Ike Warns Mideast Against Communism

Says Reds Lay in Wait to Tear Down World of Freedom and Justice

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower broadcast a warning to the Middle East countries Monday that "international communism... could smash all their hard won accomplishments overnight."

He was speaking to the world on the 15th anniversary of the Voice of America overseas radio program. The speech was broadcast in 43 languages.

But Eisenhower centred on the Middle East, where some nations have trafficked with the Communists and others have flirted with the idea of doing so.

He cited Hungary as a tragic example of a nation ground down under Soviet oppression.

"While we are going to help build a world of freedom and justice among sovereign people, the masters of international communism are working constantly to tear down this kind of world."

The president's speech also contained an indirect appeal for the Senate to approve his Middle East resolution which the House of Representatives has adopted, to provide for use of American forces in the Middle East, if necessary, and to authorize the spending of $200,000,000 annually there in U. S. economic aid.

The president said:

"I believe that the well-being of the people of the Middle East requires the nations of that region to build up and strengthen their economies and institutions.

"We want to see that kind of progress. My proposals fit right in with this purpose, for they suggest two things:

"First, in order that this constructive work may go on within these countries, they must be free of the menace of international communism, which could smash all their hard-won accomplishments overnight.

GIVE ASSURANCE

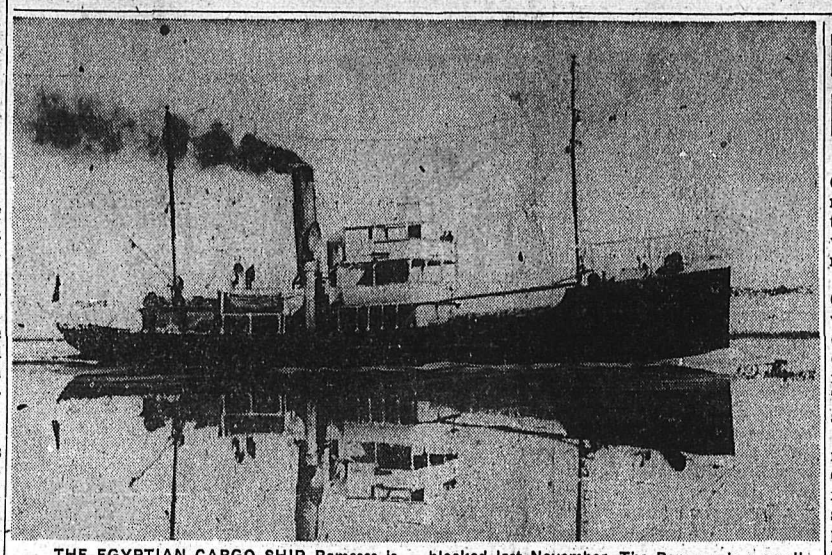
"And so we give these countries the assurance that if such a danger develops, and if the United Nations machinery cannot deal with the danger, and a threatened country asks for help, it can count on our help.

"So, behind the protective arm of this assurance, the real creative work of progress can go on, and, to speed this creative work, an extra measure of economic assistance for the area is included in my proposals."

In an appeal to the religious convictions of countries menaced by communism, Eisenhower said:

"Its avowed program is to destroy the religion, governments, institutions and traditions of the Christian world, the Buddhist world, the Islamic world, the Judaic world, and the world of every religion and culture.

Israel Offers No Compromise Proposal



THE EGYPTIAN CARGO SHIP Rameses is shown heading down the Suez Canal toward Suez with a cargo of medicines, to become the first commercial vessel to navigate the entire 100-mile length of the waterway since it was blocked last November. The Rameses is a small ship (330 tons) and could get by some of the obstacles that remain to be cleared. The canal is still not navigable by large ships.

Pipeline Rears Head in House

OTTAWA (CP) — The Trans-Canada Pipeline debate, which raged so furiously last spring, returned to the Commons Monday with some of its old vigor over a new issue.

Progressive Conservative and CCF members accused the government of trickery in not disclosing last May how many shares of stock were offered to top officials of the government-backed Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. at special rates.

Trade Minister Howe, at whom most of the Conservative - CCF criticism was aimed, said just before the debate opened that he still feels there was nothing improper in the Trans-Canada stock-option provisions.

Defending Trans-Canada during the debate, Social Credit Leader Low said: "A lot of stuff that has been spoken here this afternoon is sheer hypocrisy."

The special debate was precipitated by a CCF motion one day before Trans-Canada was to repay the federal loan around which all the controversy has raged.

The motion called for adjournment of the day's normal business—in this case private legislation—for discussion of the issue. Hesitant Conservative support allowed the motion to be debated.

OTTAWA (CP)—The House of Commons, by a vote of 94 to 39, Monday night rejected a motion charging the House and the country had been misled by not being informed of the extent to which there would be private gain arising from federal assistance to the Trans-Canada pipeline project.

The motion, put by the CCF and supported by the Progressive Conservatives, was defeated by the combined weight of the Liberal and Social Credit members.

UN Hopes for Settlement Dashed After Day's Talks

By LLOYD MCDONALD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (CP) — A feeling of optimism in the United Nations over possible agreement by Israel to end the Middle East deadlock faded Monday night with authoritative word that there has been no change in the stand over withdrawal from the Gaza Strip and the Gulf of Aqaba area.

Up until late Monday afternoon delegations had been cheered by reports from Washington that Israeli Ambassador Abba Eban during weekend talks with State Secretary Dulles of the United States had indicated willingness to negotiate withdrawal terms which might be acceptable to a majority here.

But after a day of closed-door conferences with Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold Eban was reported to have offered no compromise proposal to the UN chief.

External Affairs Minister Pearson of Canada held a hurried conference with Hammarskjold after the Eban talks, and there was a possibility that he would meet the Israeli diplomat later.

PEARSON DOWNCAST

The Canadian minister told reporters as he left the UN that "it looks like no withdrawal" on the basis of Monday's conference in the secretary-general's office.

Pearson appeared downcast by the sudden turn of events. Other delegation heads expressed disappointment that the American mediation efforts appeared to have fallen down—but the Arab sanctions group took the attitude that their tough resolution against Israel may get renewed support.

As a result of the latest developments the General Assembly will meet today at 10:30 a.m. to take up the Middle East crisis again. There had been hope earlier in the day that a co-operative Israeli attitude might head off the sanctions debate altogether.

The African-Asian group which brought in the resolution had just about admitted that its passage was hopeless since the U.S. had indicated it would support Israel in any compromise moves. What the American position will be now was in doubt Monday night.

NO COMMENT

No U.S. delegation member would comment on possible support of the sanctions move, even on a modified, or "moral sanctions" basis. There has been considerable opposition in Congress and elsewhere in the U.S. to this idea.

Pearson, leader of the anti-sanctions delegations, now is expected to speak in the assembly debate today. His speech is expected to outline the position of Canada, Britain, a number of Commonwealth countries and most western Europe delegations who had marked time on their compromise stand pending the result of the U.S. negotiations with Israel outside this world body.

Parliament Backs Ben-Gurion

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion's repeated demands for security first on the Egyptian front won an overwhelming endorsement Monday night in Israel's parliament.

The vote of confidence was 72 to 29 on his firm insistence that guaranteed security and freedom of shipping must precede any withdrawal of Israeli troops from Egypt and Gaza.

What Ben-Gurion told Parliament Monday night indicated no change from the position he took last Thursday at the outset of debate. At that time Ambassador Abba Eban was being briefed here for his return to Washington.

The 70-year-old leader told the Knesset parliament in a major policy speech that Israel faces its most serious struggle since it fought for its life nine years ago.

Strachan Pans Cold Budget

VICTORIA (CP) — A ranging condemnation of the government's record $274,000,000 budget for 1957-58 was delivered in Legislature Monday by CCF opposition leader Robert Strachan.

Mr. Strachan, in launching the budget debate, said this year's budget was "cold—and contains no warmth, it's a good businessman's budget."

He reserved his strongest criticism for lack of additional aid to University of B. C., lack of further aid to old age pensioners and failure of the government to attempt a remedy for the "desperate hospital situation."

"People are still important," he said. "We cannot sit back and say: 'We are doing more than this group or that group, or this government or that government.' "

In striking at the government for not providing additional money for UBC, Mr. Strachan said the government's promise that the door was "always open for a conference" wasn't enough. "The need is now" he said.

He said "It would appear that Premier Bennett was not aware of the importance of the university to British Columbia."

"Industry even now is finding it difficult to get trained personnel. So is the government."

He asked the House if the thinking of the Social Credit Government was reflected in the move of turning down a UBC request for more money after announcing millions will be spent building new liquor stores.

In his long preamble, Mr. Strachan chided the government bookkeeping methods in "shovelling millions from one side to the other from one column to another and even from one year to another."

He also called for a cleanup within the Workmen's Compensation Board and claimed that since the government took over the operation of the board several years ago, it had become "an organization without a heart."

"Any failure on the part of the board to do its job lies squarely at the door of the government.

"Since the government took over, case after case after case has been rejected for no apparent reason." He said if the government could find no loop-hole through which to reject a case "they create one."

Riots Mark India Election

By PETER JACKSON

BOMBAY, India (Reuters)—Reports from Bangalore Monday night said one person was killed and 15 injured in election clashes between rival political groups in two nearby towns on Sunday.

In Bhadravati authorities banned meetings and processions after four persons were injured when members of the Congress party and Praja party Socialists clashed.

The death occurred in Chintamani, where Communists and Congress party supporters fought with sticks and stones.

About 2,000,000 persons voted in the second day of India's general elections—the heaviest day in the three-week voting period which will last until March 14.

Votes were being counted Monday night from 191 parliamentary and 550 state assembly constituencies. Prime Minister Nehru's Congress party won all assembly seats in the early returns.

Nehru's party, which has formed the government for the last 10 years, is expected to retain its overwhelming majority in the parliament and most of the states.

SAY FROGMAN EXAGGERATED

PILSEN, Czechoslovakia (CP)—Police officials Monday described as "very exaggerated" press reports that a column of perfectly preserved German soldiers who were drowned during the Second World War, had been found at the bottom of Devil's Lake in southwest Bohemia.

The officials said they know of no such discovery as reported by the Prague newspaper Lidova Demokratia Sunday. The newspaper said a frogman found the dead soldiers lying in horse-drawn vehicles as he was scouring the bottom of the 120-foot-deep lake for the body of a missing student. Efforts by western reporters to trace the frogman have failed.

Have Evidence Mine Mill Red Controlled

WASHINGTON (AP)—The justice department said Monday it will offer a "convincing preponderance of evidence" to show that the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers is Communist controlled.

The statement came from L. E. Broome, trial lawyer for the department, as the subversive activities control board opened hearings on a petition by the attorney-general to have the mine-mill union declared Communist - infiltrated under terms of the Communist Control Act.

Broome said that for three years before the petition was filed in 1955, the union was "under the tight domination and control of the Communist party."

"A majority of the members of the international executive board have been either party members or so closely affiliated with the party as to be subservient to its wishes," he said in an opening statement on the case.

Woodworkers to Seek Pay Hike

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Province says B.C.'s 30,000 woodworkers will demand a 20-per-cent boost in wages this year.

The paper said the pay demand will be the top item on a program of 13 contract proposals which went before a secret session of the International Woodworkers of America (CLC) convention Monday.

Floods Subside In Oregon

ONTARIO, Ore. (AP) — Flood waters began to recede in southeastern Oregon Monday night after chasing an estimated 700 persons from their homes and damaging property extensively.

The Malheur River dropped about a foot at the point where it flows into the Snake River and the main street at hard-hit Vale, about 20 miles upstream, emerged from the water.

About half that town of 1400 persons still had water in the streets, however, and officials estimated it would be several days before schools can open and other normal functions resume.

Other streams, which flooded when thawing winds melted mountain snows, also began dropping back within their banks.

CLC Admittance Of Mine, Mill to Be Considered

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—George Burt, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers Union, said Monday any move to admit the United Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' Union (Ind.) to the Canadian Labor Congress would "be dealt with at the proper time."

Mr. Burt was commenting on the offer of Harvey Murphy of Vancouver to resign as vice-president of Mine-Mill if it would help the union gain admittance to the CLC.

The new government was Franco's answer to increased unrest and inflation in the Spanish economy.

Hospitals Have Backs To Wall, Says Black

VICTORIA (CP) — British Columbia hospitals are "starved financially and have their backs to the wall" because of the provincial government's wage-freeze directives, Bill Black, president of the B.C. Federation of Labor said Monday.

Mr. Black said the government tells hospitals to hold the line on wage increases and yet "has money running out of its ears."

Also business agent for the B.C. Hospital Employees Union, Local 180, Mr. Black said the 3000 workers he represents will go after substantial wage increases this year.

"Nobody can put his finger on just how much surplus the government has," he said, "yet Martin has the audacity to say he can't spend more on hospitals under the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service."

Mr. Black said the minister budgeted $28,000,000 on BCHIS payments to hospitals last year but spend $1,000,000 or $2,000,000 less.

"And for the coming year he budgets $31,000,000 but the two per cent increase in the sales tax for BCHIS will bring in $34,400,000," he said. "In the meantime hospitals are going broke, especially in the interior. The situation is getting desperate."

SHIP BUILDING BOOM UNDER WAY

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian shipbuilding industry is beginning to cash in on the world shortage of deep-sea ships.

Officials of the Canadian Maritime Commission estimated Monday that Canada's shipyards have orders on hand for about $43,000,000 worth of commercial shipping, considerably ahead of the figure at the same time last year.

While no comparable dollar figures were available, the national office of the Canadian Shipbuilding and Ship Repairing Association said there now are about 14,300 persons employed in the yards of its members against about 12,800 at the start of 1956.

Believes Estonian President Dead

TORONTO (CP)—The last president of the Estonian republic, Konstantin Pats, is dead, his brother says in Toronto.

Waldemar Pats, his 77-year-old brother, said he has received letters from friends which leave little doubt that the elderly statesman died last year as a prisoner of the Soviets after a long illness.

Mr. Pats, a long-time member of the Estonian Senate and a former undersecretary of state, was guest of honor at an independence rally of Estonian-Canadians here.

PILOT RIDES PLANE TO CRASH

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — An iron-nerved U. S. air force pilot rode his crippled F102 jet fighter to a fiery crash on a brush-and-tree covered hill and survived.

"I didn't want to parachute and take the chance that the plane would hit into Tenino or Olympia," said Capt. Edward L. Clark, 37, of Lakewood, Wash.

Clark suffered possible back injuries when he was hurled from the plane as it crashed near the top of a small hill some 600 feet from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Agnew. Clark crawled away as the plane burst into flames.

Dr. Fairey said he did not know whether any specific government action was planned to make the money supply easier, but said he saw "definite signs" of a move along that line.

KIDDIES IN CAR NEARLY GASSED

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Four children were knocked unconscious Sunday by carbon monoxide fumes sucked through the heater of their father's automobile. They were revived through the combined efforts of a hospital staff and Fort William fire department.

Sons of Willam Swartz of Fort William, they are Bruce, 3, Benjamin, 4, who was celebrating his birthday, William Jr., 7, and Gregory, 8.

The father left the boys in the car with the heater running.

Exhaust fumes from a car idling in front were drawn through the heating system and all four children became unconscious.

Mr. Swartz returned to the car 15 minutes later. He removed the children, but initial efforts to revive them proved futile. Mr. Swartz placed them back in the car and sped to the hospital.

Nurses, doctors and firemen went into action and 15 minutes later all were revived.

Effect of Boycott Not Felt Yet

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (Reuters)—The African community here has started a new economic boycott of business controlled by supporters of the ruling Nationalist party.

The African Nationalist Congress called Monday for the boycott as "the second phase of the struggle" against the government's racial segregation policies.

Parliament Monday

By The Canadian Press

The Commons debated a CCF motion charging the government misled Parliament by not saying last year the extent of private profits which would flow from federal aid to Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said the government played "a gigantic trick" in not disclosing the extent of stock options given two top Trans-Canada officials.

Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) said the two company officials were enabled to "make a killing" in buying stocks in advance below the market price

Trade Minister Howe apologized for saying last week that the government did not know last year about the stock option, but said there was nothing improper in the arrangement.

Mr. Howe said federal loans to the Trans-Canada company will be repaid Tuesday.

FLASH BULB SETS OFF ALARM

CHALK RIVER, Ont. (CP)—An accidental explosion of a photographer's flash bulb set off a general alarm at Canada's atomic power project Saturday.

The bulb exploded when about 70 Ottawa high school teachers were visiting the building housing the NRX atomic energy reactor. The explosion set up an electrical disturbance which released the main safety switch in NRX, code name for the reactor.

Releasing of the switch sounded the plant's general alarm system. Horns blared and bells clanged but the visitors were assured there was no danger.

The reactor was back in operation a few minutes after the incident which caused no damage.

A FORMATION of four U.S. made F-84 Thunderjets of the reborn German air force is on patrol and training mission over the German Alps. The planes are identified by the iron cross on the fuselage, revived from World War 1. Lt. Gen. Josef Kammhuber, chief of the German air force, told newsmen on his recent tour of RCAF installations: "We are rapidly building up for Germany a tactical air force which will operate under the North Atlantic Treaty organization (NATO) forces. In about three or four years," the GAF chief said, "we expect to have an effective air force of about 1326 first line jet aircraft, mostly day and all-weather fighter-interceptors. Our mission will be to operate under the NATO plan as a shield force to protect Allied striking forces—if Western Europa is ever attacked by the Communists."

OTTAWA (CP) — CCF leader M. J. Coldwell Monday was taken by ambulance to civic hospital from the Parliament buildings after suffering a suspected mild heart attack.

Mrs. D. P. Carman of Ottawa, Mr. Coldwell's daughter, said she understands her father suffered a mild heart attack. However, she said the cause of his illness has not yet been definitely determined.

Mr. Coldwell, who suffered a mild heart seizure in 1952, will be confined to hospital for some weeks. He will be absent from his parliamentary duties for a further period.

A native of England and a resident of Canada since 1910, Mr.

SEEK REASON CARNIVAL BID REFUSED

TRAIL (CP) — The Trail-Tadanac Board of Park Commissioners will ask city council why an application from a touring carnival company to play in Trail was refused recently.

At their monthly meeting Monday, the park commisisoners said they thought council had refused a nice chunk of revenue for Butler Park where the Royal Canadian Shows had asked to set up its attractions for three days in May. Said one commissioner: "People like to have one show of that kind a year."

The meeting referred to the labor relations committee a request from the Trail district civic works union for a parks board salary scale eight cents an hour below that in effect for comparably classified hourly rated employees of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada Ltd.

Chairman G. Ortner said he would investigate the possibility of giving salaried employees raises comparable to those granted workers employed on an hourly basis.

Greyhound bus service is back to normal. A bus that was held in Nakusp over Sunday night in case of slides in the Cape Horn area arrived in Nelson several hours late Monday.

Telephone crews reported no trouble. Truck service was "a little slower," with some delays of up to five or six hours.

Restore Rossland Water Service

ROSSLAND (CP) — Water service was restored to normal in Rossland Monday. Taps had been dry since Friday morning.

A city official said a break had been discovered in a six-inch main at Queen Street and Columbia Avenue which is thought to be the cause of the trouble.

Reports that the city reservoir had run dry were emphatically denied.

"The big reservoir holds 23,500,000 gallons," a city spokesman said. "To say it had run dry would be fantastic. The level in the smaller reservoir that is supplied from the big one had gone down, however."

Increased Wages To Be 1957 Mine, Mill Union Objective

KIMBERLEY — Substantially increased wages in 1957 employer-miner contracts will be a main objective of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Canada) in 1957, president Nels Thibault of Local 598, Sudbury, reported to the ninth annual convention here Monday.

Reason is the increasing cost of living, he said, which he ascribed to spending for capital expansion which led to price increase of the commodity, and was not due to previous wage increases. He cited the 9½ cents increase in the consumer price of nickle, which he said was due to capital cost of company expansion in Northern Manitoba and not to meet higher wage requirements, with the increased profit out of proportion to the per man production cost.

Other three main points he stressed for inclusion in new agreements would be establishment of penalty pay premiums for weekend work, earlier retirement at full pension, and paid sick leave with major improvements in health and safety provisions.

On the subject of Mine-Mill-Smelter organization of the last year he reported wide national headway in new locals from Newfoundland to Vancouver Island with over 20 new local charters, and particularly active organization work in uranium development as at Blind River and Bancroft, Ontario. He accused the United Steel Workers of collusion with employers in uranium employee organization, and bluntly linked the government in three-way collusion in the Bancroft, Ontario, efforts at employee organization.

RESTRICTIONS ELIMINSTED

Dealing with the delicate point of affiliation in the national labour organization, he reported approaches so far had been in the form of overtures to his union, and preliminary discussion had already taken place among officers of the Canadian Labour Congress and the union, but main consideration would be preservation of his union's integrity. He said restrictions on Mine - Mill Union by the Canadian Congress of Labour which led to its expulsion from the congress three years ago have now largely been eliminated under the merged and reorganized Canadian Labour Congress.

Guest speakers and delegates from west of here continued to arrive during the day. Frustration met those who had commercial airline reservations for Saturday when the heaviest snowfall of the Winter cancelled flights into here, and those transferring travel plans to railway to arrive here at 2 a.m. Monday encountered snowslide delays at Midway, then a further snowslide at Blake which held their train several hours on the west side of Kootenay Lake. They arrived in Cranbrook in early evening 15 hours late. The included Abe Moffat, President of the Scottish Miners' Union. Main purpose of his 6000 - mile journey was in answer to an invitation to be principal guest speaker at the convention.

The "false alarm" was blamed on a broken circuit in the alarm system. Fire Chief E. S. Owens said city electrical crews repaired the damage shortly after.

Under terms of city fire bylaw 1096, chimneys must be cleaned at least once a year or as often as necessary to reduce fire hazards.

QUIET!
genius at work...

This budding virtuoso used to drive his family crazy; a trombone in the hands of a beginner can be trying on the nerves.

Things are better now. Father built him a practice room ... thoroughly soundproofed...with money he'd saved through a special account at the Royal Bank.

You may not need a room of this type in your house, but you may hope some day for a playroom, nursery, guest room, even major renovations. These cost money. So do practically all the good things you have planned for the future.

The wise course is to school yourself to set aside a fixed amount every pay day, and tuck it away in a savings account at the "Royal". This way you are sure to have cash when you need it. After all ... there's nothing quite like money in the bank.

TWO PERSONS MISSING IN KOOTENAYS, STILL SOUGHT

Two persons have been missing in different parts of the Kootenay in recent weeks and are still the objects of RCMP searches.

One is an elderly man from Manitoba who disappeared in Cranbrook in January.

The other person who disappeared more recently is a young woman who left a Trail boarding house February 13 and hasn't been seen since.

No trace is reported yet of Carl Dresler, 75, of Morden, Man., who vanished January 11 shortly after getting off a Greyhound bus at Cranbrook.

He was reported at a cafe, and stopped to ask directions at a garage near the cabin of his son, Alec, where he was thought to be going. His wife died after he had left Morden. It was his first trip west.

The man is described as being of Czechoslovakian origin, five feet eight inches tall, 180 pounds, fair complexion, with a bushy mustache and ring of white hair.

A 21-year-old stenographer with the West Kootenay Health Unit, Miss Grace Frolak, is reported still missing after she left her boarding house in Trail February 13.

Miss Frolak's landlady found a note the next morning intimating to the missing woman's sister, Mrs. H. M. Buckna, Creston, that her body would be found in the Columbia River.

Police describe her as a slight five feet three inches, weighing 115 pounds, and having short brown hair, round features and brown eyes. She usually wears glasses.

RAILWAYS BENEFIT

LONDON (CP)—Passenger traffic on the railways has increased by one-fifth since the gasoline shortage hit Britain. An official report said railway freight traffic also has increased.

Brown Rot Control Needed Curb $30,000 Loss to Cherry Growers

CRESTON — Brown rot, a fungus disease of stone fruits, caused a loss of approximately $30,000 to Kootenay cherry growers in 1956 and, if weather conditions are favorable for the development of that disease again during 1957, similar losses could be experienced unless adequate control measures are taken.

Of all the fungus diseases with which Kootenay tree fruit growers have to contend with, brown rot is by far the most difficult to control, J. E. Swales, district horticulturist here, states. In an unusually wet season satisfactory control of the disease cannot be expected even where most careful control measures have been carried out. On the other hand, however, by following a careful control program, cherry growers can consideably reduce losses due to brown rot. Although results of such a program may not be evident during the first season, particularly if that season is wet, over a period of years the grower who carries out a complete brown rot control program can expect to be rewarded for his efforts by better financial returns from his cherry crop.

The bown rot organism "carries over" from one season to another on infected fruits, often referred to as "mummies", which have remained on the trees or dropped to the ground. The disease will also carry over on infected twigs and spurs. Although brown rot infection may occur at almost any time during the growing season, if weather conditions are favorable for development of the disease there are usually two principal brown rot infection periods during the season. The first infection period extends from the time growth commences in the spring until the developing fruit attains a size of about ¼ inch in diameter. In some seasons blossom infection may be so severe that little or no fruit begins to ripen and will extend throughout the picking season. Warm, wet, humid weather conditions favor the development of brown rot.

In a brown rot control program, there are three operations which must be carefully carried out. One operation is just as important as the other: 1. Provision of good air drainage; 2, sanitation; 3, spray program.

1. Provision of good air drainage—In an orchard completely surrounded by trees and bush, air circulation is restricted. Under such conditions, following a rain or heavy dew, the trees remain wet for a considerably longer period of time than trees in an orchard situated in a more exposed location and conditions are more favorable for the development of brown rot. Similar conditions exist in an orchard in which the trees have been closely planted or in which the trees have been allowed to become too dense due to lack of thorough pruning. Therefore, the first steps which must be taken in a brown rot control program are: (1) removal of timber and bush surrounding the orchard where such growth restricts the movement of air through the orchard; (2) removal of alternate cherry trees in a closely planted orchard to permit better air circulation through the orchard, and (3) thorough pruning of all trees to permit better circulation of air through each individual tree and to facilitate complete spray coverage.

2. Sanitation—Sanitation consists of the removal of all "mummified" fruit and infected twigs from the orchard before the growing season commences. This is a very tiresome but important job. All infected fruit and twigs should be burned or buried. If a serious outbreak of the disease has occurred it would be advisable to prune out all cankers and dead spurs in early fall while the trees are still in full leave since infected spurs and shoots are more readily detected at that time. "Mummies" should not be knocked off the trees and left lying on the ground where they may serve as a source of brown rot infection for several years. Since the disease organism may remain alive for at least ten years in mummified fruits or in cankers on spurs and twigs, the plowing under of diseased fruits and/or wood cannot be considered an effective means of disposing of such a source of infection. Therefore, it is recommended that all fruit remaining on the trees after harvest be stripped from the trees and disposed of immediately after the harvest season.

It is suggested that further sanitary measures be carried out just prior to picking time. All cherry trees should be carefully inspected just before picking is to commence and, if brown rot infection is not too severe, all clusters of fruit infected with brown rot could be removed.

3. Spray program — Until recent years no fungicide has provided very satisfactory control of brown rot and even those fungicides used today, cannot be expected to provide adequate control of brown rot in an exceptionally wet year or in an orchard where adequate measures to provide good air circulation and sanitation were not carried out. Nevertheless, fungicides such as dichlone and captan, when used as recommended, will definitely reduce the amount of infection during any year and, during a year of moderate brown rot infection, the application of those fungicides could mean the difference between profit and loss to the cherry grower.

The spray program recommended for 1957 for areas in which brown rot has been a serious problem during recent years is as follows:

Time of application	Fungicide
Pink stage of blossom development	Dichlone
Full bloom	Dichlone
Pre-shuck-fall	Dichlone
Shuck-fall	Captan
10 days after shuck-fall	Captan
Pre-pick (just before picking each variety)	Captan

It is recommended that dichlone be applied at the rate of three pounds per acre in concentrate sprays or ½ pound per 100 gallons of spray in dilute sprays. Although the dichlone-wettable sulphur combination has not been tested in the Kootenays, results of experimental work conducted in the eastern United States indicate that the addition of wettable sulphur to dichlone sprays brings about improved control of brown rot. Therefore, it is suggested that wettable sulphur be added to the dichlone sprays at the rate of three pounds of wettable sulphur per 100 gallons of spray in dilute sprays and 10 pounds of wettable sulphur per acre in concentrate sprays. Captan should be applied at the rate of 10 pounds per acre in concentrate sprays or two pounds per 100 gallons in dilute sprays.

The spray schedule should provide good control of brown rot in a normal season but additional sprays will be required during a season when unusually heavy rainfall or dew is experienced.

100 Delegates at Union Convention

Contract Renewals to Be Discussed, Possibilities for Affiliation

KIMBERLEY — The ninth annual Canadian convention of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers opened here Monday morning with Kimberley's Local 651 host to approximately 100 delegates from locals in Quebec, Ontario, Saskatchewan, Alberta, Yukon, North-West Territory and British Columbia.

It will continue all week in daily morning and afternoon sessions with major business scheduled to include the possibility of affiliation in the Canadian Labor Council. Former affiliate in the Trades and Labor Congress, Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers have been independent since the autonomy convention in Rossland in 1955.

National secretary William Longridge of Uranium City and Toronto, reported main business of the convention would be discussion and decision on terms for renewal of the current agreements between the union and the various companies whose employee bargaining rights the union holds. Executive board recommendations call for basic wage scale increases in 1957. Other special items in the recommendations include revision of the employee pension plan on a "mobile" basis where the employee pension standing would be continued without setback in the event of a change of employer. In view of the certainty of a dominion election this year there will be strong emphasis on discussion of political action and proposed legislation for implementation in dominion law. Also included in the executive recommendations to the membership for agreements is incorporation of a new wage premium differential for Sunday work by shift workers not on the regulation five-day week.

The Canadian section of the union has approximately 60 locals across Canada with total membership of about 3400. International president Nels Thibault of Sudbury, and vice-presidents William Kennedy of Sudbury and Harvey Murphy are in attendance, along with secretary Longridge. International officers here are vice-president Orville Larson of Arizona, and International board member Chase Powers of Spokane.

President of Local 651, Kimberley, R. C. Thompson, declared the convention open and the invocation was given by Rev. John Cheevers.

Today there will be two guest speakers. James Byrne, Liberal member of parliament for East Kootenay and a past president of Local 651, has returned to his home town to deliver an address. The other speaker will be Abe Moffat of Edinburgh, president of the Scottish Miners' Union, currently on a tour of Canada.

Slocan Starts Fund For Minister's Widow

NEW DENVER — The Slocan's sympathy — and its generosity — were extended Monday to the young widow and nine-months-old child of an Anglican clergyman killed Sunday by a slide at Woodbury Creek near Ainsworth.

Rev. John W. Spurrell who had come only a few months ago from the Maritimes to minister to the parish of Kaslo-Slocan, was killed while en route to conduct evening service at St. Mark's, Kaslo.

In a spontaneous gesture of sympathy for his widow who will be returning to her New Brunswick home, persons of all denominations and racial backgrounds had come forth with $700 by noon Monday.

And still more money was being volunteered in a heart-warming demonstration of kindness for the bereaved wife.

"It seems as if it's only the start," a New Denver resident told The Daily News.

"Most of the money was given in an hour and a half house to house canvass Sunday afternoon when we heard of Mr. Spurrell's death."

"More people have been calling this morning with envelopes containing money or cheques."

In Silverton and Slocan City, two other communities within the parish, donations were coming in. Kaslo sent $100 to the fund, and organizations are expected to be among other contributors.

For proper handling of the overwhelming and unexpected public gesture, the Rev. J. W. Spurrell Memorial Fund has been started. John Bowron, John McClaus and Deb Irwin are in charge, and all gifts will be turned over to Mrs. Spurrell before she begins her trip back to New Brunswick.

A Newfoundlander by birth and a veteran of the Second World War, Mr. Spurrell, 36, was young in the ministry. He came to New Denver five months ago from the parish of Harcourt and Weldford, near Moncton, N.B.

It was his practice to conduct services in the Slocan and then travel by car to Kaslo for Sunday evening service.

In Summer the regular travel route is via the "loop" road between New Denver and Kaslo, but this road, slide-riddled in winter, is closed to traffic. Mr. Spurrell therefore travelled the long route via Nelson. On Sunday's trip he was struck down and buried at Woodbury, a bad slide area.

HOW MUCH IS A USED CAR WORTH?

Depends on the make, the model, and the year, of course. Every dealer tries to tell you his make is worth the most.

Here are the facts! The resale value of every make, model, and year is listed in the TADA Used Car Guide, the official "bible" of the industry. And here's what the TADA Guide shows:

"I listened to rumor!"

"I got the facts!"

A used Studebaker is worth more than other cars in the low price field, model for model, year for year. For example, the 1956 Studebaker 4-door President has the highest average resale value of all comparable V8's in its price class—both in percentage and in actual dollars and cents.

The British Columbia Budget

Mr. Bennett describes the provincial budget for 1957 as a "cautious" budget. The truth is that our federal and provincial governments seem to be suffering from an embarrassment of riches. The result is a budget which has no major change in taxation and even looks forward to a surplus.

The 1957 budget is the largest on record, with an estimated revenue of $268,444,000 and an estimated expenditure of $208,000,526. This leaves a surplus of approximately $59,000,000 for 1957. Since there is already on hand a surplus of $49,000,000 to be disposed of, it is probable that the end of the year will see the government with an even larger surplus.

The fears of the CCF that the provincial government would restore the personal income tax have been proved to be groundless, as might have been expected of a government which has such a large surplus.

The largest item in the list of anticipated revenue is the sales tax. This is expected to bring in $106,652,000, which is not far short of the combined totals of the next two revenue producers, the federal-provincial tax rental agreement and income from natural resources. They are $59,370,000 and $58,604,000 respectively. Apart from the $23,800,000 from government enterprises all other sources of revenue are small.

From this it would appear that the financial strength of the budget rests upon the flourishing state of the sales tax, which is a bonanza for the government.

The government's greatest expenditure will be on roads, bridges and ferries, for which an extra $3,000,000 has been allocated. Capital expenditure will cost $57,868,785 and education $48,850.21. It is disappointing, however, that the grant to the university has not been increased.

To ease the burden of its surplus the government will provide funds for a rebate of $28 on taxes paid by home owners. This will be especially welcome to those pensioners who own their own homes. Indirectly it should benefit the municipalities, who are getting no increased help from the government. They will, however, benefit by increased grants to their population increases.

Allowances to old age pensioners will not be increased since the government considers this is primarily the responsibility of the federal government. It is quite likely that it has been counting on the province to eke out their scanty allowance, but this province has done well by its pensioners.

Taken all in all, there are few controversial items in the budget, which appears to take care of the needs of the province.

A Good Citizen

British Columbia mourns the loss of one whose name has been well known and honored in the province. The Hon. W. C. Woodward, former Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, was integrally connected with the economic growth of the province and participated not only in the management of the store which bears the family name, but in other enterprises which were of benefit to the province.

In his private life Mr. Woodward was devoted to his country — he served overseas in the Canadian Artillery — and to the province of which he was so proud. It will be recalled that during his term of office as Lieutenant-Governor he spared no effort to visit as much of the province as possible to express his love and belief in the future of British Columbia.

He was active in community life, serving on organizations having to do with public welfare, and was founder and patron of the Vancouver Little Theatre Association.

In every way Mr. Woodward was an example of a good citizen. The sympathy of the whole province will be extended to his family, mingled with pride in his achievements.

Creating a V-P President

Most of the comment on Vice-President Nixon's plans and prospects tends to be personal and political. Naturally, perhaps, it has centered on the possibility of his becoming the Republican presidential nominee in 1960. His own Inaugural Day assertion of his intention to play a larger role in the administration has set off fresh speculation about his future.

It seems to us, however, that more attention should be directed to an impersonal and nonpolitical aspect of this situation. We refer to the need for developing the office of Vice-President into one of far greater stature and usefulness than it has ever possessed. Mr. Nixon's assumption of important tasks can help in this development. So can President Eisenhower's efforts to bring the Vice-President into closer touch with executive operations.

But even more decisive will be the role of public opinion and what happens in the next two or three national conventions of both parties. For the heart of this problem is nomination of men of presidential caliber for this office. Too often conventions have named mediocrities or leaders of an opposing faction within the party. The idea has usually been to patch up party quarrels or enlist a certain bloc of votes rather than to name a man qualified to take over the top post.

If this practice were to continue it would be virtually impossible to build up the vice-presidency so that the holder of the office would be able to share important tasks and be prepared to succeed in an emergency. If Mr. Nixon — and the President — can make the office increasingly important, public opinion is more likely to demand qualified candidates for it.

But that will be only one step in an essential change; the cementing in of a new precedent will require continuing public insistence and action by the parties in successive conventions. In the long run what happens to the Vice-President could prove less meaningful for the nation than what happens to the vice-presidency.

A little parsley sprinkled over the top is a tasty addition.

British By-Elections

One swallow doesn't make a summer and one by-election does not mean the downfall of a government. But capture by the Labor Party of a Conservative seat in the United Kingdom has been a bit of a shock.

It really shouldn't be any surprise, however. A prominent British Conservative expressed the opinion, even in advance of this by-election, that if there were a general election now the Conservatives would be defeated.

That is only one man's opinion, but there are seven more by-elections coming. If these should confirm the trend of North Lewisham, a London constituency, then Rt. Hon. Harold Macmillan and his associates have their work cut out for them to recapture the public's goodwill before a general election is necessary.

The Anglo - French intervention against Egypt split the United Kingdom down the middle. Its aftermath has been accompanied by disillusion. There are many evidences of this, including the exodus of people from the United Kingdom. — Windsor Star.

Hidden Taxes

Consumers of tobacco and liquor have not recently complained with one voice about taxation on these commodities but it is about time they did. Not for the reason that taxation on tobacco and liquor is particularly unjust but because the taxation is hidden.

Every man, whether he likes his poison to be quick or slow, should know what he is being taxed and should know that he has to pay for the government services of which he takes advantage.

Had he been required to pay this money directly instead of indirectly he might be a great deal more interested in how it was spent. — Peterborough Examiner.

Report From Victoria

The third week of the Session is rolling by with the debate on the Speech from the Throne coming to an end last Thursday evening.

During this debate all the new members of the House spoke, and it was interesting to listen to the story of B.C. unfold. These talks were about the respective ridings from all parts of B.C., and being new members they were fareful to give a descriptive picture of their areas.

Undoubtedly all the talks of the government members were true to form in regard to a certain amount of apple polishing, but that is expected. Many of the new members advocated improvements in the pensions, compensation and welfare laws which we have been advocating year after year. I hope they will support some of the amendments that we are proposing, but I am afraid they will be put back in line by that time. It is rather amusing to hear so many talk one way, and when the opportunity is given to them to give tangible support to their ideas, that support is not there.

The Wenner-Gren project has received some discussion since the night sitting, and it is one subject that the Cabinet seems a little nervous on. The government backbenchers are all giving their support to the government, on the grounds that no commitments are made. It is difficult for anyone to accept this, since no one is going to spend five million dollars for surveys without some concessions. My opinion is that the attraction of a monorail railroad was the bait that led the government to commit 40,000 square miles of B.C. to foreign interests. Although I disagree, I hope that the future generations will not be the losers.

MAIDEN SPEECH

Mrs. Haggen, member for Grand Forks, gave her maiden speech on Tuesday. She said it was difficult to understand how a matron could give a maiden speech. She did very well, and discussed many items. Some were local to the Grand Forks area, such as the rattlesnake industry. We were glad she did not present each member with a rattler. I am sure if she did the House would have adjourned without too much dignity. She also spoke on questions such as mental health, which concerns all the people in the province.

Randolph Harding gave his contribution on Wednesday, and covered many problems. The Elections Act and its deficiencies were given some of his time; also, the power development on the Columbia, with a strong plea for this development to take place under some form of public authority.

Mr. Bonner, the Attorney-General, also spoke on power, but gave one the impression that this great natural resource "Power on the Columbia" may be given away to private interests.

Few Bills have been brought in as yet. The only one of any consequence is the one on "Compensation for Blind Workmen for Injuries". The purpose of this Bill is to encourage industry to give work to blind people by relieving them of a proportion of responsibility if they are injured. We of the Opposition intend to bring in an amendment to this to include "deaf-mutes" as well.

This afternoon Friday, Feb. 22, the budget will be brought down, and millions of dollars will be bandied around like ten pins. I will be able to tell you more about that next week.

With that I will say "Au Revoir" for this week.

ONE of the world's best-dressed women is dainty Lily Pons. The famous singer gives careful thought to her appearance and looks as lovely as she sounds. Here she has posed for us in what she calls her Cinderella dress, which was designed by Count Sarmi of Elizabeth Arden. The gown has a strapless heart-shaped top of white satin and the skirt is a great swirl of black point d'esprit. It is draped from high under each arm to a deep waistline in back. At front, it reaches the floor at sides and in back, is short at center. Long black suede gloves complete an exquisite study in black and white. Cinderella at the ball didn't look lovelier, we're sure.

Doctor Should Be Informed of Ulcer

By DR. H. N. BUNDESEN

An ulcer is not a confidential matter. In fact, with so many businessmen and others suffering from ulcers these days, it has almost become a subject for everyday conversation.

When you consult a doctor for any trouble at all, certainly you should inform him immediately if you have, or think you have, an ulcer, even if that isn't what is bothering you.

If you plan to have any chest surgery done it's extremely important that your surgeon is aware of any ulcers you may have.

This is especially true in cases of pulmonary tuberculosis.

However, not many patients with pulmonary TB will also have a peptic ulcer, but there are some unfortunates who have both.

COMPLICATIONS DEVELOPED

A recent study in England disclosed that 15 persons developed a complication of their peptic ulcers following operations for pulmonary tuberculosis.

A complication such as gastro-intestinal hemorrhage is a grave emergency. It's not always easy to control a bleeding ulcer.

Should a partial gastrectomy become necessary, the tubercular lung condition is likely to become worse.

In most cases, we can operate safely even if an ulcer is present if only we know about it beforehand. We can treat the ulcer adequately and operate on the lung efficiently and without undue danger.

This may be a rather drastic example of what can happen if you don't tell your doctor all about your physical condition when you ask him to help you.

Varieties of Steak, Ways to Cook Listed

By MARGARET CARR

The question uppermost in many shoppers' minds is "What is the difference between the various kinds of steak and how should each be cooked?"

Flank Steak: This is from the flank of the animal, and it is a flat, lean piece of meat with coarse fibres running lengthwise. As it is not a tender cut of meat, it should be cooked by a moist heat method such as braising. The meat should be scored or pounded before cooking to break down the long fibres. Braised stuffed flank steak served with gravy is a popular dish in many Canadian homes. In my own kitchen, flank steak is one of my favorite stew meats. I cut it in serving-size pieces, brown it in a little fat and use it in the various stew recipes I am testing. It is one of the more inexpensive cuts of beef, and there is no wastage.

Round Steak: This is cut from the hip section next to the rump. It is an oval-shaped lean piece of meat containing a small round bone. Round steak may be divided into top and bottom round. Top round contains one muscle and is tender enough (in Grades A and B) to be panfried or broiled. Most round steak, however, is braised and used in such dishes as "Swiss Steak."

Cube or Minute Steaks: These are thin, boneless slices of lean meat from moderately tender and less tender cuts of beef. The coarse fibres are broken down through pounding and scoring or cubing by a machine. They are usually panfried.

Sirloin Steak: This is cut from the sirloin section of the loin which is between the porterhouse and the round. This is the largest of the tender steaks. The amount and shape of the bone and proportion of tenderloin in sirloin steaks, depends on their position in the cut. Those next to the porterhouse have more tenderloin than those next to the round. Sirloin steaks should be panfried or broiled.

Porterhouse Steak or T-Bone Steak is from the loin section. It contains a T-shaped bone and most of the tenderloin. Sometimes the tenderloin is removed and sold separately as "filet mignon." Both porterhouse and tenderloin are tender cuts best cooked by panfrying or broiling.

Wing or Club Steak comes from the front part of the loin section next to the rib section. It is one of the smaller steaks, triangular in shape and contains rib bone. Wing steak should be panfried or broiled.

WORKING WOMEN

Of the total Australian "work force" in 1954, there were 845,600 females compared to 2,870,000 males.

SACK, GARB JUDGED BEST AT HARD TIMES PARTY

The newly-formed Couples Club of St. Paul's - Trinity enjoyed its first social event in the form of a "hard times party."

Many humorous costumes were worn, and Mr. and Mrs. Gallicano were crowned king and queen of the hoboes for their costumes fashioned entirely from sacking.

Four women competed in a pancake flipping contests and Ethel Bunt won the prize for the first flip. Another laughter-provoking contest was one in which blindfolded women lathered and shaved their men. Joyce Gallicano was judged the winner while Jack Martin was the good-natured subject. Many "prizes" were given out for other contests and spot dances.

The "hoboes" then gathered around an "open fire" in the centre of the room. Tin-cans were soon filled from a big pot of beans on a self-service plan. Candles in old bottles were placed around the circle and made a perfect setting for the Negro spirituals which followed. Merlin Bunt played the accompaniment while Rev. E. Donovan Jones led the singing.

A vote of thanks was extended to the planning committee. The social came to a close with an inspiring prayer by the minister.

Nehru Dedicates His Life to Making India Powerful Nation

By V. M. NAIR

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, who celebrated his 66th birthday Nov. 14, during the last eight years has come to occupy a position of popularity and strength never before achieved in Indian history.

Before India attained independence in 1947, Nehru was the idol of the Indian masses, next only to Mahatma Gandhi. Today, he is the most powerful man in India and the undisputed leader of the nation.

NO HECKLING

His popularity has become an established feature of the Indian scene. Even the slightest criticism of him by any Indian is looked upon as "treason" by many Indians. Recently, when students of Gujerat University heckled him while he was trying to address them, both press and public unanimously condemned the students' action.

Nehru's power both inside the cabinet and outside is almost absolute. But, with ingrained respect for democracy, he has bent all his energies to developing a parliamentary democracy in India.

Dedicated to the task of making India an industrially-advanced nation, to arising the standard of living of the people and to welding them into a powerful nation, Nehru often gets impatient at the country's slow progress.

In addition to being prime minister, Nehru also is the foreign minister and chairman of both the atomic energy commission and the planning commission. In his preoccupation with foreign affairs and his efforts to spread the spirit of coexistence abroad, he is helped by V. K. Krishna Menon, a member of the cabinet without portfolio.

Nehru works 14 to 18 hours a day. His day starts at about 7:30 a.m. and sometimes goes on far into the night. He enjoys excellent health and does physical fitness exercises regularly, including a few minutes of "sirasasana" —the Yogi exercise of standing on one's head.

Many believe the prime minister should try to groom someone of sufficient political integrity and popularity to succeed him. Some say that Nehru favors Jai Prakash Narayan, 54 year - old American - educated Socialist leader, as his successor. But Narayan recently declared his intention of giving up politics.

The only other likely successor being mentioned is Morarji Desai, now the chief minister of Bombay. Desai, 60, is a man of unquestioned political integrity and principles.

Naval Stoker Revives Anastasia Story

LONDON (Reuters) — A 73-year-old former naval stoker made newspaper headlines here Monday with a suggestion that the Grand Duchess Anastasia of Russia was rescued by the British Navy in 1918.

William Stevens was quoted as saying that on an autumn Sunday in 1918 a 17-year-old girl and an older woman were taken aboard the battleship Agamemnon off Sebastopol.

Stevens, who was serving on board the Agamemnon, said that officers and men aboard believed she was Anastasia.

ASKED TO SEE LOG BOOK

The battleship raced to Malta with the girl and the woman.

Stevens, who says the two were taken elsewhere from Malta, told his story to Sydney Irving, his local member of Parliament who intends to ask the admiralty to produce the Agamemnons log book.

An admiralty spokesman said Monday this would take days and require special permission.

The Daily Mail says that a check of men in power at the admiralty at the time showed that only former prime minister Sir Winston Churchill is still alive.

Movie Gossip...

Hollywood Stars Keeping Fingers Crossed as Oscar Time Draws Near

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Hollywood is in the midst of the dizzy carnival of Oscar. It will last until March 27, when the winners go happily home with little gold statuettes which cost about $100 but can be worth millions.

Since the night that Janet Gaynor and Emil Jannings won the 1927 awards of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, this has been Hollywood's greatest show of the year. Actors are zany people anyway, but when they get in contention for Oscar —watch out.

Every trick of the trade is used, all's fair in love, war and the Oscar race.

CAN'T BE BOUGHT

Just how is he won:

If you take the case histories of last year's two top winners, you won't find any pattern. Ernest Borgnine and Anna Magnani could not have sought the awards in more divergent ways. Yet it's doubtful if either could have won any other way. Still, their cases are reasonably typical, so let's examine them.

First, scandal magazines to the contrary, Oscar can't be bought. It's true that a winner may spend $10,000 on a successful campaign. But the losers may spend twice as much.

Marty, the movie which made a major star of Borgnine and won as last year's best picture, cost only $343,000 to make.

Yet, Hacht-Lancaster, the makers, and United Artists, the distributors, spent more than $500,000 advertising it. It was money well invested, for the picture now has grossed more than $6,000,000.

SLEEPER OF THE YEAR

Publicity man behind the campaign was Walter Seltzer, since turned producer.

Seltzer recalls he knew he had an Oscar contender to sell from the moment he first saw a rough cut of the film.

"The picture was the sleeper of the year and Borgnine's performance was the greatest I'd ever seen. But I knew that both had to be exposed to the maximum to win an Oscar," says Seltzer.

When Oscar time rolled around, Seltzer had exposed "Marty" and Borgnine like a nudist camp. The two were shoo-ins for the awards.

REFUSED PUBLICITY

Magnani, in contrast, refused to do anything her publicity advisers wanted. When producer Hal Wallis asked her to come to New York to attend the opening of The Rose Tatoo, she cabled, "No thanks."

"Magnani wants to be judged only on her performance, not her handshaking ability," she told Wallis. It was an answer in keeping with her outspoken Italian character and it worked with the voters.

Oscar voting is a secret affair, so secret that even George Seaton, the president of the academy, is just as surprised as the television viewers when the winners are announced.

This year 16,721 members of the motion picture industry guilds are eligible to vote for the nominations. Actors nominate actors, directors nominate directors and musicians nominate songs.

But the ultimate winners are picked only by the 1770 members of the Academy. These come from the creative branches of the industry—actors, directors, writers, designers and the like.

The only people who know the closemouthed tabulators of the winners beforehand are a few accounting firm of Prince Waterhouse and Co.

CH. REFLECTION of Fearnought, owned by William W. Wakelee, of Los Angeles, Calif., reflects the feeling of a sad loser after missing out on the big prize in the Westminster show. Although she missed out on the big prize, the pooch, nicknamed "Maggie" won best of breed in the bulldog class.

Offer $250 For Centennial Song

NEW WESTMINSTER — Song writers, amateur and professional, and all those feel they have a melody within them, will have a chance to win fame and money in the B.C. Centennial Song Competition.

A prize of $250 is being offered for a song suitable to publicize the B.C. 1958 Centenary. The competition is open to all residents of British Columbia.

L. J. Wallace, Chairman of the B.C. Centennial Committee, in an address to the New Westminster Community Programmes Branch, said:

WANT SIMPLE MELODY

"We are looking for a song which is unmistakably British Columbian in character. Its lyrics and melody line should be simple in order that it may be picked up easily and sung by large groups of people at Centennial Celebrations throughout the Province.

"The composer may write the song in any style he chooses, from a ballad written around the exploits of the prospectors in the 1858 Gold Rush to a straight lyric rhapsodizing the beauties of B.C.'s Evergreen Playground."

The winning song will be arranged for orchestra, band and mixed chorus for presentation at concerts in all parts of the Province in 1958.

A brochure outlining the rules of the competition is available from the B.C. Centennial Committee upon request.

Deadline for the song competition is June 30th, 1957. All entries should be submitted to:

Bush Pilot Makes Safe Landing on Sea of Muddy Grass

TORONTO (CP) — Bush pilot Albert Dinnon of Georgian Bay airways landed his ski-equipped single-engined plane on a sea of grass and mud to complete a flight from Parry Sound 130 miles north of here, with a sick woman.

The patient, Mrs. Isabel Phillips, is in satisfactory condition in hospital.

Dinnon, expecting the Toronto Island airport to be covered with snow, made a perfect landing on the grass without disturbing his passenger.

New Finance Corporation Interested In Industry

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

A new organization whose purpose is to bring private investment to under-developed countries of the world, is swinging into action.

The organization is the International Finance Corporation, to which 47 countries have so far subscribed more than $90,000,000. It came into being last summer and expects to take several loans this year.

An outline of its proposed operations was given by Broderick Haskell, its financial adviser, in an address to the annual meeting in Toronto, last week, of the Canadian Council of the International Chamber of Commerce.

BANK AFFILIATE

The Corporation is an affiliate of the International Bank of Reconstruction and Development — more commonly known as the World Bank — but with separate legal entity and separate funds.

A chief difference between the organizations is this:

The World Bank makes loans only with the guarantee of the government of the country to which a loan is going. The Corporation, on the other hand, won't have anything to do with an enterprise which has any strong government voice in its management or financing.

BASIC INTERESTS

The Corporation is interested in what Mr. Haskell calls "fundamental industries," such as forest, mining, cement, chemical and textile industries.

Prosposals don't have to originate from within the country concerned. Many of the applications to date, for instance, are from American firms wishing to set up in one country or another, and at least one is from a Canadian firm.

The Corporation won't put up all the money needed. At present it won't consider loans under $100,000 and probably of not more than $2,000,000.

KEEP MONEY MOVING

It can't itself convert debentures into capital stock, but when it feels it has served its purpose it may sell such issues, take out its money and invest elsewhere. It hopes to keep its money revolving in as many places as possible.

While not exercising any control, the corporation will watch its investments in a normal way and give advice where needed. If it sees governments taking steps unfavorable to private investment it will probably also proffer advice.

Largest subscribers to the Corporation's funds are the United States at $35,168,000 and the United Kingdom at $14,400,000. Canada's subscription is $3,600,000.

May Try Invisible Ink To Stop Hospital Mix-Up of New Babies

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — Invisible ink and black light are proposed as a new fool-proof system to avoid mix-ups of newborn babies in hospital.

The ink is a safe chemical bleach. With it, names and identifying marks are written on both the baby's and mother's skin at the moment of birth.

This writing shows up only when exposed to ultraviolet or black light. It wears off completely after mother and child leave the hospital.

The system is proposed by Dr. Herman Goodman, New York dermatologist, in a new book, Identification of the Newly Born (Medical Lay Press).

MIX-UPS RARE

Baby mix-ups are rare, but still happen, he writes. Even the possibility causes worry. The actual event can bring heartaches. Unintentional switching of babies is one of the major plots in fiction.

Many methods of identifying the baby with its mother have been used or proposed. These include taking the baby's footprint, wearing beaded necklaces spelling out names, plastic sheaths over the wrist carrying an insert of identifying data, visible inks, and invisible inks.

A trouble with invisible inks in the past is that many of them wash off easily, Dr. Goodman writes. Now there are safe new ones that don't wear off or wash off during the time the baby is in the hospital.

Inks made of chemical bleaches commonly used in soaps, dentrifices and rinses are especially suitable, the physician says.

The mother's name, hospital admission number and other indentifying marks can be written on the arms of baby and mother even while they are still joined by the placental cord. Other methods of identification can be used additionally.

At any time the marks can be seen by shining harmless black light upon the writing. This is checked especially at the time mother and baby go home.

Price of Beer Will Rise If Tax Unchanged

TORONTO (CP)—The price of beer will have to go up if no tax relief is given in the next federal budget, E. P. Taylor, chairman of Canadian Breweries Ltd., said Monday at the company's annual meeting.

Mr. Taylor made the comment in discussing a recent tax increase on beer in Ontario which will increase the province's revenues from about $8,000,000 to around $13,000,000.

Provincial governments, Mr. Taylor said, have the responsibility of administering their alcoholic-beverage laws.

In Ontario 75 per cent of the taxation revenue from beer has been going to the federal government and 25 per cent to the provincial government.

"I think you will agree this is inequitable," Mr. Taylor said.

OFFER SUGGESTIONS

Brewers had recently filed a brief with the federal government asking for tax relief, and suggested it could be provided in two ways.

First, the malt tax imposed at the start of the Korean War as an emergency measure might now be dropped; and the practice by which sales tax is calculated on federal excise tax might be discontinued.

Ask Chrysler To Allow Four "Breaks" Daily

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Local 444 of the United Auto Workers has asked Chrysler Corp. of Canada to give them four breaks during the day as their solution to a charged company "speed-up."

At a closed meeting Sunday 1800 of the local's 8000 members passed resolutions asking for 10-minute morning and afternoon rest periods and five-minute wash-up periods before noon and at the end of a shift.

The meeting was called after union and company exchanged charges of "slow-down" and "speed-up" on Saturday.

The company refused to comment on the resolutions passed by the union meeting. They said they would stick to a statement Saturday that charged a small number of the workers were deliberately "sabotaging" the company's operations.

The SHORT CIRCUIT

By JOHN SHORT
Sports Editor

A trend that started with the transfer of Boston Braves National League franchise to Milwaukee has expanded to the stage where it is no longer difficult to envision a Canadian entry in the World Series.

Shortly after Milwaukee's rabid fans adopted as their own a team that had come upon unhappy times, two American League francises were switched. St. Louis Browns moved to Baltimore where they became known as the Orioles and a Kansas City group purchased Philadelphia Athletics.

Before St. Louis Browns were transplanted and seeded in Baltimore as the Orioles, rumors circulated through the International League that Montreal and Toronto were likely choices for the switch. At the time, Toronto was affiliated with St. Louis and Montreal Royals were, as they are now, tied to the Brooklyn Dodgers organization.

Toronto has since become an independent organization, one more likely to receive consideration as a possible major league entry. And Toronto would be in an ideal situation, geographically to strengthen either of the two major league.

The only possibility other than the eastern cities would be Vancouver and then only if a third major league becomes fact rather than an overworked hope.

That a third major league may be formed is no longer just a remote possibility although it was merely that a few years ago.

Brooklyn Dodgers have threatened to depart from their beloved Flatbush in favor of greener pastures at Los Angeles. During the middle of winter, Washington Senators discussed moving to the West coast but decided otherwise.

* * *

But as one learns in Boy Scouts where there's smoke, fire can sometimes be found. I say "sometimes be found" because Walter O'Malley, the chief Dodger official, is involved with New York City officials in a game based on musical chairs.

It's called stadium, stadium, who will build the stadium.

And there is no definite indication of who is winning the contest, although it is highly probable that O'Malley's ace in the hand is the veritable worship of Dem Bums by Brooklyn rooters.

But it is known that if politicians will build a new stadium for the edification of the Dodgers and the comfort of their fans, Brooklyn's nine old men will fill it.

So, it boils down to this—if Brooklyn cannot convince politicians of the necessity of a new stadium, they will move within three or four years to the safety of the west coast.

Such a move would shock some sense into the men who most need it and they would build the new stadium in the manner of one who locks the barn after the prize mare has run off with the silver stallion in search of crisper clover.

After the stadium was built, Brooklyn fans would demand a major league franchise. And the only way they could get one would be if a third major league was formed.

If a third major league is formed, and the day will come although maybe not in the recent future, Vancouver will receive due consideration.

At its present rate of growth, Vancouver would probably be large enough to support major league baseball sometime around 1965.

Trail Bantams, Midgets Take Out Nelson Clubs

Trail Bantam and Midget rep hockey clubs advanced to the finals Saturday night when they swept both ends of a West Kootenay best-of-three final series on Cominco arena ice.

The Bantam Rep squad walloped Nelson's Bantam squad 5-1 while Midgets pulled out a 4-1 victory.

In the opener Gary Ferro scored twice to lead the Bantam's free wheeling attack while teammates Keith Benson, Ken Misisco and Melvin Unger each scored one goal.

Burdenie was the lone Nelson marksman.

In the nightcap the Midget Rep squad was led by Gordon Askey with four points on two goals and two assists. Kenny Cabianca and Jim Gourlie added the other goals for the Trail squad.

It was the second straight win in the best-of-three series for both Trail clubs. On Thursday night in Nelson the Bantams slowed Nelson 7 - 3 while the Midget Reps handed Nelson Midgets an 8-3 defeat.

HOAD OUT OF PLAY TILL MAY

SYDNEY (AP) — Lew Hoad's injured back, encased in a 16-pound cast, will keep the 22-year-old Australian Davis Cup star out of international tennis competition until May.

Some Australian tennis writers said the injury, suffered last January, raised a big question mark about his future on the courts.

"The fact that the doctor has put Hoad into plaster at his age of 22 must raise doubts about his future, generally," says Ernie Christensen, Sydney Sun tennis writer.

Christensen said recurring back trouble could jeopardize Hoad's chances of cashing in with the pros in the future.

The Greeks in olden times employed public criers to announce goods for sale.

Ski Slants

By Silver King Ski Club

Skiing on Sunday was excellent. A few skiers who came up to the hill in the morning were inclined to disagree. But had they stayed until the hill was tramped and continued to ski for a while, they would have really enjoyed the fun.

It took from 10 in the morning till one o'clock to pack more than a foot of wet snow but this has made an excellent surface on the hill and should ensure several weeks of good skiing.

* * *

Sunday evening some flood lights and generator were installed for night skiing. The hill should be well lit up and we are going to test the lights for skiing Wednesday night.

We plan to have a Pot Luck Supper at the cabin at seven o'clock Wednesday so bring your supper and join the gang for a night's skiing under the lights.

The T-Bar lift is working to perfection and is helping everyone to become better skiers. All skiers who passed their first ski test were riding to the top of the hill and having no trouble on the way down.

* * *

Our Juniors are back from their trip to Kimberley where they found the skiing pretty tough, Kimberley also had a heavy snowfall which made the going heavy in slalom and downhill. However, our juniors managed to take a couple of fourth places and a fifth which is very good considering the practise they had. As usual they all were treated royally by their Kimberley hosts.

Don't forget to bring your supper and join us for the night skiing on Wednesday!

Series Wound Up in 5 Games With 5–1 Win Over Nelson

By Staff Sportswriter

TRAIL — Trail Smoke Eaters Monday night took advantage of every opportunity to defeat Nelson Maple Leafs 5-1 before a fairly large crowd that included a bus load of Nelson fans.

The victory qualified Smokies to meet either Rossland Warriors or Spokane Flyers in the Western International Hockey League finals.

Cal Hockley scored twice, Dick Warwick, Mike Shabaga and Adolph Tambellini once each for Smokies who outshot Nelson 44-26.

Leafs lifeline of Don Appleton, Mickey Maglio and Archie Gaber collaborated in the first period as Gaber spoiled Seth Martin's shutout bid.

Martin was brilliant. He was injured at the 4:52 mark of the first period and left the ice for repairs only to return after a 20-minute lay-off.

With sharp support from every wearer of the Smokie uniform, he was unbeatable, frustrating every member of Leafs' attacking unit at least once. The slim Smokie netminder was at his larcenous best against Gaber as the tiny speed demon broke through the Smokie rearguard at least four times.

Earl Betker, playing his second game in Leaf livery, realized that Nelson's defence is not always the solid unit it was Saturday. Defensive blunders led directly to every Trail goal; only one goal came on a clean - cut shot. That happened to be the clincher.

Shabaga intercepted an indiscriminate clearing pass early in the third period to blister a backhand into the upper right hand corner of the Leaf net. Although that, to all intents and purposes, iced the verdict, Tambellini teamed with "Wild William" Warwick to make the score even more decisive with slightly more than seven minutes to play. Warwick burst down the middle of the ice and rifled a drive that Betker kicked clear. With Leafs playing in a futile attempt to make the reading more respectable, Tambellini faced only token opposition in the race for the rebound.

For what consolation Leaf fans may gain from the knowledge, Gaber's goal was a classic. Appleton used his stick as a wall to hold the puck in the Trail end, then after beating a Trail defender, fed the puck to Maglio. The black-thatched hustler saw Gaber cutting in alone and hit him with a perfect pass which the little guy promptly converted into Nelson's only tally.

One goal was not enough.

LINEUP

Nelson — goal: Betker; defence: Egan, Gare, Severyn, Stewart; forwards: Hyssop, Lipsaok, Keller, Appleton, Maglio, Koehle, Gaber, Malacko.

Long Way to Go To Beat Babe Pay

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Boston Red Sox slugger Ted Williams would have to make $1,000,000 to equal Babe Ruth's $80,000 salary, T. Coleman Andrews said Monday.

The Babe, back in the late 1920s and early 1930s, was hitting 50 to 60 home runs a year with New York Yankees and taking home $69,000 from his $80,000 paycheck, the former internal revenue service director said.

But with inflation, federal and state income taxes, Williams will need to earn $1,000,000 annually to keep pace with Ruth's buying power, Andrews said.

Andrews addressed a civic club meeting.

Palmer Takes Houston Golf

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Arnold Palmer, 27 - year - old former national amateur champion from Latrobe, Pa., fired a three-under par 69 Monday to come from behind on the back nine and take $7500 in top money in the $36,000 Houston open.

Trailing by one stroke after the front nine, Palmer's 35 on the back nine gave him a 67-72-71-69-279—nine under par—and left him one stroke ahead of Doug Ford.

Ford, the former PGA champion from Mahopac, N.Y., took a 280 with a final round 70 that was good for $4000.

While Palmer and Ford were blasting par, Sunday's leaders, Gene Bone, young newcomer from Louisville, and Bob Harris, former national collegiate champion from Winnetka, Ill., were having putting troubles.

Harris' 73 gave him third place and $2500 at 281. Bone, the leader after the second and third rounds, jumped to a 78 for the 7200-yard, par - 72 Memorial Park course. This left him in a tie with Mike Souchak, Grossinger, N.Y., at 284. Each won $1600. Bone earlier had won only $33.34 in the winter tour.

A 73 slipped Jimmy Demaret, a Houston native playing out of Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., past Bone and Souchak. He collected $2000 for his 282.

Stan Leonard of Lachute, Que., ended in a three-way sixth-place tie with Ed Furgol and Babe Lichardus of the U.S. Leonard's 73-70-69-73 - 285 won him $1256. Another Canadian, Al Belding, Toronto, collected $91.25 for his 73-69-74-75 - 291, while Jack Kay, Montreal, finished out of the money with 73-71-76-74-294.

PCL To Consider Sale of Mounties

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pacific Coast League directors are scheduled to meet here Saturday for consideration of the sale of Vancouver Mounties to a group of Vancouver businessmen.

Also up for approval is transfer of the Los Angeles Angels franchise to Brooklyn Dodgers of the National League.

League directors last November tentatively approved the Mountie purchase arrangements, reported to involve $150,000 plus a $75,000 guarantee for operating expenses.

Brooklyn purchased Wrigley Field in Los Angeles last week from Chicago Cubs with the announced intention of operating the Angels franchise for the time being.

Some baseball men believe, however, that the Los Angeles deal may be the first step in a Dodger move to the west coast.

As part of the deal Chicago will take over the Fort Worth Club of the Texas League, formerly operated by the Dodgers. The Cubs also will assume the working agreement with Portland now held by Brooklyn.

Many league directors have indicated they will vote for the Los Angeles deal. Fred David, president of the Sacramento Solons, however, has hinted that he may lead a fight for preserving the PCL as it exists.

Injury Ends Season for Witiuk

CALGARY (CP) — Rightwinger Steve Witiuk, 28, of Calgary Stampeders will be out of action for the rest of the Western Hockey League season, it was announced Monday.

This is Witiuk's fifth season with the Stampeders.

U.S. Sweeps Three Shuttle Openers

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—United States players, displaying pinpoint accuracy with their overhand smashes, Monday night swept the opening three matches against Canada in the North American zone tie for the Uber Cup and the women's world badminton championship.

Monday night's draw consisted of a singles match and two doubles. The series concludes tonight with two singles events and two doubles. Canada will have to win all four matches to advance to the cup semi-finals in England next month.

Judy Devlin of Baltimore, Md., No. 1 U.S. singles player, started the American sweep with a one-sided 11-3, 11-0 victory over Aveleigh Hepworth of Woodstock, Ont., Canada's No. 7 player.

Miss Devlin, born in Winnipeg and who moved to the United States eight years ago, confused her less-experienced Canadian opponent with a mixture of hard smashes deep in the court and soft lobs just over the net.

Two Buffalo, N.Y., girls—Ethel Marshall and Bea Massman—ran into tough competition in the first doubles event before downing Joan Warren of Toronto and Mrs. Clare Lovett, Vancouver, 18-16, 15-3.

Misses Marshall and Massman, world doubles champions, waged a see-saw battle in the first set against the Canadian twosome but had little trouble in the second as they repeatedly caught the Canadians out of position.

Judy Devlin, 21, combined with her sister Sue, 25, to win the second doubles event against two Toronto players, Marjorie Shedd and Joan Hennessy, 15-7, 15-11.

Never needs painting to preserve it!

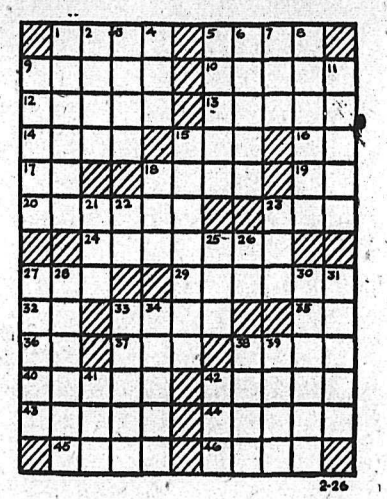
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Children's Deaths Renew Capital Punishment Talks

BONN (Reuters) — The murder of two small girls in the Ruhr has set West Germany arguing again about the death penalty, abolished under the 1949 constitution.

During Hitler's rule, 16,500 people were executed, by guillotine or by the headsman's axe — an average of nearly 1400 a year. This did not count the millions who perished in extermination camps.

In the current controversy the pro-execution group says members of Parliament who abolished capital punishment are partly responsible for the deaths of the two children.

Tacoma City Light Eases BCE Shortage

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Tacoma City Light began operating one of its steam plants Monday to help ease the critical power shortage throughout the Northwest.

B. Jones, assistant superintendent, said the British Columbia Electric Co. had contracted with Tacoma to receive the power through the transmission lines of the Northwest power pool.

The Canadian firm began receiving about 20,000 kilowatts today at a cost of approximately eight to 10 mills per kilowatt hour.

These costs, Jones said, are approximately three times more than power produced from hydro-electric plants.

Market Trends

NEW YORK (AP)—Some highly selective gains and losses featured the stock market which was generally irregular in slow trading.

Leading Canadian stocks on the New York Stock Exchange included Distillers-Seagrams, ahead ⅝, Canadian Pacific, up ¼, International Nickel, up ¼ and Hudson Bay Mining, ahead ⅛. Aluminium Ltd. dropped ¼.

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market closed easier in moderate trading. Prices moved in a narrow range in all sections and a few active speculative mining issues created some interest in the base metal group.

The industrial index swayed back and forth from the upside to the downside but closed with a loss of nearly one-half point. Western oils had the biggest index change, a dip of more than a point. Base metals were ahead a few decimal points on their index.

MONTREAL (CP) — Industrial dealings closed irregularly lower on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges with losses ranging to more than a point.

In paper, Abitibi at 30¾ and Fraser at 29¾ each dropped ¼ while International Paper eased ½. Base metals were better with Aluminium at 112½ and Canadian Bronze at 26 both gaining ½. Noranda eased ⅜ and International Nickel lost ¼.

Rare Bird Captured In Surrey District

SURREY, B. C. (CP) — Game Warden Ernie Taylor said Monday a short-tailed Albatross found injured here was the first sighted in B. C. since 1918. Mr. Taylor said the bird is being sent to the University of B. C. for observation.

The short-tailed Albatross is rarely seen on land, Mr. Taylor said. They usually stay close to Bering Strait but the bird was probably forced south by heavy winds during the weekend.

The bird has a six-foot wing span and is banded and stained a bright red.

Fanny Bay School Destroyed by Fire

FANNY BAY (CP) — The 47-year-old two-room schoolhouse at this Vancouver Island village burned to the ground Sunday night while more than 100 persons watched helplessly.

The fire was spotted by a passing motorist, notifying caretaker Mrs. O. C. Dennison. With help from neighbors she used school fire extinguishers to put out the fire, believed started in the furnace room. But the fire erupted again in a wall and soon was out of control.

Mrs. Dennison blamed poor fire-fighting equipment for the loss of the elementary school, attended by 45 pupils.

EDEN RECOVERING FROM FEVER BOUT

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (Reuters) — Sir Anthony Eden, vacationing at Waiwera 40 miles from here on the seaside, is recovering from another bout of fever, but is not expected to move to remote Otehei bay this week as previously planned.

Dr. W. E. Henley, the physician attending the former British prime minister at the beachfront home where he and Lady Eden have started their holidays, said on his return to Auckland that Eden had spent "a more comfortable night" (Sunday night).

He added that Eden's progress in recovering from his latest attack of fever accompanied by stomach pains "is being maintained."

Eden has been kept in bed since his latest attack started Friday.

Machine Ready for Federal Elections

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's vote-taking machinery is on the mark and ready to go whenever an election date is announced.

An elaborate, smooth-rounning organization headed by chief electoral officer Nelson Castonguay has been preparing itself for the last two years.

But general speculation has been that the country will go to the polls next June 17 or perhaps May 27 — both Mondays as required by law.

WELL PREPARED

Some 200 tons of election material were shipped long ago to returning officers, including instructions and supplies for enumerating an estimated 9,200,000 eligible voters. Another 300 tons of supplies for 70,000 polling places are ready to go as soon as the election date is announced.

The supplies are minutely organized — down to thumb-tacks and sharpened pencils for voters to use in marking their "x."

And for emergencies, about 500 parachutes are on hand here big enough to drop ballot boxes and polling supplies to northern outposts. Several air drops were needed in the June, 1949, election which came in a year when the northern break-up of ice prevented either ships or planes from stopping at remote settlements.

Few voters realize the preparations which must be made before they put their mark on the ballot paper.

Mr. Castonguay, 43, heads an organization which reaches into every part of Canada except Keewatin and Franklin districts of the Northwest Territories, which have no Commons representation.

FAMILY TRADITION

The chief electoral officer is carrying on a family tradition begun in 1920 when his father, the late Jules Castonguay, began working in the electoral office. The father became chief in 1927 and Nelson, who entered the office in 1934, succeeded him in the top job in 1949.

Preparations for the next election began as soon as the 1953 vote ended when Mr. Castonguay, reviewing suggestions from candidates and the public, began draft revisions in the technical operations of the Canada Election Act.

Scandinavian Planes Open Polar Route

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Scandinavian Airlines Monday completed the inaugural flight of its Tokyo - to - Copenhagen service across the North Pole. Another SAS airliner raced the other way to open the Copenhagen-to-Tokyo route.

The two big DC-7Cs missed a planned rendezvous 10,000 feet above the Geographic North Pole by three minutes, but the passengers toasted the occasion on top of the world with champagne.

Transfer 35 Men From Strathcona's Horse To Petawa

OTTAWA (CP)—About 35 men from the Lord Strathcona's Horse have been transferred to Petawawa, Ont., from Calgary to be ready if Canada decides to furnish the United Nations with a reconnaissance unit for the Middle East.

A defence department spokesman said Monday a decision has been made on the UN request for reconnaissance troops. Canada now has about 1100 army and air force personnel in the UN Emergency Force for the Middle East.

Defence Minister Campney reported to the Commons last Thursday that certain troops are being readied in case Canada agrees to the UN request. A subsequent Calgary report said some Lord Strathcona's members may soon be posted to the Middle East.

The spokesman said the transferred men would be part of the unit if one goes.

SOPRON STUDENTS AT POWELL RIVER

POWELL RIVER, B.C. (CP) — Sopron University students came here from Abbotsford after living in former RCAF quarters for more than a month.

The first group, 42 in all, was greeted by Powell River Co. vice-president Russ Cooper and councillor Molly McLaren.

Accompanying the advance party was Rev. Charles Hamori, a former Texada Island minister. Now a divinity student at University of British Columbia, Rev. Hamori escaped from Hungary about five years ago. He will act as interpreter for the newcomers.

The classes will continue until they take temporary work in B.C.'s logging camps sometime in late May or early June.

They will live at Riverside camp until sufficient classrooms and housing is available at UBC — either this Fall or in the Fall of 1958.

Father Values Doll's House at $1500

VANCOUVER (CP) — After six years of painstaking effort Leighton McMicking has completed a doll's house for his daughter, 10, and he values the four-room structure at $1500, counting material and labor.

He says no amount of money would induce him to build another. "I guess I just went overboard," he said. "I intended to make an ordinary four-room house. But I couldn't rest until there were latches on all doors and cupboards and real glass windows in every room."

He put linoleum in the kitchen, bathroom and bedroom, and wall-to-wall carpeting in the living room. It has a fireplace, and the roof has real shingles.

The doll's house equipment includes bathroom fixtures, a chesterfield suite and beds, and Venetion blinds.

Says Tight Money Slows Industries

CALGARY (CP) — The Federal Government's tight money policy is slowing industrial expansion in Western Canada and is not a satisfactory method of combatting inflation, says Frank F. Becker, mayor of Vernon, B. C.

He said in an interview on his way to a civil defence conference at Arnprior, Ont.:

"This money squeeze isn't helping anybody, particularly the little fellow. I think the principle is all wrong. I feel that if the Federal Government is prepared to bring 100,000 persons from the United Kingdom to Canada, this is no time to curtail credit, especially as it affects home building."

Keremeos Growers Ask Investigation Into Wholesalers

KEREMEOS, B.C. (CP)—Growers in the Cawston-Keremeos area Monday asked the provincial royal commission into B.C.'s fruit industry to conduct an investigation into wholesale houses.

A delegation headed by H. C. McGuffie and representing the Cawston-Keremeos local of the B.C. Fruit Growers' Association, said they believe some wholesale houses "are strongly controlled by American interests".

The delegation also told Commissioner E. D. McPhee they favor long-term loans to hard-hit orchardists; earlier application of "dump duties" on U.S. fruit, and closer supervision of roadside fruit stands.

Mr. McGuffie blamed severe winter injury as the foundation for the trouble in the Keremeos-Cawston area and said that the government should give an outright grant to replace injured trees. There should also be long-term bovernment loans over possibly 20 years with some incentive for growers to repay this loan quickly to stabilize the industry. He said he was alarmed at the financial position of some of the orchardists.

Odds... and Ends ... by M. D. B.

Seeing that picture on front page Monday of the little girl and her dog flying her kite recalled an old yearning. Ever since we read in about grade three the story of Ning-Ting, the little Chinese boy who stole a kite I have thought what fun it would be to fly a kite. Trees and telephone wires rather discourage kite flying here, though, but there are some countries in the world where even adults indulge in this delightful sport.

• • •

I have just recently read an article on the proper way to make a rock garden and if you do not mind having to buy your rock and having it hauled to your place from where it erupted in its peculiar form at the beginning of things you can have a first rate rock garden.

• • •

I have known all this, but not having the hard cash to put out for hard rock I have had to content myself with a most mediocre type of rock garden. It is in the very mode that the rock garden expert scorns. I had a rounded slope of land — about a three-foot drop from one level to the next and what with scrounging out in the lane, up the hillside and any other likely spots I have been able to get enough rocks to hold my rock plants in place. I have dug the rocks in on a not too regular pattern where they will keep the feet of my plants cool.

• • •

The whole business would cause raised eyebrows among the gardening literati, it would not even rate honorable mention in a garden contest, but I can hardly wait now for the blooming thing to bloom.

• • •

I love those rock plants — they are so rewarding for the little attention you give them and you can have some blooming the whole Summer long. I believe of them all, I like my clumps of dainty blue harebells, that continue to bloom even after the frost has laid other plants low. They are such fragile, friendly things, nodding to even the slightest insignificant breeze. And those exquisite rock iris with their miniature blooms, like lustrous gems among their green spiked leaves.

• • •

As you can see, I have it bad—this is spring fever at its worst. There is no help for it — with snow and frost still around, it must run its course. Meanwhile, please pass me the seed catalogue and do you think petunias would look alright in a rockery?

Yukon Joe Gets His Mail Come Snow or Highwater Says Travelling Postmaster

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. (CP)—John Pryor wheeled a 12-ton tractor - trailor unit from its bay at Northern Freightways Limited's terminal here and headed for the post-office in mid - town Dawson Creek.

A cluster of mail bags stood waiting on the loading platform. He swung open the heavy metal doors at the rear of the 30-foot vehicle and shoved the sacks of first-class mail in with 400 mail bags already pressed tight in the van.

At 8 a.m., Pryor's rig moved past mile zero on the Alaska Highway and headed out on the world's longest and loneliest mail route. The run terminated three days and 918 miles later, at Whitehorse in the Yukon.

LONG EXPERIENCE

Pryor and two other unofficial travelling postmasters, who twice weekly sound mail call at 37 stops on the Alaska Highway, have just rounded out 200,000 miles of service on the 13-month-old main run.

At the same time, in Northern Freightway's headquarters, company President Roger Forsyth shuffled reports covering the operation since October, 1955, and noted: "Ninety-five per cent on schedule since the start."

During the Christmas mail rush last month, Mr. Forsyth noted that "it's going to be tougher to stay on schedule — and there's Yukon Joe."

Yukon Joe is a problem because they never know where to drop his mail. On one trip, is was learned that the bearded hermit had struck out by dog team for the Liard River, at mile 496. His usual stamping ground was farther south.

"Nobody knows where he came from but the guy's got talent," Pryor said of Yukon Joe. "Paints scenes on moosehorns and on dry fungus from around trees. He sells them to tourists."

For the travelling postmasters on the Alaska Highway, ice and dust outrank 50-below-zero cold of winter, spring's flash floods and the solitude of the land, as occupational hazards of this northwest run.

There's only one answer to the bitter winter cold, Pryor says. That is to let the engine run 24 hours a day. Various types of heaters were tried in one bid to get an engine started in a hurry after an overnight stop, but these were given up after one heater refused to function in temperatures lower than 47 below.

With overnight stops at Fort Nelson, B.C., and Watson Lake, Yukon, Pryor pulled into Whitehorse post office three days after leaving Dawson Creek.

"Sure it's a lonely road," he says, "but when you've travelled it 14 years, you get to know every pebble. I figure it's about like driving anywhere else."

Suspected War Criminal New Premier, Japan

TOKYO (AP)—Nobusuke Kishi, a skilful politician who once scrubbed floors in Sugamo prison as a suspected war criminal, Monday became prime minister of Japan.

Kishi, 60, is a politcal conservative who is expected to make few changes in Japan's "pro-Western policy. He has said Japan and the United States must always "go hand in hand" but that Japan also must do business with Red China.

UNANIMOUS CHOICE

The Diet (Parliament) elected Kishi overwhelmingly, replacing Prime Minister Tanzan Ishibashi who resigned because of ill health Saturday after only two months in office. Kishi was Ishibashi's foreign minister and had been acting prime minister.

During the war, he served as commerce minister in Hideki Tojo's cabinet but was fired after differing with the wartime dictator over war strategy.

After the Japanese surrender, Kishi was jailed as a suspected war criminal but was free after three years without being charged.

IWA Would Trade With Red Chinese

VANCOUVER (CP) — The International Woodworkers of America (CLC) Monday called for a trade delegation to Red China.

The Union, in convention here, said the delegation should comprise members of the B. C. lumber Manufacturers Association, federal and provincial governments and the IWA.

Jack Moore, resolutions committee chairman, criticized the U. S. attitude towards China as "unrealistic and downright unnecessary.

"China has tremendous market possibilities," he said. "It's essential we should take advantage of it in the face of falling markets in the sterling area."
