BUNT CHARGED WITH ARSON

Police Request For Broader Powers Draws Heavy Fire

Civil Liberties Groups Charge Proposals Outdated

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's police chiefs and civil liberty groups have collided head-on over police requests for wider powers to fight crime, including the right to search homes without warrants and to arrest suspects without filing charges.

"Outdated . . . medieval, . . . outrageous . . . fantastic," were among comments Wednesday from members of Parliament with legal backgrounds.

"It's an example of the police mind run rampant . . . preposterous ideas," said the Canadian Civil Liberties Association.

"Drastic and far-reaching," said Alberta Premier E. C. Manning.

But at Vancouver Police Chief Ralph Booth, president of the Canadian Association of Police Chiefs, protested that the association's brief which asked for the new sweeping powers had not been throughly read.

FORFEIT LIBERTIES

He said society must give up some of its liberties so that crime can be fought more effectively and if it were not prepared to do so "then society must suffer the consequences."

At a news conference he criticized MPs and others who decried the police chiefs' proposals, made in a brief to the federal inquiry on the administration of justice, "without having read the brief and the background behind the recommendations."

"MPs probably know very little of what's in the brief," Chief Booth said.

"It's an example of the police mind run rampant," said Professor Mark McGuigan of the Canadian Civil Liberties Association. He said that "as a package, the ideas are preposterous."

The association's board of directors is planning to meet to discuss the proposals.

The police chiefs' brief also suggested that all magistrates undergo periodic psychiatric examinations and that the lash be retained for punishing violent criminals.

J. S. Midanik of Toronto, chairman of the Canadian Bar Association's Ontario subsection on civil liberties, described some of the association's requests as "absolutely not justified."

AGREES WITH LASH

Calgary's police chief, Ken McIver, said the recommendations were not referred to the association's general membership "and the only part I agree with is the retention of the lash."

As to the suggestion that magistrates should undergo psychiatric examinations, Prof. McGuigan said there was as much reason to examine the police.

A Winnipeg magistrate, Ian Dubienski, suggested that such examinations "are a good idea for any professional man working with the public—including policemen."

Mr. Midanik also said he felt that to hold a person without laying a charge against him "smacks of police state-ism."

"In our society there cannot be a police right to detain people on the basis of preventive detention."

"We're all concerned with the problems that face law enforcement officers," said Premier Manning "but we must jealously protect the rights of the citizens."

SAID LACKING INSIGHT

In Ottawa, Prime Minister Pearson's parliamentary secretary, John R. Matheson, said the police brief "is not distinguished by any insight into the disciplines relating to reform and rehabilitation."

CRESTON FLIER, Sqdn. Ldr. C. B. Lang is the flying boss of the Golden Centennaires, who will stage their sensational fine precision aerobatics across Canada during this Centennial year. A Photo-story of the Centennaires' show will be featured in the Daily News Weekend Magazine this Saturday. Lang. 29, flew with the Golden Hawks, disbanded in 1964. The Centennaires will perform in the Creston Valley on July 14 and will also land and take off at Castlegar for refuelling.

119,700 Expected At Expo First Day

By JACK TRACY

MONTREAL (CP)—The paying public, almost forgotten in elaborate plans for today's formal inauguration of Expo 67, will be serenaded by bands and welcomed by rockets, stunting jets and fireworks when they pass through the turnstiles Friday.

Expo authorities Wednesday announced details of the first public day at the fair after the fanfare of opening ceremonies has died away.

The fair's big computer churned out the advice that 119,700 are expected to attend the first day, compared with more than 3,000 specially-invited guests at the inaugural the day before. The general public will be barred from Thursday's ceremonies.

Four bands will strike up at 8:30 a.m. at main entrances with the Expo Band coming in at 9:28 a.m. with Hey Friend, Say Friend. This song is Expo's official theme song and won French - Canadian composer Stephane Venne $6,000 in contest prize money.

STRIKES COUNTDOWN

At 9::29 a.m. plus 30 seconds the atomic clock in the Swiss pavilion will give a 30-second countdown. During this time Col. Edward Churchill, boss builder of the fair, will present Expo's keys to Philippe de Gaspe Beaubien, director of operations, in a symbolic gesture.

As the atomic clock reaches zero, Mr. de Gaspe Beaubien will open the gates at Place d'Accueil, the fair's main entrance from downtown Montreal. Rockets will streak upward from spots scattered over the 1,000 - acre site on two St. Lawrence River islands and a section of mainland Montreal.

By this time the vanguard of the 15,000,000 persons expected to visit the fair during its six months will be streaming towards the pavilions of 63 nations due to open at 10 a.m.

They will be met in the streets of the $650,000,000 exhibition city by bands and troubadours.

At the marina on La Ronde a convoy of 30 yachts from the Saguenay River area of eastern Quebec will tie up and a band will escort 150 persons in historic costume into Le Village, a village on La Ronde built in the style of ancient Quebec.

In mid-afternoon the Expo Band will give a concert in Place des Nations, occupied only 24 hours before by VIPs at the formal inaugural, and the Golden Centennaires of the RCAF will fly their jets over the fairgrounds.

The pavilions close at 9:30 p.m. and an hour later fireworks will signal the end of the first public day at the fair.

Italy Lofts New Satellite

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—An Italian satellite swung into an equatorial orbit Wednesday after an American rocket launched it into space from a platform in the Indian Ocean, a project spokesman announced here.

"It looks like complete success," he said.

Would Wire-Tap, Hold Suspects Without Charge

By DENNIS ORCHARD

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's police chiefs have laid down a controversial list of new powers they claim are necessary to restore a balance in the country's criminal law.

Their formal submission to a federal inquiry says the balance is being threatened by "zeal for the rehabilitation of the criminal."

The list advocated by the Canadian Association of Police Chiefs includes a right to search homes without warrants, a selective right to employ wiretapping and electronic "bugs," and a right to arrest and hold suspects without charge.

The group would retain flogging in the law and specifically reserve the seldom-used right to ask what accused persons are saying in conversation with such court-appointed counsellors as clergymen and psychiatrists.

RAISES STORM

The association's brief to the five-member Canadian committee on corrections was released Wednesday and immediately provoked criticism by lawyer MPs.

In the Commons, Gordon Fairweather, former New Brunswick attorney-general and now Conservative MP, facetiously asked whether the brief was drafted in "1767, 1867, or 1967."

Robert Stanbury, a Liberal MP with a special interest in the problem of bugging devices, said police efficiency is not the law's prime concern, and if it were Canada could always bring back the torture rack.

The NDP's deputy leader, David Lewis, said the brief represented a thoughtless approach to crime detection and the administration of justice.

Mr. Lewis said he does not believe the views of the chiefs represent those of police officers generally. And in Calgary, Police Chief Ken McIver said the brief had not been submitted to the association's membership for approval.

HOLD WITHOUT CHARGE

Ottawa reaction was most pronounced on the request for a "preventive detention law" authorizing police to jail persons temporarily to prevent them from breaking the law in the future.

The brief said this would allow police to hold "rabble-rousers and trouble - makers when threats are made against the person of VIPs, etc."

John R. Matheson, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, said this reflected "a contempt for civil liberties."

Anglican Group Pro - Abortion In Some Cases

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Vancouver Anglican committee has recommended that abortions be allowed in cases where the mother is not able to support a child or in cases where the mother is emotionally incapable of raising a child.

The committee, under the chairmanship of Rev. James McKibbon of Vancouver, will submit the report to the Anglican Church's Department of Social Service which will in turn present the recommendations to the Anglican Church's biennial meeting in Ottawa, which begins Aug. 26.

Haile Selassie Stops in B.C.

VICTORIA (CP) — Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia arrived here Wednesday afternoon on a Canadian visit that will take him to Ottawa and Expo 67 in Montreal.

The 74-year-old bearded emperor flew from Los Angeles to Vancouver earlier in the day aboard a United States presidential aircraft—one of four in President Johnson's personal fleet.

He made a quick tour of the University of British Columbia, then boarded an RCAF aircraft for Victoria.

Tight security surrounded his Vancouver arrival. But Lulu, a brown, long-haired chihuahua owned by the emperor, dashed between the legs of U.S. secret service men who arrived with him and RCMP who surrounded him.

Lulu got back into place, then the emperor took the dog on his lap on the car ride to UBC.

His entourage included 13 Ethiopian state officials and servants, and Michel Gauvin, Canada's ambassador to Ethiopia.

Veterans' Week Slated For June

OTTAWA (CP) — A week is being set aside in June to honor veterans of the four wars since Confederation in which Canada has taken part.

A centennial project of the veterans affairs department, National Veterans Week will begin Sunday, June 11, with special memorial services across the country.

There will be an afternoon service that day on Parliament Hill but most of the memorial events during the week will be organized locally by veterans' organizations.

Details of the Ottawa ceremonies still have not been settled. Present plans call for an all - Canadian program, with survivors of the four wars—the Nile Expedition and South Africa, the First World War, Second World War and Korea—taking part.

There were 112,331 Canadians killed in the four wars. During the 1899-1902 Nile and South African campaign 267 died, in the First World War 66,655, in the Second World War 44,893 and in the Korean 516.

The department estimates that 1,045,000 veterans of these conflicts are living 975,000 of them in Canada and 70,000 abroad. About 1,000 of the survivors are veterans of the South African war.

Parliament Wednesday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Commons, driving to wind up its session business, set a record for session length on its 249th sitting day.

Final approval was given in the House to the federal program of providing subsidies to provinces for manpower retraining.

The Senate debated the armed forces unification bill passed by the Commons Tuesday.

The upper chamber also added a provision to a government bill curbing LSD use which would make it an offence to promote use of the drug.

Canada's police chiefs in a brief to a federal inquiry called for stronger powers, including the right to search homes without warrants.

Trade Minister Winters signed a trade expansion agreement with Bulgaria calling for sale of $24,000,000 of Canadian wheat in the next three years.

INCREASED RED ACTIVITY LED TO BOMBINGS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Increased action by Communist MiG fighters led to the American decision to bomb North Vietnam airfields, Defence Secretary Robert McNamara said Wednesday.

McNamara told reporters as he left a closed hearing of a special Senate committee on European troop deployment that Communist warplanes have been "much more active" in the last three weeks. He said it "seemed wise" to attack their bases.

These attacks have been called an escalation of the war by administration critics.

The critics' contention that President Johnson is using Gen. William C. Westmoreland in an effort to silence their dissent to Johnson's Vietnam policies was disputed by Senator Richard B. Russell (Dem. Ga.).

West Expected To Oppose Resolution

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—An Afro-Asian group introduced a resolution in the United Nations General Assembly Wednesday calling upon the UN to create an administration for South-West Africa and "take all necessary measures" to install it.

It is virtually certain that the Afro-Asian draft resolution, as it stands, will be opposed by Canada, the United States and West European members, diplomatic sources said.

Support of the Soviet bloc also is regarded as doubtful, because of Soviet opposition to direct UN rule of the disputed territory.

Arrest of Organist, Teacher Follows St. Paul's-Trinity Fire

A Trafalgar Secondary School department head Wednesday was arrested and charged with arson in connection with the fire that destroyed St. Paul's-Trinity United Church April 17.

Nelson Police said that Merlin Roberts Bunt, a past president of the Nelson District Teacher's Association, and organist at the church was arrested at his Cedar Street home Wednesday about 2 p.m. by Police Chief H. M. Thomlison.

He was charged with two counts of arson.

After appearing before Magistrate William Evans he was released on $1,000 bail.

He will appear in court to face the charges on May 17, said Magistrate Evans.

Bunt, who is well known in Nelson, is head of the English Department at Trafalgar School, the City's Junior Secondary School.

He is a former president of the Nelson District Teacher Association and has been active in education affairs.

From 1956 to 1961 he was organist and choirmaster at St. Paul's-Trinity United Church and left Nelson to take a new position as organist-choirmaster at McDougall United Church in Edmonton.

In September last year he was re-appointed organist at St. Paul's-Trinity. The church has one of the largest choirs in Nelson.

FOLLOWS PROBE

Police said Bunt's arrest followed investigations into the cause of the fire which gutted St. Paul's-Trinity early in the morning of April 17.

Damage estimated at over a quarter of a million dollars resulted to the 60-year-old church during the devastating blaze.

Thirty firemen poured thousands of gallons of water onto the flames for two hours before they were brought under control.

Police and fire officials said after the fire that they suspected arson. An inspector from the Fire Marshal's office in Vancouver was called in to investigate the blaze.

Before the large blaze which swept through the old church, police and firemen were called to the church on the corner of Josephine and Silica streets, when a minor fire broke out.

It was found by a woman attending a Fellowship group meeting late Sunday night.

Because of the fire, two houses near the church on Silica Street were evacuated, when the heat of the flames and sparks threatened to ignite them.

Telephone services were disrupted by the blaze which was watched by a large crowd of people.

But some of the church's contents were salvaged. Firemen had been able to enter the church when the second and major fire was first reported at 1:30 a.m.

The fire left the congregation of St. Paul's Trinity homeless.

Immediately after the fire, Archdeacon Fred D. Wyatt offered accommodation to the congregation in his church, St. Saviour's Pro-Cathedral.

The Anglican church is one block below the gutted United Church.

And this Sunday, the first joint service of the two congregations wil be held in St. Saviour's.

No decision has been made yet, whether the gutted church will be rebuilt, or whether a new church will be erected.

Russ Urge All-European Security Plan

KARLOVY VARY, Czechoslovakia (AP)—Communist party leaders of Eastern and Western Europe signed a declaration Wednesday aimed at upholding present frontiers in Europe and persuading the West to abandon NATO in favor of an all-European security system.

The declaration on peace and security in Europe was signed on the final day of a three-day meeting of chiefs of 24 ruling and non-ruling Communist parties at this health resort. Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev was among those at the conference.

The declaration is aimed against the policies of West Germany and its claim to represent the entire German nation. It seeks to promote neutrality for Western Europe, hostility to U.S. influence in Europe, rejection of plans for renewing the North Atlantic Treaty Organization expiring in 1969 and recognition of all present European borders, including those of divided Germany as permanent.

Seaway Deficit Drops to $3,223,149

OTTAWA (CP)—The St. Lawrence Seaway had a net deficit of $3,223,149 last year, the lowest since it opened in 1959, the seaway's annual report to Parliament disclosed Wednesday.

Operating profit on the Montreal-to-Lake Ontario waterway was $13,100,000 compared to $11,700,000 in 1965. But this was more than eaten up by interest payments on the capital investment.

The 1965 deficit after interest was $4,097,152.

Since its opening the seaway has accumulated a deficit of $45,421,000.

UN Faces Role of Peacekeeper

NEW YORK (CP) — Paul Martin, Canada's external affairs minister, said Wednesday night he believes the United Nations is in the peacekeeping business to stay, despite serious disagreements among member countries about how UN peace forces are to be financed and controlled.

In a lecture at Columbia University on Canada's role in UN peacekeeping operations, Martin said he cannot agree with the Soviet view that the control and detailed supervision of these operations should be exercised exclusively by the Security Council and its military staff committee.

"I believe the present system whereby the secretary-general guidance of the council is more in keeping with today's blend of political and military realities," he said. "No doubt this system might be improved."

Komarov's Ship Had Had Unmanned Tests

MOSCOW (AP) —The spacecraft that carried Col. Vladimir Komarov to his death had been tested in unmanned flights, a Soviet scientist told mourners Wednesday at the astronaut's funeral.

The disclosure was made by Mstislav Keldysh, president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, as he stood atop Lenin's Tomb with Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, President Nikolai V. Podgorny and other leaders.

In a funeral oration before 5,000 mourners in Red Square, Keldysh said the Soyuz 1 that took Komarov into orbit Sunday had made unmanned flights. He did not say how many.

Keldysh repeated the official announcements that the 40-year-old cosmonaut had died Monday when the parachute harness on the Soyuz became entangled more than four miles above the earth.

It is believed Keldysh reported the previous unmanned test flights of Soyuz to reassure the people that all possible precautions had been taken before Komarov was sent aloft.

FLEW SECRETLY?

No earlier flights of the Soyuz 1 were ever announced. They could have been disguised as part of the Soviet Cosmos series of satellites, which the Russians say conduct space research.

Keldysh's words were bound to stir up new speculation about the Soyuz and the Soviet space program. No information about the spaceship has been released.

Greek King Hopes for Reversion Soon to Parliamentary Government

ATHENS (Reuters) — King Constantine Wednesday night broke his silence for the first time since Friday's Greek army coup and addressed a cabinet meeting here shortly after Andreas Papandreou, a leftist leader, was charged with high treason.

Presiding over a meeting of the army-backed government, the king expressed the "fervent wish that the country shall revert to parliamentary government as soon as possible."

Constantine had remained secluded at his country home at Tatoi, 16 miles from Athens, since the coup. But Wednesday night he came to Athens to swear in four new ministers.

A short time earlier, a charge of high treason was placed against Andreas Papandreou, 48, a Harvard-educated leftist leader.

The king told the ministers: "Greece has gone through very hard trials recently. The democratic institutions have been undermined. The nation, the monarchy, the armed forces, justice have been continuously assailed and most of all the true interests of the people have suffered."

He said he is certain that with the help of the ministers and of the people "a stable justice and true and healthy democracy will be speedily established."

"I shall do my duty toward my country, and toward my people."

"It is also my fervent wish that the country shall revert to parliamentary government as soon as possible."

Papandreou, an arch-foe of the 26-year-old King and the country's rightist forces, is the son of former premier George Papandreou, 81, leader of the powerful Centre Union party.

Care of Families Prime Aim of Natal Committee

NATAL-MICHEL — The Natal Disaster Fund Committee, decided at a meeting here Wednesday night that its aims and objectives are the right ones.

"We think we are on the right track," said Larry Revitt, secretary-treasurer of the fund.

"Ensuring the care and well being of the families struck by this disaster, will be strictly adhered to," he commented.

"The injured are also included."

Fifteen men were killed when a giant blast ripped through the Balmer North Mine on Tuesday, April 4.

Several men were injured by the explosion, and some are still in hospital.

During the meeting, the 19-member committee, made a full review of all fatalities in Crows Nest Industries Mines in the past 20 years.

"But it was decided with regret that we can't go back and help families affected by those tragedies."

The exact terms of the education, receivable under the fund, were clarified at the meeting.

One of the main objectives of the fund, is to provide victims' families with full opportunities to enter an advanced education.

University, vocational, or technical training of all types will be made available "for all descendants, including widows, children and men injured," said Mr. Revitt.

"If a widow wanted secretarial training," we could look after her, said Mr. Revitt.

At the meeting, two members of the Natal-Michel Local of the United Mine Workers of America Union, were appointed to the committee.

Presently, the fund stands at just over $73,000. $38,000 in Natal and $35,000 pledged.

Council Asked To Back Hate Motion

In a letter to City Council, the city of London, Ontario, informed the city fathers of their adoption of a resolution regarding hate literature.

The resolution asked, "That the Federal Government be urged to speed the passage of an Act to amend the Criminal Code of Canada with respect to the dissemination of hate literature."

The matter was referred to the city solicitor for comment.

Hellyer Lists Reasons Centennaires Not Coming

In a communication from Kootenay West MP Herbert W. Herridge to city council Monday night, a letter from Hon. Paul Hellyer, defence minister, and another to Mayor Bob Maddocks of Castlegar explained why the Golden Centennaires would not be able to perform in Castlegar.

Mr. Hellyer explained that "quite a number of requests have been received for the team to perform at communities other than those listed on the final program but, unfortunately, it has not been possible to accept these additional engagements.

"The main considerations, of course, are the factors of stress and fatigue, not only on the machines, but also on the pilots and ground crews. There is also a time factor of course, and all these considerations lead to the conclusion that once the hundred performances had been decided upon additional performances would have to be regretfully refused.

"Moreover, the relatively short flying range of the aircraft means that arrangements for maintenance, accommodation and transportation for ground support crews are additional factors which mitigate against changes in the schedule . . ."

Youths Tried in Camera

GRAND FORKS — Seven youths from Curlew, Washington, were sentenced in camera Monday by Magistrate Parker Williams following charges of indecent assault of two 13-year-old Grand Forks girls.

The youths aged 17 through 21, were charged following an incident during the recent Battle of the Bands here.

In court were Willy Harris, Arthur Wilson, Robert Lee Johnson and Bobby James Dixon. Three juveniles also appeared before Magistrate Parker Williams for sentencing.

The in camera hearing and closeting of the trial results was requested by Crown Prosecutor Michael Moran, Castlegar lawyer.

Grand Forks RCMP have made representation to the Attorney-General's Department for release of the trial results.

The youths were held in custody by Grand Forks police for one week before the Monday trial.

Kinnaird Mill Rate Increases by 5.13

KINNAIRD — Kinnaird's total expenditure for the coming year will be $335,948 and the mill rate 12 mills, a reduction of 1.28 mills from last year, council decided Tuesday night.

Mill rate for schools is 35.41, an increase of 5.26 mills; hospital 2.22 mills, up 1.15 mills; for a total mill rate of 49.36 mills, an increase of 5.13 mills.

Council received a letter from Hon. Don Brothers, minister of mines, stating he would come to Kinnaird for the celebration of Kinnaird becoming a town. The celebration will be held in August.

Council is making a request to the Regional District of Central Kootenay to have a recreation commission set up for Kinnaird and district.

Council supported Castlegar's letter to the Regional District asking that garbage collection in the Castlegar and Kinnaird areas come under the jurisdiction of the Regional District of Central Kootenay.

Commissioner Gerry Rust, who is also chairman of the Regional District, said a site had not yet been located and they would have to make sure they could get the land and know the cost, before garbage collection could be implemented.

Commissioner Rust said the outlying areas would have to be sold on the idea.

Art School Plans Display

A tea, sale and exhibition of Kootenay School of Art exhibits will be held Friday afternoon and night.

Ceramics, paintings and the graphic arts will be on display. They will include hand made bowls, ornaments, vases, tea sets, oil paintings, small sculptures and everything from book ends to place mats.

Entertainment, in the form of music and vocalists, folk singing, fortune telling and portrait sittings is also planned.

Dog Obedience Classes To Be Held at Park

The Nelson and District Canine Club in cooperation with the school board offers two dog obedience classes commencing May 3 at Lakeside Park. Dogmaster for both classes is Constable Ted Chayeski, Nelson City Police.

The first class will teach dogs basics such as heel, sit, come, stay, up, down, and how to stand. The second class which will be held concurrently is directed to dogs which graduated from previous classes for beginners. High jumping broadjumping, retrieving, and picking objects by scent are some of the subjects with which this advanced class will deal. Dog owners are required to provide leash and choke chain for both courses.

The executive of the Nelson and District Canine Club is accepting registrations for either course now.

Chamber Motion Was Tabled

Nelson City Council tabled a proposal to grant $5700 to the City's Chamber of Commerce and did not approve it, as was incorrectly stated in Wednesday's Nelson Daily News.

The Works, Utilities and Services Committee unanimously resolved that the grant be made, but it was tabled by the full Council, pending further consideration and discussion with the Chamber executive.

A decision on the grant, which is to be used for several Chamber projects in 1967, will be made at the next meeting of Council.

Use of Park For Dog Training Asked

Nelson Canine Club secretary Gay Christie asked city council if a portion of Lakeside Park could be set aside for dog training. The matter was referred to the Parks supervisor.

The request stated that, "the dogs will be kept under control at all times by their handlers."

"They will not be allowed to molest, destroy or disturb anything or anyone in the area, so designated for this purpose. We will leave the area in the same neat and tidy condition in which it was found."

City Promises To Tighten Control on Fires at Dump

Nelson City Council may make greater efforts to control burning at the city garbage dump, following a request from the Pollution Control Committee.

Dr. W. C. Murphy, who was among a delegation from the recently formed committee which met council Monday, told council:

"I don't think that we as a group can ask Kootenay Forest Products to clean up their smoke when the city is creating as much smoke at the other end of Nelson."

Dr. Murphy called burning at the garbage dump "one very obvious form of pollution."

"Fires down there seem to go all day and all night."

He suggested that a city workman with a source of water, could hose the fires down.

Simon deGroot, city engineer, told council: "We are not doing much to stop fires being set down there."

Added Ald. H. (Fritz) Farenholtz: "We are doing nothing."

FIRES ILLEGAL

Fires were illegal on the dump, but a sign that declared they were prohibited had itself been burned down, said Mr. deGroot.

He said it would be possible for a hose to be run to the dump.

Ald. Farenholtz said that at eight and nine at night, "there is as much traffic to the garbage dump as there is on Baker Street."

Ald. J. T. Wayling commented: "I agree that going after KFP seems quite contradictory when this burning is going on at the garbage dump."

The objectives and aims of the Pollution Control Committee were presented to council.

The organization intends to work "extensively to clean up all sources of pollution in the City of Nelson and surrounding area."

And it would encourage other areas to implement similar programs, like Castlegar, Trail, Rossland and Warfield.

PLAN COMMITTEE

It will also "set up an investigation committee to be represented if possible on an Industrial Commission and subsequently to report back to the organization as to whether pollution control measures of existing or new industry are adequate or not and then action will be decided upon by group."

And it will "cooperate with new businesses to implement control measures."

The committee will "see that minimum pollution standards be made public and that adequate testing be maintained to ensure that controls are enforced."

It will report sources of pollution to the public and municipal, provincial and federal authorities "and bring pressure to bear to eliminate same by all means available."

And through the press and radio, the committee will "educate the public to the problems of pollution."

Representation will be made to the city, to implement an adequate sewage disposal system for Nelson, "and offer city council our full support and cooperation."

The report concludes: "It is the recommendation of this committee that our organization restrict our activities, at least for the present time, to Nelson and surrounding areas, rather than attempt to implement these objectives on a provincial and federal scale.

"In other words 'let's clean up our own yard first.' Our efforts will not go unnoticed."

Mayor Louis Maglio told the delegation: "I think you are doing a worthwhile job. We will try and give you all the support we can."

Six Plays To Be Staged In Drama Festival Here

B.C. Drama Association West Kootenay Zone Annual One-Act Play Festival will hold six plays in Nelson this weekend, starting Friday night.

The plays are to be held at Trafalgar Junior Secondary School, under the auspices of the West Kootenay Drama Festival Committee and the Community Programs Branch, Department of Education.

Plays presented will be from Trail, Fruitvale, Nelson, Grand Forks, and Creston.

The first play Friday night, "The American Dream," will be put on by Nelson Little Theatre. Also scheduled for Friday is "Duet In Masque," by the Fruitvale Community Players.

Saturday night performances will include "No Exit," by Nelson Little Theatre, "A Slight Ache," by Grand Forks Little Theatre and "David and Lisa," by Creston's Prince Charles Theatre.

The winning group will receive a one-weekend theatrical workshop lesson from Miss Gay Scrivener.

Miss Scrivener received her theatrical training at the Old Vic and Trinity College of Speech and Music in London, England. She acted for many years in repertory companies throughout England. Since her return to Canada, Miss Scrivener has extended her theatrical talents to directing and adjudicating.

Following the Saturday performances will be a public adjudication and presentation of awards.

Mrs. Dunn, Pioneer Of Kaslo, Dies

Mrs. Annie Dunn, pioneer resident of Kaslo, died Wednesday at the Trail-Tadanac General Hospital.

Born Annie Bruce on April 21, 1891, she came to Kaslo with her family when only two years old. The remainder of her life was spent at Kaslo.

In 1914 she married the late William H. Dunn, who was well known as provincial assessor at Kaslo until 1955, when he retired, and was later Stipendiary Magistrate at the time of his death in 1964.

Mrs. Dunn was a one-time member of the Rebekah Lodge of Kaslo.

Surviving is one son Hedley of Trail.

Citizen of Year Entries Increase

Entries for the Citizen of the Year award exceeded last year's considerably, William Freno, chairman for the sponsoring Knights of Columbus, said Wednesday.

Entry deadline was Tuesday, extended from April 20 because some organizations had not had time to prepare their entries.

Mr. Freno said the chairman of the judges, A. W. Gibbon, had reported receiving many more entries than received by the committee last year. A meeting of the judges will be called shortly to make their decision.

The growth in entries was a hopeful sign that interest in the event was increasing, Mr. Freno said. He said the decision would be made known at a dinner early in May.

Family Home Lost In Blaze at Elko

ELKO — Clifford Oscar Pion, his wife and nine children were left homeless when their home and belongings were destroyed by fire Sunday afternoon at Elko.

About a dozen Elko forestry men fought the blaze that levelled the Pion home, said RCMP. The home was situated in a residential area with buildings on all sides.

"There was a good chance of flames spreading," said police. A bulldozer heaped mounds of earth around the blazing inferno to prevent the blaze from spreading.

Salvation Army members from Fernie aided the family. They are now staying at the Elko B.C. Forest Service complex temporarily.

The Pion children range in age from five to 17 years. The home and contents were partially insured. Police say it will be difficult to determine the cause of fthe blaze because the bulldozer, in attempting to prevent flames from spreading, destroyed much evidence.

Salvation Army Captain Ron Butcher of Nelson gave assurance of local assistance.

The family were at a picnic supper when the fire broke out.

LATE NEWS OF DAY

FUNERAL NOTICE

WRINCH — Margaret Gray (Nee Jestley) passed away suddenly April 24, in Trail. Survived by her loving mother, Mrs C. E. Jestley and brother, Lyle Jestley, both of Vancouver. Funeral arrangements to be announced later by Carberry's Funeral Home.

17 Pass Radio Tests

Seventeen candidates were successful in passing an examination to receive their Restricted Radiotelephone Operators' licences in Nelson Monday night. The examination was conducted by William Johnston of the Department of Transport of Kelowna.

Those successful were: C. R. Anderson, Leonard J. A. Batley, E. D. Bayoff, Martin Blank, George E. Dalzell, Mrs. Margaret Davies, E. P. Graychick, Wilson D. Greig, C. T. Jones, Don Large, William G. Leslie, J. F. Lewis, K. L. Nicol, Derek W. G. Price, Jim Sutherland, Frank J. Vecchio, Melvin E. Warner.

Vic Weeks instructed the class, assisted by A. Stevens.

Round Dance Class Planned

Tireless and enthusiastic couples of various age groups who indulge in round dancing will not have to wait until fall to continue their favorite pastime. The Nelson School Board scheduled a round dancing class for adult couples starting on May 2 at the gymnasium of Trafalgar Junior Secondary School. The course will end on June 20.

The instructors are Ev and Amy Kuhn.

MAN SENTENCED

EDMONTON (CP) — Lester Hough, 48, of Edmonton was sentenced to four years Tuesday in Alberta Supreme Court for the rape of a 34-year-old woman he had called to his apartment to babysit his children.

Man Injured In Accident

Walter Lyle McKendry received a broken leg when his vehicle was totally wrecked after leaving the road about 12 miles west of Kinnaird Monday night.

The Blueberry-Paulson accident happened about 6 p.m. Roads were dry at the time and conditions good, said RCMP. The accident is still under investigation.

J. O. Norberg Laid at Rest

Many friends were in attendance at the funeral service for Johan Otto Norberg, who died at his home on Granite Road, Sunday, aged 64 years, held at the Thompson Funeral Home, Wednesday afternoon.

Ven. Archdeacon F. D. Wyatt officiated and interment took place in Nelson Memorial Park.

Pallbearers were Chris Norgaard, Andy Olsén, Walter Caldwell, Henry Ingélbrigston, Swan Lundgren and John Ericson.

Churches Discuss Challenge Of Today at Castlegar Meet

CASTLEGAR — An inter-faith meeting was held Sunday at the Castlegar United Church to discuss the challenges facing the church today in this community in particular.

Clergymen and representatives attended from the United Churches of Castlegar, Robson, Kinnaird; St. David's Anglican Church and St. Rita's Roman Catholic Church in Castlegar. Moderators were Rt. Rev. E. W. Scott, Anglican Bishop of Kootenay, and Rev. Max Warne, Home Mission superintendent of the United Church for Southern British Columbia.

Some of the questions which challenged the gathering were: What does it really mean to "love your neighbor" — here in Castlegar, for instance? What can we do within our own community? How can groups in this area work together once we decide what the problems are?

Seven groups were formed for discussion purposes. The consensus was that the church should be more concerned in every public field.

The discussion covered needs pertaining to recreational facilities, a youth discussion centre, lonely people and shut-ins, women raising families on their own, probation cases which could be helped through a Big Brother group, homemakers' service. It showed the lack of mature reporting about the hazards of using LSD.

The increase in the numbers of younger children who drink indicated the necessity for parents to realize more fully their responsibility towards their children.

It was felt immigrants with language difficulties were ignored. Concern was expressed that church groups can become too self-centred and should make an effort to be more friendly with newcomers. These were only some of the areas of need.

Bishop Scott used the parable of the Good Samaritan to illustrate three approaches to "living": one person will ignore situations and walk by (as in the Samaritan story); another stops and looks — and then walks on; the third stops — and ministers to the needy. The church today must decide which of these paths to follow.

A potluck supper was served by the girls in the CGIT group, with the food provided by women of the churches represented.

A 40-minute film, "The Inner City", was shown. It stresses the need for inter-city churches to go out to meet the challenges of loneliness and trouble in the crowded areas which abound within their own church locale.

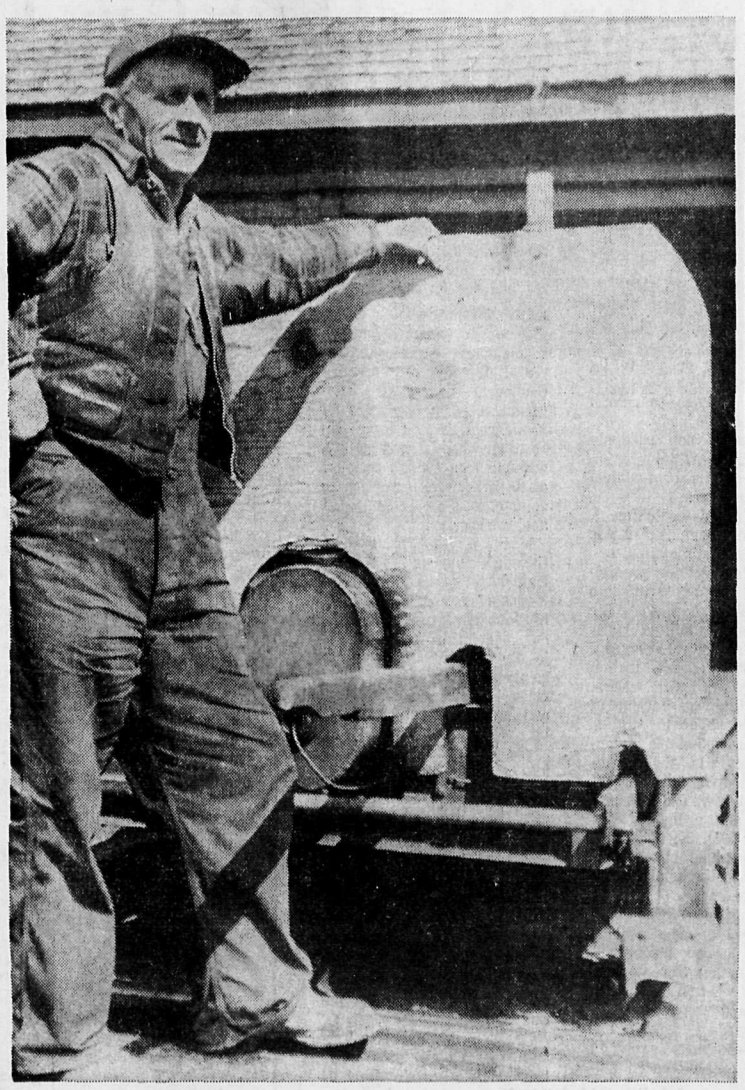
The information gleaned from this inter-faith meeting will be presented to the congregations of these churches for their consideration. A meeting is being planned for next month to collate suggestions which may result for constructive action in any field of endeavor.

New Denver Joins Mill Rate Protest

NEW DENVER — The Village of New Denver sent a telegram of protest to the special meeting of the Union of B.C. Municipalities on school mill rate increases.

The New Denver mill rate for school purposes has increased an "alarming" 7.4 mills for 1967. A wire protesting this increase has been sent to the special meeting on school taxes called by the executive of the Union of B.C. Municipalities April 28 at New Westminster.

The New Denver requisition for school purposes is $19,480, an increase of $4385 over 1966, due mainly to increased teacher's salaries, Selkirk College participation and rising school operating costs generally.



OLAF SWANSON, Rosebery section foreman since 1955, made his last trip of patrolling the track, April 20, and put the company's track motor car into the familiar red tool house for the last time after completing 36 years of service with the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. Mr. Swanson began his service at Midway on April 1, 1931 and after 6 months moved to Troupe Junction near Nelson where he stayed for two years. From there he went to South Slocan as a sectionman until 1947 and that same year was transferred to Sandon as a section foreman. In 1955 the big flood came through Sandon and he then came to Rosebery where he ended his service with the company. — Photo by Gus Stankoven

Fruitvale Owner's Plans Approved at Special Meet

FRUITVALE — At the special meeting of the municipal council called to complete the business of the municipality held over from the April 3 meeting, council members met with a property owner concerning two proposed subdivisions and his plans for building a new home. After some discussion, both subdivisions and the building plans received council's approval, both subjects being found to conform with the village subdivision and building bylaws.

The use of plastic liners for garbage containers was endorsed, following receipt of correspondence from the West Kootenay Union Board of Health in which these liners were recommended. Council members noted that one business establishment in Fruitvale is already using the liners, and it is hoped that residents and other businesses will adopt this sanitary method of garbage disposal.

A meeting is to be arranged by the clerk for the continuation of negotiations with Local 343, Kootenay Civic Workers, on terms of a new collective agreement; council members have now had an opportunity to study the union's latest proposals.

Correspondence with the department of highways regarding a frontage road between the community hall and the cenotaph has indicated favorable consideration by that department; a letter will be sent advising the village concurs with the department's proposals with certain reservations.

Council members are to advise the clerk whether they plan on attending the spring meeting of the Association of Kootenay-Boundary Municipalities on May 13; the host municipality, the village of Kaslo, will be notified of the Fruitvale delegates at that time.

Hon. P. A. Gaglardi, minister of highways, has advised council that work on the highway cutoff will be continued to eliminate the hazard of falling rock and slides.

Council members spent a good portion of the meeting dealing with each department's 1967 budget. Some revision has to be done prior to the next meeting.

Council has been advised by the Public Utilities Commission that a hearing will be held April 18 in Vancouver to deal with the application of Inland Natural Gas Company for a certificate of public convenience and necessity for the construction of a transmission line from China Creek to Yahk. The clerk will contact the gas company regarding the exact routing of the line through this area, and since the Village has already advised the Commission that it endorses the Company's application, whether further representation must be made by the Village at this hearing.

New Denver . . . Cadets Enter First Aid Contest

NEW DENVER — Throughout the winter months, the New Denver-Silverton cadet corps have been taking first aid as part of their training.

The course was culminated April 11, when the boys were tested and ten members qualified.

Five were chosen to represent the New Denver-Silverton cadet corp in the Strathcona trust inter service first aid competition which was held at Vancouver, April 15th.

Lieutenant P. C. Hayden accompanied by Cadet sergeant L. Palmer, cadet lance corporal J. Nyman, cadet Sappers, J. Broughton, G. Palmer and T. McCrory went to the contest.

The team placed twelfth out of 14 clubs, according to Lt. Hayden, the result was very good, because this is the first time the corps have taken up first aid and entered any competition.

Considering the average age of the group which is about 13, Lt. Hayden feels that this team will definitely be in contention for top honors within the next few years.

100 District Air Cadets March in Church Parade

TRAIL, B.C. — Over 100 boys from Trail, Nelson and Castlegar launched Air Cadet Week with a church parade through downtown Trail on Sunday.

Led by the Trail Pipe Band, the cadets marched down Bay Avenue, Victoria and Pine to the Cenotaph where they attended services at Knox United Church and St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church.

Refreshments were served after the services at the Christian Education Centre by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Trail Squadron, under the chairmanship of Mrs. D. Johnston.

The air cadet movement in B.C., and particularly in the Kootenays, is enjoying a resurgence. All three of the interior squadrons have increased enrolments with Castlegar enjoying the largest increase, attributable perhaps to their top place finish in Canada last year.

The 531 City of Trail Squadron is celebrating the 15th anniversary since the formation of the unit in 1952, at the same time as Canada is celebrating the 25th anniversary of the cadet movement nationally.

A high standard has been established during these 15 years and for the past 10 years the Trail squadron has consistently been rated near the top and twice was the top squadron in British Columbia. This has resulted in a feeling of pride in belonging as a cadet, officer or civilian instructor.

This summer promises to be an active one for many members of the Squadron. Warrant Officer Robert Mackie recently returned from Vancouver where he appeared before a Selection Board considering candidates for a European exchange visit.

Flight Sergeant Raymond Munro and Corporal Glen Monteith are awaiting results of a selection committee after successfully completing the required exams for a six week flying scholarship course at Chilliwack where candidates receive their private pilot's license.

Camp Borden, Ontario beckons to Flight Sergeant Jerry Mandoli and he hopes to attend the strenuous six week senior leaders drill course held there each summer.

Five other cadets are vying for the two spots available on the B.C. Centennial Tattoo which will tour 15 cities in B.C. this summer. Still another three will be going to St. Jean, Quebec where the Centennial Camp is being held and 11 cadets will travel to Penhold, Alberta for two weeks Summer Camp training in the latter part of August.

Creston Crest Contest Winner Art Student

CRESTON (Staff) — Formerly from Creston, Vancouver School of Art student Lucien Douville took first place and a $50 reward in the Creston Crest Contest.

The contest was conducted by a committee from the Town of Creston, the Board of Trade and the Blossom Festival Committee.

The winning design was chosen from 162 entered, including a number by local school students

Mr. Douville is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Armand Douville of Creston.

Twin peaks at the top of the crest represent the two local mountain ranges between which Creston is nestled, in the Valley of the Swans. Trees on either side of the crest represent agricultural forestry and orchard industries.

Red Cross Campaign Nets $1600

CRANBROOK — The newly reorganized Cranbrook Branch of the Canadian Red Cross reports completion of its drive for funds at approximately $1600, highest sum realized in many years. Drive chairman was Randy Archibald, who is also vice-president of the Branch.

The amount goes to provincial headquarters with 95 per cent used for the services the Red Cross undertakes in British Columbia. Chief of these is the financial requirement of about seven dollars a bottle for processing of the donated blood for the free transfusion service available at all provincial hospitals. The amount covers operation of mobile donor clinics, processing of banked blood and its immediate distribution wherever it is required.

B.C. Briefs

VANCOUVER (CP) — Twelve students from British Columbia who will attend the National School Safety Jamboree in Ottawa May 19 and 20 will meet Prime Minister Pearson during their visit.

CONTRACTS LET

CRANBROOK (CP) — Burns and Dutton Construction Ltd., of Calgary, and Flanders Installations Ltd., of Montreal, have been given contracts for construction and installation of equipment at a $42,000,000 pulp mill 31 miles north of here.

Progress in Immigration

For the last 20 years Canada has been groping its way towards an immigration policy which would make economic and political sense and also reconcile short-term pressures with the country's long-term needs. Considering the difficulties, we should perhaps be grateful to have done as well as we have. But it has been a triumph of "ad-hocery", not of policy, with all the roughness and error which pure pragmatism usually entails.

Against such a background the proposals of M. Jean Marchand, which received the blessing of a joint Senate-House committee, represent a major step forward. Most of the publicity has been given to the modifications of last October's White Paper suggested by the committee and accepted by M. Marchand. The modifications are an improvement, but they are far less significant than the broad policy of the White Paper itself.

Its essential point was to apply to immigration the same manpower standards as we are slowly learning to apply to domestic policies. It summed them up in a few sentences. "Canada's expanding industrial economy offers most of its employment opportunities to those with education, training, skill," it said. "Total employment for manual and primary workers together has hardly expanded at all over the past decade."

If we are to attract the kind of immigrants who will be able to adapt themselves to the changing opportunities of an increasingly technological society, we have got to establish consistent standards and apply them consistently. The old way of turning the tap on and off according to the immediate economic outlook has always been self-defeating.

It follows that labor unions must no longer try to stop the arrival of immigrants whenever they feel scary about unemployment. But neither can employers expect to import batches of unskilled laborers whenever they run out of a Canadian supply.

The existing government regulations already provide a reasonable control over independent immigrants, most of whom come from northern and western Europe including the British Isles. But for every six of them we have admitted in recent years four "sponsored" immigrants whose only qualification was a relative already in Canada. After the arrival of one family — usually from southern Europe — it needed a remarkably short time before a whole village could be transplanted.

The White Paper proposed, very sensibly, to remove the right of newly-arrived immigrants to sponsor the admission on non-dependent relatives. (There has never been any suggestion of refusing dependents). To this end it laid down some rather arbitrary criteria, such as five years' residence by the sponsor and at least seven years' schooling for male immigrants over 16.

As a result of objections in the parliamentary committee M. Marchand has now submitted more flexible standards, which can be applied equally to independent immigrants coming without sponsorship and to non-dependent relatives who are vouched for by a Canadian resident.

Education, skills, character and job opportunities in Canada will be taken into account for applicants; but it will also count in an applicant's favor if he has relatives here who can help him to establish himself. This is reasonable. It closes the door to the endless multiplication of family connections which was beginning seriously to distort the balance of immigration. But it does not exclude the deserving by setting arbitrary rules.

A large degree of administrative discretion will always be involved in the selection of immigrants: Parliament cannot examine them all. But we seem at last to be on the way to providing immigration officials with a coherent and workable set of criteria. This is a great achievement for M. Marchand.—Financial Times.

Barriers for Peace

We note with satisfaction the growing attention being given proposals for the creation of a swath between North and South Vietnam. One such proposal would have the military carve out a broad band perhaps 150 to 200 miles in length, in which all vegetation would be killed, the land sown with mines, and the strip garrisoned. The other proposal calls upon both sides to withdraw their forces 10 miles back from the present demilitarized border. This would create a 26-mile-deep no man's land between North and South Vietnam.

There is an apparently growing feeling that some means must be found to seal off the infiltration routes from the North southward. The creation of a mined and garrisoned belt would be an attempt to do this militarily. It would be an immensely difficult and costly operation, but it would have the advantage of extending right across Laos to the Thai border, thereby sundering North Vietnam's main infiltration routes.

This plan has now won the powerful support of Montana's Senator Mike Mansfield, the Democratic majority leader. It has also been given a thrust with the present South Vietnamese efforts to lay out a defence barrier just south of the demilitarized zone. On the other hand, Pentagon doubts, centering around the size of the job and the number of men needed to garrison such a swath, have not yet been overcome.

The more limited proposal for a mutual drawback from the demilitarized zone has now been accepted by Washington, and is being proposed to Hanoi by its Canadian originators. This would not seal off the infiltration routes through Laos but it would reduce the danger and fighting along the 17th Parallel.

In its bare outline such a proposal would appear to work for South Vietnam and the United States and to work against North Vietnam. For it would reduce the latter's ability to apply pressure and to keep the Allied forces dispersed, while serving the goal of eliminating important infiltration routes.

But however this latest initiative turns out (and America owes Canada its deepest gratitude for that country's continued efforts to help the world find a way out of the Southeast Asian dilemma), we hope that the idea of creating some kind of a barrier between North and South will not be shelved but will be given full and open-minded study.—Christian Science Monitor.

Two-Sided Effect in LSD Researchers Find

Authorities in many parts of Canada are worried over the growing use of the hallucination - inducing drug LSD. This story, based on reports from across the country, deals with the nature of LSD and the experience of some who have used it.

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

One user cries, but only out of one eye.

Another may decide to fly off a balcony.

Another wants to climb right out of his body.

Still another can suddenly understand Marshall McLuhan, the cryptic communications philosopher.

Others find contentment, terror, excitement, the suicide urge, artistic stimulation.

If there's one thing predictable about an LSD "trip" into the mental unknown, it's the entire unpredictability of it.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press, including interviews with users, shows a limitless variety of experiences under the drug.

"Its uncontrolled use is dangerous," says Dr. Abram Hoffer, psychiatric director of the Saskatchewan health department and a leading authority on LSD. He calls it a boon to mankind but a dangerous toy in the hands of unqualified persons.

A beatnik poet who took LSD jumped to his death off a Toronto bridge last January. In March a Toronto music student went on a trip with the drug and was found dead below a viaduct. Alberta authorities are investigating a suspected LSD-influenced suicide.

HELPED DESIGNER

But there is another side. Kyo Izumi, the architect who designed the unconventional psychiatric centre at Yorkton, Sask., did it with the help of expertly-controlled LSD treatments that caused his mind to function temporarily like that of a mental case. He was able to discover many things about a normal institution that disturb patients, and the result was that the centre is regarded as one of the most advanced on the continent.

LSD is the common name for lysergic acid diethylamide, a synthetic compound created in 1938 by a Swiss chemist who found it originally in a destructive fungus growing on grain. It is one of a group called hallucinogens that can induce weird mental conditions closely parallel to schizophrenia.

For this reason, doctors have experimented with it as a means of studying mental illness. It also has had a limited use in Canada, in an exploratory way, for the treatment of alcoholism. But no definite clinical results are claimed so far.

Free - lance devotees are more enthusiastic. One of the top international LSD apostles and a Harvard professor fired for experimenting with the drug on his students, Richard Alpert, said in Toronto that LSD is a valid way to expand human consciousness, which could be the next step in evolution. The high priests of the cult describe an LSD experience as psychedelic, roughly translated as mind-expanding.

LSD is one of the most powerful drugs known to man. It is so powerful that the dosage is measured by the microgram—a millionth of a gram, which is about 1-28th of an ounce. An "acid trip," as hipsters call a psychedelic experience, may take between 200 and 400 micrograms.

EASY TO SMUGGLE

Outside of a small amount manufactured for research at the University of Toronto's Connaught Laboratories, the product used in Canada is all bootlegged. Enough for a trip costs anywhere from $3 to $20, depending on supply. Because of its firepower in relation to volume, it is easily smuggled and transported.

Much of what is used in Canada comes from the United States. A simple means of getting a relatively big quantity across the border, one insider explained, is to dip a white sweater in a solution, let it dry and then rinse it out on arrival. A dose can be carried around in a bit of blotting paper or a sugar cube, which is tossed into a glass of water when wanted.

An acid trip takes any one of a myriad of forms, never the same. The outcome depends on such factors as the personality of the user, his state of mind of the moment, the amount and the purity of the LSD. A trip can last anywhere from a few hours to days. It can become a "freak-out," resulting in a long period of mental torture.

Dr. E. F. W. Baker, a Toronto psychiatrist who has been doing research with LSD for five years, told an informal health committee of parliamentarians at Ottawa of the case of a 14-year-old boy under the drug who beat up an elevator man with a chain. The man apparently looked like his father, whom he did not like. The doctor also listed at least one suicide after a trip.

A Vancouver user who said he had taken LSD for four years told Canadian Press reporter Jack Moore:

"I've only been on one bad trip, and that was as bad as you can get. But the good ones are fantastic. They can't be described."

LIKE TURNING CORNER

A 20 - year - old university dropout described his two trips this way to Gail Scott, a CP reporter in Montreal:

"It makes people a little more cool and the feeling of relaxation lasts after the effects of the drug wear off. You stop getting involved in petty things and have time for the more important questions of life. The most immediate reaction is that the time sense gets completely disoriented and everything seems to have happened a long time ago, like you've just turned a corner.

"In the second trip I lay on the floor and laughed for the first 1½ hours and for the rest of the six hours just listened to jazz. It felt like I was inside the music, and while I was listening to it colored abstract patterns flashed before my eyes."

It was this user who found himself understanding the profundities of McLuhan. "It's the only way he makes any sense."

The one who cried with one eye was a working girl, who told reporter Scott she and a girl friend went under together and she got tearful when they started saying nice things about each other.

"The best thing you feel when under is that all your little personalities fall off and the real you emerges," she said. She explained that normally she has different personalities for her friends, her mother, her work and so forth.

SMOKED MARIJUANA

She said the trip lasted from 10 p.m. Saturday until Monday morning, probably longer than usual because they smoked marijuana to encourage talking to each other. She ate just three grains of rice during the period and they made her so full she could eat nothing else.

One Toronto youth told of going under for a terrifying trip on an apparent overdose of LSD obtained through a pusher getting his supplies from Chicago.

"I took what I thought to be a healthy dose—400 micrograms. Judging by what happened, it must have been about 1,000. I was so frightened I sat on the floor with my legs crossed, in the same spot, for five hours. I flipped out completely.

"I went through a complete mental and physical death. I was disoriented. I achieved a state of non-being. I wanted to go even further and get out of my body. I was frightened. One way of doing that is to destroy your body."

A Vancouver 19 - year - old swore off after getting a severe kickback five weeks after his latest trip. He was treated in hospital for depression, manic activity and sensory hallucinations.

"I thought I was leaving this world," he said. "I thought I was cracking up. I felt people biting me and heard voices all night. . . . I'm going to get my hair chopped off and get back to normal."

SAW SKELETONS

A group of youngsters in Kitchener, Ont., where LSD is scarce, told of taking a trip together this year. One saw skeletons. Another had the feeling he was falling off a cliff. The third found himself trying to run away from a whirlpool but continually slipping back toward it. The fourth was floating through clouds with a voice telling him the next face he saw would be that of the next person to die.

One of them told of taking trips in the United States. "One time I went up a tree and they had a hard time getting me down. I thought I was a locomotive."

Here is one from a University of Western Ontario co-ed:

"I had flowers growing out of my knees. I could even pull them out. I could sit down in a chair when there was no chair and remain seated.

"When I closed my eyes, I could see pictures like super-synchronized cartoons. . . . The walls got out of proportion and changed color.

"It's very hard to focus on anybody, to listen to what they're saying. It's hard to speak coherently. There's too much thought and color."

'BLOWING MIND OUT'

While she describes her own experience as "marvellous," she says a former boy-friend is "blowing his mind out, losing his memory." The friend only remembers things when he's back on LSD, but he doesn't care.

Philosophy professor Charles Hanley of the University of Toronto says he knows of a former mathematics student whose mind is already gone from LSD. The drug killed his personality and he now is in a mental hospital.

A student informant at McGill University tells of seeing one LSD-influenced collegian jump off a balcony and another try to stop fast-moving traffic by standing in front of it. This is in line with one of the known effects of LSD, which is to give the subject an exaggerated belief in his physical powers. Many of the other effects lie in the realm of the unknown, a fact that sharpens the concern of officials.

John E. Sampson of Kingston, Crown attorney for Ontario's Frontenac County, puts it this way:

"It is strictly dynamite. It takes you right away from reality and in effect makes a person insane for a period of time. Insane people commit crimes, so we do not want any more insane people running around our streets."

OTTAWA — Bilingualism and biculturalism just a $12,000,000 drag . . .

. . . With the "Bi and Bi Boys," that Royal Commission which is looking into the "Two-Nations-in-One" political bit, busy spending $8,000,000 on what it says, ominously, is a belated rescue-effort-in-research to bale out a foundering Confederation?

. . . And with $4,000,000 going to the Bilingual Division of the Federal Public Service, $1,000,000 of it for houses in Quebec City for those English-speaking Civil Service brass hats and their families taking that year-long "total immersion" French course?

Is that all, then, that's involved in "B 'n B?"

Well, to hear a great many people — including some of those in the seats of Federal power here — the answer is yes, could be.

And one of the reasons is that the way this bill of bicultural goods has been sold, or perhaps more accurately, not been sold, bilingualism is packaged as something of a great big pain in the English-speaking neck.

Even that old university lecturer, Prime Minister Pearson, professorially, has made it sound at times suspiciously like a dose of cultural and linguistic medicine that all good and right-thinking Canadians, English and French, must swallow for their own good.

This idea of it being some sort of national "must", a kind of command from on All-Ottawa-High, almost automatically makes it something to be resisted, even resented.

NEW APPROACH:

It begins to turn out that the national marketing of this often repulsively - wrapped bilingual product has been all wrong.

For now along comes Energy Minister Jean-Luc Pepin, one of the most attractive members of the Federal Cabinet, English or French, with a fresh and appealingly sense - making approach to bilingualism.

It beats me, he says, how anybody, even half smart, can figure the learning of a second language a drag.

And he doesn't care whether the second language is French or English, because the way he says it shapes up over most of the Western World, the bilingual, the trilingual or better still, the multilingual man is the man most "with it" in this fast-changing, international cosmopolitan global community of ours.

A practitioner of what the younger generation of Federal men like to call the "new politics," Jean-Luc Pepin, a personality of compelling charm and infinite courtesy, tried his theory out for size the other evening on the almost exclusively English-speaking Association of Real Estate Boards.

He told these realtors from all across the country that bilingualism was for swingers, for "those who think young."

And he rather rocked them a little with that.

You could see them rearing back at the impact, rolling with the punch, and then coming on strong with an understanding light in their eyes which unmistakeably signalled — "How about that!"

"Sure as death and taxes," he purred, in the years straight ahead they were going to discover that bilingualism is turning out to be a "status symbol."

With, and get this — "snob appeal."

They dug him. You could see those heads nodding silently saying, "You know, the guy just might have something there."

What he had was their attention, and he didn't let go.

Tomorrow's "Man of Distinction won't necessarily wear a patch over his eye, he tipped them, "but he'll be speaking two languages, English and French, and if he can handle German, Italian, Japanese or any other of the tongues of the Free World's business, industrial and investment community, so much the better — better, especially for him and his firm or government.

The question they'll be asking of the "Woman of Accomplishment" in the years ahead, as to whether she does or doesn't," won't be in relation to her use of hair tints, but her use of two, three or preferably more languages.

At least 40 nations of the commercial world, went on Jean-Luc Pepin, are bilingual, some even multilingual.

So he wondered what all the bickering was about in Canada over bilingualism — when in the reality of doing business in a multilingual world, bilingualism was nothing more than a challenge to "get with it" in the global community of trade, transport, travel and communication.

"We can't be going to refuse the challenge," he suggested, and you could just see some of them making up their minds when they got home to dig out those French, German, and yes, even Russian text books their high school sons and daughters tote in for homework, and take at least a preliminary exploratory peek.

Quite a salesman, this Jean-Luc Pepin.

And doing some rather brisk bilingual business, too.

Girl Watchers' Guidelines

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — It's moulting season for both birds and girls and so the American Society of Girl Watchers has issued guidelines for its 5,000 members.

They are:

Don't ogle.

When passing a girl going in the same direction, don't turn the head around and stare.

Don't use binoculars — except at races.

Don't whistle, pinch, whisper or commit any other overt act.

Maintain eye-ball control at all times.

"We haven't any particular season," said Don Sauers of Eastchester, N.Y., founder of the society. "In fact, some of our best card-carrying memmont are sexier than bikinis in Miami or mini - skirts in Los Angeles.

"But this is the moulting season when the girls all take off their heavy over-clothing and get closer to nature. Our spring season starts the middle of April. At this time Fifth Avenue between 42nd Street and Central Park becomes the girl watchers' paradise of the world."

The society started as a gag out of the head of Sauers and grew into an institution.

HIT BY IDEA

Sauers, 44, father of five, was sitting around at lunch with some Madison Avenue pals about 10 years ago and a hip-swinging girl swung by the window. Sauers was suddenly struck with an idea.

"Bird watchers have their own organization — the Audubon Society. I suggested there are more girl watchers than bird watchers. Girls are more fun to watch. They all agreed."

The society now occupies quite lush, four - storey headquarters on 38th Street just off Park Avenue. It has members in 45 states and several foreign countries.

It has its own guide book, written by Sauers; its own theme song, Music to Watch Girls By, a popular ditty used by a soft drink firm; a lapel pin, just like the Elks, and a nine-article constitution.

The first article says, "There is nothing in the world more beautiful than a girl, especially not a bird." Another says, "A girl doesn't have to know how to count to be beautiful."

The society is an affiliate of The Professional Sports Management Corp. "After all, there is no greater sport than girl watching," says the current president, Ray Baur, 40, of Westport, Conn., father of six.

NEED EYE CONTROL

The society assesses only a $1 fee for life membership. This barely pays for the lapel pin and literature. The parent organization takes care of the rent.

Sauers says the purpose of the organization is to improve the climate of girl watching.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

April 27, 1967 . . .

The Canadian conscription plebiscite was held 25 years ago today—in 1942—as Prime Minister Mackenzie King asked the electorate for release from his "solemn undertaking," given in the election campaign of 1940, not to send conscripts overseas in the Second World War. "Conscription if necessary but not necessarily conscription" was the new slogan. The issue split English and French Canada, drawing only 28 per cent "Yes" votes in Quebec compared with 80 per cent for the rest of the country.

1863 — The ship Anglo-Saxon sank off Cape Race, drowning 237 people.

1955—The Bandung Conference of 29 unaligned countries ended.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1917—the troopship Ballarat was sunk by a German submarine but no lives were lost; the French attacked Hurtebeise and Cerny on the Western Front; Guatemala severed diplomatic relations with Germany.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1942—Canada voted to free the government from its pledge against sending conscripts overseas; Japanese spearheads were only 85 miles from Mandalay; 11 German and 36 British aircraft were shot down over Europe in the day's air raids.

TRUDY

"That's not so!! You know we're NOT always having differences of opinion!"

Blackwood-Ekstrom Vows Spoken in Nelson Wedding

Baskets of chrysanthemums and carnations graced the altar of St. Paul's-Trinity United Church and white ribbons marked the pews for the wedding ceremony uniting Diane Lynne Ekstrom and Robert Douglas Blackwood.

The double-ring ceremony was conducted by Rev. D. Cline for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Folke Ekstrom and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Blackwood of Stellarton, Nova Scotia.

Mr. Ekstrom escorted his daughter to the altar. She wore an exquisite gown of bridal taffeta with a full hooped skirt and bodice of Alencon lace embroidered with seed pearls. It featured a scooped neckline and lilypoint sleeves and the bouffant skirt was caught up in front with a rose. A cathedral train fell from her shoulders and a cluster of roses held her four-tiered silk illusion veil. Her bouquet was a cascade of red roses.

Attending the bride were her sister, Mrs. Audrey Arcuri, as matron of honor, another sister, Miss Susan Ekstrom, and Miss Heather Donaldson, her cousin, as bridesmaids. All were gowned in floor-length dresses of royal blue peau d'elegance. They wore white elbow length gloves, shoes en tone and tiara headpieces. Their bouquets were of Easter lilies and blue drop earrings, gifts of the bride, completed their outfits.

Attending the groom was his brother, Mr. Art Blackwood, and Mr. Merle Mahr and Mr. Don Ekstrom, brother of the bride, were ushers.

The groom's gifts to his attendants were wallets.

More than 100 guests enjoyed a sit-down supper. The bridal table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake, made by the bride's mother, and topped with a miniature bride and groom. It sat on a lace cloth and was flanked with tall blue candles in silver holders. Spring flowers completed the table decor.

Assisting in receiving guests was the bride's mother, who wore a becoming coral suit with black accessories and a white carnation corsage. The bridegroom's mother was unable to attend.

Master of ceremonies was Mr. George Murray. Grace was said by Rev. D. Cline and toast to the bride was given by Mr. Murray. The best man proposed the toast to the bridesmaids.

Telegrams were read by Mr. Bob Donaldson, uncle of the bride. They were from Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Blackwood and family, parents of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Alex Skene, grandparents of the bride from Kuroki, Sask.; Mr. and Mrs. Carter, grandparents of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Carter of Debert, N.S., Mr. and Mrs. Paul Arneson of Foam Lake, Sask.; Mr. and Mrs. Gunnar Ekstrom and family of Atikokan, Ont., and Mr. and Mrs. George Baker of Campbellville, Ont.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Blackwood, Vernon; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Donaldson and family of Kamloops, and Mr. and Mrs. Mel West and family of Kamloops.

Linda Thomas was in charge of the guest book and Mr. Delbert Smiley was in charge of the punch bowl.

The bridal couple passed the wedding cake to their guests.

WI Workshop Sees Many Handcrafts Demonstrated

Mrs. E. Vogel hosted the Harrop and District Women's Institute meeting which was well attended and with Mrs. Ann Nadeau as a visitor, who became a member.

Roll call for May is to be a plant for sale.

A report was given on the district presidents' luncheon at which arrangements were made for the forthcoming district convention at Nelson in May.

Six children's scrapbooks had been made and donated by Mrs. K. Eaton and along with stamps had been sent to the Queen Alexandra Solarium.

The group is planning for its tea, apron, bake sale and fashion show in May.

A senior citizens' luncheon is planned for June and all members are wearing clothes of the fashion of the gay nineties.

A good representation from Willow Point, Nelson, Fruitvale, Salmo, Kinnaird, Robson, and visitors from Procter, attended the West Kootenay district board workshop held in Harrop Hall. Demonstrations proved interesting and educational.

Mrs. June Bell of Fruitvale demonstrated the cleaning and use of various pine cones in decorative wreaths and shapes as well as driftwood and fungi in plaque form on plywood.

Mrs. Endersby demonstrated how to use old records for lovely wall plaques with flowers.

Mrs. Golden of Fruitvale showed various jingle bell dolls and how they were made.

Mrs. Vogel of Harrop demonstrated the making of the meat dish served at the luncheon, Italian spaghetti.

Mrs. Scott of Robson spoke on the tea contest and it was suggested hand-made dolls in national costume may be the contest's first entry and a hooked rug the second.

Mrs. R. C. Palmer, provincial past president, will be provincial representative for West Kootenay at the district convention in May.

Mrs. Scott offered a prize for the WI with the most new members, to be given at the district convention in Nelson.

A demonstration of making ribbon corsages was given by Mrs. O. Ringuis of Balfour. A well-filled display table was on view.

It was decided one workshop a year would be enough, and to be held in the fall.

Ainsworth

Mrs. Ethel Skead of Vancouver and Mrs. Ann Farmer of Kinnaird, sisters of the late T. Hawes, also Mrs. Lloyd Montgomery of Kinnaird, a niece, visited Mrs. Harriet Hawes and family last week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Boffey of Creston were visitors with Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Anderson over the weekend.

There was a good turnout to the afternoon meeting of the United Church Women held this week at the home of Mrs. Don Campbell. Mrs. Nellie Sherraden was surprised with a birthday cake and greetings at the conclusion of the meeting.

Square Dancers To Keep In Shape Over Summer

TRAIL — The Valley Boots and Slippers held a meeting at the close of their weekly square dance classes and decided to dance at least once a month throughout the summer to keep in form, the first date being May 24.

Thursday evening the Dancing Partners held the windup of their round dance club till fall, with guests attending and ending with a potluck supper. George Woods had a full program of rounds to be danced at the Jamboree on the weekend.

President Rick Caputo thanked George and Mary for their patience in teaching, and all the members for making the club such a success.

On Saturday night the Travelling Squares made their last trek of the season to dance with the Valley Cross Trailers at the Western dance center in Spokane. This was their ninth anniversary dance and began with a potluck supper. 25 squares were dancing to Ken McCormick's calling. Others doing tips were George Woods, Jim McLuckie, Harold and Vivian Gate and Rick Caputo of Trail district, and Blare Ploughman of Spokane.

An interesting point of the evening was an exhibition of dances by the Prominaders. These young people of Spokane can clog and square dance at the same time as well as do other dances equally as invigorating.

Sunday night tht Trail and District Square Dance Association, held its monthly meeting at Castlegar. The main business was to finalize plans for the big Jamboree.

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a hint that I have found invaluable.

I make handy, catch-all pockets along the side of all my bottom fitted sheets.

I match the material of the sheet and sew the pocket on flat with the opening near the top edge of the mattress, up by the pillow.

This pocket is the perfect spot for an inhaler, pills, tissue, etc., and is especially useful for bedfast patients.

Jennie Hamm

* * *

Jennie, you're truly a wizard for thinking of this one! I can hardly wait to try out your splendiferous idea.

Many's the time I've groped about for that inhaler only to have it drop and roll under the bed. And that pocket will sure keep the clutter of small articles off the bedside table and in an easy-to-reach spot.

Bless you.

Since weeding is easiest after a rain, many of us do it then. But much needed soil is lost and thrown away when weeds are pulled up while the soil is wet.

To save this soil, put the weeds aside in a sunny corner and allow them to dry out. Then the soil just drops off by itself.

When you need a little extra fill, this dirt will come in real handy.

Komarov Descent Believed To Have Been Real Emergency

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

More than an entangled parachute may have caused the tragic death of Soviet cosmonaut Vladimir Komarov.

Western radar screens are reported to have detected that the new Soviet space ship was in trouble before Komarov was ordered to return and that his descent was in effect a full-scale emergency.

Whatever the true situation, the loss of this Soviet space traveller, whose death has brought a heartgripping response from many parts of the world, has hurt the Soviet space effort. The blow may be of the same dimensions as the loss of the three American astronauts during their ground rehearsal earlier this year.

Both countries probably realize now that the race for the moon may be costlier in time, machinery and manpower than had been originally anticipated. Many countries are beginning to deplore that there should be a race, at such huge cost, and to plead for a greater degree of Soviet - American co - operation, so that both can reach their objectives in peace and with reduced human sacrifice.

URGED IN U.S.

President Johnson has publicly urged such co - operation, though some experts wonder whether his urging had a good deal of diplomatic gloss.

The experts on both sides are aware that the space race has high military significance. Each wants to be first to achieve control over the dynamic extension of the conventional battlefront.

U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara has stated it is essential that American military men learn how to operate skilfully in space. Undoubtedly the same kind of view is held by Soviet military leaders.

Nevertheless the high cost cannot be easily dismissed. Lord Bowden, principal of the Manchester University Institute of Science in Britain, has publicly described the American space effort as equivalent to a Roman circus—"The most extravagant, most sophisticated and most dangerous system of outdoor relief ever devised by a great nation in peacetime." It was "preposterous" that the U.S. should try to put a man on the moon when so much of the undeveloped world goes uncultivated because of a lack of funds.

BENEFITS CERTAIN

But Lord Bowden and others like him cannot discount the benefits of space exploration—the revolution in automation, space communication and development of new miniature electronic gear.

Reaching the moon and beyond likely will open up vast new knowledge of man's origins and affect his culture and environment.

Searching for the hidden knowledge of the stars could possibly even lead to less quarrelling on earth. That in itself may pay for all the human sacrifice in blazing space trails.

Australian Pavilion Features Soft-Sell

By CY FOX

MONTREAL (CP) — Australia Tuesday previewed a spacious, soft-sell pavilion, complete with kangaroos and "talking chairs," as its contribution to Expo 67.

The preview came on Anzac Day, when Australians annually pay homage to the men from their country and New Zealand who fought at Gallipoli in the First World War.

As the continent-sized Commonwealth member unveiled its world's fair offerings for reporters, Italy was previewing a labyrinthine showhouse which, through a variety of media, is designed to evoke images of the nation's glories, past and present.

Wool, a major Australian industry, dominates that nation's pavilion and helps produce a plush restful atmosphere.

A vast woollen carpet covers not only the pavilion floor but also two walls to ceiling height.

CHAIRS TELL STORY

Down Under technology also is given a subtly pervasive presence by 240 deeply comfortable chairs with built-in speakers for relaying information about nearby exhibits.

The commentaries usually are genial dialogues between Australian voices on everything from art to technology.

One wall of the big box-like pavilion is covered with a huge painting of the Australian night sky. The wall opposite is lined with the works of Australia's recent top-flight painters, including Sidney Nolan and Sir William Dobell.

Tables topped with modest-sized exhibits deal with Australia's aborigines, mineral resources, architecture and modes of living.

The kangaroos looked somewhat puzzled at their new and still chilly surroundings. Nevertheless, about a dozen in number, they hopped around their enclosure in what looked like a rehearsal for much scene-stealing once the fair opens to the public April 28.

VISUAL SHOW DOMINATES

The Italian display, dominated by a vast, multi-faceted visual show projected on several main-lobby screens, is focused on the nation's artistic traditions, its customs and contemporary technological achievements.

Full of electronically-produced voices, music and other sounds of every-day Italian life, the dimly-lit pavilion sports a sail-shaped roof.

A bronze statue, Athys, by the Italian Renaissance artist Donatello, is a highlight the "tradition" section.

Reproductions are embedded in the showhouse's rough-hewn walls, or project from it, to evoke the history of Italian art, while one prominent tableau depicts the mass death which overtook the city of Pompei.

A wing of the pavilion is reserved for 20th-century technology, where highlights are a car being assembled and a remote-controlled robot used in handling radioactive materials.

Contemporary painter Emilio Vedova, used 14 electronically co-ordinated projectors, to set up the huge visual show which greets visitors on their entry to the pavilion.

Canadian Investors Moving Into U.S. Securities Field

By LARRY DWORKIN

TORONTO (CP)—A growing number of Canadian investors are finding a more lucrative market in the United States.

Since the beginning of 1964 Canadians have been buying more U.S. securities than Americans are buying Caandian.

There doesn't appear to be anything in sight to halt the flow.

The shift resulted in a 10-per cent decline in the value of trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange in 1966 to $2,877,191,000 compared with $3,199,062,000 in 1965.

Dollar value on the New York Stock Exchange meanwhile jumped 35 per cent to $98,700,000,000 compared with $73,000,000,000 in 1965.

The Toronto exchange fared badly in its ranking among major North American exchanges, sliding to fifth spot in 1966 from third in 1965.

NO IMPROVEMENT SEEN

The situation doesn't appear any brighter this year. So far trading has slumped to 231,000,000 shares compared with 456,000,000 for the same period last year and value has dropped to $939,476,000 against $1,333,000,000.

Most of the shrinkage has come from the speculative market where volume has plunged to 196,000,000 shares compared with 420,000,000 in 1966 and value to $282,000,000 compared with $485,000,000.

"Speculatives have been chased away to Vancouver and Montreal because of a tightening up of exchange regulations in Ontario," one observer said.

He added that many Canadian investors are showing greater interest in the "high-flyers," trading upwards of 200,000 shares daily on the New York exchange.

These are companies involved in the computer, space and electronics fields.

SHARP REVERSAL

In the first 11 months of 1966 —the latest period for which figures are available — Canadians spent $194,000,000 more for U.S. stocks than Americans spent for Canadian stocks. This is a sharp reversal from 1963 when the balance was $29,000,000 in favor of American buyers of Canadian stocks.

David Bryson, an analyst with the J. H. Crang and Co., brokerage company, attributed the sharp decline in value to the U.S. interest equalization tax, levied on Americans who buy Canadian-owned stocks.

The tax was recenly increased to 22½ per cent from 15 per cent last year. It went into effect in 1963.

Mr. Bryson said the effect has seen U.S. purchasers of Canadian stocks drop to $189,000,000 in the first 11 months of 1966 from $319,000,000 in 1964.

He also cited the collapse of Atlantic Acceptance Corp., Prudential Finance Corp. and the Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd fiasco as causing disillusionment among investors, especially in the speculative market.

Communist Newsman's View Of Haiphong Raid Presented

This dispatch was filed to The Associated Press by Wilfred Burchett, an Australian writer who has had close connections with the Communists in Vietnam, Korea and Germany. It is presented in view of the fact The AP has been unable so far to receive Hanoi's permission for its own correspondents to cover the news in North Vietnam.

By WILFRED BURCHETT

HANOI, North Vietnam (AP) Last Thursday's U.S. air raid on Haiphong was officially described here as an "extremely serious new step in escalation."

The raid was the heaviest yet against the major city. Haiphong Mayor Le Duc Thing told me planes came in two waves from U.S. 7th Fleet carriers only 30 miles offshore.

Thirty-seven A-44Ds and A-3Js —the latter claimed to be a new navy plane—attacked 20 industrial targets and built-up areas in a 40-minute action between 10 and 11 a.m. A second wave at 3:15 p.m. hit the same targets in a fiercer, longer attack and caused casualties among rescue workers.

Mayor Thing claimed 44 were killed and 117 injured by the first count. I visited the Czech-Vietnam Friendship Hospital, the city's biggest, and counted 73 wounded. Dr. Nguyen Ming Tam, the director, said 13 others died en route to the hospital or immediately after admittance.

CHILDREN KILLED

Of the total dead, 25 were children under 15 years of age. Of the wounded I counted, 65 were women and children, mostly wounded by pellets from baseball - shaped fragmentation bombs.

The mayor said at least 70 1,000- and 2,000-pounders were dropped 50 "mother" canisters each of which discharges 300 pellet - filled fragmentation bombs. Twenty bullpup missiles and hundreds of rockets were fired.

The destruction was considerable. A Saigon communique stated two power stations were the main targets and that reconnaissance planes reported Haiphong was in total darkness after the raid.

This was incorrect. Street and house lighting was normal with no restrictions when I visited Haiphong a few hours after the raid. The only blackouts that night and the following night were when alerts sounded the approach of reconnaissance planes.

A large enamelware plant I visited was 100 - per - cent destroyed Food - processing and rice-husking plants were damaged and much housing in the two of the city's six wards I visited also was burned out, including a big technical training school.

IMPROVISE QUICKLY

I didn't visit the power plants, but the destruction of the urban plants was unlikely to affect industry decisively due to the system of dispersal and improvisation. I watched a small engineering plant where power was articicially cut off. Within 12 minutes, lathes, planers, borers and polishing machines had been switched to emergency foot-treadle devices and production continued through changed gear relationships.

In Hanoi's exhibition of textile machinery, spinning, carding and weaving machines are entirely made of local timber, including frames and cogwheels which work on electric power but which can be switched in three minutes to treadle operation. The looms turn out a fourth less with treadles.

At Hanoi's ministry of light industry I was told that in the northwest part of the country industry is being located at 3,000 streams with 16 - degree fals sufficient to install small hydropower plants of 50, 100 and 200 kilowatts of power for small industry and upwards of 3,000 kilowatts for regional industry.

Villagers themselves build the smaller plants with Hanoi-built turbines. After the first air attacks in 1965, the ministry claimed, it started building the new regional industries and they now are producing sufficient supplies of such items as textiles, paper and soap to meet local needs. There also are engineering shops in every district to keep transport moving.

The aim is to make every province independent of big central plants, first because they expect the big plants to be bombed and second to ease the strain on the transport system. They cited the example of Quang Binh province just north of the 17th parallel (which divides the two Vietnams) and one of the most heavily bombed, where completely new industries are producing enough industrial domestic alcohol, paper, tea, salt, oil, sugar, cigarettes, matches and chinaware to supply local needs.

In provinces nearer the capital, I visited some of these plants operating in natural and man-made grottoes and electrically lighted. The dispersal of industry and the creation of thousands of new decentralized industries in a program initiated two years ago are paying off now by regular production in mainly unbombable sites. This perhaps explains also Hanoi's lack of interest in present peace offers which don't meet their aims.

The recent buildup of peace offers to end the Vietnam war was compared by Hanoi officials to the artillery bombardment that procedes a new offensive.

This was the explanation given to me when I arrived last Wednesday asking reactions to peace initiatives by UN Secretary - General U Thant, Prime Minister Dudley Senanayake of Ceylon and External Affairs Minister Paul Martin of Canada.

Leading officials here are unimpressed by President Johnson's statistics that the United States has made 41 initiatives and four bombing pauses in hopes of generating peace talks.

"Our experience," said a foreign office spokesman, "is that every time there is a spate of peace offers it is followed by new steps in escalation."

The following day brought the heaviest bombing yet of Haiphong, with the U.S. Saigon command admitting bombing power plants inside the city.

Hanoi's reaction was, "I told you so."

Carter Report Reactions Vary

TORONTO (CP) — Different segments of the Carter report on taxation were described Tuesday as offering everything from great merit to a gamble of the worst type.

The reactions came as 1,700 delegates to the conference of the Canadian Tax Foundation started the first detailed, public study of the 2,600—page report released Feb. 24.

Surprisingly, officials from Canada's mining and petroleum industries attacked sections of the report dealing with them. The report recommended these industries lose special tax allowances granted for years.

Strongest support came for the commission's suggestion that sales tax be applied at the retail instead of federal level.

R. F. Winfield, vice-president of finance for Shell Canada Ltd., told a panel on resource industries that the commission's recommendations on the gas and oil industry need "the most exhaustive re-examination."

The petroleum industry found the commission's references to it were "over-simplified and the conclusions drawn therefrom sometimes inaccurate or incomplete."

"To a substantial extent, they seem to be at cross-purposes with the submissions made by the industry and it is disappointing that these opposing viewpoints have not been presented in detail in the report so that their respective strengths and weaknesses can be properly assessed by the public and government."

The commission had used superficial reasoning in trying to argue that oil companies could be treated the same as other corporations for tax purposes.

Taxes lost to the government in 1964, the year the commission used as an example in its report, amounted to $19,000,000 through depletion allowances claimed by the oil companies.

That contrasted with the enormous investment and general economic growth that had come through the industry.

The commission tended to forget other major activities of the petroleum industry, such as natural gas and sulphur production.

REJECTS SUBSIDIES

He rejected the commission's proposal that government subsidies replace depletion allowances as a method of encouraging exploration.

Anything other than a careful and critical examination of the recommendations "would be a gamble of the worst type, where what is to be gained is a relatively modest amount of additional tax revenue and what is to be lost, by way of a slow down in one of Canada's most important industries and loss of international and general investor confidence, is unknown but practically limitless."

Leafs Plan Change For Saturday

Nelson Maple Leafs playing coach Frank Arnett said Wednesday night the club is planning only one change when they meet Calgary Spurs in the third game of the Western Canada Allan Cup finals Saturday night in the Alberta city.

"There'll be only one change," Arnett said, "the results are going to be different."

The Leafs dropped both home games in the best of five series last weekend in Nelson, 5-3 and 4-1. The third game is scheduled for Saturday at the Foothill Arena with the fourth game Sunday afternoon and the fifth game Monday night.

While a lot of the fans in Nelson have all but given up on the Leafs advancing to the Allan Cup finals, the players themselves are more determined than ever.

"They're champing at the bit," Arnett commented after putting his chargers through a workout Wednesday evening.

The Leafs spent almost the entire hour scrimmaging as Arnett had four lines formed and the defencemen were putting in overtime. Gail Holden was between Brian Russill and Buck Crawford, Leroy Mowery was centering Murray Owen and Carl Chwachka and Corky Agar had Don Borgeson and Gary McQuaid on his wings. Brian Randall was taking a regular shift at centre with Wally Chernenko on one line and alternating defenceman on the other wings to form the fourth unit.

And the club was back in high spirits, as they flew around the ice and some solid checks were thrown.

One of the more encouraging sights was Owen. The little right-winger, injured in the last game against Drumheller Miners, wasn't at his best in the first two games against the Spurs, but was flying down the ice during Wednesday's practice.

Arnett will put the club through the paces again tonight from 5:00 - 6:00 and the Leafs will depart for Calgary Friday around noon.

MARTIN WON'T BE IN

"Seth Martin isn't even on our club," was the comment when the Leafs' coach was asked about the rumor of Rossland's Martin playing Saturday night.

Calgary writer George Bilych had written saying "rumors were prevalent that Seth Martin might be in the Nelson nets Saturday."

Bilych went on to say that Martin himself had admitted he might be in goal. But there's no way Martin could play for Nelson.

Arnett stood firm on his beliefs that the Leafs club can make it by themselves without any pickups.

And even if anyone was to be picked up, a goalie certainly wouldn't be on the list of necessities.

Arnett was ever so right when he said "We figure we've got the two best goalies in the league playing for us right now," and facts bear him out. Don Holmes was named the outstanding goalie in the Western International Hockey League after finishing first in the league with a sparkling 2.44 goals against average.

Bill McDonell was named Rookie-of-the-Year in the WIHL for his performance in the nets. He finished second to Holmes with a brilliant 3.16 goals against mark and was a main factor in the Leafs surge to the league championship and the B.C. title.

With two top goalies, going for them, the Leafs have been alternating them throughout the last two series and Holmes is scheduled to start Saturday night.

Reds On Top NL, But Only Visiting Until Cards Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati Reds regained first place in the National League Wednesday, but dropped out again when St. Louis Cardinals handed Houston Astros their 10th straight defeat in a night game 7-2.

The victory put the Cardinals back on top by 17 percentage points over the Reds.

There was a change at the top in the American League with New York Yankees falling out of first by losing to Chicago White Sox.

The Reds downed San Francisco Giants 4-2 on the road for their 11th win against four defeats. Chicago combined Gary Peters' four - hit pitching and Tom McGraw's three-run homer for a 5-1 win over the Yankees.

ONLY ONE AL GAME

Their game at New York was the only one played in the American League. The four scheduled night games between California Angels and Baltimore Orioles at Baltimore, Minnesota Twins and Cleveland Indians at Cleveland, Boston Red Sox and Washington Senators at Washington, and Kansas City Athletics and Detroit Tigers at Detroit were postponed because of rain or cold weather.

New York Mets afternoon game against Chicago Cubs in Chicago in the National League was also postponed because of cold weather.

Deron Johnson's fifth homer of the season started the Reds off against the Giants in the second inning and they built up a 4-0 lead before San Francisco scored its two runs in the seventh.

Peters, a left-hander, pitched four perfect innings against the Yankees. Catcher Elston Howard led off the fifth inning with a single for the Yankees' first hit.

WHITE SOX ERUPTED

A walk to Mickey Mantle, an infield out and Charlie Smith's double gave the Yanks their lone run in the ninth. Peters had enjoyed a 5-0 lead after the White Sox erupted for four runs in the third inning, including McGraw's homer with two on.

Baltimore and Detroit moved into a first place tie in the American League with the Yankees and Boston tied for third, one half game behind.

Four bases on balls plus a forceout and singles by Julian Javier and Dal Maxvill gave St. Louis four runs in the fourth, enough to defeat the Astros at Houston.

Rusty Staub's two-run homer in the fifth accounted for Houston's score.

Habs Lose

THETFORD MINES, Que. (CP) — Toronto Marlboros snatched the limelight from the speedy Thetford Mines Canadiens Wednesday night as the Marlboros trounced the Quebec Junior A Hockey League champs 6-2 in the first game of the best-of-five Eastern Canada Memorial Cup finals.

A standing-room-only crowd in the Thetford Mines Arena cheered as the home team took a brief 2-1 lead in the second period. But then the visitors took over with five unanswered goals.

PITTSBURGH, Pa (AP) — Val Fonteyne scored two unassisted goals, one on his own faceoff, as Pittsburgh Hornets defeated Rochester Americans 7-1 Wednesday night to open the American Hockey League's best-of-seven Calder Cup finals.

Fonteyne gave Pittsburgh a 4-0 lead in the second period by grabbing a loose puck in front of the Rochester nets and shooting it by goalie Bruce Gamble.

Eagles Win Out in East

DRUMMOND VILLE, Que. (CP) — Drummondville Eagles overcame Kingston Aces 3-1 Wednesday night, winning the Eastern Canada Allan Cup final series four games to one and earning the right to meet the Western Canada champions in the finals.

The Allan Cup, symbol of senior hockey supremacy in Canada, will be at stake in a final series between Drummondville and the winner of the western finals between Calgary Spurs and Nelson, B.C., Maple Leafs.

The Kingston club appeared to be on it way to a slim victory for most of the night after Wayne Brown scored for the visitors early in the first period. That one - goal lead lasted through the first two periods. But Rollie Leclair evened it up at the 47-second mark of the third period, and his goal was followed by others from Rejean Richer and Jacques Begin.

Royals Nip Marrs 6-5

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—New Westminster Royals scrambled from behind four times, then struck for the winning goal in overtime to edge Port Arthur Marrs 6-5 Wednesday night in the first game of the best-of-seven Memorial Cup Western Canada final series.

Down 2-0 after just 85 seconds of the first period, Royals fought back before 5,125 fans to force a 10-minute overtime session in which George Watson wrapped up the decision for the British Columbia club with his second goal of the game.

The second game in the junior hockey series will be played here tonight.

Marrs, seeking to reach the Memorial Cup final for the first time in 19 years, dominated the extra period — outshooting Royals 8-2.

But New Westminster, the first B.C. team to reach the western final in 23 years, hung on through the spectacular efforts of goaltender Don Wallis.

No Immediate Arrest If Clay Holds Out

HOUSTON (AP) — Cassius Clay will be free to keep on fighting and preaching for weeks whether or not he takes the oath of army induction Friday, U.S. Attorney Norton Susman said Wednesday.

"There positively will be no immediate arrest," Susman said. "The wheels of justice grind slowly. It will take the government at least 30 to 60 days to complete its actions before an arrest can be made."

Meanwhile, Clay's lawyers continued to exhaust every legal means of preventing criminal action against the heavyweight champion who insists he will risk jail before going into the army.

Their plea for a preliminary hearing today—the day before the scheduled induction — was granted by U.S. District Judge Allen B. Hannay.

They are seeking an injunction forbidding the government from taking any criminal action pending settlement of a lawsuit challenging the makeup of the Selective Service System.

Habs, Leafs Go Again

By AL McNEIL

TORONTO (CP)—The opposing coaches in tonight's fourth game of the Stanley Cup final round both acclaimed their goaltenders Wednesday—but in different fashion.

George Punch Imlach, Toronto Maple Leafs doughty general manager - coach, complimented veteran Johnny Bower in an offhand manner, while Toe Blake, Montreal Canadiens coach, gave rookie Rogatien Vachon a vote of confidence.

The Leafs took a 2-1 lead in the series with a 3-2 win on Bob Pulford's goal at 8::26 of the second overtime stanza here Tuesday night.

The fourth game starts at 8 p.m. EST tonight and will be televised in its entirety on the CBC national network.

Bower and Vachon stole the show Tuesday night, with the Toronto netminder stopping 60 of the 62 shots Canadiens fired at him in the almost 90 minutes of hockey.

If this is all the wagon you need why pay for more.

Next to an average size station wagon, the Volkswagen Station Wagon has one obvious shortcoming.

About 4 feet of it.

So if you make a habit of riding around with 30 suitcases or a 4 x 8 plywood sheet, our wagon isn't for you. Even when the back seat's folded down the Volkswagen can carry only half the stuff you can cram into one of those long jobs.

Which for many people is plenty.

15 suitcases, a folded cot opened up full length. But most of the time most station wagons (including our own), go around practically empty. An old blanket, two empty pop bottles, five chewing gum wrappers and lots of sand is an average load.

So why not carry next-to-nothing in a smaller container. You'll park easier. The 4-foot shorter Volkswagen slips into 4-foot shorter parking spaces.

You'll save on gas. Since you're moving around about 1700 pounds less car, it helps your engine to average about 32 miles on a gallon of regular.

And you'll pay less for the wagon. Since we can't charge you for the 4 feet you didn't get, sometimes half a wagon is better than one.

Mikita, Howell, Orr Take NHL Silver

By AL McNEIL

TORONTO (CP) — Stan Mikita, Chicago Black Hawks centre, today became the first player in National Hockey League history to win three individual trophies in one season. He won $9,000 in bonus money.

Mikita, an eight-year veteran with the Hawks, automatically won the Art Ross Trophy as league scoring champion when he tied the record for most points with 97 and established a record for assists with 62.

The NHL announced that the one-time stormy petrel of the Chicago team had added the Hart and Lady Byng trophies to his collection.

Harry Howell, a veteran of 15 seasons with New York Rangers, won the James Norris Memorial Trophy as the league's top defenceman.

Bobby Orr, 18-year-old rookie sensation with Boston Bruins, won the Calder Trophy.

The Hart Trophy is awarded to the player adjudged most valuable to his team while the Lady Byng award goes to the player best combining sportsmanship and a high standard of playing ability. The Calder goes to the NHL's top newcomer. In each case, the selections are made on the basis of regular-season play only.

Voting for each trophy was conducted among sportswriters and broadcasters in the six NHL cities. There was a poll at the mid-way point in the season and another after the regulation 70 games. The combined total points of these ballots produced the official winners.

The over-all winner in each case receives $1,000 from the NHL; the runners-up get $500 and the leaders in each half $250.

Buddy O'Connor of the Rangers was the first player to win both the Hart and Lady Byng awards during the 1947-48 season. Bobby Hull, the Hawks left wing ace, duplicated O'Connors' feat in 1964-65.

Mikita showed with an equal 84 points in each half in the Hart Trophy voting to lead with a total of 163. Over-all runner-up was Ed Giacomin, New York Rangers netminder with 57 points, including 21 in second-half voting. Hull finished third with 21 points.

Mikita also led both halves of the Lady Byng vote, picking up 66 points in the first half and 79 in the second for a total of 145 points and a 110-point lead over his nearest rival, centre Dave Keon of Toronto Maple Leafs, who collected 35 points.

Keon previously won the trophy in 1961-62 and the 1962-63 season. He nosed out Phil Goyette of Rangers by two points.

Rangers Rod Rilbert and Don Marshal tied for fourth with 31 points.

Mikita in seven previous years averaged more than 100 penalty minutes. He sat out only 12 minutes this season.

This year his combined fine pay and less pugnacious style has netted Mikita award money totalling $9,000. This includes $1,000 for each of the three trophies; $500 as scoring leader in the first half of the season; $250 as runner-up to Hull in the second - half scoring; a total $1,000 as leader in each half in both the Lady Byng and Hart Trophy voting; $500 as a member of the first all star team for the first half of the season; $2,250 as his share of the Hawks first NHL championship; and $1,500 as his share of Chicago's semi-final loss to Toronto.

Howell is the second Ranger to win the Norris Trophy in its 14-year history. Doug Harvey, playing-coach with New York in 1961-62 after an illustrious career with Montreal Canadiens, was the previous winner. Harvey won the trophy six times while with Montreal.

It is Howell's first league award and he edged captain Pierre Pilote of Chicago by 18 points to earn it. Howell collected 79 points when he led in the first-half voting and another 34 in the second half. Pilote finished with 95 points, including 63 in the second half.

Orr finished third with 36 points, 26 of which he got on a strong second-half performance.

Orr crashed into the NHL with more fanfare than any other player since Jean Beliveau joined Montreal Canadiens in the 1953-54 season.

By season's end even the rookie's severest critics had been won over by his take-charge role on the Boston blueline. He is the first Bruin to receive a trophy since 1960 when Don McKenney won the Lady Byng.

Orr came within 12 points of unanimous selection. He led in the first half with 80 points and the second half with 88 of a possible 90.

His total 168 points almost totally eclipsed his nearest rival—Chicagos Ed Van Impe—whose fine defensive work earned him a total of 86 points. Brian Conacher of Toronto was third with 57 points. He is the son of the late Lionel Conacher, Canada's athlete of the first half-century.

Following are complete voting results for each of the four points system. A unanimous vote consists of 90 points in each half.

Hart Trophy: Stan Mikita, Chicago, 34-84—168; Ed Giacomin, New York, 36-21—57; Bobby Hull, Chicago, 2-19—21; Henri Richard, Montreal, 0-16—16; Harry Howell, New York, 13-1—14; Bobby Orr, Boston, 4-7—11; Rod Gilbert, New York, 10-0—10; Gordie Howe, Detroit, 2-8—10; Red Kelly, Toronto, 7-0—7; Phil Goyette, New York, 0-3—3; Denis DeJordy, Chicago, 0-3—3; Bernie Geoffrion, New York, 2-0—2; Paul Henderson, Detroit, 1-0—1; Yvan Cournoyer, Montreal, 1-0—1.

Canadian Girl Seeks World Rallying Title

DEFENDING CHAMPION ROSEMARY SMITH

THREE-TIME WINNER DIANA CARTER-POLIVKA

ENGLAND'S GLAMOROUS ANITA TAYLOR

Two women who design their own clothes and believe that makeup is important on the road meet Canada's top woman rallyist in the Centennial Car Rally May 3-10. One will become, unofficially, the world's No .1 woman rallyist.

Rosemary Smith of Dublin, Ireland, who won the Coupe des Dames in the 1966 Shell 4000, is back to defend her title in a Sunbeam Imp. England's Anita Taylor, rated Europe's most glamorous race driver, will pilot a Ford Cortina, the car that swept the over-all and team titles last year. Diana Carter-Polivka, three-time winner of the Coupe des Dames, will drive a Rambler American as part of the new American Motors team.

All three girls believe that, since motor sport is usually considered a male domain, girls who compete must never forget they are female.

Blonde, 28-year-old Rosemary wears clothes of her own design and likes Marcel Rochas perfume. In fact, Rosemary earns her living in fashion design and rallies for pleasure. Anita devises her own driving clothes and wears Christian Dior scents. Diana's driving wardrobe is professionally designed — "that's what they're paid to do, I'm in the magazine business" — and she favors perfumes by Yves St. Laurent.

As well as rallying, the three have impressive racing records. Mrs. Carter-Polivka has been Canada's top woman racer since 1960 and hopes to retain the title on the circuits this summer. Miss Smith has entered such events as the Daytona Continental 24-hour endurance run. Miss Taylor, who started racing in 1960 and has several European victories to her credit, scored a class win last December at Nassau Speed Week.

Teamed with Anita is Mrs. Terry Gillies, who navigated for Diana last year. Anne Coombe is back with Rosemary, while Diana will have as co-driver Barbara Jean Jack, 1964 Canadian women's rally champion.

The three women's teams are in different classes and Diana says this could prove decisive. "Rosemary is in class 1 (cars up to 1000 cc) and she has a decided edge in the closed sections. Anita is in class 3 and has to compete against others of the Ford team. Class 5, my group, is always tough."

In closed sections, entrants compete against target times and are penalized three points for each minute slower than target. Each of the six classes has different target times. There are 12 closed sections this year.

If Rosemary has a class edge, Diana thinks her own starting position gives her a break. She is 10th to leave the Vancouver starting ramp, while Anita is 22nd and Rosemary 49th. Early starters run fewer risks on muddy back roads than those further down the list.

There are 99 entrants in the 4500 mile Vancouver to Montreal run, ending at Expo 67, and organizer Jim Gunn is confident his route will justify the increased interest shown this year.

Total prize money exceeds $15,000 and one of the three women could collect up to $2200 by taking over-all, Coupe des Dames and class awards. An additional $300 could be awarded for a team win.

Your Individual Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, April 28, 1967

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) — Magnetic Mars forces stimulate your ambitions, energy and desire to be "in the middle of things." Fine! But choose your route carefully, and be discriminating in all activities. Don't waste precious time and talents on worthless undertakings.

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus) — You can do more with the weekend than may seem possible at this moment. There will be plenty of opportunities to advance your status — both personal and business. They merely need uncovering.

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) — Responsibilities you did not anticipate? Tackle regular duties first, then take on what you can — within reason. Overcrowding your schedule and rushing to the point of distraction won't get you anywhere.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) — You may not accomplish ALL you hope to, but don't quit! Keep your hand on the wheel and keep pressing forward — to make SOME gains! If you falter or give up, your net result will be zero.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo) — Day may not be exciting but, if you look in the right places, you will find more than adequate reason for rejoicing. Get an early start!

AUGUST 24 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo) — Sidestep any activity that could hamper your forward movement. And remember that forward movement includes thinking as well as acting. You may encounter unexpected situ*ations; much good, too.*

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra) — Getting preliminaries out of the way thoroughly, but not fussily, will be your main line to success now. Emphasize co-ordination, accuracy, foresight. Personal interests highly favored.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 22 (Scorpio) — A strong Mars aspect will help you with difficult tasks, if managed properly. It's not like you to shirk responsibilities, but you may a such a tendency now. Don't! You CAN accomplish !

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 21 (Sagittarius) — A fine Jupiter configuration stimulates your adaptability and inventiveness; heightens your imagination. Much can be done on a day such as this! Don't fail yourself.

DECEMBER 22 to JANUARY 20 (Capricorn) — You may find yourself waiting for opportunity while actually standing still. This must not be! Take the reins and drive on toward your goals. *Employ any usable idea, me*thod, but do ACT!

January 21 to FEBRUARY 19 (Aquarius)— An excellent day in which to display your competence in home, office or other areas which need your presence and skills. But do not try to cover too much territory at once.

FEBRUARY 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces) — Look over all situations comprehensively, penetratingly. Then, coupling your native intelligence and remarkable intuition, ACT — if you feel the time is ripe.

YOU BORN TODAY: Others often wonder how you manage to "fall into" glorious opportunities for attainment but, actually, it's your innate shrewdness and fine business acumen which lead you to such "unbelievable" finds. You are one of those rare persons who combine idealism with realistic know-how, and your successes seem to know no end. Many Taureans engage in two occupations at once; some have several careers in sequence — and succeed in all. Taureans make excellent musicians, writers, artists, scientists, botanists, teachers and horticulturists. Birthdate of: James Monroe, 5th Pres., U.S.A.

Money to Vanish, Credit Expert Predicts

VANCOUVER (CP) — The cashless society will probably be a fact of economic life in North America within 15 years, says a consumer credit authority.

William Henry Blake of St. Louis, executive vice-president of the International Consumer Credit Association, adds that the cashless society will also mean the chequeless society.

Mr. Blake made the predictions while here to arrange for an international credit conference expected to bring 1,200 delegates to Vancouver in June.

He spoke of plans for a master computer operation which will keep track of credit cards and allow consumers anywhere in North America to make purchases in about a minute—the time it will take to check the customer's credit rating.

"People will be paying their bills from their homes by using telephones to transmit information to machines at their banks. The machines will automatically authorize payment of funds and at the same time produce a record of the transaction for the caller."

This procedure would cover trips to the supermarket where a clerk on the checkout counter would insert the customer's card into an electronic apparatus connected with the customer's bank account. The food bill would automatically be deducted from the purchaser's account and added to the store's.

Stamp To Commemorate Canadian Press Birthday

OTTAWA (CP)—A commemorative five-cent stamp marking the 50th anniversary of The Canadian Press will be issued Aug. 31, the post office department announced Tuesday.

The horizontal stamp, printed in varying shades of blue on white, features an outline of the Western Hemisphere.

*The Canadian Press, the co*operative news-gathering and news-distributing association of Canada's daily newspapers, was formed in 1917 and has grown to a $5,000,000-a-year operation serving 103 papers.

CP has provided news to the CBC since 1933 and private broadcasters since 1941.

Since 1951 CP has given its French language members a service in French, described by then prime minister St. Laurent at its inauguration as a major event in Canada's development as a nation.

The hemisphere appears on a flattened oval, crossed by a *strip bearing the words "Anni*versary," "50" and "Anniversaire."

RUN FOR LIFE—Grounded 30 months ago by a serious cardiac diagnosis, Air Force Capt. Arthur Yarrington started running up to 25 miles a day under medical supervision at Scott Air Force Base, Ill., and ran an estimated 5,000 miles. The conditioning developed his heart enough that flight surgeons put him back into his fighter plane—cont.

B.C. Briefs

GRANT APPROVED

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Children's Aid Society of Vancouver announced Wednesday that the minister of national health and welfare Allan MacEachen has approved a research project grant of $5,150.

SEASON STARTS

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Forest Service announced Wednesday B.C.'s 1967 forest season will go into effect at midnight April 30 and continue until the end of October. The service said that the lighting of all outdoor fires requires a permit.

MARKET TRENDS

TORONTO (CP) — Interprovincial Pipe Line was the feature of a fractionally higher market Wednesday at the close of moderate trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Interprovincial rose 6 to a 1967 high of 110. Interprovincial Pipe Line warrants were up 4½ to a 1967 high of 42½.

Oils and gases experienced a general decline as the western oil index dipped 1.84 to 157.83. Canadian Superior slipped 1¾ to 33¾, Banff and Pacific Petroleum ⅜ each to 13¼ and 14 and Home A and Imperial Oil declined ⅛ each to 20⅛ and 59¾.

Automobile stocks rebounded. GMC moved up 3 to a 1967 high of 90, Ford of Canada 1 to 137½ and Chrysler of Canada ¼ to 47¼.

ITL Industries and Magna Electronics declined with ITL off ¼ to 27⅛ and Magna 1¼ to 17¾ after touching a 1967 high of 19¼ earlier in the session.

Uranium activity resumed its upward move. Denison advanced 1 to 64½, Roman Corp. and Rio Algom ⅜ each to 17⅛ and 30 and Preston ⅛ to 17¾.

On index, industrials rose .89 to 167.60, base metals .38 to 93.28 and golds declined .49 to 151.37. Volume at the close was 3,109,000 shares compared with 3,567,000 traded at the same time Tuesday.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Stock Exchange enjoyed a busy day Wednesday with 3,195,352 shares traded on a day of mixed prices.

Both industrials and pipelines averages rose but mining issues, which account for the bulk of the trade, fell.

Industrials closed at 158.55, up .26, and pipelines closed up .60 at 138.94. Mines fell .63 to 176.03.

In mining issues Adera closed at $1.52, up .24, Copper Ridge closed up .05 at .41 and Galaxy Copper closed unchanged at .42.

In the oils, Bata Resources closed up .28 at $2.88, Futurity closed at .33, up .02, and Midland closed down .01 at .09½.

On the industrials board, Pacific Western Airlines closed unchanged at $10.50. Commonwealth Acceptance closed up .40 at $1.50, Delta Electronics closed up .15 at $2.90 and Westcoast Transmission closed at $27.75, up .75.

The first paper mill in the United Kingdom was established in 1490.

Cominco Net Earnings Down

MONTREAL (CP)—Net earnings for the first quarter of 1967 for Cominco Ltd. are estimated at $10,400,000 or 62 cents a share compared with $12,200,000 or 73 cents a share in the corresponding 1966 period, W. S. Kirkpatrick, chairman and chief executive officer of the company, told the annual meeting Wednesday.

Estimated sales of all products were up to $58,000,000 from $52,900,000 in the first three months of 1965.

Income and mining taxes were $2,700,000 against $5,100,000.

Net earnings of Cominco for 1966 had also shown a moderate decrease, in spite of greater production and record sales, said Mr. Kirkpatrick. He attributed this to many factors, the most important being a cyclical decline in world prices for lead and zinc due to the increasing supplies of these metals and an increase in unit costs which seriously outstripped gains in productivity.

The mined production of lead and zinc reached an all-time high of 545,000 tons in 1966, most of which was treated in the metallurgical facilities at Trail, B.C. Pine Point Mines has been a major factor in this increase, said Mr. Kirkpatrick. Pine Point now was being expanded by 3,000 tons a day.

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market was higher at the close of moderate trading Wednesday.

On index, industrials gained .89 to 167.60, golds fell .49 to 151.37, base metals climbed .38 to 93.28 and western oils dipped 1.84 to 157.83.

What's everybody in B.C. saying about this popular whisky?

Cheers. And you'll cheer too once you've tried Walker's Special Old. You'll like the mellow smoothness and the look of luxury. No wonder it's one of Canada's favourites.
