Living Costs Hit Record

Six of Seven Components Of Index Show Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Living costs in Canada rose to a record high in November with the consumer price index increasing three-tenths of a point or one-fifth of one per cent to 135.9 from 135.6 a month earlier.

The bureau of statistics said Tuesday that the index for the early part of November was 1.4 per cent higher than the November, 1963, index of 134. The index is based on 1949 prices equalling 100.

Six of the seven main components of the index showed increases, with the transportation index unchanged.

The index of average weekly wages and salaries was 204.9 in September, compared with 203 a month earlier and 196 a year previous.

The November food index rose four-fifths of one per cent to 132 from 131 in October. Prices were higher for eggs, lard, beef, oranges, potatoes, tomatoes, celery, dairy products and honey. Lower prices were reported for sugar, grapefruit, bananas, apples, lettuce, cabbage, onions, canned fruit and vegetables and fresh and cured pork.

The housing index increased to 139.3 from 139.2.

The clothing index rose slightly to 120.9 from 120.7, reflecting higher prices for some items of men's and children's wear, footwear and laundry and dry cleaning services. Prices for women's winter wear and cotton and wool dress material were lower.

Despite a slight increase in taxi fares in Regina the transportation index was unchanged 141.4.

The health and personal care index advanced to 171.1 from 170.4. Higher prices for prescriptions and other pharmaceuticals were not sufficient to move the health care component but the personal care component advanced as a result of increased prices for personal supplies, men's haircuts and women's hairdressing.

The tobacco and alcohol index rose to 121.6 from 121.4. Both components increased with higher prices for cigarettes and tobacco in some cities and higher liquor prices in Manitoba.

Five Die in Farmhouse Fire

SCHOMBERG, Ont. (CP) — Five children died in a blazing farmhouse near here Tuesday.

An earlier report of a possible sixth fatality was later denied when it was learned that Terry Sparks, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Sparks was away for the night. A daughter, Wendy, 21, was staying with a friend.

The dead Sparks children are Dale 23, Ricky 13, Patrick 11, Michael 6 and Donny 4.

They were trapped on the upstairs floor of a two-storey brick home which was destroyed by the time firemen arrived about 6:30 a.m.

Both Nobleton and Schomberg fire departments were called, but were powerless to stop the fire.

Mr. and Mrs. Sparks were sleeping downstairs with Danny, 2. They escaped from the 102-year-old brick farmhouse.

Mr. Sparks said he was awakened by smoke and flames at about 5:30 a.m. He yelled to the children to rush to a window, then ran upstairs and managed to rescue Maureen, 12 and Karen 9.

The Sparks' home was 4½ miles southwest of here, two miles west of Highway 27.

No Work Seen For Unskilled

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Gordon Shrum says that British Columbia is now so affluent that the prosperity boom has probably reached its limit.

"During the next decade in B.C. there'll be a great shortage of skilled workers of all kinds but there will be no employment opportunities for unskilled workers," he said.

Russ Luxury Ship Aims at Tourism

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—The Soviet Union's first effort at building a luxury liner lay anchored here Tuesday, 19,860 tons of a Russian concept of capitalist comfort.

"It's a classless ship," said Capt. Mikhail Grigorov.

But some of the cabins are more classless than others.

"There are differences between cabins, and there are differences in prices," said the captain.

The Ivan Franko — spearhead of a methodical assault on the tourist market—brought 642 Soviet tourists on its maiden voyage.

The liner is headed for Odessa with stops at London, Nice and Naples.

Next summer she will ply between Leningrad and London with stops at Scandinavian ports.

"On this and other luxury Soviet ships," Capt. Grigorov went on, "every passenger will enjoy Russian hospitality — a warm reception from the hearts of the Russian people."

CAPITALIST TRAPPINGS

The Ivan Franko has a lot of the trappings of capitalism all right.

A music salon with a palm court orchestra.

A chrome decorated hall labelled in Russian and English—"gambling machines."

A steam - heated swimming pool.

Television, radio sets and juke boxes.

"I chose the records myself," said the chief purser. "There's some classical music—but most of the records are twist."

"No Beatles," he added.

The price for a 12-day round trip — London to Leningrad—will be just over £40 ($120).

All of the ships servants are girls and women wearing blue uniforms with gold braid.

Johnson-Wilson Nuclear Defence Talks Continue

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson and Britain's Prime Minister Wilson searched Tuesday for a satisfactory way to bring about a major reshuffling of the Western world's nuclear defences, but wound up saying further discussions are necessary.

The president and prime minister concluded two days of conferences, and then said, in a joint communique, that they agreed that their objective, on a nuclear defence is "to co-operate in finding the arrangements which best meet the legitimate interests of all members of the (Atlantic) alliance, while maintaining existing safeguards on the use of nuclear weapons, and preventing their further proliferation."

They added that, while a number of elements of this problem were considered in what they called an initial exchange of views, this was "a preliminary to further discussions among interested members of the alliance."

Wilson today visits Prime Minister Pearson in Ottawa.

In their communique, the U.S. chief executive and the Labor prime minister called for increased initiatives to promote on a world-wide basis efforts to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons to countries not now possessing them.

AIM IS PEACE

They "reaffirmed their determination to continue to contribute to the maintenance of peace and stability in the Middle East and the Far East."

"In this connection they recognized the particular importance of the military effort which both their countries are making in support of legitimate governments in Southeast Asia, particularly in Malaysia and South Viet Nam, which seek to maintain their independence and to resist subversion."

The communique was written in general terms. And, in keeping with this, the two said they agreed their meeting "was only the first stage in their consultation in which the matters that they had discussed would need to be examined in greater detail."

This apparent prelude to further meetings gave no clues as to when or where the next one might be held.

Canada for Disarming If Others Do the Same

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has indicated to the United Nations it would like nothing better than to get rid of its armed forces — provided, of course, that other countries did.

"Even the total elimination of all existing (Canadian) defence forces and expenditures today would involve a shift of resources only one - seventh as great as was required in the demobilization period after the Second World War," the government says in a report filed with UN headquarters.

The report, the second on the topic, was submitted in response to UN Secretary-General U Thant's request for estimates of the effects on national economies from general and complete disarmament.

"The experience gained from the successful post-war demobilization led to the conclusion that Canada could cope successfully with the much smaller problem of shifting resources after disarmament today," the report says.

Canada's armed forces now number about 120,000 and some 45,000 civilians support them. Annual defence expenditures are more than $1,500,000,000.

PRESS FOR TREATY

Meanwhile, it was reported that Canada and its Western allies at the 17-nation Geneva disarmament talks will press next year for a nuclear test ban treaty which will include underground testing.

The present treaty, signed by more than 100 countries, bans nuclear testing in the atmosphere and underwater.

Canada, in concert with other countries, has been carrying out seismic studies for detection of underground nuclear explosions as well as of earthquakes. Atmospheric and underwater nuclear tests now can be detected anywhere in the world and the object is to make underground tests equally detectable.

17 Hunting Deaths in B.C.

VICTORIA (CP) — The B.C. deer hunting season, which ended Sunday, claimed 17 human lives.

That's the unofficial toll determined by the province's fish and game branch on the basis of official and verbal reports so far received.

Charles Estlin, chief conservation officer, attributed the rise in fatalities to carelessness.

Discovery Puts Man in Alberta 7000 Years Ago

CALGARY (CP) — A lucky scoop by an earth-moving machine last March unearthed a buffalo kill by nomadic tribesmen that took place 7000 years ago in Southern Alberta, an archaeologist said Monday.

Brian Reeves, graduate archaeology student at the university of Alberta, Calgary, told a meeting of the Archaeology Society of Alberta that the discovery near a water hole southeast of Taber, 30 miles East of Lethbridge, sparked further investigation by UAC's Archaeology Foundation.

Mr. Reeves said results of the investigations will be published in the near future.

He said the tribesmen were "nomadic and are believed to have come across the Bering Straits."

Tremblay Says Still Awaiting Full Order; Lamontagne Still Paying

OTTAWA (CP) — Two federal cabinet ministers denied Tuesday accepting gifts in the form of furniture from a now-bankrupt Montreal company.

State Secretary Lamontagne said he began buying $6056.28 worth of furniture in 1961 from a firm headed by Max and Adolph Sefkind.

He had received a bill for this amount Jan. 21, 1964, he said.

The Sefkinds' company was already in bankruptcy at that time, he said during an interview, and the Bank of Montreal had been appointed to collect the outstanding accounts. In March this year Mr. Lamontagne had paid $1000 and offered to pay the rest at $200 a month.

"There was never any question of a gift of any sort," Mr. Lamontagne said. "Mr. Sefkind never received any favor through me from the government."

At the same time, Immigration Minister Tremblay held a press conference to state that he had bought about $4,000 worth of furniture from a now-bankrupt company and that Max Sefkind was part of that company.

PAYS BILL

Mr. Tremblay said he had received no gifts, furniture or money, had made no down payment pending receipt of the full order, including two love seats, and the total bill and had paid the outstanding amount after the firm had gone into bankruptcy.

Mr. Tremblay said he bought the furniture "in the autumn of '62 or early in '63." He said it was before the 1963 election when he still was Quebec deputy minister of industry.

Later, Mr. Tremblay told The Canadian Press he doesn't remember the exact date the furniture waso rdered.

"I checked my wife and she says it was sometime in the summer of 1963; after the federal election of April 8, 1963."

Was this order placed while you still were a deputy minister in the Quebec government, he was asked.

"No," he replied.

He said the Rec-stone loan was paproved by him "sometime at the end of '61 or in '62 but I'm not sure at all."

He also said Max Sefkind was also part of another firm, Rec-stone, which received a loan of $600,000 or $700,000 from a Quebec municipality after he and two other Quebec deputy ministers sanctioned it.

Mr. Tremblay was deputy minister of industry in the Lesage government from 1960 until 1963 when he was elected to Parliament.

Prime Minister Pearson said, when asked for comment on the ministerial statements:

"I make no comment until I have all the facts, in contrast to allegations and innuendoes. When I have all the facts, I'll make any statement that is appropriate."

Mr. Lamontagne said he told Prime Minister Pearson about his furniture purchases after a question appeared on the Commons order paper Nov. 27.

MP QUESTIONS

The question by Donald MacInnis, PC—Cape Breton South) asks:

"Arising out of the investigation into bankruptcy frauds now in progress in Montreal, has the government secured any information showing that the records and documents connected with bankruptcy proceedings by Max and Adolph Sefkind and-or their companies disclose contributions for campaign purposes to any cabinet ministers or other MPs and, if so, to whom and in what amounts?"

Mr. Tremblay also said he had discussed the matter with Mr. Pearson but, when asked the date of this discussion, said his talk had been with Mr. Lamontagne and that Mr. Lamontagne had spoken to the prime minister.

Mr. Lamontagne said the firm from which he had bought the furniture had received no favors from the government.

He said his purchases were made in 1961, when he furnished a house in Ottawa, and in December, 1963, when he rented an apartment in Montreal after the Liberal government took office and he became a cabinet minister. Mr. Lamontagne represents Montreal Outremont-St. Jean in the Commons.

'PRIVATE CITIZEN'

The 1961 purchases, amounting to $3,547, were made "when I was a private citizen," Mr. Lamontagne said.

In December, 1963, he had rented the Montreal apartment because of his frequent trips there and had received the furniture bill Jan. 21, 1964, for a total amount of $6,056.28.

Mr. Lamontagne said he had long been a friend of one of the Sefkinds.

"If we are not allowed to buy furniture we may as well go back to igloos."

Mr. Lamontagne said any attempt to connect him with possible fraud in the bankruptcy of the Montreal firm "seems to me to be going too far."

He said that when he first bought furniture for his Ottawa home in 1961, Mr. Sefkind had told him there was no pressure for payment but it was clearly understood the furniture was not a gift and would be paid for.

MEET AT STORE

He said he had met Mr. Sefkind some time before at the official opening of the furniture store to which he had gone with a friend.

At the time Prosper Boulanger, Liberal MP for Montreal Mercier, was manager of the store. Mr. Lamontagne said he had not met Mr. Boulanger before that.

Mr. Boulanger was first elected to the Commons in 1962 and was re-elected in 1963.

Mr. Tremblay said he had bought Italian- and French-style furniture for his Quebec City home.

He had made the purchase after seeing furniture in the home and office of a friend of 20 years, Gerard Levesque.

Mr. Tremblay identified Mr. Levesque as having acted on behalf of Rec-Stone in obtaining a loan from the municipality of Ville d'Anjou.

APPROVE LOAN

The loan application was investigated and approved by three provincial government departments, including the one of which Mr. Tremblay was deputy minister.

Mr. Tremblay said he met Max Sefkind at the home of Mr. Levesque and that Mr. Sefkind was at the company showroom when he made visits there to pick out furniture.

"Max was there; he has an office there but most of the time I was working with a decorator, a lady from Quebec City," Mr. Tremblay said.

"I don't remember her name," he added.

Mr. Tremblay said that he got a new bill each time a new piece of furniture was delivered "but I was waiting for the rest of the full bill."

"I'm still waiting for two love seats."

Limited Nuclear Club Pressed

By CARMAN CUMMING

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The General Assembly heard separate appeals from Canada and Ireland Tuesday for action to halt expansion of the "nuclear club."

Using similar language, External Affairs Minister Martin of Canada and External Affairs Minister Frank Aiken of Ireland called for agreements under which the nuclear powers would pledge not to give control of nuclear weapons to other countries and the non-nuclear countries would agree not to acquire or manufacture them.

Martin, making Canada's annual policy statement before the 115 - member assembly, said China's October nuclear test had pointed up the need to halt spread of nuclear weapons.

"We deeply regret that the Chinese Communist government should have chosen to disregard world opinion in such deliberate fashion."

But we hoped that the Chinese test would give fresh urgency to efforts to reach agreement on limiting "the spread of independent military nuclear capability."

STOPS SPREAD

Outside the assembly, Marti said such an agreement would have no bearing on the proposed NATO multilateral nuclear force. He said the MLF concept would not alter the "control position" of the United States and in fact was designed to prevent proliferation of nuclear weapons.

He said Canada's acceptance of U.S. nuclear warheads for defensive Bomarc missiles also did not involve proliferation since the U.S. retained control.

Ireland's Aiken linked the Chinese nuclear blast with the question of seating the Peking regime in the UN.

Parliament

By The Canadian Press

The Commons spent its seventh day on the current flag debate, defeating a Conservative motion to adjourn to other business.

Jack Horner (PC-Acadia) moved that the House adjourn the flag question and allow the question period to be resumed.

The motion was defeated by a vote of 139 to 66, four Quebec Conservatives voting with the government and one Liberal against it.

Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste - Lapointe) said debate totalled 1,257,600 words on the flag, indicating "all madmen are not locked up."

Marcel Lambert (PC-Edmonton West) said Mr. Gregoire wanted to gag the Conservatives.

Douglas Sisher (NDP-Port Arthur) said he is one of many veterans who don't share the Royal Canadian Legion view of keeping the Red Ensign.

Deathbed Marriages Pension Poser

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canada Pension Plan would put the welfare minister in the delicate position of deciding whether "deathbed marriages" are motivated by love or the prospect of a widow's pension.

If the minister decides that some mercenary young filly married an ailing old codger only for the posthumous reward, the pension can be reduced in amount if the marriage occurred less than three years before death.

MPs and senators on the parliamentary pensions committee had the provision explained in detail Tuesday by the government officials who drew up the Pension Plan legislation.

Gordon Aiken (PC — Parry Sound-Muskoka) suggested it is wrong in principle to give any minister the right to decide on the reasons for a marriage.

The so-called "deathbed marriage" provision piles one complication upon another. Ordinarily, these are the pensions for a contributor's widow:

If she is over 65, she gets 37½ per cent of what her husband's own pension would have been — his pension is a maximum $104.17 a month at the start—plus the old age security payment in amounts ranging from $51 at age 65 to $75 at age 70, depending on the age at which the payment is claimed.

If she is between 45 and 65, she gets the 37½-per-cent benefit plus a flat-rate benefit starting at a basic $25 monthly. A widow with dependent children gets the same, regardless of age. But a childless widow under 45 has the benefits reduced for each month by which she is short of age 45 until there are no benefits at all under age 35.

Then comes the case of the "deathbed marriage."

In a rare double negative, the bill provides that "if the minister is not satisfied that anticipation of impending death was not a consideration affecting the agreement to marry," the widow's pension is reduced.

If the contributor died within one year of such a marriage, the pension is wiped out altogether; if within 13 months, it is reduced by 98 per cent; if within 14 months, by 96 per cent, and so on until the 36th month.

Don Thorson, assistant deputy justice minister who drafted the bill, said that in such cases the department would have to dig up enough evidence to support the minister's "suspicion." If it failed, the pension would be paid in full.

CHANGES RULES

E. E. Clark, the government's chief actuary, said that in 1954 pension legislation for the federal Civil Service, the RCMP and the armed forces was changed to provide the safeguard now proposed for the Canada pension plan. By co-incidence or otherwise, there had not since been any case of reduced widow's pensions.

Mr. Clark said the government administrators still have to deal with about two cases a month in which suspicions are aroused, but "we never have had any trouble finding the proof that the pension was not a consideration in marrying."

"There have been some peculiar cases, though," he added without elaboration.

VANCOUVER (CP) — At Christmastime for the last three years somebody has broken into Marjory Fell's apartment and stolen something.

Her special Christmas treats have been the loss of about $1000 worth of possessions including a diamond ring, string of pearls, liquor, steaks, two cameras, electrical equipment, two transistor radios, $5 in cash from a piggy bank and plum puddings. The latest entry by burglars occurred Saturday.

"I must be their very own sugar daddy," says Mrs. Fell. "No matter where I go they seem to find me."

Next year the 50-year-old practical nurse may have a policeman ready to greet the intruders.

"I'll bet they find that the plum pudding in jail isn't as good as the ones they stole from me."

Houston Memorial To Rest On Boulevard by City Hall

The ultimate fate of the John Houston Memorial, with its attending horse trough and pedestrian drinking fountain, has been decreed by city council. It will be located directly opposite its present location on the Vernon Street boulevard.

The object of much contentious discussion in previous council meetings, the memorial was first destined to a spot next to the city hall building minus its adjacent horse trough, which would be moved, at no cost to the city, by the provincial government.

Getting the discussion under way, Ald. D. F. Porteous suggested that council had "devoted too much time to the subject" and by way of deciding the matter proposed that the memorial be located in Memorial Park.

This was vetoed by Ald. M. B. Ryalls, who foresaw the park being needed for some other purpose, necessitating the moving of the memorial again. He was in favor of moving the first mayor next to the city hall building but "without the horse trough."

This incurred disfavor with Ald. Edith VanMaarion, who was all for keeping all three entities, memorial, horse trough and drinking fountain, together. Ald. Beresford wasn't in favor of the park site, and also disapproved of "cramming" the memorial against the city hall building.

A good spot, commented Ald. Ryalls, would be at the foot of Vernon Street. This found favor with Ald. H. Farenholtz, but only if the memorial was set back 25 yards from the intersection.

"It will project three inches on each side of the boulevard," said Ald. Beresford.

Concerned with the memorial's size, Ald. J. H. McMillan thought it was too large for the centre of the boulevard and that it would create a traffic problem if put on the corner. The horse trough, suggested Ald. H. Farenholtz, could be placed lengthwise on the boulevard instead of crosswise.

Too little concern for the site might necessitate re-locating the memorial at city expense, interjected Ald. Van Maarion. "Let's make up our minds," she urged, adding that the subject under discussion would have to "sit for the next 150 years," where council put it. She saw no relationship with the city's first mayor and a location at the centre of the boulevard, and thought it more fitting that the memorial be placed next to the city hall. The horse trough, however, she would leave on the boulevard.

In agreement, Mayor Bodard told council that during his six years abroad, that in almost every instance figures of famous personages were "closely allied with surrounding buildings." He described the location next to the city hall as "ideal" and that it would be "honoring the first mayor" by so locating the memorial there.

On a show of hands, a motion by Ald. Porteous that the memorial be located in Memorial Park was defeated.

At this point, the memorial and its horse trough theoretically parted company, with Ald. Van Maarion suggesting that the trough would "look out of place by itself."

If both memorial and horse trough were placed next to the city hall building, C. D. Likar said, the equestrian drinking well "wouldn't be seen." Disposing of the trough altogether, reminded Ald. Farenholtz would be tantamount to giving up a symbol that "depicted a very important pioneer era of our civilization."

Mayor Bodard disagreed with the view that the trough would be buried behind the memorial against the city hall building, and thought there would be enough space in the proposed site.

If the trough were to be placed by itself on the boulevard, Ald. Farenholtz thought it might be appropriate to put a "sculptured horse" next to it.

"Does the horse trough have any significance with the memorial?" Mr. Likar asked.

"Only to the people in Nelson," replied Mayor Bodard. The trough, he continued, depicted "an era in our generation," and that both memorial and trough were a familiar landmark to residents. Mr. Likar insisted that there was no visible connection between Nelson's first mayor and the trough, which drew the remark from Ald. Farenholtz that perhaps John Houston had possessed a string of horses. "Who's to contradict me?" he said.

Mr. Likar persisted that there was no significant association between the two and that no loss of value would be incurred by separating the pieces.

Ald. Porteous thought the memorial would "lose a lot" by being jammed against the city hall building. Asked his opinion on the subject by Ald. Van Maarion, C. W. Harper, city administrator, replied that "there would be as many different ideas on the subject as there are origins and people." He admitted that there was a "good deal of sentiment" attached to the memorial.

And, on a motion by Ald. Van Maarion, Nelson's first mayor ceased to be a transient topic of conjecture and will rest in peace on the Vernon Street boulevard across from the city hall building.

W. Anderson Heads Nelson Safety Council

William Anderson was elected president of the Nelson and District Safety Council at its regular meeting Monday. He succeeds Walter Wait.

Named vice-president was J. Reid. Honorary president is Mayor E. T. Bodard.

Re-elected by acclamation were directors E. S. Owens, Walter Wait and M. J. Severyn. Mrs. John Jonker succeeds Mr. Severyn in the secretarial duties, with the latter continuing as treasurer.

It was decided to order 1000 Christmas tree safety tags for distribution to local residents as a warning against the hazards of Christmas tree fires.

Letters of invitation for membership in the council will be written to the newly appointed health officer, as well as the assistant superintendent of the CPR and other industrial officials.

Sgt. J. Vecchio reported that two road blocks set up during safety week had helped bring out many vehicle flaws, the majority of which were tail and headlight defects. There was a report of one accident during safety week, and no injuries were incurred during that period.

It was noted that attendance at the baby-sitting class had been well attended, and that the second session will be held in the early part of the New Year.

A letter to provincial safety council representative, J. Kershaw, for the forwarding of a senior citizen home safety film entitled, "A Matter of Seconds," has been written, the meeting was told.

Other business included a recommendation that a report of each meeting be forwarded to the press.

It was also suggested that the city public works department submit a monthly report to the Safety Council, and that a representative of the City Safety Council attend district meetings.

Sgt. Emil Heroux reported that the entire force of the Auxiliary Police had been active during Safety Week.

Postage Stamp Sales Increase

Business generally was down during the month of November in the Nelson Post Office with only one exception.

Total transactions amounted to $176,634, down almost $7000 from the month of October. The office issued 4149 money orders and paid out 3967. Sale of postage stamps and supplies brought in $13,348.87, up by over $1000 from October. Other revenue amounted to $541.

Contracts Called on Bridge, Road Projects at Brilliant, Says Black

Contracts for both the Kootenay River Bridge near Brilliant and Brilliant bluffs road reconstruction have been called, but "no bids have been taken as yet," Hon. W. D. Black, minister of welfare and MLA for Nelson-Creston, told a meeting of the Nelson Chamber of Commerce Tuesday afternoon.

He added that the contracts would involve some $2,000,000, which was "over and above" predicted estimates. He said that the "onus is on you".

Work on relocation of poles on the Brilliant bluffs by the West Kootenay Power and Light Company would begin around December 15.

Mr. Black also revealed that the Treasury Board had okayed the Silver King Road improvement project in Nelson, with the government sharing costs on a 50-50 basis with the city. Mr. Black noted too, that the road to the Ski Club had also been completed.

Referring to the Kootenay Bay area, where a recreation survey had been taken, the minister said there was a "large sum of private capital" waiting to be spent, and urged that preparations be made for the "pay-off" when investors were ready to make plans.

"This certainly fulfills what Hon. P. A. Gagliardi promised us," chairman H. Farenholtz told the meting by way of thanking the minister for his informative talk. He then invited questions from the floor.

CITES HAZARDS

Answering a question by C. E. Marlatt about hazardous conditions at the junction of Nelson Bridge and Johnston road, the minister replied that "there is only so much money to go around."

He said that some re-paving and relocating work was being done on the Balfour road.

roads" out of Nelson, Tom West the total pictaure.

Mr. Marlatt added that existing traffic hazards at the junction were serious and that "someone is going to get hurt." He cited a large rock near Kokanee Lodge as another traffic danger and suggested its removal when the road was relocated.

Mr. Farenholtz said the problem was a local one and that it should be taken up with the district engineer.

"I have, but nothing's been done about it," Mr. Marlatt replied. He then queried the minister about the possibility of a bridge on Ymir Road. "Two bridges," corrected the chairman.

"That's a rumor," Mr. Black answered, but he added that highways were "high on the priority list and that it was a question of the "dollar pool." He said that requests for highway improvement had been made for Nelson, Cottonwood and Taghum, and it was "very difficult to make estimates." Reports had been submitted to the Treasury Board, he continued, and word was expected by the first week in January.

Concerned with the "crooked said that Nelson business had inof the North Shore told the minister that due to the curvature of the highway, it was necessary to drive at a speed of 20 miles an hour.

NEED STAGGERING

The minister illustrated his reply with a blackboard sketch of surrounding highways and explained their development in relation to funds available. He described the amount of money Nelson needed for road improvement as "staggering" and that the city represented only 1/52 of the total picture.

Mr. Black referred to skepticism directed at the building of the road into Lardeau as "extremely foolish", and described it as a "bread and butter road."

Even business was better, the minister told the meeting. He said that Nelson business had increased from five to 25 per cent and that it represented a lot in dollars and cents.

A suggestion from the floor that local roads were "the same as they have been for the last 20 years," drew fire from the minister, who labelled the claim false, and traced area road progress as far back as 1952.

"This is our future and Nelson is in the centre of it," Mayor E. T. Bodard told the meeting in remarks relative to the importance of roads in the area as increasing the tourist dollar. He referred to the Duncan and High Arrow dams as being "major attractions" in this regard, and warned that only with the improvement of roads and tourist accommodations could the city benefit from the forthcoming affluence resulting from the major hydro-electric project.

Mr. Marlatt asked the minister why land to be flooded by the proposed Duncan and High Arrow Dam project, was not to be cleared before inundation.

Mr. Black quoted a letter by Hon. R. G. Williston, minister of lands, forest and water resources, which explained that areas would be cleared to the extent warranted by circumstances, and cited costs inherent in land clearing as one of the reasons it was not considered.

This was refuted by Mr. Marlatt, who said the cost of land-clearing was a part of the American contract involving some $4,000,000. Based on a land-clearing area of 12,000 acres, Mr. Marlatt pointed out, this worked out to approximately $400 an acre, and he thought the job could be done for $250 an acre. He said a lot of people were "perturbed" about the matter.

Mr. Farenholtz said that briefs on the subject had already been submitted to Victoria. "I don't think there are any commitments," the minister interjected.

Warning against "history repeating itself," Mayor Bodard cited the instance at Kitimat where trees had been uprooted by a freeze-up and left floating afterwards in the lake to a depth of eight feet. He said the same circumstance could occur with Duncan Dam if trees were left standing.

Besides his wife, he is survived by one son, John F., of Nelson; one brother, Andrew, of Turriff, Scotland; four sisters, Mrs. Charles Lorimer, of Vancouver; Miss Helen Towler and Miss Isabel Towler, both of Turriff, Scotland, and Mrs. William Calder, of Gasgow; and four grandchildren.

Three Hurt In Crash Near Brilliant

CASTLEGAR (Staff) — Two men were taken to Castlegar and District Hospital Tuesday morning suffering from various injuries while a third was treated at the hospital and released following a car-truck collision on Highway No. 3-A near Brilliant.

Suffering from multiple lacerations, concussions and a fractured jaw is John Miscavatich of Castlegar, the most seriously injured of the three men. Doctors state his condition has improved from poor to fair.

Also admitted to hospital was William Hackman of Robson. It is understood that his injuries are not serious.

Police state that the mishap occurred when their car went out of control on an icy stretch of highway, fish-tailed and collided sideways with an oncoming truck.

The driver of the car, Ralph Vecchio of Castlegar, suffered only bruises in the accident.

The truck, owned by West Kootenay Power and driven by Herb Lancaster of Taghum, left the road after striking the car and came to a stop in a shallow ditch.

Damage to the two vehicles was estimated at $600.

A 16-year-old juvenile from Crescent Valley was fined $15 and costs by Judge William Evans on a charge of driving without insurance. The youth pleaded guilty when he appeared in family and juvenile court Tuesday.

In provincial police court, R. A. Hamstom of Nelson pleaded guilty to operating a motor vehicle without a driver's licence and was fined $15 and costs by Magistrate William Evans.

Victor W. Green of Robson was fined $15 and costs for allowing a minor to drive without a licence. He pleaded guilty.

Failing to stop at a stop sign netted Erik Baillie of R. R. No. 1, Nelson, a fine of $10 and costs. He pleaded guilty.

Long E. Westgate of Penticton pleaded guilty to a charge of ineffectively braking his car while parking and was fined $10 and costs in city magistrate's court.

Mining Firm Ordered Open Books to Day

SPOKANE (AP) — Sunshine Mining Company, a rich silver producer with holdings in British Columbia, was under federal court order Tuesday to open its books to George W. Day, California contractor, in a fight for control of the company.

U.S. District Judge Raymond F. Kelly signed an order Monday directing the company to provide Day with a copy of its bylaws and a list of stockholders, as he asked in his suit.

Day, who owns 35,000 shares of Sunshine stock, sued for access to the records. He said he needed the information to call a stockholders' meeting to consider a change in Sunshine's management.

Sunshine contended Day wanted the records to make it easier for him to manipulate the company's stock on the market to the detriment of the company and its shareholders.

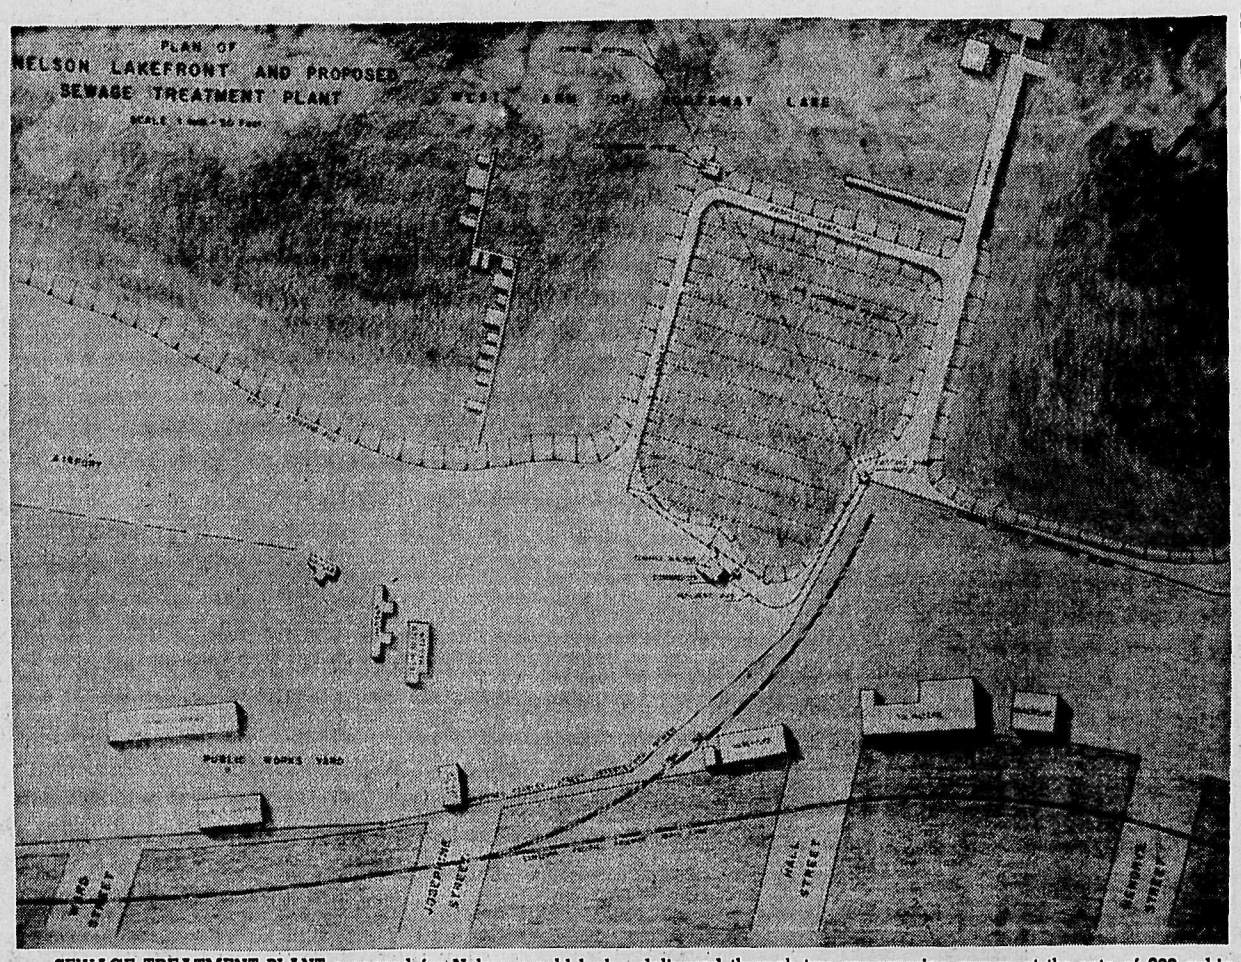
Sunshine has risen nearly 20 points in recent months, closing Monday at 30½. The company operates one of the largest silver mines in the U.S., near Kellogg, Idaho.

Balfour Guild Votes $150

BALFOUR — Th assessment was voted $150 at a meeting of the Ladies' Guild to St. Michael's and All Angels Church.

These funds have been raised by the workers through sales, card parties, catering and teas. The members agreed to decorate the church for the Christmas service, with Mrs. T. Craigdallie appointed church cleaner for the month. No guild meeting will be held in December.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. D. R. Anderson.



SEWAGE TREATMENT PLANT proposed for Nelson would look like this from the air. The sketch shows pool area as it would appear beside the government wharf at the foot of Hall Street. Property owners vote Saturday on a bylaw seeking authorization to borrow $250,000 to build the plant. Designed for population of 15,000, the plant treats sewage wastes by an aeration system in which air is delivered through two compression pumps at the rate of 800 cubic feet a minute. It is stated that the plant could handle 100 gallons of sewage a day per person. Control building is shown at shoreside of plant, pumphouse, linked to sewer lines from Fairview and the city, near wharf, and chlorination house at upper left corner of pool. — Sketch was drawn by city planner G. A. Butling.

Says Crescent Valley Personnel May Move To Castlegar Airport

CASTLEGAR — The possibility of increased use of the Castlegar airport next year was broached at the village commission meeting this week.

Airport committee chairman R. A. D. West told the civic commission that he is "reasonably certain" that personnel now operating the Crescent Valley radio range will move to the Castlegar airport in the next year "where they will be in a position to assist with the landing of aircraft."

It is expected that the Crescent Valley facilities will be operated by remote control from Castlegar.

PROJECTS FOR '65

Mr. West said if the proposed extensions are passed by Parliament, two main projects will be carried out next year. These include extending the north end of the runway by 600 feet and the moving of the existing fan marker on the north end of the runway to the north side of the Nelson highway at the foot of Sentinel Mountain.

Additional land was purchased three years ago, for the runway extension, Mr. West noted, and application has been made for land lying on the west side of the airport property and east of the proposed highway for additional facilities.

However, Mr. West's letter cautioned, there is no guarantee these works will be carried out "until it has actually been included in the budget."

Last Rites Held For 31-Year-Old Michel-Natal Man

NATAL — Funeral service was held in Natal at St. Michael's Catholic Church for Eddie A. Nelson, a resident of the Natal-Michel district for the past 17 years, who died at Fernie Memorial Hospital after a brief illness at the age of 31.

Rev. L. M. Trainor officiated.

Born in Eastend, Sask., in 1933, Mr. Nelson came to the Michel district with his parents in the fall of 1947. He completed his schooling in this area and for the past few years has worked as an employee of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company at Michel.

He was a member of Michel Local 7292, United Mine Workers of America.

Surviving are his wife, Sadie, and three children, the eldest five years of age; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Nelson, and one brother, Leonard, all of Natal.

Graveside service was conducted by Michel Union with last rites administered by member Steve Harmotny. Pallbearers were Mike Latka, Arthur Lowe, Bud Morgan, Henry Gauthier, Louis Janco and Albert Perry.

RESTART CASE

SASKATOON (CP) — Judge W. G. E. Campbell ruled Monday that the Crown must restart its prosecution of Patrick Roy Parenteau of Saskatoon on a charge of shooting with intent to wound. The Crown said it would appeal the ruling, whcih followed defence counsel argument that a restart should be made because the Crown had entered a stay of proceedings when its chief witness was not immediately available.

Council Irked When Not Told Of Underpass

TRAIL — Although announcement of proposed construction of an underpass on Eighth Avenue at McBride Street was welcomed by city council this week, the fact that the announcement came through a local paper rather than through the civic body brought forth aldermanic comments.

News of the construction was given to a local newspaper by district highways superintendent A. E. Straite. The city safety council approved.

Ald. Barnsley thought the city manager should be advised of such matters more completely than he was in this instance.

Ald. Barnsley insisted the government ought to consult with Mr. Taylor upon the location of the underpass and its design, before proceeding with its construction.

Mayor Joseph Palyga agreed.

"I was disappointed," said the mayor, "at the manner in which it was announced, bypassing the city council."

However, said the mayor, he was "most pleased" to see the underpass was to be built.

Castlegar to Have Celebration For New Status

CASTLEGAR — A three-day celebration to mark the occasion of Castlegar assuming town status has been set for Feb. 26, 27 and 28, it was anounced this week.

Highlight of the celebration will be a civic banquet at which it is hoped Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell will be present. A proposed revue (on the lines of "Spring Thaw") if undertaken by the Kinnaird Little Theatre group, may overshadow the banquet it is thought. The revue would take place on the first night, a Friday, and spoof many of the municipal controversies that have dotted Castlegar's history.

The civic banquet honoring ex-commissioners and municipal clerks will follow as yet unannounced events on Saturday.

Elderly people would be honored guests at a Sunday afternoon tea with the possibility of a joint evening dedication service that night.

Two Seats in Natal, Sewer System in Fernie Topics in December Vote

Two seats on the Natal village commission and a proposed $143,000 storm sewer scheme for Fernie will be listed on ballots in the two Crow's Nest centres on Dec. 12, municipal election date.

Contesting the two seats are four men, Joseph Altomare, who is running again after holding one of the seats for the past two years, and Joseph Katrichak, former commissioner during 1961 and '62, also two newcomers to civic politics, John Myles and Amelio DeAnna.

The Fernie storm sewer issue must have 60 per cent approval. Its objective is to prevent recurring flooding of northend and annex properties when sanitary sewers are unable to handle surface drainage.

Considered several years ago, the project was abandoned at the time because of economic conditions.

Improvements to the existing system are estimated to cost $8650, leaving $134,350 for the rest of the work.

It is planned to repay the cost of the work over 20 years at approximately $12,000 per year, including principal and interest. It is hoped that the project will be found eligible for a federal loan from the Municipal Development Fund which, with a forgiveness clause, would reduce the debt to $120,000, reducing the annual payment to about $10,000 per year. Further savings are possible through the federal-provincial winter work grants.

SOUND CONDITION

The city is in sound condition to tackle the project, with its indebtedness only $8861 at present. It is a comparatively small portion of the city's assessment, which this year totals $2,410,655.

Natal Residents Enthusiastic About Moving

NATAL (CP) — Village commissioner Siro Cimolini says the people of Natal like the idea of moving out.

They have given an enthusiastic reception to a government plan to relocate them at Sparwood, 3½ miles away.

The proposal is to move Natal, Michel and Middleton — mining communities with a combined population of about 1300 — off Trans-Provincial Highway No. 3 to give a better impression to tourists entering British Columbia.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell has called them an eyesore. Tiny homes blackened by dust from the Crows Nest Pass Coal Company line the highway.

Natal residents own their property and homes. Middleton and Michel are company towns.

"If this move comes off, it will mean the creation of a brand new community, with better, cleaner houses and improved services," says commissioner Cimolini.

FRASER VALLEY LAND OFFERED FOR RELOCATION

VANCOUVER (CP) — Land in the Fraser Valley is being offered families forced from their homes by the Arrow Lakes dam reservoir, B.C. Hydro and Power Authority has anounced.

With completion of the second of three dams in the Columbia River power project still more than three years away, Hydro has offered to sell 50 lots between Vancouver and Chilliwack at "attractive" prices, said a spokesman.

Some 2,000 persons from 670 homes will eventually be displaced by the Arrow Dam, which will flood the Arrow Lakes region between Castlegar and Revelstoke, about 300 miles northeast of Vancouver.

Hydro has purchased 124 properties in the dam reservoir to date, and negotiations with other property owners are continuing.

Roads Blocked as Large Crowds Attend Opening

Visitors to Willowhaven Hospital at Willow Point, numbering more than 300, left behind them a happy group of patients who received a great lift from the attention of the many guests and from entertainment provided during the afternoon.

While opening ceremonies were carried on outside the infirmary, with Hon. W. D. Black presenting Mrs. P. Offerman with a new license for the 75-bed hospital, residents at the home were being entertained by the Nelson Choristers of Mrs. T. J. S. Ferguson, a group of boys and girls, who sang a variety of selections in the occupational therapy hall.

Also participating in the opening ceremony, F. T. Hollingsworth, architect, spoke a few words concerning the construction and details of the planning, and general contractor P. B. Ford offered a few remarks.

The dedication and prayer were given by E. A. Hircock.

J. S. M. Harts welcomed the visitors on behalf of the directors of the private hospital. A good-sized donation was received during the ceremonies from a local firm for purchase of a shuffleboard game for the patients.

Refreshments prepared by the kitchen staff at the hospital were served to the crowds of guests by members of the newly-formed Women's Auxiliary to the hospital, under the direction of Mrs. G. V. Frederiksen.

The visitors toured the new wing and other sections of the $44,000 hospital, while Mrs. P. H. Deerward looked after the guest book.

And We Thought Only an Ostrich Stuck Its Head in the Sand

Ald. Edith Van Maarion has the audacity to go on record as opposing the construction of the proposed sewage treatment plant for Nelson, at this time, on the grounds that no pollution board has yet instructed the city to refrain from dispersing raw sewage into Kootenay River.

What nonsense!

Does Alderman Van Maarion consider us comparable to insolent children who must be spanked by a higher authority before we put an end to a practice that is morally wrong — contributing to the pollution of our waterways?

British Columbia department of health officials have stated that the Columbia River near Kinnaird is polluted to a point where it is unfit for human consumption and that chlorination will not completely remove the danger.

Studies have shown that a large share of the blame must be shouldered by Nelson, which deposits large quantities of raw human and industrial wastes into the Kootenay which in turn carries it into the Columbia at Castlegar.

Yet Alderman Van Maarion does not think there is anything wrong with dumping sewage into the river.

Surely as responsible citizens it is time we stopped this practice before the state of pollution reaches a point where provincial authorities are forced to step in and compel us to do so.

How can an elected official condone the continued pouring of raw sewage into waters from which people downstream drink; from which thousands of fish we eat are caught and in which our children swim?

She points out in a paid advertisement, in which she uses incorrect figures, that the proposed sewage treatment plant would result in a rise in taxes to the ratepayer of nine dollars per year.

Actually the additional cost would be seven dollars per year.

This works out to less than sixty cents per month or two cents per day.

We think the citizens of Nelson would be willing to pay two cents a day in exchange for a pollution-free lake.

One wonders, in view of her continual banal sniping at Mayor E. T. Bodard, in council chambers, whether Alderman Van Maarion is campaigning against the sewage treatment plant as such, or merely against a proposal endorsed by the mayor.

Some observers at council have suggested she is merely campaigning in advance for the next mayoralty election.

One wonders also if Alderman Van Maarion would irresponsibly support the principle of polluting Kootenay River with thousands of tons of raw wastes if any civic minded citizen had elected to challenge her in next Saturday's voting.

Blood Money in Celluloid

While every responsible statesman is striving to ensure peace in the world, Hollywood's movie men and many TV producers are straining to keep warfare and violence from going out of style.

The film makers are now engaged in making some 18 motion pictures about the Second World War and a dozen similar epics are well advanced in planning.

On television, war dramas and documentaries can be found almost every night — in addition to large and regular doses of gun-play and mayhem from the wild west to the slums of New York.

The mass producers of "entertainment" are always ready to cash in on whatever appears to be a popular theme.

Despite repeated warnings by sociologists and others that this preponderance of bloodshed, sadism and perversion contributes to the growth of juvenile delinquency, there is no evidence that the producers' policy is changing.

One of the first television trends was the "private eye" type of show, possibly based on the success of books like the Mike Hammer series. Then came the westerns, the underwaters, the psychologicals and the medicals. Now it's war.

It may be that war-and-violence themes are popular with teenagers because teenagers have not lived through wartime and thus have no first-hand conception of the realities.

More likely this sort of "entertainment" is simply easier to grind out en masse because you don't need intelligent dialogue or unusual plots when the screen is awash with gore.

When Laments Sound so Hollow

Canadian drug firms, which in the past have come in for more ill-informed abuse than most, are in hot water again in Ottawa. It seems that only 63 out of 140 of these firms are approved as suppliers of drugs to the government.

When the government became concerned over the quality of drugs it was receiving, a set of standards was drawn up by an advisory group and sent to 140 firms who were invited to seek qualification under it. Of this number, 86 invited inspection by the federal food and drug directorate, 19 said they were not interested and 35 did not reply. Of the 86 companies inspected, all were faulted on minor points. Later, 63 made improvements and so were acceptable as suppliers to the government.

When these facts were disclosed in the House of Commons some members called them "shocking." If they are, then it can be asked at this stage who is responsible? If quality standards are to be drawn up by a government advisory group, which was so in this instance, it suggests that existing federal regulations must be inadequate or are not being properly enforced. Are they?

If the federal food and drug directorate lacks the staff and facilities to ensure that existing regulations are enforced then they should be provided with both.

There is no doubt that reputable drug manufacturers would welcome, for their own protection, a stricter enforcement of regulations. This was shown by their willingness to correct the minor faults found at the first inspection. As for those who are unwilling or unable to meet federal requirements, the remedy rests with the government. Certainly there can be no excuse for lamentation when the ability to correct faults already exists.

The drug companies have become a favorite whipping boy, particularly for politicians. It has become a popular practice to scourge them when an opportunity offers. When regulations are ignored, the powers to correct them should be used; when they are not, lamentations sound hollow. — Hamilton Spectator.

White Mercenaries Came to Africa For Varied Reasons; Died Same Death

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)— Some came for adventure and some for pay. Some came for a chance to serve the cause of a peaceful Africa, as they see it.

These are the men the world calls Premier Moise Tshombe's "white mercenaries" — several hundred volunteers spearheading Tshombe's drive against the rebels in The Congo.

Although most don't speak a word of French, they prefer to be called by the term Les Mercenaries—it seems to add class to their trade.

What are they like?

Take Lieut. Jeremy Spencer, 25, a scion of a rich north of England family.

Pay meant next to nothing to him: Adventure did and he died with a rebel bullet in his head as he sat in the front line in a deckchair, languidly directing the battle with a sword.

Grizzled and tattooed veterans of many wars, whose every second word is a curse, still go misty-eyed when they talk of him.

They miss the way this tall, slender Englishman gave orders. They miss, above all, his ice-cold nonchalance in the face of danger.

SOME DISAPPROVED

Yet there were groans of disapproval when he was first promoted to lieutenant at the mercenary training base at Kamina in North Katanga province. Among many who had joined because they were civilian misfits, Spencer seemed the most misfit of all.

The last month of fighting their way 600 miles to Stanleyville, capital of the rebel Congolese People's Republic, has thinned mercenary ranks down to a lean, mean residue.

For almost every one of the 200 or so soldiers from South Africa or Rhodesia still in The Congo, a would-be mercenary fighter has been put aboard a south-bound plane for home or has deserted without waiting for his pay.

"There were drunks, drug addicts, coffee shop cowboys, homosexuals and cowards," says Maj. Michael Hoare, the tough chief of Tshombe's English-speaking men.

There still are some unlovely specimens among his men: Killers of unarmed civilians and looters.

"Let's face it," says Hoare. "If we had only hired angels, we'd have never got together the labor force needed for this sort of job."

Hoare, 44, a veteran of war behind the Japanese lines in Burma and in Tshombe's once-secessionist state of Katanga, has little more than his own personality to back up his orders. The Congolese army's disciplinary code is almost non-existent.

ANSWERS WITH FISTS

Said Lieut. John Peters, a former British paratrooper from Leeds: "If any of my men answers back, I take him round the corner and use my fists."

Peters is second in command of 57 commandos, a collection of near-throwouts who these days usually get chosen as the spearhead on dangerous missions because of their cool discipline under fire.

Their commander, Capt. Ian Gordon, a Briton who now lives in Johannesburg, South Africa, never raises his soft voice. His men will follow him, as another officer says, "through the front door of hell and out the back way."

Gordon, like several of Hoare's most trusted officers, fought for Tshombe in his secessionist days. They formed the small nucleus who recruited the others through advertisements in South African and Rhodesian newspapers.

Men flocked to sign on for base pay of £130 ($390) a month as volunteers. Officers earn up to three times more. Mercenaries also are paid about $16 a day danger money when they are in battle.

Only half of their pay is in foreign currency sent to their banks at home. The rest is paid in Congolese francs which cannot be taken out of the country.

GIVEN TWO WEEKS' LEAVE

Each man is entitled to two weeks' paid home leave at the end of his six-month contract.

Each man also has a life insurance policy for $20,000 payable to his next-of-kin. Nearly 20 families of Hoare's men already have qualified.

For almost three months, Hoare's men were paid nothing. A political battle between the South Africans and Belgian army technical assistance officers held up the money until the eve of the recent battle for rebel-held Stanleyville.

Nearly 40 men deserted in disgust. To earn their pay, the white men must brave not only the rebels but also a frightening lack of doctoring if they are wounded or fall sick.

The mercenaries can be brutally frank about themselves. They tend to laugh about the looting, especially bank vaults blown up with some of their abundant supplies of explosives.

"Don't damage the dynamite you are sitting on," said one South African to this correspondent as we drove through three night ambushes on the road to Stanleyville. "We're going to need it when we come to a bank."

Actually, one of Hoare's first moves when he captures a town is to place armed guards on the banks.

But his task is complicated by the fact that his men must rely on what they find lying around for their few comforts in the battle zone. Like most commanders in the field, he lets his men take things they can use immediately but forbids them to take anything away.

Nelson Already 10 Years Behind?

To the Editor:

Sir: — It was a shock to read Alderman VanMaarion's notice to Nelson taxpayers. She evidently feels that Nelson cannot afford a Treatment Plant at this time. This attitude coming from one who should be promoting every improvement possible, is hard to understand. Nelson cannot afford not to have a Sewage Treatment Plant, it is already 10 years behind other cities of its size. Nelson's biggest tourist attraction is its waterfront — but who wishes to swim in water polluted by the sewer of 10,000 people?

In a letter received from the Pollution Control Board, to the South Slocan School and Community Club, Mr. Bowering wrote as follows: "The Board has contacted all municipalities discharging untreated wastes indicating that the practice cannot be continued much longer. This was particularly emphasized in the case of Nelson —". What does Mrs. VanMaarion want?? A time limit, where Nelson has no choice in the matter?

Congratulations to Mayor Bodard in his sincere efforts to make Nelson a progressive city and one to be proud of.

SOUTH SLOCAN RESIDENT.

CIVIL DEFENCE

The co-ordination between various services would be a vital factor in an emergency. Previous planning would assist in co-ordination and planning therefore should be done by all municipalities.

Interpreting the News

Wilson and Johnson

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

One major point about the discussions begun Monday between Prime Minister Wilson and President Johnson is that this is just the start of an intensive going-over for the aches and pains within the Atlantic Alliance.

Decisions are going to be made but not right away. The timing and the decisions themselves will depend on the dialogue within NATO and with the other allies.

Meanwhile, the two-day meetings in Washington bring together two of the main Western leaders who have just recently survived elections, Wilson winning by a hair and Johnson a landslide.

How they get along will have a lot to do with the future shape of things.

They are no strangers. Wilson visited Johnson last May when it seemed he would be a big winner over the Conservatives in the election to come in October.

Now each is a leader.

The physical disparity is great. The round-faced Wilson stands more than half a head under the six-foot, three-inch Texan. But they have certain things in common.

NEITHER BORN RICH

Neither was born rich or of the upper middle class. Each is self-made politically and each survived a long, arduous struggle to get there.

Each stepped into leadership shoes made vacant by death after a long wait in the political ante room.

Finally, each of these men is where he has always wanted to be and each intends to stay as long as possible.

All this indicates even if there should never be any specialist rapport between them, they are at least political realists.

Johnson has the reputation of being able to spread his brand of Texas charm so winningly for domestic politicians — and sketching the alternatives to every question—he gets his way more often than not.

But Wilson is regarded as a hard bargainer, tough-minded and incisive. He does not charm easily.

SOME DIFFERENCES

There are substantial differences between them in political philosophy, national goals and other areas.

Wilson probably knows more about the outside world than Johnson.

Johnson thinks the new deal of the 1930s is as far left as he wants to go. Wilson is not as left-leaning as some years ago when he was lumped with Aneuran Bevan's Labor party group. But he is a more left-wing, for example, than his predecessor, Hugh Gaitskell.

There are serious differences in the kinds of problem each has and in national aims. The United States wants Germany to have a nuclear role of some kind—before it goes ahead and builds its own nuclear weapons as France persists in doing.

Britain, against nuclear arms for Germany in principle, is much more interested in East-West accord and in expanding disarmament.

Britain is in trouble economically and would like to trim military costs as much as possible. As a world trader who needs to sell more to live, she is selling to China and Cuba when she can despite U.S. attempts to create trade blockade.

What happens will be spelled out in general terms perhaps in the concluding communique Tuesday night.

That will also indicate perhaps how the two men got along.

Royal Winnipeg Ballet Follows Trooper Tradition

WINNIPEG (CP) — Despite food poisoning, foot infections and the accident-delayed arrival of scenery, the Royal Winnipeg Ballet was able to maintain its "show must go on" tradition during a tour of Eastern Canada.

General Manager Sergei Sawchyn reports the company's two pianists, Joan Mills and Sylvia Hunter, suffered food poisoning just before a performance in Terrace Bay, Ont.

"We literally had to carry them into the theatre and prop them up at the pianos. We set up cots just out of sight of the audience so they could lie down as soon as they were finished.

"Sick as they were, they were marvellous performers and I don't think the audience noticed anything out of the ordinary."

Later in the tour a leading dancer and several members of the corps de ballets suffered foot infections that forced them off the stage.

"We just sent in replacements or rearranged ballets so there weren't any gaping holes."

DELAYS CURTAIN

The curtain was delayed at one spot for more than an hour when a truck carrying the scenery was involved in a five-truck accident. Dancers helped prop men manoeuvre the scenery into place when it arrived.

The company covered 5,000 miles and put on 20 performances in 16 centres before "the best crowds the company has ever had on a tour of that part of the country."

Back home, the troupe is rehearsing a new ballet by James Clouser, assistant to the director and leading dancer. Called Royal Tribute, it marks the ballet's 25th anniversary this year and will be part of its traditional Christmas program in Winnipeg.

U.S. Promotes Hard Sell For Japan Wheat Market

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—A hard-sell United States campaign to hold and expand its big Japanese wheat market is going on right inside the bakery oven.

The U.S. wheat industry and the agriculture department have teamed up to teach Japanese bakers how to produce the best bread from a flour formula containing half American hard winter wheat and half hard spring grains.

Japan is the best U.S. customer, buying a record 73,500,000 bushels in the year ended last June 30.

The 11-course training program being given for Japanese bakers indicates the tough competition for the Japanese market, including Canadian grain.

ANGRY AT CANADA

It also helps explain the anger which last year greeted the Canadian Wheat Board's decision to sell at a fixed price over several months to Japan—in effect helping peg the price and tying up a chunk of the Japanese market when wheat prices were on the rise.

Japan, once a rice eater, has been cultivated carefully by the U.S. as a good and expanding wheat market, with a rising standard of living and a big population.

The U.S. initially got a foothold through wheat give-aways but sales faltered around 1958 when Japan began to buy her wheat.

Canadian sales to Japan began to rise and have been running higher than 40,000,000 bushels annually.

Last June, in an attempt to match the high quality of the Canadian grading system which is a world trademark for excellence, the U.S. revamped its own standards. Its new standards reduce the amount of foreign material—weed seeds and so on—that can be mixed with the wheat.

NO CLEAR PATTERN

Sales so far under the new standards don't show any clear pattern, agriculture officials say.

But they express optimism about the baking instructions given through the All Japan Bakers Association. It is expected that most of the large Japanese bakers will have participated before the end of the year.

The American emphasis on hard winter wheat for mixing with hard spring underlines the fact that the U.S. has both to sell whereas the bulk of Canada's wheat for export is hard spring wheat.

The U.S. is also continuing to work hard on advertising greater Japanese uses of wheat flour other than bread—promoting cake mixes, dry noodles, crackers and even sandwiches through department-store demonstrations, bakery seminars and research projects.

"Good Reason to Approach the New Year with Confidence"

"Trends within the economy may be more varied and increases in output more moderate than in 1964 but, in general, economic conditions should continue to be favourable," said J.P.R. Wadsworth, President, addressing the 98th Annual Meeting of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

We meet today at the close of a year that has been favourable for Canada in many respects. Economic conditions within our country have been generally good with each major region continuing to participate in the general prosperity. Total Gross National Product in 1964 is now expected to exceed $46 billion, an increase over last year of some 6 per cent in volume and approaching 8 per cent valued in current dollars. This is the fourth year of steady growth achieved without marked pressures on labour and materials and within a framework of comparatively steady prices. It is a good record of sustained expansion.

The strong rise in output this year has been achieved primarily through a sharp increase in export sales and a substantial rise in private capital investment.

Exports

On the export side, strong demand from the United States, the United Kingdom and other overseas customers has resulted in high volume sales of Canada's major traditional export items including wheat and flour, newsprint and pulp, lumber and plywood, and various semi-processed non-ferrous mineral products. In addition, there has been a sharp rise in shipments of iron ore and concentrates, and there have been substantial sales of aircraft and parts, semi-fabricated steel, industrial and farm machinery and automotive products. Exports of products from the secondary manufacturing industries have shown encouraging gains in volume and variety, and the delivery of a substantial portion of the 250 million bushels of wheat sold to the Soviet Union has been a major supplement to the usual flow of exports. The total value of merchandise exports from Canada is estimated at $6.2 billion for the first nine months of 1964, an increase of about 23 per cent compared with the corresponding period last year.

Capital Investment

Capital investment has also been the source of substantial stimulus to the economy. The estimate of total outlays for private and public investment including housing is $10.8 billion for this year. If this program is accomplished it will mean an increase in outlays over last year of about $1.5 billion, by far the sharpest increase since 1956.

The sharp rise in capital investment in the business sector has resulted from a combination of developments. World demand for the products of our mines and forests has increased in a number of the basic resource industries to an extent that warrants further expansion of capacity. The development of extensive energy resources is going ahead following the consummation of agreements for the sale of power to the United States.

Industrial Production

The general pattern of industrial activity has reflected the stimuli from exports and capital investment as well as the strength of domestic demand. Industrial production rose sharply during the latter part of last year and has moved gradually higher in a saw-tooth pattern through 1964. The average level of industrial production in the first eight months of this year was 9 per cent higher than in the corresponding period of last year.

Agriculture

The outstanding development in the agricultural sector has been the very high volume of wheat exports in the crop year ending July 31, 1964. Wheat and flour exports amounted to nearly 600 million bushels, almost 80 per cent higher than in the previous year and almost double the average for the preceeding ten-year period. The dollar value of wheat exports in the last crop year was more than $1 billion and the major export market for Canadian wheat was the Soviet Union which purchased about 40 per cent of total export shipments.

The wheat crop this year is estimated at some 600 million bushels, 17 per cent below last year's record harvest but still the fourth largest on record.

Consumer Sector

Personal expenditures advanced markedly during the last half of 1963 and the early part of this year. The rate of spending for durable goods was especially strong, paced by record purchases of automobiles. Outlays for imported goods and for travel abroad increased quite sharply, following the pattern of previous business expansions. In the second quarter of this year consumer expenditures increased only slightly but the year-over-year increase was still almost 7 per cent.

Personal income has followed a similar pattern, rising sharply in the fourth quarter of 1963 and the first quarter of this year.

Government Sector

In the first seven months of the current fiscal year, April to October, the Federal budgetary surplus was $451 million compared with a deficit of $128.6 million in the corresponding period of 1963. In the seven-month period this year expenditures were up $75.5 million but revenues were up $655 million, which suggests there is some possibility of balancing the Federal budget in the current fiscal year.

Employment

The advance in economic activity this year has been accompanied by some increase in employment. The total number of people at work in September was estimated at 6,754,000, an increase of 189,000 over a year earlier. Unemployment was estimated at 218,000 in September 1964, some 32,000 under a year earlier.

The employment picture, in terms of the utilization of the labour supply, is the most favourable since 1957 and in some regions there are indications of considerable pressure on the supply of certain types of labour.

Balance of Payments

Canada's balance of payments for the first half of 1964 showed a deficit in the current account of $518 million compared with a deficit of $452 million in the corresponding period last year. Exports and imports were up substantially in volume, each gaining over 20 per cent. Merchandise exports for the six months' period amounted to $3,927 million and imports were valued at $3,767 million; the resulting favourable balance on merchandise trade was $160 million, up $12 million from a year earlier. At the same time, the continuing deficit on non-merchandise transactions increased from $600 million to $678 million, chiefly the result of larger deficits in the travel account and the interest and dividends account. In total, the current account deficit increased by $66 million.

In this connection it is important to note the very sharp increase in the deficit on current account transactions with the United States built up principally as the result of the much larger inflow of merchandise imports although there was also some increase in the deficit on non-merchandise transactions.

Outlook for 1965

It is from a record level of economic activity in the final quarter of this year that we move on into 1965. The levelling out which appeared in some areas of the economy around mid-year turned out to be temporary and the strong upward trend in total output was resumed in the fall. The economy still appears to be functioning in good balance, inventory-sales ratios in manufacturing are satisfactory by historical standards, the volume of unfilled orders is substantial and competition is keeping a tight rein on prices. Strength is continuing to flow from many sources.

There are indications that the surge in capital investment will continue through next year although the increase in volume may be somewhat less than this year.

The climate for Canadian exports may not be quite as favourable next year. Assessments of the economic outlook for the United States in 1965 indicate a somewhat slower rate of increase in economic activity than this year. Overseas there has been some slowing down in growth rates in a number of countries which purchase substantial quantities of Canadian products.

Consumer expenditures and government outlays for goods and services, the other two major sectors of final product demand, have provided firm support to the economy through this year. Changes in detailed patterns of expenditure in these areas are to be expected as demands change in response to shifting income flows, population groupings and various special influences. However, there does not appear to be any reason to anticipate marked changes in the general trends of demand in these two sectors.

During the coming year, the economy will continue to be affected by events and changes in policy at home and abroad that are difficult, if not impossible, to foresee. With this important proviso in mind, there is good reason to approach the new year with confidence. Trends within the economy may be more varied and increases in output more moderate than in 1964 but, in general, economic conditions should continue to be favourable.

Saving and Investment in the Canadian Economy

There has recently been a good deal of discussion in Canada about the extent to which Canadians are themselves providing the necessary financing for their economic development.

The largest single source of savings, and hence of investment funds, is from the retained earnings and depreciation allowances of corporations. The most important use of such savings is to finance additional real investment in Canada covering new construction, new machinery and equipment including mining equipment and drilling costs. The second major source of investment funds is personal savings.

The savings derived from the business and personal sectors of our economy would normally be more than adequate to finance the real investment required by the private sector. This, however, is not the whole story, since the various levels of government also draw heavily on the savings of the community, and the net borrowings of the government sector have the effect of reducing the amount of savings available for investment in the private sector of the economy. The extent to which the volume of domestic savings falls short of the achieved level of investment, both private and public, is also the measure of our net import of foreign capital. If the problem is examined in these more fundamental terms, there are two courses of action, each of which could help to reduce the gap between the actual volume of domestic savings and the volume required to meet the demands in Canada for private and public investment. The first approach is to try to encourage a greater flow of domestic savings; in this connection, taxation policies are obviously of great importance. The second is to reduce the net diversion of investment funds to all levels of government, leaving a larger portion of present savings available for productive employment in the private sector.

Canada Pension Plan

The Canada Pension Plan now before Parliament will have an important influence on the flow of savings and the pattern of investment. It is important to consider what the impact of the plan will be on the availability of investment funds for use in the private sector of the economy as well as its effect on the over-all rate of growth in Canadian productive capacity. Much will depend on the ways in which the funds are used by the responsible government authorities and on whether the availability of these funds tends to encourage increased government expenditures.

Another aspect of the problem is the way in which savings are mobilized and made available to those requiring them to finance economic activity. As already indicated, business enterprise may use its own savings directly for investment purposes, but its ability to do so frequently depends on the availability of working capital loans from the chartered banks. Insurance companies and pension funds also play a very important role in the process of gathering together savings and making them available in an economical and effective way for a wide range of economic activities. An important factor is that these institutions operate through a market process so that borrowers, whether private or governmental, have to compete for funds on a price basis, and lenders obtain a return which corresponds to the value placed on their funds in a free market.

Role of Chartered Banks

The chartered banks, of course, have a crucial part to play in the whole operation of the capital markets. As a major depository of the savings of the community they are also a major source of financing for business, personal, and governmental operations. The funds entrusted to the banking system, whether as savings deposits, demand deposits, or other types of liabilities, are in no sense idle funds. They are constantly at work in the form of loans and investments in every branch of economic activity in Canada.

The Chief General Manager has dealt with two of the major restrictions in the present Bank Act which inhibit the employment of bank funds. The ceiling on lending rates and the prohibition against taking conventional mortgage security serve only to reduce the availability and increase the cost of credit in certain important areas of financing. The removal of these arbitrary limitations would mean that the funds entrusted to chartered banks could be used even more broadly and more effectively in ways which could provide an added stimulus to the Canadian economy.

William M. Currie, Chief General Manager, reviewed the balance sheet, highlights of which are summarized:

The Bank's 98th Annual Statement reflects a growth in assets of approximately $255,000,000 to a total and new peak of over $5,500,000,000. The pace of the economy was reflected not only by an increase of $188,000,000 in total deposits but also by an increase of $286,000,000 in commercial and other loans.

Deposits with other banks increased by $24,000,000, Government of Canada direct and guaranteed securities were reduced by $78,000,000, and call and short loans to investment dealers and brokers were lower by $47,000,000.

The liquid position of the Bank continues to be strong with quick assets at $2,560,000,000, equal to 48.99 per cent of the Bank's total liabilities to the public.

The growth in commercial and other loans of almost 14 per cent was widely spread over the full range of the Bank's lending business.

Bank Premises shows a net increase of $3,600,000 after depreciation. During the year 62 branches were opened and 11 closed, to bring the total number of branches and banking offices to 1,334, of which 1,302 were located in Canada and 32 abroad.

Total deposits, up $188,000,000 to $4,971,000,000, reflect an increase of $123,000,000, or 5.6 per cent in personal savings deposits, and a substantial increase in the total number of savings bank depositors. Other deposits increased by $110,000,000; included are other Canadian deposits on demand and payable after notice and deposits in foreign currencies.

Throughout the Bank there were gratifying increases in the total number of current and personal chequing account customers during the year.

Turning to the statement of undivided profits, the net profit of $21,402,602 represents an improvement of $1,017,543 over last year. Earnings per share were $3.07 as compared with $2.93 in 1963. Total dividends of $15,678,000 were paid at the rate of $2.25 per share, leaving $5,724,602 which, together with the balance of $2,364,265 in undivided profits carried forward from 1963, made up a total of $8,088,867 from which $5,000,000 was transferred to Rest Account. The balance of $3,088,867 was carried forward to the 1965 fiscal year.

Paid-up Capital, Rest Account and undivided profits totalled $277,768,867, and the Bank's shareholders increased by 1,282 to 27,098.

Growth in loans and deposits is perhaps the best evidence of the part played by the Bank in meeting the credit requirements of Canadians in every walk of life. The chartered banking system could finance a much wider range of Canadian needs. Two of the restrictions imposed by the Canadian Bank Act, the six per cent ceiling on loan interest and the prohibition against loans secured by conventional mortgages, prevent the banks from competing with other lending organizations whose rates would be lower if faced with chartered bank competition. Large segments of the public thus are forced to pay higher rates than they would if the banks were permitted to compete in these fields.

During the past two years data processing centres were opened in Montreal and Vancouver and this year a second computer has been added to the Toronto centre. Presently, the bookkeeping of over 200 branches in these three centres is largely done by this electronic equipment and the number of branches within the system is steadily increasing. Cheques processed in the Toronto centre alone have been increasing at a rate of 10 per cent per annum and the annual volume is now in excess of 100 million individual cheques. Modern electronic data processing eliminates much of the tedious bank work and releases personnel for more challenging and constructive work.

Important as these installations are, Canada's need for wide and diversified financial services extends to the smallest hamlet. In most cases chartered banks, including many of this Bank's 1300 Canadian branches, provide the only financial services available at such points, bringing to them every facility available in the largest metropolitan centre.

Such services are costly to maintain and reasonable charges for the many services performed are justified. The banking system provides these services at uniform cost, regardless of location or the volume of business handled at individual branches.

As an example, customers depositing cheques drawn on other banking points receive immediate credit and can use the funds immediately, as though they had been borrowed for the time being, notwithstanding that the negotiating branch bank does not receive settlement at one of the central clearing points until some time later. The organization required to perform the clearing function is a complex and costly one which carries on around the clock.

Opportunities for rapid promotion in a satisfying career in the Bank are offered to ambitious individuals. While planned, on-the-job training is the primary means of equipping personnel with basic knowledge and special skills, there are in addition widespread training facilities designed to assist officers of both sexes to equip themselves for increased responsibilities. A Staff College in Toronto and Career Centres in four major centres across the country provide instruction in a wide range of subjects. Men and women are encouraged to participate in the Fellow's Course in banking, and scholarships awarded annually present an opportunity to acquire a full university education. Officers of the Bank regularly attend executive development programs at Canadian and other universities. In recent years an increasing number of the women have been promoted to senior positions and every encouragement is given them to advance to positions of senior responsibility.

The progress of the Bank during the year could only have been accomplished by men and women confident of their role in our future progress, devoted to the ideals and objectives of the Bank and willing to put forth a full measure of thoughtful effort. To all members of the personnel I extend the thanks of General Management and our compliments on a job well done.

A LOVELY GOWN of cocktail-length nylon over taffeta was worn by Shirley Chernenko when she became the bride of Mr. Willie Sherstobitoff at a ceremony held at Taghum Hall recently. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Chernenko of Taghum and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nick J. Sherstobitoff of Thrums. Her bouffant nylon veil was held by a tiara of sequins and she carried a vividly contrasting bouquet of red roses. Her necklace was of pearls. Her attendant, Miss Norma Lebedoff, chose cocktail-length aqua blue chiffon over taffeta. She wore as her headdress a white rose with veil and she carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations. Mr. Walter Kooznetsoff was best man. A reception was held at the Taghum Hall in the evening. The newlyweds are living at Thrums. The bridegroom is employed at Celgar.—Photo by Renwick Studio.

Norwegian Kjot Rull, Sylte, Canapes or Smorgasbord

As a departure from the cake, cookie recipes which have been appearing in the Daily News recently for Yuletide baking, Mrs. Ingeborg Moen has kindly sent us in two recipes for meat dishes.

These recipes are used mostly at Christmas in Norway but are suitable for any season.

These two meat dishes, Kjot Rull and Sylte, are sometimes served on open-faced sandwiches or on a smorgasbord.

KJOT RULL: Take a beef flank and divide it into 10 to 12-inch pieces. Fill with strips of beef and lean pork. Sprinkle generously with chopped onion, ginger and salt and pepper (with a little saltpeter added for color).

Roll, and sew together with cord. Boil until tender and put under weight to press. Serve when cold on open-faced sandwiches or on a smorgasbord (sliced thin).

SYLTE: 2 pounds veal shoulder, 2 pounds pork shoulder, salt to taste, 5 bay leaves, 1 teaspoon grated onion, 1 teaspoon whole cloves (crushed). Simmer veal and pork and bay leaves together in as little water as possible. Cool.

Take out bay leaves, remove meat from bones and chop medium coarse. Strain broth. Add meat, salt, grated onion and crushed whole cloves. Let mixture simmer five to 10 minutes.

Put in mold and let set. Serve when cold, thinly sliced. Can be used for smorgasbord or open-faced sandwiches.

CWL Learns Postures for English Mass

SALMO — New postures to accompany the change to English use in the Mass were shown Catholic Women's League members Wednesday.

Director Rev. D. J. Cullen discussed the topic briefly, mentioning some of the changes in the Mass.

Ten members attended the meeting held at the home of Mrs. Robert Rotter. President Mrs. James McMorrow presided.

A contribution of $200 was agreed upon to be given the Sacred Heart Parish.

Mrs. Emil Deschamp was named delegate to the annual meeting of the Salmo Recreation Commission advisory body Wednesday.

A tea at Remac was planned also for Wednesday and Mrs. McMorrow will be convener.

A general church cleaning for Christmas was set for Dec. 21, 22 and 23 or until the job is completed. Members of the Parish will be contacted for assistance. Mrs. Deschamp was named in charge of church cleaning for the month of December.

Mrs. Ira Tombaugh will hostess the Tabitha meeting. Lunch was served by the hostess.

Church Women Entertain Vicar, Wife

KASLO — Rev. F. I. Richards and Mrs. Richards, who were recently married in Nelson, were entertained at a Sunday afternoon reception at the home of Mrs. V. Bowker, when the guests were members of St. Mark's Anglican Church.

Mrs. J. Cochran and Mrs. G. Browell presided at the urns, and serviteurs were Mrs. J. Thomas, Mrs. P. Rempel, Mrs. W. Bildstein, Mrs. G. Morton and Mrs. S. Leathwood.

Many gifts were presented to Mrs. Richards, in a miniature church, complete with a bell, and stained-glass windows, made by Mrs. W. Butler.

In addition, a hamper of home-canned fruit and preserves was given the guests of honor.

On behalf of the members of St. Mark's, Mr. D. White presented Rev. Richards with a cheque.

Mrs. Richards was fascinated by the heavy snowfall of the weekend, the first snow she has ever seen, having lived all her life in Trinidad.

NO PROBLEM

CALGARY (CP) — Education Minister McKinnon said Monday he does not believe "trashy" literature is a major problem in Alberta schools. He said in an interview parents "should accept responsibility for the morals of their children, rather than asking the government to do it." He said there might be the odd comic book "that perhaps shouldn't be there, (in school) but 99 per cent of the time teachers are so busy . . . there is not time for anything else."

Gold, Blue, White Striking Color Theme for Boyce-Smith Wedding

Gold and white in church decor with blue predominating at the wedding reception provided the background for a lovely early winter wedding at which Margaret Rose Smith became the bride of Flying Officer Calvin Earle Boyce.

Rev. Carl J. Hennig officiated at the evening marriage service uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon E. Smith and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Boyce, all of Nelson.

Baskets of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums were arranged on either side of the altar at St. Paul's-Trinity United Church, for the November 28 ceremony.

Mrs. Patricia Halloran Green was organist, and Mrs. A. C. Morton sang "All Joy Be Thine" during signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant as she walked down the aisle, gowned in white Chantilly lace and illusion net. The bouffant skirt was gently draped and gathered to folds fastened by miniature jewels. Lily point sleeves and jewelled bodice were style highlights.

A jewelled crown held her fingertip chapel veil and she carried a cascade of yellow and white roses.

Miss Joy Lewis was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Eileen Hartridge and Miss Jean Smith (sister of the bride). The attendants were gowned identically in gold peau de soie. Their dresses were sleeveless, with scoop necklines and matching lace jackets buttoned down the back. Their shoes were dyed en tone.

They wore white gloves and gold whimsy hats, and carried cascade bouquets of bronze and white mums.

Flower girl Judy Cassan wore a frock of gold nylon with gold bow headpiece and her shoes, socks and gloves were white. She carried a white basket of Talisman roses.

Flying Officer Mike Mole of Comox supported the bridegroom as best man and ushers were Mr. Bob Smith, brother of the bride, and Mr. Jim Boyce, brother of the bridegroom.

BLUE ACCENTS

White and pink bells and streamers ornamented the Royal Canadian Legion hall for the reception at which the bride's table was covered with blue net over white, trimmed with gold ric-rac. Blue tapers with gold accents flanked the three-tiered wedding cake, embedded in tulle and myrtle.

Assisting in the receiving line were the bride's mother, wearing a turquoise crepe Romaine gown with black off-the-face velvet hat and black accessories, and the mother of the bridegroom, wearing a sheath of aqua blue with matching accessories and pink carnation corsage.

Mr. Irwin Black was master of ceremonies. Telegrams were read from Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Vancouver and Comox.

Miss Karen Whitfield looked after the guest book, and serving the many guests were Miss Charlene Black, Miss Lorraine Black, Miss Karla Spence, Miss Margaret Bandy, Miss Tory Cassan, Miss Brenda Benedetti, Miss Jean Haukass, Miss Judy Hooker and Miss Adele Sjoberg.

Before leaving to change for the wedding trip, the bride presented her bouquet to Mrs. R. T. Cassan. Her travelling costume was a cranberry red wool suit with hat in winter white, black accessories and white rose corsage.

The newlyweds have motored to California and will return to Nelson to spend Christmas before taking up residence in Comox where the bridegroom is stationed with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Out of town guests included Mrs. Vi Jones, Mr. Alex Bonner, Miss T. Harding, Miss Joy Lewis, Miss Eileen Hartridge, all of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Seaby of Creston; Flying Officer Mike Mole of Comox and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Ridenour and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Ridenour of Trail.

WA Slate Returned at South Slocan

SOUTH SLOCAN — Mrs. M. T. Baker was returned as president of St. Matthew's WA when the annual meeting was held at the home of Mrs. G. Craft.

Other officers of the WA were also returned to serve another term of office. They are Mrs. G. Craft, secretary; Mrs. J. Stuart, treasurer; Mrs. R. Molloy, Dorcas, secretary; Mrs. R. ORIGIN OF LEGENDS

It is believed giant condors, with their 10-foot wing spans, were the birds that gave rise to the Indian legends of the Thunderbird.

Books, Furniture, Car Wrecked by Red Mob

By ANTOINE YARED

JAKARTA (AP)—A mob protesting American policies toward The Congo and Malaysia stormed the U.S. Information Service library in the East Java capital of Surabaja Monday night, burning books, furniture, a mobile unit and a car.

It was the second U.S. library attacked by Indonesian demonstrators in four days. A mob stoned and sacked the American cultural centre in Jakarta and its library last Friday, destroying about one-quarter of the library's 15,000 books.

The Communist-led demonstrators are protesting U.S. participation with Belgium in the rescue of white hostages from Congolese rebels and U.S. support of Malaysia, which Indonesian President Sukarno has threatened to crush.

Paul Neilson, director of the U.S. Information Service, told a press conference that a mob of about 1,000 banner-waving demonstrators smashed windows to enter the Surabaja library, which had been closed and locked in anticipation of trouble.

The mob lowered the American flag and raised the Indonesian flag, wrecked the interior of the library, then threw furniture and books outside and built a bonfire with them.

The director of the library, James McHale, informed Neilson about one-quarter of the library's 16,000 books were destroyed.

No American staff members were in the building, and Indonesian employees in the building were not hurt.

U.S. Ambassador Howard P. Jones is protesting the Surabaja attack to officials in Jakarta. The embassy has not yet received an answer to its note protesting the attack on the Jakarta centre.

Victims Dismembered, Hearts Used as Food, Charges Premier

From AP-Reuters

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP)—Premier Moise Tshombe's government has charged that rebels in the northeastern Congo dismembered and disembowelled some of their victims and used their hearts as ritual food.

In a white paper on rebel atrocities released Monday, the Congolese government claimed rebel army chief Nicholas Olenga often used a witch doctor called Mama Onoma to excite his troops.

Tshombe told a press conference he would arrive in New York Saturday to take part in Security Council debate on The Congo.

The council debate was first sought by 14 African nations, Yugoslavia and Afghanistan, who accused the United States and Belgium of having endangered peace in Africa with their recent airborne rescue operation in the northeast Congo.

EXPECTED TO COUNTER

Tshombe was expected to counter with charges of aid from other countries to the rebels. The white paper charged such aid was given by the Soviet Union, China, the United Arab Republic, Algeria, and neighboring Congo Brazzaville and Burundi.

The white paper claimed the rebels slaughtered 4,000 persons at Paulis, 225 miles northeast of Stanleyville. Some were made to drink gasoline, then their stomachs were slashed open and they were set afire, the book said.

The document contains a photostat purporting to be a telegram from Olenga ordering a local chief to massacre all Belgians and Americans in his district if the region was bombed by government planes.

The white paper also quoted a Pakistani refugee as saying he found the bodies of several hundred Congolese whose eyes had been gouged out and their noses and ears sliced off.

Tshombe also said special courts would be set up to try the thousands of rebels being rounded up by his forces. "The Congolese people want this to be done," he added.

Prince Edward Island was called Ile St. Jean until 1768, from the days when it was a French possession.

Gov't Orders Should Be Disobeyed Council Told

KELOWNA (CP) — A group of eight Kelowna business men Monday night asked city council to protest "political interference" with health measures in the South Okanagan Health Unit.

The group, headed by Dennis Crooks, a former Kelowna alderman, said it was not trying to tell anyone how to vote but deplored politicians telling health authorities how they should operate.

The protest was the latest development in a political storm which has blown across the Okanagan over the question of fluoridation which has brought critical statements from Agriculture Minister Frank Richter and Health Minister Eric Martin.

Penticton, the centre of the South Okanagan Health Unit, is to vote Saturday on fluoridation of its water supply.

Both the medical health officer and the dental health officer, on instructions from the union board of health, have expressed opinions favoring fluoridation.

Mr. Richter forwarded these opinions to the minister of health and Mr. Martin ordered health authorities to desist.

Kelowna alderman L. A. N. Potterton, chairman of the Union Board of Health for the South Okanagan, said the board would ignore the minister's order.

Mr. Crooks said the matter was much more serious than most people realized.

"People of this region are taxed to support a health unit," he said "and we want the best medical advice we can get.

"These health officials, working in this unit, have a duty and a right to tell people what they think on health matters.

"We could get away from many medical bills if we could just write to members of the legislative assembly to find out what to do when Johnny is sick.

"We as a group of Kelowna citizens urge council to pass the strongest possible resolution deploring this political interence."

TOO VALUABLE

Earlier in Vancouver Health Minister Martin said public health units employees will not be disciplined for trying to influence the Penticton vote in favor of fluoridation.

"Public health personnel are too valuable to get them angry," the minister said.

The fluoridation controversy blew up after anti-fluoridationists complained about public health officials in some areas campaigning for fluoridation.

Police Arrest Trio For Fraud Attempts

TORONTO (CP)—A trail of fraud complaints in Western Canada and the United States has led to the arrest of three men by Toronto police.

Two Toronto men, Joseph Zodworney, 64, and Joseph Wlosowicz, 63, were arrested Monday night and charged — Zodworney, with fraud and Wlosowicz, with illegal possession of gold.

A third man, Marion Banaszek, 37, of Windsor, Ont., has been in jail since his arrest Dec. 6 on a charge of fraud.

Police said complaints centred around an operation which sold brass filings for gold dust and took in at least $100,000. Most of the victims were duped in Western Canada and Northern Ontario. Warrants have been outstanding in Winnipeg, Kamsack, Sask., and Elliot Lake, Ont.

Sergeant William Myers of Toronto police said Zodworney and Banaszek will be sent to Elliot Lake, about 83 miles east of Sault Ste. Marie, to stand trial.

Wlosowicz will appear in court here.

Police say the victim was first shown real gold dust, for which brass filings were substituted when a transaction was completed. One man lost $9,000. The number of persons victimized was difficult to judge, said Sgt. Myers, because many of those duped would be too embarrassed to file a complaint.

State Continues To Suffer From Hard Hitting Storm

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP)—New York State's savage ice storm meant no school for delighted children, no heat for their parents' cold homes, no rest for weary work crews.

And, Tuesday, it also meant hopes that winds would not snap more power lines or topple more trees bowed under tons of ice in eastern-central New York and parts of Vermont and Massachusetts.

The ice accumulated during a weekend of freezing rain and snow. Effects of the storm and below-zero temperatures early this week have forced hundreds of families to live in emergency centres.

Families share belongings and talents in the centres as they shared hardships in an ice storm that, at its peak, took electricity and heat from 75,000 homes and businesses in eastern upstate New York. About 4,000 homes in the Pittsfield, Mass., area also lost power.

However, officials of the Niagara-Mohawk Power Corporation said the number of customers without electric power was down to 27,000—representing a total of more than 50,000 persons.

One death was attributed directly to the storm. A Hudson Falls boy was killed when a live power line fell on him.

900 MEN IN

More than 900 men, coming from power companies as far away as Philadelphia, are working 16 hour days to free an area of more than 1,000 square miles of down power lines and to restore service.

"We still have much work to do," said a power company spokesman. "Many of the things that have to be done won't be finished until spring or summer."

There was no estimate of damages, except that they would be in the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Officials of several cities said the worst was over. But, as one said: "If high winds come, we are gone. We'll have to start all over. There's a quarter-inch of ice still on power lines and trees."

The weather bureau said winds in the stricken regions would range from eight to 18 miles an hour. During the storm winds up to 25 or 30 miles an hour were registered.

Cold weather clung to wide areas in New England and upstate New York and northern sections of the Middle West. The wintry air also dipped into the southeast with freezing weather covering areas southward into northern Florida.

It was below zero this morning in many sections of New England.

Britain Gives Support to UN Peace Keeping Force

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—Britain has thrown its support behind Prime Minister Pearson's plan for an international police force ready for action anywhere in the world.

The House of Commons approved without a formal vote Monday night a Conservative Opposition member's motion for United Nations reforms, including the creation of a peacekeeping force.

The resolution noted the "faults and successes" of the UN and the view of Secretary-General U Thant that, if it is to have a future, the world body must assume some of the attributes of a state. This included, in particular, the means of acting in "areas of actual or potential conflict."

The resolution also called attention to the need for reforms in the UN, in particular by the "creation by like-minded states," as suggested by Pearson, of a small peace-keeping force on a permanent basis.

STUDYING LOGISTICS

George Thomson, minister of state for foreign affairs in the Labor government, told the House the administration is closely studying ways in which Britain can give help, "with particular emphasis on logistic support."

This apparently meant that British weapons, equipment and transport would be available to a UN peace-keeping force.

Thomson said in answer to a question by R. A. Butler, former Tory foreign minister, that this would not mean British contingents on permanent standby duty.

Several countries, including Canada and the Scandinavian nations, have so earmarked troops and Thomson said these men are "not mercenaries but crusaders."

The matter is considered a certainty to be discussed by Prime Minister Wilson, who has frequently stressed his new Labor government's emphasis on UN matters, when he meets Pearson in Ottawa this week.

Fanny Hill Banned by U.S. Judge

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) Superior Court Judge Morris Pashman has banned the sale of Fanny Hill in New Jersey, ruling that the book is obscene.

The 18th-century work, written by John Cleland, has previously been banned in Massachusetts and Rhode Island and approved for sale in New York State and Ontario.

Pashman said Monday "it is inconceivable to this court that the average person could read Fanny Hill and receive the slightest social, literary, or historical value from it."

Police Search Started For Tip-Off Man

AYLESBURY, England (Reuters)—A warrant was issued here Tuesday for the arrest of John Maris, the 34-year-old farmworker who tipped off police about the farm hideout of the gang which carried out Britain's £2,500,000 ($7,500,000) train robbery last year.

Application for the warrant for alleged perjury during the great train robbery trial was made on the instructions of London solicitor Ellis Lincoln who represented three of the sentenced men.

Maris has received rewards from banks totalling £18,000 for information he gave about the farm hideout.

At the trial, Lincoln represented Robert Welch, Thomas Wisbey and James Hussey, each sentenced to 30 years in jail for their part in the robbery.

Last month, Derek Agnew, secretary of a committee campaigning against the length of the sentences, said these three men were convicted only on the evidence of palm prints.

New evidence had been uncovered, he said, and it was being passed to the home secretary

He added: "I am quite sure that the three should not, in the light of new evidence, have been convicted."

Animals Possess Heart Disease Counteractant

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Scientists have found a mysterious factor—believed present in all animals—that can counteract a poison known to destroy heart muscle cells.

The discovery was reported Monday to a March of Dimes symposium on birth defects by Dr. James D. Ebert, director of the Carnegie Institution of Washington's department of embryology.

The experiments, by Dr. Ebert and an associate, Dr. M. C. Reporter, were made with embryo chick hearts.

In an interview, Ebert said the poison was an antibiotic, antimycin A, which has been rejected as too toxic for use in humans. When tiny concentrations of it were added to a culture of living chick embryo, growth of heart muscle tissue stopped, Ebert said. The heart did not form.

In later tests, similarly poisoned embryos were transferred to a culture containing a factor obtained from chick liver cells and the embyros recovered, Ebert said. Formation of the heart muscles resumed.

Ebert said he had not named the mysterious factor but thought it was a form of protein, yet to be identified.

Divorced Actress Slaps Policeman In Fight for Son

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Police say Marlon Brando's former wife, Anna Kashfi, ran screaming and fighting through a hotel lobby late Monday night, climaxing a day-long scramble for custody of their son.

The son, Christian Devi, 6, passed back and forth between them three times Monday.

Investigators said Miss Kashfi, arrested in the lobby of a hotel in the fashionable Brentwood district, was clad only in a sheer nightgown and light robe when she raced through the lobby.

She was alarmed, they said, because of Brando's ultimate victory in the custody fight—he had taken Christian from her room.

She was handcuffed and taken to the West Los Angeles police station after she allegedly slapped a police sergeant. She was booked on suspicion of battery on a policeman.

Miss Kashfi and Brando were married Oct. 11, 1957. She obtained a divorce April 22, 1959.

UAW PRESIDENT REPORTED WELL

DETROIT (AP)—The condition of Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers union was reported satisfactory at Henry Ford Hospital today after an operation Tuesday for removal of what was described as a "small spot" on his right lung.

An official statement from the UAW reported after the operation that the lung spot was "successfully removed." The statement gave no further details except to term the operation a "conservative surgical procedure" and report the 57-year-old Reuther's condition satisfactory.

Fertilizer Plant Slated for Ont., Reveals Robarts

TORONTO (CP) — Construction will start next spring on a $50,000,000 chemical fertiliwer plant near Sarnia.

Premier Robarts, in making the announcement Tuesday at a press conference, said:

"We're delighted to have it in Ontario."

The plant, owned by Canadian Industries Limited, will employ 300 permanent workers when it is completed in 1966. Meanwhile, it is estimated about 1,000 construction jobs will be available at the 1,400-acre site on the St. Clair River, about 15 miles from Sarnia.

The plant will have a capacity of more than 340,000 tons of agricultural chemicals—mainly ammonia — a year. It will supply fertilizers to much of Eastern Canada and the Great Lakes areas of the United States.

Chwachka's Overtime Marker Salvages Maple Leafs 7-7 Tie

Warriors Maintain Mastery Over Trail

ROSSLAND (Special to the Daily News) — Rossland Warriors maintained their season-long mastery over the Trail Smoke Eaters with a 7-3 victory in a Western International Hockey League contest played here before 587 fans Tuesday night.

The win was the third straight for the Warriors who dropped from first place in the league's standings last month following a seven game losing streak.

It marked the fifth successive time the Warriors have downed Trail this year.

Twenty-year-old Billy Martin, the loop's leading goal scorer once agai nassumed the role of leader. He clicked for two goals and one assist as his team easily outplayed the Smoke Eaters throughout the contest.

Syd Gallamore, Gerry Godfrey, Lynn Bentley, John Wyatt and Harvey Stolz were the other Rossland marksmen.

Norm Lenardon scored twice for the Smoke Eaters, with Gerry Penner adding a single.

MARTIN OPENS

Martin opened the scoring late in the second period after receiving passes from Gallamore and Legare. The unit was formed last week by player coach Seth Martin and has been the driveshaft in Rossland club's three game win jag.

Seven seconds after the faceoff, it teamed up to make the count 2-0 as Gallamore drove Martin's rebound past Trail goalie Bruno Forlin.

Godfrey scored from Stolz at the 3:34 mark of the second period and Lenardon and Penner replied to put Trail back in the game with three quarters of the session played.

Lenardon's goal came on a play started by rookie Clint Eccle who was brought up from the Trail Junior Smoke Eaters and who accounted himself remarkably well in his first senior contest.

Lynn Bentley took art Goodwin's pass from behind the net to beat Forlin cleanly at 17:59 and Martin picked up his second counter with less than a minute remaining on a power play effort that was partially blocked but dropped in over the Trail netminder's shoulder.

Lenardon got his second goal of the night when he took Hockley's pass and connected with a screen shot from fifteen feet out at 11:41 of the third period.

Wyatt got that one back with a shot through a cluster of players at 14:26 as the Trail defense showed a distinct inability to clear the disc out of their own end.

Defensive lapses were responsible for at least half the goals scored against the Smokies.

The problem was highlighted late in the third period when one defenceman became trapped and Stolz nad Godfrey broke away with a two-on-one situation.

George Ferguson, the lone Trail defenceman deflected Stolz' goalmouth pass in behind Forlin, saving Godfrey the trouble and cementing the win for the Warriors.

Rossland travels to Spokane tonight for a game with the Jets.

Summary:

First period — 1, Rossland, Martin (Legare, Gallamore) 17:46; 2, Rossland, Gallamore (Martin, Legare) 17:53.

Penalties — Ferguson 7:17, 11:27; Conn 11.27, 15:40.

Penalties — Hamilton 7:09; Ferro 7:09; Ritchie 18:35.

Third period — Trail, Lenardon (McIntyre, Hockley) 11:41; 9, Rossland, Wyatt (Goodwin, Bentley) 14:26; 10, Rossland, Stolz (Lee, Godfrey) 15:33.

Penalty — Stolz, 8:09.

Saves:

Martin	8	9	7	—25
Forlin	13	9	7	—29

Following the game, Terry Brennan who suffered a broken leg at the first Rossland practice was presented with a cash gift collected from Warrior home fans.

From Behind 5-0 Count Kromm's Kids Rally

KIMBERLEY (Special to Daily News)—Nelson Maple Leafs stunned a wildly screaming crowd of 1157 fans as they stormed from behind a 5-0 deficit, assumed a 6-5 lead, went behind 7-6 and finally salvaged a 7-7 tie with the Kimberley Dynamiters in a Western International Hockey League game played here Tuesday night.

A rare bench penalty reportedly assessed Dynamiter star Walt Peacosh for scrapping with a fan led to shifty Carl Chwachka's second goal of the night which tied the count as time began to run out in the overtime session.

Kimberley led 4-0 at the end of the first period, 5-3 after the second and the two clubs were tied 6-6 after regulation time.

Les Lilley returned to the Kimberley line-up and blasted home two goals including one that put his team a goal up early in the overtime session while Nelson's Dave Toner sat out a penalty for falling on the puck.

Chuck Passmore, Verne Wildeman, Wally Souter, Harvey Nash and Dick Vincent notched the other Dynamiter tallies.

Linemate Mike Laughton matched Chwachka's brace of goals. Danny Calles, Howie Hornby and Harry Smith accounted for the remainder of the scoring.

Hornby joined the team during the second period. He had been sitting out a six game suspension for his part in a violent stick swinging duel with Spokane's Buddy Bodman last month. Bodman was given a 72 day suspension for his role in the disturbance.

Kimberley netminder Bill Dides played a standout game. He blocked 52 shots as compared to WIHL all-star Jim Letcher's 36.

CONTROL PLAY

Dynamiters alert from the opening whistle, exploded for three goals before the first period was 10 minutes old and controlled play throughout the frame.

Nitro line members Les Lilley and Walt Peacosh combined to score on a fine two-way passing effort as two of the Maple Leaf's tenacious "shadow line" did not take part in the game to check them.

Big Buck Crawford and Frank Carlson failed to make the trip. Crawford's job commitments detained him while Carlson is still nursing a knee injury. Studies prevented Shelly Atwell from playing, also.

Mintues after Lilley's opening goal, Verne Wildeman combined with Souter and Manchester to beat Letcher and hike the score to 2-0.

Then it was Passmore from Vincent and John Manchester and Souter unassisted to give the home team a 4-0 bulge at the end of the period.

GO AHEAD 5-0

Nash hammered home a pass from Lilley and Peacosh early in the second session to hand the youthful Maple Leafs an almost unsurmountable task.

But Hornby, accounting for his ninth goal in as many games took a pass from playing coach Bobby Kromm and rattled it past Sides to put his club on the score board.

Then Calles, a Kimberley native raised the count to 5-2 scoring on a play with Toner and Brian Russill and Chwachka accounted for the prettiest goal of the night, finishing off a perfect passing play from Leroy Mowery, Bill Steinke and Laughton.

The Mowery - Laughton - Chwachka line struck again in the early minutes of the final period with Laughton scoring and his linemates picking up assists.

Harry Smith, rejoining the club after seeking permission to play with Trail Smoke Eaters, silenced the boo-birds who had been riding him from the stands, when he drilled a dazzling screen shot home from outside the blueline to tie the score.

LEAFS GO AHEAD

Nelson almost made the miracle come-back complete. Smith started a play which saw Shorty Malacko elude a Kimberley defenceman and pass to Laughton who fooled Sides with a hard shot to put the Leafs ahead 6-5 near the end of the period.

But the big rushing defenceman took a high sticking penalty following an altercation with Bill Steenson and Vincent knotted the count at 6-6.

Kimberley pressed the attack in the early minutes of the overtime session and Lilley backhanded a pass from Peacosh into the upper left hand corner after three minutes while Toner sat out his minor.

CHWACHKA SCORES

Then with Sinclair sitting out a minor and Peacosh serving his bench penalty, Kromm summoned his production line.

Mowery took possession on a pass from Smith, cautiously picked his way past a Kimberley defender and slid a pass to Laughton. He passed to Chwachka and the man from Melleville made no mistakes as he sunk a shot that gave Sides no chance.

The tie marked the second time this year that Nelson has come from behind a 4-0 first period deficit to salvage a tie in a Kimberley road game.

U.K. May Seek Loan Deferment

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — The British may soon ask for deferment of this year's instalment on their $1,250,000,000 post - war loan from Canada.

A $37,000,000 repayment is due this month. At the same time the British normally would be paying three times that amount on an American loan.

A request for deferment would be logical in view of the British balance of payments difficulties.

Published speculation in London last week was that such a request would be made by Prime Minister Wilson in his discussions this week with President Johnson and Prime Minister Pearson.

However, it is understood that the subject is more likely to be handled at the ministerial level. It is regarded as an unlikely topic for the leaders.

In any event, there is considerable doubt here whether any such request will ever get as far as the Canadian government. This arises from the nature of the loan agreements.

In 1946 the Canadian loan and the $3,750,000,000 U.S. loan — both intended as export credits —were in effect wrapped into one package, with complicated provisions for deferments of principle and interest.

HUNTER FOUND

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—Tom Perhim, 23, of Vancouver, was found alive and well after being missing for a day on a hunting trip to Banks Island, 40 miles south of here. He was found by the crew of police boat which went looking for him when he failed to return Sunday as scheduled.

Chisox Sued for Half Million

CHICAGO (AP) — A $500,000 suit, claiming Chicago White Sox were negligent in failing to warn patrons of the possibility of being struck by batted and thrown baseballs, was filed Tuesday by a woman fan.

Rosemarie Karatkiewicz of Chicago, a doctor's secretary, claimed she was struck by a ball which broke her glasses during batting practice in a White Sox-Washington Senator game last May 23.

Amateur Club To Compete For British Soccer Honors

LONDON (Reuters) — For the first time since 1959 an amateur club will line up with the professionals in the third round of the English Football Association Cup next month.

Enfield and Barnet, both from London's amateur ranks, meet in a replay tonight to decide who will qualify for the honor of joining the big clubs.

Their match last Saturday was in the finest cup tradition — three penalties, eight goals and breathtaking excitement from kickoff to final whistle.

Not since Tooting and Mitcham almost beat Nottingham Forest, the eventual winners, in 1959, on an ice-covered field, has an amateur team been in the cup spotlight.

But the history of the competition is sprinkled by the feats of these non-paid heroes— from the great Corinthians of the past to more modern teams with picturesque names like Dulwich Hamlet, Walhamstow Avenue, Norton Woodseats and Blyth Spartans.

The odds against an amateur team winning the cup are about 1,000,000 to 1, but their entry into the competition from the qualifying stages in September always fascinates the fans.

Yeovil and Colchester have been the outstanding "giant killers" of the post-war era. Both defeated strongly fancied league teams during remarkable cup runs which stirred the imagination of soccer fans.

Sometimes a giant-killing act is performed by one league club on another, and the interest is no less intense.

Five years ago Crewe Alexandra, then almost at the bottom of the fourth division, was drawn against the league leaders, Tottenham Hotspur.

Tottenham was probably one of the finest sides in Europe at time, yet Crewe's tiny ground almost proved the Hotspurs' undoing. They were glad to settle for a draw.

MANAGERS SHUDDER

Since then, first-division managers have been known to shudder when drawn against Crewe where a sign welcomes visitors to the ground with the words "Remember Tottenham."

Probably the most famous of all giant-killing acts was performed by Walsall in 1933 when it beat the famous London club, Arsenal.

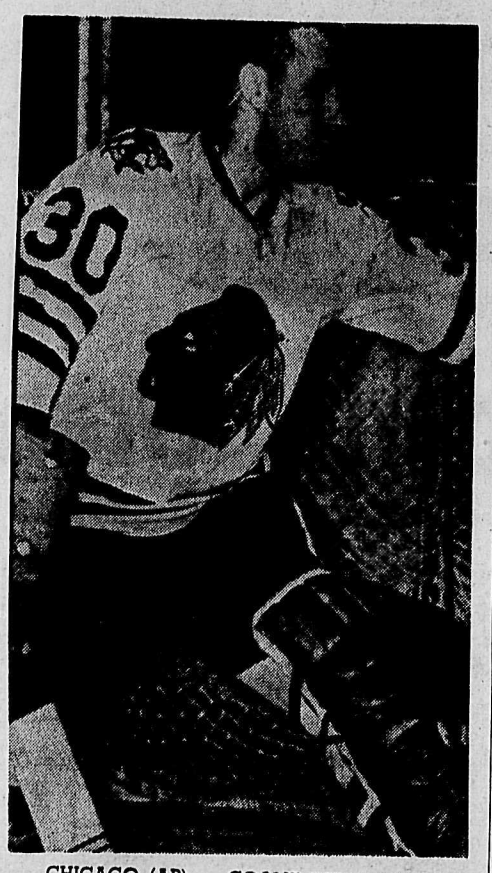
Arsenal, which won the league title five times in the 1930s, was at the peak of its glory and so scornful of third-division Walsall that it didn't use several of its star players. But the Walsall ground has a tricky slope and it proved to be Arsenal's downfall. Arsenal's loss was one of the greatest upsets in modern football.

The winner of the FA Cup is almost always a first-division team. No third- or fourth- division club has ever won it, and only two third-division clubs, Millwall and Port Vale, have ever reached the semi-finals.

By a coincidence, these teams played each other in Saturday's second round.

Nobody knows who this year's giant killer will be, but all eyes will be on Enfield or Barnet tonight. The winner mets Preston North End in the third round.

Replaces Hall



CHICAGO (AP) — GOALIE DENIS DEJORDY will replace Glenn Hall of Chicago Black Hawks who is to sit out the Hawks' next three National Hockey League games at his own request.

Dejordy, recalled from the Hawks' Buffalo team in the American League, will replace Hall at New York tonight, at Boston Thursday and at Detroit Saturday.

Coach Bill Reay said Hall asked for a rest.

Handicapped N.Y. Youth Wins Athletic Letters

NEW YORK (AP)—Why sit in the corner, even if you don't have feet?

That is the question 17-year-old Jack Rice, defensive guard for Barrackville, W.V.A, high school, asked Kyle Rote, Southern Methodist and New York Giant great, at the national foundation's Hall of Fame football banquet Tuesday night.

Rote, one of 10 men inducted into the Hall of Fame at the annual meeting, presented a plaque to Rice who lost both legs between the knee and ankles in a railroad accident eight years ago.

Despite the handicaps, young Rice won three letters in football at Barrackville, a city of 2,000. The first two years he was a middle guard on defence only but during 1964 he played guard on both offence and defence.

Rice, a B-plus student, wears plastic sleeves on the stumps of his legs. Rubber feet are attached to the sleeves.

Although his agility is impaired, Rice was mobile enough to scoop up seven fumbles during the 1964 season. A year ago Barrackville had a 7-2 record; this year it slumped to 2-6.

Young Rice said:

"I forget that I am handicapped once the game starts."

"There is only one thing he hates," whispered Larry Jump, principal of the Barrackville High School. "And that is for a player either from his own team or the opposition to stop and help him up after he has been knocked down.

"No matter who it is, he will kick them. You ever been kicked by a determined guy whose legs are made of plastic?"

Winnipeg Officials Budgeting For $3,000,000 Pan-Am Deficit

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Pan American Games to be held here in 1967 will show a $3,077,813 deficit, it was reported Tuesday.

A budget summary prepared by the Pan-American Games (1967) Society shows it will cost an estimated $5,062,813 to stage the first games held in Canada. Income expected from the Games is estimated at $1,985,000, including $885,000 from ticket sales and $800,000 from sale of radio, television and concession rights.

When Winnipeg was awarded the Games in 1963 it was estimated they would cost $2,200,000.

The federal, provincial and municipal governments will shoulder the deficit. Negotiations are in progress as to what each government's share will be.

The gross cost of the Games is broken down into $3,482,400 for capital expenses, $260,413 for new sports equipment and $1,320,000 for operational expenses.

The budget estimates it will cost $1,047,000 to build diving, swimming and water polo facilities including two pools.

A new stadium for track and field and cycling would cost $885,000, including $300,000 for 30,000 seats and $175,000 to dig out 500,000 yards of soil to form an earthen bowl.

Facilities for opening, closing and victory ceremonies, baseball and soccer at Winnipeg Stadium would cost $452,000, including $200,000 for a band shell and ticket building and $145,000 for a pylon, approach walk and fencing.

Facilities for equestrian events would cost $70,000, for tennis $80,000, for yachting $58,000 and for volleyball $55,000.

The budget also sets aside $298,400 for contingencies and $200,000 for engineering studies and architectural designs.

Sports equipment costs include $103,280 for sailing, $50,000 for rowing; $30,000 for gymnastics and $25,000 for track and field.

Operating costs include $221,000 for publicity and promotion, $80,000 for salaries of permanent office staff and $25,000 for printing handbooks and other material for athletes.

Accommodation and meals for the expected 2,500 athletes is estimated at $150,000. Decorations for opening and closing ceremonies and on streets wil cost $150,000.

The society predicts 481,500 spectators will watch the various events, including 72,000 each for track and soccer with ticket prices set at $1 and $2 this will bring in $885,000.

Hull Still Leads

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks is way ahead of the scoring pace he set in 1961-62 when he tied the National Hockey League record of 50 goals in a season.

Official NHL statistics released today show Hull has scored 20 goals in 21 games, including three in the last week, while he didn't score his 20th until his 44th game three seasons ago.

Hull trails the pace set by Maurice (The Rocket) Richard who scored 24 goals in his first 21 games in the 1944-45 season and went on to set the NHL record of 50 goals. Richard now predicts Hull will score 60 goals this 70-game season.

Hull leads individual scorers with a total of 26 points, one more than Norm Ullman of Detroit Red Wings whose points are made up of 11 goals and 14 assists. Stan Mikita of Chicago is third with 23 points, including a league-leading 16 assists.

Toronto defenceman Bob Baun is the most - penalized player with 78 minutes followed by veteran Ted Lindsay of Detroit with 67 and Carl Brewer of Toronto with 64.

U.S. Track Star Inks Grid Pact

NEW YORK (CP) — The National Football League sprinted to a 2-0 lead Tuesday over the rival American League in signing Olympic double gold medal winners when Bob Hayes of Florida A and M and Henry Carr of Arizona State agreed to terms less than two hours apart.

Hayes, who won the 100-metre dash and anchored the winning United States 400-metre relay at the Olympics, signed with the Dallas Cowboys.

Carr, who won the 200 - metre dash and anchored the winning 1600-metre relay team, signed with the New York Giants.

Hayes played football with Florida A and M during most of his college career and is expected to get a shot in a flanker's role and in the defensive backfield.

Carr was a flanker and defensive back at Arizona State but missed the 1963 season because of injuries and did not compete this year because of the Olympics.

MANN DRUGS LTD.

WINCHESTER, England (AP)—Ramsey Shannon, 33, began serving a life sentence Tuesday after a murder trial which lasted 52 seconds. Only 77 words were spoken. Shannon spoke two of them. Shannon was charged with stabbing his German girl friend, Gisela Meyer, a 29-year-old waitress. She was stabbed 28 times.

GO WITHOUT MEAT

CAIRO (AP)—In an effort to combat a serious meat shortage, President Nasser's government Tuesday proclaimed three meatless days a week and ordered that no cattle be slaughtered on two days each week. The penalty for illegal slaughter of cattle was set at two years in jail.

Biggest Drug Cache Ever, Seized by U.S. Customs

NEW YORK (AP)—A 49-year-old woman is accused of attempting to smuggle into the United States 22 pounds of cocaine worth between $3,000,000 and $5,000,000 on the underworld market.

Officials said a young customs inspector's interception of the cocaine at Kennedy Airport after it was brought from Santiago, Chile, was the largest cocaine shipment seizure ever made in the U.S.

The woman, Mrs. Juanita Bradbie, who has a record of 15 larceny and prostitution convictions, chose being held in jail rather than being freed in bail. "I am in danger of my life," she said when arraigned Monday before U.S. Commissioner Salvatore T. Abruzzo in Brooklyn. Bail was set at $50,000.

Customs officials said Mrs. Bradbie, a New York resident, was the courier for "a major international conspiracy."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Raymond B. Grunewald said at her arraignment:

"It took a large amount of money to get this dope and to send this woman to Chile for it. This is a conspiracy of great magnitude, and a number of people are involved."

PUREST TYPE

Tests showed the cocaine, packed in cellophane bags, is of the purest type and worth about $200,000 wholesale. This figure jumps into the millions after the dope is adulterated and distributed to addicts.

The seizure and arrest were made Saturday, but were not revealed until Monday because federal agents had hoped to trap the intended receivers of the cocaine.

The case was broken—without any advance tip—by Customs Inspector James Sullivan, 27 years old and three years in the service.

First, he found that the interior of a suitcase appeared shallow. Suspicious, he looked further and found false bottoms in three pieces of expensive luggage brought in by Mrs. Bradbie. The cocaine was found piled neatly in the false bottoms.

Officials said Mrs. Bradbie told them a "chance acquaintance" persuaded her to fly to Chile Nov. 15, paid her expenses for the round trip and promised her a good fee. She said persons she did not know were to make contact with her upon her return and make arrangements to pick up the cocaine.

Mrs. Bradbie posed as a "tourist and artist" and carried a foreign-made camera to help the impersonation.

Officials said her criminal record dates back to 1932.

Actress Dislikes Swedish People

LONDON (AP)—The Swedish Iceberg is becoming an Italian tomato.

Swedish-born movie actress Anita Ekberg said Tuesday that she has always felt more Latin than Nordic and, before long, she hopes to make the change official.

"My lawyer has filed an application on my behalf for Italian citizenship," she said. "As for Sweden, I never want to go there again."

The statuesque, 28-year-old blonde, during a break from film-making, said:

"What do I dislike about Sweden? Everything. I dislike the people. They are too materialistic. And I dislike their way of life. They don't know how to enjoy life, they are too gloomy.

"What do I like about Italy? Everything. I like the Italian people. They are charming, proud and vitally alive. I like their way of life. They are uninhibited and they enjoy life.

"I believe, like the Italians, that life is here, now, and you might as well enjoy living it."

Capitalist-Style Enterprise Doing Well in Soviet Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — The Russians lifted the wraps Tuesday from their first capitalist-style enterprise — the Bolshevichka textile plant. It seems to be doing all right.

In a radical experiment, the Soviet government turned over the operation last summer to general director Pyotr K. Noskov and directed him to make a profit.

Noskov told a group of foreign correspondents he guided through the men's suit plant on Tuesday that at first he made less than before, but has since improved.

That really wasn't the point. The Kremlin chiefs were mostly interested in seeking whether Noskov and his executives could run the plant without having every detail planned for them by higher authorities.

The director was permitted to make up his own production plans, based on orders received directly from big department stores.

This meant he produced only what the stores could sell—not what some supply bureaucrat guessed they might be able to sell.

Now, Noskov explained, the stores are ordering what the customers want and selling his suits like hot cakes.

One reason for the new system was that Russian shippers were refusing to buy goods they didn't like. Millions of rubles worth of unsealeable items were piling up in stores and warehouses.

Noskov sets the wage scale, fixes prices and decides where to buy his textiles and what new investments and improvements are to be made.

He said profits dropped from about nine per cent before the new order went into effect July 1, to about five per cent. But this was caused by switching one ship from making only men's trousers to suits.

In October, things began looking up. Profits are up to more than seven per cent and Noskov indicated he considers the sky is the limit.

Average pay of the workers before the reform was about 86 rubles a month. Now it ranges between 93 and 96 rubles. The Russians consider the ruble worth $1.11.

The consumer is getting a better break too, according to the Bolshevichka management.

Before, the average price of suits was 86 rubles. Now it is 77 rubles. And the workmanship and styling are better.

Noskov said stores are ordering all he can produce. How much he produces, though, seems to be a secret.

With the pilot project well under way, the experiment was extended this fall to about one-third of the Soviet Union's consumer goods industries. The idea is based on proposals of Prof. Yevsey Liberman, leader of Russia's liberal economists.

163 Guerrillas Killed or Wounded in 5-Hour Attack

DAT DO, South Viet Nam (Reuters)—A handful of government troops here held off an all-out assault by a battalion of Viet Cong guerrillas Tuesday in nearly five hours of virtual hand-to-hand combat, killing or wounding an estimated 163 guerrillas.

Dat Do, a district capital about 50 miles east of Saigon in Phuoc Tuy province, came under close range attack early this morning when the Viet Cong opened up with an almost continuous barrage of mortars, recoilless rifles and heavy machine-guns.

The 54 government troops, pinned down by a three-side attack, fought off four "human wave" charges by the Viet Cong and lost only three dead and eight wounded.

The government soldiers, with only two mortars and two armored cars, lobbed hand grenades at the Communists from as close in as three yards as they charged and scrambled through the barbed wire perimeter.

Vietnamese fighter - bombers were called in and artillery fire was directed from 10 miles away until the 400-odd guerrillas withdrew through the surrounding paddies.

This was the second such attack against a district capital in Phuoc Tuy province within the last few days. Both were within 10 miles of each other in a province which has been relatively quiet in the past.

Moonflight Tests Highly Successful

WHITE SANDS, N.M. (AP)—A Little Joe II rocket hurled a rummy moonship skyward Tuesday in an apparently successful test of the launch escape system for proposed moonflight astronauts.

U.S. space officials termed the test a milestone in the U.S. bid to put men on the moon by 1970.

Leaving behind a column of white flame, the 340,000-pound thrust Little Joe II thundered from its launch pad as scheduled.

The rocket was knocked off course by a ground signal about 37 seconds after launch, at an altitude of about 31,000 feet.

The 155,000-pound thrust escape motors then ignited and pulled the dummy moonship vehicle away from the mock emergency.

Range officials set out to recover the spaceship, which was to descend about 6½ miles from the launch pad.

Tuesday's test was the fourth in the launch escape system series at White Sands. All have been largely successful.

Little Joe II is being used to economically imitate the 3,000-ton Saturn V, the moon flight launch rocket which is to hurl the first U.S. astronauts toward a lunar landing.

Tokyo is expanding by 460 persons daily and now packs 10,500,000 people into 446 square miles.

Congolese Rebel Leader Appeals For Military Aid

NAIROBI (AP) — Congolese rebel leader Christophe Gbenye Tuesday appealed to African and other nations who protested the American and Belgian intervention in The Congo for military aid to fight the government forces of Premier Moise Tshombe.

The appeal was issued through the Kenya news agency which reported it had been received from Gbenye in the northern Congolese rebel stronghold of Paulis.

"The fight continues" declared Gbenye. "I am neither captured nor dead as the authorities in Leopoldville pretend. All the fighters are with me and are determined to redouble their energy to complete the liberation of The Congo."

Gbenye charged the U.S. and Belgium are solely responsible for the massacres committed in The Congo and particularly at Stanleyville. He claimed the revolutionary government always had safeguarded and would continue to safeguard the security of property and persons.

Gbenye asserted that until the Belgian paratroop drop, not a drop of blood had been shed.

He gave the date of the drop as Nov. 22—two days earlier than that announced by Belgium and Washington.
