Cardin New Minister of Justice

Favreau Continues As Quebec Leader

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson juggled his ministry Wednesday, sending little-known Lucien Cardin into the justice portfolio and calling on two parliamentary secretaries to join the cabinet.

Seven men were involved in the changes dictated mainly by the need to find a new role for Guy Favreau and plug the hole left when he resigned as justice minister last week over the Dorion report.

Mr. Cardin, 46-year-old American-born lawyer who gained a reputation for administrative skill as associate defence minister, takes over the justice post following only five months as public works minister.

Mr. Favreau, 47, is to continue as Quebec leader while holding special responsibilities for federal-provincial relations.

GIVEN NOMINAL POST

He has been given the nominal post of Privy Council president, succeeding George McIlraith, 56, who retains the government House leadership and takes on Mr. Cardin's old job in works.

The two new ministers are Lary Pennell, 50-year-old parliamentary secretary to Finance Minister Gordon, who becomes solicitor-general, and Jean-Luc Pepin, the scholarly, 40-year-old parliamentary secretary to Trade Minister Sharp, who becomes minister without portfolio.

Mr. Pepin is to help Transport Minister Pickersgill run that vast department until it is decided whether to carve it in two or create an associate ministry.

Sole departure from the cabinet was William Benidickson, who is resigning because of bad health and going to the Senate. J. Watson MacNaught, previously solicitor - general, takes over Mr. Benidickson's portfolio.

CRITICIZE RETENTION

The juggling won little enthusiasm from opposition spokesmen, and the retention of Mr. Favreau in the ministry was strongly criticized by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and Creditiste Leader Caouette.

Mr. Diefenbaker said if Mr. Favreau was unfit to be justice minister "he's unfit for any other parliamentary portfolio."

Mr. Caouette said Mr. Favreau should not be in the cabinet and should have followed Liberal MP Guy Rouleau who Tuesday agreed to quit as a member of Parliament for his efforts to win bail for narcotics trafficker Lucien Rivard.

NDP Leader Douglas said he is disappointed that more young blood was not brought into the cabinet, but thought Mr. Favreau's new job was a "good slow" for him.

Mr. Douglas said he is not opposed to Mr. Favreau serving in the government, only to his holding any responsibility for administration. In his new job Mr. Favreau could use his negotiating skills to good advantage with provincial premiers, the NDP leader added.

Mr. Pennell, a native of Brantford, served in the RCAF during the Second World War. He was first elected to the Commons in 1962 and appointed parliamentary secretary to Mr. Gordon a year ago.

As solicitor-general, he is expected to work as a team with Mr. Cardin in readying and guiding through the Commons legislation to abolish the death penalty, scheduled to be debated later this session.

Mr. Benidickson, 54, goes to the Senate after representing the Kenora-Rainy River riding for 20 years. Although a loyal Liberal party member, he always listed his political affiliation as Liberal-Labor in line with practice in the constituency.

Houses, Gardens, Cars Take Severe Pounding

Damage estimated at several thousand dollars resulted from a freak hail storm that hit the community of Ymir, 18 miles south of Nelson, at mid-afternoon Wednesday.

Cars, houses, gardens, and trees were severely damaged by the falling ice-balls that ranged in size from ¾ to 1½ inches in diameter.

The freak storm hit about three p.m. Wednesday and hail fell for more than an hour and a half. High winds and heavy rains also accompanied the storm.

The pounding hail broke windows and ruined roofs of houses and business establishments. It broke several windows in the community.

The heaviest damage was inflicted on motor cars and trucks when the hail pitted paint finishes. Hail pierced the top of at least one convertible.

At one time during the height of the storm hail blanketed the ground to a depth of more than six inches.

Vegetable and flower gardens of local residents were demolished when hail stones ripped plants to shreds and destroyed fruits and vegetables.

STREETS FLOODED

Streets were flooded by the heavy rains and melting ice, and at some points water was more than a foot deep.

High winds caused concern among the residents when it forced doors open and blew through homes.

R. O. Thomas of Ymir told the Daily News of the havoc created by the storm.

"We didn't dare go outside," he said. "The hail was beating down on the house, and sounded as if it was going to break through at any minute."

Mr. Thomas said that the hail tore shingles off the roof of homes, and said that the roof of his own place was leaking from the damage inflicted.

"All the gardens here are ruined," he said. "Many of the cars are going to need new paint jobs because of the pitting by the hail stones."

He said that lawns and streets were littered with leaves ripped off trees by the storm. Fruit trees in the area were hard hit when the hail ripped the forming fruit off the limbs.

Mr. Thomas said the hail broke one window in his home, and had broken windows in some neighboring houses.

He said the storm appeared to have centered on Ymir. "Just outside the community there was no hail at all."

Killers Who Grabbed Boy, Woman Hunted

SPRINGFIELD, Ore. (AP) — Scores of police scoured western Oregon Wednesday for two killers who shot down a Deputy Sheriff and apparently seized a 33-year-old woman and her son as hostages.

An officer said the woman had once testified in court against an ex-convict who is being sought in connection with the case.

The woman, Mrs. David Corbin, and her 12-year-old son Clinton were missing from the Corbin home near where Deputy Sheriff Carlton E. Smith, 33, was murdered.

Smith was killed by a volley of pistol shots and a blast from a shotgun when he stopped a car near here in a routine check.

Police reported this chain of events:

Two men used a shotgun and a pistol to rob a Portland bank of $13,000 Tuesday. Eight hours later a former convict paid $895 cash for a used sports car in Salem.

Two hours later the deputy was slain 110 miles south of Portland.

Shortly afterward police discovered Mrs. Corbin, her son, and the family automobile had disappeared from the nearby Corbin home.

The Corbin car was found abandoned Wednesday in the Cascade range, 125 miles north-east of Springfield. There was no trace of the woman or boy.

Premier Offers To Help Build Coliseums

VICTORIA (CP) — Premier Bennett Wednesday offered up to $10,000,000 to help build proposed coliseums in Vancouver and Burnaby.

The premier said the province would contribute up to $5,000,000 to each project, providing equal grants came from the federal government and respective city councils.

Vancouver and Burnaby both have announced intentions to build all-purpose coliseums, primarily to make their areas contenders for National Hockey League expansion.

British Gov't Not Planning To Resign

LONDON (Reuters)—An authoritative government source said Wednesday the Labor government has no intention of resigning despite three stinging pre-dawn defeats in the House of Commons.

The statement was made as Prime Minister Wilson met with his top ministers to discuss the defeats, which caught the Labor party by surprise during an overnight debate on sections of the government's complex finance bill.

There was an air of anti-climax when the House of Commons resumed debate on the bill later Wednesday.

Edward Heath, the Conservative party's finance expert, did not challenge Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan on the government's position. Instead, both sides of the House began a routine consideration of the finance bill.

During the debate the Conservatives succeeded in defeating the government by two majorities of 13 and one of 14.

CHARGE TRICKERY

Labor immediately charged trickery, saying members of the opposition lulled Labor members into thinking they had gone so that Labor members would follow suit. According to the government, however, the Conservatives then rushed back to the half - empty House and forced a vote while they had the edge on members present.

As the snap votes were called, the Conservatives shouted "resign, resign."

The Wilson administration, which has only a majority of four in the 630-seat House, was already smarting from Conservative attacks on Callaghan and Economics Minister George Brown for speeches in which the two ministers disparaged the Tories.

An all-party House of Commons committee was investigating a speech by Callaghan to determine whether he committed a breach of parliamentary privilege in saying he thought of some Conservative members as "capital speculators."

Brown, no. 2 man in the government, formally apologized Tuesday for a weekend speech linking pre - war Conservative government appeasement policies with the Nazi extermination of the Jews. Nearly 70 Conservatives had signed a motion of censure against him.

Kidnapped Woman Found

LADYSMITH, B.C. (CP)—An elderly woman, kidnapped from her home and held for $4,000 ransom, was found alive Wednesday, bound and buried under debris in a run-down shed.

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Knight, 82, had been missing for more than 20 hours. She was taken to hospital for observation.

Police said the woman, a semi-invalid unable to walk unaided, was found in a shed 30 yards from her home. A member of a search party found old building materials piled over her where she was jammed between two walls. She was unable to tell police what happened.

Lawyer Manitoba's Lieutenant-Governor

WINNIPEG (CP) — Richard S. Bowles, a Winnipeg lawyer whose interests run to books, said Wednesday he will be devoting all his time to the job of being Manitoba's lieutenant-governor.

Earlier in the day at Ottawa, Prime Minister Pearson announced the appointment of Mr. Bowles, 52, who will take office early in September, succeding Errick F. Willis.

Mr. Bowles said in an interview he has looked at the schedule of activities followed by Mr. Willis and concluded that "this is a full-time occupation."

He will not continue working in his law office where he is senior partner in the firm of Bowles, Pybus, Gallagher, Chornous, Smith and Green.

As a lawyer, his work has been in the general solicitor's field rather than the courtroom. He has dealt with company problems, with estates and with people.

He says he has more interests in books than in outdoor pursuits. He collects books as well as reads them, and studies Italian in winter and French in summer.

He was appointed president of the Manitoba Bar Association in 1961 and president of the Law Society of Manitoba in 1964. He was appointed a life bencher of the law society when he retired as president two months ago.

He is also a trustee of the Manitoba Law School and a member of the council of the Canadian Bar Association.

Mr. Willis, who became lieutenant-governor in January of 1960, was to have completed his term in office last Jan. 15.

Mr. Pearson extended his term to July 1 and Mr. Willis was asked to stay on during July and August pending appointment of Mr. Bowles.

Sheikh Killed

ADEN (Reuters)—Three gunmen shot and killed Sheikh Nasher Abdullah Al Sqladi, Naib (ruler) of Shaib sheikhdom, here Wednesday night.

Ten rounds from automatic pistols were fired at the naib while he was leaving his car opposite his residence in Aden's old-town area.

Sheikh Nasher was a member of the South Arabian federal council (legislative body).

His tiny sheikhdom bordering the Yemen republic recently joined the South Arabian federation.

About two months ago federal troops launched a military action in his sheikhdom against dissident tribesmen operating from across the border.

No arrests have been reported so far.

Showdown Looms In South Viet Nam

SAIGON (AP) — Fresh U.S. marines streamed ashore Wednesday in an 8,000-man buildup that may lead to a showdown with Communist forces on a rampage in South Viet Nam's central highlands. Intelligence men said they believe North Viet Nam's 325th Division is involved.

The marine reinforcements seemed to have been brought in on an emergency basis.

A U.S. spokesman announced 2,800 marines put in from navy ships at Da Nang and Qui Nhon and the rest of a 3,400-man party will debark today. He said 4,600 others will come ashore in the next week, boosting American military strength in South Viet Nam to nearly 60,000 men.

The hurried landings, he said, do not involve any of the six marine battalions earmarked earlier by U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara to come to South Viet Nam.

Inland from the landing points, 170 miles apart, another highlands district capital fell before a Viet Cong guerrilla onslaught. A Communist force overran Dak To Tuesday night and the spokesman said the town, 280 miles northeast of Saigon, was believed to remain under enemy occupation. About 150 South Vietnamese government troops were based there.

It is in the mountains that intelligence sources said they believe the regulars of North Viet Nam's 325th Division are operating. They said one battalion

Secret Meeting Sought End to Crisis in ECM

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — The European Common Market, boycotted by France and in the dark about President de Gaulle's intentions, is continuing efforts to solve the worst crisis in its eight-year existence.

The executive commission of the six-country community met Wednesday in secret under its president, Walter Hallstein of West Germany, for the second time since the crisis broke to work out compromise proposals.

The commission did not finish working out its proposals, however, and adjourned until next Tuesday.

France withdrew its ambassador, Jean - Marc Boegner, from community headquarters last Tuesday and said French delegates would not attend any meetings for the present because of last week's failure of the Six to agree on agriculture finance.

The deputy representatives of the other five members—West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg—also met Wednesday and decided that their heads of missions, or ambassadors, should discuss the crisis Wednesday.

But the French deputy representative, Maurice Ulrich, who is remaining in Brussels, boycotted the Wednesday meeting.

Boegner has been asked by the French government to return to Paris for an unspecified period, which means that France has not severed all relations with the community.

But the French boycott of meetings of the main economic community, as well as the coal and steel community and Euratom, effectively paralyses all further development.

No forward moves by the community can be made except by unanimous decision of the ministerial council and France has said it would be "unthinkable" for a French minister to attend a council meeting at present.

France claimed the other five members went back on a promise to agree by last Thursday on how to finance the European market in agricultural products in which it is vitally interested.

But Brussels observers felt the real reason for the crisis was a basic disagreement on how European political integration should be pursued.

Consumer Price Index Climbs Point in June

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bureau of Statistics' index of consumer prices rose one full point to 139.0 for June, compared with 138.0 for May, the bureau reported Wednesday.

The increase was mainly attributed to a rise in food prices.

The bureau said that at the beginning of June the index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, was 2.7 per cent higher than in June, 1964.

In addition to food prices, which were up 2.3 per cent in the month, the bureau reported increases in the indexes for housing, clothing, transportation, and recreation and reading.

The index for health and personal care declined slightly, while the tobacco and alcohol index remained unchanged.

The total index, which is a measure of living costs, has been rising steadily since last October, posting new records each month from December, 1964, on. Its latest monthly declines were in September, 1963, and September, 1964.

The June increase this year was the first full-point increase in the index in at least 2½ years.

The food index has a record of rising in June and July. It rose last month to 137.6 from May's 134.5.

The bureau said prices were "substantially higher" for beef and pork, most fresh vegetables, and grapefruit. Other food price increases occurred over a wide variety of items, including veal, chicken, butter, cheese, peanut butter, infants' food, tea, apples and grapes.

Prices were lower for eggs, fresh tomatoes, oranges and orange juice, and coffee.

Increases in the housing, clothing, and transportation components of the total index amounted to less than one tenth of one per cent.

There were some increases in rents and home - ownership costs, but scattered increases for furniture, textiles and utensils and equipment were offset by lower prices for coal, carpets and some household supplies.

The clothing index rose because of higher prices for laundry and dry cleaning, shoe repairs, men's and children's wear, piece goods, and women's and children's shoes.

The tobacco and alcohol index remained unchanged. Personal care prices fell sufficiently to send the health and personal care index down one-tenth of one per cent.

COMPILED FROM SURVEY

The index is compiled from a survey of prices taken during the latter part of the month preceding the one for which it applies—in this case, during May. The survey is based on family expenditure patterns prevailing in 1957, and measures the change from month to month in the cost of buying a "basket of goods and services."

The family pattern taken as the basis of the survey includes families of two to six, living in population centres of 30,000 or more, and with an income which in 1957 ranged from $2,500 to $7,000.

New Educational Concept

A new educational concept that will allow students to progress at their own rate of speed and which should eliminate failures in elementary school will be introduced into Nelson and District Schools as soon as details of the program can be worked out.

The decision to introduce Continuous Promotion into Grades one, two and three was made by the District No. 7 School Board at its regular meeting Monday evening.

The program will not affect the majority of the students who are average workers.

The advantage of the new program is that slow students will be allowed more time to master their studies before proceeding and that the fast students will be able to move onto new material as soon as they have mastered each unit of material.

There should be no more students failing in elementary school.

Basically the plan is that the material for each grade will be broken down into three of four units and the students formed into groups according to their learning ability.

When a group has finished a unit of work it will proceed to the next unit.

Those groups that learn quickly will proceed to the next year's work and should be able to complete six years work in five years.

Those groups that learn slowly take longer to cover each unit and may take seven years to cover six years work.

Details of the program for District No. 7 schools have not yet been worked out but it will be worked out so that students may be transferred from one group to the other if their rate of development changes.

A summer workshop of primary teachers and principals will be organized to arrange the subject matter into levels.

The action was taken following a study of continuous promotion by the Education Committee of the School Board. The committee recommended that continuous promotion be introduced for grades one, two and three.

The committee said in its report that the policy of continuous promotion has been recommended by the Department of Education since 1946.

The report goes on to say that "Adoption of continuous promotion in an already well-functioning school is as desirable as would any other improvement in administrative or teaching techniques.

"The committee recommends that flexibility of organization be maintained."

"Your committee . . . warns that rigid formality in this field will jeopardize the basic philosophy and replace one lock-step system with an equally undesirable lock-step system."

Commenting on the new policy Charles Cuthbert, District Superintendent of Schools said, "70-80 per cent of the youngsters will not be affected. This will permit us to do a better job with the bottom 10-15 per cent and the top 10-15 per cent."

Demands Castlegar Commissioner Pay Cost of Special Report

CASTLEGAR — A former Castlegar Village Commissioner Tuesday night charged that Commissioner F. C. Gorse was guilty of gross dereliction of duty, and demanded that the $3,998 cost of a village sewage report be paid by the commissioner.

The charges and demand came from former commissioner Gwilym Hughes after the sewage report was tabled with Council by chairman William Reed.

Mr. Hughes, demanding that Mr. Gorse pay for the report, charged that the commissioner was guilty of:

Gross dereliction of duty in initialing a progress payment although he was extremely concerned that the bylaw funds had been over-expended and contravened clause 30 of the Municipal Act.

Ignoring the motion of Feb. 11 to list all the outstanding items which did concern the consulting engineers.

Making representations to the Department of Municipal Affairs without the full knowledge and authority of council.

Consistently avoided informing Commissioner Leo Bosse and Lorne Zinio of the progress of his investigations as chairman of the sewage committee.

Failing to submit a report of the state of his department to council over a period of four months.

Precipitating a costly examination by following an irregular procedure necessitating the hiring of expert professional advice and additional auditing expense.

Making allegations which could not be substantiated thus impuning the characters of members of last year's commission together with the professional integrity of a very reliable firm of consultant engineers.

Deliberately avoiding any confrontation with the consultant engineers to acquaint himself with the questions that gave rise to concern.

Persistently avoiding any consultative contact with the two members of last year's council who could have rendered considerable assistance. For these reasons and as a taxpayer, I request that Commissioner Gorse be surcharged with the cost of the examination.

"He has, by his actions, injured the municipal image of Castlegar in the estimation of engineering consultants and public works contractors," Mr. Hughes charged.

Mr. Hughes' charges and the sewage report all stemmed from the new sewage system installed in the village, beginning in the spring of 1964 and completed this March.

Mr. Gorse had expressed dissatisfaction with some phases of events pertaining to the sewage system. A committee was established in January to consider the sewage problems with commissioners Curly Cook, William Reed and Mr. Gorse as members.

The committee never reported to the other members of council on its activities and travelled to Victoria for meetings with Government officials without the sanction of council.

An investigation into the sewage problem was ordered by the Provincial Government, and it was the report of this investigation that was tabled with council on Tuesday.

Ask Police Crackdown On Excessive Speeding

City police will be asked by the Nelson Town Planning Commission to investigate excessive speeding on West Innes Street from Crease to Vancouver Streets.

"Somebody is going to get killed," R. M. Boates, commission member told the regular meeting Tuesday night. He said that cars were "really highballing it" on the thoroughfare, which is constantly used by children. A motion by Mr. Boates to request police to place the area in question under a 20-mile-an-hour speed limitation was approved by the commission.

Another traffic hazard, noted by Mr. Boates, was at the intersection of Stanley and Silica which was made a virtual blind spot because of parked cars. He added that he himself had been almost involved in accidents at the corner due to the blocked visibility which precluded sight of oncoming traffic.

Town planner, G. A. Butling, commented that a stipulation recommended by engineer consultants, Cave & Oberlander, was to the effect that no cars be allowed to park within 80 feet of an intersection.

The possibility of eliciting the services of mammoth dredge, presently working at the Arrow Dam site at Castlegar, for use by the city to deepen the lakefront area, was broached by J. S. M. Harts, "We'll never get another one like that in the area again," he added, suggesting that council be requested to query the dredge owners on the possibility of making Nelson its next stop after completion of work at the dam site. The motion was approved.

The increasing complexity of downtown parking problems was also a matter for discussion by the commission. A motion was passed that the traffic commission of council revive its study of provision for parking in the business area, and that some thought be given to zoning and expropriation for parking purposes, of property known to be coming on the market.

Town planner G. A. Butling, will be more than the designation his duties suggest, but will sign all letters by him from the commission "secretary." A motion by Mr. Harts approving the appointment came on the heels of a report by E. H. Procter, who was delegated to conduct a procedure study on the commission and city council.

Following a perusal of the Municipal bylaw and talks with Mayor E. T. Bodard, Mr. Procter said that there are "apparently four factors involved with procedure between the commission and city council." He recommended that any communications between the two bodies be made by elected officials of each, and that the town planner be appointed not only as secretary of commission meetings but also of the commission itself. He further recommended duplicate copies of all letters from the commission be sent to Mayor Bodard as well and the city administrator and other bodies concerned.

Mr. Procter advocated that the commission print a "house memorandum" form to facilitate communication with the city to help expedite matters and establish more "co-ordination." It was also better to present commission decisions as recommendations rather than opinions, since city council could act easier on the former than it could on the latter.

Wood Tick Bite Paralyses Girl

FRUITVALE — A four-year-old girl was partially paralyzed when bitten by a wood tick, it was reported Tuesday.

Dr. Nicolas Schmitt said the girl suffered numbness of the legs and feet and had great difficulty walking a week ago. She had no pain or fever.

He said the girl's condition improved rapidly after an enlarged wood tick was removed. He did not say where the tick attacked and did not give the girl's name.

Wood ticks are common in parts of the province between March and June.

COUNCIL JOTTINGS

Silver King Road Tenders Received

Tenders for construction of curb and gutters for Silver King Road were referred to the executive for further study by city council at its regular meeting Monday night.

Bids were received from Williscroft Construction Ltd., and Louis Maglio, for $35,995, and $20,895 respectively.

A letter from the pollution control board authorizing the continuation of sewer installations in the city was noted by council, and a motion passed accepting the conditions outlined in the letter passed.

Third reading of an anti-litter bylaw was tabled for further study, and final reading of an amendment to business license bylaw was approved. Also passed were three readings of a bylaw for the closure to traffic of a portion of Chatham Street.

A letter from the Selkirk Health Unit reporting a high bacterial content at Lakeside Park Beach was referred to the city engineer for report.

The resignation of J. S. M. Harts as chairman of the Civic Centre Recreation Commission, contained in a letter to council, was accepted with regret, and a motion that no appointment be made to fill the vacancy on the commission for the balance of year, was passed.

A request from the District Superintendent of Schools that the city play host to a group of students taking part in the Canadian Centennial Youth Travel Programme August 8, was approved. Referred to the executive for further study was a request for scholarship assistance to students from the local vocational school. It was noted that such assistance was not budgeted for by the city.

Request from Western Construction for rezoning of a piece of property for multiple dwelling use was referred to the town planner and city building inspector for study. A request from Mrs. A. Evdokimoff for installation of water services was deemed too costly an undertaking and was not budgeted for by the city. Referred to the public works department was a request from J. J. Shukin, for blacktopping of part of his yard in front of his place of business. Also forwarded to the public works department was a complaint from Jim Sawada pertaining to disrepair of a wooden sidewalk in the 300 block of Hall Street.

A request for removal of an ash tree and construction of a retaining wall was referred to the department of public works and parks board for report.

Further investigation into a filtration unit for Gyro Park pool will be conducted by the department of public works. C. D. Likar, superintendent, told council that enquiries into cost estimates of a flow filter with pump ranged in the neighborhood of $2601 minus chemical injector. It was decided by council to continue study into the matter.

The board of school trustees met a delegation from Tarrys to discuss safety measures on the highway in the Thrums-Tarrys area.

A committee consisting of members of the school board, the Safety Council, and the Thrums-Tarrys delegation was formed to meet and formulate a program outlining points for consideration to improve safety on the highway.

The Board is acquiring the property on the corner of Fifth Avenue and Hemlock Street in Castlegar for a new six-room school.

A survey is being made of trailer population in the area.

General maintenance is being carried out in the schools. The school district maintenance crew is renovating and extending a classroom in Twin Rivers school to accommodate the school library.

Enlarging of staff room accommodation at Tarrys School is also being carried out by the maintenance crew.

Plans are being prepared for additions at Woodland Park, Blueberry Creek, Kinnaird Elementary, Stanley Humphries Senior Secondary and a new six-room unit for Twin Rivers school.

Radio Terminal In Operation

A new public service radio terminal to give mobile radio telephone coverage for the Lower Arrow Lakes country went into service Tuesday, reports B.C. Telephone Company.

Located on B.C. Hydro property at the High Arrow dam site, the new $15,000 terminal will service mobiles from Castlegar to Renata as well as the dam site itself. Operator services will be supplied by the Trail switchboard.

This is the second new public service radio terminal to go into service within a month.

On June 3, mobile radio coverage was extended to the Duncan Lake dam site, to the north end of Duncan Lake, Trout Lake, and south towards Kaslo.

The radio equipment supplying this coverage is located at the company's automatic exchange site at Cooper Creek. The Nelson switchboard supplies operator services for this terminal.

Installed on a rush basis specifically to serve Columbia River projects, the new terminals will benefit any of the travelling public who are equipped for radio access.

Duncan Diversion Tunnels Rock Excavation Complete

Excavation of rock from two 1000-foot-long diversion tunnels at Duncan damsite, 26 miles north of Kaslo, has been completed.

Workmen averaged about 40 feet of tunnel a day and drilled and blasted more than 40,000 cubic yards of rock from the tunnel during construction. The project was completed in about 10 weeks.

Excavation of rock at the downstream end of the tunnels is now underway to provide a vertical facing against which a tunnel outlet structure containing control gates will be erected. Installation of the gates is scheduled to be completed in the spring of '67.

Construction is nearing completion on 2000 feet of a cutoff wall extending across the damsite to control the seepage of water under the watertight core of the dam. An additional 600-foot-long section of the cutoff wall will be completed next year.

Site investigations have been completed and initial blasting has been carried out for the spillway control structure on the dam's left abutment. Excavation work is scheduled to start later this summer.

Three miles of foresry road has been relocated around the east bank of the Duncan River near the damsite and an access bridge downstream of the damsite has been strengthened.

Reconstruction of the highway from Kaslo to Lardeau, south of the damsite, is nearing completion and paving is well advanced on some sections of the new road.

Tourists will be able to travel from Nelson to the Duncan project over a paved surface when the highway is completed later this summer.

Lining of the 20-foot-diameter tunnels with concrete will begin later this month.

Duncan dam, scheduled for completion in 1968, will be 130 feet high and will have a crest length of 2600 feet.

The dam is rapidly taking shape and already heavy earth moving equipment has raised its height to more than 60 feet.

Of a total of 6.4 million cubic yards of fill that will be required to build the dam, more than 1.5 million cubic yards have been placed.

Codling Moth Active in Area

CRESTON —The second brood codling moth is now active in the Creston Valley. Control sprays shrould therefore be applied before Saturday. Growers should carefully check their trees for mites and, if necessary, combine a miticide with their codling moth control spray, advises W. S. Peters, district horticulturist.

Cherry fruit flies remain active and protective sprays should be applied until all fruit is harvested in order to prevent "wormy fruit", he points out also.

The close proximity to harvesting dictates that only Sevin be used in order to avoid a harmful residue on the fruit. In addition, self-emulsified cottonseed oil (see page 19 of the Spray Calendar) should be applied in conjunction with this spray."

Charge Castlegar Licence Fees High

CASTLEGAR — A submission of the motel and trailer court owners to this week's village commission meeting will be studied at the next commission meeting, Chairman Bill Reed told the petitioners.

A protest brief was presented to the commission meeting concerning trades licenses, garbage, sewage and billing, and objecting to "being driven out of business" by various aspects of the municipal obligations mentioned.

Trades licenses were termed "unreasonable", with $20 charge for each trailer space whether or not the space was being used, as opposed to rates of two dollars a year per trailer in Kelowna and Warfield. The brief cites a difference in rates of "$30 for a six-month period for five units of a motel while another proprietor is charged five dollars for a six-month period for six units."

"The rate is supposed to be 50 cents per room every six months. Revenue from one motel unit is approximately six times greater than from one trailer space, yet trades licenses on motel units is one tenth the hate of a trailer space."

The protest declared that garbage pickup rates are being charged for trailers that do not exist, and sewage hookups the same.

Peter Konkin, trailer court operator, said he had installed a six-inch sewar main on his own property and when he prepared to connect to the village sewer line, supposed to be six-inch, he found is was only a four-inch line.

Trades licenses and garbage costs were sent out in May retroctive to January 1, with no previous notification to the businesses involved, the brief charged.

With taxes of $793 on three acres plus garbage, plus trades licenses of $20 per year per trailer, "trailed courst feel forced to boost the rent to $35 so people are blying lots in Blueberry or Robson, still using the schools and hospital plus school buses.

The End is Coming

Recent developments in Ottawa have made it abundantly clear that the Pearson Government has out-lived its usefulness . . . and has certainly lost the confidence of John Q. Public in its integrity.

A glaring support of this view is the recently announced Dorion Report into the Raymond Denis - Lucien Rivard affair. The report has already forced one head to roll, and certainly should cause a great deal of soul searching if a second does not follow suit.

As the Canadian representative to the United Nations, Prime Minister Pearson showed himself to be adept, astute and an altogether wise choice for the post.

However, his role, first as leader of the Opposition, and lately as head of the government, has shown him to be inept, bumbling and more important still, failing to exercise the proper surveillance over his own government and cabinet.

It is undoubtedly true, as stated by opposition leader Diefenbaker, that the Dorion Report has placed a federal election into the far distant future, for there is little doubt that Mr. Pearson's government would fare rather badly.

Further than this, the Liberal party needs time itself to engineer a complete reorganization of its top level members in government.

The party does, in fact, need to launch a major house-cleaning operation if it is to restore any semblance of confidence among the nation's voters.

It is likely however, that the time is too late for any effective action to forestall the doom that will face the Liberal party in the next general election.

Mr. Diefenbaker, or his replacement, will never allow the Rivard scandal to die.

The ouster of the Liberals from power can certainly be welcomed, for the legislation enacted by it has, for the most part, been ineffectual.

The government's handling of the new flag issue was inept, and undoubtedly contributed to any split that exists in the country today.

It is probably true the next Federal election has been shunted into the far distant future . . . however, Mr. Pearson is gaining nothing by this tactic—he is simply postponing the inevitable.

Supreme Court Rulings Too Thick, Too Fast

To most Canadians the Supreme Court of Canada, while an august body no doubt, is a remote and distant entity. Too remote, we submit, and too distant.

The Court contributes to its own anonymity. The other day it produced a mighty string of eight major decisions, all of which were interesting to thoughtful people outside the universities and law firms.

Why did eight have to come down on the same day? Their Lordships obviously did not decide these varied items of business, ranging from a murder appeal to the constitution of Quebec, to the mounting of election posters, all at the same moment. Why can't decisions be handed down as they are reached?

The reason for this complaint is that newspapers and other news media have only limited space and there is hot competition for it every day. Thus, all over the country, these eight judgments had to be compressed and edited down and perhaps some of them even dropped.

By mass producing decisions at specific intervals the court suddenly gives birth to more material than can be readily digested by news gatherer and news reader alike. This contributes to the remoteness of the court and the lack of general knowledge of its operations.

Although it has been Canada's final arbiter of law since 1949, the Supreme Court still has not gained the relative importance of the Supreme Court of the United States. Because of the different constitutions between the two countries, it may never do so.

Nevertheless, it is tremendously important and will inevitably become more so. Canada is still moving towards repatriation of its constitution, which will permit amendment of the constitution by Canadians alone without recourse to the British parliament.

If an amendment formula of the potential rigidity of the Fulton-Favreau formula is adopted, the role of the court will gradually expand and its potency increase as it is more frequently asked to rule on questions affecting division of authority between provinces and the federal government.

If these important decisions of the future are handed down in case lots public knowledge and understanding could suffer.

It is no doubt convenient for all concerned in the actual day to day workings of the court to handle things on the present basis but some consideration should be given to enlarging public interest in the work of the court and knowledge of the task it performs.

Responsibility for this lies on all sides, of course, but the court could do its bit by spacing judgments a little better.—Hamilton Spectator.

Fundamental Research

The versatility of government research leaves us gaping. You know what the U.S. Public Health Service has accomplished? It has measured the buttocks of 7,000 Americans age 18 to 79. And you know what it learned? Women are broader across the seat than men, by golly!

Yes, indeed. The average beam of women measured is 14.4 inches, while the average men's fundament is 14 inches.

Why'd the Health Service do it? To help designers of commercial, military and medical equipment "to insure its safe, efficient and comfortable use."

You can't beat that for a reason, can you? Unless, perhaps, your seat isn't average?—Portland Oregonian.

Who's Who?

The New Democratic party may be missing a bet if it doesn't begin at once organizing branches on the South Pacific Island of New Britain.

The natives, it appears, should be particularly receptive to NDP philosophies, believing as they do in the imminent advent of the abundant egg. According to their aboriginal conception of Utopia, a huge egg will float gently down from the sky one day, breaking open just above the houses of the principal village of Rabaul, and shower money and goods all over town. The natives believe that Europeans have no right to these things—much in the way that Socialists would deny individuals the fruits of capitalist enterprise—and expect their ancestors to set things right by sending the egg.

On second thought, if NDP organizers did go to Rabaul, it might become a case of who would organize whom. The NDP sees pie in the sky; the natives, an egg.—Calgary Herald.

Signs of Erosion in Johnson's Policies

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Seven months after Lyndon Johnson's lopsided election victory over Barry Goldwater, there are growing signs of erosion in the president's popularity. His handling of foreign policy appears to be the main reason.

Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic keep getting in the way of his vast program for a bigger and better United States. The public at large continues to give solid backing to his policies but the academic community, which backed Johnson so strongly last November, has been sniping steadily at him on Viet Nam.

There has been some criticism at home of his decision to intervene on a massive scale in the revolt in the Dominican Republic, and his precipitate action there is said to have dismayed even his own state department.

Viet Nam has been described as a nightmare come true, an area of frustration in which the best that can come from present policies is a stalemate.

In many other parts of the world, Johnson's actions have been described as too militant and a danger to peace. But at home there are those who maintain he hasn't been militant enough, at least in Viet Nam.

WANT TOUGHER ACTION

With his peace overtures harshly rejected by Communist North Viet Nam and China, Johnson is faced with the unhappy prospect of a prolonged and growing commitment to an Asian land war.

Reiublicans, with an eye on the 1966 congressional elections, are expected to press for unrestricted bombing of North Viet Nam and perhaps China itself, a step Johnson has resisted. The Republican argument will be that this can save the lives of American soldiers who otherwise would be heavily involved in propping up the faltering and fragile South Vietnamese regime.

Most Democrats in Congress remain mute but many admit privately they are uneasy.

Johnson has been spectacularly successful in getting Congress to go along with his policies but there is growing irritation with the way he has gone about it. It's reflected in an increasing resistance to his legislative proposals — an amendment being tacked on here, a bill being slowed there.

The president's relations with the press have also been deteriorating gradually all year. Some newspaper men have complained that official versions of what has been happening in South Viet Nam and Santo Domingo differ from what they saw there themselves. And Johnson has shown he clearly resents criticism.

FEELS UNDERMINED

At private briefings held intermittently with selected groups of reporters, he has indicated he feels strongly that any criticism of U.S. foreign policy tends to undermine the American position.

He cites pronouncements by North Vietnamese and Chinese leaders as evidence that they have been led to believe the U.S. will not endure in Viet Nam and that victory is just a matter of time.

Abroad, since January, Johnson has been regarded by some as a one-man gang, somewhat impulsive, impatient with diplomatic protocol. Uneasiness is increased with the assumption that Johnson is personally in control of foreign policy and that there are few curbs on him.

As one Canadian observed about Santo Domingo recently: "By itself, the U.S. intervention there isn't earth-shaking in the world scene. But you can't help wondering what would happen if something really crucial had to be decided."

Johnson has been criticized for his abrupt decision to postpone visits scheduled by Indian Prime Minister Shastri and Pakistan's President Ayub Khan, seen by some as an unnecessary slight.

British sources have complained about lack of consultation by Washington, noting that while the U.S. let Britain, Canada and others know when it launched a five-day pause recently in air strikes against North Viet Nam, it didn't tell anyone when the decision was made to resume air strikes. Critics also say the pause was not long enough to give the desired effect, an opportunity for truce overtures.

IGNORED THANT

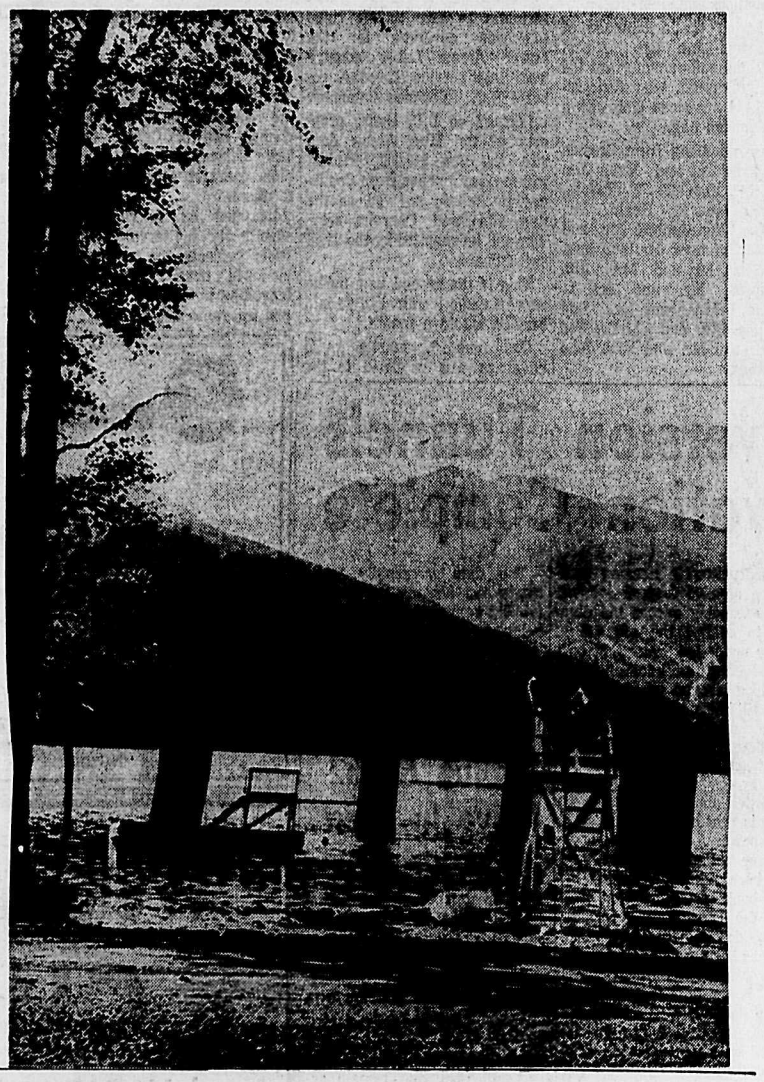
A lot of foreign observers have been upset by Johnson's attitude toward the United Nations as reflected in the unilateral intervention in the Dominican Republic and the brusque way he has rejected advice from UN Secretary-General U Thant.

Recognition of this critical sentiment is believed to have helped convince Johnson that he should address the UN during its 20th anniversary meeting in San Francisco, an event to which most other nations sent routine delegations.

While many in Latin America are critical of the way the U.S. acted in the Dominican Republic, there are some who concede that eventually it could put some muscle into the Organization of American States.

As for Viet Nam, such U.S. allies as Canada and Britain have generally supported Johnson's policies even though they are disturbed about the possible consequences. With North Viet Nam and China having refused to see the Commonwealth peace mission, they see no way out at this stage, officials say.

SLOCAN VALLEY SCENIC



Faithful Mormon Negro

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A faithful and active member of the Mormon Church is a Negro.

Mrs. Lucille Perkins Bankhead of Salt Lake City doesn't go along with what many Mormons believe about Negroes. She chalks it up to ignorance.

She is completely confident in the justice of God and says she has been happy and fulfilled in the religious life of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.

At times, she said in an interview, she has been hurt by racial prejudice. Once, Mormon elders were afraid to administer the laying-on-of-hands ritual when she was in a hospital, "but that was really just ignorance," she said.

Other Mormon elders administered the religious healing ritual, she said, "and I can bear great testimony on its effectiveness."

Mrs. Bankhead, the 62-year-old great-granddaughter of a Mormon slave known as Green Flake, who was among the pioneer settlers of Utah in 1847, is a "block teacher" in her ward (parish).

She visits homes during the week to teach church doctrine.

CURSE OF CAIN

Many Mormons believe Negroes are colored because they are the seed of Cain whom God cursed and marked with a black skin for killing his brother Abel.

She said: "That teaching is a fallacy. If you're a very intelligent person you can't make much out of the Scripture on the curse of Cain."

Not all Mormons believe it, either, but it is the official church practice to restrict Negroes from holding the priesthood, even if the reason is disputed.

The priesthood in the church is tantamount to full fellowship for males—all over 12 years of age may be admitted if they are in good standing.

The youngest of seven Bankhead children, Frank, 26, said the priesthood restriction prevented him from going on a mission for the church.

Most of his white schoolmates went on missions — considered both a duty and a privilege for young Mormons.

CIVIL DEFENCE

Civil emergency planning now involves two intimately related concepts; arrangements for the continued operation of government and the economy on the one hand; and survival measures for the population on the other.

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

July 8, 1965 . . .

The great British parliamentarian and political writer Edmund Burke died 168 years ago today—in 1797—after living through the two great events of his century, the American and the French revolutions. Burke supported the American rebels, not on the theoretical grounds of the Declaration of Independence, but simply because British misrule had gone too far. He opposed the French revolution because he conceived its theory as false rationalism and perceived its practice as violence.

Golf Widow Likes It

By WALTER HAYES

VANCOUVER (CP) — Every day of the golfing season for the last 35 years, eGorge C. Hevenor of Toronto has kissed his wife goodbye and headed for the golf course.

How does she feel about this kiss-and-putt treatment?

"I think it's terrific."

And her advice for every wailing golf widow is: "Let him go. The golf course is the best place in the world for them. It's healthy."

Martha Hevenor was interviewed in Vancouver while her husband was winning his third Canadian Seniors Golf Championship.

"I told him before we came here that he should stay home and let somebody else win, but I was only fooling with him. . . I didn't really expect him to win again."

The couple left here for England where Mr. Hevenor was invited to play in an International Seniors tournament at the Royal St. George's Golf Club at Sandwich. Twelve golfers each from Canada, the United States and Britain were invited.

PLAYS IN RAIN

Mrs. Hevenor's journey along the road to golf widowhood started while she was still engaged to George.

"I'll never forget the letter he sent me while I was vacationing in the south. In it he said: 'I am now making $125 a week and have bought a coon coat and a Buick. I have also joined a golf club.'

"I thought $125 is a lot of money and I better get back to Toronto and grab that man before somebody else gets him."

Mrs. Hevenor said her husband "plays golf every day, rain or shine, from the time the club opens in the spring until it closes for winter."

She said she didn't find being a golf widow a strain even when their son, George Jr., was born.

"I used to do a lot of riding then and I managed to get out of the house for a couple of hours in the afternoon."

Mrs. Hevenor has accompanied her husband to golf tournaments around the world and readily admits that this is one of the reasons she doesn't mind being a golf widow.

HAS 36 HANDICAP

She also plays golf, but not with the enthusiasm of her husband. Her handicap is 36, her husband's three.

"I play for the fun of it, but I like the parties most."

Most of her spare time is devoted to helping crippled children in the Toronto area.

Cleaning silver trophies accumulated by her husband and son is the least attractive part of being a golf widow for Mrs. Hevenor.

"There are trophies all over the house. I've lost count of how many there are. They both bring home all kinds of things."

She said she was once presented with a prize at the Summit Golf Club in Toronto where the Hevenors play.

"It was a cloth for cleaning silver."

Mr. Hevenor refers to his wife as his "trainer and manager."

He is the bright light of any tournament he attends. He is serious only for as long as it takes to get a golf ball off the tee and then he is joking with the caddies or chiding fellow golfers when they make a bad shot.

If he should hook a ball into the woods, something he seldom does, he usually has a tall story to tell later about his recovery.

"I can't believe him," said his wife.

"He is always making up these stories.

"But he's lots of fun and we have a lot of laughs."

Racial Policies Bump Heads

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

South Africa's policy of racial separateness is bumping heads with American racial integration. But there is no indication this will have any impact on the views of Prime Minister Hendrik F. Verwoerd, except to strengthen them.

Indeed, the U.S. may have to bend some of its integration principles.

Verwoerd is believed to have taken a tougher line with the U.S. and other countries recently because such displays of resoluteness tend to unite more strongly South Africa's minority white population. His domestic opposition has been growing steadily weaker. He made big gains in elections in March and has another election due within a year.

South Africa has had a series of brushes with the U.S.

In line with United Nations policy, the U.S. declines to sell defence equipment to South Africa, even though it would earn the U.S. a lot of money. The U.S. refusal is resented by the South Africans.

CALL CANCELLED

Last May, the U.S. aircraft carrier Independence was scheduled to pay South Africa a routine courtesy call. It was cancelled when South Africa said no American Negro would be permitted to land at South African air bases with white air crews.

Recently, Verwoerd ruled that a space-listening post near Pretoria, the capital, must not use any American Negro scientists. The U.S. and South Africa man the station jointly and, while there had not been much likelihood of an American Negro being posted there, the South Africans made an issue of it.

They apparently were aiming at a remark by a state department spokesman that the U.S. might not be able to accept such limitations. Now it appears the U.S. would have to move its station to another country if it wants to protest effectively.

Some observers suggest Verwoerd timed his space-station stand to coincide with the independence - day party at the American Embassy in Pretoria. The U.S. has continued to invite guests to the embassy without regard to the color of their skins and this has irked the South African government.

SITUATION FIRM

Verwoerd's position now is believed much more secure politically and economically than it was five years ago. The bulk of the country's 3,200,000 whites support him and the number of his critics dwindle, from jailing or other reasons.

The South African economy is booming, paced by gold and cheap labor and undeterred by ineffective trade boycotts sponsored mainly by newly-emergent black African nations.

There are some signs, observers suggest, that Verwoerd sees the day coming when no opposition will remain among the white ruling minority to his party or policies.

Martin's UN Financial Policy

By WILLIAM NEVILLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

External Affairs Minister Martin of Canada has yet to draw a response to his publicly-stated "hope and expectation" that other countries will follow Canada in meeting the United Nations' financial crisis through voluntary contributions.

Ottawa sources say, however, that the minister is not overly concerned at this stage by the lack of such response.

Mr. Martin announced in the Commons June 21 that Canada has pledged $4,000,000 towards meeting the $100,000,000 UN peacekeeping debt which has stalled any action by the General Assembly until September.

In making the announcement, the minister said he hoped the Canadian initiative, shared at that time by seven other nations, would set an example for other countries to follow.

The voluntaryq contribution was being made, he said, "in the hope and expectation that the action of these nations will persuade others to follow suit so that the United Nations will be restored to solvency by the time the General Assembly reconvenes in September."

NO ADDITIONAL PLEDGES

Informants in Ottawa said Monday that to date there have been no additional pledges beyond the original eight. Together they amounted to some $18,000,000 or less than one-fifth of the UN's requirement.

These sources remarked that in making his June 21 plea, Mr. Martin was aware a number of other countries were not prepared to follow suit immediately.

Some countries apparently are reluctant to make any move as long as negotiations on the financial crisis, set off by the refusal of Russia, France and other countries to meet peacekeeping debts, are continuing in New York.

The 33-nation committee including Canada, which has been working on this problem for some months with little apparent headway, has until Sept. 1 to submit its final report to the assembly.

Canada seems convinced this factor may well be behind the refusal of the United States to make any commitment on a voluntary contribution. Many observers had regarded as a notable omission the fact President Johnson made no mention of this subject in last month's speech to a UN 20th anniversary meeting in San Francisco.

OTTAWA REACTION

The reaction in Ottawa, however, wasthat the president's omission does not indicate a U.S. refusal to make an additional contribution to UN solvency. The Canadian interpretation is rather that Washington would like to maintain its insistence on invoking article 19 of the UN charter as long as possible as a pressure point on the defaulting countries.

Article 19 provides that any UN member whose debts to the world organization pass a certain level can be deprived of its voting rights in the General Assembly.

While appealing for a response from other nations, Mr. Martin's June 21 speech also raised the possibility Canada might have to increase its $4,000,000 contribution if other countries did not come to the rescue.

Sources said, however, there has been no decision at this stage to increase the Canadian pledge.

Home Was Never Like This, But it's Fun

TENTING — Back to the days of our forefathers, who never had it so good, travelling families find tenting a challenge to the pioneer spirit, particularly when dad is curling in holiday time. Dad, mom and the girls can have the trailers, but give us boys the tents. With dads busy, the Seely and Tollie families are enjoying the facilities for recreation offered by the Nelson parks board. Here, just at breakfast time, in front of their tents at the Tourist Park are, Verl Tollie, Marvin, Melford Tollie, Dean Seely and sisters Wendy and Sandra Seely. The Seely family is from Rosemary, Alta., and the Tollies are from Fort Macleod. In the picture at the right, breakfast is served, midsummer bonspiel style. From left are Mrs. D. F. Seely and Mr. Seely of Rosemary, Ray Tollie and Ted Tollie, with Eloise Tollie standing at the end of the table. Smaller fry on the opposite side of the table are, from left, Warren Tollie, Kevan, LaRon and Grant Tollie, from different families, all of Fort Macleod. "Mom" was inside preparing the breakfast. — Daily News photo.

Large trees beside the house shaded the tea tables and provided a rustic setting for the annual social event. Mrs. V. C. Owen, president, welcomed the guests.

Yawns Dangerous

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — James Porter, a patrolman less than a week, is finding that his job is getting him unhinged.

While walking his beat early Tuesday, Patrolman Porter, 25, yawned and his jaw locked open. A doctor corrected the locked jaw, and Porter returned to duty.

Several hours later, the patrolman yawned again—and sure enough he had to be taken to hospital when he was unable to close his jaw.

This time, attendants taped his mouth closed, put him on a liquid diet, and sent him home.

Britain May Test Russ Scientists

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Wilson said Tuesday he had proposed staging one or two small underground nuclear explosions to see whether Soviet scientists could detect them.

Wilson told the House of Commons great advances hve been made in the last few years on means of verifying underground explosions "but we have not reached the point where we can safely rely on external verification to distinguish between a nuclear explosion and, shall we say, a chemical one of equal power."

A treaty banning nuclear testing in the atmosphere, under water and in space was signed in Moscow Aug. 5, 1963, but underground testing was excluded because of the question of verification. The West insisted that some on-the-spot verification was ncessary; the Russians refused saying this would amount to espionage.

Sir Alec Douglas-Home, former Conservative prime minister and foreign secretary who negotiated and signed the test-ban treaty, asked Wilson whether he planned to revive a proposal for a meeting of U.S., British and Russian scientists to discuss the question of verification.

It was at that point that Wilson said he thought this would be a good idea since the Russians were so positive of their ability at external verification.

He said he had proposed to arrange one or two small staged tests at times known only to the secretary-general of the United Nations to see whether the Russians could actually detect them.

New Driver A Menace

PETOSKEY, Mich. (AP) Emmet County Sheriff Richard Zink didn't think it would be right to issue a driver's license to Amelia Krumri of rural Alanson after she took her driver's test Tuesday.

Ms. Krumri stepped on the accelerator instead of the brake and crunched her car backwards into the sheriff's office during the driver's test, he said. The damage: two cedar trees flanking the entrance, a broken window, a smashed door and a crumpled wall.

Win Number Seven

Minnesota Twins Hit Boston Red Sox 5-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

American League - leading Minnesota Twins scored their seventh straight victory Wednesday night, beating Boston Red Sox 5-2 behind Johnny Klippstien's relief pitching and Bernie Allen's three runs batted in.

Klippstien relieved starter Jim Katt in the sixth inning after the Red sox loaded the bases with one out. One run came home on Bob Tillman's sacrifice fly, but Klippstein blanked Boston the rest of the way. The loss was the Red Sox' fourth in a row and ninth in the last 10 games.

Kaat, whose record now is 7-7, yielded a run in the fifth on Eddie Bressoud's triple and Chuck Schilling's single. That was Boston's first run in 22 innings off Twins' pitching in the four-game series swept by Minnesota.

Leo Cardenas socked a homer with two out in the bottom of the ninth inning, powering Cincinnati Reds 7-6 over Los Angeles Dodgers and into the National League lead.

Cincinnati now has a two-percentage point edge on the Dodgers.

Cardenas' blow off reliever Bob Miller produced a hard-won victory for the Reds, who built a 5-0 lead against Dodger starter Sandy Koufax.

The Reds tagged Koufax, 14-game winner who hasn't lost since May 26, for five runs in the first two innings. But the Dodgers finally caught up at 6-6 in the eighth when .217 hitter Jim Lefebvre homered following Lou Johnson's bunt single.

CUBS DOWN METS

Billy Williams clouted a home run and two singles and rookie catcher Chris Kurg batted in four runs with a pair of bases-loaded singles to lead Chicago Cubs to an 8-3 victory over New York Mets.

Cubs pitcher Larry Jackson was tagged for 10 hits and needed help from Ted Abernathy in the eighth inning but managed to record his 11th victory without a defeat over the Mets since they entered the league in 1962.

Chris Short's three-hit pitching and a lead-off homer in the eighth inning by Clay Dalrymple carried Philadelphia Phillies to a 1-0 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates.

Short, bringing his record to 10-6, was locked in a pitching duel all the way with Bob Friend who lost his seventh in 11 decisions when Dalrymple homered.

Rico Carty slammed a home run and a run-scoring single and turned in a key fielding play, leading Milwauke Braves to a 5-2 victory over Houston Astros.

Carty also stroked a double that set up the Braves' first run off Houston starter Bob Bruce in the second inning. Hank Aaron contributed his 15th home run for the Braves, who posted only their third victory in the last 12 games.

ATHLETICS LOSE AGAIN

John and Stu Miller pitched Baltimore Orioles to a 1-0 victory over Kansas City, handing the Athletics their sixth straight loss.

John Miller started and allowed four hits into the seventh inning, when he was replaced by Stu Miller with men on first and second and one out. The relief ace stopped that threat, and gave up only a harmless single in the eighth.

Clete Boyer knocked in three runs with a solo homer and a bases - loaded single, leading New York Yankees to a 4-3 victory over Detroit Tigers.

Boyer's lead-off homer in the fifth inning was the first hit off Detroit starter Hank Aguirre, who failed for the third straight time to record his 10th victory.

Isaman Falls To Gervais 10-6

NEW GOALS TO GO—France's great distance runner, Michel Jazy, crosses the finish line in a record-smashing two-mile run at Melun, France, adding another record to his big collection. Jazy ran the two miles in 8:22.6, beating Ron Clarke.

Red Koehle Pilots Rink to 8-6 Victory

Lady Luck frowned on Les Isaman's Stettler, Alta., rink's bid for an unprecedented fourth Nelson Midsummer Bonspiel title Wednesday night as Hec Gervais of St. Albert, Alta., curled to a 10-6 victory in the draw that was billed as the "battle of giants."

Both Isaman and Gervais had won three previous titles—Gervais three years running, 1957, '58 and '59, and Isaman 1960, '61 and '64.

The win for Gervais gives him a berth in the fours Friday morning against Gerry MacKay of Brandon, Man., who earlier defeated Bob Gould of Moose Jaw 8-4.

Koehle goes against George Thomson of Regina, who gained his berth with an 8-4 decision over John MacEacheran of Calgary.

Gervais, the coolest man on the sheet, picked up two in the first end and didn't appear to be in trouble until the fifth.

The skip of the 1961 Scotch Cup rink led his foursome to two in the first and three more in the fifth after Isaman had counted for three in the third and one more in the fourth.

GERVAIS LEADS WAY

Gervais, seemingly undisturbed by his rink's showing in the fifth, allowed Isaman to tie the game when he missed completely on a chip and roll take-out attempt.

The sixth end proved to be disastrous for the Stettler foursome as a double take-out try failed, leaving Gervais' rock safely behind Isaman's guard.

Curling with his all-family rink of father Armand Gervais, brother-in-law Ed Grams and nephew Brian Grams, Gervais was the key to the quartet's win.

Isaman had laid one in the seventh when he successfully drew in behind his own guard to move to within one point of Gervais, who had counted two in the sixth.

Gervais appeared to be wide on his shot only to roll in after hitting Isaman's rock.

Cries of "What luck" and "What a way to go" arose from the capacity crowd gathered around the sheet, but Gervais seemed unfazed by it all.

The dramatic turn of events in the eighth end visibly affected Isaman's play as the St. Albert rink ended the game four up.

EXCITING MATCH

The Koehle - Thomson draw was decidedly the most exciting of the afternoon, with the Nelson rink's final rock determining the outcome.

Koehle was one up coming home with each rink lying two surrounded by an almost impregnable line of guards.

Stephen had rallied in the eighth and ninth ends to cut Koehle's lead to 7-6.

Skipping his all-Nelson rink of Terry Lewis and Don and Syl Benedetti, Koehle negotiated a perfect shot that eluded Isaman's line of defence and rolled in after a neat take-out to insure the victory.

NELSON TOPS WOMEN

Mary DeGirolamo and Vi Bush remained in contention for top honors in the Women's A Event with their victories Wednesday afternoon.

The DeGirolamo-skipped rink, winner of the title in 1950, 1955 and 1964, squeezed by Ethel Ervin of Calmar, Alta. 9-7 for the right to meet the Bush rink in the eights at noon today.

Sheila Cotton's rink from Kenville, Man., provided little competition for the Bush foursome as it rolled to an easy 9-4 win.

Last year's runner-up, Betty-Ann Evans of Rossland continued to repeat her 1964 performance, eliminating Jean McMillan of Salmo 8-5.

Myrt Fashoway of Cranbrook defeated another East Kootenaian, Isobel MacIntyre, also by a score of 8-5 to compete against the winner of the Sharon Harrington, Edmonton - Sheila Stack, North Vancouver match in the fours.

Vancouver's Fred Tinling, national senior's champion, remained alive in the B competition by defeating Waters' rink of Nelson 8-6.

Lloyd Rymal is the sole Nelson-skipped foursome to play for B event honors after trouncing Harry Joyce of Devon, Alta. 10-3 in a Wednesday morning draw.

In other draws of interest, Lil Herron of Nelson whipped Mrs. G. Ladouceur of Drayton Valley, Alta.; Fran Martinson narrowly defeated Bertha Daloise of Nelson 12-11 and Ken Gillrie of Olds, Alta., outpointed Bus Emerick of North Vancouver 8-2.

Mauch Favors Also-Rans For NL All-Star Squad

CINCINNATI (AP) — Gene Mauch, National League All-Star manager, departed from custom Wednesday and passed over three "second choices" as he picked nine players for the 1965 All-Star team.

The annual game betwen the All-Star teams of the National and American leagues will be played at Minnesota July 13. The starting line-ups, except for pitchers, were picked by a vote of players.

To augment the starters, Mauch, manager of Philadelphia Phils, picked catcher John Edwards of Cincinnati Reds; infielders Ed Kranepool of New York Mets, Cookie Rojas of the Phils, Leo Cardenas of the Reds and Ron Santo of Chicago Cubs; and outfielders John Callison of the Phils, Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh Pirates, Frank Robinson of the Reds and Billy Williams of the Cubs.

Generally in the past, the All-Star managers have picked players who finished second in the balloting for starting positions.

This year, however, Mauch passed over first baseman Gordie Coleman of the Reds, second baseman Frank Bolling of Milwaukee and outfielder Vada Pinson of the Reds.

MANAGER'S CHOICE

Kranepool, Rojas, Clemente and Robinson were picked over those three.

The selections left only the world champion St. Louis Cardinals and Houston Astros without a representative. Under All-star game rules every club must be represented by at least one player so at least one of the pitchers from each of those clubs will have to be named when the hurlers are selected Friday.

The starters will be Joe Torre of Milwaukee, catcher; Ernie Banks of Chicago, first base; Pete Rose of Cincinnati, second base; Maury Wills of Los Angeles, shortstop; Richie Allen of Philadelphia, third base; Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh, left field; Willie Mays of San Francisco, centre field and Henry Aaron of Milwaukee, right field.

Earlier, Mauch named managers Dick Sisler of Cincinnati ane Bobby Bragan of Milwaukee as coaches.

ACT Edges Lions 8-7

ACT edged Lions 8-7 Wednesday night to take a one game lead in the best of three Little League series.

Matheson was the winning pitcher, while Smith, relieved by Pickering, took the loss.

Platt paced the winners with a double and a single and Pickering and Gare were the big batters for the Lions.

Terry Severyn pitched Rotary to a 10-7 victory over Kinsmen in the other semi-final round.

Terry and his brother Mark paced the hitting parade with a triple and home run respectively.

Rotary meets Kinsmen Friday and Lions and ACT resume their series Saturday.

Lema Cards Six Birdies

SOUTHPORT, England (CP) Defending - champion Tony Lema of the United States needed only 29 putts to fashion a sparkling five-under-par 68 Wednesday that gave him a one-stroke lead at the end of the first round of the British Open golf championship.

Lema, known as Champagne Tony on the pro circuit because of his taste for the drink, fired six birdies in his sizzling round that set a course record for the reconstructed Royal Birkdale links in this English seaside town.

Ireland's Christy O'Connor was breathing down Lema's back with a 69, but the favorite, Jack Nicklaus, trailed by five strokes with a par 73. Nicklaus, the U.S. Masters champion, had a miserable time with his drives.

Another American, Arnold Palmer, two-time winner of the British Open, stayed in contention with a 70, sharing third place with Joe Carr, the Irish veteran who has been one of the leading amateurs since the Second World War. Then came Bruce Devlin, the tough Australian, with a 71.

Lema, Palmer and Nicklaus were the only U.S. players in a contingent of eight to break or equal par among the 22 players who did it. Fourteen players among the 130 starters smashed par while eight equalled it.

Coast Man Wins Shoot

CALGARY — A Vancouver man, Jack Wiley of Vancouver, is Canada's new trapshooting champion.

In a tense windup for the four-day Canadian Trapshooting championships, Wiley and Earl Duke of Kitchener, Ont., fought out a 125-target shoot-off, Wiley breaking 122 of the 125 birds. Duke broke 121.

Charles Phipps of Yakima, Wash., with 199, became the open champion. Mrs. Vera Holdsworth of Calgary retained the Canadian women's singles championship.

High over - all champion is Jimmy Couse of Vancouver, who broke 581 of a possible 600 targets. He also became all-round champion with 390 of 400.

Canadian junior champion Wayne Oliver of Ladner, B.C., captured the crown with 195 of 200 targets broken.

Fruitvale Juniors Blank Texans 6-0

Fruitvale's David Dorey pitched a one-hitter on Wednesday night to blank Nelson Texans 6-0.

Catcher Don Johnston collected the only safety —a single late in the game spoiling Dorey's bid for a shutout.

Jack Catenacci was tagged with the loss.

Brown led the Juniors at the plate with a home run, double and single.

West Kootenay Junior Baseball League action resumes Saturday when the Texans travel to meet the league-leading Junior Capilanos.

Canadian Marksman Wins Bisley Shooting Medal

By CARL MOLLINS

BISLEY, England (CP)—Sgt. Joe Daigle, a quiet Canadian soldier with a deadly eye on the rifle range, won the premier prize for military servicemen Wednesday at the annual Bisley shooting competition.

Daigle, 34, a member of the Royal 22nd Regiment, Valcartier, Que., took the Queen Mary Challenge Trophy and medal with a score of 362 out of 400 in the two - day, eight - part event.

The Queen Mary was Daigle's second win since the two-week shoot opened Monday. He won the Players Cup opening day with a perfect 50 on 10 shots from a sitting position at 200 yards. The Queen Mary tops the list of 12 prizes open to non-British as well as British servicemen.

ON THIRD TRIP

The calm, stocky marksman, a native of St. Carhes, Kent County, N.B, is on his third trip to Bisley with the Canadian army team. He won the Queen's medal in 1963 as best shot in the Canadian army. In the Van Doos' 3rd Battalion, an anti-bank unit, Daigle completed 13 years in the army next Tuesday.

Daigle missed first place by one point in the first stage of the Queen Mary Tuesday, scoring 179 out of 200 for second spot among about 500 entries from British and Commonwealth armed forces. The first stage eliminated all but the top 50 marksmen.

In the second stage Wednesday, Daigle improved to count 183 and take the prizes—a century-old trophy, a gold medal and £25 ($75).

Sgt. Hal O'Neil, 29, of Halifax, also on his third trip to Bisley with the army, finished fifth in the Queen Mary after placing third in the first stage.

REACH FINALS

Three other members of the 12 - man Canadian team—Trooper John Kabatoff, 24, of Calgary; Capt. Bill Molnar, 24, of Fort Macleod, Alta., and Sgt. Vince Kavanagh, 32, of Stittsville, Ont.—made the final 50.

All but two of the army team are members of the 1st Battalion, Black Watch of Canada, Camp Gagetown, N.B. Daigle and Kabatoff, a member of the Lord Strathcona's Horse, are the exceptions.

A Black Watch team of four—Molnar, O'Neil, Pete. Henry McKay, 24, of New Waterford, N.S., and Cpl. Al Connors, 41, of Woodstick, N.B. — finished third behind the Royal Air Force and the British Small Arms School Corps in competition for the Canada Challenge Shield, a trophy presented in

Hopes Snell Will Shoot Down Mile Mark Die as Runner Tires

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press ports Editor

A few months ago when Peter Snell set a world record of 3:54.1 for the mile, his coach Hal Lydiard said that was nothing. A 3:50 mile was within the grasp of the 26-year-old wonder boy from New Zealand.

Snell would do it this year because he was getting a little tired of galloping around the world's cinder paths picking up gold medals and world records. He would retire in 1966, write a book, tend to his business as public relations man for a tobacco company and let the world runners try to get under the magic 3:50 clocking.

Track experts were inclined to go along with Lydiard's prediction. Here was a chap who came out of nowhere to win the 800 metres at the 1960 Olympic Games in Rome, added two more firsts in the 880 yards and mile at the 1962 British Empire Games and soundly whipped the world in both the 800 and 1,500 metres at the Tokyo Olympics last October.

He was the undoubted king of the half-milers and milers and even after Michel Jazy of France lowered his mile mark to 3:53.6 in a June 9 race at Rennes, France, it was almost generally conceded that Snell would soon shoot that figure down in flames.

But will he?

HITS SLUMP

After six straight losses in Toronto, Vancouver, London, Dublin and elsewhere, people are having grave doubts about his ability to reach the heights once more. It is ironic that the great who had beaten the best with consummate ease.

Peter Snell

man who was shooting for a 3:50 mile a couple of months ago now is satisfied to break the four-minute mile.

He just managed it in his last two races—3:59.7 in London a week ago and 3:59.9 in Dublin last Monday.

"The mere act of breaking four minutes has satisfied me," he said after his Dublin race. He said his legs were going dead on him when he was running but "it is not a physical weakness so much as a muscular one."

Possibly his current letdown can be traced back to a sunny day in Tokyo last October. He had just won his second gold medal of the Olympics, an easy victory in the 1,500 metres, after a comparative breeze in the 800.

Surrounded by reporters, he said at the time that he'd give himself another year and then quit track. There were no more worlds to conquer for this big, barrel - chested black - haired

Now, some track buffs are saying he has bumped into a psychological barrier.

REST HELPS

"The more times a champion is beaten, the less chance he has of making a recovery," says Ken Twigg of Toronto, who has been in the track game for more than 10 years and brought Snell to the Toronto International meet last June 10.

"Usually, the cure isn't more races. It's a rest.

"His loss to Bill Crothers in the 880 at Toronto was the start of Snell's problem. That must have affected his confidence because he had beaten Crothers four times before and, when you analyze that race, you will note that Crothers out-kicked Snell in the final stages and no one had ever done that.

"I think he might come back with a couple of easy races.

"He has set himself up a pretty rough world tour and he is hitting athletes in an off-year. These guys are not building up for Olympic or British Empire Games, they're just going out nice and relaxed and the majority of them are running better than they've ever run before.

"Naturally, they all go out harder against Snell and, apparently, they've got his number.

"But you can't under-estimate this guy. One of these days he could just bust out and make a shambles of Jazy's record—but, first, he's got to overcome his psychological handicap."

Bypassed Larrupin' Latin Takes It Out On Pitchers

NEW YORK (AP)—Bypassed on the National League all-star team, Roberto Clement of Pittsburgh Pirates is going about getting his own kind of revenge. He is taking his wrath out on enemy pitchers.

The larrupin' Latin enjoyed a batting feast this past week, banging away at a .385 clip. This enabled him to climb from seventh to third among the leading hitters, just one point away from the league lead.

Clemente led the National League hitters in 1964 with a .339 average.

Richie Allen of the Philadelphia Phillies and Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants were tied for the league lead, through Monday's games, each at .336. Clemente boosted his average 10 points during the week to .335.

Other gainers were the Giants' Jesus Alou, Pittsburgh's Billy Virdon, Philadelphia's Cookie Rojas and Frank Robinson of the Cincinnati Reds.

GOT 10 HITS

Alou got 10 hits in 29 times at bat during the week to boost his average to .318 and jump from eighth to sixth. Virdon, Rojas and Robinson pushed their way into the top 10 for the first time. Virdon and Rojas were batting .311 and Robinson .303.

The biggest loser was Henry Aaron. The Milwaukee Braves slugger had only six hits in 34 times at bat. This not only trimmed his average from .351 to .328 but plummeted him from the top to fourth place.

Joe Torre, also of the Braves, lost a point but stayed in a fourth-place tie at .328. Donn Clendennon of Pittsburgh held his sixth-place position despite losing nine points to .318.

Boston's Carl Yastrzemski lost three points off his batting average during the week but retained his hold on first place in the American League. His .340 batting average was seven points higher than that of runner-up Vic Davalillo of the Cleveland Indians.

Felix Mantilla of the Red Sox climbed six points to a third place .319, two points ahead of Jimmy Hall of Minnesota Twins. Willie Horton, the league leader several weeks ago, continued his slide, falling to fifth after getting only five hits in 27 times at bat. He was batting .308, a drop of 17 points.

The biggest gainer was Rocky Colavito, who picked up 11 points to .301 and moved up from 10th to sixth. Leon Wagner of the Indians was seventh at an even .300. He was followed by Pete Ward of Chicago at .298, Brooks Robinson of Baltimore at .297 and Dick McAuliffe of the Tigers at .206.

Canadians Find Luck Needed

By CARL MOLLINS

BISLEY, England (CP)—Sgt. Joe Daigle of St. Charles, N.B., missed getting a Bisley Silver medal for his collection of marksmanship trophies because the shifting light on Century range outfoxed him.

Capt. Bill Molnar, Fort Macleod, Alta., lost an eight-guinea prize by a single point a few hours later because he failed to make enough allowance for a stiff wind blowing across the target butts.

The experience of the two Canadian Army sharpshooters reinforced the Bisley axiom that winners need a leavening of luck to go with top-level talent.

Every one of the 1,200 riflemen at the two-week annual Bisley shoot knows the axiom. But relatively few of them come close enough to the 150 first prizes to feel the knowledge dissolve into disappointment that luck has fled with a sudden change of light or an erratic wind.

Daigle, winner of the Queen's Medal as best shot of the Canadian Army in 1963, and Molnar, Queen's medallist last year, both have experienced Bisley's triumphs and disappointments before, Daigle twice and Molnar once.

HAD HIGH HOPES

Daigle, buoyed by a perfect 50 in winning the Players Cup for shooting from a sitting position, entered the first stage of the Queen Mary match with more reason than most to hope he would have the first-stage silver medal by nightfall Tuesday.

In the morning on the rough, gorse - covered Century range, Daigle scored 46 out of 50 with 10 shots at a target 500 yards away.

The left - shoulder shooter added 45 in the "fire with movement" section—firing two rounds from 500 yards, running 100 yards to fire another two shots, then another 100 yards for another two rounds, and twice again.

In the afternoon, as heavy black clouds released a brief shower of rain, he fired his 8.62-millimetre FN rifle at two four-foot paper figures of a charging soldier from 300 yards —five shots at one figure, then five at the other, all within 30 seconds. Six shots hit the rectangular bullseyes in the midriff of the figures and four bullets were just off, for a score of 46.

NEEDED 43 TO WIN

A score of 43 in the final section would make a total of 180, which should be enough to win the stage, old hands agreed. The final part called for snap-shooting 10 rounds from 300 yards at a target exposed for three seconds at a time, at irregular intervals, in different places on a front of six feet.

Daigle, 34, a member of the Royal 22nd Regiment, shot six bulls and four inners for 42. His total of 179 fell one point short of the winning score the experts had predicted.

Three hours later, Capt. Molnar of the Black Watch of Canada picked up his rifle and walked across camp to Century range.

Molnar, 28, was scheduled to shoot against two Royal Navy men and an RAF marksman at 7:15 p.m. to break a four-way tie for first place in the Kinnaird match. Monday, the four had each scored 34 out of 35 in the Kinnaird, a test of deliberate shooting from 300

KEPT WAITING

At 7:30, under darkening skies, British Army Bren guns were barking in competition along the 100-target length of Century range, as the Kinnaird four sat in the grass nearby.

Finally, after the nervous wait, they were ordered to line up opposition targets 64 to 67. Then, set to shoot, they had to pause again because the field telephone to target men in the trench under the sand butts broke down. The wind by now was blowing the black and yellow wind flags stiff from their poles.

At 7:45, the telephoned restored, the four were told to fire a single sighting shot. Molnar and the airman shot wild magpies, three-pointers. They readjusted their rifles for the three shots that counted.

Molnar didn't adjust enough for the twin, and his first shot was off-centre for a four-point inner. Then he shot two bullseyes. But the RAF man shot three bulls and won, 15 to Molnar's 14.

TOKYO (Reuters) — Japan's gold and foreign exchange reserves fell by $33,000,000 to $1,980,000,000 during June, the finance ministry announced Wednesday. But the actual decline was much smaller as the $33,000,000 included $25,000,000 put up in convertible yen to the International Monetary Fund as part of a loan supplied to Britain.

Deep Ramifications in Unity Cause Seen In Johnson Issue

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Roman Catholic and Episcopal (Anglican) Church representatives late last month had an unprecedented, mutual discussion of baptism. They found themselves in agreement.

But a furor has arisin on that same subject in connection with the rebaptism of Luci Johnson, formerly an Episcopalian, when she became a Roman Catholic.

The issue, in the view of church scholars, has deep ramifications for the ecumenical movement toward closer Christian unity.

Ever since Roman Catholicism stepped strongly into that movement, under impetus of the late Pope John XXIII, it has pointed to baptism of all Christians as the main basis for the work.

The theme has been emphasized by Augustin Cardinal Bea, head of the Vatican secretariat for Christian unity, in writings and lectures.

He, along with other Catholic leaders, has stressed that baptism of Christians — whatever their denomination—creates a fundamental, underlying tie among Protestant, Orthodox and Catholic.

MAKES SAME POINT

The Vatican council's historic decree of ecumenism, promulgated last December, makes the same point.

But the principle took a highly publicized shelving, in practice, at the rebaptism of the U.S. president's daughter.

Thats what the repercussions are about.

It develops, however, that the rite was carried out at her request, not at insistence of the church.

In Roman Catholic teaching, any baptism is valid so long as it is performed with the right intent of joining a person to Christ and with use of water and the scriptural words, "in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost."

So long as these conditions are met, the baptism is considered valid in whatever denomination it is performed, whether by a layman or clergyman, and whether by pouring, sprinkling or immersion.

Rebaptism or "conditional baptism" is done in case of doubt about the validity of the prior baptism.

In general practice, Roman Catholic parishes and some Protestant churches, including many Baptists, have commonly rebaptized new members.

For Roman Catholics, this has been mainly a case of being sure about the matter.

TOPIC OF MEETING

This was a chief topic of discussion late last month at the first official, theological talks between representatives of the Episcopal Church and the U.S. Catholic bishops' commission on ecumenical relations.

The conference, including eight Episcopal scholars led by Bishop Donald Hallock of Milwaukee and seven Catholics headed by Bishop Charles Helmsing of Kansas City-St. Joseph, Mo., took place in Washington, D.C.

The participants agred that the widespread practice of rebaptism or "conditional baptism" of Episcopalians received into the Roman Catholic Church does not conform with traditional Christian doctrine.

The Episcopalians agreed that confirmed Catholics received into the Episcopal Church should under no circumstances be reconfirmed or "conditionally confirmed" by Episcopal bishops.

In both cases, they agreed, the practices reflect on the authenticity of sacraments previously administered in the other church.

In a joint statement, the participants said they rejoiced in the new possibilities for jointly held services and common prayer, and "we encourage our people to take advantage of them."

The Luci Johnson situation brought out a less harmonious note. But the incident doesn't change the underlying accord on the matter.

Two Killed in Sequel To Pittsburgh Quarrel

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A policeman and civilian were killed and two other patrolmen were wounded Tuesday in a gun battle that climaxed an angry quarrel between a 25-year-old parolee and the family of his teen-aged girl friend.

Leroy Francis Scott was fatally shot early Tuesday from a tree in a dramatic ending to a nearly all-night massive police hunt.

Scott, who had a record of minor arrests, died in a volley of gunfire from two policemen just as he was raising his .22-calibre repeating revolver.

"We both saw him at the same time," said James Hintemeyer, 41. "I think I hit him with three shots."

Charles Schweinberg, 42, said he fired once.

They had spotted Scott in a tree on a wooded hillside where he had taken refuge after exchanging gunfire with three officers at the home of his girl friend's father, Aaron Godfrey, 59, in the city's Hazelwood section.

SHOOTING STARTED

As three other officers—Acting Police Lieut. Coleman McDonough, 52; Leo Mincin, 37, and Joseph Laffey, 32—came to the house gunfire broke out.

McDonough and Godfrey were killed and Mincin and Laffey wounded. Scott fled.

Coroner Joseph B. Dodds said an autopsy disclosed that Godfrey was killed by a .38-calibre bullet wound of the chest, indicating he was shot in the crossfire by a police officer.

Dobbs said McDonough's body contained two .22-calibre bullets. One was found in the officer's right shoulder and the other imbedded in his spine.

Police said Godfrey had told Scott to stay away from Godfrey's daughter Ruth, 16, saying that Scott had treated the girl roughly.

A quarrel developed and when Scott brandished the gun police were called.

Laffey was in critical condition in hospital, while Mincin, struck in the knee, was in satisfactory condition.

REJECT PICASSO'S CLAIM

PARIS (Reuters)—An appeal court has rejected painter Paulo Picasso's claim for seizure of a book about him by his former mistress, Francoise Gilot. The court, upholding the decision of another court last April, ruled Tuesday that Miss Gilot in her book My Life With Picasso had not sought to write scandal about the painter. She had simply described his life, it said.

Koolaree Echoes

Hello Folks, here we are back at Koolaree for the 1965 season with a run down of the first week's activities. Actually it's a little more than that when we think of those stout hearts that go out and meet the way freight and do other chores.

This year as in the past we are grateful to the men of the Rossland A.O.T.S. Club for their work on improved sanitary arrangements within the camp and the Fraternity boys who cut the wood.

Our advance party of Brian Jones, Stewart Donaldson, and Richard Bradshaw had things pretty well in hand for the arrival of the Leaders who appeared for the in-camp training session under the direction of Camp Chairman Jack Steed. Assisting in this was Mrs. Stevenson, Rev. Lloyd Hooper, Rev. Will Morrison and Fred Robins. Rev. Glen Betts, Kootenay Presbytery Camping Chairman, brought in the study books for the year. Deda Riley and Janet Vogelsang along with Monty Stevenson were on hand to look after the kitchen end of our program. And it wouldn't be a work party without Frank Crockett.

June 30th, and the thundering herd arrived. How those guys have grown in the past year, many of them could qualify for the lifeguards. Rev. Will Morrison, Camp Director, assisted by Ted Archibald and Fred Robins soon had them sorted out, or rather Mrs. Robins did, and they were located in Cabins four, five and six as follows:

Cabin 4: Little Chief Tommy Moen, Scribe Clint Ellison, Grant Albright, Fred Irvine, Mike Jackson, Don Richards, John Stevenson, and Robert Young.

Cabin 5: Little Chief Dave Barrett, Scribe John Colbert, Stewart Donaldson, Sandy Flemming, Robert Johnson, Don Smyth, Gerald Trippel, John Gleaves.

Cabin 6: Little Chief Keith Williamson, Scribe Don Ellison, Kent Brothers, David Hobbs, Brian Jones, Peter Somerville, David Thompson.

At the opening ceremonies, Rev. Will Morrison was robed and installed as the Chief of Camp and from there on led the boys through the chapel service, the cairn ceremony and the lighting of the great council fire.

Each table seems to have a problem. There are the six-footers Irvine, Barrett, Jackson, Jones. "Where do all the legs go, under the tables? Where does all the food go?" we swear these legs must be hollow, but then John Colbert comes along and destroys that theory, by out-eating these long guys.

What's doing around camp this year? Well Ted Archibald is master-minding the projects and has all the campers on a nature stint, gathering specimens of foliage and then blue printing them. When they aren't doing this they are working on the new bell tower, quite an impressive structure which will replace the old structure built some 15 years ago by Bob Vallance.

Fred went back to work for a day and returned to assist in many ways with camp fire, water sports and on the rifle range. John Gleaves turned in the best performance on the range and Chief Will ran Freddy pretty close with his target. Jack Steed visited the camp and ran the boys through an archery practice and shoot, these items will be used later in camp in a skills meet.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Work and Michael Berg were in camp for a weekend to assist Will and Ted. They organized the water sports with one or two new innovations, one being boat water polo, two men paddling and one with a broom to push the ball to the goal, being the piling. The team of Cabin five won this easily, their No. 1 crew of Barrett, Gleaves and Johnson scoring twice and their No. 2 team, Donaldson, Colbert and Flemming, scoring an additional goal to cinch the victory.

The object lesson in water safety was turned into a contest where each cabin had a team competing at the same time. A new camp record was set for upsetting the boat, bailing it out and getting it to shore. The team of Barrett, Gleave, Colbert, Donaldson and Flemming did it in four minutes, half the previous time.

There is a hospital in the camp which just isn't equipped to handle Don Ellison's sick jokes. Bob Young can get in your hair but came to camp so close cropped that it is impossible to get in his. If you want an argument see Albright, we aren't Albright. Don Smyth, fresh from a trip to Pine Point with his father, is full of interesting things to talk about.

If your son comes home with expressions like bashing his head on the parade square, or getting the sack, think nothing of it it's just the Irish influence of Rev. Will fresh from Ireland.

Rev. Mr. Will has introduced several innovations, chief among them a timetable change placing the chapel service just before the study groups. His theme talks are thought provoking and the boys are entering into the discussions much better in their groups.

This is a good camp and if this is the indication for the year the boys and girls to follow in their various camps are in for a real good time quite in keeping with the Koolaree standards.

Of 44 expeditions sponsored by Britain's Royal Geographical Society in 1965, 21 are to the Arctic.

Hints From Heloise

HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I'm a busy mother of several small children:

Two of my neighbors and I have a marvelous co-operative working.

We each have "kids' day" one day a week. On that day Nothing else is planned (except a Heloise "top clean" before 9 a.m.).

We have nursery school at our house for our own and two other neighbors' pre-schoolers.

In this way, our little ones receive guidance at the Beginning of their social development, learn to be away from mommy, and to play with other youngsters.

Too, they have the benefit and variety of a sizeable number of toys to enjoy. They are "visitors" some days, and have "guests" on other days.

On the moms' side: When there's nothing else on the agenda, it's a lot of fun. No fights! No cross moms!

Then, there are those FREE days each week.

Our wee ones are very happy children who aren't in trouble in our neighbors' yards when out playing, or running into danger's way!

And, mommy misses them when they are away, and welcomes them home with open arms, and they say "hello" with a big hug.

Isn't this wonderful? We don't really know how we got the idea, but we were blessed with it, so I just had to pass it along to you.

Anne Gillis.

* * *

And, bless you, Anne, for passing it along.

Heloise.

Dear Ladies:

Please, don't put anything that's marked "Fiberglass" (that's what you call fiberglass) in your washing machine to launder with any article of clothing.

This fabric is just what it claims to be — Glass!

You Cannot put an article of clothing (such as nurses' uniforms — that you write me about) in with this material and then wear it again. Heaven help you if you do.

This fiberglass breaks the same as a glass dropped on the floor, and those little glass fibers get into your washing machine and into clothing. When you put on the garment, the small glass fibers cause friction and trouble for you.

If this has happened to you, so that you have to see your doctor about it, be sure to tell him that you washed your clothing in the washer with something made from fiberglass.

Heloise.

Dear Heloise:

When sewing on buttons, especially on heavy material, I place a fine-toothed comb between the button and the material.

The needle goes between the teeth of the comb.

This is a good way to keep the thread equal for each stitch, and the buttons will not be sewn on too tightly.

Mrs. R. H. Bebhart.

Dear Heloise:

For tenters and campers who want to keep their mattresses dry when camping overnight:

Have them put plastic contour mattress covers on the Under side of their mattresses — never on top of them — as the moisture comes Up from the ground during the night!

Sure keeps the dampness out. Dry mattress every time.

Thomas Camper.

Indonesia Ousting The Twist

JAKARTA (Reuters) — The Indonesian government is intensifying efforts to stamp out what it calls "crazy Western dances" like the twist, rock 'n' roll, cha - cha - cha and boogie-woogie.

In their place, President Sukarno has introduced his own dance, called the lenso, with a slow rhythm aimed at making it an Indonesian dance for social gatherings.

The lenso somewhat resembles the blues. The dancers hold hands. If there is a group they form a circle around one person who chooses a partner.

A director of the state-owned Radio Republic Indonesia has announced that songs with twist or jazz rhythm, and electric guitars, are banned on the radio.

Persons dancing "wild" Western dances, whether in public or in private, are liable to a year's imprisonment here.

"Decent" dances, however, may be performed in police-licensed dancing schools, and in seven public places in the Indonesian capital.

Water Bombers Win First Round

VICTORIA (CP) — Water bombers have won the early rounds in the fight to save British Columbia's forest wealth from the ravages of fire this summer.

Although the fire hazard has been rated high to extreme in four of the five B.C. forest districts, there have been few major fires.

Forest Service personnel credit the 40 aircraft on contract to the service for the summer with keeping many fires minor and controlling them sufficiently to allow ground crews to clean up.

A Forest Service official said Tuesday night: "After such a long spell of really hot weather you'd expect one or two fires covering anywhere from 30,000 to 50,000 acres."

"We haven't had any of these, although we've had a few under 10,000 acres."

The aircraft are used mostly for water bombing. Some are used for fire spotting and "bird dogging," guiding a larger aircraft to a fire. Helicopters are used to take men to the fires.

It is the first time the service has relied so heavily on aircraft for fire protection.

In the last four days 119 fires have been started, but only two were considered serious.

These two were 5,000 and 8,000-acre blazes burning out of control in spruce timber in the Fort Nelson area north of Prince George despite efforts by nearly 200 men to contain them.

With the woods in an explosive condition, one company closed operations throwing an undetermined number of men out of work.

Most other logging camps are working early morning shifts to avoid the hot mid-day sun and thus reduce the fire hazard.

The weatherman has forecast continued hot, dry weather in all districts Wednesday except the Prince Rupert area where clouds have brought a few rain showers.

Khrushchev Favorites, Rocket Troops, Face New Discipline

By GEORGE SYVRTSN

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet rocket troops, once the apple of Nikita Khrushchev's eye, appear to have come on hard times since his downfall.

Soviet military publications for weeks have been criticizing them. Tuesday, amendments to the criminal code were published to tighten and enforce strict discipline in the rocket forces.

It is believed that the sudden loss of Khrushchev's patronage and support for the rocket forces may have touched off a squabble among top military men. Soviet rocketeers, mostly highly trained technicians, are reported to have irritated members of traditional troop units by flaunting their privileged status.

Shortly after Khrushchev's ouster last fall, the army newspaper Krasnaya Zvezda (Red Star) printed articles on the importance of teaching rocket troops to march in drill formation. It continued with barbed comments on their training and combat readiness.

CHANGE COMMANDER

The tactical rocket troops and artillery got a new commander —Marshal Konstantin Kazakov, 63. Until May, 1963, they had ben headed by Marshal Sergei Varentsov, a Khrushchev appointee who was fired for doing favors for Oleg Penkovsky. Penkovsky was executed for spying for Britain and the United States.

The strategic, long - range rocket units of Marshal Nikolai Krylov also received severe criticism, Krylov is another Khrushchev appointee.

Among the shortcomings that were charged:

—Rocket commanders paid too much attention to polishing their rockets and not enough to keeping them in working order.

—Second - rate officers were assigned to key jobs.

—Electronic computing equipment was misused.

—Slipshod training methods permitted targets to slip through anti-aircraft and anti-missile defences.

The criminal code amendments appear to be the answer to Red Star's demand for tougher discipline and severe punishment for mistakes. The new law broadened the application of an article on violations in units charged with defending Russia against surprise attack.

The Soviet Communist party seems to be taking a bystander's attitude. The party leadership earlier this year made clear that it would not intrude on the professional soldiers' conduct of purely military affairs.

First Secretary Leonid Brezhnev reaffirmed the party's neutrality in a speech last week to the graduating class of the Soviet Military Academy.

At the same time, he seemed to be giving the rocket men a nod of encouragement by expressing satisfaction with the rocket defences.

Cop To Rescue

ALPENA, Mich. (AP) — Twelve-year-old Neal Hawley called state police when he couldn't handle some problems of babysitting with a nine-month-old child at a home near Alpena Tuesday.

To the rescue came Trooper John Houchlei. He changed the wet diapers and rocked the baby to sleep.

IN MEMORIAM
RICHARDSON — In loving memory of our dear husband, father, and brother, Clarence Robert Richardson, who passed away July 8, 1964:

God saw the road was getting rough
And hills were hard to climb
So He closed your weary eyelids
And whispered "Peace Be Thine".

Sadly missed by the Richardson Families
