Three Fatalities in District on Weekend

Nakusp, Cranbrook and Castlegar had fatalities to report on the weekend. A small boy was drowned at Nakusp, a young high school graduate was killed in a car accident and a Castlegar man was found dead in his car from carbon monoxide poisoning.

Tot Drowns

NAKUSP — A morning of fishing with three small companions ended tragically here Saturday for four-year-old Richard Steenhoff.

The youngsters were fishing off the Nakusp Yacht Club wharf when Richard fell into the water. His companions tried to pull him out but were unable to do so. By the time help arrived the muddy waters had hidden him from the sight of would-be rescuers.

His body was recovered about an hour and a half later by dragging.

Grad Killed

KIMBERLEY (CP) — Edmund Tuck died in hospital here Sunday following an accident on Highway 95 Saturday night when his car went out of control and rolled over four times after leaving the Mark Creek road.

RCMP said Tuck was thrown from the vehicle as it rolled over. He had graduated from Selkirk School, Cranbrook Friday night.

A coroner's inquest will open Monday.

Young Tuck's death follows by just one week the death of another district high school graduate, James Terry Solecki, 18, of Slocan, who was killed in a car crash at 5 a.m., June 10, following graduation ceremonies the night before.

Found in Car

Ronald Ball, 37, of Castlegar, found in his parked car a short way off the Blueberry-Paulson road, three miles west of Castlegar, died of carbon monoxide poisoning, an autopsy revealed Sunday.

The father of three children, who disappeared May 15, was found by Mike Popoff late Saturday afternoon. A hose had been connected to the exhaust pipe and led into the vehicle. No suicide note was found.

Last seen, Mr. Ball was reportedly going to his father's place to pick up a lawn mower. He was reported missing at 11:50 that night by his wife.

A coroner's inquiry is being held. RCMP are investigating.

Immigrant Saves Trail Child From Drowning

TRAIL (CP) — An unidentified Italian immigrant was credited with saving the life of seven-year-old Irene Patterson Saturday after spotting her in trouble in a pool at a private home. ### Boy Killed as Plane Ditches

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — A three-year-old boy was killed and two adults were injured when a light seaplane plunged into Okanagan Lake Sunday.

Witnesses said the plane, which had been flying around the lake for some time, crashed while attempting a sharp turn at Trout Creek Point, about five miles north of here.

The mishap was watched by about 60 carloads of Elks, who were having their annual picnic at the point.

Jeff Chandler Succumbs

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jeff Chandler, 42, who made his boyhood dream of movie stardom come true, died Saturday of septicemia — blood poisoning — a complication from spinal surgery performed five weeks ago.

Ed Traubner, Chandler's business manager, said the actor appeared to be rallying from a series of setbacks but that his condition worsened again Friday. He said an autopsy is planned.

The husky, 6-foot-4 leading man had always known, since his boyhood in Brooklyn, N.Y., that his goal in life was to be a movie star. He once said he knew it would happen. "I was surprised that it took so long — three years."

32 KILLED IN CRASH OF PARIS EXPRESS

VITRY le FRANCOIS, France (AP) — The swift Strasbourg-to-Paris express jumped the rails half a mile west of this eastern French town Sunday, killing at least 32 passengers and injuring 153.

Gagarin Space Ship Caught Fire

MOSCOW (AP) — Astronaut Yuri Gagarin says his space ship re-entered the earth's atmosphere enveloped by flames from friction after his flight around the world, Tass news agency reported Sunday.

"Its outer skin became hot rapidly and through the blinds covering the port holes I saw the ominous purple reflections of the flame raging around the ship," Gagarin said in the newspaper Pravda.

The temperature inside the cabin was normal "although I was in the centre of a whirl of flames." The space ship also began rotating and he reported it to his control points.

CRAZED MAN KILLED AT SEA

TOKYO (Reuters) — An American naval spokesman at nearby Yokosuka said Sunday night an enlisted man who went berserk was killed at sea after he fatally stabbed one of three officers he held captive for five hours.

The incident occurred aboard the ocean tug U.S.S. Chomanoc while the ship was about 40 miles off southern Japan in the South China Sea.

The spokesman said the crazed man obtained possession of two guns, surprised the ship's officers in the wardroom Saturday and held three of the officers captive.

The man demanded he be placed in a rubber life-raft with two hostages so he could get ashore.

The spokesman said that about five hours later a scuffle took place during which the crazed man was killed and one of the officers fatally wounded.

Wants New Zealand, Australia, Canada As Members

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (CP) — The political correspondent of the Auckland Star mentions the possibility of Canada, Australia and New Zealand forming a Pacific Common Market if Britain decides to join the European Common Market.

The newspaper story says many people in Wellington, the New Zealand capital, feel "New Zealand and Australia will look to a lead from Canada, as senior British dominion, to pick up the remaining threads of the Commonwealth if Britain enters the European Common Market."

"It could be that a Pacific Common Market embracing the three dominions or at least a common policy and closer political association with the U.S. may eventually be the only remaining prospects of security for New Zealand," the story says.

LIMITED SUPPORT

New Zealand has given only limited support to Prime Minister Diefenbaker's idea for a Commonwealth conference at this stage as some New Zealand quarters consider Commonwealth interest in possible British entering into the Common Market is too diverse for a full Commonwealth meeting.

However, increasing reference is being made to the need for closer consultation among Canada, Australia and New Zealand, all of which are likely to be affected similarly in many respects if Britain joins the Common market.

New Zealand has officially approached the United States and Canada seeking wider trade opportunities, mostly in relation to lamb exports which would be seriously hurt by Britain's common market entry.

This has been taken as an external sign of Australia and New Zealand grouping with North America instead of Europe as was formerly done.

---

LONDON (Reuters) — An extremist group today raised a sternly royalist eyebrow at that place "referred to as Europe" in opposing Britain's entry into the common market.

And, added honorary secretary Hugh Thornton of the British Common Law Council, members of Parliament supporting Britain's entry into the six - nation European grouping should be arrested for conspiring in a treasonable plot to set up an authority over the Queen.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Macmillan conferred with eight of his top lieutenants in closed-door talks on the hotly-controversial issue.

The discussions began Saturday night at Chequers, Macmillan's official country residence, and wound up this afternoon without a communique.

Thornton sounded the "plot" tocsin in a letter to the sergeant-at-arms of the House of Commons, asking him to carry out the arrests.

Discoverer Capsule Pulled From Ocean

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The United States Air Force announced Sunday that the capsule of the 25th Discoverer satellite, fired into orbit Friday, has been recovered from the Pacific Ocean by a team of parachutists

The air force said the capsule carried samples of both common and rare metals to determine "the effect on the metals in a space environment."

The 300 - pound capsule was successfully ejected from the satellite at 6 p.m. MST Sunday. A spokesman said it was impossible for C-119 aircraft to snag the capsule as it floated down on a parachute.

However, a C-119 pilot spotted the capsule in the water, circling the area until an air force SC-54 aircraft arrived.

USE SKIN-DIVERS

Three men trained in skin-diving techniques jumped from the SC-54 at an altitude of about 1,000 feet. One parachutist landed within 20 yards of the bobbing capsule.

The capsule and parachutists were aboard a life raft. The air force said a coast guard amphibious plane was en route from Hawaii to pick up the men and the capsule.

Aboard the capsule were specimens of gold, bismuth, iron, titanium, cadmium, magnesium, nickel, and yttrium, which will de the subject of intense study by air force scientists, a spokesman said. Also aboard was a device to monitor cosmic radiation.

The air force said "other space phenomena" were monitored by ion- and microphone-type external density gauges. One device counted and measured the impact of extra-terrestrial matter (micro - meteorites).

Power Export Okay 'If Can Be Recaptured'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The western region president of the Canadian Institute of Power Engineers says export of power to the United States is all right if there is firm provision to recapture it.

G. E. Gibson of Winnipeg said in an interview here export of B.C. hydro without "strings attached" would tighten the United States economic grip on Canada.

Mr. Gibson, here for a west regional conference of the institute, said if power is exported to the U.S. now the province may be faced with shortages in 10 years.

"With B.C. power the U.S. will be expanding its industries. Canada will need all available power to provide for its future industrial growth."

Settlement of Doukhobor Land Problem Promised

Assurance the Doukhobor land problem "will be settled shortly, almost in accordance with the Lord Report" was given an executive meeting of the Association of Kootenay Municipalities by Dr. G. R. Kennedy, deputy attorney-general here Saturday.

The Lord Report deals with the disposition of publicly owned land, at present occupied by Doukhobors. The deputy attorney-general did not divulge what innovations will be introduced.

Dr. Kennedy stated he felt a future meeting between the Justice Department, the Attorney-General's Department and the AKM may be desirable should the problem prove too stubborn for present efforts.

S. V. Higgins, AKM president, said the meeting held in camera because secret police information was divulged by Dr. Kennedy.

The Attorney-General's Department instructed the press be barred from the meeting.

"FRIENDLY POLICY"

The association was told by Dr. Kennedy it would be better to refer to "the terrorist problem in the Kootenays" rather than the "Doukhobor problem." "There is not enough proof to trace it to conclusively Doukhobors," he told the meeting. He also advocated a more "friendly policy" by people in the area toward Doukhobors.

Mr. Higgins, stated he was unable to divulge the nature of further discussions concerning the Doukhobors at the meeting.

Dr. Kennedy was accompanied by Inspector A. Joinson, Commanding Officer of the Nelson sub division of the RCMP. He promised the AKM would be kept informed of developments with regards to the Doukhobor problem. Dr. Kennedy also said he may be able to attend the AKM semi-annual meeting in Rossland, September 16.

The meeting between the Attorney-General's department and the AKM is a result of pressure put on the government for some action with regard to the renewed terrorism that has swept the area in recent months.

At that time a resolution which would have meant virtual aparteid in the Kootenays was defeated.

The resolution put forward by Mayor Leslie Read of Trail asked that non-tax paying Doukhobors be denied drivers' licenses, social assistance and the right to trade in competition with other merchants.

Municipal Leaders Meet Here

An executive meeting of the Association of Kootenay Municipalities will be held in Nelson today.

It had been speculated Attorney-General Robert Bonner or Deputy Attorney-General Dr. G. D. Gilbert might attend in connection with the Doukhobor problem but A. Spencer, AKM secretary has stated this is not expected.

Business will deal with organization of the fall meeting, transfer of records and a planning meeting of the River Pollution Control Committee.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 19-year-old girl was dragged out of her home by the hair and brutally beaten here Saturday night.

Police said the girl, Joyce Stone, was found naked and semi-conscious on the front lawn of the home. She was taken to hospital where her condition was reported Sunday as good.

A girl friend said a man barged into the home just as Miss Stone stepped from a shower, dragged her outside by the hair and beat her, then fled in a taxi.

Miss Stone had cuts around one eye requiring 12 stitches.

Police later arrested Frank McCulloch, 27, and charged him with assault causing bodily harm.

Monty Advises Pull Out Troops

LONDON (Reuters) — Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery calls for the withdrawal of American and Russian troops from Europe and Western recognition of Communist East Germany.

The proposals are made in an article in The Times in which Montgomery maps out a new strategy for the North Atlantic treaty Organization.

The former deputy supreme allied commander in Europe says the withdrawal of foreign forces in Europe should be started now and completed by the end of 1965.

"The best security for the West would be to get the Russian armed forces back into Russia — out of Germany, out of the satellite countries, and right back into their own country."

East German Escapes During West Rally

BERLIN (Reuters) — An East German Sunday made a dramatic escape across the East-West German border at Philippstal where a West German border rally was in progress.

The 35-year-old East German jumped into the flood-swollen river Werra and swam to the West German side to claim asylum before East German police could stop him.

Before the fugitive leaped, he had been watching the rally — one of many held in West Germany Sunday to mark the eighth anniversary of the abortive 1953 uprising by East German workers against their Communist regime.

East German police tried to disrupt the rallies by blasting music and political slogans from loudspeaker cars in some areas of the 700-mile border.

They arrested one West German who strayed into East Germany at Goslar.

West German border guards also reported that East German police were photographing persons approaching the border in some places and taking the numbers of West German cars gathered in others.

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Revenoo'ers, they're everywhere.

Like at Harold's Gambling Club in Reno.

Lonnie Joe Chadwick had $18,000 in chips stacked on a blackjack table. As he sat and pondered, internal revenue agents seized his chips.

"I'll sue," cried Lonnie Joe.

"We have nothing to lose," said Dalton Davis, head Reno revenoo'er. "We've got the money."

"We won't cash 'em," Harold's shot back, "pending settlement of ownership," although the chips normally are cashable at any time.

The government earlier had filed a $100,000 levy with the club against Chadwick's reported winnings.

"Foul," said Harold's, adding, with the wisdom of the ages, "how do they know he'll finish ahead?"

By VERN SIMALUK
Daily News Staff Reporter

Bluebell mine, of Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company Ltd., Saturday swept five of seven awards at the 15th annual West Kootenay Mine Safety Association mine rescue and first aid competitions held in the Civic Centre and on the baseball diamond.

Trophies and merchandise prizes were presented to the victorious teams before some 500 persons at the association banquet Saturday evening. It marked the end of the three-day British Columbia section meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

Only major prize which eluded Bluebell's grasp was that of the men's open in the first aid competition. It was won by Tadanac Engineers team number one, captained by S. P. Anselmo.

Joining the Tadanac team on Saturday on its trip to Nanaimo for the provincial competitions will be the Bluebell mine rescue team No. 1, coached by Thomas Sweeney and Erling Matheson, and Bluebell ladies' team, captained by Mrs. Doreen Harrison, winner of the ladies' open first aid competition.

Duck Lake Acres Sold To Rod and Gun Clubs

TRAIL (CP) — President J. E. Thompson of the West Kootenay Association of Rod and Gun clubs said Saturday the association hopes to develop an 8000-acre public hunting area west of Duck Lake on the Kootenay river flats near Creston.

He said the association has reached an agreement with the members of the Duck Lake Diking District from which it will first acquire 5000 acres of Duck Lake itself.

This will ensure that the land will not be reclaimed for farming purposes at the expense of the area's wildfowl population. Members of the district have been planning the reclamation for some years to increase usable acreage behind the dikes.

Mr. Johnson said it is hoped the lake will be declared a wildlife management area and some 8000 acres west of the lake will be developed for public hunting purposes.

He said it is hoped ultimately up to 35,000 acres of the Kootenay River flats will be devoted to public recreation.

Mr. Thompson said that he and his association's Duck Lake committee chairman, F. Shannon of Riondel had concluded a pact with R. B. Staples and directors of the Duck Lake Diking District. Under its terms the association would become a member of the diking district.

Mr. Staples and associates agreed to withdraw an application for permission to reclaim a further 1500 acres of Duck Lake. They agreed to sell to the Rod and Gun clubs almost 200 acres of contiguous land.

Duck Lake diking district up to now have sought the 1500 acres additional reclamation on grounds that annual dike maintenance and pumping costs made further land development essential.

Diking district officers now will assist the association of gun clubs in their efforts to acquire all of Duck Lake from the provincial government.

Unemployed Figure Higher Than in 1960

Drop was in male applicants, and is ascribed to resumption of work on the pipeline, which had been slowed by spring runoff, and a moderate start on return to bush work in the lumber industry.

Month-end tally showed 1,024 men and 207 women listed available for work in the area from Kootenay Lake to Elko, and north to Parson. Drop in the total of women listed for jobs was noticeable with reopening of resorts and increased cafe and store staffs for the tourist season, and would have been more substantail, except for listing of students available during the school summer holidays.

Our Exhibition Needs Help

Nelson's West Kootenay Exhibition has always been one of the outstanding events of the year, coming as it does to close out the year's program of summer entertainment.

Changing circumstances have affected all such fairs. The community which once was predominantly agricultural is now much more industrialized and some of the old skills of farming are in danger of being lost. Home canning which once was a feature of every country home has given place to the use of the home freezer.

Nevertheless, there are still many who can compete in many classes of agricultural and horticultural products and these with the displays of flowers form an important part of the exhibition. While not all professionally agricultural, the competitors are eager to raise the standards of achievement.

But if conditions are changing the exhibition is changing to meet them. There are classes for art, carving and kindred hobbies, there are displays of cars, boats and machinery and many of the things which interest people today.

And there is the floor show, which is always interesting, and present performances which are seldom seen in Nelson and, of course, more fun of the fair is to be found in the carnival on the ball grounds.

Taking it all in all the exhibition is well worth all the trouble that generous minded people take to produce it. It is well worth our attendance and patronage and it is definitely well worth preserving but the directors see trouble ahead if more help is not forthcoming. They feel the loss of Art Gilker, who was a tower of strength to the committee and unceasing in his efforts on behalf of the exhibition.

It is early yet perhaps to think of the exhibition — the fall seems a long way off — but if it is to be a success work on it must start now. The committee needs new members and helpers.

We can afford neither to have a poor exhibition nor have it fail. It must continue to be a success and we count on the citizens of Nelson to make it so.

Allied Strategy for Berlin

Discussion of plans for the Western response to possible renewed Communist pressure on West Berlin has gone beyond the stage of mere declarations of Anglo-French-American unity on the subject. The talks between President Kennedy and President de Gaulle in Paris evidently dealt in part with how that unity shall be given effect.

The leader of France, according to reports, agrees with West German Chancellor Adenauer that even subtle manoeuvres by Premier Khrushchev in this area should be met bluntly and head-on. They would like the Soviet government to know that any attempt to cut off West Berlin from Western Europe would lead straight toward atomic war.

British official thinking, which Mr. Kennedy earlier explored with Prime Minister Macmillan, concerns itself with a number of possible intermediate steps, though with no less determination to resist a choke-off of the one-time German capital.

In this process it is just as well for not only all statesmen but all people involved to face the fact that a direct confrontation of Communist ambitions to extinguish freedom in Berlin could lead to war. If this be brinkmanship, let it be remembered that Mr. Khrushchev inaugurated it with his demands concerning West Berlin in 1958.

There is good reason to believe that the Soviet premier does not wish to ignite a holocaust over this issue. He may not be eager even to give the East German puppet government under Walter Ulbricht the separate treaty which he holds up as a threat to the West. As Dr. John Brown Mason has said, "He will use brute force where he thinks it will serve a purpose and avoid it where the possible gain might create a dangerous situation."

Clearly part of the mission of President Kennedy in meeting Mr. Khrushchev at Vienna was to convince the master of Moscow that any gain derived from new efforts to undermine West Berlin would indeed create a dangerous situation — not only for the West but also for the Soviet bloc.

To accomplish this probably will call for something more specific and visible than the present "contingency plan" for a war alert and three-way diplomatic consultation. Mr. Kennedy is said to have asked President de Gaulle to consider permitting American atomic-armed fighter-bombers to be moved to French airfields in event of a Berlin crisis.

General de Gaulle for more than a year has insisted that if such planes are to be stationed in France they must be under exclusively French control. If he really wishes the allied posture to be strong against possible sapping operations at Berlin he might accept a "double key" system such as that by which American Air Force bombers in Britain can take off for war missions only with consent of both governments.

—Christian Science Monitor.

Two-Edged Sword

I understand that most of the money collected in fines from citizens who sat down in Parliament Square recently goes straight to the treasury. In other words, the more often these citizens demonstrate against the H-bomb, and the more of them there are doing it, the more money there will be available for building more H-bombs. I think wistfully of what the poet Burns used to say about the best-laid plans of mice and men.

—Punch.

Best-Read

There is always a crumb of comfort somewhere. Even, though at first glance we do not appear to leap with any particular lustre from its solid pages, in the United Nations Statistical Year Book just issued in New York.

The Irish (calory intake: 3500) are the best fed nation in the world. The Americans (335 cars for every 1000 citizens) are the most mobile. The Russians are the biggest flim fans.

We get placed, of course. Britons come forth in the calorific league-table, and fifth in the mobility stakes (98 cars per 1000). We are actually second best at watching television.

But don't we come first at anything any more? Not even in a world in which the population will pass the 3,000,000,000 mark this year?

Ah yes, we knew it. Here is our page. Let the sun set on our Empire if it will, and the Irish (all those potatoes cannot do them any good) beat us to the grub-stakes record.

Britain (573 copies per 1000) has the largest newspaper circulation in the world.

Interpreting The News

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Gallons of ink have been spilled in recent weeks about Britain's relations with Europe —yet somehow the result is misleading.

The irresistible impression emerges that Britain is on the verge of deciding whether to join Europe. Some influential voices have even implied that a positive decision has already been taken.

In fact, no decision has been taken; the government still has a fair distance to go before making up its mind.

The government is embarking on a detailed study of all the implications of British membership in the European Economic Community. The object is to clarify the British position in preparation for negotiations—if negotiations are possible — with the six nations of EEC who signed the Treaty of Rome in March, 1957.

No Hamlet sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought has ever faced a trickier or tougher problem. The consequences are complex and far-reaching. The Treaty of Rome contains some 250 rules touching virtually every human activity from agriculture to trade unionism.

DAMNED EITHER WAY

The arguments on both sides are compelling. It is one of those times when you are damned if you do and damned if you dont.

On the one hand, joining the European club seems part of the inevitable course of history, an irreversible process.

On the other, opponents stress the dangers — of low - paid Italians swamping the British labor market, of predominantly Roman Catholic countries dominating Protestant Britain, of "foreign" Communists playing an influential role in the projected European parliament.

A Labor foreign affairs expert, Denis Healey, warns that in the European setup Britain would have about as much political influence as Quebec or California.

So Prime Minister Macmillan takes his time. There is little likelihood of a final decision this year.

Week in U.S. Business

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States economic barometer read last week: Production up. Employment up.

These twin developments accelerated business' rise from the recession and, government economists said, gave promise of further advance.

The Federal Reserve Board reported that production of mines, factories and utilities increased three per cent in May. It called the gain a further sharp recovery and said it was widespread.

Increases included production of automobiles, iron and steel, television and radio sets, furniture, clothing, business equipment, farm machinery, construction materials, textiles, chemicals and paper products.

Additional gains were predicted for automobiles and steel in June.

The labor department announced improvement in May in three segments of the employment picture — employment in heavy industry, the factory work week and overtime hours.

The average factory worker's work week increased to 39.6 hours in May 39.3 in April. This was the fourth consecutive monthly increase. Average weekly overtime hours increased one - tenth of an hour to 2.1 hours.

Coyne-Fleming Upset Puts the Spotlight on Bank of Canada

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Last week's Coyne controversy has thrown the spotlight of publicity on the Bank of Canada, an institution which controls the country's lifeblood — money.

The clash between bank Governor James E. Coyne and Finance Minister Fleming has, if nothing else, drawn public attention to the role and powers of the country's central bank.

The debate in the country and in Parliament, by the time it is ended, likely will have clarified some of those powers and created a wider understanding of what the bank is all about.

The man in the street knows the central bank as the agency that issued the dollar bill in his pocket, and Governor Coyne as one of the two bank officials whose signatures are on the bill. The other is Deputy Governor J. R. Beattie.

He probably doesn't fully appreciate, however, that the central bank's operations may ultimately be the deciding factor in whether he can get a loan from his chartered bank — or, indeed, whether his employer can get a loan that might mean the continuation of his job.

DECIDES MONEY SUPPLY

The Bank of Canada's main role lies in deciding monetary policy — in effect, the money supply. It does this mainly by buying and selling bonds and other securities in the market.

When it buys, the result is to increase the cash reserves of the chartered banks on deposit with the Bank of Canada. When it sells, the reserves are reduced. And the size of a bank's reserves determine how much money it can lend to the public.

The size of a bank's reserves also are affected by how much currency it holds. But the amount of currency in circulation, too, is decided by the Bank of Canada.

And the man whose hand has been at the controls of all this is the bank governor, Mr. Coyne. With him is a 12-man board of directors appointed by the governors.

The dispute over the central bank's powers, and who has final responsibility for them, has gone on for years.

The Bank of Canada Act makes the bank ultimately answerable to Parliament. But where does the government come in?

VIEWS DIFFER

In the Commons, the opposition argues that the government must bear responsibility for the bank's monetary policy.

In a major speech last February Finance Minister Fleming denied this and said the bank is directly responsible to Parliament, not to the government.

In 1956, as opposition financial critic, Mr. Fleming said the finance minister "has a very direct responsibility because the action taken by the Bank of Canada in this respect (monetary policy) surely has a direct influence on the whole field of action and on the whole field of responsibilitay of the government in relation to fiscal matters."

Now, in the decision announced Wednesday by Mr. Fleming to seek parliamentary action to dismiss the governor, the government has taken the responsibility of deciding to change the bank's top management.

MAY SET PRECEDENT

Parliament's decision on the dismissal move will set a precedent on how a governor can be removed.

The legislation governing the governor and deputy governor "shall be appointed by the directors with the approval of the governor-in-council" — the cabinet—for terms of seven years "during good behavior."

The issue has never before arisen. The bank has had only one other governor, Graham Towers, who held office for 20 years and left in 1954 on his own initiative.

The generally - accepted theory, supported by statements of Mr. Towers in 1954 and Mr. Coyne last week, is that in the event of an outright clash of policy between bank and government, the governor would have to give way and resign.

COYNE ADAMANT

Mr. Coyne has refused to resign. He has denied Mr. Fleming's statement that there are deep-seated differences in policy between them.

The Bank of Canada Act gives the governor strong powers to bear his main responsibility for seeing that the bank carries out its job, which boils down generally to a phrase in the law's preamble: "to promote the economic and financial welfare of the Dominion."

The act says the governor, on behalf of the board, "has the direction and control of the business of the bank with authority to act in connection with the conduct of the business of the bank in all matters that are not by this act or by the bylaws of the bank specifically reserved to be done by the board or by the executive committee."

The executive committee, which meets more frequently than the board of directors, is made up of the governor, deputy governor and one director. The deputy finance minister also sits on the committee as an ex-officio member without voting powers, as he does on the full board.

HAS VETO POWERS

The governor has power to veto actions of the board of executive committee.

But the act also specifies certain powers of the cabinet in bank affairs. Any veto by the governor, for instance, must be reported to the cabinet which can disallow this action.

The cabinet also has the right of approval of the salaries of the governor and deputy governor after they are determined by the directors.

The finance minister, with cabinet approval, appoints the 12 directors. And the minister can keep close tabs on bank operations—it must report to him weekly on its assets and liabilities and notes in circulation.

The cabinet also has power to amend or set aside certain bylaws of the bank's board of directors.

MUST REFER BYLAWS

Bylaws over which it has this power are those dealing with the calling and conduct of meetings of the board and executive committee, the fees of directors, the duties of the bank's officers and employees, and "the management and disposition of the stock, property and undertakings of the bank." All these bylaws must be referred to the cabinet.

This provision is involved in the dispute over the board's action 16 months ago in increasing the special pension available to the governor.

Mr. Fleming said he didn't hear of this action until this spring and that Mr. Coyne was at fault in not reporting it to the cabinet.

Mr. Coyne said a legal opinion by the deputy justice minister said the pension bylaw was not among those which required cabinet approval.

The government has given no indication yet whether it will disallow the pension bylaw.

Cloak and Dagger Details Put Before Hammarskjold

UNITED NATIONS (AP) U.S. spy charges against a handsome Czech diplomat and his counter-claim that American intelligence tried to hire him landed on UN Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold's desk Saturday.

Central figure in the drama is Miroslav Nacvalac, 39, No. 3 man in the Czech UN mission. He said he will ignore U.S. demands that he leave the country until he gets instructions from his government.

A UN spokesman said Hammarskjold is studying a U.S. request that Nacvalac be expelled on grounds he had been collecting information from an American government worker for almost a year.

Also before the secretary-general was a protest from the Czech UN mission claiming U.S. agents had dangled promises of unlimited wealth before Nacvalac if he would become a spy for the United States.

ACCOUNTS DIFFER

Both the U.S. and Czech accounts were replete with cloak-and - dagger details including threats of blackmail and violence, but the facts varied sharply.

State department spokesman Lincoln White gave this account in Washington:

Nacvalac made contact about a year ago with an American, then a government employee, and demanded his co-operation, threatening that the American's fiancee in Czechoslovakia would be prevented from joining him in the United States.

White said Nacvalac not only used threats but indicated there was a possibility he might defect and remain in the United States.

The spokesman said the American had access to classified U.S. information, but that he furnished only "ourported" secrets to Nacvalac.

PAID MONEY

"Nacvalac paid sums of money for what he believed to be classified information of the U.S. government," White said.

He said a meeting was arranged with Nacvalac last Tuesday at the Gripsholm Restaurant in New York. The meeting was attended by special agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

White said the agents were present to discuss with Nacvalac his alleged intrest in remaining here.

Nacvalac gave a sharply different version of the rendezvous. He told reporters this story:

Last Tuesday he was lunching with an unidentified American friend at the Gripsholm when three men entered, one of whom he recognized as Tisler.

WAS INTRODUCED

Tisler introduced the two others to Nacvalac as "Mr. Mack and Mr. Jack," and the American friend left when one of the two flashed a badge.

"Mirek," said Tisler, using a familiar form of Nacvalac's first name, "we would like you to be with us. Mr. Mack can open all the doors to the White House for you."

Nacvalac said the agents wanted him to keep his job as counsellor in the Czech mission and work for the U.S. government.

When he made plain he would not accept the offer, Nacvalac said, "they started to threaten me. Told me we know what this means to you. We can practically destroy you."

Tisler even hinted at "physical liquidation," Nacvalac said.

At the end of a two-hour talk, Nacvalac said, the agents appeared "fed up with the whole thing."

Stately Home of England Has Pay-Phone for Guests

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — The entrance to the home of one of the richest men in the world is barred by a pair of tall steel gates.

Sutton Place, nestling in the leafy countryside of the county of Surrey, 30 miles southwest of London, was bought two years ago by United States oil man J. Paul Getty from George Grenville Sutherland Sutherland-Leveson-Gower, fifth Duke of Sutherland.

The price was about $2,800,000. The deal included a 500-year - old Tudor mansion in which kings and queens have dined and made merry.

Unlike many of Britain's stately homes, it is not open to the public. Getty hardly needs the small coins charged by some of Britain's hard-pressed gentry to view their historic mansions. But he's not above making his guests drop coins in a pay telephone for any calls they make.

Of his wealth, which he will discuss only with painful reluctance, he says:

"If I did sell out today, I'd hope to get several billion dollars. It's bad form to brag about having money. One just doesn't do it."

From the front gate, the road to Getty's Tudor pile of brick and stone is paved and it's nearly two miles long.

A butler appears leads the way into a huge room looking out through leaded windows on to the front garden.

The room is superb with old masters adorning the pine-panelled walls and comfortable furniture abounding.

BUTLER SILENT

Reappearing as silently as he left, the butler sets a table for tea.

Then, from the side door, Getty enters.

At 64, his figure is spare and straight, his well-tailored suit subdued. About his long, thin face there's a sort of melancholy resolution. His voice is soft and modulated—the accent of a man from the American southwest who's spent a lot of time in foreign lands.

He sips the tea but passes up the sandwiches and cake while urging them on you.

After some chit-chat, he says: "Come, let me show you the house."

MAKES NO REMARKS

The great library, with its minstrel gallery and its priceless furniture, is first. He gives you plenty of time to examine every object, but volunteers no observations.

He shows you in turn the great hall and the long gallery with its magnificent paintings.

Then to the dining room. It is about 50 yards long and can seat 150—with plenty of elbow room.

Getty then leads the way to his kitchens where he has worked his biggest transformation.

The old flag-stoned floor has gone. False ceilings have been installed with bright fluorescent lighting. All the equipment is American. There are four stainless steel sinks, stacks of wall ovens and a new deep-freeze room. The ancient butler's pantry—once dark and gloomy—is a pretty blue and white.

THEN OUTSIDE

"Now let's go outside," says the master.

In quick sucession he shows his new dog kennels, his new greenhouses, his spacious rose gardens, his vegetable garden, his lily pond, vast field of daffodils and his outdoor swimming pool.

"And now," says Getty, "I must show you the telephone pay station I've installed."

It's near the butler's pantry, for the use of guests, employees and workers.

"The guests won't mind paying for their calls," he says, "and as for the deadbeats, I couldn't care less."

Somehow, of all this vast beautiful estate, Getty seems proudest of his new telephone.

Indian Women Take A Hand in Affairs

By TOM WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KAWENE, Ont. (CP) — The women of Northern Ontario's Indian reserves are raving their say in the affairs of their communities and the men are sitting up and taking notice.

"The women are accepting more and more responsibility for the welfare of their reserves and they're doing some good work to promote better living," says Jane Bartlett of North Bay, a social worker for the Northern Ontario region of the federal Indian affairs branch.

Miss Bartlett made the comments during a conference of chiefs and councillors from Northwestern Ontario Indian bands at the Quetico Conference and Training Centre near this community, 120 miles west of the Lakehead.

Of the 27 delegates attending the leadership training course, eight were women. One was Amelia Wani, chief of the Gull Bay band, a community of 150 on the western shore of Lake Nipigon.

Chief Wani, a plump, jolly woman in her 30s said in an interview that her election a year ago came as a big surprise.

MEN DON'T MIND

"I went to the superintendent's place to collect my treaty money—I didn't even know an election was on. Some of the people wanted me to stand for councillor, but there were too many already nominated.

"Then somebody asked if I would stand for chief. We never had a woman chief before and I wasn't too sure about that. But then I said it would be okay with me.

"Well, I guess all the women voted for me, because I won by one vote. There were five men standing for chief too."

How do the men react to having a woman as the band's "head man"?

Sam King, one of two councillors who serve with her, puts it this way:

"When we held that election, it was the first time we knew that a woman could be a chief. We had three men chiefs before that, so some of us thought it would be a good idea to nominate Amelia.

"There were a few complaints among the men when she was elected. But she's doing a real good job for a woman. She doesn't go ahead and do things on her own—she talks to the other people and gets advice."

Chief Wani's trip to the Quetico centre, where she and the other delegates received training in the principles of parliamentary procedure, secret balloting and other democratic practices, was a roundabout journey.

She hitch - hiked 45 miles north from the reserve to Armstrong on the CNR main line, took a train 150 miles east to Longlac, rode a bus 175 miles west to the Lakehead, then got a lift in Miss Bartlett's car the remaining 120 miles to the centre.

"I'm very enthusiastic about the way the women have come along," said Miss Bartlett. "This is one of the most important changes in the life of the reserves."

The number of women chiefs and councillors is still small, but the women manage to swing considerable weight in their communities without formal representation.

"For example, there are 23 homemakers clubs in Northern Ontario reserves. They hold regular meetings of their own, discuss community problems such as education, sanitation, water supplies and health.

"They raise money for community improvements, and they also get good results by making suggestions to band councils."

Wear it Twice, Royalty Does It

LONDON (AP) — Be really fashionable: Wear your old clothes.

Britain's fashion conscious Royal Family has made it official. At, of all the places, the ultra-fashionable Royal Ascot races.

Queen Elizabeth is doing it.

Princess Margaret is doing it.

Fashion writers have often contended that royal ladies never, but never, wear the same clothes twice at big public functions.

But at the Ascot opening Princess Margaret wore the same pink satin coat she had on at a Buckingham Palace garden party over a year ago. The next day she sported the brilliant yellow coat she chose for her honeymoon in the spring of 1960.

Viscount Bledisloe's son turned up in an old Edwardian frock coat.

"I dug it out of a box in the attic," he told suprised fashion reporters.

Presbyterians Delay Decision On Women Clergy

TORONTO (CP) — The Presbyterian Church of Canada will not decide on the question of ordaining women as ministers until at least 1964.

The question was raised Wednesday at the church's general assembly. It will come up at the next assembly in 1963 in a report from the committee on articles of faith.

The committee will consult all presbyteries in Canada. Even if the report favors ordination of women, no action can be approved until the presbyteries are polled. This would take another year.

The assembly authorized continued meetings between a committee of the Presbyterian Church and the Anglican Church, but there was opposition to any talks going on at the congregational level.

Supermarkets Spell End to London Housewife's Traditional Rounds

By ROD CURRIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The Canadian housewife would probably be unimpressed with the average London supermarket but for the most part the women here are delighted with them.

When a handful appeared on the shopping scene in 195, critthe shopping scene in 1956, critnever lure the women away from their traditional rounds to greengrocer, butcher and fishmonger—almost a social affair in the day of the British housewife.

Since then the number has grown to more than 500, with 236 of them in London and the south of England, and present expansion plans will push the total to 1,000 in two years. Despite the strong sentimental ties with the little shops the promoters are investing heavily in bigger, brighter and more efficient outlets.

Already there are some supermarkets but generally they are smaller than the Canadian variety, the aisles narrower and the stock less varied.

STICK TO GROCERIES

For the most part the supermarkets stick pretty close to the grocery lines, avoiding magazines, nylons and other clothing, kitchen utensils, drugs and cosmetics.

They carry fresh meat but often shoppers return to their favorite butcher for the cuts they like.

And some supermarkets do not even attempt to compete with the neighborhood greengrocers, wonderful fragrant places with their clean, firm fruit and vegetables and flowers displayed in damp interiors and out onto the sidewalk.

Small, tissue paper bags are used in many local shops and even opse are often provided grudgingly since most shoppers carry their own baskets.

In the supermarkets the inexperienced shopper may find herself at the end of the checkout counter, confronted with her purchases, and no equivalent of the heavy, brown paper bag provided. She may, however, buy a paper shopping bag with string handle—it's called a "carrier" —for a few pennies.

The little shops have always been popular here and because of the scarcity of refrigerators the housewife often made the traditional rounds three or four times a week.

Now, with refrigerators more common and more women working outside the home, the idea of buying most of the weekly supplies under one roof is appealing. One manager says the men, stuck with the tedious job of shopping, particularly like the supermarkets.

Many women find the decision a difficult one: The supermarket which saves time and pennies or the little shops with their chatty clerks and personal service.

Bargains are the supermarkets' big attraction. Says the manager of a market in fashionable Kensington: "Most women enjoy a bargain, even those with titles."

But the few pennies off is no bargain to the woman who boasts that she can phone her butcher, order a steak and ask him to run across the street to the greengrocer for mushrooms to go with it.

"He delivers the whole thing—and there's no delivery charge."

To counter this appeal, supermarket managers have used some extreme gimmicks. One of the more ingenious is the sprinkling of sugar and coffee on the floors—to give the place the familiar grocery smell.

"King Colt" Wins Plate In Dramatic Photo Finish

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Blue Light, described as a "kind" colt, beat Just Don't Shove at the wire Saturday to give a dignified old gentleman his first Queen's Plate victory.

The board flashed "photo" and the camera had to decide the closest two-horse battle in modern history of North America's oldest continuously - run race.

Col. K. R. Marshall, whose cerise and white colors have been prominent in Canadian racing for more than half a century, received a tremendous ovation from the crowd of 28,302 as he walked to the winner's enclosure. Now 80, he had been trying to win the classic for 45 years.

Many of the sun-bathed spectators at suburban New Woodbine track thought this 102nd plate running was a dead heat. It would have been if Just Don't Shove had been able to stick out his tongue at the finish of the 1¼-mile $50,000-added stakes for Canadian - bred three-year-olds. It was that close.

WAS 18-1 SHOT

The form players didn't like Blue Light's chances in the 13-horse field and sent him to the gate at 18-to-1 odds. But the long-shot bettors loved him as they collected $39.50, $10.60 and $4.80 across the board.

Just Don't Shove, coupled as a Conn Smythe entry with Jammed Lucky, was 7-to-2 favorite and returned $3.30 and $2.50. Ramblin Wreck, second betting favorite, was third almost two lengths off the pace. The E. P. Taylor - owned filly, Victoria Regina, bumped at the start, was another 2¼ lengths behind in fourth place.

Ramblin Wreck, owned by bingo king Bill Beasley of Toronto paid $3.00.

The crowd figure was just 84 off the record 28,386 set at New Woodbine on Queens Plate day in 1958. They set a record Canadian one-day mutuel handle of $1,136,175, topping the previous best $1,074,037, also established on Plate day three years ago. And they shoved $214,220 through the betting wickets on the Plate race alone, another record. The previous high of $208,371 was wagered on the 1957 Plate.

ALSO A SAD DAY

The day also had its heartbreaks. Probably the saddest of all was 54 - year - old jockey Johnny Longden aboard Just Don't Shove.

It was Mount No. 28,741 for the British-born rider in his 35-year career and his fourth unsuccessful attempt to reach a life-long ambition—ride a Plate winner.

The little man who grew up in Taber, Alta., and who has won every big stakes race in North America except the Plate, appeared to have this one cinched. Just Don't Shove broke out in front and swished his tail at the field until overtaken by Blue Light on the last stride.

The track was fast, but the time was the slowest since the distance was increased to 1¼ miles from 1⅛ miles in 1957. The clocking showed 2:05, well off the record 2:02 set by Victoria Park last year.

Col. Marshall, chairman of the Jockey Club who won $46,475, the $5,000 gold cup and the Queen's 50 guineas, said he had been trying to win the classic "about a dozen times, but this was my most serious attempt."

"And this is the happiest day of my life," added the man who revealed he owned his first horse as a schoolboy back in 1895 and who bought Blue Light two years ago for $7,500 from E. P. Taylor, president of the Jockey Club.

It was the happiest day, too, for 25-year-old Hugo Dittfach, Blue Light's German - born jockey who lives in Calgary. It was his first Plate winner and his fourth winning mount of the afternoon.

Tee Time

Semi-final playoffs will be finished before Sunday afternoon in the Appleyard-Lowe trophy race at the Nelson Golf and Country Club.

Finals are due to begin at 1 p.m. Sunday.

We're proud of our Billion Dollar Company

This month Manufacturers Life became the second Canadian life insurance company to reach the one billion dollar mark in assets. But such a milestone in growth has meaning only in terms of human endeavour, of goals and accomplishments, of principles and dedication to them.

The part played in this success story by our policy-owners is an excellent illustration. These are the men and women whose basic human desire for financial security for their families and themselves led to the purchase of life insurance in this Company. Our assets are their savings. We are deeply conscious of the trust placed in us to invest these funds soundly and profitably on their behalf and later to make them available in times of emergency or need.

We are sure they share with us the pride of being associated with a billion dollar company.

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — Quiet, methodical Gene Littler, who once fought his way out of a slump that lasted more than two years, fired a two-under-par 68 on the pressure-drenched final round Saturday and won the U.S. Open golf championship with a 72-hole total of 281.

Reeling past Doug Sanders and a bundle of other talented challengers, the 30-year-old California professional made up a four-stroke deficit in the last 16 holes and won by a single shot.

In 1954—Littler's first year as a professional after winning the U.S. amateur title the previous fall—he lost by a single stroke to Ed Furgol in the Open.

Sanders, the leader at the 54-hole point with 210 to Littler's 213, ran into a bad stretch in the final round but nailed a birdie at the 16th hole and needed just one more on either of the last two holes to tie Littler. He couldn't do it.

TIES FOR SECOND

Sanders wound up with a final round 72 and tied for second at 282 with Bob Goalby, who was in before Littler completed his round and didn't have a last-ditch shot at him. Goalby's last round was a 71.

There was such a traffic-jam at the top when the final round began that a playoff for first place seemed hardly avoidable. But one by one the challengers dropped away and on came Littler—just as Arnold Palmer, the defending champion, had done a year ago at Denver, Colo.

PALMER HAS 289

Palmer, who putted poorly this time and wound up with 289 although he shot a pair of par 70s in the final rounds, had leaped over 13 others from seven strokes behind on the final 18 at Denver.

The open victory was Littler's first in eight attempts.

After Goalby and Sanders came Jackie Nicklaus — once again the low amateur in the open—and Mike Souchak, tied for fourth at 284.

Dow Finsterwald, Eric Monti and Doug Ford wound up at 286 while masters champion Gary Players of South Africa finished with 287.

Brumel Did It ... Just About

NEW YORK (AP) — Russian high jumper Valery Brumel thought he broke John Thomas' world high jump record Sunday — but he only tied it.

The confusion came about because of a mathematical error in converting Thomas' 7 foot, 3¾ inch record to the metric system.

Tass, the official Soviet News agency, said that Brumel cleared 2.23 metres in a meet in Moscow, breaking the Boston University junior's standard by one centimetre.

But when the United States submitted Thomas' 7-3¾ to the International Amateur Athletic Federation for approval, one of the organization's mathematical experts translated it to metres and centimetres. He arrived at a 2.22 figure. This translates to only 7-3⅜.

Actually, 7-3¾ comes to exactly 2.23 metres. So Brumel has only a tie for the world mark.

The two world's premier high jumpers will meet in Moscow in the Soviet-United States duel meet on July 15-16. Last winter, Brumel defeated Thomas in three meetings in Madison Square Garden.

Exhibition Ball Set for Tonight

Interest of at least 150 Nelson boys and girls — those who will participate as players and coaches in the Nelson Midsummer Baseball tournament in July and August — will be on the east end diamond at the Civic grounds tonight.

Taking the field at 6 p.m. will be the new and untried Kooteneers girls baseball nine in an exhibition game with the Woolworth boys. Tonight's game has all the earmarks of a play-off fixture. It will be played under strict tournament regulations, and will serve as a preview of the opetning game on July 4, when the same teams will launch the 1961 tournament.

The girls' roster will include Lucille Johnson, Verna Chernoff, Mary McMaster, Elaine Ramsay, Iris Willmott, Donna Bozak, Tudy Gelinas, Phyllis Wickstrom, Dawn Fredericksen, Diane Ingledew, Jery Heslip, Madge Wallace, Diane Carmen, Susan MacKenzie and Maureen Hannon.

Woolworths will field a team from among Ken Kuhn, Reg Cherenko, Greg Ozeroff, Norman Blain, Don Cavalier, Reinhard Koch, Dennis Cherenko, Barry Lipinski, Kenny Kalyniuk, Alex Sidor, jr., and Greg Kalyniuk.

Umpires will be Fred Nicholls, Johnny Romaniuk, Gary Shatosky and Reo Rocheleau.

Scorers, who will be having their first try at the "scoremaster" system adopted by the tournament this year, will be Lorraine Webster, Sharon Walls and Mary Vance.

Eighth Team In Tourney

The eighth team in this season's Midsummer Baseball tournament was entered over the weekend when Don Amatto registered his International - Harvester nine, sponsored by Central Truck and Equipment Co., Ltd.

This is Don's "very own" team. He started with nothing last May, organized a group of boys from the uphill district — the home area of last year's powerfull Shamrocks — found a sponsor, and now has a squad with its own equipment and likely to make a good showing in the tournament.

The other seven teams in the tournament are Woolworths, Lord Nelsons, Buckhorns, Franks and Hippersons boys' teams and the Kooteneers and Whitelys girls' teams.

Nelson Outlaws Split Pair With Kimberley; 6-2, 4-3

KIMBERLEY — Nelson Outlaws jumped into a league-leading tie with the Kimberley Dynamos whe nthey split a weekend doubleheader with Kimberley Hobos Sunday in two East Kootenay Baseball League fivtures.

The Outlaws trimmed the Hobos 6-2 in the opener and then dropped the second game 4-3 before a crowd of about 200 fans.

Charlie Burdette, the big boomer with the bat, led the Outlaws with a home run in the third inning of the opener. Hefty Al Roemer followed Burdette's lead with another homer in the fourth to drive Burdette home. The Big Boomer got on base with a third-base error.

Don MacKenzie scored in the seventh on a double by Jack Scoles and an infield sacrifice by Frank Hufty.

Hobos got both their runs in the sixth inning on a walk and a single and a run scored on John Koziansic's double. Ed Johnson scored on a passed ball.

Bill Eyre fas the wining pitcher with six strikeouts. He was relieved in the seventh by Joe Postnikoff. Postnikoff held the Hobos hitless the rest of the way.

Ron Brown was the loser for the Hobos. He was replaced by Bob Fisher in the fifth, and Fisher in turn, was yanked in favor of Collin Patterson in the seventh.

Jack Scoles retrieved much of his lost honor of last weekend by a sparkling display of third-base work for the Outlaws. Scoles hit three for four.

Roemer and Burdette hit two for four and Bernie Monteleone two fro five.

In the night-cap, Nelson got their three runs on 10 hits and one error and the Hobos four runs on eight hits and one error.

Kimberley got three of their runs in the first inning on three hits, a walk and a sacrifice fly. The Hobos scored again in the fourth on Ron Seridick's homer.

The Outlaws got one run in the third on Burdette's double which drove in Monteleone. Burdette doubled again in the fourth inning to score Postnikoff.

Things tightened up in the seventh and final inning and the Outlaws threw in everything they could lay their hands on.

Pitcher Les Hufty grounded out. Frank Hufty stretched a single to second base on a Hobo error. Monteleone singled Hufty to third and Mel Dorey drove him in with a single.

Burdette flew out to deep left and the hopes rested on Roemer, who can usually talk pretty convincingly with the hard wood.

Roemer drove the ball high against the centre field wall but the Hobo centre fielder had his mit around it.

Les Hufty was the losing pitcher and Mel Johnson the winner. Johnson was relieved in the seventh by Colin Patterson.

Cincy Opens 1½-Game Lead in NL; Tigers Hang On Despite Loss at Hands of Yanks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati opened up a 1½ game lead over San Francisco in the National League Sunday as Los Angeles dropped to third place and Detroit clung to a half-game lead in the American League despite a shutout defeat at the hands of New York.

The Reds made it 12 straight over the Phillies this season with 7-2 and 10-0 decisions. Gene Freese, a former Phil, helped ruin his old mates with seven hits in eight trips. Howie Nunn won the first in relief and Jim O'Toole pitched a 10-hit shutout in the second.

San Francisco thumped Chicago 7-2 on a pair of three-run homers by Willie McCovey and Orlando Cepeda. McCovey's was a pinch-hit effort off loser Don Cardwell. Juan Marichal was aided by rookie Dick Lemay who allowed only two hits in the last four innings.

Milwaukee hit five home runs, three in succession, off Don Drysdale, in a 10-2 romp over the Dodgers. Joe Adcock hit two and Hank Aaron, Frank Thomas and Roy McMillan one each. Don McMahon was the winner ub relief of Carl Willey.

Dick Groat's sacrifice fly was decisive in Pittsburgh's first game victory over St. Louis 5-3, but Larry Jackson survived a shaky seventh inning and pitched the Cards to an even break with a 7-3 decision in the second game.

FORD BLANKS TIGERS

Whitey Ford blanked Detroit with three hits and struck out 12 while the Yanks were routing their old nemesis, Frank Lary. Ford needed relief from Luis Arroyo at the start of the ninth when a blister broke on his pitching hand. Johnny Blanchard hit two homers and Bill Skowron and Roger Maris (No. 24) one each for the Yanks.

Cleveland had a chance to go all the way and take over the lead but stumbled over Baltimore. Bob Nieman's pinch single enabled Jim Perry to take the first game 2-1, his first complete game since opening day. After Cleveland knocked out Jack Fisher in a five-run first inning, the second game appeared safe but the Orioles flattened Gary Bell and scored eight in the second inning enroute to an 8-5 triumph.

Chicago continued to make its run, making it 10 victories in the last 11 starts, as the White Sox swept two from Minnesota 4-3 and 10-7. Home runs from unexpected sources won the opener. Billy Goodman's pinch homer was his first since 1959 and Nellie Fox's was his first of the year. The Sox knocked out Camilo Pascual in the second game. Later Pascual became involved in a dugout argument with his own first baseman Bob Allison who had waved to him to hold a runner on base.

Jim Pagliaroni was the big man in Boston's 13-12 and 6-5 sweep over Washington. Pagliaroni hit a grand slam homer in the ninth of the first game when Boston scored eight runs after two were out. Pagliaroni's homer in the 13th won the second game, too.

Del Rice did the big work for Los Angeles in a 5-3 victory over Kansas City in 11 innings. Rice's pinch homer in the ninth tied the score and his two-run blast in the 11th won it.

Detroit beat New York 12-10 for the second time in a row Saturday night and took over first place in the American League as a ninth-inning Yankee rally fell short.

Cleveland fell off the pace by losing 4-1 to Baltimore.

In the National League, Cincinnati clung to their slender lead on the strength of a 10-5 triumph over last - place Philadelphia Phillies. San Francisco Giants were only a game behind the Reds after beating Chicago Cubs 9-3.

Los Angeles Dodgers beat Milwaukee 3-0, Stan Williams fanning 12 while pitching a five-hitter. Daryl Spencer's homer with one on in the fourth was the decisive hit.

Bobby Shantz pitched Pittsburgh Pirates to a 9-3 victory over St. Louis Cardinals. The key blow for the Pirates was Dick Stuart's three - run homer in the second inning. The loser was Ernie Broglio.

CISCO WINS

Boston Red Sox won their third straight on Jim Pagliaroni's two-run pinch homer for a 6-5 victory over Washington. Pagliaroni was batting for rookie Galen Cisco, who was credited with his first big league victory. Joe McClain was the loser.

Juan Pizarro, finally hitting his stride for Chicago White Sox, won his second straight with relief help from Warren Hacker in a 5-1 decision over Minnesota Twins. Pizarro allowed only two hits for six innings but four singles chased him in the seventh.

Lefty Ted Bowsfield, of Penticton B.C., with relief help from Art Fowler, gained a four - hit shutout as Los Angeles Angels downed Kansas City Athletics 3-0. The victory snapped a nine-game Angel losing streak.

Pot of Gold May Be At End of Rainbow For Coast Graduate

By BOB TRIMBEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ian Dixon, a scholarly North Vancouver high school graduate, left Sunday on a trip that could lead to a $50,000 jackpot.

The rich prize is a bonus contract with a major league club and Dixon's trip is to give both the youngster and the big league clubs an opportunity to show what they have to offer.

Dixon, a solid six-foot-one 180-pound third baseman - pitcher, has been under scrutiny of at least 16 major league scouts. All but Los Angeles Dodgers, Chicago Cubs and the embryo New York Mets of the National League and Washington Senators of the American Leavue have bid for his service.

Dixon, 18, is the plum of a large group of players being sought and signed by big league clubs in B.C. this year. Two have already signed contracts, outfielder Wayne Norton with New York Yankees, and infielder Ray Nosella with Pittsburgh Pirates.

The sharp bidding for Dixon has led to the speculation by baseball writers and his coaches that the ante will reach at least $50,000, a record for a Canadian.

FATHER GIVES ADVICE

Astute advice from his father, a former pitcher-first baseman in the semi-pro New York State League and now a public relations chief with a transportation firm, has aided Dixon's negotiations.

At Kansas City, Dixon, who was born in Drummondville, Que., and moved west 10 years later, will work out with the American League Athletics for three days. He then joins Yankees for another three-day workout. The Yanks, who showed the first interest in Dixon two years ago, are giving the inside track to gain his signature.

World champion Pittsburgh Pirates are next on the list.

"It's what I've wanted a long time," the calm and confident youngster said. "Baseball has always been my main sports interest and it's only natural I want to reach the top."

A little league product, Dixon's long - ball power and strong arm has led to uncertainty whether he'll sign as a pitcher or infielder. One club has suggested they would like him as a shortstop.

His high school reached shows a batting average of over .400 and a 26-3 record as a pitcher, with an average of two strike outs an inning and six no-hitters in the last two years.

Dixon will be attempting to follow in the footsteps of Ted Bowsfield, a Penticton, B.C., southpaw who now toils for the American League Los Angeles Angels.

Because his height limits his chances of becoming a pro basketball player, Dixon, who averaged 28 points a game last season, rejected several offers from American universities.

Budd Wins Showdown Race Over Jerome

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Frank Budd won his showdown duel with Canadian Harry Jerome in the 100-yard dash and Dyrol Burleson ran the mile in 4:00.5 during the U. S. National Collegiate Athletic Association's track and field championships Saturday.

Budd's time in the 100 was 9.4 seconds, compared to 9.5 for Jerome, who runs for University of Oregon although he is form Vancouver. Budd also won the 220-yard sprint in 20.8. Jerome didn't qualify for the finals in that one.

Baseball's 1961 Gold Rush Is On; Green Kids Are Striking It Rich

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The 1961 gold rush is on. Fuzzy-cheeked high school and college lads, taking advantage of an unbelievable spending era in baseball, are striking it rich.

Despite the history of failures of high-priced bonus babies—there are about 10 washouts for every success—bonuses ranging from a few thousand dollars to as much as $200,000 are being handed out to raw, inexperienced youths who have never seen the inside of a big league stadium, let alone played in one.

In the last two weeks alone, American and National League clubs have deposited approximately $4,000,000 into the bank accounts of high school and college athletes. A major league club official estimates that by December a total of $9,000,000 will be spent.

Baseball officials are unanimous in the conviction that large bonuses are bad for both the ball clubs and the boys who accept them. But they plead there is nothing that can be done about it. All favor legislation curbing excessive bonuses but all are competing feverishly for questionable talent.

"We have spent $200,000 so far this year," acknowledged general manager Hank Greenberg of Chicago White Sox, "and the bonus season is just beginning."

SHOULD BE LIMITED

"We have spent $400,000 so far," said general manager Roy Hamey of New York Yankees. "I definitely believe that some limitation should be in effect in the direction of curbing excessive bonuses. I doubt if there will be enough support to outlaw bonuses entirely although I feel some plan will have to be developed to curtail this wild spending."

"The payment of exorbitant bonuses, in my opinion, is not only an extravagant practice," said National League President Warren Giles, "but a dangerous one. It violates all principles of sound business operations."

The Yankees this year gave Jake Gibbs, Mississippi University all - America quarterback and star third baseman, more than $100,000 to sign. Kansas City handed Lew Krausse, an 18-year-old high school pitcher, $125,000.

And the report is that Sam Bailey, an 18-year-old California high school boy, is demanding $200,000 to sign a big league contract.

Commissioner Ford Frick, a persistent foe of big bonus payments, sees this practice as "paving the road to baseball's ruin." "It destroys competition. Besides, it is wrong to give an untried man all that money. It has to rob these kids of their in centive."

In an effort to discourage e orbitant bonuses, the majo agreed two years ago to est lish a special draft making e first-year minor league player eligible for unrestricted selec tion unless brought up by the parent major league club. This legislation has done little to stem the bonus binge and may be scrapped at the next annual convention.

Horse of Year Fouled, Named Belmont Winner

NEW ORK (AP)—Our Hope finished first by a head over Kelso, 1960 horse of the year, in the $56.000 Whitney Stakes at Belmont Park Saturday but Kelso was fouled during the furious stretch drive and was declared the winner.

It was the ninth consecutive victory for Kelso, who toted the top load of 130 pounds, compared with only 110 on Our Hope. Reinzi, with 114 pounds, was third in the field of seven.

Kelso, the 9 - to - 20 favorite, paid $2.90, $2.50 and $2.10. Our Hope returned $6.70 and $3.80 after starting at 15 - to - 1, and Reinzi, a 19-to-1 shot, paid $3.70 to show.

SEA ORBIT WINS

At Inglewood, Calif., Sea Orbit came up with a great rush in the stretch to beat Dress Up and First Balcony in a driving finish and win the $54,850 Inglewood Handicap at Hollywood Park.

Sea Orbit returned $8.40, $4.80 and $3.20. Dress Up paid $11 and $5.20, and First Balcony paid $3.80 to show.

At Stanton, Del., Ogden Phipps' Hitting Away outran eight rival three - year - olds from flagfall to finish over 1⅛ miles and captured Delaware Park's $45,650 Leonard Richards Stakes.

Hitting Away ust lasted under jockey Hedley Woodhouse to take the $33,650 first - place money by a head over the lightly - backed Orleans Doge. Greentree Stable's Tutankhamen was third. Hitting Away returned $12.60, $6.80 and $4.80. Orleans Doge paid $10.40 and $6.60, with Tutankhamen $4.80 to show.

As Seen By BOB NORRIS

WAY BACK in 1899 the rulesmakers amputated the first and last letters of croquet to make it roque. But that label is known only to a few thousand tournament players. To a couple of million others it's still croquet.

This popular family recreation may be enjoyed by any number from two to six persons, on any good-sized lawn. It seems to be particularly appealing to the very young and very old, because there is no demand for speed, strength or endurance. It is as much fun for the skilled or unskilled, so long as they don't mix.

The object is to get a hard rubber ball from one stake to another one 55 feet away, on the way driving it with a wooden mallet through a succession of 10 wire arches, or wickets, and back to the first stake before your opponent.

Children and older folk have not too much difficulty getting the ball, three and a half inches in diameter, through arches five inches wide. Skilled players employ arches just one-eighth of an inch wider than the ball—that's a sticky wicket.

* * *

THE ROQUE experts, too, cavort on a court with a boundary five inches high, against which they make carom shots with all the scientific finesse of billiards. They will use as many shots knocking an opponent's ball out of position as they take at the arches.

Especially in doubles and triples play, the idea of keeping the other man away from the wickets adds zest to the contest.

A complete set of croquet utensils—balls and mallets for six players, arches and storage rack—costs $5 to $15.

Some historians say the game was played for centuries by the Gauls; others credit the French with its origin in the 1700s when it was a favorite pastime of royalty. It isn't known, either, how croquet came to America, or when. First notice of it was around Norwich, Conn., where the game was a rage among all the fashionables immediately after the Civil War.

Anyway, the American Roque League, embracing clubs in some 20 states, has its annual tournament July 31-Aug. 10 in Dallas, Tex.

Markets Up at The End of Week

By JOHN BELANGER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The stock market distinguished itself last week by spending most of the five days fast asleep.

The lone exception to this occurred on Thursday, when the industrial index had a more than five - point gain on the day's trading. This was the largest rise since April 25, and was brought on mainly by action in the financial institutions. This group traded heavily with the announcement by Finance Minister Fleming that $50,000-James Coyne was about to lose his job.

Expectations of "easier money" gave rise to new highs by Bank of Montreal and Imperial Bank of Commerce, while Traders Finance A and Industrial Acceptance Corporation also had substantial gains on the week.

Steel activity was good. Most issues traded heavily and gained.

Gains among papers contri-general rise.

LIQUORS POOR

One of the poorest groups was liquors. All issues fell fractionally, and there was little of the trading that characterized either steels or papers.

The base metals market, on the whole, was singularly uninspiring. The seniors were mixed with trading a dull affair, and the turnover small.

Gold trading was highlighted by an increase in activity over the group's usual lethargic movements. Kerr Addison dropped heavily on both Thursday and Friday and rached a low of $8.75.

The western oil market was down in unusually light trading.

Index changes at Toronto: Industrials up 1.62 to 581.50; golds down .12 to 81.56; base metals down .68 to 191.80 and western oils down .32 to 96.99.

Index changes at Montreal: Banks up 1.87 at 64.38; utilities down 1.7 to 147.5; industrials up 2.1 to 318.1; papers up 15.1 at 482.3 and golds off .57 to 78.12.

IMMERSE 500

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some 500 Jehovah's Witnesses will be immersed in a public swimming pool in what is claimed will be the largest mass baptism in Canada this year. The ceremony will be a feature of an assembly at Empire Stadium July 4-9, expected to draw an international group of nearly 25,000.

NO VOTE

REVELSTOKE (CP) — The provincial government has vetoed plans of city council to take a vote this month on a bylaw to borrow $135,000 to build an arena. J. E. Brown, deputy minister of municipal affairs, said money could be taken from the reserve fund for the project.

Caterpillars Threaten B.C. Forest

PORT ALBERNI, B.C. (CP) A rare and beautiful primeval forest which for 800 years was miraculously saved from fires and insects, now is threatened with destruction by a caterpillar infestation.

Cathedral Grove, where fir trees grow 200 feet tall, spreads over 1,500 acres near this west coast Vancouver Island city. It was so named because its beauty, and church-like atmosphere leave visitors spellbound.

"We know those trees are going to die some day, but we want to keep them alive as long as possible," said Ray Lejeune, officer in charge of the entomology laboratory of the federal forestry department at Victoria.

"Some of them are as tall as a 20-storey building and it's hard to tell what's happening up there."

The provincial department of recreation and MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Limited Friday hired helicopters to spray the forest with a low-concentrate DDT solution.

HARDLY CAUSE DAMAGE

The needle - eating caterpillars, which in the fall turn into the white-winged pine butterfly, have been in the area since 1959. The insect is fairly common in British Columbia but seldom becomes so numerous that it causes serious damage.

The low - concentrate solution was decided upon after consultation with federal officials and provincial fish and game authorities in an effort to keep the run-off from harming wildlife.

About 330 acres of the timberstand was given the province in 1944 by H. R. MacMillan, who had extensive lumber interests in Vancouver Island. The area contained about 25,000,000,000 board feet of lumber.

Foresters look upon Cathedral Grove as one of the oddest communities of plants on earth. A forest fire is nature's way of destroying old and diseased trees, to make room for new generations, but for some reason this stand has never been menaced.

SEEK SHORTER WEEK

MASSENA, N.Y. (AP) — A shorter work week with pay for 40 hours and retirement at 06, rather than at 65, are goals of the Aluminum Workers International Union (AFL-CIO). Resolutions calling for these steps were adopted Friday at the close of the union's five-day convention.

Focus On Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week — Picnic meals, useless coughs and first aid for stings.

THE HOT DOG SEASON

For summer picnics one of the safest foods you can take along is hot dogs. In fact, with hot dogs, here is an ideal hot weather picnic lunch:

Soft drinks, iced tea or lemonade; fresh fruit; relishes such as carrots, radishes, celery, suggest University of Michigan dieticians.

Stay away from deviled eggs, mayonnaise, cream pies and even hamburger or other chopped meats. These foods can foster population explosions of bacteria — and they might still look good and smell good, but be dangerously contaminated.

If you do take foods that have to be refrigerated or kept warm, keep temperatures either below 45 degrees or above 150 to discourage bacterial growth.

WHAT'S IN A COUGH?

The useful cough is essential to life, guarding the lungs against the intrusion of an external or internal enemy. But there are also useless coughs that only exhaust the patient and interfere with his normal blood circulation and breathing functions, says Dr. Esther M. Greisheimer of Temple University, Philadelphia.

That tickle in the upper breathing tract that causes coughing has many causes, such as smoking, drinking, infected teeth and postnasal drip. But such a tickle may become a habit too—and since that kind of coughing is useless and harmful, it should be stopped.

When the honey bee stings, the stinger and the venom sack from the bee often remain imbedded after the bee has been brushed away.

Since it would take the bee two or three minutes to inject all its venom, much of the poison is left in the venom sack. First thing to do: Remove the venom sack and the stinger.

Of course this isn't so with hornets, wasps, yellow jackets and bumble bees which don't have barbs on their stingers. If they get caught in your clothing, they may sting you once, and still live to sting you again.

SPRINKLING BAN

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) The heavy demand for water resulting from the current hot spell has forced the nearby municipality of Delta to impose restrictions on garden sprinkling. Residents will be allowed to use garden hoses on alternate days in the South Delta.

Wierdies and Beardies Not True Britons

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) — Defence Minister Harold Watkinson said that "the beardies and weirdies" of British pacifist movements are spreading the impression that Britain is wavering in the cold war.

He insisted that the demonstrators who wage campaigns against nuclear weapons and U.S. bases in the country are not representative of Britain's real attitude.

"Yet it is these people who, for some reason known only to themselves, want to repudiate obligations, who get the headlines," Watkinson told a political meeting here.

"It is presumably this fact that has inspired some foreign commentators to doubt the courage and resolution of the peoples of these islands and their government."

COACHMAN DIES

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Bill Hall, who drove a stage coach at Williams Lake in 1958 with Princess Margaret as a passenger, has died in hospital here, after suffering an apparent heart attack.

Scandals High-Lighted New York Press as Elections Draw Nearer

NEW YORK (AP)—Municipal scandals are no novelty in many United States cities, but Mayor Robert Wagner of New York is finding out to his sorrow these days that when it happens in New York, it gets wide publicity.

Just at the time when Wagner has been trying to decide whether to run for a third term at the helm of the richest of cities — which spends more annually than any other governmental unit except the U.S. government—New York's financial scandals are all over the front pages.

Charges or implications of accepting favors have even touched Wagner and his personal friends, and newspaper readers have been particularly aroused recently by charges that corruption has spread to the schools.

A survey based on that corruption which finds its way into Oublic print shows that many U.S. cities are troubled by the same problem—the hungry contractor or favor-seeker who gets to the weak public official and buys him.

Sometimes corrupt officials are amazingly cheap to buy.

Testimony in a New York bingo investigation indicated one state lottery inspector was willing to close his eyes to violations for the sum of $5 a week.

In other cases the graft runs into the thousands.

The New York State Investigation Commission recently announced it was inquiring into a $100,000 cache put into an Atlanta, Ga., bank in the last few years by an unidentified but "high-placed" New York city official.

New York's latest scandal is in school construction—one official getting a number of little payoffs from a number of little contractors.

TOOK GIFTS

A superintendent of mechanical installations was said to have admitted taking $3,000 in gifts from 24 contracting firms, since banned from doing business with the city.

Similar woes for Wagner have been cropping up for years.

A supervising inspector for the department of buildings was accused in 1958 of receiving three air conditioning units for his summer home from a real estate operator.

Weights and measures inspectors were accused of taking payoffs to declare short - weight butcher scales okay.

The borough president of Manhattan, Hulan Jack, was convicted of conflict of interest for letting a real estate operator pay for a $4,400 remodelling job on his apartment.

State investigators' accusations lead Democrat Wagner to accuse them of "headline-hunting," a charge denied by Republican Governor Nelson Rockefeller.

Weekly Metals Review

NEW YORK (P)—Optimistic talk of further copper price increases stilled last week as demand slowed and indications rose of an ample supply.

The usual barometers, which often point to future trends, seemed to be pointing downward. This was in sharp contrast to May's merry picture.

Major producers described buying for July delivery as good, but not as good as for this month. Custom smelters, who turn out a considerably smaller amount of metal from scrap purchased ores, said purchasing agents have put on the brakes. They reported sales at a fixed price of 31 cents a pound (equal to the producer quotation) as well as at the average price prevailing in the month of delivery.

The price smelters were willing to pay for copper scrap declined. A series of reductions left bid prices ranging from 26 to 26⅜ cents a pound. Metal made from this material will be available in three months at prices ranging from 31¼ to 31⅝ cents a pound.

Zinc's price held at 11½ cents a pound, East St. Louis basis, although the London quote for the metal dropped enough to equal its 1961 low at 9 cents a pound. Demand from steel firms, who use zinc for galvanizing a variety of products, remained firm.

Lead remained at 11 cents a pound, despite the fact the London price was 8 cents, just above the 1961 low. Hopes the administration might announce plans to barter surplus U.S. agricultural products for foreign lead were balanced by fears, in some quarters, that the administration might not look favorably on subsidy and tariff legislation.

Major metals prices:

Copper—31 cents a pound, delivered. Foreign 29¼ cents nominal, New York.

Lead—11 cents a pound, New York; 10.8 cents, St. Louis.

Zinc—11 cents a pound, East St. Louis; 12 cents, New York.

Aluminum—26 cents a pound, unalloyed ingots, delivered.

Nickel—74 cents a pound, electrolytic cathodes, Port Colborne, Ont., U.S. duty included.

Silver—91¾ cents an ounce, New York; 79⅜ pence, London.

Discoverer Circling The Earth

VANDENBERG AFB, Calif. (AP)—The Discoverer No. 25 satellite was circling the earth every 91 minutes Saturday, carrying a secret payload the air force hopes to recover in one to four days.

The 2,100-pound satellite, 16th in the series to achieve polar orbit, blasted into space through heavy fog at 4:03 p.m. PDT Friday.

Because of the fog, reporters a mile from the launch area were unable to see either the missile or its exhaust. But they heard its roar as it sped upward.

An hour and 45 minutes later, tracking stations in Hawaii and Alaska reported the space vehicle was in orbit.

Since the first Discoverer launching Feb. 28, 1959, only seven have failed to orbit. But the figures on capsule recovery are much less impressive:

FOUR RECOVERED

Twenty of them have had the capability for ejecting space capsules, but so far only four capsules have been recovered.

In keeping with custom, the air force declined to say what type of gear the latest 300-pound capsule contained. Officials would neither confirm nor deny that sky-spy camera equipment for the projected Samos satellite surveillance system was aboard.

Plans call for the Discoverer No. 25 capsule to remain aloft as long as possible—perhaps the full four days—so instruments may gather a maximum of data.

After the capsule is ejected over Alaska, cargo planes will try to hook its parachute as it drifts now near Hawaii. Failing this, surface ships will attempt to recover it from the sea.

MISSILE WORKS

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The air force today successfully launched a Mace-B guided missile on an evasive 1,000-mile flight down the Atlantic range. The missile altered course and altitude several times as commanded by its inertial guidance system. Its altitude ranged from 1,000 to more than 40,000 feet. Such action would enable the weapon to avoid enemy countermeasures.

All Canada Has Eyes and Ears On Donald Fleming

By DON HANRIGHT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Imperturbable Donald Fleming by now has tested the economic air and made all the decisions the country demands once a year from the minister of finance.

Tuesday night, shortly after 7:30 p.m. EDT, this stocky 56-year-old man with the clipped mustache will enter the House of Commons and start telling it and the nation what he has decided.

Most of those decisions will be his, and his alone. What else could have kept him—a man said to be decisive—all these months on a punishing schedule of 90 working hours a week, his only recent break an occasional game of tennis?

It's a schedule that testified to a great physical capacity for work and an almost Spartan life. It hints at his known reluctance to delegate authority—to handle much of his own research.

STICKLER FOR GRAMMAR

His speech will have been edited meticulously for precise Fleming grammar, as well as for exact meaning, required by the traditional care taken with statements on fiscal matters.

Ahead will be public reaction and opposition criticism, expected to be particularly lively at this time when Mr. Fleming is involved in the controversy touched off by his demand for the resignation of James Coyne, governor of the Bank of Canada.

None of that is likely to change the sober ministerial countenance and tenacity that has characterized Donald Fleming and won him grudging respect in all quarters.

"You can't look back," he says. "You've got to make up your mind and then close the book. If a man in this portfolio were to be guided by a determination to escape criticism, I doubt he would do much."

Such a remark is typically Fleming. So is this one:

"To do one's duty in this portfolio—and as a minister—one must take one's responsibilities seriously. I don't make any apology for taking my job seriously.

"But that's a different matter from worrying. I'm not a worrier. I doubt if a worrier could last very long in this portfolio."

CABINET'S STRONG MAN

Mr. Fleming, whose square-shouldered frame—170 pounds packed into five feet, 7½ inches—reflects his determined outlook, is known as a strong man in Prime Minister Diefenbaker's cabinet. He is reported to be blunt, but considers his own opinions as having been reached with care.

"The prime minister knows it subtracts nothing from the loyalty I give him."

Little of Mr. Fleming's concentrated work is done in his Centre Block office. There are too many interruptions.

"Work involving the study of documents has to be done at night and on weekends in the peace, quiet and seclusion of the library at home."

A teetotaller who doesn't smoke and doesn't bother with tea or coffee, Donald Fleming follows a daily routine that includes walking the last few blocks to the office and home after being driven most of the way by his wife Alice.

NEVER ILL

With six hours sleep a night and careful attention to his simple diet, he hasn't been ill since he became minister of finance in June, 1957, even going three full years without a head cold.

He does little reading for recreation, except during the summer when he will occasionally take up a book on history or biography. He isn't a television watcher, a recent exception being episodes of the series on Winston Churchill's Second World War history.

Tennis is his best game, although so far this year he has had time to play only twice. He shoots an average of one round of golf a year. A former long-distance swimmer, he still enjoys a dip when possible in a lake in the nearby Gatineau Hills. Once last year he swam 1,000 strokes — counting them "for something to do."

He is a regular church-goer—Chalmers United Church in Ottawa or Bloor Street United in Toronto where he is still an elder.

Born in Exeter, Ont., and brought up in Galt where his father taught at the collegiate, he was part way through high school when his father's health broke down. Every summer from the age of 13 until a university graduate, he had summer jobs as a laborer.

He's proud that he repaid his family every cent contributed to his education at the University of Toronto and Osgoode Hall law school. He was a successful lawyer and alderman there for six years before entering the Commons in 1945 for Toronto Eglinton.

Donald Methuen Fleming will be waiting behind the heavy green curtains of the Commons chamber Tuesday night when the House assembles. Then he will make a dramatic entrance—a bit of ministerial mummery practised by earlier finance ministers—and prop his speech atop a special lectern on his front-row desk.

Only then will another of the country's best-kept secrets be revealed.

YOUTHS JAILED

VIENNA (Reuters) — Five youths have been jailed for up to five years in Hungary for "Nazi activities and other criminal offences," a Hungarian newspaper reported in an issue reaching here today. The "gang of young criminals," the paper Kisalfoeld of Gyoer said, had painted Nazi slogans and swastikas on Soviet war memorials and graves of Soviet soldiers at a Jewish cemetery.

Man-Power Reform Exists Today In U.S. Roman Catholic Church

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A manpower reform is going on today in the Roman Catholic Church in the United States—the rise of the laity.

In a church that for centuries functioned chiefly through its clergy, with members left in a comparatively passive religious role, the two groups now are acting increasingly as a team in doing the church's work.

It's a widespread, fast-growing and historic shift in emphasis.

"Much has been done to overcome the old hesitancies, both on the part of the clergy and the laity," says Most Rev. Robert J. Dwyer, bishop of Reno, Nev. "Yet we have only begun to utilize this tremendous potential of co-operative zeal."

The strongly emerging force, the "lay apostolate," gets its name from a Greek word, "laos"—"the people."

MANY LAY ACTIVITIES

It's reflected in a host of 20th century-launched Catholic activities—social action groups, national organizations of lay men and women, interracial councils, lay retreats, lay theological study, sodalities, family - life movements, Bible discussion groups.

"The old idea of 'riding into Heaven on the cassock of a priest' is losing its grip on the Catholic layman of today," says Martin H. Work, executive director of the National Council of Catholic Men.

Until 10 years ago, Roman Catholic lay missionary groups didn't exist in the United States. Now there are many of them. Plans are under way to recruit new corps of lay volunteers to serve the church in U.S. rural areas and in Latin America.

"Possibly the most arresting Christian phenomenon of our times is the rediscovery of the layman's true role in the church," says Rt. Rev. Msgr. Irving A. de Blanc, of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Roman Catholic leaders see in preserving the faith.

"The church has again become more aware that she is a church to broaden its efforts to the trend mainly as a result of changed conditions, allowing the in contrast with past absorption spread the gospel to the world, conquering church," Most. Rev. Joseph J. Blomjous, bishop of Mwanza, Tanganyika, told an American lay mission school. "Now the laity are coming back into their own."

TUTS Says Tut Tut To Gloomy Prophets

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — TUTS has come back to life with the approach of the summer theatre season. Its participants say it is showing renewed vigor following a winter-time brush with death.

"The response from the people of Vancouver this year shows they don't want TUTS to die," says producer Hugh Pickett, who offers as proof $5,000 taken in a month before opening night through an unprecedented move to sell tickets in advance.

TUTS is short for Theatre Under the Stars, a summer tradition in Vancouver's Stanley Park where it has scheduled a four-week run this July with two productions marking its 22nd consecutive season of open - air theatre in Malkin Bowl.

Irving Berlin's Call Me Madam is scheduled July 3 to 15 and the musical comedy Guys and Dolls will be presented July 17 to 29—both new productions for TUTS, which has staged 102 others in its long stand in the park.

The season is only half what it was a year ago when four productions ran eight weeks, but then, TUTS is just starting its recovery from a financial ailment that almost killed it.

HURT BY RAIN

Last season, with a $350,000 budget—the largest in history of TUTS—and several weeks of rainy weather, the theatre had its fifth financial loss in seven years. It showed a deficit of $60,000 and had $24,000 in bills it couldn't meet in spite of city and provincial grants totalling $45,000.

The city refused further financial aid, directors of the Civic Theatre Society which has run TUTS since 1950 voted to liquidate the company and its burial seemed only a step away.

The patient, however, recovered with the help of a no-strings $25,000 grant from a brewing company and dedicated effort from those who have grown up with the TUTS tradition.

Office staff was cut to one secretary from a general manager and three other full-time employees, permanent offices were closed and rent for space—through the joint efforts of two financial backers and the owner of the building that houses TUTS offices and costume department—was reduced to $6 from $750 monthly.

The length of season and the number of productions were reduced along with importing of players for major roles and the budget is for less than $100,000.

"We couldn't have done this a few years ago," says Mr. Pickett, "because Vancouver didn't have the talent to fill all the requirements. But we've got it now—and largely because of TUTS."

NEAR ORIGINAL FORM

In its form this year, the open-air theatre is following closely to the idea its original founders had when they started it with four productions in 1940.

The intent was to give Vancouver a showplace for home-grown talent—which has been done, as proven by the long list of those who have gone from TUTS to theatrical success elsewhere.

When TUTS began, it was semi - professional — experienced chorus members drew $17.50 a week and its ticket prices ranged from 35 cents to $1.75.

Today, with a fully professional cast, tickets run from $1 to $3 with special children's price of 75 cents that gets any seat in the house when accompanied by an adult.

The advance-sale success and enthusiasm being displayed has given Mr. Pickett, a TUTS worker since 1945, high hopes.

"Now," he says, "if we get a month of good weather, we will come out with a profit."

Geneva Listens to Green's Plan For Inspection Aircraft in Laos

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GENEVA (CP) — The 14-country conference on Laos came to a moment of truth—or compromise —Saturday on a Canadian request that the peacekeeping commission in the tiny Southeast Asian country be provided with inspection aircraft.

External Affairs Minister Green made the request for planes and helicopters Thursday and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko discussed it Friday night in a meeting with Britain's Malcolm MacDonald private talk said Britain was in favor of meeting the Canadian request for three aircraft and three helicopters for the India-Canada-Poland commission in Laos.

But Gromyko, who left for Moscow today, made no reply to the Canadian plan, the spokesman said, adding that "the two co-chairmen are looking into the best ways and means of enabling the International Control Commission to carry out its tasks."

HAS OWN IDEAS

The spokesman said Russia had its own ideas for equipping the commission. He declined to disclose them.

Green, who had dinner with MacDonald Friday night, said the Russian attitude put the conference in an "estremely difficult" position, but in an interview he gave the impression he was not discouraged about eventual solutions.

Observers felt that the issue of inspection aircraft put into focus the question of whether East and West really intended to reach a solid agreement on a cease - fire in Laos.

Green said after his conversation with MacDonald the outlook appeared less bleak than after the original statement of the Soviet view. What Gromyko proposed, it was understood, was that the Laotian control commission obtained necessary aircraft from local sources, a procedure considered doubtful in the Canadian view.

WORK HINDERED

Green told reporters that the commission has been unable to make first - hand observations of cease - fire violations.

Green indicated that the question of equipment if unresolved by next week — the month-old conference is scheduled to reconvene Monday — would be raised again. He also said Canada would like present proposals for an over - all solution of Laotian neutrality.

In Zurich, two rival Laotian princes headed today into a private meeting that if successful would virtually eclipse much of the drwn - out negotiations on the future of their kingdom.

The informal meeting was called between Prince Boun Oum, premier of the Laotian government and Prince Souphanouvong, leader of the Pathet Lao rebels.

The princes were expected to discuss the possible formation of a broadly - based government, unaligned with either East or West.

How do I save?

I'm a working girl, so saving isn't the easiest thing in the world. But I've found how to make it easier . . . I use the "Royal's" 2-Account Plan. I like the way it keeps my saving and my spending quite separate.

I use a Personal Chequing Account to pay bills. My Savings Account is strictly for saving. I'm really getting ahead, now I've stopped dipping into savings. They're building up, earn interest too . . . it works!
