Chinese Children Learn Communism at School

Editors: Education and political indoctrination from elementary through the high schools, go hand in hand in China. British writer and teacher John Haylock, who has lived the last six years in Asia, tells of his visits to Chinese schools in the following second of three articles on life in Red China.

By JOHN HAYLOCK

SHANGHAI (AP)—The children's palace which I visit with Miss Wu, my interpreter in Shanghai, is in the old French concession and I am told that the ugly red-brick and stone house once belonged to a "traitor."

"This palace is for children between the ages of 7 and 16 and 1,000 children attend it a day outside their school hours," explains the principal, an earnest woman in blue shirt and blue trousers.

"The idea is to complement school education both physically and morally. We teach the children that the people in the past were poor because they were opposed by imperialists and feudalism and we encourage them to visit old workers so they can learn of the past. We teach them that things are better because of Chairman Mao and the Communist party."

In the garden the children are lining up to roll iron hoops round the paths and at the back is the "road of the brave," an obstacle which is popular. The children, who are bright and lively and look healthy, crawl through tunnels and climb ladders and slide down shoots. It looks like great fun.

On the first floor of the mansion are games, one of which consists of throwing balls at imperialist soldiers. Upstairs in the reading room children hold to their faces little picture books whose themes are anti-capitalist.

There is a dance class of tots dancing and singing about Chairman Mao Tze - tung, a mouth - organ orchestra conducted by an old man, a drama group which enacts a short anti-capitalist play. More constructive are the rooms in which children are learning to make model ships (mostly battleships) and model aircraft (mostly warplanes). The teachers give their services free.

MUST BE POLITICAL

In the car on the way to a teachers' training college Miss Wu asks me what I think. "It's an excellent idea for the children to have a place to play in but it's a pity that most games have to be political," I say.

"But if they were not political they would have no meaning," she replies.

The teachers' training college, a few miles outside Shanghai, occupies an area of more than 90 acres and the three-storey buildings are well-spaced and are connected by tree-lined roads.

Mr. Sung, the dean, sturdy, blue - uniformed and black-capped, meets me and we ascend a flight of concrete stairs in the administrative block to a reception room with wine-colored sofas arranged round a thick Chinese rug.

The dean quotes a lot of figures: In 1954 when the college opened there were 1,000 staff and students and in 10 years this figure has risen to 4,960; are 650,000 books in the library.

Before the liberation the children of workers and peasants could not go to college. Now 42 per cent of the students come from workers' or peasant families. There are no fees and each student is paid $6 a month as pocket money. A lecturer is paid an average $60 a month, a full professor $168. A four-roomed teacher's apartment rents for about $3 a month.

WORK AT LABOR

"Our task is to bring up good teachers for our country," Mr. Sung stresses. Study of Marxist - Leninism and Chairman Mao's works alternates with weeks of manual labor either in a factory or on a commune so that he learns to understand life from a worker's point of view.

In the men's quarters eight students share a smallish room in which there are bunks in tiers and four desks.

Political posters and slogans decorate the walls. The rooms are very tidy, very hygienic, very bare and very cold.

Hate Mail Brings Postal Ban

By PETE McNAUGHTON

OTTAWA (CP) — The founder of an anti-Semitic organization who has lost his mailing privileges for distributing hate literature told a post office review board Monday the government is muzzling free speech in order to cover up a Jewish-led Communist conspiracy.

John Ross Taylor of Gooderham, Ont., 52-year-old founder of Natural Order, told the board the organization has thoroughly exposed a massive Communist conspiracy led by Jews ,but the government wishes to brush it aside.

Mr. Taylor is representing himself and David Stanley, 20, of Vancouver. Both men lost their right to use the mails when Postmaster Tremblay said pamphlets sent through the mails by Natural Order were scurrilous.

"Natural Order exposes the conspiracy of Communism which is totally Jewish-controlled and at this moment already has the whip hand over the banking system and government of Canada," Mr. Taylor told the three-man board, set up to permit an appeal against Mr. Tremblay's order.

The Commons debated revisions of the Bank Act.

It was the first day of debate under new procedural rules adopted by the House Friday, wiping out the dinner recess.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) said new procedure for incorporation of banks will lead to patronage.

Reid Scott (NDP—Toronto Danforth) objected to the prohibition against provincial governments owning bank shares.

The longer sitting hours gave Finance Minister Gordon the opportunity to be the busiest politician in the capital.

He defended legislation affecting Canadian newspapers and periodicals, a bill to prohibit foreign investors buying Canadian banks and his 10-per-cent personal income tax cut.

And he found time to offer a long lecture against Social Credit monetary theory.

Increased Fly Ash Due To Duncan Construction

Intensive Log Processing Causes Fairview Fallout From KFP Operation

The increasing sawdust and fly ash problem emanating from Kootenay Forest Products Ltd., falling on Nelson's Fairview area, was directly attributed Monday night to construction of the Duncan Dam on the Columbia River development.

Fairview residents were given no promises or guarantees that the sawdust and fly ash problem could be curtailed.

KFP general manager Ray West told a special meeting of City Council and the Fairview Air Pollution Committee, that 80 per cent of the company's sawmill operations have been devoted to the processing of cedar.

This had been necessitated, Mr. West said, because of the implications of the Duncan Dam construction. He said that in the area to be flooded by the Duncan reservoir Kootenay Forest Products owns about 4000 acres of timber land that must be completely logged by April 1, 1968.

About 80 per cent of this timber was cedar, and logging operations have been going on in that area for the past three years.

Mr. West said it was the heavy load of cedar log processing that has created the increased sawdust and fly ash problem in Nelson.

He said that the problem stems primarily from the disposal of the cedar bark which, due to its natural makeup, was difficult to completely burn, and created considerable ash.

"The company has been aware of the nuisance existing for a good many years," Mr. West continued, "and has continually been striving to overcome the problems."

He made it clear to the meeting, however, that to date no guaranteed remedy has been found.

HAS PLANS

He noted that the company is planning several steps this year i nan effort to alleviate the situation.

Extensive repairs and alterations are planned for the burner, Mr. West said. Complete new and more efficient fire pots are being installed, and changes are being made in the forced draft system in an effort to promote more complete combustion.

He said the existing burner has a potential capacity for burning the scrap material from 140,000 feet of sawn lumber per eight-hour shift. He noted also that the plant is presently processing about 90,000 feet per eight-hour shift, "well within the limits of the burner capacity," he said.

In a further effort to obtain more complete combustion of the waste materials, Mr. West said that the sawmill operations, presently three shifts per day, are being reduced to two shifts daily beginning June 25.

Intense heat in the burner is a prime requisite of more complete combustion, and the company believes that by reducing the sawmill operations by one shift it will be providing more adequate time for intense heat to build up in the burner, thereby resulting in more complete disposal of the waste products.

He said that the company's processing of cedar logs is also being curtailed drastically. "In future," he said, "we will be processing only 20 per cent of the cedar that has been going through to date."

He said this step will result in the company's storing cedar logs in Kootenay Lake for a period of eight years.

SMALLER MESH SCREEN

In further efforts to curtail the sawdust and fly ash problem, Mr. West said that studies are now under way by the company to determine the feasibility of using a smaller mesh screen at the top of the burner. He said consideration is also being given to the installation of a second screen within the burner itself.

He said that a new system of placing shavings in the burner is being tried in the hopes it will hold them in the burner for a longer period, thereby resulting in more complete combustion.

The company is launched on a program of research that it hopes will result in the finding of alternate methods of using waste materials such as the manufacture of saleable products. He said that this program has already resulted in the company's placing a type of door on the market that is made completely from waste materials.

Queried by Fairview committeeman Ron Sawyer as to the feasibility of overcoming the problem by the addition of another fuel such as gas to the burner to obtain more complete combustion, Mr. West said that, because of the nature of the operation with wide fluctuations in quantities being burned over short periods, this would not be satisfactory.

Mr. Sawyer compared the waste burning with the incineration of city garbage. "About 80 to 90 per cent combustion is obtained in incineration," he said.

"The obvious solution," Mr. Sawyer added, "would be to take the material from the plant and dispose of it elsewhere." Mr. West did not reply.

Fairview committeeman Dr. J. G. M. McMurchy suggested using the waste material for fill at the waterfront development. Mayor E. T. Bodard said that Government studies have indicated that sawdust in the water has a deteriorating effect on the fish population.

Mr. West informed the meeting that contrary to popular belief, not only the company burner is located outside the city limits, but so were the boiler and sawmill cyclone units.

He noted that the burner refurbishing would be completed about September 1, and asked that residents of the city keep watch to determine just what effect is felt ,and make their findings known to the company.

Mme. Vanier Visits Indian Reserve Home

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — Mme. Vanier, wife of Governor-General Georges Vanier, made a surprise visit Sunday night to the home of the 1964 Canadian mother of the year on the nearby Kamloops Indian Reserve. She stayed about an hour.

"We were thrilled to have her visit us. We can't seem to get over it," Mrs. Gus Gottfreidsen said Monday.

Mme. Vanier, who arranged the surprise on the spur of the moment after recognizing Mrs. Gottfreidsen at a luncheon earlier in the day, said she was equally thrilled.

During the visit the Governor-General's wife held the Gottfreidsen's three-week-old grandson for some time.

"It has been so long since I have held such a small child. It was a real thrill," she said later.

The entire Gottfreidsen family, as is customary on Sunday evenings, was at home when Mme. Vanier, her lady-in-waiting and an RCMP escort arrived at the reservation.

"When I saw the police cars pull into the yard I thought there must be trouble," said Mrs. Gottfreidsen who previously met Mme. Vanier in Ottawa last year on her visit as Mother of the Year.

The Gottfreidsen children donned Indian costumes and performed some native dances for Mme. Vanier while another member of the family explained to her the meaning of the movements.

In all, four generations of the Gottfreidsen family were on hand for the surprise visit. They included Mrs. Gottfreidsen's 79-year-old mother Mrs. Faustine Manuel and several foster children.

Doctors Consider Ways Of Controlling Drugs

Against Complete Gov't Control; May Take More Active Role on Issue

By HARRY CALNEK

HALIFAX (CP) — Canada's doctors turned their scrutiny on drugs Monday and searched for ways to control both quality and distribution.

The general council of the Canadian Medical Association's annual meeting was critical of any possible moves by the government to put complete control of drugs in the hands of a government agency.

Presenting the pharmacy committee's report to the first day of the five-day meeting, Dr. R. W. Gunton of Toronto said:

"The question is whether any agency of the government should be entrusted to make the rules, acquire and interpret the evidence, sit in judgment on it, and act in a police capacity to execute the judgment.

"The Canadian Medical Association, representing the major professional group responsible for the use of drugs, must decide whether it should play a more active role in advising its members, the public and the government on matters concerning drugs."

Dr. E. A. Sellers of Toronto, representing the Pharmacological Society of Canada, had proposed that the CMA sponsor jointly with other professions a national commission on drugs.

The general council shelved a recommendation to approve the idea in principle, but authorized a sub-committee to continue exploration with interested organizations including the federal health department.

WANTS VOLUNTARY

Dwelling on recommendations of the Hall royal commission on health services, the council agreed Canadians should have insurance against the cost of prescribed drugs. It did not advocate, however, compulsory insurance.

A discount on drugs by retail pharmacists was unrealistic and should not be encouraged.

Dr. W. G. McClure of Mission City, B.C., said the council should make it plain that it was not merely supporting recommendations of the Hall commission, but in fact reiterated them. Many of them were made in the CMA's submission to the commission.

Throughout the first day of the meeting medical care crept into all discussions. Retiring President Dr. Frank Turnbull of Vancouver told a council luncheon the CMA would resist a panicked approach to the Hall commission recommendations.

A list of recommendations from the Canadian Bar Association was approved in principle by the CMA.

Must Retain Decorum!

OTTAWA (CP) — With the Commons now sitting through the supper hour, members of Parliament are going to have to take their meals in relays.

One member tried taking supper to his desk Tuesday, and quickly found out it doesn't work.

Arnold Peters NDP — Timiskaming) had just seated himself with a sandwich and coffee when Deputy Speaker Lucien Lamoureux spotted him.

It was the job of the speaker, said Mr. Lamoureux, to maintain the decorum of the chamber, and he considered it against such decorum for a member to eat at his desk.

Mr. Peters said he thought the new rules change would allow such conduct since no meal hour was being provided.

Mr. Lamoureux said no. He asked Mr. Peters to finish his supper out behind the curtain.

The NDP member picked up his sandwich and coffee and left with a smile.

L. A. Matheson, Superintendent Of Schools, Dies

PENTICTON (CP) — L. A. Matheson, district superintendent of schools for Penticton and Summerland, died here Monday.

Mr. Matheson, 58, collapsed in his driveway as he left for work and was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital.

He was principal of Queen Elizabeth High School in Surrey for 16 years and was also superintendent of schools for Kimberley-Golden before coming to this area two years ago.

COSENZA, Italy (Reuters)—Police said Monday that a woman they rescued from a wooden cage in a tiny village near here had been held captive for 18 years.

Gunderson To Stay Bennett Declares

VICTORIA (CP) — Premier Bennett said Monday he has no intention of removing Einar Gunderson from his many government posts.

Mr. Bennett told a press conference there is no conflict between Mr. Gunderson's handling of a Social Credit party fund and his government jobs.

The premier described Mr. Gunderson, a former B.C. finance minister, as "an outstanding man who has rendered a great service to the province."

He was commenting on disclosure during the recent trial of Al Williamson, a Vancouver public relations man, that Mr. Gunderson headed a Social Credit fund.

Mr. Gunderson is a director of B.C. Hydro, the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway and the B.C. Ferry Authority.

The premier said there is "not patronage" in the B.C. Social Credit movement and declared giving to the socred fund "of course doesn't help the donor."

He said his government appoints men "only on their merit."

World businessmen didn't have to see any person before dealing with the government.

"Government policy is set by the premier and his executive council," he said, "not by Gunderson or anyone else."

The premier told reporters an independent survey just released shows more than 60 per cent of B.C.'s population now supports his government.

Referring to opposition demands that Mr. Gunderson be fired from his government jobs, the premier said: "No wonder the other aprties are concerned. They must have the surveys too."

He said the survey he referred to had not been sought by Social Credit.

Ticker Tape Parade Honors Astronauts

CHICAGO (AP) — Astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II received a tumultuous civic welcome here Monday and told their host they feel humble.

After receiving honorary citizen medals at a special city council meeting while their wives and parents looked on, both said their Gemini 4 space flight was a team effort which included all Americans.

The welcome, which included a ticker-tape parade past cheering thousands, McDivitt said, reinforced his deep feeling of "how insignificant one man, or two men are."

The space flight, during which White manoeuvred outside the space capsule, was, McDivitt said, "a wonderful bit of co-operation by everyone in the United States."

IMPRESSED BY UNITY

The welcoming cheers of crowds, said White, impressed him with the sense of unity. His greeters were a mixture of races, he noted.

"It was a display of just plain Americanism," he said. "It didn't make any difference if they were black, white or red—they were feeling like Americans."

There was no sign of the school protest marchers, who plagued the city's police and motorists in three days of traffice-snarling marches and whose leaders talked of interfering with Monday's celebration.

The outpouring for McDivitt and White dwarfed the show of militant civil rights demonstrators protesting against what they say is slow progress of Chicago's school racial-integration program. About 400 demonstrators held a rally in Frant Park a mile or so from the jammed streets where the spacemen were cheered.

The afternoon program of the astronauts included a question-and - answer session for 6,500 school youngsters.

1000 Paratroops To Dong Xoai

DONG XOAI, South Viet Nam (Reuters) —More than 1,000 government paratroopers were rushed to an airstrip near Dong Xoai fo possible use against Viet Cong guerrillas Monday as U.S. and South Vietnamese planes struck at army barracks in North Viet Nam.

The troop movement came on the heels of a landing by 850 U.S. paratroopers Sunday near the vital Phuoc Vinh airstrip, 20 miles south of Dong Xoai.

If the Americans are sent into action it will be the first time U.S. troops have faced the Viet Cong on the battlefield outside their previous role of defending military installations.

Apart from sniper fire, little contact with the guerrillas was reported Monday. However, both sides were believed to be regrouping for possible further clashes later in the week.

Guerrillas ambushed a government airborne battalion at Phuoc Vinh Sunday.

FOUND BODIES

Found later were about 100 bodies of government soldiers and the identity tags of one American.

Military sources said 245 South Vietnamese paratroopers were killed or missing as a result of the ambush. About 75 were wounded and 160 escaped unharmed.

DOLLAR DOWN

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadian dollar down 3-64 at 92 11-32 in terms of U.S. funds. Week ago 92 27-64.

Pound sterling down 1-64 at 32.79 11-32.

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was up 1-32 to $1.08 9-32.

And in This Corner . . .

MONTREAL (CP) — Gabriel Papoutsis was on duty as a night watchman at Laurier Meat Packers Ltd., warehouse Saturday night when an armed man broke in.

Papoutsis told him the only money in the building was the $50 he had in his pocket. The thief took it.

Papoutsis pleaded with the man that he couldn't get home without money because the city's bus strike had made his bus tickets useless.

They argued for two hours.

The thief finally gave Papoutsis $25 and left.

STREETSVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Police and firemen learned a lesson Saturday. When a little girl is lost, look first under her bed.

C. H. Seip of Streetsville called police Saturday to report his three-year-old daughter, Pat, was missing.

Police were joined in the search by 25 firemen and by friends and neighbors.

One of the neighbors had an idea when a search of the neighborhood proved futile — look under the tot's bed.

There was Pat, fast asleep.

LONDON (AP) — Truck driver David Twitchen, 22, said Monday he is joining the French Foreign Legion to get away from British traffic jams.

"I'm British and proud of it," said Twitchen. "But our country's going to the dogs. It's these traffic jams."

He said that about two weeks ago his truck got boxed into a long line of traffic waiting for a red light to change.

"It was more than 10 minutes before I got through that light. That was the last straw. I decided to do something drastic."

CPR Will Sell Airstrip to Nelson

The CPR has agreed to sell the waterfront lands now comprising the Nelson airstrip to the city outright for a market value price to be established by the municipal assessor.

Mayor E. T. Bodard told a special meeting of city council Monday night that he had received word from CPR representatve George Phillips that the company is now prepared to sell the airport lands outright to the city.

The city has been in negotiations with CPR for the past 12 years in an effort to obtain use of the airport lands on a 99-year lease.

Mr. Bodard noted that representatives of the Department of Transport, on visiting the local airstrip, informed the municipality that to qualfy for small airport assistance the runway length would have to be increased to 2800 feet.

He said that council has been attempting to inaugerate a pattern of development at the airstrip that would permit the eventual lengthening of the runway to 4000 feet. The lands agreed on for sale by CPR would permit this development, Mayor Bodard said.

He said the assessed value of the 21.97 acres of land at the airstrip have a market value of $39,380, based on an assessed value of $19,690.

On a motion by M. B. Ryalls, council agreed to start negotiations with the CPR to obtain the entire 21.97 acres.

VERNON ROBERT NELSON of Jeffs St., Nelson, has been awarded a $500 scholarship for graduate studies in the sciences. Nelson spent four years at UBC and graduated with first class honors in Chemistry.

Four Dunked as Raft Breaks Up

Three boys and one adult were dumped into the cold waters of Kootenay Lake about two p.m. Saturday when a raft they were floating on came apart when a storm came up.

The raft was tied together with ropes and the four persons held onto the logs until they were picked up by an unknown boat.

The four were: Raymond Bouillet, 11, Daniel Bouillet 12, Rodney Seabrook, 12 and Allan McNaught, 23, all of Nelson.

Central Holds Sports Day

Division five won the intermediate section and Division eight won the primary section of the Central School's annual sports day.

The 465 students of the school took their lunches and paraded to the grounds Friday morning.

Division five boys and girls won the grade four relay and Division four boys and girls won the grade five relay.

The grade six relay was won by Division three and the Grade seven relay won by division one.

Plaudits From Dignitaries As Native Son Takes Bench

There were no solemn sentences or judicial informalities in Nelson County courtroom Monday afternoon — only heartwarming tributes and professional and personal accolades as L. S. Gansner, veteran member of the bar and longtime Nelson resident, officially became judge of the County Court of West Kootenay.

"I am deeply honored and very proud of the confidence you have placed in me," Mr. Gansner told the large gathering of civic, jurisprudent and government dignitaries assembled for the investiture ceremonies.

"I cannot help but be overcome with the kind and generous remarks that had been made here today," he continued.

Mr. Gansner assured friends, family and colleagues of his continued desire to "maintain the high standards of my office," referring to himself as being a "beneficiary" to the obligations of his high appointment. He paid particular tribute to retiring judge, E. P. Dawson, to whom he said he was indebted for his "learning and humanity," which had "affected all who appeared before him."

"YOUR COURTROOM"

Turning to the large gallery of well-wishers and friends, Mr. Gansner told them he was "gratified and reassured" by their numbers, and urged their continued attendance in court proceedings in the future.

"Public participation is essentil to the proper function of the court," he reminded them. "This is your courtroom," he continued, "you have a right to be here."

The speaker then singled out members of his family, as well as professional colleagues.

"My heart is warmed by the presence of my family, friends and neighbors," he added, describing others present as "all my very warm friends." Recognizing the unfamilarity of his new judiciary post, Mr. Gansner said: "As a new judge, I will depend on the integrity and skill of members of the bar, with whose help and goodwill I hope to discharge my duties to the best of my abilities."

Called on by R. H. Vogel of Creston, president of the Kootenay Bar Association, to introduce Mr. Gansner, C. B. Garland, QC, and business partner of the guest of honor for 27 years, termed his task a "pleasure and an honor," as well as one of "personal pride. He then described his colleague's long history with the firm he founded. Mr. Garland is now retired.

SERVED WELL

Adding to the eulogy, Hon. Mr. Justice E. A. Branca, welcomed Mr. Gansner to the bench as a "native son and distinguished member of the bar."

NEW JUDGE TAKES THE OATH

Citing the professional history of the new judge, the speaker said, "You have served the people of your community well, and have earned the respect of your profession," which, he added, was "a thing highly to be regarded and difficult to attain."

Reminding Mr. Gansner of his new judicial role, Mr. Justice Branca said, "I can confidently predict your transition from the position of champion to that of umpire will prove you to be as able in the new as you were in the old."

He paid particular tribute to Mr. Gansner's mother, who, he was confident, would "continue to inspire you in whatever you do." He congratulated her for "having such a distinguished son."

Listing three qualities considered prerequisites for the bench as a sense of justice, respect from the profession and an orderly mind, Judge M. Provenzano extended the good wishes of district County Courts "for a long and happy life on the bench."

Relating his own personal experience, the speaker alluded to the fact that "not long ago I had an honor similar to this," and chided, "no longer can you say, I fought viciously in court, now it's up to the judge." His laudatory remarks included retired judge E. P. Dawson, whose professional shoes, he described as "very large."

"If anyone can fill them," he concluded, "I'm sure Judge Gansner can."

Congratulatory remarks from the East Kootenay Bar, as well as the Kootenay Bar Association were conveyed by Mr. Hislop and Mr. Mason, respectively.

Investiture oath was performed by Mr. Justice E. A. Branca.

Ghost Car Nabs Speeders

Nelson City Police used a ghost car over the weekend to pick up a number of young persons for speeding or failing to stop at a stop sign.

They charged eight persons with speeding, four of whom were picked up by the ghost car. Five persons were charged with failing to stop at a stop sign.

Rev. David Cline of Calgary is to succeed Rev. Peter W. Faris, who ends four years as minister of St. Paul's-Trinity United Church at the end of June.

Mr. Faris is leaving for Simon Fraser University for further studies. He served at North Bay, Ontario, before coming to Nelson.

Mr. Cline will be inducted July 15 by representatives of the Kootenay Presbytery.

Nelson School One of Five In Training Plan

VICTORIA (CP) — Some 350 B.C. secondary school teachers will attend four-day training courses next week in five regional vocational schools.

The courses will be aimed at acquainting the teachers with new commercial, industrial and community service programs being introduced in the high schools next September.

Topics of the courses will include business machines and general business in the commercial program, basic electricity and industrial power in the commercial program and all aspects of the community service program.

The instruction will be given at regional vocational schools in Burnaby, Kelowna, Nanaimo, Nelson and Prince George.

Mrs. Abrosimoff New President

At a recent meeting of the Parents' Club of the A. I. Collinson School, the following executive was elected for the 1965-66 season:

President, Mrs. J. Abrosimoff; vice-president, Mrs. J. Smith; secretary, Mrs. R. Powell; treasurer, Mrs. M. Goddard; hospitality; Mrs. W. Bonderud; publicity, Mrs. W. Hamilton and Mrs. G. Bond; ways and means, Mrs. G. Ottewell and Mrs. J. Donaldson: membership, Mrs. G. Jones and Mrs. H. Wassick; program, Mrs. P. Harbottle and Mrs. F. Varseveld; refreshments, Mrs. R. Wright and Mrs. G. Speechley.

During the business part of the meeting the coming awards day was discussed also the annual track meet. Mr. Fawcet, principal, explained the proposed transfer of some students to Procter next term. The Parent's Club will sponsor an outing for the students going into town next year.

LONDON (CP)—Vicki Berner of Vancouver advanced to the second round of the London grass court tennis championships Monday.

Miss Berner, 20, ranked second among Canadian women in 1964, downed G. S. Swan of South Africa 6-2, 6-1 under sunny skies at London's Queen's Club.

Fisheries Survey Also Called For

An immediate start and complete and proper clearance of the Duncan Dam reservoir, and for an immediate start on a detailed survey of the effect of the dam on fisheries with recommendations for compensation for the losses were demanded by a public meeting here Monday night.

More than 125 persons filled the Eagle Hall for the meeting, sponsored by West Kootenay Rod and Gun Club Association and the B.C. Wildlife Federation.

Meeting chairman H. R. Hanson of Trail read telegrams from The Kimberley Rod and Gun Club, the Creston Rod and Gun Club, the Nanaimo Rod and Gun Club and the Vancouver Island Rod and Gun Club Association.

Letters from the East Kootenay Broadcasting Co. Ltd. and H. Farenholtz, president of the Nelson Chamber of Commerce, were read to the gathering.

William Wollinger past president of the B.C. Wildlife Federation, gave an outline of the history of the Fish and Game clubs in relation to the Columbia river development.

MODERATE VIEW

In November 1960 the clubs who opposed anything that affected fishing or hunting, resolved to prepare a brief on the effect of the dam on fishing.

The brief, "Recreation in the Columbia River Basin of Canada" was a model of moderation, Mr. Wollinger told the meeting.

Instead of opposing development of the river, the brief asked for multiple use of the reservoir.

The annual convention of the Rod and Gun clubs in 1961 endorsed the brief and the principles it contained and in July of that year the brief was presented to the government.

The two principles were that power and storage dams be opened for recreation purposes and that there be compensation for loss of fisheries resulting from construction of the dam.

"We hoped the government would see our point of view," Mr. Wollinger said. "We were assured all along the line that these things would be done."

Now, he said, he has doubts that their moderate stand was wise.

Up to this time the organized sportsmen have not indulged in politics, he told the meeting.

RELEASE REPORT

Howard Paish, Secretary-Manager of the B.C. Wildlife Federation, reviewed a report of the Effects on Fish and Game Species of Development of Duncan Dam for Hydro-Electric purposes.

The report, a preliminary study, was released about two weeks ago after three years of pressure from sportsmen's groups.

"It is a relatively superficial report," he said, but the Fish and Game Branch "did a good job under the circumstances."

The report describes the fisheries on the Duncan River and Kotenay Lake and the effects of the dam on fisheries. However, it is lacking in recommendations, he said.

He told the meeting that the report states that construction of a dam on he Duncan River will adversely affect fisheries on Kootenay Lake. However, there was inadequate research data to make definite statements.

The big Rainbow Trout, which have been weighed up to 50 pounds, are unique and have attracted anglers from all over the world.

These fish spawn on the Lardeau River and it is feared that changes in the water temperatures and flow patterns would affect their time of spawning. Flow patterns may trigger homing instinct.

The most important aspect of the problem is that the Rainbow feed for five to seven years on the Kokanee, which spawn on the Lardeau and Duncan rivers, it was explained.

The dam is being built on a major Kokanee spawning ground and will cut off access to another major spawning ground upstream.

It is estimated that about half of the Kokanee run could be lost.

NEEDED AT ONCE

Mr. Paish emphasized that organized sportsmen have never made specific suggestions because they don't know the best method of alleviating the losses.

Little research has been done and they are suggesting that a research program be started immediately.

Frank Shannon of the Riondel Rod and Gun Club told the meeting that the reservoir "must be cleared to minimum safety standards."

He disagreed with the policy of complete lack of recreational facilities on the reservoir and complained of the loss of a great undeveloped tourist potential.

He told the meeting that good recreational facilities on the reservoir would attract tourists and permanent residents.

Randolph Harding, MLA for Kaslo-Slocan, told the group that from the floor of the legislature he has been urging the government to plan for complete and proper clearing of the reservoir before flooding.

CASH AVAILABL E

Sufficient money in cash had been received to clear the three reservoirs and the provincial government should do the job for which the money was given, he contended.

He also said that the rod and gun clubs in this area have done an outstanding job in bringing the government's attention to the problems of clearing and fisheries.

"You can't stop the dam construction and we're not trying to," he said.

B.C. Hydro should provide the funds for a fisheries study, he told the gathering.

He also said that the B.C. Hydro should not be the organization that tells people it will not do certain things such as the Robson-Deer Park road.

"The government should set standards and not B.C. Hydro."

Donald Robinson, assistant director of the Fish and Game Branch, said they have made recommendations for further studies.

His biologists have pinpointed the area where conservation practices properly employed could protect the resource.

"In our qualified opinion we can protect most of the resource," he said.

He told the meeting that his department is prepared to carry out the necessary studies when instructions are given and said that there is some urgency.

In reply to a question, he said that his department has made contacts with the men who would be needed to conduct the study.

A delegation from the West Kootenay Student Placement Committee called for an immediate start on clearance of the reservoir site to provide employment for unskilled students and other unemployed persons in British Columbia.

In reply to a call for action from the floor, Mr. Hanson told the people that it was up to them to do something. He suggested letters and phone calls to Premier Bennett, cabinet ministers and district MLAs.

Randolph Harding added that the only way to force the government to use the money for clearing was by public pressure.

A speaker from the floor moved that the meeting express its dissatisfaction that W. D. Black, provincial secretary and MLA for Nelson-Creston, has continually refused to attend public meetings in this area.

The speaker pointed out that this was the fourth time Mr. Black has refused to attend a meeting on reservoir clearing and fisheries.

Mr. Hanson told the meeting that Mr. Black had been asked to suggest a date when he could come, but had not replied.

TRAVEL ADVISOR

JIM VIPOND says:
Summer is with us and the delightful warm weather but do you want to get away from it for a while? There are excellent opportunities of taking a nice cool trip up to the Yukon and Alaska. Regular bus tours are available from Edmonton, for about two weeks, terminating at Prince George, then you can take the P.G.E. Railway from Prince George to Vancouver and see that lovely part of B.C. too. Or you can take a cool, air-conditioned train trip to Quebec and take a 12 day tour of the Gaspe Peninsula, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. Why not see more of Canada this summer and keep cool? Call us anytime for ideas of Canadian Tours.

An increase in combined membership as well as a good record of community service won the plaque for the Kaslo Legion, and was presented at the West Kootenay Zone meet at Castlegar Sunday—Daily News photo by Bea Zucco.

Young Athletes To Still Have Legion's Support

CASTLEGAR — Young athletes who do not hold Amateur Athletic Union cards and are competing at less than championship level will have the continued support of the West Kootenay Zone of the Royal Canadian Legion, it was decided at the meeting of the zone over the weekend.

It was felt that participation in track and field has been increasing to the extent that the program has been receiving more publicity and attracting the interest of track and field clubs and directors and officials of the Amateur Athletic Union throughout the province. This interest, it was noted, has led to a complete reversal in original plans and has moved Legion athletics into the field of the champions and top standards, and thus could restrict and discourage the average athlete, despite the fact that it was never the intention of the Legion sports training plan to restrict its support to the championship class only.

Zone Commander Fred Hackned will notify the Pacific Command of the Zone's decision.

In his report, Bert Lamb said, "The entry of the Legion into this national sports training program has already had a large impact. Changes will have to take place, as we are finding at provincial level.

"During the transition it will be necessary to co-ordinate a top notch community program in which a number of groups will each play its part.

"It is essential therefore, that the financial aspects be under strict control to avoid overlapping and duplication."

He re-stated the aims and objectives of the Legion: to develop in the Legion Sports Training Program the fitness of youth, in track and field, through mass participation at the elementary level; to develop and improve the quality of leadership through the medium of coaches clinics and administrative and organizational clinics; to enlist support and interest of other groups within the community, in making it a strong community program.

Mr. Lamb's report said, further, "We have been led into star-making. This was not our intention.

FITNESS PROGRAM

"A committee was set up to find a project for the Legion to get behind and work on. During the last war it was found many people were unfit to get into the army.

FOR ANY CHILD

"The project was started to build physical fitness in any child who shows promise in sports. This is the duty of track and field clubs. Our aim is to give children a start. The track clubs should take over from there.

"Under the present set-up I say our program will only last two years. We spend 17 per cent of our tax on this project."

Fifty-five out of 79 branches are participating, he said. Most of them in it in name only. Legion members must take an active part, he said. The schools are doing most of the actual activity."

Of 1000 persons aged 35, 33% will be disabled by illness or injury—for three months or more—before they reach age 65. That's what the statistics show.

What kind of a statistic will you be?

It makes sense to look into a Manufacturers Life Personal Income Protector Plan. Nothing can give you such peace of mind as the sure knowledge that if you are disabled and cannot work, a guaranteed income will come your way.

Our Plan has many advantages. It offers you a wide flexibility in amount of income and the length of time it will be paid. For example; you may be able to arrange for income benefits right through to age 65 for total disability due to sickness or for life when an accident is the cause. Accidental death and dismemberment benefits to age 65 are also offered. You can co-ordinate the plan with your other resources; tailor it to your needs and your pocketbook. Manufacturers Life cannot cancel the policy nor can your premium rate be raised—ever. The plan can be adjusted to correct the inadequacy of any short-term coverage you already have.

If you are interested, call the Man from Manufacturers. When advising you on disability income he offers you the same competent counsel available to you when you are planning your life insurance security.

Stop That Noise!

The roaring engines of motorcycles and scooters again ripped the late night air of the City of Nelson over the weekend as young drivers continue to ignore the peace and comfort of residents.

It appears that little effective action is being taken to bring this noise nuisance under control. This lack of action is hard to understand, especially in view of a City of Nelson bylaw that provides the legal means necessary to end this scourge.

On June 11, 1962, over the signature of the then mayor T. S. Shorthouse and city clerk C. W. R. Harper, Nelson City Council passed an anti-noise bylaw which states in part:

"It shall be unlawful for any person or persons within the municipality limits of the City of Nelson to make or cause any noise or sounds in the Municipality which disturb, or tend to disturb, the quiet, peace, rest, enjoyment, comfort or convenience of the neighborhood, or of persons in the vicinity."

The bylaw further states that the following are specifically prohibited "within the Municipal Limits of the City":

"The use of any automobile, motorcycle, bus or other vehicle so out of repair or so loaded or operated as to create loud or unnecessary noise or noises . . .

"The discharging in the open air of the exhaust of any stationary internal combustion engine, motor vehicle engine or automobile engine except through a muffler or other device which effectively prevents unnecessary noise therefrom."

The bylaw also covers the use of horns, yelling, shouting or singing.

It also provides, on conviction by the mayor, magistrate or by two justices of the peace, for a fine not exceeding $100.

This bylaw has been in effect for more than three years. Its effectiveness has, however, been ineffectual for more than three years because of failure to enforce its requirements.

It is hard to understand why, after complaints have been lodged, that Nelson City Police have failed to take the necessary action, why charges under the bylaw have not been laid.

Perhaps direct representation should be made to City Council. Under the terms of the bylaw Nelson's mayor is empowered to sit in judgment.

One thing is certain, it is high time that positive steps were taken to end this noise nuisance that abounds on city streets each night, and is particularly heavy on the weekends.

Residents of the City of Nelson certainly have the right to expect that they can enjoy a modicum of peace and quiet as they sit in their homes in the evenings.

There is no doubt, too, that all operators of motorcycles and scooters do not contribute to this nuisance, for there are many who take every precaution to ensure that their vehicles do not cause any disturbance.

However, definite action should be taken against those who are responsible. Let's see this action now.

Plenty to Celebrate

The French have been a bit mystified and perhaps a little miffed over the enthusiasm the British people showed this month for the evacuation of Dunkirk, 25 years ago.

The French naturally wanted no part of it. It signified defeat for France in the blitzkrieg, and some might say that it signified their desertion by the British—as if the latter could have done anything else.

But even in England there is some mystification at the readiness of the people to go over to Dunkirk to listen to bands and bagpipes on the beaches. One newspaper sourly suggests that this reflects a nostalgic nationalism, an unconscious lament, an emotional release for people who have lost an empire and with it commercial pre-eminence.

Perhaps all this is true. There is, also, don't forget, a Celtic strain in the British people, and the literature and song of the Celts is much preoccupied with the theme of death and disaster—but also, of return.

Anyway, surely, all is not yet lost. Dunkirk is only one of many anniversaries the British have to cherish in June. Today, the 900th anniversary of the founding of Westminster Abbey will be celebrated. It is not as old as the Parthenon or even Hagia Sophia, but let the parvenu nations of the 20th century pause and reflect.

Tomorrow will be the observance of Parliament's 700th birthday. Actually, we are informed, the birth date is January, 1265, but celebration was postponed out of respect to Sir Winston Churchill. On the same day Britons will venerate the 750th anniversary of Magna Carta.

Match that seven centuries, you Johnny-come-lately nations with your patented constitutions and Congresses and Diets!

And on June 18 comes the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Waterloo.

It is understood that the French are not keen on joining in with the British in this celebration, either.

The RCMP Is Great But Not Perfect

The head of the RCMP, Commissioner George McLellan, said in Toronto the other day that sinister forces are out to get the Mounties. He implied that all criticism of the red coats is reprehensible.

No wonder Justice Minister Guy Favreau had a discussion with the commissioner on the matter. A rebuke was in order. The commissioner should have been bluntly told the RCMP is not above criticism, that it is in the public domain, like any other organization of public servants.

The commissioner has been upset over a recent down-grading of the force's former pristine reputation. We don't blame him. But is such criticism "sinister"? Is the RCMP so gorgeously circumspect, so above reproach, so utterly perfect that no one may point a finger at it without being immediately suspected of being subversive or worse?

The facts are that the RCMP is human. It has some near-perfect men in it, true. But it also has a few meatheads, which it tries to get rid of once it finds them out.

Is it sinister to say that the RCMP makes mistakes, that it could have handled some of the investigations arising out of that scandal on Parliament Hill with a bit more polish and thoroughness, that some of its officers and men have been below average in performance?

Of course it is not sinister to say such things, especially when they happen to be the truth.

In the United States, it is evidently sinister to criticize the FBI, that august and lofty organization that could be called the American counterpart of the RCMP. It is by no means perfect, yet those who hold its leadership reins would have Americans believe so.

Surely Commissioner McLellan is not so taken with RCMP legends (like "they always get their man") that he believes them all to be true.

The Meaning of the Magna Carta to Modern Man

On June 15, 750 years ago King John set his seal on the Magna Carta at Runnymede, setting the basis for modern democratic government. In the following article, Lord Shawcross, famed British lawyer, tells of the meaning of Runnymede to modern man. Lord Shawcross—then Sir Hartley Shawcross — was the chief United Kingdom prosecutor at the Nurernberg war crimes trials and later British attorney-general 1945-1951.

By Lord Shawcross, Q.C., LL.D.
Distributed by
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

No high-sounding declarations about the rights of man, democratic government or the rule of law were heard on that pragmatic occasion at Runnymede 750 years ago when King John reluctantly set his seal to Magna Carta. Yet it is the truth that barons and king fashioned in Magna Carta the cornerstone of the rule of law as we know it today and one of the great landmarks in the long journey towards democratic government through parliament.

In their practical approach to the grievances inflicted by John's systematic abuse of his privilege, the barons dealt with problems incidental to feudal society, and it may be true that the reference to freemen in the famous chapter 39 of the charter was concerned rather with the privileged than the humble. But the language was large and was to fall in due time for interpretations by the courts.

GLORIFIES THE LAW

"No free man shall be taken, imprisoned, disseised, (dispossessed) outlawed, banished or in any way destroyed, nor will we proceed against him except by the lawful judgment of his peers, and by the law of the land".

That final phrase setting the law above arbitrary power was to resound wherever the English tradition of law and freedom was to make itself felt.

Many times confirmed—with this great chapter untouched—the charter reached the statute book in 1297 and still remains in force. As the common law moved forward, early medieval words fell on interpretation in the light of existing circumstances. The complete equality and freedom of all men under English law received its final seal in the judgment of Lord Mansfield in 1772 which set free a Negro brought to England—where the air "has long been too pure for a slave."

It was indeed long before this that the charter secured its position as the bulwark of the liberties of all men in England. Indeed, some of its original chapters were clearly drafted to protect all men, high and low. One looks, however, to the 17th century to see it become, in practice and politics, a fundamental law. It was upon the solid legal foundations of the great charter that Parliament challenged the Stuart kings and their doctrine of divine right. By this time for English law the charter was imperishable.

Imperishable, too, for all countries to which the influence of English law has spread. When Englishmen set out to find new homes across the Atlantic, they carried a charter confirming their heritage of freedom. Later the constitution of the United States directly echoed Magna Carta in its fifth and fourteenth amendments. The words "due process of law" used in the 14th century in the application of the great charter thus became the symbol of liberty for all free men.

Though not directly sprung from the great charter, Parliamentary government is inseparable from the concepts of the rule of law and the freedom of the individual enshrined in it. It is fitting, then, that the 750th anniversary of Magna Carta should be joined with the 700th of Simon de Montfort's historic assembly of 1265, progenitor of the parliaments which wrested supremacy from the Crown in the 17th century and sent three great constitutional landmarks to the statute book—the Petition of Rights (1628), the Bill of Rights (1689) and the Act of Settlement (1701), foundation of modern constitutional monarchy—beside the cornerstone of all, Magna Carta.

Macpherson's Defence Against Poison Gas

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—On April 22, 1915, German artillerymen sent the first clouds of chlorine gas wafting across No-Man's Land toward unsuspecting victims in Allied trenches in France. The attack took a heavy toll.

It wasn't long, however, before an ingenious man came up with a defence against poison gas.

Capt. Cluny Macpherson, a 36-year-old Newfoundland doctor, became a hero among troops on the Western Front in the First World War, although his achievement was later almost forgotten.

Capt. Macpherson invented the gas mask, a device that was to save thousands of lives in the summer and fall of 1915.

Nw 86 and still practising medicine in St. John's, Dr. Macpherson modestly dismisses suggestions that he did not receive adequate recognition .

He also says it is a fallacy that the Germans caught the Allies completely by surprise with their first gas attacks. The men in the trenches might have been surprised but a team of British scientists had been working on defences against gas warfare for months.

SOLUTION DIFFICULT

The greatest concern was trying to determine in what form chemical warfare might come. What would work against gases that attacked the respiratory system such as chlorine might not work against burning, blistering gases like mustard gas.

Until Dr. Macpherson arrived, efforts were limited to a study of simple contrivances made of chemical - soaked cotton waste used by the German troops who had released the gas. The small mouth masks had been taken from the bodies of German soldiers.

Dr. Macpherson was one of the first Newfoundlanders to receive a commission when war broke out in 1914. But he wasn't allowed to go overseas at first. His commanding officer said his services were needed to help train medical corps for future drafts.

Early in 1915 he persuaded his superiors to let him go overseas. In England, he began pressing the war office to allow him to go to the Western Front.

Eventually he obtained permission to go only to Calais to observe operations of the base hospital there for one week.

Once on the Continent, Capt. Macpherson disregarded instructions. He headed for a the front and presented himself to General Sir Arthur Sloggett.

Capt. Macpherson produced orders giving him safe conduct to the Continent but concealed the pass restricting him to Calais.

"You've no business up here," said Gen. Sloggett after studying the orders.

Then Capt. Macpherson produced his trump card—a letter from the general's wife for her husband. Capt. Macpherson had seen her in London before leaving and offered to deliver a letter for her.

He was invited to stay on and see the methods of medical care on the front.

The day before his arrival a severe chlorine gas attack had hit the Allied lines.

The Newfoundland doctor visited a laboratory at St. Omer, site of British general headquarters. He found a group of British scientists studying the cotton mouthpieces used by the Germans and joined them in the study.

But the scientists needed more cotton waste to make the mouth patches. Macpherson volunteered to find some.

CONNED SUPPLY

He remembered seeing a small ship on a French canal nearby and also remembered that ships used cotton waste in their engine rooms. He boarded the ship and took a chance that there would be a Scot in the engine room. He stuck his head in a hatch and shouted in a Scottish burr: "Hey, Mac, throw up an armful of cotton waste, will you."

A huge bundle of waste landed on the deck.

Back at St. Omer, Capt. Macpherson began with British scientists the tedious and painstaking task of developing a defence for gas warfare. Time after time, the tests failed.

On one trip to England, Capt. Macpherson had bought several yards of heavy cloth and some mica, without really knowing why. An idea was forming in his mind.

INVENTION WORKS

He sketched the design of a large helmet to cover the head and fit under the collar. He drew eye holes which would be covered with mica.

A prototype was soaked in the anti-gas solutions used in the face masks that had failed, and a British colonel volunteered to test it. After walking around in a makeshift gas chamber for several minutes, he strode to the chamber door and yanked off the mask. Macpherson quickly pulled him out and sprayed him with anti-gas solution.

"Why didn't you turn on the gas?" the colonel asked indignantly. He was aghast to find he had been walking around in a concentration of chlorine gas 10 times greater than that needed to kill a man.

The colonel had experienced no trouble breathing, had smelled no gas and felt no discomfort. Further tests proved the mask was effective against other gases such as the feared mustard gas.

Word of the discovery soon reached command headquarters nearby. One of the first high-ranking officers to arrive was Gen. Sloggett.

"Where did this come from?" asked the general.

"He gave it to us," said one of the scientists, pointing to Macpherson.

SENT BACK AGAIN

Gen. Sloggett turned, stared at Macpherson and said: "You still here?"

Macpherson, realizing he was supposed to be long since back in England, managed a weak "Yes, sir."

"Well, you're off to London again," snapped the general. "Grab your things."

Far from being sent back in disgrace for disobeying orders, he was accompanied by Gen. Sloggett's personal request for immediate large-scale production of his helmet.

The first crude type of mask was used only a short time before Macpherson and his staff in London devised improved types.

Dr. Macpherson is little remembered for his wartime contribution but is even less known for his humanitarian works at home. He was in charge of the famous Grenfell Mission hospital at Battle Harbor, Labrador, during a smallpox epidemic that scourged Newfoundland from 1901 to 1904 and played an important part in stamping out another smallpox outbreak in 1909.

He has been instrumental in founding several hospitals and is Senior Knight of Justice for the British Commonwealth of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

International Monetary Experts

By HAROLD MORRISON

Two international monetary experts have shown rather disquieting concern about the possibility of widespread depression, a spectre that still haunts a relatively buoyant but troubled world. Little public attention seems to have been paid to the tools invented since the 1930s for preventing the recurrance of a crash .

Jacques Rueff, monetary adviser to French President de Gaulle, touched on similarities between the pre - Depression boom of the 1920s and current trends during a recent London panel discussion in which he pushed for a doubling of the official price of gold.

William McChesney Martin, chairman of the U.S. Federal Reserve Board, also raised concern when he told a New York audience the disaster of 1929-33 was "a consequence of maladjustments born of the boom of the 1920s."

Martin's remarks had the greater impact, causing fluctuations in the New York Stock Exchange. Investors tremble at the thought of another depression, although some economists maintain there are so many built-in defences that such a widespread crash cannot recur.

SUPPORT ARGUMENTS

Both Rueff and Martin raised the spectre not so much as an immediate threat but as an argument in support of other issues. Rueff wants the official price of gold pushed to $70 an ounce; Martin wants to see the U.S. government restrain expansionary policies which could lead to unwanted inflation and other dangers.

In contrast to the spectre is the reality; when the British pound was battered by heavy foreign attack, the world's major central banking systems brought to bear a massive monetary defence. For the moment, all national policies and goals were set aside.

Gradually during the post-war years machinery had been built up through the International Monetary Fund, regional arrangements and bilateral currency swaps to beat the threat of a currency collapse.

Runaway inflation and competitive currency devaluations still are possibilities in a none-too-perfect world. Those who raise the spectre of depression are well aware that the amount of world credit available to oil the wheels of world finance may be insufficient in relation to expanding world trade. And national political policies can sometimes defeat the machinery for maintaining the strength of national currencies.

But as a New York newspaper suggested, Martin may have exaggerated the parallels between the current situation and that of the 1920s in trying to temper "boom talk" by the U.S. government.

London's Economist goes a step farther. It suggests that if Martin's aim was to encourage belt-tightening by the U.S., particularly in reducing the U.S. international payments deficit, the result may be the very depression Martin is so anxious to avoid .

The surplus of U.S. dollars floating around the world helps finance world trade. Without developing some new credit machinery elsewhere, a reduction in that surplus of dollars can hurt trade expansion on which prosperity is based.

Conditions on Mars Too Severe

By FRANK B. SALISBURY
Written for the AP

Dr. Richardson and his skeptical astronomer have convinced me conditions on Mars are just too severe for our kind of life to flourish there. But I thought we were discussing the life that might already be there. Since Mars is so completely different from earth, it would surely be a bit surprising to find earthly plants and animals there.

The important thing is, those Martian maria looks life life. The wave of darkening progresses in these markings from the edge of the receding polar cap towards the equator. Apparently this darkening is dependent upon the moisture being made available which must move as vapor in the atmosphere.

Can one really explain all this by assuming that spring winds are blowing the dust around? Why should these winds start only at the edge of the plar cap? And why should they move in a regular way towards and finally across the equator? Isn't this a bit forced and unrealistic?

Antoinne Dollfus in France has measured the polarization of light reflected from Mars, and from these measurements he concludes that the texture of the markings changes throughout the season. Furthermore, more, the maria are occasionally obscured by a layer of the yellow dust that blows across the planet, yet a few days later they reappear. If we are looking at growing things, both of these observations are explained. How else can we explain them?

APPEAR TO LIVE

So even if our plants couldn't account for the Martian maria, these markings nevertheless have all the appearance of being alive.

Let's take another look at the toughness of living things. After all, that Tibetan desert isn't completely barren; none of our deserts are. Things manage to grow just about everywhere, even in phenol, that standard bacteria killer. I'm working right now with certain alpine plants that can freeze at night, thaw out the next day, and continue to grow as if nothing had ever happened.

If the maria really do consist of "plant" life, how does it manage on so little water? It's fairly hopeless to try to solve this problem by sheer imagination, but there are some possibilities. Perhaps the Martian organisms save their water by special films which prevent evaporation while allowing passage of gases such as carbon dioxide (such films are being tested on the surfaces of lakes). Or perhaps they use water in different ways so that they require much less of it. Maybe water to a Martian "plant," is a vitamin instead of a primary solvent (could they synthesize their own special solvent from nitrogen and carbon dioxide?). Since the areas darken, apparently in response to such minute amounts of moisture, this seems likely.

IDEAS CHANGING

Lack of oxygen is the big problem, but the experiments of Dr. Sanford Seigal worknig in White Plains, N.Y., are illuminating. He grows higher plants for prolonged periods in very exotic atmospheres. Most plants die, but a few individual alpine plants and conifers last 300 days (longer than a Martian summer) at freezing temperatures in a dry atmosphere of nitrogen and carbon dioxide. So our old ideas are changing.

Furthermore, the maria have changed somewhat in outline over the last century, and occasionally whole new areas (one of them the size of Texas) have appeared within four to eight years. All of this implies to me that if the markings really are "plants", they are not the lower, struggling forms which come to mind when we try to think of how our plants might react on Mars, but they are doing fine, even flourishing.

If there are "plants," why shouldn't there be "animals" to eat them? And if we make a jump like that in our thinking, we might just as well jump again: "Why shouldn't some of these animals have developed a high level of intelligence?" Lots of comforting things have been said about the canals, but when you get right down to it, they still haven't really been explained.

Feder has introduced a charming series of clothes designed by London's famed Hardy Amies, couturier to royalty.

Here is one number, a delicious dress in white matte jersey, designed for late-day-into-evening wear from now on through the summer.

A perfect traveller, the frock has a wide V-neckline, the merest excuse of a sleeve and is gathered vertically in front on a ribbon of the fabric which ends in a low V neckline.

So the dress is not quite as simple as it appears, but it certainly is effective.

IT HAS HAPPENED IN SWEDEN— IT COULD HAPPEN IN CANADA

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) Men, it appears, are taking women's place as the "weaker sex" in Sweden.

The Central Bureau of Statistics here reports Swedish women seem to be gaining superiority over men both biologically and psychologically.

Bureau Director Lars Widen put forward the theory in the Swedish Lakartidningen, the doctors' journal.

"There is a completely new situation in Swedish statistics concerning the death rate," Widen said. "The death rate for men over 60 will rise very shortly. As long as records have been kept in our country, the death rate has been declining in all age groups.

"The death rate for women has declined much faster than that for men, who are suffering more from such illnesses as hardening of the arteries, heart ailments and other illnesses in which body wear is concerned."

DISEASE INCREASES

Circulatory trouble, Widen said, is on the increase in men, especially among men living in large cities and doing "commercial work" where the hardness of drinking water, physical activity and mental stress play an mportant role.

"The gap between the death rate for men and women has widened very considerably and successively," Widen said. "Man has not merely become the weaker sex, but even the much weaker sex."

Doctors and sociologists also have noted a change in young people. They say the actual facial features of boys have become more effeminate.

In larger Swedish cities, it is no longer easy to decide which is boy and which is girl at first sight. Hair is the same length, sweeping down to shoulder level, and clothes are often identical.

"This is significant," said one Stockholm doctor. "I do not believe that the longer hair and the clothes are the only factor. I think that when you really look carefully at the faces of the boys, you will find that they have extremely sensitive faces.

"Their cheekbones appear to be higher," he said. "Their lips are softer and more curved. Their skins are smoother and their noses are more sharply defined, moe feminine."

Some of the girls, Widen said, appear to have more masculine-type faces, although the change is not nearly so pronounced as in boys.

St. John Order Gives $4100 in Bursaries

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian student and graduate nurses have been awarded $4100 in bursaries by the Order of St. John in Canada.

Dorothy J. Taylor of Edmonton and Marie-Clair P. Morency of Montreal will receive the top awards of $1000 each.

Miss Taylor will use the award to study for a master's degree in nursing education at McGill University in Montreal.

She is supervisor instructor in basic sciences at University Hospital in Edmonton. She has taught St. John Ambulance first aid courses and received the St. John Priory Vote of Thanks award in 1964.

Mona M. McLeod, Winnipeg, receives $500. Other recipients include Greta J. Langager, Calgary, $400; Helen M. Stevenson, Calgary, and Ruby F. May, The Pas, Manitoba, each $200.

The Order of St. John is the oldest order of chivalry in the Commonwealth.

They were accompanied back home by their son, who will spend a few weeks' visit in Natal before leaving for San Francisco, where he will intern.

Residents from Natal and Sparwood who recently attended the Blakeburn reunion at the west coast included Mr. and Mrs. Frank McVeigh, Mr. and Mrs. John Desjardins and Charles Larson.

Mrs. Ann Kaisner and son Ken, accompanied by Mrs. Bessie Jarolim, all of Natal, recently visited Lethbridge, and Fort Macleod at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Nearing and family.

Chinese Dinner Planned by WI

HARROP — A Chinese dinner and a forthcoming tea and bake sale were planned at the recent meeting of the Harrop and District Institute held at the home of Mrs. Feller.

A social committee was formed to handle the tea and sale to be held June 16 when apron modelling and a fancywork table will be featured.

The Chinese dinner will be held as a special get-together of all members of the Harrop and District Women's Institute.

The meeting of the Arts and Crafts group had been held in the "Cabin" and work was done on the wastebaskets, as well as rug weaving and making of bath salts. A plant sale was financially successful.

Montreal Nun First In Modern Dress

MONTREAL (CP) — In the spirit of ecumenism, a Montreal nun has gone modern.

Sister Jacqueline Carriere, secretary of Montreal's Ecumenical Centre, is the first nun in Quebec and probably the first in Canada to switch to current styles of dress.

And she foresees the day when most nuns will work in the outside world in regular clothing, wearing their habits only in their convents.

Sister Jacqueline said she made the change because "a nun's habit seems to present a barrier to communication — a certain embarrassment to non-Catholics and even to Catholics.

"They don't feel free to speak as openly as they would to a layman," she said. "It was mainly out of consideration for the people who come here that it was decided that I dress as others do."

Sister Jacqueline became secretary of the office in downtown Montreal about two months ago and handles most of the inquiries and visitors who call.

APPROPRIATE FOR JOB

"It was very much in the spirit of ecumenism, really, and thus very appropriate for the job I do," she said in an interview.

Jackie ,as she is called by the English-speaking volunteers at the centre ,is a member of the Sisters of St. Anne, a teaching and nursing order of some 2,000 nuns throughonut Canada and the United States.

The order was founded in Montreal in 1850 and its members all wear the conventional nun's habit and use religious names.

"My religious name was Sister Marie-Reine, but now I am simply called Sister Jacqueline at the convent," said the 28-year-old nun.

Her job came about when Rev. Irenee Beaubien, a Jesuit priest who is director of the centre, needed a full-time secretary to handle inquiries and organize the many volunteers.

The priest decided a nun would be ideal.

Oldtimer Honored At Syringa Creek

ROBSON — Syringa Creek's oldtimer Thomas Ryan was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Baril of Syringa Creek on the occasion of his 90th birthday.

Mr. R. Cloeman, Mrs. S. Stewart, Mrs. R. Gregory and Mrs. W. Baril were co-hostesses.

Two decorated birthday cakes centered the table.

A decorated wastepaper basket was filled with gifts and greeting cards.

Among those present were Rev. E. A. Brophy; St. Rita's Catholic Women's League representative, also St. Rita's Knights of Columbus; and friends from Deer Park.

Mrs. H. Coleman took moving pictures of those present and the activities were recorded.

Isolationism Charged at WA Conference

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—"Creeping isolationism" is the greatest danger besetting the Woman's Auxiliary of the Anglican Church of Canada and the church as a whole, Rev. E. K. Clarke of Ottawa said Thursday.

Summarizing the three study sessions held during the 80th annual conference of the dominion board of the auxiliary, Mr. Clarke said that if the auxiliary is isolated as an organization "it is only superseded by the isolation of the church from the world."

Hints From Heloise

HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I do a lot of dumb things, and I suppose other people do too.

I have kept house for thirty-five years, and yet I did not learn until recently how much more smoothly my handiest kichen drawer "ran" if I lay the eggbeaters, big spoons, spatula, etc., cross-wise in the drawer, instead of lengthwise, so that they couldn't possibly wedge against the drawer; when I tried to open it!

Another surprise . . . when you put these large utensils crosswise you will find they are far easier to grab.

'Rock"

* * *

Dear Heloise:

I am in the seventh grade, and being a loyal hair-roller-upper, I consider this tip very important.

I had a hard time keeping the roller picks together. So I took a plastic mesh ball (ordinarily used for scrubbing pots and pans in the kitchen) and literally jabbed these picks into it. I find this holds them very well. Try it!

Hair Roller

* * *

Dear Heloise:

In reference to corduroy shirts, pants, etc., that get covered with lint:

I happened to make the mistake of putting a kelly green corduroy shirt in with some bath towels.

No need to tell you how the shirt came out! I tried to brush out the lint caused by the bath towels, but could not get rid of it all. While doing this a terrific thought came to me.

I bought a package of dye the same color of the garment, and in the last rinse water, I added a bit of this dye. Just a little . . .

Lo and behold, the lint disappeared, and the shirt looked fresh and neat!

Mary Civeni.

* * *

Honey, you did not get rid of the lint. All you did was color it!

But what a fabulous idea!

After all, in this day and age, why shouldn't we? I am all for tinting things myself! And when a woman can learn to tint a mistake, then we've got it made!

All of our love to you.

* * * Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Here is a terrific idea I have used for the last two years.

Everyone knows about the pine scented toilet deodorizers with clips on them that are sold at supermarkets.

Hang one over the side of your garbage can, and it keeps away the odors plus (and this is more important) it keeps away all of those little "crawlers" people get this time of year!

Rita Davis

* * *

Dear Heloise:

A nuts and bolts salesman told my husband to use vinegar to loosen rusty nuts and bolts when they wouldn't come loose easily.

The second use the salesman gave us for vinegar was to unstop a drain. The wash baisin drain in our bathroom was stopped up. We used a plumber's friend on it with no results.

My husband even broke the pipe in taking it off, so we had to get a new pipe. The drain was still stopped up, so we poured a pint of vinegar into the basin. When we returned a couple of hours later, the drain was clear! That was three weeks ago, and the drain is still clear.

Mrs. A. T. Murry

* * *

As our drain is not stopped up today, I cannot test this. So many people have written in about it, and the chemist says it could work . . . depending upon what has stopped up your drain. After all, it is certainly worth a try. Vinegar is much less expensive than a plumber's bill.

Be Grateful For U.S. Peace Efforts

BLAINE, Wash (.AP) — Education Minister Peterson of B.C. Sunday urged fellow Canadians to stop plucking feathers from the American eagle and be grateful for battles the United States is fighting on their behalf.

The minister was speaking before 30,000 persons at annual celebrations at the International Peace Arch on the border between the two countries.

"The United States is fighting our battles, too," he said.

"It is quite conceivable that if the United States had not gone into Viet Nam when France was driven out, all of southeast Asia would have been under Communist domination and our national security threatened."

He urged Canadians to "stop plucking feathers from the American eagle and instead be grateful that the battle for liberty and self-determination for all people is being fought on our behalf."

Lloyd Meeds (Dem.-Wash.), also spoke.

"The time is at hand when we must begin seriously considering establishment of a free trade area of the United States and Canada," he said.

He advocated the beginning of an eventual common market between the two nations.

Part of the ceremony was exchange of small Canadian and U.S. flags by about 5,000 youngsters. A 20-car train brought Boy Scouts from a parade through Blaine and Peace Arch Park, in which Canadian and U.S. war veterans and Scouts took part.

SHIP CHURCH TO U.S. FOR MEMORIAL

LONDON (Reuters)—In three weeks, workmen will begin dismantling the war - blitzed remains of the Anglican church of St. Mary Aldermanbury here to ship them to the United States as a memorial to Sir Winston Churchill.

The church is to be rebuilt at Westminister College, Fulton, Mo., where Churchill made his Iron Curtain speech March 5, 1946. In 1963 Churchill was made an honorary U.S. citizen by act of Congress at the instigation of the late President Kennedy.

Last year, three stones from the church were sent to Missouri for a ground - breaking ceremony on the new site.

Court Sentences To Be Studied

TORONTO (CP) — Sentences handed down by magistrates in Ontario courtrooms will be the subject of a year-long research study to begin this summer.

Deputy Attorney-General A. R. Dick says there is almost no material available for presenting magistrates with guidelines, background or philosophies in sentencing.

The study will consider sentences in terms of rehabilitation of offenders and what probation or suspended sentences accomplish.

There is no acute, chronic or urgent problem about sentences handed down in magistrates' courts, says Mr. Dick, but they should be studied in detail to inform magistrates and the attorney-general's department.

PROTESTANTS PROTEST

LIVERPOOL (Reuters)—Four thousand demonstrators carried "ban the Pope" banners through the streets of this English port city Sunday, watched by 800 mounted and foot police. The marchers, supporters of the Protestant Reform Movement, were protesting at reports that Pope Paul may come here for the consecration of a new Roman Catholic cathedral in two years' time.

WOMAN REPORTER DIES

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Mrs. Helen Waterhouse, 73, a reporter for the Akron Beacon Journal for 30 years and one of the top newspaper women in the United States, died Sunday after her automobile sideswiped three other cars and hit a pole here. Coroner A. H. Kyriakides ruled that she died of a cerebral hemorrhage. He said she was stricken before the accident.

Vanier Ends Week-Long B.C. Visit

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Governor-General Vanier and Mme. Vanier left here Monday, ending a weeklong visit to British Columbia.

The Vaniers spent two days in this burgeoning central British Columbia city that is a centre for cattle and lumber and a comparatively new industry of mining.

Saturday his excellency dedicated an addition to the Royal Inland Hospital that was officially opened by the Duke of Connaught when he visited here as governor-general in 1912.

The hospital is one of six in Canada that is entitled to use the prefix royal.

The governor-general praised the record of the hospital and its service to the people of the B.C. Interior and then said:

"The preservation of health is the duty of each and every one of us.

"Sometimes it may be that we forget there is such a thing as physical morality. Good health and good sense are two of life's greatest blessings and the one usually contributes to the other."

MME. Vanier was entertained by a dance group of the Indian residential school Saturday. Afterwards she embraced many of the colorfully-dressed girls who have danced in many countries.

Sunday their excellencies attended mass at the Sacred Heart Cathedral and then were taken on a sight-seeing trip which included a luncheon at Paul Lake, 12 miles from the city.

They were to leave here at 6:50 a.m. Monday.

Missing Yacht Turns Up At Spanish Port

LONDON (CP) — The three-hulled yacht Triptych, which slipped out of Southern Ireland two weeks ago, has turned up in the Spanish port of Corunna amid reports of a continuing battle between its Canadian owner and the builder over construction costs.

Fear for the safety of owner Matt Burpee and his family of Perth, Ont., arose when the builder, David Senior of Multihull Services, Wadebridge, Cornwall, told the British Admiralty last month the trimaran had sailed before final adjustments were made and might prove unseaworthy.

Burpe, a retired dairy farmer, sailed with his wife, two teen-age children and a British crew of two from Padstow, Cornwall, dropping anchor at Cobh harbour in southern Ireland May 31. He remained there briefly. A friend reported he was heading for the Caribbean where he planned to use the Tryptich in charter business.

The Sunday Express said it found Burpee at Corunna where he denied that the yacht was unseaworthy though he found the vessel had some faults.

Senior claimed Burpee left for Spain in a hurry when the firm tried to claim £21,000 in addition to the £22,000 Burpee has already paid for the ship.

JUDY GARLAND HOSPITALIZED

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Singer Judy Garland was in the Neuropsychiatric Institute of the University of California Sunday with what the hospital called an emotional upset.

Miss Garland, 43, was taken to the hospital Saturday night by ambulance from her home.

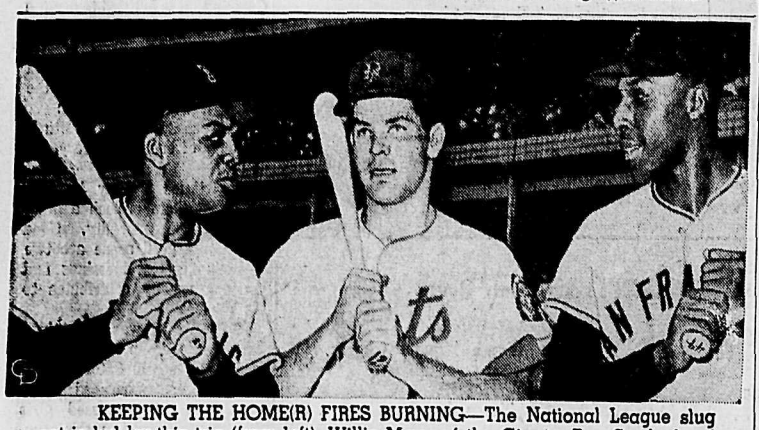
A hospital spokesman said the singer was emotionally upset by a rash caused by an allergic reaction to a drug. He said she also has some fever and is expected to remain in hospital for several days.

Miss Garland has frequently been troubled by illness. A near-riot resulted two weeks ago in Cincinnati when she ended a concert after 32 minutes, saying she was ill. The sickness was described as a virus infection.

May 19, she obtained a divorce in nearby Santa Monica from Sid Luft, her third husband.

COPENHAGEN (AP)—A. P. Moeller, 88, Danish shipping millionaire who collected his old-age pension every month, died Saturday night. Moeller was often described as one of the richest men in the world.

FOUR SCORE BUT NOT 20 YEARS AGO—Home plate in Chicago took quite a pounding in the 10th and final inning of a game between the Cubs and Braves when Joe Torre (upper left) socked a pinch homer which was followed by circuit clouts by Felipe Alou (upper right), Hank Aaron (lower left) and Gene Oliver (lower right), all Braves.



KEEPING THE HOME(R) FIRES BURNING—The National League slug set is led by this trio (from left), Willie Mays of the Giants, Ron Swoboda of the Mets and Willie McCovey of the Giants. Mays leads both major leagues in homers with 20.

Mets Win 1-0

Maloney Blanks Mets for 10 Innings, Ties Spahn's Record of 18 Strikeouts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cincinnati's Jim Maloney pitched a no-hitter for 10 innings but gave up a leadoff home run to Johnny Lewis in the 11th inning and wound up with a two-hitter as the New York Mets edged the Reds 1-0 Monday night in Cincinnati.

Maloney, whose feat goes into the record books as a 10-inning no-hitter, struck out 18. He allowed only two base runners going into the 11th.

The 18 strikeouts tied the National League record for strikeouts in an extra - inning game. Warren Spahn, now with the Mets, reached that figure against Chicago in 15 innings in 1952.

The fastballing Maloney, who pitched the third one-hitter of his six-year career in his first start this season, worked the count to 2-1 on Lewis, whom he already had fanned three times.

Lewis, however, swung at the next pitch and drove the ball against the upper part of the center field wall for a home run.

Maloney then struck out Ron Swoboda for his 18th, but Roy McMillan followed with a single to centre field. Maloney ended the inning by getting Jesse Gonder to hit into a double play.

CARDS WIN

The St. Louis Cardinals broke a fifth inning tie with two unearned runs and then rode the relief pitching of Ron Taylor to a 5-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates at St. Louis.

With the score tied 2-2, Julian Javier led off the fifth with a single off loser Bob Veale and Bill White was hit by a pitch. Carl Warwick's grounder went through Pirate shortstop Gene Alley, scoring Javier, and when left fielder Bob Bailey bobbled the ball, White came home.

The Cardinals kayoed Veale in the next inning with three more singles and a second error by Alley for another run.

Taylor protected the margin, releviing rookie starter Steve Callon in the fifth with one run home and two men on. He got Roberto Clemente to hit into a double play and blanked the Pirates the rest of the way.

At Houston, Larry Jackson ended a personal five-game losing streak and made Lou Klein's debut as the new Cub head coach a success as Chicago stopped the Houston Astros 2-0.

The loss was the seventh in a row for the Astros, equalling their longest losing string of the year.

CUBS MOVE UP

Moving past Houston and into eighth place, the Cubs threatened in all but two innings but had trouble crossing the plate.

They picked up a run in the first on singles by Don Landrum and Billy Williams and an infield out, then added another in the fifth on singles by Williams and Ron Santo and a sacrifice fly by Ernie Banks.

Jackson, who won his fourth game against eight losses, allowed only two Astros as far as third base. Bob Bruce, the Houston starter, lost his eighth in 12 decisions.

In the American League at Cleveland, Joe Azcue's run-scoring single climaxed a two-run eighth - inning rally that started with pitcher Pete Mikkelsen's two - base error and gave the Cleveland Idnians a 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees.

INDIANS TRAILED

The Indians trailed 4-3 going into the eighth, but leadoff batter Max Alvis went all the way to second base when Mikkelsen fielded his high hopper and threw the ball past first.

Rocky Colavito singled in Alvis, went to second on Steve Hamilton's walk to Leon Wagner and moved to third as Fred Whitfield hit into a double play. Hal Reniff replaced Hamilton, and Azcue singled to right field, scoring Colavito.

The Yankees jumped on former teammate Ralph Terry for two runs in each of the third and fourth innings.

An error by Wagner and Roger Maris' infield single brought in the first two runs. A single by Joe Pepitone and Clete Boyer's sacrifice fly scored the other two.

The only other American League game scheduled, Baltimore at Boston, was postponed because of rain and cold weather.

Kinsmen Win Pair

Kinsmen tucked away two victories in Little League baseball play, nicking Rotarians 6-5 and belting Kiwanis 7-3.

Clare Cassan hit a home run in the bottom of the sixth inning to give them the win over Rotary. Walgren started for Kinsmen but his control suffered in the third and he was relieved by Desrosiers, who took the win along with Cassan. The big guns at the plate for Kinsmen were Thast, Craig and Willford.

G. Larsen went the distance for the losers but wildness in the fourth and fifth cost him the game. Big bats for Rotary were T. Severyn with a pair of doubles and G. Koehle with a two-run homer. Walgren and Desrosiers fanned and walked three. Larson also fanned eight and walked six.

In the game against Kiwanis, Thast was winning pitcher and Burdenie the loser. Thast slammed out a two-base hit to lead Kinsmen batsmen.

Nottingham Wins Again

TORONTO (CP) — Nottingham Forest of England wound up its North American tour by defeating an Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League all-star team 1-0 Monday night before 4,692 fans at Varsity stadium.

The lone goal came off a penalty kick by John Barnwell in the sixth minute of the second half. The penalty was awarded against left back Bobby Nichol who handled the ball to prevent it going in during a scramble in front of the all-star net.

Nottingham Forest won 10 of 11 games on their tour. They lost to Ibernian of Scotland 2-1 in Vancouver last Saturday.

"A Dirty Shame"

By HAROLD HARRISON

CINCINNATI (AP)—"It was a dirty shame. It was a dirty shame."

Those were the words manager Dick Sisler of Cincinnati Reds kept saying Monday night after Jim Maloney, 25, pitched a 10-inning no-hitter and then lost the game 1-0 to New York Mets in 11 innings.

The one run scored off Maloney came on a home run by Johnny Lewis, who had been struck out three times previously by the Reds' right-handed fast baller.

The Mets picked up another hit off Maloney after that, but it was meaningless. Maloney, sitting dejectedly in the clubhouse, said he was not getting tired but that the pitch Lewis hit was on the outside. Sisler said the same thing.

"The ball got away from him," the manager said.

The ball Lewis hit was a fast one, the pitch that Maloney blazed past the Mets' hitters for 18 strikeouts during the 11 innings of play.

In the Mets' dressing room, Lewis said: "I can't help but feel good." But then he added: "I never saw a pitcher throw as hard to me."

Sisler said Maloney "pitched as fine game as I have ever seen him pitch. It was as fine a game as you would ever want to see a man pitch."

Until Lewis' homer, the only thing that even threatened to be a safe hit off Maloney was a smash in the seventh by Chuck Hiller. First baseman Gordy Coleman stopped that off his ear, pulled it to his knees, and then got to first ahead of the runner.

THE MAULER COMES OF AGE—70, THAT IS—Former heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey (left) approaches his 70th birthday in New York as friends, including Irving J. Bottner, ex-New York U. basketball player and Revlon executive, tossed a party for him at his restaurant. Date is June 24.

Rider Arrested

MEXICO (AP) — A former Olympic riding champion, Brig.-Gen. Humberto Mariles, gave himself up to police Sunday to face charges in the fatal shooting of a Mexico City bricklayer last Aug. 14.

Mantle May Quit

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mickey Mantle said Monday he will quit at the end of the season if he doesn't hit around .300.

"I don't want to quit," said the New York Yankee slugger who is hitting only .240. "I wanted to play three or four more years. I'll keep on playing if I hit .300 or near that. But I'll quit after this year if it keeps up like this."

Mantle was benched Sunday in Los Angeles. In the last 19 games he had been averaging only .196. He has been troubled by chronic kne injuries but could have played Sunday.

"I sure hope a rest helps," said Mantle. "I've had slumps before. I felt real good until we got to Los Angeles. I thought I was running good and everything. I'm just not getting any hits."

Two great things about the KOOTENAYS

Enjoying our own magnificent lakes and mountains is part of the good Kootenay life. And now - with new highways being completed into this area - this beauty we enjoy is becoming one of our most important "industries" as tourists trade their vacation dollars for a pleasant time here. Another great thing enjoyed by visitors and residents alike, are the fine products of Interior Breweries. The brewing of these products right here in the Kootenays means more payrolls, a steadier economy for all.

Roberto Clemente Vaults Into NL Batting Race With Resounding .324

R. CLEMENTE

NEW YORK (AP) — Roberto Clemente, who says he has trouble sleeping, is keeping opposing pitchers awake at night with an eye - opening performance that has thrust him into the thick of the National League batting race.

"When I was in the hospital with malaria they gave me sleeping pills, but I am awake anyway all the time," the Pittsburgh outfielder said recently.

"When I get better, I can't get to sleep because the team is losing. Even now, it's not easy."

Clemente is the defending league batting titleholder. So his .235 average May 20 was not a true reflection of his ability. He had been weakened by a malaria attack, plus other assorted ills, and his condition was one of the major reasons the Pirates were in last place with a 9-24 record.

Since then Clemente has hit at a .419 pace, with 39 hits in 93 times at bat. That covers 23 games, of which Pittsburgh has won 20 to climb into fifth place.

Clemente has six safely in his last nine games and the latest figures through Sunday's games place him in sixth place in the batting competition with a .324 mark. He is only one point behind San Francisco's Willie Mays, who is fifth, and five behind the No. 4 batsman, Richie Allen of Philadelphia.

Gordie Coleman of Cincinnati, the leader, fell 21 points to .354 in last week's games, managing only three hits in 15 tries. Joe Torre of Milwauke rushed up to tie team - mate Hank Aaron for second place at .335. Torre gained six points with four hits in nine trips while Aaron slumped three points with a 9-for-28 performance.

Vic Davalillo of Cleveland Indians wrested the American League lead from Detroit's Willie Horton. Davalillo picked up 13 points to .365 with 13 hits in 15 at-bats last week, a .433 pace. Horton dropped into a second - place deadlock with Boston's Dalton Jones at .353.

Mantilla continues to pace the circuit in runs batted in with 49. Horton slammed two homers and took over sole possession of the lead with 13.

Mays maintained his National League home - run lead, hitting three for a total of 20. The Cubs' Ernie Banks is the pacesetter in runs batted in with 50, four more than Mays.

NY Met Fans Losing Sense Of Humor?

By HAL BOCK

NEW YORK (AP) — Are New York Met fans losing their sense of humor?

For four years the Mets have stumbled through the National League, lovably losing their way into the hearts of fans everywhere. Never did the faithful suggest that their heroes' hard times were the product of anything except good old fashioned ineptitude.

But a strange thing happened Sunday. There were 57,175 fans squeezed into Shea Stadium and midway through New York's 10th straight loss —this one to Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3—they turned on plate umpire Chris Pelekoudas.

What set the fans off was Pelekoudas' call on a close play on Johnny Lewis at home plate which ended the sixth inning.

Lewis, pinch hitting for Danny Napoleon, had been purposely walked with Ron Swoboda on third and New York leading 2-1. The Dodgers had won the first game 5-2.

CALLED HIM OUT

When Billy Cowan dropped a hit off Willie Davis' glove in centre field, Swoboda scored easily and Lewis came racing around third, heading for home. Dodger catcher John Roseboro grabbed the relay and planted the tag on the sliding Lewis. When Pelekoudas called him out, Lewis and the rest of the Mets rushed the umpire.

In the argument following the call, Met coach Don Heffner was thrown out of the game.

The fans began chanting "kill the umpire" after the call, waving handkerchiefs and tossing debris on the field.

Finally Pelekoudas walked into the Mets' dugout to confer with manager Casey Stengel. The fans' booing all but drowned out the public-address announcement that the game would be forfeited unless they stopped throwing debris on the field.

Texans Split Doubleheader With New Denver Combs

NEW DENVER — Nelson Texans split an exhibition doubleheader over the weekend, taking the opening game of the twin bill from the New Denver-Silverton Combines 6-3 and dropping the second 2-1. Bob Phillips went the distance in the opener, striking out eight and walking one, while Gary Wilson was tagged with the loss. Nesbitt came on in relief in the sixth and together with Wilson fanned eight and gave up five walks.

Bob Jeffs batted in two of the Texans' six runs, while Ross went two-for-three.

Jack Kelly was one-for-three for the Combines, a home run early in the game.

Phillips continued to throw hard in the second, allowing seven hits but the Texans were overpowered by Kelly who whiffed 16, while allowing three walks.

Fuzibayashi went three-for-four, including a round trip with no one aboard. Kelly proved equally effective at the plate, hitting two-for-four.

Texans resume regular West Kootenay Junior Baseball action June 19 when they travel to Fruitvale for a doubleheader.

Kelowna Selected To Hold Skate Leadership Training

KELOWNA (CP)— The Okanagan city has been chosen one of 11 centres to hold a skating leadership training seminar, Dr. Mel Butler told the B.C. section of the Canadian Figure Skating Association here at the weekend.

He told the meeting nothing definite is known about the seminar program but that plans to date call for a national school in Ottawa and a grant of $2,000 to each province to set up schools.

The purpose of the schools was to train junior coaches.

Dr. Butler said the method of operation and the amount of money to be spent will be decided at a meeting in Ottawa on Saturday.

He said the B.C. section of the CFSA has already made a tentative submission asking for $10,525 of the $100,000 allotted the province under the federal physical fitness program.

The program was instituted in 1961, allowing up to $5,000,000 in the budget to encourage amateru sport and physical fitness in Canada.

The 1964-65 total, largest allotted since the inception of the grants, totalled $3,000,000.

"The money will be spent on everything from roller skating to archery," Dr. Butler, elected president of the B.C. group, said.

He said the B.C. submission would go to Ottawa for approval after provincial fitness authorities give their permission.

Rhodesia's Redman Cops Motorcycle Tourist Trophy

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man (AP) — Jim Redman of Rhodesia, twice a former world champion, rode a Japanese six-cylinder Honda to victory in the 250-cc. motorcycle Tourist Trophy race Monday.

Mike Duff of Toronto on a Yamaha was second and Frank Perris of Britain third on a Suzuki.

The Honda victory was the fifth class win in a row for the Japanese factory and gained Redman his first 1965 world championship points in a season duing which he has been dogged by bad luck.

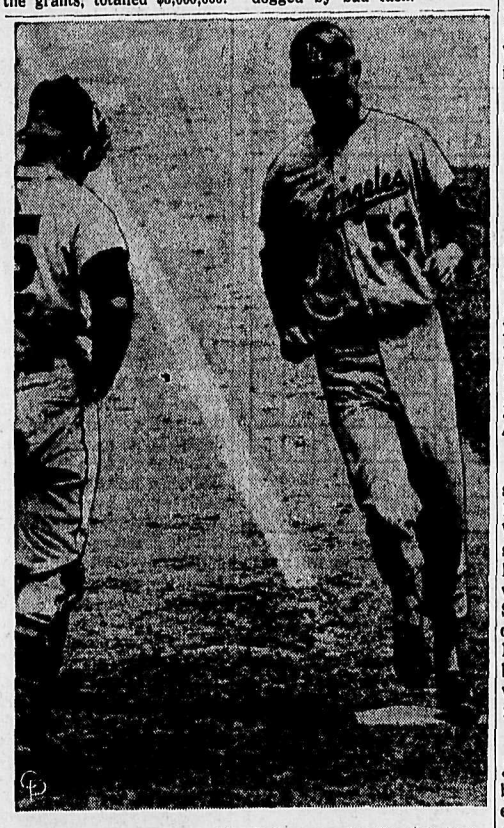
Redman's time for the gruelling 226.38 miles was two hours, 19 minutes, 45.8 seconds for an average speed of 97.19 m.p.h. Duff's time was 2:23:26.4 for an average speed of 94.71 m.p.h. Perris averaged 93.99 m.p.h.

Aside from Duff's second place, it was a bad race for the Yamaha factory, as the Isle of Man course proved it is not ideal for two-stroke machines.

Five different makes of machines took the first six places. Fourth was Tarquinio Provini of Italy on a Benelli, with an average of 93.57 m.p.h., fifth Frantisek Staftny, Czechoslovakia, on a Jawa, averaging 90.34 m.p.h., and sixth Dave Williams of Britain on a Mondial, averaging 88.23 m.p.h.

Max Deubel of West Germany won the International Tourist Trophy sidecar motorcycle race by a slim margin over Fritz Scheidegger of Switzerland.

Deubel, with Emil Horner as passenger, set race and one-lap records for the three-lap, 113.19-mile race as he led the German BMW factory team to a sweep of the first four places. He was timed in 1:04:59.8 for an average of 90.57 m.p.h. He set a one-lap record of 91.89 m.p.h.



BIG MAN FOR DODGERS—The Dodger crossing the plate here in Milwaukee on a home run looks like he can belt the ball —and he can—but he also can pitch and the home run was incidental to his 10th victory of the year—tops in the majors. The homer hitter is Don Drysdale. Catcher is Joe Torre.

DROP FORMAL PHRASES

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — Queen Juliana's correspondents need no longer be her "humble" or "obedient servants," or even "respectful." From now on, such formal phrases are ordered banned from correspondence with the Dutch queen. Even "your majesty" should only be used once. After that, it's plain "you."

HONOR FAMOUS POET

DUBLIN (Reuters) — Thousands of Irishmen ringed a village churchyard in County Sligo West Ireland, Sunday for a service at the graveside of William Butler Yeats, an Irish poet who was born 100 years ago Sunday. The memorial service outside the little church at Drumcliffe preceded an oration by the contemporary Irish writer, Frank O'Connor. Premier Sean Lemass attended.

$1,300 STOLEN

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — James Bazzlo, about 40, has been charged with breaking, entering and theft after a safe containing $1,300 was stolen from the McLeod's Lake Hotel. Police found the open safe Friday, near the community of McLeod's Lake, 90 miles north of here.

Frug, Watusi Not for These Shapely Misses

By MIKE RECHT

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — While most college co-eds are doing the frug and the watusi, Canadian gymnast Irene Haworth and her friends have answered with such things as horse vaulting and floor exercising.

When other girls are holding hands with their boy friends in a movie, Irene and her friends are working out on parallel bars with callused and torn hands.

But it's been worth it. Irene is one of five shapely girls who have given Southern Illinois University the best women's gymnastics team in the United States.

"Sure, we're different than most girls," says Irene, a pretty blonde from Saskatoon who finished second to team-mate Gail Daley of Saskatoon in the Canadian championship.

'WE LIKE IT'

"We practise, practise, practise—as much as three hours a day, seven days a week. Of course, it's fun, because we like it. It also gives us more poise, grace and confidence."

"But we also have torn hands, pulled muscles and aching backs," adds Janis Dunham of Flint, Mich., who took second in the United States Gymnastics Federation competition.

The rest of the team includes Miss Daley, Donna Schaenzer of Milwaukee, the USGF champion and Mary Ellen Toth of Flint, who finished third in the USGF meet.

All the girls are freshmen at Southern Illinois except Donna, a junior.

They came to Southern to train under coach Herb Voga, who formerly coached at Flint Junior College.

NEED GOOD COACH

"Girls need a good coach because they have to be pushed harder than male athletes," says Irene. "Girls are not born competitors.

"I got started after taking ballet tap lessons for seven years. I didn't like it but at the end of each class we had 10 minutes of tumbling which I did enjoy. That led to gymnastics."

"A friend dared me to take a tumbling class when I was in sixth grade," says Donna. The other girls also started in grade school.

It didn't help their social life.

"Boys shied away from us in Flint," says Janis. "They don't like gymnasts or female athletes in general. And we didn't have much time to date and socialize because we were always practising."

Gail says many "of the boys thought we were different when we got to Carbondale. Girls are not as athletic in the United States. But we started a gym class at SIU for gymnastics and it has become very popular. Now we're well known around the campus."

MARKET TRENDS

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was jolted to another sharp loss Monday after failing to capitalize on a feeble early advance. Trading was fairly active over-all but heavy toward the end when prices were at their worst.

A continued impairment of investor confidence was cited again as the obvious factor for the decline. This confidence was not enhanced by headlines about the situation of U.S. forces in South Viet Nam.

The market's downward trend, now in its sixth week according to the Associated Press average, was in itself discouraging to the public.

A half-hour before the market close the Dow Jones industrial average was down 14.21 but scattered recovery shaved the decline to 12.99 and the final reading was 868.71.

The AP average sank 3.6 to 317.7, putting it at its lowest since Sept. 3, 1964, when it read 317.3. The industrials were down 6.6, rails off 1.1 to a new low for the year and utilities off 1.3.

Of 1,368 issues traded, 1,036 declined and 161 advanced.

VOLUME UP

Volume was 5,900,000 shares compared with 5,350,000 Friday.

In the final minutes, partial recovery by some blue chips kept the decline from being considerably worse. Du Pont, for instance, had been down as much as 5 but closed at 238¼, off 2⅝.

American Photocopy, up ⅛ at 9 on 226,100 shares, was the most active stock for the second straight session as it continued to respond to the proposal for a joint venture in office copying equipment with IBM.

McIntyre Porcupine fell 1½ among Canadian issues traded while International Nickel was down 1⅜ and Aluminium Ltd. ¾. Walker Gooderham fell ¾ and Canadian Pacific and Dome Mines ½ apiece.

Losers far outnumbered gainers on the American Exchange. Volume was 1,640,000 shares compared with 1,270,000 Friday. Scurry Rainbow Oil droped ¾, Canadian Javeline ⅜ and Canadian Marconi and Jupiter Cohp. ⅛ apiece. Brazilian Traction rose ⅛.

MONTREAL (CP) — Stocks were lower Monday on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges. Trading was moderate.

Industrial volume was 215,000 shares and mines and oils 994,900.

The composite index was off 2.4 at 155.2 a new low.

Industrials dropped 2.6 to 161.2. The 1965 and all - time high was 174.0 (May 17). Asbestos dropped ¾ to 27 and Dominion Textile ⅝ to 34¾. Chemcell was off ⅛ at 17⅝ and Canada Cement added one point to 55½.

Banks were off 1.4 at 126.3. Royal dropped 1⅞ points to 75¾ and Imperial Commerce 1½ points to 65. Montreal was off ½ at 64.

Senior oils slipped, with Imperial down ⅜ to 51½ and Home ⅛ to 18¾.

Metals were lower. In the base section, International Nickel dropped 1⅞ to 92⅞ and Falconbridge 1⅜ to 97⅛. In the primaries, Algoma lost 2¼ to 69¼ and Steel of Canada 1¼ to 29.

Among speculative mines, Jubilee Iron dropped 25 cents to $3.45 and Black Hawk 20 cents to $3.50. Midepsa fell 30 cents to $3.45.

TORONTO (CP)—Index lows for 1965 and the largest index drops so far this year highlighted light stock exchange dealings Monday.

The 87-stock industrial index dropped 3.02 to a 1965 low of 165.22 as a spate of selling near the close—following a similar drop on the New York Stock Exchange — brought prices in the main list lower.

The 124-stock Toronto Stock Exchange index fell 2.85 to its 1965 low of 155.14. Many issues lost a point or more.

Exchange prices began to dip sharply early in June but appeared to be making a recovery last Thursday and Friday when fractional advances predominated.

Senior base metals and western oils also had large falls. Speculative trading was quiet.

Among industrials, MacMillan, Bloedel fell 2 to 31¼ and Bell Telephone and CPR 1⅛ apiece to 58¼ and 60. Royal Bank and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce each lost a point to 75½ and 65.

Dome fell ¼ to 37½ among golds.

In senior base metals, Rio Algom fell 1⅛ to 16¾ and Inco 1⅞ to 92⅝. Denison fell 1¼ to 30¾ and Falconbridge ½ to 97¼ .

Dome Petroleum lost ½ to 17 among senior western oils and Home A ¾ to 18¼.

On index, golds fell .31 to 152.01, base metals 2.01 to 79.19 and western oils 1.90 to 98.88. Volume was 2,726,000 shares compared with 2,682,000 shares Friday.

Commons Rushing to Clean Up Business

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—With the parliamentary reform legislation finally out of the way, the Commons Monday began whittling away at the many bills that stand as obstacles between it and a recess.

The reform legislation, designed to streamline the business of Parliament and speed the legislative process, was given approval Friday after 15 days of horse-trading debate. With some nudges and pushes, give and take, it was finally put through.

Monday the Commons began tackling revisions to the Bank Act—a heavy legislative chore that could easily snag on controversy. The detailed studies will take place in committee, while the Commons itself tries to clean up the pre-recess legislation.

When Prime Minister Pearson outlined the pre-recess program last week, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said: "There will be many days ahead before the program will have been completed."

EXPIRE JULY 1

Because committee study of the Bank Act revisions is expected to go beyond July 1, when the present bank charters expire, there will be special legislation introduced to extend the charters.

There will also be the necessary legislation to implement the proposals made in the budget. The prime minister said it also is important to implement the program he announced recently to pay grants to unemployed workers who have to move to get jobs and the new incentive program for industries in designated areas of high unemployment .

In addition to this, he listed a number of other bills, mostly non-controversial, which he said the government wanted to bring forward at "an early date."

T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic Party, didn't think the legislative program would result in prolonged debates. "I think these are items with which we will be able to dispose of without too much trouble."

However, Creditiste leader Caouette has said that the Bank Act revisions are bound to raise a controversy.

Until they see how the debate shapes up this week, no one is taking any bets on which the recess might begin.

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Red Withdrawal Halts Industry

MONTREAL (CP) — Communist China has made no industrial strides forward since Russian aid was withdrawn in 1960, a Canadian journalist who recently toured the country said Sunday night.

"China has been at a standstill since then and has apparently been unable to overcome the loss of Russian help," said Charles Lynch, chief of Southam News Services.

Addressing the Canadian Women's Press Club at its triennial convention, he said the Chinese tried to show him during his two-month stay what a "cruel blow" the Russian withdrawal had been.

Mr. Lynch, a former war correspondent and reporter on international affairs for many yeas, said he tried to concentrate on the social dimension of reporting when he was in China — what the common people thought and did.

"When I arrived in Peking they told me China had suffered setbacks in its drive forward, but said I could write as I pleased with no interruption of dispatches."

KEPT THEIR WORD

Mr. Lynch said the Chinese had kept their word and showed him everything he wanted to see except Tibet, including the farming communes and factories—some which were working and others which were not. He was refused permission to interview Chinese leaders such as Premier Chou En-lai.

He said China has the most "strongly entrenched Communist government in the world today — one which has a stronger hold on its people than any other government.

"However, I came to the conclusion that Chinese communism is not exportable, and that it wouldn't work in India, Pakistan, Indonesia or other countries I have visited.

"There is also nothing for the mind in China today. There is no place for the intellectual to go. There is nothing but the peasant-worker theme."

Mrs. Vanier Visits Mother of the Year

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — Mme. Vanier, wife of Governor-General Vanier, made a surprise visit Sunday night to the home of the 1964 Canadian Mother of the Year on the nearby Kamloops Indian reserve. She stayed about an hour.

"We were thrilled to have her visit us," Mrs. Gus Gottfreidse nsaid Monday. "We can't seem to get over it."

Mme. Vanier, who arranged the surprise on the spur of the moment after recognizing Mrs. Gottfreidsen at a luncheon earlier in the day, said she was equally thrilled.

During the visit the Governor-General's wife held the Gottfreidsen's three - week - old grandson for some time.

"It has been so long since I have held such a small child. It was a real thrill."

The entire Gottfreidsen family, as is customary on Sunday evenings, was at home when Mme. Vanier, her lady-in-waiting and an RCMP escort arrived at the reservation.

"When I saw the police cars pull into the yard I thought there must be trouble," said Mrs. Gottfreidsen, who previously met Mme. Vanier in Ottawa last year on her visit as Mother of the Year.

The Gottfreidsen children donned Indian costumes and performed some native dances for Mme. Vanier.

Four generations of the Gottfreidsen family were on hand for the surprise visit.

Odds... and Ends

by M. D. B.

We've been seeing a bit of the country the last two weekends (as I try to learn to handle the four wheels). A week ago we went up to the Duncan Dam site, a trip I've been wanting to make for ages. It is difficult to imagine the vastness of this project. High above the Duncan River the lookout is cleared for sidewalk superintendents and rigged out with picnic tables, rest rooms and strong fences between the onlooker and the steep drop (it must be about 1000 feet) to the dam area below. Work is being done on the diversion tunnels and great runways of dirt are being pushed out into the river, narrowing its bed. It really is beyond description and if you have the opportunity and do not mind about 25 miles of gravel road, you really should see it before it has progressed too far so that when it is finished you will have the before-and-after comparison to marvel over.

* * *

The Saturday just past we took a trip to the High Arrow dam site and while the expanse of construction is also immense, it is perhaps less impressive than the Duncan at this point. Perhaps from a higher vantage point than just the highway its scope might appear more impressive.

* * *

We drove on to Deer Park and Broadwater over a red brown dirt road and up into the hills through cool woods to a meadow and orchard area, seemingly miles from nowhere, but a beautiful spot nevertheless. Along the way tiger lilies peered over the bracken with freckled orange faces and a wild honeysuckle vine wove its way through shrubs and bracken, bright speckles of orange-red. Ferns and bracken were rain-washed green and lush in growth.

* * *

In a small forest clearing, embraced by tall firs and cedars, a tiny cemetery uttered a note of restfulness and peace. Bunches of garden flowers made bright spots among the long grasses and woodsy plants and if a cemetery can look inviting this little country one did. There is nothing morbid about this, really, it looked like a friendly, cosy place where lifelong neighbors and friends had gradually gathered when fruit ranching, gardening, and all the chores of country living had come to an end.

* * *

Indian paint brushes were coming into bloom and wild lupin made a mauve haze along the wayside. Gophers sat stock still by the road for a moment at our approach and then scurried for cover — chipmunks, too. A deer stopped a little down a bank and eyed us with wide liquid eyes, ears erect and nose a-glisten. We slowed to a crawl so as not to frighten it and thus get a better look at the shy, lovely creature among blooming syringa.

* * *

It was a friendly road, though a little bumpy, and when we passed a man walking along it he smiled at us and touched his cap, we almost didn't feel like strangers in that beautiful countryside.

Spain's income from tourism has risen to nearly $1,000,000,000 a year.

Elephant Wash All Part of Gas Service

CANTON, Ill. (AP) — Al Turl, a gasoline station operator whose motto is service, obliged Sunday when an elephant van pulled up and stopped at his pumps.

The customer, an employe of Mills Brothers Circus driving a baby pachyderm from Peoria to Cuba, Ill., told Turl his charge was feeling the 87-degree heat.

Would you give Sophronia a shower?" he asked.

Turl said that as he stood on the edge of the truck bed with hose in hand, the telephone rang. He told an assistant to ask the caller to wait.

"She got huffy and hung up," the assistant reported.

"Why? What did you say?"

"I just said you were out in front watering the elephant."

Intervention In Viet Nam Dangerous

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail quotes Prime Minister Shastri of India as saying that commitment of United States combat troops to Viet Nam could have dangerous consequences.

Reporter David Van Praagh interviewed Mr. Shastri on his state visit to Ottawa immediately after the prime minister was briefed on the Viet Nam situation by B. K. Nehru, Indian ambassador to the United States.

If the U.S. commander in Viet Nam sends troops into battle, it will "cause concern for all who are interested in peace," Mr. Shastri said.

"It could mean escalation of the conflict. And it might lead to dangerous consequences."

Asked if Chinese intervention in Viet Nam is likely in the present circumstances, the prime minister replied: "Nothing like that."

In the end, people in both North and South Viet Nam might have to decide their own future in an election.

"Each country must decide its government and ideology for itself. . . . There must be elections ultimately. (The question of reunification) may have to be for the voters to decide."

Mr. Shastri said in the interview that India and Canada see "more or less eye to eye" on Viet Nam and both countries feel that talks might be possible between the warring factions.

Queen Bestows Knighthood on Admiral

LONDON (AP) — Vice - Admiral Isaac William Trant Beloe of the Royal Navy, deputy commander of NATO's Atlantic forces, was awarded a knighthood in the Queen's birthday honors list.

The award, announced Saturday, makes him a knight of the Order of the British Empire. Under the new protocol announced last week, he is immediately entitled to the style "sir" without awaiting the Queen's accolade.

Beloe, 55, joined the Royal Navy in 1923 and reached his present rank in 1963. He was appointed to his NATO post last year and has his headquarters in Norfolk, Va.

Your Individual Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars,

For Wednesday, June 16, 1965

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) — A strongly favorable Mars aspect. Careful preparations and self-restraint will help swing things into position for more lasting gains. Show your grit.

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus) Some lack of harmony, differences of opinion. Proceed with prudence, forethought. Be alert; expect some interruptions. Widely divergent opinions to be evaluated.

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) Mostly favorable influences. Do not let pressures or tensions hamper steady, well-tempered action. Especially favored: written personal matters.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) Please yourself and others with a high degree of manoeuverability and quick cooperation with competent forces. It will only take a ninner push; you will enjoy the benefits for a long time.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo) — Far-sightedness, introducing unique tactics can stabilize good influences, counteract unwieldy ones. Business, home matters, educational interests favored.

AUGUST 24 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo)—Don't be thrown off guard by fancy-sounding, and possibly misleading propositions. Study the over-all picture. Where there is honest value, accept your quota. Ears to the ground!

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra)—A sort of "diamond in the rough" day. The "little" duties again will shine as top achievements. Be sensibly organized, not overloaded. New ideas call for attention.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 22 (Scorpio)—Overlook petty annoyances. There's too much of real importance to waste any time on trivialities, meaningless items. Do not let fine opportunity or lucrative offerings to pass unheeded.

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 21 (Sagittarius) — Curb a present tendency to relax at the wrong time now, but neither press forward indiscreetly. Lay the groundwork for excellent work and consequent gains.

DECEMBER 22 to JANUARY 20 (Capricorn) — A fine Saturn aspect should encourage you now. But do not supersede your regular schedule with unproven or unnecessary tries. Everyday matters can be brightened; timely decisions needed.

JANUARY 21 to FEBRUARY 19 (Aquarius)—Consolidate your position, expand where it is warranted. And be calm, tending day's chores adequately, without undue concern. Complete assigned tasks on time.

FEBRUARY 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces) — Appraise pending issues thoughtfully. Are you applying correct technique, and to the most desirable projects? Observe goings-on about you. Avoid rosy-sounding, but risky, propositions.

YOU BORN TODAY: Gemini is the Sign of the active-minded, and the active physically. You are never "just sitting it out." Your wits can get you out of precarious situations. But think twice before you act impulsively and you will not have to rely upon these, for your learning capacity is broad. When the Geminian buckles down to business and applies both knowledge and intuition, he, or she, is a stimulating source of encouragement for all. Skillful with your hands, you may turn to music, horticulture or painting either as a hobby or regular work. You are imaginative, also changeable. Many fiction writers, poets, and promotion experts were born in Gemini. Do not permit others' slowness, stubbornness, or lack of appreciation to dull your enthusiasm. Curb extravagance of energies, money. Birthdate: Gustavus V, King of Sweden.
