India Cold-Shoulders Russ Cease Fire Proposal

Kennedy Feels Must Keep Eye On Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy was described Sunday as feeling some kind of surveillance must continue indefinitely over Cuba to guarantee against any renewal of a Soviet missile buildup in the Caribbean island.

Government sources reported this position of the president while emphasizing that he is determined to verify the removal of Soviet offensive weapons from Cuba by international inspection teams. Nothing less will be satisfactory.

As negotiations took place in the United Nations and between Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoya and Premier Fidel Castro at Havana, sources close to the president sought to make clear tha Kennedy is convinced on-the-spot inspection is vital before the United States can be satisfied that a Soviet threat has vanished from Cuba. They insisted that continuing surveillance would be necessary to guard against any future introduction of Russian missiles to Cuba.

Kennedy, these sources said, views his agreement with Premier Khrushchev on the dismantling of Russian bases in Cuba as hard diplomacy which allows no room for doubt on either side. Kennedy was pictured as feeling neither Moscow nor Washington should be put in a position of relying on anyone's unconfirmed word.

Edwin M. Martin, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, said in a television interview destruction of Soviet missile bases in Cuba is almost complete but he cautioned the crisis is not past, and will not be until there is on-the-scene verification that the Soviet nuclear rockets have cleared the island.

In contrast to the previous two Sundays, Washington was quiet Sunday.

TAKES A REST

President Kennedy met for two hours Saturday night with United Nations Ambassador Adlai Stevenson and the executive committee of the National Security Council, then left for his estate in nearby Virginia.

Elsewhere there were these developments on the crisis:

1. Argentina announced that it will send an air force contingent to join two destroyers already taking part in the Cuban arms blockade;

2. The international committee of the Red Cross said in Geneva Sunday it is prepared to consider helping the UN to inspect ships leaving Cuba with dismantled missiles if the Cuban, Russian and U.S. governments agree;

3. A Pan American Airways plane with markings removed and the Swiss flag flying left Miami for Havana to pick up the pilot of the U.S. U-2 plane who was killed on a reconnaissance flight over Cuba last weekend.

4. In Venezuela, saboteurs struck for the second time in a week at oil installations, blowing up four pipelines. The armed forces announced a call-up of 5,000 reservists and informed sources said President Romulo Betancourt may file charges of aggression against Cuba with the Organization of American States.

Time To Oust Invader Nehru Tells Council

CP fro AP-Reuters

NEW DELHI — Indians reacted coldly Sunday to a new proposal from Soviet Premier Khrushchev for an immediate and unconditional cease-fire in the undeclared Indian-Red China border war. Both Peking and New Delhi made clear there will be no quick end to the Himalayan hostilities.

Prime Minister Nehru announced plans to establish a national defence council to co-ordinate the Indian war effort. It will include three military chiefs of staff and six cabinet members, amonk them V. K. Krishna Menon, the demoted defence minister who now is minister of defence production.

Nehru told a meeting of the National Development Council the Chinese "invasion . . . really marks a turning point in Indian history."

He said it now is essential to "push out the invader and aggressor from our country."

Nehru's announcement came as more fighting was reported from both the eastern and western sectors of the 2,500-mile Himalayan frontier following a lull of several days.

A defence ministry spokesman said Indian troops threw back Chinese troops probing a position in the vicinity of Walong near the Burmese border while in Ladakh, in the western sector, an Indian transport plane returned to base safely after being fired on by Chinese troops.

Official sources said India plans to reiterate its big condition for a truce in its response to Khrushchev's proposal, disclosed Saturday, for a cease-fire without conditions. India's condition is a pullback of the Chinese invasion spearheads.

The Soviet leader will be told that there could be a cease-fire and peace talks with Peking today if the Chinese withdraw to the positions they held before they began incursions into north east India Sept. 8, these informants said.

China rejected the idea of giving up the fruits of its offensive in a previous exchange with New Delhi. And Premier Chou En-Lai emphasized in a statement broadcast from Peking that the Chinese consider India the aggressor and will fight on to hold their gains.

"No one should expect China to surrender before military force" if India attempts to reoccupy the disputed border territory, Chou said in receiving a North Korean trade mission.

Without referring to Khrushchev's call for a truce, the Chinese leader said: "The Indian government has rejected the Chinese government's proposal (for negotiations) and has demanded that China agree to the reoccupation by India of a vast Chinese territory as a pre-condition to opening talks."

He added:

"Furthermore, it is regrettable that India is buying great quantities of weapons from the United States, Britain and other Western countries to prepare for a second large-scale attack."

British weapons began arriving last Monday in small shipments. Two Canadian Caribou planes are coming, and Canada has promised to send weapons and other equipment. Some arms may also have been received from France.

A United States Air Force jet airlift now is delivering weapons in Calcutta at the rate of 160 tons a day. From Calcutta the weapons are being rushed 400 miles northeast to the army corps headquarters at Tezpur.

South India's leading newspaper, the Hindu, said: "The hour of peril has revealed (to the Indian people) that they have true friends . . . Foremost among the countries that have come forward with offers of military and economic help to enable India to overcome the present crisis are the United States, Britain, Canada and France."

U.S. ENDS TEST SERIES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States announced Sunday the end of the current series of nuclear tests in the atmosphere over the Pacific.

A statement issued by the White House said a high-altitude shot fired Sunday morning over Johnson Island concluded the test series. Underground nuclear weapons tests will continue in Nevada.

The statement attributed to President Kennedy but distributed by Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said in part: "I hope that in the next month we can conclude an effective test-ban treaty so that the world can be free from all testing. Agreement in this area would be an important first step toward our continuing goal of workable disarmament arrangements which can cut down the threat of war.

"Last March 2 I offered to stop further nuclear tests, if the Soviet Union would accept an effectively verified test-ban treaty. This offer still stands."

Two Survive Plane Crash

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — A light aircraft smashed to earth in forest country about 10 miles north of here Sunday, landing upside down and in pieces, but its two occupants survived.

Raymond Cameron of Prince Albert, 19-year-old pilot of the two-seater Cessna 150, walked out from the crash scene to get help. An ambulance bounced into the rugged area to pick up the injured passenger, Des Tooley, believed to be in his 30s, also of Prince Albert.

Both men were admitted to hospitals here. Tooley suffering a broken leg, broken foot and other undetermined injuries, was reported in "serious condition." Cameron suffered no broken bones but had numerous cuts and lost some blood.

THE WORLD REMEMBERS — Canada's Commonwealth Air Forces' Memorial forms a symbolic background as an RCAF trumpeter sounds the "Last Post" for the dead of two world wars, honored in Canada and the Free World on Nov. 11. This year, the Air Force also marks the tenth anniversary of its contribution of an Air Division to the forces of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, a constant reminder of the need to maintain strength to preserve the peace. The Commonwealth Memorial, on Ottawa's Green Island at the junction of Ottawa and Rideau Rivers, commemorates the 798 men and women who died in Canada and neighboring lands and waters while serving with the Air Forces of the Commonwealth from 1939 to 1945, and who have no known graves. — RCAF Photo.

Tension Climbs In Middle East

Charges Hurled Among Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Yemen, U.A.R.

By FAROUK NASSER

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Angry broadcasts in Middle East capitals raised fears Sunday of a war pitting the monarchies of Jordan and Saudi Arabia against the United Arab Republic and the revolutionary regime it backs in Yemen.

Premier Wasfi Tell of Jordan accused the U.A.R. of open aggression against Saudi Arabia with an air raid from Yemen soil Friday. He declared Jordan "finds itself compelled to crush it (aggression) with determination."

Saudi Arabia—also accusing President Nasser's U.A.R. of aggression—vowed in a broadcast from Mecca to "stop short of nothing" to "avenge the victims of five aggressive air raids on our villages."

President Abdullah Sallal of the Yemeni regime declared Nasser had "placed all his potential and power on our side" and threatened a "punitive showdown fight" with Saudi Arabia.

The U.A.R., while sending warplanes and perhaps 1,000 soldiers to back the revolution, has denied its planes raided Saudi Arabia.

Yemen and the U.A.R. have repeatedly accused Jordan and Saudi Arabia of sending troops into Yemen to back the comeback fight of Imam Mohammad Al-Badr, the ousted monarch. Both Jordan and Saudi Arabia have denied the charges.

Yemen's vice-president, Dr. Abdul Rahman Baydany, was quoted by Cairo radio as saying reinforcements were being rushed to the northern frontier region of Al-Haradh to "repel any new Saudi attempt at aggression."

However he said the Yemeni navy and air force, keeping watch along the frontiers, had detected no evidence of any Saudi buildup.

ADEN (Reuters)—A Yemeni who claimed he was the only lawful successor to the Yemeni throne was executed by firing squad Saturday, The radio station in San'a announced Sunday.

A revolutionary tribunal had condemned Sayed Ali Bin Ali Mirwani to death for high treason, the radio said. It said he was the leading Hashemite of Anis in the upper Yemen.

Republican Gains Forecast Tuesday

WASHINGTON (CP) — Obscured by the Cuban crisis, the big 1962 U.S. election campaign finally rolls to the finish line today amid a crossfire of fraud and corruption charges swirling particularly around Richard M. Nixon's California battle.

With President Kennedy's personal prestige but not his office at stake, an estimated 50,000 Americans vote Tuesday on the makeup of the next Congress and control over 35 of the 50 states. Crystal-gazers can see few changes in Congress but predict hefty gains for Republicans in key states.

Still the big puzzle is how voters may react at the polls to Kennedy's handling of the Cuban missile issue. Some pollsters suggest it may halt the traditional off-year erosion of the controlling party's congressional strength.

Reibin Takes Food to Sons

HOPE (CP) — Victoria Doukhobor Alex Reibin arrived at this Fraser Canyon village Saturday with a car-load of food and supplies for an encampment of Sons of Freedom Doukhobors.

The supplies were donated by church groups and others in Victoria.

Mr. Reibin said he was born a Doukhobor and had seen the injustice done to his people, and wanted to help them.

The supplies were distributed at the Freedomites' camp Sunday morning.

The Sons, trekking 1300-strong to Agassiz from the Kootenay to be with some of the sect jailed at Mountain Prison for terrorism, have been here since Sept. 29 in a huge tent village.

Legal complications prevent their further progress to Agassiz another 30 miles west.

Correspondents Held in Havana

HAVANA (AP) — Six foreign correspondents are in their fifth day of house arrest at the Hotel Capri. They were picked up on their arrival from Mexico City by plane Oct. 31.

The group includes two Canadians, Robert MacNeil and Don North, working for the National Broadcasting Company (NBC).

The others are known to include a Briton, a Japanese and a Luxembourger, the latter accompanied by his French wife.

The wire connection by which this story was moved from Havana was broken before the others of the group were fully identified.

Ralph Hodgson Poet Passes, 91

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Ralph Hodgson, 91, famed British poet who was awarded a gold medal by Queen Elizabeth in 1954, died early Saturday at his farm in nearby Minerva.

Hodgson, born in Yorkshire, England Sept. 9, 1871, worked on a Fleet Street newspaper and then became editor of Fry's Magazine. He began writing poetry in the late 1890s.

He won early acclaim in 1907 for his poem Last Blackbird. A volume entitled Poems was published in 1917. One of his first awards came three years earlier when he received the Polignac Prize for poetry.

Hodgson left England in 1920 for the Orient and taught English literature at Sendai University in Japan from 1924-38. While there he met Aurelia Bolliger of Canton, Ohio, who was a missionary teacher, and married her.

They came to live in the Canton area in 1938. He did some writing in recent years, but his poetry was not widely published.

Hodgson is survived by his wife.

Crisis May Spur Peace Efforts

TORONTO (CP) — Out of the Cuban crisis there may come a new solution to the problem of world peace, Liberal Leader Lester Pearson said Sunday.

Mr. Pearson told the diamond jubilee convention of the Zionist Organization of Canada that the realization of how close nuclear disaster is may spur world leaders to greater efforts in the search for peace.

"In the last fortnight of crisis all of us seemed to be living from day to day . . . hoping that rational men would find rational solutions to the great conflict of interests that now divide them.

"In the perspective of a crisis that can threaten thermo-nuclear warfare . . . our worries in Canada about the Middle East may seem peripheral to the major urgencies of our day.

"But peace is a 'seamless web.' The little wars of one region can become a general conflict engulfing all."

Linda Gibson Homecoming Queen

VANCOUVER (CP) — Linda Gibson, fourth-year nursing student from Victoria, is the 1962 University of British Columbia Homecoming Queen.

Miss Gibson, who was the Engineers' candidate, was crowned at Saturday night's homecoming dance.

Mikoyan Continues Talks Despite Death of Wife

By GEORGE ARFELD

HAVANA (AP)—Although reported deeply grieved by the death of his wife, Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan continued his crisis talks with Cuban Premier Fidel Castro Sunday.

The two met for two hours and 25 minutes at the government palace. No communique was issued.

Cuban officials have given no hint of the nature of the talks that presumably deal with U.S. demands for inspection of the withdrawal of Soviet missiles from Cuba. Statements after Saturday's opening talks said only that the two discussed international tension.

While Mikoyan announced he will remain to continue his talks with Castro, his son flew to Moscow for the funeral of Mrs. Mikoyan.

Ashkhen Lazaryevna Mikoyan, 64, died Saturday night in Moscow after a long illness.

The son, Sergei Mikoyan, 34, is a research worker in the Institute of World Affairs and International Relations.

HAD FIVE CHILDREN

Sergei is one of five children, including a son killed in the Second World War, Havana radio said.

The radio reported Castro and President Osvaldo Dorticos sent a message of sympathy to Mikoyan.

There were some signs of easing tension in Havana. A small number of the Cuban militiamen called to duty in recent days were demobilized. However, most military emplacements that could be viewed by Western reporters were still manned by young, often teen-aged crews. Militiamen continued to march and drill in various sections of Havana.

In Moscow a tribute to Mrs. Mikoyan was published in Pravda by a group of fellow Communists.

Like her husband, she qualified as an old Bolshevik because she joined the party in June, 1917, before the revloution. She had not finished school.

In their tribute, the comrades said she was persected by the Mensheviks, the opposing branch of the Communist organization, during the early stages of the revolution, as was her family.

She married Mikoyan in 1920.

"All the succeeding years, until she was struck by the heavy illness, she led party and social activities," the tribute said.

Couple on Trial for Deformed Baby's Death

By FRED CHEVAL

LIEGE, Belgium (AP) — Suzanne Vandeput and her husband, Jean, go on trial today charged with slaying their deformed baby.

Suzanne, a 24-year-old blonde with blue eyes, is charged with killing her daughter eight days after the baby was born without arms — deformed because the mother had taken thalidomide. Her 35-year-old husband is charged with being an accessory.

Both confessed poisoning the infant with barbiturates mixed with honey in a bottle of milk.

The Vandeputs will be tried by a jury of 12 in Liege's highest criminal court. Conviction could mean sentences of from two years to life imprisonment —or even death provided no extenuating circumstances are found by the jury.

The infant, Carinne, was found dead in her crib May 30. The unfolding of the tragedy is credited with having saved other women from giving birth to deformed babies.

The uproar over the case led the Belgian government in June to ban thalidomide and other drugs regarded as dangerous.

SOON DEAD

Mrs. Vandeput did not see her daughter until four days after the baby was delivered by Dr. Edouard Weerts. She left the hospital with Carinne on May 29. The next day the baby was found dead.

What had happened, according to an official investigation report:

Fernande Yerna, the baby's grandmother, on seeing the child, appealed to Dr. Weerts to end the infant's life. Monique de la Marck, Suzanne's sister, made a similar appeal and again the doctor refused. The two women appealed to a nun who was a nurse at the hospital and assisted at the baby's birth. The nun refused.

Suzanne, though she had seen her baby, was still unaware of the child's deformity. When she learned of it four days later she cried:

"Why didn't they kill her right away? They are monsters."

Before leaving the hospital, the family gathered around Suzanne's bed and unanimously agreed on what action they would take. While the mother and child were being driven home they stopped at the house of the family doctor, Jean Casters, to get a prescription for barbiturates.

Late that night, Suzanne told her relatives to go home and appealed to her husband to move to another room. Then alone, she gave Carinne the drugged milk.

Suzanne is the chief defendant in the trial. Her husband, sister and Dr. Casters, 33, will appear on charges of complicity.

FOUR EXPELLED AT "OLE MISS"

OXFORD, Miss (AP) — The University of Mississippi expelled four students Saturday on charges growing out of demonstrations against Negro James H. Meredith.

Hugh Clegg, assistant to the chancellor, said the charges included possession of dangerous weapons, possession and use of explosives, drunkenness and fighting, and possession of a large number of forged student identification cards.

The university, in line with its usual policy, did not identify the expelled students.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mrs. Dorothy Alzmann, who says she paid $10,000 for another woman's husband, now reports that she has her money back.

She told sheriff's Sgt. P. R. Shields that she had accepted a cashier's cheque from Mrs. Norma Babcock, 44.

Central figure in the alleged transaction was Mrs. Babcock's husband, Quentin, 44, an insurance agent.

Mrs. Alzmann, 34, a widow, had filed a civil suit alleging that Babcock returned to his original home a day after taking up residence in her house last April. She said she has returned only $3,000 of the sum she "paid" for Babcock.

She withdrew the civil suit.

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Rita Jensen, 28, a driver for four years, volunteered to take the wheel in a filmed television program showing Danes how to pass a driver's test. Miss Jensen now is in danger of losing her licence.

With the TV cameraman sitting in the back seat, viewers saw Miss Jensen:

Drive in the wrong lane several times.

Enter the wrong side of a traffic circle.

Swerve at the last second from passing the wrong side of a pedestrian island.

Minutes after the program went off the air, the television station started getting telephone calls from angry males.

"That's a ridiculous way to teach people to drive," said one man.

Then, on Friday, the chief constable of Hjorring, where the test was filmed, ordered Miss Jensen's licence cancelled.

She protested on the ground the Road Safety Council, sponsors of the program, had given her a safe-conduct pass during the filming. She threatened to sue the council, a branch of the ministry of justice.

With her case reaching all the way to parliament — where a member demanded her rights be protected — the justice ministry and police relented.

Miss Jensen's licence was restored but, officials said, she must take another driver's test — this one off television. If she passes, she can keep her licence.

Stolen Groceries, Truck And Hit-Run Accident Work of One Lawbreaker

Theft of $100 worth of groceries, a stolen truck and a hit and run offence was the work of one thief, early Saturday morning, City Police reported.

A truck was stolen to transport groceries taken from a grocery store but the driver sideswiped a car in the 400 block Latimer Street before he could complete his crime.

The truck, owned by Coleman Electric Ltd., and driven by Lloyd Dowkes was parked in the rear of the Royal Hotel. Mr. Dowkes looked for the truck and then reported it stolen to the police at 12:15 a.m.

At 12:35 police investigated an accident in the 400 block Latimer Street and discovered the truck had been involved. The driver hit a parked car belonging to Abraham Van Permey, 404 Latimer Street and immediately fled from the scene. The car was pushed 31 feet down the road which indicated to police the truck was travelling at an excessive speed. After hitting the car, the truck ran into a telephone pole, cracking it.

Damage to both vehicles was estimated approximately $1000.

While investigating, police discovered about $100 worth of grocers in the back of the truck. Most of the products were canned goods and dairy products.

Police did not connect the break-in until 4:45 a.m., while on a routine check of city stores. Then they discovered that the Nelson Grocery store on Baker Street had been broken into.

The police theory is that the man stole the truck, broke into the store, transferred the groceries into the vehicle and was on his way home when the accident occurred.

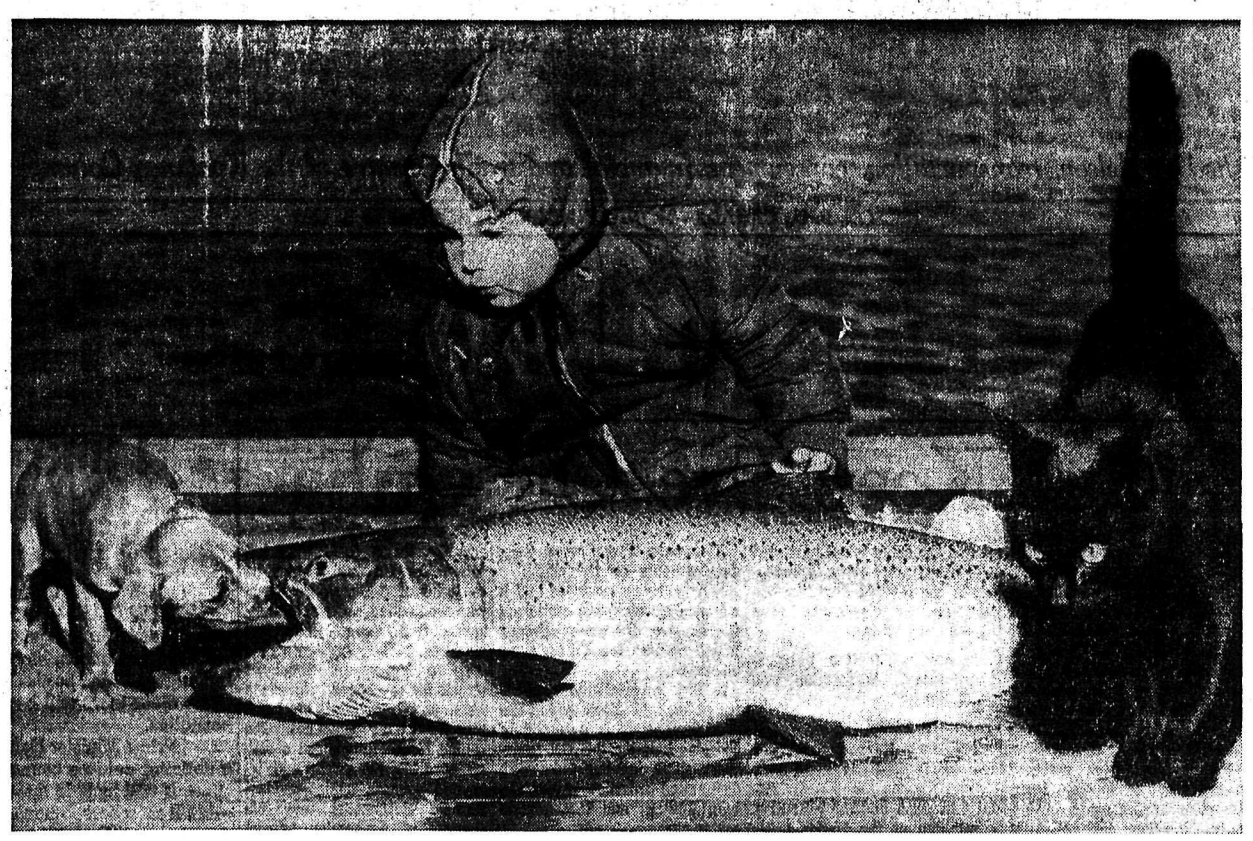
City police are investigating.

NO GLASSES

Marc Yates Heibey, R.R. 1, Nelson, was fined $20 in provincial court by magistrate K. D. McRae Friday. Heibey was charged with driving a motor vehicle without eye glasses. He also had his drivers license endorsed.

ALBINO WOLF

An unusually large "completely white" albino timber wolf was sighted near Chapleau, Ont., in 1962.



WHAT'S FOR DINNER? It depends on the way you look at it. This 19½-pounder Kamloops is being sized up three ways and the dog "Pup" appears to be getting a mouthful of inside knowledge what's going to be tomorrow's menu. Anne Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jones of Kaslo is apprehensive of "Pup's" mouth to mouth conversation while the cat "Midnight" reflects patience in the matter. The Kamloops was landed by Dr. N. R. Jennejohn and William Kalyniuk of Nelson after an hour's battle Sunday. The two-man party was in the process of letting out their line, about 75 feet, when the beauty struck at the Red Zimmy. The two were just starting out from Kaslo and by the time the fish had been landed, the wind had blown their boat across to the other side of the lake. Dr. Jennejohn also was on hand Saturday when his brother-in-law, Jack McBride, reeled in a 15-pounder in the Kaslo area.

UAW Joins Supporting Ranks of Peace Research

Most recent of national organizations and bodies to endorse the Canadian Peace Research Institute is the United Automobile Workers, the Nelson branch of the institute learned here recently.

The UAW has resolved to "support the Canadian Peace Research Institute morally and financially" the report said.

President of the institute, Dr. Norman Z. Alcock, was the only representative from Canada at the ninth Pugwash Conference at Cambridge, England in September. At the tenth Pugwash Conference held immediately afterwards in London, four directors were present: Dr. Brock Chisholm, Dr. Franc R. Joubin and professor Kenneth Boulding, as well as Dr. Alcock.

Dr. Alcock reported that several European scientists were astouded that the Canadian public would provide a quarter million dollars for peace research in just six months.

It was further reported that there are now fledgling institutes in the Netherlands, France and Japan. Norway has had a peace research establishment for some time. Two Danish cabinet ministers have advocated such a project in their country. Yugoslavia is expected to establish a peace research program within a year. A number of eminent scientists and laymen in Britain are at this time considering a public campaign to establish a peace research institute.

Post Office Business Up

Post office business transactions have increased considerably during October from September, W. G. Hall, postmaster reported.

BETTY VIPOND says:
Let's talk about the Viponds! Talking about the Viponds is no easy matter. First, there's the question of modesty. Then, how to say what we have to say in the limited space at our command. The Viponds came to the Kootenays in 1895, and Jim Vipond sold his first ticket in 1922 while working for the C.P.R. at Nakusp. Much to our chagrin, not everyone is aware that Vipond Travel Agencies were established in 1957 at Trail, and now have offices at Nelson and Cranbrook, and are staffed to give you the best service, whether you travel by land, sea or air. There's no underestimating the Viponds' claim to service. Vipond Travel Agencies is small and personal, owned and managed by the Viponds for the benefit of the East and West Kootenay traveller.

Riondel Man Named To National Wildlife Body

William Wallinger of Riondel was named one of three vice-presidents of the Canadian Wildlife Federation, formed at a weekend conference in Ottawa.

Representatives of 150,000 anglers and hunters in seven provinces founded the federation without the dissention that had marked earlier attempts dating back to 1955.

The new group is expected to campaign against such things as water pollution, drainage of duck breeding grounds, careless use of pesticides and private hunting and fishing preserves.

The 21 founding delegates expressed concern over what they termed a deterioration of Canada's rich hinterlands in the face of urban sprawl, industrialization and neglect.

"Our land use is appalling," remarked E. D. Meade of Vancouver. He said valuable forests, lakes, streams and water fowl wetlands are being spoiled.

Mr. Meade said the federation will have to press for a federal intervention in wildlife management which was beyond the provinces' resources.

NO AUTHORITY

The Canadian Wildlife Service, a component of the northern affairs department, was "little more than a name" because it did not have clear legal authority from Parliament.

Fisheries Minister Angus MacLean said at the closing dinner Saturday night that the organization will be of great assistance to the government because it can speak with authority for those interested in wildlife and has roots even in the smallest communities.

A 47-year-old pulp and paper company official, T. S. (Stan) Hodgkiss of Terrace Bay, Ont., near Fort William, was elected as the group's first president.

Mr. Hodgkiss is current president of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters. He headed a five-man founding committee set up at the Resources for Tomorrow conference held in Montreal a year ago.

WILL SEEK FUNDS

Armed with a $20,000 grant from the National Fitness Council, the federation is expected to appoint a full-time executive director in a few weeks and open its headquarters here. A five-man finance committee was named to solicit funds from industry and conservation-minded individuals.

The federation's board of directors has three members from each provincial fish and game organization. Nova Scotia, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island are expected to affiliate next year.

The Wildlife Crusader, monthly magazine published by the Manitoba Fish and Game Federation, was adopted as the federation's organ. The magazine now has a circulation of 25,0 and will expand to have a national scope.

$143 Stolen In Creston Garage Theft

CRESTON — Approximately $143 was taken from the Kootenay Lake Motors in a recent break-in. Cheques, files and other valuable papers were strewn over the floor.

The break-in was discovered by Bryan McKay, parts man, when he opened the garage.

Evidence indicates the intruder made entrance from a window facing the used car lot. The thief found a cutting acetylene torch and an electric drill and made his way into the garage store room. The back of the large safe was fully exposed in the store room and after trying to drill the back of the safe but failing, the thief used the cutting torch, taking out the entire back panel. With an axe which he apparently brought with him, he chipped away the clay insulation and broke into the safe's innner compartment.

After taking the money and throwing cheques and files on the floor, the thief damaged the knob and lock on the front of the safe from the office side. Footprints left on the garage floor from the clay powder were noted by Cranbrook RCMP as well as fingerprints. The thief made his escape through the window he entered.

RUSS TAKE SIX PHOTOS OF MARS 1

LONDON (Reuters)—Astronomers at the Crimean astro physical observatory have taken six photographs of the Soviet space vehicle Mars I as it hurtles towards the "red planet," the Soviet news agency Tass reported Saturday.

Observatory Director Andrei Severny said this is the first time interplanetary spacecrafts had been photographed in flight.

The pictures enabled its position to be determined precisely, so that its flight to Mars could be corrected if necessary.

Tass said the pictures were taken with the aid of a mirror telescope using electron-optical light receivers to enable exposure time to be reduced 100 times.

The spacecraft, launched Thursday, is expected to take seven months to reach Mars.

Specialists Deal With Problems of Education

INVERMERE — A highlight of the Teachers' convention program at Invermere was a panel discussion by five of the special speakers on "The Greatest Problem in Education Today."

Dr. C. J. Flora of the University of Western Washington at Bellingham said he thinks the greatest single consideration is the inter-action between student and teacher. He enlarged on this by pointing out the danger of the elementary teacher becoming child minded which can be avoided by participating in intellectual environment in other fields.

He advised that for a teacher to become proficient in one subject would overcome a feeling of inadequacy. He recommended that a teacher should complete an academic major and should ensure that he is adequately equipped to handle all his subjects.

P. G. Penner, of the University of British Columbia, said "the biggest problem that faces us is the curriculum. What do we teach and what for?"

He asked, "What can we drop out of the curriculum or add to it to keep the student up to date?"

Mr. Richard of the Department of Education at Victoria stressed the needs of industrial education. He said "Statistics agree that 70 per cent of the present unemployed do not possess adequate saleable skills." He added that "we must provide an industrial approach to our technical training."

Stanley Meadows, a retired elementary school principal of Vancouver, said, "Education is like a three-legged stool. Useless unless all three legs are functioning." He added, "That a youngster loves discipline if it is fair, friendly and firm." He pointed out that teaching is an art, not a science.

Dr. R. D. James of the UBC, answering "What is wrong with education?" said, "What we need in the field of education is for more money to be spent by the government and by the local authorities. Spend it on education," he said rather than on roads."

Clinton StJohn of the University of Alberta said, "since education is our biggest enterprise, we should spend more money on research. We spend less money on eductional research than on any other research."

Mrs. R. B. Harris of the David Thompson High School staff was panel chairman.

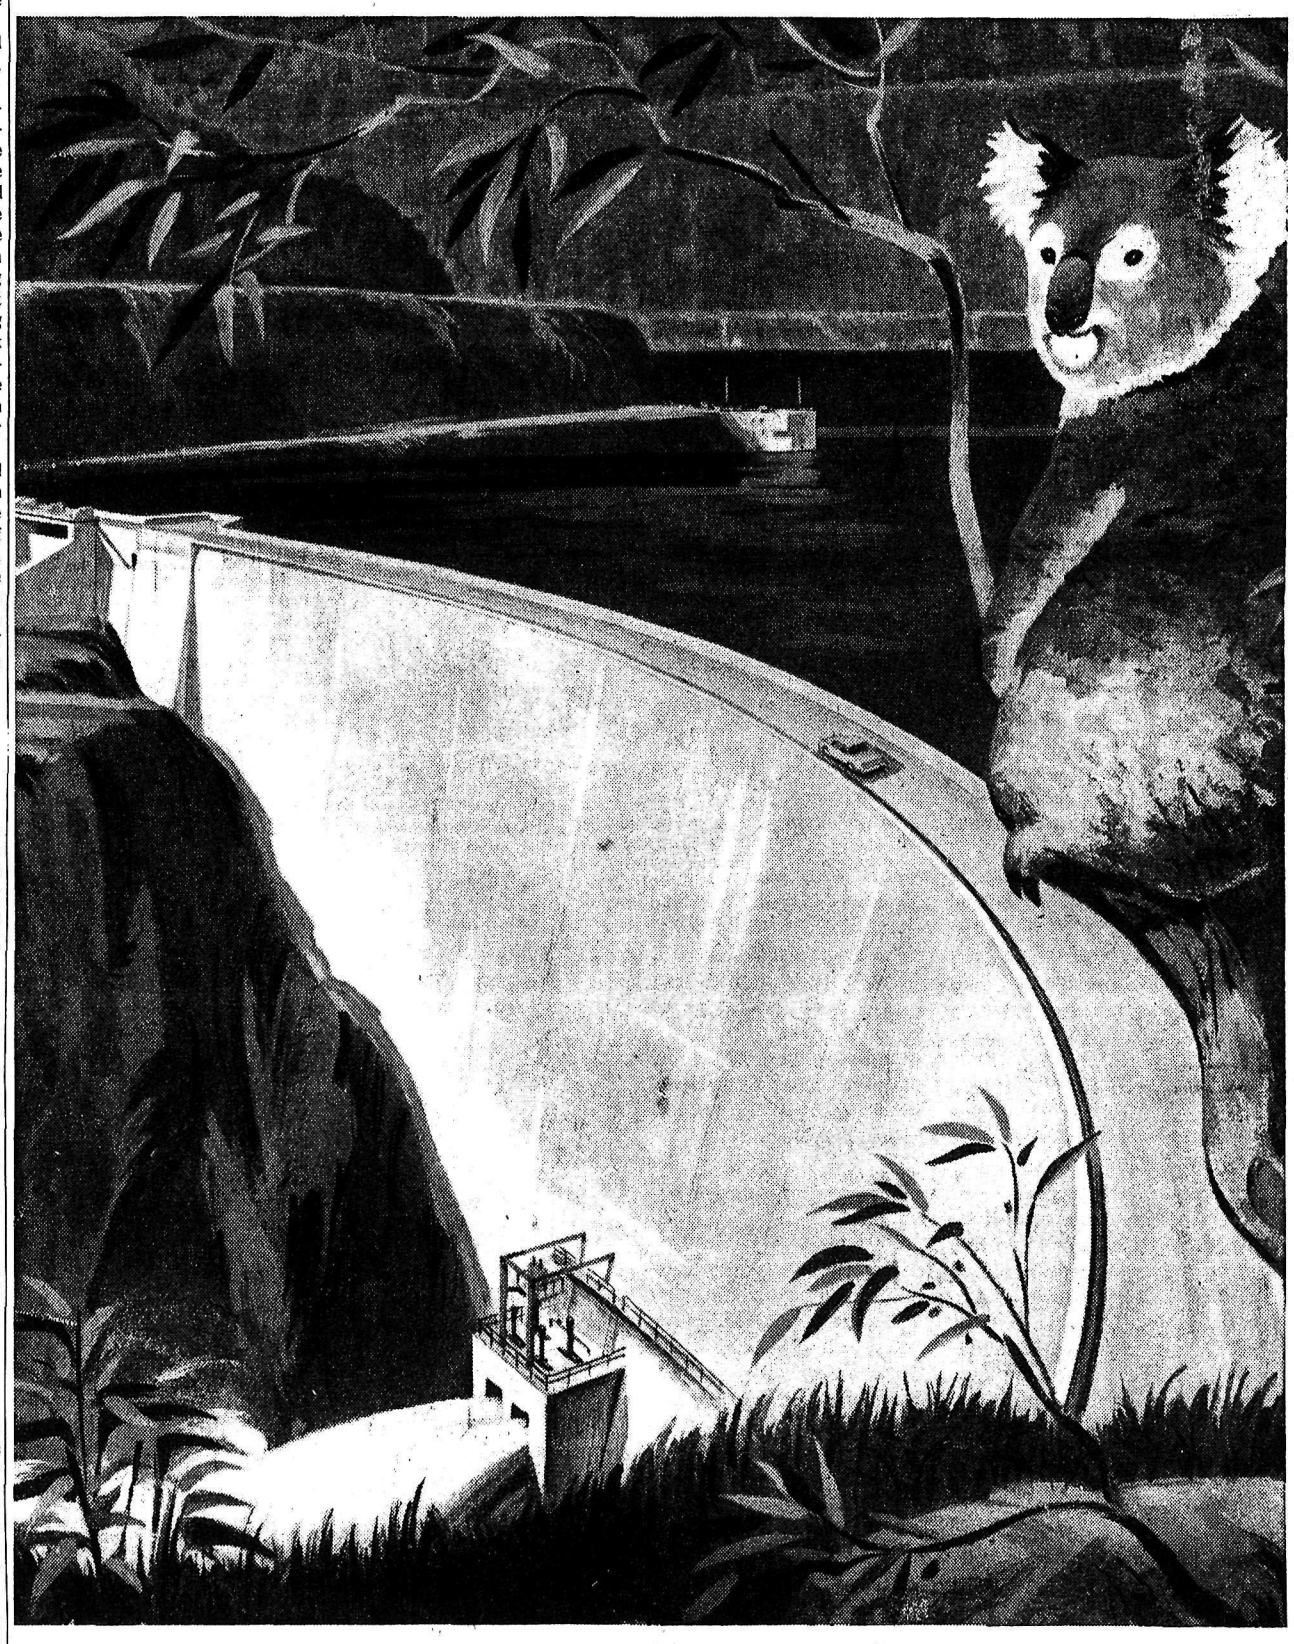
NICKEL IN WORLD MARKETS...JOBS FOR CANADIANS



How Canadian Nickel helps irrigate 1000 sq. miles of Australia

The multi-million dollar Snowy Mountain Scheme will irrigate a thousand square miles of previously unproductive land in south eastern Australia. And nickel alloys will help, just as they do in similar projects in other parts of the world. Why nickel? Because nickel alloys provide strength and corrosion resistance for conduit shafts and other vital equipment. The growth of nickel markets at home and abroad helps strengthen Canada's economy and helps provide more jobs for Canadians.

The Fear of Responsibility

Quite possibly President Kennedy, by throwing down the gage of battle to the Soviets, has set an example we badly need to follow.

That decision stripped away all the sophistry of international legality and went straight to the forthright and fundamental necessity for self-preservation of the American nation.

Nothing was allowed to affect that decision and neither her allies nor the United Nations were consulted because the President felt that no time should be lost before he imposed the blockade. He assumed responsibility and was not afraid to do so.

In the last few years the failure to assume responsibility by those in all ranks of life has been the curse of Canada. Mr. Bruce Hutchinson, in an article in the Winnipeg Free Press, states that Canada has suffered the worst humiliations in her history because the politicians of all parties have deliberately evaded the first law of democratic politics, the law of responsibility.

This has been shown in the present crisis by the hurry of all parties in the House to shift the responsibility to the United Nations. There is a somewhat reluctant acceptance of President Kennedy's decision but much more is said of the role of the UN. That body does not really come into the picture. The issue today is solely between the West and the Russians. The choice is ours. We can either support wholeheartedly Mr. Kennedy or we can condemn him. That is our responsibility.

It is surprising how this sense of responsibility has been whittled away by the noise of clamorous bodies. Well-meaning groups loudly demand that the bomb be banned; others lobby for the UN, and all the time our safety is hazarded by indecisive defence policies. There are no atomic warheads for our missiles because the government of the day — and other parties — will not take the responsibility for making a decision to use them.

For many years our provincial government has evaded its responsibility in dealing with the Sons of Freedom terrorism. If earlier it had brushed aside the sickly sentimentalism and acted from strength, and made the Sons keep all the letters of the law, then perhaps by this time they would have become good citizens. Not all governments are afraid to assume responsibility, for the Kent bylaw may be wrong in law but in essentials it showed that the municipal council was not afraid of assuming the responsibility of protecting its citizens.

Other municipal councils, however, are still passing on their responsibility to others by means of plebiscites. Nelson citizens will be called upon to decide whether a small piece of land shall be sold to a hotel because the council is afraid to assume the responsibility of making a decision.

As Mr. Hutchinson says, it is humiliating in a democratic country.

Budgeting, Boom or Bust

Premier W. A. C. Bennett and his Social Credit party campaigned during the last provincial election on the issue that the Socreds had cleaned up the multi-million dollar provincial debt, paved hundreds of miles of highway, built several bridges and tunnels and were ending their second term as government with a healthy surplus in provincial coffers.

Most of the credit for this bountiful budgeting belongs to our minister of finance, the premier himself, who recently returned from New York proudly announcing he has to date borrowed $60,000,000 in U.S. funds for B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

It is confusing to consider what became of the surplus created by Bennett budgeting. Has the premier's success formula for financing failed? The Socreds were boasting of conducting British Columbia's business efficiently and showing a profit. Now they seem unable to operate on a break-even basis, hence extensive borrowing.

Mr. Bennett's New York jaunt was another of those "mystery trips" the premier frequently makes, about which many Social Crediters seem to chuckle. The only mystery involved in such trips is over the amount which will be borrowed.

With the federal government's austerity program in effect, it appears inappropriate for B.C. to borrow so much money from American sources. The Canadian dollar is devalued, austerity has placed restrictions on the value of American goods which can be purchased by Canadians while visiting in the U.S. All Canadians are being encouraged to "Buy at Home" as much as possible. But, in B.C. Mr. Bennett still has everybody "working for the Yankee dollar."

The premier claims he is saving the province $1,000,000 by borrowing U.S. funds rather than Canadian through lower American interest rates.

This attitude toward American money conflicts with Social Credit patriotism and pride of province. This pride was displayed a few years ago when our trip-taking premier returned from England the discoverer of British Columbia's emblem and flag. Actually the flag was nothing more than B.C.'s coat of arms on cloth. It had been seen by millions of several generations in public school textbooks.

However, neither pride nor austerity seem to sway the Socreds in the robust, but variable, policy of Bennett budgeting.

Alas, Poor Yorick

Top detectives called from Glasgow were trying to solve the riddle of the half-buried man.

He was young, well-dressed. He lay face down near an Invernessshire road, partly covered by twigs and earth.

And he had been dead for a few days, police decided.

They faced two posers:

Who was he?

Was he murdered?

The man was found by Mr. Alexander Mathieson, of Kingussie, a former London police sergeant who is now a water bailiff.

He saw an open map fluttering in a hollow between the Perth-Inverness road and the railway line five miles south of Newtonmore.

He climbed down the embankment, found the map, a guide book, a torch — then the body in its shallow grave.

The man was aged about thirty and 5 ft. 8-9 in. He wore a white silk shirt, fawn high-neck jersey, grey-green anarak, clerical grey trousers, maroon socks, brown shoes.

He had an Edinburgh accent.

—Glasgow Sunday Express.

You can't fool these water bailiffs.

U Thant Calm, Composed In Face of Stormy Sessions

By SAUL PETT

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—He sits impassively at the council table, round-faced, serene, his thoughts well concealed behind heavy eyelids, a picture of impeccable blandness in a snarling world.

He listens to the invective of the cold war and the threat of Armageddon but the ominous oratory appears to flow harmlessly past him.

He follows the text of the bombast, his eyes lowered, his right index finger lightly touching his lips as if, by this unconscious gesture, he was trying to hush some of the world's harshness.

With the same composure, with a serenity that belied the urgency of his words, U Thant, acting secretary-general of the United Nations, spoke out last week in the storm over Cuba. He appealed to the United States and Russia for a temporary suspension of all action and counter-action on Cuba.

"If today the United Nations should prove ineffective it may have proved itself so for all time."

KEEPS TIGHT CONTROL

In public or private stress—and he has seen much of both the past year — U Thant of Burma has proved a man of remarkable control. He replaced Dag Hammarskjold last year in a moment of deep crisis. His term as acting secretary - general, which expires April 10, remains full of profound conflict. But Thant today is as unruffled as when he began.

It was to this quiet, neat, dark - skinned man that the United Nations turned last fall in the gloom and confusion that followed Hammarskjold's death in an African plane crash and the Russian introduction of the troika idea. When East and West finally agreed on Thant for the remainder of Hammarskjold's term, the Burmese was widely regarded as a powder-puff compromise. The mood then seemed to be to grab at any innocuous symbol of harmony as long as the walls didn't cave in.

The walls didn't cave in and the powder puff turned out to be made of sterner stuff.

Like Hammarskjold, Thant has worked for a strong policy in The Congo, to buttress the central government, to end the Katanga secession and to immunize The Congo as a whole against the viruses of the cold war. This policy at times has been criticized in both the East and West.

He has spoken out for a strong assertive United Nations and suggested the time is at hand when nations may have to give up some of their sovereignty to make it effective.

In the Dutch-Indonesian dispute over West New Guinea, he was credited with a large part in achieving a settlement.

SPEAKS OUT

In Moscow, he said the Russian people were not getting all the facts about The Congo. In Warsaw, he said the world can not risk "wasting time in hair-splitting" over ways to end nuclear testing and added, "the hydrogen bomb is a greater evil than any evil it is intended to meet."

In many places, he has said it is time the two "giants"—the United States and Russia — must start negotiating with greater frankness and stop immediately assuming, by reflex action, that any idea advanced by the other side is perforce villainous.

In many ways, he has proven the most outspoken secretary-general the United Nations has had. He has proven a strong executive and thus far, in the view of many observers, has not been inhibited by a quasi cabinet of eight advisers named last fall at Russian insistence.

As a personality, Thant is an interesting contrast to Hammarskjold. Hammarskjold, though a product of the West, was in many ways more oriental in his thinking. He suggested the mystic. Intellectual abstractions fascinated him. He was a scholar, more complicated, less open, frequently difficult to understand.

Hammarskjold, the Swedish aristocrat, regarded diplomacy as the business of professionals working behind closed doors. His public statements frequently were so oblique they seemed to require translation. He generally did not seek to inform or bring public opinion into diplomacy.

Thant, 53, a product of the East, a former schoolteacher and practicing journalist in Burma, is much less complex, more pragmatic, and more direct. For him, intellectual activity and scholarship are not goals in themselves.

Thant's emotional sustenance appears to come from his *religious training. He is a Bud*dhist but he does not follow all the ritual. But he does seek five or 10 minutes alone each day for quiet meditation.

This practice of meditation and his background as a Buddhist help explain what most friends find most remarkable in Thant—his almost impregnable serenity.

Privately, Hammarskjold was known to be frequently tense and nervous and on several occasions lost his temper with subordinates. Privately or publicly, none of the people around Thant can remember him losing his temper. His composure by now is legendary.

One day last May, Thant was tinkering with the intercom box on his desk when two associates entered. Thant joked about the gadget and on hearing no laughter from his visitors asked what was wrong. They informed him of press dispatches reporting the death of his only son in a bus accident in Rangoon.

Thant turned grave but his hand did not shake and his eyes remained dry. He made only one comment and that was to *wonder aloud how he would re*lay the news to his ill wife. His grief remained private, with one unusual exception.

Several weeks later, Thant had an audience with Queen Elizabeth in London. They discussed UN problems and then she expressed sympathy for the loss of his son. Tears came to the eyes of the Queen and were followed by tears in the eyes of her former subject. This is the only time anyone beyond his own family has seen such a direct display of emotion in Thant.

Soon after becoming acting secretary - general last fall, Thant was asked on an American television program to discuss the neutrality of that job. He said countries could be neutral but men find it difficult to be neutral.

On important issues, he said, "I am sure no knowledgeable person can be neutral. He must have his own views one way or another.

"But whoever occupies the office of the secretary - general must be impartial, but not necessarily neutral."

Cuban Missiles Would Cut Warning Time to Five Minutes

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia's missile buildup in Cuba may have been a gamble to force quick decisions on Communist terms before the United States moves forward in rocket strength next year.

Right now, the backbone of U.S. nuclear striking power is a fleet of more than 600 B-52 heavy jet bombers at air fields around the United States, plus some 1,000 B-47 medium jet bombers mainly in the U.S.

About half the bomber force is always on ground alert designed to get the jets into the air with their hydrogen bombs within 15 minutes.

This is about the most notice that now can be expected if the Russians should launch 6,000-mile-range Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles at the United States across the North Pole.

In addition, the United States has 144 ICBM's in firing position inside the country, but more than one-third of them are above ground and thus vulnerable to a nuclear knockout.

And nine Polaris submarines now in service carry a total of 144 1,300-mile-range rockets.

If the Russians could have finished implacing their medium and intermediate range missiles undetected, it is conceivable they could have presented the U.S. with this accomplished fact:

That the 15 minutes of warning time had been telescoped to as little as five minutes, and that virtually all of the United States' B-52 bombers, most of its B-47s and a sizable number of its long-range missiles were in danger of destruction before they could launch a blow at Russia.

As a practical matter, this would largely neutralize U.S. strike-back capability—and thus its power to deter Soviet attack with the threat of a new counter-blow.

The Russians may have calculated that by neutralizing U.S. retaliatory power in this fashion, they could have dictated a settlement of the Berlin issue and other East - West disputes and perhaps altered the whole complexion of the cold war.

CHANCE LOST?

If the Soviets had this in mind, they may well have lost their last chance.

Before this year is out, the U.S. missile force will have grown to about 200 ICBM's, including the first 20 combat-ready, instant-firing minutemen.

Air force authorities have predicted that during 1963 the U.S. ICBM force will swell to about 600—all but a small percentage lodged in widely dispersed steel and concrete underground firing tubes which coud be knocked out only by an extraordinary direct hit.

Within a few years, the United States will have more than 1,000 ICBM's on launch bases, packing a staggering tonnage of nuclear explosive power.

Also, the U.S. Polaris submarine fleet next year will double to 18. Each of the nuclear-propelled boats is armed with 16 missiles which can be fired from submerged or surface positions.

With Polaris subs soon to join the fleet at a one-a-month rate, this force of always-moving undersea missile launchers will grow to a total of 41 boats mounting 656 missiles by 1967.

And by that time an advanced polaris missile will be in the submarine firing tubes—a missile with a range of more than 2,800 miles.

Ottawa Takes Steps to Solve Pilotage Problem

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has announced steps to solve the problems of marine pilotage which in the last two years have twice tied up traffic on the busy St. Lawrence Seaway.

Transport Minister Balcer announced in the Commons Friday appointment of a three - man royal commission, headed by Judge Yves Bernier of the Quebec Superior Court, to untangle complications relating to the employment of pilots by ships on both coasts and in the St. Lawrence River - Great Lakes system.

The 46-year-old judge from Lauzon, Que., will have as colleagues H. A. Renwick, 68, of Vancouver, and R. K. Smith, 75, of Waterloo, Ont., and Parrsboro, N.S.

Mr. Balcer told reporters he hopes the commission will find a formula to avoid shipping strikes and relieve the pressure on him—as in the case of a week-long strike last spring—to act as arbiter. The commission's recommendations are expected to be implemented by the beginning of the 1964 shipping season.

DOUGLAS RETURNS

In an otherwise slow day in the Commons, the highlight was the return to the House of T. C. (Tommy) Douglas.

The New Democratic Party leader, who last sat in the Commons as a CCF member 18 years ago, received a warm welcome from the other party leaders.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker noted that the 17 years Mr. Douglas spent as premier of Saskatchewan "gave those of us of other political parties some idea of the meaning of eternity."

Mr. Douglas, who was defeated in the June 18 election in Regina riding, was elected MP for the British Columbia constituency of Burnaby-Coquitlam in a byelection Oct. 22. The former MP for that riding, Erhart Regier, resigned to create the vacancy.

Liberal Leader Pearson said he was sure Commons debates "will be more lively and stimulating" because of the NDP leader's presence.

FIRES OFF QUESTIONS

Mr. Douglas, who lost no time in peppering the government front bench with questions, said he was "very happy" to be back in the Commons.

"The good will and the marvellous esprit de corps of this House has not changed."

A federal department of co-operatives was suggested by Edward Nasserden (PC—Rosthern) during Friday's debate.

"At a time like this when the free world finds herself confronted by the advocates of socialism and communism we must utilize every resource at our disposal to meet the type of competition they pose."

The Saskatchewan farmer also called for greater encouragement for credit unions and caisses populaires.

"One of the evils of our society is the cost of consumer credit," he said. "There is a need for the mobilization of more economical credit facilities than are available to the ordinary finance companies."

Arthur Laing (L—Vancouver South) said too little was being spent by Canadian industry on research compared with that in other countries.

Pierre - Andre Boutin (SC—Dorchester) said Canadian lumbermen who work part of the year should be entitled to unemployment insurance benefits. At present woodsmen are not eligible.

The general debate on budget resolutions concluded with the Commons moving into point-by-point discussion of the 30 items listed in last spring's budget.

Several opposition members criticized as insufficient the $50 increase in the amount deductible for dependents in computing income tax.

The current exemptions for dependents, said A. B. Patterson (SC—Fraser Valley), were "not realistic in view of the rise in the cost of living."

James Byrne (L—Kootenay East) said dependents attending university should receive special consideration. The devaluation of the Canadian dollar had resulted in an added disadvantage for the parents of youngsters who studied in the U.S.

Russ Federation Reports Record Grain Production

MOSCOW (AP)—The Russian Federation, largest republic in the Soviet Union, turned in a record-breaking 36,000,000 tons of grain to the state this year, it was announced Saturday.

The announcement said state and collective farms sold 6,000,000 tons more grain to the state than last year.

These figures did not include the amounts of grain kept by the individual farms and their workers for their own use as fodder and seed.

The Russian Federation normally produces about 60 per cent of the Soviet Union's grain.

The Book Corner

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The West's one powerful counter against communism is a "vast force of space-age missionaries . . . to spread education and knowledge among illiterate populations."

This is the conclusion of Frederick Nossal in Dateline—Peking (Longmans), a study of China under the Communists written by Nossal after eight months as head of the Toronto Globe and Mail's Peking bureau.

Nossal, the first Western newspaper man, as opposed to news agency reporters, allowed to live and operate in the Chinese capital, was in Peking from October, 1959, to June, 1960, when his visa was cancelled by the Chinese for unspecified "inacc uracies." He was not replaced by The Globe and Mail.

Dateline — Peking describes the China that Nossal was allowed to see during his tenure in Peking. His impressions reflect respect for some changes made by the Communists but this is overladen by unqualified concern for the future.

AWAKENING GIANT

He sees China as "a giant awakening from a nightmare of hunger and civil war" where factories are the new temples, machines the altars. He terms China's population — probably 700,000,000 now and maybe twice that number by the end of the century—"the most explosive issue the Communists will eventually face" and says food will remain for years "the cruellest of the nation's countless problems."

Yet in the face of these difficulties, "it is obvious that Peking's dominance over Asia is coming ever closer, and today the Chinese Communists are appealing not to the West, or even to Russia, but to all the have-not people of the world."

"China is trying to head this crusade of the poor against the rich. The only sure way to halt China's leadership of the poor is to help her—and indeed all the world's poor nations—grow rich more rapidly."

Nossal writes that Western hate for Chinese Communist methods does not minimize their eventual effect on our economy and says "we must face up to the fact that communism is not as unpopular as we might wish."

'NOT ALL BAD'

"Communism is an alien and doctrine. But it is not all bad. It has some excellent points — socially, economically, internationally. These aspects of communism we of the West should be studying. If people knew more about communism they would be less afraid of it, and we would be in a better position in the struggle between the two systems."

The need of the West today is a common cause, Nossal says.

"Western global policies are beset by a tragic aimlessness. . . . We have come to accept the easy life as a matter of course, and we push aside serious thoughts about people and nations who have not yet reached our standards. Unless our children are taught in their schools that the advancement and well-being of the poorer lands is he responsibility of the wealthier nations, the West is set on a collision course with disaster."

Nossal says the giving of money and food to the poor is not enough.

NEED MISSIONARIES

"The West must recruit its own vast force of space - age missionaries who are prepared to leave their homelands, as did the Christian crusaders of old, to spread education and knowledge among illiterate populations. More technicians, doctors, nurses, engineers and architects, farmers and economists must go from he rich world into the poor to preach and to teach."

The United Nations, the Colombo plan, President Kennedy's Peace Corps are fine, he says, "but how much greater would be the impact if the West as a whole initiated an international education campaign with the sole purpose of elevating the underdeveloped nations to our living standards."

"Such a scheme can be conducted on the world-wide scale needed only if we realize that this is our one powerful counter against the dedicated Communists operating in most uncommitted countries as well as within the Western alliance."

Nossal, born in Austria 34 years ago, migrated to Australia at the age of 12 and his journalistic career has taken him to many parts of the world. From 1959 until this fall when he joined the editorial board of The Globe and Mail in Toronto he was the newspaper's Far East and Southeast Asia correspondent.

New Star Rises On Paris Fashion Scene

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters) — A rising star in the Paris fashion firmament is Marie Helene Arnaud, former model and internationally known cover girl.

Marie Helene is the second famed model to switch from modelling to designing. She follows Bettina, the late Ali Khan's fiancee, who designs a collection of sweaters and knitwear which are featured in leading Paris stores.

The Marie Helene Arnaud collection is being shown and sold in a new boutique in the Grand Maison de Blanc, the well-known department store opposite the Paris opera house.

This glamorous, red - haired former model has designed everything sold in the boutique which bears her name. Every coat, suit, hat, shoe, handbag, necklace and scarf on sale in the smart gold and white Louis XVI salon has been created by the ex-cover girl.

MASS PRODUCTION

Miss Arnaud's salon is another example of the growing tendency to bring high fashion or a ranking creator's specific style into mass production, for sale at reasonable prices.

Miss Arnaud received her fashion training from Gabrielle Chanel, where she was the star model for five years, a special protege and the personal assistant of "la grande mademoiselle."

Her first collection emphatically reflects Chanel's style and taste.

Coats are cut on young, high-waisted, redingote lines, often with small collars and cuffs of such expensive fur as mink or sable. Jewelry trends feature the same bulky pearl necklaces which have become a time-honored Chanel trademark, or multi-strand narrow gold chains.

The big difference is that Marie Helene Arnaud's clothes are ready made, and cost about one-quarter the price of an original Chanel model. Suits, for example, range from about $80 to $180. Coats cost about $170. Fur trimmings are extra.

Children Need Fairy Tales, Says Library Story - Teller

VANCOUVER (CP)—Folk and fairy tales are almost as important to children as their daily bread and butter, says story-teller Sada Duncan.

"These stories encompass the wisdom of the race," says Mrs. Duncan, who tells tales and trains story-tellers at the Vancouver public library.

"Through the centuries they have been told and retold until they are polished and shining.

"By reading and telling them we can lead a child into the attitudes we hope he will have as an adult. We can also lead him to a life-long love of literature."

She says fairy tales and folk stories, particularly when told, develop the creative imagination.

"When a child is listening to the story, he fills in the background, the decor, the incidental sounds, the music and the costumes. He'll do an amazing job of it too."

She says a steady diet of television or movies short-changes a child. Children could lose touch with fantasy—"the most delightful and painless way to stretch and grow and learn."

Mrs. Duncan, a graduate of Columbia University, New York, who worked in Calgary before coming to Vancouver, says story-telling establishes a better rappor between the child and the subject than story-reading.

The small bright-eyed woman with long curly auburn hair and an easy, lilting laugh says she doesn't do handsprings, use gestures or elocution methods when telling a story.

"I just stand up with the story in my head. And I don't talk to children as if they were smaller or less a person than myself."

She does not think that some of the horrendous happenings in stories by such authors as the brothers Grimm frighten children.

Most adults forget they were not frightened by the same stories, she says.

Check Diet Before Buying Vitamins

By PATRICIA RUSAK

TORONTO (CP)—The word "vitamins" seems to mean the same thing to consumers as "Christmas" — buy, buy, buy. But next time you are tempted by those shiny bottles lining drug store shelves, go home and check the family diet first.

"All the vitamins a person needs, except perhaps for vitamin D, are supplied by a normal, healthy diet," says Marjorie Phillips, an assistant professor in the faculty of household science, University of Toronto.

Vitamin D, however, active in building tissues but not abundant in foods, must often be taken in concentrated form by growing children, pregnant women and older people who seldom get out into the sunshine.

The healthy daily diet, as defined by the federal department of health and welfare, consists of milk, fruit (citrus or tomatoes or their juices and another fresh fruit), vegetables (one serving of potatoes and another of leafy green, yellow or raw), whole grain cereal, bread, eggs and meat, poultry or fish.

NOT TOO FATTENING

"Eating each of these foods every day does not mean that a diet needs to be heavy." Those who are reducing can eat a portion of all of them and still keep their diet under 1,000 calories a day, says Miss Phillips.

"The most common fallacy in buying vitamins is that you should try to get the most for your money." For example, if one label says 2,000 units of vitamin A while another reads 5,000 units, the consumer will probably buy the latter thinking she is getting more for her money.

"She forgets that if she serves one-half a canteloup to each member of her family, they will get all the vitamin A they need for that day."

And it is ridiculous to take pills containing 10 milligrams of thiamine when the daily requirement is one milligram, says Miss Phillips.

The daily requirement of vitamins A, B (thiamine, riboflavin and niacin), C and D is quite small, says Miss Phillips.

"There is no evidence that if you have more vitamins than you need that you'll get additional pep over and above that which you would have if you followed a normal diet and were in good health."

And a massive overdose of vitamins, for example 75,000 units of vitamin A for several months, can often have harmful effects. An overdose of vitamin A could result in scaliness of the skin, nausea and general loss of appetite, and an overdose of vitamin D could lead to bone damage.

Miss Phillips now is studying the effects of excess B vitamins on growing rats, a beginning to learning how excess B vitamins might affect the human body processes. She has found that under certain conditions, there are harmful effects.

"There may be reasons when massive doses of vitamins are necessary for certain illnesses, but then a doctor should prescribe the appropriate vitamin and dosage."

Punishment Sermon Subject

Man's God-given ability to depart from evil and do good was set forth at Christian Science services Sunday.

A number of experiences of Jacob were included in the readings from the Bible and from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy. Everlasting Punishment was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon.

This citation was read from Science and Health: "Rise in the strength of spirit and resist all that is unlike good. God has made man capable of this, and nothing can vitiate the ability and power divinely bestowed on man."

The Golden Text was from Galatians: "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

Viscount One Year Old Saturday

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret's son, Viscount Linley—fifth in line to the throne—is one year old.

His full nan is David Albert Charles. But newspapers dubbed him the "barefoot viscount" Saturday when they published his birthday photograph taken by his father, the former Antony - Ar .strong - Jones.

It showed the chubby, chuckling barefoot boy standing with feet wide apart and clutching a small table for support.

Once again, as in the early studies of Prince Charles and the Royal Family which made him famous, Armstrong-Jones chose an unorthodox setup.

For Lord Linley was pictured in a baggy - trousered romper suit and sweater with sleeves rolled up clinging to a whatnot — a series of open shelves—containing pieces of royal bric-a-brac.

He cannot walk yet. He totters precariously from his mother's arms to his nanny, Verona Sumner.

This afternoon at Royal Lodge in Windsor Park, there will be a birthday party.

Lord Linley's grandmother, the Queen Mother, Elizabeth, will will be there.

There will be a birthday cake with one candle.

Fashion Show Part Of New Penal Plan

VANCOUVER (CP)—The new look was very apparent at the fashion show but it was doubtful that many in the audience were overly impressed with the dresses.

The eight pretty young models displayed clothes in the posh Bayshore Inn before a group of persons whose interest in life is far from what milady will wear this year.

The show was a working demonstration of a new look that is sweeping the corrections field in North America. The models were from the Willingdon School for Girls, a correctional school for delinquents in suburban Burnaby. The audience was made up of members of the B.C. Corrections Association, a group of social workers, penologists and others in related schools.

The audience was attending a two-day workshop on what they call the New Approach of rehabilitating criminals, delinquents and other offenders.

'TANGIBLE RESULT'

John Braithwaite, warden of the Haney Correctional Institute in the Fraser Valley and president of the association, said the fashion show is a tangible result of the New Approach that is replacing traditional techniques with ideas based on reason and modern social work.

He said the traditional approach is to teach a prisoner to be a good prisoner.

"It is rather like a high school that is run primarily with the object of making sure the students are good students. This is fine—except that when the students graduate they . . . have not been trained to think for themselves—to assume responsibility for their relations and the decisions everyone has to make."

He said because there are regulations, the moral code in prisons is almost exemplary. But this was changed when girls were brought to the hotel for a fashion show.

"Anyone of them could scamper anytime she felt like it. What's stopping them? Basically, it is the girl herself, and this is exactly what the New Approach is designed to do. Her decision not to run away is exactly the sort of decision she is going to have to make every day when she is discharged."

ONLY BEGINNING

He said this type of thinking is only the beginning of the New Approach. The federal justice department had appointed a committee to study the related problems of chronic crime and rehabilitation and formulate a bold new attack on them.

Another approach was research designed to anticipate delinquent behavior in juveniles to find ways of curbing it and eventually to cut the number of offenders who end up in institutions.

Warden Hugh Christie of Oakalla Provincial Prison in suburban Burnaby said changes are not easily made. Prisoners did not like change.

The true delinquent had failed to handle the problems of life and falls back into hostility. In the old type of institution he knew he was being punished.

"The new approach requires him to examine his way of life —see where it is wrong—and make changes in it. He has to give up a philosophy he has adopted and found comfortable."

He said the new approach will keep hard work as part of prison life. But the emphasis would be on improving educational standards, developing new and acceptable types of recreation.

Grandmother Finds Jail Job Interesting

MONTREAL (CP) — Mrs. Jeannette Boisseau didn't tackle a full time job until her family of five had grown up and she was a grandmother. That was five years ago.

On Oct. 1, she became the new director of the east-end women's jail on Fullum Street, which usually contains 50 to 60 prisoners.

"I always felt I wanted to do something after my family grew up," she says.

Her interest in penology began when she got a job as secretary to the governor of the Bordeaux Jail in the north end. Although only a secretary, she found it difficult to "remain neutral" about what was going on around her.

"I became increasingly involved in all human aspects of prison life," she said. "The cause of crime, the discipline of the prisoner, his medical attention, his rehabilitation . . ."

To learn more, she enrolled in a four-year night course on criminology at the University of Montreal. Her academic studies and her experience in administration qualified her for the director's job, a prison official said.

JAIL TO MOVE

Mrs. Boisseau says one of her first big tasks will be to supervise the transfer of the women's jail to new quarters next year adjacent to Bordeaux.

"At that time, we hope to be able to make greater use of the services available at Bordeaux, and we hope to expand our own services as well," she says.

Although she expects to be a disciplinarian, "you must always remember to treat the prisoner as you would a person on the outside. She is a human be*ing, too."*

Most of the Fullum Street prisoners were sent there on charges of prostitution or vagrancy. Many of them, says Mrs. Boisseau, don't have skills or families.

How does her husband, Fernand Boisseau, secretary to the Historical Monuments Commission for Quebec, feel about her new job?

"My husband is not the kind of man to keep me from doing something interesting and worthwhile.

"But my father, he wouldn't approve at all."

Woman Behind Man May Prove Important at Poll

By EVELYN AUGUST

DETROIT (AP)—When Michigan voters elect a governor Tuesday, they may well be influenced in their choice by the woman behind the man rather than the man himself.

The two women in the campaign spotlight are Alice Swainson, wife of Democrat John B. Swainson, the Canadian - born present governor, and Lenore Romney, wife of Republican candidate George Romney, former president of American Motors.

Many a male voter may not understand Michigan's ax problems or job crisis, but a pretty smile and a well-turned ankle he does appreciate.

Blonde, shapely Alice Swainson and bubbling, vivacious Lenore Romney have both. They've been making good use of their talents travelling the length and breadth of Michigan campaigning for their husbands.

Whether it's party loyalty or just plain curiosity, men and women alike in all parts of the state have flocked to see and hear the wives of the candidates.

NOT A SPEAKER

Mrs. Swainson, a fragile, classic blonde beauty of 35, dislikes speaking in public, and her short, five-minute talks show it. Emphasizing her role as wife, mother and homemaker, she sidesteps the controversial and makes no attempt to deal with campaign issues.

Mrs. Romney, however, plunges into what she thinks is wrong with Michigan, citing facts and figures she says "are right there on the record for you to see."

A former actress who gave up a movie contract to marry a then struggling unknown, Mrs. Romney knows all the tricks of public speaking. She can talk for 15 minutes, a half-hour or more and still not be wanting for words.

She uses no notes while speaking and, unlike Mrs. Swainson, relies little on memorizing, preferring rather to organize her thoughts as she goes along.

Introduced as "the youngest looking grandmother of five you'll ever see," Mrs. Romney, a slender, handsome 52-year-old, pours out words in rapid-fire succession.

LACKS COOL FACADE

An emotional woman, Mrs. Romney has none of the cool reserve which Mrs. Swainson displays. The governor's wife, perhaps because of her shyness, speaks slowly and deliberately. Her movements are graceful and precise.

Why have these women chosen to leave their homes for the rigors of the campaign trail?

For Mrs. Swainson, the campaign is one of her duties as a wife. "I feel I have to do everything possible to get John elected," she says.

Mrs. Romney, however, says "we're in this because the conditions of our state became so acute—and also because this is the most important election Michigan has ever had."

Wings Make It Ten Games With No Loses; Rangers Nip Bruins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Parker MacDonald's two goals in the third period brought Detroit Red Wings from behind Sunday night and stretched their unbeaten streak in the National Hockey League to 10 in a 3-1 victory over Chicago Black Hawks.

The two tallies, overcoming Chicago's 1-0 lead, came 50 seconds apart while the Black Hawks were a man short early in the period. Alex Faulkner's insurance goal followed MacDonald's second by 100 seconds.

The victory sent the undefeated Red Wings five points ahead of second place Chicago in the NHL race.

Meanwhile at Boston, New York Rangers took a 4-2 lead after two periods and then held on to beat the Bruins 4-3 in the only other NHL game played Sunday night. Montreal Canadiens, in third place with 11 points, and Toronto Maple Leafs, two points behind in fourth place not play Sunday night.

Saturday night, the Red Wings licked the Leafs 7-3 in Toronto and the Rangers and the Canadiens played to a 3-3 tie in Montreal.

SUPERB IN GOAL

The Black Hawks, getting superb goaltending from Glenn Hall Sunday night, threatened to hand Detroit its first loss from early in the first period when Bobby Hull scored, until MacDonald found the range.

Hall was at his best in the fight - enlivened second period when he made 18 of his 30 saves.

The main bout was between Detroit's Pete Goegan and Chicago's Kenny Wharram. Goegan landed several hard right chops to Wharram's chin before all the skaters on both teams swung themselves into a massive pile-up.

Goegan and Wharram were given major penalties for fighting by referee Vern Buffey. Detroit's Marcel Pronovost and Chicago's Stan Mikita received minor roughing penalties.

Terry Sawchuk stopped 20 shots in the Detroit goal.

The Red Wings, who couldn't qualify for last season's playoffs, have won eight and tied the other two of their first 10 games.

ENDS LOSING STREAK

At Boston, New York broke out of a four - game winless streak at the Bruins' expense as Andy Bathgate scored his 225th NHL goal.

Bathgate also drew a 10-minute misconduct penalty along with teammate Doug Harvey. The misconducts resulted from a Bathgate-Teddy Green fight in an enlivened third period. Four minor penalties also were handed out—two each to Bathgate and Green.

The Bruins rallied from a 4-1 second-period deficit on goals by Murray Oliver and Johnny Bucyk but could not pull off the equalizer.

New York goalie Gump Worsley made some remarkable stops in the final period. The Bruins had the puck almost exclusively in New York territory over the final 71 seconds, with six skaters pressing, but Boston was frustrated at every turn.

Bathgate's fourth goal of the season gave New York a 3-1 bulge in the middle period. Earl Ingarfield contributed the deciding tally shortly after.

Boston, now winless in its last seven games, got a goal from Jerry Toppazzini in the first period while Rod Gilbert and Ted Hampson scored the winners' other goals.

Canucks Edge Nelson In Exciting Junior Opener

Cranbrook Canucks rebounded from a six-goal shelling in the second period to shade the Nelson Notre Dame Knights 8-7 in a wide-open Kootenay International Junior Hockey League game in the Civic Arena Saturday.

Forward Fred Libscher squelched Knights' comeback dreams when he capitalized on Knights' main weakness, poor clearing, to slap a low screen shot from in front of the net, behind an overworked Vince Reidy.

The loss in the Knights' home debut before 600 fans, left them in the cellar with two losses in their two starts.

Notre Dame visits Trail Wednesday in its next start.

Defenceman Pat LeGrander scored two from the point to pace the visitors. Besides Leibscher, other single goals were scored by Chris Hynamon, Gay Kilback, Mel Knight, Keith Cameron and Jim Skwarck.

Smooth stickhandler Jack Littler fired his fourth and fifth goals of the young season to lead the Knights' charge. His centreman Colin Patterson and third member of the first string, Danny Calles added singles as did Walt Chernenko, Len Bosquet and Shelly Atwell.

A loose defence, and trouble clearing the puck was the curse of the Knights who matched the more experienced visitors play for play. Ceylon, Sask., native, Reidy turned aside 40 shots while John Ogden at the other end of the ice blocked 38.

Action opened at a fast clip with Nelson dominating the plan for the first 15 minutes, then, within 40 seconds Canucks blasted their way into a 3-0 lead. Before the period ended they had added another twine-bulger.

It rained rubber on Ogden in the middle session. He made 18 saves while six shots got by him as his mates retaliated with one goal.

In the third, Cranbrook controlled the play and the tempo, coming from behind twice to tie the score before Leibscher notched the winner.

Anticipating the clearing pass by the Nelson defence, Le Grander intercepted the pass at the blueline and beat Reidy with an ankle high blazer to open scoring at 15:10. Nine seconds later Hynoman, breaking in from the wing after the centre face-off, picked the waist high near side then 30 seconds later Kilback won a duel with Reidy over the bouncing disc in the crease.

A drop-pass by Nelson was picked up by Knight for a scoring breakaway at 19:34.

Chernenko gave Notre Dame cheering sections new energy when Atwell successfully screened his shot from the point at 1:15 of the second period. Patterson got a gift goal when clearing from behind the net, Ogden pulled the puck into the net in trying to block it.

JACK LITTLER
. . . Five goals in two games.

Atwell and Bosquet markers bore the same tactics, simply ramming the rubber through the solid Cranbrook defence. Littler added his two markers, one from a face-off and the other a picture goal. His solo effort at 19:34 gave Nelson a short-lived 6-5 lead when he stickhandled past three Cranbrook defenders, "deked" Ogden out of position, sliding the puck into the goal.

Throughout the frame, the goal starved Knights left Reidy to his own defences, emphasizing offence, forgetting backchecking. Several times Reidy stopped breakaways but Skwarck, on a three on one play, connected for a red lighter.

In the third Le Grander again picked up a stray pass at the blueline to beat Reidy with a bad bouncer to tie the score. Calles clicked on a pass from Patterson before Cameron nitched the tying marker in a scramble, setting up Leibscher's winner.

Lineups:

Cranbrook— goal, Ogden; defence, Servatous, Brown, Le Grander; forwards, M. Desharnais, Camreon, Leibscher, W. Desharnais, Knight, Kilback, Skwarck Hynamon, McKay, Someya, Neily.

Kapp Sets Record As Leos Win Last Game

By JIM PEACOCK

VANCOUVER (CP) — Quarterback Joe Kapp passed through the rain for four touchdowns and a Western Football Conference record Sundal afternoon to lead British Columbia Lions to a 28-8 victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders in the last game of the season. here.

The victory, before a crowd of 20,498 who braved the heavy downpour to attend Norm Fieldgate Day honoring the veteran Lion defensive end, gave Lions seven victories in 16 starts and left them in fourth place in the final WFC standings.

Riders, finishing in the three-team WFC playoffs for the first time since 1958, wound up third, two points behind Calgary Stampeders against whom they will open the two-game total-points semi - final series next Saturday.

Stampeder coach Dobby Dobbs, attending the game here, had the choice of venue for the first game when Riders lost and stayed in third place.

He said the Cowboys would open at home.

Kapp, a 23-year-old from the University of California, passed for 279 yards Sunday while playing for less than three quarters of the game, played on a rain-soaked, slippery field.

BREAKS RECORD

It raised his total yards gained this season to 3,279, five yards more than the previous high set in 1956 by Saskatchewan's Frank Tripucka.

Two Kapp passes went to halfback Willie Fleming for touchdowns and two more went to halfback Sonny Homer for touchdowns. Quarterback Mel Melin, who played all of the second quarter, picked up four points on a convert and a field goal.

Riders got their lone touchdown in the opening quarter on a 44-yard pass from quarterback Bob Ptacek to new halfback Walt Mince, a late arrival from Arizona State.

Reg Whitehouse converted and got a single on a 30-yard field goal attempt.

FIELD DRY

The game, scheduled here Saturday night, was the first in Canadian Football League history to be postponed because of weather conditions. A threat of fog here caused the postponement, which in the end proved an error from the weather viewpoint. The field was dry and there was no fog Saturday night.

Riders came out of the game with no major injuries, but several players had bumps and bruises, coach Steve Owen said later. They headed back to Regina Sunday night and planned to return to Calgary next Friday night in preparation for Saturday afternoon's playoff opener.

Two other Lions came into Sunday's statistical picture. Fullback Nub Beamer picked up 48 yards to send his season's rushing total to 1,161—best in the conference—and Fleming's two touchdowns gave him 14 for the season, equal to Saskatchewan's Ray Purdin was leading touchdown scorer.

Kapp went into the game needing 275 yards to crack Tripucka's record. He got 134 in the first quarter, among them a 13-yard touchdown throw to Fleming and a 33-yard scoring toss to Homer.

He rode the bench in the second quarter, hen had difficulty in the mud till he connected on a short one to Homer, who ran it down the sidelines for an 85-yard touchdown play. He hit Fleming from the 13 in the fourth and then, with 23 yards to go for the record, rode the bench again. He came back with two minutes left and completed three for the record.

Kapp completed 13 of 23 forwards attempted to get his yardage Sunday. Melin completed three of seven as Lions picked up a total of 326 yards through the air.

Zuger Leads Ti-Cats to Comeback Over Ottawa

By DICK ANCO

HAMILTON (CP) — Quarterback Joe Zuger passed for two touchdowns and scored three himself to lead Hamilton Tiger-Cats to a 40-34 come-from-behind victory over Ottawa Rough Riders Sunday in the final game of the regular 1962 Eastern Football Conference schedule.

Zuger, who set a conference record of eight touchdown passes in a single game earlier this season, came into the game in the second quarter with Ottawa ahead 18-3. His touchdown from one yard out with less than two minutes remaining in the game put Ticats ahead to stay for 20,416 fans.

The game had no bearing on the playoff standings of either team. Hamilton wound up the schedule in first place with 19 points, six better than Riders who now meet Montreal Alouettes in the Eastern sudden-death semi-final in Ottawa next Saturday. The Als had eliminated Toronto Argonauts from the playoffs Saturday with a decisive 32-8 win.

The Hamilton offensive unit had no spark until Zuger came off the bench. He fired a 23-yard touchdown pass to Garney Henley in the second quarter and a 78-yard pass-and-run to Dick Easterly in the third before scoring his three touchdowns—from the four, the three and one.

Don Sutherin converted four of them and kicked two field goals.

SHATTERS RECORD

Quarterback Russ Jackson, Ernie White, Dave Thelen and Bobby Simpson scored for Ottawa. Moe Racine booted his 11th and 12th field goals of the season for a conference record, bettering by one the old mark set in 1954 by Ray Poole of Montreal. He also added three converts and a single on an attempted field goal.

Riders showed from the opening kickoff they wanted a win, despite the fact the result had no effect on the standings. In seven plays they went from their 36 to the Ticat 22 and Racine's 29-yard field goal sent them ahead 3-0.

Hamilton evened it up in its first offensive push, going from its 35 to the Rider 32 in five plays. Sutherin clicked on a 38-yard field goal.

Ottawa came back with a seven-play, 60-yard drive that ended with Jackson going over from the 15. Hamilton's new fullback, Jamie Caleb, fumbled on the kickoff and Riders were back after four plays but Racine's attempted field goal from 15 yards out was wide.

Jim Conroy's pass interception set up White's touchdown sprint from the six to give Ottawa what seemed to be a commanding lead.

Jackson threw a 15-yard pass to Simpson in the end zone midway in the second quarter to widen the Ottawa lead o 24-3 before Zuger finally got Hamilton rolling.

PENALTIES HELP CATS

The pass to Henley capped a long march from the Hamilton four. Penalties to Riders for unnecessary roughness and talking kept the drive alive.

Easterly kept the pressure on Ottawa in the third quarter when he took a 27-yard pass from Zuger on the Rider 51 and scampered down the sidelines, shaking off a tackle by Gene Gaines at the 22, for the score. Zuger's touchdown, which put Ticats ahead for the first time, came after John Barrow recovered White's fumble on the 27.

Millard Flemming made a spectacular return on the kickoff, running the ball to the Hamilton 37. Three plays later Thelen carried over from the 21 on a draw play.

After Zuger's second touchdown early in the fourth quarter, Racine came through with his record-breaking field goal at 8:45 from 48 yards out to put Ottawa in front 34-33.

Then Zuger wrapped things up with his one-yard plunge after a 64-yard Hamilton march.

NEW YORK (CP) — Playing without two of their scoring stars, Green Bay Packers romped to a 38-7 victory over Chicago Bears Sunday for their eighth consecutive victory.

Halfback Paul Hornung, who has been sidelined since Oct. 14 with a twisted knee, was in uniform for Green Bay but was not called upon. Pass-catching ace Boyd Dowler, nursing an injured left knee, was used only as a punter.

The one-sided victory moved the Packers closer to their third straight Western Division crown in the National Football League.

New York Giants took over first place in the Eastern Division with a 31-28 victory over St. Louis Cardinals. The Giants came from behind with a three-touchdown assault in a wild fourth quarter in which the Cardinals also scored two touchdowns. Y. A. Tittle's 20-yard touchdown pass to Alex Webster with less than four minutes remaining enabled the Giants to overcome a 28-24 Cardinal lead.

Sam Etcheverry again had to content himself with doing the punting Sunday while St. Louis quarterback Charley Johnson put on a spectacular aerial show, completing 26 of 40 passes for 365 yards and two touchdowns. Etcheverry, one of the most popular players in Canadian football during his years with Montreal Alouettes, averaged 38.5 yards while punting four times. His longest boot was 44 yards.

Sharp Looking Als Belt Argos to Make Playoffs

By MARVEN MOSS

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Alouettes made a playoff spot in the Eastern Football Conference Saturday, battering Toronto Argonauts 32-8 with an attack springing from the old-fashioned T-formation.

Rookie quarterback Sandy Stephens, giving his sharpest performance of the season, and the one-two punch of Don Clark and George Dixon, carried the Als to the win.

Next Saturday at Ottawa they go in a sudden-death game against the Rough Riders. Whoever wins will hook up with Hamilton Tiger-Cats in a home-and-home set for the eastern championship, total points to count.

In the Toronto game, for perhaps the first time since Montreal dealt away Sam Etcheverry and Hal Patterson in 1960, it was evident the Als had most of the crowd—attendance was announced as 22,933 — behind them all the way.

Clark and Dixon churned out a total of 252 yards between them on a slippery field covered with peat moss and made the Toronto tackling look pitfully inept.

RUNNING HURT

"It was their running that killed us I guess," said Toronto coach Nobby Wirkowski later in the dressing room.

On defence, the Als had a strong rush going most of the game against Tobin Rote and the Toronto quarterback's passing suffered visibly.

Rote, who announced some time ago that he would retire at the end of this season, completed eight of 24 passes for 114 yards and had one interception.

Wirkowski, however, was quick to come to Tobin's defence.

"I don't think you can blame him," said Nobby. "He was trying just like everybody else. Our defence just couldn't get untracked."

The win gave Montreal third place in the final standings with 11 points and left the Argos last with eight. It was Montreal's third win over Toronto in as many games this season. Like Toronto, the Als had four victories in all. But they also picked up three single points for ties.

On the attack, Moss switched to a T-formation from the two-fullback system he used all season.

He had Larry Hickman at fullback flanked by Clark and Dixon and before the ball was snapped one of the three would peel off in motion.

LOOKED SHARP

Stephens meanwhile seemed to operate better that way. His play selection was well-mixed. He completed seven of 10 passes for 90 yards. There were no Toronto interceptions.

Clark, in his second appearance after 10 games on the sidelines with a severe kidney injury, carried 22 times for 142 yards and a pair of touchdowns. A fumble by Rote when smeared on a pass play led to one of them.

Dixon meanwhile boosted his seasonal rushing record in the EFC to 1,520 yards with a 110-yard effort on 18 carries with one payoff run.

A pass by Stephens to Marv Luster from seven yards out produced Montreal's final touchdown.

All four touchdowns were converted by Bobby Jack Oliver. The big tackle also booted a 32-yard field goal and netted a single on a three-point try that was wide.

Gerry Philp scored Toronto's lone touchdown on a pass from halfback Dick Shatto, working from Rote's pitchout.

Bill Mitchell added the extra point and also picked up a single on a wide field goal attempt.

Rangers Manage Tie After Blowing Lead

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP) — Ken Schinkel flicked in a goal at 7:33 of the third period Saturday night to give New York Rangers a 3-3 tie with Montreal Canadiens after the New Yorkers' early 2-0 lead had been wiped out and they found themselves trailing until Schinkel came to the rescue.

As in all their 11 games so far in this National Hockey League season, Canadiens gave up the first goal to the opposition.

Goals by Andy Hebenton in the first period and Harry Howell in he second set up New York's lead. Claude Provost scored for Montreal just before the second period ended and Henri Richard and Don Marshall put Canadiens in front temporarily in the third.

Goalie Lorne (Gump) Worsley of New York was bombarded with 40 shots, 17 of them coming in the last period, a stretch that provided the most excitement for the crowd of 13,674.

Cesare Maniago in the Montreal nets had only 18 shots driven at him throughout the game, but the disparity in shots wasn't so evident because of the Rangers' tenacious play.

DRAWS MISCONDUCT

There were only four minor penalties, two against each team. In addition, Worsley drew a misconduct penalty for protesting Provost's goal and there was a bench penalty against New York in the first period for having too many men on the ice.

Defenceman Doug Harvey and Junior Langlois assisted on Schinkel's tying goal. Harvey passed back to Langlois whose long, low shot was deflected by Schinkel into the net.

Dickie Moore, back in the game for Montreal despite a gimpy knee, figured in two of his team's goals.

Hebenton scored at 11:31 of the first period on relays from Andy Bathgate and Bronco Horvath. At the same time in the second period Howell counted on a long screened shot. Provost cut the margin at 18:27 on Phil Goyette's pass.

Richard tipped in Moore's drive at 2:11 of the last period and at 2:57 Marshall took Moore's perfect pass to beat Worsley from 12 feet out.

Canadiens played without centre Jean Beliveau, who has an eye injury. Ranger rookie Rod Gilbert, who suffered a head injury in Detroit Thursday, wore a helmet and played regularly.

Daniels Wants To Fight Clay

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Billy Daniels of New York flattened Mike Dejohn repeatedly Saturday night and finally stopped the heavyweight contender in the final round of their 10-round bout.

Daniels, 187-pound, six-foot-four slugger from Brooklyn, floored his 30 - year - old, 203-pound opponent six times in all.

The 10th had barely begun when Daniels threw a right that sent Dejohn once more to the canvas. Referee Frank Luria stopped the fight, awarding Daniels a technical knockout.

Daniels' manager said "We are ready now to fight anybody but we especially want Cassius Clay."

Daniels lost to Clay by a technical knockout this year after suffering an eye cut.

Coffey Takes WFC Scoring Title As Esks Drop Bombers

By GRAHAM COX

WINNIPEG (CP)—Only the hardy were out Saturday night to watch Edmonton Eskimos close out their Western Football Conference season with an 18-12 victory over league champion Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

It was an ironic twist that Edmonton, who trailed through most of the league and the game should end up as they started this season with a win over the defending Canadian champions.

The two teams opened the season in Winnipeg Aug. 9 with Edmonton winning 20-16.

But most of the scattered and half-frozen fans were watching Tommy-Joe Coffey, Edmonton's all-purpose end - halfback and kicker as he and Winnipeg fullback Gerry James fought for the league scoring title.

Coffey entered the game with 118 points, eight more than James, and but for a pair of missed converts, James could have tied the chunky powerhouse during the first half of the game.

But Coffey snared a seven-yard pass into the left flat in the third quarter, added the convert and a field goal and sprinted away to grab the crown with 129 points. He also had an earlier convert.

The Bomber drive languished during the second half, mainly because of two lost fumbles and an Edmonton interception, and James wound up still in second place with 116 points.

MISSES RECORD

Coffey just missed adding to his laurels as the one-season record of 68 pass completions held jointly by Winnipeg coach Bud Grant and his star end Ernie Pitts went glimmbering. Coffey managed only two passes in the game and ended with 65 for the year.

Along with Coffey's 11 points, Edmonton got a touchdown from defensive end Nat Dye and a single by halfback Dunc Harvey on a punt.

James' touchdown was matched by Roger Hagberg in the opening quarter.

Winnipeg led 6-1 after the first quarter and 12-8 at the half but quarterback Hal Ledyard couldn't manage to sustain a drive.

Edmonton defenders and a raw wind that gusted to 42 miles an hour in the second half.

Both players and fans spent most of the night in a state of numb chill wih the temperature at 30 degrees and the wind shipping straight down the field from the north.

BLOCKS CONVERT

So strong was the wind at times that James' first convert attempt didn't make it to the goal posts while punters from both teams, when against the wind, could get away kicks of only as little as 20 yards.

Winnipeg wound up the season with 22 points on 11 wins and five losses while Edmonton ended with 13 points on six wins, a tie and nine losses.

It is the first time since 1950 that Eskimos have failed to make the playoffs.

Hagberg, who paced Winnipeg's 235 - yard ground game with 119 yards on 14 carries, opened scoring midway through the first quarter when he drove across right tackle and burst into the clear for a 28-yard rush into the end zone.

Harvey booted an 83 - yard single with the wind to close out the quarter and then James, in for only the one play, drove three yards for Winnipeg's second touchdown.

He missed his second convert when the snap from centre was too high and couldn't be handled in the backfield.

Dye pulled Edmonton closer when he recovered a fumble by Ledyard, back to pass, and went 66 yards to score.

Coffey's convert was good and the third quarter was all his with his 41-yard field goal with the wind, his touchdown and convert.

Even though they won, Edmonton managed to lead Winnipeg statistically in only one department, punting, with Harvey getting an average 35 yards on nine punts while Winnipeg quarterback and defensive halfback Dick Thornton averaged 33 yards on six punts.

Winnipeg piled up 16 first downs to Edmonton's four and Eskimos managed only 84 yards on the ground.

Kenny Ploen and Ledyard connected on three of 10 pass attemps for 73 yards while Parker clicked on three of 12 tries for 64 yards.

Even in fumbles, losing four of five, Winnipeg was ahead as Eskimos recovered their only fumble of the game.

Detroit Red Wings, Happy Hockey Club

By PAUL RIMSTEAD

TORONTO (CP)—It was like the dressing room of the winning team in a minor hockey tournament.

Detroit Red Wings, even their battle-scarred veterans, were acting like a pack of excited kids after whipping Toronto Maple Leafs 7-3 Saturday night.

Gordie Howe, Detroit's mister everything, was late returning to the room. He had scored the winning goal, added an insurance one and was chosen as a star in the game.

He stopped to shake hands with Terry Sawchuk, the National Hockey League's hottest goaltender.

"Way to go, big daddy!" yelped Howe's teammates as he walked in.

"How long is it since you've seen a Detroit dressing room like this?" Howe was asked.

BEEN LONG TIME

"Quite a while," smiled the right winger. "This is a happy team but it's not hard to understand — we're winning, you know."

Howe scored the winning goal while Leafs defenceman Kent Douglas and Carl Brewer were lying on the ice. Howe picked up the puck and was alone in front of the net.

He explained it simply: "Douglas tried to take me out and I gave him a push. He took Brewer out instead."

Doug Barkley, a rookie defenceman drafted from Chicago Black Hawks this year, sat beside Howe. He too had been a Detroit star.

"I didn't have a chance with Chicago," he said. "They had five or six real good defencemen and there was really no use going to camp. But this is great. I like playing as a regular."

Sawchuk, one of the big men in Detroit's climb to the top, was quiet. He held his two masks in his hands and said: "I've been hit on it five or six times this season."

His face, marked with deep scars, is a constant reminder that he didn't always use a mask.

"What the heck," smiled Sawchuk. "I saw where Jacques Plante used a mask and he's an all-star. And Al Millar wears one in the Western League and he's an all-star."

Howe, Sawchuk Lead as Wings Remain Unbeaten

By BILL MacDOUGALL

TORONTO (CP) — Veterans Gordie Howe and Terry Sawchuk proved their mettle when it was most needed Saturday night and led the first-place Detroit Red Wings to a 7-3 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs in an exciting National Hockey League game.

After goaltender Sawchuk had held Toronto to three goals in a vigorous attack in the late second and early third periods, Howe scored the goal that broke a 3-3 tie and then added another to make it 5-3 with four minutes left in the game.

That deflated the Toronto attack and the Wings added two more goals in the last two minutes of the game to make it a runaway victory.

The result left Leafs in fourth spot, two points behind Montreal Canadiens. Both clubs were idle Sunday night.

Centre Parker MacDonald also scored two goals for the Wings and Doug Barkley, Billy McNeill and Floyd Smith added one each. It was the first NHL goal for rookie defenceman Barkley.

KEON A STAR

Centre Dave Keon was the Toronto hero, scoring two goals in 16 seconds in the second period. Bob Pulford scored the other Toronto goal, also in the second period.

Sawchuk, whose surprising performance this season has made him the league's leading goaltender, was called on for 29 saves. He made several outstanding stops when the Leafs threatened to make it a rout after the midway mark of the game.

McNeill put Wings into a 1-0 lead at 16:07 of the first period on his first goal of the season, flicking the puck into the corner of the net as Leaf goaltender Johnny Bower sprawled.

Barkley made it 2-0 at 4:54 of the second period on a 25-foot rising shot that went over Bower's leg as he kicked at it.

Then it was Keon's turn to score his third and fourth goals in three games last week. He cut into the clear down the left side on both goals, putting the first one between Sawchuk's legs at 11:44 and hitting the short corner at 12:00.

PUT WINGS AHEAD

MacDonald made it 3-2 for Detroit at 14:11 on a 10-foot after taking a pass from Barkley and Pulford tied it again at 15:04, finishing off a neat passing play with Billy Harris and Carl Brewer on a 10-foot ice-skimming shot.

Howe scored what eventually proved the winning goal at 7:48 of the third period. He took Leaf defenceman Kent Douglas out of the play in front of the Toronto net, Douglas hauled fellow defenceman Tim Horton down with him, and Howe was left alone in front of the net to beat Bower. He scored his second goal at 15:52 on a rebound.

Smith scored at 18:20 while Brewer was off for hooking and MacDonald tallied at 19:21 to send the Leaf supporters among the crowd of 14,400 home disappointed.

Referee Frank Udvari called 15 minor penalties, eight to Toronto, and Leafs' Dick Duff picked up a misconduct for arguing too vociferously on Smith's goal. Duff also got three minors, the same as Detroit defenceman Howie Young.

THOUGHT IT WAS A DEER—A game protector in New York state stands beside a 700-pound moose shot and killed by a Merril, N.Y., hunter who thought the animal was a deer when he shot it. If the hunter hadn't reported the accident to game wardens he would have faced a $500 fine. This is the first moose reported killed in this section in 30 years.

What does it mean to be rated?

Not long ago men and women with coronary artery disease, tuberculosis or diabetes were unable to obtain life insurance. Today it is possible for many of these people to be accepted in a special premium classification. Technically speaking they are said to be "rated" policyowners. For many years Manufacturers Life has contributed leadership in this special field. Today we are well known for our progressive outlook and for the favourable premium rates being offered.

Actually 93% of the people applying for Manufacturers Life policies today are accepted at regular rates. Another 5½% are offered insurance at the lowest possible cost considering their particular physical condition, while only 1½% are declined. Whatever your needs, you can be sure of progressive life insurance service when you call the Man from Manufacturers.

Engineer Devises Ways To Forecast

VANCOUVER (CP)—A local engineer has devised a method of forecasting potholes in roads using a device costing about $250 which, he says, will save thousands of dollars in road repairs.

D. A. Welsh, design engineer for the District of North Vancover, uses a 12-foot aluminum beam, tripod and sensitive deflection scale—the whole known as a Benkelman Beam—to measure how much a road sinks and rises as a heavy truck is driven over it.

He says extensive measurements against traffic conditions show a deflection of between 30-1,000ths and 80-1,000ths of an inch is tolerable for moderate traffic. But a deflection of 35-1,000ths of an inch will lead to a breakup of road under heavy traffic.

The beam will indicate accurately the amount of gravel and asphalt needed to surface a new road for expected traffic volume and the amount of resurfacing needed to secure adequate strength for a poor road, says Mr. Welsh.

He was to describe his method to the International Road Federation world congress at Madrid this month.

The Record Rack

by The Sour Notes

PAGLIACCI and CAVALLERIA RUSTICANA (Del Monaco, MacNeil, Simionato, Tucci.)

Highlights from two of the most famous Italian operas are imaginatively and tastefully performed by its countrymen.

Pagliacci with Mario Del Monaco as Canio, Cornell MacNeil as Tonio and Gabriella Tucci as Nedda is vividly interpreted with Francesco Molinari-Pradelli conductnig the chorus and orchestra of L'Accademia Di Santa Cecilia, Rome.

In Mascagni's one-act work, Tullio Serafin deftly controls the conductor's baton with Giulietta Simionato singing the leading role of Santuzza.

Engaging performances.

MUSIC OF BRAZIL (Percy Faith and his Orchestra.

Daring, fascinating, exuberant and gay, all underscored by torrid passion is the Brazil conjured by Canada's Percy Faith, an exotic image in a tango tempo.

Faith's orchestrations are lavish in texture with Latin rhythm pulsating through every melody, each a kaleidoscopical panorama of a land of primitive beauty overflowing with natural wealth yet untamed. The arrangements are first class, in keeping with Faith's high standards successfully etablihed earlier in the Latin American field.

Rhythmical ecstacy.

IN A NEW MOOD (Oscar Brown Jr.)

Abetted by top flight arrangements by Ralph Burns the young poet laureate of the contemporary jazz scene, Oscar Brown Jr. temporarily forgets his socially conscious material to dwell on the time-tested ballad.

In doing so, the Chicago product brings to the surface a marvellous depth of feeling. The standards are embellished by the neo-jazz style of Brown.

His preference, the social tinged song, is reflected in a cutting version of "16 Tons" but it is overshadowed by his poignancy with the ballad in a highly charged performance.

New dimensions.

THE RAY CHARLES STORY Volume II.

Not since Elvis twitched into view in the mid-50s has anyone affected popular music like blind pianist Ray Charles.

From Jazz to gospel searing blues is the tuneful chronicle outlined in Volume II, dealing with the emergency of pianist-shouter as the leading exponent and master of soul rock.

Transformation of Charles to the gospel grooved songs, underwritten by rock idiom, are traced in his recordings between 1956-1959. During this period the Rayletts, the moan, the shriek, stirring gospel blues are all infused into a Charles' performance.

His jazz heritage is best reflected in the mellow piano work of "Just for a Thrill."

Growth of Charles.

PORTRAIT OF JIMMY DEAN

Zooming to new heights with ever increasing exposure in various mediums is this genial Texan, long on yarn and tender ballad.

Dean is our avorite raconteur, a folksy spinner of country logic in the manner of Will Rogers, but is also a dramatic singer with an instinctive feeling for the beat.

Dean's story-in-song "P.T. 109, Steel Men, Darktown Poker Club" smacks of Phil Harris' influence but Dean can field a ballad with the nonchalance of an experienced pro.

There is a full size photo included in the album packaging, but forget it and enjoy the performance of a refreshing versatile entertainer.

Variegated portrait.

PORTRAIT IN MUSIC (George Maharis)

A set of lush ballads is the stage of George Maharis second offering to the teen crowd.

Backed by the soothing string arrangements of Glenn Osser and Robert Mersey, the "Route 66" hardrock has a lyrical way with a melody and carries off the set with a skilful tender approach but generates little excitement for the general listener.

For the devout follower, included is a portrait of the New York-born singer turned actor turned singer.

Need anymore be said.

CALL OF THE WILD (Frankie Laine)

In 1949 Frankie Laine stamped himself as a purveyor of stirring wanderlust with a dramatic recording, "Call of The Wild Goose." Since then he has invaded other areas with varying success but the call of the wild has always lurked in the background.

A singer whose style pulses with vitality, his material reflects the fields of adventure, wander, the open road, the exotic; more troubador than soldier of fortune. The performances are polished but the material chosen is less appealing.

Heeding the call.

MORE LESLIE UGGAMS ON TV (with Mitch Miller and the Sing Along Gang).

The little girl with the big voice is given handsome support by the Mitch Miller sing along crew on a dozen familiar strains, a test for any trouper.

Possessed with a powerful voice, the 19-year-old New Yorker's vibrato style soon irks more than it entertains particularly on "Moonlight In Vermont" and "Stormy Weather." Her voice is best portrayed on the spiritual "Deep River."

REFLECTS CUBAN CRISIS — The industrial index on the Toronto Stock Exchange dipped sharply to 518.52 at the close Oct. 23 as the United States blockade of Cuba made its impact on stock markets around the world. The index recovered to 536.13 and the end of the month as tension eased. The base metal index on the same day hit 169.05, lowest since February, 1961. Artists Visit Venice Show

VENICE (CP)—Every second year since 1895—except in wartime—famous artists from all parts of the world have come to Venice to see their works on display.

The occasion is the International Biennial of Art, held in the Venetian Public Gardens midway between St. Mark.s Square and the LVIDO.

The Canadian pavilion at the 1962 Biennial has been devoted entirely to a retrospective exhibition of the work of Jean-Paul Riopelle.

Riopelle, a 39-year-old native of Quebec City, has been painting in Paris since 1947 and has earned a wide reputation for his unusual work.

The exhibition ranged from oil paintings completed in 1948 through gouaches to sculpture, a branch of art Riopelle took up last year.

The large number of visitors attracted to the exhibit is reflected in the more than 6,000 programs distributed by attendants.

MOSCOW (AP)—Only 40 to 45 of every 100 shoppers in the Soviet Union can buy clothing satisfactory in fit and style, said an official. V. M. Sokolov, chief state planning specialist in the sewing industry, said that measures for improvement will be taken next year.

Raise in Canada's Foreign Exchange May Oust Austerity

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — An encouraging rise in Canada's foreign exchange reserves during October has pushed the government closer to a decision on when to dismantle the austerity measures — import surcharges in particular—thrown up in the June financial emergency.

An increase of $169,300,000 in the reserves in October, despite a net outflow of $20,000,000 from special transactions, was reported Friday by Finance Minister Nowlan.

This brought the reserves to $2,613,900,000 at month - end. Even discounting $475,000,000 still owing from the short-term borrowing done in the June emergency, the reserves were higher than the previous peak of $2,110,600,000 a year ago.

This is in contrast to the low point of some $1,100,000,000 June 24 when the government announced its emergency program to stop and reverse a hemorrhage from the exchange reserves fund.

FEELS 'PRESSURE'

Already the government has felt pressure from the United States government to set a firm cut-off date for ending the import surcharges levied on some $3,000,000,000 of import trade. The government, which lifted surcharges on about one-twelfth of the total in mid-October, hasn't gone beyond the promise that they'll all be ended as soon as possible.

This issue is expected to arise in Geneva at the current meeting of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade in deciding whether to grant Canada a waiver from GATT rules on its surcharges.

It's known that the government hopes to maintain some freedom in timing the surcharge removal in the light of circumstances as they develop.

Officials indicate that the reserves face some heavy pressures in the months ahead, including year-end payments of interest and dividends to foreign investors and the seasonal drop in export earnings resulting from the closing of navigation on the Great Lakes.

MUST MAINTAIN

One problem is that of maintaining the exchange rate on the Canadian dollar within one per cent above or below the pegged rate of 92.5 U.S. cents. For the last month the dollar has been nudging the 93-cent level. But if it should fall, the government would have to sell U.S. dollars from the exchange fund to prevent it dropping too far.

Some weeks ago Prime Minister Diefenbaker said that because of this factor and the growing volume of trade and investment, the exchange reserves must be increased to a level higher than in the last decade.

This level has been around $1,900,000,000 and informants say the government's thinking is that a workable level should be around $2,250,000,000.

American Election Forecasters See Democrats Staying

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — U.S. election forecasters, viewing prospects in Tuesday's congressional elections, suggest Democrats likely will retain control of Congress with few shifts in strength but may take a beating from Republicans in key battles for state governorships.

The big puzzler is the impact President Kennedy's tough handling of the Cuban crisis will have on the electorate. Views are mixed. A widespread opinion is that it will help those already in power and those who voice strong anti-Communist sentiment.

At stake in this "off-year" vote are 39 of the 100 Senate seats, all 435 seats in the House of Representatives, 35 of the 50 state governorships and a long list of state legislative and other posts.

The president's own four-year term is only half finished, but a sharp drop in Democratic Party strength and popularity could cripple his influence in Congress and hurt his chances for a second term in 1964.

USUALLY CUT STRENGTH

Traditionally, the off-year elections cut into the congressional strength of the party in power. The average loss in the House of Representatives has been about 40 seats.

This year Democratic leaders say they doubt if they will lose more than 10 seats. Republican leaders say they expect to gain 25 to 30 seats. They need 44 to gain control.

In the last Congress, the standings were: House—Democrats 261, Republicans 174, vacant two, total 437; Senate—Democrats 64, Republicans 36, total 100. Because of redistribution, the total in the new House will be reduced to 435 from 437.

The magazine U.S. News and World Report forecasts that in the new Congress the Democrats will have between 64 and 69 Senate seats and between 253 and 268 House seats.

Democrats also control 34 of the 50 state governorships, with 21 Democratic states and 14 Republican states holding elections this year. U.S. News and World Report predicts the Republicans will come through with a net gain of from one to six states.

Kennedy's strong action on Cuba has sharply changed the election tide, taking from the Republicans a deep-cutting issue, the magazine says.

Newsweek magazine agrees that the Cuban issue can swing votes, adding:

"In congressional contests, it will help candidates — particularly incumbents — closely identified with Mr. Kennedy."

Some veteran Washington reporters and observers anticipate there won't be much change in the House and Senate but that Republicans will make gains in control of states.

Stock-Market Scores Consecutive Advance

By PETER DUNN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Inspired by an early-week upsurge, Canadian stock markets scored five consecutive advances last week.

Monday, with relaxation of international tensions surrounding Cuba, stock buyers emerged from their shells. Brisk action was maintained that day, boosting the Toronto industrial index —a cross-section compiled from 20 key stocks — almost seven points.

From there, on the market gained a point or more on index each day.

Daily trading totals, despite the market's strong advance, were unimpressive. Only twice did the figure exceed the 3,000,000-share mark.

Takeover rumors swept back into the western oils section, sparking turbulent activity in a handful of stocks.

UTILITIES STRONG

Utilities were strongest among industrials. Higher earnings for the first three-quarters of the year helped Bell Telephone and Shawinigan to gains of more than $1, while similar advances went to BC Power, Consumers' Gas, Gatineau Power and Union Gas. CPR, with the threat of strike action removed, rose $1.

Interprovincial Pipe Line led the refining oils and pipelines higher, jumping more than $4 after declaring its usual 75-cent dividend and a 10-cent extra.

Imperial Oil, Trans - Canada Pipeline and Supertest all showed gains ranging to almost $1.

BANKS ADVANCE

Banks continued their recent advance with Montreal, Nova Scotia, Toronto-Dominion, Royal and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce all gaining $1 or better. Higher earnings are expected for the banks this year.

Among the most spectacular performances of the week was that of Ford of Canada, which declared an extra dividend of $2.50. The stock jumped more than $10 with the news.

Senior base metals had a stronger week, paced by International Nickel's $3 gain. Falconbridge advanced more than $2.

Dollar value at Toronto was $34,357,466 compared with last week's $36,714,727. Total volume was 13,701,372 shares compared with 16,345,532.

On index at Toronto, industrials gained 12.98 to 539.23, base metals 4.49 to 175.67 and western oils 7.68 to 116.97. Golds dropped .52 to 88.41.

Volumes at Montreal: Industrials 601,171 shares compared with 1,021,260 last week; mines 1,687,133 compared with 1,937,138.

On index at Montreal, industrials gained 2.2, utilities 4.1, banks 3.0, composite 2.7 and papers 0.7.

Tax-Exempt U.S. Foundations May Have Caused Plunge

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP)—United States congressional investigators are studying figures in an effort to determine whether dealings by tax - exempt U.S. foundations helped trigger the stock market plunge earlier this year.

H. A. Olsher, director of the House of Representatives small business committee's foundation study, says information gathered so far tends to support a demand by chairman Wright Patman (Dem. Tex.) for a moratorium on granting further tax exemptions.

Olsher said Patman has requested details from more than 500 foundations on their stock market transactions from Dec. 1, 1961, through June 30, 1962.

Olsher, in a memo made available to reporters Saturday, said the purpose "is to assess the role of the tax-free foundations in the market tumble of 1962—in other words, to determine to what extent, if any, foundation professionals helped trigger the stock market plunge of 1962 and profited later by purchasing stocks at lower prices."

So far, he said, 38 foundations have responded.

This inquiry is part of a larger study the committee is making of foundations, which Patman contends are virtually unregulated and sometimes used "as a vehicle of trading in securities and dodging the capital gain tax."

The inquiry so far shows that the 38 foundations sold $146,135,000 worth of stocks during the seven-month period, with total capital gains of $73,442,000.

The largest single transaction was sale of 1,000,000 shares of Standard Oil of New Jersey common stock on Feb. 23, 1962, by the Rockefeller Foundation. The price was $52,250,000, and the foundation's capital gain was $47,013,093. It had held the stock since 1919.

The transaction was hitherto unpublicized, and a Rockefeller Foundation spokesman in New York explained the stock was sold by the foundation directly to Standard Oil Co. No brokers were employed and the transaction was not handled through a stock exchange, he said.

NOTES SALE DATE

The foundation spokesman noted that the sale took place more than three months before the big stock market break of May 28.

Of the proceeds, $15,400,000 was reinvested in corporate stocks, he said, and all but $1,400,000 of these were bought before the market plunge of May 28. The balance was invested in bonds or deposited in savings accounts, he said.

The committee's figures showed five Carnegie-controlled foundations sold $22,600,000 worth of stocks during the period, with a capital gain of $8,739,000.

Olsher drew no conclusions from the availble figures, but cited Patman's previous statement that tax-emempt foundations "should not be permitted to use public funds for speculation in the stock market. Their mistakes or misfortunes are too likely to have a disastrous effect on millions of our citizens."

New York Found Intnl. Influences Dominating

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP)—International influences dominated the business scene last week.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev's agreement to remove missiles from Cuba brought a spurt to the stock market, which had slumped last week when war possibilities were at their peak.

The convention of the National Foreign Trade Council in New York served as a sounding board for much of the talk about how the U.S. can improve its trade with other nations and correct the imbalance of international dollar payments.

Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges told the 2,000 international businessmen that industry and the government must co-operate closely if there is to be an improvement in foreign trade.

PROMISES SUPPORT

Replying, Chairman Leo D. Welch of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) promised industry support but said "we must have economic policies which create a climate for investment and growth."

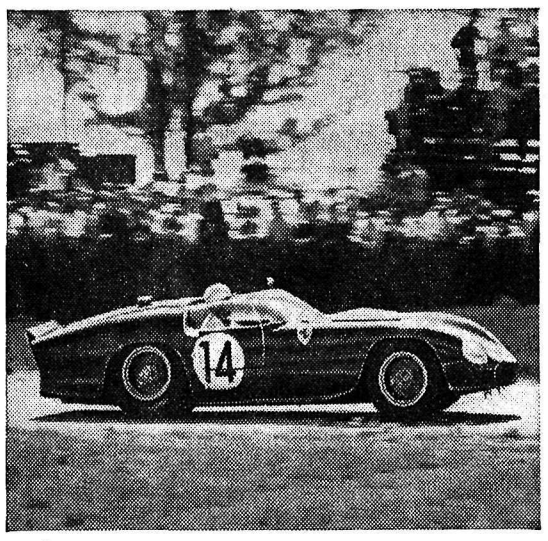
The federal reserve board reported that the U.S. balance-of-payments deficit turned down sharply in the July-September quarter. The payments deficit reached an annual rate of $2,600,000,000 against $872,000,000 in the preceding three months and $1,800,000,0 for the first nine months.

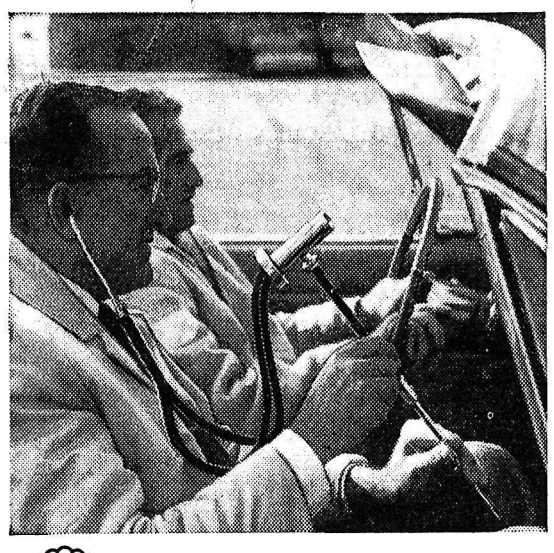
Speaking out for income tax reductions were Hodges, Walter Heller, chief economic adviser to President Kennedy, and Per Jacobsson, head of the International

U.S. Steel Corp. cut its quarterly dividend rate to 5 cents from 75 cents, becoming the fifth major steel company to slice its dividend.

Despite the poor showing of the steel industry, corporate profits generally appeared headed for a record.

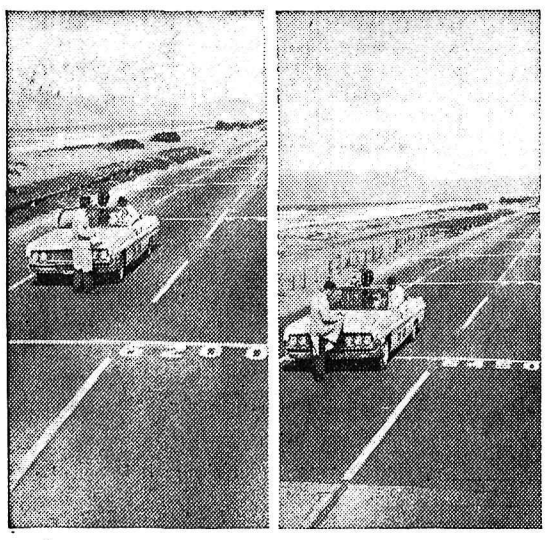
How Super Shell's 9 ingredients work

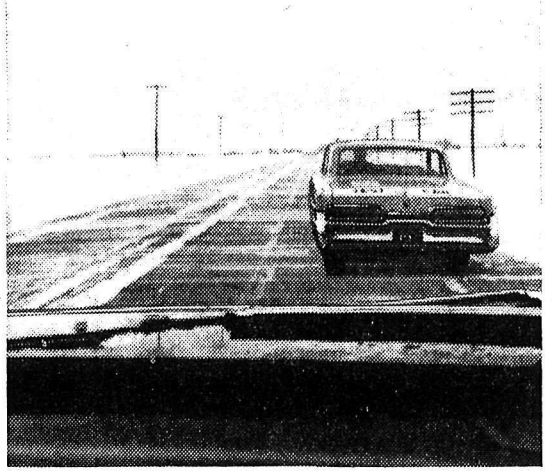




SHELL
World champion driver uses Super Shell. One reason: its power ingredients. World champion Phil Hill (above, in Ferrari) needs power. Super Shell's basic power ingredient is "cat-cracked" gasoline—made by cracking heavy petroleum molecules into lighter, livelier ones. Note: TCP* additive helps your car deliver top performance by neutralizing power-robbing engine deposits. And another Super Shell ingredient helps keep carburetors clean inside.

SHELL
Super Shell's anti-knock ingredients work for a quiet engine at all speeds. Shell scientists use a stethoscope (above) to double-check Super Shell's ability to fight knock and help engines run quietly. One of Super Shell's knock-fighting ingredients is so effective that a teaspoonful per gallon can boost anti-knock rating five points. Another ingredient in today's Super Shell is noted for controlling knock in hot engines at high speeds better than anything else yet available.





SHELL
Platformate, Super Shell's extra-mileage ingredient, is tested—delivers mileage bonus of 4.32 per cent. Here's how the tests were run. 250 cc (about half a pint) of fuel without Platformate was fed into test car. The car ran until fuel was gone (left). Test was repeated, using Super Shell with Platformate. Same amount of fuel. Identical conditions. Super Shell with Platformate took car 268 feet further (right). That's an extra 4.32 per cent—or over four extra miles in every hundred.

SHELL
Super Shell ingredients for quick starts and fast warm-ups tested in 35 below Prairie weather. Super Shell contains butane for quick starts. And mixed pentanes for fast warm-ups. Blends are checked for top performance—in extensive cold weather tests in Manitoba (above) and in Shell's new "40 below" lab. Note: In chilly, damp weather Super Shell also contains a carburetor defroster. This helps to prevent ice from sticking to vital carburetor parts—and causing your car to stall.
