MAN FOUND SLAIN

BURNING, LOOTING AS NEGROES RIOT

National Guard Called To Los Angeles South Side

LOS ANGELES AP — California national guardsmen with orders to use tear gas and bayonets if necessary were ordered into the city's Negro district Friday night as rioting spread over an area of several square miles.

Lt.-Gen. Roderick Hill, California adjutant general, told reporters the 1,100 troops have ammunition and will fire if they have to but "we hope to avoid hurting anyone."

He said five battalions including more than 2,000 men, were called up for riot duty but almost half are being held in reserve.

Fireo fficials estimated a loss of $10,000,000 from blazes in the strife-torn south side, where street mobs stoned fire units attempting to reach blazes.

MAN RESCUED

A police ambulance driver resuced a man shot in the head and a woman shot in the back at the intersection of 88th and Broadway.

Other groups, from small gangs to packs of 100 or more, gathered in other areas, climaxing day-long rioting with scores of structural fires and hundreds of lootings.

Officers said before calling in the guard they were helpless to control the situation without heavy reinforcements.

The Watts area, where the rioting began Wednesday night when a white officer arrested a Negro on drunken driving charges, was no man's land most of the day for whites. During the day rioting radiated outward to other Negro districts.

A spokesman said national guard tanks were available but had not been altered for duty.

Police said 34 officers and a fireman had been injured in the past 24 hours and 75 citizens hurt.

More than 150 Negroes had been jailed for looting, rioting and burning.

STORE ON FIRE

A Negro reporter, talking to the Associated Press by telephone from the intersection of Central and Avalon, said a Safeway store was half consumed by flames and a liquor store across the street was afire.

He said he asked members of a group of 100 youngsters why they were running wild. They gave such answers, he said, as: "We're tired and we're boiling over.

"The weather's hot. If it never had been hot, this never would have happened."

WHERE THE BODY WAS FOUND

CORPORAL K. W. McKAY AND KLIA

RCMP Dog Leads Searchers To Body Near Cottonwood Lake

The finding of the battered and badly decomposed body of an area prospector in dense bush near Cottonwood Lake early Friday by an RCMP tracker dog ended the mystery surrounding the disappearance of John Henry Evans Ebert of Leduc, Alberta, who was last seen in Nelson on July 12.

Ebert had been the subject of an intensive search by a five-man squad of RCMP officers who had ranged through area bushlands on foot, by motor scooter, and in four-wheel drive vehicles for the past five days.

In an all-out effort to find the missing man, the Nelson Detachment RCMP on Thursday brought in dogmaster Corporal Ken Mckay and his dog Klia.

Corporal Mckay and Klia began their search south of Cottonwood Lake at 8 a.m. Friday morning, and Ebert's body, with the head badly battered, was found in dense bush about a mile from the lake shortly after 9 a.m.

Ebert was found on a claim site owned by Peter Vrkljan, 72, who was found dead, from carbon monoxide poisoning, in his car in an abandoned garage near his Nelson home on August 6.

RCMP said Friday afternoon that the search for Ebert was launched after Vrkljan's body was found. Police said the two men had been prospecting together in the past.

NOTE IN POLISH

Police said that a note, written in Polish, had been found near Vrkljan's body.

An RCMP spokesman said that the deaths of the two men appeared to be inter-related, and that the same inquest would investigate both deaths.

A coroner's jury hearing evidence in the death of Vrkljan had been adjourned sine die (without date for resumption being set). It was recalled Friday evening and taken to view the body of Ebert at a local funeral home and again adjourned sine die.

Police said that when the inquest resumes it will hear evidence pertaining to both deaths.

Police described Ebert's death as being due to "multiple head wounds."

Corporal Mckay described the search for the Daily News.

"We started searching about a half mile south of Cottonwood Lake. Klia was ranging on both sides of the railroad tracks," he said.

"The bush was very dense, and in places, very difficult to move through.

"About a quarter-mile off the highway, and some distance closer to the lake, Klia began to bark and I knew he had found something."

Corporal Mckay said that Ebert's body was lying in dense bush on the hillside at the bottom of a mountain. "It was not actually hidden," he said, "but was very difficult to see."

The intensive RCMP search for Ebert had ranged throughout most of the area. In addition to searching the area where the body was found, police searchers had ranged through much of the area north of Nelson, and had concentrated for a time in the Winlaw area.

PGE Not Worried by New Rail Line

EDMONTON TCP) — British Columbia's Pacific Great Eastern Railway isn't worried about losing business to Alberta's new resources railroad, Einar Gunderson, PGE executive vice-president, said Thursday.

Booming northern British Columbia has enough business to keep the PGE busy, Mr. Gunderson said in an interview.

The former B.C. finance minister was in Edmonton on what he described "a personal business trip."

Mr. Gunderson is financial advisor to Premier Bennett, executive director of B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, a member of the British Columbia Ferry Authority and provisional director of the proposed Bank of B.C.

Alberta Premier E. C. Manning announced during the spring sitting of the legislature that his government plans to finance construction of a railway north from Hinton, Alta., to existing rail lines from northwest Alberta at Grande Prairie.

BCHA Urges More Training Services

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Hospitals Association has renewed its call that the provincial government provide more training for hospital nurses and technicians.

Association president Frank Laird and executive secretary J. D. Bradford met with Health Minister Martin to press for better teaching facilities.

"Shortages are not limited to nurses," Bradford said in an interview Friday. "X-ray technicians and laboratory technicians are also in short supply.

"The association has advocated the addition of at least one more training school for nurses at any one of the province's 90 hospitals. We have also emphasized to the B.C. institute of Technology the need for a supply of technicians."

"The long-term outlook for hospital staffing is one that concerns hospitals in most of the province," he said.

TROUBLE BREWING SAYS IWA

VANCOUVER (CP) — The head of the Vancouver local of the International Woodworkers of America (CLC) said Friday serious trouble is brewing in the B.C. forest industry because of new work methods.

Syd Thompson, president of local 1-217, said the IWA is deply disturbed about the attitude of major forest companies on the problem.

"Due to the constant introduction of new machinery and work change methods, many employees are loaded with additional responsibilities and work loads without receiving additional financial remuneration," he said in a statement.

"IWA members on the job are becoming frustrated and rebellious, demanding solutions to their many problems."

He said negotiations aimed at working out solutions are bogged down at present and he accused the bargaining agent for the companies, Forest Industrial Relations, of "stalling."

"Serious trouble is anticipated unless a more constructive attitude from Forest Industrial Relations and the larger companies in the industry is forthcoming," Thompson said.

Two Copper Smelters Slated For B.C.

VICTORIA (CP) — Two new copper smelters were predicted for British Columbia by Mines Minister Brothers Thursday.

One would be near Stewart in the northwestern part of the province he said. Japanese interests developing copper properties have announced intention to have a smelter.

The other would be some place in southern B.C., he said. Mr. Brothers did not identify a location.

The mines minister said mining development is reaching the stage where processing of concentrates must become an integral part of any agreement to export raw materials abroad.

Hydro Calls Two Tenders at Arrow

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Hydro and Power Authority announced Friday it has called tenders on a contract to provide equipment to remove log bundles from the Columbia River at the Arrow damsite during construction of the dam five miles upstream from Castlegar.

The contract calls for two loading-out units for removing log bundles from the river upstream from the damsite and two similar loading-in units for returning the logs to the river downstream of the construction area after transport on a mile-long haul road built on the south bank of the river.

The log bundles, destined for Celgar Ltd.'s pulp mill just below the damsite, now are towed to the mill by tugs. When the dam is completed in 1969 the log bundles will pass through a concrete navigation lock to be built near the centre of the dam.

Hydro also announced it has called tenders for clearing two sections of land adjacent to Lower Arrow Lake that will be flooded when the reservoir is filled following construction of the dam. One area is approximately 465 acres and the other 395 acres.

New Scale of Royalties For Trappers

VICTORIA (CP) —Trappers will pay more for the privilege of taking B.C. mink, otter, beaver and wolverine under a new scale of royalties set by the provincial government.

The charges, which a fish and game branch spokesman said bring B.C. royalties into line with those in other provinces, were approved by order-in-council Friday.

The new charge for otter is $1.25 a pelt, up from 75 cents, while the wolverine royalty is 75 cents instead of 25. Increases to 75 from 50 cents are provided for mink and beaver.

On the other hand, the royalty for fox pelts was cut to 25 cents from 50.

Namu Reported In Good Spirits

SEATTLE (AP)—A scientist reports that the four-ton killer whale, Namu, is in excellent voice and spirits after nearly seven weeks in captivity.

"He talked very nicely," Dr. Thomas C. Poulter said. "If he were frustrated by captivity, he would have been dead long before now. Few animals like restraint less than killer whales."

Namu was captured in a fisherman's net at Namu, B.C., June 23 and towed to Seattle in a makeshift pen, in which he is on display at a waterfront aquarium.

Injured Prospector Gets Aid for Trapped Friend

STEWART (CP)—A 34-year-old prospector told Friday of his escape — despite a broken arm — from a glacier's death trap to summon aid for his trapped and injured companion.

Julian Perkosha, of Stewart, and 42-year-old mining executive Patrick Hughes, of Dublin are recovering in hospital after a near-fatal exploration trip in northwestern British Columbia.

Perkosha said they were returning from mineral explorations on nearby Bromley Glacier when Hughes slipped.

Perkosha said he grabbed at him, but couldn't hold him, and they slid together down an icy slope and fell into a narrowing crevasse.

They lodged 10 feet down, both with broken left arms, cuts and bruises. Perkosha also twisted his knee.

"I knew we had less than two hours to live in that crevasse," Perkosha said in a *telephone interview from Ste*wart, 550 miles northwest of Vancouver. "When you're wedged in, the ice cools your body off fast — it's a straight exposure problem."

He said he used a rock, picked up for a mineral sample, to chip handholds in the slick walls of the crevasse. It took him an hour to climb out, and he said he thought several times he was going to pass out.

But despite the pain, he never feared he wouldn't make it.

"You just never think of that," he said.

He walked half a mile to a mining camp and returned with men to rescue Hughes, who was wedged too firmly to move in the frozen chasm.

Perkosha said Hughes had told him to notify his family in Dublin in case he died before help arrived.

Hughes is president of Northgate Mining, which operates in Ireland and Canada. Perkosha, employed by Alrae Explorations of Vancouver, was showing him around a potential gold and molybdenum mining property.

Expects 25,000 To Lose Driver Licences in '65

VICTORIA (CP) — Attorney-General Bonner has predicted a record 25,000 British Columbia drivers will lose their licences this year.

Mr. Bonner said in a statement that the government has been waging a quiet but intensified campaign against poor drivers.

"Fortunately, this official campaign has been re-inforced by a press outcry of recent weeks," he said.

"It is hoped that the combined impact of the official program and press publicity will help bring the motoring public back to their senses."

FAIR RECORD SET

DAWSON CREEK (CP)—The Dawson Creek fall fair recorded the largest opening day crowd *in its 15-year-history. Paid ad*missions totalled more than 6,000, nearly double that of other opening days.

Flood of Grain To Get Moving

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Prairies are bracing for a flood of grain movements East and West as the Vancouver terminal strike winds to its bitter end.

While contracts were being prepared for signatures in hope of getting Vancouver grain-handlers back to work Monday, there were these developments:

1. The Canadian Wheat Board Friday took steps to get grain moving from farms to country elevators as fast as the railways can clear it out;
2. Elevator company chiefs complained they had been forced into an economically unjustifiable settlement at Vancouver and indicated farmers will pay for it in the long run.

Acrimony or not, there appeared little doubt this weekend would see the finish of a grain-handling tie-up that began early in June at one Vancouver terminal and dried up the busy port by mid-July.

With the port humming again, mammoth tasks remain to the West's transport and agriculture industries.

TARGET SET

Some 222,000,000 bushels of wheat must be put into export positions under new sales contracts to the Soviet Union announced in the last two weeks. The $450,000,000 cash deal calls for delivery by next July, with 27,000,000 bushels going through the West Coast. Including other sales commitments, Trade Minister Sharp has set an export target of a record 600,000,000 bushels for the current crop yea that began Aug. 1.

High Hemline Draws Gasps

VANCOUVER (CP) — Enthusiasm ran high here when a 22-year-old reporter modelled the new London thigh-high hemline on downtown streets.

So high, in fact, that red-haired Pat Horrobin remarked "I've felt more dressed in a bikini," as she lowered the hemline to its usual place.

"All those ogling eyes are a little unnerving," she said.

Pat hiked her hemline six inches above the knee and went for a stroll to test Vancouverites' reaction to the latest fashion.

It was a chorus of wolf whistles, gasps of disapproval from elderly women, and a bump as an American sailor walked head-on into a lamp standard.

World News Briefly

SAIGON (AP) — United States marines counted one Viet Cong guerrilla killed and about 20 captured Friday from a moonlight operation they called the first large-scale night assault by helicopter in history.

Though results were moderate, marine officers said adoption of the night-assault technique might effectively counter the Viet Cong's use of hilltop observation posts to keep guerrilla detachments informed about daylight movements of American and South Vietnamese combat troops.

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Russia's decision to spend scarce dollar reserves on big grain purchases in the West could have far-reaching economic and political repercussions, Western experts said Friday.

Western businessmen were gloomy about the prospects for big orders from Russian industry this year.

NEW DELHI (AP) — New fighting broke out early Friday in the capital of the Indian-controlled part of Kashmir.

The Indian government radio here said infiltrators from Pakistan attacked the police barracks in Srinagar at 1:30 a.m. and that firing in the city's outskirts was still continuing at 8 a.m.

But "the situation is in hand," the broadcast added.

Hospital Plans Blacktopping

Blacktopping of Kootenay Lake General Hospital's boiler room service yard will be the beginning of a long-term program to alleviate parking congestion for visitors, as well as to provide separate space for staff and commercial visitors plus improved access for pedestrians from the North side of the property from Gyro Park.

Paving of the boiler room area was chosen as the initial step to prevent dust contamination of electronic controls in the mechanical plant and to provide some staff parking off the main lot. A local contractor is doing the work which is estimated to cost $1788.

Reporting to the board of directors in the absence of regular chairman, L. N. Renwick, G. J. Stewart said: "We hope eventually to provide a second paved parking lot in the area on the hospital side overlooking Gyro Pool." He added that plans will also include a sidewalk and steps from the park road sidewalks.

Gas lines in the area concerned have been re-located preparatory to paving work, and the sprinkler system was also extended at the same time. All new lines were recorded on plans for future reference.

The move was approved by the Hospital Insurance Service Division in a letter which read in part: "Hospitals must recognize the growing emphasis on health services and that the need for hospital parking on hospital sites is going to continue to grow."

Renewal of the boiler room yard is part of a four-stage program which came about during financial program planning for hospital construction, conducted by administrative officers.

Trail Chamber Invites Lesage

TRAIL (CP) — The Trail Chamber of Commerce has invited Quebec Premier Jean Lesage to visit the Kootenay.

The chamber's invitation has the support of Mayor Joe Palyga and would take place during the premier's visit to British Columbia this fall.

President Bruce Winsby, in a letter to the premier, points out that the citizens of Trail are extremely proud of "what we have to offer in the Interior of B.C."

Friday Program Ends Tot Lot

The Civic Centre's "Tot-Lot" playground program ended with a colorful Western "bang," about 2:00 p.m. Friday when swarms of city children descended on Lakeside Park garbed in levi, six-guns and teetpee togs.

Chuck wagon races, calf-roping, lassoing contests and display competitions provided the western-type flavor to the special festivities to commemorate the termination of the summer playground program located at Rosemont and Junior High Schools, as well as Gyro Park and Uphill Playground.

864 Positive TB Reactors Re-Tested by Mobile Clinic

Four-hundred and forty-four TB positive reactors were re-tested Thursday by the Selkirk Health Unit's mobile "doorstep" clinic which is being conducted in the city for a three-day period. Friday saw 420 re-examined.

Positive reactor is the term used to designate persons who have been infected by a TB carrier, but do not necessarily possess an active case of the disease.

J. D. Pugh, in charge of the clinic, told the Daily News that "anyone" can be infected by a TB germ, and that the term, positive reactor, does not attach any stigma to the person involved. He urges all positive reactors in Nelson and district to take advantage of the free TB check-up so that spread of the disease can be effectively curbed.

Today, the clinic will be open from 10:00 a.m., to 12 noon, and from 1:00 to 5:00 p.m.

Location is the parking lot of a local supermarket.

Next stop for the clinic, which has already visited Kaslo and Salmo, will be Riondel. All positive reactors in the area are urged to take advantage of the clinic in the interests of good community health.

Truck Crash Victim Dies

Mike Bedinoff Succumbs To Injuries at Creston

TRAIL — A 60-year-old man who spent two hours trapped in the cab of a truck which crashed on the Salmo-Creston Highway Thursday died in Creston Hospital 4 a.m. Friday.

Mike Bedinoff, a loader travelling with the driver of the three-ton truck, was pinned when it crashed off the road.

Driver Arie Keus, 36, was attempting to steer the truck up a run-off after the speed increased as the runaway truck travelled down a long hill.

The driver's two sons, also in the crash, escaped uninjured.

Keus is in good condition in hospital.

An inquest has been called in Creston.

Potash Making Saskatchewan

An ingredient found in ore with the ignoble but invaluable chemical character necessary in the making of fertilizer will overtake and replace wheat as the major industry in Saskatchewan by the year 1980, Rotarians were told at their luncheon meeting Friday.

By 1975 this white fleck embedded contrastingly in a red raw rock will bring that province a total revenue of between $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 yearly and become the second money-producing business second to oil.

Almost as valuable as gold, and easier to mine and process, this common fertilizer base is called potash and enough of the stuff exists in Saskatchewan to supply world demand for the next seven or eight thousand years.

"We used to be known as the poor province," said guest speaker T. R. Alexander, Canadian Pacific Railway superintendent at Saskatoon, "but now I think we're coming out of the woods."

Approaching his address from the standpoint of a knowledgeable observer and not as a "technical expert," Mr. Alexander with a deep and enlightening command of his subject said potash would transform Saskatchewan from a "have-not" to "a have" province.

MINE HISTORY

Using statistics with a liberal verbal hand, the speaker traced the discovery of a huge strata of potash ore in the Saskatoon area in 1942 andi ts subsequent development in the 1950's through to the present time in terms of dollar value to the province and economic significance in world markets.

He told the gathering that prior to 1942, Europe was the major source of world supply of the chemical with a 60 per cent output. Twenty per cent of the fertilizer base then came from a deposit in New Mexico, with Russia contributing 10 per cent to world markets.

Located some 2500 feet underground, the potash bed stretches five miles north of Saskatoon, and five miles north of Yorkton and extends as far as the United States border. Another deposit near Regina is between 5000 and 7000 feet underground. This presented a problem, since 3000 feet is considered maximum for mining. Conversely, the potash strata in the Saskatoon region is found at no greater depth than 12 feet and contains "no impurities" other than the ore which imprisons it. The 20-mile mine area was capable, added Mr. Alexander, of supplying world demand for the next 700 to 800 years.

16 MILLION TONS

Production-wise, the mine is expected to produce a total of 16,000,000 tons of ore a year (30 to 35 per cent of which is potash) and, with the increased demand for the chemical, "we in Saskatchewan are sitting in a pretty fair spot," the speaker emphasized.

With advent of other potash mine operations in the province, total capacity is expected to reach 10,000,000 tons a year, representing a revenue of between $60,000,000 and $65,000,000 from each mine. Multiplied eight times the speaker stressed, this is "a lot of money coming into the country."

By 1975, production of potash in the province is expected to reach between 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 tons a year which would take both major railroads a total of 200,000 ore cars to move.

"This is a startling figure," Mr. Alexander observed. Just the freight alone would amount to $10 per ton, which means a freight bill of approximately $100,000,000 annually. Only 10 per cent of this figure is presently handled as freight by both lines, the speaker said.

With an employment potential of 500 workers in the construction stage, each mine would ultimately need a working force of from 300 to 400 people in the production phase, with a payroll of between $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 a year.

The economic import of this, reminded the speaker, would "reverse" the dollar flow in world potash markets, with resultant boom to Canada as a whole.

Sheep Creek Mines Profit $180,339

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sheep Creek Mines Ltd., Friday reported a net profit of $180,339 for the financial year ending May 31, 1965. The figure compared with $223,630 in the 1963-64 financial year.

During the year Sheep Creek agreed to provide financing to the extent of $850,000 up to 1968 to Cowichan Copper Co., Ltd., to enable that company to rehabilitate its mines and recommence production. In return Sheep Creek will receive 200,000 shares of Cowichan stock and certain options for a further 600,000 shares which may be exercised in the next three years.

The director's report said that the drop in tonnage milled during the financial year was due mainly to problems associated with a "declining ore reserve, smaller ore bodies, pillar removals, scattered working places and increased dilution."

The report said production was further hampered by a shortage of labor in the latter part of the year.

A unique haven for children who are different embraces the green lawn of the Archibald estate in Creston to become an integral part of a complex which exists solely for the benefit of retarded children. In its final state it will be a haven for the retarded of all ages.

Presently encompassing youngsters from the chronological age of six to 18 with mental ages of varying degrees, the Dr. Endicott Home is the product of the imagination of Dr. W. J. Endicott of Trail, who conceived the idea of a home for the retarded nearly 15 years ago. The idea was taken up by the Kootenay Society for Handicapped Children and carried to completion in May of this year.

The landscaped grounds and gracious atmosphere of the former D. K. Archibald estate, which comprises 40 acres, have absorbed the new building for retarded children which will house a capacity of 30.

The stained wood and blue panelled building has been designed to snug into the surroundings of big trees, green lawns and gardens. From these easy access leads right onto the main floor from the direction of the house, which the Sisters of Our Lady of the Cross occupy during the hours they are not on duty at the Home.

Future plans envisage gardens to support the home on the agricultural section of the Archibald estate which the society presently leases as an extra means of revenue. Dwarf fruit trees have been newly planted near the entrance gate to provide fruit for the home, possibly even for the market, and to provide practical agricultural activity for those children who can be taught to assist in caring for them.

WORKSHOP GOAL

A "sheltered workshop" is the final goal of the KSHC at the Dr. Endicott Home. Admission is screened to accept those children who are thought to have a potential for learning even the simplest tasks.

"We accept educable retardeds from the age of 6 to under 18 in this first unit of a complex that will eventually cater to a whole age range of retarded people of the province," said R. H. Vogel of Creston Wednesday. Mr. Vogel is president of the board of governors of the Dr. Endicott Home. Various Kootenay communities have local KSHC units. The board of governors was formed with a view to building the custodial home in the Kootenays in 1952. The board has representatives from each of eight areas of the Kootenays.

$92,000 RAISED

The capital drive began in 1963 in the Kootenays, prior to which time $30,000 had been raised by the society. Through the capital fund drive, $92,000 was raised, including $50,000 from the provincial government and $10,000 from the CM&S Company. The remainder was received from many people, companies, communities and organizations from as far away as Quebec City and California.

Construction of the school started last winter. The building was opened in May of this year.

A board of management was formed comprising a chairman, and vice-chairman who are members of the society, a representative of the department of public health, one from the department of welfare and the administrator of the school, Sister Mary Joseph.

It is planned to operate the home on a "sheltered workshop" basis, with products turned out by the retarded residents bringing them in cash returns. The older groups will go into agriculture. "We'll never be an effective force in the manual labor area, but we will be a force," says the board of governor chairman.

REPETITIVE TASKS

Speaking of the capabilities of the children, Mr. Vogel said "Their skills in terms of effectiveness is restricted to repetitive manual tasks. We hope to make them useful and productive."

A big step in making the home successful is its acceptance by the children who are resident there. They are housed in airy, brightly colored rooms of modern design with attractively patterned curtains at the windows.

The twin-bedded sleeping quarters are pleasant with large window space and dressing tables. Stuffed toys are placed in each bedroom. Each room is open to the hall with partly glassed walls, open at the top also. Classrooms in the girls' section and the boys' section contain large black boards, budgies in cages, record players which are favorite entertainment for the children, desks and seats casually arranged, many story books, learning aids and some fine handiwork made by the children on simple weaving frames.

Each classroom-bedroom wing opens to the main wing which contains the dining room and kitchen, the latter open to both the dining area and bright with daylight coming through a windowed area which leads right out onto the lawn. Boys are housed in one side and girls on the other. Presently, most of the regular residents have gone home for the holidays, as the home is run as closely to the school year as possible. Summer residents are enjoying the bright, attractive, homey surroundings at present. The institutinal atmosphere is lacking here by design. The color on the walls, a pale yellow, is combined with a turquoise shade to present a happy combination. This color scheme was the happy inspiration of the painter. The pleasant atmosphere is controlled by cooling and heating units in the basement.

The staff, including the sisters who are under contract to teach and administer the home, the caretaker, the landscaper, and all employees are intensely interested in the welfare of the children. "You can't work around here without getting interested," said Graham Brown, who looks after a myriad matters concerned with the grounds.

NON-SECTARIAN

The home is completely non-religious, completely community-sponsored and completely non-sectarian. The sisters are of an order which specializes in the type of work required with the retarded and administer the home for a two-year program which is within the control of the community which has sponsored it.

Each family served by the home makes a contribution to the extent of its ability to pay. The balance of the expense of housing and teaching each resident is granted by his community and a provincial government per diem grant of two dollars per child. This latter grant, recently instituted, is retroactive to opening of the school and has put the home in a firmer financial position. The government grant was made unaccompanied by any demands for reciprocal control.

Volunteer labor and donations have contributed largely to the realization of the Dr. Endicott Home.

30 IN FALL

Plans are for a full attendance of 30 this Fall. The society is trying to provide facilities in the Kootenays for custodial care of the whole range of retarded people. And when they can't accept the applicants at the Dr. Endicott Home the society will try to make accommodation available for them at Woodlands School.

With plans for the future taking shape, a contract was let this week for a third classroom in the large, clean basement area, and a playground is being laid out below the Archibald residence, which will comprise a wading pool, sand area, play equipment and a drinking fountain.

ARM RESTORED

DENVER (AP)—Three-year-old Tina Gracia went home Wednesday, exactly four months after she lost her left arm in a train-automobile accident.

The tiny arm has been restored to Tina's little body, but surgeons said months may pass before it is known whether the operation was successful.

The restored arm has a pink color, showing good circulation, and the pulse is good, a Colorado General Hospital doctor said.

But it is the regeneration of nerves that will tell whether Tina will have normal use of the arm.

Wheat Sale

The immediate economic outlook for Canada in general and Western Canada in particular has been brightened tremendously by the announcement yesterday of another massive wheat sale to Soviet Russia.

Not only are Prairie farmers assured of a market for what promises to be a bumper crop, but the varius agencies required to handle this bulk commodity are assured of a busy year ahead of them.

Such an enormous cash sale, valued in the neighborhood of half a billion dollars, including previous Russian commitments, cannot help but have an impressive and favorable influence on the whole national economy.

It is a stroke of good fortune which comes about as a result of Russia's bad fortune in recording another inadequate crop of its own this season. It cannot be assumed that Russia, or another good customer which also happens to be a Communist state, Red China, will be large-scale purchasers of our wheat every year. But this in no way diminishes the immediate benefits which Canada, in a period of good crop years, obtains from these sales.

A Soviet officia has pointed out that Canada's small-scale purchases from Russia tend to make these trade deals remarkably one-sided. The fact is, of course, need rather than the ordinary desire to echange goods has dictated the wheat purchases, and an equally important fact is that Russia does not appear to have many of the kinds of items for sale which Canada wants. Furthermore, Canada is a small consumer, while Russia is a giant by comparison.

It is most essential, as Hon. Mitchell Sharp, federal minister of trade, pointed out when the deal was announced, that producers, elevator companies, grain handlers, longshoremen and shipping companies co-operate to the fullest in moving the export wheat smoothly and efficiently. The strike picture in major grain ports has not been a reassuring one. The nation will suffer serious damage if disruptions in crop handling are precipitated or tolerated.

It is a trifle soon too, it must be noted, to count on a current crop of top quality wheat. At the moment, the crop prospect is excellent, but weather still remains a factor in this unpredictable country. While there is a substantial carry-over of grain from last year it is no more than what is ordinarily considered necessary.

Some people may attempt to read political advantages into this impressive wheat sale, but a moment's reflection makes clear that it really shouldn't be invested with any. It's purely a matter of fortuitous circumstances temporarily at work for Canada of which the wheat board naturally is taking advantage.

Different Basis?

Premier Bennett indicates he has entirely dropped the idea of using the new federal constituency boundaries in provincial elections. Early in the year, it will be recalled, he thought of taking advantage of the redistribution at the national level by adopting the revised map with only one difference — the creation of an extra riding in the north — and with each district electing two members to the Legislative Assembly.

Now, however, having weighed the results of the work of the impartial, non-political federal boundaries commission headed by Mr. Justice Harold W. McInnes, he finds the altered districts "completely unrealistic on a provincial basis."

This description would seem to allow that the redistribution was realistic enough on a federal basis, and it is not exactly easy to see that in the allocation of voting power there should be a great deal of difference in the two fields. The ideal of representation by population, tempered by the need to make allowance for the problems of communication in the large and sparsely settled ridings, is the same in both.

Be that as it may, the premier's change of mind raises two important questions.

The first is, how much longer is British Columbia going to wait for a redrawing of its far outdated provincial electoral map, which for example gives Delta and Dewdney ratios of 38,000 voters to one MLA, while five of the province's 42 constituencies have fewer than 4,000 registered voters each?

Mr. Bennett says that problem is "under the active consideration of the whole cabinet." But it has been reported under consideration, with varying degrees of urgency and attention according to the standard governmental scale, for years. Are we to go through the next election, too, without putting representation right?

And the second: Is British Columbia going to have a redistribution at least modelled on that which the premier now disdains—a rearrangement of boundaries by a commission independent of politics, free of partisan influence and concerned not with election results and party organization but only with an equitable division of representation in the legislature, according mostly to members and as far as this permits, to community of interests? Or in the premier's view, would this merely be apt to return the same results — "unrealistic on a provincial basis"?

—Victoria Colonist

To Leonov

Once more we owe a large debt to the Soviet News bulletin. This time we have received a suggestion about the improvement of the language for which we are much indebted.

The evening papers of Moscow and Warsaw, it seems have been concerned because they did not know what to call the action of a man, like cosmonaut Leonov, who flies, walks, floats, swims — well, you see the problem — in outer space. They submitted the question to their readers, presumably as yet another test of Communist democracy. The readers, bless them, thought that the proper verb should be "to Leonov."

So there we are. "To Leonov" means to do whatever it is one does when one steps out of one's space capsule for a minute. Do not forget this. Some day we may hear on our radios such things as "able to leonov tall buildings at a single bound," or Junior, I told you a thousand times not to leonov when your father's sleeping." Future space children will no doubt be described as "leonoving baby boys." Or, we may be warned: "If you drink, don't leonov."

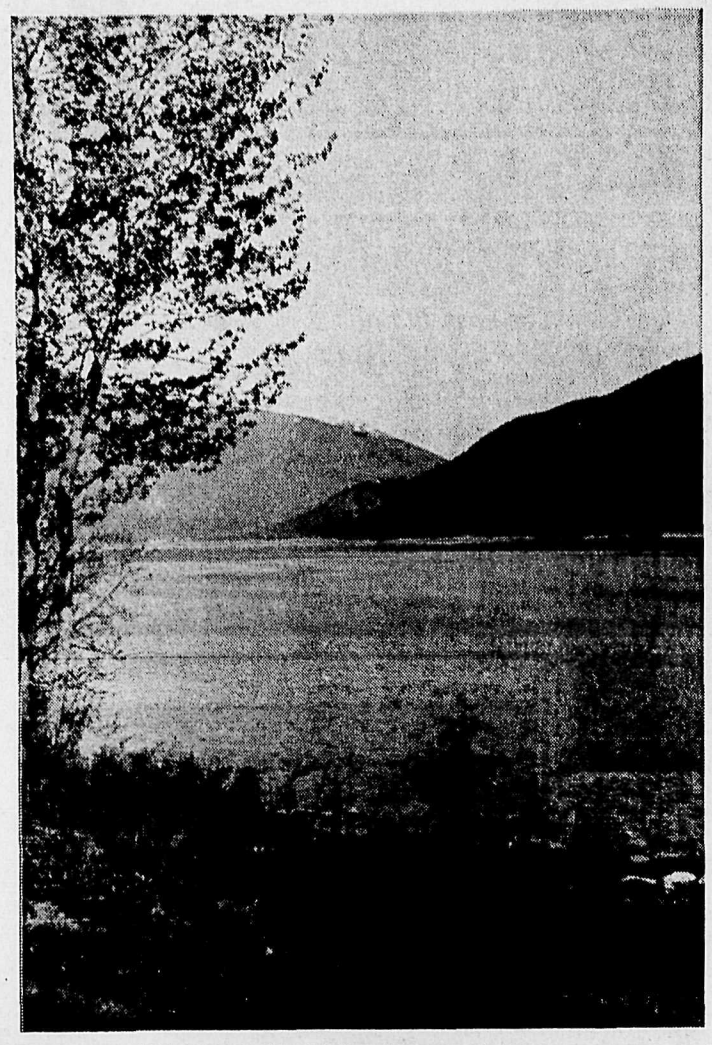
A SMILING VISTA



New President of CPA

By LESLIE MILLIN

VANCOUVER (CP) — The man who took over the late Garnt McConachie's job is a cool-eyed accountant with the last of a Belfast rasp deep in his throat.

J. C. Gilmer was named president of Canadian Pacific Airlines on July 12, which would have warmed the heart of his father, late of Manitoba's Loyal Orange Lodge.

It was a logical succession from his post as executive vice-president and comptroller of the company.

But no one following McConachie—the colorful bush pilot who spliced 10 little air lines into a national giant and died of a heart attack June 29—would have an easy job.

And Mr. Gilmer accepted a 52-death millstone along with the presidency — the July 8 crash that took a DC-6B, its crew and 46 passengers to a flaming death in British Columbia's Cariboo.

"It's a fascinating, a very dynamic job," says Mr. Gilmer.

His tailoring is less than perfect, but his speech reflects the orderliness of an accountant and the natural riches of the Belfast native's Irish English.

AIM TO MAKE PROFIT

"Any organization like this has visionaries, people who see business in terms of gross profit rather than net," he says.

"But I would hope to see things in terms of the balance sheet. We are in this business to make money."

He sees CPA at least partially in terms of seat-miles—and he is proud his company keeps its jets in the air 12 hours out of 24, the world's highest average.

J. C. Gilmer trod the world of profit and loss when pilot McConachie lived in a log cabin with a chunk of moosemeat hanging in the corner.

He graduated from the University of Manitoba at Winnipeg in chartered accountancy when his predecessor was the young president of Independent Airways Ltd., and while McConachie went through several companies to become president of CPA, Mr. Gilmer rose through the financial ranks of CPR.

He joined CPA in 1949, two years after McConachie became president, and today pays tribute to McConachie's visionary foresight and instinctive feel for a curious business.

"There are no precedents for this airline business," says Mr. Gilmer.

"Our product changes from day to day, the development is staggering and the increase in passengers confounds the greatest experts and makes any estimate, even the wildest, look conservative.'

SWITCH WAS COSTLY

His aptitude for economic thinking helped CPA through the bad years of the early 1960s, when the airline lost money during the changeover from piston-engined airplanes to jets.

"The jet changeover saved the business but it damned near killed it," he said.

"Jets are more economical to run. You get more seats, more freight capacity, and it's cheaper to boot.

"But all the airlines got jets at the same time and they threw them on the market all at the same time and there was a glut of jet seats.

"The boom in travel saved us, as the world's disposable income grew and travel restrictions dropped. This, and the reliable efficiency of jets, took us back into the black."

Today, CPA's airline routes are roughly in the form of a big X with Vancouver—and CPA's head office—at the crossroads.

One crossbar runs from Hong Kong to Buenos Aires, and the other from Australia to Amsterdam, with spurs to Montreal-Mexico City - Vancouver, and Montreal-Rome.

The flight across Canada is the only uneconomic run on CPA's 46,000 miles of routes, says Mr. Gilmer.

"We are restricted by the governmen to one flight a day. We can't make money on one flight a day.

NEW ROUTE COMING

All other flights are reserved for Air Canada, to which the government has also allotted northern Europe, except for the trans-polar route from Vancouver to Amsterdam.

A Montreal-Amsterdam flight by CPA has been negotiated, and is due to start in late October.

CPA's only other chance for expansion is in southern Asia, by linking the great market areas of southern Europe and the Orient by a non-stop flight from Rome to Bangkok, and then to Hong Kong.

"We're obtaining the market data for it now," says Mr. Gilmer, "but we're not committed to it."

His biggest immediate problem—straightening out the mess of the July 8 crash—is going well, he says.

"We're doing everything we can, we've offered the investigators all help possible, even engaging any experts they feel they might need."

Expansion—via bigger planes and faster ones with bigger payloads—is just around the corner, he says.

"Fantastic development in this field is coming along," he says, "and it will stagger the imagination.

"It will stagger anyone's imagination, no matter how avante-garde he tries to be in his thinking."

And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved.

JUST A LINE . . .

by Jean Baker

(Editor's note: The following story is a preface to the history of the Kootenay sternwheelers written by a native Nelsonite as his contribution to the centennial celebration.)

* * *

The twilight and nightfall of the days of the sternwheeler are the introduction to a unique and valuable work by E. L. (Ted) Affleck, who was raised in Nelson and has, as his centennial effort, made copies of an authentic history of the sternwheelers of the Kootenays.

He has distributed copies to all the libraries in the Kootenay and the provincial archives.

The book opens with reflections of the author on two separate journeys to the land of the sternwheelers, the last one on the day the Moyie was retired, the final closing day of their history.

"A trip to Lardeau — September, 1941 . . . return to the days of 1890 via a steamboat trip from Procter.

"One enters the 1890 atmosphere immediately upon reaching Procter. Nestled on a spur of a mountain at the junction of the West Arm and the main lake of Kootenay Lake, Procter commands three majestic views. When steamboating formed the primary means of travel in the Kootenay, no point was busier than Procter. Here it was that freight from Nelson was transported to Kootenay Landing for points east, and to Kaslo for the silvery Slocan district. Now Procter lies at rest, dreaming her dreams of the good old days, her freight yards barren, her slips devoid of tugs and barges.

(Editor's Note: This is slightly changed today, with barges being ferried out to the Lardeau laden with heavy equipment and other materials for Duncan Dam construction.)

"The steamer Moyie lies at the wharf, steam spitting from her exhaust. A faithful, durable workhorse. Her interior definitely belongs to the 1890s. The saloon ceiling is low and sloping, while woodwork of period "steamboat gothic" lines the walls. Aft, the ladies' cabin is decorated in blue and gold, and is furnished with comfortable wicker chairs, somewhat distorted in shape from many years of usage.

"A raucous blast from the whistle, and the Moyie churns slowly away from the wharf. To port lies the long, sandy beach of Balfour. The treacherous shoals at the outlet of the Main Lake are avoided and we swing northward towards Kaslo. The Moyie is making good time as the wind is in her favor — about 12 miles per hour in fact. One is soon lulled by the rhythmic sound of the steam going up the exhaust in time to the movements of the paddle-wheel shafts, for the reciprocating engines of the Moyie are delightfully simple — no intricacies of expansion cylinders and condensers are involved in her mechanism.

"Our ports of call after the three-mile trip across the lake are not close together. Crates of plums are taken on at Kootenay Bay and Walker's Landing, then the Moyie swings back to the west side of the lake for the call at Ainsworth. Little is left at Ainsworth but memories. Her mines stand idle, and if it were not for her famous hot springs, the cluster of ancient buildings would have vanished many years ago. The approach to Ainsworth is made treacherous by the stiff wind, but Captain McLeod eases the Moyie up to the granite and concrete bluffs which forms the landing place.

"Across the lake lies Riondel. This charming little spot has held her memories in her vacant buildings. Thirty years ago, accommodation at Riondel was at a premium. The Bluebell Mine shaft is situated at the shore line, with the imposing mine and mill buildings but a stone's throw from the water. Adjacent to the mill stands the bunk house, with wide verandahs sheltering the gaping window frames. Nestled in a row are the miners' bungalows, swathed in moss.

With Riondel in our wake, we pass an ever-changing panorama. As we round a bar, the church spires and quaint buildings of Kaslo "Gem of the Kootenays" swing into view. As Kaslo is the chief port of call, S.S. Moyie ties up at the wharf for a half-hour. The concrete pavement of Kaslo's main street is deserted, for it is the noon hour, and the doors of the shops are closed.

Kaslo behind us, we enter a truly virgin territory. Settlers and prospectors for gold came out to the Lardeau 40 years ago. Many have found no reason to leave during the intervening years. As the boat calls but once a week, the entire population of Johnson's Landing, is gathered at the wharf, awaiting the mail.

Our next call is made in truly pioneering style. The Moyie wedges her bow up on the sand before a log cabin, and a passenger disembarks by leaping off the bow to his doorstep.

"A few more miles of emerald green water and Lardeau and Argenta at the lakehead come into sight. The immediate prospect is of mountains on either side rising sheer into the sky. Their peaks are of all sizes, heights and shapes — round, square and pointed, and their very closeness is awe inspiring. But the distant view north, the view of the Lardeau valley, is even more magnificent. The Duncan River, which flows into Kootenay Lake at Argenta, is bordered on either side by lush, green swamp country. In the distant background are the Lardeau glaciers, mighty peaks eternally covered with snow and ice.

At Argenta, some time is spent unloading a genuine old-fashioned coal and wood range from a mail order house. Across the enchanted waters lies the once-busy junction point of Lardeau, gateway to the Lardeau-Duncan valley.

"The lonely ribbon of C.P.R. tracks running to Gerrard on Trout Lake will soon be torn up to make way for a wagon road, but rail service of a sort is still in operation. A station wagon of uncertain vintage, equipped with flanged wheels instead of tires, stands awaiting at the Lardeau slip to make the trip through the Lardeau River Pass to Trout Lake.

"The melancholy whistle of the Moyie echoes oevr the marches of the Duncan River estuary as we pull away from Lardeau and ply our solitary way back to Kaslo, Procter and the outside world."

* * *

"The last trip of the Moyie — April 27, 1957."

"Sixteen years have passed: Highways have been pushed ever farther into the Kootenays. Riondel has revived under development by the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company Limited. The silver, lead, zinc mines around Kaslo and Ainsworth have seen fitful activity. The twilight scene at Procter remains unchanged.

"The rhythmic "chug-chug" of a sternwheeler's exhaust echoes across the water, and a long stream of smoke trailing from a long, thin smokestack becomes ever more visible as the Moyie crosses the main lake, winds her way into the narrow channel at the outlet and surges up to the Procter wharf.

"The Saturday express run to Lardeau has been completed, and the era of the sternwheeler is over, for Saturday, April 27, 1957, marks the last trip of the Moyie on the C.P.R.'s last inland water route on the Columbia River system.

"The sternwheeler, which has played such a major part in developing the isolated Columbia River watercourse in British Columbia, has succumbed entirely to the slow but steady improvement of the tortuous chain of highways cutting through this land of high mountain peaks and deep valleys.

"Times are changing. The southeastern section of B.C., which has remained in quasi-isolation since 1846, when the establishment of the international boundary along the 49th parallel sealed off the area politically from the natural routes of transportation to the south, is at last being breached in a full scale from the west.

"The opening of the Hope-Princeton Highway over the Cascade Mountains in 1949 brought the Okanagan-Similkameen branch of the great Columbia waterway to the back door of the Pacific coast. The completion of the Christina Lake cut-off over the Monashee Mountains bids fair to do the same for the Kootenay-Arrow Lakes branch of the system.

"The lure of cheap hydro-electric power has replaced the lure of hidden gold. The busy hand of progress will soon wipe from the scene all traces of the pioneer days of railroading and steamboating in the Kootenays."

Village Coming to Life

By JACK GRAY

STE. MARIE AMONG-THE-HURONS, Ont. (CP)—This tiny palisaded village of the martyrs, symbol of a shining moment in North American history, is springing to life after a sleep of three centuries.

Here, at a cost of $1,000,000 put up by the provincial government, the authentic reconstruction of the first European settlement in Ontario is taking shape on its original site half a mile south of Georgian Bay.

When the painstaking work is completed in 1967, Ste. Marie on the banks of the shallow Wye River will look as it did in the 1640s when it housed Huron Indians and 58 Frenchmen—Jesuit priests, soldiers and volunteer workers representing nearly a quarter of what was then the entire white population of New France.

Under the direction of Dr. Wilfrid W. Jury of the University of Western Ontario, an expert on pioneer life, chapels, dwellings and shops are being erected by 300-year-old construction methods.

Running into the heart of the village will be a canal system fed by an aqueduct, a reconstruction of what Dr. Jury calls "undoubtedly the first artificial waterway with locks to be built in the New World."

BUILT MISSIONS

Situated in the heart of Huronia, where the Jesuits operated a dozen missions before the Iroquois made it impossible for them to carry on, Ste. Marie will provide an accurate picture of bustling 17th-century life deep in the wilderness.

Two miles east of Midland and 85 miles northwest of Toronto, the fort is in an area where Europeans explored and lived five years before the Pilgrims set out in the Mayflower.

It stands in the shadow of the Jesuit Martyrs' Shrine, twin-spired St. Joseph Roman Catholic Church, which draws thousands of visitors every summer.

And it's not far from the spot where explorer Samuel de Champlain landed in 1615, at a time when Montreal consisted of only two huts and New York was a Dutch farming community of 30 or 40 huts.

The peace at Fort Ste. Marie today is in sharp contrast to the terror of more than 300 years ago when gentle Jesuits met torture and death with unflinching faith. But there are many reminders of those fear-filled last days of the first colonizers and missionaries.

The 16-foot palisade that surrounds this village is one. Another is an escape hatch into a tunnel to the outside, intended to be used in the event of a siege.

BURNED FORT

The hatch was never so used. The Jesuits themselves burned the community in 1649—10 years after it was built—as raiding Iroquois approached after virtually annihilating the proud Huron nation.

Already decimated by famine and disease, only a few Hurons remained of the more than 30,000 whose friendship was courted by Champlain 33 years earlier. These and the remaining French retreated to nearby Christian Island in Georgian Bay to build Fort Ste. Marie II.

More than 300,000 tourists visited Britain in the first five months of 1965, an increase of 11 per cent over the previous year.

OO LA LA, THOSE EUROPEAN MEN

LONDON (AP)—A newspaper columnist Thursday gave British girls several hundred words of advice on how European men make love.

Writing in the large-circulation Daily Mirror, Marjorie Proops singles out Frenchmen, Spaniards, Italians and Germans.

Of the Italian she says in part:

"He is a great one for bodies—whatever their size or shape—even a big fat one. His well-known propensity for bottom-pinching is all a part of his uninhibited delight in female flesh.

"Most women who have had an Italian lover cannot imagine reaching such heights with any other man."

"He usually gets very fat in middle age," she warns. "It's all that pasta which is an irresistible to him as women."

WOMEN HIS PALS

Of the German:

"He does not demonstrate. Deep and exciting sensuality is often repressed. To the German a woman is a sort of pal.

"He can really be very funny at the same time he is being deadly earnest. He has a sense of gallantry. He does actually click his heels and bow.

"The German puts his woman on a pedestal which is the place where most women like to be."

Of the Frenchmen:

"When he makes love his mind is on it more than his heart. He does not think a man must be faithful. A woman, however, must be faithful to him. You will not get him by flirting with someone else.

NOT ALWAYS FASTIDIOUS

"He likes women to be fastidious while not being too fastidious himself. Some days he doesn't bother to shave."

Of the Spaniard:

"The image of the Spaniard as a romantic guitar-playing lover is a false one.

"Spanish men are spoiled by their mothers and would expect the same treatment to be continued by their lovers.

"Women are the victims of Spanish men — but oddly enough, they seem to like being victimized by these handsome, brooding, passionate men. Some women are fools for punishment."

Miss Proops doesn't give any advice about British men.

Hints From Heloise

HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

You know those funny TV antennas on top of your television which look so odd in your living room . . .?

My husband painted our TV antenna the same color as the walls in our house, and it doesn't look ugly any more.

Be sure to paint only the antenna itself.

Mrs. N. J. Bales.

* * *

Now, that's a corker if I ever heard one.

Many interior decorators tell us that if you don't want something to show, paint it the same color as something surrounding it!

This also goes for wastebaskets, garbage cans (that means wherever you put the can. If your garage is blue, paint the garbage can blue if it sits by the side of the garage . . . and it doesn't show).

Heloise.

* * *

Dear Heloise:

When making potato salad, the cut-up potatoes seem to absorb the flavor of onion, celery, eggs and salad dressing much better if all the ingredients are mixed while the potatoes are still warm.

Mrs. Steve Boulet.

* * *

Absolutely true. Heloise.

* * *

Now, wasn't Marjie a sweetie pie to give us all this valuable information?

So . . . all of you gals with pretty silver, listen to Marjie and me.

Use your silver every day, because there will never be anyone in your family better than you!

SALMO PARTYLINE

By ALMA BURTON

SALMO — Living as we do, less than 200 feet from the Trans-Canada, we see all manner of vehicle and craft whizz by summer and winter, ranging frm the sublime to the ridiculous. Most comical we thought was a tiny foreign car towing a house trailer about twice its length and double its heigth. Looked like it should have been the other way round.

And to top it off, a gay red canoe was perched precariously on the roof of the car. Seemed like this chap was carrying out the producers story of strength and ability a bit too far.

The first time witnessing a half of an "instant" house whirl by, complete with staring naked picture window, was a bit of a start. It must have been 40 feet long, as wide as the road allows, and then some.

Felt like calling out to ask if the coffee pot was on.

One thing I noted was that several cars or perhaps more than that had a small new Canadian flag flipping in the breeze. A fine patriotic bit of color.

More of us should practise this, especially when travelling stateside. Have you not noticed how often the Stars and Stripes flutter from staffs on private homes? Canadians are a bit reticent in showing pride in our colors. We shouldn't be so retiring but it seems to be the nature of us.

And now's the time to retire to the village and see what goes.

Corporal Rae Boisvert and family have returned from vacationing in the Okanagan which included Shuswap Lake. The corporal tells me that the current hot weather has sure been playing havoc with vehicles, and those towing trailers in particular. There has been one stalled about every mile up to the summit where his patrol ends. Makes folks look at the scenery while waiting to cool off.

He was called out to remove a bear from the vicinity of a service station. On arrival there, he found the poor beast looking so hot, panting and tongue lolling the lawman hadn't the heart to kill, so he fired three shots into the gravel at its feet and scared it off, hoping the critter would return to higher ground. You're a kind man, sir.

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. Hoffman and son Eddie this week from Brighton, Ontario, were Mrs. Agnes Fox and Ruby Fleming, both aunts of Mrs. Hoffman. From Kirkcaldy, Alberta, came Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Comstock and son, Keith. The latter is a brother of Mrs. Hoffman. It is the first trip out here for the Easterners and they have been much impressed with our mountain scenery.

Artificial control of carbon monoxide in warehouses allows fresh fruit to be stored for six times as long as usual.

The Tommy Lunds have had as guests Mr. and Mrs. W. Lane and family of Calgary, Mr. and Mrs. J. Bean, Edmonton, and Mr. and Mrs. Andy McCarrol of Daysland, Alberta.

Here we are at the end of another week and in three weeks holidayers and their caravans will disappear as if by magic in a whirl of school opening and fall canning. Aw, sweet summer, where have you gone? However, they tell me holidays are nice things to come home from. Bye now.

Frank Arnett Interested In Leaf Coaching Position

FRANK ARNETT

Frank Arnett, former defenceman with the Los Angeles Blades and the Seattle Totems of the Western Hockey League, has expressed an interest in replacing Bobby Kromm as coach of the Maple Leafs.

Maple Leaf's president, Jack James, said Friday that before Arnett can coach the Nelson club, he must be waived by all other pro clubs throughout Canada and the United States.

"We definitely are interested in him, but no firm offer can be made until the overall waiving process is completed."

Arnett, recently waived by the Western Hockey League, has just completed high school in Calgary, and if waived by the pro clubs, a Notre Dame University scholarship could be offered.

James said Arnett is a rough and tough defenceman and would strengthen the club defensively.

Blue Bombers Trade Hal Ledyard to Roughriders

HAL LEDYARD

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers Friday traded Hal Ledyard, the Western Football Conference's best-known relief quarterback, to Saskatchewan Roughriders.

The deal was for undisclosed cash and the right's to Saskatchewan's first choice in the 1966 Canadian college draft.

The trade left Winnipeg coach Bud Grant with a vacant position on his roster of Canadian players. Ledyard, born and football-trained in the U.S., became a Canadian citizen a year after joining the Bombers in 1961.

Grant used him primarily as a passer in relief of Kenny Ploen, a function Ledyard also fulfilled in previous service with Ottawa Rough Riders of the Eastern Conference alongside Russ Jackson.

Swimming . . .

BLACKPOOL, England (CP) Karen Muir, South Africa's 12-year - old swimming wonder, stroked her way to her third successive title at the British championships Friday and became the youngest triple winner in the meet's 25-year history.

In Golf . . .

WINNIPEG (CP) — Defending champion Nick Weslock of Toronto was knocked out of the 61st Canadian amateur golf championship Friday by a young United States university student.

George (Bunky) Henry of Valdosta, Ga., sank a crucial eight-foot putt for a par on the 18th hole to erase Weslock one-up in a quarter-final match.

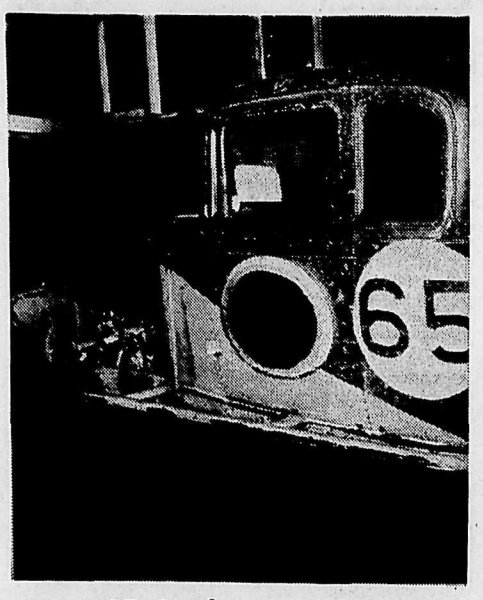
BRODERIUS' CAR CHECKS OUT AFTER TEARDOWN



No. 65 Under Examination

TRAIL —Two automotive experts from Spokane, Wash., satisfied the West Kootenay Stock Car Racing Association that Dale Broderius' car No. 65 meets all the legal requirements Thursday night in the aftermath of a formal protest lodged following Sunday's races at Calamida Stadium.

The protest came after Broderius, in his '32 Pontiac with a '52 Chev mill, had captured the 30-lap 'A' Main event, within .5 seconds of equalling a track record.

Broderius ran the 11th lap in 26.3 seconds, just shy of the record set last year by Bob Dixon, 25.8.

Specifications of the engine's cam shaft, checked earlier this week by both the Calamida and Northport technical committees had rated the cam as a 1954 — two years newer than the regulations laid down in the association.

Their check of the cam revealed that it was, in fact, a '52, thereby nullifying the protest.

The impartial crew pulled off the head and pan, for a pressure check and meticulously went over each piston.

Racing pistons are not legal on stocks racing under the association's bylaws.

The cubic inch displacement checked out well below the 251 cubic inch maximum and the fly wheel was standard.

Rumors of a '54 Chev transmission were dispelled when it checked out as a '52.

The rear - end, which was probably picked up from an older half-ton truck, panned out as meeting specifications.

The partial tear-down, which took four hours to complete, was held up when the committee considered the machine's manifold.

Polished manifolds, which permit a stock added thrust, are outlawed, but the committee found that Broderius had merely cleaned out the carbon, nothing more.

They feldt that a combination of a proper gear-ratio in the rear-end, a solid weight dispersement and adequate racing shocks had made the difference.

It has been acknowledged by most drivers and owners alike that Broderius is one of the better drivers in the Northport-Calamida racing circuit.

Twins' Errors Pay for Indians In 3-1 Win Over League-Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Strong relief pitching by right - hander Bob Tiefenauer and two errors by the Minnesota Twins helped Cleveland Indians to a 3-1 victory over the American League leaders Friday night.

Tiefenauer, 35-year-old knuckleballer brought up from Toledo of the International League Wednesday night, stopped the Twins after Tony Oliva's home run in the seventh inning.

The Indians jumped to a first-inning 1-0 lead and backed it up with two more runs in the fifth.

The fifth inning runs—one unearned—came on a wild pitch by Jim Perry, Oliva's error and singles by Leon Wagner, Vic Davalillo and Larry Brown.

Washington Senators throttled Baltimore threats with four double plays and edged the slumping Baltimore Orioles 42 on homers by Willie Kirkland, Mike Brumley and Dick Nen.

LOST EIGHT GAMES

The second-place Orioles, who lost eight of 15 on a recent road trip, failed to gain ground on the American League - leading Minnesota Twins.

Kirkland socked a solo homer in the fourth inning for the first hit off Wally Bunker. Brumley homered in the fifth after a walk to Woody Held. Nen connected with the bases empty in the ninth.

Washington's only other hits were singles by Ken McMullen in the fifth and seventh.

Reliever Steve Hamilton pitched out of a seventh-inning jam and saved Jack Cullen's first major league victory as New York Yankees defeated Kansas City 3-1.

The triumph again moved the Yankees to within one game of the .500 mark. They haven't reached .500 since they were 7-7 on May 1.

LOADED BASES

Cullen, now 1-1, stymied the Athletics on five hits through six innings. But Kansas City loaded the bases with one out in the seventh on Bill Bryan's single, a throwing error by Cullen and a walk to Bert Campaneris.

Hamilton then came on and got pinch hitter Dick Green to hit into a double play.

Red Sox broke a tie with a seventh inning run on a passed ball by Chicago catcher J. C. Martin and edged White Sox 3-2 behind the relief pitching of Bob Duliba.

After tying the score on Felix Mantilla's two-run homer in the sixth, the Red Sox loaded the bases in the seventh on a walk to Duliba, a single by Lennie Green, a sacrifice and an intentional walk to Carl Yastrzemski.

Gene Oliver slammed a pair of two-run homers and Eddie Mathews also slugged one with one on to lead the Milwaukee Braves to an 8-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

WAS 23RD WIN

The victory was the 23rd for the Braves in the last 32 games and was credited to southpaw Denny Lemaster, who flashed the form which made him a 17-game winner last season.

Lemaster yielded six hits and fanned 13 for his fifth triumph against nine losses.

Milwaukee's barrage opened in the fourth inning when Mathews singled for the first of his three hits, and Oliver slammed his 13th homer into the centerfield seats.

Nelson-Rossland Doubleheader Sunday

Do-Or-Die for Braves In League Semi-Finals

LES HUFTY

Les Hufty, whose pitching is reminiscent of knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm, is the man who'll keep the Nelson Braves in the Can-Am Twilight League playoffs.

Hufty faces the Rossland Capilanos in the opener of a semi-final doubleheader at Civic Centre grounds at 3:00 p.m. Sunday afternoon as the Braves bid to stay alive.

The Caps took a one game lead in the best-of-three semis last Sunday when Ron Fabro broke up a scoreless ball game in the sixth with a two-run homer that held good until the end of the game.

Spokane import Ron Sherrick will start in the second. This will mark Sherrick's first appearance with the club following a tryout with the Spokane Indians of the Pacific Coast League.

Coach Johnny Brkich, who scheduled rigorous workouts for the Braves all this week, feels that his club can do it, but that they'll have to work for it.

The Capilanos, who finished the regular season, in fourth spot with a 9-14 won-lost record, were picked to be swept aside in straight games with the Braves, but fooled even the experts.

Coach Don Holmes' infield, which accounted for a record four double plays last weekend, has proved to be the mainstay of the club, along with left-hander Denny Larsen.

Larsen chalked up his third win against the Braves last weekend, and, should the Braves win the opener, could try for his fourth in the second game.

Righthanders Brian Dubasov or Allen DeCecco are the logical choices to start the first game.

Bernie Monteleone, who missed several games during the early summer months, will be back at his regular spot at short, filling the hole between Lenny Bousquet and Bill Lnenicka.

The winner of the Caps-Braves series meets the Cranbrook Canucks in the best-of-five finals starting August 22.

Cranbrook eliminated Trail Smoke Eaters two straight — 17-4 and 17-8 in weekend games last week.

Ti-Cats Booed to 17-7 Win; Roughies Hit Eskimos 34-15

TORONTO (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats waltzed to a 17-7 victory over Toronto Argonauts Friday night in a dull Eastern Football Conference game before a booing crowd of 27,190.

It was the second straight decision for the defending league champions in as many starts and it moved them into a first-place tie with Ottawa Rough Riders who hold a 2-0 win-loss record. The loss was the second straight for the ineffectual Argonauts, perennial last-place finishers in the EFC.

It was one of the dullest pro games seen here in a long time—and the statistics tell the story.

The Tiger - Cats, who went with quarter Frank Cosentino from midway through the first quarter after Zuger failed to move the club, gained a total of only 205 yards—165 rushing and 40 in the air. The Argonauts, who didn't complete a pass in the first half, ended with a gain of 228 yards, 152 on ground plays and 76 in a lacklustre aerial performance.

EDMONTON (CP) — Eagle Keys made a triumphant return as head coach of Saskatchewan Roughriders Friday night when his club came from behind to trounce Edmonton Eskimos 34-15 and take sole possession of second place in the Western Football Conference.

Two years ago Keys was fired as Eskimos' head coach. He took over at the Roughriders helm this year after Bob Shaw went to Toronto Argonauts.

The triumph before 14,297 fans left Saskatchewan with four points, two behind undefeated Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Eskimos took their third loss in three league starts.

Quarterback Ron Lancaster's passing and hard running by halfbacks Bill Gray, Al Ford and fullback George Reed proved too much for Eskimos.

Lancaster hit flanker Hugh Campbell on touchdown passes of 42 and 22 yards and scored himself on a one-yard plunge. Reed carried over on a two-yard run while rookie guard Jack Abendschan completed scoring with three converts, two field goals and a single.

Nicklaus, Marr Tied at 139

LEGONIER, Pa. (AP) — Arnold Palmer took an incredible nine — including another two-stroke penalty—on a par-5 hole while scrambling Tommy Aaron retained his lead in the Professional Golfers' Association championship with a 137 after Friday second round.

While major misfortune was once again befalling Palmer, the host pro, who carded 75 for a 147 total, these were the other principal developments at the Laurel Valley golf club:

George Knudson of Toronto shot a hole-in-one;

Most of the first-round leaders careened back into the pack while Jack Nicklaus and Dave Marr moved into a tie for second place at 139;

It rained; the sun shone; the wind blew; the wind didn't blow;

There was an erroneous report of a baby being born on gully. His third moved the ball

The two-stroke penalty for Palmer was his second in as many days. Thursday's penalty came on the opening hole when he allowed two marshals to remove a bridge railing that interfered with his swing and took a two-over-par six.

Friday's was his own doing. He reported it himself after playing his second hole, No. 11 on the rolling, 7,090-yard, par 36-35—71 layout.

His second shot went into a gully. His third moved the baill only about 30 fet. His fourth fell into a bunker. He blasted out and two-putted.

In the gully, however, he had knocked a rock out with his back swing on a practice stroke recalled it later and told tournament officials. They promptly assessed two more strokes.

City Softball Giants Clash

Wednesday night will see the clash of the softball giants, when the much-touted Queens take up the challenge of Doyle's Combines.

The Queens, who complained of no competition in the Play-for-Fun Softball League, have yet to lose a game in league competition.

The Combines, hearing of the Queen's apparent boast, took the dare, and practiced up by dropping RCMP 8-5.

Montrose Beavers, the year's drop-out of the Senior 'B' loop in Trail, handed the Queens their only loss in exhibition.

"Doyle's Combines aren't making any predictions of winning," manager Jim Elsener said, "but we think we can give them the competition they've been looking for."

Your Horoscope

For Sunday, August 15, 1965

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) — The more serene you are, the easier you will ride through this day. Carefully consider all the activities open to you. Then select only those which will benefit you mentally, physically and emotionally.

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus) — Avoid being led astray by those who are heedless of consequences, careless of responsibilities. You will face more distractions than you think, so keep up your guard.

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) — A good period for studying past complex situations and how you coped with them; comparing present conditions. Inspiration should be at a peak now.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) — Be patient if you encounter delays and obstacles to your plans, but don't retard progress yourself through vacillation, indecision. Step forward with confidence.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo) — An excellent day for reviving old associations, contacts, hobbies. Be generous, when there's need, but without extravagance.

AUGUST 24 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo) — Benefic Mercury influences indicate that you have more leeway than usual in promoting the unique and unusual. Do make the most of present stellar help.

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra) — Important now: foresight and attentiveness to good advice. Don't fictionalize where straight facts are in order. There's a prevailing tendency to dramatize things.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 22 (Scorpio) — Survey chances; some should be rewarding. Plan on some expansion but curtail where necessary. Get your picture in focus, and you will benefit later. Accuracy in details!

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 21 (Sagittarius) — Even though you may feel that your inner resources are insufficient to achieve your goals, keep trying. It's that extra spurt of effort which can turn mediocrity into success.

DECEMBER 22 to JANUARY 20 (Capricorn) — Ask yourself what the consequences will be before you engage upon a new venture or make changes in projects now running smoothly. Utilize your connections in profitable ways during the P.M.

JANUARY 21 to FEBRUARY 19 (Aquarius) — Planetary configurations now sponsor novel pursuits, imaginative revitalizing of all interests. Display your talents in marketable areas.

FEBRUARY 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces) — Certain suggestions must be ignored; others accepted quickly, put to discerning use. The Piscean's gift for seeing through a maze of complexities should result in a field day.

YOU BORN TODAY are a fair-minded person who weighs all possibilities before making decisions, who aims to make those decisions for the good of all, not a few — which is, perhaps, the reason why so many judges, lawyers and executives have been and are Leo-born.

Avoid plugged sewer lines
NO-CO-RODE*
SEWER PIPE

For house to sewer and septic tank connections No-Co-Rode Pipe provides permanent, trouble free service. Roots just cannot enter the root-proof, water-proof joints. It is tough and flexible, will withstand heavy surface loads, frost action and soil settlement. The long lightweight lengths go down faster and joints are simply tapped into place with hammer and wood block for low installed cost. So avoid plugged sewer lines and save money . . . use genuine No-Co-Rode Root-Proof pipe. For septic tank disposal beds, or foundation drains, use No-Co-Rode perforated pipe.

The Modern Home

CHARMING ONE AND A HALF STORY

Here is an enchantingly compact, one and a half story house to delight the eye of the beholder, and provide comfortable living for its occupants.

While it is shown here with a combination stucco - horizontal siding exterior, there are many other effects available to enhance its charming simplicity, such as white clapboard siding, with green shutters, etc.

Two steps to a low stoop, lead to the front door, which opens into a charmingly conceived entry, merely hinted at by the use of posts, the entry opening into the large living room. Wide windows let in plenty of light, an outside wall fireplace leaves plenty of wall space for furniture arrangements.

Spaciousness in planning is indicated in the combination kitchen/dining area with lots of cupboards provided, and specifically designed locations for refrigerator and range.

A full size bathroom is located on the main floor with plumbing back to back with kitchen installation for economy. Storage and furnace room and a large bedroom which could double as a den, complete the main floor.

Access to the upstairs is from the living room, and this accommodation includes two large bedrooms with half plumbing to service them. Storage space is under the eaves.

This charming home would be ideal for the small family and would fit on a narrow lot. Although a carport is shown, it could be left off, leaving a frontage of only 36'.

Designed to the standards of the National Building Code of Canada, for N.H.A. or conventional mortgage, blueprints are obtainable from the Building Centre (B.C.) Ltd., 96 Kingsway, Vancouver, B.C. Send 53c to cover cost of mailing Select Home Designs Plan Book.
