Cabinet Minister Dupuis Ousted

Churchill's Condition Reported Deteriorating

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—Sir Winston Churchill's already grave condition worsened Friday in the eighth day of his battle for life.

Lord Moran, Churchill's physician, reported in his Friday-night medical bulletin:

"Sir Winston has had a restful day but there has been some deterioration in his condition."

A British Medical Association spokesman said the bulletin shows evidence of further worsening, but then spoke of the "most remarkable" struggle waged by the 90-year-old statesman.

"His answer to this illness is most remarkable, evidence of a terrific tenacity and purpose in clinging to his life."

Sir Winston had apparently held his own Thursday following extremely heavy going Wednesday, when Moran gravely reported that his life-long friend was at a "very low ebb."

Moran issued his second communique Friday after being about 40 minutes at the bedside of Churchill, who suffered a cerebral thrombosis, or stroke, Jan. 14.

EPIC STRUGGLE

His noon bulletin, the 16th since Churchill began his epic struggle, merely said the wartime minister had a quiet night and there was no change in his condition.

Britons sorrowing for Churchill and his family took comfort from indications by Moran that he is suffering no pain or discomfort but apparently hovering in a twilight between life and death.

A BMA spokesman said after the noon bulletin that the condition could continue for days or weeks.

There will be another bulletin today.

After studying the pattern of the medical bulletins since Churchill suffered the stroke, the BMA spokesman commented:

"It is inconceivable that he can recover from this."

Lady Churchill, at her husband's bedside almost constantly since the start of his illness, left the house for a drive of nearly three hours. She will be 80 in April.

No Comment — Diefenbaker

PRINCE ALBERT (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Friday he had no comment on the resignation of Yvon Dupuis, minister without portfolio in the federal cabinet.

Mr. Diefenbaker, visiting his home constituency in Saskatchewan, spoke at Moose Jaw Friday night.

tonight.

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal backbencher Auguste Choquette called on Prime Minister Pearson Friday to appoint "without delay" at least two new cabinet ministers from Quebec to help the Liberals surmount their present "turbulent times."

Mr. Choquette, outspoken MP for Lotbiniere, said the new ministers should be of a "high calibre" and chosen outside the ranks of sitting Liberal MPs from Quebec.

OTTAWA (CP) — Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said Friday the dismissal of his arch-rival Yvon Dupuis from the cabinet adds "another shameful stigma to the image of the Liberal party."

Mr. Caouette said in a press statement in French that prominent members of the Liberal party from Quebec are bringing shame to their whole party and to all French-Canadians.

VANCOUVER (CP) — T. C. Douglas, national New Democratic party leader, said Friday the public is entitled to know why Prime Minister Pearson fired Yvon Dupuis from his cabinet.

"There's not much I can say about it until the prime minister makes a statement," Mr. Douglas said in an interview.

"But the public is entitled to know why Mr. Dupuis was fired."

Pearson-Dupuis Letters Aired

OTTAWA (CP) — Late Friday night the prime minister's office reelased an exchange of brief letters between Mr. Pearson and Yvon Dupuis.

The letters made no reference to any reason for the resignation of Mr. Dupuis as minister without portfolion in the Pearson cabinet.

Mr. Dupuis' letter read:

"Following my interview with you in your office last Wednesday in Ottawa, and for the personal reasons I gave you, I ask you to accept at once my resignation as minister without portfolio."

The prime minister's reply was:

"I have received your letter of Jan. 22. I understand the personal reasons which caused you to tender your resignation and I wish to thank you for your services while you have been a member of the government."

PEARSON'S RETURN UNEXPECTED

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson returned to Ottawa from Toronto unexpectedly Friday night. He had been scheduled to spend the weekend in Toronto.

His transport department Viscount landed at 11:15 p.m. EST, less than six hours after it left to take Mr. Pearson to a Toronto speaking engagement.

No reason for the surprise change of plans was known, but there was speculation that it was connected with the forced resignation of Yvon Dupuis as cabinet minister without portfolio, announced earlier in the day.

DOLLAR PRICE

MONTREAL (CP) — The United States dollar in terms of Canadian funds was unchanged at $1.07 11-32. Pound sterling was unchanged at $2.99 11-16.

Pearson Gives No Explanation for Asking Resignation

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — A new crisis rocked the minority Liberal government Friday as Prime Minister Pearson abruptly dismissed Minister Without Portfolio Yvon Dupuis from the cabinet without any immediate explanation.

The announcement came less than two hours after the Toronto Star published a report linking Mr. Dupuis' Quebec constituency with an RCMP investigation into the circumstances of an application for a race-track franchise.

While the cabinet was holding a special three-hour meeting, Mr. Pearson asked his press secretary, Richard O'Hagan, to read the following prepared statement to a crowd of reporters waiting in the corridor outside.

"On Wednesday of this week, the prime minister asked Mr. Yvon Dupuis, minister without portfolio, to relinquish his position in the federal administration.

Mr. Dupuis was the youngest member of the cabinet at 38. He was appointed just under a a year ago. A businessman in St. Johns, near Montreal, he retains his Commons seat for St. Jean - Iberville - Napierville.

His secretary here, besieged by phone inquiries, told reporters she did not know his whereabouts and his home said he was en route to Ottawa. Mr. Dupuis attended the weekly cabinet meeting Wednesday but was absent from Friday's meeting.

Mr. Pearson, who looked flushed as he emerged alone from the cabinet meeting, walked briskly to his office in the East Block of the Parliament Buildings and turned aside all questions from reporters.

He went ahead with plans to fly to Toronto to address parents and pupils at the opening of a new high school in suburban Newtonbrook, where he was born. But he put off his departure with Mrs. Pearson by two hours to confer with his staff.

Mr. Pearson told reporters he would issue a statement about Mr. Dupuis' dismissal later, but he was not sure when.

Initial reaction from opposition parties was predictably hostile.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said in a French press statement the Liberal party is beset by gangrene at the top.

He said the dismissal of Mr. Dupuis, his arch-rival in the 1963 election campaign, coming so soon after the dismissal of Guy Rouleau as parliamentary secretary to Mr. Pearson, "adds another shameful stigma to the image of the Liberal party."

"The public is entitled to know why Mr. Dupuis was fired," NDP Leader Douglas said in Vancouver.

"Is it something to do with the current (Dorion) inquiry? Or is it some other matter a cabinet minister has become involved in that reflects no great credit on the government?"

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker had no immediate comment when reached in his Prince Albert constituency.

Political observers in Ottawa could recall only three federal cabinet ministers in Canadian history who were dismissed or forced to resign by the prime minister of the day.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier called for the resignations of Public Works Minister Israel Tarte in 1902 and Railways Minister Andrew Blair the following year over policy disagreements. Sir Robert Borden asked his defence minister, Sir Sam Hughes, to resign in 1916 after faulty Ross rifles caused a scandal.

In December, 1961, then Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced he had asked Senator Henri Courtemanche to resign from the Upper House.

Previously state secretary in the Diefenbaker cabinet, Senator Courtemanche was accused of having accepted more than $60,000 in return for obtaining provincial grants for Jean Talon Hospital in Montreal.

WAS ORGANIZER

Mr. Dupuis, son of a former member of the Quebec legislature, has been an active election organizer and campaigner since his student days.

He entered the legislature himself as member for Montreal Ste. Marie in 1952 at 26 and soon became one of Premier Maurice Duplessis' most outspoken critics. He was defeated handily in the 1962 and 1963 elections. Reportedly as a reward for stumping Quebec in a one-man crusade against Mr. Caouette's group in the 1963 campaign, he was elevated to the cabinet by Mr. Pearson on Feb. 3 of last year.

The Toronto Star reported Friday the RCMP is investigating a secret report on an application for a racetrack that would be located in Mr. Dupuis' riding. Rumors about this report have been circulating in Ottawa for several weeks.

Mr. Dupuis complained in an interview a month ago English-language newspapers were making a "concerted effort to smear French-Canadian members of Parliament and ministers."

Dupuis - Talked Himself In

OTTAWA (CP)—Yvon Dupuis is a young, brass-lunged, acid-tongued orator of the old Quebec school.

He has turned his wit and French vitriol against the late Maurice Duplessis, against Real Caouette and against separatism.

It was his comic but telling oratory — especially in the 1963 federal election campaign against the Creditistes — that won him appointment to the cabinet a year ago as a minister without portfolio.

Since then he had dropped out of the limelight.

Until Friday, with the terse announcement that Prime Minister Pearson had asked for and received his resignation from the government. No reason was cited.

Mr. Dupuis is 39. He was the youngest member of the cabinet.

He was only 26 when first elected to the Quebec legislature in 1952 for Montreal Ste. Marie. His father, Hector, had been in the provincial house for eight years.

German Coolness Keeps Wilson From Bonn Trip

Little Notice Given Churchill Illness in German Newspapers

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — A source close to Prime Minister Wilson says one reason why the British leader postponed his scheduled trip to Bonn this week is because of initial cool West German press reaction to Sir Winston Churchill's grave illness.

The informant said Friday Wilson was "caught up" in the emotionalism of Sir Winston's announced critical condition and acted on the spur of the moment to curtail political activity and concentrate on plans to pay homage to the great war hero.

However, in reaching his decision last Tuesday Wilson was dismayed by the rather sparse attention the press of Germany —Churchill's wartime "arch-enemy"—had displayed on the Churchill situation.

Wilson was to have conferred with West German Chancellor Erhard at Bonn on Thursday and to visit West Berlin Major Willy Brandt Friday. Earlier in the week, Erhard conferred with French President de Gaulle. This brought some comment in the British press that Erhard was giving priority to Paris rather than London.

DECISION ATTACKED

However, Wilson now is under attack in the British press for postponing his Bonn trip and for delaying a statement on plans for boosting Britain's exports drive.

The Daily Mirror, which supports the Labor party, said in a front-page editorial Friday that Sir Winston would have been the last man to approve of postponements and cancellations of urgent matters on his account.

The weekly Economist said Wilson should have gone to Bonn. Even amid the uncertainty of Churchill's lingering illness, Wilson could have left London for three days with the prospect that he could return quickly if necessary.

Wilson planned to "sell" Erhard on the British proposal for an Atlantic nuclear force. De Gaulle has opposed this proposal as well as the U.S.-proposed mixed-manned 25-ship surface Polaris missile-armed fleet.

The position maintained by sources close to Wilson is that the prime minister anticipated there would be a state funeral for Churchill and that he would then have an opportunity to confer with heads of state who come to London for the public ceremonies.

Wilson is said to no longer feel so rigidly bound by plans to curtail political activity and soon may make his announced speech on plans for encouraging an increased flow of exports.

Churchill's Third Great Grandchild Arrives

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill Friday night became a great-grandfather for the third time as he lay seriously ill in his London home.

A son was born to Mrs. Winston Churchill, wife of the 90-year-old statesman's grandson.

A hospital spokesman said Mrs. Churchill and the baby were both in "very satisfactory" condiliton.

Beginning of End Of Dock Strike Seen

NEW YORK (AP)—The AFL-CIO International Longshoremen's Association eased its strike grip on New York harbor Friday and a speedy end was forecast for the 12-day, multi-million-dollar dock tieup along the U.S. Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico coasts.

ILA President Thomas (Teddy) Gleason, asked how long it might take to settle the strike of 60,000 dockers from Maine to Texas, replied;;

"I think 24 to 48 hours at a maximum."

Gleason gave orders to remove pickets and allow half a dozen or more luxury liners to resume transatlantic runs or cruise schedules. At the same time, he said perishable cargo aboard freighters in New York harbor would be unloaded.

"Other than these two specific areas . . . the strike remains in effect."

First of the stranded liners to get away was the Argentina, which sailed with 392 passengers on a 13-day West Indies cruise. She had been marooned for 11 days.

Pressure from seafaring unions was believed to have led to the break in the strike, which has tied up more than 300 ships in the east and south and cost the U.S. economy some $300,000,000.

Focus of peace talks shifted south after Thursday's acceptance by New York longshoremen of a new contract, with automation and guaranteed annual wage clauses. It was the same contract they turned down two weeks ago in a prelude to the strike, which began Jan. 11. An end of the strike, and a mass return to the piers, awaited settlement in south Atlantic and Gulf Coast ports.

EDMONTON (CP) — Social Credit forces have been advised to prepare for a June Federal Election, national party leader Robert Thompson told a press conference Friday.

Mr. Thompson said "It would be difficult now to vote against" a non-confidence motion in the Liberal Government.

He said Prime Minister Pearson's government is "Not worth another chance."

Dupuis Ready To Prove Integrity

ST. JOHNS, Que. (CP)—Yvon Dupuis said Friday night he agreed with Prime Minister Pearson that he should resign from the cabinet while an RCMP investigation into a "scandalous affair" concerning a proposed race track in his riding is under way.

Mr. Dupuis, whose resignation from the cabinet was announced in Ottawa earlier Friday telephoned the following statement to The Canadian Press from his home:

"On my return from a long trip to Asia and Africa on an official mission for the Canadian government, I learned that a vague rumor was circulating in certain circles to the effect that I could be involved in a scandalous affair concerning a proposed race track at St. Luc in St. Jean County.

"I immediately asked the prime minister and the justice minister to start an RCMP inquiry with the aim of throwing some light on the matter. They immediately agreed to my request and the inquiry is currently in progress.

"Last Wednesday, I agreed with the prime minister that it would be preferable that I take no part in the cabinet during the course of the inquiry. Consequently, I asked him myself Friday to accept my resignation immediately as minister without portfolio.

"I must point out that I am in a position to prove my integrity. I have never, in the course of my political career, permitted any acts which could be, directly or indirectly, incompatible with my duties as an honest servant of the people. I will never allow any one to tarnish my reputation with impunity."

Iran Premier Out of Danger

TEHRAN (AP) — Premier Ali Mansour, wounded in an assassination attempt Thursday, was reported out of danger Friday night.

As the optimistic news was released, doctors were arriving from France, Britain and the United States to assist Iranian surgeons in treating him.

Mansour was struck down Thursday by two bullets as he stepped from his car to enter parliament. Three men have been arrested.

Russia Claims U.S. Trying To Create Crisis

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The Soviet Union accused the United States Friday of trying to paralyse the activities of the United Nations by creating an artificial crisis over peace-keeping assessments owed by the Russians and a dozen other nations.

In a statement to the press the Soviet Union delegation declared that the U.S. position was the only stumbling block preventing the General Assembly from returning to normal voting procedures.

The statement said the Soviet Union would make a substantial voluntary contribution to ease the UN's financial plight — but that the amount was Moscow's own business.

Stewart to Succeed Walker

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson Friday night named Michael Stewart, 58, foreign secretary in place of Patrick Gordon Walker.

An announcement gave the first official news of the resignation of 57-year-old Gordon Walker, defeated Thursday in a byelection.

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Black Brant rocket, with the greatest range of any rocket in the Commonwealth, was successfully fired 450 miles into space Friday from Churchill, Man.

Albert Fia, project manager, announced:

"It was the most successful flight we've ever had and it achieved all its objectives."

The 3000 - pound rocket carried 100 pounds of equipment for testing its motion and other characteristics in preparation for launching today of a Black Brant IV which will carry research instruments.

The rockets, named after a Canadian goose, will probe the earth's atmosphere for data on weather, pressures and the earth's contours.

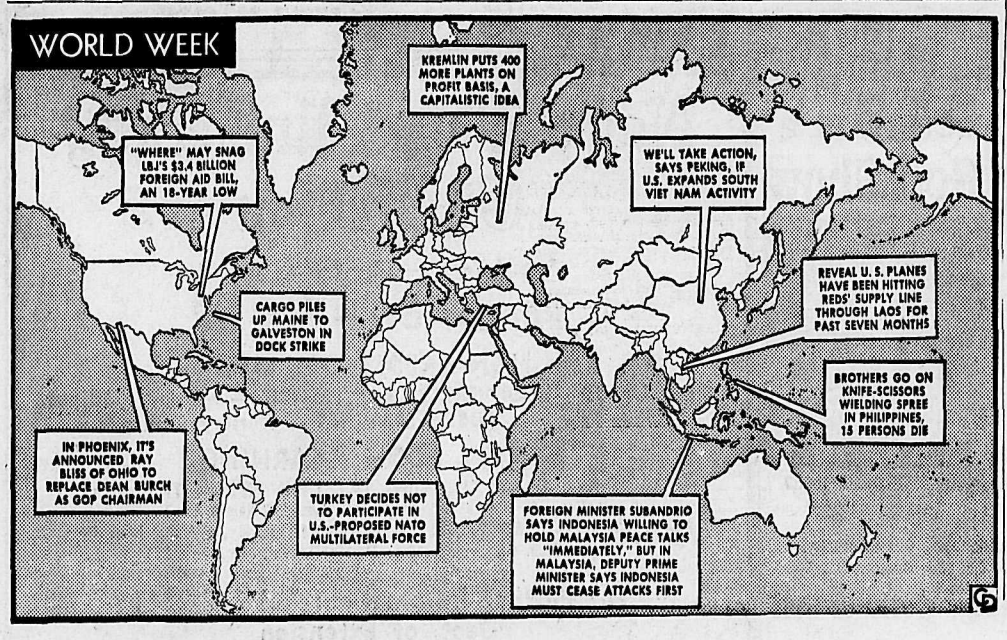
WORLD WEEK



Rivard Says Was Trying To Aid Friend Tremblay

By KEN KELLY

MONTREAL (CP) — Manacled Lucien Rivard testified Friday that he paid a June visit to Ottawa to ask the help of Liberal MP Guy Rouleau in getting a convict shifted to a prison here "and liberated."

The Gimlet - eyed narcotics conspiracy suspect told the Dorion inquiry the man he was trying to help was his "friend," Bob Tremblay, serving 20 years for attempted murder in a narcotics case in Vancouver.

Yves Fortier, a counsel at the inquiry, suggested that Tremblay was transferred from the prison at New Westminster, B.C., to St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary here 10 days after Rivard saw Mr. Rouleau, then parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson.

"I swear I don't know," said the stocky, thin-lipped, 49-year-old self-styled "hotelkeeper."

Rivard, suddenly summoned from another court case when three other witnesses scheduled to testify disappeared, said he visited Mr. Rouleau the same week he was arrested here Friday, June 19, on behalf of U.S. authorities to face charges connected with a huge dope-smuggling conspiracy.

Rivard, who admitted he has a criminal record, said he asked Mr. Rouleau "for information on how to go about getting Bob Tremblay transferred and liberated."

Rivard, who said he brought back "some little back-scratchers" from a visit to Japan a year ago, at first declared his Ottawa visit was "private."

Later, Paul Jolin, counsel for the New Democratic Party, said Rivard's visit to Mr. Rouleau is an "identical story" to that already being investigated by the commission.

The commission headed by Chief Justice Frederic Dorion is probing allegations of attempted bribery and influence-peddling by federal ministerial aides in Rivard's repeated tries to win release on bail.

SEEKS DETAILS

When Mr. Jolin sought more details in the case of Bob Tremblay, Chief Justice Dorion said:

"I have plenty to do now."

Tremblay was one of four men sentenced to 20 years each in the 1955 beating with lead pipes of Tom McKenna in Vancouver. Narcotics were involved.

Rivard, fighting extradition to the U.S., was given another post - ponement before Judge Francois Caron Friday. The judge said he will hand down his decision on Rivard's application for release on habeas corpus Jan. 28.

King Tut's Hord Travels Under Heavy Guard

VANCOUVER (CP) — King Tut's treasures came to Vancouver Friday — under such a blanket of secrecy that railway police didn't even know what they were guarding.

The cars of the train bringing the treasures from the east were shunted into a siding while a reception committee of police, Vancouver Art Gallery staff and press waited in vain at the railway station.

The four wooden crates containing the treasures were eventually loaded onto a truck and taken to the Art Gallery. Vancouver is one of six Canadian cities where the treasures of King Tutankhamun, discovered in Egypt in 1922 by British archeologist Howard Carter, are to be exhibited.

The 31 objects, ranging from gold daggers and vases to coffins and walking sticks, are valued at more than $5,000,000.

Mrs. Doris Shadbolt, Gallery curator, said they are the most valuable treasures ever to come to Vancouver.

The exhibition of the treasures at Canadian Art Galleries is sponsored by the National Gallery of Canada on behalf of the United Arab Republic.

Ski Team Combines Sport, Education, Rotarians Told

Of 25 National Ski Team members in Canada, 20 are in Nelson, Dave Jacobs, coach of the National ski team, told the Nelson Rotary Club Friday.

Enlightening his audience on the background purpose and hopes of the locally-based hickory group, the speaker described Nelson's locale as "a good spot" within easy proximity of both skiing facilities and the American border. The latter "gives us all the competition we need."

One of the major problems of the student-athlete was combining sport with education, the speaker said. Up to now, a skier who wanted to compete on a serious basis had to take time out from his studies and was even forced to quit school if a world tour was contemplated.

This was a particular problem in North America where "education is the thing." Not so in Europe, where a good part of the country's revenue came from athletic endeavors and tourists.

Recognizing the need for a remedy, the Canadian-American Ski Association evolved the sports - education idea. "This seems to be the solution to the problem,' said Mr. Jacobs, with favorable results reported in several major U.S., universities. By making good grades the criterion of success at sports, added incentive has been supplied to the academic endeavors, the speaker said.

"It's a challenge to see if we can compete and get a university education," he added. Another advantage cited by Mr. Jacobs was the prevention of juvenile delinquency.

NEED FINANCIAL AID

Admitting that it "takes a lot of money to run," the ski coach said he was hoping to obtain operating capital for the team from industry, or a "large sponsor."

Encouraging questions from the floor, Mr. Jacobs assured his audience that anyone on the ski team who didn't produce would be replaced. This was in reply to the query as to whether there was any possibility of replacement on the team within the next two years.

Asked whether the university exerted any control over the team, Mr. Jacobs replied that it was within his jurisdiction to decide a student's fate on the team, and that the main requisite was a balance between good grades and good athletic performance. He said there had already been several instances where a member of the ski team had been barred from participation due to poor scholastic showing.

"Is there any reason why most skiers are so small?" was another query from the floor.

The ideal male skiing specimen, Mr. Jacobs replied, was around five feet, nine inches in height, and in the vicinity of 160-70 pounds. Although there were exceptions, this was the best physical category since it provided speed with the necessary strength.

IN WORLD'S BEST

Some of the top performers listed by the ski coach included Nancy Greene, who, he said, was "one of the best women skiers in the world."

Karen Dokka of Vancouver and Vicki Rutledge, of Ottawa, also came high in Mr. Jacob's estimation. One of the oldest on the team was Ron Hebron of Vancouver, a senior at Oregon State University. Other top notchers included Peter Duncan, of Mt. Tremblant, Quebec, Bob Swan and Scott Henderson.

"This is a very young team," the speaker continued, with ages ranging from 15 to 17 years. Explaining the team's competition schedule, he said the group would take part in the Western Division Championships at Rossland up to February before journeying east for a week. Following that, the team would head for Sun Valley, Idaho, to test their mettle with top Swiss, French and Austrian skiers. Then would come the U.S. National Championships at Crystal Mountain.

GOOD SLALOM HILL

"How does the Nelson hill stack up?" he was asked.

"It's one of the best hills we've ever used for slalom," the ski coach said, adding that it would make a good Olympic slalom hill.

Expressing personal congratulations to the guest speaker, Helmuth Mayrhofer, chairman of the Rotary Magazine committee ,said "I think this is a real step forward and I hope you go beyond the two-year scheme." He also lauded the speaker's personal efforts in combining the problems of teaching mathematics at NDU with coaching responsibilities.

His sentiments were shared by Rotary president and chairman, John Stanger, who described Mr. Jacobs as being "both a credit to Canada and coaching."

M. R. Levitt Joins Art School Staff

A Richmond artist, M. R. Levitt, has been appointed to the staff of the Kootenay School of Art, it was announced Friday.

John H. Knight, principal of the British Columbia Vocational School and Kootenay School of Art, made the announcement, and said, that with the director of the art school, D. O. MacGregor, he looked for long strides forward in the sculpture and commercial art fields, which are Mr. Levitt's specialty.

Mr. Levitt, a former R.C.N.V.R. Petty Officer comes to Nelson from a lithograph company in Richmond, where he was employed for nine years as a senior graphic artist. During this time he had several carton designs patented and was the 1964 Silver Award Winner for Canadian carton design. He entered the commercial field in Saskatoon and later spent seven years with the Victoria Colonist as art director.

A graduate of the Institute of Technology and Art, Calgary, he took post-graduate studies under Jan Zach, director of the School of Sculpture and Architecture, University of Oregon.

A former president of the Northwest Institute of Sculpture, he has exhibited extensively in national and international shows, winning two Canada Council Cash Awards.

Mr. Levitt's wife, Winnifred, and twin daughters are at present residing at their home in Richmond.

Mr. MacGregor announced that Robert Kureluk of Edmonton, a commercial art student and former second year certificate graduate of the school, has been awarded the first Kokanee Chapter I.O.D.E. Tuition Scholarship.

Mr. Kureluk was selected for this honor through the excellence of his work in the first term of the 1964-65 year.

District Pupils Win Prizes In Contest

Four district school pupils won prizes in the Canadian Cancer Society 1964 essay-verse contest on smoking for Grade 6 and 7 students in British Columbia and the Yukon.

Provincial winner was a 12-year-old Fort St. John boy, Kevin Gainor, whose poem, "Should I Smoke?" won him $50.

District prizes went to Beryl Allen, Glenmerry Elementary School, Trail, first; and Sandra Morin, St. Joseph School, Nelson, second, for West Kootenay. Winners in East Kootenay were Robbie Little, McKim Junior High School, Kimberley, first; and Ron Price, Creston Elementary School, Creston, second.

The society switched its sights from high school students to elementary school pupils on smoking education because surveys indicated that students are at the point of decision on smoking at Grades 6 and 7. Response was more than double that received from high school students in the last essay contest on smoking in 1962.

NDU Students Name C. Steele President

Second year students at Notre Dame University of Nelson have named Charles Steele, Glace Bay, Nova Scotia, president for the remainder of the academic year. Miss Margaret Marra, Kamloops, has been elected sophomore representative on the student council.

Red Cross Treasurer Says Greater Efforts Required

Results of the 1964 Red Cross campaign were termed "somewhat disappointing" by P. D. V. Murison, treasurer of the Canadian Red Cross Society, Nelson Branch, at its regular meeting Thursday night.

Funds collected last year totalled $5845, as compared with $6544 in 1963, Mr. Murison reported, adding that "if our relative position is to be restored, it becomes apparent that even greater efforts will be required during 1965."

Relative to this year's drive which is scheduled for sometime in March, N. C. Stibbs, honorary president, suggested that "when the campaign is on, all those here will have to go out of their way to get others to assist in the campaign." He added that the drive required "a lot of canvassers," and reminded that there was currently no campaign manager.

PRAISES CANVASSERS

Local Red Cross president, and meeting chairman, L. M. McBride, lauded efforts of previous canvassers who, he said, "have been faithful over the years." He added that the campaign could be less difficult if "each one of us got one new canvasser." Although generally optimistic about the future campaign, it was felt by Mr. Stibbs that the heavy snowfall might hamper the drive.

Noting that this year's revenue fund already contained $125, the chairman saw this as an encouraging sign. "I certainly trust the campaign will be more successful than last year if everyone works," he told the meeting.

In his president's report, the chairman said that "1964 was a fairly successful year," despite the death of two members. Reminding members of the constant need for blood donors, he said the blood donors clinic had been "most successful" and that there had been a "certain drain on donors. He noted that Kootenay Lake General Hospital required a pint of blood a day. Last year this requirement had been met. Other business reported on by the chairman included results of the water safety program last year which was "gaining ground", with people becoming more safety con - scious. Work was continuing among suppressed and indigent peoples, the president reported. Since 1945, the work of the Red Cross was "going on, on every front."

Despite advertising appeals, response to the organization's home nursing course was poor, the chairman said, but there was encouragement in the fact that Fruitvale, Trail and Castlegar were initiating similar courses.

Junior Red Cross reports were given by Ken Kuhn and Connie Wassick. Mr. Kuhn told the meeting that member activity was good, Several money drives had been held, with auctions and a Hootenanny planned for the future. Dances and the sale of hot dogs netted $54, reported Connie Wassick. Ten dollars of that amount was sent to the Red Cross branch at Vancouver.

Complimenting the junior members for their efforts, Mr. McBride said it was "very gratifying to have the support of the Junior Red Cross," adding that through their work many less fortunate children were getting "a new start in life." Appreciation for Junior Red Cross progress was also expressed by Gary Walmsley, teacher-sponsor at Trafalgar Junior High School.

Other reports were given by Mrs. S. Morris and Mrs. Helen Friesan. Mrs. P. H. Dutton was appointed to attend the annual Division Convention meeting at Vancouver March 1 and 2 as Nelson Red Cross delegate.

Big Program Set For Burns' Night

In a ceremony dear to the tartan-traditioned soul of every true Scotsman, the beloved gastronomical delicacy of the kilt country, haggis, will be piped in by the Kootenay Kilties Pipe Band to begin the 206th Anniversary of Robert Burns Banquet tonight.

Emceed by Dan Crozier, proceedings will begin with an address by John Hogg, president of the Kilties Pipe Band, followed by an appropriate vocal solo by Roland Anderson.

After the saying of grace by E. A. Hircock, the traditional dish will be piped in by Kip Underwood. The haggis will be carried by Francine MacInnes, and addressed by David D. Paul.

A recitation, "Immortal Memories" by A. Waldie, and a toast to the Band will follow the banquet. Vocal solo will be sung by Roland Anderson, with musical selections by Norman Fishwick, of Castlegar, accompanied by Mrs. Brewster.

Contributing to the musical entertainment will be Kip Underwood, Ivan Laughton, Keith Langhorn and Rab Douglas. Accompaniment will also be provided by B. E. Ryall. Scottish singer Jock Hawkins will be included in the program, accompanied by Mrs. Brewster.

Highland dancing will be performed by Patty and Gay Langhorn, Jean Milne, Jo-Anne MacInnes and Sheila Hogg. Dance master of ceremonies will be Mr. Paul.

The event will conclude with dancing.

Social Workers Told Avoid Gobbledegook

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — "Gobbledegook" and pretentious language used by social workers frequently give the impression that professionals in social welfare are remote, insensitive and cold, says a former president of the Canadian Welfare Council.

Mrs. Kaspar Fraser of Toronto, herself an experienced social worker, writes in the current edition of the council's magazine:

"Somehow it is hard for the outsider to believe that a person who writes about a street-corner boy that he is 'lacking in motivation' really cares much about him."

Mrs. Fraser says the general public might pay more attention to the needs and opinions of social workers if the workers expressed themselves more clearly.

"Let me give a few examples. The first is from a social worker who was doing a survey in Toronto before the days of public day nurseries. She happened to be an American, but that is beside the point; Canadians talk much the same.

"Remarking on the large number of children on the waiting lists, she wrote: 'None of these children have been processed for eligibility.'

"When asked: 'Do you mean we don't know whether they should have nursery care or not?' she said 'Yes.'"

Mrs. Fraser also tells of an article she read recently about people of small means who were burdened with debts by the "buy now and pay later" method.

"It was said that they had lost hope, but if they could once get free from debt, 'their ambition could be re-activated.'"

The writer, who was made an honorary life member of the Canadian Welfare Council in 1961, believes there is a great need for clear English when speaking or writing about the social sciences because most laymen who concern themselves with such professions as law or medicine do so because they think it is in their own interest.

"They do not feel the same need to take any interest in social matters."

CHURCH FILLED FOR FUNERAL AT RIONDEL

Mass of the Angels was celebrated at the Holy Redeemer Church at Riondel Friday morning for Miss Christine Margaret Soriat, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Soriat, who died in the Kootenay Lake General Hospital, Tuesday.

Rev. A. Clarmont was the celebrant and interment took place in the Gray Creek Cemetery.

Pallbearers were James Green, Joe Andrusiak, David Comfort and John Muise. The church was filled and there were many floral tributes.

No New Taxes Planned For Medicare — Bennett

VICTORIA (CP) — Premier Bennett has let it be known he plans no new taxes to meet the cost of a limited medical insurance plan heralded in Thursday's throne speech opening the 1965 session of the B.C. legislature.

The Premier's assurance came in the form of an interjection in the House Friday as Bert Price (SC — Vancouver-Burrard) spoke to his motion on the address in reply to the throne speech.

Mr. Price said he favors a comprehensive medicare program and feels his opinion is shared by most government members although he had no idea what type of plan the government has in mind.

"There is no doubt the people will welcome medicare," he said. "The only question is can we afford it."

He said the scheme should be paid for through an "equitable form of taxation."

"The public should be told what it will be paying and what the cost will be."

At this point the premier interjected with a smile that there would be "no increase in taxes in British Columbia."

The throne speech said the government plans legislation to provide for government contributions "toward the cost of medical insurance services for citizens whose incomes are at lower levels."

"Such assistance would be granted in connection with approved medical plans and would be on a voluntary basis."

Mr. Bennett has said the plan will cost "many millions of dollars" and cover those whose incomes are insufficient for them to pay the full premiums of private medical insurance plans.

There has been no indication of when the B.C. plan will go into operation, and the premier has declared the province still wants to join a national health plan if and when one is produced.

Response to Spring Thaw "Overwhelming"

DAVE BROADFOOT

"Anybody know where a fella can get a couple of reserved seats for "Spring Thaw", is the question being heard along Baker Street these days as dozens of disappointed ticket seekers are turned away, empty handed from the Nelson Civic Centre office.

The sold out sign for reserved seats went up less than a week after they went on sale for the second annual visit to Nelson of Canada's favorite revue.

C. W. R. Harper, Spring Thaw committee chairman for Nelson Rotary club, which is promoting the show, said Friday: "The tickets went like wildfire. I'm overwhelmed. The response was good last year, but nothing like this."

Mr. Harper said that of the 899 seats available in Civic Theatre, 829 have been sold. He revealed that 71 'rush seats' were withheld from the original block offered for sale, and they will go on sale at the theatre box office on a first-come first-served basis, Thursday night.

The all-new revue features many of Canada's best known stage and television personalities, including Dave Broadfoot, Ed. MacNamara, Eve Law, Allan Lund and last year's Spring Thaw sensation, Barbara Hamilton.

Lund is probably the country's most famous dancer and choreographer, having appeared on Canadian television on numerous occasions.

LAMPOONS FOIBLES

Spring Thaw operates on the theory that Canadians are willing to enjoy a good laugh at their own expense so long as the humor is well presented and in good taste.

The theory has proved correct and the revue is entering its 18th successful season.

It opened its road tour in Victoria Wednesday with dates scheduled for Vancouver for Thursday, Friday and tonight.

Broadfoot drew the most favorable opening-night reviews. He is reported as being particularly hilarious in a skit in which Miss Hamilton assists him to spoof Canadian television commercials.

DEMAND OVERWHELMING

Referring to the demand for tickets as 'overwhelming', Rotary officials observed that the show would probably draw well enough in both Nelson and Trail to warrant two-night stands in the Kootenay centres. Requests for seats from Trail have been received at the Nelson ticket office and vice versa.

Unfortunately, the schedule does not provide for an extension of engagements.

The Rotary club will follow its presentation of Spring Thaw with an appearance in February, of the Winnipeg Ballet Company.

Library Loaned 50,000 Books During 1964

More than 50,000 books were loaned by Nelson's Municipal Library in 1964, an increase of more than 6000 books, the librarian's report to the Library Board reveals.

Number of fiction and non-fiction volumes loaned to adults totalled 34,319; and to juveniles, 15,747, for a total of 50,066 books. Of these, 21,733 were adult fiction and 12,076 juvenile, Mrs. M. A. Stockell, reported.

In the previous year, 43,828 books were taken out by adults and juveniles.

In addition, 1002 books were circulated at Kootenay Lake General Hospital, to bring the grand total to 51,068 books. In 1963, the grand total was 44,829 books, including 1001 circulated at the hospital.

Added to the number of volumes at the library were 595 non-fiction and fiction adult books and 273 juvenile books, or a total of 868, compared to 723 a year ago.

There were 2314 books mended, compared to 1445 in 1963; and number of volumes in the library reached 16,384, compared to 15,651 the previous year.

New and renewed registrations totalled 934 adult and juvenile readers, compared to 904 in 1963; and total number of registered borrowers reached 2705, compared to 2605.

Duncan Riverbed Holes Interest Skindivers

LARDEAU — Deep holes in the riverbed interested skindivers Robert Burns and Keith Fleming, who enoyed a swim in the Duncan River Sunday.

Entering the water near the dam-site, they hoped to emerge at the Duncan-Lardeau bridge, but several log-jams across the river made this plan inadvisable.

Newcomers at the Duncan dam project, the men were surprised at the number of deep holes in the riverbed, some from 20 to 30 feet in depth.

They were quite disappointed in not seeing any of the fish the area is noted for. Despite an air temperature of about 34 degrees, the men found the water quite comfortable. They swam about a mile and a half downstream before climbing to the roadside, where a truck awaited them.

MAJOR OPERATION

ADEN (AP)—Britain is carrying out major dredging operations in militarily strategic Aden harbor to provide facilities for her largest aircraft carriers and frigates, a Middle East Command spokesman announces. The project, partly completed, will cost about $560,000.

Cooper Creek Parksite, Sturgeon Spawning Topics Of Lardeau Trade Board

LARDEAU — Possibility of a park site at Cooper Creek was discussed at a recent meeting of the Lardeau District Board of Trade which also heard of studies regarding sturgeon in the Kootenay to Duncan Lake area.

Parks Branch official M. E. Goddard of Nelson and Fish and Game Branch conservation officer Ted Rutherglen of Nelson addressed the board and answered questions on their respective fields.

Consideration was given to development of the provincial government park area at Cooper Creek. Due to the increasing population, it was felt that this is a good time to improve this park. There is a possibility of some matching funds to augment the monies raised locally, the board was advised. This park-site borders Cooper Creek from the bridge to the Argenta road and down to the river about equidistant from the creek.

STURGEON

Several queries were made about sturgeon spawning grounds along the shores of Kootenay Lake near Argenta. Although studies are so far incomplete, it was felt necessary to curtail log dumping in the area and a message was brought in in the early fall by helicopter to close the Argenta lakefront to this practice.

Studies are being made to ascertain if sturgeon fish travel from Kootenay Lake to Duncan Lake, where several large sturgeon have been sighted. One large one provided steaks for quite a number of residents a while back.

Ken Bowles was named to head the wildlife committee, Ernest Alexander, the tourist committee; C. R. Waldie as alternate delegate to the Kootenay-Columbia Development Committee, which will meet in Nelson this weekend; Tony Visnoski heads the roads and bridges committee.

A campaign for more definite commitment on power for the Lardeau Valley was urged.

The wildlife committee was asked to press for an extension to the elk hunting season this fall. A count of between 300 and 500 elk was reported in the valley and surrounding areas show imminent over-grazing of deer pasture.

Grand Forks Library Had Larger Year

GRAND FORKS—Grand Forks public library showed growth in all its activities in 1964 according to figures reported at the annual meeting held in the library.

There were 13 attending the meeting.

There were 4509 books in the library, 2400 adults and 2086 juvenile. There were 169 adult borrowers and 342 juvenile borrowers for a total of 511.

The year saw 9362 books borrowed, 5037 adult and 4325 juvenile. Eight librarians and two volunteer assistants staffed the library.

Election of board members took place and the following were chosen to operate the library for the coming year: Mrs. E. S. Reynolds, A. C. Clapp, Mrs. Anne MacKay, Mrs. Cliff Kohn, Mrs. Phil Acres, Bob Brown, Mrs. Jim Glanville, Mrs. D. A. Perley, Jim Kermeen, Mrs. O. Rusch, Miss Edna Stuart, Mrs. Orma Orris and Mrs. Mary Roots.

NATAL DOCTOR GETS PARTNER

NATAL — Dr. C. N. Wong has joined Dr. L. R. Amundson in practice in the Natal-Michel district and has taken up residence in Sparwood with his wife and daughter Nancy.

Dr. Wong arrived last week from Hybord, Manitoba, where he practiced for the past year and a half.

Dr. Wong completed his internship at St. Louis, Missouri, and had post-graduate training in two hospitals for two years in Regina and one year post-graduate training at Winnipeg General Hospital.

Dr. Amundson, resident doctor, has been the lone physician for most of the time during the past few years. Dr. Amundson, who has served the area for many years, had his partnership severed some four years ago when Dr. R. R. Glasgow moved to Edmonton. During that time, Dr. Amundson had been able only on a few occasions to secure the services of another doctor, and that for short periods. The Natal-Michel district was previously served by two doctors who had worked in partnership.

Weekend First Aid Classes Prove Popular

NATAL — Sponsored by the Natal Centre to the St. John Ambulance Association, a series of lectures on first aid started the past weekend in the Michel-Natal Elementary School.

Classes were held on Saturday with 25 persons attending and on Sunday with 28 persons in attendance.

Instructor throughout the first aid classes is Bernard Keeling of Natal, who has also undertaken the lecturing part of the course.

This year the officers of Natal Centre to the St. John Ambulance Association consist of president Paul Kusnir; vice-president Reggie Taylor, and secretary-treasurer Bernard Keeling of Sparwood, Michel and Natal respectively.

New Jewett School Open, Pupils Move

LARDEAU — School children in the valley have moved into permanent quarters from the various sites where they were temporarily established.

The new Jewett School unit at Meadow Creek being ready for occupancy, George Webber's grades 1, 2 and 3 were moved from Argenta School to the new classroom at Jewett. Mrs. Flora Semark's grades 4, 5, 6 and 7 moved into the renovated room and the senior class left the Lardeau School and moved into the Argenta classroom.

Hugh Herbison is the high school teacher and principal of valley schools.

The Howser School will remain open, with Mrs. Mae Greenlaw as teacher.

A trailer unit classroom is expected to be in use shortly and the old log school may be used again if an increase in enrolment merits it.

Gray Creek

GRAY CREEK—Mr. and Mrs. Jim Richards and their two daughters, Carol and Sandra, are having an extended visit with Mrs. Richards' parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Oliver. Mr. Richards' mother accompanied them. She was on her way to spend the winter with her daughter at Bellingham, Wash., but road conditions delayed the journey.

GRAY CREEK — Mrs. Rose is a patient in Kootenay Lake General Hospital at Nelson. Her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Bruce, make frequent visits to see her.

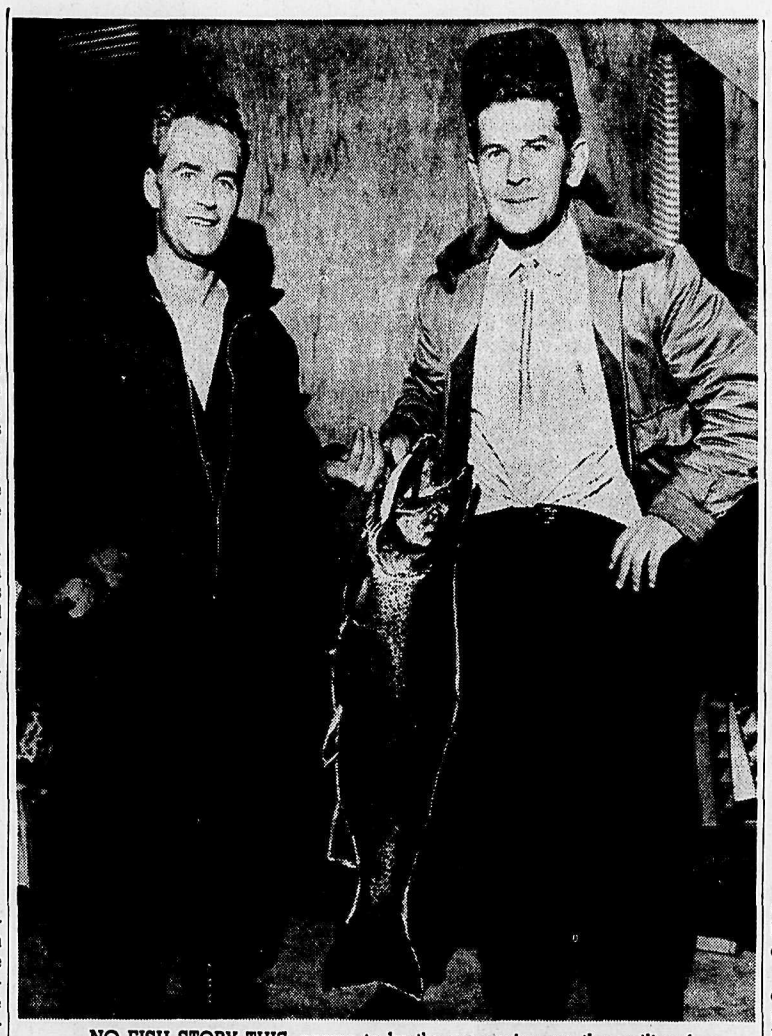
Horst Wirsig was taken to the hospital in Nelson, also, where he was operated on for appendicitis and complications. He is making good progress.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Wirsig have returned from Ontario after spending the holiday season with their sons, Mr. and Mrs. Claus Wirsig and family of Scarborough and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wirsig of Brockville. The party was joined by Miss Seiglinde Wirsig from Quebec.

Any fish caught lately have been Dolly Vardens. These have been in fine condition, with deep red flesh and plenty of fat, much more like a salmon than is usual.

When cleaning the fish, the float is found to be of a brilliant rainbow color, blue, mauve and crimson.

The heaviest fish has been 13 pounds three ounces, caught by John Larsen.



NO FISH STORY THIS, seems to be the expression on the smiling face of Samuel Oberg, of Kaslo, left, who caught the 22½-pound Kamloops Trout (centre) Sunday morning at Kaslo Bay. Helping to hold the catch for the cameraman is friend, John Bendis, of Trail.

Cremation Follows 'Forks Rites

GRAND FORKS — Funeral service was held Wednesday for Mrs. Lillian May Hinch, who died at the Boundary Hospital after a short illness, at the age of 71.

Mrs. Hinch was born in Savannah, Georgia, and lived in the United States till her marriage to H. O. Hinch 52 years ago, when they moved to Canada. They lived in Vancouver for a short while till they came to Trail, where Mr. Hinch was employed by the CM & S.

When Mr. Hinch retired in 1943, they came to Christina Lake and then came to Grand Forks nine years ago.

Mrs. Hinch had many local interests. She was active in the work of the United Church, was a member of the Minesweepers Club, also the Hospital Auxiliary and the United Church Women.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two sons, Harold O. Hinch of Cranbrook and Gard Hinch of South Holland, Ill. Also surviving are six grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

Services were held from St. John's United Church with Rev. Glen Betts officiating.

Cremation followed.

Family attending the services from out-of-town were: Harold O. Hinch of Cranbrook and Gard Hinch of South Holland, Ill., and six grandchildren, Judy Jolliffe, Calgary, Doreen Thompson, Creston; Donna Hinch, Vancouver; Wendy Hinch, Creston; Mrs. Tony (Editha) Trunsberger, Creston, and Mrs. Harry McKeen of South Holland, Ill.

CIVIL DEFENCE HEAD HOLDS CRESTON MEET

CRESTON — Walter W. Wait of Nelson met with civic delegates and interested personnel relative to the organization and planning of Civil Defence.

It was pointed out that each level of government, federal, provincial and municipal, has areas of responsibility in Civil Defence and all differ in some way from each other.

"Planning," stated Mr. Wait, "is one of the best assurances that any given municipality will make the most of its resources and personnel."

Mr. Wait outlined the Civil Defence legislation concerning the federal and provincial governments, and covered the bylaw passed by the 1962 Creston commission.

Most of the elementary planning has been done on the local level and only specific services remain to be formed. Such a task will involve a co-ordinator, who will meet with the various committee leaders and will begin plans for a final and definite line of operation.

Those attending the conference from Creston included: chairman H. L. Dodd, Commissioners G. Knezacek and Dr. K. Marling; T. E. Gautier, Civil Defence co-ordinator; J. Langlois, Joe Colombo, Captain L. W. Charman and Charles French.

Wolfram in Chair For G. Forks Board

GRAND FORKS — Carl Wolfram took the chair after being installed as president of the Grand Forks Board of Trade at the annual banquet and meeting held in the parish hall.

Others on the slate are Bill Strachan, first vice-president; W. A. Malloff, second vice-president. Directors are Don Romses, Tom McDonnell, Herb Clark, E. C. Henniger, Leo Mills, Art Stavenjord, Neville Collett and George Griffin.

Mayor Alfred Downey brought greetings from the city and congratulated the board on the "excellent work" it was doing and the "splendid co-operation" between the city council and the board which had been in evidence the past few years. The council, he remarked, was always ready to receive any recommendations the board might make to it.

Dave Pugh, MP, of Oliver, was a guest at the meeting and spoke briefly congratulating the board on the work it was doing and pointed out several ways in which it might assist in the development of the district.

Guest speaker for the evening was Stanley Orris.

Trustees Named To Committees

CRESTON — H. C. Anderson, who was recently re-elected chairman of the Board of School Trustees for his 18th year (ninth term), has announced his 1965 committees.

These are (first person named in each office is chairman of that committee): vice-chairman, W. Fraser; finance, Wes Scott, John Armitage; transportation, Wilf White, L. Sweeting; teachers and personnel, W. Fraser and board; East Kootenay representative, L. Sweeting; recreational commissioner, Wilf White; buildings and grounds, A. W. Burch, J. Armitage; education committee, all chairmen.

Gray Creek

Boyd Lindsay drove up from Bonner's Ferry. He related an unfortunate experience on his return drive last time he had visited Gray Creek. Before reaching Creston, near Boundary Creek, Mr. Lindsay ran into a deer. His car went off the road and down the bank. Luckily he was wearing thick winter clothes and had his seat belt fastened. He was rescued by Dr. Ness and on examination at Creston was found to have been badly bruised. His car was considerably damaged.

Committees Named To Serve Local 480

TRAIL — At a special meeting convened by Local 480 this week, standing committees for the coming year were elected.

Eight committees were installed to take charge of the varied activities required in the local, such as safety and hygiene, legislative and political action, job evaluation and welfare.

Vice-president elect Norman Gabana will head the safety and hygiene group. The safety committee is composed of plant representatives, whose duty is to inspect the plants periodically to ensure that safety standards set up by the Workmen's Compensation Board and company regulations are adhered to. The committee also participates in the investigation of any disability accident that occurs.

The legislative and political action committee, under the chairmanship of Jack Kelly, has had its terms of reference enlarged so it may assist in developing civic programs and encourage union members to participate in municipal affairs.

Vincent (Chief) Georgetti, recently retired baseball and softball umpire, will be in charge of the welfare committee.

Other committee chairmen elected: Bill Kew, entertainment; Joe Luke, job evaluation; Loyal Brown, membership; Herb Vanderberg, building; Elmer Pontius, press and publicity.

The 17-member executive board, elected by a referendum vote in November, was installed at a regular membership meeting held in the second week in January, and has now assumed its duties.

Elections and installation of the shop steward body have also been completed.

School Budget Shows Surplus Of $11,755

CRESTON — The school balance sheet for Creston District No. 5, year ended 1964, showed a surplus of $11,755.

The total is subject to audit yet, in 1964, Creston had one of the lowest provincial mill-rate increases, 1.78 mills. The budget and mill-rate were set by H. K. Legg, board finance chairman, who was defeated in the December, 1964, school trustee election.

Part of the surplus may be applied on 1965 debt service which should provide some relief to local taxpayers.

Last year's "year of transformation" included administration changes, school construction, and school transportation purchases, yet only harsh scrutiny of expenditures resulted in the surplus.

New Line of Thought in Education

Higher education has been looked on simply as a means that will enable graduates to fulfil their worth in the material avenues which personally and nationally enrich a country. The greater the acquisition of knowledge, so proportionately are the prospects of those who benefit from studies on the highest levels.

Knowledge in the modern specialized age has come to supplant man's muscle energy in the occupational realms of human activity, where the demand for graduates well educated in managerial, technical and professional work exceeds the number of such recruits.

This has been stressed in recent speeches by Dr. Malcolm Taylor, the first and patently very able president of Victoria's new university, and he has illustrated that since the war North American regions which have enjoyed the greatest expansion are those which contain universities. The proximity of such institutions draws the industrial complex which depends on scientific research and the knowledge that universities create and impart.

Dr. Taylor has introduced a new line of thought by pointing out that the impact of higher learning concerns not only the material factors of life. The development of brainpower and innate talent is essential so that a nation may not fall behind, but a fresh element of future human weal is that of a rising quality of life, as distinct from standards of living.

This touches on the increase in automation, which is growing to the foreseeable extent that the majority of advanced western peoples may not work at all but have their lives filled with the at present imponderable of massive leisure.

No less than the acquisition of technical skills and professional attainment, therefore, will come the need for knowledge derived from higher education so that human life may be fruitful even if not geared to the norm of workaday existence. Life-long learning, says Dr. Taylor, will be the key to the enrichment of things of the mind and spirit.

If men and women of the future do not have to work as the world has always thought of work, therefore, idleness and boredom could breed problems grievously disturbing to human society. It is in this realm that Dr. Taylor envisages an additional role and reason for the higher education that institutions like his own can provide.

Are Jumbo Jets the Answer

Not the supersonic passenger plane but the 500-seat subsonic "jumbo jet" may be the aircraft of the future.

The British government's openly expressed distaste for the Anglo-French Concord project has made production of that supersonic plane unlikely. This in turn has given American planners pause.

The major objection to supersonic passenger planes is that those so far designed are unsuitable for long-range flights. They must carry so much fuel for ranges above 2500 miles they cannot be economically operated.

To this is added the sonic bang problem.

The American defence department is now designing a 600-seat subsonic troop transport.

Airlines are known to consider these enormous two-deck planes commercially attractive. North Atlantic traffic has now reached 100 flights a day with over 13,000-seat capacity. At current fares it is estimated that the jumbo jets will be profitable to operate with slightly more than one seat out of three filled.

If the big planes are developed on a military budget, airlines could afford to order them in relatively small numbers and use them on the busiest long-range routes. Since they would fly at the same speed as present operating jets they could be worked into current schedules.

They would not be in production until the 1970s. Their weight — perhaps as much as 400 tons — would create problems in airport design and construction. Even so, they may offer a desirable alternative to the supersonic jet with its $1 billion development cost.

Few airlines really desired the supersonic airliner. Both U.S. and European projects were pressed as matters of national prestige. They offered most expensive prestige and planes of unnecessary speed. In the present state of the designer's art it is doubtful if they would perform any useful function for the air lines, particularly in the lucrative Atlantic trade.

The British wish to postpone, perhaps permanently, production of the Concord. This will relax pressure on the Americans and their supersonic program. The Russians are apparently not interested in supersonic commercial flight. The jumbo jet now looks like a practical alternative.

If it replaces the planned supersonic airliner it could save a great deal of waste and relieve many serious doubts in the airline industry.

Knocking "Dropout" For a Loop

Much of the increase in Grade 13 enrolment this year can be attributed to the campaign against school dropouts. The figures show that 32,770 students are at present enrolled in Grade 13 across the province. This is nearly 25 per cent higher than 1963.

The campaign against dropouts has been hard-hitting and widespread. Not many Ontario high school students or their parents have not heard it said that a person who leaves school prematurely faces a future of low income and frequent skirmishes with unemployment.

A student who completes Grade 13 is far more likely to reach an upper income plateau than a boy or girl who leaves at a lower education level. Obviously many students now believe this to be true.

That fact alone poses a problem for universities next year. Many of the Grade 13 students will wish to go to an educational level that will give them opportunities to rise even higher on the economic tree. It is expected in fact that at least one third of those in Grade 13 will attempt to enter university next autumn. Or approximately 2500 more than this year's freshman class.

Fortunately, most Ontario universities will be able to accept more students next fall. York University, for example, will provide for 400 more on its new campus.

By 1970 there will be at least 20,000 young citizens seeking entrance to Ontario universities. That is why many seats of higher learning, including our own McMaster, have been conducting fund-raising drives. They want to be able to cope with the tidal wave.

The enrolment explosion is one that sounds like music to listening ears. Most of us may live to see the day when it will knock dropout from the language. — Hamilton Spectator.

Nova Scotia Views Central Canada's Economy With Envy

HALIFAX (CP) — Any Nova Scotian worth his salt can say central Canada in a way that sounds like an epithet.

Nova Scotia, struggling to lift its economy after decades of lag, has some strong and bitter views on the manufacturing growth experienced by Ontario and, to a lesser extent, Quebec since the turn of the century.

"Confederation," says a senior government official with the patient air of one pointing out the obvious, "was not fair to us.

"It ended what had been our historic trading patterns and led to tariffs that greatly benefitted central Canada—but hurt us.

"People in Ontario now complain about government subventions on our coal going into their markets, but I say what about the tariffs we pay on cars or washing machines so their industries are protected?

"If we could get them from the U.S. instead of having to buy through the tariffs put up to help central Canada, we could get a Ford $1,000 cheaper than we now pay."

The economic problems facing Nova Scotia, and the rest of the Maritimes, are well known: Lack of capital investment, troubled key industries, long distances from major Canadian markets and a general reputation as a depressed area.

SHIPPING COSTS HIGH

Aggressive selling and a sudden surge of confidence in their star is changing much of that, but many problems remain.

A major one, especially in view of Nova Scotia's new emphasis on manufacturing industries, is the cost of shipping goods to central Canadian markets.

The situation may get worse; many people now expect the end of the Maritime freight subsidies is in sight. If so, says Premier Robert Stanfield, substantially higher freight rates will follow.

"That," he said in an interview, "will make it difficult to ship goods."

As a result, suggests one businessman, Nova Scotia will have to concentrate on industries that either will supply a product to central Canada that is not now made there, or will settle for the smaller—though still potentially lucrative—Maritime market of 2,000,000 people.

The flow of investment capital is increasing, helped by some potent benefits offered through the government's industry - promotion arm, Industrial Estates Ltd.

But, says a Toronto banker, Nova Scotia will have to show the money capitals it can offer returns as well as inducements before it gets the investments it wants and needs.

COAL FUTURE UNCERTAIN

Coal mining, long a key in Nova Scotia's economy, is showing signs of stability after years of difficulty—but no one can say how long the situation will last.

After the Second World War, mine closings cut the work force of 12,000 by half, although the value of production during that period increased to $45,000,000 from $30,000,000.

Markets, however, are at best uncertain. Much of the present-day production is used in electrical generating stations, and economically competitive nuclear stations are waiting in the wings.

When they take the stage, and some engineers say this could happen within five years, the last major market for coal will disappear.

Some potentially serious competition is seen for Dominion Steel and Coal Co. Ltd., another long - time industrial giant, in new steel mills to be built in Quebec and New Brunswick.

One union official says the company already has lost some of its competitive edge because it did not expand its operations as did Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. at Hamilton and Algoma Steel Corp. at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

EMPLOYMENT UP

Company officials, of course, disagree. They emphasize the company established a production record in 1963 and employment is up to 3,600 men compared with 1,900 in 1961 when 1,500 men had been laid off because of poor business.

One difference with today's situation, however, the union executive says, is that everyone —government, business and labor—is aware of the problems and is determined to do something about them.

"I'm not saying everyone agrees on what the solution should be, but at least we do agree a solution must be found.

"And that's half the battle right there."

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — The value of building permits issued here last year nearly tripled the value of the previous year. Home, apartment and school projects helped boost the total to $3,639,290. The 1963 total was $1,621,964.

From Stuttgart to Moscow 2250 Miles of Mountains

John Best, Canadian Press correspondent in Moscow, and his wife Joan made a 2,250-mile motor trip from West Germany to the Soviet capital in 10 days. The difficult mid-winter trip is described in this story.

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—From Stuttgart, West Germany, to Moscow is a distance of 2,250 miles travelling by way of Austria, Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union. It's not what you'd call a well-worn tourist trail.

The route has opened up a bit in recent years for motoring travellers but they generally stick to the warm - weather months. Winter is a different story.

"You'll be setting a record," a German friend told me before we left Stuttgart. "Nobody has ever gone in by this route so late in the season."

Certainly few Westerners have motored through the Carpathian Mountains of eastern Czechoslovakia and the western Ukrain at this time of year, and for good reason.

The Carpathians aren't high as mountains go, but icy

On two successive nights, because of driving snowstorms in the mountains, we didn't reach our stopover point until midnight—actually 2 a.m. in one case because of two-hour time differential over the span of 250 miles from Kosice in Czechoslovakia to Lvov in the Ukraine.

Night comes early in those regions in winter. By mid-afternoon daylight begins to fade and by 4 p.m. it's dark. In the morning, darkness lingers until 9 a.m.

Traffic in the mountains was negligible. One night we travelled more than an hour without seeing another vehicle.

We made the journey in 10 days, counting one-day stops in Vienna, Lvov, Kiev and Kharkov.

From Uzhgorod, just inside the Soviet - Czech border, to roads compound the complications posed by hairpin turns and precipitous inclines.

Kharkov, where we ceased going eastward and wheeled north to Moscow, is a distance of just under 800 miles.

And yet, to give some idea of the immensity of this land, that's only about one-fifth of the distance from Uzhgorod to the Kamchatka Peninsula on the Soviet Union's Pacific shore.

The route to Moscow is studded with place names that recall the titanic struggles of the Second World War—Kiev, Kharkov, Kursk, Orel, Tula. Here and there, in the fields just off the highway, abandoned command bunkers can still be seen.

SOME BORDERS GUARDED

The trip leaves one with a kaleidoscope of impressions. There is Stuttgart, bustling and prosperous, one of the industrial capitals of booming West Germany and headquarters of the Mercedes-Benz auto empire.

There is Vienna, as gay and carefree as it's supposed to be; stores bulging with goods; wide, spangled shopping streets.

Entering and leaving Austria is informal; they don't even stamp your passport. In Czechoslovakia there are armed guards, rigid and time-consuming formalities—customs, immigration, currency.

A sentry tower stands on the Czech side of the border with Austria and there is a foot-patrol of two armed men and a dog on the lookout for persons trying to flee the country.

The Soviet border is different again. Accommodating officials are apologetic about the formidable red tape, constantly assuring us that much of the question-and-answer routine is strictly "formality."

Driving on Soviet roads is hazardous, especially at night. Vehicles with no tail - lights, drivers who don't bother to signal, poor route directions through towns, people in dark clothing all over the highway, unlighted buggies are just a few of the things you have to contend with.

SHIPPING PILES UP—The freight yards are backed up with full boxcars at Weehawken, N.J., in the strike of some 60,000 Longshoremen down the Atlantic Coast and around the Gulf Coast. Meanwhile, ILA President Thomas W. Gleason is appealing to the dockers to reconsider the once-rejected contract offer. The photo looks east across the Hudson.

Interpreting the News

Red China Relations

By ARCH MacKENZIE

Public opinion polls say evidence Americans are thinking much more about better relations with Communist China is growing.

A group of U.S. West Coast businessmen, affiliated with the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, has called for improvements leading toward trade. Their report cites the growing volume of business being harvested by Britain, France, Canada and others.

This sort of U.S. public thaw is still small, but significant.

However, the time is past when the United States could easily kiss and make up after the U.S. pondered recognition of Communist China in 1950 and then ran into a Korean War.

SET HIGH PRICE

The informed American brief is China has set her price skyhigh with her first nuclear blast, the downfall she welcomed of Nikita Khrushchev in Russia and continued Communist successes in South Viet Nam.

There is even some doubt Communist China, even if it finally did have the necessary votes, would accept a United Nations seat. Its leaders say no, unless Nationalist China is banned from every UN branch.

U.S.-Communist Chinese contact has been limited to stiff and sterile discussions at Warsaw. These have been on a take-it-or-leave-it basis for some time as far as China is concerned, U.S. sources say.

The asking price is U.S. abandonment of Nationalist-held Formosa. Only then could a start be made on secondary channels of better relations.

Thus, when the U.S. proposed an exchange of journalists, China wasn't interested, Americans say. There still are some 50 American reporters who have full authority to go to China but who can't get Chinese permission.

MTDICAL MAN BARRED

There have been other examples of Chinese frigidity, the Americans say. One recent case involved the barring of a prominent American medical figure heading for a specialists' conference in China.

There is no indication the U.S. is planning an alternative to its stout defence of the Chiang Kai-shek regime on Formosa, not even the two-China policy in the UN proposed by Canada and other countries.

But there are signs that the U.S. is reviewing ways to broaden contact including trade—if China lets it.

Winston Churchill II Shows Famous Spirit of Adventure

LONDON (AP) — While Sir Winston Churchill lies struggling for life, another Winston Churchill shows signs of the same vigorous mixture of adventurous journalism and political engagement.

The younger Churchill is Sir Winston's grandson, named Winston Spencer like his grandfather. His father is Sir Winston's son, Randolph, also a journalist but "not so successful politician."

Young Winston is 24 and already making a career as a freelance writer and broadcaster. He aims eventually to specialize in political journalism and move from Fleet Street into the House of Commons.

That, as the young Winston points out, is the way his grandfather started. In 1895, at the age of 21, Sir Winston was in Cuba reporting the revolt against the Spaniards.

"A famous name can be terrible if you are lousy," he said. "The comparisons would be unbearable. But if you are any good, it helps."

Winston's first practical newspapering came in New York. In 1959, on vacation in America from Oxford University, he worked for two months with the Wall Street Journal.

One of his editors there described him as enthusiastic and talented.

Young Winston, a qualified pilot, has flown the Atlantic in a light plane.

In the winter of 1963-64, with his friend Arnold von Bohlen, nephew of German industrialist Alfred Krupp, he took the famed plane on an adventurous jaunt through the Middle East and East Africa to the Cape.

Soon after they started, Winston was in print with his first dispatches as a war correspondent. They came from the Yemen, where the Imam Badr's Royalist government was fighting Republican rebels.

He has the Churchill good looks, the Churchill red hair, and the Churchill guts. At 14, he shot alone down the Crestai Run, Switzerland's toughest bobsled track where many experts have crashed. He was the youngest ever to attempt it from the top and reached 80 miles an hour.

He was married last year to Mary d'Erwangeg, daughter of a wealthy London businessman.

Income Tax Tips

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax office.

By C. A. MILLER
Retired Supervising Assessor, Income Tax Department

PARTIAL DEPENDENTS

Partially supported dependents sometimes cause the taxpayer a great deal of confusion and he usually errs in claiming the full exemption for them.

In the case of an adult dependent the maximum claim is $550. If the taxpayer is the only contributor to the dependent's support, then he must claim the lesser of his contributions or $550. If there are two or more contributors then the maximum claim of $550 must be divided between them on a prorata basis according to the amount each contributed.

In regard to a child, there is no dividing of the exemption. It is all or nothing at all. If a taxpayer supported a child for a part of the year and someone else for the balance of the year, then each may claim full exemption for the child. This applies when a divorce or legal separation of the parents occurs in the year. It also will apply when a widow and widower each having children, marry in the taxation year.

Taxpayers who partially support relatives in another country may claim them for the lesser of their contributions or $550. They must prove their claim by attaching receipts or other acceptable documents on their return. Post office money order receipts are of doubtful value as they do not show the recipients or the remitters name. In this case the taxpayer should attach a letter with the envelope in which it was received, from the relative, stating they received the amounts covered by the post office money order receipts. The envelope is necessary to prove that the letter actually came from the country in which the relatives reside.

For a personal reply enclose a self-addressed FIVE cent stamped envelope, plus 25c for each question, to C. A. Miller, care of the Daily News.

Question 1. My two brothers and I each contribute $300 to our parents who have no income but their old age pensions. What are our individual claims?

Answer: Each of you may claim one third of $1100.

Question 2. My wife and I were legally separated in the year. She has our two children. Who claims them this year?

Answer: You both are entitled to full exemption for the children. This applies to the year of separation only.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1915—a German naval raid off the English coast frustrated a British patrol squadron; more than 500 were lost in the sinking of the German cruiser Blucher and two battle cruisers were seriously damaged; British cruiser Lion was disabled and towed to port.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1940 — a contingent of Newfoundlanders arrived in Britain to serve aboard minesweepers; Russian bombers sank a Finnish ship, while the Finns reported the Red Army had suffered heavy losses in fighting in Finland.

Days of "Fetes and Stalls" Recalled by Balfour Guild

BALFOUR—Mrs. Lionel Stanton heads the new slate of officers as president of the Guild to St. Michael and All Angels Church.

The executive includes Mrs. B. Ringuis as vice-president, and Mrs. T. Craigdallie as secretary-treasurer. Year-end reports were read, and a resume of the year's activity given by the secretary. Congratulations were received from the vicar, Rev. James Hearne, on meeting the budget set for the year. Mr. Hearne, who took the chair during election of officers, also announced that during Lent discussion groups would be held, the topic being the new book, "The Comfortable Pew", written by author Pierre Burton.

The card party series will be continued through the remaining winter months, and tentative plans were made for a bake sale to be held Easter Saturday. Mrs. Craigdallie will be the church cleaner for February, and will also be next hostess to the Guild. Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. J. Heuston.

In a paper prepared and read by Mrs. Wellwood, it was learned that this particular Guild has been in existence for 45 years.

The original WA composed of 26 members from the Procter, Harrop, Longbeach and Balfour areas, was divided into two groups in 1920, with Balfour and Procter having joint meetings, and four quarterly meetings uniting all members.

DIFFERENT TERMINOLOGY

A few differences of that day were noted, the summer sale was not a sale, it was a "fete", and was then, as it is now, the source of the major part of the monies raised. The work tables were called "stalls". The members held "guessing competitions," and there was also an item called "a bran pie" where articles worth 10 cents were wrapped and placed in a big tub filled with bran. You paid your money, plunged in your hand and were entitled to keep whatever you came up with. There was also a "Mother Goose" stall, a "touch and take" stall.

These "fetes" were always climaxed by an evening dance.

Sewing was done at the meetings, quote, "The ladies present were all busily employed sewing pretty and useful articles."

A major problem arose, how to dispose of the parish bicycle.

FETES AT HOTEL

The hotel at Procter was called "The Outlet Hotel" at that time, and was the scene of many "fetes." One affair was even called a "cafe chantant." There seemed to be great effort put forth for these gatherings. There would be "water sports,' and music by an orchestra was an order of the day. People arrived by "launch." There were also accounts of "strawberry socials," "masquerade dances", and a Christmas party was held each year for the children.

In June of 1922 the Guild voted a sum of money for "cementing the foundations of Balfour Church." (The church was built in 1898.)

In 1924, quote from minutes of Feb. 20 meeting, "The first and foremost work to be done is repairing Balfour Church roof. It was moved and seconded that steps be taken to obtain an estimate on the cost of these repairs."

HOSTESSES preparing for their annual spring social event are the four girls shown above who are working on table centres and posters for their spring tea, to be held early in February. Nelson Girl Guides and Brownies will all participate in making a success of the event. From left to right above are Yvonne Curiston of the First Nelson Girl Guide Company; Evelynne Wrangler of the Third Nelson Company; Patricia Lucas of the Third Nelson Brownie Pack and Joyce Peterson of the Second Nelson Brownie Pack. —Daily News photo.

Wear Ruffles to Waggle, Frug, Watusi or Chicken

Dive or Swank Tank, Discotheque Makes Montreal to Victoria Scene

By JEAN SHARP
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It may be a hole in the wall or a posh club. It may cater to students or to the expense-account crowd. If it has a stack of up-tempo records and customers who like to dance the frug, watusi, chicken, swim or monkey, it's a discotheque.

The discotheque craze began in Paris, moved to New York and now has invaded Canada. There are clubs in Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto and Victoria and several due to open in Vancouver.

Whatever the individual set-up, the principle is the same—the music is by record, the dances are variations of the twist.

"The secret to running an operation like this is to keep the music going, never let it stop," says Rene Gagne, owner of the discotheque in Ottawa's Riverside Hotel.

"The room must be kept very dark and the music must be very loud. The dancers get dazed; they don't stop dancing all night."

At the Inn on the Park, a motor hotel that opened Toronto's first discotheque, a live orchestra playing conventional music alternates with the records.

As at some other discotheques, the one at the Inn on the Park has a hostess who shows the customers how the dances are done. Several also have a disc jockey—a discaire—to talk it up.

Jacks Amoch, owner of Jacques' Place in Toronto, scorns such refinements as gimmicks. He says his combination of intimate coffee house and unadorned music is true to the idea of the discotheque as Europe first knew it.

One New York club is reported to have a membership fee of $1,000 and dinner tabs of as much as $125. By way of contrast, Uncle Jake's in Victoria which is popular with teenagers charges 25 cents an hour. Owner Tony Else says it had 10,000 patrons in the first four weeks. Punch cards are used to determine how long a dancer has been in the place.

Montreal and Toronto have about half a dozen clubs each, with more opening. They are graced with such names as Whisky a Go Go, Le Cafe Go Go, Le Cachot, Loupgarou and La Licorne. Montreal's oldest is La Licorne, opened two years ago.

Each club attracts its own type and vintage of customer, but collectively they draw people of all ages whose idea of dance attire ranges from turtle neck jerseys to cocktail dresses.

The dancer who is really with it, however, wears the discotheque dress which was imported along with the clubs. It seems designed for doing the frug, being basically a short, slightly fitted shift aflutter with tiers, ruffles or panels that waggle with the dancer.

In its original Paris style it had ruffles around a low neckline but the ruffles slipped on the transatlantic crossing and now are mostly around the hem.

One group that is unhappy about the discotheque boom is the American Federation of Musicians. Its general policy is that union musicians may not play in a club featuring canned music.

Crumbs Versatile Ingredient for Meat, Casserole, Dessert Recipes

It is amazing how the stale bread piles up sometimes and how few recipes one can find with dried crumbs as one of the ingredients, when the jar is full of them.

At other times, recipes come to light which require crumbs and just at that time, the stale bread supply may be depleted. This is where cracker crumbs come in handy.

Here are two recipes using cracker crumbs, although stale bread may be substituted in the first one, stuffing for spareribs. The other recipe is for a square to be used as a dessert or served for tea.

STUFFED SPARERIBS

2 sides spareribs,
3 tbsp. fat,
¾ cup chopped onion,
½ cup chopped celery,
4 cups cracker crumbs or bread crumbs,
¼ cup chopped parsley,
½ teaspoon sage,
¾ teaspoon salt,
⅛ teaspoon pepper,
4 tbsp. milk.

Buy two opposite sides of spareribs. Have meat man crack breast bone. Sprinkle both sides of ribs with salt and pepper. Cook onion and celery in fat until soft. Add to cracker pieces with seasoning. Moisten with milk, mix well. Place one side of ribs hollow side up on rack in open roasting pan. Spread with dressing and top with second side of ribs hollow side down, skewer or tie together. Roast, uncovered in moderate oven 325 degrees F. to 350 degrees F. for about 1-½ hours or until tender. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

LEMON SQUARES

½ cup butter or margarine,
½ cup granulated sugar,
1¾ cups rolled crackers,
¾ cup sifted pastry flour,
1 tsp. baking powder,
½ tsp. salt,
¾ cup shredded coconut,
1½ tsp. milk.
Cream butter, add sugar gradually, cream well together. Add cracker crumbs, then the flour, salt and baking powder combined. Blend into creamed mixture thoroughly to a crumbly consistency, add coconut and mix in bulk. Spread 2/3 of mixture in bottom of a greased 8 x 8 pan. Press firmly, spread with lemon filling.

LEMON FILLING

1 cup granulated sugar,
4 tbsp. cornstarch,
2 tbsp. butter,
1 egg, slightly beaten,
1 tbsp. grated lemon rind,
¼ cup lemon juice.

Combine ingredients, mix thoroughly. Cook in double boiler until thick, approximately 10 minutes. Remove from heat, cool. Spread filling over crumb mixture in pan, sprinkling with remaining third of crumb mixture. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) 30 to 40 minutes. When cool, cut in fingers.

Hints From Heloise

By Heloise Cruse

Dear Heloise:

We were sitting around one afternoon watching our neighbor knit a hat (on four needles) for her child, and the angora kept slipping off the needles that were not in use.

There we were, sipping our coffee and smoking our filter tip cigarettes, and we found a marvelous use for those filter tips . . .

We broke them off the cigarettes and pushed them on the tips of the knitting needles to prevent the yarn from slipping. Just great.

Esther, Arlene and Grace

* * *

Sure is, not the cigarettes but you three gals for sending in the terrific hint. Thanks, Pals.

Heloise

* * *

Dear Heloise:

So many little ones are nervous when they are alone in a room, but my daughter-in-law really solved the problem:

She put a large mirror near the child's bed, at the level of the pillow.

Isn't it worth a try, seeing the child talking to his image and enjoying the company?

Dear Heloise:

When my pattern envelopes become torn and worn (and I think you will find they do if you use them several times) here's what I do:

I save the nice, big brown envelopes we get in the mail. I cut my pattern envelope apart and paste the front of the pattern envelope on one side of the big brown envelope and the back of the pattern envelope on the other side of the brown envelope.

I find they last longer and the pattern goes in easier.

Mrs. R. A. H.

Dear Heloise:

Since my husband is in the service, we are continually faced with the problem of how to get acquainted with new neighbors. (This also happens to civilians whose jobs entail many transfers.) Maybe your readers would be interested in knowing how I solve this.

As each new family moves into the block, I bake a pie and send it over by the children.

This gives the lady of the house that much-desired dessert when it's so unhandy to fix one.

It also gives her a good excuse to come over (to return the pie plate) if she is interested in getting acquainted, without making me feel like I'm being a pushy neighbor.

Why not try it? Lasting friendships can be made quickly . . . and the most you can lose is your pie plate!

Mrs. C.

Now aren't you a cutie pie? I sure think so.

Wish you were in my neighborhood.

Heloise welcomes all mail, especially household hints which she can pass on to readers as space permits. However, because of the tremendous volume of mail she receives daily, Heloise is unable to answer all individual letters. She will answer readers' questions in her column whenever possible.

Veterans' Handicrafts Admired by Institute

CRAWFORD BAY — Fine handicrafts from a veterans' home were displayed when the Women's Institute held the first meeting of the year at Mrs. A. Lymbery's home.

Mrs. Emilie LaPlante, an honored guest, was presented with a gold, leaf-design earrings and brooch set, in gratitude for "the invaluable work cheerfully given through the years of her residence in Crawford Bay."

Mrs. Roebuck came from Creston with a box of Red Cross articles made by the men of the George Derby Home for veterans at Burnaby. There were snow-white stoles with ends decorated by drawn-thread work and woven designs in gold, silver or metallic thread and fringe; also many stuffed toys, cuddly dolls, balls and animals such as penguins and gophers.

Many of these were sold. The money pays for material used and the labor, the latter goes to the maker whose name is attached to each article.

The WI business was mainly appointing conveners for the different branches of WI work. The president described briefly the organization and officers of the provincial WI.

The following members agreed to act for Crawford Bay WI: agriculture and industry, Mrs. T. Lymbery; citizenship and education, Miss L. Lytle; cultural activities, Mrs. A. W. Lymbery. health and social welfare, Mrs G. Oliver; home economics, Mrs C. Millar; publicity, Mrs. Lymbery; United Nations and international exchange, Mrs. H. Haverstock. Each of these members will arrange a program.

Mrs. J. McLaughlin's name is to be entered in the Book of Memories. A donation was voted to the Dr. Endicott Home. The WI will undertake the Red Cross canvass in March.

Work of Great Artists Shown at IOTA Meeting

Iota Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held their first meeting of the new year at the home of Mrs. Herb Miller when "art" was the topic for the cultural program.

Mrs. M. Pasacreta led the group in talk on this subject with a quotation by Robert Henri, "You shall only know art according to the degree of your desire and the sensitiveness of your understanding." Mrs. Pasacreta delved into the lives of many great artists, showing illustrations of their work. Among these famous artists were Giotto, Michelangelo, Da Vinci, Raphael, Titian, Rembrandt, Reubens, Millet, and El Greco. To complete her portion of the program Mrs. Pasacreta listed the many great art galleries in the world, giving interesting facts about each one.

Mrs. W. R. Anderson presented the second portion of the cultural program on the history of art in the Orient, Greece, Egypt, France and Western Asia. She mentioned that life and art are closely interwoven but the life of individuals and of nations passes and art remains. Also, fragmentary relics of past civilizations make history a living reality to us through art.

To complete the evening, refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. W. R. Anderson.

About The Town

Letters of thanks for Christmas cards and gifts were read at the meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society held recently, with Mrs. C. W. Bailey in the chair in the absence of Mrs. Phillip Robinson. Visiting in the homes and Mount St. Francis this month will be Mrs. M. F. Ozelle and Mrs. Bailey. Mrs. J. R. Allan is in charge of the tea for Arts and Crafts group.

* * *

Mrs. M. K. Bastin was honored on the occasion of her 88th birthday at a small tea party held at the home of Mrs. S. C. Moe, 917 Silica Street. During the tea hour, a specially decorated cake was cut for the guest of honor.

Kaslo Notes

KASLO — The first meeting of the Boy Scouts since their reorganization was held in the Scout hall by new Scoutmaster K. Hisco, with 11 boys present.

J. Humphries, principal of Kaslo School, recently returned from Vancouver where he met with members of the department of education, principals from Vancouver and B.C. Teachers' Federation officers.

Purpose of the meeting was to try and devise some system by which revised B.C. school curriculum could be adapted to small high schools so that students in these schools could graduate on at least some of the specialty courses offered.

Mr. Humphries reported that definite steps planned at the meeting will benefit students in smaller schools.

Handicrafts Keep Harrop WI Fingers Busy

HARROP — A number of handicraft projects were started at the cultural activities meeting of the Harrop and District Women's Institute held at the home of Mrs. G. Ward.

A prize will be offered for the best effort resulting from a Dorset stitchery competition. Fancy wastebaskets introduced earlier by Miss Lila Grant were begun. Two sets of place mats were handed in, and a demonstration of rug-making by the handicapped was given by Mrs. Ward. A crocheted rug was started.

The monthly meeting of the WI was held at the home of Mrs. Jean Serres with a good attendance.

Many tempting recipes were offered during the roll call on "my favorite cookie recipe."

Donations were made to the Salvation Army, the Solarium, and the Memorial Fund.

Members who provided transportation during the year will receive remuneration.

Highlights of the Newsletter were read by Miss Grant. Articles on the WI founder, Adelaide Hoodless, will be brought to the next meeting.

Better Your Living in 1965

Modern Living In A Modern Age

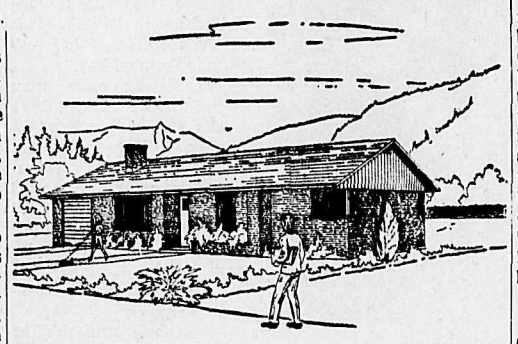
The Modern Home

Plan No. 648 (copyright No. 117093).

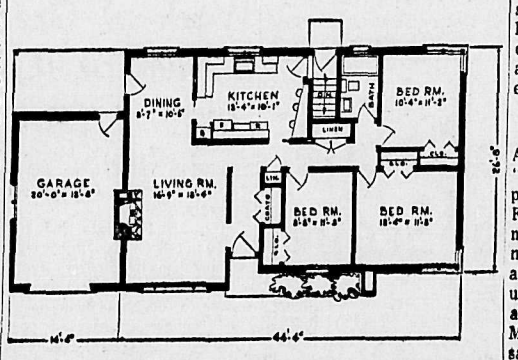
The detailing in this house is more important than in many. The exterior is of brick with a roof of cedar shingles but notice how the addition of vertical cedar siding in the gable end, the recessed porch, the garage under one roof adds interest to the all-brick appearance.

We would like to be able to show you the interior of this home, because of its clean, practical family-living accommodation. From the recessed porch, one enters a main hall, with a door to the L-shaped living-dining area. The fireplace is located on the long wall, and shows a slate hearth, so that there are many opportunities to arrange furniture in an attractive yet comfortable manner. The dining area has a door which leads to the side patio, and from the patio there is a rear door to the double garage.

The kitchen cupboards are planned in the Pullman style with a built-in eating bar for quick family snacks. The stairs to the full basement are off the kitchen, and immediately adjacent to the back door, so t're is no need for trekking dirt through the house to reach the basement.



PLAN No. CH-648 FLOOR AREA 1200 sq. ft.



The bathroom and the three bedrooms are grouped around a small central hall, and feature large closet space in each. This is a real family home, practical to build, easy to maintain and economical to heat.

The working drawings are available, designed in brick veneer, but a conversion sheet is available for frame construction. The house is designed to the standards of the National Building Code of Canada, for mortgage appraisal under NHA or conventional mortgage as desired. Write to the Building Centre (B.C.) Ltd., 96 Kingsway, Vancouver, B.C. Our catalogue of plans, Select Home Designs, and price list available. Send 50c to cover postage and handling.

House of Commons Seating Plan Beset by Party Splits

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—It now appears that only a miracle of recementing unstuck friendships can prevent changes in the seating plan of the House of Commons when it reassemble Feb. 16.

Observers are expecting Opposition Leader Diefenbaker to choose a new seatmate even if his Quebec lieutenant, Leon Balcer, does not leave the party.

This Parliament, which Social Credit Leader Thompson christened a House of minorities, has been particularly prone to troubles with its seating plan.

First it was the split in the Social Credit Party which saw Mr. Thompson and Real Caouette, his deputy and seatmate then, sitting together but not liking it very much. Because of the physical arrangement of their double desk, they had to sit shoulder-to-shoulder, but they generally looked the other way.

When Mr. Caouette and his followers formed the Ralliement Creditiste, the New Democratic Party became the third force in the Commons and the Social Credit and Creditistes were relegated to the far end of the Commons chamber from the Speaker's chair. As leaders of separate parties, Mr. Thompson and Mr. Caouette received new seatmates—respectively, Guy Marcoux (Quebec-Montmorency) and Gilles Greoire (Lapointe).

Earlier in opposition, Mr. Diefenbaker's seatmate was George Nowlan (Digby-Annapolis-Kings), who some observers see as an interim leader of the party if Mr. Diefenbaker should retire.

RELATIONS STRAINED

But when Mr. Balcer was named deputy leader of the party early last year he moved into a double desk with Mr. Diefenbaker. Then their relations grew steadily more strained.

Until the Commons adjourned its session just before Christmas, however, there was little outward show of the differences between Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Balcer. To avoid embarrassment, one usually slipped out of his seat while the other spoke.

This was the case, for instance, when Mr. Balcer rose in the commons to ask the government to impose closure to end the long drawn-out flag debate. Mr. Diefenbaker—who usually is prompt on his attendance at prayers each day when the Commons sitting starts—was absent from his seat and took it a few minutes after Mr. Balcer sat down.

Now the split between Mr. Diefenbaker and his Quebec lieutenant is out in the open, with Mr. Balcer making public a letter to party president Dalton Camp saying the Conservatives "can no longer carry on as a great national party under its present leadership and the policies that leadership has engendered."

The 10 Quebec Conservatives want an executive meeting before Feb. 16 to call a party convention. Mr. Balcer and his immediate followers have said if that doesn't take place, they will have to consider their position.

It seems clear that unless a miracle of reconciliation can be performed, Mr. Balcer will have a new vantage point from which to participate in the business of the House—not as a deskmate of the opposition leader.

Minor Hockey Night in Nelson Termed Success for 329 Youngsters

"Minor Hockey Night was a huge sucess," commented one Minor Hockey Association official at the close of Friday's observation of Minor Hockey Week across Canada.

A crowd of some 300 parents, neighbours and just plain hockey fans turned out to watch 329 youngsters from Mites to Bantams perform.

The evening's program started at 5:00 P.M. with the Mites and ended in a flourish with the Mounties taking on the "Not-So-Old" Timers in an exhibition game.

Several prominent business firms offered prizes in the form of hockey equipment to the youngsters selling the most tickets, with all proceeds going toward the price of new gear for the various clubs.

The Nelson Minor Hockey Association was grateful to the support of the Kiwanis, the Association of Canadian Travellers and the Kinsmen who aided with supervision and arrangements.

The following are the summaries of the minor hockey exhibition games played:

Cougars 1 Jets 0 (T. Wickstrom) unassisted.

Flyers 2 Black Hawks 2.Goals — 1. L. Gawryletz (Black Hawks); 2. J. Pickering (Flyers); 3. K. Allen (Flyers); 4. T. Danes (Black Hawks).

Baldes 3 Canadians 0. Goals — G. Larsen, M. Severyn, M. Severyn.

Seals 3 Maple Leafs 1. Goals — 1. Seals, M. Matheson (S. Smith); 2. Seals, S. Smith (M. Matheson); 3. Seals, S. Smith (M. Matheson); 4. Maple Leafs, R. Lang (G. Malcolm).

In the exhibition game, the Mounties paced by the two goal performance of Ken Ackert downed the "Not-So-Old" Timers 4-1 in a hard-fought contest.

The Mounties were backed by the fine netminding of Dave Allan who works out with the Maple Leafs, as he turned back shot after shot.

Veteran Bill Freno, tending the cage for the (Not-So-Old" Timers, had a tough time as his defence seemed to fall apart in front of the net.

The Mounties appeared to be in better shape than the opposition as they outskated the "Oldies" in the race for the puck.

Bantam Warriors 4 Pee Wings 1. Goals — 1. Warriors, Marlowe (Gare); 2. Wings, D'Arcy (Smith); 3. Warrior, Stack (unassisted); 4. Warriors, Gare (unassisted); 5. Warriors, Richardson (unassisted).

Eagles 3 Columbia College 0. Goals — D. Cherenko (unassisted); Sokoloski (Patterson); D. Cherenko (McMullen).

Bruins 2 Rangers 2. Goals — 1. Bruins, J. Sirak (Turner); 2. Rangers, Graham (unassisted) 3. Rangers, Paul (unassisted).

Hawks 1 Canadiens 0. Goals — M. Addalozzo.

Combined with the Notre Dame Girls - Nelson Womens team contest, the Mounties — "Not-So-Old" Timers game provided the fans with some real action to round out a fine evening of entertainment.

Minor Hockey Week is observed across Canada in conjunction with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's program to promote a healthy interest in the sport and to pay tribute to the thousands of volunteers who work with the youngsters.

Tonight, because of the length of Friday's program, the Comets meet the Falcons at 6:45 and Columbia College vs. Totems at 7:05 prior to the Western International Hockey League game between the Rossland Warriors and the Nelson Maple Leafs.

All youngsters accompanied by an adult will be admitted free.

NDU Nighties Skate to 3-1 Hockey Win

A petite and pretty band of Notre Dame Nighties skated to a hard-fought 3-1 victory over the Nelson Oldtimers Ladies' squad in a wild and rugged girls' hockey contest at Civic Centre Friday night.

The novelty encounter was the featured event on a most successful Nelson Minor Hockey Night.

The co-eds outhustled their battle-scarred opponents from the opening face-off and appeared to be (pardon the expression) in better shape.

Many of the oldtimers are experienced veterans of the NHL (Nelson Housewives' League).

Following the crowd-pleasing contest, the Oldtimers announced their intention of protesting the outcome to the CAHL. It seems that the official line-up of the co-eds included such names as Eddie (Detroit Red Wings) Joyal; Pierre (Chicago Black Hawks) Pilote and Joe Morneau.

Susan Barr, Donna Rotter and Alberta Moreau scored for the Nighties.

Eileen Richardson dented the twine for the Oldtimers.

After watching the girls handing out crushing bodychecks throughout the contest, Nelson Maple Leaf ace defenceman, Shorty Malacko observed:

"Whew! I'd rather tackle the Spokane Jets any time."

Then he walked away muttering something about Eddie Shack . . . or maybe he said "stacked."

Emery Team Enters Sled Championship

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland (CP)—The Canadian team of Victor Emery of Montreal and Mike Young of Port Credit, Ont., drew No. 18 starting position Friday for the first heat of the world two-man bobsled championships today.

Emery was co - captain of the Canadian four-man team that won a gold medal at the 1964 Winter Olympics at Austria. Young, a student at the University of Western Ontario, joined the team this year. The team is considered one of the top contenders for the title.

No. 18 position is considered by bobsled experts unfavorable because previous teams could cause ruts and poor track conditions. The Canadian team also is likely to compete late in the day when the sun could have melted the ice.

Canadians will also compete in the four-man bobsled championships here Jan. 30-31.

Also considered a top contender is the Swiss team of Gion Caviezel and Will Berk. They drew the No. 15 spot.

Britain's Anthony Nash and Robin Dixon, Olympic and defending world champions, drew the No. 12 position, which may hamper them in the first heat.

Maple Leafs, Warriors Meet In 'Do-or-Die' WIHL Contest

"Tonight's do or die for our club as far as first place is concerned and we need this win more than anything else to get us back on track before the playoffs start," playing-coach Bobby Kromm commented in a telephone interview regarding tonight's contest between the Rossland Warriors and the Maple Leafs.

"We've dropped five games in a row now, so if we're going to snap out of this slump it's got to be now."

The Rossland Warriors will be looking for a big win too in their fight for a playoff berth after slipping into the cellar in the Western International Hockey League.

The Leafs' loose defensive play has cost them several key games in league play since the start of the new year, dropping them into second place in the WIHL standings after maintaining a hold on first place for three solid months.

In order to bolster their staggering defence, the Leafs will dress Dave Stewart, who has been absent for the past two months because of business commitments.

"We've got to win our home contests, that's all there is to it," Kromm continued, "then maybe we'll have enough inspiration to go out and take our road games."

"Several line changes may be made so that we can get back the old spark that put us on top before."

"This is no time to be feeling sorry for ourselves over the games we've already lost," the Leaf mentor continued.

"It's tonight's game we've got to win; we can't replay the ones we've already lost."

The Leafs are expected to dress a full-team, with the exception of Frank Carlson, who is still recuperating from a bad knee.

The Warriors will be without the services of Doran Hamilton, who suffered a fractured cheek bone, three weeks ago and is still unable to play.

Lynn Bentley, absent from the Warrior lineup for several games because of torn ligaments, will return for tonight's game.

The netminding duties are expected to be handled by veteran Seth Martin, who held the third-place Spokane Jets to two goals Tuesday night as the Rossland team came through with a 5-2 victory over the American club.

The Warriors, who trail the fourth place Trail Smoke Eaters by seven points, will be out for a win that could put them closer to the fourth playoff spot.

With only 10 games left in regular season play after tonight's contest, the Leafs need a victory to turn the tide after a five-game slump as the schedule goes down to the wire.

In honor of Minor Hockey Week which starts today all youngsters accompanied by an adult will be admitted free to tonight's game.

MONTREAL (CP) — Toe Blake, coach of Montreal Canadiens, wouldn't commit himself Friday on the playing status of two of his injured stars, centre Jean Beliveau and left winger Dave Balon.

Blake's Canadiens play a home - and - home series this weekend with Boston Bruins, cellar team of the National Hockey League. The series opens tonight at The Forum, and Blake said it's possible both Beliveau and Balon would be in the lineup.

DAVE STEWART

Camille Henry Fair Choice for All-Stars

By JERRY GLADMAN

Camille Henry would probably be the most logical choice as the all-star left winger on the National Hockey League's dream team this year if not for a chap named Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks.

The 152-pound native of Quebec City, who has excelled for New York Rangers for the last eight seasons, drew a spot on the second team at the halfway mark as a result of Hull's amazing goal - scoring production to date.

Henry, who has scored 18 goals in 42 games, leads his club into Toronto tonight in one of five games scheduled this weekend. The other game today has Boston Bruins visiting Montreal Canadiens. Sunday, the Rangers are at Chicago while the Leafs drop in on Detroit Red Wings and Boston plays host to Montreal.

Hull, whose 37 goals is just 14 away from surpassing the NHL record of 50 in one season, was the lone unanimous choice on the all-star squad with 90 points.

The husky left winger enjoyed a wide margin over Henry, who totalled 35 points. Henry, in turn, drew 19 more votes than Boston's Dean Prentice.

In a game of big men, the pint-size Henry stands out, but he has never let his size hamper him. One of the most gifted scorers anywhere within 10 feet of the net, Henry has counted a total of 245 regular-season goals.

Camille joined the Rangers in 1953 and was voted rookie-of-the-year.

He spent the 1954-55 campaign with Quebec in the Quebec Hockey League and then toiled for two seasons with Providence Reds in the American Hockey League prior to returning to the NHL to stay.

Henry's best year was 1962-63 when he counted 37 goals. He is also noted as one of the cleanest players in the league, having served only 58 minutes in penalties during his career.

The slightly crippled Rangers will be without defenceman Jim Neilson, out with a shoulder separation and forward Don Marshall, sidelined with a charley horse. Defenceman Rod Seiling is still hurting from a bruised shoulder but is expected to play.

Leafs will take to the ice without George Armstrong, whose injured knee has kept him out of action for a couple of weeks. Andy Bathgate, who had a cast removed from a broken thumb this week, will be dressed but will only be used if necessary.

Zip Line Shines as Warriors Drop Listless Dynamiters 9-3

ROSSLAND (Special to the Daily News)—Paced by the 18-point output of the Gerry Godfrey-Art Goodwin-Ed Wyatt line, Rossland Warriors steamrolled their way back into Western International Hockey League contention, with a resounding 9-3 trouncing of league-leading Kimberley Dynamiters here Friday night.

A capacity crowd nearing 1500, cheered their heroes from the opening whistle as Rossland's Zip line connected for seven goals, behind the solid netminding of playing coach, Seth Martin.

Wyatt fired home three counters, while his linemates checked in with two apiece. Lynn Bentley and Billy Martin connected for singles for the winners.

Harvey Nash, Wayne King and Hugh Hooker scored first period goals for Kimberley.

The win moves the Rossland squad to within two points of the fourth place Trail Smoke Eaters.

The WIHL has tightened up to a point where the cellar-dwelling Warriors are only five and a half games out of first place, in the league standings.

"CAN'T STOP US"

"They aren't going to stop us now," said a jubilant Seth Martin after the game. "We're going right to the top."

With the return of flashy winger Lynn Bentley to the lineup, the Warriors are at full strength for the first time in six weeks.

They take on the slumping Nelson Maple Leafs at Nelson tonight in a game which is crucial to both clubs.

SCORE EARLY

Goodwin startled the Dynamiters when he slapped home the first shot of the game at the :16 second mark of the first period.

Godfrey made it 2-0 at 7:15, slipping a pass-out past Kimberley netminder, Bill Sides.

Nash put Kimberley on the scoreboard two minutes later to set the stage for a three-goal outbrust that saw the Dynamiters take a short-lived lead for the only time in the game.

Hooker dumped one past Martin off the post at 11:02. Wyatt got that one back at 11:16, and 40 seconds later, King sent his club ahead.

Billy Martin scored a key goal for the home team to tie the count at 15:41 and from that point on it was all Rossland.

Wyatt led off the four-goal second period at 3:46 and a minute later Godfrey scored one of the prettiest goals of the season to snap the Kimberley club's spirit.

He took the puck behind his own net, stickhandled past every Kimberley forward, split the defence and fooled Sides with a low backhand.

Rossland can move into a tie with Trail tonight by defeating the Nelson Maple Leafs. A win for Nelson would give them a share of first place.

All Nelson Minor Hockey players, or boys and girls accompanied by their fathers will be admitted free tonight, as the Maple Leafs observe Minor Hockey Night.

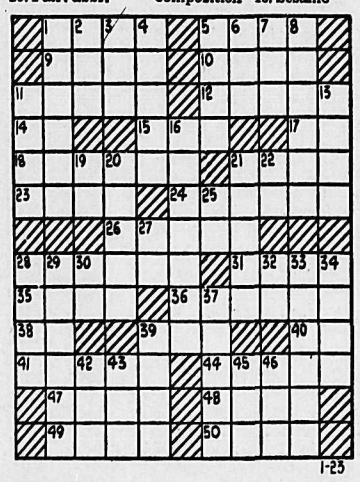
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

FUNAESDALEN, Sweden (AP)—A 78-year-old Lapp reindeer herder survived 40 hours in a snowstorm and temperatures near zero after he lost his way skiing to his cottage in the northern Swedish mountains. Legislative Bender All for Science

WINNIPEG (CP)—Seven men got a little tipsy in Manitoba's legislative buildings Thursday.

Three in fact, were members of the legislature and they were guests of none other than Provincial Secretary Maitland Steinkopf. Mr. Steinkopf even worried whether his supply would last.

It was all in the interests of science.

Mr. Steinkopf's special committee on highway safety and traffic control staged the "party" to test the results of a breath - analysis device that measures the alcohol in one's blood.

The seven participants—ranging from MLAS to reporters—drank anywhere from a glass of whisky to five bottles of beer in a two-hour period. Then they lined up—as best they could—and took the test by blowing into a tube.

Three were declared too impaired to drive and the others just got by.

Dr. D. W. Penner, a Winnipeg pathologist and researcher, suggested 50 milligrams of alcohol in 1,000 parts of blood would make the person impaired.

Committee members looked over their volunteers and were hesitant because some who were supposed to be more impaired than others didn't seem to be.

They decided on further study.

AMBITIOUS GIRLS

TOKYO (AP)—"Girls used to apply for jobs with hopes of meeting some bachelor and getting married. But now they're getting ambitious," said a department store manager in explaining why stores are having to offer added inducements. He said the girls now are offered a five-day week to prevent them being lured away by glamor jobs in hotels and airlines where, he said, the more avid girl-watchers now gather.

Pension Plan Hard On Low Income Set

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Association of Social Workers said Friday the proposed Canada Pension Plan appears "reasonably satisfactory" for about 75 per cent of the working population, but it does little for those on marginal or substandard wages or for those irregularly employed.

The association, representing some 3,000 professional social workers, said in a brief to a parliamentary committee that the plan represents "a significant advance toward achieving income security for large groups of wage and salary earners."

But the association said it is concerned with the inadequate security provided for the low-income groups.

"Despite the steps taken in the plan to reach these groups and to ease them into the benefit stream, the end result is totally inadequate.

'POOR LOSE OUT'

"As so frequently happens in social security legislation the poor are left in their poverty and the major benefits accrue to the stronger income groups."

The brief said the $5,000 income ceiling for contributions tends to transfer much of the burden from the general taxpayer to lower income groups. "Questions can be raised, also, as to whether the $600 exemption from assessments is sufficiently higher for the lowest income groups."

No income security was provided for wives and dependent children of breadwinners who become incapacitated.

Because the benefit and contribution scales in the plan are complicated, the association recommended that the government guarantee free advice, information and counselling to those in the plan. This would "ensure information services of high quality and . . . could prevent the victimizing of the insured by private operators who could exploit the absence of responsible information."

The 25 per cent of the working people who would gain least from the plan are also the ones most likely to require help in understanding it, the brief said.

SAILORS SPURN RUM FOR MILK

CHATHAM, England (Reuters)—British sailors at the Royal Naval base at Chatham have turned down their rum ration for pints of milk.

The daily tot of rum has been a Royal Navy custom since the 18th century.

The sailors' preference for milk has earned them the title "the milk sops" at the army barracks at Maidstone, 10 miles away.

So disgusted are the soldiers with their naval colleagues' thirst for milk that they have challenged them to a drinking contest—beer versus milk. But no date has been set. The winners would get a barrel of beer or four gallons of milk.

Newspapers Happy Over Patrick Walker Defeat

LONDON (Reuters) — Conservative - leaning newspapers Friday were gleeful over the surprise defeat of Foreign Secretary Patrick Gordon Walker in a byelection Thursday.

Two right-wing papers labelled the defeat "public disenchantment" and "black Friday" for the Labor administration.

The Times, independent, under the headline "deep damage to government," says Gordon Walker's failure to win a theoretically-safe seat threw doubt on his political future and inflicted deep damage to the morale of a government already struggling with difficulties.

Gordon Walker's defeat was linked with the other byelection at Nuneaton in central England where fellow cabinet member Frank Cousins, minister of technology, was elected, but by a much-reduced margin.

The Daily Telegraph, Conservative, says the first two byelections since the new government took power last October "administered a stinging slap to Labor."

'DAMAGING ABROAD'

The political correspondent for The Daily Mail, Conservative, says the defeat was "damaging abroad for the government especially, and it must bring speculation about a spirng general election much closer."

Overshadowing the personal embarrassment for the foreign secretary was the dramatic public censure of the government and its record, The Daily Mail says.

The right-wing Daily Sketch says in an editorial Gordon Walker's defeat was "startling proof of public disenchantment with the Labor government. . . His defeat is due to the hopeless muddled record of Labor's first 100 days. . . ."

The right-wing Daily Express says it was "a black Friday for Labor." Gordon Walker's defeat was "a tremendous blow to Mr. Wilson's administration. It is a remarkable humiliation of a man chosen by the prime minister to be foreign secretary."

The pro-Labor Sun says the government suffered a shattering defeat in the byelection and adds that Gordon Walker's second defeat at the polls in three months was "a tragedy and a humiliation. . . ."

"A new and absolutely safe seat will have to be found for him soon. It is impossible for Mr. Gordon Walker to remain foreign secretary for much longer outside Parliament."

The independent, left-wing Daily Mirror says:

"For Premier Harold Wilson's Labor government the Leyton disaster cannot be regarded as anything but a serious setback. . . .

"Mr. Wilson must now decide whether he can allow his foreign secretary to have another try at getting a seat in the Commons. He could send Mr. Gordon Walker to the House of Lords. But it is doubtful whether the premier would be willing for him to remain in his present key job."

Surprise Blast Floors Veteran Fire Fighter

CANTON, Okla. (AP) — Oil well fire fighter Myron Kinley was struck in the face Thursday by a rock that erupted along with huge boulders from a flaming gas well.

Kinley, 67, blood streaming down his face, stood his ground as dozens of large rocks sailed as high as 200 feet. He was not badly hurt. Seventeen other men escaped injury.

Three explosions shook the area after water was pumped into a 60-foot wide crater, momentarily snuffing out flames that had been burning more than six months. Billows of steam shot skyward as the flames died.

But gas escaping from the Goff Oil Company No. 1 Paulsen, near this northwestern Oklahoma town, flowed over red hot rocks on the edge of the crater, touching off the fire.

The blasts, Kinley admitted, were a surprise to him.

Kinley, who retired five years ago, planned to use dynamite Friday to blow out the flames. He said the Canton fire was a challenge and drew him from his easy chair.

The scarred, partially crippled veteran of more than 300 such fires, quit his hazardous business so he could spend more time with his wife, Jessie, who is vice - president and manager of Little Nick Oil Company, Chickasha, Okla.

Major Centenial Projects Planned

OTTAWA (CP)—Two major centennial projects for Alberta, a public library in Edmonton and a planetarium in Calgary, were announced Friday by the provincial and federal governments.

The $3,100,000 library project in Edmonton is to be financed by the three levels of government, with Alberta and the federal government paying $339,234 each and the city paying $2,421,532.

The $1,135,000 planetarium, first stage of a proposed park development in Calgary to include a natural sciences hall and centennial centre, will be financed in part by equal $282,052 grants from the provincial and federal governments.

To date six centennial projects have been approved for Alberta, with federal contributions in the province totalling $653,001.

Under the federal-provincial centennial grants program the federal government contributes $1 per capita per province providing matching amounts are paid by each provincial government and the municipality.

Canadian to Judge Drama Finals

MONTREAL (CP)—A Canadian is to adjudicate the final competition of the Dominion Drama Festival for the first time in the festival's history, it was announced Friday.

Guy Beaulne of Quebec City, director of theatre for the Quebec ministry of culture, will adjudicate the finals, at Brockville, Ont., May 24-29.

Active in the theatre for approximately 30 years, Mr. Beaulne is a graduate of Ottawa University, Le Conservatoire National de Paris and L'Institute de Phonetique de la Sorbonne, Paris.

Following two years in England and France where he did research in theatre, radio and television, he returned to Canada to work as drama critic, actor, stage director and CBC radio and television producer.

He is founder and honorary director of L'Association Canadienne du Theatre d'Amateurs and a past president of the Canadian Theatre Centre.

He has been a regional adjudicator of the Dominion Drama Festival, and since 1956 has been a member of its national executive.

In making the announcement, festival president John F. Brook of Simcoe, Ont., said:

"Mr. Beaulne's many achievements in every area of Canadian theatre and his understanding of the problems facing young groups make him an ideal choice.

"The general expression of pleasure at his appointment confirms that we are coming of age in yet another way. Until last year, final festival adjudicators were invited from abroad."

Advocate National Fruit Board at Vernon Convention

VERNON (CP)—A resolution favoring establishment of a national fruit board was among resolutions approved Thursday at the end of the three-day British Columbia Fruit Growers Association convention here.

The resolution called for a national fruit board to stabilize prices and markets and promote fruit and vegetables on a national basis.

Other resolutions approved sought:

. More communication between the BCFGA executive and growers;

. Regular newsletters on fruit crops;

. Nominations for association posts prior to the convention;

. Fish and Game Branch action on gopher and starling control;

. Unemployment insurance, crop insurance and more money for orchard renewal, and

. An increase from 15 to 30 minutes in the time allocated to an Okanagan Television System program on farm subjects.

Resolutions calling for a remodelling of the fruit industry under a single elective body and a complete survey of BCFGA affairs were tabled.

A total of 48 resolutions were presented at the three-day convention. Twenty-eight were approved, seven defeated, nine tabled and four late ones were not discussed.

INSPECT HOUSES

WINNIPEG (CP)—The winnipeg fire department plans to inspect all rooming houses of three or more storeys in the city. Those without fire escapes will be given 30 days to install them or face prosecution, Fire Chief Cecil Leckie said Thursday.

SEEK RULING

EDMONTON (CP)—The Alberta Women's Liberal Association wants the province's school leaving age raised to 16 from 15. The association passed a resolution to this effect at its annual convention Thursday.

FEEDERS REPORT

EDMONTON (CP)—The Alberta Liberal Party says it wants the report of Judge L. S. Turcotte into operations of the Lethbridge Central Feeders Association made public. Liberal Leader Dave Hunter said Thursday the party was not prejudging the inquiry, but was worried about whether it would learn all the facts. The association went into bankruptcy last year when an $800,000 operating deficit was discovered.

Freckle-Sized Organ Seat of Asthma Ills

By CARL MOLLINS

TORONTO (CP)—A young father suffered acute asthma attacks that wakened him almost every night for six years.

"He was unable to play with his children, cut the grass or shovel snow."

Last year a surgeon at Toronto General Hospital removed a freckle-sized organ from an artery in the right side of the man's throat.

"Since the operation he has been very well, is able to do any exertion, has had no attacks and his only medication has been to inhale bronchodilator aerosol at most once a day," said a report to the annual meeting of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada here Thursday.

Dr. C. R. Woolf of Toronto General's cardio - respiratory laboratory reported on current efforts to help victims of severe asthma by removal of one of several tiny organs known as the carotid body.

In 12 cases of surgery on the carotid performed by Dr. Frederick Kergin, eight were successful in improving the condition of the Toronto patients, confirming the success rate of similar operations in Japan, Germany and Boston, Dr. Woolf said.

A 62-year-old man who had suffered from asthma for 23 years with daily attacks, including four that knocked him unconscious, has suffered no attacks since surgery two years ago.

REPORTS ON RESEARCH

Dr. Woolf reported on research that rules out one widely-held theory of why the operation works.

The carotid body is known to play a role in regulating the rate of breathing. It was believed that when there was a decline in the oxygen content of the blood the carotid was stimulated, producing rapid but shallow breathing that failed to bring enough oxygen to the blood and set up a cycle causing a spasm in the bronchial tubes—an acute asthmatic attack.

But in a series of tests on asthmatic and non - asthmatic patients, Dr. Woolf showed that reduction in the oxygen content of the blood was not a direct cause of bronchial spasm.

Some doctors hold that the effect of the operation is psychological, although experiments in Japan tend to rule out this theory.

Dr. Woolf is investigating the possibility that the operation works in some cases because some nerve passages are removed along with the carotid body in the surgery. The effect may be to "damp down" some nervous reactions that cause a restrictive spasm in the bronchial tubes.

Your Individual Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Sunday, Jan. 24, 1965

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) — More diligence in your efforts will produce the results you wish. Mars' aspect encourages soundly directed vigor; also your critical talents "in tow."

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus) — Don't trust to guesswork nor be lax in situations that require security treatment. A better day than you may anticipate IF you are in there pitching.

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) — Many things to catch up on? Some mixups caused by previous unavoidable delays? Remain calm within if you would be composed outwardly. All can be straightened out.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) A good day if you dig for correct answers, act judiciously, trust in careful procedure.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo) — The smallest favors could bring the finest returns now, so do not pass up any opportunity to perform a friendly act. Stress Leo's leadership, zeal, enthusiasm.

AUGUST 24 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo) — The position of Mercury suggests some halts on action which could get out of the realm of common sense. But attainment IS possible through earnest, consistent and knowing endeavor.

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra) — Venus, auspicious, stimulates artistic pursuits, family matters, romance. Direct all efforts thoughtfully. Don't be fussy or over-demanding about details.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 22 (Scorpio) — When you really know the answers, speak up, naturally, modestly and with consideration for all concerned. Care in ticklish spots!

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 21 (Sagittarius) — All may not transpire as you wish now but you will have a wonderful opportunity to relive a happy moment, advance in wisdom and turn your fine energies to extricating someone pinned down.

DECEMBER 22 to JANUARY 20 (Capricorn) — "All things are difficult before they become easy" is a maxim which may fit this day. Yet you will have some very good hours in which to profit by your wits, ambition and adaptability.

JANUARY 21 to FEBRUARY 19 (Aquarius) — You have incredible inner strength when you call upon it, but this can be overdone. The recipe would now be to prepare for tasks and extra-curricular activities in a tranquil manner.

FEBRUARY 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces) — An appropriate time for taking care of small but vital requirements, without wihch the total would not be satisfactory. You can surpass old records, endeavors now.

YOU BORN TODAY have many talents and many interests, and you may flounder awhile because of this versatility. However, once you train and point your efforts toward a single, worthwhile objective, you achieve more than normally seems possible. You note things others miss; have a penetrating mind, grasp situations quickly. You are steady, able to concentrate, like to lend a helping hand; more sensitive than you show; are adapted to a pastime different from your work but equally a workable attainment. Many inventors, philosophers and novelists have been Aquarians.
