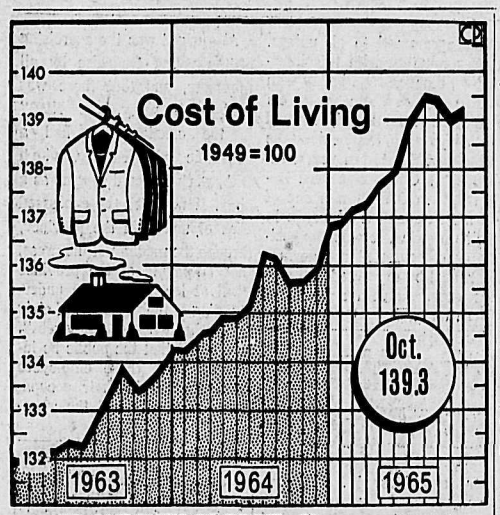
HOW WILL JOHN DOE VOTE?



UP ONE-FIFTH OF POINT—The consumer price index edged up one-fifth of a point to 139.3 for October, just a shade below its record high of 139.5 in July, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported. The index slid to 139.4 in August and 139.1 in September. The index, based on 1949 consumer prices equalling 100, was 135.6 in October last year. The bureau said higher prices for clothing, health and personal care, housing and recreation and reading, sent the general index up despite lower food prices.

Diefenbaker Says Liberals Plan Broadcasts From U.S.

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Conservative leader Diefenbaker arrived here Saturday for the pre-election wait after accusing the Liberals of planning to influence the voter during balloting today.

Mr. Diefenbaker flew from Saskatoon where he told 300 people at a party reception the Liberals planned broadcasts today beamed from the United States to listeners in British Columbia and Alberta.

The afternoon broadcasts would say everything was turning out well for the Liberal party in eastern Canada as the first returns came in, he said.

This would "interfere with the results to their benefit in B.C. and parts of Alberta."

Canadian radio and television stations may not carry political news today until the polls close in their regions. Because of time zone differences polls close earlier in eastern Canada than in the west. But eastern results are withheld in other regions farther west to avoid influencing those who have not voted.

Mr. Diefenbaker was met by a crowd of 25 when his chartered plane landed on a snow-covered runway. The temperature was a wintry 15 degrees.

His wife Olive and his brother Elmer, of Saskatoon, were with him.

This city of 25,000 is in the riding of Prince Albert which Mr. Diefenbaker has represented since 1953. He practised law here for years and still owns a house in town.

However the house is rented and Mr. Diefenbaker will stay in a railway car parked at siding. He planned to here the election results here and return to Ottawa later, possibly Tuesday.

Mr. Diefenbaker travelled more than 30,000 miles and delivered 72 major speeches in his seven-week campaign.

30 RESCUED BY COAST GUARD

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard reported Sunday it rescued 30 crew members Saturday night from disabled Cuban-exile boats in the Florida Straits. The boats were returning to Key West from Cuba. None had refugees aboard.

The rescues took place hours after the United States and Cuba ratified an agreement allowing 3000 to 400 Cubans a month to leave their homeland for the U.S.

Pearson Sweats It Out With Influenza Virus

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson wrapped up his election campaign under Brockville's War Memorial Saturday where 1,000 people cheered him on his way to Ottawa to await the results of today's vote.

He had completed a campaign that took him 23,000 miles by air, and on the last day he travelled 280 miles by car. For the last two days of it all, his temperature was up through a 'flu virus, and he perspired with every speech.

Before reaching Ottawa Saturday night, Mr. Pearson stopped at Oshawa, Port Hope, Cobourg, Belleville and Brockville, urging campaign workers to "get everyone out to vote Monday." His biggest crowd was at Brockville, where Liberal candidate John R. Matheson waited with a pipe band to greet "one of the most noble human beings in our history."

"I've now been to every part of Canada," said the prime minister, "and I've found a tremendous loyalty to our country regardless of traditions, culture or language, they are all Canadians."

At Cobourg he told about 200 on the main street Liberal candidate Pauline Jewett was fighting "just about the most important contest" in the country against Conservative George Hees. He said he was also up against a candidate who came into Algoma East riding from outside—Conservative Joel Aldred—who was trying to "glamorize and buy his way into Parliament."

When Miss Jewett returns to Ottawa, he said, "we will find responsible work for her to do there."

Vandals Hit Thompson Farm

RED DEER (CP) — One purebred cow was found shot and seven hogs poisoned at the farm of Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson early Sunday morning.

Police were called to the farm, 12 miles west of here, after Mr. Thompson discovered the dead animals. Poison was found in the hog feed. It was the second time in recent weeks vandals have struck Thompson farm.

On their first trip, officers found vandals had driven spikes in all four tires of a farm vehicle and shot another cow.

Mr. Thompson said the cows were worth $200 apiece and the hogs, ready for marketing, $100 each.

Saturday night Mr. Thompson held the last of his engagements in the federal election campaign — a party gathering at nearby Sylvan Lake, Alta.

Leaders Ponder Crucial Question As Country Goes To Polls Today

By The Canadian Press

Canada elects a new Parliament today, its 27th since Confederation tied the nation together 98 years ago.

The main struggle is between Prime Minister Pearson's Liberal party which has governed for 2½ years without a Parliamentary majority, and the Conservative party led by John Diefenbaker.

Only they and the New Democratic Party, led by T. C. Douglas, have enough candidates in the race to make majority victory possible.

Waiting in the wings, intent on holding the balance of power should another minority situation develop, are Social Credit under Robert Thompson and Real Caouette's Quebec-centred Creditiste group.

The weather outlook is good in Ontario and Quebec but some snow is expected in the Atlantic and Prairie regions. No major storms are developing.

The 10,225,777 eligible voters —up 315,020 from the 1963 election—will choose from among 1,011 candidates the 265 men and women to represent them in the House of Commons. Candidates totalled a record 1,023 last time.

Voting at the 51,839 polling places is between 8 a.m. and 7 p.m. local standard time.

It is the fifth general election since 1957, when the Conservatives gained office with a minority win. They scored a record majority triumph in 1958, slumped to a minority position again in 1962 and lost to the Liberals in April, 1963.

The 1963 election result was: Liberals 129, Conservatives 95, Social Credit 24 and New Democratic Party 17.

When Mr. Pearson's election call dissolved Prliament in September the Commons standing was: Liberals 127, Conservatives 92, NDP 18, Creditistes 13, Social Credit 9, Independents 2. Four seats were vacant because of deaths and resignations.

Wants Majority

Mr. Pearson called the election in a radio and television address Sept. 7 and gave as his reason the need for a majority government.

He said there are problems ahead that can be tackled only by a stable administration, assured of Commons support.

At one point during the campaign the prime minister said he would rather see another party win a majority than return to the minority position.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who turned 70 Sept. 18, staged a hard-driving campaign. He made a major issue of last winter's scandals, centring on the Lucien Rivard case, and called for a Conservative majority victory to "clean up the mess."

NDP Leader Douglas and Social Credit Leader Thompson argued another minority Parliament would be good for the country, citing the legislative progress made by the last one. Mr. Caouette said a minority would allow his group to force through new benefits for Quebec.

Support Pledged

Mr. Douglas has pledged he will support a minority government if the party involved agrees to include part of the NDP program in its legislative plans.

All of the leaders, of course, came up with long lists of platform promises ranging through old age pensions and medical insurance, increased aid to provinces, universities and farmers, and various resource development projects.

They all stressed the theme of national unity, Liberals and Conservatives blaming each other for creating friction between English and French Canada.

In the closing stages of the campaign, economic issues popped up. The opposition leaders accused the government of planning a "tight money" policy after the election and Mr. Pearson accused them of using scare tactics.

Entered Full Slates

The Liberals and Conservatives are contesting all 265 seats. The NDP has fielded 255 candidates, Social Credit 86 and the Creditistes 77. Another 63 candidates are running under assorted labels.

Mr. Pearson, who will be 69 next April 23, finished off Saturday with a tour of eastern Ontario and will sit out the tension of election night at his home in Ottawa. His own constituency is Algoma East in Northern Ontario.

As usual, Mr. Diefenbaker will await the results in his home riding of Prince Albert in Saskatchewan.

The other party chiefs are also in their own ridings.

Mr. Douglas, 61 last month, will follow the ballot counting with his campaign staff in Burnaby - Coquitlam, part of Greater Vancouver.

Mr. Thompson, 51, is in Red Deer, his Alberta seat, and Mr. Caouette, 48, in Villeneuve, which surrounds his home town of Rouyn, Que.

Redistribution Near

Barring a sudden collapse of the new government, this is the last election that will be fought on the basis of present riding boundaries. They were set in 1952 on the basis of the 1951 census.

A new electoral map, using 1961 census figures, has been drawn up under a new system. Ten non - political commissions, one for each province, started working on new boundaries last January and their decisions will become law around the middle of next year.

The reshuffling job used to be done by a Parliamentary committee dominated by the government of the day and prone to political considerations.

TThis also is probably the last election fight between Mr. Pearson and Mr. Diefenbaker who first clashed in 1958 and have been at it hammer and tong since.

Many political observers expect one of them—if not both—will make way for a new leader before the next election.

Some of the voting was done before election day. Advance polls were opened Saturday, Oct. 30, and Monday, Nov. 1, for persons who expected to be away from home today.

Upwards of 80,000 used them, with voting particularly heavy in sections of Ontario where the opening of the deer season coincides with the election.

Voted Last Week

Members of the armed forces voted all last week at military bases and hospitals at home and abroad. There were 122,614 eligible service voters, including 8,726 wives and 5,356 patients in veterans' hospitals.

Advance-poll ballot boxes remain sealed until 9 p.m. local standard time on election night. Results of the service vote are to be announced next Saturday, Nov. 13, at Ottawa.

Service votes are added to the civilian vote in each riding to get the final total for each candidate. In 1963 the service vote elected one Liberal who had trailed a Conservative by 92 votes in the election - night count.

Douglas Finishes Campaigning

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas reached the end of his election compaign trail Sunday with minor weekend speeches to supporters in his Burnaby- Coquitlam riding.

The NDP leader and his wife were to vote in the East Burnaby United Church today shortly after the polls opened at 8 a.m., then settle back to await the results of weeks of tough campaigning.

Mr. Douglas spoke publicly for the last time in the campaign to an audience in nearby Maillardville, a predominantly French-Canadian community.

The previous night he drew about 100 supporters to a campaign meeting in Port Coquitlam.

Sukarno Considering Dissolving Red Party

Army Forcing Hand; President Warns Will Not Crush Party

SINGAPORE (AP) — Fulfilling a wish of his army President Sukarno of Indonesia was reported Sunday reluctantly considering dissolving Indonesia's pro-Chinese Communist party. But he warned in an address to his cabinet Indonesia without communism cannot be united.

Whoever tries to crush communism in Indonesia, Sukarno told the cabinet, is like a man biting iron—"his teeth will be broken."

Sukarno spoke to the cabinet at Bogor Saturday but the final part of his speech, on the Communists, was not broadcast by Jakarta radio until Sunday. Bogor is about 40 miles outside Jakarta.

Since the Oct. 1 coup attempt by pro-Communist and Communist elements, the Indonesian Army has been cracking down on the Indonesian Communist party, regarded as the largest in the world outside the camp of communist countries.

Sukarno has been reluctant to do so. One of the reasons is that he wants to maintain friendly ties with China. The party fits into his government as part of what he calls Nasakom—a telescoped title meaning co-operation among nationalist, religious and communist groups.

Informants in Jakarta said Sukarno will dissolve the Communist party but only under a program for the dissolution of all political parties. Then the plan would be to create a single government-controlled political organization, the informants said.

They added that the army—which now has the say in running the country—may go along with this compromise as the military's main goal is the formal dissolution of the Communist party.

Gov't To Move If Oil Strike Not Settled

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor Minister Les Peterson said Saturday the British Columbia government could not stand idly by if oil workers extend a strike to all oil refineries in B.C.

Mr. Peterson said the government "will not tolerate a threat to the provincial economy."

The Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union (CLC) earlier threatened to strike all oil companies in B.C. unless there was a settlement of the dispute by Nov. 15.

New Russ Rocket Could Spark Attack From Space

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union showed off Sunday a huge rocket which it said is capable of triggering a surprise nuclear attack from space.

The rocket had been shown once before but its capabilities were described for the first time Sunday, during the mammoth military parade marking the 48th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution that installed communism in Russia.

The Russians said the 115-foot rocket could put a nuclear warhead into orbit around the earth. From the first or any later orbit, an official announcement said ground control could fire the nuclear warhead "unexpectedly" at a target.

The United States has tested missiles designed to destroy attacking missiles in space.

Orbiting of a nuclear-armed weapon would violate a United Nations agreement which the Soviet Union and the U.S. have signed. The Russians, however, said only that they were capable of launching such a weapon, not that they had done so.

The orbital missile received the place of honor, the last spot, in the parade through Red Square.

Before it in the parade came a mobile missile which the Russians described as invulnerable.

Top Soviet leader and Cuban armed forces minister Raul Castro, the brother of Premier Fidel Castro, stood atop Lenin's Tomb watching the parade.

The 250 pieces of military hardware shown included the kind of Soviet rockets used against U.S. aircraft in North Viet Nam.

Artist Killed In Crash

AYR, Ont. (CP) — John Martin, 61, of Ayr, a prominent Canadian artist, was killed Saturday night and his wife was injured in a three-car collision in this community 15 miles southwest of Kitchener.

More Votes Seen For Red China

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Diplomats predicted Sunday that more countries than ever before will vote this week to admit Communist China to the United Nations. But they doubt Peking can get the two-thirds majority needed.

An independent survey of the 117-country UN General Assembly showed a vote split of 54 to 50 with the majority in favor of seating the Chinese Communists, but one of the delegations opposed thought this was too high. A spokesman said his figures gave Peking fewer than 50 votes.

This is the 15th time the assembly has debated the admission of Communist China, always with steadily eroding support for the United States' adamant determination to prevent it.

Even though the Soviet Union and its allies are in the midst of a bitter dispute with mainland China, they are sure to vote in favor of bringing Peking into the world organization.

So is India, despite intermittent armed conflict with Peking's forces on its Himalayan borders. Nevertheless, neither the Soviet Union nor India was willing to renew earlier direct sponsorship of the admission resolution which has been signed only by a collection of small states—Albania, Algeria, Burundi, Cambodia, the Congo Republic (Brazzaville), Cuba, Ghana, Guinea, Mali, Romania and Syria.

Castro Reopens Prisoner Exchange Offer

HAVANA (Reuters) — The government of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro has started working out priorities for airlifts to the United States of refugees from his rule while again offering an exchange of political prisoners.

The interior ministry in a statement Sunday called on Cubans who wish to leave to send in details to the ministry.

Close relatives of Cubans already in the U.S. would be put first on priority lines for the American-operated lift of 3,000 to 4,000 refugees a month, under a U.S. - Cuban agreement published Saturday.

It also was disclosed that Cuba has again offered to free political prisoners in exchange for the liberty of revolutionary supporters of Castro who are imprisoned throughout Latin America.

A Cuban note to the U.S. released here is a repetition of one sent Oct. 12, during negotiations for the U.S. to take up to 50,000 refugees a year for an unspecified period.

Wilson Gov't Plans Move on Housing

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's Labor government launches this week a massive program of potential vote-winning legislation for a 12-month period virtually certain to include a general election.

Details of the program will be revealed in the speech from the throne outlining government plans at the state opening ceremony of the new Parliament Tuesday.

But the broad terms are already known and it is clear the government's second year of office will see big steps aimed at cutting the spiralling cost of housing and making more homes available.

The Labor party's plans in this sphere are widely believed to have tipped the scales in last year's election which gave Prime Minister Wilson his slender hold on power.

The economic crisis which faced the new administration during its first months of office meant that housing and several other ambitious projects had to be shelved.

Now, with the prospects of the balance-of-payments crisis easing, Wilson hopes he can gradually bring some more popular measures to the forefront.

These should not only prove successful with the electorate but also create problems for Edward Heath's Opposition Conservative party, which has been accused of not doing enough in some sectors—especially housing costs—during its 13 years in power.

WEST GERMAN CIVIL DEFENSE—A new law which goes into effect in January in West Germany requires householders to have these items on hand for civil defense—at their own expense, too. They include a battery-powered radio, respirator, shovel, axes, chisel, emergency food and water and gas mask.

Canada To Honor 100,000 War Dead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada pays tribute to her war dead Thursday, Nov. 11 — Remembrance Day.

Across the country the day will be observed with the traditional two - minutes silence, church services, wreath-placing ceremonies and parades.

Since 1914, more than 100,000 Canadians have died in battle.

Thousands are expected to gather around the National War Memorial at Ottawa where five official wreaths will be placed. About 900 veterans and servicemen will participate.

Mrs. Nora Wagner, a 75-year-old Teeterville, Ont., widow, will place the wreath for Canadian motherhood. She lost three sons in the Second World War.

The other wreaths will be placed by Governor - General Vanier, Prime Minister Pearson, Air Chief Marshal F. R. Miller, chief of the defence staff, and Fred T. O'Brecht, dominion president of the Royal Canadian Legion.

Mrs. Wagner's sons Ivan and Bruce were killed in 1944, and a third son, Harry, was killed in 1945. Her husband died four years ago.

Shots from two 105-millimetre howitzers at 11 a.m. EST will signal the beginning of the two minutes of silence.

Similar solemn ceremonies will be held at memorials in villages, towns and cities from Newfoundland to British Columbia.

Smith May Decide Today On Meeting

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Informed sources said Prime Minister Ian Smith may decide at a cabinet meeting today whether to accept British Prime Minister Wilson's offer of further negotiations of the Rhodesian independence crisis.

But political observers in the white-ruled Central African colony of Rhodesia said they doubt Smith would accept Wilson's proposal to meet again in Malta.

There was no immediate official reaction from the Rhodesian government to the Sunday offer.

Casualties Heavy

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. 1st Cavalry Division troops, Sunday scattered a large enemy force. Casualties on both sides were reported heavy after what Americans described as one of the most savage battles of the war.

U.S. officers on the scene, eight miles west of the Plei Me special forces camp, expressed belief the enemy was a regular force of the North Vietnamese army.

SATURDAY'S BATTLE of the Bands brought together four of the area's top combos to battle it out for top honors. The Ambassadors from Creston were awarded first place, with The Citations of Trail running second. Shown at the height of their session before the more than 1000 teenagers that jammed the Civic Centre here, are the Citations.

Ambassadors Win Battle By One Point Margin

A one-point musical margin was the difference between first and second place prize money for the Ambassadors of Creston, who walked away with a $200 purse and trophy at a locally sponsored "Battle of the Bands" Saturday night at the Civic Centre.

Some 1,000 teenagers and adults (about 25 per cent) filled the Civic's badminton hall to capacity to witness the melodious mayhem created by four competitive groups from Trail, Creston, Kimberley and Nelson's Notre Dame University.

Taking second place prize money of $100 plus a trophy, were the Citations of Trail, who put up a stiff fight but lost to the heart-breaking margin of one point. Judges for the event, which was sponsored by local businessmen, Vern Epp and "Buzz" Buchanan, were Buddy Marr, and S. Plotnikoff, both of Castlegar, and Pete Turner, manager of the Discotheque Club of Nelson.

Winners were selected on a point system, based on original arrangement and composition, dress and appearance, presentation and audience reaction.

Individual trophies were also awarded for proficiency in various musical categories, and winners were: Best guitar, The Ambassadors of Creston; best rhythm in guitar, The Citations of Trail; best vocalist, The Ambassadors; best bass, The Gents of Nelson and best trumpet, The Epics of Kimberley. Judged most versatile band were the Gents. In addition to prize money and an individual cup, first place band also won two local engagements for future bookings.

"We're very happy with this one," said co-sponsor, Vern Epp, who has future plans for similar events "but next time in the arena." Either Nelson or Trail are the favored centres for popular musical competitions.

Mr. Epp also pointed out that the event was open to adults as well as teenagers. All performances, he added, were taped by a local sound service.

An interesting footnote was the fact that the winning band, The Ambassadors, split earnings received from performing at the dance (which followed the competitions) with losing bands to help them defray travelling expenses.

Copter Through Setting Poles

The giant 204-B turbine helicopter piloted by Roy Webster, with Hank Ellwyn as engineer, has returned to home base at Vancouver after spending the past week in the Lardeau setting hydro poles.

The team set 182 poles and said it had been tough country in which to accomplish the job. They felt it could not have been done any other way than with the giant whirlybird in such rough terrain.

LAST MINUTE ADVICE FROM RETURNING OFFICER

Returning officer R. B. Walkley today issued some last minute advice to local voters.

"Nelson voters, when they go to cast their ballots, should carry their notice of enumeration or their copy of the printed preliminary list they received by mail," he said. "These would save them a great deal of time as they would know in which polling division they should vote."

For new comers to the North Shore area, Mr. Walkley said that residents of the area between Grohman Creek and Kokanee Lodge vote at the North Shore Hall. Residents of the Willow Point area vote at St. Andrew's-By-The-Lake Church Hall.

Fire Chief Back From Course

Fire Chief Elwyn Owens has returned from Vancouver, where he was given an orientation course along with other fire chiefs from the Kootenay.

The course, conducted by Fire Marshal B. Nixon and Deputy Fire Marshal H. Jens, lasted from Tuesday to Friday. It included study of the text of the fire marshal's act and the investigation of fires. Specialists in building and planning were also called on to speak on their respective fields as they pertain to fire prevention.

Canada's World Fair Described to Rotary

Expo '67, an all-Canadian-sponsored extravaganza rivalling the ballyhoo and glitter of Hollywood, will be the "largest exhibition ever to be held in the world," R. G. Gadsby, information officer for Expo told the Rotary Club Friday.

To be held within 10 minutes of the heart of Montreal which spent $40,000,000 ust to create the setting for the mammoth 1,000 acre project, Expo '67 was described by the speaker as the "first, first category exhibition to be held in North America", and its features and attractions sound like a program from the New York World's Fair and Disneyland combined.

One of the most unique attractions will be a detailed replica of Montreal harbor as it appeared in the 1600's, while other features range from a three-and-a-half hour train ride (Expo Express) to an architectural spoofing of "Suburban Sprawl" called Habitat '67.

Proected cost of the project is expected to reach some $240,000,000, with 50 per cent of this sum to be paid by the taxpayers of Canada, 30 per cent by the province of Quebec and 12½ per cent by Montreal residents.

Of the four western powers represented at Expo, the Canadian Pavilion, costing 21 million dollars, is the second most expensive, Mr. Gadsby told the meeting, with the U.S. showpiece running to 900 million and featuring a 19-storey plastic dome building containing a replica of the Apollo spaceship by which it is hopeful of reaching the moon.

Rivalling the U.S. effort, the Russian Pavilion will cost $14,000,000, featuring "Man in Space." Theme of the U.S. Pavilion will be "The American Way of Life."

HUGE STADIUM

Adding to the panoramic colossus of the setting will be a 25,000-seat stadium presently under construction. The giant oval will have an additional 15,000 seating capacity and was designed to be portable. Entrance to the stadium will be through three levels and be accessible to both automobile and subway.

There will also be five bandshells offering free amateur entertainment which, said Mr. Gadsby, "will give the world a chance to see what our culture has to offer." Nelson's Doukhobor Choir, which the speaker described as a "great choir," could be considered for a bandshell spot, along with any other top amateur talent the city wanted to send.

Far from just a gargantuan gamble, the exhibition is expected to snare $400,000,000 tourist dollars, $220,000,000 of which will go into the Federal treasury.

"Most important," the speaker reminded, "it is estimated that $120,000,000 tourist dollars will remain in the country."

Jaycees Urged To Maintain Improvement

Self improvement by self consciousness, was the message given Nelson Jaycees at their regular meeting this week by Rev. Bede MacEachen.

Father MacEachen, assistant to the president of Notre Dame University, said that the Junior Chambers of Commerce continually strive to improve themselves in order to further their own positions in life, and to further the aims and ideals of their organization.

The Jaycees finalized plans for the sponsoring of a taxi service for voters in Monday's Federal election. Any voter may get a ride to the polls by phoning the Jaycees at 352-3433. Ten cars have been made available for the service, which will continue from 9 a.m. until 7 p.m.

Blewett Woman Dies At Age 89

Mrs. Federosia Parkin, 89, of Blewett, died at the family residence Saturday.

Born in Russia April 3, 1876, she came to Canada in 1899 and resided for a number of years in Saskatchewan before coming to Nelson 51 years ago. She was predeceased by her husband in 1954.

Mrs. Parkin is survived by two sons, Pete of Blewett and Edward of Glade; two daughters, Mrs. Dora Voykin of Glade and Mrs. Tina Lebedoff of Winlaw; seven grandchildren, 19 great-grandchildren and one great-great grandchild.

School, Municipal Employees Not Second Class Workers

School Board and Municipal employees, both field and office staffs "should not be second-class workers but a first-class integral part of our economic and community structure," said Charles Fraser, delegate to a Canadian Union of Public Employees meeting in Victoria recently.

In the first provincial Wage Conference held by this group in Richmond, B.C., Nov. 1, Mr. Fraser stated that the grasp of today's problems by civic and school board employees was one of the "most rewarding" parts of the meeting, and that the time, effort and interest displayed by most of these groups should be known and have the respect of all people of the community.

Covering his subject matter more deeply, Mr. Fraser said that the highly competitive positions they occupy, the qualifications now necessary for applications, the skills needed in performance of these duties and the "rapid changes in our economic and technical way of life," always overshadowed by the fears of automation and anti-labor legislation, "makes it a must that these employees cry out and demand a fair share of wages and benefits from their employers, the civic councils and school board trustees."

Some of the measures supported by delegates included a striving for parity with outside trades on wages, holidays, fringe benefits and pension schemes, and the re-affirmation on a long-standing demand against stacking or decking of the Canada Pension Plan with the provincial superannuation scheme. They also decried the false picture posed by some "when quoting percentages of these pensions when coupled with the addition of old age pension, because of the entitlement of all Canadian citizens to receive a pension.

Delegates also stressed the need for a research director to be sanctioned by their national office in Ottawa, to operate from their Vancouver regional office so that all aspects of the economic structure of B.C., could be delved into, tabulated and programmed to all unions. It was felt that with this information, a percentage parity with outside construction wages would be maintained, instead of "slipping so far behind" as in the past five to ten years. Although the CUPE Research Department in Ottawa was one of the most up-to-date branches in North America, it was the feeling of delegates that information would be expedited and service improved with a local research director.

Also urged was the exercising of the voting franchise by all members, and that there was "only one party, the NDP" in the election that had a "realistic platform" which B.C., workers could support as a body. It was also the expressed wish of unions in the province, through the medium of the press, that taxpayers of the province "will at last have more understanding of the problems of civic and school board employees". It was felt that the public be informed "that these employees have a pride in their occupation, community and their province."

Miners Hear Area Candidates

Three of the four Kootenay West candidates in the Federal election today spoke to the annual meeting of the Chamber of Mines for Southeast British Columbia on Friday.

The meeting heard from Liberal candidate George Cady, NDP candidate H. W. Herridge and Conservative candidate T. S. Horswill.

Mr. Herridge reminisced about the early mining days and his boyhood.

Mr. Cady noted that mining, like forestry, is a provincial affair, and added that ". . . Canada's basic wealth comes from her natural resources."

Mr. Horswill promised that his government would give "leadership to expansion of natural resources and provide a climate for development."

Washington Pair Hurt in Crash

A couple were taken to Kootenay Lake General Hospital Sunday with undetermined injuries following an automobile accident at Porto Rico, three miles north of Ymir.

The small foreign car in which Mr. and Mrs. Pitt of Spokane were riding, overturned in the ditch, RCMP reported and investigation is continuing.

18-POUND BEAUTY was the way that 11-year-old Berry Merz described the rainbow trout that he caught recently at Queen's Bay near Balfour. Berry had been fishing with his father when the huge rainbow hit, giving him a good, stiff battle before it was finally brought into the boat.

I ASK YOU!!

Can this country afford to have in charge of it's affairs men capable of such glaring mis-management and the errors of judgment involved in such behaviour as we have recently known:—

- ★ The Credit furniture deals as well as those many plunderous bankrupcies.
- ★ It used to be that the people in Ottawa expressed the the opinion Hull across the river was the naughty town.
- ★ Now Hull calls Ottawa that spicy town across the river.
- ★ Let's transpose this back again to the former opinion.
- ★ Diefenbaker will do this.

I would also ask you:—

- ★ Just how dare Pearson plan with the U.S.A. for the diverting of Canada's waters which belong to each Canadian. We the people will not allow our waters to be bartered away. Such can not be considered.
- ★ Pearson will cram this water transfer policy right down our throats.
- ★ Stop this arrogance NOW.

UNION REJECTS CELGAR CONTRACT

Stumbling Block Is Contract Term Eight-Month Agreement Wanted

CASTLEGAR — Union members turned in a 96.2 per cent vote against new contract offers of Columbia Cellulose Celgar operation following termination of the existing contract Ocotber 31.

Following several discussions, the bargaining committee said it would not recommend the company's offer to its union membership, which voted non-acceptance of the contract offer.

The time element was the stumbling block in company offers for the contract renewal between the company and Local No. 1 of the national union of the Pulp and Paper Workers.

The company basically offered 15 cents across the board for a 20-month agreement, with a reopener effective July 1, 1966.

The union was willing to accept the company's package deal with exceptions.

They wanted an eight-month contract instead of the 20-month and they want to eliminate the waiting period involved in receiving the coast base rate, it was reported.

Said a union spokesman Friday, "It was agreed to recommend settlement to the membership on an eight-month contract at the same base rate as all the other pulp mills in B.C. and agreements we had reached during negotiations starting October 2 and continuing to October 29."

He said that the company offer had substandard features in it. "Prince George and Kamloops have short-term contracts," he pointed out.

Management spokesmen said Friday that a contract of such a short duration does not comply with the Labor Relations Act, which states that 12 months is the minimum contract duration.

It was stated Friday that the union wished to have an adustment of the base rate equal to the Coast rate rather than a gradual approach to it over a six-month period.

The union spokesman said that every other mill in B.C. finalizes contracts July 1. The Celgar Local terminated October 31, thus contracts for the rest of the province are already settled, he pointed out. This termination date was due to the original U.P.P. contract.

"It's not a question of money, it's a question of principles. We've never had any say in what the Coast settled for. This would bring us in line with bargaining the same as all the rest of the mills."

The union is contemplating applying for a conciliation officer.

Among a long list of changes sought by the union, one to which the company agreed was supplementary special personal floating holidays.

Spokesman for the union was Dick Paul. Others on the union committee were Lloyd G. Craig, president of the Local union and of the National Union of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, Angus McPhee, full time vice-president of the national union, and bargaining committee members Barry Ferguson, Jim Sloan and Andre LeMarche.

For management were, C. Garside, vice-president of interior operations for Columbia Cellulose; I. A. Cairns, mill manager of the Celgar pulp mill; Alex Brokenshire, labor relations representative, Bert Collier, industrial relations officer.

Spokesman for management was W. M. Patton, manager of administration at Celgar.

Discover Vein In Slocan Mine

Discovery of a new silver-lead-zinc vein averaging of $100 per ton in silver with lead and zinc values still to be determined by assay, is reported by Arlington Silver Mines Ltd., at its mine at Slocan City.

B. I. Nesbitt, president, says this new vein was intersected by diamond drill hole B-38, which was being drilled towards the known Footwall Vein on B level. The newly found vein lies within the 60-foot-wide Arlington Lode about 20 feet east of the Footwall vein.

The silver content, he stated, averaged 73.7 oz. per ton valued at $103.18 across a true width of 4.3 feet. Examination of the diamond drill core showed presence of much native silver plus substantial lead and zinc. The company is awaiting complete lead and zinc assays and sludge assays. He adds that interesting values and ore-type alteration were found over a much greater width but that core-recovery in some cases was low.

Apathy Is Pathetic!

There seems to be a general feeling that voters throughout Canada are apathetic about today's federal election. Perhaps they feel that the issues involved are not of sufficient importance to warrant their attendance at the polls.

Voters in other countries have had this same feeling . . . to their lasting sorrow . . . for it is from feelings such as this that dictatorships evolve.

We in Canada, enjoy a freedom that is second to none in the world. We are free to express our opinions of government and political parties—without fear of retaliation.

We are free to go where we want, when we want, and without any fear of consequences resulting.

We are free to cast our ballots—vote for the man or party, that we see fit. Our government is elected by the people, to work for the benefits of the people, and if not satisfactory, can be removed by the vote of the people.

Our right to vote is the most precious right that we as a free people have. Let us not relinquish this right.

Every election is important to us as residents of Canada, no matter what the issues, how big, how small.

Our country is a gigantic business. Let us put the best men possible on the board of directors.

BE SURE AND CAST YOUR BALLOT TODAY!

Changeable Autos

There is something new in the just-what-we-always-wanted-department: an automobile that turns on its lights automatically when dusk settles in. Presumably it is adjusted for daylight saving time. The same car leaves its lights on for a minute (to see its beloved owner safely to the door) and then shuts them off automatically. This will come in very handy for people who can aim their car at their front door without getting a parking ticket, or people who like to have the inside of their garage lit up at night.

It is not, however, exactly what people have in mind when they call for safer automobiles. And it will not, despite the auto agreement, make cars substantially cheaper in Canada. The car of tomorrow may be able to change color to blend in with the scenery. It may be able to leap tall buildings at a single bound. It may come running at the owner's whistle, have wall-to-wall leopard skin, colored phones, a gas gauge that sings a happy song when it is almost empty, and it may bid its owner a pleasant good night when he alights after a long drive. It may sound ungrateful, but we'd settle for better prices and greater safety.—Brandon Sun.

Moving Monuments

Banbury Cross is to be moved from the centre crossroads of Banbury, England, because it is a traffic hazard. Which proves that tradition is quite different in England than it is in Oregon.

A spokesman for the majority of the town council defended the action against those who contended moving the cross would upset centuries of tradition. It isn't the same cross, he declared, about which was written the nursery rhyme that begins, "Ride a cock-horse to Banbury Cross, to see a fine lady upon a white horse." The present cross, he said, doesn't even stand on the site of the original one.

"And, anyway," he added, "this cross is only about 100 years old."

Only 100 years old! Why, our Skidmore Fountain is only 77 years old, and no one had better try to move it! This doesn't necessarily mean that Oregonians are more bound by tradition than Englishmen. Traditions don't take so long to grow in this part of the world. The student body of a brand new college can whomp up a whole set of them overnight.

The Unbeliever

Between a self-made Heaven and Hell he stands;
Bewildered — lost in no man's land;
Alone — alone; and knows not why —
Afraid to walk — to weak to cry.

His heart is bleak with despair and dread.
His mind that once help hope is dead.
His body heedless of grime and pain,
In that no man's land where pride proved vain.

But an unseen bridge through the shadows dread,
Arises where he dared not tread
To an Infinite God on His Heavenly throne;
He believes Him not — and he walks alone.

Spoiling Beans

Many strange things have happened in Boston, but some real eyebrow-raising news leaked out the other day.

According to George A. Michael, director of the Massachusetts Food and Drug division, what is supposed to be a baked bean is often not baked at all but steamed or boiled — information not easily digested by food lovers. And here we had always been under the illusion that the traditional way of baking a bean involved a process replete with fragrant aroma as the glazed crock bubbled and the beans grew crusty.

Still, we suppose it all boils down to another sign of the times, when things are often not what they seem, half-baked notions abound, and few are bold enough to spill the beans.

A Welcome

Rare jewel, precious to our Nation's heart,
A welcome to this wildwood of your realm!
And to your Knightly Consort we impart,
Our confidence for strengthening the helm.

Millions of Canadian people crave,
To demonstrate their loyalty to you,
Our faithful Monarch, lovely, gracious, brave:
Profound communion with our love imbue.

Our God has laid a strength in gentle hands!
His Awful Spirit loves to hear, I ween,
Our harmony when our several bands,
Arise and loudly sing, "God Save Our Queen."

—J. G. STACE-SMITH.

To Canada's Queen

Queen of vast Canada, and this mixed Clan,
Uniting these brave men from every shore:
Evoke the greatness in this cluster-spore.
Engender new, bold faith in our great plan,
New blood, new man; for all the world we span!
Encourage us to cease all petty war.
Let not some alien ambition soar
In unchecked rivalry of man and man.

Zestfully lead, and help us to our goal,
Among the peaks of peaceful power to serve:
Befriending all the world, whence came our sires.
Encourage us to beautify the soul;
To walk the narrow path, and not to swerve;
Heeding our Father's law as He desires.

—J. GORDON STACE-SMITH.

One Party State Acts as Brake

Former British colonies in Africa that have won independence in recent years tend to settle on a one-party system of govment. A Canadian Press reporter who talked to leaders in various countries explains the reasoning behind this trend.

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

NAIROBI, Kenya (CP)—Defenders of the one-party state in Africa say it acts as a brake on dangerous tribal divisions and opens a channel for new nations to concentrate on development problems.

They also say the one-party system is a natural progression from African tradition in which the British concept of a "loyal opposition" was not understood.

There is much head-shaking in Britain about the way new African countries are turning away from the political and multi-party lessons learned at Westminster's knee in colonial days. British diplomats in the field seem unmoved.

"A greater understanding of this matter among Western countries would lessen fears of the system," said one senior English official.

"If there were two parties here in Kenya, as was the case less than a year ago, the division would be on tribal lines, such as Kikuyu versus Luo, Kikuyu versus Masai.

"The division wold be on racial grounds—not Socialists versus private enterprise, or Conservatives versus Liberals. As it is, the various tribes are represented in the ruling party and the government."

MANY JOIN GOVERNMENT

In Kampala, the Uganda capital, another diplomat stressed that to the ordinary African, an opposition spokesman means someone who is opposing the people, not the government. Hence the tendency of opposition members to cross the floor of Parliament and join the government ranks.

In the traditional tribal council, debate might continue for a long time over any particular issue, but eventually the debaters turned to a chief for a decision. Once the chief gave the decision, all were committed. There were no winning or losing sides, no opposition.

This tradition was said to be particularly strong in West Africa. Yet it is there that Nigeria, the most populous of African countries, has maintained the multi-party system despite racial and regional difficulties under a coalition—not single-party government.

The one-party systems vary considerably. In Ghana's election earlier this year the supporters of dictatorial President Kwame Nkrumah were unopposed.

There was no question of who would win that West African poll. Later, all government ministers were sent to the Kwame Nkrumah Ideology College to study the essentials of "Nkrumahism."

MINISTERS DEFEATED

In contrast, East Africa provided a more exciting election in September although this one, in Tanzania, also was under a one-party regime.

The ruling party allowed opposing candidates from within its own ranks to stand for the same seat and the result was that a couple of President Julius Nyerere's ministers were defeated, including the able finance minister, Paul Bomani, 40.

Bomani, as it happened, had given me an interview only a few days earlier earnestly defending the one-party system and drawing from his own experience to illustrate his reasons.

"I've been a parliamentarian for 10 years—first nominated under the colonial system, then elected to Parliament after the constitutional changes," he said.

"I was elected twice entirely unopposed because our party—the party of independence—was so popular that no other candidate would have a chance of winning. None of the other parties won a single seat under the multi-party system, except one man, and that was a special case."

Under the one-party system, defeat came at least to Paul Bomani, although he was retained in the cabinet under a different portfolio by Nyerere—a practice well known in older countries.

Part of the mystique of African politics is that the leaders who brought their countries to independence, such as Nyerere, are the main symbols of national unity.

Many countries did not exist until colonial times when their borders were drawn by imperialists with little or no regard for the ethnic and other interests of the inhabitants.

There is no doubt that personal freedom and privacy are far less secure in many African countries than in, say, Canada. It is common for a visitor to be told by citizens that the mails are not safe from inquisitive government eyes.

In white-ruled Rhodesia, however, there are similar stories of telephone-tapping, and the security police of South Africa are regarded as perhaps the most efficient and ruthless on the continent.

Nyerere said in an interview the awareness of the need for unity, in the face of tribalism and other divisive forces, is one of the most "genuine" feelings in Africa. He said this should be understood in Canada with its own record of division.

RECOGNIZE WEAKNESS

"We are very genuine, very conscious of the weakness of divisive forces, hence putting tribes together, refusing to adopt a multi-party system which must divide us," Nyerere declared.

President Kenneth Kaunda, Zambia's moderate-minded ruler, said "naturally we work very hard to be the only party in the country," which now has an opposition and constitutionally "reserved" seats for white-skinned members.

But he pledged that he would not legislate against opposition parties and similar sentiments were expressed in a television talk by Uganda's Prime Minister Milton Obote, who declared:

"We feel that where there is no fundamental difference between the parties, there is no reason why the two parties should not combine to face the common problem.

"And we say the common problem in any African state is development of economic and social standards . . . and unless there are fundamental differences we are wasting our time fighting elections on a two-party system when the problem is one."

"Well then, how about YOU sir, whom do you favor in the forthcoming Federal-aw, forget it . . ."

U.S. Big Business

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Big business in the United States States keeps getting steadily bigger, says a Congressional study.

Concentration is one word for the latest trend among the business giants; diversification is another, suggests the study by the judiciary subcommittee on anti-trust and monopoly headed by Democratic Senator Philip A. Hart of Michigan.

The findings support the conclusion of economist Gardner Means recently that the 100 largest manufacturers in the United States had increased their share of net capital assets in the country's manufacturing to 56.9 per cent from 45.8 per cent in the 1947-1962 period.

Thus, within 10 years, 200 firms might own two-thirds of the country's manufacturing assets. The Hart committee has been doing its research quietly in an area where the U.S. anti-trust laws have gone as far as they can go.

Take, for example, the Borden Company, once associated with milk and lots of it. Borden's today is one of the 200 biggest firms and since 1950 has added two plastic companies, glue and gelatin, two plastic products, fabrics, surgical appliances, printing inks and cosmetics—not to mention seafood, five canned fruits producers, dehydrated fruits and vegetables and pickles and sauces.

Planters Peanuts was absorbed by Standard Brands. Minute Maid bought out Snow Crop Frozen Citrus Juices, and Coca Cola then gobbled both.

Bendix, which pioneered the washing machine, was sold to Avoco, thence to Philco and all wound up with the Ford Motor Company.

Textron, a textile firm, has picked up nearly 70 enterprises including paints, a passenger line, watch bracelets, a glue factory, the old Cracker Jack popcorn firm, Bell Aircraft Corporation, pressure valves and bathroom fixtures, children's furniture and shoes.

The Columbia Broadcasting System acquired the New York Yankee Baseball Club and a firm called Litton Industries, only about 10 years old, now turns out a variety of items from special adhesive tape to nuclear-powered submarines.

National Distillers, on top of its gin, rye and bourbon, manufactures fertilizers, plastics, plumbing fixtures, aircraft equipment, electric equipment—and is buying good-sized smaller industrial firms as it goes along.

Nov. 8, 1965 . . .

Shah Mohammed Nadir of Afghanistan was assassinated 32 years ago today—in 1933—after four years in power. As Gen. Mohammed Nadir Khan, he captured Kabul, the capital, Oct. 8, 1929, and was proclaimed shah eight days later. He consolidated his position by executing prominent contenders who had been fighting for power since the November 1928 revolt against the king. The shah was assassinated by the servant of one of his victims. The murder had no political significance and the shah was succeeded without trouble by his son, Shah Mohammed Zahir.

1934—Capt. Edward Rickenbacker, U.S. ace fighter pilot of the First World War, flew across the U.S. in 12 hours, three minutes and 50 seconds.

1960 — Democratic Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts was elected 35th president of the United States.

Fifty years ago today—in 1915—French and German artillery squads engaged in violent duels on the western front, particularly in the Artois area.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1940 — RAF pilots claimed 20 Nazi planes destroyed over London against six British losses; the Tower of London was damaged in an air raid; Hitler boasted Germany was strong enough to "meet any combination in the world."

Problems and Potential in Brazil

Brazil's president, Humberto Castello Branco, has abolished all political parties and given military courts sweeping powers, explaining that "we need tranquillity for the nation's economic development." The problems faced by Castello Branco's revolutionary regime are discussed in this report by a Canadian Press reporter who visited the South American republic.

By BRENDA LARGE

RIO DE JANEIRO (CP)—Current problems and future potential—Brazil has both on a grand scale.

The world's fourth-largest country (3,287,000 square miles), it is rich in natural resources, has a fast-growing population of 80,000,000 and plenty of new industries.

It also has widespread poverty, an illiteracy rate estimated at about 50 per cent of the over-15 population, an unsettled economic situation plagued by runaway inflation, and one of the most unpredictable political climates in Latin America.

The political situation now is firmly controlled by a rightist military group for which the president of Brazil, 65-year-old Humberto Castello Branco, is the spokesman.

Branco, a former general, was chosen as president in April, 1964, after a revolution tossed out the leftist government of wealthy landowner Joao Goulart.

But he lacks a majority in congress, where many supporters of Goulart still sit. And when he was unable to gain backing for constitutional changes, he simply put them into effect as a presidential decree.

Declaring "we need tranquillity for the nation's economic development," he abolished political parties, gave himself the power to declare a state of siege and rule by decree for up to 180 days, enlarged the supreme court, gave military courts broad powers and provided for indirect election of the president by Congress instead of by the people.

CURBS SPENDING

The decree also limits debate on legislation originated by the president and forbids congress to amend presidential proposals when the amendment would mean increased public spending.

The dramatic move by Castello Branco wasn't the first in his 18 months in office.

In his first year the government passed 200 new laws and constitutional amendments tidying up the banking and income tax laws and instituting agrarian reforms. He cut the national budget by 30 per cent and took stringent measures to halt inflation.

Under the Institutional Act of 1964 he gave the commanders of the three armed forces the right to depose any elected official in the country, including legislators.

The officials may have their political rights suspended for 10 years. Many suspected of being Communists, leftists or extremists had this penalty imposed on them after the revolution when the new government purged all civic and state governments.

The Castello Branco government is heavily backed by the United States which has poured millions into the country in the last four years under the Alliance for Progress Latin aid program.

Washington is motivated by the fear that unless inflation can be licked and economic and social conditions improved quickly, Brazil might be ripe for a Cuban-type Communist takeover.

MANY OPPOSE

But many of Brazil's intellectuals oppose the government because of measures that restrict political freedom.

It is said some of these intellectuals are "armchair Communists" who like to make a loud noise but who wouldn't want to risk landing in jail for their opinions. Others, however, are serious liberals who believe social, political and artistic freedom is being throttled.

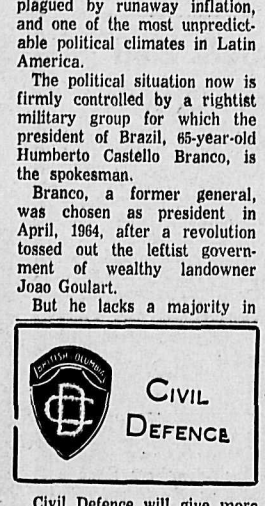
They say Castello Branco is merely a puppet controlled by Brazil's strongest power group of the moment—a clique of top brass in the services who use anti-communism as their excuse to run the country as they please.

A presidential election is scheduled for the fall of 1966. The president has said it will be a free and democratic vote and that he intends to retire from the presidency as the constitution requires.

He has also insisted the vote would be by direct ballot but persistent rumors that he would move to make it an indirect vote now have been confirmed. Some observers also feel the government will simply postpone the election for another year or so.

Several opposition candidates have already signified their intention to run for the presidency in 1966. Violent reaction could result if the election is postponed. This could bode ill for the stability of the country.

And, political observers say, stability is what Brazil needs more than anything else at this time if it hopes to realize its great future as an industrial nation.



Civil Defence will give more attention in the next few months to development of light rescue. From point of view of peacetime emergencies this is a highly desirable move.

Jesse James Has Own Ideas on Screen Too

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—How do you make a television hero out of a real-life criminal?

ABC and 20th Century-Fox have fashioned a half-hour television western series on the life and bad times of Jesse James. Although the real nature of Jesse has been dimmed by a parade of movies romanticizing his deeds, the plain fact is that he heisted many a bank and train in a highly unlawful manner.

Yet every Monday night The Legend of Jesse James shows Jesse and Frank as misguided Missouri boys who are out to do good by robbing banks. The formula seems to work, since the series has been lodging in the lower reaches of the top 40 shows in audience ratings, and anything in the upper 40 is considered safe.

Jesse is played by Christopher Jones, a 24-year-old graduate of an orphanage, the U.S. Army and the New York stage. He is a strongminded chap of the actor's studio school—he married the head man's daughter, Susan Strasberg—and he has his own ideas about how the role should be played.

"There are enough incidents in the real history of Jesse James to supply stories for two or three years," he pointed out. "Why don't they use that material instead of trying to make him a Robin Hood all the time?"

The actr admitted that Jesse probably will go on Robin-Hood-winking the home viewers.

Meanwhile, Jones is the beneficiary of a growing number of fans, particularly of the younger group who seem to identify with him as a rebellious youth.

The use of natural and coal gas in Britain is expected to increase by 75 per cent during the next five years.

Job's Daughters' Fashion Show Season Highlight

FAVORITES with the audience, this group of youngsters modelled their own generation's latest styles and ended their show with a display of the newest in winter sleepwear. From left, back row, Lyn Olson, Kim Olson and Jay Olson; in front, left to right Gordon Bedard and Ricky Draper.

A capacity crowd filled the hall when Nelson Bethel No. 10, International Order of Job's Daughters, presented its annual fashion show, with proceeds to be used for the cancer fund and the educational fund.

With descriptions by commentator Dena Calbick, models chosen from the Bethel pirouetted on a stage made summer-like with floral drapes and large standards of flowers, then walked down among the large crowd of guests to display the latest in fall and winter fashions for juniors and teenagers.

Sportswear, school wear, formals and sleep wear were received with enthusiasm by the guests.

The shift-style still proved popular, dressed up with bows and lace, for school wear. Black velvet showed up among crepes and taffetas in the formal short-length gowns, and stretchies in sportswear were contrasted by bell-bottomed trousers, and topped with warm, bulky knits or snug jackets, with deep or quilted lining. Popular was a goldrush popper jacket in shaggy all-wool with horizontal print.

Sleepwear ended the model display with all the models hopping out in a grande finale of a bunny hop.

Entertainment was provided by Don and Sheila Fraser, who sang folk songs, accompanying themselves on the guitar and banjo. Don Fraser played piano background during the modelling.

Guests were received by Honored Queen Jean Craig.

Models were the three little Olson girls, Lyn, Kim and Jay, Gordon Bedard and Ricky Dreaper, for children's fashions.

For teenage and junior wear, models were Andrea and Georgia Sawczuk, Bonnie Dreaper, Susan Booth, Linda McCulloch, Thel Shrieves, Adele Sjoberg, Valerie Steele, Pat Wade, Nancy LePage.

Mrs. D. M. Sample assisted with the makeup. Members of the Bethel served tea to the guests, assisted by the Mothers' Club.

Hints From Heloise

By Heloise Cruse

Dear Heloise:

For the average (or larger) size families who have a limited towel space in the bathroom, place an extra clothes hamper in this room. It will take up very little space.

Put about two dozen (more or less) towels in the centre of the hamper and a few rolls of toilet tissue at each end, if your hamper is rounded. Just fits that small space on each end.

This will eliminate running to the linen closet whenever a clean towel is needed by a member of the family.

Busy mother with a houseful of children.

Heloise welcomes all mail, especially household hints which she can pass on to readers as space permits. However, because of the tremendous volume of mail she receives daily, Heloise is unable to answer all individual letters. She will answer readers' questions in her column whenever possible.

Dear Heloise:

My children are always so eager to eat their lunch at school, they often neglected to wash their hands before eating.

To make sure they wash their hands, I put a wet paper towel in a small plastic bag, and place this inside the lunch box lid, so it will be the first thing the children see when they open their lunch box.

Now they can wash their hands then discard the paper towel . . . nice clean hands and no laundry!

Legion LA Decides Against Christmas Party

SALMO — At a regular meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary to Royal Canadian Legion No. 217, it was decided to cancel the regular Christmas party. Lack of interest among the members who felt the youngsters were well taken care of in this respect, was the reason given for this change in former plans.

The members will take part in the annual parade to the local Cenotaph and cemetery November 11th. This will include the laying of wreaths and regular service.

Children Enjoy Party, Bonfire, Fireworks

WILLOW POINT — Willow Point mothers arranged a party and bonfire for area children sponsored by the Duhamel Recreation commission. Over 175 children and adults attended.

"Ghosts and goblins, clowns and fairies" all came to A. I. Collinson School grounds Sunday night to a party put on by district mothers.

Children from ages 3 to 8 were under the guidance of Mrs. G. Christie, Mrs. G. Speachly, Mrs. D. Wassick and Mrs. Grecco. There were games, a snake dance with sparklers and a peanut scramble. The older child were under the suppervision of Mrs. V. Miller and Mrs. F. Heddle.

They had games and sparklers and a bonfire sing-song lead by Mrs. G. Pickering on the accordion and Bob McCulloch on the guitar. Mr. Davies gave a fireworks display.

Mrs. A. Dawson was organist.

Hot dogs were served at the end of the evening to all children by Mrs. M. Prive, Mrs. K. Turner, Mrs. A. Dawson, Mrs. Wm. Heddle and Mrs. T. Cartlidge.

Gunther Offerman, local student, drew pictures that were placed about the field to add a scary atmosphere for the children.

Hallowe'en Fireworks Study By Castlegar Village Council

Little considered the by-law difficult to interpret and it was suggested that the McGauley Company appeal through a lawyer at the next zoning hearings.

Sparwood Issues Plea For Council Candidates

NATAL — A meeting of the Corporation of the Village of Sparwood was held at Sparwood Secondary School to hear a report from village council about work done during the year and to hear a report from village council chairman Ian Dufour, asking for candidates to run for council in the December election.

Chairman Dufour, appointed with four other commissioners when the village was incorporated a year ago, stated the meeting was called to stimulate interest in village affairs and to make up for the fact that voters may not be as well acquainted with council's work as if there were a full-time office staff and a village hall.

Council employs a part-time clerk, John Thomson, at whose home regular council meetings are held. Previous to Mr. Thomson's appointment about three months ago, the post was held by another part-time clerk, Mrs Brian Johnson, who has left the area. The chairman pointed out that village residents, owners of real property, are eligible to run for office, that they must be British subjects and over 21, stressing that women also can compete for municipal office.

The village's first year of operation was reviewed. The village operated on a budget of almost $20,000 of which some $4,000 will be left as a surplus to go into next year's funds.

The surplus is expected to be used to improve municipal services. Council had been advised by the department of municipal affairs to go slow on expenditures until the relocation scheme which could involve Sparwood is decided.

The village's eventual status is dependent on the relocation scheme which involves movement of families now living in Natal - Michel to a new and modern location. Preliminary plans have been shown to Sparwood and Natal village council but the final decision has not as yet been announced. Up to now it appears that Sparwood is the likely site for the new community. With all accounts paid, the village has about $9,000 in the bank, with only the monthly education assessment not paid.

This amounts to roughly $1,400 a month, becoming payable each month as soon as the school mill rate is set. The education assessment is the village's biggest expenditure, accounting for roughly half the $20,000 budget figure The tax for education purposes brings in the biggest revenue.

About $6,000 is received in provincial per capita grants, while general taxes bring in about $4,000 .

Money spent during the year included $3,400 for general administration, including the clerk's salary and maintenance of the office; $720 for protection of persons and property and $1,000 for public works. Other moneys for items such as garbage removal, membership in the East Kootenay Health Unit and contributions toward Michel Hospital totalled slightly over $200.

Award Trustees Service Medals

NATAL — Three members of Fernie School District No. 1 board of trustees received long-service certificates from Minister of Education, L. R. Peterson when the annual convention of the B.C. School Trustees Association was held recently in Vancouver.

Receiving the awards were Dr. Roy Amundsen, of Natal, who has been 16 years on the board, and Len Musil of Elk Valley and Ed Bakken of Sparwood, who have served on the school board 10 years each.

All members of the board attended the convention with the exception of South Country trustee Doug McDonald. Also present were secretary-treasurer Ernie Chambers and maintenance supervisor Bob Craig.

The maintenance supervisor took time out at the convention to discuss plans for the new vocational wing with the architects and also examined equipment to be installed for vocational classes on view at the convention.

Propose New Highway Signs

ROSSLAND—Rossland Chamber of Commerce has proposed a new system of highway signs to the department of highways to overcome the confusion of having several towns listed on each sign.

The Chamber suggested that only the next town and the next major centre appear on the sign Several examples were given by Mr. Tom McRae. The proposal was endorsed at the meeting and it was felt that the public would welcome the change.

The campaign for Greyhound bus service through Trail and Rossland is to be continued and letters are to be sent to surrounding communities asking for support.

Assistance is to be given to Red Mountain Ski Club for their opening ceremonies for Granite Mountain lift, and to the Sno-Sho Committee in their plans for the winter carnival to be held in January.

Set December 11 For Creston Vote

CRESTON — Nomination day will be November 29 and election December 11, members of the Creston Village Commission were advised at the recent meeting.

Terms of commissioners Davis and Marling and Chairman Dodd will be ended December 31.

The building report noted that permits had been issued to Creston Valley Hospital for $500 to re-roof the nurses' residence; Creston Motors, $900 to replace gas tanks; W. Constable $1000 and $500 for an addition and re-roofing; Creston Sawmills, $40,000 for a burner; F. Mawson, $200 for reroofing; A. Wishlow, $11,000 for a dwelling.

Clarification has been received on the four-foot porperty between Sinclairs Hardware and C. W. Perry premises. The property does not belong to the village but was deeded to the C.P.R. long ago for a water line.

The village will pay part of the costs for subdivision of property of B. Friesen.

Reconstruction of Regina Street will be undertaken this fall if funds are available and engineering may be carried out on Murdock Street. Subdivision of the Zorn property was approved.

Badminton Club Starts Season

NATAL — The Michel-Natal-Sparwood Adult Badminton Club recently reorganized for the 1965-66 season with the group anticipating another active season.

At the reorganizational meeting, officers elected for the new term were: Silvio Fornasier as president; Miss Marilyn Leslie as secretary and Gordon Kosler as treasurer. The members will meet every Tuesday and Sunday from 8 to 10 p.m. for sessions at the Sparwood High School auditorium.

The fees set for the season were decided on the same basis as last year, at $7.00. It was the intention of the club to again participate in inter-club exhibition matches with club members from the Crow's Nest Pass, Pincher Creek and Lethbridge, which highlighted the activities of the club last season.

Ask Hydro Reconsider Plans

CASTLEGAR — B.C. Hydro is being asked by the Village of Castlegar to reconsider its decision to drop its plans for purchase of lots behind the Castlegar arena.

The authority gave up its plan to build a large trailer court on the Horcoff farm property because it felt the going price of the lots was too high. Commissioner Lorne Zinio commented that the village would develop the area as a park if Hydro would purchase the lots.

Commissioner Zinio pointed out that Hydro "has caused trouble" by backing out of the Horcoff proposal. He said that since Hydro speaks of doing something for the community, this is an opportunity for it to do so.

Fruit Growers Promised Aid

CRESTON — Fruit and grape growers in the Okanagan, Kootenay and Similkameen Valleys are to receive rehabilitation assistance on account of frost last year. Following a discussion with the executives of the Fruit and Grape Growers' Association the announcement was jointly made by the Minister of Agriculture for Canada, the Hon. Harry Hayes, and the Minister of Agriculture for British Columbia, the Hon. Frank Richter.

The growers will receive payments to reimburse for a portion of their loss of 1965 crops compared to a normal crop return based on a 10-year average, and to rehabilitate their orchards and vineyards for loss suffered to trees or vines.

Assistance in relation to the 1965 crop will be the difference between a grower's returns for the 1965 crop and 75 per cent of his average returns over the immediately preceding 10 years. Appropriate adjustments will be made where there is less than a 10-year operation involved.

Applications will be reviewed and a maximum amount of assistance per owner set. To qualify for the assistance owners will be required to have at least three acres in fruit or at least five acres in grapes and shall normally receive 50 per cent or more of his income from fruit.

The cost will be shared equally by the two governments and the British Columbia Department of Agriculture will be responsible for implementing the operation.

Payments covering a portion of the cost of replacing the trees or vines will amount to $2.50 per tree replaced to a maximum of 2000 trees per owner for all trees killed in excess of 25 trees and 40 cents per vine replaced to a maximum of 10,000 vines per owner for all vines killed in excess of 125 vines.

Car Overturns Damage $500

SALMO — A car driven by George G. Craig of Fruitvale left the highway and overturned at the junction of highway 3 and 6. Damage amounted to approximately $500. There were no injuries.

The driver was charged and convicted of driving without due care and attention. Excessive speed in making the turn was responsible for the accident, court was told. The vehicle sheared of two road signs before coming to rest in a ditch. The driver received a minimum fine of $10 and costs because of his age, 77.

CHARLOTTE AND GEORGE COOPER are familiar figures around the village of Salmo in square dance circles. The Coopers make the trek weekly from their home at Metaline to Salmo so that square dance enthusiasts may "circle round" as he calls the numbers. There is room for more couples in the dance group should anyone like to join the roundelay.

Mixed Reception Greets Welsh Language Proposals

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP) — Proposals for government action to raise the status of the Welsh language have been greeted by mingled groans and cautious applause in the towns and valleys of Wales.

A government-appointed committee has recommended that Welsh should be given statutory equality with English in the 12 counties of Wales and in Monmouthshire, a Welsh - English border county included in Wales for some administrative purposes.

Welsh nationalists from Aberystwyth to Rhyl welcomed the report as a step towards righting an injustice committed in 1536 when Wales was united with England by Henry VIII, great - grandson of Welshman Owen Tudor. The Act of Union "virtually proscribed the Welsh language," in the words of Gwynfor Evans, president of Plaid Cymru, the Welsh Nationalist Party.

NOT CONCERNED

But for the three-quarters of the population of 2,500,000 who speak no Welsh, the most positive reaction has been a so-what shrug.

"The danger of the recommendations is that under the guise of righting an ancient wrong a minority in Wales would be imposing on the majority an irrelevant and hampering burden," commented the Western Mail, a Cardiff newspaper that describes itself as the national newspaper of Wales.

The three - man committee headed by lawyer Sir David Hughes Parry, set up two years ago by the British government's Welsh affairs office, rejected the idea of full bilingualism in Wales. But it termed inadequate the present recognition of Welsh, which is limited to permitting use of the language in a court of law by an individual who would be at a disadvantage using English.

The committee, which also included Merioneth County clerk D W. Jones-Williams and Swansea history professor Glanmor Williams, opted instead for "the principle of equal validity" of Welsh and English.

PRACTICAL EFFECTS

In practice, acceptance of the principle would mean updating ancient laws, changing procedures in regional administration and recruiting bilingual personnel for courts, government offices, hospitals and the educational system.

Magistrates' courts would be equipped to conduct cases entirely in Welsh instead of merely providing interpreters for individual witnesses. Heads of national government departments in Wales and senior officers in local administrations would be bilingual. Any citizen would be able to conduct business with a public body in Welsh, whether reading, writing or speaking.

The committee gives figures indicating decline in use of the ancient Celtic tongue, despite the efforts of literary societies, schools and BBC radio and television to preserve a lyrical language with a literary tradition 14 centuries old.

Fewer than half of the more than 3,500 members of municipal and rural councils in Wales can speak Welsh. Only 75 of the 168 councils have Welsh-speaking clerks.

STRONGEST IN NORTH

Welsh is strongest in the rural north: About 75 per cent of the citizens of Anglesey and Merionethshire can speak Welsh, compared with an average throughout the country of 26 per cent. But speaking Welsh is a rare talent in the urban south. Only 4.7 per cent of the citizens of the capital, Cardiff, speak their native tongue and only 2.1 per cent of Newport residents know Welsh.

The committee recommendations have been criticized by some on the ground that they do not go far enough and by others who consider an attempt to revive Welsh by law as a futile exercise. The government has said it will assess Welsh reaction before acting.

The recommendations in most cases would require a Welshman to ask especially for the right to conduct business in Welsh, said Geraint Jones of the Welsh Language Society. "This is not good enough and certainly it cannot be termed official status."

Many Welshmen seem to believe that regardless of laws passed in London their homeland will continue to enrich the world with things that matter—coal and choral singing, Caerphilly cheese and rugby players, great politicians like the late Nye Bevan and grand poets like the lyrical Dylan Thomas.

Re-Organize Canada Into Six States

MONTREAL (CP)—A McGill University professor said Saturday Canada should reorganize into six states: A central (or federal) state and the associated states of Quebec, Ontario, the Maritimes, the Prairies and British Columbia.

Dr. Giuseppe Turi said there should be a new constitution and constitutional conflicts should be resolved by a "truly independent" commission.

Dr. Turi was speaking at the annual congress of the French-Canadian Association for the Advancement of the Sciences.

He said it would be necessary to apply bilingualism "vigorously" in the federal field but that unilingualism should be the rule in the associated states. This would give Quebec a particular status.

Friday night, a professor from the University of Montreal and a professor from Laval University said they agreed French - Canadians should no longer count on Ottawa to finance the scientific institutions which Quebec needs to stimulate "its retarded national research development."

Dr. Maurice l'Abbe of the University of Montreal's mathematics department and Jean Charles Falardeau of Laval's sociology and anthropology department were panelists in a discussion on A Scientific Policy for Quebec.

About 1,700 specialists from many fields are attending the congress, which ends Sunday.

Up to U.S., China to Make First Move

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia Saturday offered better relations to both the United States and China but said it is up to them to make the next move.

First Deputy Premier Dmitry Polyansky, making the Kremlin's annual keynote policy statement on the eve of the 48th anniversary of the Russian Revolution, made it clear Russia expects the U.S. to call off the Viet Nam war before contacts can be improved.

He said Russia "has done everything" to end a long ideological conflict with Peking and that "it now depends on the Chinese leaders."

LOOKING TO SUMMIT

He indicated Russia may be working toward a new conference of pro-Soviet Communist leaders.

Polyansky said Moscow had exchanged views with 12 Communist countries and with Communist parties in 50 other countries in efforts toward unity.

The deputy premier made his speech to 6,000 persons in the Kremlin's Palace of Congresses.

He said Russia has repeatedly urged better relations with the U.S., but that this was impeded by the U.S. "war of aggression" in Viet Nam and by Washington's policy aimed at giving nuclear arms to West Germany.

Aussies Move Money Stockpiles Around Country

CANBERRA (Reuters) — Millions of dollars of Australia's new decimal currency Saturday were reported to have been moved secretly to strategic stockpiles around the country during the last week in one of the nation's biggest peace-time security operations.

Scores of armed guards escorted the shipments of one-, two- and 50-cent pieces to specially prepared secret store houses in capital cities and country areas.

The money will be distributed to sub-treasuries and banks just before Feb. 14, the day Australia changes from the pound to the dollar, and kept under strict guard.

The remaining denominations —30 million each of five-, 10- and 20-cent pieces—came in several ships from Britain, where they were minted. Names and arrival times of the ships were kept a close secret.

Officials said other smaller movements of coins will continue.

OTTAWA (CP)—Each federal election, Chief Electoral Officer Nelson Castonguay finds himself in an exclusive group denied the right to vote.

Also barred from voting Nov. 8 are returning officers in the 263 electoral ridings—they vote only if it is necessary to break a tie — judges, prisoners and some persons in mental institutions.

About 10 per cent of Canada's labor force is in agriculture today, compared with 46 per cent in 1900.

Duck Mountains Elk Season

DAUPHIN, Man. (CP)—The Manitoba mines and resources department held a two-week elk-hunting season in September in Duck Mountains forest reserve, including the provincial park within the reserve's boundaries.

Of the 175 applicants getting their $20 licences in a draw, 172 actually hunted and 24 brought out prime bull elk.

Also coming ouf the park this year will be close to 10,000 fur-bearing animals and millions of feet of timber harvested by commercial operators, along with uncounted numbers of fish —including such non-native species as kokanee and muskellunge—caught by holiday-seekers.

The mixed bag reflects the department's "multiple use" concept for parkland areas, based on the theory that recreation and commercial use of forests can exist in harmony side by side as long as each is properly controlled.

The Duck Mountains forest reserve, 928,000 acres of timbered hills dotted with lake, nestles along the Saskatchewan boundary west of this northwestern Manitoba town. The park, within the reserve, encompasses 324,000 acres.

POPULARITY GROWS

It is under-utilized by the public at present but Archie Jardine, mines and resources regional supervisor here, doesn't expect it to stay that way for long. Camping and boat-launching sites are being developed steadily and vacationers are discovering the Duck Mountains in increasing numbers.

The department hopes it will continue to draw more campers and picnickers away from heavily-used southern Manitoba facilities including the crowded Whiteshell area east of Winnipeg which has just about reached the limit of its development.

The Duck Mountains belie the general impression of Manitoba as a purely "prairie" province. The highest point, Baldy Mountain, has an altitude of 2,727 feet and there are others above 2,500 feet.

The area has a long history of controlled lumbering but the park, with 183 miles of all-weather road connecting to two main highways, was opened only in 1961.

There are cottage developments at Blue and Wellman Lakes, camp sites at Blue, Wellman and Childs Lakes. Adjoining the Childs Lake campsite is, of all things, a privately-operated licensed restaurant as a diversion from campfire cooking.

Other lakes along the road network remain in their natural state. There are 10 boat-launching ramps but no tents or buildings are permitted on the treed shorelines. On many, power boats are prohibited.

The department makes no claim that the Duck Mountains are a fishermen's paradise but an intensive, long-range stocking program is under way to add sport potential to the spring-fed lakes that have little or no spawning grounds.

Kokanee, a land-locked salmon species from British Columbia, has been stocked in Beautiful Lake and is taking hold along with rainbow trout and muskellunge.

Speckled, splake or lake trout have been added to such lakes as Childs, East Blue, Glad, Laurie, Perch, Singoosh, West Blue, Shell, Gull and Two Mile.

On the commercial side, 50 registered traplines operating through the winter produce about $30,000 annually in furs. Ninety to 100 timber operators are at work.

The multiple-use plan is distinguished from the wilderness concept common in national parks, where a designated area is left in its natural state with no commercial exploitation whatever.

"You might define the multiple-use concept as taking advantage of both the economic and social resources of an area," says Jardine.

"Wildlife and fur, forest and recreation — with careful management, all can get along together."

World War II Idea Used To Battle Fundy Tides

CAPE DORCHESTER, N.B. (CP)—An idea that helped the allies in the Second World War has been enlisted to battle 42-foot tides of the Bay of Fundy, among the highest in the world.

The idea is a floating dock, used by the allies in the Normandy invasion of France in 1944 to supply troops ashore.

It's being built here by Canadian Bechtel Ltd. for the New Brunswick Development Corp. It will be used for vessels supplying the Westmorland Chemical Park, one of the major industrial developments in the province.

TO BE FINISHED SOON

Construction of the $2,500,000 floating docking facility began five months ago and the project is expected to be completed about Nov. 15.

SCALES TURN CASH

Norway received nearly $85,000,000 of foreign exchange for fish exports in the first half of 1965.

The concrete dock itself will be at the end of a 1,200-foot-long causeway. The causeway was needed to overcome winter problems caused by ice building up near shore.

The wharf, weighing 7,000 tons and held afloat by an intricate series of 95 cube-shaped cells, will get its initial test Nov. 25 when the first vessel is scheduled to arrive.

The dock is 300 feet long, 80 feet wide and 20 feet thick. It sits half submerged in the water and has been built with sloping edges at both ends so that it can be towed away like a flat-bottomed scow if threatened by ice in the winter.

The wharf is located 20 miles southeast of Moncton at this rocky cape, where the Memramcook and Petitcodiac rivers meet and flow into Shepody Bay.

By the time the Fundy tides reach the area, they are as high as a four-storey building. Without the floating dock, vessels could be loaded at high tide only — a troublesome situation for a spanking new industrial development.

CARRIES AMMONIA

The first ship arriving will be the tanker W. R. Grace, carrying a cargo of 9,000 tons of liquid ammonia from Trinidad.

Once here, the ammonia will be converted by Fundy Chemical Corp. Ltd. into ammonium nitrate, used in fertilizers and explosives. The finished product will be marketed both in Canada and abroad.

Initial plans for the park are for 250 acres of development. Eventually, officials hope 500 acres at the site will be used by 12 companies.

MAINTAIN ROAD RECORD

STILL HOLD LEAD

LEAFS BATTLE JETS TO 3-3 OVERTIME TIE

By MIKE BENNETT
Daily News Sports Editor

SPOKANE — Nelson Maple Leafs preserved their "on the road" record Saturday night as they fought Spokane Jets to a 3-3 Western International Hockey League overtime tie.

In six road trips this season, the Leafs have yet to be beaten.

Gail Holden, the diminutive centreman who scored 107 points with Weyburn Red Wings of the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League last season, collected two goals while Howie Hornby added the other.

Team	GP	W	L	T	Pt
NELSON	12	8	3	1	17
Spokane	11	7	3	1	15
Kimberley	12	7	5	0	14
Rossland	12	5	6	1	11
Trail	10	4	6	0	8
Cranbrook	11	1	9	1	3

im Moro, Vince Collins and Felix LaVallee replied for Spokane, two of the goals coming in the third period.

The win gives the Leafs a two-point edge over Spokane and three over Kimberley Dynamiters — a cushion for this week's games with Trail Smoke Eaters (Wednesday), Cranbrook Royals (away Friday) and Spokane (Saturday).

Lorne Nadeau worked at centre for Ron Bahr and Charlie Goodwin in the absence of former Kimberley Dynamiter John Kenney, out with a bruised shoulder.

The Leafs powerplay, one of the most effective in the league, gave them a 2-0 lead at the end of the first less than four minutes after Holden had jammed the puck past goaltender Dave Cox.

Actually defenceman Don McGowan should have had an assist on the goal.

Playing-Coach Frank Arnett and Gordie Turlik were digging for the puck along the boards when McGowan came charging across the rink like a Mack truck to give the Leafs a 4-3 man advantage.

Barry Brown, called upon to make 39 stops in four periods, pounced on the puck with repeated cat-like movements when the Leafs had trouble clearing in their own zone near the end of the period.

Danny Calles was not dressed for the Leafs. He was sitting out a game misconduct picked up during Friday's game with Rossland Warriors.

Don Borgeson and Wally Chernenko split shifts, alternating as extra wing-man.

Moro spoiled Brown's bid for a shutout near the middle of the second period when he slapped in Buddy Bodman's rebound.

LaVallee, celebrating his 21st birthday, was presented with a hockey-stick type cake and the gesture proved well-worth it from Spokane's point of view.

The former junior with Prince Albert banged a hard shot from the point at 15:27 of the third period that caromed off a skate and trickled into the net, to tie the game.

Collins had put the Jets within one goal on a partially-screened slapshot.

Defenceman Bill Steinke engineered the prettiest goal of the night.

Faking the lone Spokane defenceman, he threw a perfect pass in front to Hornby who caught Cox going the wrong way.

Brown was ably supported by a blanket defence led by Arnett, who never seemed to tire.

Tom Hodges looked like a refugee from a football field in his special protective headgear that was jammed right tight on his head to safeguard his freshly stitched ear.

He picked up 40 stitches when caught with a flying puck last week during an inter-squad scrimmage.

Bernie Gould, who saw some of his first regular action following corrective surgery to a badly torn shoulder, took on a Christmas look early in the overtime period.

Holden wound up just over centre ice with a blistering slapshot and as Gould went down to block the shot, he raced in and did a quick stop, spraying the prostrate Spokane defenceman with snow.

Spokane pressed in the final minutes of the 10-minute period, sending a stiff backhand shot that ricocheted off the mass of humanity in front of the net and danced along the crossbar.

Chernenko appeared to have put the game away for the Leafs when he poked the puck past Cox.

The red light went on, but referee John Ursaki ruled that the whistle had already gone on the play.

Curiously enough, the Jets weren't protesting the goal.

The American club, currently two points behind the leaders, play a return engagement at the Civic Centre Saturday.

First Period: 1, Nelson, Holden (unassisted) 9:59; 2, Nelson, Holden (Holmes, Owens) 14:22.

Second Period: 3, Spokane, Moro (Bodman) 11:46.

IN KIMBERLEY

KIMBERLEY — A large black cloud followed Trail Smoke Eaters back home Saturday night and Kimberley Dynamiters helped put it there.

The Smokies, who got back on the winning track at home Friday night by defeating Cranbrook Royals 3-2, were shell-shocked 15-4 Saturday as the Dynamiters continued to leave the league split into two divisions.

Wally Souter, playing on a revamped line with Chuck Passmore and Marcel Mongrain, scored three goals, while Walt Peacosh, Dick Vincent and Wayne King had two apiece.

Passmore, Mongrain, Reo Touzin, John Manchester, Paul Sinclair and Bill Steenson added singles.

Don White, with two goals, Gary Ferro and Gerry Penner accounted for the Smoke Eater's scoring.

Coach Les Lilley, who is becoming one of the fastest quick-change artists in the league, elected to coach the club from the bench.

Steenson was promoted to centre for Manchester and Verne Wildeman while newcomer Don Lauriente took over his spot on the blueline.

King flanked Peacosh and Vincent.

Ken McTeer, recovering from a groin injury, was used sparingly.

Barry Richardson, who had turned in some steady netminding for the Smokies, wasn't at his best, and lacked support from both backchecking forwards and defencemen.

IN GRAND FORKS

GRAND FORKS — Harvey Stolz, a cut from Nelson Maple Leafs training camp last season, trapped a pass from defenceman Dennis Oakland at 6:06 of the overtime period and beat goaltender Phil Headley, Saturday to give Rossland Warriors a 3-3 overtime tie with Cranbrook Royals.

Playing at their home-away-from-home, the Warriors collected earlier goals from Ed Wyatt before the Royals came to life.

Ed Maher, Ron Huston and Gary Kilback picked up goals for Cranbrook.

The Warriors haunted by suspensions and injuries were without the services of Ed Legare and John Thompson as a result of Friday's game in Nelson and were still missing Hal Jones and Gerry Godfrey.

Playing-Coach Seth Martin went with stand-by goaltender Don Holmes and is expected to alternate games for the rest of the season.

Billy Martin, who worked most of the overtime period, caught a bad check in the third period, delaying the game for about five minutes.

Grand Forks' Doug Robinson filled in on the wing as Martin played with two lines for the second half of the game.

The Warriors, in fourth place with 11 points, meet Kimberley Dynamiters twice this week, Wednesday in Rossland and Saturday back in Grand Forks.

Black Hawks Fill Toronto Maple Leafs' Net To Claim 9-0 Victory

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago Black Hawks slammed five goals past Terry Sawchuk in the first period then cruised to a 9-0 victory over the visiting Toronto Maple Leafs in Sunday's National Hockey League action.

In other games it was New York 3 Detroit 2 and Boston 2 Montreal 5.

Montreal and Chicago, retied for top spot with 11 points, New York follows with 7, then Detroit and Toronto with five apiece and Boston with three.

Bobby Hull of the Black Hawks grabbed the scoring lead with his second three-goal effort of the year. The first was against Toronto in the season's opener.

Hull's performance put him at the top of the list of Hawks all-time scorers. Hull, now in his ninth season now has scored 554 points. The previous record was that of Bill Mosienko with 549 in 13 seasons with Hawks.

Hawks took 35 shots on the Toronto net while Toronto made 40 attempts.

John Ferguson, Ralph Backstrom, Jean Beliveau, Bobby Rousseau and Claude Larose scored for Canadiens.

Boston's goals came from Reg Fleming and Johnny Bucyk.

Only the spectacular goaltending of rookie Bernie Parent in the Boston net kept the score from reaching double figures. Time and again he foiled Canadiens on breakaways. Three of the Montreal gols came after multiple rebound shots while Boston defencemen stood idly by.

Bob Nevin drilled in two goals as Rangers ran their unbeaten string to four games.

Wings' Gordie Howe scored one goal and set up another as the Wings peppered rookie goalie Ed Giacomin in the last period. The Detroit ace ruined Giacomin's bid for his first NHL shutout at 2:44 of the third period.

Donnie Marshall completed Rangers scoring with a power-play goal in the middle period.

Ab MacDonald was Wings other scorer.

LAUNCHED ATTACK

The Hawks launched their attack at 6:38 of the first period when Phil Esposito backhanded a rebound of Chico Maki's shot past Sawchuk from 15 feet out. Less than a minute later, Eric Nesterenko flipped in a 10-footer after taking a neat pass from left winger Len Lunde. Chicago's Doug Mohns was in the penalty box when Maki made it 3-0, climaxing a two-on-one breakaway with Hull at 10:42.

Mohns knocked a five-footer behind Sawchuk less than four minutes later and Billy Hay capped the outburst at 18:39 by skating through the entire Leaf team and sliding the disk into the cage from a few feet away.

Hull scored twice and Stan Mikita hit for his second marker of the season in the second period. Hull's final tally came midway in the third frame.

INJURED GARY PLAYER WITHDRAWS FROM PLAY

SYDNEY, N.S.W. (Reuters)—Injury forced champion golfer Gary Player of South Africa to withdraw from the $8960 Wills Masters tournament Friday. He said it may be weeks before he can play again.

"I've been living on pain-killing pills for five months and feel I just cannot go on at the moment," he said shortly before he was scheduled to tee off in the third round.

Teachers Edge Students

The annual student-staff volleyball game turned out to be a thrilling event this year. With about two hundred students cheering them on the students walked off with the first game 13-6. The teachers, however, exercised some of their experience and beat the students 15-11 in the second game. In the crucial final, the two teams battled to a 15-15 score. The teachers took the first point of the necessary two to win. After a dazzling display of volleyball, Skukin of the students and Elsener of the teachers both went up in the air to spike the ball. Both hit the ball, but it dropped to the top of the net and spun to the students court to give the teachers the victory.

Playing for the students were: Skukin, Wickstrom, Hennig, Fitchner, Skinner, Porco, Huysman, Wade, Dowkes, Christiansen, and Russill. Representing the teachers were Mrs. Clarkson, Mrs. Malcolm, Mrs. O'Bryan, Mr. Hlookoff, Mr. Bradshaw, and Mr. Elsener.

The Trafalgar boys' and girls' teams travel to Grand Forks, November 20th to compete in the annual West Kootenay Junior Volleyball Tournament.

Notre Dame Knights Rout Gonzaga Bulldogs

Notre Dame Knights, strengthened by the addition of Carl Chwachka and Mike Grace, routed University of Gonzaga Bulldogs 9-2 Saturday night in inter-college hockey. Chwachka, from the senior Maple Leafs, led the way with three goals and two assists while Grace, also from the senior team, collected five assists.

The Knights broke open a tight 1-1 game in the second period when they fired six goals to the Bulldogs' one, to take a commanding 7-2 lead.

Notre Dame added two more in the third to complete the rout.

The most ebautiful goal of the game came off the stick of Chwachka at the 50-second mark of the first period. With NDU playing a man short, Chwachka took a pass from Grace on the Spokane blueline, broke by the last defender, and with a perfect fake, deked netminder Al Fabro to put Knights ahead 1-0.

The play in the first and third period was disorganized as neither team seemed to be able to gain complete control of the play for any length of time.

The first 20 minutes saw three majors handed out by refere Harry Harris. Notre Dam's Terry Minnis and Spokan's Gary Toffolo received five mutes each for fighting, and nminder Fabro was handed a major for leaving his crease o take part in rough play.

Deserving honorable mentio for the Knights are Jim Kad and David Schmidt who had tw goals each. Spokane's Jerr Mussio played an outstandin game for the Bulldogs.

Knights other marksmen were Phil McKaron and Ernie Moisey. George Webb and Galliano Mondin replied for Gonzaga.

WINNIPEG BLUE BOMBERS HANG ON TO WIN SUDDEN-DEATH SEMI-FINAL

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers held on to a lead created by halfback Dave Raimey's two great runs for touchdowns in the second quarter to defeat Saskatchewan Roughriders 15-9 in the Western Football Conference sudden - death semi-final before 21,600 fans Sunday

Bombers now meet Calgary Stampeders in a best-of-three starting in Calgary Saturday.

Raimey, rookie import from the University of Michigan, streaked 90 and 25 yards to create a 14-6 halftime lead for Winnipeg.

DAVE RAIMEY

Saskatchewan reduced the margin with a field goal in the third quarter then quarterback Ron Lancaster began to probe the Bomber defence with long passes.

With seven minutes to play halfback Bill Good broke into the clear to grab a Lancaster aerial for a 51-yard gain and the Riders quickly moved to the Winnipeg 10-yard line.

But Lancaster missed with three passes and couldn't avoid stepping out of bounds, giving Winnipeg possession on their eight-yard line.

Fullback Art Perkins carried Winnipeg out of danger with a 30-yard drive.

Tackle Norm Winton, with two converts, and defensive halfback Ed Ulmer, with a single, got Winnipeg's other points.

Flanker Hugh Campbell got the Saskatchewan touchdown, catching Lancaster's nine-yard pass, and guard Jack Abendschan kicked the field goal from 28 yards out.

Just before Raimey's second touchdown run it began to snow heavily.

Three players were injured. Saskatchewan tackle Reg Whitehouse, Rider end Martin Fabi and Winnipeg quarterback Kenny Ploen suffered leg injuries. Whitehouse went out in the first quarter, Fabi in the second. Ploen, hurt in the third quarter, returned to the fray.

Twenty - two penalties were called, 11 to each team, Winnipeg was assessed 110 yards for infractions, Riders 70.

Perkins, hit 116 yards in 19 thrusts, and Raimey with 40 on nine, led Winnipeg's 196-yard ground attack. Bombers also hit for 132 yards passing for 16 first downs.

Saskatchewan had 18 first downs on 197 yards passing and 83 rushing. Campbell caught five passes for 65 yards and fullback George Reed churned out 75 yards on 19 carries.

Lancaster completed 12 of 29 passes but had three intercepted.

SLICED THROUGH

Raimey sliced through Riders Ed Hoerster and Bill Butler and scampered 75 yards for the game's first touchdown.

Roughriders snapped back with a six-play, 55-yard march for six points. Campbell ignited it with a 16-yeard pass catch and finished it by slipping away from Winnipeg's Dick Thornton in the end zone. Thornton made up for the miscue with two interceptions.

Halfback Leo Lewis' 47-yard return of the kickoff following Campbell's score set up Raimey's second touchdown.

Ploen ran up the middle for 15 yards, a Saskatchewan interference infraction got another 10, to the Rider 25-yard line, then Raimey took Ploen's flip down the sideline, keeping his balance after being met by Riders Dale West, Bob Kosid and Garner Ekstran—to squeeze into the end zone.

The clubs began to get the feel of the snow-slick ground in the final quarter but, with the goal post and the out-of-bounds line killing the Saskatchewan threat, could manage only Ulmer's single — conceded by Alan Ford — in the way of scoring.

Ottawa Rough Riders Claim Right To Meet Hamilton Tiger-Cats 36-7

OTTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders exploded for three touchdowns in the second quarter and rolled on Saturday to trounce Montreal Alouettes 36-7 in the sudden-death Eastern Football Conference semi-final.

Riders now meet Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the two-game total-point league final for the right to represent the East in the Grey Cup final at Toronto late this month.

Halfback Bo Scott paced the Riders' attack with two touchdowns while quarterback Russ Jackson and halfbacks Ronnie Stewart and Gene Gaines added one each. Tackle Moe Racine converted all five and added a single when a 31 yard field goal attempt was wide.

Flanker Terry Evanshen got the Montreal touchdown in the dying minutes of the game. Charlie Baillie kicked the convert.

Riders broke the game wide open in the second quarter when they turned three pass interceptions into touchdowns. Linebacker Ken Lehmann started things with an interception at the Montreal 45. Six plays later Stewart took a 10-yard pass from Jackson for the first scoring play of the game.

JACKSON SCORES ON RUN

Two plays after the kickoff linebacker Bill Quinter intercepted a Bernie Faloney pass on the Ottawa 50 and ran for 28 yards. Again it took the Riders six plays to score, Jackson sweeping around left end from the three for the touchdown.

Montreal managed only five plays after that score before Gaines picked off a pass on his own 45 and ran 65 yards for the score.

Ottawa's fourth score also came on a Montreal miscue when a third-down snap was high and punter Jim McKean was downed on his own 12. Scott ran for the touchdown on the Riders' first play.

Scott's second touchdown came in the fourth quarter when he broke off tackle for a 45-yard scoring play.

SCORED ON PASS

With less than three minutes remaining Evanshen gathered in Faloney's 31-yard pass in the end zone for a touchdown.

Riders' ground out 266 yards rushing with Scott and fullback Jim Dillard doing most of the work. Dillard ran 15 times for 92 yards while Scott carried eight times for 83. Stewart added 38 yards on eight carries.

Fullback J. W. Lockett ran for 68 of Montreal's 115-yard rushing total in his 15 carries, while halfback Pat Batten added 49 on eight trips.

Faloney held the edge in passing yardage, completing 13 of 24 for 161 yards. Jackson was good on nine of 18 for 125 yards and his relief man, Bill Cline, hit on two of four for 34.

Only eight penalties were called during the game. Riders lost 61 yards on three calls—two of them pass interference—while the Alouettes lost 50 on five calls—two for roughing.

OTTAWA (CP) — "Annihilation by interception" was the way Montreal coach Jim Trimble put it as his Alouettes dressed glumly after a 36-7 drubbing from Ottawa Rough Riders.

Trimble was talking about the three interceptions Ottawa made on second - quarter passes by Montreal quarterback Bernie Faloney in the Eastern Football Conference sudden-death semi-final here Saturday.

Each interception was turned into a touchdown, giving Riders a 21-0 half-time lead.

"We played them very well for the first 18 minutes," Trimble said.

TThen came Ken Lehmann's interception at the Montreal 40. And then end Bill Quinter's grab at the Montreal 31. And then Gene Gaines' spectacular midfield interception and touchdown run.

In the jubilant Ottawa dressing room, coach Frank Clair told reporters Riders could have beaten any team in the country Saturday.

"We were about as high as we could get," he said. "It would have taken a helluva good team to beat us today—any team in the country."

"Our kids responded beautifully to what we planned two weeks ago."

He didn't elaborate on this, except to say detractors of the team's morale were wrong. Ottawa lost their last two scheduled games of the season, the last Oct. 30 to Alouettes 16-8.

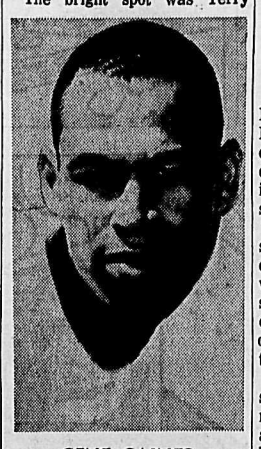
Muscular Ottawa quarterback Russ Jackson galloped into the dressing room after the game, yelled "Yahoo" and poured bubbly over Gaines head.

Moe Racine, who kicked five converts and a single, nursed a strapped left leg, frozen beneath the knee for the game. It began to hurt after a second-half kick, but he was grinning rather than complaining.

In the Montreal dressing room, the bruised and bumped included quarterback Faloney, centre Jim Andreotti and end Joe Williams.

"Ed Learn played a great game with a hamstring muscle," said Trimble, reviewing the last injuries of the season.

The bright spot was Terry



GENE GAINES

Evanshen's over - the - shoulder catch of a long Faloney pass for the only Montreal touchdown late in the game.

Trimble reminded reporters he'd said before Ottawa had the best team in the league.

"This will give them a great lift for Hamilton."

Ottawa faces Hamilton Tiger-Cats next week in the EFC finals, a two-game total-point series. Hamilton finished first, Ottawa second in the regular season.

That series might depend on how Ticat end Hal Patterson performed, said Trimble.

Riders generally scored on the breaks, taking interceptions or bobbles in Montreal territory a relatively short distance to touchdowns.

What about their own two fumbles?

"It could have been worse," said Clair. "I could sense it before the game. Something was going to explode."

Devlin Wins 'Masters'

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Bruce Devlin won the Willis Masters golf title Saturday, overcoming a five-stroke deficit on the final round as nightmarish winds blew Bob Charles' score to an eight-over-par 80.

Devlin, the slim Australian star, shot a pair of 73s on the day's two rounds and finished with a 72-hole total of 286, one stroke better than British open champion Peter Thomson, also of Australia. Thomson carded two 74s.

Charles, the New Zealand southpaw, fired a 69 on the third round for a 208 and a five-stroke advantage over Devlin and Thomson. But then came his 80 in the treacherous southerly winds that hit the Kensington course, and a third-place finish at 288.

AMERICANS FAR BACK

Doug Sanders of Ojai, Calif., tied for seventh at 294 after a brief challenge and Jack Nicklaus, U.S. Masters champion and record - breaking money winner, was one stroke farther behind.

South Africa's Gary Player withdrew after Friday's second round because of a painful back ailment.

Michigan State Spartans Crush Hapless Iowa 35-1

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pressure is building up for what looms as a U.S. college football championship game Nov. 20 between Michigan State Spartans and Notre Dame.

The top-ranked Spartans won their eighth straight game Saturday, crushing Iowa 35-1 with the aid of four touchdowns by Clinton Jones, but Notre Dame saw to it they didn't get too cocky.

The Irish, seemingly gaining in momentum since their early-season loss to Purdue, piled it on Pittsburgh 69-13 with awesome power. Bill Wolski led the assault with five touchdowns.

Now Michigan State has only to erase oft-beaten Indiana and Notre Dame to get by North Carolina this week to bring their South Bend meeting to a crescendo.

In beating Iowa, Michigan State clinched a tie for the Big Ten Conference title and became the only team that definitely could start making plans for New Year's Day. Spartans, regardless of the outcome of their two remaining games, are sure to go to the Rose Bowl where they will meet either Southern Clifornia or UCLA.

Arkansas and Nebraska, like the Spartans holding perfect 8-0 won-lost records for the season, are Bowl certainties, but the sites aren't absolutely definite.

No. 2 Arkansas, 31-0 winner over Rice, appears headed for the Cotton Bowl in Dallas again where it may face a return engagement with Nebraska, but Texas Tech could toss a monkey wrench into the machinery in its game with Arkansas Nov. 20.

NEBRASKA HAS CHOICE

Nebraska, beaten by Arkansas last Jan. 1, is a free agent and virtually has its pick of the bowls, excluding the Rose which is committee to the Big Ten and the Pacific Athletic Conference.

Cornhuskers' unbeaten record and 260 - plus yards rushing average, the country's best, make the team a piece de resistance for Bowl promoters. Nebraska rolled 419 yards on the ground in smashing Kansas 42-6.

Outside of these three top-ranking powers, the Bowl fare this year is slim with many of the better teams having suffuered two or more defeats or ties.

Here is a long-range look at the prospective major Bowls: Southern California 5 - 1 - 1 or UCLA 5-1-1.

Cotton — Arkansas 8-0 vs. Nebraska 8-0.

Sugar — Tennessee 4-0-2 vs. Texas Tech 7-1.

Orange — Alabama 6-1-1 vs. Florida 5-2.

Gator—Tulsa 6-2 vs. Kentucky 6-2.

The list of major unbeaten and untied teams was reduced to five with the 7-0 defeat of Utah State by Memphis State

Beisides Michigan State, Arkansas and Nebraska, the perfect list includes Princton and Dartmouth, two ivy league teams each with 7-0 marks who clash Nov. 20 for the league title. Princeton beat Harvard 14-6 and Dartmouth smothered Columbia 47-0.

BOB BAUN INJURED

BOB BAUN

TORONTO (CP)—Defenceman Bob Baun of Toronto Maple Leafs who was hit by a puck on the right temple in Saturday's game here against New York Rangers, did not accompany the Leafs to Chicago for a National Hockey League game against the Black Hawks Sunday night.

Baun was taken to hospital but a series of x-rays showed no serious head injury and he was released. However, team officials decided he was in no condition to play Sunday night.

Thumbs Down On Proposal

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Amateur Athletic Union of Canada ended its annual meeting here Saturday by rejecting a proposal to dilute its powers.

Delegates agreed with an AAU committee report which opposed the plan of professor Osborne of the University of British Columbia's physical education department.

Prof. Osborne said in a speech Thursday the AAU should "help its individual sport bodies to become autonomous" and gradually fade out as an over-all athletic regulatory body.

Unbeaten Moccasin Lopes to $183,690

NEW YORK (CP)—Unbeaten Moccasin loped to victory in the $183,690 Gardenia at Garden State Park in Cherry Hill, N.J., Saturday, clinching the U.S. two-year-old title and becoming the fourth horse in American racing history to complete its juvenile year without defeat.

Ridden by Larry Adams, the granddaughter of Nasrullah took command with a little more than an eighth of a mile to go and won going away by 2 lengths over Lady Pitt, the 8-to-1 second choice in the field of nine two-year-old fillies.

The only other fillies to complete their juvenile campaigns unbeaten were Regret in 1914, Top Flight in 1931 and Idun, which also won the Gardenia, in 1957.

Moccasin earned $110,214 for A. B. Hancock's Claiborne Farm and boosted her earnings to $319,731.

The chestnut filly was the 3-to-10 favorite of a crowd of 31,-441 and returned $2.60, $2.40 and $2.20.

Straight Deal romped in with a surprisingly easy three-length triumph over odds-on favorite Steeple Jill Saturday in the 95th running of the Ladies Handicap at New York's Aqueduct race track.

Frank Frankel's Yes Please was third, a nose in front of the Canadian - owned Northern Queen in the $55,900 test for fillies and mares.

Straight Deal, the second choice owned by Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs, returned $10.40, $3 and $2.20. Steeple Jill was $2.20 and $2.20, while Yes Please returned $2.20.

The winning time was 2:03 3/5 for the 1¼ miles, the first time the race had been run at that distance.

Gay Revoke, driving up on the outside in a sensational three-horse finish, pulled off to a head victory at Sportsman's Park Saturday in the $29,100 Jack R. Johnston Memorial Handicap in Chicago.

Ramblin Road, the 7-to-5 favorite, finished second, losing the lead at the wire. Justabout finished third, a nose further back.

Gay Revoke rallied from next to last place in the 11-horse field to collect the winner's share of $16,005.

At Louisville, Ky., outsider Decathy caught pace - setting Abrogate in the stretch Saturday and captured the $28,025 Falls City Handicap at Churchill Downs.

FAVORITE FALTTERS

Favored Star Maggie faltered at the head of the stretch and finished sixth in the seven-horse field. Really Flying was third.

Laurel, Md., racing secretary Ken Lennox came close to a handicapper's dream with the running of the $20,000 - added Mason-Dixon handicap Saturday when four horses to which he had assigned weights finished noses apart.

Brookfield Farm's In Zeal won by a nose from Mrs. Walter Jeffords' Portsmouth, who was a nose in front of Imasmartee. It was just another whisker back to Lancastrian, fourth in the eight-horse field.

While the Brookfield entry, owned by Harry Isaacs of Baltimore, paid $6.40, $3.80 and $3.20 cross the board, Portsmouth, the 9-to-5 favorite, returned $3.60 to place and $3 to show.

In Zeal ran the mile on the grass in 1:34 1-5, one-fifth of a second slower than the track record set by Portsmouth last Saturday.

Take Over, upset winner of the Washington Park Handicap, won the $20,000 Auld Lang Syne Hndicap on the closing day of the Detroit Race Course season Saturday.

South African Frog Logs Longest Leap

ELSBURG, South Africa (AP)—A long - legged South African bullfrog named Fanjan established a world jumping record Saturday by springing a distance of 20 feet eight inches.

This beat the previous rlisted American-held record by three feet six inches.

More than 400 frogs, including several from foreign countries, took part in the 13th Frog Olympics held here.

A West German entry, Ludwig, mysteriously disappeared from his container the night before the event. It is suspected he was stolen.

One South African entry was disqualified when it was found to be under the influence of alcohol.

B.C. Driver Restrictions Hardest in Canada--Bonner

VANCOUVER (CP)—Attorney General Bonner said Saturday discipline imposed on British Columbia drivers is probably stricter than anywhere else in Canada.

He said this year either the courts or the B.C. Motor Vehicle Branch will rule about 25,000 drivers off the road for periods ranging up to three years.

He was commenting at the annual convention of the B.C. Social Credit League on a resolution asking that convicted impaired drivers be ruled off the roads for longer periods of time.

The motion, which passed, also asked the superintendent of insurance to supervise car insurance premiums "so that as an improvement in the accident ratio becomes evident, the companies will reduce rates accordingly."

Another resolution that called for government car insurance or scrutiny of insurance rates by the public utilities commission was rejected.

Mr. Bonner said that despite the high number of accidents in British Columbia and the high cost of repairs, insurance rates in the province were among the lowest in Canada.

A third resolution, which was passed, said that no motor vehicle should be licenced or transferred without proof that the owner has liability and property damage insurance.

Mr. Bonner told delegates that mobile provincial car inspection teams will be increased shortly. He was commenting on a resolution calling for mandatory inspection of motor vehicles.

The attorney-general and the majority of the 300 delegates disagreed about the teaching of the perils of narcotics addiction in junior and secondary schools.

A motion calling for this instruction was passed despite the fact that Mr. Bonner warned that such instruction could expose teenagers to techniques of narcotic addiction.

The students would not ordinarily hear ot these techniques because addicition affected only those persons "in the fringes" of society.

Mr. Bonner said studies in B.C. have shown that innocent people are not led or tricked into addiction. Addicts were persons with a long life of delinquency.

One Vancouver Point Grey delegate said peddlers introduced narcotics to students by putting them in cigarettes.

The motion was introduced by Cariboo constituency association and said addiction is a new problem in the booming Prince George area.

The delegates backed away from two controversial points that involved what some called socialistic measures.

One, a motion suggesting taking over of the B.C. Telephone Co., was not dealt with because it was considered a federal matter.

The other sought increased rural electrification.

Recreation Minister Kiernan said that the present rate reduction policy of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority made it impractical for it to start too many losing operations.

He was commenting on a resolution seeking power for rural communities. TThe matter was referred to the appropriate minafter MLA John Tisdale of Sanich suggested that delegates were being asked whether they want to increase rates to cover the cost of expensive rural power plants.

Mr. Kiernan said later that B.C. Hydro will eventually provide industrial power rates in B.C. that will be irresistible to industries coming in from outside the province.

Refuses To Dismiss Youssoupoff Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — A New York Supreme Court justice refused Friday to dismiss the $1,500,000 invasion of privacy suit by Russian Prince Felix Youssoupoff against the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Judge Wilfred A. Waltemade said the matter would have to go before the jury of nine men and three women hearing the case.

He was acting on a motion by Carleton G. Eldridge Jr., defence lawyer.

Youssoupoff, 79, has based his suit on a Jan. 5, 1963, telecast by CBS of a play, If I Should Die, which deals with the assassination of the Mad Monk, Rasputin, in Youssoupoff's St. Petersburg Palace in Russia Dec. 16, 1916.

Justice Waltemade said: "We deal, not with a public official, but with a private citizen whose individual rights should not be the subject of public retaliation."

The suit was not founded on Youssoupoff's having been a coconspirator in Rasputin's assassination, the judge said, but that CBS breached his right of privacy in that the broadcast "contained fictionalized dialogue and actions in recreating" his role in the historical event.

The CBS lawyer maintained that the Princess Irina, Youssoupoff's wife, was used as a bait or lure to bring Rasputin to her husband's palace and to his death.

Eldridge said television enjoyed the same rights as their communications media, such as newspapers, and added: "Today's news is tomorrow's history. The story of the assassination is in the public domain."

Lawyer Herbert R. Zelenko described the telecast as a "sex drama," which smeared the prince as a "panderer."

The case will go to the jury Monday.

Islanders Pine For Bright London Life

CAPETOWN, South Africa (Reuters)—Islanders on lonely, wave-lashed Tristan da Cunha in the South Atlantic are pining for the modern, bustling life they tasted in Britain, it was reported Saturday.

Two already are on their way back to the bright lights they left in 1963 and others plan to leave for Britain in April, the reports said.

The entire population of the island first came to Britain after a volcano destroyed their homes in October, 1961.

At the end of their 8,000-mile journey from one of the world's loneliest inhabited island, they stepped for the first time into modern civilization.

The men exchanged the quiet, raw life of Tristan for jobs in highly mechanized Britain. The women slowly found their way around the intricacies of shopping.

Some of the teen-agers experienced the thrills of motor cycles.

But for most of the islanders, the television, the noise, the crowds and the complications were too much and they were homesick for Tristan.

Their leader, Willie Repetto, gave this verdict on English life: "Money, money, money, worry, worry, worry all the time."

In a secret ballot, most of the islanders voted to return to their volcano-shattered homes and in March, 1962, an advance party of 52 sailed to prepare the way.

In October, 1963, the main party returned to the island, along with a six months supply of food, potatoes for planting a new crop and 175 chickens to restock Tristan's hen houses.

They left behind four girls who married Britons and 14 islanders who preferred their new homes.

Retarded Twins Baffle Psychologists, Experts

NEW YORK (CP)—A set of 26-year-old mentally - retarded twins at the New York Psychiatric Institute are baffling the experts by giving correct answers to almost impossible questions and incorrect ones to those that could be answered by any school boy.

Dr. William Horwitz, assistant director of the institute, asked the twins for the date of the first Wednesday in July, 1901, and they replied correctly, almost instantly:

"That was on the third."

The doctor then asked:

"If a box of candy costs 35 cents and I gave you a dollar, how much change would I get?"

The pale-blue eyes of the identical twins blinked almost in unison behind thick spectacles as they concentrated for several seconds.

GIVE WRONG ANSWER

"Fifty cents," said George, the quicker of the twins. His brother, Charles, echoed the same answer.

Dr. Horwitz then went briskly along to other questions.

When told a date on which a person died a few hundred years ago, and asked how old that person would be if alive today, they can respond correctly at once.

Or when asked how they know that Feb. 15, 2002, will be on a Friday, or that April 21, 1968, will be a Sunday, as it had been in 1963, 1957 and 1964, they say simply they do not know.

Experts are confounded. The twins intellectual achievements go far beyond trick memory of calendars. They seem to possess some complex mathematical ability, yet they cannot do the simplest multiplication or division.

For many years psychiatrists have known of the idiot savant, a mentally-retarded person with some extraordinary mental gift. But George and Charles are the only known twins who are idiot savants. They have an intelligence quotient of 70—100 being considered average.

Krupp Has Expansion Plans for Empire

ESSEN, West Germany (Reuters)—Alfried Krupp, sometimes known as West Germany's industrial emperor, is planning to double the size of the coal-and-steel concern which he is supposed to sell by next summer, it was learned Saturday.

The giant Rheinhausen mining and foundry works of which Krupp is sole shareholder next month will formally take over the Bochumer Verein steel-smelting works, in which Rheinhausen has a 75-per-cent control.

Rheinhausen has had a "for-sale" sign on it since 1953 when Krupp—just two years out of an Allied prison for using slave labor during the Second World War—agreed to sell his coal-and-steel interests as the price for keeping the rest of his war-battered but enormous empire.

He was obliged to sell Rheinhausen by 1959, but a mixed German-Allied commission was unable to find a suitable tender and the deadline for sale has regularly been extended.

DUE TO EXPIRE

It is due to expire again in the summer of 1966, but the chances of finding any one who can afford to buy a concern which would probably cost more than 1,000,000,000 marks ($250,000,000) seems extremely remote.

No serious offer is ever known to have been made.

The two parts of the new Krupp giant last year had a turnover of 2,000,000,000 marks ($500,000,000).

Krupp, 58, great-great grandson of the firm's founder, now controls more than 10 per cent of West Germany's raw - steel production. Only the Thyssen group has a larger share.

The Buchumer take-over is only a formalization of a situation which has existed for years.

Supreme Court Agrees to Hear Voting Claim

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court has agreed to hear South Carolina's claim that the 1965 voting-rights law is unconstitutional.

And it has invited other states which may want to fight the law side by side with South Carolina to get their requests in.

This action, announced after the justices had concluded their customary Friday conference, means an early judgment on the claim southern officials have made since President Johnson asked for the law.

The claim: The law is an unconstitutional usurpation of states' rights to oversee elections.

The court's decision to take the case directly also means South Carolina will be spared the chore of carrying its battle through lower federal courts.

What South Carolina is seeking is an immediate halt to the dispatch of federal registrars to the state. The quickest way it could hope to achieve this would be to sue the federal government and have the case heard by the highest court in the U.S.

Thus, South Carolina asked the Supreme Court Sept. 29 to accept filing of an original suit —original in that the first action is before the Supreme Court. And that is what the court granted Friday.

Haircut Attempt Causes 'Shear' Riot in Rome

ROME (Reuters) — Italian students armed with scissors descended Friday on a 15 long-haired foreign beatniks to give them haircuts and a wild fracas developed.

Rush-hour traffic stopped as crowds gathered to stare. Police rushed in to break up the battlers on the picturesque Spanish Steps in the heart of Rome.

Friday, about 30 students attacked the beatniks lounging on the steps—"to teach them a lesson," one said.

After the Tuesday brawl Rome police told some beatniks they had to leave by midnight Friday night—and gave them transportation tickets. The Italian news agency Italia commented:

"Operation anti-beatnik . . . is aimed at liberating Rome from these young men who are averse to haircuts or the use of soap."

One beatnik was taken to hospital with a broken nose. The rest suffered only minor injuries.

NEW ROCKET TO SUPPLY SHAPE DATE

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) A spacecraft named Geos I was rocketed toward an intended orbit Saturday to give scientists a better idea of the shape of the earth and distances between far-apart places.

A three - stage Delta rocket shot away from Cape Kennedy to propel the 385-pound payload toward an orbit ranging from 690 to 920 miles above the earth.

The capsule carried flashing lights, laser beam reflectors and radio instruments designed to survey the earth with an accuracy never before possible.

Russian Ruble Might Rival U.S. Currency

By ANDREW WALLER

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The ruble may begin to vie with the U.S. dollar as an international currency if an apparent Kremlin concession to its European allies is put into effect.

The concession, which has so far only been recommended, would enable the East to trade more freely with the West.

The U.S.S.R. apparently has agreed in principle that Eastern Europe's international economic co-operation bank should hold part of its authorized capital in gold or freely convertible currencies.

Some East European countries, especially Poland, with a favorable trade balance in relation to the rest of the area, are known to have wanted such a move for some time.

If the recommendations are put into effect, these countries will be able to draw gold or hard currency from the bank to finance deals with the West.

WITHDRAWALS LIMITED

But hard-currency withdrawals presumably would be limited by a country's favorable balance with the bank after settling its debts within Eastern Europe.

Surpluses now remain in rubles, which can only be used within the area of Comecon, Eastern Europe's mutual assistance pact.

The Soviet attitude to the bank holding hard currency or gold has never been publicly stated. But as the area's main gold producer and a country suffering from a shortage of hard currency, the U.S.S.R. has been thought reluctant to agree to contribute these to the bank's capital.

On the other hand, Soviet leaders are likely to favor a move which would enhance the international status of the ruble.

The official Soviet news agency Tass said a recent meeting in Budapest of the Comecon currency and finance standing committee adopted recommendations that part of the bank's capital should be in gold or freely-convertible currency.

There could be some delay before the recommendations are put into practice. This would give the Kremlin, which contributes one third of the bank's capital, time to recover some of the hard currency it has had to spend on grain imports from the West this year.

Crippled Liner Limps Back to New York Port

GENOA, Italy (AP) —The Italian line's crippled liner Raffaello limped back into Home port Saturday after turning back in the Atlantic half way to New York with one turbine out of operation.

Three four-jet Alitalia planes were reported ready to take 462 of the 1,519 delayed passengers to New York Sunday. Others were expected to leave Sunday for a second try at the Atlantic crossing aboard the Raffaello's sister ship, The Michelangelo.

It was a gloomy ending to what was to have been the Raffaello's fifth trip from Genoa to New York since going into service last July.

Fire broke out in the electrical apparatus of the 34,000-ton liner Monday west of the Azores. The Raffaello, which had left Genoa Oct. 26, had been due in New York Wednesday.

The fire apparently put the big portside turbine out of operation and repairs could not be made at sea.

The Raffaello hobbled back through Gibraltar with her usual 30-knot speed reduced by half.

NEW YORK (AP) — Many people in the metals industry are blaming the Soviet Union for the increase in platinum prices.

Platinum was quoted Friday at a record $170-to-$175 an ounce in the world market at London. This is five times the price of gold, and the highest level for platinum since 1920 when it reached $154 an ounce on the open market.

Majority of Drug Firms Under CPMA Standards

OTTAWA (CP) — More than two-third of Canadian drug companies are not members of the Canadian Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association because they cannot meet its standards, the association's president, Dr. W. W. Wigle, said Tuesday.

Dr. Wigle was commenting on figures in a report issued by the association at its annual meeting Tuesday. The report says 171 individual pharmaceutical manufacturing establishments are listed by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

It also says only 53 manufacturing companies are members of the association.

In an interview, Mr. Wigle said: "Our 53 companies manufacture about 85 per cent of all prescription drugs bought by Canadians. There are many firms outside the association because their products do not meet our standards of quality control."

Dr. Wigle said firms were being urged by both government and industry to upgrade standards and become members.

The pharmaceutical association, founded in 1914, requires its members to meet or exceed Canadian government specifications board requirements, and to adhere to ethics and marketing codes.

DISCUSS PROBLEMS

B. G. Barrow, federal deputy industry minister, Tuesday urged association members to bring individual marketing and research problems to the department.

"We don't have any pre-conceived idea as to how we can help you. We want to find out what is worrying you. What factors are going to make it difficult for you to expand in the future?"

He outlined government tax incentive program designed to encourage more Canadian companies to do advanced research and development in Canada rather than by parent firms in the United States.

"There is no doubt that Canadian producers must continue to import a sizable part of their technological knowledge. We are not suggesting that such imports be stopped.

"What we are trying to encourage and achieve is much more of an exchange of technical work and knowledge between Canadian companies and their affiliates in other countries."
