincial playoffs have been completed.

The ruling settled a protest by Trail that Scuby, property of New Westminster Salmonbellies was not eligible to play in the Nelson-Trail West Kootenay Lacrosse League finals.

In announcing the decision, the Executive said it was understood that the season did not end until all Provincial playoffs have been completed. Earlier in the season the Kootenay Executive had asked for a ruling on Scuby's eligibility during the regular schedule. The B. C. Executive replied that Scuby could play for Nelson provided the other Kootenay League teams did not object.

No objection had been registered and therefore Scuby was eligible to continue until the playoffs have been completed.

Bill Scuby Will Play in Goal Against the Bruins

Their spirit undaunted despite a flock of injuries and beatings in the committee rooms, Nelson Maple Leafs are gunning for a victory tonight at the Civic Arena that will tie up their best-of-five series for the West Kootenay box lacrosse title with the Trail Golden Bears.

The injury hex has left few of the Leafs unmarked, but they promise they won't let their battling for everything they're worth tonight in an effort to square up their count with the Bruins.

Bert Bryant, the Leafs' great rearguard will be right in the fight for the most valuable player award, has taken quite a battering the last week or so as the Leafs played three playoff games in four nights. Bert is badly battle-scarred, and he has a bad cold to boot. But he has been given a 24-hour rest and treatments, and he hopes to be in shape again tonight.

The Leafs were beaten 16-12 in the opener at Trail Tuesday night, but it was a bad first period that accounted for the damage. Trail jumped off to a 5-0 lead in that canto, but the game was nip-and-tuck from then on, with Nelson enjoying a one-goal edge on the activities in the last three periods.

"As soon as our boys settled down, they were all right," stated Jack Reid, Leafs' President. "In that first period, they appeared tired right out, but once they got warmed up, they were okay."

Stampede Have a Dozen Players Signed Thus Far

CALGARY, Sept. 24 (CP).—In assembling the personnel of the Calgary Stampede for the 1941-42 season in the newly formed Alberta-British Columbia Senior Hockey League, 12 players have already been signed up according to Harry Walshaw, Business Manager.

Newcomers enrolled are Keith Langille, who was sub-goaltender for Sydney Millionaires last winter; Jim Kendall, a defenceman from Brandon; Dunc Grant, left winger from Moose Jaw; Miller, Joe Brown, Edmonton Flyers centre, and formerly with Kirkland Lake Blue Devils and Doug Cairns, centre, and Pete Atkinson, right winger of the disbanded Turner Valley Oilers.

Regulars from last year's lineup already signed are Tommy Dewar, Dan Sprout, Chuck Millman, defencemen, Les Thirlwell, Tony Desmarais and Joe Shannon, forwards; Jack Quigley, forward; Biff Smith, Johnny McIntyre, defencemen; and Art Rice-Jones, goaltender, are last year's regulars yet to enroll.

High School Has Meet on Friday

Despite the fact that the poor weather has kept the athletes from getting into condition, the annual track and field meet of the Nelson High School will be held at the Recreation Grounds Friday afternoon.

There has been the odd workout for a handful of the students recently, but they are far from ordinary competitive shape. Coupled with the fact that the track is in terrible shape, officials of the meet are not looking for any records to be broken.

The track and field events are ordinarily held in June, but it was postponed to now because of the Cadet activities and inspection last June.

The meet will be an inter-house competition, between Houses A, B, C and D. House B last won the honors.

D. H. Tye will have general supervision of the meet.

There will be the usual parade, with bands in all, from the school to the Grounds before the meet.

KUHN PLEASES BOSS

Reid paid special tribute to the play of Everett Kuhn, another rugged Leaf rearguard this season, is playing rearguard and supplying a fine ball carrier and supplying an inspirational force to the Leafs' cause. He has been scoring goals regularly, and is one of Nelson's key-men.

Though the "Bill Scuby Affair" is still not settled, the Leaf goalie will be in goal again for Nelson tonight. Word was still awaited from the Coast late Wednesday night regarding whether Bill would be ruled eligible to play in the provincial playoffs for the Leafs. So the Nelson team contacted Trail with the result that it was agreed that Scuby would be allowed to play tonight no matter what was learned today.

The elongated reminder has been turning in sensational performances for the Leafs, and he will play a big part in Nelson's hopes tonight.

Little change is announced for the Trail lineup. George Russell, Nelson-born player, will be back on defence for the Golden Bears, and Jim Kendall has been moved up to a rover position. Louis Moro will be in goal, and besides Russell, his defence will consist of Chuck Casey, Paul Seymour and Baker Meritt.

One line will remain the same as on Tuesday night — Bob Kendall, rover; Rooney Sammartino, centre; Ralph Temple and Nick Turk, wings. On the other front string, Marcus Smith, the League's top point-getter, has been switched to his old position at centre. Jim Kendall is at rover, and Carl Galliciano and Des Hood on the wings.

Curly Wheatley and Gordie Ezart will do the refereeing.

Egan Permitted to Rejoin N.H.L. for New Season

EDMONTON, Sept. 24 (CP).—All hockey players not subject to immediate call for the four-month compulsory military training will be given permission by the Alberta War Services Board to travel to the United States, it was announced here today by Chief Justice Horace Harvey, Board Chairman.

Chief Justice Harvey said in an interview that all applications for passports by persons desiring to play hockey in the United States will be dealt with on their individual merits.

He disclosed that Pat Egan, defenceman with New York Americans the past two years, had been granted permission to obtain a passport and return to the National Hockey League team this season. Egan is only 23 years old.

Chief Justice Harvey said the ruling was based on the fact Egan was not subject to immediate call for training and added the Board had turned down the application of Jack McGill of Edmonton because McGill is 21 years old and subject to immediate call. McGill played with Nanaimo (B. C.) Clippers last season and planned to try out with Boston Bruins this fall.

Entries for West Koolenay Playoff Softball Ordered

All entries for the West Kootenay men's softball playoffs, together with a $1 fee, will have to be sent in to "Slim" Porter, Secretary of the Nelson Softball Association, by Sept. 30, the Nelson official reports.

He is acting for the three trustees of the Gilbert Rowling Memorial Trophy, held at present by the Crown Points. In 1939, in the first year of competition, Warfield Aces took the title.

As usual the Trail League winner is expected to enter the district playoffs, and also Castlegar. However, if Castlegar wins the present series with the Trail Mercers, the Mercers will remain in the hunt for the West Kootenay championship. That means that both Castlegar Millionaires and Trail Mercers will be battling for the Rowling Memorial Trophy.

Portland and Nelson are also possible entries.

Nova Figures He Will Arise Once More Than Louis

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., Sept. 24 (AP)—If you can overlook such things as two left feet and a couple of minor habits that could be fatal against the Bomber, Lou Nova is the strongest, toughest customer ever served up to Joe Louis.

This is no round-tummed Tony Galento, no over-sized middleweight like Al McCoy, no shivering Johnny Paycheck or Max Baer who is going to tangle with the heavy-weight boss in the Polo Grounds ring next Monday night. Nova is big and powerful, he's still a young fellow, and what's more, he doesn't think Louis has the fighting heart to stand up and belt with him over the 15-round route.

"I'm gonna pop him," the California cloutier said after his semifinal workout at his training camp here, "and he's gonna pop me. We'll probably both go down, but I'll get up more than once. But I'll get up one more time than Joe, and that's the one that counts. He's going to get very discouraged trying to put me away after his soft touches of the past."

Manager Ray Carlen agrees with this so much that he announced he would ask the New York Athletic Commission the day of the fight to instruct the referee not to stop the tussle until one or the other is out cold.

Naturally, Ray figures this party is going to be the Bomber. But among the 300 or so spectators who saw Lou work out today, there was a feeling that unless he changes certain little habits, Nova is going to be merely No. 19 on the list of guys who had their ears scrambled by the world's free-style champion ear-scrambler.

One thing Nova still had occasional lapses when his feet go into a quarter-to-three stance in the ring. It happened in his one-round session today with spartan Jim Neville, and the first thing you knew, Lou slipped right off his pins into a three-point landing on the canvas.

Another thing that should be pleasant for the Bomber to see is Nova charging in with his left hand swinging low and his chin sticking out, just asking for a belt in the whippers.

However, despite these habits, Nova's physical condition alone is enough to make trouble for Joe. He will be a new experience for the Bomber, and Louis has shown once or twice in the past that when you spring something new on him, he likes time to think it over before doing anything about it.

Walker's Triple Sends Dodgers to Win Over Braves; Gumbert's Hurling Preserves Pennant Hopes for Cards

By STEVE O'LEARY
Associated Press Sport Writer

BOSTON, Sept. 24 (AP).—If Dixie Walker never gets another birthday present, he'll still be 'way ahead of the game.

Dixie reached the ripe age of 31 today and celebrated with a seventh-inning triple with the bases loaded to send Brooklyn's beloved "bums" to a 4-2 triumph over Boston Braves.

That was the ball game and another nail driven into the coffin of St. Louis Cardinals' pennant hopes. Brooklyn continues with 1½-game margin over the Cards. Each club has three games left.

Up to that inning the game had been a tight pitching battle between Kirby Higbe, who also collected a present in his 22nd birthday although it wasn't his birthday, and Jim Tobin. The Braves pushed across a pair of unearned runs in the fourth inning on two hits and two errors to give Boston the lead it carried into the seventh.

Brooklyn added another run in the eighth when Lavagetto drew a base on balls with two away and came all the way around on a triple by Reese.

Boston's runs in the fourth were scored by Cooney and Wauer. The second run came when Lavagetto fumbled a sharp blast down the third base line.

Extensive Schedule Is Planned for New Interprovincial Loop

In the proposed schedule of the newly-formed British Columbia-Alberta Senior Hockey League, it is planned to have each team play each of the other clubs four times on home ice.

If Nelson enters the League, thus making six teams in all, that would mean that each club would have 20 home games during the entire schedule, or 120 contests during the season.

At a meeting in Calgary last Sunday, Red Deer, Calgary, Lethbridge, Trail and Kimberley definitely submitted their entries.

His Heart Made Cards' Recruit a Major Leaguer

By DUKE MORAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 24 (AP).—While his arm didn't have it, his heart did, so Stanley Musial today is a rookie sensation for St. Louis Cardinals instead of a has-been at the ripe old age of 20.

A slim kid reared at nearby Donora, the new Cardinal one-man gang changed almost overnight from a bargain basement southpaw pitcher into a southpaw hitting and fielding outfielder with a million-dollar future.

Sheer grit—the same sort of stuff which made him play outfield for Daytona Beach, Fla., last year when he wasn't pitching—made the amazing transition possible.

"I was playing outfield one day and fell trying to field a low liner," recalls Stanley. "The fall did something to my arm although I finished the season with 18 victories and five losses."

When Stan reported to Columbus last Spring, he added, "I was still listing as a pitcher but I didn't make the grade. I was shipped to Springfield, Mo., for a tryout as an outfielder."

All Stanley did was burn up the Western Association. When Branch Rickey, boss of the Card chain, discovered his worn-out southpaw leading in hitting, runs batted in and sundry other items in mid-season, he sent the boy to Rochester.

In 35 games for Rochester, Stan whacked the pellet for an average well over 300 and was brought in by the Cards for a look-see.

Stanley has belted National League pitching for a 300 average in 30 times up, clipping a homer and two singles yesterday against Pittsburgh Pirates.

AMERICAN HUNTERS RETURN TO INVERMERE

INVERMERE, B. C.—The return year after year of the same hunters from points in the United States and Canada to this district has started again this season.

W. J. Fortier, Fresno, Calif., and A. E. Arblaster, Los Angeles, have returned to the Valley to try their luck with Big Game. They are accompanied by Walter Johnson, San Francisco. The party is out with Gordon MacKay, Atholmer, as guide. Walter Nixon, Invermere, is also out with a hunting party.

Regular Yank Outfield Gives Them Big Advantage; Batters Powerful

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP).—Any outfield that included Joe DiMaggio would be a better than average combination and an outfield that also included Charley (King Kong) Keller and Tommy Henrich should be the best in baseball.

Well, it is. And New York Yankees hope to have it in action next week in the world series. We say "hope" because right now there is some question of the availability of Keller, who hurt his right ankle a couple of weeks ago.

If the Yankees can present their regular outfield intact, they will have a tremendous power advantage over either Brooklyn Dodgers or St. Louis Cardinals. Otherwise the National Leaguers may have a little the better of the outfield argument.

Keller has hit 33 home runs and batted in 122 tallies. If he had not been hurt he might still be the American League leader in both departments. In addition he has hit 24 doubles and 10 triples.

If Charley doesn't play, his place will be taken by George (Twinkletoes) Selkirk, who was a Yankee regular before Keller came along.

DiMaggio, of course, is incomparable both in the field and at bat. He has an average of .354, has hit 27 home runs and batted in 118 runs, and (including Sunday) although he, too, missed a lot of action with an ankle injury.

In rightfield the Yanks have an underrated young star in Henrich, who has one of the best throwing arms in the major leagues. He is a .374 hitter, but has collected 31 homers and batted in 98 runs.

The Dodgers have an effective power plant with three 300 hitters, including the new batting champion of the National League, Pete Reiser, rookie centrefielder. He is batting at a 3.40 pace and leading his league in doubles and triples.

Dixie Walker, in Brooklyn's rightfield, is batting .308 and has a habit of coming through in the clutch. Joe Medwick in left field is batting .315 and because he is hustling this year as he never did before, he probably is a better defensive player than either Keller or Selkirk.

The Dodgers also have a .300 hitting outfielder in reserve, Jimmy Wadell, who likely will be used principally as a pinch-hitter during the series.

The Cardinals have a fine outfield when they can get it together. Moore is the best centrefielder in the league. Johnny Hopp, a rookie, is Reiser's rival for honors as the fastest man in the league and for a while also was threatening to take the batting crown from the Brooklyn star. Enos Slaughter, batting .311, is the rightfielder, but like Keller has been hurt and out of action. He, too, expects to be ready to play in the series if St. Louis makes it.

The Cards have a capable replacement in 37-year-old Estel Crabtree, who is batting .331 and has been a sparkplug in the struggle down the stretch.

9598 PATRIOTIC SHIRTAWAIST DRESS Marian Martin PATTERN 9598

You need a new smart shirt-waister—you're in a patriotic mood! Marian Martin combines both in Pattern 9598. See the jaunty sailor-type collar trimmed with a row of braid, the slim buttoning down the front! On the sleeve is an embroidered emblem that's easy to do with the Sew Chart to help you—the transfer pattern for the motif also includes complete directions. There are slit pockets at either side of the skirt along the side seams—handy and smart, but you may omit them. If you like, make the sleeves short and cuffed, and have a simple lapel collar instead. Both versions have become bodice fullness, and a trim, set-in belt, both are ready for "active service".

Pattern 9598 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3 1/4 yards 39 inch fabric and 1 1/4 yards braid.

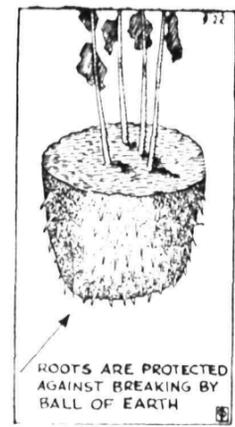

Send twenty cents for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your SIZE, name, address and style number. Send your order to The Daily News, Pattern Department, Nelson, B.C. Pattern will be sent to your home within 10 days.

Garden Should Be Treated for Fall

ROOTS ARE PROTECTED AGAINST BREAKING BY BALL OF EARTH

Fall beauty treatment for garden
By DEAN HALLIDAY

Perennial borders should receive their beauty treatments now. This entails a course of transplanting by transferring in the Fall, plants become established again before winter sets in and thus are ready to start growth early in the Spring. Late blooming perennials such as chrysanthemums, helianthus, and bellonnas are best transplanted in the Spring.

As shown in today's Garden-Graze, a new way of transplanting is to use a ball of earth as little as possible. Leave a good ball of earth about the roots as they are transplanted. This is a good practice as it is the next best thing to the soil from which the plant has been lifted.

CONTRACT . . . By Shepard Barclay

VITAL TO GOOD BRIDGE
ABILITY to handle four-card suit lengths efficiently during the bidding is vital to good bridge. Whether you follow some kind of system which forbids opening calls of a major suit less than five cards long, or whether you use some more widely accepted procedure, you must have some way to show four-card suits, with the hope of finding a four-card fit in your partner's hand. Otherwise you will miss plenty of profitable contracts and get into plenty of unprofitable ones.

That was basically bad bidding, by partners who will not bid a four-card suit unless it contains at its top at least what they call a trick and a half. It resulted in the side being set one. Four tricks were taken in spades, three in hearts, three in diamonds and one in clubs, no way being found to develop the twelfth trick, not even by a squeeze, as East could guard clubs while West protected diamonds.

Much better bidding would have been: North, 1-Spade, South, 3-Spades, North 4-Spades, South 4-No Trumps, North 5-Hearts, South 5-No Trumps, North 6-Hearts, South 6-Spades. That contract could not be beaten, as a diamond could be ruffed for the twelfth trick and nothing would be lost except the club finesse to the K.

The only possible way to have made 6-No Trumps would have been by playing the clubs unnaturally, using either the 8 on the first round and the A on the second or vice versa.

Bad Weather Reports Lift Winnipeg Prices
WINNIPEG, Sept. 24 (CP) - Fear that harvest-delaying rains in Manitoba and Alberta might cause further damage to new crops still in the fields kept sellers out of the market on Winnipeg Grain Exchange today and both wheat and coarse grain futures prices scored good gains. Wheat values ended the strong session 4 1/2-4 cent higher, October at 73, December 74, and May 78 1/2 cents a bushel.

Another factor in the upturn was the report that Great Britain had purchased 1,000,000 bushels of No. 1 Northern wheat from Canada.

Commission house buying and covering, together with lack of offerings, received credit for the broad coarse grain price advances. Flax climbed about four cents, oats and barley values were up more than two cents and rye advanced a cent.

In the cash wheat market, shippers bought some No. 2 Northern and mills took No. 3 Northern.

The Secretary was directed to write to the government for information regarding farm broadcasts of an educational nature.

A letter of thanks was sent to the Little Theatre group of Nelson for presenting their entertaining concert here and the proceeds of $22.80 was voted for the Robson Park funds.

Gomer Jones, Who Came to Rossland Before Boom Days, Dies at Nelson

Thomas Gomer Jones, whose life was closely intertwined with events of Kootenay pioneer history, died at his Nelson home, 714 Mill Street, Wednesday morning at the age of 68. He had been ill a considerable time.

IN ROSSLAND BEFORE BOOM

Nelson had been his home for the past 18 years, but in the early days from 1885, even before the first excitement of Rossland boom days, he was in the Golden City. In that era he also worked and lived in many other parts of the Kootenay and Washington. During his residence here, he was accountant for the Kootenay Valley Stage, that preceded the Greyhound Lines and practised accountancy generally, serving several business firms.

He rode into Rossland on the first wagon bringing general merchandise into Rossland. At that time he was employed by James Hunter, who with a brother was going into Rossland to open the first Hunter Bros. store. Mr. Jones served in that store, and later in other Rossland businesses as accountant and bookkeeper. While he later settled at Rossland, he worked variously in the East Kootenay, in Alberta and in Washington. He came to Nelson from Rossland.

Born in Carmarthen, Wales, on June 27, 1873, he came to this continent in 1894. He first went to Spokane and shortly afterwards to Coulee, where he was employed by James Hunter. It was from Coulee that he went first to Rossland.

He is survived by his wife, here, two sons, Morgan at home and Richard at Trail; a daughter Mrs. W. G. Hall of Nelson; two grandchildren at Trail and two sisters in Cardiff, Wales. He was predeceased by two daughters, Agnes and Annie.

Following is information on his life given by Mr. Jones in an interview with R. G. Joy, Nelson and District Oldtimers Association historian.

Thomas Gomer Jones was born June 27, 1873 in South Wales, in the town of Carmarthen, 30 miles from Swansea, the great smelter town.

"Left Wales in 1899," he said, "and came to Spokane. Then I went to Coulee, City where I commenced work for James Hunter, later of Rossland firm of Hunter Bros., as bookkeeper.

"In 1896 I went to Rossland with James Hunter, who was in business on Columbia Avenue. Mr. Hunter, who by the way came originally from Woodstock, Ont., was first in business at Coulee. Wash. Coulee was headquarters during the construction of the Great Northern Railway in that part. When construction was finished, Mr. Hunter looked for a new location. He chose Rossland.

"Then, as you know, the town was only starting and its progress depended on the value and amount of ore. The first ore shipped from the LeRoi Mine was taken out of a ditch 10 feet from the front of the hotel at the LeRoi. This ore was followed to the shaft, and later millions of tons were taken out.

IN FIRST WAGON TO REACH ROSSLAND

"The treasure was mostly locked in the bowels of the earth and that was one of the times the optimism of the oldtimers was justified.

"The stock for our store was general and amounted to 120 tons, 20 tons to a wagon and 12 horses to each wagon. I was in the first wagon to reach Rossland. The customs officers showed us where to put the wagons for the night and then directed us to a hotel. This was in 1895.

"The store was not quite finished. However, the stock was taken in and we opened up the business. On some days we took $1200 or more in cash. The Canadian wholesalers did not do much business until 1896, when goods were brought down the Columbia from Revelstoke.

"The first bank in Rossland first did business over the Hunter Bros. dry good counter. We handled heavy steel, hardware, groceries and general furnishings. By the way, Rossland swimming pool was the site of the old Hunter Bros. store. The present site was occupied about 1915.

"In 1896 Rossland was a very small place. There were the Hotel Clifton, Sourdough Alley, about six buildings on Columbia Avenue and not many dwelling houses. Prospectors in the surrounding hills were numerous at that time, and most of the business was with them. Later the mines were the principal customers. These included the LeRoi, War Eagle and others.

"The only store besides Hunter's was Tussis—partly frame and partly tent. Tussis was a good man, all wool and a yard wide. He was very active in the volunteer fire department. I left Hunter and went to work for P. Burns & Company and was often in touch with P. Burns and Blake Wilson. I then went to the Old Country for a visit.

ROSSLAND GROWS

"When I came back the growth of Rossland had been wonderful. Columbia Avenue was practically filled with stores and hotels, Spokane Street had its share of buildings along First Avenue to Washington Street, one time known as Sourdough Alley. The residential portions were small, only a few houses being scattered here and there. This was about 1896.

"Hundreds of miners were employed by the mines. The LeRoi had the bunkhouse beside the Hotel, and the War Eagle had the same. The Nickel Plate was going strong. Mr. McCune operated the Nickel Plate very successfully.

"Horse and mule teams were loaded with ore continually at Northport, going to smelters at Tacoma and Great Falls, Teams also carried ore by wagon load to Trail where it was loaded onto steam boats which took the ore South. Heinze built the narrow gauge railway from Trail to Rossland and contracting for 35,000 tons of LeRoi ore. Later the LeRoi built a smelter at Northport. It was built later by the Day Brothers of Hercules Mine fame.

LeRoi shares at one time were hawked about Spokane for 10 and 15 cents cash as installment payments. I must mention they were sold later at $5 per share.

"When Mr. Hunter went to Rossland, he looked over the LeRoi. There was nothing much to see, but he caught the fever of optimism and decided to locate there. Captain Hall, who was an uncle of mine, came from the States to take charge of the LeRoi with Nick Tregar as foreman. When Nick broke into the big stop at the LeRoi, there was some excitement.

Mr. Jones then spoke of the wonderful mine at Kimberley, and the great success it had been to the C. M. & S. Company. He was at Kimberley a while and told of the operation of the North Star and the Marysville Smelter. It is said this smelter never turned a wheel.

"One time I was driving to Cranbrook," he said, "and saw two tall men, one 6 foot 6 inches and the other exceedingly tall. One was Father Cocola, and the other was a prospector. They were taking a helping hand to place on his back his huge pack. It was Sam Upham, and a sick man. The father was taking him into St. Eugene Hospital. I delivered my messages to Wass, and came back and drove them to Cranbrook.

"Yes, Father Cocola was very tall. The tall man was an ex-Corcoran surgeon in his early days.

"After leaving Rossland finally in 1897," said Mr. Jones, "I wanted to go to a place where life was not so fast. So I went back to the States to one of the mines and asked for a job. The superintendent asked me if I could work after noticing my tall man. He was white and soft with much clerical work. There was a seven ton locomotive hauling ore not far from where we were sitting. 'Know anything about that?' he asked. 'Yes, said I. I did not understand the air brake, but could handle the hand brake. He said 'take us down the grade and up again,' I did, and when I quit I had 21 pants, shoes, unshined, having sufficient money to carry on meanwhile."

The superintendent was Jones' uncle, but he had never seen him before. An independent man, Jones did not want to get his job on the strength of their relationship and so never told the superintendent of it until he had been employed 21 weeks.

"When I came back to civilization, I was as fit as Fittsimmons. I then went to Cranbrook and worked for the telephone company and later the Crow's Nest Lumber Company as accountant and salesman. I worked with the Forest Mills Company in the same capacity. Then I went to Wardner and then to the Windermere District, where I acquired a half interest in the Rocky Mountain stage line. After this I went to Calgary for the Bernie Lumber Company of Penitence. I worked for the Revelstoke Forest Mills in 1919, where I worked as accountant."

Mr. Jones returned to his reminiscence of Rossland.

"Yes I knew J. C. Kirkup, the policeman at Rossland. He was a good man, a perfect man for Rossland at that time. He had lots of good sense and justice. Another good man was Judge Townsend, whose good judgement of men was a great aid in upholding the law.

"The Hunter family were a wonderful family. Jim was the founder. Rob Hunter is now of the Restmore Mattress Company. C. D. Hunter is now of the Empress Jam Company. Another three or four did business at Phoenix, Grand Forks and Greenwood; another was James Hunter's son does business in Rossland and Trail. The families character and credit was wonderful."

Nelson Loses Through Bad Roads-Norman

"The condition of the road between Nelway and Nelson must be costing your district a lot of money. It is a shame that you have no good connection with the great amount of traffic which could be available to you via Spokane."

The speaker was Sidney Norman, pioneer of the Kaslo-Slocan district, who reached Nelson yesterday afternoon by car from Los Angeles. He expects to spend the next two or three weeks in the Kaslo and Slocan districts.

Mr. Norman, who was from the early 90's for many years associated with mining in Kaslo and Slocan areas, was editor of Mining Truth in Spokane and more recently mining editor of the Vancouver Sun and of the Toronto Globe and Mail when the Toronto paper was engaged vigorously in urging the development of mining as one of Canada's greatest major industries.

ROSSLAND, B. C., Sept. 24—Ald. A. F. Snowball, who was empowered six weeks ago to secure prices on chairs which would be used at the High School, and also rented out to certain occasions, reported to the Council it was impossible to secure at the present time collapsible steel chairs, which are considered to be the most desirable type. Folding chairs of frame construction at a cost of $2.50, plus freight charges from the manufacturer in Eastern Canada, were available, he found.
