First 100 War Prisoners Liberated

Tears, Smiles on Faces Of Tired, Sick Men as Welcomed to Freedom

PANMUNJOM, Korea (CP) — Sick and wounded war prisoners were exchanged today by the United Nations and the Communists in a move that could precede an armistice in Korea.

The first 100 liberated in this bleak neutral zone were taken to "freedom village," near the Allied truce base of Munsan in Western Korea.

Today's first group of 50 in the exchange involved 30 Americans, 12 Britons, four Turks, 50 South Koreans and four others — a Canadian, a South African, a Filipino and a Greek.

In the second group of 50 disabled captives released today there were 16 Americans, seven Britons and two Turks.

The Communists reported that Tuesday they will hand over 35 Americans, 12 Britons, three Turks and 35 South Koreans.

In return today the Reds were receiving 400 disabled North Koreans and 100 Chinese. In the next 11 days a total of 605 Allied soldiers are to be exchanged. Some 5800 Communists will be freed during the same period.

Among the British prisoners handed over today was Pte. H. J. Brown—a survivor of the gallant stand made by the men of the Gloucester regiment. It was the 1st battalion of the Gloucesters which blunted the all-out Communist drive in the western sector of the Korean front in April, 1951.

The Gloucesters refused to withdraw or surrender until, after three days without food or water, they were over-run. Nearly 600 were believed to have been killed or captured in the action. Only 40 survived the fight to rejoin the regiment.

The repatriated Allies wore padded blue Chinese-style uniforms, black canvas shoes and blue peaked hats.

They carried blue blanket rolls. The initial exchange proceeded smoothly. No expression showed in the faces of South Koreans being returned.

Most Allied sick and wounded were joking and smiling as they sat in the ambulances awaiting the great moment when they would cross the line to freedom.

The gloomy weather failed to dampen the enthusiasm of some 2000 Allied personnel waiting 14 miles away at "freedom village" in Munsan to welcome the returning sick and wounded.

Gen. Mark Clark, UN commander-in-chief, headed the list of those on hand to see—as he put it—"some of our lads come back."

Even before the exchange got under way, the thunder of duelling artillery guns just outside Panmunjom's attack-free circle provided an unneeded reminder that two unbeaten armies still were fighting a war nearly three years old.

TIRED AND SICK

The returning Allied prisoners were tired and sick. There were tears in the eyes of some and smiles on the faces of most as they crossed over from Communist thralldom to freedom.

Going the other way were glum-faced Chinese and North Korean Reds who refused to eat breakfast before they were sent home.

One American soldier mustered a broad grin and said:

"Hi, fellows."

He was greeted by beaming Americans lined along the zone.

Most came back silently, though.

The emotion-charged exchange of the ailing gave promise of a much larger exchange in the days ahead—of thousands of able-bodied prisoners still languishing in stockades. Their time will not come, however, until a truce is signed and hostilities end.

TRUCE TALKS

The Allies and the Communists agreed Sunday that the long-abandoned armistice talks would resume next Saturday—even before the exchange of sick and wounded is completed.

Slocan Demands Curfew for Sons

Action Within 10 Days Demanded Of Victoria, Ottawa or Non-Doukhobors "Will Draft Their Own Solution"

APPLEDALE — Slocan Valley residents, driven to desperation by terroristic activities, have demanded that Sons of Freedom be confined by a curfew to their homes from 8 p.m. to 6 a.m.

Valley non-Doukhobors, who nightly take shifts guarding their homes and businesses against fire raiders, at a mass meeting here Saturday night drafted this demand upon the authorities with the proviso that there be action within 10 days. If the 10-day deadline is not met, a second resolution declared, the citizens would "draft their own solution".

Resolution, passed unanimously and wired to Attorney-General Robert Bonner and H. W. Herridge, MP for Kootenay West, urged immediate imposing of the curfew by RCMP.

"All found abroad between these hours should be subject to fines and imprisonment and those driving vehicles should have them confiscated and sold at public auction." The wire also stipulated the curfew should remain in effect until a solution satisfactory to Slocan citizens be found.

A second resolution said if the government failed to take action within 10 days, "the citizens of the Slocan would formulate their own solution."

Earlier in the day, it was reported, a number of non-Doukhobors had received information that fire insurance on their properties was being cancelled. Later, however, advise was received that policies had been reinstated.

A resolution demanding the district be put under martial law until Freedomites were "moved out," was voted down.

Suggestion for controlling the terrorists, discussed at the meeting, which at times reached fever pitch, included:

1. Immediate relocation of Sons of Freedom and arsonists:
2. That RCMP visit individual homes of the sect and have members sign an oath of allegiance, those refusing to do so to be immediately removed.
3. That all drivers' licences of Sons of Freedom be cancelled. Further that police be called upon to enforce a curfew.
4. Jail did not appear to be the solution as in the past it has not controlled the situation. Any persons found guilty of arson should also receive the lash.
5. That sect members be scattered over Canada and no communities be allowed.
6. That all who had been burned out be rounded up and forced to tell who had done the burning and the arsonists immediately moved out with no other option.
7. That all car insurances be cancelled, all communities broken up.
8. That the government should pay for guards on private homes and enterprises.

Nelson-Creston, Slocan Name CCF Candidates

The number of candidates named to contest Kootenay-Boundary seats in the coming provincial election rose to 10 on the weekend with the nomination of two CCF candidates.

Nelson lawyer R. G. Simms, who made a good showing in Nelson-Creston in last year's election, again won nomination, and Randolph Harding, popular MLA for Kaslo-Slocan, was re-nominated there.

A total of 75 voting delegates from Creston, Nelson, Riondel, Sanca, Boswell, Gray Creek, Erickson, Crawford Bay, Kitchener, Canyon and Lister attended the enthusiastic Nelson-Creston CCF Association nominating convention at Creston Legion hall, with Douglas Clark of Creston, president, as chairman.

Donald MacDonald, the party's national organizer and treasurer, spoke on the growth of the CCF across Canada and outlined the provincial platform.

INVITE LEADER

The president reported on the recent provincial convention held in Vancouver April 10 to 12, and of the fine impression made by the newly-elected leader, Arnold Webster.

RANDOLPH HARDING

A resolution welcoming Mr. Webster as leader and inviting him to speak in Nelson-Creston at an early date, was unanimously passed.

The candidate's nomination was proposed by Dr. J. Ness of Sanca, and seconded by Mrs. Frank Drew of Nelson. In accepting the nomination, Mr. Simms spoke briefly on the main planks in the party's policy platform, and of plans for the coming election.

In a discussion by delegates of organization matters, T. Anderson, well-known CCF worker in Cranbrook riding, and the national organizer, offered suggestions.

Mr. Clark was appointed campaign manager and a co-ordinator for the Nelson district and the candidate's official agent, will be named shortly. Weekly radio broadcasts over CKLN were reported to be highly effective, and will be continued.

Tea was served by the Creston CCF Club women's group, and auctioning of a hamper of fruit and produce donated by a member of the Creston Club and a cake decorated by Mrs. H. Wightman, brought in $44.

About three carloads of members of the Nelson Club arrived for the meeting.

HALL PACKED

The parish hall at Nakusp was packed to the doors Saturday night by the largest and most enthusiastic group of CCF delegates ever to attend a Kaslo-Slocan CCF nominating convention.

The delegates came from every part of the riding to again choose

R. G. SIMMS

Randolph Harding as their standard bearer.

William Moseley, president, called the meeting to order. Delegates Walter Isaacs and James Moir gave a report on the provincial convention.

Mr. Harding reported on the recent session of the Legislature, paying particular attention to the Rolston formula. He laid stress on the fact that if this piece of Social Credit legislation had passed, it would have added to the tax burden of every property owner in B.C., and would have hurt financially practically every municipality in the province.

PROMISES BROKEN

Mr. Harding also noted that the Social Credit government had been completely exposed in its short term of office as being totally inadequate to deal with the major issues facing it, and had been unwilling to carry out its many election promises, such as non-compulsory hospital insurance, arbitration rights for civil servants, review of the I.C.&A. act, and revision of the Workmen's Compensation Act. Its claim to economy was at the expense of the popular Pro-Rec courses, provincial libraries, and forest protection, etc., he said.

Mr. Harding won nomination by acclamation.

In his acceptance speech, he felt confident that the CCF party would form the next government of B.C., and firmly believed that the Social Credit was on the decline, due to its failures at the recent session and the resentment aroused among the many influential organizations in the province.

Organized labor was bitterly disappointed by the complete lack of labor legislation; education groups were aroused by attacks made by the Social Credit Member for Salmon Arm upon the public school system, and by the proposed Rolston formula; the UBCM was worried over the financial aspects of the Rolston formula; civil servants were dissatisfied with the government's broken promise of arbitration rights.

Committees were drawn up to ensure a successful campaign. Financing the campaign was discussed, and a start to raise the necessary funds was met by a collection of more than $200 at the meeting.

MUSICAL RIDE

OTTAWA (CP)— Canada's most dazzling equestrian spectacle, the famed RCMP "musical ride" caught the approval of the Mounties' top man, Commissioner L. H. Nicholson Saturday in a preview of the unique trot-and-gallop dance routine prepared for the Queen's eye during Coronation week.

Pair Escape Injury In Airstrip Crash

Two young Nelson men miraculously escaped injury Sunday afternoon when a light aircraft owned by Kootenay Air Service of Columbia Gardens near Trail, cracked up at Nelson airstrip.

Shaken up but uninjured by the take-off accident were the pilot, Don Ruelle of Rossland, attending Notre Dame College here, and Leo Moreau. Both live at 418 Mill Street.

The pair had rented the U-Fly plane for a ride over the town. To avoid any danger of hitting boathouses and pilings at the east end of the airstrip the pilot chose to take off down-wind in a Westerly direction.

Near the end of the strip the plane hit the rough, bounced onto a rock, spun around to an easterly position and crash landed right side up.

"We were about five feet from the ground and travelling about 60 miles an hour when we crashed," Ruelle said.

FIRE HAZARDS

Extensive damage was caused to the undercarriage, propellor and left wing, and gasoline started to pour out.

"It's a wonder it didn't catch fire," Ruelle said, telling how he and his passenger scrambled to unstrap themselves and get out of the plane.

Nelson fire department rushed to the scene to prevent not only danger of ignition of gasoline at the plane itself but also from sparks from a nearby dump fire.

The crash attracted a stream of cars and Sunday afternoon strollers. City police also were at the scene.

Ruelle, a former student at University of B. C., has had 83 hours flying experience, most of it at Vancouver.

The aircraft cost $3000 new, and damage was estimated at between $1000 and $1500. It was insured.

A spokesman of Kootenay Air Service said Sunday night that in the five years the plane has been operated in this district, it had given faithful service. It was bought in Kamloops.

Thought He Was Dead

QUEBEC (CP)—Mrs. Yvonne Dugal wept Sunday night when informed her only son Paul was the first Canadian soldier to reach "freedom village" at Munsan, Korea, after the Panmunjom exchange of war prisoners.

"Oh my god . . . I thought he was dead," she cried. Her 19-year-old son L. Cpl. Paul Dugal, is a member of the Royal 22nd Regiment.

The grey-haired widow, advised by the department of national defence last June that her son was believed killed, said being told he was still alive was "the best news I ever got in my whole life."

"I hope when Paul comes home he'll stay home for good this time. I've hated being alone ever since he went to war."

Pro-Rec Office Due for Move

VICTORIA (CP)—The provincial office of the Pro-Rec will be moved to Victoria from Vancouver May 1, it has been announced from the legislative buildings.

The move is being made to consolidate it with other government departments in the Social Credit's "economy with efficiency" program.

Education Minister Mrs. Tilly Rolston said that her cutbacks in government help for Pro-Rec were "thoroughly successful."

Mrs. Rolston said her plan of letting the clubs help themselves is already showing that recreation this fall will be bigger than ever before.

LEVANT SUSPENDED

NEW YORK (CP) — Concert pianist Oscar Levant has been suspended by the American Federation of Musicians for failing to fulfill a recent contract to perform in Western Canada.

FIRE RAZES DANISH LINER

Ravaged Ship Rolls Over After 10-Hour Blaze

HARWICH, England (CP) — The Danish luxury liner Kronprins Frederick, ravaged by fire for 10 hours while in her berth here, rolled over early today.

A fire which started in a first-class passenger drawing room burned into the early morning hours. Before the ship rolled completely over, firemen fled to safety when she listed sharply at her pier.

Two crew members were burned in an attempt to beat out the flames. The second mate, Kristein Nissen, was severly burned and taken to hospital.

More than 150 firemen poured water into the vessel's blazing interior. Ropes holding the liner to the quay snapped at high tide, and the ship rolled into a 50-degree list.

Coast Singer Tops On 'Singing Stars'

TORONTO (CP) — Donald Garrard, 23-year-old bass-baritone from Vancouver, Sunday night was awarded the top prize — a $2,000 tries Limited's "Singing Stars of scholarship — in Canadian Indus-Tomorrow" contest.

The award was made in Massey Hall here by Dr. Edward Johnson, Canadian-born former head of New York's Metropolitan Opera Company.

First prize for female singers went to Joan Hall, 24-year-old mezzo-soprano from Winnipeg, who received $1,000.

James Milligan, 24, of Huntersville, Ont., formerly of Regina and Winnipeg; and Irene Salenka, 24, born in Weyburn, Sask., and now of Montreal, were awarded second-place scholarships valued at $500.

Twenty-two men and 22 women from all parts of Canada competed in the 10th annual contest. Last year's winners, Margarite Gignac of Windsor and Robert Savoie of Montreal, are both studying in Italy.

Campbell Succeeds Fairey as Deputy Minister of Education

VICTORIA (CP) — Retirement of Dr. F. T. Fairey as deputy minister of education and appointment of Harold L. Campbell as his successor was announced by Education Minister Tilly Rolston today.

The change is effective June 30.

Dr. Fairey joined the government service in 1938 as director of technical education. He became deputy minister in 1945. Mr. Campbell is a native Victorian. He joined the education department in 1928 as a provincial inspector of schools. In 1945 he was appointed assistant superintendent of education and chief inspector of schools.

Mr. Campbell was called upon to direct the program of alcohol education in the schools and was also put in charge of the curriculum division of the department.

Jacobs Candidate Of Slocan Socreds

NEW DENVER — Alex B. Jacobs of Shutty Bench will represent Kaslo-Slocan Social Credit League in the June 9 provincial election.

Nomination was made at a convention in Nakusp January 25.

Rice—But Not For Prince

OTTAWA (CP)—Chefs of the royal train carrying Prince Akihito across Canada are preparing more rice than they've ever seen before.

But not for the Prince. The 19-year-old son of the Japanese Emperor is making every effort to practice "while in Canada do as the Canadians do."

But the two dozen Japanese correspondents covering the tour have demolished mounds of it since arriving in Canada.

'COPTER RESCUE BID FAILS

Woman Plunges To Death From Rescue Cable

MIAMI (AP) — A young Miami housewife being rescued from a sinking boat in Biscayne Bay lost her grip on a Coast Guard helicopter cable Saturday and dropped 110 feet to her death.

The Coast Guard, identified the woman as Mrs. Loretta Jean Lawter, 19.

Her husband, Oren, 24, who watched in horror as she fell back into the bay, said the rescuers didn't allow him enough time to strap her into the harness at the end of the rescue cable.

Woman Named By Columbia CCF

INVERMERE — A Radium Hot Springs woman will carry the banner in Columbia riding in the coming provincial election that her husband held in last year's election.

Mrs. Eileen Madson, wife of Chris Madson, was chosen as CCF candidate for this riding at a nominating convention Saturday.

A former school teacher and the mother of young children, she assists her husband in operating a resort at Radium.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Donald MacDonald, CCF national organizer and treasurer.

3 CANADIANS WIN CARNEGIE GRANTS

NEW YORK (CP) — Three Canadians have received travel and study grants from the Carnegie Corporation of New York, it was announced Sunday.

The grants were listed in a report on the first quarter of 1953 made by the philanthropic foundation which aims at "advancement and diffusion of knowledge and understanding."

Geoffrey C. Andrew, executive assistant to the president, University of British Columbia, Vancouver, was one of the fortunate.

Getaway Car Found

VICTORIA (CP) — Police from five lower Vancouver Island detachments left no stone unturned Sunday as they pressed the search for three gunmen who robbed a suburban Victoria bank of $3600.

All available officers, aided by trained bloodhounds, scoured a large wooded area in nearby Saanich where the men were believed to be hiding.

Second definite indication that the gunmen were holed up in the thick brush came with the discovery of their getaway car, a late-model green sedan. The car, which had been backed up into a country lane in the area and camouflaged with branches, was uncovered by Gavin Jack, 70-year-old Saanich resident.

East Kootenay Socreds Name Federal Choice

CRANBROOK — In the first nomination in Kootenay East for the dominion election, the Social Credit party has named Lorne McLean of Creston as its candidate.

A graduate of the University of British Columbia, the nominee is in his late twenties, and has been on the staff of the Creston high school for the last couple of years.

Hon. W. D. Black, provincial secretary, Nelson-Creston MLA and a former Creston teacher, was special speaker.

A total of 120 delegates from all parts of the East Kootenay attended the meeting.

TRAIL, B.C. (CP) — The chairman of the B.C. labor relations board today was asked to appoint settlement of a collective bar- a conciliation officer to attempt gaining dispute at Trail and Kimberley.

The request was made by the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada Limited. The dispute involves locals of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) The union has agreed to a conciliation officer.

Negotiations deadlocked when the company refused to withdraw proposals made to the union bargaining committee. The management sought elimination of the 10-cents-an-hous increase granted in June, 1952.

Cigaret Machines Okayed for Pubs

VICTORIA (CP) — Cigaret vending machines will be allowed in B.C. beer parlors, under an order-in-council approved by the cabinet this week.

Licensed premises intending to instal such machines, however, must instal one on each side of their establishments — one in the men's section and one in the section for women with escorts.

ACTORS STRIKE

VICTORIA (CP) — Actors at Victoria's York Theatre struck half an hour before curtain time Saturday night, preventing a performance of "Mister Roberts."

While a sell-out crowd waited on the street outside, members of the cast demanded the resignation of theatre manager B. B. Milnes. When Mr. Milnes refused, they refused to go on stage.

Carcassonne—Kingdom of Romance That Never Existed

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

PERPIGNAN, France — Every literate man in the world, I suppose, has dreamed of going some day to Carcassonne. Even the illiterate can sense the music of that word. In it is heard the horns of elfland faintly blowing, and above its host of spires glows a dream of knightly romance. When Childe Roland to the Dark Tower came, it must have been to Carcassonne.

Well, some time after that noble knight, I came yesterday to Carcassonne and was heartbroken by what I found. Probably I had expected too much, after a lifetime as I am concerned (I say it with anticipation. In any case, so far respect) Carcassonne is the only disappointment in Europe.

This fact is not immediately clear as you approach the place across a flat plain. Against the horizon the ancient walls and pointed towers stand out in brave silhouette, like an illustration in a boy's book of adventure.

You must approach them through a modern city and it begins at once to shatter the boyish illusion. However, by an unparalleled feat of conservation, the people of France have kept original Carcassonne absolutely isolated and distinct from the recent upsurge of brick around it. The huge castle, really a town in itself, stands as it always stood on a hill which long controlled the military defence of southern France and guarded the road to Rome.

Romans Were There

Neolithic man settled on that hill to watch his enemies. The Romans fortified it as a strongpoint on the march from Rome to Spain. No doubt Hannibal passed this way with his elephants before breaching the very Alps. The Vandals (so far as I can translate my French guide book) sacked Carcassonne en route to Spain and Africa and the Visigoths repeated this success in their invasion of the Empire.

On many successive foundations the mediaeval fortress was reared so vast, sprawling and high as to dominate the Mediterranean coast and inscribe its name, forever indelible, on the racial memory of a continent, on the imagination of the world.

Within that gigantic circle of stone lived an entire city of houses, shops and mediaeval industries, overtopped by a great cathedral. And here, through centuries of religious and civil wars, occurred a series of adventures, conspiracies and atrocities to fill many books. The record of Carcassonne, indeed, compiled by many lifetimes of laborious research and minute study of every stone, now fills a respectable library.

Perfect Remnant

The old town within the walls—or rather a series of towns one after the other—have fallen down and new towns have been built to replace them. The present version is like many other French towns—narrow streets, tiny shops, walled gardens and a palatial tourist hotel. The early walls themselves were falling down until, more than a hundred years ago, a great Frenchman, named Viollet-le-Duc, fired with the old dream, rebuilt everything and thus established the most perfect remnant of the Middle Ages in Europe.

It is wonderful, immense, unbelievable. Yet, to my untutored taste, grim, ugly and depressing—a tesselated and intricate maze of stone but a monument utterly dead. You cannot remain an hour behind these walls, imprisoned as it were in a maze, without suffering an acute attack of claustrophobia, without thinking that perhaps the Middle Ages were not all they were cracked up to be in the novels of Walter Scott and Bulwer Lytton.

The only sight of living interest in Carcassonne was an aged woman sitting on the stone sidewalk, her back against the soaring outer wall. None but a great artist could have painted that wrinkled and beautiful face, the face of a madonna, inscribed minutely and deep with all the ancient suffering of her kind. Only our own Canadian Yousuf Karsh could have photographed her.

Had my friend Yousuf been with me today he would have fallen into a swoon of ecstacy, and produced his supreme masterpiece. But there was no one to record this tiny spot of beauty by the dark tower where Childe Roland came and, thrusting my unworthy camera into my pocket, I passed by.

Only Memories

That woman was genuine. She had nothing to sell and no property, I dare say, except her memories. The walls, turrets, battlements and donjons are genuine also, though slightly rebuilt in places. But for the rest this is a tourist attraction, selling postcards, novelties and the denatured air of the Middle Ages to visitors.

Seated in a stone slot, designed for cannons in the first days of gunpowder, I encountered a modern citizen of Carcassone who was finishing a bottle of red wine. On his red face was written the epitaph of many other bottles, a lifetime of devotion to the grapes of the hot south.

He pointed through the cannon slot to indicate a "belle vue" across the green plain rolling down to the Mediterranean. He went on to say, in French which I understood vaguely, that he had heart trouble (he pointed repeatedly to that organ) the result of service in the First World War, and added generously that I had a good heart.

Therefore, he concluded, I would give him "moonay" for the belle vue, so that he could buy the aperitif necessary for the treatment of his cardiac condition. This I did, in a small way, not becaue I was sorry for this professional sponger, but because it seemed simpler than further treatment.

And so we crossed the gigantic moat on the drawbridge (where there is a red and green traffic signal for automobiles, something which the mediaeval architects had not foreseen) and rolled down the hill of Carcassonne.

From the plain, standing in serrated shadow against the harsh southern sky, Carcassonne looked as its builders intended—a fortress, a miracle in stone, a kingdom of knightly romance which never existed, a dream of Roland and his Dark Tower.

And in This Corner . . .

KINGSTON (CP) — Bob Lamb got a perfect cribbage hand of 29 Friday — then was skunked. Lamb was about 50 points behind but his opponent, Pat Hegarty, needed only five points to win. Before Lamb could count his hand Hagerty won — a crowning blow — when Lamb looked at his crib, the extra hand for the dealer, it had another 20 points.

SEATTLE (AP) — More than 2,000 business firms in Seattle didn't get their garbage picked up Friday and they won't, the garbage collector says, until they start putting their cans in the alley or on the sidewalk.

City Sanitary Service suspended its pickup with the explanation the extra work involved in going into buildings for garbage is too costly.

City Engineer William Parker immediately issued an appeal to the business houses to "lug them out" in the interest of city sanitation.

VICTORIA (CP) — Romance was at a low ebb in Mount Douglas park here Friday night.

Couples who parked their cars overlooking moonlit waters were continually interrupted.

The whole thing boiled down to unromantic police looking for three men who robbed the Oak Bay branch of the Bank of Commerce earlier Friday.

HONOLULU (AP) — Marine Sgt. Gerald T. Bailey of Ashland, Ore., was treated for frostbite in sunny Hawaii recently.

It all happened when the top came off a DDT bomb Ashland was using to spray his barracks. He put his hand over the nozzle and the bomb's carbon dioxide turned the liquid DDT into ice.

B.C. Church Rally To Be Held Here

Ministers, workers and delegates from across B.C. will meet at Nelson May 19 for a three-day conference of the B.C. Pentecostal Assemblies.

Conference sessions, which will include a Young People's rally, missionary work in the province, and services, will be directed by Rev. P. S. Jones, provincial superintendent.

Also attending will be Rev. W. E. McAlister of Toronto, general superintendent of Canada.

Paulson-Blueberry . . .

Survey Announcement Endorsed by Chamber

Nelson Chamber of Commerce has expressed its approval of the provincial public works department announcement that a complete survey will be made of the Paulson to Blueberry route for a permanent location of the Southern trans-provincial highway between the Columbia River and the Boundary country.

The chamber, at its Friday luncheon meeting, approved a recommendation from its roads and bridges committee that the chamber "endorses and congratulates" the department on the announcement.

The motion will go to Hon. P. A. Gaglardi, minister of public works, and copies will be sent to Hon. W. D. Black, Hon. R. E. Sommers, the deputy minister of public works and the Castlegar Chamber of Commerce.

Also endorsed was recent action by the Chamber's executive council, its freight, transportation and industrial committee, and its tourist and publicity committee.

E. J. Leveque has been named chairman of a committee which will arrange for Nelson Chamber's participation in the Kaslo jubilee August 14, 15 and 16. Members of the committee are Robert Foxall, Jack McDonald, V. C. Owen, J. G. Watson and A. C. Morton, and more may be added.

In response to a request from the Slocan and District Board of Trade for representation to assist in its drive for electrification for the Slocan Valley, Gordon Burns was appointed as the Chamber's delegate.

In tourist and publicity work, 5000 copies of a new map being issued by the Associated Boards of Southeastern B.C., will be bought, and advertisements are being placed in outside publications. A committee has been named to recommend a design for a souvenir of Nelson, and the chamber is also going to advertise for a listing of all rooms in private homes which would be available for rent to visitors during the Summer.

MISSIONARY TO SPEAK HERE

REV. ARCHIE GORDON

Rev. Archie Gordon, an outstanding missionary of the Canadian Baptists to India, just returned after 40 years continuous service there, will address a public meeting tonight in First Baptist Church.

Known throughout Western Canada as a speaker, Mr. Gordon's up-to-date story of the new India is expected to take on added significance in view of recent news reports that the Indian government is again making it more difficult for missionaries of any Christian group to enter that country.

His visit to Nelson is part of a tour of Baptist Churches in Western Canada, in which about 50 churches will be addressed in connection with the Mid-Century advance in Missions.

Coming here from Cranbrook where he addressed an enthusiastic congregation Sunday, he will go on to Robson, where, in the Community Memorial Church, he will speak under the auspices of the WA Tuesday afternoon before going to the Okanagan. Meanwhile, Mrs. Gordon will address a gathering in Trail Tuesday.

Invitations have been extended to other congregations to attend the session here. Rev. Theo. T. Gibson will be chairman, and those attending will remain for a social half-hour afterward, with the Ladies' Mission Circle, under chairmanship of Mrs. J. A. Bracken, in charge.

Nelson Man Stars in Reserve Army Course

TRAIL — A passing out parade of men of the 24th heavy anti-aircraft regiment, RCA, and 44th field squadron, RCE, (reserve force) was held here Sunday afternoon, completing a junior NCOs course.

The smartness and precision of the march-past led by Bombardier Stevens of 111th Battery, Nelson, was a tribute to both instructors and men.

After taking the salute, Lieut.-Col. F. Coates, said that he regretted the curtailment of original plans for the occasion owing to the army's observation of mourning for Queen Mary. He said that the recent policy of the army in regard to the training of reserve force personnel had been to send the instructors to the men, and as a result of this policy, a team of instructors led by Lieut. H. Wray, PPCLI, had arrived in January to conduct a junior NCOs for men of the local reserve units and promotional courses for officers.

Col. Coates congratulated the men completing the course on their efforts during the weeks of hard training, in spite of adverse weather conditions, shift work and school studies. He said the successful students had placed a foot upon the first rung of the ladder of promotion, and reminded them that there was no bar to reaching any rank in the army.

Quoting Kipling, he told the men that "the backbone of the army is the non-commissioned man", and continued: "The future efficiency of your battery, squadron or regiment is in your hands. You have been trained and judged capable of instructing others. Knowledge alone is not enough. It is important that you handle others with justice, firmness and efficiency.

Col. Coates then congratulated Lieut. Wray and members of his instruction team on the high average performance of their students and thanked them for their hard work, interest and understanding.

Mayor E. G. Fletcher of Trail complimented the men on their smart appearance and drill, and congratulated them on having completed the course.

Lieut.-Col. Coates presented a watch to Lance Bombardier R. E. Mason of 111th battery, Nelson, for the best performance throughout the course, and a pen and pencil set to the runnerup, Gunner K. Hogan of 109 battery, Trail.

He said that the winners had been selected on the basis of all-round hard work, attendance, diligence, and understanding of the problem.

Before dismissing the parade, Col. Coates congratulated Bombardier Stevens of Nelson on his handling of the drills. After the exercises army personnel spent a pleasant hour entertaining friends to tea in the canteen.

Singers Interrupt Costa Rica Report

Anton Kalesnikoff got no chance to make his report on a visit to Costa Rica to a Reformed Sons of Freedom meeting at Krestova Sunday. Singing groups and ball games were too much as interruptions and diversions.

Each time the big man, lieutenant of Spiritual Leader S. S. Sorokin tried to speak he was interrupted by singers, led, onlookers said, by two women.

He returned only this weekend from a trip to Central America where with Emmett Gulley, chief field representative of the Consultative Committee on Doukhobors, he went to seek land for the Sons of Freedom relocation.

A ball game of teen-agers was under way outside the meeting area near the community hall when the meeting started. Later other members of the gathering broke away to start a second game on a more distant field or to become onlookers.

But it was chiefly the singers that kept Kalensnikoff from speaking. Chairman of the Brotherly Council John J. Perepelkin tried to halt the interruptions, but without avail. About 300 sect members from Shoreacres and Slocan Valley Points gathered, and began the meeting with prayers and song led by Joe Nazaroff. At the start only about five stood clothesless, but by the close of the meeting about 20 others had joined in the display.

"If we migrate to Costa Rica it will not be through Anton Kalesnikoff nor Emmett Gulley," a Freedomite spokesman finally said. "We have sent our own delegation, Spiritual Leader Sorokin and William Moojelski.

"In Costa Rica," William Babakaeff said, "we will be met with large forests and jungles . . . it is against God's will. The people are against the trip. But the prophesy is to leave Canada."

Sorokin has been in South America since November apparently on a search for land. The Sons, it was said Sunday, would attempt to have him return to Canada.

Gov't May Soon Build Seaplane Dock Here

It may not be long before Nelson has a sea plane base which would be the first in the Kootenays.

Hopes are high that the Dominion Government will soon construct docking facilities at the present seaplane base site between the boat houses and the government wharf.

Certainly the city has gone through all the preliminaries which would lead to a government grant. Its temporary air harbor licence has been obtained, and only last month was renewed until March 1954, and by then it is hoped a dock will have been built, and a permanent licence gained.

The city also recently took over administration and accepted responsibility for maintenance of an air harbor, a step which the government would require before installing a base.

Such a base could bring an increasing number of air visitors to Nelson. It would give seaplane owners and operators a place to land and tie up, and at which to unload and load passengers and freight.

It could also be a source of direct revenue to the city, through charging landing fees.

It is likely that when a dock is installed, a fueling station would operate alongside, to increase the traffic of sea planes in and out of Nelson.

Many private plane operators, including Americans now flying to district fishing and hunting spots, would be among the callers.

Violinist Plays For Business Men

Nelson Chamber of Commerce members gave a rousing reception at their Friday luncheon meeting to violinist David Rubinoff.

Sandwiching the meeting between lectures at five Nelson schools and a matinee appearance, Rubinoff enchanted the members with recollections of his career and work-outs with his accompanist, Clifford Souze.

He played "Ah,' Sweet Mystery of Life" and the "Warsaw Concerto," and snatches from selections he was to play at the evening performance.

R. W. W. Salter, president of the Lions Club which sponsored his local visit, announced proceeds from the concert were to go to the B.C. Society for Crippled Children. Two other Lions Club members attending the luncheon were Dyne Macrae and W. C. Wicken.

B.E.G. Executive To Meet Bennett

VANCOUVER (CP)—A delegation will meet Premier W. A. C. Bennett and several of his cabinet members later this month in a final effort to obtain provincial government assistance in making Burnaby Lake suitable for rowing and sculling events of the British Empire Games.

The events are scheduled for the lake in July and August of next year. But the BEG executive has indicated that they may be transferred to a lake in interior B.C. if the request for a "substantial contribution" towards cost of preparing Burnaby Lake is rejected.

Kelowna, Penticton and Nelson will make bids for the sculling and rowing events if the Burnaby Lake plan falls through.

Art Club Exhibition Set for May 21-23

Nelson Art Club's annual exhibition May 21, 22 and 23, is expected to arouse more-than-usual interest.

Recent works of the district's craftsmen as well as its painters will be on display, and will, it is anticipated, draw record attendance for the three-day exhibition.

The Club, which is preparing for the event well in advance, has announced rules and regulations for the exhibition.

Any resident of the Nelson district may enter. There will be no fee for Art Club members. Non-members will pay a fee of $1, regardless of the number of entries.

Work in any medium may be submitted: painting, drawing, carving, weaving or pottery. Any number of entries will be allowed, providing they have not been shown in former Nelson Art Club exhibitions, are original work, and have been done within the past two years.

The entries will be viewed by a jury before acceptance for showing. This is necessary, the executive points out, as a large number of entries is expected and space is limited. The aim is to let as large a number as possible of qualified artists and craftsmen be represented.

Entry deadline is May 12.

The exhibition will be open to the public the afternoon and evening of May 22 and the afternoon of May 23. The preview tea for members and their guests will be on the evening of May 21.

In Cranbrook the additional centre is in the upper floor of the Armories building, at Kimberley in the union hall, at Chapman Camp at the curling rink, and at Marysville at Rose's Coffee Bar.

For rural registration centres will be open until April 25 at the Society Girl at Moyie, Hamrin's store at Wardner and the E. E. Bussian home at Yahk.

The girl was riding a bicycle when struck. Her girl friend, also on a bicycle, was not hit. Name of the driver of the car was not available Sunday night.

ATTENDANCE HITS 1000 AT FILMS

Attendance at Nelson Film Council's three-night film festival totalled 1000, officials estimated Sunday.

They figured that 300 persons attended the first night, 275 the second night, and 425 on Saturday night. Attendance compares favorably with that of last year's festival.

The Council rounded off its presentation of documentary informational and factual films Saturday night with "Royal Journey", the National Film Board's screen coverage of the visit to Canada last year of Queen Elizabeth, then Princess Elizabeth, and the Duke of Edinburgh; "Realm of the Wild", U. S. Forest Service production of wildlife in the U. S. national parks, and "All the King's Men", a British Information Service production.

"GRAY MARIA" JOINS FORCE

"Gray Maria" is the latest addition to Nelson's police force.

The sedan delivery, acquired by the department in an exchange for one of its patrol cars, was dubbed "Gray Maria" by residents almost as soon as it appeared on the streets, owing to its color and its resemblance in style to the "Black Marias of former days.

Police Chief Robert Harshaw says the new vehicle is considered handier for the department's work.

Prison Camps Show Cadet-Trained Most Self-Sufficient, Kin Told

"You have to be air-minded to become a pilot," said Al Mathews before about 25 members of the Kinsmen's club Friday evening. Mathews was giving a short talk on the work to the air cadets of Nelson. The old saying that pilots were born, not made was not true. If a boy had the proper training, could prove capable of learning, had good health, then he could become a pilot, Mr. Mathews maintained.

Mr. Mathews had joined the Air Force in 1937, after being a cadet. During the war he was held prisoner for five years. In the camps, he said, he noticed more than anything else that it was possible to pick out the men that had served as a cadet. They were better able to take care of themselves because of the previous training and the fact that they had learned to be on their own early in life, learning how to think for themselves.

Cadets Corps of Nelson was running smoothly, and although they did lack funds they were advancing favorably with accommodations.

He told of the work of the cadets and the organization. In 10 years 65,000 boys have taken training, and that 1400 have learned to fly. Of these 61 have earned the right to take higher education in aeronautics. In all 45,000 boys have attended camps in the Summer time.

TO HEIGHTEN INTEREST

President Allan McAdam urged members to recognize the future of the Kinsmen Club rested with them. He suggested a wider field of social activity to increase member interest. The club's roll had dwindled from 50 to between 22 and 25 now. The club was sound financially and should be able to attract a larger membership. Next Friday's ladies night, he said, would provide a test as to member interest.

The club decided to donate $100 to Little League Baseball. The club will offer its bleacher for sale, and in that way the Little League will be able to enter a bid for them. Little League wanted the stands for the Fairview playground.

Nakusp Seeks Street Oiling

NAKUSP — Nakusp Chamber of Commerce is requesting oiling of city streets and blacktopping of the Power House road.

At a meeting Thursday the Chamber moved to write the Department of Public Works regarding last year's promise to oil streets and to request the department to lay blacktop on the mile-long power house highway.

A. E. Fowler, reporting for the Hot Springs Board told members it was understood the Forest Service would build a road to the Springs this year.

Guests included J. Ritchie, provincial assessor of Revelstoke, Axel Brandstrom, Ivan V. Barklay and C. D. Dunham, all of Celgar Company Ltd., and J. D. Duncan of Nelson.

Mr. Barclay introduced Mr. Dunham who recently joined Celgar as director of Forest Operations. Mr. Dunham, with other officials was in Nakusp on an inspection tour of the proposed working area of the company.

$12,000 Power Grant a Gift

TRAIL—Trail City Council fears a $12,000 grant from West Kootenay Power and Light Company may be cut off as it is purely a gift to the city.

Mayor Fletcher says the city has budgeted for the grant and is keeping its fingers crossed it will be received.

It was introduced originally to offset high power rates which existed here, he explained. Later the rates were cut but the grant has come in annually despite this factor.

Although the city taxes, the corporation two per cent on all its equipment, if the grant is taken off, it stands to lose a straight $12,000, he said.

Leaders Agree on Sino-Russ Tactics

OTTAWA (CP)—The leaders of Canada and West Germany joined Saturday in agreement that Communist leaders should prove their desire for peace by easing tensions in Europe and the Far East.

A communique issued after Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of the Republic of Germany conferred with Canadian cabinet ministers said he and Prime Minister St. Laurent "shared the view that the sincerity of the recent Sino-Soviet overtures would be tested by the willingness of those Communist regimes to take practical steps to reduce international tensions both in Europe and the Far East."

The communique, summing up the results of the 22-hour visit indicated that no firm decisions on specific matters were reached but that views were exchanged on trade, immigration and the international situation.

Butler Inquires Into Leakage

LONDON (AP) — Chancellor R. A. Butler has promised to investigate the possibility that budget secrets leaked from the treasury before he made his budget speech in the House of Commons Tuesday.

The question was raised by Hugh Gaitskell, former Labor chancellor of the exchequer. Gaitskell pointed out that the Yorkshire Evening News carried an advertisement about television sets that referred to changes in the purchase tax before Butler actually announced the change.

Butler said the advertisement was so worded that it did not seem to imply prior knowledge that the tax would be cut, but added that he was "looking into this matter at once."

There was no implication that Butler himself was involved in any way.

Bylaw Needed to Complete Violin Lake Waterworks

TRAIL — A new debenture bylaw to complete the Violin Lake waterworks project is planned by Trail City Council.

The $335,000 voted the project has been spent with additional work still to be done city council has learned.

"Neither the city nor the engineering department are to be criticized for this," Mayor E. G. Fletcher told a meeting of local porperty owners.

"We took the report prepared by the engineer consulted as being accurate," said Mayor Fletcher.

It was learned late last week that $335,000 voted for the project had been spent and that a large portion remained to be completed.

Mayor Fletcher said a further $16,000 would be needed.

NEW BYLAW

The city plans to introduce a new debenture bylaw to complete the program.

City Engineer J. D. Reid said earlier that at Violin lake it is a question of obtaining the maximum gravity flow and the line was laid to strike a level that would assure the greatest possible flow of water even when the levelof the lake was low during peak periods of demand and low intake from the watershed.

The profile of the original pipe, designed when the old line was laid in 1925 had not been followed, he said, and when the new line was started late last summer it was found two sections of solid rock and a deep deposit of quicksand lay on the path of the line. It was the need to lay the pipe through this terrain that had made the original estimates inadequate.

It was found the grade of the original line had been changed to overcome these natural obstacles but efficiency had been sacrificed and the line had never been able to carry as much water as originally intended.

Mayor Fletcher told the meeting that starting this summer the city will have as much water as it can use although the project is not yet completed.

Pacific Northwest Aeries and Auxiliaries plan an interstate meeting, including this province, May 2 and 3 at Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, to which Kimberley intends to send a delegation.

Street Cleaner Cuts Costs $3000

TRAIL—The city's $13,000 street cleaner already has begun to pay its way, according to city assessor F. W. Banton.

Although it did not arrive until the major part of the sand clean-up season had been completed last year, it proved its worth even in such a short space of time by cutting costs on the work to $9000 from $12,000 in 1951, he told property owners last night.

CHARLES McNAIR of Creston is earning himself a reputation for bagging cougar. Here the 17-year-old lad proudly displays his six foot, five inch "catch". Assisted by a blood hound he tracked the cat down and showed his marksmanship with a shot in the eye — in the eye because he "didn't want to ruin the hide." Perched on top of the truck is "Penny", owned by Forest Ranger Tom Waller who brought the cougar in. Looking a bit bewildered and scared Penny is obviously glad she "wasn't there."—H. M. Increased School Costs Increase Trail Taxes

TRAIL — Increased school expenditures are blamed by Mayor E. G. Fletcher for the boost in Trail's tax rate.

The city's 1953 budget raised the tax rate to 86 mills.

"We are not apologizing for the budget," the Mayor told a meeting of the property owners' association. "The city is run efficiently and every expense is carefully watched. Every cost increase must be proven first before the rise is approved."

His comments on the annual financial statement which this year pushed up the tax rate by eight mills, came during a meeting attended by city council officials and held to iron out questions and grievances arising out of the new budget's findings.

"At the beginning of this year, council was faced with the possibility of bringing down a 90-mill budget," Mayor Fletcher stated.

EXPENSES CUT

"We had to cut expenses extensively and try to find sources of revenue from which we could derive more money than was usual."

Main responsibility for the increased mill rate has been placed on a 5.64 mills boost in ordinary school expenditure.

Added expenditure resulting from a $5000 increase in fire department personnel wages also had to be taken into consideration, he said.

As one step to cut down the climbing mill rate, public works expenditure had been slashed, and the budget for this department merely provide for maintenance.

No major construction could be undertaken, he stated.

Give Work to Elder Professors, Says Dr. B. A. Mackenzie

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dr. Norman A. Mackenzie of the University of British Columbia says that the elder professors should not just be turned out to pasture on retirement.

The professors' specialized knowledge should be used, he told delegates at the opening of the B.C. Academy of Science conference.

Dr. MacKenzie said facilities should be provided for the retired professors to carry on research and give lectures. Universities from time to time could invite them to do special work.

He noted that a foundation had recently been established in the United States for such a purpose.

Early Approval School Program

CASTLEGAR — Approval of the Castlegar school boards proposed building expansion program, might be expected at an early date according to circulars from the Department of Education read at a meeting of the school trustees.

The program proposed would double the present classroom space at the high school and provide additional room at Robson, Kinnaird and Castlegar elementary schools to meet the steadily increasing school population.

The trustees authorized the use of the Robson school grounds for Robson girls softball games and made plans for the meeting of the West Kootenay Trustees Association to be held in Castlegar May 10.

H. Bate told the board that the Kinnaird elementary school has entered a play in the Grand Forks drama festival.

It was announced that pre-school registrations and medical examinations for those about to begin school, will be held in Castlegar June 8, Kinnaird June 9 and Robson June 11.

He is survived by his wife at Golden, two sons, Hector in Golden and Aime in Spillimachene; and one daughter, Mrs. J. Leahy in Vancouver. Rev. Father Theodore celebrated requiem high mass Wednesday at Sacred Heart Church, and interment was in Golden cemetery.

Two U. K. Scientists Plan Exciting Voyage

LONDON (AP) — Two young British scientists, inspired by the voyage of the raft Kon-Tiki across the Pacific, are readying the 80-ton sailing vessel Petula for a drift of 2200 miles from Dakar, West Africa, to the West Indies.

Marine biologists Frank Evans and H. Vivian Wyatt expect to drift with the north equatorial currents for three months.

"We shall try to study a cross section of the marine life found at 10 feet below the surface," said Evans.

"Fish, sharks and whales will be photographed where possible and an analysis of the chemistry of the sea made."

"The other half of our work," Evans added, "will be weath observation. We are looking for a meteorologist."

The scientists plan to sail from England to Dakar next June. The Petula will carry food sufficient for 120 days.

International Dancing, Song Highlight PTA Pageant

CASTLEGAR—A capacity crowd of over 650 were thrilled by a sparkling collection of well performed musical numbers of many lands at an international concert in the Stanley Humphries junior-senior high school auditorium Thursday evening.

Sponsored by the Stanley Humphries Parent-Teacher Association, the 3-hour show was highlighted by a 20-minute tumbling display by Stanley Humphries high school tumbling club under instructor J. Buhr. Wearing their brilliant new gold and blue uniforms, the 14 youngsters put on a thrilling display of gymnastic feats including aerial somersaults and daring leaps from a spring board over a platform.

The program began with samples of the music of the Canadian west as played by Misses Tannis and Babs Killough, Ron Gemmill, John Markin and Joe Killough.

Miss Fenny Jonkman sang songs of Holland to her own guitar accompaniment and a group of high school students, directed by Miss B. Ball, performed a Danish folk dance.

There were French songs by Mr. J. Munday's French class and Scotch ballads sung by Jock Hawkins, accompanied by Mrs. F. A. Hostetter.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Killough, Miss Joyce Killough and Mel Gustafson and Miss Linnea Palsson and Harry Killough Jr., were partners for some lively folk dancing, performing the gay Gordon and the Boston two-step.

The Castlegar Legion band under Gus Leitner rendered instrumental arrangements and Miss B. Ball's dancing group did a Mexican folk dance.

Master entertainer Wally Walper of Kinnaird lent his popular vocal talents to the singing of a group of Irish airs, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Walper.

Russian melodies in harmonic vocal, were sung by a Russian choir and three Italian melodies rendered by Miss Lorraine Martini, accompanied by Miss B. Kavic at the piano.

The program closed with Ukrainian music played by Johnny Bunn and Jake Hamm of Trail.

All performers wore the colorful costumes of the nation or culture they represented.

W. Banigan was master of ceremonies.

Trail Busy With Coronation Plans

TRAIL—At least five bands will take part in a big parade which will be part of Trail's coronation celebration June 2. In addition, there will be many military and civilian marching units and an impressive array of floats.

Assurance of a successful parade was given Wednesday when the coronation committee held a meeting in city hall. The meeting furthered plans for a drum head service at Butler Park, a pageant by Trail school children in the Cominco arena and a grand coronation ball in the evening.

The committee acknowledged a grant of $500 from the municipality of Tadanac and was assured a similar amount from Trail.

Mrs. J. Calder, head of the pageant committee, said the script was being written and costuming for the 70 school children participating started.

Reporting for the grand ball committee Howard Ganes said a 12-piece orchestra had been hired and entertainment, special prizes and lighting and decorations were planned.

The Trail Ministerial Association was reported completing plans for an impressive drum head service with massed choirs and band music.

H. W. Heridge, MP, and Hon. R. E. Sommers, MLA, will speak briefly at the Butler Park program. Local civic leaders will also be present.

Notification was received that the Canadian Legion, IODE and Elk's Lodge will enter floats, and more are expected to be entered within the next few days. A total of $175 was voted for prizes in this division.

Streets and store fronts will be decorated for the big event, and householders will be asked to decorate their homes.

Coronation Year Community Celebrations

Canadian Travel Bureau in its tourist publicity in the United States is making the most of the Coronation year theme. Its appeals for tourist consideration follow somewhat this theme:

"Can't make it to the Coronation? Queen Elizabeth is Canada's queen, too. Come to Canada, and join us in our celebrations here."

This theme is certain to appeal to many American holidayers, but it calls for every Canadian tourist community doing its part in support of the campaign.

We do not see community Coronation celebrations strictly as part of a tourist publicity campaign. We see them first as an expression of our loyalty and of our unity in the Commonwealth sphere. We see them as an educational opportunity to impress certain values on our youth and new Canadians. In them, too, are religious and historic significances

Any Canadian community would be amiss if it provided less than a memorable event to mark Coronation year. The Tourist Bureau's efforts merely add one more reason for doing so to a host of good ones.

A Community Event

Nelson's community job of preparing for the annual Midsummer Bonspiel is getting under way, and we are pleased to see that it is to be made a more spectacular event than ever. "More fanfare" is the way the general committee has expressed its aim, and that is an objective with wisdom behind it. For besides being an outstanding sports affair, Canada's only Midsummer Bonspiel has an equal purpose as a community promotion and publicity event. Showmanship and hospitality are an essential part of it so that its memory will cling long with all those it attracts here.

The week-long bonspiel of roses, now in its ninth Summer, has done well by Nelson. It has carried this community's and the Kootenays name across the Dominion from Mile Zero on the Alcan highway to deep into states of our Southern neighbor. It has impressed holidayers from Victoria to Ottawa and beyond. It has attracted some of the top figures of sports fields and many of this nation's ace publicists to spread the fame and features of the community. It has won us new citizens, new friends and an enhanced reputation for hospitality.

The Summer Bonspiel has grown to a point where its good effect should be appreciated by all. The Bonspiel does a wonderful job for us. Everyone of the community should consider how they can help to do a good job for it.

Give Them Faith Hope and Love

To the Editor:

Sir—Whoever said that childhood is the happiest time of one's life was probably right; that is, of course, if by childhood we mean the years up to the age of 12. In those years the child has no great emotional upsets, and life with elementary children can be most pleasant, which is the reason why so many teachers prefer to teach the first six grades. But childhood blends into adolescence, and, while not agreeing with the Englishman who declared that teen-agers should be buried up to their necks for three years, most parents would give a sigh of relief if their teen-age could take a trip elsewhere for that time. It's not that they don't love them, but just that they are so exhausting. You can forgive a 6-year-old who, on a rainy day, pouts and says, "Mother, I've nothing to do. What can I do now?" But with the teen-ager, it is not only that there is nothing to do, but there is nothing that they really want to do. Nobody loves them. There isn't a soul they know. Everybody is old and stupid. The town is dull, and they are most unhappy.

The reaction of father and mother and all adults to this is to get righteously indignant, to upbraid the unfortunate teen-agers for being ungrateful for all that has been done for them, to accuse them of bad manners, lack of affection and general cussedness. All of which may be true, but it in no way helps the teen-agers. Adults have left their adolescence so far behind that they have forgotten much that happened in their days; and, if the truth were told, that is a time that they much prefer to forget. They too were once bad-mannered, disagreeable, lonely, misunderstood and unhappy; for all humans go through the same experience, and most live through it to become reasonably likeable adults.

Adolescents may sigh for the moon, marble halls, and golden swimming pools, but it is not really things that want, but some anodyne for a sickness of the soul from which we adults have long since recovered. The best that we can do is to treat them with tolerance and forbearance, and to give them "these three, faith, hope and love, and the greatest of these is love."

Sees Own Hand in Fate Of Libby Proposal

To the Editor:

Sir—I wish to thank the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission, and the Province of British Columbia, for taking my stand in regards to the mercenary storage of water up the Kootenay River in British Columbia for 42 miles, and the flooding of 17,700 acres of land, and the relocation of many of their citizens, and the disruption of their economy.

At the meeting of the International Joint Commission at the Davenport Hotel, March 12, 1951, I quote in part talk to the Commission:

"Let's keep our elbows out of Canada's ribs. Let's build a dam that will have no international complications."

I furthermore said: "If we store water in Canada, I hope Canada will be well paid for her trouble." By the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission taking my advice, the chief of the United States Corps of Engineers, U.S. Army, withdrew through the Secretary of State, Mr. Dulles, from the International Commission the application for storage of water in Canada.

If this storage of water deal had gone through, it would have turned out to be a bad neighbor deal, and now it will be another chapter added to our good neighbor history between the two countries.

THIS IS CANADA

A great tourist season is being predicted in Canada this year, and it is expected that there will be a great influx of people into the Dominion, and we must remember to let them know that they are in another country. Don't let us give them the idea that we are slavishly following U.S. ideas in every respect, even to the flying of the Stars and Stripes when it should be the Canadian flag flying everywhere.—Niagara Falls Review.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO

From the Nelson Daily News, April 19, 1928

Citizens of Nelson heralded the arrival of Spring several weeks ago by reporting the arrival of a robin, but from the North Shore comes a report that a nest of robin eggs has hatched out. These baby robins probably have the honor of being the first to be hatched in this locality this year.

Book Notes

"The Incredible Canadian" — By Bruce Hutchison (Longmans, Green):

—Objective as only a good reporter could make it, and extremely candid is this surprising autobiography of one of this country's most historic figures. It should appeal powerfully to anyone interested in public affairs.

Bruce Hutchison, veteran author, knew King well though not intimately over many years, and has brought to life in these pages the shadowy and often mysterious figure who dominated Canada's political scene for so long, and who for so long was regarded by his contemporaries as a cold, complex and colorless individual.

Mackenzie King is revealed here as a man determined to be larger than his nature ordained, with an appetite for fame, an undying hatred of poverty, and a compelling urge for social reform. He is portrayed as an astute scholar and a canny politician, a gentleman of "the old school", a steadfast bachelor of lonely and eccentric habits, and a person of strange contradictory qualities.

A devout Presbyterian who read the Bible daily, he was fascinated by the occult and dabbled in spiritualism, had a love of luxury and ease, yet persistently thought of himself as a simple, tweedy countryman.

"The Incredible Canadian" is a candid portrait of King and a remarkable appraisal of his era. A high point of the book is the story, fully told here for the first time, of Canada's tempestuous conscription issue in the Second World War, and the near-downfall of the Government at that time.

"Taken In"

By APPLEJOHN

One of the first friends that I made, on arrival at the Narrows, was an elderly darky named Augustus Henshaw. It was a mutual friendship and very real, as he had shown genuine interest in, and kindness to, me, a very "green" youth, freshly out from England. I was to learn fruit-farming by a form of apprenticeship to a rancher at the Narrows.

Augustus (he was always given his full name) was quite a pioneer in the settlement and, in a way, a fairly substantial member of the community and I was really grateful for the kindness he showed me.

He owned a very old and very battered Ford roadster which no doubt had lost some of its paint during the excitement of the first Armistice. Nevertheless he was inordinately proud of it and, when tourists would stop, in their big six-cylinder, streamlined cars, to talk to him, he would speak about "Mah own lil two-seatah" as if it was an imported racing model.

When, a few years later, I moved to Half-Moon Bay, some ten miles down the river, I used to ride up on my bicycle to see him when I could get a free day. Then I was very glad to sample his plums and peaces, in which he showed very justifiable pride.

It was during one of these visits that he arranged to pick me up in his "two-seatah" and take me to a show in Appletown, the business centre of the district, and a further ten miles down river from Half-Moon Bay. "Getting in" was always a problem in these days, before bus lines were established, and I certainly looked forward to a trip to town in a car instead of the usual truck, loaded with livestock or farm produce.

The day arrived and, by rushing everything, I was able to get ready in time. Now I possessed two suits; one had been good five years before and the other one was only a few months old. Of course I put on the best one. If he was going to the trouble to take me in, the least I could do was to appear at my best.

"Childe Rowland (in his very best suit) to the dark tower came".

As we drew near to the first filling station on the road Augustus began to worry. "Ah reckon this heah car is gwine need a drink of gas," he caluculated. "Mebbe you'd buy a gallon or two jest to keep her from getting thusty?" Luckily I had put a handful of loose change in my pocket so I murmured assent and we rattled to a sudden stop.

"Fill 'er up" he shouted to the attendant and, when the latter mentioned oil, Augustus agreed that "A quawt might ease the old girl."

When I came to settle the account I found that the change was not sufficient but I had with me a twenty-dollar bill which I had been saving to pay my tennis subscription and new tires for the bike.

After all, he was taking me in, so I broke into it cheerfully and we started off again.

When we arrived at Appletown, Augustus developed a taste for Caramels.

"Ah does like to chew on some taffy when ah is at a show," he said. As he made no movement to pay for his choice, and, after all, he was taking me in, I made a further inroad into my reserves and we steered our course to the "Regal".

"Ah'll wait heah while yo' git dem tickets" he proposed when we got outside the theatre. He had been kind enough to take me in so I dutifully purchased the cardboards and we settled ourselves in the front row. "Ah likes to see and hear all there is" he explained.

Oh cruel, ironic fate! I recognized the show as one I had seen in Montreal on may way over, three years before!!

However, even a second-hand talkie will finish eventually and once more we found ourselves on the pavement; now in a steady rain which had started while we had been inside.

"Ah has a hunguh" said Augustus, "Dere is nothing better on a wet night than fried chicken. Ah feels as if Ah could inhale a multitudinous po'tion befo' we staht on dat drive."

So a cafe was found which would supply the required delicacy and I then found that, according to Augustus, fried chicken wasn't complete until it was followed by pie, ice-cream, coffee and "multiferious" doughnuts.

When we arose, the check remained on the table. After all he had taken me in, so I saw to that little matter.

"At last," I thought, "we can start for home."

But no.

"Ah feels like a ceegah" confided Augustus, "but most of dem is such lil' bitty things. Now there is a stoah here what sells real ceegahs."

They did. However, he had taken me in so I bought him two and then set myself to hang on as we buck-jumped home.

Not for long! A savage report and a prolonged hiss from a back tire, as we struggled through a mudhole, told us just what had happened.

"Ah wunduh if you would mind changing dat," begged Augustus. "You see Ah has mah best check suit on in honor of your company," he explained.

During the next twenty minutes I was glad it was so dark because, for a while, I couldn't see what my codden clothes were like.

As he let me off at my turning I thanked him for the evening. "Oh dat's allright, Jack," he said, expansively, "Ah nevah minds putting mahself out a bit to give a friend a good time."

As I went through the pockets of my shapeless suit that night I found I was not entirely destitute. Two dimes had stayed by me to the last.

After all, he had "taken me in."

Adenauer Talks to Pressmen in Ottawa on European Situation

OTTAWA (CP)—West Germany's Konrad Adenauer told a press conference Saturday he plans to exchange ideas with Canadian leaders on the world political situation because of two new factors — "the phrases" by Russia's Malenkov and the "definite" peace program put forward by President Eisenhower.

He also said Germany is trying to hurry the establishment of international tribunals to review the cases of German war criminals.

West Germany did not seek the release of "real criminals—they will serve their sentences"—but did not consider all prisoners now held by the Allies real criminals.

HOW ABOUT MEYER?

He was asked flatly whether he considers Maj.-Gen. Kurt Meyer—serving a life sentence for the responsibility of shooting 18 Canadian prisoners—among those he classes as real criminals. The chancellor said he did not know the details of the Meyer case.

The impassive 77-year-old German leader said he wants to talk to Prime Minister St. Laurent and other cabinet ministers about the possibilities of Canada accepting more of Germany's 10,000,000 refugees from Communist zones and importing more German equipment, machines and engines.

FINAL POINTS

These were among the points he made before leaving the parliamentary Press Gallery for an hour-long talk with Mr. St. Laurent:

1. If it becomes possible to told truly free elections in the Russian zone of Germany, he is confident that 95 per cent of the people would decide in favor of re-unification of Germany and of freedom.

2. The final ratification of the European Defence Community—under which six countries will establish a common army—has been delayed more than a year, but he expects it will be finally ratified this fall.

The bride, wearing a ballerina style gown of nylon lace and net with "Juliet" style headdress secured by seed pearls, carried a bouquet of red roses and lily of the valley.

Her sister, Alice, and Miss Anita Smecher of Robson, were bridesmaids. They chose green and mauve net over taffeta and carried bouquets of mauve and pink carnations.

Of interest to Castlegar residents is the wedding of Isobel Joyce Currie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Currie of Summerside, Prince Edward Island, and James Ronald MacDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. MacDonald of Castlegar.

Baskets of mixed spring flowers against a background of lilies, formed the setting for the wedding in Summerside Baptist Church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was charming in afternoon dress of starlight blue nylon marquisette, featuring a cut-away jacket, three-quarter length sleeves, bodice trimmed with folds of the same material and Michaelmas daisies and a full skirt. Her headdress was a crownless picture hat of the same material and she carried a nosegay of poetaz and Queen Elizabeth roses.

Spring Clean the Easy Way

By JOAN BARBERIS

The chemists were evidently busy all Winter taking the elbow grease out of Spring cleaning.

Just how successful they've been was demonstrated at a large Toronto department store. The store gathered together all the latest fluids for refurbishing a house with a minimum of muscle.

To clean porcelain-enamelled ovens, there's a new paste-like "stuff" that is painted on when the oven is cold. Leave for two or three hours, then wash off with cloth and cold water.

Next, a spray that dusts and polishes in a single operation. You just put it on mops or dusters and it's good for furniture, woodwork, windows or floors.

A new "paint-like" substance with 12 years of research and development behind it was introduced.

It's described as "a plastic-resin base, mineral pigment spray that bathes fabrics in a deeply penetrating color-mist".

This new spray doesn't blot out fabric patternrs, and comes in about a dozen different colors.

This may be used on furniture, rugs, draperies, canvas, auto and aircraft interiors, convertible tops, rubber mats, suede purses and shoes, leatherette, patio tiles and many other things.

If you have such "desperate" things on your carpets as chewing gum, tar or lipstick, there are some chystal-like cleaners that you just sprinkle on, rub in and then vacuum.

A metallic maple leaf will clean silver. Pop it into a dishpan with detergent, add your tarnished silver and that's all the effort involved.

Washable woollens may be mothproofed at home. Add a few spoonfuls of this new mixture to your wash water. No odor, no oily residue, and, the article stays mothproofed for a year.

Lastly, something to tell the landlord about.

A new wallpaper adhesive that is applied to the wall, not the paper. Just roll or brush it on to any clean surface, whether painted, papered or plastered. Leaves the paper dry and easy to handle.

Meals, Snacks Enhanced By Cheese Sandwiches

By MARGARET CARR

Plain or toasted with soup or salads, cheese sandwiches star in noon and night meals.

Packed with precious protein that's cheaper than the protein in meat, this dairy food takes its place elegantly in meals as well as in snacks.

BROILED OPEN SANDWICHES

Enriched bread
Mayonnaise
Sliced Peeled tomatoes
Sharp pasteurized process cheese
Sliced bacon

For each sandwich toast a slice of bread (crusts trimmed) on one side. Spread the untoasted side with mayonnaise, cover it with a slice of tomato, then a slice of cheese and a strip of partially broiled bacon. Place the sandwiches under low broiler heat, or in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) until the cheese is melted and the bacon crisp. Serve hot.

BAKED FRENCH TOAST CHEESE SANDWICHES

8 slices buttered bread
1 tin luncheon meat
1 cup grated Canadian cheddar cheese
2 eggs
¼ cup milk
Dash of salt

Slice luncheon meat thinly. Place on 4 slices buttered bread and then sprinkle with half the grated cheese. Top with remaining bread slices. Beat eggs, add milk and salt. Dip sandwiches into egg mixture. Place on buttered cookie sheet and bake in a hot oven (425 deg. F.) until crisp and golden brown on bottom (about 10 minutes). Turn sandwiches and sprinkle remaining cheese on top. Return to oven till cheese is melted and slightly brown.

NOTE: Sandwiches may be made using slices of processed cheese for filling. Then dip in the egg-milk mixture and finish as above.

DELICIOUS SANDWICH FILLING

2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
½ cup shredded Canadian cheddar cheese
¼ cup finely chopped sour pickles
¼ cup finely diced celery
¼ cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon chili sauce
½ teaspoon salt

Combine all ingredients and blend well. Makes an excellent filling for hearty sandwiches. Filling for sandwiches.

HAM AND CHEESE SANDWICHES

8 slices enriched bread crusts, trimmed
Mayonnaise or salad dressing
Canadian cheddar cheese, sliced
4 slices boiled ham
Prepared mustard

Spread four slices of bread with mayonnaise or salad dressing. Cover each with a slice of cheese and a slice of ham. Top with slice of bread spread with mustard. Toast both sides until light brown. Serve hot.

Greenwood, Bridesville Interest in Wedding

GREENWOOD — A pretty afternoon wedding was solemnized in Sacred Heart Church here when Bernice Martha Milligan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Milligan of Greenwood, and Carl Leonard Bourgh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bourgh of Bridesville, exchanged wedding vows.

Miss Inge Bourgh, sister of the groom, also a bridesmaid chose a mauve taffeta strapless floor-length gown, topped with a bolero, buttoned from the neckline with tiny self-covered buttons. White gloves, necklace and earrings completed her ensemble. A halo of white and mauve flowers backed with pleated ribbon was worn in her hair. Both attendants carried bouquets of daffodils, orange blossoms and forget-me-nots.

Old Films May Be Temporary Cure For Hollywood's TV Headaches

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—TV viewers this week saw signs of a break in the film industry's backlog of old movies.

That doesn't mean "Gone With the Wind" or "Samson and Delilah" will be seen on TV in the near future. But it could happen in a few years.

The news came in the annual report to stockholders of 20th Century-Fox. The report foresaw "Millions of dollars" resulting from the possible release of the company's 900 films made since the advent of sound.

"With the advent of cinemascope and other news techniques, it is anticipated that the theatre demand for motion pictures will be generally for pictures of the new types," it said.

"The demand for the older pictures will greatly decrease for theatres. Therefore it is likely these pictures will be made available for television."

WALL STREET STIR

This announcement created a stir in the film industry and on Wall street. It was the first time a major studio had indicated it might release its oldies to TV.

Movies have become increasingly important in TV programming. With live-show costs mounting to new highs, stations are seeking more movies to telecast. They are relatively cheap, provide varied entertainment and draw good audience ratings.

But the stations have been scraping the bottom of the movie barrel. The only films available for TV are those made by Republic, Monogram, English and other foreign studios, plus a scattering of Hollywood independents, most of them now defunct.

The major studios need the money they could get from releasing their films to TV. If new-dimensional films should make the old-style movies obsolete, the studios would have an excuse to sell to the home sets.

But would a flood of good old pictures on TV keep people home? Should the studios wait for some kind of pay-as-you-see TV? These are questions that must be answered.

Ancient Village Found in Eire

BOYLE, Ireland (AP)—The full skeleton of a Stone Age man has been found on the bed of an Irish lake now being drained to reveal secrets of life 5000 years ago.

This and other findings—including two pattern brooches, an iron ax, a bone needle, a canoe and a bronze spearhead—have been reported by archaeologists now busy at Laugh Gara near the town of Boyle in central Ireland, 100 miles northwest of Dublin.

The ancient settlements were first discovered last fall when a prolonged drought lowered the lake level, revealing more than 140 crannogs or man-made lake dwellings.

Archaeologists called the discovery one of the richest ever and a treasure house of the stone and bronze ages. After a preliminary examination, however, winter rains came and the settlements again disapepared beneath the waters.

Archaeologists already have formed part of the picture. The lake dwellers lived a close community life and were skilled in engineering and boat building.

From the number of ornaments and bones of animal flocks already found, the dwellers are judged to have been wealthy. They practised agriculture and knew of grain-growing and they had grasped the principle of specialization.

Native Indian Missionaries Trained by U. C.

TORONTO (CP) — The United Church of Canada had 32,000 converts in 1952, Rev. J. R. Mutchmore, secretary of the board of evangelism and social service, Saturday told the annual meeting.

He said that evangelist Charles B. Templeton of the United States will visit Canada in September to conduct missions in various places including Edmonton.

The board executive supported the Canadian government's policy concerning ownership and operation of radio and TV stations.

All United Churches will be asked to observe the 250th anniversary of the birth of John Wesley, founder of methodism, May 24.

Rev. Dr. David H. Gallagher, board secretary, said:

"Don't be alarmed by stories in the press about evangelistic missionaries not being wanted in India. Our job is to train local native Christian leaders, and get out of the country into other countries. The real missionary seeks to wipe out his own job."

The board decided to contribute $4000 toward India famine relief if the women's missionary society will contribute the same amount.

THE SUICIDE of Juan Duarte, 38-year-old brother-in-law of President Peron, increased unrest in Argentina, now in the midst of an economic crisis caused by the disorder of organized labor over rocketing prices. Leaving behind a letter addressed to Peron in which he said "enemies of Peron sought to defame me and succeeded in covering me with shame," Duarte is, alleged to have shot himself in his apartment in Buenos Aires. The brother of the late Eva Peron, Duarte had been the president's private secretary since he came to power in 1946 until just recently when he resigned giving poor health as the reason.

Air-Spray Best Way to Tackle Spruce Budworm

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

A dramatic description of a battle against the spruce budworm is contained in a booklet issued by International Paper Company along with its current annual report.

The story, told mostly by pictures with brief texts, concerns an area of more than 300 square miles of heavily-infested forest in northern New Brunswick.

There, from 1949, the budworm, known as the "scourge of the softwood forest," showed an alarming increase over the Upsalquitch watershed.

In 1950 some 200 square miles were stripped of new foliage and in 1951, some 2200 square miles were severely attacked. Widespread tree mortality on Crown forest included in the limits of New Brunswick International Paper Company was predicted for 1952.

SPRAY OPERATION

To combat the threat, the company organized what is described as the biggest forest-spraying operation ever attempted in Canada.

During the Fall and Winter of 1951-52, an airport was built in the wildernes, quarters were constructed for 150 men, and spray, fuel and equipment were hauled in over frozen roads before the spring breakup.

Finally, June 13, entomologists reported the insects at the proper stage of development and spraying proceeded during the next 15 days.

Budworms died by the billions, "spinning down on shining silk threads as the poison struck home." Based on later observations, between 99.8 and 100 per cent of the worms were reported killed. The booklet concludes:

"The first battle of the budworm was a victory for the forst managers . . . We still don't comprehend the natural forces that start and stop a budworm epidemic, but we now know that DDT can effectively sprayed from the air over vast forests and is a powerful weapon."

Since last year's praying, meetings between the New Brunswick government and representatives of four major paper companies have resulted in formation of a non-profit corporation, Forest Protection, Ltd.

It plans to spray at least 1500 square miles of infested New Brunswick forests this spring, with 80 airplanes operating from six airstrips.

Farm-Aid Issue Hits Headlines

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is heading toward a showdown on its farm-aid program. The weather may exert influence on deciding the issue than politicians and farm leaders.

The present farm program is running into trouble. Encouraged by favorable government price guarantees, farmers are producing more than can be sold. Foreign markets for farm products are falling off because buyers can get supplies cheaper elsewhere. The unsold portion of farm production is being acquired by the agriculture department to carry out price promises.

Unless there is a drastic change in the international situation the department faces heavy losses on its farm stocks.

Congress has put off until next year the question of what to do about future farm programs. But battle lines are being drawn for a hot legislature fight.

HOW HIGH?

The point at issue is: How high should the government support farm prices?

One side says that the present high, rigid supports for basic crops like corn, wheat, cotton, rice, tobacco and peanuts should be made permanent rather than be allowed to expire at the end of the 1954 crop marketing year. Some in this group would add cattle, hogs, milk, poultry and eggs.

In this group are several Democrats and Republicans, members of the House of Representatives agriculture committee, and President James Patton of the National Farmers Union.

The opposing group has leaders of both major parties, including Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson.

This group favors Flexible price supports. It would lower the supports when supplies were plentiful and raise supports when a shortage threatened.

It is the theory of this group that farmers would cut down on commodities already available in large supply and produce more products in short supply.

Those fighting for retention of the rigid supports argue that flexible supports would bring lower farm prices and possible farm recessions.

PUBLIC OBJECTIONS

But, usually not very articulate on farm legislation, the U. S. public may well rise and demand a say in the price support question.

If weather conditions are favorable this year, farm output would be the largest of record. The government would have to take over the extra supplies and add them to an already heavy stockpile.

The public would witness losses through spoilage, dumping abroad and diversion of foods into non-food uses.

The agriculture department is already getting evidence of public dissatisfaction with the situation. Recent heavy government buying of butter support prices has brought criticism.

Those favoring high price supports contend that production controls can be used to prevent overproduction and the consequence piling up of surpluses in government hands. A public exerting pressure for a change probably would pass over this argument.

In this connection, the Eisenhower administration has promised farmers fewer controls over their operations.

BOXLA CHATTER

With the lack of equipment felt strongly, the boxla boys are finding it difficult to round into shape. And the Nelson lads are going to need know-how and strength if they are to put up a strong bid against Rossland and Trail.

Lack of equipment has hindered the boys from going all-out but still they have shown a great deal of improvement since starting their training. They are getting support from many older players. If the one-time well supported sport is to make its reappearance to Nelson fans, it will take much more than just the efforts of those who wish to play.

One of the biggest hurdles that must be overcome, to my way of thinking, is to get more general support of the revival. Too many people at this time are bucking the idea of its return, merely because five years ago it went through a tough time and folded.

What happened five years ago has nothing to do with this year's effort. When over 30 fellows are willing to try everything in their power to bring the game back I believe they deserve help, so let's go, fans; let's prove that Nelson is more than a hockey town.

SHUTTLE SHOTS

Badminton along with other sports sports this past season took a definite swing toward regaining the spot it once held. The Nelson club had a great season with honors being taken by both seniors and juniors.

Recently in the Provincial championships the Kootenay's pretty well took the limelight away from other centres when they captured nine of 15 crowns. Nelson participants were in for their share. Dolly Fife captured the singles in the under-76 class, then teamed up with a Cranbrook lass to play in the finals of the doubles. Several other players reached the finals in the various events, no easy task against top ranking stars from throughout B. C.

Along with producing fine shuttle players, Nelson club can be proud that when it comes to staging tournaments it takes a back seat to no one. This was proved only recently when they staged their open tournament and attracted such stars as Lois Reid and Bert Fergus. Lois, rated as number two player in Canada, stated that this was the smoothest run tourney that she had ever attended.

A good deal of credit for the fine work goes to Al Wilson, Laurie Lefeaux, Fred Thompson and Bruce Latremouille. They worked hard and worked late to see that everything went according to schedule.

ICE CUBES:

We asked a week ago for a chance for Eddie Wares, the hockey executive and the interested fans to make some decisions. So now, with less than a week elapsed there are a couple of decisions.

The first came from the executive Friday afternoon when they announced that they have already put out feelers for a player coach and said they would receive applications for the job. The second decision came from Eddie Wares when he stated he would not be making application for the position, but would be leaving the city early next month. Nothing much at this time has been heard from the fans, but there will be a good deal of speculation as to who will be the next coach of the Leafs.

AROUND AND ABOUT:

Lee Hyssop and Frank Hufty Jr., have been named to manage and coach the Legion's entry in the Pony League this season.—Chris Chapman states that she is definitely retiring from playing fastball with the Royals, but we'll believe it when we see it; once a ball player, always a ball player, we say — See Ernie Gare and Jim Malacko out with the boxla boys. —They say that Gare will be trying out for the senior baseball club. —Hear that Don McKinnon, who last season pitched for the Tigers part of the season, hopes to be able to locate a summer job in Nelson . . . that would allow him to play all season. —Jimmy Lowe tells me that he also may turn out for the seniors. —Harold (Baldy) Mayo and Bob McDonald, will be heading for the coast early next month to enter the bowling roll-a-car tournament. Spokane Flyers hope next year to have playoff games in their back yard, if they happen to be in the playoffs for the Allan Cup.

FORMER MAJOR LEAGUER DIES

KANSAS CITY (AP) — James A. (Cotton) Tierney, 59, former major league baseball player died today.

Tierney, who started his professional baseball career in 1912, played with Pittsburgh, Boston Braves and Brooklyn in the majors.

Best Training Start in Years as Baseball, Fastball Get Under Way

Baseball and fastball training got away to a good start Sunday as the weatherman proved cooperative and brought sunshine instead of the snow of a week ago.

In three workouts that took place at the Recreation Grounds over 75 players turned out under their respective team coaches.

The Outlaws in a Sunday morning practice had 30 members go through batting practice and a little throwing.

Several new faces where seen around the diamond as the boys prepared for the coming season. If pitching has been a problem to the club in the past, it looks like a change is near. Several newcomers will be trying out, and on hand at the Sunday practice were Ron Brown, a holdover from last season, Stan Grill, a southpaw, Mike Zaitsoff, a right hander with good stuff from Slocan Park, Bill Fisher, and Roy Driver, who last season chucked fastball in Kaslo.

Another new face seen at third base was Roy Sharpe, an out-of-town boy who could help the Outlaws a great deal, for it has been reported Don Porteous will not don the spikes this season. Alex Abrosimo has also been lost to the club as he moved to Vancouver. Both these men where mainstays of the club last year, said Don Nash, "and it will be a tough job to fill their shoes. They were not only good in the field, but they packed a lot of power to the plate."

NEWCOMERS OUT

Nelson's Senior Maple Leafs took to the field Sunday afternoon for their first workout, 25 strong. Manager Gordon Richardson put the boys through a bit of batting practice, but little chucking. Les Hufty and Don McKinnon were on hand to throw a few to the batters, who were trying to get that batting eye back again. Swede Larson, blasting a few of those apples a distance, showed he had lost none of the power of last year.

A few new players showed up and they looked fairly good. Rennie Mitchell and Mike Horcoff of Castlegar with their heads-up ball could be strong contenders for this year's aggregate. Ball-hawking Frank Hufty Jr. and Ernie Gare were on hand in the outfield and showed plenty of speed in gathering in fly balls.

22 GIRLS PRACTICE

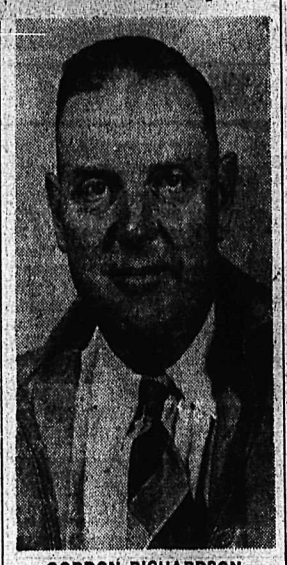
On the fastball front, things looked much brighter for a proposed three-team league. Some 22 girls turned out. The turnout included many newcomers.

A good deal of the time was taken up with the girls fly chasing. Sides were chosen later in the day and a short game was played. A noticeable point was the absence of many of the seniors of last season's West Kootenay champions.

TO FORM LEAGUE

Mary McGinn, president, said Sunday that if the girls will turn out, a three-team league is almost assured.

Coach Lou Chase after watching the girls at the plate, said he felt the team would be much stronger with the stick this season. He liked the work of several newcomers, notably Sylvia Shorthouse, Joy McEwen, Moreen Kennedy and Verna Strong.



GORDON RICHARDSON
. . . who has seen a lot of baseball in Nelson both from behind the plate as a catcher and from the coaching box, will this year manage the Senior Maple Leafs nine.

REGINA (CP)—A. S. Simpson, secretary of the Canadian Hail Underwriters' Association, reports the amount of hail insurance written in Western Canada last year was the largest since the peak year of 1928.

Beavers Nip V's 5-2 Series Tied 2-2

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Fort William Beavers squared up the best-of-seven series for the Western Canada Allan Cup hockey title Saturday night with a 5-2 victory over Penticton Vs. It was Beavers' second successive victory following a pair of setbacks in the first two games of the series. The two teams meet for the fifth game Monday night.

Lou Milani opened the scoring for the Beavers late in the first period and Penticton evened the score with eight seconds remaining in the period, Don Culley sinking a pass from George McAvoy.

A goal by Buck Forslund after seven minutes of the second period gave Beavers the lead again and they held it until the final whistle.

Brayshaw widened the margin six minutes later on a pass from Milani, and Vic Kryluk made it 4-1 at the end of the second when he beat Ivan McLelland with a golf shot on a pass from Jerry Kirk.

Johnny Irving, assisted by Kyryluk, completed the Fort William count at the 3:42 mark of the final. Penticton registered their second marker as Ernie Rucks scored on a pass from Jack McIntyre.

200 Slated for 57th Marathon

BOSTON (CP) — The Boston marathon hasn't been won by an American since 1945 and the situation is unlikely to be changed in Monday's 57th running of the 26-mile, 385-yard race.

A starry field of runners from outside the United States, including four-time winner Gerard Cote of St. Hyacinthe, Que., is expected to outshine the home-breds.

The marathon was last won by an American in 1945 when veteran Johnny Kelley of West Acton, Mass., took the honors.

Since then its gone to a Greek, a Korean, Cote (1948), a Swede, a Japanese and Guatemala's Doroted Flores.

About 200 racers — including seven of last year's top 10 and five ex-winners — will answer the starter's gun.

Mantle In Babe's Class Says Stengel

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Casey Stengel, manager of the New York Yankees, classes Mickey Mantle with Jimmy Foxx as the most powerful right-hand hitter of all time.

Still raving about Mantle's 562-foot home run in Washington last Friday, Stengel said that only Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig could be classed with Mickey for power from the left side of the plate.

"He's the most powerful switch hitter who ever lived," Stengel said.

The ball Mantle hit will be displayed with the bat he used in the lobby of Yankee Stadium for the rest of this season, then will be enshrined in the baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X E
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

X J K I P T I P T E F W J N F S I P F
N Z U S J B S F T I P, I P F N P E L M N E U S
X J K W F T H M L F T O — O P E M O J I I W.

London Market Forces Price Of Lead Lower

NEW YORK (AP) — Uneasiness spread through the copper industry last week while the price of lead dropped to the lowest point in three years and tin took a further hammering.

In a week of rapid developments, these events stood out:

1. Lead dropped ½ cent a pound to 12½ cents due to persistent weakness in the London market.

2. The price spread on domestic copper narrowed to 30-30½ cents a pound as custom smelter pared 1½ cents off its 32-cent quotation.

3. Belgian Congo copper was being offered to U.S. consumers at 30 cents a pound, New York, a cut of two cents a pound from last week.

4. Tin prices continued to fall, touching a low of 95 cents a pound before rallying to 98½ cents at the end of the week.

MAJOR METALS PRICES

Copper—30-30.5 cents a pound, delivered. Foreign, 30-36.5 cents, New York.

Lead—12.5 cents a pound, New York; 12.30 cents, St. Louis.

Zinc—11 cents a pound, East St. Louis; 11.83 cents, New York.

Silver—85.25 cents an ounce, New York; 74 pence, London.

Tin—98½ a pound, New York.

Cleaning Museum Full Time Job

TORONTO (CP) — William Todd spring cleans in a big way. He's chief preparator at the Royal Ontario Museum and his domain takes in three floors which add up to about 300,000 square feet.

Mr. Todd has just finished giving the museum's textiles and furs one of their thrice-yearly goings-over and he's working now on suits of armor.

Like any housewife, he's plagued by moths and soot.

"Even airtight cases don't keep soot out," he said.

Humidity is another problem, particularly in the spring when the heat is still on.

KEEP SHARP WATCH

His staff is constantly on the lookout for any signs of deterioration.

One of the oldest pieces of textile at the museum—more than 1000 years old—has not yet been on display, Mr. Todd said. It's a religious scene done in tempera on silk and ramie (fibre) that came from China.

Mr. Todd said mould had started to work on the exhibit. This was removed with solutions and then cracked paint was brushed over with a plastic solution. When semi-dry it was gently pressed and then put on a new support.

Plastic is a great boon to museums, he said. It holds things together and does not discolor as do shellacs.

Mr. Todd, who joined the museum when he left high school, has been doing restoring and conservation work there for 25 years. His father, a cabinet maker, made many of the show cases at the museum.

"There's no course given anywhere that trains a man to do the restoration work needed at a large museum. You just have to pick it up as you go along. No books have been written on the subject as a whole," he said.

The tools used range from those of a dentist to ingenious contraptions of his own device.

There's no trial and error method when renovating ancient materials. Careful planning is needed before anything is touched.

600-Acre Silver-Lead-Zinc Claim Near Greenwood to Be Developed

Extensive plans for the development of 600 acres of silver-lead-zinc claims in the Greenwood mining division, near Grand Forks, by a recently-incorporated B. C. mining company, have been announced. The new base metals company, Cascade Lode Mines Ltd. (NPL) has an authorized capitalization of 3,000,000 ordinary shares. Properties acquired on which development is now underway are the "WS" mines, formerly owned by W. Schwartzenhauer, H. M. Sequin and J. A. Garreau, and the "PV" claims in the Cascade Mountain area approximately 15 miles east of Christina Lake.

The properties consist of 12 full-sized claims comprising a total of 600 acres. The new company's engineer and geologist, R. E. Renshaw, P. Eng., has made extensive examination and has recommended the installation of a mill. In Mr. Renshaw's opinion the property has an excellent chance of becoming a base metals mine of considerable magnitude. The company has purchased a 200-ton capacity mill and plans to start full-scale production this fall.

Directors of Cascade Lode Mines Limited are a group of Vancouver and Powell River businessmen headed by C. J. I. Lawrence, president, of Powell River. Vancouver directors are Leo Henry Bettin and Leslie G. Way. Powell Riverites on the directorate in addition to Mr. Lawrence, are John Harper, vice-president; Robert J. Muir, secretary, Floyd J. North, treasurer; Hugh Scouse and Jack L. Young.

Financing for the purchase of the claims, preliminary development work since last summer, and the purchase of the mill has been carried out privately by the company among its shareholders. The claims are in the "Burnt Basin" area which had numerous properties producing gold ore 20 to 30 years ago. The silver-lead-zinc values, recently rediscovered, were of little interest at that time and received only cursory development. Indicated or potential ore reserves are said to be considerable.

The claims are readily accessible to transportation, both rail and road. Adequate water is available from Coryell or MacRae creeks for all camp and milling requirement.

"Sister Nations", Not Commonwealth

LONDON (CP)—Viscount Hailsham proposes that the phrase "sister nations" might prove a worthy substitute for the terms "Commonwealth" or "Empire."

Lord Hailsham, better known as Quintin Hogg in the days when he was a Conservative member of Parliament, believes the word empire is dead, and Commonwealth is dying.

"Sister nations," he said, proposing a toast of that title, might be more suitable.

Engineer Spends Day In Comfort

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

THE GREAT DIVIDE, B.C.-Alta. (CP)—Though it hasn't got to the point where the engineer and fireman wear white shirts and ties, railroading in the Rockies isn't really railroading any more to the old timers.

Engineer Mickey McQuarrie, who has worked for the Canadian Pacific Railway 46 years, sat easily and comfortably in his diesel cab the other day, jockeying his 12-car, 800-ton passenger train from Revelstoke to Field. The 125.7 mile stretch is the toughest rail run in Canada.

He touched the throttle or brake of the three-unit diesel now and then, occasionally rolled down the window beside him to squirt a stream of tobacco juice into the deep snow beside the track. Every so often, his fireman, Ray Carroll, 31, pressed a button marked "separator blowdown."

"If this job gets any tougher, they'll have to pension me off," said Mr. McQuarrie, eyes twinkling behind rimless glasses.

SWITCHED TO DIESELS

CPR switched its mountain division—Kamloops, B.C., to Calgary—from steam locomotives to diesel operation 10 months ago. Diesels are less costly to run, easier to service and can haul more tonnage, and without a jolt.

"But they haven't got the same pick-up as steam," Mr. McQuarrie said, waving a hand at the speedometer as the train purred upward out of the five-mile Connaught tunnel. "Look at that, 25 miles an hour. Give me steam and we'd be hitting 50 now. We don't go fast enough to get a hot box any more."

But he has to admit the diesels are more comfortable. The cab, directly behind the headlight, commands a perfect view of the track ahead and on both sides. The engineer and fireman sit in stuffed seats on either side of the cab—after four decades sitting at a throttle, Mr. McQuarrie fills his chair amply. Heat in the cab can be adjusted as in the plush drawing rooms in the sleepers.

"Yes, it's got comfort, all right," Mr. McQuarrie said. "We can see everything. With the steam locomotive, you have to lean out of the cab to see ahead and my right side was usually soaked."

ANOTHER VETERAN

"Clear aboard!" interrupted Mr. Carroll as the pointed arm of the block signal system thrust straight up, indicating a clear track ahead. He has been railroading for 12 years, married the daughter of Vincent Segur, CCF member of the last British Columbia Legislature for Revelstoke and himself a CPR engineer for more than 30 years.

Mr. Carroll disappeared now and then back into the bowels of the diesel—but not to shovel coal. The diesel runs on fuel oil and can run 400 or 500 miles without being refuelled.

The diesel rides as smoothly as the cars it pulls in contrast to the steam locomotives, which roll and buck like broncos. Most of the time the engineer and fireman can converse in normal voices.

Because the diesels can pull more cars, the CPR has had to extend most of its sidings on the mountain division to accommodate the longer freights. Tonnage limits, of course, are strictly enforced. If too much tonnage got away on a downgrade, there would be no stopping it, even with the diesel's "dynamic braking," a mechanism which works much like shifting a car into low gear when descending a steep hill.

Though it was almost April, the snow was still piled to the eaves of the telegraph offices along the lonely line. Chief worry of train crews is the slide—snow, rock or mud. A snow slide can start high on a mountain peak more than a mile from the track, hurtle down the mountainside and swallow a train whole. Such an avalanche rolled down Mt. Rogers in January. A freight train rounded a bend and plowed into it before it could stop, derailing the diesel and a couple of cars. Luckily, nobody was hurt.

MOUNTAIN TUNNEL

Four and a half miles of snow sheds were built through Rogers Pass, original route of the CPR between Stoney Creek and Glacier. Avalanches continued to take such a heavy toll that in 1916 the Connaught Tunnel was drilled through the base of 10,818-foot Mt. MacDonald. This double-tracked straight bore, the two spiral tunnels between Hector and Field and the bridge over Stoney Creek—straight down, a 350-foot drop—still stand as monuments to Canadian railroad builders.

Here at the Great Divide, the CPR reaches its highest point in Canada—5332 feet. It also marks the British Columbia-Alberta border and the point where the waters of the continent divide. A tiny rivulet splits in two. Westward, one branch becomes the turbulent Kicking Horse. Eastward, the other branch becomes the Bow.

From Vancouver, at Tidewater, the train has ground steadily upward, through the gorges of the Fraser and Thompson Rivers, through Box and Albert Canyons, around snow-hatted peaks and blue-and-green glaciers, beside the rushing headwaters of the Columbia and the Kicking Horse, under Mt. Ogden and Cathedral crags in the spiral tunnels in the Great Divide. Now it starts down, down through the valley of the Bow, across the Northern end of the valley of the Ten Peaks, beside Mt. Eisenhower and through Banff and Canmore to the vast flatlands of the Prairies.

At Calgary, the engineer and fireman step down from their automatically-heated diesel. There is not a spot of oil or grease on their overalls.

As Mr. McQuarrie might say, it is enough to keep an old steam man awake at nights, blushing in the dark.

Study Sliding Scale Duties on Metals Imports

NEW YORK (AP) — A leading custom smelter reduced the price of lead half cent a pound to 12½ cents, New York, the lowest for the metal since the summer of 1950.

The reduction here followed recent weakness in the London market, where Korean developments have depressed prices of a number of metals, notably tin.

Lead was selling at 14¾ cents a pound when this year began. It had not sold below 13 cents since August 15, 1950, when it rose a cent from 12 cents a pound.

SPOKANE — J. B. Haffner, president of the National Lead Industries association, said the new break in domestic price of leati resulted from a drop in/ the London lead market and that he hopes it is only temporary.

He said there are no immediate plans for further curtailments in production at Kellogg operations of Bunker Hill and Sullivan Mining and Concentrating company, of which he is general manager.

A house ways and means committee will open hearings Wednesday on a bil providing for sliding scale duties on lead and zinc imports, Haffner said.

The mining industry probably will be represented by Otto Herres, Salt Lake City, he said. Herres is chairman of the industry's national lead-zinc emergency committee, which proposed the import tax.

Four bills providing for the lead-zinc import duti have been introduced at the present session of congress. They focus attention of both senate and house on the serious plight of the country's lead-zinc mining industry.

Anthony Eden Makes Steady Progress

LONDON (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who developed tonsilitis after a gallstones operation last week, is getting better, a foreign office bulletin said Saturday. Eden, 55, has been in a London clinic for the last 10 days.

A RUNNING FEUD between the two States of North and South Dakota, over which held Sitting Bull, famous Sioux chieftain, in higher esteem, was climaxed recently when 13 South Dakotan Indians secretly dug up the remains of the warrior at Fort Yates, N. D., where he had been buried since 1890, and reburied them at Mobridge, S. D. Protesting the move as an "underhanded deal all the way through," the Government of N. D. has instigated legal action which, according to the head of the burial party, will prove to be of no avail. Grey Eagle, who claims he was with Sitting Bull when the chief was killed by Indian police, said no laws were broken because both the Fort Yates grave and the new site are on a single Federal Indian reservation, which the South Dakotans never left. One of the most historical of Indian chiefs, Sitting Bull, seen above, was responsible for strained relations of the U.S. and Canada, then an infant dominion. After a life of raiding frontier posts, stealing horses and carrying on a running war against the Crows, Sitting Bull found himself the object of a campaign by the U.S. army when he refused to enter an Indian reservation in 1876. Seeking sanctuary in Canada, Sitting Bull spent four years in the Northwest until constant prodding by RCMPs sent him back to the U.S. to surrender in the year 1881.

Melbourne Backs Olympic Games

By KEN MOSES

MELBOURNE (AP) — This is a preview of the progress report to be presented to the International Olympic Committee meeting at Mexico City April 17 by a confident delegation from the Melbourne organizing committee of the 1956 Olympic Games.

The delegation will consist of Hugh Weir, Australia's senior IOC delegate, Harry Alderson, chairman of the Australian Olympic federation, and Arthur Coles, chairman of the Olympic Games Control Committee.

Both the federal and the Victorian state governments have pledged financial support and Melbourne city council is 100 per cent behind the games.

The stadium now holds 80,000 with most seats under cover. By 1956, it is hoped to increase the capacity to 120,000.

A space will be set aside for 1000 sportswriters and broadcasters.

CENTRAL LOCATION

The main stadium will be within walking distance of the heart of the city and is close to three training stadia.

The modern swimming pool at Fawkner park will be about a 15-minute walk from the main stadium. The pool, to cost a minimum of $784,000 will be covered and will seat 6000. It will consist of a standard Olympic 50-metre pool and a special diving pool. Construction will start in a few weeks.

At least eight training pools will be available within five miles of the city.

Olympic athletes will be quartered in a modern village, probably at Heidelberg, seven miles from Melbourne. Six-hundred two- and three-bedroom houses will be built, each to hold 10 athletes.

Laundry facilities will be available as well as communal dining halls, recreation rooms and amusement halls. The Press and radio centre will be at Melbourne University.

Rowing and canoeing events will be held at Lake Wenouree, 70 miles by road from Melbourne, at Ballarat.

The Melbourne exhibition building will be used for basketball, fencing and weight-lifting.

The Melbourne town hall, which seats 2500 will be used for wrestling, and the West Melbourne Stadium with 9000 seats will be used for boxing.

QUARANTINE HAZARD

Olympic Park, less than a mile from the city, will be the venue for cycling events. It will be built at a minimum cost of $448,000.

With 12 stadia within five miles of the city, each capable of holding more than 40,000 people, the organizers have no qualms about staging the hockey and soccer events.

The equestrian three-day event will be held within 15 miles of the city.

The Olympic organizers admit, however, that the government has not yet agreed to lift quarantine restrictions. Under these restrictions horses can come directly only from Britain and New Zealand, and then only after having spent six months in those countries.

Snoopers Decide To Bypass BBC

ROME (Reuters)—Senator Joseph McCarthy's two roving investigators have decided not to go to London where a storm of protest was aroused recently by suggestions that they intended to look into operations of the BBC foreign service.

"Factfinders" Roy Cohn and David Schine said Saturday their two-week investigation of American information programs in six European countries is about over. They said they will probably fly back to Washington from Rome this weekend.

Cohn and Schine were sent to Europe by the Wisconsin Republican senator in his job as chairman of the U. S. senate sub-committee on government activities. The sub-committee has been investigating operation of U. S. overseas information services, including the Voice of America, for possible subversive influences.

WANTED BBC HELP

Cohn said that he and Schine would have liked to "talk to some BBC people." Their main object in London, he said, would have been to look into the personnel situation of the American information services there and possibly get some "sidelights" and "help" from the BBC officials.

When Cohn and Schrine first disclosed they planned to take a look at BBC operations, there was an angry reaction in the British press. In the House of Commons a suggestion was made that the two be called before Parliament and themselves investigated. Cohn and Schine did not indicate whether the protests had anything to do with their decision to by-pass London.

Canadian-born Lord Beaverbrooks' Daily Express had accused McCarthy of trying to promote bitterness between the United States and Britain in line with the old Soviet policy.

Communists, all set to raise cain in central Africa despite their peace talks in Moscow, now are or soon will be chalking up slogans on the walls of buildings throughout a vast area south of the Sahara. The slogans will say: "Africa for the Africans,' "foreigners, go home," "we demand freedom."

This intelligence does not come from Africa. It comes from Moscow. It has been announced in the Soviet press, in an article which also pays fond attention to the prospects for the "strike movement" in the dark continent. Strikes in the Soviet Union are illegal, but they are a political instrument in the hands of Soviet agents in colonial countries.

All this adds up to what appears a deliberate Communist attempt to turn the turbulent politics of central and southern Africa into a question of white man against the Negro — an all-out racial war.

South of the Sahara there are some 160,000,000 Negro or dark-skinned peoples. There are 3,000,000 whites who rule with varying degrees of intelligence ranging from very high to very low.

In recent years the movement toward nationalism has been strong. There is a general awakening among Africans, who resent the monopolistic rule the white have wielded for so many decades. But the honest, genuine nationalists have nothing in common with the Communists. These pople do not want the white man to go home. They see disaster in such a development.

The Communists have no such qualms. Disaster and turmoil is what they seek.

With subtle Communist aid, a movement of defiance to white rule already is under way in Kenya, South Africa and elsewhere.

Much Communist propaganda is being levelled against the British plan for federation of Northern and Southern Rhodesia and Nyasaland.

Says the Moscow newspaper Trud: "The political consciousness of the African workers already is sufficiently developed to understand that federation will lead to still more efforts to exploit them." This line now will go into Africa, along with the slogans outlined.

It is a pattern for chaos.

Travel Tips for Visitors to U. K.

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP) — If you're among the thousands going to the Coronation or elsewhere in Europe this summer, here are some travel tips:

Do your shopping in established stores.

Buy those things that reflect the country's tradition, superior craftsmanship or materials.

Avoid shopping in groups.

If you're a man, be sure to take along a suit of dark, lightweight material. The North American casual look is considered inappropriate for city wear, particularly in London.

If you're a woman, don't forget rainwear and walking clothes.

Those were points made here recently by a group of travel atuhorities.

Mrs. Clara Hammond, author of the book "Shop With Confidence in Europe," comments:

"The average tourist would do better to stick to the established shop. You may pay a few shillings more, but you take less risk."

Specifically for the Coronation visitors, Mrs. R. Hammond advises "buy from the English those things that represent a great tradition, that reflect superior craftsmanship and materials. In England or any place else it isn't smart to buy things just because they are British or any other nationality. The only reason is because they're better."

BEWARE "LAZY LOAFERS"

Bert Bachrach, expert on clothing for men, says the "lazy loafer" clothes that North Americans love would make them conspicuous in London. He suggests dark suits containing the new miracle fibres that resist wrinkles and are light in weight.

James Beard, noted gourmet and author of "The Fireside Cook Book," is advising tourists that they can still find elegance in dining out despite Britain's austerity.

"The famous English rib roast has not returned," he said, "but many specialties, such as beef and kidney pie, and magnificent sea food, are in abundance."

RCAF Officers Off Danger List

LONDON (CP)—Six RCAF officers injured in an emergency landing in Germany early this month are all believed out of danger, it has been reported.

Three are still on the seriously ill list, but are not considered in critical condition. They are Air Commodore Keith Hodson of London, Ont., chief of staff of the RCAF's 1st air division, Group Capt. Richard Cox of Sioux Lookout, Ont., senior air staff officer, and Flt. Lt. Ross Gooder of Ottawa.

The six Canadians have been in United States Air Force hospital at Landstuhl, Germany, since April 7, when their transport crashed on a flight from the RCAF base at Zweibrucken, Germany, to Paris.

CAMPBELL IMPROVING

Col. C. H. Smith, executive officer at the Landstuhl hospital, said in a telephone interview that Air Vice-Marshal Hugh Campbell of Fredericton, officer commanding the 1st air division, passed a "fairly comfortable" night and his condition is good. The two other officers involved in the emergency landing, Wing Cmdr. R. A. Ashman of Ottawa and Flt. Lt. W. Unruh of Lucky Lake, Sask., navigator, were the least seriously injured.

"They have been placed in a body cast, otherwise they would soon be walking cases," said Col. Smith.

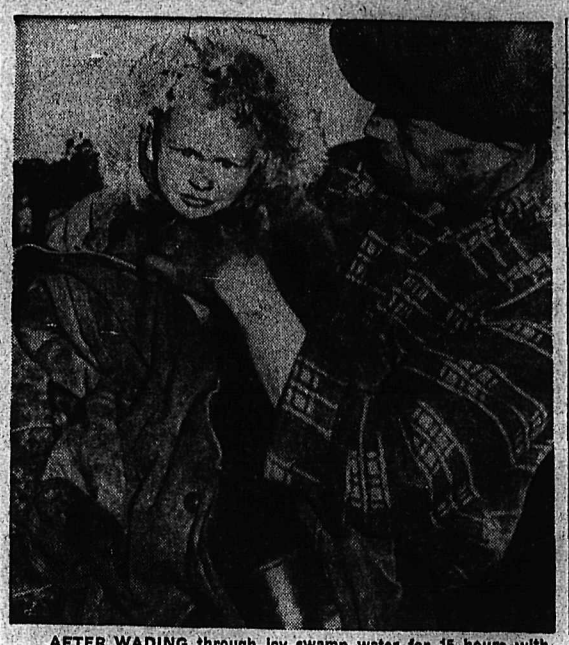
U. S. Consulates Reduced in Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States has decided to reduce the number of its consulates in Canada to 13 from 15, closing offices at Victoria and Hamilton, Ont., the U.S. embassy has announced.

The decision is in line with President Eisenhower's economy drive.

U. S. consular services at Victoria and Hamilton will be halted May 29 with both offices closed permanently before June 30.

Duties will be taken over by the consulates general in Vancouver and Toronto.



AFTER WADING through icy swamp water for 15 hours with 100 other searchers, Willard Lambkin holds his son, Louis, aged three, tear-stained and terrified but otherwise unharmed. The boy had wandered into the marsh from his Owen Sound, Ont., farm and had narrowly missed falling into numerous water holes deep enough to drown a man. Father Willard, 44, followed the boy's footprints until he heard a whimper. "I went through that water as I have never run before," said Mr. Lambkin.—Central Press Canadian.

Funds for five years were guaranteed by the late George McCullagh, then publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail and The Telegram. The basis of support now has been broadened. The Toronto Star, the Montreal Star and the Thomson newspapers have each pledged one year's cost of the awards. Other financial supporters include the Windsor Star, the London Free Press and the Vancouver Sun.

Chinese PoW's Tear Clothing

PUSAN (AP)—Chinese prisoners of war about to be returned to their fellow Reds are deliberately ripping their new clothing—apparently another in their long series of attempts to embarrass the United Nations and furnish fodder for anti-allied propaganda.

Dozens of Communist photographers and reporters have been at negotiation sessions at Panmunjom. They are expected to be on hand when the actual exchange of sick and wounded begins at Panmunjom Monday.

The Reds undoubtedly will try to make propaganda use throughout the world of pictures and word descriptions of Chinese Communist prisoners in dirty, ripped clothing—clothing that three days ago was new.

Both the Chinese and North Korean PoWs who will be repatriated to the Reds next week were issued new army type clothing by the UN Command just before they left allied prisoner camps on Cheju and Koje Islands.

The North Koreans so far have kept their new clothing clean and neat. But the Chinese seem to have deliberately tried to get theirs as dirty and bedraggled as possible.

Canadians Share Palace Guard

LONDON (CP)—The Royal Canadian Regiment, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and the Royal 22nd Regiment will supply Canada's share of the Commonwealth guard at Buckingham Palace during Coronation week, it was announced today by the Canadian joint staff in London.

A guard also may be mounted at Clarence House, prospective town residence of the Queen Mother and Princes Margaret, if it is being occupied by then.

Canada's guard stint will be for the 24 hours of June 5; following Australia May 26, New Zealand May 27, and Pakistan May 29. Ceylon will provide relief guard May 28. South Africa will not be included since her Coronation contingent is comprised largely of officers and non-commissioner officers.

The palace guard duty was inaugurated the 1937 coronation of King George VI when Australia mounted the only 24-hour guard. Canada and the other countries stood in for six hours.

Atomic Energy Exchange Nearer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representative W. Sterling Cole Rep. N. Y. predicts the U. S. atomic energy commission will soon take steps toward exchanging certain atomic information with Canada, now that a procedural bottleneck is clear.

Cole, who is chairman of the Senate-House atomic energy committee, said an agreement on procedure was reached recently during a three-hour committee session.

The atomic information, he said, does not involve atomic weapons themselves, although it is in the weapons field.

At Ottawa, Dr. C. J. Mackenzie, Canada's atomic chief, says that prospects of increased cooperation from the U.S. on exchange of atomic information is "pleasant news."

Dr. Mackenzie, president of Atomic Energy of Canada, Ltd., said he did not know what information is involved in the Washington report but any move to increase the degree of cooperation between the two coutnries is heartening.

New Attack on Heart Disease

By FRANK CAREY

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Super-speed "merry-go-rounds" that whirl 900 times a second are bein gused in a new attack on heart disease.

University of Virginia scientists say these small instruments, called "ultracentrifuges," may provide the basis for a relatively simple blood test that will detect unknowing victims threatened with one of the worst forms of heart disease-hardening of the blood vessels of the heart itself.

The idea is to place a sample of a person's blood in a little tube, attach the tube to the merry-go-round and give it a ride. Centrifugal force, about 250,000 times the force of gravity, separates the constituents of the blood. The heaviest constituents collect at the outer end of the tube, the lightest towards the inner end.

The Virginia scientists are principally interested in the lightest constituents. These are tiny globules of fat which researchers say may play an important role in causing hardening of blood vessels of the heart if present in large quantities.

EAT LESS FATS

The globules come from fats that people eat. They are present to a certain extent in everyone's blood, but it has been found that victims of heart disease show abnormal amounts.

The scientists are working on a theory that an apparently normal person who shows a tendency to retain such globules in his blood for lengthy periods may be a candidate for hardening of the coronary vessels.

If research leads to a definite means of linking these globules with actual development of the heart ailment it may be possible to prevent the onset of the disorder by dietary or other means.

The Virginia scientists said that if the fat globule test works out, a single laboratory technician could test at least 25 blood samples a day.

Seattle to Have Canadian Consul

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will open a Canadian consulate general at Seattle, Wash., and has appointed C. N. Senior, 61, consul at San Francisco since 1948, to head it, the external affairs department announced today.

Mr. Senior, a native of Toronto and a former newspaper man in Toronto, Vancouver and Victoria, will take up his new duties in September.

His successor at San Francisco wil be Paul Redding, 60, of Toronto, also a former newspaper man, who has been with the department's protocol division in Ottawa for some years. As a newspaper man, he held various posts in Brandon, Man., Toronto, Montreal Calgary and Ottawa.

The new Seattle consulate general will serve the states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana and the territory of Alaska, all formerly served by the San Francisco consulate general.

Bucket Elevator For Nervy Fish

WALLA WALLA (AP)—The big bucket method is being used again this year to get steelhead and salmon over McNary Dam in the Columbia River.

Fishway entrances have been completed on both shores of the dam, but the fish cannot yet use the fishways to get past the dam.

The fish are attracted by moving water to the entrances. There a 1500-gallon bucket, handled by a crane at the Washington fishway lifts the fish over the dam. A similar big bucket is used on the Oregon shore fishway.
