Gen. Clay to Return to U.S. Amid West Disunity Rumors

West Germany Fearing U.S. May Recognize East Germany

(CP from Reuters-AP)

BERLIN — Gen. Lucius Clay arrived back in West Berlin Sunday to wind up his affairs and told West Berliners: "I am not running away."

Clay, due to return to the United States after seven months as President Kennedy's personal representative here, returned from consultations in Washington amid a new wrinkle in West German-American relations — the controversial leak of details of a U.S. working paper on Berlin.

In Bonn Sunday, a spokesman said the West German government plans to investigate the leak and would regret it if the inquiry showed details of the working paper had been disclosed through official "indiscretions."

But the spokesman denied a U.S. state department charge that Bonn government sources disclosed details of the working paper that will form the basis of further Soviet-American exploratory talks on Berlin starting in Washington today.

U.S. officials have accused West German authorities of a breach of confidence and said it raised the question of how far the U.S. government can trust its allies.

HINDER RUSK?

U.S. officials fear that the last-minute disclosure of Western disunity might seriously hamper U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk in his meetings with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin.

German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer was reported to have objected strenuously to the U.S. proposals for Berlin which in his view would move toward recognition of Communist East Germany.

The Associated Press quoted Washington informants as saying that Adenauer had made his objection known in unmistakeable terms and for consideration by President Kennedy. U.S. diplomats said he seemed to be annoyed and upset by indications he saw in the U.S. negotiating plan that the Kennedy administration is willing to move toward at least a limited, practical recognition of East Germany.

Four main proposals were set forth in the U.S. working paper submitted to Allied government.

Adenauer is said to have objected, among other things, to a provision for freezing the present demarcation lines which divide East Germany and Poland, and East and West Germany, on the ground that this would give new prestige and respect to Communist East Germany.

ADENAUER OBJECTS

Apparently Adenauer objected also to modification of a U.S. proposal for an international authority to operate the Berlin supply lines. Under this proposition as it now stands the East Germans apparently would have an important role to play, giving them a basis for claiming de facto recognition by the Western powers. Adenauer is opposed to any kind of recognition for the German Communist state.

The four U.S. proposals in brief are:

1. The NATO and Warsaw Pact military groups would issue non-aggression declarations coupled with guarantees against violations of present demarcation lines on the cold war frontiers. This would have the effect of freezing disputed German boundaries even without a German peace treaty.

2. The big nuclear powers sign a treaty to prohibit the spread of nuclear weapons so far as they can. This would assure the Soviets that the United States had no intention of turning over nuclear weapons to West Germany. But it would not rule out a nuclear capacity for NATO as an international defence organization.

3. The access routes from West Germany to West Berlin would be placed under direct operational control of an international authority essentially composed of the United States, Britain, France and Russia, but with roles for East and West Germans. The East Germans already control about 95 per cent of the traffic to West Berlin.

4. Creation of joint East-West German committees to work on such problems as eventual unification of Germany under free elections, promotion of East-West contacts, economic relations, and practical problems raised by the sealing off of East Berlin.

French Lawyers To Appeal For Johoud's Life

PARIS (AP) — Lawyers for former General Edmond Jouhaud said Saturday they will appeal to President de Gaulle to spare his life, even though Jouhaud himself refused to ask for mercy.

Condemned to death as a leader of the terrorist fight against Algerian independence, Jouhaud faces the guillotine or firing squad unless de Gaulle steps in.

Defence counsel Yves Perrussel said Jouhaud had informed his lawyers he did not wish to seek clemency from de Gaulle. But Perrussel said he and his colleagues felt an effort should be made on the Algerian leader's behalf.

The former French air force chief who turned anti-Gaullist to lead the European Secret Army in his native Algeria, was sentenced Friday night by a special high military court as defiant shouts of "Algerie Francaise" rang out in the packed chamber.

APPEAL IMPOSSIBLE

Barring a presidential act, there is no appeal from the verdict. Defence counsel Yves Perrussel indicated in his closing statement at the three-day trial that Jouhaud would not seek pity from de Gaulle.

Perrussel asked the court made up of three magistrates, three generals, an admiral and two civilians to turn down prosecution demands for the death said Jouhaud "would not accept another act of grace."

Perrussel said the guillotine would be the method of execution, since Jouhaud has been shorn of his military rank.

The court did not specify how sentence should be carried out. Presumably de Gaulle could order a firing squad in recognition of Jouhaud's past military service, if he decides against clemency.

Jouhaud was specifically charged with participating in the short-lived general's Algiers putsch of April, 1961, and then going underground as a leader of the Secret Army.

Tiros Supplies Weather Maps

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Weather Bureau began daily international broadcasts Sunday of cloud maps based on photos received from the Tiros IV weather satellites.

The radio facsimile transmissions are being beamed to more than 100 countries including the Soviet Union.

The bureau said the program will be conducted on an experimental basis for eight to 10 weeks, and will be continued if foreign weather services indicate they can make significant use of the maps.

Maps based on Tiros photos can be used to improve weather analyses and forecasts, to warn of previously undetected storms and to brief pilots on their weather conditions over transoceanic flight routes.

Philip, Charles Return Home

LONDON (Reuters) — Prince Philip and Prince Charles flew home Sunday from Frankfurt after a few days' holiday with relatives in Germany.

SAYS DOCTORS WILL LEAVE SASKATCHEWAN

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Arthur D. Kelly, general secretary of the Canadian Medical Association, said Saturday that many doctors, especially those originally from the United Kingdom, would leave Saskatchewan rather than tolerate the amendments to the provincial medical care plan.

The amendments, introduced by the government, will set up the province's medical care commission as agent for paying the doctor's bills.

"A bludgeon over the heads of the medical profession," said Dr. Kelly.

"A very high proportion of the doctors in Saskatchewan are from the United Kingdom and left there to escape the British medical scheme.

"They have no deep roots in the province yet," he said, "and will probably move out."

13-Day Span In Birth Of Triplets

FORT FRANCES, Ont. (CP) — Triplets are thriving in this Northwestern Ontario town after having been born 13 days apart in a medical rarity.

A boy and a girl were born by caesarian section to Mrs. Clarence Bujold Friday — 13 days after the first of the triplets, a boy, had been born at La Verendry Hospital here.

Mrs. Bujold entered the hospital a month before the first baby arrived, and remained in hospital under close surveillance during the 13-day period after the first child was born.

The first boy, born April 1, weighed four pounds, 14 ounces. The girl, born first on Friday, weighed six pounds, followed by her younger brother who weighed five pounds, 10 ounces.

Dr. W. G. Boyle, the attending physician said all three babies were "remarkably husky."

Dr. Boyle did not comment on the lengthy delay between the births, beyond saying that the first baby arrived naturally, "then complications developed and the caesarian operation was later performed."

Kennedy Victory Sparks Questions

By ROGER LANE

NEW YORK (AP) — The crushing of an American steel industry bid for higher prices was a smashing personal triumph for President Kennedy.

The collapse may also have written a new page in the annals of United States presidential power.

It raised new and sweeping questions about the exercise of that power in the future and the traditional American freedom of business.

Some business sources here were asking these questions:

Will aluminum companies, which cut prices in September, be able to raise them again without prior consent of the White House? What about industry - wide wage agreements? Will they be subject to White House scrutiny and pressure?

One Republican, Senator Roman L. Hruska of Nebraska, summed up some of this feeling.

DEPLORES ACTION

Referring to defence department action ordering contractors to buy only from steel firms which had not raised prices, he said he deplores "the type of thinking, that unless companies do what a political leader says they must, retributions will be visited upon them."

The instruments of power invoked by the president were many and varied. They were wielded with skill and lightning speed.

In general, they clustered around the concept of what Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg called "assertion of the national interest" in wage contract disputes.

Conservatives Meet in Secret

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker opened a two-day secret meeting of the Conservative party national campaign committee Sunday with an hour-long pep talk.

He told reporters after his speech, however, that it was a regular meeting of the committee and that he just "dropped in to see them."

The committee, which last met here in November, brought together 75 cabinet ministers, provincial party leaders, strategists, and key campaign organizers from all parts of Canada.

The meetings were closed and without advance notice.

Mr. Diefenbaker said there was "a wonderful spirit — very enthusiastic."

In reply to a question, the prime minister said no date for the forthcoming general election was mentioned.

Origin of Universe Studied

HALIFAX (CP) — British astronomer Sir Bernard Lovell said here Saturday science is on the verge of deciding which of two conflicting theories about the origin of the universe is correct.

Instruments should be able to tell "within a few years" whether an explosion 10,000,000,000 years ago formed the universe from a small mass of cosmic material or whether the universe has always been the same in form.

Dr. Lovell, director of the Jodrell Bank radio telescope, said so far the telescope is unable to prove either theory.

Since 1957 the equipment has recorded and analyzed strong signals from 300 sources, about six per cent of them from beyond the limit of optical telescopes, he said.

If the total readings can be increased to 1,000 it may be clear whether the perimeter of the universe is receding, according to evolutionary thinking, or expanding, which would support the steady-state theory.

The results will be of great importance for theology and philosophy as well as science, he said. For centuries man has sought the origin and age of the universe.

Kennedy Rating Climbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's stock was higher than ever with Democrats in Congress today and the boom could produce the votes he needs for key bills now stuck in committees.

Most Democrats had a healthy respect for the president's political prowess. Now, after he vetoed the steel price rise and made it stick, respect has turned into admiration.

Even the Republicans have been impressed although privately they have been unhappy with the steel companies for having set the stage for his "Jack, the giant killer" role.

Translating rspect and admiration into votes in Congress is not always an easy thing to do and it is probably too early to tell whether Kennedy can do it this time. But those responsible for getting his program enacted are elated at the swift and dramatic outcome of the struggle over steel prices.

At least two of Kennedy's major bills, the farm bill and health care for the aged, are in trouble in House of Representatives committees because the Democrats are split. A switch of only one or two Democrats on those committees would bring the bills out in the form Kennedy wants.

LOCK SPLIT DELAYS OPENING OF SEAWAY

MASSENA, N.Y. (AP) — The opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway will be delayed at least two weeks by an 80-foot-long split in the Eisenhower lock, Seaway administrator Joseph McCann said Saturday.

McCann said the opening, originally scheduled for Sunday, would be set for April 29, barring unforeseen difficulties.

Meanwhile, workmen mapped plans to repair the three-to-six inch wide crack in a sill under the east gate. It was discovered Thursday after the gate vibrated during operation.

Approximately 100 ships, carrying about $15,000,0000 in cargo, had been expected to navigate the seaway in the first two weeks. Many of these vessels, stalled at Montreal by a strike of river pilots, were expected to head upstream toward the lock now that the strike is over. The walkout ended Friday night.

Many De Gaullists in Cabinet 3-Year Debre Gov't at End

By HAROLD KING

PARIS (Reuters) — Premier Georges Pompidou formed a cabinet Sunday heavily weighted with longtime supporters and associates of President Charles de Gaulle.

Pompidou, named premier by de Gaulle Saturday after the resignation of Michael Debre, presented the names of his cabinet ministers to the president at noon.

The Pompidou government, second to take office during the Fifth French Republic that began with de Gaulle's election as president in 1959, will be officially installed today.

The government shift, predicted ever since de Gaulle received massive approval of his Algerian policy from the French public a week ago, went according to schedule.

Debre handed in the official resignation of his government at an extraordinary meeting of the council of ministers at Elysee Palace Saturday morning.

LONGEST GOVERNMENT

The Debre government had been in office for three years and 97 days—the longest life of any French government since the 18th century.

Pompidou, a 50 - year - old banker who has never stood for any elective office but is one of de Gaulle's closest confidantes, retained most of the key ministers from the Debre government in his cabinet.

Among those who retained their posts were Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville, Interior Minister Roger Frey, Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing, Armed Forces Minister Pierre Messmer and Louis Joxe, minister for Algerian affairs.

The new ministers include Pierre Pflimlin, leader of the Roman Catholic Mouvement Republican Populaire (MRP) and briefly premier before de Gaulle took over the government in June, 1958. Pflimlin was made minister of state for co-operation.

Observers felt the presence of five MRP party ministers in the new cabinet, compared with three in the last, indicated a small "move to the left" in the context of the sometimes confusing French political spectrum.

But the outstanding feature of the new cabinet is the fact that more than half its members are closely identified with the Gaullist cause.

GAULLIST MEMBERS

Eleven of the members are drawn from the Gaullist union for a new Republic party.

Of the others, Gilbert Grandval, secretary of state for external trade, is a member of the small leftist Gaullist party, the Democratic Labor Union, and Gaston Palewski, new minister of state for scientific, atomic and space research, is one of de Gaulle's oldest and most loyal supporters.

Maurice Schumann, new minister - delegate to the premier's office for national development, made his nam during the Second World War as the radio voice of de Gaulle's Free French government in London.

De Murville, Joxe and author Andre Malraux, who retains his post as minister of cultural affairs, also were wartime associates and friends of de Gaulle.

The new cabinet has two more professional politicians and parliamentarians than the old. Under the French constitution they must resign their seats when they take cabinet posts.

Pope John Gives Out Palms

By FRANK BRUTTO

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John distributed blessed palms Sunday, recalling the occasion nearly 2,000 years ago when Jerusalem's people scattered palm fronds before Jesus as he entered their city.

The Palm Sunday ceremony here and elsewhere in the world marked the opening of Holy Week — a period commemorating Christ's suffering and death on the cross and concluding on Easter Sunday with Christianity's great celebration of Christ's resurrection.

After blessing the palms, the Pope distributed them to cardinals and other high prelates of the church. Nineteen cardinals were present and about 15,000 Romans, pilgrims and tourists witnessed the ceremony.

Four Seamen Ignore Order

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four British seamen who refused to sail with their ship Saturday to Communist China were taken into custody Saturday night for deportation to England.

The four, whose names have not been released, went to the Vancouver immigration department offices and were placed under detention pending proceedings under the Canada Shipping Act for their return to Britain.

Immigraion officials said that charges would be laid an da hearing held today. The shipping company likely will be ordered to pay the cost of their transportation.

The four men remained ashore as the 7000-ton freighter North Devon pulled out early Saturday with a cargo of grain for Communist China, defying the order of a Vancouver magistrate who told them they must return to the ship.

Nine men originally walked off the ship Thursday, saying they had not been told the ship was going to Communist China until after it left England. They said they were submitted to long searches and intolerable restrictions on a previous voyage there.

Stainless Steel Plane Tries Out

BRISTOL, England (AP) —The Bristol 188, Britain's first all stainless steel experimental aircraft, made a 22-minute maiden flight Saturday.

The needle-nosed aircraft is designed to test the heat barrier found at 2,000 miles an hour. It has a refrigerated cockpit to protect pilot and instruments.

Average speed on the test flight was only 380 m.p.h., but it will be the world's fastest conventional plane and is expected to capture the world air speed record for Britain.

Brazil To Present Compromise Plan

By MOHSIN ALI

GENEVA (Reuters)—An eight nation neutral bloc is expected to suggest today a new compromise plan to break the protracted East-West nuclear test-ban deadlock at the 17-country disarmament conference, an authoritative source said Sunday.

Brazil is scheduled to submit new proposals at today's plenary session on behalf of herself, Burma, India, Sweden, Ethiopia, the United Arab Republic, Nigeria and Mexico.

The source declined to give details of the proposals but they are understood to include suggestions recently offered by India, Burma and Sweden.

The neutral proposals were to have been submitted last Friday but were held up pending instructions and an "all clear" from the governments involved.

The United States already has given a cold shoulder to previous compromise suggestions informally offered by neutrals.

U.S. delegate Arthur Dean said last Friday that his government "entertains serious and valid doubts about the efficacy" of any compromise "hit-or-miss arrangements which fall short" of a regularly-spaced global network of internationally-operated control posts.

TWO ALTERNATIVES

The neutralist plans hitherto have been based on two alternatives:

1. Reliance on national stations in various countries which would transmit regular observations to a central control point.

(The U.S. delegation, however thinks that no objective international organization could be set up to enforce standardized observations.)

2. Establishment of international stations only in certain countries which do not object to such stations.

(The U.S. won't accept this plan presumably because it would mean that no control station could be placed in Communist - bloc countries due to their fear of foreigners and alleged espionage.)

No Poetic Licence

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Domenico Buono, 33, a persistent poet seeking first-hand inspiration from Brigitte Bardot, finally made it into her chamber. Alas, bard Buono spent the night in jail.

The Italian, twice thwarted in efforts to reach the French actress, pussy-footed into BB's bedroom Friday night to get, he said, inspiration for his ode The Beautiful Dreamer Asleep in the Woods.

The beautiful Bardot awoke in her bed. Instead of waiting for a reading, she sat up in her nightgown and screamed.

From adjoining bedrooms rushed her former husband Roger Vadim, directing her in a movie being filmed at the hotel, and her co-star Sammy Frey. They held Buono until police led him away to a Florence prison on Miss Bardot's complaint of unlawful entry.

Friday night, police said, Buono scaled a garden wall around the hillside hotel, entered the building through a service entrance and went to her second-floor suite.

Entry was easy, police said, since BB has a habit of never ner door.

B.C., Ottawa Altering Columbia Views

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia and federal government representatives agreed during the weekend that each was changing its mind on the power matters.

Jutice Minister Fulton said the B.C. government has made new Columbia River proposals that seem to represent a "significant modification" of the government's previous position.

Attorney - General Bonner of B.C. said he thinks the federal government may be changing its position on the export of power.

In a speech at Vernon and in a statement issued at Kamloops and Vancouver Mr. Fulton said the provincial government has made interesting proposals that are being checked carefully to see if they might form a good starting point for an acceptable solution to the Columbia problem.

"We will grasp any compromise if it's reasonable and honorable," he said.

He said the B.C. government had held up ratification of the international Columbia treaty for 18 months by its insistence that downstream benefits from the treaty must be received in cash rather than power.

The provincial government wants to sell the downstream benefit power accruing in the United States through storage of water in Canada in the U.S. on a long-term basis. The federal government wants the benefits to be returned to Canada.

Mr. Bonner, in Vancouver to attend a constituency association meeting, said he is hoping for early ratification of the Columbia treaty by Canada.

"We are ready to let contracts for the Columbia at about 30 days' notice, our engineering is that far advanced."

He said he thinks the federal government's position on power will be brought into line with natural gas and oil policies which permit export of large quantities.

End Special Treatment; Dispersal Of Freedomites, AKM Demands

FERNIE — Ending of the "special treatment" policy towards Sons of Freedom prisoners and dispersal of the sect across Canada were called for at the annual meeting of the Association of Kootenay Municipalities here Saturday.

A Nelson resolution opposing the establishment of a special prison for members of the troublesome sect and dispersal of the sect, prompted cries of cease to special catering of prisoners, by members of the Nelson city council.

Some 80 persons in attendance, representing 18 municipalities, heard that the resolution will be forwarded to Justice Minister Davie E. Fulton for action.

Arguing against a segregated prison, the resolution stated, "This form of punishment has been most unsuccessful in the past and has only intensified anti-social proclivities."

Mayor T. S. Shorthouse claimed the federal government has the opportunity to disperse the Freedomites by sending paroled members to different parts of the country and sending their families to join them.

This, he said, would be "the Christian thing to do."

Nelson aldermen J. S. M. Harts and Albert Maida condemned the catering of specially prepared food for prisoners.

Ald. Harts said Sons taste in food should not represent any real problem to the federal government.

"If they don't get the food they are used to," said Ald. Harts, "they shouldn't commit the crimes in the first place."

This sparked cries of "hear, hear", from the floor.

MEAT EATERS

Ald. Maida maintained Freedomites could eat meat anytime it suited them. He said his experience in the logging business had been that Freedomite employees would eat steaks as long as they were well-paid.

But he said, "As soon as there is a forest fire they refuse to eat meat because they get paid only 75 cents an hour."

Mayor Joseph Palyga of Trail, AKM past president, agreed with Nelson delegates that Freedomite religious proscription regarding meat should not cause Ottawa to segregate them from other prisoners.

GRAND FORKS: That the provincial government Winter works financing be spread over several years like federal government aid for recreational projects, instead of on a yearly basis.

KIMBERLEY: that amusement tax be removed from recreational programs.

MARYSVILLE: that the provincial government amend the Municipal Act to allow for increased borrowing for construction of recreational facilities.

Resolutions that were defeated included the following:

ROSSLAND: permission be granted to bypass the Union of British Columbia Municipalities in case of an emergency to deal directly with the provincial government. This would eliminate the waiting period until the annual UBCM meeting.

The resolution also protested the amounts of provincial grants allotted to municipalities.

In moving the resolution, Mayor H. S. Elmes of Rossland remarked that the grants have not kept stride with the rising costs of municipalities.

Mayor Shorthouse, UBCM president, spoke in rebuttal to a remark that many resolutions in the past have been presented to UBCM in vain, saying that every municipality has a voice in UBCM.

GRAND FORKS: That the federal and provincial governments consider continuation of the aid via civic projects to welfare recipients beyond the period of winter works program. This delegates believed would be defeating the purpose of the WWP.

DETERGENT TAX

Castlegar delegates withdrew a resolution calling for tax on detergents to aid in water pollution control. The tax would be used to finance research of methods to control detergents in municipal sewage system.

The resolution had been approved at the December meeting of the AKM in Rossland last December.

The 1961 executive was returned en masse by acclamation. It consists of president George Cady of Warfield, vice president Ald. Jack Glennie of Kimberley, secretary John Murray, of Warfield. Executive members are Mayor Elmes, Ald. Harts and Ald. Sam McLeary of Cranbrook.

Guest speaker at a noon luncheon was J. E. Brown, deputy minister of municipalities. He addressed the civic representatives on the recent changes in the Municipal Act.

Among these were the Canadian Centennial act, government assistance for communities wishing to observe Canada's 100th birthday, and an amendment which allows the municipality to borrow up to $100,000 for goods and services without the consent of the electors.

C. E. (TOM) CHARLTON

Former Trail Resident Receives Scout Promotion

A former Trail resident has been appointed assistant provincial commissioner for training for the British Columbia-Yukon Provincial Council of the Boy Scouts of Canada.

C. E. (Tom) Charlton, now of Vancouver succeeds Vic Wiebe of North Burnaby who has held the post since 1959.

Mr. Charlton's job is to direct and co-ordinate the adult leader and junior leader training within the Scout Movement in B.C.-Yukon.

He started in the Scout Movement as Chairman of the 1st Warfield Group Committee in the Trail-Rossland District in 1949. In the spring of 1953, he was named Assistant District Commissioner and in November of that year became District Commissioner.

In 1960, he was elected Secretary of the Kootenay-Boundary Regional Council and has been Regional Representative on the Provincial Executive Committee.

As a sales engineer for Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co., Mr. Charlton was transferred to Vancouver in 1961. Since then, he has been Chairman of the Provincial Programme Committee and a member of the Camping, Organization and Health and Safety Committees.

Kootenay River Players Capture WK Drama Cup

Kootenay River players from the South Slocan picked up three major awards including the prized Col. A. N. Taylor Cup, at the conclusion of the three day West Kootenay One Act Drama Festival in Grand Forks Saturday night.

The group's presentation of "The Mask," directed by Mae MacFarlane, was awarded the Taylor Trophy as the best play. It's two chief protagonists, portrayed by Barbara Dahlquist and Kennedy Sacchina, were presented with certificates of merit for their interpretations by Miss Gay Scrivener of Vancouver, adjudicator.

Other certificates of merit were presented to ten-year-old Judy John in "The Glorified Brat," staged by Fruitvale Community Players and to Joe Irving for "El Campesino," produced by the Kinnaird Little Theatre.

"El Campesino" was also presented a certificate for the best visual production.

The Kootenay River Players will now represent this region in the provincial festival to be held in Dawson Creek May 30 - June 2. A meeting of the group will be held shortly to visualize ways and means of raising funds to make the long trip to the northern centre.

For the Taylor trophy, Players' strongest threats came from "Dark Brown" also presented by the Kinnaird Little Theatre and Trail Little Theatre's "The Cloak." All three were selected as honor plays and gave repeat performances Saturday night.

The adjuidcator could not find any major flaws in KRP performance and particularly commended them for their elocution, having criticized the diction in most of the other plays.

Barbara Dahlquist portrayed the unfaithful wife in "The Mask" to the physically scarred husband, Mr. Sacchina in the eternal triangle plot. Mr. Sacchina's role was twice as demanding as other performers, having to play both the "wronged" husband and surreptitious beau, as both men are almost physically identical.

Miss John's portayal highlighted a play marked by monotonous tonal qualities, but which was carried off by good acting, sets and lighting.

"El Campesino" Miss Scrivener remarked, suffered mainly from lack of energy in movement and speech, but casting, lighting, set and costume were all good.

Chief criticism of "The Cloak" was it was too "earthy" in movement for a play dealing with spiritual apparition.

A Grand Forks entry "The Clod" lagged in tempo but had good setting and lighting.

Vegetable and Fruit Figures

Fruits and vegetables stored in Kootenay, Grand Forks-Midway, as of April 1, 1962, according to Canada Department of Agriculture, are as follows:

Apples: Kootenay, 634 boxes; pears, Kootenay, 14 boxes; potatoes (cwt.) Kootenay 11,352; Grand Forks-Midway, 27,900. Onions (50-pound bushels): Kootenay 489. Carrots (50-pound bushels): Kootenay 214. Cabbage (35-pound bushels), Kootenay, 181. Celery (crates), Kootenay 181.

Rotarians Make Up Meetings at Foreign Points

Nelson Rotarians are making up meetings in many parts of the world, including England, Hawaii and Palm Springs, Calif., president C. M. Robinson remarked at the Rotary Club meeting Friday.

George Hoover recently returned from a trip in which he made up meetings in Japan, Hong Kong, Australia and other countries. At Waikiki he met another Nelson Rotarian, E. J. Leveque.

Let anger out and let it work, was the theme of a film shown to the club.

In introducing the film, Rev. Robert Vaughan said that anger is a natural and normal emotion but should be used constructively. If something made a person angry, said Mr. Vaughan, it is a good opportunity to do something about it. He said many movements or organizations are formed that way.

Mr. Vaughan was representing the Canadian Mental Health Association. He said Mental Health Week is usually the first week in May.

RANCH SOLD

PENTICTON (CP)—The 437-acre ranch near Keremeos operated by the late Francis X. Richter, father of B.C. Agriculture Minister Richter, has been sold for more than $125,000 to Mr. and Mrs. A. RCMP Tells Kiwanis of Criminal Detection Work

Scientific methods used in criminal detection work were described to the Kiwanis Club Thursday night.

Cpl. George Sproule, who has worked in the identification section of the RCMP for nine years, demonstrated fingerprinting and showed how photography and map drawings aid the Mounties "to get their man."

He showed a greatly enlarged picture in which three men were trying to obtain funds from a cigaret machine in a tavern which had been broken into continuously. By rigging up a camera and flash equipment, an excellent picture was obtained and eventually the trio wound up in prison.

A fluorescent powder which adheres to clothing was also part of the trap and he showed how powder is easily traced by an ultraviolet lamp. Another substance which turns fingers green is often placed on cash boxes or other spots vulnerable to criminally - minded individuals.

Cpl. Sproule also showed through Corporal Sproule also showed through picture sequences how criminals can change their appearances, and how the facial characteristics of almost any person can be made up.

Fingerprints, palm and footprints form the only positive means of identification, he explained. Though no two fingerprints are the same, there are only 10 different patterns, he explained. Fingerprints never do change, from birth to death, even if the outer skin is peeled off, he explained.

Photography is used much more widely now, he said, and has generally replaced the old system of making casts of footprints, etc.

Cpl. Sproule also showed the type of bombs and fire bombs that have been used in terrorism in the Kootenay-Boundary.

Other guests at the meeting in the Hume Hotel were Alex Harvey of Montreal and Robert Swinton of Vancouver, recently transferred to Nelson.

CBC Auto Crew Hit Deadline Via CKLN Circuits

With a deadline slipping away from them when they missed their ferry at Kootenay Bay Friday, a Canadian Broadcasting Corporation team just managed to meet it by using CKLN facilities to do a Canadian Auto Rally broadcast.

The trio reached CKLN in an exhausted state. They had been averaging three hours' sleep a night keeping ahead of the Rally contestants.

When they missed their ferry Friday, they completed their final recording on board and on the way from Balfour played back and edited their tapes on the trip.

The trio burst into the Nelson radio station at 2:50 and A. R. Ramsden, manager, turned over the CKLN control facilities to them.

They "hit the deadline right on the nose" over an "excellent wire feed" to Toronto, then were informed that the recorder at Toronto had not been turned on. Despite this the procedure was wrapped in time for a 3:15 network broadcast.

The trio—producer, announcer and engineer, said they appreciated the help they had received from the time they reached the ferry landing and the "cordial reception" from Balfour right in to Nelson bridge.

They received copies of the latest Associated Chambers of Commerce brochure and the 1962 Daily News Pictorial Edition.

Fulton's Letter Supporting New Prison Read to Chamber

CASTLEGAR — Overcrowding of present penal institutions was the reason given by Davie Fulton, minister of justice, to the Castlegar Chamber of Commerce in defence of his plans to keep Doukhobor prisoners segregated in the proposed new prison farm. Mr. Fulton's letter to the Chamber, read at Wednesday's meeting, also contained a suggestion that individual sentences had been ample.

The Castlegar Chamber of Commerce recently endorsed a protest to senior government officials on certain methods of dealing with convicted Doukhobors. "We passed a resolution last month in which we said that sentences for offences currently being tried, should be increased. Present sentencing is ineffective to these people," said Elmer Kraft. He later recommended that there should be "no parole"; that life imprisonment should be given in some cases," and that lashing should be employed.

In disagreement of these measures, R.A.D. West said that lashes would increase the apparent attraction that the Freedomite radicals have been persecuted, and that this measure would satisfy the "martyr complex". He suggested caution on any recommendation of this type.

W. T. Waldie, member of Kootenay and Boundary Citizens Committee on Doukhobor affairs, said that "they don't want to go to jail" and that it was his opinion that both governments should be commended on the imprisonment of the Fraternal Council. He thought the children of these families should be placed in foster homes. Mr. Waldie heads the Chamber's own committee on study of the Doukhobor problem involving recent criminal acts. N. T. Oglow and H. Kemperman are committee members.

DECIDE ON LANDS

That the government should finalize decision on the Doukhobor lands in order to find out who wants to settle there, was the feeling of Mike Chernenkoff as part of the solution in rehabilitation of the sect, since the lands have been part of the issue since foreclosure and re-sale of the lands was negotiated. He also suggested along with the settling process, a housing plan in connection with these sales.

A decision on further communication with senior governments regarding the Doukhobor problem was declared not urgent at this time. However, E. M. McGauley recommended that in the final placement of prisoners, the group could suggest a desegregation policy with the Sons' dispersal in institutions throughout the country, including the new prison.

Delegates Chosen For Annual Chamber Meet

CRANBROOK— The Cranbrook Chamber of Commerce has named as its delegates to the annual general meeting of the Associated Chambers of Southeastern British Columbia at Trail April 27 and 28 M. G. Klinkhamer and A. W. Hunter, along with either its president, Gordon Lyons, or vice-president, Lloyd Hoole.

Important resolutions to be dealt with at this meeting concern a policy stand on export of electric energy, and on concerted efforts toward filling in uncompleted gaps of the southern transprovincial highway through East and West Kootenay and boundary districts.

The president and vice-president will be the Chamber's delegates to the annual B.C. Chambers of Commerce meeting in Victoria May 28 and 29, and again to the Canadian Chamber of Commerce meeting at Vancouver Sept. 17, 18 and 19.

The April general dinner meeting also approved appointment of Mr. Lyons, Mayor George Haddad, Gordon Dezall, Douglas Smith and J. S. Johnston to the local committee for developing Lake Elizabeth as a Class C park.

Arthur Dance is head of the membership drive committee.

Grants Up, Mill Rates Down in School Districts

VICTORIA (CP) — B. C. Government grants are up and mill rates down in most of the provincial school districts this year, Education Minister Peterson announced Friday.

The basic provincial mill rate for operating expenses is set at 15.15—a reduction of .40 mills from 1961.

Mr. Peterson announced details of the grants for operating expenses and mill rates at a press conference.

Mr. Peterson said 55 of the 82 school districts are getting bigger grants than last year. None is getting less.

"Fifty-nine of the districts had cut their efforts in holding the cost level for 1961 and 1962 to nominal increases, and they merit the appreciation of both the provincial government and the local taxpayers," he said.

Mr. Peterson said mill rates are up in 23 districts this year.

Sub-Regular Gasoline Not for Canada Yet

By GREG MacDONALD

TORONTO (CP) — Chances that an economy or sub-regular grade gasolines already introduced in Canada in the near future are dim, say Canadian oil refiners.

However, a close watch is being kept on how economy gasoline will be introduced in the southwestern part of the United States will do.

Gulf Oil Corporation introduced the low-grade auto fuel last November and Hume Oil Refining has started market tests of a middle grade that falls between regular and premium grades in quality and price. Phillips Petroleum Company has also been testing a sub-regular grade.

Most Canadian companies generally feel the market here is not big enough to warrant a third grade and only one major company is selling more grades other than regular and premium.

Sun Oil Co. Ltd., with their blending process, gives the consumer the choice of five grades in the regular to premium range.

'NOT FEASABLE'

W. S. Whiteford, manager of sales planning of British American Oil Co. Ltd., says the Canadian automobile population is not large enough to support a third grade of gasoline.

"Another factor," he says, "against the introduction of a third or economy grade would be the high cost of installing a third pump at service stations."

A spokesman for Imperial Oil Ltd. said there is no possibility of his company bringing out a third grade gasoline as the company doubts a market exists for it.

G. B. Longhurst, vice-president in charge of marketing, Canadian Petrofina Ltd. said his company "has no plans at all to introduce a third, or 'fighting brand' gasoline in Canada.

"We are watching the American situation closely and are being kept carefully abreast through our American associate, American Petrofina Inc. The economy gas sells at about two cents less than standard grade —which would be about 37 cents or so a gallon in Canada.

New Drug Holds Hope for Treatment of Cancer

By FRANK CAREY

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Housewife - like attention by scientists to laboratory "leftovers" has yielded a new and promising drug in the cancer-fighting field, it was reported Saturday.

The development concerns a new drug produced from the periwinkle plant, a widely-used decorative flowering shrub.

The drug—called both "vincristine" and "leurocristine"—has shown promising activity against a variety of malignancies.

And it appears to have some unique characteristics when compared with older anti-cancer chemicals, said reports made to the annual meeting of the American Association for Cancer Research.

But it might never have been turned up if scientists had not paid attention to "leftovers" in the laboratory, indicated one of 11 reports by four different groups of researchers who described tests of the new drug.

YIELDS DRUG

Several years ago, the periwinkle plant yielded a drug which has been found useful in the treatment of Hodgkin's disease—a cancer-like condition.

But, researchers of the Eli Lilly Company of Indianapolis, who developed the original drug, kept studying the "waste" material from the periwinkle.

They found that the leftovers had the power to prolong indefinitely the lives of mice implanted with an experimental leukemia. And, out of this crude material which protect the mice, Lilly researchers eventually extracted various key chemicals, including vincristine.

In the reports, the drug was described as having shown some effect in temporarily slowing or halting various kinds of malignancies in both children and adults.

Preliminary evidence indicates that the drug may have unique powers of attacking malignant cells, while sparing normal cells.

Tourist Booth, Highway Signs Topics at Chamber

CRANBROOK — Various aspects of tourism in East Kootenay were main concern of the Chamber of Commerce April general meeting this week.

The Junior Chamber is on the edge of fulfilling its undertaking of designing, financing and constructing a tourist information booth. Cranbrook Chamber, responsible for locating and staffing it, decided on a highway site a half-mile from present northern city limits in area adjoining southward the B.C. Forest Service offices.

Dr. F. E. Coy of Lake Windermere Chamber spoke on need for co-operation among Chambers toward bringing the main highway up to standard, and Herbert Blakley of Radium on a project to build and erect large map signboards of East Kootenay at such key points as Elko, the Montana-B.C. and the Idaho-B.C. ports of entry, clearly outlining routes for Highways 3, 95 and 93, the district's chief arteries, and showing junction points.

Bud Amy, Springbrook wood sculptor, showed models of figures he was willing to undertake to carve for placing at Cranbrook's two city entrances. These will be displayed in a downtown show window.

The California - based Wally Byam Trailer Caravan, entertained here twice in the past, plans to return again for a three-day visit in early August and has queried the Chamber as to availability of trailer space for 250 to 300 trailers and 500 to 800 visitors in the tour this year.

One Good Day, Four Dull, Market Score

By PETER DUNN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The stock market ran true to recent form last week—it had one good day, four lack-lustre ones.

A rally in mid-week served only to accentuate the dullness marking other sessions. Prices drifted; no trend was established.

Sparking the trading flurry Wednesday was news that a number of U.S. steel companies had increased the price of steel by $6 a ton. The steels group jumped ahead, with gains ranging to $1.25 in Steel Company of Canada and Atlas Steel.

Next day President Kennedy issued a scathing indictment of the increase. The resultant jitters given traders were mirrored in the market's action—industrials lost more than half their gains.

SLIPS LOWER

Friday the market slipped still lower and near the close word came that Bethlehem Steel Corporation had recinded its price increase "in order to remain competitive."

By week's end, steel issues were down on average, but losses were mostly fractional. Algoma took the biggest decline, falling almost $1 to $52.75. Atlas showed one of the few gains, rising 50 cents to $32.25. The stock earlier struck a 1962 high of $33.12.

Canadian Oil, Imperial Oil and Trans-Canada Pipe Line all dipped in a 25-cent to 75-cent range. Interprovincial Pipe Line rose a fraction.

Bank of Montreal had the only rise in banks, closing at $68, ahead less than a half-dollar. Royal dropped $1.25 to $80.25; Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and Toronto-Dominion slipped smaller amounts.

SHOW STRENGTH

Utilities showed mild strength. Brazilian Traction struck $3.85—its best this year—but dipped to $3.70 for a slight gain. CPR and Shawinigan traded heavily, but their price changes were modest.

In the senior western oils list, Calgary and Edmonton climbed $2.12 to $24.75. Dome rose slightly to $12. Junior issues were fractionally lower.

Falconbridge led senior base metals moderately higher after last year. The stock climbed $2 to $59. Other price changes were smaller; International Nickel, Noranda and Labrador all rose less than $1.

Golds were mixed in quiet trading. Among the speculatives, Tormont, Wiltsey-Coghlan, Pitch-Ore Uranium and Starratt Nickel were heavy traders, but price changes were normal.

Total volume was 16,052,480 shares compared with last week's 19,401,186. Dollar value was $37,299,865 compared with $39,177,295.

On index at Toronto, industrials slipped .92 to 619.71. Golds rose .52 to 86.96, base metals 1.54 to 206.69 and western oils .86 at 117.15.

Volumes at Montreal: industrials, 730,866 compared with last week's 768,033; mines, 2,255,352 compared with 3,526,875.

On index at Montreal, banks rose .27 at 69.90, utilities dropped 1.0 at 136.6, industrials fell .3 at 342.8, combined fell .6 at 274.0, papers slipped 2.4 at 508.5 and golds rose 1.05 at 76.54.

Chest-to-Toe Concrete Cast Tight Fit

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — There was nothing wrong with Steve Frederickson, but he got himself into a chest-to-toe cast anyway.

The three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Frederickson found a length of concrete sewer pipe near a construction site and tried to find out whether he'd fit inside.

The answer was just barely, or not quite, depending on your point of view.

After 35 minutes, two policemen with a hammer and chisel returned Steve to circulation.

Our Course On the Columbia

The International Joint Commission was created by Article VII of the Boundary Waters Treaty signed by Canada and the United States in 1909. Its purpose as stated in the preamble to the treaty is "to prevent disputes regarding the use of boundary waters and to settle all questions which are now pending between the United States and the Dominion of Canada involving the rights, obligations or interests of either in relation to the inhabitants of the other along their common frontier, and to make provision for the adjustment and settlement of all such questions as may hereafter arise . . ."

The commission consists of six members, three from each country; its powers are quasi-judicial and arbitral. It is authorized to make final decision on all cases involving the use or diversion of boundary waters or rivers crossing the boundary. In practice, the commission has never been employed on any subject in this broad context. Instead in the case of the Columbia the two governments resorted to treaty.

The binding effect of the Boundary Waters Treaty of 1909 on the two countries does not generally seem to be understood. Under it neither country can do anything with international rivers and water without agreement with the other. The present treaty yet to be signed by Canada embodies the agreement of both countries.

There are three courses which Canada can take with regard to the treaty. She can sign it and development will proceed as planned; she can attempt to re-negotiate — and this would probably be a failure because the U.S. would not want to do it, or she could drop the treaty and the development would die.

If the treaty is not ratified then the U.S. will proceed with its own plans. They will be vastly more costly but the U.S. will no longer need Canadian development of the Columbia and we lose any advantage of the treaty. After that any future development would be highly problematical.

It is obvious, therefore, that if we do not ratify the treaty in its present form we shall be cutting our own throats. It might also be noted that if we do not ratify the treaty we are seriously impugning our national honor.

International Language

For other races and peoples, English is a hard-to-learn language.

Yet it is spreading. Through successive centuries it has gone on spreading. And, curiously enough, its use as an international language has latterly been given its biggest boost from two most unexpected sources—the Russians and the Chinese Reds.

Thanks largely to these agencies, English today has little competition as the world-wide language of commerce, diplomacy, science, scholarship and propaganda. In every continent it is written, spoken, broadcast and understood.

In their efforts to woo friends and influence nations in the uncommitted regions of the earth, the Russians and Chinese rank among the leading disseminators of English.

The Russians use English for broadcasts to the Far East. Radio listeners in Africa receive loud and clear English-language broadcasts from Peiping Radio in Red China. And in many cities, Russian cultural offices compete with British and American centres in offering English courses. Each year millions of Russian books are published in English and distributed by the Communists around the globe.

Life magazine in an article traces explosion of English as a world language from the year 1066 when a mere 1.5 million people on earth knew how to speak it.

As late as the 18th Century, English was still outranked by French, Latin (for scholarship), German, Spanish, Russian and Italian. It took a couple of world wars to really establish English as the most popular tongue.

Today, 250 million of the world's people — nearly one in ten — use English as their primary language. And 600 million people — nearly one in four — understand it to some degree.

English is the language of international aviation, spoken by pilots on all the airways of the world. The West German Luftwaffe and even the fliers of East Germany use it.

The most internationally understood of all English words include: baby sitter, bar, bridge, boyfriend, bestseller, bus, beefsteak, cocktail, cover girl, cowboy, gangster, hamburger, holdup, hot dog, ice cream, jazz, juice, jeep, knockout, nightclub, party, pipeline, pin-up, racket, sandwich, shorts, sex appeal, striptease, whiskey and weekend.

It goes without saying that the best known word of them all is the universal expression of assent—okay. The only significant variation it has undergone was when Premier Khrushchev added a modifier, during his U.S. tour, by exclaiming on several occasions, "Very okay."

Back to School

Writing in The Globe and Mail's Report on Business, Mr. Ronald Anderson suggests that an important contributing factor in the drop in unemployment is the fact that young people appear to be staying in school longer before looking for work. The proportion of Canadian boys between 14 and 19 in the labor force dropped from 40.2 per cent at the end of 1960 to 31.5 per cent last month.

This is a wholesome development. During a boom such as this country experienced for a decade or so after the war, boys and girls are under a strong temptation to leave high school and get jobs. The move, however, usually turns out to be a tragic mistake. During a recession they are peculiarly vulnerable to unemployment—"last hired, first fired." At present, for example, the unemployment rate among workers in the 14-19 age group is 15.4 per cent, compared to 9.1 per cent for the working population as a whole.

What is even more serious, premature entrance into the labor market frequently blights a youth's prospects for life. When it is a question of a steady job with a future, employers are more and more reluctant to consider an applicant unless he or she has a minimum standard of education.

The current recession has hammered these facts home to young people and to their parents, and this no doubt accounts for the larger number of teen-agers who are staying in school. It is a decision that few of them will regret.

Interpreting The News

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Now that President de Gaulle is getting a new premier after what amounts to a fresh mandate from the people, many observers feel he must act now to restore some semblance of political reality in France. French politicians, under de Gaulle, are frustrated men.

Premier Debre, who steps down today, was sometimes called the most unpopular premier France has ever had. His successor, 50-year-old Georges Pompidou, is a little-known banker who seems unlikely to prove more than a trusted technician.

The Debre tradition may continue, and with it de Gaulle's personal rule. The question is whether that will be enough if and when the suffocating burden of the conflict in Algeria ceases to weigh on France.

French MPs felt they more or less had to give de Gaulle a free hand to settle the Algerian problem. They may become more restless if full peace ever comes to that troubled land.

TERRORISTS LOSING

Developments suggest that the main enemy to peace—the illegal Secret Army Organization—is daily losing ground. The contrast between the self-restraint of the Moslem masses under terrorist provocation and the blind, stubborn fury of the Secret Army killers is strikingly apparent.

Yet the rot has gone so far in the big cities of Algiers and Oran that it may still be weeks or months before the Secret Army ends its terror tactics and accepts the inevitability of eventual Moslem rule in Algeria.

ORDERS SON'S ARREST

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—King Saud of Saudi Arabia has ordered the arrest of one of his sons for running into two persons with his automobile, Mecca radio announced. The other was severely bruised.

Letters to the editor on any topic of genuine interest are welcome if they are brief, accurate and fair. Laboratory Unit First of Kind

To the Editor:

Sir — We have noted the recent "letter to the Editor" of Mr. J. A. Banham, Information Officer of the University of British Columbia, regarding the news report on the new language laboratory at Notre Dame. As Mr. Banham's letter indicates, the report stated that the laboratory is "the first of its kind in B.C."

Although Mr. Banham's letter takes exception to the statement, if he investigates the facts the company installing the new unit in UB.C. will verify this statement for him. The "second, more advanced laboratory" to be "opened in the near future" at U.B.C. is of the type already operating at Notre Dame University College. The first unit at U.B.C., to the best of our knowledge, was a "do-it-yourself" affair.

A copy of this letter will be sent to Mr. Banham. I presume in fairness to the facts Mr. Banham will issue his own public correction of his letter.

J. R. Cote,
Information Officer.

Battle of the Tavern Blow To Faithful

LONDON (AP)—This is the end, chaps—they've decided to pull down the tavern at Lord's.

For 95 years the old inn has solaced the faithful at this playing field of the Middlesex Cricket Club when home wickets were falling like tenpins or the visitors were bashing the bowling for sixes.

But now, said MCC secretary Ronnie Aird, it is old and out of date and must give way to progress. The board of governors has decided to raze not only the tavern but the historic clock tower as well.

"A decision like this," said club architect Jim Dunbar, "is bound to horrify some of the die-hards.

"But if we don't pull the tavern down, it will probably fall down. Anyway, another inn will rise in its place."

The tavern is headquarters of a Lord's chowder and marching society known as the Tavverners. One of the members is Prince Philip.

Said club chairman Leslie Frewin:

"This is catastrophic. We must call an immediate council of war. The Taverners weren't told a thing about this. We shall fight the demolition forces with a barrage of cricket balls."

Comedian Harry Seccombe, another club member, agreed that stern measures are called for.

"They can't pull down the tavern, mate," he declared. "If they try, the builders will have to wear pads. We shall be in there with bats and balls."

Diefenbaker Shares View On Khrushchev

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker Saturday endorsed the West view that Russia's word cannot be trusted in a nuclear test ban without international control and inspection.

"Any unpoliced test ban treaty would be dangerous to the survival of the Western world," he said.

He made the statement as he went to preside at a Saturday cabinet meeting. He did not expect any announcements following the meeting.

Mr. Diefenbaker was asked to comment on Premier Khrushchev's rejection Friday of a joint Kennedy - Macmillan appeal for an internationally-verified nuclear test ban.

"One has but to read the record of Russia's broken promises since 1945 to realize that undertakings can be easily entered into."

Week in American Business World

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The business world whirled dizzily this week as steel prices shot up and then fell right back down.

U.S. Steel Corp. set off the fireworks with a surprise announcement Tuesday that it was raising steel prices by $6 a ton. Other major producers followed immediately.

President Kennedy was infuriated and denounced the raise as "a wholly unjustifiable and irresponsible defiance of the public interest."

The justice department launched a grand jury investigation and subpoenaed records of steel companies.

Under a barrage of criticism and retaliatory action from the government, the steel front crumbled Friday.

Both business and the government had been stunned at the price boost, coming, as it did, within a week after the steel industry and the United Steelworkers Union had signed a new two-year contract.

The contract provided for 10 cents an hour in fringe benefits but no wage increase in the first year. It was hailed as non-inflationary.

Only 24 hours before U.S. Steel backed off, its chairman, Robert Blough, strongly defended the price hike as overdue and contended it would have little effect on the economy.

The stock market's first reaction was to bid steel shares higher. Then, as the realization of the government's wrathful attitude and the competitive situation dawned, steel stock prices sank and the market hit its low of the year Thursday. As the steel industry began rescinding the increase Friday steel shares started recovering.

PRODUCTION FALLS

Steel production fell off last week as users stopped stockpiling after the labor contract agreement eliminated possibility of a strike-induced shortage. Output totalled 2,361,000 tons, down 2.3 per cent from the previous week.

Easter shopping neared its peak and merchants were in an optimistic mood. They had new figures from the commerce department showing that retail sales in March swelled to a record rate of $19,300,000,000. This compared with the previous record of $19,100,000,000 established last November.

Heavy sales of automobiles were the key to the rise.

Car sales in March exceeded production by 14,000. This indicated that assembly lines probably will be busy for the next three months.

Output last week was estimated at 142,000 passenger cars, off slightly from the 145,107 turned out last week, the best of the year.

Steel Victory Gives Kennedy Influence To U.S. Plans

By NORMAN WALKER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's victory over big steel left him clothed Saturday with new influence to shape the economy of the U.S.

The steel giants bowed one by one Friday to a massive, three-day government drive forcing them to cancel $6-a-ton price increases announced late Tuesday.

The surrender under furious Kennedy attack was a public spectacle unlikely to be forgotten soon by industrial leaders considering a try at breaching the administration rules for wage-price stability.

The president, after denouncing the price boosts touched off by the industry-leading U.S. Steel Corporation, unleashed the full brunt of government retaliatory power to force a cancellation.

PEOPLE 'GRATIFIED'

"The people of the United States are most gratified," Kennedy said on learning that major steel producers had reversed their decisions. He was just starting an inspection of Atlantic Fleet manoeuvres.

The president's brother, Attorney - General Kennedy, although also elated at the administration victory, ordered full speed ahead on the New York federal grand jury investigation into the price increases. He said the price cancellation "will not have any effect" on the probe.

Similarly, two congressional committees said they would carry out plans for investigations. Chairman Emanuel Celler (Dem. N.Y.) said, however, the House of Representatives judiciary committee would engage in more of a study than an investigation, with the purpose of determining whether the anti-trust laws need strengthening.

A senate anti-monopoly subcommittee headed by Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem. Tenn.), also will go ahead with steel hearings.

The surrender parade was signalled by Inland Steel's decision not to raise prices. Then Bethlehem Steel, No. 2 in the industry and heavily involved in government ship - building, cancelled its previously announced increase.

TOSSES IN TOWEL

From then on it was a rout, with U.S. Steel tossing in the towel. It said it couldn't stand a serious obstacle to proper relations between government and business." Only 24 hours before, U.S. Steel Board Chairman Roger M. Blough said at a televised press conference in New York that his firm would stick to its higher prices.

Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg—one of the chief Kennedy lieutenants in bringing the steel industry around—went secretly to New York to talk turkey to Blough.

The arsenal of weapons the president wheeled into his all-out economic foray against the big business leaders was an awesome display of coldly determined political and economic power seldom if ever before employed by a U.S. government. Every major governmental department got into the act.

The president himself got on the phone to people of influence. Steel bosses were flooded with grand jury and congressional committee subpoenas. Steps were taken to channel government orders to stell firms holding the price line. These holdouts were encouraged.

HAD ONLY BEGUN

It was clear when the fight ended Kennedy had only begun. This is what may have impressed the industry.

With Congress seemingly in Kennedy's corner, he had new anti-trust legislation ready to recommend for immediate enactment.

Other moves were being considered. One was to remove concessions to business contained in the pending tax bill. A second was to require producers of foreign aid items to use only the lower-priced steel. Still another was to cancel scheduled business depreciation revisions.

Also, the president's economic advisers were ready to trot out a white paper challenging industry's arguments justifying a price increase.

It was clear Blough and the other steel leaders had misjudged their man in Kennedy.

Princess to Wed Spanish Prince

By EUGENE LEVIN

ATHENS (AP)—Pretty, blue-eyed Princess Sophie will be married May 14 to the crown prince who some day may rule Spain, Don Juan Carlos.

In the midst of the preparations, the Greek royal family is coming under more public criticism than at any time since King Paul assumed the throne 15 years ago.

The king is a constitutional monarch theoretically above politics but opponents of Premier Constantine Caramanlis attack the crown along with the government.

Caramanlis, a handsome, shrewd, 55-year-old politician, has been premier six years. He has guided Greece toward economic recovery and his rightist party, the National Radical Union, easily won elections last October.

The two big opposition parties —the anti - Communist Centre Union, led by George Papandreou, and the pro - Communist Pame—lead the attacks.

QUEEN'S FUND

A favorite target is the "Queen's Fund." This fund, administered by the royal palace, was set up in 1953 as a relief measure for victims of earthquakes. The fund gets its revenue from taxes on new automobiles and tickets for theatres, movies, sports and night club floor shows. The fund has continued as a charity agency. It gives no public accounting.

The attack on royalty has taken other forms, not sparing the royal bride - to - be, King Paul's 23-year-old daughter.

Caramanlis wanted a $300,000 dowry. Parliament, with the premier's party holding a big majority of seats, approved.

But the debate was anything but sweet for Princess Sophie.

The Communist - oriented Pame said Greece was too poor to provide such a dowry. Although 1961 was a record economic year, the average wage of a Greek working man remained low, less than $60 a month. Unemployment continued high—100,000-200,000 unemployed and 500,000 underemployed in a country with fewer than 9,000,00 inhabitants.

Papandreou's party said Princess Sophie would lower herself by marrying without a dowry.

There was no sign the royal family would turn down Sophie's $30,000. In Greek villages a girl without a dowry is likely to remain without a husband, and the royal family has recognized this fact of Greek life.

One of its charities is "dowry savings deposit books" for the poor. The royal family opens a savings account for a little girl, making an initial deposit of $50. After that it's up to the parents to save.

Wives of Envoys Can Consult Book

OTTAWA (CP) — When the wife of a man in the external affairs department finds they've been posted abroad, she can consult a booklet compiled by the wives of others in the department.

The booklet gives dozens of hints for foreign postings not included in the department's official guide. It's the product of the External Affairs Wives Association formed three years ago.

"Our purpose is to exchange information, to help each other and to get to know each other," said Mrs. George Ignatieff, association president.

When the group was formed, the husbands were worried that it might become a lobbying group "but we don't discuss department business."

The association meets about three times a year and this year held a series of informal soup-and - sandwich luncheons at members' homes.

This gives the newcomers a chance to meet the veterans and the half-hour coffee period after each meeting becomes a forum for discussion of mutual problems.

TALK OF SCHOOLS

Those with children inevitably get around to the problems of schools. Mrs. Ignatieff said one of her two sons had attended seven schools before he was 11.

The booklet the women produced contains a bibliography of children's books by Canadian authors. Included are books dealing with Canadian history, a subject not taught in many foreign schools.

The booklet also deals with external affairs etiquette, housing, clothing, climate, food problems and entertaining.

"If you are going to a warm climate where dry cleaning is not available, then it's essential that you have a cotton evening dress that can be washed," said Mrs. Arthur J. Andrew, a committee member.

The introduction to the booklet explains that the wife of an external affairs officer has a unique opportunity to help her husband in his chosen field.

"One of the main assets of the wife of a diplomat is to be as friendly and unaffected in her contacts abroad as she would be at home."

Here's How to Spot Phoney Salesmen

By EDNA BLAKELY

OTTAWA (CP)—This is the season for door-to-door salesmen and they're likely to include some phoneys, says George S. Piers, manager of the Ottawa and Hull Better Business Bureau.

He offers some suggestions on what to watch out for:

1. The seed salesman who promises grass that will grow no more than 1½ inches and doesn't need cutting.

2. The tree surgeon who tells you he can save your trees "for all time."

3. Repair men who point out some minor damage to your chimney and warn you that it will fall down unless fixed.

"They make up quite a story and scare the daylights out of old people," Mr. Piers said of the chimney repair men. Most often they did a partial job and charged outrageous prices.

SELL PHOTOS

Then there was the door-to-door photographer who insisted a child was a "Hollywood natural." He might be handy with compliments but less skilled in his work, Mr. Piers said. Mothers often took advantage of the photographer's visit to save themselves a trip downtown and found later they were disappointed with the quality of the pictures.

Mr. Piers advises against buying any goods unless you know either the merchandise or the salesman.

"And remember, a guarantee is not one bit better than the company that gives it to you."

He emphasizes the importance of reading all the fine print in a contract.

"A great many people don't realize the importance of their signature."

A signed contract couldn't be broken unless fraud was proved.

PUBLIC MUST BEWARE

Claude Root, general manager of the Montreal bureau, told a service club that many people look only at a low price tag and neglect such things as service and maintenance.

"Sharp practices" could not be wholly eradicated either by government or the business community as long as the public didn't protect itself.

"Advertising is the outward demonstration of a firm's selling policy and if a merchant lies in his advertising he will mislead a customer right through the whole transaction," Mr. Root said.

Mr. Piers said it's important to check with a Better Business Bureau before — not after— goods are purchased and contracts signed. Bureaus exist in Halifax, Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver.

In many other communities, the local chamber of commerce is helpful.

Women's Work In Advertising To Be Shown

TORONTO (CP)—An international exhibition of the work of women in advertising is being held in Los Angeles May 23-30 and Canadian advertising women, along with those from other countries, are invited to participate.

The exhibition is sponsored by Los Angeles Advertising Women Inc., and Mildred Heredeen, chairman, writes:

"We are all very much interested in seeing what women in our field in other countries are doing and hope to have many examples of the work being done in our sister-nation to the north."

Copy, art or design, photography for newspapers, magazines or outdoor advertising; promotion or publicity; packaging, display material, posters; storyboard or background illustration for television will be welcome.

Exhibitors are asked to send their published work, mounted proofs or tear sheets. They may send reproductions of storyboards, photographs of packages or displays and any advertising material peculiar to the country where it is produced and used.

All material must be in the club's hands by May 1 and it will not be returned. Size limit is 18 inches by 26 inches and weight limit five pounds.

Exhibitors are advised to consult their appropriate authorities for guidance in shipping material.

Sin, Death, Disease Dealt With in Sermon

Christian warfare in which spiritual good overcomes the evil in human thinking, was a theme of the Lesson-Sermon heard Sunday at Christian Science church services.

Scriptural selections included Paul's exhortation: "The night is far spent, the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armor of light" (Romans 13). "Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" is the title of the Lesson-Sermon.

This citation from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy was also read: "Christians must take up arms against error at home and abroad. They must grapple with sin in themselves and in others, and continue this warfare until they have finished their course. If they keep the faith, they will have the crown of rejoicing."

She Became Both Lady and Politician

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Anna Hughes recalls that when she was growing up in Calgary she attended Mount Royal College "where they tried to make a lady of me."

"Instead, I ended up a politician."

As the only woman on Waterloo city council, it is evident to all the men that she became both.

A council member for 11 years, Mrs. Hughes, a widow, is chairman of the finance committee and chairman of the legislation and bylaws committee.

She feels "every council should have a competent woman on it for balance."

Her activities don't end with politics, however. She is a member of Trinity United Church, was president of the Women's Association and served as far as the presbytery level.

She is also a member of the Business and Professional Women's Club and the Kitchener-Waterloo Service Club, an organization of women devoted to work for the aged.

PATIENCE NEEDED

Mrs. Hughes believes more women are needed in all levels of public service but they require special qualifications.

"Being elected is just the beginning. It requires patience, tact, perseverance, and above all the ability to buckle down and learn what you don't know about the projects under consideration.

"Therein lies the challenge. It is folly to 'follow along' when voting in any organization. Women should study every phase of a project and know it thoroughly. Added to that, a sense of humor is a help.

"Everybody in the city has been good to me. Women have been kind, yet we do not always agree. Men are co-operative; even if they tease me they also respect me.

"When I first went on council they gave me the chairmanship of the sewer and sanitation committee."

Mrs. Hughes met her husband in Calgary and they moved here 20 years ago.

When asked if she would like to be mayor, she replied: "We have an excellent mayor right now. At one time I entertained the ambition but since the loss of my husband I feel the demands would be too heavy.

"Most people in public life who carry a heavy responsibility need someone near them to help cushion the tensions.

"Being chairman of two important committees in this city keeps me busy. The main thing is to have something constructive to do; to me that is the only way to have a happy life."

Focus On Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: Back pains, arm pains and false teeth.

THAT ACHING BACK

Psychoanalysts, like many other people, do most of their work sitting down.

They don't use many muscles, and a high percentage of them are afflicted with backaches. The reason is mainly too little physical exercise, says Dr. Hans Kraus and Sonya Weber of New York City.

They prescribed muscular fitness tests, and then exercises, for 26 psychoanalysts complaining of low back pain and pain in the upper back, neck, shoulders and legs. After continued regular exercises, eight were free of pain, the rest had definite relief.

DENTURE FIT

Now there's a way to help artificial teeth "grow" so they will meet properly with teeth in the opposing upper or lower jaw.

Natural teeth are continuously erupting, and this allows them to keep meeting despite normal wearing down, explains Dr. Bernard Jankelson of Seattle. When people get false teeth, the original fit may be good, but the wearing process eventually allows a denture to become loose.

In a new technique, porcelain teeth are used in the upper denture, and acrylic or plastic ones in the lower. If wearing occurs so the dentures loosen, a plastic coating can be added to the tops of the lower teeth to bring them into close contact with the uppers again.

CAUSES OF ARM ACHES

Painful conditions of the shoulder and arm seem to be increasing, perhaps because "somewhat violent episodes seem to dominate our working life, and leisure," says Dr. Harold A. Sofield of Oak Park, Ill.

We hurry when we go to work, or engage in violent sports occasionally, and such rough treatment causes injury.

"Part of the problem stems from our ancestors' determination to walk in an upright position. Our arms swing through a wide range of motion, and tendons are thus subjected to extra wear and tear. When this wear and tear is excessive, tendon fibres degenerate and calcium deposits may occur."

Queen's Hair Style Becomes More Bouffant

LONDON (AP) — The Queen has changed her hair style.

Curls have come forward over the face.

Something's been cut off at the back.

There's more body to the hair, a suggestion of the bouffant worn by Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, and the Queen's sister, Princess Margaret.

Late last month Mrs. Kennedy lunched with the Queen at Buckingham Palace.

The Queen emerged in her new hair style for the first time Thursday.

The occasion was her drive by car from nearby Windsor Castle to Badminton to attend the three-day annual Badminton horse trials.

The Queen, accompanied by Princess Anne, also in a new hair-do, arrived hatless.

Life Insurance is a good investment

Buy protection from a life insurance company but invest your money elsewhere. This view, held by a number of people, reflects a belief that life insurance is a safe but unprofitable form of investment. But both the opinion and the belief behind it completely ignore the facts. The theoretical advantage of investing elsewhere soon evaporates in the light of Manufacturers Life's low premium deposits, liberal annual dividends and high returns on annuities. The rate of interest credited to policyowners compares more than favourably with net yields on good, reliable stocks and bonds.

Behind this performance is progressive money management practiced by a group of specialists who administer a fund of one billion dollars. They have earned for the company a reputation for investment operations that produce an enviable combination of profit and safety. These men work for you when you invest in a Manufacturers Life policy.

This story is far from complete. There are many additional practical advantages of investing in life insurance. The Man from Manufacturers would welcome the opportunity to give you the complete picture.

Hawks Close Gap to Game

Comets Edge Flyers 3-1 for Playoff Lead

SPOKANE (CP) — Spokane Comets scored two third-period goals Sunday night to nip Edmonton Flyers 3-1 and take a one-game lead in the best-of-seven Western Hockey League final.

Second game in the series, for the Lester Patrick cup, will be played here Tuesday.

A crowd of 2,897 watched the teams fight to a 1-1 tie in the first period and go through a scoreless second period before Gordie Stratton and Red Johansen scored in the third to give Spokane the opening-game victory.

Steve Witiuk scored the other Spokane goal, counting midway in the first period to open the scoring.

Chuck Holmes scored Edmonton's only goal late in the first period on a three-way passing play with Don Poile and Len Lunde.

The Northern Division champions, who had trouble with Spokane all season, pressed throughout Sunday night's game, but goalie Ed Johnston stopped them with brilliant play. The Comet netminder kicked out 32 Edmonton shots.

Giles Boisvert, in the Flyer nets made 29 saves.

Wood Rink Wins Car Bonspiel

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four young Saskatoon curlers turned merciless avengers against Edmonton's Lyall Wood Saturday night and won it all at Vancouver's spring car bonspiel.

The Stan Austman rink laced Wood 9-3 and 10-6 in successive games to cap a week's performance vastly more consistent than any in a star-studded field of Canada's top curlers.

The winners each took home a new compact car. Wood, who was playing his 12th car spiel and his fourth car final—won combination TV-stereo sets.

Glenn Hall Blanks Toronto Leafs 3-0

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

CHICAGO (CP) — Chicago Black Hawks, fired up after two straight losses to Toronto Maple Leafs, stormed back into the Stanley Cup final picture Sunday night with a brilliant 3-0 decision over the Leafs before a yelling, screaming mob of 16,666.

The Hawks, outplayed and out-bumped in the first two games at Toronto, which they lost 4-1 and 3-2, gave the Leafs a fancy beating. They roared out from the opening faceoff and completely overwhelmed the Leafs who couldn't mount any sort of a sustained offensive.

The defending Cup champion Hawks scored two goals in the second period and got their final with seconds remaining in the game and with goalkeeper Johnny Bower out in favor of an extra forward.

CRASHING DEFENCE

Goalkeeper Glenn Hall—"Mister Goalie" to the bedlam-inclined Chicago Fans—came up with his fourth shutout in three cup seasons. He had plenty of help from a crashing defence corps, led by the veteran Dollard St. Laurent who spilled Leafs all over the ice with thumping bodychecks.

After a scoreless opening 20 minutes, the puck-happy Hawks scored twice in a period of just under four minutes.

Centre Stan Mikita, a stick-handling wizard, scored his sixth of the playoffs this season at 4:35 of the second session and at 8:33 Ab McDonald shot another past Bower. The Toronto netminder, harassed most of the 60 minutes by the Hawks, finished with 33 saves against only 19 for Hall.

Bronco Horvath, picked up by Hawks for the $20,000 draft price in 1961, finished the scoring with only 19 seconds remaining in the game and with Bower out of the nets in favor of an extra forward.

The Hawks, who now meet Leafs here Tuesday night, started out as if they'd chase Toronto players right out of the building. They slammed into the Leafs and dominated play from the opening faceoff but scrambly passing nullified any scoring chances they had in the first five minutes.

Toronto defenceman Allan Stanley was an unwitting accomplice on Chicago's first goal.

Pierre Pilote carried the puck into the Leaf end and Stanley, trying to clear it out, put it on Mikita's stick. The 21-year-old shifty centre, standing about eight feet in front of the goal, didn't hesitate a second as he blasted a waist-high drive past Bower.

Carl Brewer was sitting out a holding penalty when McDonald got his goal, and again the play was started by Pilote.

The Black Hawk captain stickhandled to the right of the Toronto net and, with Bower sitting on the ice, passed to McDonald who went around the Toronto goalie and steered the puck into the empty net from just outside the goal crease.

With the big crowd hooting and hollering as the seconds ticked away in the final minute of the game, Eric Nesterenko put Horvath in the clear. Horvath, who fluffed a couple of good scoring chances earlier in the third period, steamed down the right boards and backhanded the puck into the yawning net from about 15 feet out.

Dave's Diggin's

By Dave Grant
Sports Editor

Our famed Trail Times counterpart, Peter Bruce, is wielding his mighty, venomous pen once more, and as usual his partiality is evident.

The Smelter City sport desk editor has his sails at full mast and in no uncertain terms has attempted to hide the source of the windy blast.

In his latest sortie he has delved into the realms of officiating—especially that appearing at Friday night's Saskatoon-Trail game with his main assessments centering around Prairie ref Joe Zannett.

Bruce bluntly called Zannett "blind" and a "homer", with many other implications thrown in, stating the "angelic" Smokies were threatened life and limb. Overlooked was the possibility of Trail threatening Saskatoon.

To quote an example, the Russ "Killer" Kowalchuk-Bernie Grebinsky duel. They met along the boards while chasing a loose puck Grebinsky, well aware of Kowalchuk's reputation and tactics, went in after the puck, prepared and Kowalchuk, seeing Grebinsky's head down, tore after him. The result was inevitable. Elbows went high, and sticks higher, with "the killer" feeling the sting of the stick over his back. For some unknown reason, Kowalchuk, renowned for his stick swinging tactics during the regular season, failed to retaliate.

As most Kootenay hockey fans are aware, Smokies are not the cleanest and most well-behaved senior hockey team in Canada. They unleash their fury first and cry over the outcome later.

Time and again Friday night Trail's blueline corps crashed the Quaker forwards against the boards. Usually a hard body check was not enough—it had to be followed by an elbow, butt end or spearing attempt.

Harry "Hurricane" Smith, well known for his crushing checks, was not satisfied with checking Quakers into the boards; they had to be plastered to it. Continually he launched himself five feet from the boards, crashing into the rival with an air-borne check.

But the tactics were condoned and what started as a third game of the Patton Cup championships, came near to ending in a riot.

Zannett was not the only official on the ice. He was backed by Sarg Sammartino and Bill Waddell. Combined, the trio failed to reach the level of officiating expected.

As the game progressed, small incidents were allowed, later progressing to high sticking, cross checking, holding and hooking.

Yet, through all this a reasonable facsimile of order was maintained, and the game ended 6-2 in favor of Bob Kromm's Trail crew.

The outcome may be reversed when Trail travels to Saskatoon for the remainder of the series.

Quakers' arena is narrower and shorter than Trail's and in size resembles the Nelson Maple Leaf home. On a large ice surface where Trail can utilize its top conditioning and wide open passing style of play, they are unbeatable. On a small ice surface they are just another team as was shown during the WIHL season on Nelson ice.

Added to the different ice surface will be 5500-6000 fans, few of them Trailites.

Although Trail leads the series 2-1, the odds are against them in the remaining four games. They will be forced to play as they never have before or their ladder to the Allan Cup will reach no further than second place in the Western Allan Cup series.

One of the top trapshooting experts in North America, Murray Laidlaw made an appearance at the rifle range on the CPR flats last week.

Laidlaw, an ammunition expert and a one-time professional rifle champion gave an indication of his prowess with a rifle, shooting perfect scores in a trap-shooting exhibition. He is also an expert at skeet shooting.

Laidlaw's appearance also has marked the opening of the range for the 1962 season, as the rifle enthusiasts began sharpening up their eyes. Approximately 20 attended the outing, taking a few pointers from the ex-professional.

L.V. Rogers Gym Show Thrills 650

Prince Philip need have no qualms about the physical condition of Nelson athletes.

As witnessed at the Gym Show at L. V. Rogers High School Friday night, some 200 junior and senior high school students jumped, tumbled, vaulted and danced; bounded on trampolines; did calisthenics; free standing exercises, and demonstrated mass pyramids before a crowd of 650 in Rogers' gym.

The show was sponsored by the Physical Education department of the high school under the direction of M. B. Slater. Both boys and girls of the junior and senior schools, the Gym Club and the Flying Tigers Gym Club took part in the show.

Bonnie Gilbert showed why she is B.C. junior gymnast champion in a fine free-standing exercise.

Other standouts in the show included Terry Fyfe, Shirin McCullough, Madge Wallace and Wayne Watson.

Demonstrations by the youngsters ranged from square dancing to Indian club swinging to tumbling.

A group of four clowns called the Lark Brothers from the Flying Tigers Gym Club did a comic routine on the trampolines. The club is under the direction of Dick McKeen and includes junior high school students.

The evening was climaxed by a performance of bronze statuary by the Gym Club. Grade 10 and 11 physical education students depicted various athletic stances and poses.

Toronto Pair Navigates To Trans-Canada Car Title

By FRED CHAFE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Overall victory went to a Studebaker Lark and three Montreal Renaults sewed up the manufacturers team prize as the 4,000-mile Canadian auto rally ended in the rain Saturday night.

Individual champions are John Jones and Lou Lalonde of Toronto. The cool-headed pair, who refused to be rattled when the going got tough, punched their final control clock with a clear margin over Jerry Polivka and Charles Bick in a factory-entered Volvo.

It was a well-earned prize for Jones and Lalonde, who brought Studebaker its second over - all championship in as many years. The two were second last year, also in a Lark.

They were in third place on the second day of the cross-country test of endurance, navigation and driving skill which began a week ago Saturday in Montreal. From there on they drove a steady rally while the front-runners ran into difficulties. They moved to the top Wednesday on the lap from Winnipeg to Saskatoon.

TO BE CONFIRMED

Their final score was 30 penalty points, two of which were added on the last day's drive through the mountains from Trail to Vancouver. Polivka and Bick, also of Toronto, ended with 52. Scores are still provisional, subject to official confirmation after protests have been considered.

In contrast to the calm air of the Toronto duo, the Renault team almost developed a case of ulcers at the finish in front of a plush bayfront hostelry.

BEAT TIME LIMIT

To win the manufacturers' team prize, a major award in the hotly-competitive world of motor sport, they had only to bring their three cars into the finish within the maximum time limit. Their only rivals—Swedish-built Volvos, British Hillmans and the Studebakers — had been eliminated earlier as teams through loss of one car.

The first two Renaults arrived on schedule to report the third car in trouble back in the mountains. All had experienced fuel-feed trouble in the 4,800-foot altitudes of the coast range but the No. 3 car, driven by John Charters of Baie d'Urfe, Que., and Ian Worth of Lachine was in difficulties of more serious nature.

As the minutes ticked away, team manager Lou O'Neill and his other drivers fidgeted. Finally ,the little white car rolled into the parking lot, only 20 minutes away from disqualification.

LIMPED TO FINISH

"We've been limping for 150 Charters. "Listen to that," He touched the accelerator and a sick rattle emerged from the bearing of the rear-mounted engine.

Third place went to a Chevy II driven by the experienced rally team of Trant Jarman of Rochester, Mich., and Don Hambly of Oshawa, Ont. They finished with 90 penalty points.

MISS CHECK POINT

Running fourth out of Trail, and a hot contender for third, was an Acadian from Toronto driven by Martin Chenhall and John Wilson. But they were dejected to learn on arriving here that they had missed a check point near Penticton, knocking them back to ninth.

Into fourth moved Grant McLean of Montreal and Bill Leatham of Chomedy, Que., in the first of the team Renaults.

Columbia Treaty Criticism More at B.C. Than Ottawa

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton's criticism of the Columbia River treaty as a "sell-out" to the United States would appear to be aimed more at the British Columbia than the federal government.

In other words, he apparently feels that in the first instance Ottawa bowed to the wishes of Victoria and that then the two together caved in to the U.S.

In the last two days, External Affairs Minister Green and Justice Minister Fulton have been at pains to say that the federal government agreed with the chief aim of Gen. McNaughton, retiring Canadian chairman of the International Joint Commission.

This aim was a dam on the Kootznay River in southeastern British Columbia to divert the Kootenay into the Columbia and thus give Canada a greater power potential in the future on the Columbia.

REJECTED SCHEME

Mr. Green said Friday in the Commons that British Columbia originally agreed to this scheme but then "turned right around" and rejected it.

As a result, a dam would have to be built at Libby, Mont., and back up flood waters into B.C.

Justice Minister Fulton said in an interview at Hanna, Alta., that a treaty drafted according to Gen. McNaughton's proposals would have been better but that this would have meant treading on B.C.'s toes.

Mr. Green referred to Gen. McNaughton's "splendid reputation" and suggested that criticism of the general "would be unfair not only to the government but also to Gen. McNaughton himself."

This is a different approach than that taken by the government a week ago when Gen. McNaughton let loose his blast at the government for "selling Canada down the river."

Two explanations are possible:

1. With a general election coming up, the government naturally would seek to divert any criticism by a well-known figure like Gen. McNaughton from itself to B.C.'s Social Credit government.

2. The government may have such strong second thoughts on the treaty it may be prepared to try for renegotiation with the U.S. on the basis of a Kootenay diversion into the Columbia.

60 STARVE TO DEATH

JAKARTA, Indonesia (Reuters)—Sixty persons have died of starvation in the Indramaju area of West Java where 9,000 people are suffering from famine, newspapers reported here today. Indramaju, once one of the richest rice-growing districts in Indonesia, was hard hit by prolonged drought last year.

Close-Up of Bustamante, Jamaica's Grand Old Man

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP)—Jamaica's business community feared Alexander Bustamante as a wild-eyed radical 25 years ago. Saturday they welcomed him back to power as a Conservative defender of private enterprise and the grand old man of Jamaican politics.

Bustamante, now Sir Alexander, led his labor party to election victory last week, capturing 26 of the 45 seats in the House of Representatives. He will become this Caribbean island's first prime minister when Jamaica gains independence from Britain Aug. 6.

Bustamante defeated his cousin, Norman Manley, and his People's National Party. Manley had been premier of the colonial government for seven years. Bustamante had the job for 10 years before that.

Son of a Jamaican planter, Bustamante took his name from a Spanish sailer who adopted him at the age of 15. He claims to have been in his youth a soldier in the Spanish Moroccan Police, a police inspector in Havana, a transport worker in Panama and a hospital dietitian in New York.

ORGANIZED WORKERS

A fiery, flamboyant orator, he became the bane of Jamaica's planters by organizing the island's sugar workers into a powerful union that still bears his name. Some 25 years ago he was in and out of jail regularly.

The planters and the business community since then have learned to live with organized labor. Bustamante at 78, though he still champions the common man, is opposed to socialism.

He said in an interview: "When I led the workers against exploitation by employers, I indicated capital must learn to work fairly with labor and labor must give a fair day's work for a fair day's pay. I have maintained the strength of my belief in these things throughout the years.

"I am not against the big man and his money, but I realize the small farmer and working man must have a better way of life—not riches."

Although Jamaica will remain in the British Commonwealth, its new leader is counting on Canada and the United States to aid the island with money.

"England, with all its good will toward us, cannot do much," he said. "American investors in the United States and Canada can help us. We face the grave financial problem of paying for economic development and the social betterment of our people, among whom there is much distress and hunger.

CAIRO (Reuters) — A ban on French citizens entering the United Arab Republic imposed last December after the arrest of French diplomats here for alleged espionage activities has now been lifted, it was announced today.

Successful Managers Add Experience to Learning

Canadian Press Business Editor

Managers are rarely born, says Prof. L. G. Macpherson, director of Queen's University School of Business. To native talent must be added not only continuous experience but continuous learning.

"While the value and necessity of practical experience will never be denied," he said in a recent address, "experience alone is the slowest means of acquiring knowledge and understanding, in spite of its unique function of providing skill through practice.

"The difference between distinguished performance and commonplace performance in human affairs is often only a small extra portion of understanding, experience, or motivation. Programs of business education and management development seems to provide that extra portion for many participants."

About 3,000 business executives from more than 30 countries are expected to attend the International Management Congress in New York Sept. 16-20 of next year.

Organized under the auspices of the Comite International de l'Organization Scientifique (CIOS), an international federation of 33 national management groups, the Congress will deal with major management problems and opportunities under the theme, "human progress through better management."

Ross, Knowles and Co. Ltd. in its monthly bulletin says:

"Shares of Canadian chartered banks are an ideal medium for many investors. They have in the past combined conservatism with a strong element of growth, together with reasonable income supplemented by periodic tax-free 'rights.' In our opinion future prospects are similarly promising."

REDS CANCEL FAIR

LONDON (AP)—The Soviet Union has decided to postpone plans for a 1967 world fair in Moscow, Tass said Friday night. The official news agency said the Moscow fair will be held at a later date "in view of the fact that a world fair will be held in New York in 1964-65, thus making the interval between the two fairs too short."

Moose Jaw's Famous Emcee Can Take or Make a Joke

By BOB BARNES

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Art Linkletter was reading in bed one night when the telephone rang. "It's a collect call from the south pole," said the operator.

"What's it all about?" asked the pyjama-clad master of ceremonies and millionaire business executive.

All she knew was that a New Jersey shortwave station was on the line.

His eyebrows arched and his eyes got big and round in that way familiar to millions. But his curiosity was up.

"So I took it," he recalls. "It was a bunch of geophysical year scientists. They'd gotten to debating whether I was the kind of guy who would accept a collect call from the south pole. We had a good chat."

It cost Linkletter $55 for his icebound friends to confirm what many fans suspect: That their idol's a good guy off-camera, too.

BUILDS PUBLIC IMAGE

Linkletter, born in Moose Jaw, Sask., has built a public image in his 25 years of showbusiness, during which he says he has had "a kind of love affair going on with the public."

He's welcomed into living rooms as the tall, clean-cut, confident emcee — eternally ready to smile and quick with the quips. He's known, too, as a good man with a needle, who chuckles while his victims squirm.

And Linkletter's all of that, sure enough, but that's not all of Linkletter. He has other less known images, all provocative.

There's Linkletter the man who knows human nature. . . .

While you've been watching him, he has been watching you.

"People in general want to be happy," he says. "They are basically hopeful and good natured and optimistic. They don't want to be cheated or disillusioned; they want to believe in things."

He hates phoneys and rudeness.

Lots of times Linkletter is asked how come he's always so confoundedly cheerful. He says if your're friendly and cheerful to people, they'll respond.

HE STARTS IT

"I do it all the time—get on an elevator where they're all staring at the floor, and I'll make some remark or joke and they'll loosen right up. Yes, that happened when I was unknown, too. People are just waiting. If you take the initiative, they'll react."

There's Linkletter the business magnate . . .

"I enjoy creative business," he says. He spends as much time on business as he does on entertainment, has millions invested in all kinds of enterprises from the safest to the most speculative.

"I get 10 times more kick out of making $10,000 out of a little company with 35 employees where I've had a part in it—made some phone calls and been asked for advice—than I get out of making $20,000 from some impersonal blue chip investment," he says.

There's Linkletter the writer . . .

"When you have spent your life in a business as ephemeral as radio and TV, books are tangible evidence that you've done something. A book is something that's there. I can point to it as a summation of myself—of what I am, what I stand for, what I believe in."

Another side of Linkletter—his most significant, for it shapes his whole being—doesn't as readily show.

WORRIES ABOUT KIDS

He's a father of five who's worried about young people and doing more all the time on juvenile delinquency . . .

He's a sometime actor who feels strongly about the "adult" movie trend . . .

"I think the stuff they are putting out for family consumption is disgraceful and that parents are allowing their kids to see things that are positively diabolical. The worst thing I have seen along that line is Butterfield Eight . . ."

He supports eight orphans in China, Korea and elsewhere under the Foster Parents Plan. He visits them on his many travels . . .

Linkletter hit the big time with People Are Funny. He'll be 50 July 17, but he's a 200-pounder who looks as if he could take care of himself in a scrap.

He and Lois, married in 1935, have five children—Jack, 24, who has his own TV show; Dawn, 22; Robert, 17; Sharon, 15, and Diane, 13.

Coast Labor Shaken By Internal Dissension

By ROBERT RICE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The house of labor still stands, but its foundations have been visibly shaken by internal dissension.

That seems to be the position of the Canadian Labor Congress as it ended its week-long naval policy conference Friday.

At the wind-up there were 1,166 trade unionists registered at the convention and they had voted overwhelmingly in favor of:

1. "Fullest possible support" by trade unions and their members for the New Democratic Party in the coming federal election.

2. An all-out war on corrupt, Communist or company - dominated unions.

3. A major membership campaign, co-ordinated by the CLC on a long-term basis, to enlist more than 500,000 white collar workers in the ranks of organized labor.

4. A special study by the CLC executive council, inner cabinet of labor, on the "problem of jurisdiction disputes and their solution by arbitration and other methods."

These were the highlights of the positive policies endorsed by the convention, which also hammered out decisions on a multitude of topics, including economic policy, international issues, housing, immigration, social security, education, taxes, and trade.

RE-ELECT JODOIN

Claude Jodoin, the burly, bilingual labor leader from Montreal, was re-elected as $16,000-a-year president of the congress. He defeated Gordon Lambert, St. Catharines, Ont., a member of the Auto Workers Union, for the post by a vote of 695 to 152.

It was the first test by ballot for Mr. Jodoin since he ascended to the CLC presidency at its formation in 1956.

The convention also re-elected William Dodge from Ottawa as executive vice-president, a full-time post.

Joe Morris, western chief of the International Woodworkers of America, was picked for the other $13,000-a - year executive vice - presidency, succeeding former CCF parliamentary Stanley Knowles who dropped out to fight in the coming election under the NDP banner.

Donald Macdonald, also from the IWA, was re-elected by acclamation as secretary - treasurer, a job that pays $14,000 a year.

As full-time officers, the four men will have the main task of trying to patch up what appears to be an irreconcilable internal quarrel between the IWA and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners. Second largest affiliate of the congress with 64,600 members.

HEAD FOR EXILE?

The Carpenters Brotherhood stalked out of the CLC convention Wednesday and appeared headed toward a self-imposed exile outside the mainstream of organized labor.

The walkout was staged in protest against what the Carpenters regarded as unfair treatment by CLC officers in their dispute over the right to represent Newfoundland loggers.

The price of peace in labor's family appeared to be agreement by the Carpenters Union to a "properly conducted vote" among the loggers to find out which union they want.

Meanwhile, the building trades unions representing some 120,000 construction workers were considering their position in the dispute—whether to walkout behind the Carpenters or remain within the CLC.

A decision is not expected until a meeting of international officers is held April 24 in Washington.

Before then, the congress will likely renew its bid to resolve the Carpenter-IWA hassle to repair the split in labor unity.

REFLOAT SUB

KURE, Japan (AP)—A Japanese submarine sunk by the British Navy off the Malaya Peninsula during the Second World War has been refloated and 70 bodies of its crew recovered, the Hokusei Salvage Company here said today. The 2,574-ton sub I-34 was sunk by British torpedo bombers off Penang in the Malacca Strait Oct. 13, 1943, while en route to Germany. She was carrying 99 crew members and strategic materials. Fourteen escaped.

War Between Castro And U.S. Continues

By BEM PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP) — For Fidel Castro April 17 was a great day.

Castro — and communism — won that day. The United States lost. But that was only a battle. The war goes on.

One year now has passed, or will have next Tuesday, since the battle.

Castro had come into power 27½ months earlier. For two long years before that he had carried on a guerrilla war against the corrupt tyranny of Fulgencio Batista, a man who had been given considerable U.S. aid in the name of anti-communism.

In those 27½ months, Castro had seized the vast holdings of foreigners valued in the billions, promising to pay with 20-year bonds bearing four-percent interest.

He had begun a vast land reform program, established industrial and agricultural co-operatives. He set up schools, inaugurated slum clearance programs, drove the gamblers, dope pedlars and prostitutes into hiding—or into more legitimate activities.

FELT FREE BRIEFLY

At long last the people felt they were free. The hungry ate happily most of the blooded breeding stock of the vast, foreign-owned ranches.

Castro did something else, too. He established a 300,000-man militia force and armed them initially with left - over U.S. equipment.

With increased guidance from known Communists, he moved steadily to the left. In the plush Havana hotels, once swarming with tourists, Russian and Red Chinese trade missions appeared.

Steadily, the $1,000,000,000 annual trade between the United States and Cuba dwindled as the U.S. government, more and more convinced of Castro's anti-American, pro - Communist attitudes, applied economic pressures, especially by denying Cuba access to the American sugar market.

Some Cubans who had once supported Castro began accusing him of betraying the revolution.

Castro's militia stamped out opposition. At least 639 people—the known count — were stood against walls and shot.

250,000 CUBANS LEAVE HOME

Out of Cuba came doctors, lawyers, agronomists, salesmen, mechanics, managers and engineers. In time, about 250,000 refugees accumulated in Miami.

The United States, through its Central Intelligence Agency, began recruiting anti - Castro Cubans.

In the jungles of Guatemala and elsewhere, a Cuban liberation force, 1,500 strong, took shape. They were given U.S. arms and trained by U.S. agents.

But all was not well within the anti-Castro forces. Some former Batista adherents were given command functions. They wrangled with those who had opposed Batista.

Among the refugees there was no unity—and still isn't.

There was total absence of a political program from Cuba, one which might draw Cubans away from Castro.

And then it was April 17, the day the U.S.-backed forces were to bring the overthrow of the new tyrant.

BOMB AIRFIELDS

Two days before some Second World War B-26 bombers had attacked Castro's airfields, knocking out four of Castro's U.S.-made T-33 training jobs.

Now a couple of rust bucket cargo ships were standing off the Bay of Pigs with the main invasion force. This beach had a single road leading to a junction that spread into the heart of Cuba. The single road was flanked by mangrove swamps on both sides.

These 1,500 men had come to do battle with Castro's tank-equipped forces, well supported by artillery. They landed at a point that was quickly and easily reachable by Castro's reserve forces.

The fact that an invasion was imminent was not secret. The refugees talked freely. U.S. newspaprs printed stories and pictures of men training.

Apparently the invaders assumed the Cuban people would rise and join them. There was a flaw in the assumption. Nobody had told the people the invasion was actually in progress and the time to act was now.

ARMOR HITS BOTTOM

Post - invasion reports indicated the invasion ships weren't even loaded for combat. One ship carried the bulk of the invaders' armor, communications equipment and anti-tank guns. It was sunk.

These same reports similarly indicated the necessity of establishing air supremacy over the landing area was ignored and provisions were not made for over-the-beach supply.

Castro simply rolled his tanks and artillery into position and plastered the invaders. His remaining armed jet trainers swept the skies clean of opposition and then conventrated on the ground troops.

Only one thing could have saved the invasion force: U.S. jets armed with rockets and jellied gasoline, both effective against tanks, ground personnel and artillery. They never appeared.

A few of the invaders escaped the deadly beach. Of the total force, 1,214 were captured. The others were killed.

Pro - Castro Cubans were elated. The "colossus of the north" had suffered an ignominous defeat. In nation after nation there were anti-U.S. demonstrations.

SEEKS RANDSOM

After 1,179 of the prisoners received 30-year sentences April 7 for treason, Castro offered to free them in exchange for payment of $62,000,000, ranging from $25,000 up to $500,000 each for the three leaders. A committee of Cuban exiles was formed to meet with the Cuban premier.

In the wake of the invasion, arms shipments from Russia, Czechoslovakia and Red China rose to $100,000,000 worth.

The economic well-being of Cuba was tied directly to that of the Communist bloc in a series of barter deals in which Cuba was to swap sugar for needed goods.

In the United States there were charges that ther e had been a grievous breakdown in intelligence operations. The three top men in the CIA later retired, although everybody involved insisted the retirements had nothing to do with Cuba.

Meanwhile, President Kennedy embargoed all trade with Cuba, excepting only food and medicine.

Otherwise, Washington waits, hoping that perhaps Castro's inefficiency may bring about the collapse military inefficiency prevented the United States from achieving.
