Fresh Honors for Kootenay Grower . . .

Mrs. Kelsey New World Wheat Queen

First Award of Title at Royal Winter Fair; To Defend North American Crown at Chicago

By E. M. CHANDLER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Nov. 20 (CP)—Mrs. Amy Kelsey of Erickson, B.C., who won the North American Wheat Queen title at the Chicago International Grain and Livestock Exposition last year, has been awarded the world wheat championship at the Royal Winter Fair here.

The 55-year-old housewife's hand-picked kernels of Reward Spring wheat, grown between trees on a six-acre farm ranch in the Kootenay Valley, won her the world title and a $2000 cash award donated by the Canadian National Railways.

MRS. AMY KELSEY

From that triumph, announced by Fair officials, she plans to go to Chicago to defend the North American championship.

This is the first year top winners of Royal Winter Fair wheat awards have been declared world champions. The Fair's competitions are open to comers from all parts of the world and officials say the title is a recognition of of Canada's supremacy among wheat-growing countries.

EDGES OTHER TITLISTS

To win the crown and the cash award, Mrs. Kelsey edged out Thomas E. Brown of Cassils, Alta., Winter wheat champion at the Royal Winter Fair, and Albert Robbins of Laura, Sask., Durum wheat titlist.

The frail, grey-haired woman carefully tended the prize-winning crop in intervals between helping her husband, Charles Kelsey, in his apple orchard and strawberry patches.

She started her career as a wheat-grower with experimental plots on a farm her husband owned many years ago at Kendleston, Sask. In her first venture into grain competitions, her entry came 37th at the 1937 Chicago Exposition.

"It was a hobby to take my mind off ill-health," she tells interviewers who ask her how she started to grow wheat. She suffered at the time from chonic sinus trouble.

Once started on the road to exhibiting fame, she coupled her personal credo, "What a man can do, I can do," with hard work and perseverance. She has grown 17 different varieties of wheat, oats and barley in her tiny tree-lined plot — it covers only one-third of an acre — but hard red Spring wheat, seeded 1½ bushels to an acre, brought her the world championship.

Mrs. Kelsey scorns special equipment in picking her prize-winning exhibits. Using a dinner plate, a magnifying glass and a strong light, she spends hours of eye-straining work on choosing the most nearly perfect kernels.

KOOTENAY TRIBUTE

Fruit ranch work and community activities keep her busy in the Summer months. Her only spare time comes in Winter and she uses some of it to write verse.

This woman wheat expert, expected to fly here to receive her awards Saturday night, takes little credit for her own prowess in beating all the scientific male grain growers but sees her successes as a tribute to the rich farming valley of the Kootenay.

"It's not the prize that counts most," she said, "it's our valley — it's Erickson."

Albert Robbins of Laura, Sask., and B. and C. Brown of Cassils, Alta., were declared winners of the oat and barley world championships, respectively. Each champion won a $2000 trophy.

Results in other championship classes:

Late oats, region one—Champion, Albert Robbins, Laura, Sask.; runner-up, B. Young, Thoksiluh, B.C.

Early oats, region one—Champion, Thomas E. Brown, Cassils, Alta.; runner-up, George Gwyllt, Kelvington, Sask.

Barley, region one—Champion, B. and C. Brown, Cassils, Alta.; runner-up, Elias Seed Farm, Haskett, Man.

SHORT AUSTERITY IF EXPORT NATIONAL AIM

Howe Asks for Helpful Ideas From Industry

CURTAILMENT

OTTAWA, Nov. 20 (CP) — Reconstruction Minister Howe, the man who will guide Canada's economic program to save vital American dollars, said tonight that if Canadians make the building up of a U.S. dollar exports a national objective, "we should be able to balance our trade in a matter of months."

Mr. Howe dealt extensively with the Geneva trade agreements and the Government's new "short-range" policy of spending less U.S. dollars, a policy involving prohibitions, quotas and excise taxes. This policy, he said, would "bring immediate help."

Already, he said, the President of an American manufacturing firm, which he did not identify, had made a "proposal that we were glad to accept" and by which a very large saving in U.S. dollars can be made. The Government wanted other ideas from manufacturers and industries.

He believed that under the program, low-cost housing and industrial expansion must have a high priority but "a good part of investment for commercial, office, service and amusement purposes, can and must be deferred." Non-productive public works whether Federal, provincial, or municipal, also should be deferred.

Licensing regulations now being prepared to deal with such items as capital goods, semi-fabricated parts, movie films, chemicals, steel and machinery, would be made as flexible as possible. Help from industry was welcomed in framing these regulations.

CROW'S NEST MINES UP OUTPUT

VICTORIA, Nov. 20 (CP) — British Columbia's coal production totalled 138,314 long tons last month, a gain of 25,955 tons over output for the previous October, but production on Vancouver Island fell from 45,192 to 39,955 tons.

Most of the increase was chalked up in the East Kootenay District where all three mines of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. Ltd. showed increases.

VICTORIA, Nov. 20 (CP) — Dr. W. A. Carrothers, Chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, indicated today that the Commission's decision on an application of the B.C. Electric Railway Co. Ltd. to boost transit fares on the Mainland would probably be made next week.

The application, only for the Mainland area, is for a boost of fares from seven cents to 10 cents and tickets from four to three for 25 cents.

Airwaves Bring Thrill Of Nuptials to Nelson

To the millions of Canadians and scores of Nelsonites who sat up Wednesday night to listen to their radios, the marriage of Princess Elizabeth to His Highness, Philip Mountbatten, Duke of Edinburgh, was a tale out of fairyland.

Magnificent in its royal pomp, yet simple in ceremony, the wedding was brought into every living room by BBC and CBC commentators in a full two-hour broadcast direct from Westminster Abbey and the palace grounds. Later in the day, for the actual account was aired from 3 to 5 a.m., re-broadcasts were heard.

The colorful pageantry of the processions from Buckingham Palace to the Abbey . . . the stately array of guards . . . the silvery tones of the welcoming fanfare . . . the imposing splendor of the Abbey, for centuries the traditional venue for royal weddings . . . the spoken vows of a princess and her sailor sweetheart—all was mirrored and in Canadians' attentive minds was seen almost as clearly as if they had been present.

NELSON HOMES LIT UP

Throughout the City those who stayed up, shortly before three, could see the lights of many of their neighbors come on as the moment eagerly awaited throughout the world drew near. They listened through the whole two hours, and their feelings were reflected in the words of one who declared it "the most beautiful ceremony I've ever heard."

St. Saviour's Pro-Cathedral at 10:30 Thursday morning in honor of the London occasion held a quiet Communion Service.

A "Royal Wedding" tea, sponsored by the Women's Missionary Society of St. Paul's United Church and Trinity United Church, was held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. N. C. Stibbs, Victoria Street.

PLACE CURBS ON SHIPMENTS TO CANADA

Railway Action Follows New Import Restrictions

PRECAUTION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Association of American Railroads today placed sharp curbs on freight shipments to Canada. The action followed new import restrictions imposed by the Dominion to conserve its dollar balances.

The partial embargo order was telegraphed to all railroads in the United States. It directed them not to accept general freight for destinations in Canada unless the shipper is able to certify that he has assurances that the goods have been or will be authorized for entry by the Collector of Customs at the border.

Shipments of coal and fuel oil were specifically exempted from the regulation.

The A.A.R. notice to the railroads took note of Canada's action of Nov. 17 restricting imports because of that country's difficulty in obtaining United States dollars to finance imports from this country.

The Canadian import restrictions apply primarily to consumer goods and luxury items. In some cases, imports are being prohibited, while other classes of imports are subject to quotas.

In Ottawa, Transport Department officials said the partial embargo was a precautionary measure to prevent goods, barred or placed under quota by the new import restrictions, from reaching border points where they would be turned back by Canadian customs officials.

The restrictions do not apply against goods that were in transit Nov. 17 when the action to curb imports first was announced.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 20 (CP) — The University of British Columbia Branch of the Canadian Legion will seek increased grants for student-veterans from the Department of Veterans Affairs, it was announced today.

Resolutions approved ask for an increase in grants for married veterans with dependents and for removal of the $75 limit on student-veterans' monthly earnings.

Premier Finds Ceremony Beyond Expectations

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 20 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King said in an interview that the Royal wedding he attended today in Westminster Abbey as Canada's representative "surpassed in solemnity and beauty anything one had expected."

The Prime Minister returned to his West End hotel at 4:15 p.m. after attending the wedding breakfast at Buckingham Palace which followed the Abbey ceremony.

He wore in his lapel a bunch of white heather tied with a lover's knot. Each of the distinguished guests at the reception received a similar memento.

Canada's representative drove to the nine - centuries - old church through crowded streets where the Canadian ensign on his automobile was quickly spotted. Cheers followed his progress all the way.

He was seated next to Prime Minister Attlee in a position of honor as Prime Minister next in seniority to the United Kingdom Government leader. Beside him were Prime Minister Smuts of South Africa and then Winston Churchill, Britain's wartime leader.

PRINCETON, B.C., Nov. 20 (CP) —The 59th annual convention of the British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association will be held here Jan. 20 to 22 inclusive.

Speakers will include Agriculture Minister Frank Putnam and Public Works Minister E. C. Carson

A resolution to be presented by the Executive recommends early enactment of Dominion national products marketing legislation.

Believe Attempted Murder, Suicide in E. Kootenay Shooting

MICHEL, B. C., Nov. 20 (CP) — Robert Hudock, 22, of Natal is dead and Vera Flett of Creston, is in hospital in serious condition following a shooting East of here Tuesday, it was reported today.

Police said it appeared to be a case of "attempted murder and suicide."

British Reject Party of Palestine Plan

LAKE SUCCESS, Nov. 20 (CP) — Britain today rejected one of the key parts of the newly-drafted proposal for partition of Palestine into separate Jewish and Arab countries.

Sir Alexander Cadogan said Britain can not agree to share the administration temporarily with a five-country United Nations Commission as recommended by a Palestine sub-committee of the General Assembly.

The sub-committee had proposed that this Commission go to the Holy Land immediately and begin preparatory work so that it could take over the full administration when the British mandate is terminated.

Sir Alexander told the Assembly's 57-power Palestine Committee "no better way could be found to create confusion and disorder in Palestine than to establish an authority which would operate concurrently with the existing (British) mandatory administration." Such division of authority "obviously would have disastrous consequences."

5 ARABS KILLED

JERUSALEM, Nov. 20 (AP)— Police said today that 10 gunmen whom they identified as members of the Stern gang, Jewish underground organization, killed five Arabs near the town of Raanana last night apparently in reprisal for assistance which Arabs allegedly gave the police in trapping five of their members last week.

PRINCESS KATHLEEN GOES AGROUND BRIEFLY

VANCOUVER, Nov. 20 (CP) — Canadian Pacific Steamships' 5675 ton passenger vessel Princess Kathleen today continued her trip to Victoria and Seattle after being lightly grounded for a nhour and a half during heavy fog which shrouded the entire Lower Mainland.

Simple Royal Vows Given in Setting of Regal Splendor

Million People Pack Damp Streets to Watch Greatest Spectacle In Decade; Glittering Assembly of 3000 at Ceremony in Historic Abbey; Duke and Royal Bride Leave for Honeymoon in Hampshire

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 20 (CP)—Beneath the great, shadowed arches of Westminster Abbey, where for centuries the Kings and Queens of England have passed in pomp and splendor, Princess Elizabeth was married today to her childhood sweetheart as quietly and demurely as any village bride.

Standing before the gleaming gold plate of the altar, flanked by banks of flowers, the 21-year-old heiress presumptive to the throne and her groom, the 26-year-old Duke of Edinburgh—until last night Lieut. Philip Mountbatten of the Royal Navy—exchanged vows so quietly that the words were scarcely audible.

The Duke then turned for the ring to his best man, the Marquess of Milford Haven, and at the direction of the officiating Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, placed it nervously on his bride's finger. Both kneeled and the Archbishop, joining their hands, said solemnly: "Those whom God hath joined together, let no man put asunder."

The Archbishop then pronounced "that they be man and wife together," blessed them and led them to the altar. There the young couple stood while the choir and congregation—nearly 3000 persons, including six Kings and six Queens—sang the psalm, "God Be Merciful Unto Us and Bless Us."

The Royal couple was joined in wedlock at precisely 11:44 a.m. GMT (3:44 a.m. PST). Almost as the Archbishop, Primate of all England, pronounced the union, the great Abbey clock struck the quarter hour.

The Royal couple, sped on their way by confetti thrown by the King and Queen and foreign guests, left Buckingham Palace at 3:59 p.m. for Waterloo Station whence they departed at 4:20 p.m. for their honeymoon at Broadlands, home of the groom's uncle, Earl Mountbatten, in Romsey, Hampshire.

The wedding day, greatest spectacle for Britons since the King's Coronation in 1937, brought a splash of color to the fabric of a country rent by bombs and economic crisis.

The skies were grey with a drizzle falling most of the morning, but the weather failed to dampen the spirits of 1,000,000 persons who watched the ancient ceremonies in the Abbey and the Royal processions to and from England's storied church.

Princess Elizabeth walked out of the Palace to enter the Irish state coach at 11:16 a.m., while bands played "God Save the King." The King sat at her right.

In a moment of excitement, the crowds broke through police lines but were pushed back quickly.

As the carriage procession of the Princess and her father left the Palace forecourt, the cheering mounted to absolute din. The Princess waved.

The bridegroom arrived at the Poet's Corner door of the Abbey with his best man at 11:15 a.m.

At the Abbey door was a guard of honor of servicemen and women who have been associated with the bride and groom.

PRINCESS LOVELY

The Princess, dignified and serene, wore a diamond tiara, her mother's. She was a lovely figure in flowing white as she sat with head held high, acknowledging the plaudits of the crowd.

The bridegroom's car had arrived at the Abbey a few moments ahead of the time scheduled.

"This is a bad show," he laughed. "We must get things right."

A moment later he emerged and the Duke, still laughing, said:

"I am glad to see there is a black cat watching the proceedings over there."

(A black cat in Britain is a symbol of good luck. In many parts of North America, it is viewed as an augury of bad luck.)

As the King and the Princess reached the Abbey, another band struck up "God Save the King."

The King, in the uniform of an Admiral of the Fleet, stepped from the coach first, then helped his daughter to alight. She paused for a moment to look at the Abbey, then entered.

There was silence as they entered the West door, then a fanfare heralded her arrival and the procession moved slowly down the nave.

After the echoes of the fanfare died away, the organ began the processional: "Praise, My Soul, The King of Heaven." The voices of the choir blended with the organ in the hymn.

At the steps of the sanctuary the bride was joined by Philip and they stood quietly, waiting for the end of the hymn.

"Dear beloved," the Archbishop of Canterbury began in the familiar opening words of the marriage service and the moment for which millions were waiting had arrived. The Archbishop's voice rang firmly through the magnificent old church.

Philip, repeating the marriage vow after the Archbishop, said "I will" quietly. When Elizabeth echoed the vows her words were scarcely audible.

The King then gave his elder daughter in marriage. Philip joined his right hand with Elizabeth's, and in a strong, resonant voice repeated the words:

"I, Philip, take thee, Elizabeth Alexandra Mary, to be my wedded wife, to have and to hold from this day forward, for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer, in sickness and in health, to love, cherish and to obey till death do us part, according to God's Holy Ordinance; and hereto I give thee my troth."

Elizabeth released Phillip's hand. Philip then placed the ring on Elizabeth's finger, and, repeating after the Archbishop, said:

"With this ring I thee wed, with my body I thee worship, and with all my worldly goods I thee endow, in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost. Amen."

The Royal couple knelt before the Archbishop and the congregation remained standing while the prelate intoned the prayer.

An audible murmur ran through the assemblage as the Archbishop pronounced Philip and Elizabeth man and wife.

The Archbishop of York delivered his address and the Archbishop of Canterbury gave the final prayer and benediction.

After an anthem by the choir, the entire assemblage joined in "God Save the King".

Then the Royal bride and bridegroom and the members of their families were led beyond the high altar and into the Chapel of Edward the Confessor to sign the register. A golden pen was used.

WOULD SHARE PROBLEMS

Dr. Cyril Garbutt, Archbishop of York, advised the couple in his address to be unselfish in their love and to share each other's problems.

As the ceremonies came to a close, trumpeters sounded a fanfare. A moment later, the rich tones of the organ filled the Abbey, and, to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, the Royal couple moved with their procession toward the waiting thousands outside.

As Elizabeth and Philip passed the King and Queen, the young Duke bowed and his Royal bride made a deep curtsey.

Winston Churchill and Prime Minister Attlee, sitting close together, smiled as the bride took her new husband's arm for the Recessional.

Walking past the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier just inside the Abbey's nave, the couple emerged through the great West Door.

Church bells sounded, only to be drowned in the welcoming roar of a milling, jubilant multitude.

Elizabeth, stepping into the coach, paused a moment to fold her train, taking up its ends from the two little pages, Prince William of Gloucester and Prince Michael of Kent.

On the short journey from the steps of the Sanctuary to the altar the bridegroom had repeatedly looked back to see how the pages were managing. To help them he deliberately slowed the pace. Standing at his daughter's left the King, in the midst of the ceremony, also stooped once to grasp the train for a moment.

Donning his service cap, the Duke then took his place beside his bride in the coach, the footmen mounted, and the procession began its return to the Palace.

The Duke reached out a window and waved at the crowds.

The National Anthem was attended by cheers when the King, saluting, and the Queen left the church.

They were followed by visiting Royalty, including King Haakon of Norway, the Queen of the Hellenes and the King and Queen of Denmark.

As the bridal couple drove under Admiralty Arch, entering the Mall leading to the Palace, the Princess smiled and waved to the crowds, and her husband saluted.

The cheers kept pace with the procession, rising in an unbroken roar that echoed over St. James's Park.

As the coach entered the Palace forecourt both Philip and Elizabeth smiled and waved happily. Inside the gates they were welcomed by the Palace staff.

Shortly afterward the King and Queen, followed by their Royal guests, returned to the Palace for the wedding breakfast.

Unmoving, the crowd hung on, awaiting a balcony appearance of the Princess and the Duke.

ON BALCONY

To tumultuous cheers, the bride and bridegroom appeared on the balcony, followed by the King and Queen and other members of the Royal Family.

The bride, still in her wedding gown, stood with the Duke for a few moments on the balcony after the others had left.

Their appearance apparently satisfied the jubilant crowd, which had filled up the crescent in front of the Palace as soon as the procession had entered the Palace gates.

Five Kings and six Queens were among the guests at the Royal Wedding breakfast who drank the health of the bride and bridegroom in champagne from the Royal cellars.

In front of one of the long mirrors in the Ball Supper Room stood the official wedding cake, six feet, three inches high and weighing 600 pounds.

Princess Elizabeth and her husband cut the cake with the sword the Duke had worn at the wedding.

Then pieces of the cake were given to the King, Queen, Queen Mary and the other guests.

Queen Mary, now 80 years old, saw her grand-daughter married. Absent was "Uncle David," the Duke of Windsor whose abdication in 1936 brought his younger brother to the throne and made Elizabeth heiress presumptive.

The pageantry, its effect heightened by contrast with the prevailing austerity of every-day life in post-war Britain, outshone in splendor every regal spectacle since the 1937 Coronation. But with all the splendor, the service in its spirit and form was as simple and direct as that in any country Anglican Church.

The ancient Abbey, burial place of Britain's illustrious dead, with its slender eminence, its fluted pillars and its soft prevailing tones of grey and gold under the shadowed arches, provided a perfect setting for the ceremony. Looking down as if in benediction on the vast concourse of the living were the effigies and the memorials of Britain's departed great—Shakespeare, Gladstone, Disraeli, Wolfe, Wordsworth, Kipling and a thousand more. Before their unseeing eyes many of the world's living personages played their parts in an unique historical tableau.

The Archbishop's pronouncement making the young couple man and wife was the culminating moment of months of preparation for a scene graced by the presence of almost all the surviving crowned heads of Europe and by a glittering assembly representative of the statesmanship, the chivalry and the beauty of almost every country. There, too, were representatives of all the Dominions, Prime Minister Mackenzie King taking his seat on behalf of Canada.

The ceremony was packed with the ancient symbolism of 1000 years of English history. It lightened, somewhat, the hearts of the Princess's millions of future subjects, adding a splash of color and romance to a national life which has become progressively more dreary since the Second World War broke over the world in 1939.

USE TELEVISION

Throughout Great Britain. In every town and village and farmhouse, and upon the high seas, in the Commonwealth and Empire, hundreds of millions of the 21-year-old Princess's future subjects rejoiced, not thinking of the ceremony as something to be shared only by the comparative few who witnessed it. Radio and television provided a personal link between the Princess and many of her people.

The 21-year-old Princess was radiant with happiness as she appeared for the ceremony in a mist of dewy white satin. Her gown sparkled with a thousand lights reflected, softened and shaded in a delicate embroidery of crystal and pearls.

Waiting for her in the Lantern, at the foot of the steps to the Sacrarium, the 26-year-old bridegroom, was handsome in his uniform of a Lieutenant of the Royal Navy, in which he served during and since the war.

As Philip and the Princess spoke their responsive "I wills" and repeated their vows of love, honor and comfort each other in sickness and in health forever, their voices were broadcast to a listening world.

Thus another page was added to the richly illuminated history of England as two great-great grandchildren of Queen Victoria were linked in matrimony. Princess Elizabeth and Philip officially are considered to be third cousins. Actually they stand between second and third cousinship—a "relatively remote" blood kinship.

The ceremony, packed with the symbolism of 1000 years of English history, was Britain's greatest royal event since the Coronation of the King in May 1937.

Tens of thousands of the 21-year-old Princess' future subjects lined the curbs throughout the night—despite an intermittent rain—and from the misty dawn onward the throngs thickened into the hundreds of thousands.

Trains entering London during the early morning poured laughing, flag-flourishing sightseers into Whitehall and the Mall at the rate of hundreds a minute.

Those persons who circled Victoria Monument outside Buckingham Palace, lined the Mall on either side, lined flag-decked Whitehall and jammed 10 deep outside Westminster Abbey's great West Door spent the night huddled in raincoats or beneath blankets. More than 60 per cent of the all-night watchers were women.

They sat or stood through a stiff drizzle that came down about 4 a.m. But few quit their places.

Among those who braved the elements was middle-aged Mrs. E. Thomas of Plymouth, who came to London by bus and held a spot in Whitehall from 7 o'clock last night —despite the fact that she is an arthritis sufferer who walks on crutches.

During the early part of the night singing and dancing had been among the crowd's amusements, but weariness began taking its toll by dawn, and many who had not previously napped settled down for 40 winks. The huge crowd was quiet as the first light showed and the cooing of Trafalgar Square's pigeons could be heard faintly at Westminster Abbey—the full length of Whitehall away.

The Princess, meanwhile, arose in Buckingham Palace at her usual hour of 7:30 a.m. The bridegroom spent the night at Kensington Palace in Southwest London with his mother, Princess Andrew of Greece.

Apart from the King, the bride's father, no fewer than five Kings were on hand for the ceremony—Haakon of Norway, Frederik of Denmark, Feisal of Iraq, Michael of Romania and Peter of Yugoslavia.

Busiest among the crowd were street vendors and reporters. Vendors had a field day selling "official programs," balloons, roasted chestnuts, rosettes and Union Jacks at a brisk pace. Reporters prowled the crowd on the lookout for "human interest angles" and out-of-the-way happenings — and got what they were looking for when two dangerous mental patients who had escaped from a military hospital were captured in the crowds.

The first thrill of the day came with the Grenadier Guards' march up Buckingham Palace Road. Just before 9 a.m. the bride's bouquet of white orchids was delivered at the Palace. The eight bridesmaids arrived shortly after 10 a.m. and went immediately to show their dresses to the Queen before joining the Princess in her private apartments.

A friend who saw the bride during the morning said:

"Her Royal Highness is obviously very excited and happy—she is in the best of spirits."

As the crowds along the route thickened to a dense mass of humanity, those in the outer fringes began using periscopes and mirrors to catch a glimpse of the road. One woman raised an expensive silver dressing table mirror.

Bands marched to their allotted places and struck up, the music lifting the spirits of the crowd. There were several cases of fainting, particularly around the Abbey where the crowds waited longest. The victims were handed over the heads of the watchers and carried off in stretchers.

Trafalgar Square, where the procession made a hairpin turn out of the Mall into Whitehall, was packed solid with watchers clustered on the foot of Nelson's Column and lining the roofs of buildings.

Boy King Removed From Procession— But All a Mistake

LONDON, Nov. 20 (CP)—The boy King Feisal of Iraq was taken temporarily out of the procession of royalty emerging from Westminster Abbey after the Royal wedding today when a policeman mistook him for an ambitious child who had slipped into the regal group.

King Feisal obediently followed the bobby's instructions and stepped aside before the mistake was corrected.

COAST CHURCH BELLS TOLL

VANCOUVER, Nov. 20 (CP) — Westminster Abbey's bells, pealing out over Princess Elizabeth's marriage to the Duke of Edinburgh, today found their echo on Canada's Pacific Coast.

In Vancouver and Victoria, both Roman Catholic and Protestant cathedrals rang out their chimes during the morning. In Victoria the bells rang at 8 a.m., while in Vancouver the Roman Catholic Cathedral of the Holy Rosary sounded out at intervals for an hour beginning at 10 a.m., and Anglican Church of St. James rang for 20 minutes at noon.

Criticize Proposed Regulated Area Plan as Unreasonably Restrictive

To the Editor:

Sir—A meeting was held in the Council Chamber of the Trail City Hall on the evening of Wednesday, the 19th, to discuss the proposed regulations designed to control subdivisions of land, uses of land and the erection of buildings, in the Lower Columbia Regulated Area."

Mr. H. B. Offin, Government Agent at Rossland, acted as Chairman. This Area, which the Regional Planning Division, Department of Municipal Affairs, proposes to establish by Order in Council under the Town Planning Act, would include the Columbia Valley from Castlegar South to the International boundary, extending to, and including, Paterson on Little Sheep Creek on the West and Fruitvale, on Beaver Creek, on the East, but excluding Trail and Rossland.

The proposed regulations were read and explained to the audience by Mr. Davis, of the Regional Planning Division. In summary they envisage the appointment of an Inspector for the Area, who, with the assistance of an appointive Board of Appeal and of the local Health Officer, would exercise, within the proposed Area, practically all the powers enjoyed by Municipal Councils.

An examination of the proposed regulations revealed that the requirements to be set by them are much more drastic than those in force in any Municipality in the Kootenay District. They include requirements of 80 foot width for main roads, plus parallel adjoining side roads of 50 foot width, or a total of 160 feet, residential building lots with a minimum area of 7500 square feet and the prohibition of the construction of any house of less than 500 square feet of floor area.

A further regulation would empower the Inspector and Health Officer to summarily close down any business anywhere in the district which they did not think to be in the public interest.

Another and unexplainable regulation would permit, in the "Commercial Zones," the existence of an industry employing six men, but no more. Fruit packing and processing plants, for some unexplained reason, are to be prohibited except in the "Industrial Zone," immediately surrounding Trail.

ATTENDANCE SMALL, INTEREST HIGH

Due to wholly inadequate publicity, the meeting was attended by only about 20 persons, several of whom were Trail citizens, including Mayor J. E. Bryan, who apparently were hostile to Town Planning in general and wished to obtain information as to its program in the rural areas. One of the Trail citizens explained that his presence was due to the impression he had received, from the brief and inconspicuous advertisement in the Press, that matters in connection with the proposed International Columbia Basin development were to be discussed. Kinnaird, Shaver's Bench, Lower Annable, Casino and Beaver Falls were all represented, very sparsely, due to lack of publicity, but very definitely not to lack of interest. Sharp criticism was levelled at the draft regulations all along the line, particularly by those of the audience who had been fortunate enough to become possessed in advance of copies. It was repeatedly charged that from the general trend of the regulations, which by the way have apparently been considerably altered since first issued, the evident intention had been to railroad them through with a minimum of public knowledge of their contents and implications.

However, these, and many attacks on the apparently fatuous nature of some of the regulations themselves, were subordinate to the chief criticism, repeatedly and often heatedly urged by several of the audience, that no intention was evident of allowing the several thousand inhabitants of the proposed area to express themselves by means of a plebiscite as to whether or not they wished to submit themselves to such rigid controls, which are far more drastic than those which the surrounded municipalities of Trail and Rossland have imposed upon their eltizens.

Mr. S. C. Watson, who attended from Kinnaird without being aware that a meeting was to be arranged there on Monday, remarked in this connection that, if such action as is contemplated had been reported from Germany or Italy during the last war, our side would have played it up as representing dictatorship in action.

Boyd C. Affleck of Nelson, who, as a property owner within the district and as a British Columbia Land Surveyor, claimed to be doubly interested in the issue and who, in an experience of over 40 years there, has seen the entire life history of all the local cities under discussion, made an all-out attack on the extravagant road widths proposed. He pointed out the absurdity of requiring isolated sections of the main highway to be 180 feet in width, when much of it was already fixed by existing development at 66 feet and where natural bottlenecks of cliffs, existing at the Fruitvale Cut-off, Crocketville, Genelle and Poupore, restricted the usable width to very much less, except at enormous expense.

On the top of all this, the ferry at Castlegar, apaprently a permanent institution, had a peak capacity of around 1000 cars per day, for which the existing road allowance widths were ample. Besides, the Southern Trans-Canada Highway, as he named it in anticipation, was in two brances in this area, one from Trail to Nelson via Castlegar and the Kootenay River, and one from Trail to Nelson via Fruitvale, Salmo and Ymir, resulting in neither branch requiring as much car capacity as if a single route had to be followed.

REGULATIONS CIRCULATED

It is expected that Monday night's meeting at Kinnaird in the Community Hall, will be well attended and interesting. Mr. Watson has had many copies of the draft regulations made and circulated among his neighbors there and they are likely to attend in force. Maps, showing the proposed zoning areas, are still not available for study and comment, although Mr. Davis has one with him. Kinnaird folks, who are justly proud of their model settlement which has been developed from waste land within the last eight years, without any regulations from anybody, are indignant about being classed, by inference at least, in the regulations, as slum dwellers or potential slum dwellers. They say they have moved there, away from Trail, to escape such conditions.

Injured When Car Crashes; Bridge Damaged

E. J. Waterer Thursday evening received severe facial injuries when his car crashed off Latimer Street at the Rosemont bridge, taking 16 feet of bridge railing with it. He was rushed to Kootenay Lake General Hospital by Police Chief Robert Harshaw after being removed from the smashed vehicle, to be released a few hours later with stitches for head and hand injuries.

Damage to the car, Chief Harshaw estimated, extended into the hundreds of dollars. Coming to a rest just off the road on the steep embankment down to Cottonwood Creek ravine, the front of the car was rammed in and the windows broken. Fenders and the sides of the body were also damaged, but an exact estimate of the damage was not available Thursday night.

The car was apparently travelling West on Latimer Street when, on nearing the approach of the bridge, it swerved to the left side of the road and down the bank. When police and excited onlookers appeared at the scene, the vehicle's back end was on the bridge, the front smashed into boulders on the embankment and a large piece of bridge rail knocked off.

Wedding Gift of Food To Be Shipped Saturday

Saturday Nelson's wedding gift to Princess Elizabeth—food for the people of Nelson, Lancashire—will be shipped for England. The food, totalling close to a ton, will be packed Friday night in crates and addressed to the "Town Clerk, Nelson, Lancashire, England."

Last minute donations can be received up to 5 p.m. Friday, in the City Hall and after 5 in the Scout Hall, collection officials said Thursday night, urging that Nelsonites contribute further to boost the poundage.

Before being crated, the food is packed into individual seven-pound packages for distribution to English families.

Suggestions for contributions included salmon, sausages, tinned meats, macaroni dinner, tinned tomatoes, tongue, dried fruits, canned vegetables, canned fruit, raisins, apricots, peaches, Christmas pudding, banana flakes, bulk tea and tea bags. Oxo, pudding powders, soups in packages and tins, two pounds of lard, assorted james and honey, pancake flour, wrapped candy, cereals, white flour, biscuit mix, hot chocolate mix, meat paste, canned chicken, cheese, jelly powders, malted milk, powdered milk and dehydrated vegetables.

A typical seven-pound parcel, it was said, could contain one tin of salmon, a tin of sausage, soup mix or a tin of soup, tea bags or bulk tea, raisins and other dry fruits, Oxo, wrapped candy, ½-pound cheese, two pudding powders, macaroni dinner or tin of macaroni and tomatoes, and dehydrated vegetables.

Laundry and toilet soaps were received and would be mailed separate from the food stuffs.

Departing Nelson Bowler Honored

Mrs. Bernice Johnson, a member of the Norfield All Star bowling team, this week was presented with a corsage and parting gift by Miss Dorothy Norfield, Captain of the team. Lunch was served after a bowling session in honor of Mrs. Johnson who is leaving shortly for Vancouver.

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Never before have so many so far apart heart a bride say "I will."

Countless millions, the world over, shared vicariously in the pageanty and pomp of the Royal wedding today.

For a full two hours, a running account of the scenes fanned out simultaneously throughout the world in seven languages.

And, still later, extracts were broadcast in 47 languages.

For the first time in history, television recorded a Royal wedding. A BBC spokesman said that it carried a visual picture of the scene for a radius of about 35 miles.

URGES SUBSIDY AS ALTERNATE AID TO RAILWAYS

By JOHN LEBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Nov. 20 (CP) — The Saskatchewan Government contended before the Board of Transport Commissioners today that if the Canadian Pacific Railway were in financial distress, it should be aided through a national subsidy rather than by freight rate increases.

While denying that the company now needed help, the Saskatchewan presentation at the national freight-rate inquiry declared that if railway finances should deteriorate, the proposed subsidy would be preferable to "disruptive" increases in freight tolls.

At the same time Saskatchewan felt two other measures that might influence railway finances were overdue:

1. Extension of Government regulation over competing agencies of transportation.

2. Additional Dominion funds to enable the Transport Commissioners to extend administrative and research activities.

Second War Veteran Dies Suddenly Here

Albert Topham, resident of Nelson 12 months, died suddenly Thursday evening at his home at 902 Fourth Street. The 43-year-old former Flight Sergeant in the Royal Canadian Air Force, was a holder of the British Empire Medal for service in World War II.

Born in Cheshire, England, he came to Canada first in 1927 to reside in Winnipeg. After serving with the R.C.A.F. for 6½ years, he was discharged and moved to Nelson where he was employed by Queen City Motors.

Besides his wife he is survived by two brothers, Henry in Nelson and Herbert in Kelowna; and a sister, Mrs. W. A. Henry in England.

Early Day Rosslander Dies

ROSSLAND, B.C., Nov. 20—Word was received in Rossland this week of the death of Frederick B. Hogg, a resident of Rossland in the early days.

Mr. Hogg died at Portland, Ore., and funeral services were held there Friday.

He is survived by his widow, two sons, Jack and William, and a daughter Ruth.

Mr. Hogg will be remembered by Rossland oldtimers as operator of a painting and paper hanging business in the building next to the Lemon Block, Columbia Avenue.

"Can't Be Seasick With All This Lovely Food Around"

ROSSLAND, B.C., Nov. 20 — In an effort to boost the Rossland Mayor's Food Fund for Whitehaven, England, in honor of the Royal marriage, the Junior Board of Trade has launched an extensive radio appeal to citizens of Rossland and District.

The Board's Social Services Chairman, Al LePage, commenting on the drive, said, "It is extremely difficult for us to realize how abundantly well off we are in Canada, and how meagre the fare in Britain is today. I recall a rough Atlantic crossing where an English lad remarked that he couldn't afford to be seasick with so much wonderful food around! Canadians often consume in one meal, the rations of an entire week in Britain. We have had numerous appeals in the past. This one is for those who were our first line of defense. I hope everyone will realize the urgency of the need and respond generously."

Taking part in the broadcast appeals which were opened by Mayor Corner, were Al LePage, Dan Irvine, Larry Fitzsimmons, W. Woodhouse, Roy Brown and Harry Stevens.

May Abandon Civic Night if Candidates Few

ROSSLAND, B.C., Nov. 20—"Unless more candidates offer themselves for public office, there is a possibility that Rossland's Civic Night may not be held this year," Harry Stevens, Junior Board Civic Affairs Chairman, said today.

Civic Night, inaugurated by the Junior Board eight years ago, as a non-political stimulant of civic consciousness, has proven popular with voters in the Golden City. It has been a night when all aspirants to civic office air their views before the electors and tell what they would like to do if elected.

A few weeks remain, however, before the nominations close and there is a feeling abroad that several "dark horses" will be in the running before the deadline, it was said.

ondon's Brightest Day Since War Began

By JAMES McCOOK

NDON, Nov. 20 ((CP)—Lon- crowds stood for hours red- d or cold, wet sidewalks to with delight today as the al bride, Princess Elizabeth, t by amid the glitter of cav- breastplates and gold-laced orms.

ore stone-fronted Buckingham crowds were ranged 12 deep 0 a.m., ready to cheer any- even Ministry of Works truck reading sand on the streets— ised their caps in response applause.

SMASHER

excitement reached its height th King and Princess Eliza- the Royal coach, hauled by anking Windsor Greys, and red-coated driver rigid in at, came from beneath the tone arch leading out of the court and headed for the Ab- small, pale-faced Cockney thrusting his head between olicemen, put the whole scene is:

Mummy, it's a smasher!" he d to an unseen figure. Then e of surging people hid him e cheers rose high.

was London's brightest day he war began, said a constable Palace gate.

e looked with pride at the cav- ymen, for the war years dull in aki but now again bedecked in very helmets, some with red mes and some with white, their ords held at the salute as they their nervous black horses.

ome sat on the curbs all through night and in the morning light their crumpled ground sheets and weary faces were belied by their smiles.

As the crowd grew, passage became impossible. There were cheers for the unusually dense cloud of black smoke from the Palace chimneys, and then another for the brief appearance of a watery sun, followed by groans when it disappeared.

Negroes, Indians, Boy Scouts, Sea Rangers, numberless children and servicemen, North American visitors — spotted by the men's wide-brimmed hats and the women's long skirts — surged about the Palace gates behind lines of Bobbies.

Persistently they climbed on monuments and memorials, and equally persistently policemen ordered them to get down.

Guardsmen marched to their posts along the route, each three paces apart, and their bands thumped and their fifes trilled. The Royal Standard, rich in gold and red, flew proudly above the Palace as the Princess prepared for her wedding.

Laughter came as the solemn sweepers carefully brushed the roadway before the massive iron gates. Hoarse officers and sergeants-majors put Guardsmen in position about the gates with a snapping of polished boots and a clanging of rifle butts on sidewalks.

At 9:35 a.m. part of the crowd was allowed into the Palace forecourt, and a mad rush for the best places ensued. A woman carrying a baby and wearing a bright blue dress won a favored position and stood patiently for almost two hours, rocking the child in her arms. It waved its little hand as motor cars with the bridesmaids and the pages drove into the Palace amid cheers that startled even the crowd-trained police horses.

The Palace gates opened at 9:50 a.m., and among the first visitors was Mrs. Winston Churchill, wife of Britain's wartime Prime Minister. She made the V-for-Victory sign as she entered.

As the cavalry escort formed lines before the Palace they looked like fairyland characters against the drab background of austerity London.

QUEEN LEADS

Swords flashed to the salute when the faint strains of God Save the King came from the inner courtyard of the Palace and the Queen's coach came out at a brisk canter. Her Majesty waving to the crowd.

Silence fell as the big moment of the Princess' departure was awaited. Then the notes of the National Anthem touched off new cheers.

The bride's coach came up quickly, the red coats of the household cavalry escort bobbing under the arch, then out of the Palace grounds past the Queen Victoria Statue and on to the Mall, while police linked arms and held back the press of cheering people.

Through the glass of the coach people could see the Princess, her white veil flowing behind her smiling face. Her bronzed father, the King, sat beside her and waved in salute.

In a moment they were gone, their escort cantering behind, and from Buckingham Palace the crowd could see a spot of the color as the Royal progress swept up the historic mile toward Trafalgar Square and on through Whitehall to the Abbey.

Three minutes before the Princess left the Palace, her sailor bridegroom, the Duke of Edinburgh, drove past in a maroon Naval automobile lent by the King. Wearing Naval uniform, he was en route from Kensington Palace, where he had spent the night, to the Abbey. With his best man, his cousin, the Marquess of Milford Haven, beside him, the handsome 26-year-old Duke waved to the crowd. The Marquess also was in Naval uniform.

EXACT TIMING

Among the first to cheer Princess Elizabeth as she left were Girl Guides and Sea Rangers at the Palace gates.

"Oh, isn't she just too lovely," exclaimed women as the Royal procession passed through the crowds.

In exact timing, other members of the Royal Family and notables made their way to the Abbey through lanes held open by police and by Guardsmen with their rifles at the present.

Some of the throng hurried off to their jobs as soon as the Abbey-bound procession had passed, but most people waited for the return of Princess Elizabeth with her husband.

Roar after roar of cheers rose as the carriage rolled briskly back along Whitehall and the broad Mall, the Princess waving and the fair-haired Duke of Edinburgh saluting.

Other members of the Royal Family who followed received tumultuous cheers. After a short interval, during which photographs were taken, they joined Princess Elizabeth and her husband, who answered persistent cries of "We want the bride!" by appearing on a Palace balcony.

Princess Overwhelmed By Drama of Ceremony

Lips Tremble Slightly, Philip Nervous; Only One Slight Mishap

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 20 (CP)—Princess Elizabeth was married to the new Duke of Edinburgh, formerly Philip Mountbatten, at Westminster Abbey today in a ceremony of medieval splendor combined with modern magnificence which deeply moved some 3000 guests from many parts of the world.

In the few seconds of quiet granted to the bride and groom before the return procession to Buckingham Palace, the Princess confided to intimates that she was overwhelmed by the drama of the marriage ceremony rooted in Britain's finest traditions.

Her lips trembled slightly — and Philip obviously was nervous, too—as the couple received first the congratulations of closest kin and then the thunderous ovation of the multitude outside the Abbey.

Except for one slight mishap—which many did not notice because of their obscured positions in the Abbey's architecturally intricate interior—the wedding service, meticulously planned weeks ahead of time and rehearsed last night, ascended to its impressive climax without hitch.

The sole mischance came as the bridal party moved slowly from the altar, up carpeted steps, to the chapel of St. Edward The Confessor, who founded Westminster Abbey.

Little Prince Michael of Kent, a page, stumbled twice, tugging at the bride's 15-foot train but not losing his grip. Quickly Princess Margaret, chief bridesmaid, stepped forward and steadied the child.

Momentarily confused, five-year-old Michael shot a glance at his mother ,the Duchess of Kent, seated with Princess Elizabeth's family on the North side of the sanctuary, and then passed on while the organist moved into a Psalm of Praise.

That was a human touch to the stately, colorful ritual, which seemed to take hold of every heart in the majestic church where so much of Britain's genius of ages gone is entombed.

Some of Queen Mary's 80 years seemed to fall away as she witnessed the marriage of the grand-daughter she idolizes. She was a regal figure of bygone reigns.

Her new gown was of aquamarine chenile velvet and gold tissue. She was supremely poised but from time to time betrayed those feelings she knows how to conceal by rapid turnings of her head, a shift from one foot to the other.

ADMIRE QUEEN'S GOWN

The bride's mother, the Queen, seemed at times to be not far from tears but her emotions were always perfectly controlled. A smile rippled her face occasionally.

Her entry was one of the triumphs of the day, and women guests, themselves finely clothed, exclaimed their admiration of her apricot and gold lame gown ending in pointed train.

Watchers noted that the King, in the uniform of Admiral of the Fleet, fidgeted with the handle of his sword or clenched his hands.

For the Duchess of Kent, a widow for more than five years, the ceremony held poignant memories of her own marriage in the Autumn of 1934 the last Royal wedding in Westminster Abbey.

Once the wedding service got under way and the congregation was seated in the Abbey, pomp seemed to fall away before the familiar simplicity of any ordinary wedding.

From the improvised press stand in the North stand, obliguely facing the altar, I watched the progress of the ceremony from the arrival of the first guest at 9 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. when the bride and bridegroom, preceded by church dignitaries, passed slowly along the main aisle and through the Great West door.

While the early guests were assembling, a faint pallor at the South Windows gave a false hope of sunshine. The vertical shadows deepened along the great pillars and in the still half-empty lantern—the area leading to the sanctuary—and in the transepts the scarlet of uniforms blazed.

On the high, tapestried altar the ancient gold plate of the Abbey glimmered in the rays of 100 flickering candles which lit up the plumed helmets of the scarlet-coat Household Cavalry ranged below the altar steps.

The illumination from bleak electric lights shone up the grey walls and into the faces of hundreds of spectators peering out from the arches of the Triforium.

The gold lace of the Ministers of State, the Admirals and Officials of the Court filled the lantern area before the altar with a spot of brightness, oddly contrasting with the dull khaki of Boy Scouts moving among the congregation as ushers.

Just after 10 a.m. the tremulous chords of the great organ filled the Abbey through which was heard the clack of sword scabbards on bare stones.

As Big Ben across Parliament Square from the Abbey struck 11 a.m., the Archbishop of Canterbury in cope and mitre of white and gold brocade; his chaplain, bearing the jewelled cross of Canterbury; the Dean of the Abbey, Dr. Alan Don, and the Precenter, Rev. Cyril Armitage, moved to the high altar. Their vestments gleamed in the golden candlelight.

Soon after the Dean went to the great door to receive the Queen.

The Dean, wearing a cape of cloth of gold woven with cream silk, then returned to the altar accompanying the Queen, who was wearing the Star of the Garter around her neck. Queen Mary also was in this group. The Duchess of Kent was beautiful in a long and shining ivory dress and a white peaked hat set at an angle.

Only the bridegroom's mother, Princess Andrew, came to the Abbey in rich royal purple, once a favorite color of all European Royal families.

Queen Elizabeth, Queen Mary and the Duchess of Kent, accompanied by the Duke of Gloucester in military uniform, quietly took their seats on the South side of the Altar beneath a large gold tapestry faded with age and surmounted with an ancient oil painting of Edward the Confessor.

On the North side of the altar were Princess Andrew and other relatives of the bridegroom, including his uncle, Earl Mountbatten, in a Naval uniform wearing the Star of India, and Countess Mountbatten in a long white dress and headdress.

SHORT PROCESSION

The floor of the Abbey trembled as the throbbing organ sounded again. Then, as it fell silent, the bells of the Abbey and of St. Margaret's could be heard.

A short procession, including minor canons and the Precentor, brought in the bridegroom, tall and erect, followed by the best man, the Marquess of Milford Haven. Both took their places on the South side of the lantern just under the steps leading to the altar.

Philip was smiling and every few moments he turned to exchange whispers with the best man—who appeared the more composed of the two.

The echo of vast cheering outside indicated the arrival of the bride and soon after, as the Princess, leaning on the King's arm, passed slowly through the crowded nave, through the great bronze gates into the choir and into the lantern, the organ swelled more powerfully than ever.

As the bride passed the nave the whole clergy of the Abbey, according to custom, bowed to the King as bearer of the title, "visitor of the royal foundation of the Abbey."

A fanfare of silver trumpets sounded from the Henry V Chantery above the shrine of Edward the Confessor while the King and the Princess took their places on the altar steps beside the bridegroom and Lord Milford Haven.

Pale but composed, the Princess passed slowly across the lantern to the altar steps, her head held high, her carriage gracious. As she took her place beside her fiance, Philip half turned and gave her a fleeting smile of welcome which was acknowledged with a momentary upward glance.

Preceding the bridal procession were the Dean and the Canons of Westminster, minor Canons and the Abbey choir in white and scarlet singing "Praise My Soul the King of Heaven, to His Feet Thy Tribute Bring."

The service proceeded smoothly. The words "I will" were softly spoken and more softly repeated. The King bowed in answer to the Archbishop of Canterbury's question "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?"

The Duke placed the ring on Princess Elizabeth's finger and they both kneeled as the Archbishop joined their hands. Then, as the full, glorious music of the choir singing the Psalm "God Be Merciful to Us" sounded from the distant organ loft, they moved slowly up the steps to the high altar. The King moved to stand on the left of Queen Elizabeth.

When the Psalm was finished and the Precentor began the Lord's Prayer, the Abbey choir, to which children of the Chapel Royal had been added, sounded "Amen!" in clear, silvery voices.

The prayers after the responses were said by the Archbishop of York. The Dean of Westminster pronounced the blessing and the motet "We Wait for Thy Loving Kindness Oh Lord" was sung to music specially composed for the occasion by Dr. William McKie, Abbey Organist.

The address by the Archbishop of York followed with final blessings by the Archbishop of Canterbury and the choir singing "Amen" in a lovely, three-fold setting by Orlando Gibbons. Then the vast congregation rose as a trumpet fanfare preceded the singing of the National Anthem.

After the newly-married pair had signed the register in the Chapel of Edward the Confessor, another brisk fanfare announced their return to the sanctuary and the bridal procession, led by the choir and the clerics, moved down the aisle to Mendelssohn's Wedding March. Clanging chimes signalled the end of the ceremony and the wedding procession moved away from the Abbey to the Palace.

Swift's Meats for Babies
Meat gives your baby a better chance for his best growth and development!

100% body-building meats complete baby's meal

Modern knowledge of nutrition enables you to give your baby a head start in life . . . a variety of foods gives him ingredients for health. Meat with its body-building proteins, is now part of baby's diet early in life—it gives him an even better chance to attain his best possible growth and development!

When your doctor prescribes meat in your baby's diet, you can feed it easily, economically with Swift's specially prepared Strained and Diced Meats. No fuss and bother—no waste! Swift's Meats for Babies are 100% body-building meat, ready to heat and serve!

MOTHER! Here's why Swift's Meats for Babies meet the exacting requirements of infant feeding

1 Good nutrition—for growth
Your baby grows so fast he needs three to four times more protein, proportionately, than you do! He gets complete high-quality proteins in Swift's Meats for Babies. Remember, a small amount of meat in a mixture of foods does not meet baby's big protein need. Be sure — feed Swift's Meats for Babies . . . they're all meat.

2 Compact nourishment—baby's stomach is small
Your baby is so tiny he can eat only a small amount of food each day—yet he is building his body for life! Every day he needs the nutrients meat provides so abundantly. No other food is added to Swift's Meats for Babies. They furnish the body-building goodness of meat in compact form.

3 Controlled feeding—for individual needs
Ready-mixed food combinations may be all right for one baby—wrong for your baby. That's why doctors recommend feeding baby's foods separately . . . so you can control and balance the amounts exactly. Swift's Strained and Diced Meats make it easy for you to feed your baby the exact amount of meat that's right for him.

4 Variety—to form good eating habits
Your baby needs a variety of tastes and textures in his diet; to help form nutritionally sound eating habits. By feeding baby's foods separately—not all mixed together—he gets to know the individual flavours of a variety of foods. Swift's Meats for Babies acquaint your baby with six wholesome, distinctive flavours of meats he will be eating all his life.

Never before—all-meat products SO ECONOMICAL...SO EASY to serve to baby!

Prepared to doctors' specifications from selected, lean, Government Inspected Meats—trimmed and cooked just right for your baby by experts!

2 special forms—Swift's Strained Meats for young babies . . . soft, moist and smooth as custard. Swift's Diced Meats—tender, juicy, bite-size cubes.

6 tempting kinds—beef, lamb, pork, veal, liver and heart.

2 or 3 servings per tin—only a few cents each. A fraction of the cost of home preparation!

No work—no waste . . . they're ready to heat and serve!

AUTO STRUCK BY TRAIN; FOUR KILLED

PORT ARTHUR, Nov. 20 (CP) — Four persons ,one a child, were killed today when an East-bound Canadian Pacific Railway transcontinental passenger train struck their automobile at a level crossing at Loon Lake, 28 miles East of here. A fifth was gravely injured.

The dead are Mrs. Harold Guse, 21, of Loon Lake, her 2½-year-old daughter, and Kay Sully, 20, schoolteacher at Loon Lake and a native of Schreiber, Ont.

Harold Guse, 25, was brought to hospital here in a serious condition with head and other injuries.

Winnipeg Girl Sees Procession From Gov't Office

LONDON, Nov. 20 (CP) — Sixteen-year-old Betty White of Winnipeg saw the Royal Wedding procession today from a fifth-floor window of the Commonwealth Relations Office, overlooking Whitehall.

This vantage point was arranged by Prime Minister Mackenzie King for the high school girl who missed Princess Elizabeth's wedding-gift reception Tuesday when her plane was delayed en route.

Miss White, invited to London for the reception after she sent the Princess a gift of a pair of nylon stockings, left her hotel at 8:15 a.m., hours after tens of thousands of other watchers had arrived on the scene.

If you cannot afford the price of a leg of lamb, or your family is too small to take care of it, try a cushion shoulder.

This cut comes from the square cut shoulder, which is the thickest part of the forequarter. This may be boned and left flat, if you wish, then sewed on two sides, one of which may be left open for stuffing, then sewed or skewered later. Or the meat may be left with the bones in, and later the bones and odds and ends may be boiled in water for soup stock.

Place the meat, fat side up, on a rack in an open roasting pan, and roast at 300 F. from 30 to 35 min. a pound.

Cushion Shoulder Roast of Lamb
Baked Potatoes
Born Pudding in Green Pepper Shells
Mint Jelly Pickled Watermelon
Peanut Brittle Whip
Tea or Coffee

CORN PUDDING IN GREEN PEPPER SHELLS

3 tbsp. butter or margarine
3 tbsp. flour
1 c. milk
2 c. cream style canned corn
1 tbsp. sugar
1 tsp. melted butter or margarine
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 tsp. salt
1 c. corn flakes
6 green peppers

Melt butter or margarine; stir in flour; add milk and cook until thickened, stirring frequently. Remove from heat. Stir in corn, eggs and seasonings.

Select firm, green peppers about the same size and cut a thin slice off the bottom so that they will stand erect. Be sure the stem end of the pepper is intact, otherwise the custard will seep out. Fill peppers with corn mixture and put in baking dish. Pour boiling, salted water around peppers within one inch of the top of peppers, and bake in a moderate oven (350 F.) until custard is set and peppers are tender. Serves 4 to 6.

PEANUT BRITTLE WHIP

1 egg white (room temperature)
¼ c. powdered sugar
1 c. whipping cream (very cold)
½ tsp. vanilla flavoring
pinch salt
4 tbsp. crushed peanut brittle
16 lady fingers or crisp, sweet wafers

Crush peanut brittle between two layers of several thicknesses of wax paper. Lay a heavy cloth over top, then roll, or pound with mallet. Whip egg white until it is stiff enough to form shiny peaks, then fold in sugar, using the same egg whip. Next fold in the stiffly-beaten whipped cream, flavoring, salt and crushed peanut brittle.

Stand the lady fingers or wafers up around the sides of sherbet glasses, heap the whipped cream mixture lightly into sherbets within circle of lady fingers or wafers, and top, if you like, with a piece of maraschino cherry or other garnishing. Makes 4 servings.

Recovery From Stuttering is Easier for Very Young Tots

"Dear Dr. Myers:—I have read your article on 'Those Who Stutter' and I would appreciate your forwarding the bulletin, 'The Young Child Who Stutters.' I am enclosing a stamped envelope for that purpose.

"I was a former stutterer, myself, and I know all the mental torture, tension and unhappiness this affliction causes. You have described the situation aptly, when you blame the cause on emotional strain and misunderstanding. I have found in my own case, after years of study on the subject, that only by learning how to overcome nervous tension, by adopting the proper mental attitude, by relaxing as much as possible and using all the possible emotions that help one to relax, cheerfulness, optimism, calmness, love, determination; thus does one start to make progress towards overcoming the nervous tension that definitely causes stuttering.

PREVENT STUTTERING

"However, how much easier to prevent it or nip it in the bud before stuttering gets a foothold! I have a few people I would like to show your bulletin to, so if you could forward more than one I would be grateful." I did.

But most of the letters about stuttering relate to the tot from two to four at the very age-period when recovery is easiest. Some mothers say the stuttering began following a fright or illness and some refer to a young brother or sister of the stutterer suggesting the possibility of jealousy. Many also give evidence that the young stutterer is very "nervous" or excited. Most others, however, give no inkling as to the probable cause. Yet as the man from whom we quoted indicated, there probably is some emotional cause. It is easy to see how hard it will be for the lad reported in the following letter to recover from stuttering.

RIDICULES CHILD

"My son 13 years old stutters quite a bit and my husband is always making fun of him or mocking him." How many parents could ridicule his child for stuttering is, to me, inconceivable. Some other stuttering youths have told or written me that they were ridiculed or scolded at home for stuttering and a few that they were tormented in like fashion by a teacher and their classmates.

However, most teachers are very considerate of the stuttering pupil. Some of them write me to know how they may be more so. Fortunately some of our best public schools have speech experts who aim not so much to work directly with the stuttering child as with his parents and teachers, trying to show them how to help the child feel more comfortable when he speaks. Several thousand mothers have already written me for this bulletin, referred to some of whom have written me later to tell me the child had recovered from stuttering.

The younger the child who stutters the more easily he can recover from it throug indirect means—through creation of a sensible, sympathetic atmosphere. If, several months after following the program presented in the bulletin, your child evinces no improvement, you should consult a speech specialist. Even then the bulletin should help you supplement at home the expert's guidance.

Three Pound Weight Gain Signal For Movie Gals to Cut Calories

The movie actresses set a strict limit on their weight gains. Many of them, in fact most of them, set a three-pound limit. The morning the pointer on the scales hits the fatal mark, they crack down on calories. It's an excellent plan.

Of course, the average girl doesn't get paid a thousand dollars a week for keeping streamlined, and so she allows three pounds to grow into 10. Fantastic?

Well, you gain a pound and then a couple more, but three pounds seem so trifling, not enough to make a fuss about. The waistband on your favorite skirt feels a wee bit snug, so you set the button over . . . just a little. Before you know it, the scales are up five pounds and a mite more has snuggled around the waist. Ah, a waist minimizer fixes that. So nothing is done about changing your daily food habits, and you carelessly gain another pound, and another, and first thing you know, it's ten. How? Well, it takes only 4000 extra calories to make a solid pound . . . and they add up fast. The small second helping, the third hot biscuit, the doughnut in the middle of the morning, the chocolate bar in the movies, the snack at bedtime . . . hoping not to, you can eat 400 extra calories a month and gain a pound. And that's the way 10 to 12 pounds can clutter up the scales in just one year.

Let's stop at 10 and take them off whether the excess is 5, 10, 15 or 50 pounds, the reducing route is the same . . . the only difference is in time.

It's never a good plan, however, to grit your teeth and decide to cut down drastically on everything. That takes too much willpower. There's an easier and a safer way. Use science. Fats furnish 2¼ times as many calories as anything else, so cut fats all along the line. Restrict butter, have no fried foods, use little mayonnaise and French dressing and restrict cream. And don't forget pastries mix in fat, and count high in calories. Protein helps to burn the fat faster. Restrict the bread to three slices a day, cut out cakes and rich desserts.

Take off the ten pounds excess so they won't grow into twenty!

Baby's Stomach Upsets Not Usually a Cause for Alarm

Mother is always worried and distressed when Baby vomits. While it is true that vomiting may indicate a serious disorder, it is much more likely to be due to some simple and easily corrected cause.

For example, all babies swallow air when they nurse. Some of them get into the habit of gulping almost as much air as milk.

In attempting to get rid of the air, they are apt to bring up some of their food. This is known as simple regurgitation and should not be mistaken for true vomiting. It happens in so many instances that it has come to be the expected thing in tiny babies. Certainly, it is no cause for alarm unless the baby brings up a considerable amount of his feeding and does so habitually.

NURSING TOO LONG

Simple regurgitation may occur more often when the baby is allowed to nurse too long, when the baby has some block of the air passages, and in similar conditions.

If the baby is not getting enough food, he will be restless and cry between feedings and will not gain weight satisfactorily.

The air swallowing, due to blocking of the nose, may be prevented by gently cleansing the nostril with bits of cotton soaked in a salt solution before each feeding.

Another cause for regurgitation is over-feeding. If the baby is over-fed, he will have more than the usual number of bowel movements in addition to the regurgitation of the food. If the baby is breast fed, the over-feeding may be corrected by having the mother shorten the nursing time for several days. For the bottle baby of course, the amount of each feeding can be reduced.

Babies born before the normal time, or premature infants, are especially liable to regurgitate their food. This is due to lack of strength of the valve at the top of the stomach. Regurgitation in such babies is particuarly dangerous because of the chance of some of the milk being drawn into the lungs.

The regurgitation can be prevented, first by keeping the amount of the feedings mall enough to prevent the condition, and secondly, by putting the baby on his right side and keeping the head of the bed raised after the feedings. Of course these babies should be left undisturbed after they have taken their food.

It is important to remember that vomiting becomes a habit in many infants. It is important, therefore, to check this regurgitation as soon as possible, otherwise a habit may be developed with later on may be difficult to get rid of.

If a baby spits up his food frequently, he should, of course, be carefully examined by the physician to determine just what is wrong; then the disorder, as a rule, can be easily eliminated.

Last Rites For Well Known Windermere Man

INVERMERE, B. C., Nov. 20 — Funeral services were held Wednesday from St. Peter's Church for Eugene Bried, former owner of the Coldstream Cabins, who died suddenly at his Windermere home late Saturday.

Mr. Bried had been out in his car during the afternoon and had not been home long when stricken with a heart attack.

Born in Hawley, Pa., 58 years ago, Mr. Bried came to Canada first with a hardball team in 1914. Later he worked for the Scott Fruit Company at Calgary, and later still for an oil company there.

He came to B. C. in 1940 and purchased the Coldstream Cabins at Windermere, which he and Mrs. Bried operated until 1945.

Mr. Bried was well known locally as a popular sportsman and fisherman, and had a host of friends both in Canada and the United States. Since his retirement he and Mrs. Bried had travelled considerably but had continued to make Windermere their home.

Surviving him are his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Howard Becker of Jasper and Weston, Ont., and Mrs. Hal Bavin at Windermere; a son, Gordon, now at Jasper, and two grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements have been set for Wednesday from St. Paul's Church at Windermere.

Kaslo Church W. A. Plans Tea, Sale

KASLO, B. C., Nov. 20—St. Mark's Anglican Church Women's Auxiliary members, meeting at the home of President Mrs. C. Bowker, observed a minute's silence in memory of the late Miss Alice Hodges, who was a member of the W.A. for many years.

Miss Spencer-Smith of Mirror Lake read an interesting report on the Deanery meeting held in Nelson.

Plans were completed and committees appointed for a Christmas tea and bake sale to be held in December. Mrs. W. Smith and Mrs. W. Tyers will be in charge of the bake table, Mrs. Shepherd and Mrs. Robinson in charge of the sewing table, Miss Spencer-Smith and Mrs. Carney in charge of the White Elephant table; Mrs. A. Goodenough will be in charge of the naming of a doll contest.

SEND FOOD PARCEL

Mrs. Bowker reported that an 18-pound food parcel had been forwarded to the Rev. E. Jones in England.

A delicious tea was served by Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Shepherd as hostesses assisted by Mrs. Bowker.

INVERMERE

INVERMERE, B.C.—Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Marples, who have been visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Marples, left Thursday to return to their home at Vancouver.

Miss Joyce de Mille of Spillimacheen left Wednesday for Calgary, Edmonton and Turner Valley where she will visit friends.

Miss Lenora McQuaig returned Thursday after spending the past several months in the Cariboo.

Mrs. W. H. Cleland returned Friday from Calgary. Miss Allison Cleland who accompanied her to the Prairie city will remain there for a time.

Mrs. Grace Duncan has returned after an absence of three months during which time she was visiting relatives in the United States. Mrs. Duncan spent some time with sisters in Wisconsin and in Chisholm, Minnesota.

Mr. and Mrs. Oswald McGuinness returned Tuesday from Revelstoke where they had attended the funeral of the former's uncle.

Ronald Schneider of Edgewater is a patient in the Lady Elizabeth Bruce Memorial Hospital.

Harry Archer has returned to Windermere from the hospital at Invermere.

Herman Alpine has returned to Fairmont from the hospital at Invermere.

Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Young have received word that their son, Peter, has been accepted into the Canadian Navy. Peter has been in Calgary for the past two months making necessary arrangements. He will return home for a visit before reporting for duty.

Ben Bennett, who was an Athalmer resident for some time ten years ago, returned to the valley Tuesday and is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Peters. Mr. Bennett will probably reside in B.C., and may remain in Athalmer for the Winter. His sister is also expected to come to the valley shortly.

Mrs. Lloyd Tegart was hostess to the November meeting of the Windermere Ladies Social Club on Wednesday.

LONDON (CP) — Commissioner David Lamb of the Salvation Army, who hitch-hiked across Canada and the United States when he was 77, recently celebrated his 81st birthday.

B Picture Comes Back in Its Own; No Profit in Two Expensive Films

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 20 (AP) — The B picture is coming back into its own. Now MGM is reported mulling the return to lower-budget films to its production schedule.

Double features are apparently here to stay and producers and theatre owners are finding it increasingly difficult to make a profit by showing two expensive films on the same bill. The answer to the problem seems to be a return to B production.

Tightening its belt another notch, MGM is planning to bring back the B's next year. The new films will be geared at a cost of less than $700,000.

NEW DEAL

Gary Cooper starts his new deal with Warners this January. His first film will be "Copper Hill," a Western adventure drama by Stephen Longstreet . . .

Roy Rogers may be trying to get his release from Republic, but headman Herbert Yates doesn't appear worried. Yates says he elevated Rogers and his Sons of the Pioneers from "a bunch of singing cowboys" to their present status, "and we can find another bunch." . . .

GOOD GAMBLE

Did you know that Robert Young's salary for "Crossfire" amounted to about one-fifth of the film's cost. The picture was made for $522,000, and not one set was built for it. The scenes were shot on standing sets or ones borrowed from other pictures. Reason for the thrift was because the studio didn't know whether the controversial film would be accepted by the public. Young offered to work at no salary, accepting a percentage of the profits, but the studio refused. He would have made several times his salary if RKO had agreed . . .

HOME, JAMES

Harry James visited wife Betty Grable on the "This Is the Moment" set before taking off with his band for Philadelphia and one-night stands. He'll be home for Christmas. He said he'll start a picture for 20th Fox in February . . .

Cornel Wilde is going into fencing training next week. He says that his screen swordwork doesn't alter his amateur status and he plans to try out for the Olympic team. Who knows—he might even make it.

. . . Where the Porpoises Play . . . A Law Protected Pelorus Jack

Those graceful porpoises, arching their bodies in play through the waves, beside a boat off Southport, N. C., shown on Wednesday's Daily News picture page, present just about the utmost in streamlined movement.

I have not seen anything of that kind at close quarters, but scores of thousands of seamen and travellers have seen such leaping schools of porpoises and blackfish, playing around or under a ship's bows. I envy them the sight.

"WHALES" NEAR SAXONIA

When the Cunarder Saxonia was conveying the 54th Battalion—along with the 58th of Fort William-Port Arthur—across the water to Britain, in November, 1915, I spent all the time I could scanning the tossing water for signs of marine life. One day there were reports of whales having been seen, but though I asked large numbers of my companions to describe what they had seen, the few who claimed to have personally seen the animals would vaguely answer, "Oh, just whales." There were vague looks when I suggested they had seen porpoises, but in the end it became clear that it must have been a school of porpoises that was seen, for actual commercial-size whales would have left observers full of excitement, and gushing torrents of description.

Ultimately I did see one small school of dolphins—like very small porpoises with beaks—pouring through the waves just in front of the prow, for perhaps 15 seconds. There seemed to be about half a dozen individuals. Those were the only cetaceans I have personally seen "on the ocean deep."

But "blackfish," a kind of large porpoise, is often met with in Nova Scotia coastal waters, chiefly in schools. I have both heard and read of whole schools running ashore there, through a propensity to "follow the pilot." In Britain this propensity earns it the name of "pilot whale." It reaches an extreme length of 20 feet, and in different parts of the world gets cast up on beaches while in school formation, to provide blubber and souvenirs to fortunate villages.

When I was a boy a porpoise entered Mud Creek, the tidal bay that served my home town in Nova Scotia, and was stranded on the mud bottom when the tide drained out. For some reason, the town's chief sportsman, a crack shot, filled it with bullets. I did not see it, but heard all about it from my schoolmates.

Next to seeing porpoises from close proximity—which I was never fortunate enough to experience—is seeing them disporting at a distance, as they wheel across one's line of vision.

All my porpoise seeing or hearing was done on Minas Basin, the inland sea in Nova Scotia into which the Bay of Fundy tides pour, and then exit from, twice every 26 hours. Nearly all the sea-fishing I have done was done in 1898, in the first part of which I was teaching the country school of Blomidon, at the base of the famous Cape of that name.

On my first fishing trip, which was on the schooner Blackbird, owned and operated by the coasting captain with whose family I boarded, at one stage five black whales kept appearing on the surface, and vanishing beneath it, while making steady progress across our line of vision, at a distance of perhaps a third of a mile. What was happening, of course, was the passage of a group of five blackfish or porpoises, indulging in surface play. With absolute precision, five black forms appeared simultaneously in a row of precise intervals, and turned over in a forward direction, exactly like the turning of a wheel. This effect was lent by the upward shooting of the bodies, their simultaneous arching, and their slanting forward dive into the water, under which they disappeared.

Like clockwork, five black arches or turning wheels showed, and then disappeared, they appeared again, and disappeared, appeared, and disappeared, until they had happily churned their gay way in an undeviating straight line, across our line of vision.

That Fall or another—I know it was Fall by the potato cargo—when I was on a two-day trip on a 26-foot pleasure schooner, the Naiad, a brace of porpoises carried out exactly the same routine as the quintet I have just described. Like two parts of one machine for instance, the oil cups on a locomotive's connecting rod—they came up toegther, turned together, dipped below the surface together, at a never-deviating interval, and bowled steadily along at a fast pace until they were lost in the distance.

In between these two instances, I was out in the Summer of 1898 on the Naiad, for a day's fishing with its builder and owner, a former shipyard cabinet-maker turned farmer, when a fog enclosed us when we were on fishing grounds just off the Cape. My host took compass bearings when he saw the fog coming.

During the time we were wrapped in the dense fog, on the silent water, we heard close by a combined splash and sigh or "sough," which my host diagnosed as produced by a turning porpoise. If we had been in a rowboat or a small launch, that would have been cause for alarm.

You gather that the porpoise has to come up at intervals in order to breathe. However, it definitely plays, also, for its food, except when it locates schools of fish on the surface, is procured by stern pursuit at depth.

Did you ever hear of the porpoise that had a law passed for its individual protection?

NEW ZEALAND'S PELOROUS JACK

This particular sea beast—I don't think its sex was ever established, but it was assumed to be a male, and was given the name, Pelorous Jack—was found to invariably appear at the entrance to a certain strait, and cavort the whole distance of many miles through at the bow of every arriving steamer. When the inner passage was reached, it considered its convoy duty completed, and disappeared, evidently to return to the outer ocean to await the next incoming steamer.

Quite evidently it enjoyed its association with the great self-propelled ocean and coasting craft, or it would not have perpetuated it for years and years. Its markings easily identified it, and it naturally was the "pet", so to speak, of all shipping, all seamen, and all ocean travellers.

Finally some fool of a traveller, when no one was looking, swung on it with his rifle, and wounded it. He was practically mobbed.

This was the incident, if I recall correctly, that led to the special New Zealand law protecting Pelorous Jack, and imposing heavy punishment for anyone molesting him.

HIS FEELINGS HURT

Probably hurt more in his feelings than in his carcase, Pelorous Jack took a long lay-off from his duties, but ultimately returned, to be a faithful pilot for many more years, to all arriving vessels but one—the one from which the doubling wounding shot was fired at him.

Finally he vanished, and long afterward it was conjectured that his body might have been one of hundreds stranded, and converted to commercial use, on a certain beach—I forget whether on the Australian coast, or further West, perhaps on Borneo—where a great school of porpoises came to their fate about that time.

Plan Advertising Cranbrook Tourist Industry

CRANBROOK, B. C., Nov. 20 — Purchase of a double page advertisement of Cranbrook in the annual Travels Ltd., periodical for tourists published at Calgary, was authorized at the general Board of Trade meeting. Also arranged was publication of a large map of East Kotenay backed by information on resources and industries of the area for distribution among tourists and inquirers as a folder.

Urging further efforts to secure construction of houses here under one of the Dominion wartime plans, the meeting appointed T. A. Moore, Gordon Dezall and Alf Bayes to interview the City Council on progress toward this end.

CHANGE STREET NAMES?

Changing of city avenue and street names to numbers was discussed, and will be recommended to the city. Also discussed was the desirability of installation of dial telephone service. The Board also decided to interview the Provincial Police with regard to necessity of setting up flares defining location of an auto accident to prevent other cars becoming involved in it.

The Board supported a Canadian Chamber of Commerce referendum and Trail Board of Trade resolution that sale of margerine be legalized in Canada. The delayed Sunday morning start of CBC repeater service until 9:45 a.m. was criticized, and efforts will be made to have the Sunday start at the weekday time of 9 a.m.

Assured That Princess' Marriage Not An "Arranged" Match

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press
Foreign Affairs Analyst

In these uncertain days when thrones have been falling like the leaves of Autumn, what knight is bold enough to enter the lists as champion of a Royal Princess who one day will be Queen?

Well, for one I give you young Mountbatten, who Thursday married his Princess Charming and thus will be the Consort of another reigning Queen Elizabeth. Moreover your correspondent is able to assure you, from one who knows the Princess, that this is in fact a love-match and not an "arranged" marriage in the generally accepted sense of that term.

The two young folk were more or less brought up together, and have been sweethearts since childhood. So let the old curmudgeons begone with their happy tales of marriage for convenience. Give love its day.

SOVEREIGN IS UNFAIR

But apart from this romance, what does the throne mean to Britain which is ruled by a Socialist Government of the people's choice? If you ask the average Briton he will tell you something like this:

The British people are steeped in the tradition of centuries, and they live greatly in the past. Indeed their national strength has been due largely to an esprit de corps which tradition has helped to build. And the Sovereign is the unifier of everything they believe. He (or she) is both head of state and defender of the faith. That is, the ruler is the religious as well as the national symbol—a symbol which binds together not only the people of the British Isles but of the colonies and the world-wide Commonwealth of Sovereign nations.

The British people believe in constitutional monarchy because the throne is above politics. Prime Ministers may come and go, but the King (or Queen) always is there, equally able to play his part with Conservatives or Socialists. He is the best informed person in the country, so far as concerns affairs of state, for he has devoted his entire life to the study of Britain, the Dominions and the Colonies.

That is the reason Prime Ministers go to the Sovereign for advice—and often take it. Your correspondent has seen the truth of this demonstrated during his long service as a newspaper man in Britain. It would be a hardy Prime Minister who would go against the studied advice of the ruler in an emergency.

So we see that the Royal Family is the focal point of the national life. That accounts for the warmth and affection being shown Princess Elizabeth on this great occasion.

Those who know Princess Elizabeth say that when the time comes she will make a good Queen. And here I will let you into another little secret. Apart from the fact that she is a lovely and charming young woman she has inherited one of the outstanding family traits: she has a very determined mind of her own. Just like her great-great-grandmother Victoria.

Brothers Drown In Crash Through Ice

TIMMINS, Ont., Nov. 20 (CP) — Two young brothers drowned yesterday when they crashed through the ice on a lake near their home in this Northern Ontario district. Herve Laforce, six, and his eight-year-old brother, Leo, were dropped into the icy water when thin ice on the lake gave way under them.

Fresh Vegetables To Come Off Canadian Tables

VANCOUVER, Nov. 20 (CP) — Housewives face the prospect nex weke of no fresh vegetables, an availability only of root crops at in creased prices. They come under im port bans announced Monday b Finance Minister Abbott.

all imported vegetables — spinach celery, broccoli and lettuce—will b off the market completely in week, it was learned today. Potatoes which still may be brought in from the United States under quota, re main unchanged in price.

Price increases on root crops hav been announced by the Interio Vegetable Marketing Board at Ke owna while the British Columbi Coast Marketing Board, which also handles root vegetables and cabbage, does not expect any immediat price boosts.

GET TO KNOW YOUR EMPLOYER

Very few people have stopped and honestly asked themselves what the responsibilities of good management are. If they did, there would be fewer misunderstandings between employees and employers—aside from those inspired by labour leaders with selfish motives.

Most employees would have higher respect for the chief could they but:

Share his worries in producing a product or supplying a service the public wants at a price it can pay

Measure his courage and initiative in keeping a favorable balance to pay the kind of wages that attract good workers;

Know his ability to make a fair profit, to provide security for the future of the business and attract investors;

Realize his judgment in planning ahead to meet changing conditions;

Our opportunity system breeds such men!

The Same Hours, But More Goods

A study of production and employment just completed by the National Bureau of Economic Research covers 40 years from 1899 to 1939 in the major fields of agriculture, manufacturing, mining, gas and electric utilities and steam railroads in the United States. It shows that in this segment of American industry, accounting for about half the entire labor force, production was tripled in the 40 years without any significant increase in the number of man-hours put into that production. There was an increase in the number of persons employed, but this was almost exactly offset by a decline in working hours.

The increase in productivity, as distinguished from production, was taken in two different ways, as was noted by Charles E. Wilson, President of General Motors, in a recent talk: in more goods for the time put in at work and in more leisure time for workers. A further increase in productivity could not be measured so accurately, for it was found in the improved quality of some goods. Between 1921 and 1937, for instance, the Bureau found that the life of the average automobile tire, measured by mileage, increased eightfold. Neither the number of persons at work nor the time that they worked effected the change; it was a result of industrial teamwork, in which engineers, inventors, management, skilled labor and others all had a hand. The fruits of increased productivity are just as clearly and indisputably desirable as the reddest and juiciest apple ever put on display. Disputes over how their higher productivity should be sliced should not be allowed to obscure the essential task of maintaining our industrial progress.

Hitting the Pools

Britain's "easy-money" boys are getting it in the neck. Hard on the heels of the announcement by Rt. Hon. George Isaacs, Minister of Labor, that spivs and drones would be drafted for work in essential industry, a 10 per cent tax was slapped on the total take of dog tracks and football pools.

Our tears for the football pool operators are all of the crocodile variety. For years they have had the softest, smoothest money-making proposition imaginable.

Britons stake about $4,000,000 a week on the pools. Pool operators deduct all their business expenses, about $500,000 a week, from the total amount wagered. They then snick off a $200,000 a week profit for themselves. Remaining $8,300,000 goes back to the winning punters.

If business slacks off, all the pool operators have to do is hire an army of high-pressure salesmen to drum up trade. Any expenses so incurred don't cost the management a cent—it all comes out of the total wagerings of the faithful. And 5 per cent of any additional "take" goes into the pockets of the pool operators.

With this setup, football pools have been able to pay big salaries and hire thousands of people who, from the nation's viewpoint, would be doing a much more useful job turning out the goods Britain so desperately needs.

The Exchequer's new tax will mean that pools will have to cut down on present expenditures, unless they are prepared to face the certain wrath of their clients by returning less than 75 per cent of stakes in the form of winnings.

Etiquette Hints

If you are invited to a bridge party, but you do not play, or play poorly, either take some lessons and study the game so as to be a good partner, or decline the invitation. Don't embarrass yourself and annoy others by trying to play when you are ignorant of the game.

Words of Wisdom

For my part, I am not so sure at bottom that man is, as he says, the king of nature; he is far more its devastating tyrant. I believe he has many things to learn from animal societies, older than his own and of infinite variety.—Romain Rolland.

Letters to the Editor

"History Will Vindicate Archbishop Stepinac"

To the Editor:

Sir—Mr. Editor, for the information of the general public and in the cause of the whole truth and justice in this much discussed case of Archbishop Stepinac, allow me to present a few final, conclusive facts. I propose to close the present controversy with this letter. Prolonged personal debate with Mr. Gray is obviously a waste of your precious space and my time. An inherent weakness is very noticeable in the writer's method or argumentation "by innuendo" and subtle implication which he has failed to bolster by the facts involved. To his detriment, he has used the customary tactics of the supporters of the "Moscow line" who, when they are backed up against the dialectical wall, cast out, as a last resource, the very weak and time-worn accusation that their opponents are "Red-baiting". Fortunate indeed are we who live in a free country, Mr. Editor! For if we lived in any of the Communist puppet states and carried on the present controversy, I would be in jail for defending the Archbishop, and no doubt The Nelson Daily News would have been suppressed for publishing my letters! "Crimes against the people," you know!

I must thank the writer for adding further strength to my contentions by his quotation showing the suppression of all the Catholic press in Yugoslavia. How could the Catholic press defend the Archbishop when it had been suppressed? As Mr. Gray has refused to accept the word of the House of Representatives Special Committee on Un-American Activities, would he consider the word of the Rev. Claude Williams himself, who admitted under questioning that HE HELD A COMMUNIST PARTY MEMBERSHIP CARD UNDER AN ALIAS?

The Archbishop did NOT have full opportunity to acquit himself. Attempts to refute certain documents as forgeries were frustrated by Tito and the OZNA—his Gestago police. Further, why should the prelate repudiate the Pastoral letters of the Catholic press? As the writer vaguely mentions "Pastoral letters", implying that there might have been something sinister contained therein, permit me, Mr. Editor, to disclose what was said in them.

When Archbishop Stepinac was arrested at 6 a.m. on Sept. 18, 1946, by the OZNA secret police, the pretext was based on the Pastoral issued by the Bishops of Croatia, headed by the Primate. What was in it that warranted the charge of "crimes against the people"?

The Bishops protested "the treatment of the clergy and the sisterhoods. Within the past two years (i.e., at the time of the Pastoral) THREE BISHOPS AND 240 PRIESTS HAD BEEN MURDERED IN COLD BLOOD BY TITO AND HIS GANGSTERS! The Bishops further protested the suppression of the Catholic press, the denial to the sisterhoods to care for the poor, orphans and the aged. They refuted the accusation that the clergy were disloyal and unpatriotic. They objected to the interference of the Tito regime with the Catholic education, removal of the Crucifix from the schools, ban on prayer before class, assistance of the students in a body at Mass, and the reception of the sacraments and many other impositions placed on the laity; and finally, the attempt of the Communist State educators to promote atheism in the schools through anti-God textbooks and teaching.

In direct contradiction to Mr. Gray's accusations and tyrant Tito's allegations, proofs have been put forward that Stepinac, between the war years 1940 to 1945, DID NOT COOPERATE WITH THE USTACHI, but like his fellow-prelates in Germany (Von Preysing, Faulhaber, Innitzer), fearlessly opposed the Nazi puppets and their pagan ideologies just as courageously as he had Tito's atheistic Communism. During the reign of the Ustachi, he denounced the persecution of the Jews and befriended thousands of them! He condemned the execution of hostages as inhuman and un-Christian, protested against the conduct of the Italian soldiers toward the civilian population and did all in his power and within the limits of his financial resources, to help those in the concentration camps. He gave the lie to the accusation of the "forced conversions of the Serbs" and acted to protect them against their persecutors.

Finally, a well known liberal and free thinker, Dr. Ivo Politeo, convinced of the Archbishop's innocence, assumed the position of chief counsel for the trial before the so-called "people's court". The defence counsel was allowed to interview the accused only ONCE before the trial commenced. As was pointed out, most of the witnesses who were in a position to refute the charges were arrested, imprisoned and not permitted to attend! The flagrant abuses in the name of justice were noted in our press and gave "five violations of accepted juridical procedure" committed by the court at the 12-day trial. Beside the ones mentioned in this paragraph, was the fact that the trial opened only SIX DAYS after publication of the official indictment! The prosecution was allowed to speak for hours every day of the trial, whil the defence lawyers were allowed to speak briefly, on rare occasions, with the exception of the final summing up. The prosecution was allowed 80 witnesses, while the defence was allowed but 22, and under protest—the prosecution stated with the assent of the president of the tribunal (report in Newsweek), "that it was 'blasphemy' to permit the testimony of ANY defence witness". Is it any wonder, Mr. Editor—and Mr. Gray—that the Archbishop held the court in scorn?

Public men of integrity (and non-Catholic) have all supported most of the above—to name but a few, Acting Secretary of State Acheson (U. S.), Governor Thomas Dewey of New York State, and the then American Ambassador in Yugoslavia, Richard C. Patterson, Jr.

Mr. Editor, history will vindicate the persecuted Archbishop Stepinac, just as it has those who opposed Nazism—Cardinals Faulhaber and Innitzer, Bishop Von Preysing and Lutheran Pastor Niemoller.

J. CLAYTON WALLS.

W. R., Castlegar—Could I have a simple method for removing lettering on sugar bags?

One method suggested to us is that to remove lettering from sugar bags you should cover the print with lard. Roll the bag up and leave overnight. The next day wash the bags in the usual manner with soap and water. Another suggestion is to soak the bags overnight in cold water to which ice has been added. Wash out in the ordinary way next day, rubbing briskly.

Subscriber, Nelson—What is the best way to remove mildew from upholstery?

Usually mildew can be removed by first brushing to remove the excess and then sponging with soap solution made slightly alkaline with ammonia.

G. U., Nelson—Could I please have printed in your column a recipe for marshmallows?

Two tablespoons gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, ¾ cup boiling water, 2 cups sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, confectioners' sugar. Soak the gelatin in the cold water until it has taken up all the water. Boil the sugar and water to the soft-ball stage (238 degrees F.). Add vanilla and salt to gelatin. Pour the sirup slowly over the gelatin, beating constantly with a whisk until cool and thick. Butter a shallow pan slightly and dust with confectioners' sugar. Turn the marshmallow mixture into the pan and smooth overnight. In the morning cut it into small squares and roll in confectioners' sugar.

Today's Horoscope

You are somewhat sensitive, if today is your birthday anniversary, but considerate of the feelings and opinions of others. You are prompt, dependable, able and competent; an ardent reader, clear thinker, and an interesting and entertaining conversationalist. Your home is dear to you and you are very fond of children. The day's influences are adverse, unless you can hold others to their word. In your next year you will derive benefit from an elderly woman, also from unexpected sources, but watch your affairs closely and avoid the law and dealings in property, and safeguard your health. The child who is born on this date will gain and suffer loss through elders. Monetary difficulties will often occasion anxiety, and speculation should be avoided.

INDORSES B. C. PLAN

E. C. Carson, Minister of Public Works for British Columbia, has disclosed that an agreement will be sought with the United States to permit British Columbia's Southern Trans-Provincial Highway to run through 15 miles of Washington State. It is necessary to route the highway South of the border because the present highway traverses two mountain summits which are passable only in Summer.

It is only neighborly to permit the Canadians to run the road on this side of the line. The American-Canadian border is unique in that it never has been fortified. That is a symbol of the close relations between our countries, and anything that will promote friendship should be encouraged. — Chicago Tribune.

COMFORT FOR CATTLE

Cattle cars are becoming as comfortable, almost, as Pullmans. At any rate, they now have anti-friction roller-bearing journal boxes and the latest sorts of spring underframes and air brakes, and they make it possible to cut the former travel time from range to market in half.

That is as it should be. Nothing can be too good for the gentle creatures that provide us with beefsteak, if and when we can afford it.—New York Times.

SAVES THE BACON TOO

SQUEEZE plays are usually thought of as a means of making a contract or perhaps an extra trick. They can be useful also in limiting losses, if the declarer sees he can not possibly make his contract, due to some unfortunate development in the division of suits or location of opponents' honors. In a nutshell, a squeeze play is merely one mechanism whereby tricks are taken, just as is a finesse.

After the club 10 was led and South saw the dummy, he was sorry about several things in that auction, beginning with his funny opening of diamonds instead of clubs, then his failure to double East's 3-Clubs and finally his redouble. He took the club lead with the A, led the heart 4 to the K and felt terrible when East discarded a club.

Then he saw a slight ray of hope if the six diamonds were divided evenly. So he gave up one to the J, took the returned club Q with the K, throwing a spade from dummy, then scored his two diamond tops. But the suit didn't break, leaving West with the high Q. Now sure to go down one, he spotted a chance to prevent more destruction by working a squeeze on East's black suits. To get the timing for it, he led dummy's last diamond, discarding a club, and let West win. The latter sent back the heart 10 to the A.

Now South did his stuff, running two more hearts. As he led the J, the dummy also contained the useless 6 and the spade K-4, and South's hand the spade A-7-2 and club 6. East, with his three high spades and club 9, had to hold the club to guard against the 6, so discarded one of his spades. Thereupon the spade K, A and 7 took the last three tricks after the club 6 had been discarded on the final heart lead. So South went down only one trick for 400 points instead of two for 1,000.

Creation of New State Foreseen If Big Four Pact on Germany Fails

By WES GALLAGHER

BERLIN, Nov. 20 (AP)—Creation of a new European state—Western Germany — is regarded by competent authorities as almost a certainty to follow any failure by the Allied Big Four to reach an agreement on Germany in the London Conference opening Nov. 25.

And virtually all Western Military Government officials plus three out of four Germans expect the Council of Foreign Ministers to remain deadlocked, which would leave Germany split between East and West.

The United States Military Government has refrained from recommending to Washington that a separate Government for Western Germany be set up in order to avoid charges of jeopardizing the London meeting.

However, it is learned authoritatively that the American Military Governor, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, will make such recommendations immediately, should the Conference fail.

It is expected that Britain, seeking to shed the heavy occupation financial drain, will concur in such recommendations.

The French, with their century-old fear of German aggression and centralization, probably would oppose such a step at the present time. However, British and American sources feel these objections could be met by a "federalized" decentralized Government structure.

Clay, during his two years in Germany, has been one of the strongest advocates of a unified Germany as the only real solution of the German problem, but feels the present impasse with its dangers of inflation, high occupation costs and cumbersome economic machinery can not continue much longer.

Russian insistence on a highly-centralized German Government, rigged with "democratic front" devices which would give minority Communists every advantage, and high reparations demands, sets too high a price for such unity, according to Western Military Government officials.

At the end of the war, Russia had the only self-supporting zone in Germany, because it was the agricultural basket of Germany and its factories were less damaged by war and had comparatively large amounts of raw materials on hand. American and British economists feel that the factory-stripping, exhausting of raw materials and lack of manpower is rapidly putting Eastern Germany into the debit class.

Famous Diamond In Stolen Loot

DARTMOUTH, Mass., Nov. 20 (AP) — The famous Amati Diamond, described as eleventh largest in the world and worth $100,000, was among $200,000 in jewelry reported stolen at pistol point Tuesday night by three masked men from Mrs. Richard N. Coffin, former show girl and once wife of the late Damon Runyon.

13-YEAR-OLD TELLS OF KILLING TOT

BAKERSFIELD, Calif., Nov. 20 (AP)—Police today quoted a 13-year-old girl as saying that she had slain a five-year-old tot Monday in a youngsters' pirate cave and that she "didn't know why."

Myretta Jones' nude body, her clothing nearby stained with blood, was found Monday, nine hours after she had gone to a store on an errand.

Today, Joyce Christine Nichols, 13, was taken from her seventh-grade classroom and, before removal to a juvenile detention home, was booked on suspicion of murder.

Police said that Joyce, a freckled brunette, gave a transcribed statement, which also was signed by her father, Cal Nichols, a garage mechanic, and by her stepmother, Mrs. Edith Nichols.

Get Life for Admitted Killing

WAUPUN, Wis., Nov. 20 (CP)—Two small-town desperadoes who admitted killing a University of Wisconsin medical student and raping his sister-in-law last weekend, began serving life sentences today after their pleas of guilty to first-degree murder.

Robert Winslow, 24, and Buford Sennett, 22, both of whom had served reformatory sentences, were convicted of the slaying of Carl L. Carlson, 25.

The United States often has 4,000,000 malaria cases a year.

Abandon Clearing Mines From German Waters

By GEORGE BOULTWOOD

HAMBURG, Nov. 20 (AP) — The Herculean task of clearing mines from German waters in the North Sea and Baltic is being abandoned, a British naval officer disclosed in an interview here.

Future effort will be confined to maintaining the safe lanes swept through the uncounted thousands of mines on the sea bed.

"We found that the effort involved and the expenditure of oil and raw materials were not justified by the percentage of results obtained," the officer said.

Since the end of the war 55 merchant ships have been damaged by mines off the German coast and a number of fishing vessels lost.

The menace of the mines will remain for several years, the officer said, but ships can travel in safety under normal conditions provided they keep to the marked lanes.

POSSE RUNS DOWN FUGITIVES IN WILD WEST STYLE

CLINTON, B. C., Nov. 20 (CP)—A manhunt, with all the color of pioneer ranch days, ended in the snow-covered hills East of here with the capture of two of four men who escaped from the Clinton jail Sunday night.

Trailed through fresh-fallen snow and across ice-filled creeks, a posse of cowboys from Cariboo ranches and police forced surrender of Robert J. Wilson and Robert L. Clement after opening fire on the fugitives. A shot passed through one man's leather jacket, but he escaped injury.

Earlier, another posse captured Lyon W. Gordon and Arthur C. Howk after a hunt through the hills. The men were unarmed, but one had a pocket full of ammunition.

The four, all believed from Vancouver, had been held at Clinton awaiting trial on an automobile theft charge.

Clinton is in the rugged Cariboo ranch country, 200 miles North of Vancouver.

They all took their schooling from early years ame up the hard way . . . ng from experience and play- od hockey to boot. Now most boys are in their late teens and ready for faster and bigger things and the Nelson Amateur Hockey Association has seen fit to provide a stepping stone to senior ranks as well as icing a junior team on which to rest hopes for a Provincial championship. Don Porteous, one of the men behind the scheme, said as much Wednesday.

To Al Euerby, a Leafian of renown of former years, will fall the task of welding the team together. Al has had wide experience with hockey and from his first workout emerged confident that he had the necessary material to work with.

While the team is still in its recruiting stage and more players are expected, a formidable array of pucksters has tried out. They include Al Silverwood and Bill Freno, goal; R. Koehle, Ron Macintyre, Don Longden, Bob McDonald, defence; Bob Halbauer, Lee Hyssop, Norm Hyssop, D. Argos Lopsided Favorites for Eastern Final TORONTO, Nov. 20 (CP)—Come fair weather or foul, Toronto Argonauts rule as top-heavy favorites to whip Ottawa Trojans in the Eastern Canada football final here Saturday. Believe it or not, that's what worries Coach Tedder Morris.

"Sure my boys are in top shape," he concedes. "But maybe they'll get thinking they're better than they are, eh? These Trojans must be pretty good too and they won't be holding back just to give us the jump."

Morris referred to Trojans' amazing 15-3 victory in the Ontario Union's sudden-death final against Hamilton Wildcats, a team that beat Trojans, 46-12, in their last scheduled outing, as an "example of what hustle can do."

"We'll just have to get out there and out-hustle them," he added.

WEATHER NO WORRY

With a powerful wingline, a speedy backfield and the Dominion's ace punter in big Joe Krol, the Argos aren't worried much whether the weather blows hot or cold. They showed strength as mudders in defeating Ottawa Rough Riders, 3-0, in the first game of the Big Four final and came back with a masterful performance to take the next, 21-0.

The Ottawans are an unknown quantity so far as Argos are concerned. But with such former Argos as snap Tom Glenn and the rugged Smylie brothers, Doug and Rod, in the lineup, Argos wnow they'll be up against football players. Morris himself picked up a healthy respect for Wally Masters, Trojans 40-year-old playing coach, in his own playing days.

The Trojans are a hungry team but so will be the Argos, if Morris has his way. That's one big reason the betting fraternity installed the champs as 5-1 favorites, with few Trojan takers even at those odds.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 19 (CP)—Winnipeg Blue Bombers, Western Canada rugby football champions—unless a Calgary protest is upheld—tonight announced the names of 25 players who will make the trip to Toronto to meet the Eastern winners for the Grey Cup and the Canadian title.

They are: Captain Mel Wilson and Gordon Perry, centres; Bill Ceretti, Kas Vidruk, Bud Irving, Bert Iannone, Erie Ahoff, guards; Bob Smith, Al Passman, Tiny Lucid, Paul Frederickson, tackles; Red Smith, Johnny Westrum, Lionel Wood, Ernie Williams, ends; Don Hiney, Harry Hood, quarters; Don Smith, Bob Sandberg, Johnny Reagan, Joey Turner, Norm Geller, Harry Badger, Margin Begston, Elton Hobson, halves.

Dynamiters Open Western Swing At Trail Tonight

Kimberley Dynamiters, victors in three of the four games they have played in the Western International Hockey League to date, have proved themselves dangerous sharpshooters.

Dynamiters play at Trail Friday night and Nelson Saturday night on their first West Kootenay swing.

The Kimberley marksmen have chalked up 19 goals in four games compared to Smoke Eaters' 19 in five games and 11 by Maple Leafs in six games.

The Sullivan - Sanderson - Calles combination has clicked nicely, with Sam Calles picking up five goals and Lloyd (Sandy) Sanderson three. Frank Sullivan, meanwhile, was collecting eight assists and a goal.

Newcomers Bill Hryciuk, no relation to Johnny Hryciuk of the 1946-47 Leafs, Shorty Coombs and Buzz Mellor have also entered the scoring columns.

Hryciuk and Coombs have been working with Gordie Wilson on one line while Mellor played with Buck Kavanagh and Bill Tarnow.

Interest in the outcome of the game against Trail tonight is high for both teams have introduced a considerable number of new players.

A.H.A. PUCKSTERS OKAYED FOR OLYMPICS

ZURICH, Switzerland, Nov. 20 (AP)—Despite opposition by the United States Olympic Committee, the United States will be represented at the St. Moritz Winter sports Olympics by a team designated by the Amateur Hockey Association, Dr. Fritz Kraatz, President of the International Ice Hockey Federation, said today.

Dr. Kraatz asserted that the organizing committee of the Winter games has given definite assurance that the A.H.A. team would be accepted, thus apparently ending a long dispute between the A.H.A. and the Amateur Athletic Union, both of which had made a claim to represent the United States in the hockey championship.

Elliott of Braves Most Valuable in National League

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—Bob Elliott, heavy hitting third baseman of Boston Braves, today was proclaimed the National League's most valuable player for 1947 by a vote of a 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers' Association.

In becoming the first member of a non-pennant-winning team to gain that distinction since Ernie Lombardi of the fourth place Cincinnati Reds won the award in 1938, Elliott also had the honor of becoming the first third baseman in either league to win the M.V.P. title since its inception in 1911.

The 31-year-old native of San Francisco, whose great work both at bat and in the fild was largely responsible for Boston's third place finish last season, is only t he second Brave thus honored. The other was Johnny Evers, of Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance fame back in 1914.

BLACKWELL SECOND

Elliott, a converted outfielder who made the shift to the hot corner in 1942, polled a total of 2035 votes in the balloting for the Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis Memorial Award to win by a comfortable margin over Ewell Blackwell, right-handed Cincinnati ace pitcher of no-run, no-hit fame. Blackwell finished second with 175 points.

Johnny Mize, slugging first baseman of New York Giants, was third with 144, and catcher Bruce Edwards led a sizeable delegation of champion Brooklyn Dodgers with 140 points.

Twenty-six players figured in the voting, an unusually low total.

Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn's Negro rookie first baseman, finished fifth with 106 points.

N. H. L. Big Seven

By The Canadian Press

National Hockey League marksmen had a big night last night, garnering 24 goals and 34 assists in three games. Maurice Richard with a goal and an assist moved to within three points of league leader Syl Apps. Another Montrealer, Toe Blake moved up the ladder as he earned a goal and an assist for two points to take over sole possession of the third spot with 15 points, one behind teammate Richard. Milt Schmidt collected a goal and an assist to move into a fourth place tie with George Gee. Elmer Lach, Harry Watson and Buddy O'Connor who was held scoreless last night, are tied for the next spot with 13 points each.

Hamilton Track Ace Gets Nod As Best Junior

By LORNE BRUCE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Nov. 20 (CP)—Gordon Haight, long-legged middle distance runner of Hamilton, today was declared the first winner of the Viscount Alexander Trophy as outstanding junior male athlete in Canada this year.

Haight was chosen by a special committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, now in convention here, and received the most votes in the final balloting among six top-notch juniors.

A leading prospect for this country's Olympic track and field team next year, Haight returned to his native city of Edmonton last Summer to set a Dominion junior record for the half mile—one minute, 58 3-5 seconds.

After hearing reports at the opening A.A.U. session this morning, some 25 delegates representing 10 branches and several allied bodies went into closed committee hearings and were scheduled to attend a dinner this evening tendered by the City of Lethbridge.

CONTENDERS

Considered in balloting for the Alexander Trophy being awarded for the first time were Frank Almond, Vancouver, 1947 Canadian amateur bantamweight boxing champion; Lorne Main, Vancouver, the country's leading junior tennis player; George Lynch, Toronto, middle distance runner, Peter Mingie, Montreal swimmer, and Reg. Hamilton, a nall-round athlete of Saskatoon.

STRIKES AND SPARES

A crew from Shorty's took five other Commercial League teams to the cleaners on the Bowladrome Alleys with a high flown tally of 2927. Their aggregate was the second highest bowled who hold the record with a total of 2977.

A. Hessler of Shorty's team rolled the high single for the evening—300 while R. DuBois aggregated a high of 714. Scores follow:

Market Trends

TORONTO, Nov. 20 (CP)—Pressure on the gold list was resumed and prices continued to retreat although on a much slower scale than yesterday. Industrials held fairly well on mixed lists with fractional price changes predominating while Western oils turned over lightly on a mild upward trend.

LONDON, Nov. 20 (Reuters) — Vigorous activity in South African mining shares enlivened the last hour of trading.

MONTREAL, Nov. 20 (CP)—Papers were active again and pluses in that group edged out minuses.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP) — Strength of special stocks, reflecting good corporate news, was the bullish feature although many leaders failed to enthuse and followed a slim course.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 20 (CP)—The volume of trading dropped noticeably with mines still receiving the majority of trade and oils and industrials exchanging lightly. Mines reversed their form of yesterday by moving ahead while oils and industrials also edged forward.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20 (AP)—Grain futures rallied after an early setback.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 20 (CP)—Prices were driven up in rye futures trading after a delayed opening. Considerable export demand and light offerings combined in thin trading to produce the increases.

Calgary Livestock

CALGARY, Nov. 20 (CP)—Cattle market active, with prices steady at the week's decline.

Wednesday's receipts: 1490 cattle, 265 calves, 745 hogs, 124 sheep. This morning: 200 cattle, 120 calves, 500 hogs, 100 sheep.

Fireworks Expected at A. A. U. Meet Over Off-Work Pay for Amateurs

By LORNE BRUCE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Nov. 20 — (CP) — Broken-time pay for amateurs—for years one of the most controversial subjects among leaders in athletics—will be discussed at the annual meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, which opened today in this South-western Alberta city.

A resolution asking that athletes be allowed to receive money for time away from their jobs is scheduled to be submitted by the Alberta branch of the Union, and with many leaders opposed, the question could provide one of the highlight debates of the three-day convention.

LOST AFFILIATES

The Union now permits athletes to receive only travelling and hotel expenses, and this stand was largely responsible for the loss of its two largest affiliates—the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association.

Acceptance of money for lost work-time would bar an athlete from competing in the Olympic Games, but sponsors of the resolution apparently believe this loss would be outweighed by the advantages to athletes in this country.

The Alberta branch has submitted a motion asking repeal of the requirement that all delegates to Union conventions must hold amateur cards. It is argued, for instance, that a man who took $5 some 30 years ago, but now is active in promoting amateur sport, cannot be a convention delegate because he cannot take the oath necessary to obtain an amateur card.

Alberta delegates will advocate standardization of the membership fees of branches and allied bodies, which now range from $100 to $25 annually. They argue that as all have equal voting rights, each should pay equal fees.

The Viscount Alexander Trophy, for the junior male athlete who has given the most outstanding performance during the last year, will be awarded for the first time.

Delegates also will award the Norton H. Crowe Trophy to a Canadian male athlete for outstanding performance and sportsmanship in the last year in sports controlled by the Union.

Calgary Football Protest Rejected

CALGARY, Nov. 20 (CP)—President John Thompson of the Western Interprovincial Rugby Union announced today that, Calgary Stampeders' protest of their 10-3 loss to Winnipeg Blu Bombers in the Western final at Winnipeg Saturday had been disallowed.

The Union's executive partially upheld one of Stampeders' points—that the playing field had not been properly marked—but they ruled the Calgary team should have protested this before the game began.

The game, played on a snow-covered field and with snow falling, was the third in what was to have been a home-and-home, total-point series. Bombers won the first at Winnipeg 16-4 but the Stampeders took the second 15-3, forcing the playoff.

Calgary's other three points concerned officials' decisions.

Pibul Songgram (above), who was dictator from 1938 to 1944, and collaborated with the Japanese war machine, returned to power as Siam's "strong man" after a bloodless coup. — A R Wirephoto via radio from London.

Power Rationing

W. Ross Strike, Vice Chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, who has announced that a modified form of power rationing has been ordered for Ontario, beginning Nov. 10. Penalties range up to $100 a day for failure to obey the ration ordinance.

Czech Strong Man

Communist Premier Klement Gootwald (above) emerged from a political crisis as the new strong man of Czechoslovakia.

Part of Mountain Disappears

Part of Iron Mountain near Elizabethton, Tenn., disappears when TVA engineers set off 520,000-pound dynamite charge which they said was a record for a construction job. The blast was in connection with TVA's Watauga Dam project. —AP Wirephoto.

Held in Slayings

Glenn Marsh (above), 27-year-old farmer, stands in a cell doorway at Rockford, Ill., after his arrest in connection with a double slaying and abduction. He told police his fear that a love affair with Mrs. Katherine Anderson, 26, would be ended, had led to the fatal shooting of her husband and father and abduction of Mrs. Anderson. — AP Wirephoto.

Fugitive From Reds

Believed to be slated for arrest by the Communist-dominated Hungarian Government, Zoltan Pfeiffer (above), leader of Hungary's anti-Communist Party, is reported a fugitive. He is said to have fled into Austria a few hours before a Parliamentary Committee was due to decide whether his Parliamentary immunity should be cancelled so that he could be brought to trial for allegedly sheltering members of the German SS.

Gets New Post

Walter W. Dawson, 53, formerly of Regina, Sask., who was in charge of the Japanese relocation camp at Moose Jaw for the Federal Department of Labor, was recently appointed Acting Associate Director of Agriculture, Fisheries and Lumbering in the Federal Department of Labor, Ottawa. Mr. Dawson was director of relief in Saskatchewan during the depression years when half of the Province's population was on relief.

Asks Aid

Secretary of State George C. Marshall in testimony before a joint meeting of the Senate and House Foreign Affairs Committees in Washington asks Congress to provide $597,000,000 for emergency aid in Europe until March 31. He estimated an additional $7,500,000,000 will be needed in the 15 months starting then. —AP Wirephoto.

You Can't Throw Money Away Here

In spite of inflation, there's one place on earth where you can't throw your money away. That's at Blowing Rock, N. C., where a peculiar and constant breeze flows up the face of the precipice, returning to your hands any light object tossed over the cliff, just like a boomerang. A party is pictured on the cliff throwing out an object (shown in air at top, right) which is promptly returned.

Telescope Mirror Rests Safely at Mount Palomar

PALOMAR MOUNTAIN, Calif., Nov. 20 (AP)—The world's largest telescope mirror rested safely in an aluminizing tank today at the observatory atop this 6000-foot peak. A hazardous, 160-mile journey from the optical shop at California Institute of Technology in Pasadena was accomplished without mishap in two ways.

Respect of Different Creeds Admired

TORONTO, Nov. 20 (CP) — More than 2000 women of many faiths, attending opening sessions of the First Institute on Judaism held in Canada, were told by Rabbi L. Feinberg yesterday that the meeting was "a thrilling expression of Canadian unity."

Rabbi Feinberg, addressing an audience at Holy Blossom Temple that included Jews and Gentiles of many religious denominations, said that "the only way to save democracy is by having democracy, respecting different creeds, and regarding each person as inviolable."

Dr. Samuel Goldenson of Temple Emanuel, New York, explained Judaism as a combination of law and emotions, wisdom and vision of the prophets.

INEXPERIENCE BLAMED FOR AIR CRASH

VANCOUVER, Nov. 20 (CP)—Inexperience today was suggested by airmen here as the reason for yesterday's air crash on nearby Lulu Island which claimed the lives of Robert Lovell, 23, of Princeton, B.C. and his fiancee, Joan Liddle, 18, of New Westminster, B.C.

Their small Tiger Moth plane, only craft to leave Vancouver Airport Wednesday, hurtled from 300 feet to crash on the Westminster Highway, killing both occupants.

Control tower officials at Vancouver Airport said when the plane took off for Princeton, where Lovell was a trucker, visibility was below the normal 1000 feet usually demanded for take-offs, but the flight was authorized.

Lovell was said to have bought the plane from Penticton Flying Club. A month ago he and Miss Liddle attracted public interest when he claimed he had to climb out onto the plane's wing to direct the craft to a landing field because the weather was "so thick."

DENHAM, Buckinghamshire, Eng. (CP)—Blind for 60 years a widow, Jane Baker, who recently celebrated her 100th birthday said: "Make the best of everything and be thankful for small mercies."
